Exchange Student Finds New Friends At Burk High

Fusae Nagasawa

It didn't take long for Burk Burnett's exchange student from Japan long to form an opinion of America and Americans.

"Wonderful," was the expression voiced by Fusae Nagasawa, a brand-new student in the senior class at Burk High.

Miss Nagasawa, 18, has ambitions of being a secretary or a linguist and a pursual of her high school transcripts from the Girls High Secondary School at Kawagoe, Japan, show her to be very talented and an alert student—she ranked at the top of her class.

Fusae was brought to Texas under the sponsorship of Sgt. and Mrs. J. A. Brumfield, who have just completed a four-year tour of duty in Japan.

They lived near the Nagasawa family and visited in each others homes. Fusae also became a close companion of the Brumfield's daughter, Vicki. Vicki is a junior at BHS.

Vicki and her pal enjoyed traveling and skiing in Japan. While skiing is out of the question for North Texas, both girls will be able to continue another hobby, swimming.

Preparations for the sponsorship were completed quickly. It took just a few weeks to complete them, and Fusae was winging her way to Texas.

"Everyone on the trip was so helpful," she said. She received almost personal attention to the proper gates at every change of planes, and everyone went out of their way to help. She arrived in Wichita Falls Friday, slightly upset and very tired.

After a good rest, she enrolled at BHS Monday, where her studies include English, typing, civics, physical education, and American history.

She has an older sister and a younger brother at home, both of whom are anxiously awaiting word of her progress.

While she is somewhat accustomed to American ways, she is eager to learn more about the social activities and living habits of Americans in their natural habitat.

But she is sure to love it, judging from the attentions and courtesies shown her during her short time in Texas, she avows.

LEER PLANT EXCEEDS GOAL

IRV SMITH

Production at the Leer Manufacturing plant in Burk Burnett has exceeded its goal of 25%, Irv Smith, manager, reported Tuesday.

The report was made when Smith spoke of the plant's activities to the Burk Burnett Lions Club.

Leer started in operation in 1953, Smith said, at New Lisbon, Wisconsin, and produced less than 100 ice merchandising machines during that first year.

The Burk plant has been in operation about a year. During the past year, both plants produced more than 5,000 units.

Smith, a Lion himself, was introduced by John Parrish, also with the Burk plant.

During the meeting, Dan Shaffner, director of curriculum for the Burk Burnett Independent School system, was initiated as a new member, and installed by Don Youngblood.

Travel on controlled-access divided highways is considered 2.5 times as safe as undivided primary highways.

BURK'S VAMVORAS STILL LEADING BRONC RIDERS

DENVER, Colo.—The Mayo brothers of Grinnell, Ia., performed their own special brand of operating at the Pendleton, Ore., Roundup. They won the bareback bronc and bull riding events—worth a combined $2,647.

Paul Mayo, 26, pocketed $1,509 in bull riding and another $125 in bareback bronc riding, while younger brother, Bob, 25, garnered $1,1013 in the latter event. The Roundup ended last weekend.

The wins were significant for both men, the Rodeo Cowboys Association said today.

Bob moved into second place in the race for the 1968 bareback bronc riding event, passing former champion Jim Houston of Omaha, Neb., but still trailing the reigning champion, Clyde Vamvoras of Burk Burnett. Vamvoras placed second in the event at Pendleton, worth $883, and brought his season's tally to $20,722. Mayo has $18,098.

Paul was the 1966 bareback riding titlist, runnerup in 1965, and is currently ranked fourth. His bull riding win at Pendleton brought him into 16th place in world standings in that event.

Only the top 15 cowboys in each event—based on money won during the year—qualify for the classic National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 30-Dec. 8.

More than $70,000 and world championships are at stake at the Finals, and it is anticipated that Paul will press hard qualification.

A PLACE IN THE SUNBusiness enterprises that move with the tide of change generally prosper and continue to grow. A brochure of the nation's largest express company tracing its history from the early 1800's to the present clearly shows how one business took change in stride during a century that witnessed the greatest material progress in human history.During the express business' formative stages, wheel-barrows and carpetbags comprised the heart of a "pickup" and delivery" fleet. Horse-drawn wagons were the next step in modernization. The horse provided express motive power for more than half a century. As the rail network extended across the country, express became synonymous with speed and reliability, and express business along with the jobs that depended upon it appeared established for all time. But, technology upset the applecart, and new metropolitan areas sprang up virtually overnight. The transportation network expanded by land and by air.Once again the express business is fighting for a place in the sun, so far as transportation is concerned. Its new Hub city system for handling shipments is but a part of the new scene of things. When the dust of change momentarily settles, chances are excellent that express, like other enterprises that are determined to move with the times, will be carrying on stronger than ever before.
The moral is plain. There is no alternative to moving ahead, and for this we are fortunate, or we might still be living in caves.According to the National Association of Manufacturers, "Reaction to staggering budget deficits and accelerating inflation has clearly indicated that people are beginning to question and resist uncontrolled growth of the public sector. It's time for the people to speak up and demand economy in government."Keep pace with customer demands for natural gas is expensive business, says the American Gas Association.
Local gas distribution companies are expected to spend nearly $1 billion in 1968 to extend their systems and replace older facilities.Only electricity

FOOD FACTS AND FALLACIES — I

Maybe it's because the science of modern nutrition is so very young. It was, after all, only some fifty years ago that vitamins were identified. And the explosion of nutrition knowledge since then is nowhere near understood — even by many of the scientists themselves.

Whatever, there may be more fallacies believed about food than any other topic.

Too Much Misinformation

Listen to this, from an American Dietetic Association publication: "Magical properties and beneficial qualities have been attributed to foods by peoples from the earliest days of recorded history. Each era and each nationality has discarded some of them and introduced others which have proved to be equally baseless. Merely the varieties have changed with the passage of years. The twentieth century has its own diversified brands of food misinformation despite the dramatic development of the sciences of nutrition and medicine."

Let's Debunk The Fallacies

So let's debunk some of the fallacies.

The idea that certain foods can cause arthritis or cure it is ridiculous. Extensive research has failed to show that the absence or presence of any food or vitamin will either cause or cure any form of arthritis. Careful medical examination of people who claim to have been helped with trick diets would show that most of them are self-diagnosed arthritics.

Many people believe that milk and cheese are constipating. This is not true. These excellent foods are easily digested and they leave little residue. Physicians know that if the diet is lacking in the foods that provide bulk or roughage, constipation can result, but this is regardless of whether milk and cheese have been eaten.

Brain Foods?

Brain foods? Fish, nutmeg, and other foods have been called brain foods by faddists. But, as the AMA Department of Foods and Nutrition says, there is no such thing as a brain food any more than there is "little toe food" or a "left ear food."

Eat oysters for sexual potency? Oysters, olives, lean meat, and raw eggs — these foods are often mentioned as having special powers in this category. These foods, as well as all other foods, contribute toward health and well being, but they do not have special properties which increase sexual potency. More on these fallacies next week.

The Texas Baptist plan to distribute more than a million Bibles in the month of October. The circle also voted to buy a lunch ticket for a needy school child.

Research study of the book of Romans was outlined and presented to the members by Mrs. Howard McCrary. Special attention was given to Paul's missionary obligation, the missionary needs, and the missionary means and result. The meeting was dismissed in prayer by Mrs. I. C. Evans.

Members present and enjoying refreshments were Mesdames H. S. Butts, O. Quattlebaum, I. C. Evans, Howard McCrary, Jack Robinson, James Taylor, Clifford Wilmon, Ray Flippin, Raymond Smart and the hostess, Mrs. R. P. Thaxton.

Dr. Newell C. Kephart, will be in Wichita Falls on October 14 to make a dinner address that is open to all educators, doctors, parents and others concerned with child development.

Dr. Kephart's appearance is being sponsored by the Easter Seal Society of North Texas, of which Mr. James Frye is a board member.

The dinner will be held at 7:00 p.m. at the Woman's Forum, 2120 Speedway, Wichita Falls. Tickets may be purchased in advance by writing the North Texas Rehabilitation Center, 516 Denver Street, Wichita Falls, Texas 76301. Tickets will cost $3.35.

Dr. Kephart will discuss "Learning Disorders in Children". This is a perceptual-or hidden-handicap which is estimated to affect, to some degree, a significant number of school children today.

Dr. Kephart had been one of the leading educators in the study of this handicap and, until this summer, was executive director of the Achievement Center for Children at Purdue. At the university, he was also professor of education.

Author of "The Slow Learner in The Classroom," he has also written numerous other books and 65 articles dealing with this subject.

He was the invited lecturer of Kappa Delta Pi in 1968, and he holds memberships in and serves on the board of many national and local organizations concerned with psychology, education and learning disabilities.

CROWDED SOCIETY BLAMED FOR DRUG ADDICTION TODAY

Society has no more room for real adolescence, according to one authority.

Ed Pope, Extension human development specialist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, blamed such an attitude for much of the drug use and "youth revolution" today. He said a youth doesn't have time to grow up gradually at his own pace.

"Youth are thrust from childhood into adulthood too fast in our culture," Pope said in an interview at Texas A&M University.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Shaw spent from Friday until Sunday afternoon visiting Mrs. Ed Shaw and family of Muleshoe, Texas. One of his uncles, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Shaw of Littlefield, Texas, also visited with them in Muleshoe.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Babers Sunday evening. "They have no time to discover a real sense of identity."

But youth has always been searching for their place, Pope said. They have just quit swallowing goldfish and wearing raccoon coats.

Many turn to drugs for "kicks" and to help in their search. Although they are not new, drugs are getting the attention today.

Why? Pope said that through modern communications and the nation's emphasis on science, youth know a great deal more a great deal earlier in life than they ever did before.

From this combination of greater knowledge about everything and less time to digest it gradually, arise confusion, conflict and protest in all forms, from drug use to college campus revolts, he said.

CRUISE IN THE OFF-SEASON

Although most people prefer to take their cruise during the peak of the season for all the glamour, excitement, and crowds it offers, others enjoy the quiet and restfulness of the off season cruise. Tourists are not present in such great numbers; interesting places can be visited more leisurely and at greater length.

Some people prefer to pray only when they are in church or at some great public gathering where the prayers are led for them. But our Lord said to pray in the "off-season." He said, "But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly." The real joys of prayer are truly found when you are praying alone with God. The scripture says to be instant in season and out of season.

The church would encourage you to pray both in church and at home. Prayer can uphold, support, and strengthen our churches, ourselves, and our country.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

SENSING THE NEWS

THE PUBLIC TEMPER

While the candidates for the Presidency have many weeks of campaigning ahead of them, it is increasingly clear that the public's frame of mind, which will decide the election, already is set. From one coast to another, from the big cities to quiet rural areas, the broad outline of public opinion is discernible.

To be sure, there are the pockets of hard core radicalism. There is the feverish action of the diehard McCarthyite supporters trying to create a so-called New Party as a vehicle for their leftwing extremism. There are the entrenched eggheads of the Left who have a haughty attitude towards the thinking of the man in the street. And there are the political bosses who hope that the precinct machines can herd disciplined masses to the polls and make them continue the "liberal" status quo.

But the signs of the time are that the public already has spoken in a quiet way—that the wants of the great majority of voters have been charted. Obviously, this majority hasn't made up its mind in detail as to various proposals advanced by the candidates. That's not the way public opinion works. But the broad outline—the pattern—exists.

First of all, there is a clear enough majority attitude with respect to the war in Vietnam. There is a great unhappiness about the American deaths in that conflict and about the continuing cost of the struggle. There is a feeling that the political conduct of the war has been a mess. But there also is a strong feeling among the American people that a pull-out is unthinkable, that defeat in Vietnam is intolerable and the United States cannot abandon Southeast Asia to communism under the guise of "negotiations."

The public attitude towards law and order certainly is very clearly formed. The Democrats' disastrous convention, in which hordes of "yuppies" conducted a vast propaganda operation in downtown Chicago with the eager cooperation of television reporters and cameramen, solidified the public mood on law and order.

There seems to be the widest agreement among millions of Americans that anarchism has to be curbed and that small groups of so-called "alienated" citizens cannot be permitted to disrupt cities with their obscene shouts and their total contempt for the decencies of society.

For the short runs, the televised "yippie" demonstrations in Chicago, which provoked police action, produced a harvest of sympathetic comment from the professional bleeding hearts in America. But the principal indication is that in the long run the radicals will lose, for the sympathies of the majority of citizens are with the harassed and abused Chicago policemen who defined the public order.

Finally, public opinion has hardened on the subject of inflation. The average American—perhaps it is better to call him the "forgotten American"—is aware of and angry about the spread of inflation. The average working man and his wife may not be familiar with the latest economic theories, but they can understand the decline in value of the weekly pay check. They get the connection between the wasteful federal programs, which lavish aid on the indolent, and the decline in value of their income.

Millions of Americans now have a clear understanding that federal waste is depriving them of things that they deserve by virtue of their hard work. They also get the connection with the Great Society, and apparently realize that four more years of "liberal" government will further erode the prosperity of white collar and blue collar Americans.

Gauging the public temper usually is a very difficult task, and observers are foolish if they try to pinpoint the specifics in the public's attitude. But the general mood of the American people can be discerned.

In 1952, the people obviously were sick and tired of the long, bitter years of the New Deal and the Fair Deal. They had enough, and they voted for conservative change. This year the same temper is being manifested in a variety of ways. Only this time the radicals are much more threatening than in 1952. The people who hate the American way of life are out in the open—in the streets chanting obscenities at policemen and resorting to other direct action revolutionary methods as well.

Good citizens can get a very clear idea of the road ahead if the policies of "liberalism" are continued for the next few years, especially the policy of appeasement of domestic anarchists. It is reasonable to conclude that this year the majority of Americans will decisively react to the anarchist threat when they go to the polls.

ARTFUL CAMOUFLAGE

Three-dimensional patterns of Southern Pine paneling creates attractive background and artful camouflage for storage-type room partitions enclosing television sets, hi-fi and household appliances.

There is a slight spacing between panels so that thickness is visible. This achieves a striking impression of dimension in depth with shadows and highlights.
