McWilliams rites slated Saturday

Snyder pharmacist Jerry McWilliams succumbed Wednesday to head injuries suffered last Saturday and services for him are scheduled Saturday at 10 a.m. at the First Baptist Church.

Officiating will be Rev. Ken Branam, church pastor, assisted by Rev. Miller Robinson, Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Burial will be at Hillside Memorial Gardens under the direction of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

McWilliams, 45, of 2607 33rd Street died at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday while in the intensive care unit at St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock.

He was the owner of Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy and an active civic leader since moving to the city in 1965.

He served on the Snyder city council from 1975-79; on the chamber of commerce board from 1975-77; and as a Snyder school board member from 1981-83.

He was also president of the Snyder Lions Club from 1976-77 and a member of First Baptist Church.

He was injured Saturday after apparently being kicked in the face by a horse. The accident occurred around 4:30 p.m. at a family farm located some six miles southwest of town.

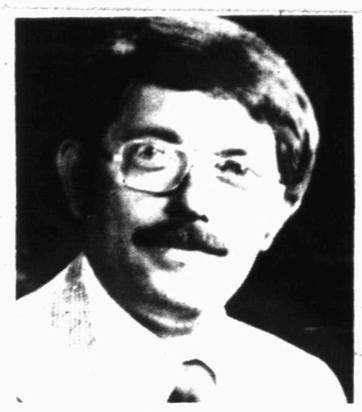

He underwent surgery at St. Mary's early Sunday morning for the removal of bone fragments and a blood clot from the brain area.

He was born March 31, 1941 in Tulia, the son of Armour Dee McWilliams and the former Bess Webb.

He was a 1959 graduate of Silverton High School and a 1965 graduate of Southwestern State University in Weatherford, Okla.

Friends of the family have established a Jerry McWilliams Memorial Scholarship Fund to Southwestern State University Pharmacy School. Memorial donations to the fund may be made at all three Snyder banks.

Limited immunity possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators and the independent counsel probing the Iran-Contra affair are discussing a plan for John M. Poindexter and Oliver L. North to be granted limited immunity for their testimony before Congress by the end of May.

"Both committees and the independent counsel are really searching for the same thing, which is the truth," independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh said after meeting Wednesday with members of the Senate select committee probing the sale of arms to Iran and alleged diversion of funds to Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Walsh wants Congress to wait at least 90 days before granting immunity to Poindexter, a Navy rear admiral who quit as President Reagan's national security adviser, and North, a lieutenant colonel fired from the White House staff for his role in the apparent diversion of money.

However, leaders of the two congressional committees probing the Iran-Contra matter have argued that the public is demanding a quick airing of the facts in the case.

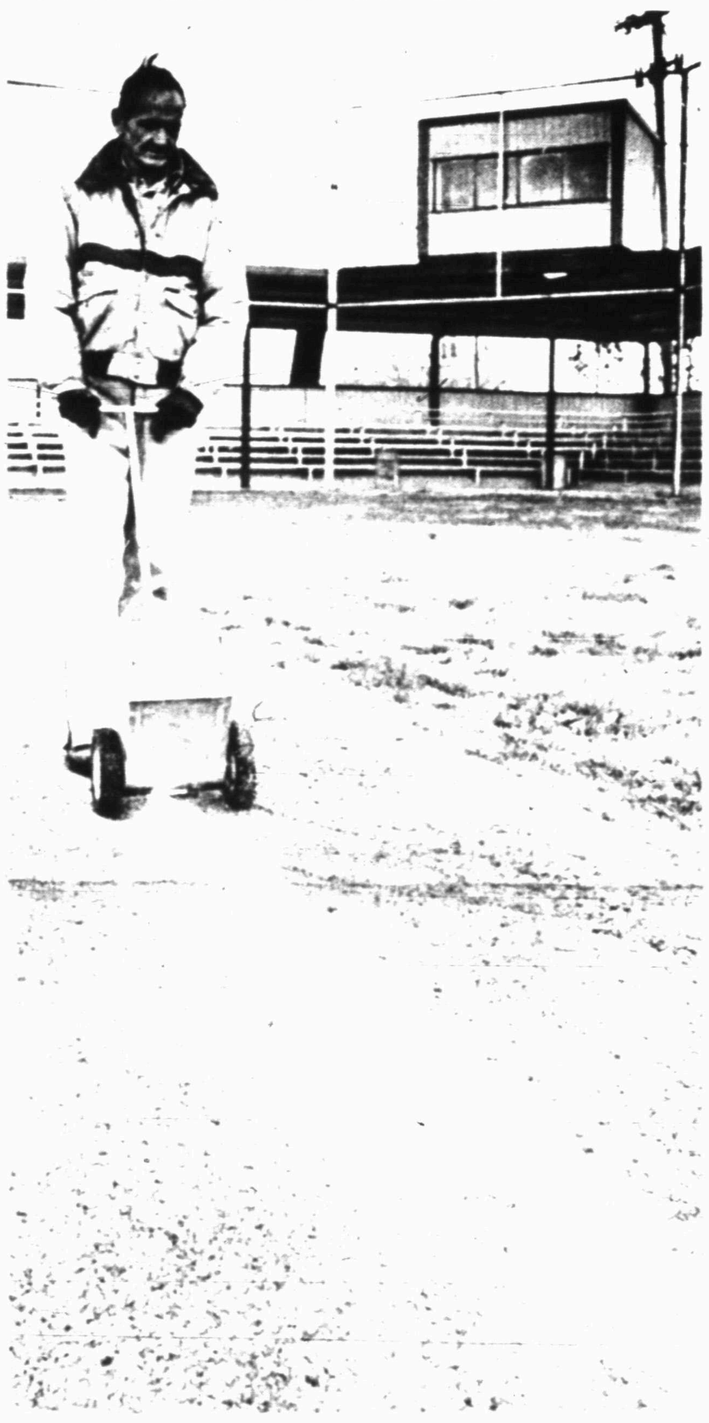

But to accommodate Walsh's effort to build a criminal case, public hearings on the Iran-Contra affair would not begin until the middle of May, three weeks later than first planned, said Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, the chairman of the Senate select committee.

This would allow Walsh more time to deal with witnesses before the committee interviews them under any immunity that might be granted. There might be additional time to deal with Poindexter and North, since they would not necessarily be the lead-off witnesses.

"I am convinced that the House and Senate committees together with the independent counsel will come forth with an agreement that will meet the requirements and the mandate of both of us," Inouye said after the meeting with Walsh.

But neither Walsh nor the senators gave details of their discussions of immunity and there was no indication any final agreement had been worked out.

Walsh and counsels for the two committees plan to work into next week on the details of the deal on Poindexter and North.

3 candidates file for newly formed school board seats

In developments related to the April 4 Snyder school board vote, two incumbents made their intent "official" Wednesday afternoon and two new candidates for the board surfaced Thursday morning.

Three candidates have now filed, including incumbent J.D. Hinton. Also filed are Ruben Martinez and Vernon James Clay.

Hinton, 57, was the first to file Wednesday afternoon as an at-large candidate.

A retired architect, he has served on the board some seven years.

Also Thursday morning, Ruben Martinez, 37, of 403 35th St., signed up as an at-large candidate. He is president of Kalko Industries here, an oil well servicing firm, and has been a resident of the school district 19 years.

Filing for a single member district seat Thursday was Vernon James Clay, 40, of 3011 Ave. K. He is an operator for Warren Petroleum and has lived in the district 2½ years.

He filed to represent single member District 1, the only district which has a greater than 50 percent minority population.

The April 4 ballot will involve three at-large positions on the board and two single member district seats.

Also to be decided is District 4, comprised of the areas served by Snyder ISD outside the city limits in addition to inside the city residential areas located south of Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

In addition Wednesday, G.A. Parks Jr., who has served on the board the past seven years, issued a statement that he would not be a candidate.

In his announcement, Parks noted, "I will continue to be interested in our public schools and those who will be serving on the board."

In line with this, he expressed "encouragment" to those interested in "serving our community" to consider running for "such groups as the school board."

In a prepared statement, he said, "It is important that all of us vote in every election and keep in touch with those elected."

"By attending the meetings of the boards and councils, the public can better unerstand the situations which must be met and the hard decisions which sometimes must be made."

Regarding the school board, he noted, "There will be some difficult decisions to make and the board and the administration will benefit from good communication with all of us."

The ballot was officially given a go-ahead early Wednesday morning as U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward indicated he would approve an agreement reached by both sides in the lawsuit challenging the Snyder district's method of electing board members.

Forgery is charged here

Police jailed a 26-year-old Snyder man Wednesday night on a warrant for forgery.

Chris Maurice Thompson of 812 37th St. was being held in the Scurry County Jail Thursday morning in lieu of bond set at $3,000.

He is alleged to have passed a forged check for $20 drawn on and account owned by Paul Stovall of Breckenridge at the L&L Gas Station on College Ave. in February.

Tickets on sale for chamber event

Tickets for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce banquet are now on sale. Price for this year's event, slated March 31, will be $20 per person.

Tickets should be reserved by calling the chamber at 573-3558.

The banquet food will be catered by The Shack. The menu will consist of chicken cordon bleu with wild rice; glazed green beans; panned carrots; orange-almond romaine salad, hot cloverleaf rolls and New York cheesecake with fruit topping.

An art show and sale is planned in conjunction with the banquet. With the theme "Excellence on Display," sixteen area artists will be showing their work in the foyer of the coliseum from 6 until 7 p.m.

Also on display will be the work of Kenneth Wyatt, speaker for this year's banquet.

He is known for his work in oil, watercolor, pencil, pastel, charcoal and sculpture. His work is owned by such notables as President Ronald Reagan.

Wyatt was named the first president of the Texas Cowboy Artist Association. In addition, he was asked to design the Texas Ranger 1974 and 1975 commemorative coins.

He has also been named a Texas State Artist and served as the state's cultural representative to the Bicentennial.

Clothes shop to open for 'exclusive resale'

Reflections, an "exclusive resale shop" for women and children's clothing located at 3413 Snyder Shopping Center, opened for consignment last week and expects to open for business Friday. Jeanette Templeton is the owner.

Reflections will be open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

In addition to women's and children's clothes, accessories such as purses, shoes, hats and belts will be offered. New items consigned from retail shops will be stocked also, Mrs. Templeton said. There will also be a designer rack.

She said she would "work with" the consignor on pricing clothing, but that generally the items are priced at one-third of the original price. Half the proceeds go to the consignor.

Consigned items will be listed at regular price for two months and for one month at half-price. If they do not sell, the consignor may pick them up or they will be donated to charity.

Reflections has a layaway plan and they will accept MasterCard and VISA.

All consigned items must meet certain criteria, Templeton said. They must be not more than two years old, clean and on hangers, in "good, salable shape" and preferably seasonal. All hems, buttons and zippers must be intact, she noted.

Children's sizes will range

The feller on Deep Creek says, "One secret of success is to start from scratch and keep on scratching."

Sometimes they just won't let a guy be serious.

A hospital administrator in Norristown, Pa. was appalled to learn that 12 crab claws were taken from the conference room during a setup for a luncheon.

The administrator typed a memo stating that such action was a disgrace and that anyone taking food or beverage, even leftovers, from the lunchroom would be prosecuted.

Playful hospital employees couldn't resist the temptation. Notices started showing up on bulletin boards around the hospital.

One read: "Crab claw ransom note." The note advised that the critters were not stolen, but taken hostage and were being held in Lebanon. "Don't contact the police or you may never see your crabs alive again. Leave almost $14.62 in mixed coins in hospital storeroom."

Then another prankster started the "Save the Crab Claw Foundation," and sought donations. Another group sought volunteers for a secret mission to try to free the non-politically motivated crab claws.

The hospital administrator was less than amused. He was relieved that he had other crab claws for the important luncheon.

Yep, and he's heard all the jokes about regular hospital food.

Authorities said the fire was still burning, but was under control by about 7:30 a.m. today.

No injuries were reported after the leaking pipeline exploded and spewed flames across the highway early today.

Nuclear test

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today staged its second nuclear test since abandoning a unilateral test freeze two weeks ago, exploding a device at an underground test range in Kazakhstan on the steppes of central Asia.

The official Tass news agency said the device's yield was "up to 20 kilotons," the force of the U.S. atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, on Aug. 6, 1945, in the final days of World War II.

Tass said the test at the Semipalatinsk range 1,700 miles southeast of Moscow near the Chinese border was conducted "with a view to upgrading military technology." It gave no further details in its two-paragraph dispatch.

Conviction gets thrown out

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals threw out the capital murder conviction of Robert Excell White, who has been on the state's death row longer than any other inmate.

The conviction was overturned Wednesday because White had not been told that what he told psychiatrists would be used against him in court. A retrial was set for May 18 in McKinney.

White has been on death row since Aug. 26, 1974. He was convicted in one slaying that was part of a May 1974 crime spree in which four men died.

White, now 49, was sentenced to die in the death of Preston Boyle, a 73-year-old storekeeper, who, with two 18-year-old customers, was killed by machine gun fire.

According to police, the crime spree began in Waco with the stabbing death of Robert Perryman. White and two accomplices, brothers Gary Dale Livingston and James Owen Livingston, then drove to a grocery store east of McKinney.

White said in his confession that they planned to buy gas there, but only had $2. They decided to rob the store.

Broyle and customers Gary Coker and Billy St. John were ordered to lie on the floor, where they were shot to death, according to court records. About $60 was taken in the robbery.

White was indicted in all three deaths, but tried only in the Broyle shooting. James Livingston also was sentenced to death, but the sentence was commuted to life in prison in 1983.

Gary Livingston was given a life sentence and released on parole in 1984. He committed suicide last year.

At a 1977 hearing, White told a Texas judge, "I'm not going to ask for forgiveness from no one because I don't deserve it."

In its unanimous decision, the Court of Criminal Appeals said Wednesday that two psychiatrists examined White and then testified for the state during the punishment phase of the trial. Both said White was a sociopath who would commit further acts of violence.

To recommend a death sentence, Texas juries must decide that a defendant would be a continuing threat to society.

The Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed the conviction and sentence in 1976. But attorneys for White in 1986 requested a writ of habeas corpus, based on the fact that White was not warned that what he told the psychiatrists could be used against him in court.

"In the absence of such warnings, (White) cannot be said to have voluntarily consented to the pretrial examination," the appeals court said.

Collin County District Attorney Tom O'Connell, who prosecuted White in 1974, said Wednesday he has not encountered difficulty in finding witnesses and evidence for a retrial.

"Obviously from a technical standpoint there is a choice. But I don't feel there really is a choice," O'Connell said about his decision to retry the case.

He said he was not surprised that the conviction was overturned."

Slow change in trade picture seen with the dipping dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economists believe they are seeing signs that the long fall in the value of the dollar is improving the country's trade fortunes, but they caution that the turnaround will not be quick.

The government reported Wednesday that the U.S. merchandise trade deficit swelled to $38.4 billion from October through December, an all-time high which helped push the trade deficit for the entire year to $147.7 billion, 18.7 percent higher than the previous annual record set in 1985.

But amid the gloomy numbers, economists detected some encouraging signs.

For one thing, while imports rose 3 percent to $95.7 billion during the final three months of the year, the increase was accounted for entirely by higher prices. The actual volume of imports fell by 1 percent.

And American exports posted a respectable 2.8 percent increase, to $57.3 billion, their fourth consecutive quarterly improvement and their biggest gain of the year.

These figures, economists believe, show that the Reagan administration strategy of driving down the value of the dollar to improve U.S. trade is beginning to pay off.

The rise in import prices, reflecting the weaker dollar, is curbing Americans' appetite for foreign goods, while the rise in exports shows that American goods are becoming more competitive on world markets, economists said.

The trouble is that this strategy translates into higher deficits in the beginning because import prices rise faster than demand for foreign goods falls.

Economists said this is what occurred in the October-December quarter, and they predicted that declines in the volume of imports will be offset by import price increases for most of this year.

"We think the trade situation has hit its trough and won't be getting any worse."

Dear Abby

If You're Ready to Marry, Then You're Ready to Move

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Let me add a few words of advice to "Tears on My Pillow," who doesn't want to move from her home in West Virginia to California where her fiance has a better job: Grow up!

I am a military wife, and we have moved 34 times and lived in 14 states and also foreign countries. In every new location, I've made new friends who became close as family, and I cried bitter tears every time we had to move — only to find that the people in the next place had as much to offer as the last, if not more.

Incidentally, I, too, am from West Virginia. My whole family lives there so I know how you feel, but if a wife must make a choice, her place is with her husband — not her parents.

My 64-year-old mother was in the same position as you, only Mother was already married when she decided that the hills of West Virginia were more important to her than her husband, so she divorced him, and now she sits alone in West Virginia.

Please listen to Abby. She's right to suggest that "Maybe you're not ready to marry Buddy — or anybody else."

ABBY'S ECHO

DEAR ECHO: Many other readers echoed my advice to "Tears." Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, my daughter and her husband were visiting us, and because they had made so many moves, I asked them when they were going to "settle down."

My daughter said, "Even though we move a lot, we are settled down. We both have jobs, furniture, an apartment, cars, etc." I told them I meant really settled down in one place. She said they might never live in one place forever, and she wasn't sure they'd ever want to — then she looked lovingly at her husband, gave him a little pat on the knee, and said, "He's my home."

That is what I would like to tell the girl from West Virginia who's dreading her wedding day because she doesn't want to leave West Virginia. Home is where the heart is. She should wait until she meets a man she will follow anywhere.

PHOENIX MOM

DEAR ABBY: I think you were very unsympathetic to imply that "Tears on My Pillow" was immature because she didn't want to leave her friends and family in West Virginia to marry Buddy and move to California. I think you should have told her to dump Buddy unless he was willing to move closer to her family.

Twenty-four years ago, I married a serviceman who promised me that when his tour was up, we would move back to my hometown. We never did. He paid no attention to my pleas to go home because he didn't want to go back there to live. Lest you think I'm a whiner who sits next to the window crying to go home, I'm not. I believe you bloom where you are planted. I'm active in my kids' schools, I work part time at a job I love, and have a wide and varied circle of friends. But there isn't a day that goes by that I don't wish I could move back home. I'm still homesick, and I miss my family.

Would I marry my husband again? Only after he found a job in my hometown — or very nearby.

I'd have advised "Tears on My Pillow": If Buddy doesn't consider what's important to you, he'll make a poor husband. Dump him!

TEARS IN MY HEART

DEAR TEARS: I told "Tears on My Pillow" to put her wedding on hold — that she may not be ready to marry Buddy, or anybody else. One "dumps" only that which she is absolutely sure she wants no part of. I think "Tears" should play it safe. She might grow up in the meantime.

Another may be involved with blast

AUSTIN (AP) — Police say an unscrupulous businessman wanting to terrorize a business associate may have been partially responsible for the bomb that exploded and killed a Minnesota native while he was building the device.

Allen Schmitt appears to have been "an all-American boy" who may have been duped into believing that he was building the bomb for legitimate business purposes, police said.

"I really don't believe he knew what the device was going to be used for," said Austin homicide Lt. Jerry Slatton.

"All killings bug me, but this one bugs me more than most. Here was a kid who it seemed could have had a pretty bright future," Slatton said. "When it happens to a kid who was suckered into the incident, it kind of makes you wonder what he was told."

Schmitt, 23, was killed March 2 when a pipe bomb blew up as he held it, destroying his apartment. Authorities said Schmitt moved to Austin earlier this year to gain work experience prior to returning to college in North Dakota for his senior year.

The bomb Schmitt was building was described as a relatively simple but powerful device. The explosion blew a hole in the roof and a side wall of Schmitt's second-floor apartment and blew window frames more than 30 feet from their foundation.

Slatton said police have concluded their investigation without filing charges but will continue working with federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents, who are still on the case. Federal authorities are scheduled to contact business associates of the Austin man, police said. Authorities said evidence may be submitted to a federal grand jury.

Police said the suspect is involved in lawsuits against business associates.

Toss kings away in heads-up play

By James Jacoby

It's a good idea to be economical with your cards, but it's also important to watch for those times when you must play with abandon, throwing your high cards away.

The lead against three hearts was a low spade. East took the ace, and declarer assumed it was likely that West would hold the heart king. (West needed some strength to bid vulnerable, and apparently he did not hold A-K of clubs or he might have led a high club.) So declarer played low on the ace of spades. If East continued spades, declarer would win and play A-Q of hearts. If West had the king, maybe he would not know to switch to clubs. Declarer might then be able to get to dummy with a heart and throw two clubs on the diamond ace and spade queen. Alas, East played a club at trick two and the defenders quickly took three club tricks. Still obsessed with the notion that West held the heart king, South tried to drop that card by playing out the ace. No luck.

Declarer failed to credit West with making a dangerous overcall. He should not let that bid cajole him into the wrong play in trumps. And so at trick one, when the spade ace comes up, he should simply unblock the king. Look what happens. The defense takes three club tricks, but now, when West plays a diamond, declarer can win the ace, throwing his lone king under it. He can successfully finesse against the heart king and then get back to dummy with the spade queen to take another heart finesse. And that will be nine tricks.

Learn by mistakes

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The old adage, "we learn from mistakes," is something neither high school math students nor their teachers usually profit from, says a University of Rochester education professor.

Raffaela Borasi says most students care more about getting the correct answer than thinking about why an answer is right or wrong. Teachers use errors to diagnose problems, but rarely to encourage students to analyze mistakes and learn from them.

Working with students and teachers in the Rochester area, Borasi is conducting a two-year study she hopes will result in better educational materials — materials that will show both students and teachers how to profit from wrong answers.

Adolf Hitler launched his first attempt at seizing power in Germany with a coup in Munich Nov. 8, 1923. It was known as the "Beer Hall Putsch" and it failed. Hitler wound up in prison, serving a sentence for high treason. It was in prison that Hitler wrote his political tract, "Mein Kampf."

Take control of your health

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I think I need a muscle relaxer, but the doctors just don't listen. I get leg and foot cramps all night long, and in the rest of my body all day long. They just tell me to lose weight (I'm 5-foot-4, female, 61 and 260 pounds). Why won't they help me?

DEAR READER — From the information in your question, I cannot identify the source of your cramps. A muscle relaxer might help you, but that decision is best left to your doctor.

However, you do raise an important issue. Clearly, you are overweight at 260 pounds. I agree with your physician that a weight-loss program is a logical next step, both for your general health and — possibly — to relieve your cramps. A doctor can put you on a diet, but the ultimate responsibility to trim down rests with you.

Rather than feeling helpless because no doctor has come to your aid, take a more aggressive and positive approach to your own health. I think that you will experience physical and psychological improvement by taking matters into your own hands, instead of waiting for someone to do it for you.

Join a weight-loss support group, such as Weight Watchers. This is a comparatively inexpensive way for you to gain more control over your weight, with the support, encouragement and supervision of people who also have weight problems. After you have reached a more ideal weight, return to your doctor. You might be surprised at his (or her) willingness to help you once you have taken the initiative to help yourself.

To help you help yourself, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on weight loss. It tells you how to lose weight wisely — and keep it off. Other readers who are interested in a copy should send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to ask for WINNING THE BATTLE OF THE BULGE.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My orthopedic surgeon has so far given me two cortisone injections, four weeks apart, for pain in the lower back and legs. Friends are frightening me, saying the injections are dangerous. However, athletes get them. I asked the doctor about side effects, but he didn't answer.

DEAR READER — If your orthopedic surgeon won't answer you, find one who will. Cortisone injections are useful in treating many types of bone and joint pain. However, with prolonged use, the drug can weaken tissues and make matters worse. Back and leg pain may indicate a condition, such as low-back strain, that should not be treated with cortisone.

Physical therapy, with hot packs and ultrasound, may be more appropriate treatment for back pain than are cortisone shots. In addition, I have found that reputable chiropractors often can help treat back pain once disc disease has been ruled out.

Finally, alternative treatments such as massage and Myotherapy might be preferable to cortisone injections. Ask your (new) orthopedic surgeon for advice.

Attempted theft charge levelled

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A man accused of demanding $20,000 from state Sen. Carl Parker in exchange for a videotape of the senator faces an attempted theft charge in the case.

Carl Mathew Bellotti III, 28, of Port Neches, was arraigned Wednesday on a charge of attempted theft of more than $20,000, a third-degree felony, officials said.

Bellotti, arrested Tuesday by Texas Ranger Haskell Taylor and taken to the Jefferson County Jail, where he was held in lieu of $20,000 bond, officials said.

In a written statement, Taylor said a man telephoned Parker at his office and demanded $20,000 in exchange for a videotape of the senator. According to Taylor, Parker said the man also had talked several times by telephone with other members of his family.

To Mexico...

Smuggled artifacts returned

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Booty seized from an organized smuggling ring — including artifacts from a 1,000-year-old Mexican Indian community — have been returned to Mexico, U.S. Customs officials say.

Painted pottery pieces, an axhead and a grinding stone that were seized by U.S. Customs agents last July at the Columbus, N.M., port of entry were returned this week, said Mike Mack, acting district director for Customs' El Paso office, said Wednesday.

The artifacts were being smuggled into the United States by an organized smuggling ring that sells the pieces to collectors, Mack said.

The items were returned under a treaty between the two nations that allows for the return of stolen archaelogical or cultural items.

Enrique Buj Flores, Mexican consul in El Paso, said most of the pottery pieces dated back to the Paquime Indians, a community of peaceful traders that flourished from A.D. 900 to 1100.

The Paquime ruins are near Casas Grandes, Mexico, about 200 miles southwest of El Paso.

The ruins of Paquime include several-story apartments, with aqueducts that ran through the city for drinking water and sewage disposal. Bird cages housed parrots and other tropical birds whose feathers were used for ceremonial headdresses, Buj said.

"They were highly skilled craftsmen," Buj said. "Archaelogical studies have proven that Paquime was the most important center for trade and ceremonial culture for 500 miles around."

The 17 confiscated pieces may have sold on the black market for more than $6,000, Buj said, adding that robbery of archaelogical sites is a big problem in Mexico.

"There are more than 1,100 important archaelogical sites. Less than 100 are adequately supervised, and only 13 or 14 undergoing restoration," he said.

In August 1986, U.S. officials returned 101 Paquime artifacts to Mexico. Buj said the artifacts may be put on display at a museum in Juarez.

Mack said criminal charges of smuggling are pending against the driver of the car with the confiscated artifacts. He declined to name the man, who he said had been arrested once before for similar smuggling.

"We think it's a very large market area," Mack said, adding that Mexican archaelogical sites were a "virtual gold mine for the unscrupulous."

Diamonds found in meteorites

NEW YORK (AP) — Trillions of diamonds so tiny that 20,000 equal the width of a hair have been found in meteorites, and scientists say they may give clues to the chemistry of stars and suggest ways to make tiny industrial gemstones.

"If you look up at the Milky Way, you may actually be seeing some light that is scattered by diamonds," said Roy Lewis, senior research associate at the University of Chicago.

Lewis and his colleagues have found trillions of the tiny diamonds in four meteorites, and they say the diamonds may have formed in the atmosphere of a dying star before the solar system was born 4.5 billion years ago.

The diamonds could be among the oldest things on Earth, Lewis said.

They may yield clues about the chemistry of stars, and learning how they formed could suggest better ways of manufacturing tiny diamonds for industrial purposes, he said. But "in terms of something to put on your wife's finger, they're of absolutely no value at all," he said.

Nebraska tops Marquette, too...

Boise State wins NIT opener

by The Associated Press

Last-second basketball games are nothing new to Boise State Coach Bobby Dye. However, the latest nail-biter featured a new twist for him.

"I don't think I ever remember, except for tonight, where somebody missed a shot late which would have won it for them," said Dye after two misses at the foul line by Utah allowed his team to escape with a 62-61 victory Wednesday night in the National Invitation Tournament.

Boise State didn't win this first-round game until Utah forward Albert Springs missed two free throws with one second left.

"I couldn't ask for more," said Utah Coach Lynn Archibald. "We had two shots to win the game. No matter what took place before that, that's all you want when you are on the road."

In other first-round games Wednesday night, Nebraska beat Marquette 78-76 and Washington stopped Montana State 98-90 in overtime.

First-round action continues tonight with Cleveland State at Tennessee-Chattanooga, La Salle at Villanova, Rhode Island at Florida State, Baylor at Arkansas-Little Rock, Akron at Illinois State, Jacksonville at Vanderbilt and James Madison at Stephen F. Austin.

On Friday, the first round will be completed with Seton Hall at Niagara, Arkansas State at Arkansas, Mississippi at Southern Mississippi, St. Peter's at St. Louis, Oregon State at New Mexico and Fullerton State at California.

Nebraska 78, Marquette 76

Brian Carr hit a 10-foot jumper with one second left to boost Nebraska over Marquette. Carr's winning shot came after Marquette's Kevin Johnson and Tony Smith each made 3-point field goals in the final 53 seconds to tie the game.

Carr drove in from the right side and was fouled as he made the game-winning shot. Carr then intentionally missed his free throw.

Bernard Day scored 18 points without missing a shot for Nebraska, while Derrick Vick and reserve Anthony Bailous added 14 points each and Carr 12.

Washington 98, Montana St. 90, OT

Greg Hill scored 11 of his 26 points in overtime to lead Washington over Montana State.

A 15-foot jump shot by seven-foot center Chris Welp with four seconds remaining in regulation time tied the game at 80. Montana State fired an errant desperation shot at the buzzer.

Then the 6-foot Hill took over, hitting a 3-point shot with 12 seconds gone in the overtime and adding a 17-footer just 43 seconds later.

A layup by Welp, who finished with 25 points and 12 rebounds, gave Washington an 87-80 lead. Montana State never got closer than four points the remainder of the overtime.

Indiana expects tough game despite unheralded opponent

by The Associated Press

Before last season's first round of the NCAA men's basketball tournament, Knight told anyone who would listen that Cleveland State was capable of beating his Hoosiers. They did, 83-79.

Tonight, the third-ranked and top-seeded Hoosiers, 24-4, face Fairfield, 15-15, another team that is being written off by most people - except Knight.

"I said at (last year's) press conference that Cleveland State was capable of playing against anybody and playing well, and that Cleveland State could very easily beat us the next day," Knight said Wednesday after his team practiced at Hoosier Dome. "And I don't think anybody in there paid any attention to me."

His players did.

"We hope we learned a valuable lesson last year with Cleveland State," Indiana guard Steve Alford, a two-time All-American who is the school's career scoring leader with 2,300 points, said. "We hope things are different this year, but we can't really tell until the game starts. Hopefully, we'll be in it."

Also in the Midwest Regional first round in Indianapolis today were No. 14 Missouri, 24-9, vs. Xavier, Ohio, 18-12; No. 17 Duke, 22-8, vs. Texas A&M, 17-13; and Auburn, 17-12, vs. San Diego, 24-5. Friday's Midwest games will be played at Rosemont, Ill. and it will be No. 8 Temple, 31-3, vs. Southern U., 19-11; Georgia Tech, 16-12, vs. Louisiana State, 21-14; St. John's, 20-8, vs. Wichita State, 22-10; and No. 5 DePaul, 26-2, which plays its home games at the Horizon, vs. Louisiana Tech, 22-7.

SOUTHEAST

In the Southeast Regional at Birmingham, Ala., Alabama-Birmingham, 21-10, will play Providence, 21-8, tonight as the Blazers are one of the teams to enjoy a homecourt advantage in the opening rounds.

But Providence's first trip to the NCAA tournament since 1978 has been tempered by the death last Sunday of Coach Rick Pitino's 6-month-old son, Daniel, who had been suffering from complications since birth.

In other games today at Birmingham it was No. 16 New Orleans, 25-3, vs. Brigham Young, 21-10; No. 9 Alabama, 26-4, vs. North Carolina A&T, 24-5; and No. 11 Illinois, 23-7, vs. Austin Peay, 19-11. Friday's Southeast Regional games will be played at Atlanta and it's No. 13 Clemson, 25-5, vs. Southwest Missouri State, 27-5; No. 20 Kansas, 23-10, vs. Houston, 18-11; No. 4 and top-seeded Georgetown, 26-4, vs. Bucknell, 22-8; and Kentucky, 18-10, vs. Ohio State, 19-12.

EAST

Penn Coach Tom Schneider knows about playing top-seeded teams in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Two years ago, Schneider was the head man at Lehigh when the Engineers had to face Georgetown in an opening-round game. Lehigh lost 68-43.

Tonight, Schneider send the Quakers, 13-13 and champions of the Ivy League, against No. 2 North Carolina, 29-3, in a first-round East Regional game at Charlotte, N.C.

In other East Regional games today at Charlotte it was No. 19 Texas Christian, 23-6, vs. Marshall, 25-5; No. 18 Notre Dame, 22-7, vs. Middle Tennessee State, 22-6; and Navy, 26-5, vs. Michigan, 19-11. On Friday in the East Regional at Syracuse, N.Y., it will be No. 7 Purdue, 24-4, vs. Northeasten, 27-6; Florida, 21-10, vs. North Carolina State, 20-14; West Virginia, 23-7, vs. Western Kentucky, 28-8; and No. 10 Syracuse, 26-6, which will be playing on its home court, vs. Georgia Southern, 20-10.

WEST

Virginia Coach Terry Holland feels his Cavaliers, 21-9, have a legitimate chance at winning the national title and they'll start their march tonight against Wyoming, 22-9, in a West Regional game at Salt Lake City.

"This basketball team has every possibility of putting together six straight wins," Holland, who has each of his starters scoring in double figures, said. "That's our goal and what we will work extremely hard for."

In other West Regional games today at Salt Lake City, it was Georgia, 18-11, vs. Kansas State, 19-10; top-ranked and top-seeded Nevada-Las Vegas, 33-1, vs. Idaho State, 15-15; and No. 15 UCLA, 24-6, vs. Central Michigan, 22-7.

Friday's West Regional at Tucson, Ariz. will have No. 6 Iowa, 27-4, vs. Santa Clara, 18-13; Texas-El Paso, 24-6, vs. Arizona, 18-11, which will be playing on its home court; No. 12 Pittsburgh, 24-7, vs. Marist, 20-9, and Oklahoma, 22-9, vs. Tulsa, 22-7.

Baseball tourney set to begin here today

Overcast skies loomed as a threat this morning but officials were still hoping for good weather for this afternoon's start of the Snyder Baseball Tournament.

Snyder's baseball team - and virtually every other area baseball team - has been plagued with a rash of cancellations, caused by inclement weather. The Tigers' opener on Feb. 24 was cancelled, and so was the Feb. 26-27 Fredricksburg Tournament in which Snyder was entered. Just Tuesday, Snyder's game with Odessa Permian was rained out.

Nonetheless, Lamesa and Lubbock High were to have taken the diamond at Moffett Field in today's tournament opener at 1 p.m. They were to be followed by Pecos and Lubbock Dunbar at 3 p.m.

Snyder enters tournament play at 5 p.m., hosting Abilene Wylie.

Levelland, also entered in the three-day event, received a first-round bye, and will play the Snyder-Wylie victor at 5 p.m. Friday.

The championship game is slated for 5 p.m. Saturday. Third place will start at 3 p.m. and consolation at 12:30 p.m.

SAN ANGELO -- Snyder High School's boys golf team teed off this morning at Bentwood Country Club in the two-day San Angelo Invitational Tournament.

Play will move to San Angelo Country Club for Friday's 18 holes.

Competing for Snyder are Wade Hatter, Marc McQueen, Ken Meckley, Mike Trull and David Holley.

W.T. Stapler hired at Andrews

ANDREWS -- W.T. Stapler, who directed Sweetwater to a Class 4A state football championship in 1985, has been hired as head coach at Andrews High School.

Stapler signed a two-year contract at Andrews after coaching a year at Fort Worth Boswell, where he compiled a 9-2 record and a District 5-4A zone championship.

Stapler left Sweetwater after the 1985 season. He had also taken the Mustangs to the state quarterfinals in 1984. His career coaching record is 155-38-2.

Woody Hayes dead at age 74

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Woody Hayes, who became one of the most successful coaches in college football history, guiding the Ohio State University team to 205 wins and two national championships, died today at the age of 74.

Russell Spillman, vice president for student affairs, quoted OSU Athletic Director Rick Bay as saying that Hayes, who had been in ill health during recent years, died at his home about 6 a.m.

Hayes' coaching career ended in 1978, a few hours after the Buckeyes lost the Gator Bowl to Clemson.

In front of a national television audience, Hayes struck Charlie Bauman, a Clemson nose guard who had intercepted an Ohio State pass late in the game. Hayes refused to apologize, and was fired.

Hayes compiled a record of 238-72-10 in 33 seasons at Denison University (1946-48), Miami of Ohio (1949-50) and Ohio State (1951-78). Only Paul "Bear" Bryant (323), Amos Alonzo Stagg (314) and Glenn "Pop" Warner (313) won more major college football games.

Mitchell treated for drug abuse

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Mike Mitchell, the San Antonio Spurs' leading scorer for the past two seasons, has voluntarily checked himself into a drug treatment facility, club officials announced.

"The league office notified me today," team president Angelo Drossos said Wednesday night. "They said he turned himself in for substance abuse, but they did not specify the drug."

Mitchell, 31, left Wednesday afternoon for Van Nuys, Calif., site of the NBA-sanctioned substance abuse center, Spurs general manager Bob Bass said.

"Nobody had any inkling of this," Drossos said. "I'm shocked and surprised. There were no warning signs. I thought the game before last (a 15-point effort against Golden State) he had had a good game."

Spurs coach Bob Weiss also expressed disbelief.

"I had no indication at all. It was a real surprise, a shock to me," he said.

76ers slow Jordan, stop Bulls, 117-108

by The Associated Press

Philadelphia rookie David Wingate made his second NBA start Wednesday night and "held" Chicago's Michael Jordan to 49 points.

"He's coming into his own and you can see his confidence mount," Chicago Coach Doug Collins said of Wingate, who scored 28 points of his own in the 76ers' 117-108 victory. "He was making Michael chase him all over the court when they had the ball, which caused Michael to expend a lot of energy."

"I thought our defense was good throughout the game," Philadelphia Coach Matt Guokas said. "I know that sounds funny when you have Jordan scoring all those points, but he's one of the great all-time offensive players."

Elsewhere, it was Detroit 107, Indiana 98; Milwaukee 115, Washington 107; Boston 118, Phoenix 109; Denver 122, Utah 116; Dallas 130, Seattle 117 and Golden State 121, Los Angeles Clippers 111.

White's Testers was the top team winner in the 1987 Men's City Bowling Tournament, held at Snyder Lanes recently.

White's rolled a 2,994 to edge second place Fluid Transports, Inc., which turned in a 2,945. Third place went to Snyder Savings and Loan with a 2,937.

Bowling for White's were Dwayne Duncan, E.B. Dennis, R.V. Corbell, Mike Doolittle and Bobby Kirkpatrick.

The Women's City Tournament begins this weekend at Snyder Lanes.

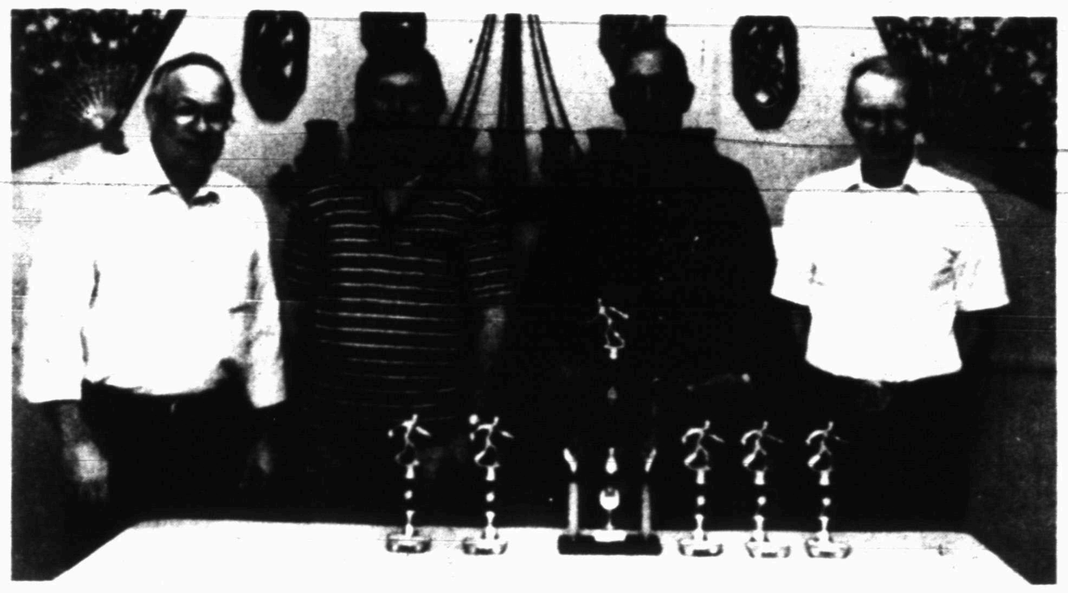

Thomas Pherigo shook down the house, winning all-events honors in both handicap and scratch competition, taking second in singles, and teaming with Glenn Pherigo to win doubles. He rolled a 1,864 scratch and a 2,095 under the handicap system. He and Glenn Pherigo took top honors in doubles with a 1,405.

Drug tests violate rights, says judge

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) - A judge's strongly worded repudiation of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's mandatory drug tests has opened the way for a possible broad attack on the program.

Attorneys for the American Civil Liberties Union, which is challenging drug-testing on a number of fronts around the country, hailed Wednesday's ruling declaring the NCAA's tests an unconstitutional violation of privacy.

The ruling holds important implications for thousands of athletes, especially those in California, where the right of privacy is specifically included in the state Constitution.

The first legal challenge to the NCAA's 1½-year-old drug-testing program was brought by an unlikely athlete, a diver who said she had never used illegal drugs and wasn't worried about the outcome of tests.

Simone LeVant, a 22-year-old Stanford senior, said she simply opposed the tests on principle.

She filed a lawsuit against the NCAA in January, and Wednesday won a preliminary injunction allowing her to compete in the NCAA diving championships without submitting to urine tests. The ruling applied only to LeVant.

"I feel wonderful," LeVant said. "I am happy to hear everything the judge said. I feel I set a precedent. No other athlete has been willing to challenge the NCAA. We've won the first step. I hope this makes other athletes think about their situations more."

Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Peter G. Stone agreed with LeVant that mandatory urine tests are a constitutional invasion of privacy and said there is a "reasonable probability" she would win in a trial court.

Stone rejected virtually every argument posed by NCAA attorney Richard J. Archer. Archer said he didn't think the NCAA would appeal the ruling since LeVant would be graduating this spring.

LeVant's attorneys, who are working with the ACLU on the case, said they will wait for the NCAA to make the next move before deciding whether to bring the case to trial.

Banned booster wants endowment returned

DALLAS (AP) - A Southern Methodist University booster informed he has been banned for life from any active association with the school because of a cash gift to a football player, said he will ask the school to return a $150,000 scholarship endowment he had made.

"I fell it's unjust," Dallas businessman John Appleton, one of nine boosters named in the SMU football scandal, said after SMU interim president William Stallcup Jr. apprised him Wednesday of the school's action.

"I have endowed a scholarship, and if this is their attitude, I am going to ask for it to be returned," Appleton said.

He admitted paying $400 to an athlete in 1984, which contributed to SMU's being placed on probation in 1985, but said he had been guilty of no improprieties since.

Appleton told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram he was told of the lifetime punishment during a telephone conversation with Stallcup on Wednesday afternoon. He said he called Stallcup after hearing news reports that an announcement concerning the banned boosters would be made today.

"The problem I have with this (ban) is that I've broken no other NCAA rules," Appleton told the Star-Telegram.

He said he feels he and other SMU boosters are being made a scapegoat for Gov. Bill Clements and other members of the SMU board of governors who became aware of payments to athletes and decided to continue them - a decision that resulted in the one-year shutdown of football.

"Just because Governor Clements and another booster continued payments to the players which caused the additional penalties is no reason why I should be banned," said Appleton, who owns a videotape shop and received both his undergraduate and graduate degrees from SMU.

The NCAA last month shut down the SMU football program for 1987 because of boosters' payments to players. SMU officials were told at the time to ban the boosters for life or explain why such action is unwarranted. Officials had announced they would respond today.

The permanent ban means Appleton would be unable to rejoin the Mustangs' booster club, buy season tickets, associate with players or coaches, donate money or support services to the athletic department, visit the campus, or join any organization affiliated with SMU.

Appleton said he had no part in a $61,000 "slush fund" that was used over the past two years to provide payments ranging from $50 to $750 a month to 13 SMU football players.

Hope to make NCAA history...

Hogs look for 4th straight track title

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - The University of Arkansas men's track and field team, led by Roddie Haley, can make history this weekend by winning the NCAA championship for the fourth consecutive year.

Coach John McDonnell doesn't think it will be easy, because the Razorbacks lack depth.

"It'll be tougher this year," McDonnell said. "We have only five individuals and two relay teams.

"But we've got the potential to win. We have a small contingent, but a good one."

Last year, the Razorbacks qualified 10 individuals plus a two-mile relay team, and finished the two-day meet in The Myriad with 49 points, more than twice as many as runner-up Villanova, which had 22.

It was the second consecutive decisive triumph for Arkansas. In 1985, the Razorbacks posted the biggest winning margin in the meet's 22-year history, 41 points, with a total of 70, compared with 29 for second-place Tennessee.

In 1984, Arkansas won with 38 points to 28 for No. 2 Washington State.

The three straight titles matched the meet record set by Texas-El Paso from 1974-76 and equaled by the Miners from 1980-82.

At a team meeting this week, McDonnell emphasized the importance of becoming the meet's first four-time winner.

"That's something that Texas-El Paso hasn't done," he said. "If we run to our potential, we could do it."

Last year, Alabama's women's team proved that quality - and not necessarily quantity - is enough to win a championship. The Alabama women, despite having only five athletes in the meet, took its first title with 41 points, 10 ahead of favored Texas.

McDonnell doesn't think 41 points will be needed to win the men's title in this meet, which begins Friday with finals in the men's and women's long jump, the men's 35-pound weight throw and pole vault, and the women's shot put and high jump, along with trials in 16 other events. Twenty finals will be held Saturday.

"I think 32 or 33 points will win, and I will be pleased if we can muster that many," McDonnell said. "If we can do that, win or lose, we'll feel we've had a good meet."

With Haley defending his title in the 500 meters and anchoring the 1,600-meter relay team, NCAA outdoor champion Jeff Pascoe in the pole vault, and Matt Taylor and Wayne Moncrieffe back to run the final two legs on the defending 3,200-meter relay team, the Razorbacks have experience.

In addition, they have sophomore Joe Falcon, the runner-up in last fall's NCAA Cross Country Championships, in the 3,000 meters, and Gary Taylor, who ran the fastest 1,500-meter relay leg in Penn Relays history in 1986, and freshman Reuben Reina, both in the mile.

and had 11 assists as Detroit took a half-game lead over idle Atlanta in the Central Division. Thomas scored eight points and Vinnie Johnson six in the last 6:19 of the third quarter as Detroit broke a 65-65 tie and took the lead for good at 82-77 after three periods.

Bill Laimbeer scored 22 points for Detroit, which beat Indiana for the first time in four meetings.

Bucks 115, Bullets 107

Milwaukee's Sidney Moncrief, who missed 39 games with an injured knee, was in at the end of the game for only the second time since he came off the disabled list Feb. 14 and scored 18 of his 25 points in the second half.

Terry Catledge led the Bullets with a career-high 32 points.

Celtics 118, Suns 109

Boston erased a six-point deficit by scoring 20 straight points in the fourth quarter, 10 by Kevin McHale, for its 65th victory in the last 66 games at Boston Garden.

Boston backup center Bill Walton, sidelined all season with a painful right ankle, made his first appearance with 2:30 left in the first quarter. He had one rebound and no points before leaving the game for good with 1:51 gone in the second period.

Nuggets 122, Jazz 116

Darrell Walker scored a career-high 39 points and Alex English added 34 as visiting Utah fell seven games behind first-place Dallas in the Midwest Division and Denver moved 1½ games ahead of Phoenix in the race for the eighth and last playoff spot in the Western Conference.

Utah's Kelly Tripucka scored 27 points.

Mavericks 130, SuperSonics 117

Mark Aguirre scored 26 points to lead Dallas to its seventh consecutive victory at home, where the Mavericks are 27-5. Seattle which had won eight of its previous 10 games, had a three-game winning streak snapped.

Research park to receive gift

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot says he will announce March 20 the amount of his donation to a development for academic and private biotechnology research.

Perot, who spoke at a fund-raiser Wednesday to aid Mayor Henry Cisneros' re-election bid, said the 1,500-acre Texas Research Park could be a source for economic diversification.

"I think it's going to be an incredible benefit to this region, specifically this city, in terms of diversifying the job opportunities, the types of industries that will move around a center like that," Perot said.

Perot declined to give the amount of his donation, but Ret. Gen. Robert F. McDermott, chairman of the board of the Texas Research and Technology Foundation, said that Perot's gift would be a multimillion-dollar one.

"The impact will be national in scope because he is a man of vision," McDermott said. "His gift will be substantial to really be a catalyst for others to give."

McDermott said the overall construction budget is $102 million, but he declined to say how much has been raised. The park is being developed in west Bexar County and is expected bring together academic and private researchers.

The park will be anchored by a new University of Texas Institute of Biotechnology that will operate under the UT Health Science Center. McDermott said construction of the institute will begin in June and be completed in two years.

The biotechnology businesses program will involve projects on genetic engineering, physics, medicine, pharmaceuticals, chemistry and electronics.

"The educational requirements that will be imposed on the university here in the area will cause it to continue to be dramatically upgraded and the net benefit will be a diversifed job base in the city, plus a lot of medical breakthroughs," Perot said.

Perot founded Electronic Data Systems Corp. and sold it in 1984 to General Motors for $2.5 billion. General Motors purchased the rest of his stock for $750 million last December.

In 1984, he chaired a panel that recommended sweeping educational reforms.

Texas judges change minds, uphold conviction of man

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has upheld a death sentence it threw out last year, but dissenting judges charged that community outrage rather than legal precedent prompted the "flip-flop."

The murder conviction had been appealed because the trial judge allowed jurors to leave the courtroom and move their vehicles to the courthouse parking lot just before deliberations began.

The judges voted 7-2 Wednesday to affirm the capital murder conviction of Curtis Hall Harris in the beating death of Timothy Michael Merka. Merka was slain in Brazos County after stopping to help four men whose vehicle wouldn't start.

Last September, the appeals court voted 6-3 to overturn Harris' conviction, saying it was improper that jurors were allowed to leave the courthouse to move their cars.

Wednesday's decision to uphold the conviction was branded "a complete flip-flop" by Judge Marvin Teague, one of two judges who opposed the action. Judge Sam Houston Clinton also dissented.

"It should be easily recognizeable by all that the majority opinion's holding will undoubtedly be popular with the prosecuting attorney, the trial judge, the jurors and probably a majority of the citizens of Montgomery and Brazos counties who happen to be familiar with this case," Teague wrote.

"Our decisions however should never rest on what might be popular with the masses," Teague said.

But the majority opinion, authored by Judge Chuck Miller, said the facts indicated that the court's earlier decision was incorrect.

According to court records, District Judge John Martin of Conroe allowed jurors to leave the courthouse briefly — just before deliberating on the guilt question — so they could move their autos to the courthouse parking lot.

Martin said he personally supervised them and that they had no improper contacts while away from the courthouse.

During the trial, Martin said he allowed jurors to get their cars "so when they leave tonight (from) the courthouse to journey to the motel they didn't have to walk to a dark parking lot and pick up their vehicles."

In its earlier opinion, the appeals court said that action violated a state law which says jurors cannot separate after a judge has instructed them and before they begin deliberations.

But in Wednesday's opinion, the appeals court said the jurors hadn't made any outside contacts and were accompanied by the trial judge.

"There is no evidence that the jurors were out of sight of the trial judge, that the jurors had any contact with other persons, nor that (Harris) was harmed in any way by the separation," Miller wrote.

In his dissent, Teague said the priciple involved is more than a technicality.

"Whether one wishes to characterize unlawful jury separation as a 'technicality' or not makes no difference; it is nevertheless the law (that jurors not be separated) and will remain the law until changed by the legislature," Teague wrote.

Former Texas ranger receives honor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clint T. Peoples, a feisty 76-year-old former senior captain of the Texas Rangers and current U.S. marshal in Dallas, has been chosen to represent the U.S. Marshals Service during its bicentennial celebration in 1989.

As executive marshal, he will give up his duties as marshal and turn his attention to coordinating events around the nation in 1989, including a Smithsonian Institution exhibit on the history of the marshals service.

U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese and Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas joined Stanley E. Morris, director of the Marshals Service, in praising Peoples' selection on Wednesday, citing his 56-year career in law enforcement that included several major investigations.

"Clint Peoples is known as an outstanding American who has devoted more than a half-century to law enforcement," Gramm said. "We know him as a man of courage and duty who helped guide the Texas Rangers into modern times and, more recently, served with distinction as the U.S. marshal for the Northern District of Texas."

Peoples became a lawman in Conroe, Texas, in 1930, where he served as deputy sheriff of Montgomery County. He went on to join the Texas Rangers, where he rose to the rank of senior captain over all the rangers in 1969.

"I'm not boasting to you, but I'm the senior law enforcement officer in tenure in the United States today," Peoples said in his soft, Central Texas drawl. "I'm like Dolly Parton — I do as good as I can with what I got."

Perhaps his most controversial case was a probe into the death of a U.S. Agriculture Department official in 1961.

4 New Jersey teenagers make suicide pact

BERGENFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Four teens who agreed to kill themselves together had been preoccupied with thoughts of suicide, a friend said, and the mother of one victim said teenagers in this small town are "dying one after another."

The suicide of two sisters and two 19-year-old men follow four young Bergenfield residents' deaths since last summer, authorities said, and as word of Wednesday's deaths spread through the New York City suburb, Mayor Charles O'Dowd urged other youngsters considering suicide to seek help.

Officials also called psychologists to the high school from which three of the four had dropped out and the fourth had been suspended.

"We're very concerned that there is a possibility of a contagion effect," said James Cooney, director of the Bergen Regional Counseling Center.

The bodies were found early Wednesday in a locked car with its engine running inside a garage, Bergen County Prosecutor Larry McClure said. Near the bodies was a note on a brown paper bag signed by the victims saying they wanted a common wake and burial.

The note did not explain the teens' motives, McClure said.

Lisa Burress, 17, her 18-year-old sister Cheryl, and Thomas Rizzo and Thomas Olton, died apparently of carbon monoxide poisoning, he said.

McClure described the four previous deaths of Bergenfield residents as "incidents that may have been suicides and ... were related to drug and-or alcohol consumption."

Rizzo's mother, who refused to give her first name, said one of the deaths involved her son's best friend, Joe Major, 18, who in September fell from a 200-foot-high cliff overlooking the Hudson River. Her son saw Major fall and she said it was a suicide, although it was officially classified an accident.

"They have a pact going on here in Bergenfield and they are dying one after another," she said of teen-agers in the community of 25,000 residents.

Rizzo had been devastated by Major's death, said Dawn Murphy, a friend of the Burress sisters.

A friend of the youths, Linda Figueroa, said the four appeared to be preoccupied with suicide. "They would talk about it, but I didn't think they would do it," she said.

Two other youths have died under the wheels of trains and a third was found dead in a pond. It was not known if the four Wednesday knew those youths.

Weakness of House vote helps Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is in a good position to secure release of $40 million in military aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels after weak House approval of a plan to freeze the money for six months.

The House voted 230-196 to block release of the aid until the administration accounts for payments diverted from secret arms sales to Iran, official U.S. aid, and other funds said to have flowed secretly to the Nicaraguan insurgents.

But the tally fell far short of the two-thirds majority needed to sustain a virtually certain presidential veto. Even Democratic leaders predicted the $40 million would shortly be released.

With a certification Reagan made to Congress last week, release of the previously approved $40 million is automatic March 20 if the president prevails.

One key House Republican, Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., asserted the GOP would have won outright had the vote been on a straight-forward effort to kill the aid money entirely.

White House spokesman Roland Popidiuk told reporters: "There's still the Senate vote and there's also the option of the veto. We're confident that we'll get the $40 million as the process plays itself out."

House Democrats had hoped for a strong vote for the aid freeze to "send a signal" that the $105 million Reagan requested for the Contras for the next fiscal year is in serious trouble and that the time has come for a new U.S. Central American policy that puts emphasis on diplomacy, not military action.

That may still be the case. But Republicans said the 34-vote margin by which the freeze proposal passed the House was too weak to carry such a message.

In Miami, recently resigned Contra leader Arturo Cruz said his departure from the movement did not prompt the House vote.

"The writing was on the wall," he said, noting the certainty of a presidential veto.

The struggle now shifts to the Senate where a vote is set for next week on a resolution to disapprove the aid, originally approved by Congress last year as part of a $100 million assistance package. All but the $40 million has already been dispersed.

Meanwhile, the Senate was voting today on a resolution, with strong bipartisan support, endorsing the peace initiative offered last month by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias.

The plan has been hailed by some in Congress as a sign of hope that a negotiated solution can be found to Central America's troubles without further bloodshed.
