Don't Forget the Donkey Soft Ball Game Mon.

Those that were here some two years ago will remember the soft ball game played on donkeys which was played in the south part of the city, of the many thrills and spills, most the later, that made the most pessimistic, sourpuss open up and give us a real old deep belly laugh, the kind that makes one forget aches and pains, business reverses, or even that the iceman has run off with your wife.

When a crack team from Meadow ties onto the local agregation of Lions, the fur will fly, and the donkey will kick and pitch for they are the one animal in the world that absolutely refuses to be hurried. Then too, the cause is good and just. The Lions are undertaking to fit up three local blind women and girls in business in the new Postoffice building when it is completed as well as other places. So every dollar you spend will be a good turn.

This game is scheduled to start at 9:15 o'clock, Monday night, August 29. The time was moved up so as not to interfere with the meeting being held by the local Baptist church. Admission to the game will be 25c for adults and 10c for children.

We do not happen to have the Meadow lineup, but here is the locals that will crack down on Meadow:

W. A. Tittle, Catcher.
R. A. Simms, Pitcher.
Gladys Green 1st Base.
Burton Hackney, 2nd Base.
Clyde Coleman, 3rd Base.
Bruce Zorns, Shortstop.
Emmett Smith, Right Field.
R. N. McClain, Center Field.
Ralph Bynum and Troy Noel, Towel and Sponge Carriers.
Ike Breedlove, Water Boy.
Ches Gore and Joe Price, Stretcher Bearers.
Raymond Taylor, Score Recorder.
Chas. Dial, Cryer.
"Blue John" Pittman, Tail Twister.

Marriages and Births Of 3 Generations

The Herald has been on the job in Terry county now for more than 34 years, or really before the county set up housekeeping for itself, having been started as the Terry County Voice in Gomez in 1903, and moved and renamed the Terry County Herald, when Brownfield won the county seat in 1904. In that time, it has reported the births, marriages and sometimes the deaths in three generations.

For instance, back in 1910, the writer attended the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hardin, and wrote up the affair. About two years later, we reported the arrival of little Miss Robbie Marion Hardin, who grew into womanhood here. Some four or five years ago we reported her marriage to Basil Webb. This week, we are reporting the arrival of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Webb.

In time, The Herald, Terry's oldest private institution, will probably report the graduation and marriage this young laddie, born Monday, August 22, which is just one day before that of the writer's birthday, which the family celebrated Tuesday. We tried to forget it. We may not be here to report these things, but no doubt others will carry on the work, boosting and reporting the history of this grand old county.

Gordon Bros. Building Going Right Up

The brick and tile building for the new Gordon Brother's Safety Tire Shop, is going up very rapidly. It is being built around their present location, a small wooden building, as well as a filling station next door east. The new tire shop is located just west of the Gulf Station on west Main. Roy Wingerd, contractor.

Gordon Bros. handle the famous line of U. S. tires and tubes, and have only been in business here a few years, yet they have built up an inevitable reputation for good and prompt service, as well as prompt adjustments where needed. Their new building is an answer to their wish for expansion.

Some $60,000 to Be Spent On Extensions

Brownfield city has a very low assessment for taxes, and the rate was not high, but with a growing city, it was found that the assessment should be upped and the rate downed, in order to make the liabilities of the city appear less in comparison with the wealth of the city. Therefore the assessment was hiked and the rate lowered 40 per cent. This left taxes somewhere near where they were last yar. We have seen none who have been raised. We have one of the lowest city tax rates in this section.

In conversation with Mayor Clyde Coleman, Tuesday afternoon, he informed the Herald that application was pending with a good possibility of being approved, a loan and grant of $60,000 from the PWA to be used for sewer and water extensions. Not more than $4,000 of this amount, he stated, will be required for the sewerage extensions, in order to reach any outlaying area where residential construction is now under way, or contemplated. The rest, some $55,000 will be used to extend water service.

Brownfield has sufficient footage of six inch and better water mains to care for a city of 2500 only, and in two more years a new census will be taken when the population will probably be 5000 or better, 100 per cent of the allowable amount of mains and fire plugs. But with the proposed extensions, it is hoped we will have sufficient footage and fire plugs to care for a city of some 10,000 people.

Among the improvements contemplated will be a new tower and reservoir with a capacity much larger than the old reservoir. The new tower and water storage, may be located at the new well on south Fifth Street, according to Mr. Coleman, but that will be left up to the engineers, he stated. Sections not reached at present by six inch mains or larger, will be served, together with fire plugs, if possible not further than 500 feet from any residence.

Mr. Coleman stated that the city could not do everything at one time, but that as soon as possible the city would erect permanent street markers. The old ones were wood, and were soon destroyed. Concerning sidewalk building, Mr. Coleman authorized us to state that anyone desiring to build sidewalks, the city would have the engineer to locate corners as well as elevations.

This is a very important step, as the fact that we do not have enough sidewalks, is holding up city delivery of mail. Let us build some sidewalks over the city. Uncle Sam is willing to grant us city delivery if and when we build them.

Ground Broken For New P. O. Building

Wednesday morning, August 24th, was an epocal period for the city of Brownfield, for at eight o'clock, workmen with teams, plows and fresnos begin moving a great lot of dirt which will comprise a basement 60x60 feet, and some eight feet deep. There was no ceremony of any kind, local people prefering to wait until corner stone laying time, or perhaps when the building is dedicated.

This building and site to cost $75,000, was let to Martin Conustruction Co., of Kansas City, Mo. H. L. Cosby will be the construction superintendent. Building for material and tools was constructed last week. Rich W. Prendergast is the engineer in charge, representing the postoffice department.

Contractors have 220 days from the time the contract was let to finish the building, we understand. Location, corner Fifth and Hill streets, adjoining the Rio Theatre.

Bowers Shows Scenes Of Their Vacation

Using a small but efficient projector machine, Bob Bowers showed a small crowd of his friends several hundred feet of scenes visited by he and family this summer, as well as several local scenes, most of them in colors. This was very interesting, especially scenes in the northwest, including Wyoming, Montana, Oregon, Washington, and British Columbia. Also the Black Hill section of South Dakota.

Supt. M. L. H. Baze also showed a few hundred feet of his trip to the scenic portions of New Mexico and the coast section of Texas, this summer. To one who has not had a vacation, this was the next thing to it. Ice cold melons were served to the guests, on the yard lawn, where the movies were also shown.

Miss Elsie Marcy visited her mother in Lubbock, Sunday.

District Court Now in Summer Session Here

The grand jury was empanneled Monday morning at 9:30 by Judge Louis B. Reed and after being sworn in for the term, was put to work under the direction of District Attorney, Truett Smith of Tahoka, to ferreting out crime, and returning bills of indictment where the evidence is sufficient.

The following twelve of the 16 men who were called to do grand jury service, were accepted, and J. B. Knight was appointed as foreman: Fred Smith, Hayden Griffin, J. B. Knight, Joe Chisholm, T. B. Innman, J. E. Hall, G. O. Pendergrass, W. M. Coor, Walter Luker, T. C. Garner, Willie McDonald, J. T. Pippin.

Judge Reed announced that while the South Plains section had about the smallest crime record of any section, there was many complaints on file in Terry county at the present time, and that it was the duty of grand jurymen under our system of government to do their full duty, as no criminal can be convicted without an indictment.

Therefore, the grand jury in a way stands between the public and the criminal as protector of the former, and any let down in the duty of one or more grand jury session, usually means that the next one will have double work. However, he told them not to let prejudice of themselves, or the prejudice of people in any community hold sway over them, causing the return of an indictment that will not stand up in court, or that would cause the innocent to suffer.

Tuesday and the balance of this week, civil cases, such as divorce suits, suits to clear land titles, etc., will be heard.

Grand jury baliff were as follows: J. D. Bailey, door; Tom Howard, Kelly Sears and T. G. Sexton, were the riding baliffs.

The first week of petit jurymen will start Monday, but we presume they will handle civil cases mostly, the third week usually being criminal week.

This County May Tie In With Police Radio

With the opening up of the police radio station KNFA, at Clovis, N. M., designed to serve 17 counties in west Texas and eastern New Mexico, the Herald quizzed Sheriff Ches Gore on what steps Terry county had taken to tie in. Needless to state that Ches is rearing for the service, and believes it will have an immediate effect on criminals, they knowing the presence of quick and efficient communications with officers all over the section, will make crime a very non-paying business.

Ches stated that he had already equipped his car for the service, and had talked with the Commissioners about installing a receiving set in the courthouse, but that they had taken no action at this time. We understand that the service will cost Terry county $25.00 per month, and for one, the Herald believes it will be money well invested.

This $25.00 goes to pay for the operation and maintenance of the station at Clovis. Criminals knowing that hundreds of officers will be right on their necks in a few minutes after a crime is committed, with all roads blocked, will think twice before they run the risk, according to our way of thinking.

Local School People Appear in Film in Abilene

It is not generally know that one of the reels of films made by the local school is being used in a senior college for training in a course in visual education for teachers. Incidently, too, this film is being shown in the city of Abilene at certain business concerns to show the value of the camera and projector in the family life. Recent reports from that town stated :"I saw your school children in a safety film at one of the drug stores recently." The film has been loaned to the college for teaching purposes.

All old members are urged to be present. All pupils who have music out are urged to bring it to the school building for practice.

The Rio Theatre Building Nears Completion

The Rio Theatre building the third of a local chain belonging to Earl E. Jones, is nearing completion. In fact the exterior is practically finished, lacking only the placing of the, glass trimmings in the front portion. Just when the new theatre will open, has not been set, but in all liklihood will be finished by the time Mr. Jones contemplates opening.

Roy Wingerd, contractor, informed us Monday that plastering and interior finishings, together with hardwood floors, would start at once, and finished as soon as possible. The floors have considerable more slope than usual, and should make it easy to see over the head of those in front of one.

Mr. Jones built the Riolto back in the 20ties, and two years ago built the Ritz, and as stated above, the new one will be the Rio, thus giving him three R's, same as "reading and 'riting and 'rithmetic."

FOUR-SQUARE GOSPEL PEOPLE IN MEETING HERE

A new sect in Brownfield, which we understand is the Four-Square

MISS IRENE LEE, Evangelist

Gospel folks, have completed a large tabernacle on Lubbock Ave., of rough lumber, and a revival meeting is now under way.

A lady is doing the preaching, and the attendance seems to be increasing. We understand they will stucco the building before cold weather.

Some 50 Local Ladies Attend Canning School

Some fifty ladies of the city and community attended the canning sponsored in this city by J. B. Knight Hardware, conducted by Miss Eugenia French, Home Economist of Ball Brothers Company. The ladies report that they got much good out of the short course. The only criticism that we heard was that Miss French did not talk loud enough.

However, a more competent instructor would be hard to find, as she finished Texas State College for Women at Denton with high honors, receiving a special prize in recognition of her work. Mr. Knight was well pleased with the attendance, stating that there were really more ladies present than he expected.

State Fair to Honor Founder, Newspapers

The State Fair of Texas will honor its founders and pay a tribute to the newspapers of Texas for their success in building the "world's largest and most beautiful fair" during its first fifty years, with a monument to be unveiled on opening day, Saturday, October 8, which is also Press Day.

Every newspaper in Texas has been invited to send in a front page of its paper, upon which has been published a story on its community, which will be placed in a metal chest and placed in a crypt under the tablet "acknowledging a debt of gratitude to the Press of Texas."

The monument will stand eight feet tall on a base six feet in height. It will be finished in sand and ground granite. The monument is being executed by Jose Martin and Roual Josset.

Pupils Must Present Record For Enrollment Monday

The importance of presenting the proper credentials for entrance to the high school must not be overlooked by prospective pupils next Monday morning. The school officials must be shown why they should admit pupils to certain grades. LET US REMEMBER THAT HIGH SCHOOL ONLY WILL BEGIN REGISTRATION MONDAY, WITH SENIORS REGISTERING MONDAY, JUNIORS AND SOPHOMORES, TUESDAY, AND FRESHMEN, FRIDAY. ALL GRADES WILL BEGIN REGISTRATION, THURSDAY, SEPT. 1.

Local Church of Christ Meeting A Success

From most any point of view, the meeting just closed at the church of Christ, conducted by Leonard Bankhead, was a fine one. The officers report the church was really revived, strengthened and encouraged to press forward, and steps may be taken in the near future to enlarge the building.

As to additions, that phase was quite satisfactory, as eleven were baptised, and four restored, making fifteen additions in all. The preacher endeared himself to the members, and will quite likely be called by some time next year for another meeting.

Revival Starts at Johnson Tonight

We are requested to announce that the church of Christ, worshiping at the Johnson school house, will begin their revival tonight (Friday). Everyone cordially invited.

Elder Lee D. Hukel, of Slaton, will do the preaching. The preacher being so well known, he needs no introduction to Terry county audiences.

Miss Jewel Hudson of Greenville and Miss Mozelle Treadaway and Will Fitzgerald are vacationing in Ruidoso, N. M.

Clarance Hudgens left this week to join his family, who are vacationing in California.

Bringing in Big Wells—Shall We Retard It?

Yoakum county seems to have the spotlight of the oil fraternity of late, as they are bringing in some fine wells of real capacity that make the big headlines of the dailies. Here is some of the most sensational finds of late:

Bennett No. 9, thought to be the best patential, flowed 569 barrels in six hours, gauged at 2276 barrels daily. Crump & Black No. 1, also in Bennett pool, gauged at 2234 daily. Another Mid-Continent Bennett No. 6. 2177 barrels daily. A number of locations are being made by majors, as well as many in course of completion.

Right here comes up a thought. We may all like that fine west Texas showman, Harley Sadler, and might like to vote for his cousin Jerry, but it is a well known fact that Jerry lives in the edge of the big east Texas oil pool, and that he is "agin" proration. If it were not for proration, there would be very little oil development in this section, if any.

If those 25,000 wells in east Texas were turned loose like Jerry wants them, they would supply the world. That would practically shut out development in this section, and even Terry county farmers, although there is not an oil well in the county, would sadly miss lease money. Brownfield can point to her rapid growth in the past few years to oil. If Sadler is elected, he and Lon Smoth, who lives at the south edge of the east Texas field could control matters. But as long as C. V. Terrell and Earnest Thompson, both west Texans, are in the saddle, proration will go on and so will development in west Texas.

Another thing we must consider. These great natural resources belong to Texas, and are being used to a great extent to educate Texas children. If these resources are wasted, we will have to go down in our pockets for some other means of supporting our school system. If you got mad at the governor-elect for recommending Terrell forget it, and vote for the interest of west Texas.

Giles Leading Hot Land Office Fight

AUSTIN, August 24. — Bascom Giles, run-off candidate for State land commissioner, is winding up his aggresive campaign to bring Texas a change in the administration of the land office in a final hard drive this week.

His candidacy has been pushed to the fore-front with Governor-elect W. Lee O'Daniel saying he favors Giles for land commissioner during his administration.

Giles, 37, with 17 years working experience in the Texas land office under former Commissioner J. T. Robison and J. H. Walker, who endorsed him, is seeking election to office for the first time.

Giles is pledgd to stop vacancy racketeering, clouding of land titls, outside influence dominating the land office, gambling with millions of dollars in school funds, and favortism in awarding leases on State lands. His platform is aimed "to restore confidence in the land office."

New Type of Work On Highway No. 84

Work on Highway No. 84 from Lynn-Garza county west toward Tahoka is progressing nicely, according to County Judge P. W. Good. About three miles grade has been completed from the county line to Central Church.

The roadbed is of new type construction. The Judge says this is the very latest idea in road construction and is one of the first jobs of its kind in Texas.

All fences have been moved back along the fourteen mile stretch from Tahoka east to the county line, and workmen are busy this week moving the telephone poles back.

Lon Ingram of Lubbock is the engineer in charge of the work, which is under direct supervision of the Highway Department, and Geo. McPherson of Post is general superintendent. Fifty men are employed on the job, WPA furnishing the labor —Tahoka News.

Sing Song at Wellman Next Sunday P. M.

We are requested to announce that the monthly Terry county Sing Song will meet at Wellman next Sunday, August 28th. Everyone cordially invited.

The Credit Point System Of Hi-School Explained

Graduates of the Brownfield High School hereafter will have to make more than a passing grade in each subject taken in order to be entitled to a diploma. This plan is adopted to prevent "getting by" through high school. The psychology of the matter is that a bad habit of "getting by" with low grades while going through high school is very detrimental to a pupil. He who does not work up to a reasonable capacity must do additional work before qualifying for graduation. The value of grades in points are here given:

Any grade in the "A" division will count 6 points; any grade in the "B" division will count 4 points; and any grade in the "C" division will count 2 points. A pupil must make 100 points to graduate if he enters the high school this year. Two points each year might be gained in what is called the "extra-Curricular" field. For this year the following points are required:

Seniors—24 points (two might be extra-curricular.)

Juniors—50 points during next two years.

Sophomores—75 points during next three years.

Freshmen—100 points during next four years.

Enrollment will begin Monday, August 29, with seniors registering on Monday, juniors and sopohomores on Tuesday, and freshmen on Wednesday.

EDITOR SMITH OF SNYDER GIVES A LAUGH OUT OF THIS ONE

Almost two weeks ago (remember?) Texas held an election. The results were more astounding to W. Lee O'Daniel, a Fort Worth flour merchant and radio broadcaster, than to anyone else. He whipped some of the state's top politicians, and will occupy the governor's chair at Austin next year.

These events are repeated in order to make statements made the day before the election by some of the candidates sound a bit putrid:

Crowley (fifth man): " . . . This solid support represents enough votes to put me at the head of the ticket and assure my election in the runoff."

McCraw (third man): "I predict I will lead the field, with W. Lee O'Daniel second."

Hunter (fourth man): "There's only one candidate in the race that I feel certain will be in the runoff. That's me, Tom Hunter."

Thompson (second man): ". . . proclaiming victory at the polls, and appealing for common sense, practical thinking, and sound devotion." (Associated Press report).

O'Daniel (the winnah!): "The other candidates boldy state they will be governor saying it's in the bag." They are professional politicians and deal in theory. I am a business man and deal in facts; therefore, I make no prediction."

Much Interest Manifest In Baptist Revival

The Baptist Revival has been marked with good attendance and interest. There have been 11 additions to the church up to Wednesday night.

The musical program under the direction of Rev. J. C. Cohen is exceptionally good. Rev. Cohen has brought a wonderful message each service in special music.

Monday evening, August 29th a children's program will be given with some 75 children participating. Rev. Cohen will use his electric swings in this program, with six girls singing the swing song. Do not miss this program.

The revival will continue through Sunday, September 4th. It is desired that there will be an increase in attendance each service. There is an effort being made to have 300 in Sunday School next Sunday. Be one of the 300.

Golf Club to Be Host To Lamesa, Sunday

Last Sunday some 33 of the local golfers journeyed to Lamesa, to engage the players of the Municipal Course Club of that city, in an inter-city match. The locals won 25 and lost 8 of the matches.

This coming Sunday, the Lamesa golfers come here for a return engagement over the local course. The game will start about 1:30 in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Safidy of Lovington, N. M., were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Aryain.

The Tahoka and O'Donnell papers have been reporting of late that their people are molested with some Peeping Toms, and not only the citizens, but the officers are on the alert for this kind of cattle. About the best cure for Peeping Toms, if caught, is to fill their perverted hides with a good load of buckshot, and ask him who he is later.

The Editors H. G. Richards of the Anton News, and A. E. of the Meadow Star, the most ardent supporters of O'Daniel in this section, both came out last week with articles scorching the governor-elect for his pronouncements in favor of six condidates for state offices. We have found that here, the most enthusiastic supporters of Mr. O'Daniel July 23, are his most severe critics now. Now is a very poor time to desert your champion boys. Stay with him!

Editor John Price got all excited last week in his Lamb-Wide County News, and thought because we wrote a neditorial about conserving moisture, that we referred to loss of beer in an election two or three weeks ago. Not so, Johnny, but evidently you had just been to Clovis, for you gave us a new spelling, this time you spelled it "Stricklin," but most of the time it is "Strickland." How do you usually spell your name, John, is it "Prace, Prece, Price or Proce?"

We are sorry to report that our neighbor to the east, Editor E. I. Hill of the Lynn County News, Tahoka, has been carried back to a Lubbock hospital for examination, with the pronouncement that he has a punctured lung. Whether this was caused from the car that recently ran into him, breaking his leg, or some other cause we did not learn. Anyway the Herald hopes that the new trouble will soon be under control, and that Editor Hill will quickly regain his usual good health.

The Herald is sorry to see that with the final days approaching for entrance into the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Soil and Water Utilization contest, Terry county is not included as one of the 73 counties that did. These counties reach from Parker and Hood on the east to El Paso on the west, and from Parmer in the upper Panhandle to Brewster and Val Verde on the south. We are sure there is not a one of these counties that need soil and water conservation training more than does Terry. September 1, is the last moment to enter the contest; why not get Terry in even if it is the eleventh hour?

If a long time service in office disqualifies a man to hold an office again, then we have two very fine west Texans that it is time to choke off. They are State Treasurer Charley Lockhart of Snyder, and George H. Shepherd our present state Comptroller, of Sweetwater. Then it also is time we were dismissing as "perpetual politicians" such men as Morris Shepherd, Tom Connally, Marvin Jones, and a score of other congressmen, as well as a lot of State Senators and Representatives. A lot of this old "politician" stuff is pure dee rot and nonsense to be used to get elected, when sifted to the bottom. Why even right here in Terry the people felt so in need of the services of one of our county officers that they gave him a 3rd term with a big majority over both opponents in the first primary. And we imagine they were not particularly against the other two men—just wanted the old hand to continue on.

The Herald surely brought All-Hale-the-Power, of Old Yoakum in general and Plains in particular out last week, riding a wild mustang without bridle, quirt or saddle. Perhaps it was the heat. Anyway, he had on his spurs, and did he gouge? He says we knocked Yoakum county. No, we explained that it was a Yoakumite that suggested the article, in fact insisted on its publication, but Hale was too dense or too prejudiced to pay any attention to that. Anyway, providing we did originate the article, how many old timers will believe Hale's report that we "knocked his county." We were boosting Yoakum county before Hale ever knew there was such a place in existence. Editor Hale also sets himself up in judgement on our so-called theological argument with Editor Hill, and pronounces Hill the winner. Perhaps he was, but we did not appoint Hale as a judge, nor do we believe E. I. did. Anyway, Hale, some told us we won, but we claim no victory. A preacher down at O'Donnell thought Hill won, but Hill has not publicly made any claim that we know of. In fact, after the mist and debris was cleared up, there was not much difference in the ideas of Hill and us. And, another thing, while we are on Hale's neck, we might mention that he had an editorial last week in which he intimated that Texas might elect a Republican governor this fall. What Hale meant was he wished they would elect one. No, not after Hoover, Editor Hale. Hoover cured Texas of any such an idea for at least another generation. They have not so soon forgotten. Come to Terry—come to Yoakum!

TEXAS WILDLIFE

AUSTIN, Texas, July 27—A method so simple that it scarcely seems worth writing about has been found to be one of the most effective means of restoring Bobwhite Quail in depopulated ranges, the Game Department announced today.

It is the establishment of fenced areas which offer the birds abundant food and cover in which to build their nests and hide from their enemies.

As described in a bulletin by Valgene W. Lehmann, field biologist, and just published by the Game Department, the plots should be about a half-acre in size and properly planted so they will be well stocked with food. They may be square or rectangular in shape.

"There are many quail ranges in Texas that produce few quail because they are overgrazed by cattle, sheep and goats, or cultivated so intensely that little food or cover is left for birds," Lehmann writes.

He added that experiments with the fenced shelters had been made in Wharton county. They did not interfere with normal farm and ranch operations, and resulted in an increase of the quail population. Fourteen of the 16 plots established, he said, held coveys of quail the following fall and winter. In some instances the shelters were located on the open prairie fully two miles from territory where quail had been known to winter before, and Lehmann found they attracted and held coveys.

The fenced shelters, Lehmann found can be established at little cost, and can be made to produce quick results.

Two types of shelters are recommended, one for regions having native cover, and the other for regions where no native cover is present and must be created artificially by brush piles. Crops planted in the shelters should be rotated.

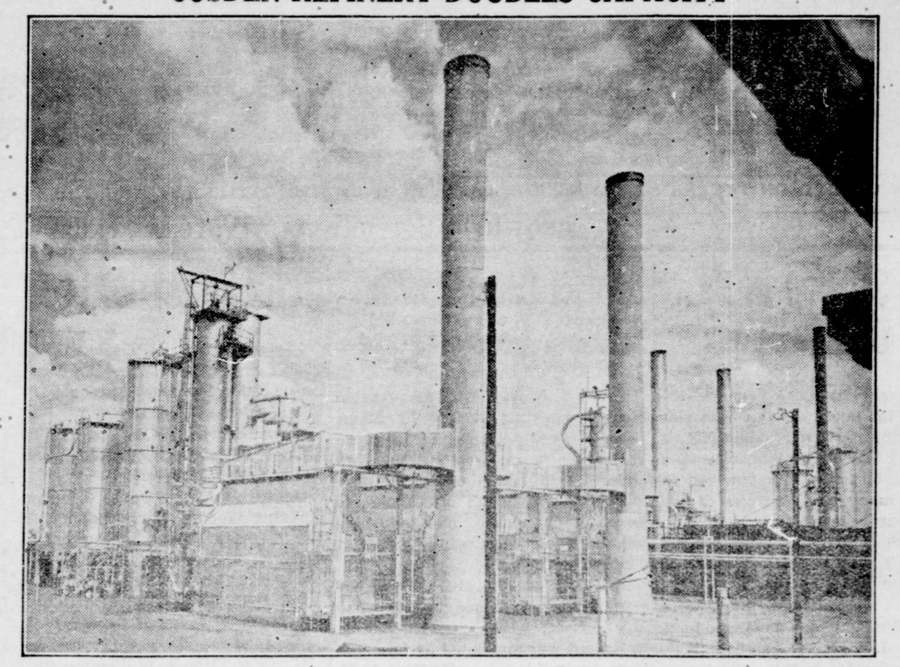

In his bulletin Lehmann includes a diagram showing how the two types of shelters should be constructed.

Full instructions for establishment of the shelters are included in the leaflet, which may be secured free upon request from the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, Walton Building, Austin.

TEXAS WILDLIFE

AUSTIN, Aug. 3.—Dove hunters of Texas will not be subjected to a series of conflicting regulations such as confused them last year, the Game Department announced.

Compared to those of last year, the 1938 regulations are fairly uniform.

Combined state and federal laws governing both mourning and white-winged doves provide the following open seasons:

From Sept. 1 to Oct. 31 in the counties of Yoakum, Terry, Garza, Kent, Stonewall, Haskell, Throckmorton, Young, Jack, Wise, Denton, Collin, and Hunt, and all counties north thereof, and the counties of Parker, Tarrant, Dallas, Rockwall, Kaufman, Johnson, Hopkins, Delta and Franklin.

The hours for shooting mourning and white-winged doves during the open season are from 7 a. m. to sunset.

Neither species may be shot with a weapon other than a shotgun, and it shall not be larger than No. 10 gage. If it is a repeating or automatic shotgun it must be permanently plugged to a three-shell capacity.

The daily bag limit is 15 in the aggregate of both mourning and white wings. The possession limit is 15 in the aggregate of both species.

INVITATION

Mrs. Jones was reading a letter at breakfast. Suddenly she looked up suspiciously at her husband.

"George," she said, "I've just received a letter from Mother saying she isn't accepting our invitation to come and stay, as we do not appear to want her. What does she mean by that? I told you to write and say that she was to come at her own convenience. You did write, didn't you?"

"Er—yes," said George. "But I—I couldn't spell 'convenience,' so I made it 'risk'."

ALL WET

A little dish of broken ice
Lay basking in the sun,
Its owner had forgotten it
Before her work was done.
But when she went to get the ice,
And bring it in for tea,
She found the ice was not what it
Had been cracked up to be.

It is estimated that 20,000 years have elapsed since the close of the glacial period.

HE WHO GETS SAT ON

He made a run around the end,
The right guard sat up on his neck,
Was tackled from the rear,
The fullback on his ear,
The center sat upon his back,
Two ends upon his chest,
The quarter and the halfback then
Sat down on him to rest.
The left guard sat upon his head,
Two tackles on his face,
The coroner was then called in
To sit upon his case.

TO SETTLE A QUESTION

Two powerful colored stevedores, who had some sort of falling out, were engaged in loading a vessel at a St. Louis dock. Uncomplimentary remarks and warnings of intended violence were exchanged whenever the two passed each other with their trucks.

"Yo' jest keep pesterin' around wid me," declared one of the men, "an' you is gwine to be able to settle a mighty big question for them scieumtific folks!"

"What question ar dat?" asked the other.

"Kin de dead speak!"

Even Sugar Is Streamlined

A 1900 automobile pictured alongside of a modern, streamlind car is one of the most dramatic examples of the progress that has taken place during the 20th century.

Less exciting perhaps, but just as progressive in their way, are improvements that have been made in the little things. Take sugar for instance . . . Remember the little brown paper bags which the grocer used to fill out of a big sugar barrel? If the sugar was lumpy from moisture, grayish with dust or contained a few splinters—well, that was just the way sugar came and it couldn't be helped—sugar was sugar.

Today, however, every housewife demands snow-white sugar in dirt-proof sealed packages, she wants different kinds of sugar for different purposes and she insists on buying quality sugar guaranteed by a well-known brand name.

The story of the improvement of sugar, like that of automobiles, foods, drugs and a thousand and one other products is the same basic story—because of the large market created by national advertising of a brand name the manufacturer has been able to install modern machinery, carry on exhaustive research, continually improve quality and reduce prices to the consumer.

Buy nationally advertised products featured in this newspaper from your local dealer, and you will not only get the best buy for your dollar today but will help to make it possible to get even more for your dollar tomorrow.

Economic Headlights

For a time it seemed that the Russo-Japanese "incident" on the Siberian-Manchuckuo border might mark the beginning of the long-feared "second World War." That could have easily happened—as every European observer knows, Hitler would be almost certain to invade the Ukraine if the Soviet became engaged in major hostilities on its far Eastern frontier. As a result, the truce came as a welcome surprise to a war-frightened world.

Thus, on the face of it, the "incident" was of little significance. All it involved was a territorial dispute, concerning whether Japan or Russia was the rightful owner of a small area of little populated and practically barren land. The Russians claimed the area, using as evidence old Tsarist maps. Japan disputed the accuracy of these maps, and hostilities followed. Culminating military phase of the month-long engagement, which claimed about five thousand lives according to unofficial reports, was a Russian artillery barrage of the Japanese positions which observers characterized as the most severe seen in the world since 1918.

If you go beyond the surface however, the incident takes on considerably more importance. It demonstrated two things of great significance. First, the U. S. S. R. is ready and willing to fight, when no other solution seems present, and at the same time is eager to conclude its disputes peacfully if it can. Second, it demonstrated the great military and economic weakness of the Son of Heaven's little Empire.

As one news commentator said, the upshot of the "incident" was a sweeping military and diplomatic defeat for Nippon. It is reliably reported that high Japanese offficers reported to their Emperor that they lacked the supplies and men for waging even a brief war in the Manchuckuo-Siberian territory. The Chinese aggression—which is dragging on month after month, has made a mockery of Japanese expectations of a quick and easy victory—and has drained the empire dry. As a consequence, the Japanese had the humiliating experience of submitting almost in their entirety to Soviet Foreign Commissar Litvinoff's terms of settlement. The Japanese government—for the time being at least—has accepted the Russian view of the dividing lines. Official Japanese government statements attempt to cover this up—but it is a fact, as reference to your atlas will demonstrate.

What does all this mean, so far as the possibilities of peace and war are concerned? It means that one of Germany's two allies, upon whom Hitler must depend if his expansion policies are to bear fruit, has her hands so full of trouble now that she is unwilling and unable to take on any more. It means that Russia, with her gigantic military machine and her implacable hatred of the Nazis and Fascists, still holds the balance of power in Europe and Western Asia. It means that at least one of the great anti-Fascist powers is prepared to meet force with more force.

Looking elsewhere, thre ar other signs to indicate that the designs of the Fascists are far from materializing. A few months ago it seemed that the fall of the Spanish government was imminent. Franco, with his Italian troops and his German planes and munitions was advancing almost unchecked. Today the government has rallied, has regained lost territory and is again on the offensive. In spite of incredible horrors, the spirit of the population in government territory seems to have gained rather than lost in vigor. Franco still has the upper hand—but the experts are saying that he cannot possibly win this year, and that if the recently signed pact whereby Mussolini pledged himself to withdraw Italian troops from Spain is observed, his chances of ultimate victory will be immeasurably lessened.

Germany is rattling the saber again at Czechoslovakia—but there has been a notable stiffening of spines in France, which leads to the view that actual German aggression of Czech territory is unlikely, and would be extremely foolhardy.

Summing up, the Fascists and the Nazis are still making the most noise—but thew aren't showing results. Big question mark remains in England where the tottery Chamberlain government continues to play both ends against the middle. Recent surveys indicate that England has lost a colossal amount of prestige in this country.

Business news is mostly good. Production figures are indicating that the sustained improvement in the stock market is justified by conditions.

Consumers' goods industries continue to lead the field, but there are signs of betterment in the long-dormant capital goods industries. Even the railroads, which are earning almost nothing, are expected to soon increase their buying.

Steel recently touched 40 per cent of capacity, in a period when normally business would have declined. Automobile production is at a higher level than anyone thought possible a few months ago, with still better experience in prospect.

Traffic Deaths Still Much Too High

AUSTIN, August 23.—Texas' traffic causualty picture remains dismal in spite of regular monthly decreasese in death tolls, state police said today, as they watched the July records rise to 139 dead.

While there has been a saving of 145 lives in the first seven months of this year compared with 1937 figures, traffic experts of the safety department declared that ruthlessness and recklessness have snuffed cut the lives of 909 people on Texas streets and highways since January 1.

Because of holiday and vacation travelers causing crowded conditions and additional traffic hazards during the month of July, there was a predicted increase in deaths and injuries, but the 1938 toll fell short of the July, 1937, death rate by 15. Still, the officials pointed out; 99 per cent of these fatal crashes were unnecessary and could have been avoided had drivers followed simple rules of safety.

Cities are showing improved accident records as only 38 deaths occured on city streets last month. There were 92 laid to open highway traffic. Intensified enforcement, educational campaigns and publicity programs were given by state officers as the reason for lowered traffic losses in cities. Similiar activities are adopted for decerasing open highway crashes. However higher speed limits bring about more serious collisions, police said.

State traffic recorders said that 60 of the 139 dead lost their lives in accidents involving two or more vehicles. Two were killed riding bicycles. One lost his life in a horse-drawn conveyance and another died after his car struck livestock on a highway. Six were killed in railroad crossing crashes.

Heavy financial losses and suffering were seen by police in the reports showing that 1,454 persons were injured in July accidents, many slated to die from their hurts.

STATE HEALTH OFFICER ON USE OF SERUMS

AUSTIN, Texas, August 1.—"Few conquests of science have been so spectacular and complete as those relating to diptheria. Science has firmly established the value of serum treatment in both its preventive and curative phases. However, toxin-antitoxin or its successor toxoid for immunization and antitoxin for cure, are serums of which the general public is even yet not fully aware," said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"As indicated, toxoid is the immunizing or preventive agent now usually employed. However, three or four months are required for the body to develop immunity. At that time the Schick test can be applied to determine the results of the preventive treatment.

"Children should receive diptheria immunization as early as possiblie, preferably as soon as they are six months old. The necessity for this immunization is recognized when it is known that two-thirds of all deaths from diptheria occur in the age group under six years.

"It cannot be too strongly emphasized that to deprive children of this protection science has made possible is to subject them to unwarranted and unnecessary hazards that can easily turn into a tragedy. Parental interest in immunization must be more widespread, if the Texas death rate from this disease is to be decreased from the 1937 total of 257.

"When a child has been taken ill with diptheria, antitoxin is the only treatment that will save its life. Also, to be effective, it must be given early in the illness and in large doses. Delay is usually caused by parents failing to realize that any sore throat may actually be diptheria.

TOUCH-DOWN TACTICS

★ ORANGE BOWL GAME . . . by Jack Meagher Head Football Coach Alabama Polytechnical Institute ★

This is the first of a series of six outstanding diagram plays by leading college coaches from Grantland Rice's new Cities Service Football Guide.

NO Southern team had made a score in the Orange Bowl in the four years the New Year's Day game had been played. Our squad felt that they had to beat the jinks as well as the powerful Michigan State team, led by Johnny Pringel, fast and hard hitting halfback. Auburn went into the game with the odds against them. Michigan outweighed Auburn ten pounds to the man. From the snap of the first ball our team played heads up football. Our line charged hard and refused to give ground when on the defensive. Fenton and Kelly lead the attack and before the first quarter was over we had the ball on Michigan State's twelve yard line. This deep penetration of the opponent's territory, with the ability to stop Pringel, seemed to be the turning point of the game.

Late in the second quarter we were deep in Michigan State's territory where we sustained a penalty which placed us on the Michigan 30 yard line. Kenmore received the ball and dropped back and threw a pass to O'Gwynne, who carried it to the two yard line before he was brought down.

After two unsuccessful attempts to cross the Michigan goal line the play diagrammed above was called. It is an End Run from Notre Dame T Formation, which usually precedes the shift into the Notre Dame Box. The defensive set-up is the normal strong defensive arrangement against this formation.

The play is an end run from the T Formation and is optional, either inside or outside the defensive end. Like every other good play the success of this one will depend largely upon the effect other plays, immediately preceding it, have made upon the defense. It has the maximum interference ahead of the ball carrier; it develops fast and tends to catch the defense off balance.

Quick opening plays from the same formation, or plays after the shift into the Notre Dame formation, usually precede this play to get the best effect. It is a good weapon inside the ten-yard line of an opponent.

Auburn used the play on the Michigan State two-yard line on third down for a score. Quick opening plays had been used with our fullback Sitz taking the ball inside tackle on the first and second down. Marion Walker, our quarterback, called on little Ralph O'Gwynne, right halfback, and he carried the ball over for the only score of the Orange Bowl game at Miami.

Auburn piled up 12 first downs to Michigan State's 2, made 197 yards to 40 on the ground and 81 to 25 through the air.

BROWNFIELD RIGHT-OF-WAY IS SECURED

Right-of-way on the Brownfield road is rapidly being secured, according to reliable information released here this week. It is thought that enough will be gotten by August 26th for actual construction to be started.

This is a road which local road enthusiasts have been working on for a number of years and when completed will bring to realization a long cherished dream of a direct road to the sister city on the northwest.

It will not only furnish a direct connection to this progressive and developing city, but will give a surfaced road to town to a large number o farmers who heretofore have had to depend on good weather, to enable them to market their products in Lamesa.—Lamesa Courier.

WOODMEN CIRCLE HOBO PARTY

Hoboes began to stop at Mrs. Rose Mayfields last Friday night, August 19th, until 11 o'clock. Then a raid was made on the ice box for drinks, which were good, oh boy! Next they were coaxed out on the green lawn, which was lighted with strong lights, where the poor, tired hoboes rested and renewed old acquaintances. Soon rested, they roasted weiners and marshmallows over the bonfire. The feast of the hoboes then started. Oh, the taste the open fire give to the weiners, but the hoboes hunger was not stayed. They began to roam asking for hand-outs, from back doors, front doors and side doors.

At last all were satisfied and thumbed their way home.

What a time, what a time, the hoboes did have.

HOW CAN I BUILD UP MY CREDIT AT BANK?

Simply stated, bank credit is the faith a bank has in a given individual, or business firm, to repay a loan at a specified time in the future.
Character is the foundation of every good credit rating. Reputation for good business management, for paying bills promptly, and for "making your word good" is essential.
It is helpful to be a depositor in the bank where you wish to establish or build up your credit.
An adequate balance should be maintained in your account. Your account should not be overdrawn.
It is helpful to have good credit references.
When loans are made it is important they be met promptly on due date.
These are some of he essentials we recommend to any person wishing to establish or build up his credit rating at these banks.

IN MEMORY OF LAURA B.

The Daugher of Jarius, Luke 8:41—
'Sorrow Not Even As Others Which Have No Hope." 1 Thess, 4:13.
A father went to Jesus in sorrow one day,
For his little girl lay a dying,
And he cried: "O Master will you come with me?"
My little girl is near to death a lying."

But before they had gone far on the way
His servants came to him and said:
'Trouble not the Master any longer,
For now thy little daughter is dead."

The Savior turned in pity to the father
And in kind loving words He said:
"Be not afraid, only believe they child
Shall live; 'tho they say she is dead."

The father turned and followed trimblingly,
He would follow the Master's lead,
Even 'tho they told him his darling was dead,
He'd follow and trust the Lord indeed.

The father went on in faith with Jesus,
And great was his reward!
For he received his darling alive again,
When Jesus had spoken the life-giving word.

O father and mother grieve not in hopeless sorrow,
Remembering this as you weep,
The Lord will give your darling back to you,
"She is not dead, but only asleep"

THE TERRY COUNTY HERALD

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By Julian Capers, Jr.

AUSTIN—Three developments in Texas this week combined to focus the attention of a goodly proportion of the population, which depends directly or indirectly upon the oil business for its living and its well being, upon oil. They were:

The Statewide proration hearing, at which Commissioner C. V. Terrell, Ernest Thompson and Lon Smith unanimously agreed it is necessary to continue Sunday shutdowns, and hinted broadly that the wells may have to be pinched in Saturdays also, in the near future.

A cut of 15 cents a barrel in the price of crude in East Texas by one small buyer.

The arrival at Gulf ports of the first cargoes of Mexican oil, produced from the "expropriated" properties of American and British oil companies. "Expropriated" is a polite term used by the Mexicans to describe the process of seizing somebelonging to foreigners, and not paying for it.

Oil Flood Threatens Disaster

Whatever affects the price of oil in Texas affects the livlihood of a large portion of the population. Oil money filters into every community. It affects the sales of merchants, the business of banks, the income of landowners and royalty owners, as well as the thousands directly employed in oil.

The Mexican government, having seized the oil properties of foreigners, has been desperately seeking a market for it. The Mexican oil can be shipped to Texas, duty paid, and still be sold at a price that is substantially below Texas oil, because it didn't cost those who seized it anything. Oil men here agree that the first few hundred thousand barrels of seized Mexican oil, landed this week at Houston, may be the forerunner of a flood of cut-price Mexican oil that may break the price in Texas and force further restriction of Texas production. Oil dollars have kept Texas a bright spot on the economic map of the nation for months, while Eastern states were building up huge relief rolls. A break in crude oil prices, from overproduction, from imports, or from both, would also hit State and School fund revenues, as oil is taxed on a sliding scale based upon crude prices. The other side of the picture probably would include a slash in retail gasoline prices, which wouldn't make the filling station patrons angry.

Lee Plugs His Ticket

Taking cognizance of a considerable unfavorable sentiment aroused by his first endorsement of a slate of six runoff candidates, W. Lee O'Daniel, next governor, made two additional radio speeches during the week, plugging his selected slate. He "turned the heat on" when he called upon the voters to elect his nominees, and then hold him responsible for fulfillment of his pension payment pledges, but denied responsibility unless the voters go along with him. He declared payment of pensions would be his first concern when he takes office, but denied he has worked out any taxation plan to finance pensions as yet.

Observers here believed O'Daniel had strengthened the position of his slate considerably with his additional pleas for support for them, and reported antagonistic sentiment waning. A poll by the Dallas News listing 12,000 voters, showed a heavy majority opposed to O'Daniel's endorsement idea, but also showed opposition waning after the first few days. More observers here expressed belief the entire blessed tickt would win, while some believed Bascom Giles, for Land Commissioner, would be unable to defeat the encumbent, Bill McDonald. In the Attorney General's race, publication of a purported photostatic copy of a letter alleged to have been written by one of Gerald Mann's campaign aides, soliciting funds from oil interests, created a hot issue in that race, and Walter Woodul forces claimed an easy victory would be theirs: Mann denied all knowledge of the letter.

Flood Probe Goes On

The development of the Colorado River Authority program already has resulted in potential savings of $3,500,000 a year on the electric light bills of consumers in cities within the 200 mile area available for service from the power developed, members of the Senate flood probe committee were told this wek by Clarence McDonough, general manager of the CRA, who was the only witness. He cited reductions in rates granted in Fort Worth, Dallas, and many smaller towns as evidence of the savings CRA has brought about. The week's sessions were filled with a mass of technical testimony, designed more to establish the ability of the CRA system to offer both flood protection and power generation, when its system of four dams is completed, than to fix responsibility for the flood which wiped out $15,000,000 worth of property in July.

Insurance Legislation May Come

Efforts will be made in the regular session in January to reform certain Texas insurance laws which are sadly defective, as a result of exposure of various insurance "rackets" during the past year. Reform will be sought in the laws regulating formation and operation of mutual assessment life insurance societies, some of which have gypped policyholders and beneficiaries to the tune of millions of dollars.

Casualty insurance interests also will seek to tighten up regulations of their business also, it was learned, as a result of the failure this year of three large Texas reciprocal casualty organizations, in which hundreds of claimants, including injured workmen employed in industry, have been losers.

Behind the Scenes in American Business

NEW YORK, August 22 — BUSINESS — Progress is still being made, though slowly, in the nation's fight for economic recovery. Operations in America's huge steel mills last week rose to 40 per cent of capacity for the first time since November. An estimated 24,000 men were returned to work in the Ford River Rouge plant. PWA predicted that work will begin at early dates on about $800,000,000 of non-federal construction activity. Plenty of jobs there. Inventories of automobile dealers, according to Secretary of Commerce Roper, are now at the lowest point in four years. AAA offocials believe that loans are now mandatory on the current cotton crop inas much as the price on 10 designated spot markets has fallen to 8.20 cents a pound. Such loans would halt any further decline in the purchasing power of cotton growers. Looking ahead, experts of the Burea of Agricultural Economics foresee a gradual improvement for business during the fall and winter months.

WASHINGTON — The new Civil Aeronautics Authority begins to function here this week. Airline executives are looking for this agency to help iron out some of the problems confronting their industry. Though the airlines have experienced an amazing traffic growth, they still serve only a relatively small percentage of the people who travel around the country every day. Last year, for example, while the airlines carried 1,100,000 passengers, the railroads transported 497,300,000. Much larger planes than the present 21-passenger ships in general use on major airlines are now available. The new Douglas DC-4 now undergoing test flights on the west coast can carry 40 passengers. It is the world's largest land transport plane, having a wing spread of 135 feet. Much of its equipment too qualifies as the world's "largest." Its tires, for instance, built by the B. F. Goodrich Company, stand five feet five inches, weigh 360 pounds each and contain 45 miles of tire cord. If traffic can be boosted sufficiently to warrant the use of these larger planes, real operating economies probably could be effected by the airlines.

THE SHOEMAKER — Today very few "shoemakers" actually make shoes. They repair them. The name simply is a carryover from the premachine age when the shoe repairman also was the man who made the shoes. In America there are some 85,000 shoe repair shops, owned largely by men of Italian or Greek extraction. This is more than there were in 1929, the reason being that in good times people often throw away shoes without bothering to have them re-soled or reheeled. The demand for shoe repair therefore improves when general business gets worse and vice versa. It is estimated that the annual business done by shoe repair shops in America amounts to approximately $125,000,000, an exceptionally low average of only $1,500 per store. About 35 per cent of what the shoe repairer charges for fixing a pair of shoes goes for leather, rubber and other materials. Total business done 20 years ago was $550,000,000 and 15 years ago $375,000,000. In those days new shoes were more expensive than nowadays, and people had their shoes repaired over and over before discarding them.

HERE AND THERE — If every American ate one more slice of bread daily, farmers could sell 50,000,000 more bushels of wheat a year . . . There are 15,240,000 work animals on U. S. farms, or approximately 2.2 per farm . . . Hot coffee is served in 96.4 per cent of American homes, hot tea in 87.5 per cent . . . Chain stores pay one billion, two hundred million dollars annually in wages and salaries, with the average weekly wage for full-time employees amounting to $25.89 . . . From 1915 to 1936 the birth rate in the U. S. has dropped from 25.1 per 1,000 population to only 16.6, a decline of one-third.

SOFAS GOING UP — And chairs too. For reliable reports indicate that shortly after Labor Day furniture retailers plan to advance prices from five to ten per cent. The reason is that the cost of lumber and other raw materials has been going up during the last few months and manufacturers are finding it difficult to supply wholesalers and retailers with furniture at former prices. If the expected increases take effect, furniture prices would be restored to approximately the level prevailing last year. The furniture industry has not suffered to the same extent as others during the business downswing of the last 12 months. Present estimates are that total sales in 1938 may fall only five per cent below the 1937 volume of $500,000,000. Such a figure indicates that America spends around $16 per family on furniture every year.

HEADLINES IN NEW YORK —German overtures for trade treaty with U. S. rejected by Secretary of State Hull . . . Merger of Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railway with Mobile and Ohio railroad expected; would be first rail consolidation since 1929 . . . Manufactures predict shortage of desirable mercahndise in the men's clothing field next October . . . Investment buying strengthens bond prices . . . Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is drafting plans for subsidy of wheat exports . . . July home building shows rise of 8.5 per cent over level of July, 1937 . . . All time peak of 43,078,630 world auto total reported.

Stevenson's Opponent Uses Mexican Radio

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 24.—Coke Stevenson's opponent received only 83,000 votes out of 1,053,000 as a candidate for governor two years ago and the same man survived the first primary this year in the lieutenant governor's race only because of direct mis-representations made to the people, Stevenson declared here today.

State Senator Doss Hardin of Limestone county speaking in Mr. Stevenson's behalf said that "the alleged Dallas business man is waging a campaign of falsehoods and slander over Mexican radio stations through the medium of recorded speeches." "This man has stooped so low in the field of political sportmanship," Hardin said "that he has employed radio stations in a foreign country where he is not subject to the rules of fair play and decency."

"Both before and since the first primary," Stevenson said, "my opponent deliberately sought to fool the people into believing that he was the running mate of W. Lee O'Daniel. He has imported high pressure salesmen from his out-of-state real estate promotional enterprises and these men are going about the state making misrepresentations."

Stevenson said that the office of lieutenant governor is one that requires training. He declared that his opponent knows little or nothing about the processes of legislation and for the people to select such a person to preside over the Senate would be as reckless as for the Texas baseball league to employ an umpire who had never seen a baseball game.

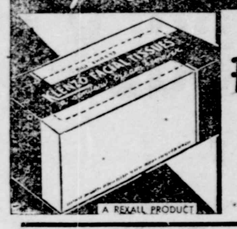

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is trying to produce a watermelon that will fit into the family icebox. The new melon will also be sweeter, disease-restistant, and a better shipper. A cross with an African melon gives promise.

When you drink Beer in a tavern...choose your tavern

WHEN YOU restrict your patronage to legal, respectable retail outlets, you not only encourage those better outlets but you've made a start toward driving out the bad spots in your community.

And that is exactly the aim of the great body of honest retailers of beer who, along with the brewers, recognize that Beer's only problem is to remove the anti-social conditions that sometimes surround its sale.

Existing laws can curb these evils. Help us by demanding their strict enforcement! Sales to minors, or after legal hours...or use of a beer license as a screen, for selling illicit liquor or for operating an illicit resort... all these are violations of the law and should be stopped. Public opinion, once aroused, can see that such practices are stopped!

"THE SUNSHINE OF PARADISE ALLEY"

By John W Bratton and Walter Ford

BIRTH OF A SONG

From ASCAP Files

By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth

LITTLE Johnny Bratton began show business early, but his grandmother disapproved and yanked him away from the bloodhounds in the big Uncle Tom's Cabin parade.

She preferred him to sing in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Wilmington, Delaware, where he was born.

When he reached his majority he left for New York and his first love — the theatre; but wound up in Philadelphia in a minor role in a musical comedy.

He formed a friendship with the leading baritone, Walter Ford. Wandering about town they got the inspiration for "The Sunshine Of Paradise Alley." Ford wrote the lyrics.

The success of this song definitely changed Bratton's career to that of a songwriter. He was successfully represented in nearly every musical show in the '90s.

From writing individual songs for stars of the day he took to writing complete shows and then became a producer.

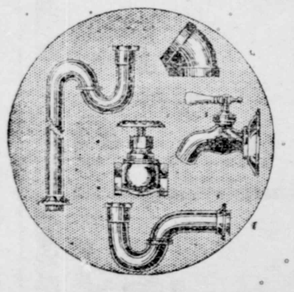

Retiring when touring companies were no longer in demand, Bratton went back to the writing of songs, and created one of the hits of 1936, "Sweetheart, Let's Grow Old Together," inspired by his own domestic felicity.

A member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers practically since its formation, Bratton continues his contributions to the Society's repertoire of available music.

Brownfield, Fri. and Sat. Texas

By T. C. Richardson, Secretary Feeders-Breeders Ass'n

SHEEP SENSE

Present conditions in the wool market are favorable for starting a farm flock with a comparatively small investment. any people enter a new enterprise only when it is booming, pay high initial costs, and fight a losing battle against experience and high investment. The smart ones buy when others are anxious to sell and ride the cycle on the upward swing instead of downward, getting experience at low cost. Sheep husbandry is no exception to the rule calling for both good judgment and experience.

Farms with ample feed and small grains for winter pasture need only fences, water and shelter to handle a farm flock. Some have found aged bred ewes preferable as a begining, since they offer a quick return in both early lambs and a wool clip. Aged ewes will thrive on the farm where feed is ample and better care can be given after they have ceased to be profitable on the open range, hence they are often a better "buy" for the beginner than the yearlings and twos which the range sheepman prefers, and which he holds at a proportionally higher price.

If open ewes are bought off the range and placed on comparatively luxuriant feed on the farm they will usually breed readily in a few weeks, and the ram should be on hand. The change from short feed to good feed is equivalent to "flushing" to encourage breeding, a practice as old as the modern sheep industry. If ewes are already on good pasture it is common to give them a small amount of grain for the same purpose.

Ewes from three years of age upward, if not badly "broken-mouthed" or unthrifty for other reasons, will raise more expensive lambs than the more expensive two-year olds which the range sheepman prefers because of their youthful vigor and ability to withstand the vicissitudes of range life. On the farm, in small numbers, the ewes can receive close attention and individual care that is impossible in the range flock.

Milk fed lambs born from December to February are a quick money crop from the farm flock, going to market early in summer before hot weather and parasites affect their rapid growth. Where the ewes run on small grain or other green winter pastures it requires only a little hand-fed grain, cottonseed cake, or legume hay, to keep the dams in strong condition and raise a lamb to market size at four to six months of age.

Lambs begin eating at two to four weeks, and a creep should be provided where ground or cracked grain and clean legume hay can be fed, in addition to the green pasture and their mothers' milk.

It would be a mistake to assume that sheep can be profitably kept on the farm without better care than more rugged livestock receives. Lambing in the winter calls for well conditioned ewes, dry shelter, and personal attention at the critical time. The Southwest has a distinct advantage over more Northern states in its open, sunny winters, which permit sheep to remain on pasture most of the time, but they must be protected from the short but sometimes severe cold snaps and especially from wet cold weather.

Experienced farm-flock men often realize a hundred per cent on their investment in a year, the fat lambs sold bringing about as much as the dam cost, and the wool clip paying the balance. This, however, is too much to count on as a regular thing, and the beginner should not be disappointed if he fails to pay off his investment the first year.

Farm flocks have increased rapidly in the Southwest in recent years, and beginners will find a great deal of helpful information in the bulletins of the various agricultural colleges and the P. S. Department of Agriculture. Ask the county agent.
