Fall General In Wide Area; 1.05 In City

Moisture Varies From Light Showers To Five Inches On Monday And Tuesday; Is Worth Millions To Farmers

Weather Is Cool

Five Inches At Whiteface, 4.5 At Ralls, 4 At Pettit, 1.5 At Lamesa, 2 At Crosbyton Among Rains Reported

HOPES rose with rain's fall over the South Plains for a three-day period ending Tuesday.

Farmers and crop authorities agreed cotton almost had been "made" and grain sorghums almost assured.

Total precipitation at Lubbock was 1.05 inches, which scarcely matched several sections to the north, northeast and east of the city.

Five Inches At Whiteface

Falls varied from showers to 5 inches at Whiteface community and 4.5 inches at Ralls. Midland also reported that total, for the past two days. Tahoka and Southland reported 3 inches. The rain extended southwestward to Pecos, where 2.5 inches greened parched ranges and made for the heaviest fall there in several years.

Rains were general over a wide area and estimated to be worth millions of dollars to farmers. Much of the region had been deficient in rainfall several months.

Showers In Plainview Area

Santa Fe dispatchers late in the night said there had been showers in the Plainview district and that along its division temperatures had ranged from as low as 60 to 86 degrees.

Pettit, west of Levelland, received a 4-inch rain Monday night and Tuesday, as did the Whiteface farms, northeast of Whiteface.

Hoffman Refuses To Grant Extradition For Detective

Affidavits Branded False By Jersey's Chief Executive

(By The Associated Press)

TRENTON, N. J., July 7.—Governor Harold G. Hoffman refused today to extradite Ellis H. Parker, sr., Burlington county chief of detectives to New York to face a charge of kidnaping Paul H. Wendel, who said he was forced to make a false confession of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

The governor said accompanying affidavits, signed by Wendel and Murray Bleefeld, indicted with Parker, were "manifestly false." He said Wendel, "the principal complaining witness," was a disbarred lawyer and for many years had been a fugitive from New Jersey.

TO SEEK LAW INVOKED

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—Paul H. Wendel said tonight he would ask the federal government to invoke the Lindbergh anti-kidnaping law against Ellis Parker, sr., as a result of Governor Hoffman's refusal to extradite the rural detective to Brooklyn.

Wendel declared he was the victim of a scheme to make Governor Hoffman the Republican vice presidential candidate, Detective Parker the greatest detective of his time and Bruno Richard Hauptmann a free man.

Compares Two Men

"Placing the 42 years of devoted and zealous service of Ellis Parker, sr., to the state of New Jersey against the mendacity and criminality of Wendel," Hoffman said in a statement, "I could not in decency and honor have done anything but deny extradition."

Parker, who is 65, was indicted by the Kings county grand jury (Brooklyn) on June 3 and arrested that night as he strolled out of the Mt. Holy, N. J. Elks club. He has been under $500 bail pending extradition proceedings.

Parker, a long-time friend of

Drinks For 36,000 Failed To Win In 1900

(By The Associated Press)

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio, July 7.—If the modern-day political campaigner thinks he has troubles, he can get some consolation from the following account of campaign expenses filed here by one seeking office in 1900.

"Lost four months, 23 days canvassing, lost one whole potato crop, four sheep, five hogs and one beef.

"Gave away 75 plugs of tobacco, 33,489 drinks of whisky, 2,894 glasses of beer, eight Sunday school books, two pairs of suspenders, three callico dresses, nine dolls and 23 baby rattles.

"Kindled 15 kitchen fires, dug 17 bushels of potatoes, toted 27 buckets of water, put up seven stoves, kissed 146 babies, shook hands with 23,377 men and women and told more than 2,883 lies.

"Loaned three barrels of flour, 20 bushels of meal, 150 pounds of bacon, 97 pounds of butter, 42 dozen eggs, three umbrellas, 13 lead pencils, one Bible dictionary, one mowing blade, seven boxes of collars, one overcoat and two horses. None have been returned.

"Was bitten by dogs three times and a baby broke my watch chain which cost me $3 to repair. Called by opponents a 'perambulating liar,' and paid $10 doctor bills. Had three arguments with my wife who threw one flower pot, broke one broom handle and pulled out two handsful of whiskers.

P. S. He also lost the election.

Government's Six Years Participation In Cotton Markets Nearing An End

Final Liquidation Of Holdings Matter Of Days Now

By FRED WILLIAMS
Associated Press Cotton Reporter

NEW ORLEANS, July 8. — Six years of government participation in American cotton markets neared an end today.

Final liquidation of its holdings in the New Orleans market and reports from New York that the government cotton pool was fast selling its holdings in that center induced the belief in the trade that the wind-up of federal activity was a matter of days.

Started In 1930

It will mark the first time since the ill-fated farm board tried to bolster cotton prices back in 1930 that the government has not been engaged in the futures market in one way or another.

Federal agencies will still retain control of some 3,500,000 bales of cotton acquired under the 10 and 12-cent loans, but this activity is not expected to bring them into the futures market.

Unconcealed relief on the part of the cotton trade that the government is withdrawing from the

Kansas Governor Calls For Legislators To Join With Federal Social Security Program; Gives Views

(By The Associated Press)

TOPEKA, Kas., July 7.—Gov. Alf M. Landon, dividing a busy day between national politics and state legislative affairs, urged upon fellow Kansans today a state constitutional amendment to permit "proper" participation in the "public obligation" of social security.

The Republican presidential nominee opened a special session of the state legislature, recommending submission and ratification of constitutional changes designed to clear the way for full participation in the federal security law. But in doing so, Landon stressed that the New Deal program and the Republican platform upon which he seeks the presidency provided "different" plans for social security.

"Any proposed amendment to the constitution," said Landon's address, "should merely grant to the legislature of the state the power to enact laws to enable this state to join in any such final act for this purpose as may ultimately become the settled law upon this question."

Italians Deny 10 Fliers Are Dead

ROME, July 7. (AP)—An unidentified Italian air general and nine aviators including the famous flier Antonio Locatelli, were killed in an Ethiopian scrape several days ago, reliable sources said tonight despite official denial.

The aviators apparently were fulfilling an assignment in the Italian penetration of Ethiopia, these sources said.

Reports the fliers were killed in an ambush could not be confirmed.

It was understood Premier Mussolini's orders were being awaited for the issuance of an authentic statement.

Reports of the deaths published so far were denied by the ministry of press and propaganda.

Technical Restrictions Which Hamper Texas Prosecutors Should Be Loosened, Two Speakers Contend

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, July 7.—Loosening by the legislature of technical restrictions which they said hamper the prosecutor under the Texas criminal code was advocated by two speakers today at the annual convention of the Texas Bar association.

Speaking before a luncheon of the Texas District and County Attorneys association, Attorney General William McCraw said these restrictions and legal technicalities which favor the criminal result in a situation whereby "prosecutors are sent out lion hunting with a buggy whip."

Courtroom "shows" and the prevalence of perjury also were scored by McCraw who said part of the blame must be shared by the public. The latter, he asserted, doesn't judge a lawyer by his ability but rather by a box score method of whether he wins or not.

"There should be no exceptions in law but the trouble is that when a man gets into trouble he always has a father, son or cousin who

First State Old Age Pension Check Enables Farmer To Wed Young Bride

(By The Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, July 7.—Love in his heart, a $13 old age pension check in his pocket and a 16-year-old bride at his side, Oscar Crawford, 66, today retired to his 18-acre farm for the first honeymoon of his life.

Crawford went to the Columbus postoffice yesterday, and received his first state old age pension check, $13.

At high noon, he appeared at the Colorado county courthouse with Miss Lydia Havermann, 16, at his side.

Clerks declined, however, to issue a marriage license until the father of the bride, William Havermann, appeared and gave his consent to the wedding.

While the father looked on approvingly, County Judge H. P. Hahn read the marriage ceremony.

The bride and groom departed immediately for the C. W. Ellinger farm, five miles east of Columbus, where the groom is cultivating 18 acres of land.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 7.—Rep. Josh Lee of Norman pulled steadily ahead in the race for the Oklahoma Democratic senatorial nomination as scattered returns came in tonight, with Gomer Smith, national Townsend plan vice-president, holding a slight lead for the other run-off post.

Lee, former University of Oklahoma public speaking professor and staunch New Deal supporter, was well out in front of the eight-man field and increased his lead as the returns rolled in.

Smith, campaigning on the Townsend platform, was holding a slight lead over Gov. E. W. Marland, active Roosevelt supporter, for the right to oppose Lee in the runoff primary July 28.

GORE CONCEDES

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 7. (AP)—Blind Senator T. P. Gore, who has served 19 years in the United States senate from Oklahoma—ten continuously—tonight conceded defeat in his race for Democratic renomination in the state's first primary election.

Blind Senator T. P. Gore, veteran of 19 years in congress, was running fourth, on the basis of the scattered returns.

Unofficial returns from 1079 of the state's 3,411 precincts gave Lee 50,193 votes, Smith 32,947, Marland, 31,766 and Gore 25,474.

In the race for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator, Herbert K. Hyde, prosecutor of the Urschel kidnapers, polled 3,200 votes in 251 precincts to 2,213 for Horace McKeever, Enid attorney, his closest opponent.

DALLAS GIRL KILLED

Dallas, July 7. (AP) — Margaret Russell, 13, was killed today when she was run over by a milk wagon under which she fell from her bicycle.

The front wheel of her bicycle caught in street car rails and, unable to control it, the girl was thrown over the handlebars and into the path of the wagon.

A companion riding with her was uninjured.

A man believed to be William F. Winters of Toledo, Ohio, World war veteran, was killed here today by an automobile on a viaduct crossing the Trinity river.

The victim was walking and was knocked into the viaduct railing. Walter St. Clair, burlesque theater comedian, was charged with negligent homicide in the case.

Farley To Take A Payless Leave

Postmaster General To Give Up Post In Campaign

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 7. — James A. Farley, under an arrangement announced today by President Roosevelt, will take a payless leave of absence and relinquish active command of the postoffice department August 1 to devote his entire time until after the election to an effort to keep the New Deal in power.

Thus was answered, for the time being at least, the months old question raised by critics who objected to Farley being postmaster general and chairman of the Democratic national committee at the same time.

Favored Arrangement

The New Yorker, who also holds the chairmanship of the New York state Democratic committee, was not present when the president made the announcement at his press conference. But Farley was said by friends to have favored just such an arrangement for the coming campaign.

The president said his 1932 campaign generalissimo would take leave without pay and during the interim William W. Howes of South

Officials Seeking To Prevent Spread Of Disease In Wake Of Guadalupe River Flood; River Spreads Out

(By The Associated Press)

VICTORIA, July 7.—Four nurses from the state health department administered typhoid serum to hundreds of refugees today as officials sought means to fight unemployment and destitution left in the wake of the Guadalupe river flood.

The river meanwhile, continued its slow course to the gulf, still eight to 10 miles wide in places below here and reaching out over thousands of acres of lush farm land.

Agent To Make Proposal

John M. Sanders, Victoria county agricultural agent, said today he would make a suggestion for relief tomorrow to the state soil conservation board at College Station.

In brief he said, his plan called for permission to allow the flood area farmers to replant cotton land in feed crops for use of farmers in the drouth belt under some government purchase plan and at the same time allow the farmers of this region to gain benefits from the cotton base under provisions of the soil conservation act.

He said he considered it a most necessary relief measure. It is too late, he declared, to replant cotton and the acreage either must be abandoned or planted to soil build-

Defunct Bank In Receivership 50 Years Ready To Pay Off

NEWARK, N. J., July 7. (AP)—A defunct bank which has been in receivership for 50 years is in a position today to pay depositors a dividend as well as the full amount of their deposits.

Charles C. Pilgrim, receiver for the Newark Savings institution, proposed such a liquidation in plans submitted to Vice Chancellor Bigelow today for the location of owners whose deposits have laid unclaimed for more than half a century.

His counsel told the court that $39,295 was available to meet deposits of $26,540. They proposed that the balance be used to advertise for the missing depositors, pay administration costs and cover the dividend.

Change Made In CCC Camp

Veterans Are Replaced Here By Junior Enrollees Between Ages Of 18 And 28; Arrive By July 15

Replacement of veterans in the Civilian Conservation Corps camp here with junior enrollees was announced Tuesday by Capt. Francis O. Woods, district official in charge of the CCC staff.

The new camp enrollees, young men between the ages of 18 and 28 on the date of their enrollment with the CCC, are to arrive between now and July 15 from Tyler and San Antonio districts, Capt. Wood said.

Veterans in the camp with the exception of 12 local experience men who will serve as foremen for construction work by the junior enrollees in Mackenzie State park, are being transferred as follows, 10 to Carlsbad, N. M., 41 to Memphis and 47 to Amarillo. Seven others had taken discharges after receipt of their bonus payments to account for a camp strength of 117 veterans.

Training Undergone

For the past two weeks a junior enrollee overhead staff has undergone training to be in active charge following the arrival of the new occupants of the camp located on the Panhandle-South Plains fairgrounds.

Knife Wielder, Who Ripped To Pieces Sam Houston Canvas In Club, Sought

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, July 7.—Members of the exclusive Houston club tonight quietly sought a knife wielder, who ripped to pieces a canvas of General Sam Houston that hangs in the downtown club quarters.

Most of the club leaders were secretive about the whole affair, having kept the canvas slashing under cover for several days, but J. A. Phillips, president of the club, admitted that the canvas had been mutilated.

"It is the worst piece of vandalism I have ever known" he said. "It is almost unbelievable anyone could so desecrate the likeness of a man to whom the nation is paying such honor. We are leaving nothing undone in our search for the culprits and we would be more than grateful to anyone for assisting in our finding the guilty parties."

CHICAGO, July 7.—Record shattering heat claimed more than a score of lives in the drouth ravaged midwest today as President Roosevelt assured 170,000 distressed families of "tide over" incomes.

Market Soars To Highest Levels Since 1934 Then Jolts Into Steep Drop Of Six Cents A Bushel On Uneasiness

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 7. (AP)—Soaring to the highest wheat price levels since August 1934, then jolting in a steep drop of almost 6 cents a bushel, the grain market today rose then tumbled in seething pandamonium, reflecting conflicting ideas of values in the wake of the corp destroying drouth.

The break, coming shortly before the close, precipitated tumultous trading as thousands of individuals dumped holdings on the market to realize handsome profits on the steep upturn that has been underway during the several weeks drouth inspired bull market.

Similar scenes were enacted in the wheat pits of other major markets in the country.

IN THE PAST

ALTHOUGH he's usually thought of as a bachelor, Robert L. Ripley was married once and divorced, long before he became famous. It seems that celebrities usually have something in their past that they would rather not be aired to the public. Helen Hayes' husband knows more about that than we do.

DON'TS FOR DRIVERS

GOVERNOR HENRY HORNER of Illinois has issued a list of "don'ts" in conjunction with heavy summer traffic. Rules that he laid down for safe driving, aimed at what he said was the continued downward trend in fatal accidents, were as follows:

Don't speed.

Don't drive if you have had anything alcoholic to drink.

Don't drive if you're sleepy.

Don't drive on the wrong side of the road.

Don't fail to heed all warning signs.

Don't fail to signal the car behind in making turns or stopping.

Don't forget to check your brakes, lights, horns, steering equipment and tires.

Don't hog the road.

Don't fight a bee or some other insect which gets into your car while you're driving. Stop the car.

Don't light a cigarette while driving.

A caution that he overlooked which occurs to us almost everytime we get behind a wheel is that you have to watch not only your own driving but that of the drivers you are approaching.

THE DETTONS RETURN

DORY and Sally Detton are back in town with Spanish accents, bronzed faces, a load of serapes and best of all two crosses for us. Sally bought one after watching an old woman string it in Puebla. It is made of beads resembling large seed pearls. Dory selected a Mosaic necklace from a shop in Guadalajara.

The young Mormons were delighted with beautiful capital city that presents such a strange contrast of ornate architecture of the old world and modernistic designs of the new. Good natured Dory was hounded by the young Mexicans who wanted him to show them how to wrestle and adults who wanted his autograph and to talk to him. One beauteous seniorita proposed another marriage to him after she discovered he was a Mormon but he got it across to her, by the aid of an interpreter, that he is very well pleased with his attractive red-haired American wife.

ON OVER-TRAINING

DURING the coming year make a practice of noting how often sudden death comes to prominent men "athletically inclined" between fifty and sixty years old. The obituaries will state that these men were star athletes in their college days, long-distance runners, champion swimmers, tennis players, golfers, horsemen or great lovers of outdoor life.

A shocking number of these men who ardently seek robust health topple over when dressing for dinner after finishing eighteen holes of golf. Or they die in their office chairs the day after they return, feeling "fit as a fiddle," from a month's vacation in the northern woods.

It seems that it is possible for a man to kill himself by making a strenuous effort to keep healthy. He over-trains. Moderation is the golden rule of health. More stomachs are ruined by gluttony than by liquor. Cooks have brought more men to an untimely end than distillers.

Increase Of $2,400 Above June Year Ago Is Shown In City In June; Fiscal Year Has Gain Over Last Period

Postal receipts for June at the Lubbock office showed an increase of over 2,400 above the month a year ago, Postmaster Amos Howard said. Receipts for the second quarter were $200 above that period for 1935, and the report for the fiscal year ended June 30 showed an increase of $12,900 over the year ended June 30, 1935.

These were the highlights of a statement today by Postmaster Amos Howard, reporting June receipts for 1936 were $12,380.81, an increase of $2,442.50 over the $9,938.81 of last June.

Quarter Total Higher

Murder Charge To Be Filed Against Texas Cattleman

LOS ANGELES, July 7. (AP) — Deputy District Attorney Hugh McIsaac said today he would issue a murder complaint against James Henderson, Alpine, Texas, cattleman, in the fatal shooting of Thounas Patton, beer parlor proprietor.

The prosecutor made his announcement after a coroner's jury returned the verdict that "we find the deceased came to his death by gunshot wounds inflicted by Jimmie Henderson with homicidal intent."

Henderson, who Charles Dice, Santa Monica police chief said admitted firing six shots into Patton's body, declined to take the witness stand at the inquest.

Henderson's pretty brunette wife, Leona, alleged by Dice to have been the cause of the fatal shooting, sat beside her husband. William P. Henderson, father of the accused man, also attended.

Desire To Rid Community Of "Undesirables" Said Cause

WILMINGTON, N. C., July 7. (AP) —After two days of investigation, Solicitor John J. Burney said today he doubted the Columbus county floggings were the work of hooded nightriders intent on ridding the community of "undesirables."

The prosecutor expressed belief the violence was the result of ill-feeling between two rival factions in the Clarendon community but declined to say what the dispute concerned.

Last week a grand jury investigation at Whiteville uncovered evidence that four women and two men were flogged in recent months. Victims attributed the attacks to masked nightriders.

Delbert Green Is Prepared "To Take It Like A Man"

SALT LAKE CITY, July 7. (AP)—Triple killer Delbert Green, sentenced to be shot Friday, spurned offers of aid today—and prepared to "take it like a man."

"It's no use wasting any more money on me," was the 28-year-old slayer's reply to an offer by fellow convicts to finance a last desperate appeal to the United States Supreme court.

Thus his sole remaining hope—a slim one—was that Gov. Henry H. Blood would grant a reprieve.

Rheba Crawford Is "Sitting Tight" In Temple's Dispute

LOS ANGELES, July 7. (AP) — Rheba Crawford Splivalo, former state director of social welfare, "sat tight" today as associate pastor of Angelus Temple, despite a reported breach with the board of elders.

In the absence of blonde Aimee Semple McPherson, founder of the church, the elders met and voted to ask Mrs. Splivalo's resignation, authoritative temple sources said. Mrs. McPherson is out of the city on vacation.

"I was called by God to preach, not by any board of elders," said the brunette co-pastor. "I propose to sit tight and go ahead with my work as usual.

"My contract with the temple still has 18 months to run. It can be made null and void only upon mutual consent of Sister McPherson and myself. Sister has never asked me to resign."

Mrs. Splivalo also denied the retention of her attorney, Joseph L. Fainer, as associate counsel for Vivian Denton in the latter's $400,000 slander suit against Mrs. McPherson, indicated an open break between the pastor and herself.

The suit grew out of an asserted dispute between Miss Denton, former temple press agent, and Mrs. McPherson in which the publicity woman alleged her reputation was damaged by the evangelist's remarks.

A New Question
New Beer Ruling Brings Problem

To sell a full quart and not more than a quart—that is the question.

Druggists, informed in a ruling of the attorney general they may upon prescription of a physician sell as much as one quart of beer or wine to a customer, are challenged by custom of manufacturers.

Most popular brands of beer and ale come in cans or bottles of 12 ounces, which would make two and two-thirds bottles to a quart.

Beer, as you know, doesn't keep when opened. Which is as it should be, so far as the customer is concerned.

But the problem to the druggists is something else again. One druggist plans ordering beer in quart containers only.

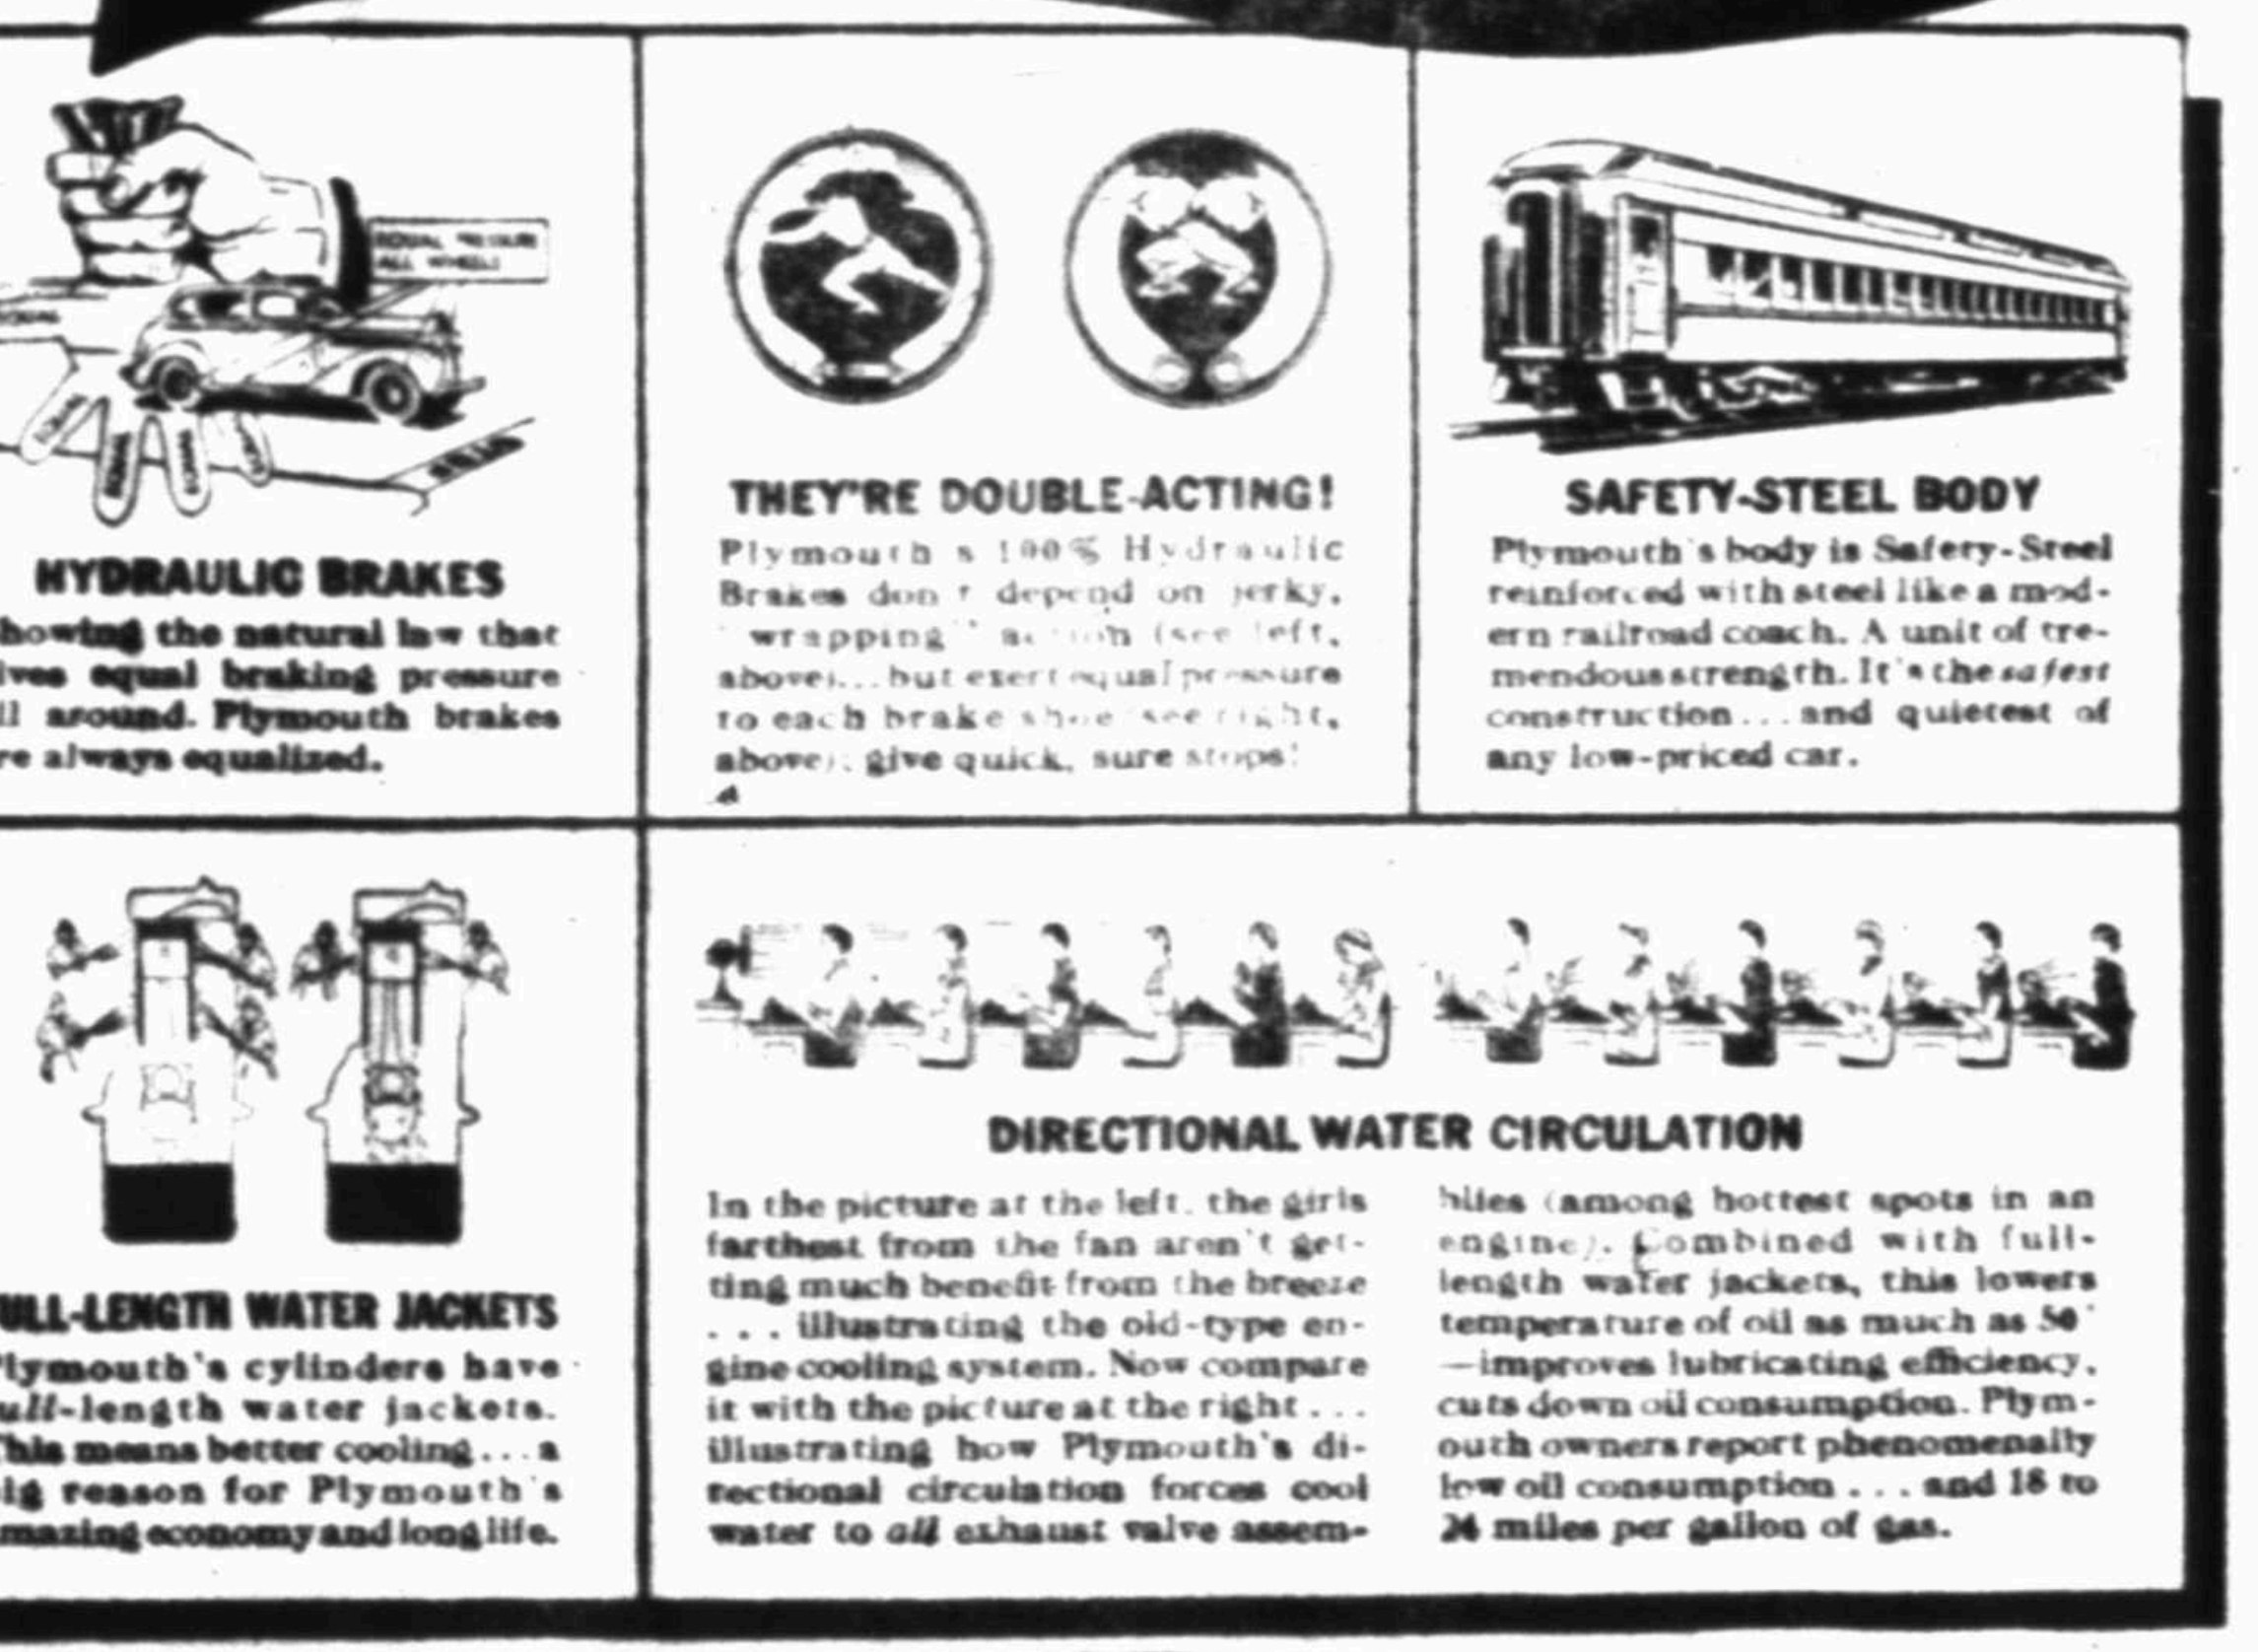
A MILLION HAPPY OWNERS KNOW
PLYMOUTH COSTS LESS TO RUN!

IT'S THE ONLY ONE OF "ALL THREE" WITH ALL THESE ECONOMY FEATURES



HYDRAULIC BRAKES
Showing the natural law that gives equal braking pressure all around. Plymouth brakes are always equalized.

THEY'RE DOUBLE-ACTING!
Plymouth's 100% Hydraulic Brakes don't depend on jerky, "wrapping" action (see left, above)... but exert equal pressure to each brake shoe (see right, above); give quick, sure stops!

SAFETY-STEEL BODY
Plymouth's body is Safety-Steel reinforced with steel like a modern railroad coach. A unit of tremendous strength. It's the safest construction... and quietest of any low-priced car.

FULL-LENGTH WATER JACKETS
Plymouth's cylinders have full-length water jackets. This means better cooling... a big reason for Plymouth's amazing economy and long life.

DIRECTIONAL WATER CIRCULATION
In the picture at the left, the girls farthest from the fan aren't getting much benefit from the breeze . . . illustrating the old-type engine cooling system. Now compare it with the picture at the right . . . illustrating how Plymouth's directional circulation forces cool water to all exhaust valve assemblies (among hottest spots in an engine). Combined with full-length water jackets, this lowers temperature of oil as much as 50°—improves lubricating efficiency, cuts down oil consumption. Plymouth owners report phenomenally low oil consumption . . . and 18 to 24 miles per gallon of gas.

Owners Report as much as 18 to 24 Miles per Gallon

GREAT ENGINEERING makes possible Plymouth's economy. The 6-cylinder "L-head" engine with highest compression (6.7-1) uses regular gas. Full-length water jackets...directional circulation...cut oil consumption.

Owners report 18 to 24 miles per gallon...lowest upkeep. And only Plymouth of "All Three" low-priced cars has both a Safety-Steel Body and double-action Hydraulic Brakes.

National All-Stars Rouse From Nightmare To Beat Americans In Dream Game

Score Is 3-4 As Senior Loop Gains Measure Of Revenge In Masterful Contest At Boston

Dizzy Dean Is Credited With Victory After 3 Innings Of Tight Pitching; Nationals Make Monkey Of Ace Rookie

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON, July 7.—Over the same historic ground that George Stallings and his miracle Boston Braves of 1914 wrought their greatest wonders, the National league ended its haunting four-year-old nightmare today by finally whipping the American league, 4 to 3, in the annual all-star game.

Routed and ridiculed in the three previous encounters at Chicago, New York and Cleveland, the shooting stars of the senior circuit returned to ascendancy on the famous stamping ground of the miracle men, with their greatest pitching aces silencing the American league siege guns at the start and then just lasting under a withering seventh inning barrage.

Joe Cracks Up

To give vent to their long pent-up fury the National leaguers rubbed salt into their rivals' wounds by making their greatest freshman hero of the season, sensational Joe DiMaggio of the high riding New York Yankees, the "goat" of the classic.

Joe, the youngster with ice water in his veins, cracked up today, committing two glaring misplays that contributed to rival scoring and failing in the pinches twice when a base hit would have changed the story.

The smallest crowd ever to watch the all-star classic, a disappointing throng of 25,534, hailed the exploits of such National league brilliants as Dizzy Dean, Carl Hubbell and Lon Warneke for their combined seven hit pitching performance.

Twice, DiMaggio had fielding lapses and each time they were expensive to the American league cause. In the second inning, with Dean and Lefty Grove locked in a scoreless tie and with Frank Demaree of the Cubs on first base, Joe attempted to make a knee-high catch of Gabby Hartnett's terrific drive to right. He missed, the ball rolled to the wall and slow, plodding Gabby went to third and Demaree trotted home. Pinky Whitney scored Gabby a minute later with a long fly to center, giving the Nationals a lead they never surrendered.

Medwick Hits For Win

In the fifth, Augie Galan of the Cubs added run number three with a freak homer that caromed off the flag pole on the right field foul line. DiMaggio then fumbled a hit by Billy Herman, giving the Cub star two bases, instead of one. A slashing single by Ducky Medwick scored Herman.

Five times DiMaggio came up to bat with one or more of his mates on base. But not once did he get the ball past the infield. He hit into a double play in the first, popped up in the fourth, tapped weakly to Hubbell to end the sixth, and flied out in the ninth after Charley Gehringer had doubled.

His biggest chance came in the seventh when he stepped up to bat with the bases full, two out, and the Americans trailing by only one run. Curt Davis had been driven out of the box by a three run blast touched off by Lou Gehrig's home run—his first hit in four all-star games. Lon Warneke faced DiMaggio, who smashed the first pitch on a line to Leo Durocher for the third out.

Those "breaks" really tell the extent of the Nationals' assault, which was levelled with a total of Galan's freak homer, Hartnett's triple and seven singles off the combined pitching of Grove, Schoolboy Rowe and Mel Harder. Two runs and three hits were collected off Grove and the other two runs and four hits were cashed off Rowe's pitching. Harder pitched shutout ball working two innings.

Dizzy Shows 'Em

Dean, the "great man" from the St. Louis gas house, didn't allow a single hit in the three innings he labored.

He walked Gehrig, but he caught Lou off first a few seconds later with a perfect throw to Ripper Collins.

Hubbell also pitched runless ball, yielding two hits and one walk in three innings.

Lou Gehrig's homer in the seventh was the torch that started the three run parade of the American leagures against Davis.

Earl Averill of Cleveland and Rick Ferrell lessened the tension with infield outs but Goose Goslin, Tiger veteran hitting for Rip Radcliff, scratched a single, and Jimmie Foxx, batting for Pinky Higgins, followed suit on a smash to deep short. A pass to George Selkirk, Yankee outfielder, pinch-hitting for the pitcher, loaded the bases. Luke Appling unloaded them by poling a single through the right side of the infield, scoring Goslin and Foxx.

Warneke Bears Down

Warneke came to the rescue then and promptly walked Gehringer to fill the bases, but got out of the hole when DiMaggio lined to Dorocher.

Warneke allowed two walks in the eighth and Gehringer's futile double in the ninth, but bore down like his old World Series self in the pinches, striking Foxx out in the eighth with two out and runners on third and first.

Receipts of the game were estimated at not much more than $20,000. Inasmuch as expenses amount to about $12,000, the net proceeds represented a meagre contribution to the ball players' benevolent fund, which gets the annual all-star profits.

All-Star Heroes And The 'Goat'

DIZZY DEAN — LON WARNEKE — Medwick — JOE DI MAGGIO

Like every other big sporting event, the National-American All-star game in Boston yesterday had its superlatives. Three stars of the winning National League side were Dizzy Dean, who faced and retired nine men in the three innings he worked; Lon Warneke, Cub pitcher who went in to save the game for Dizzy; Ducky Medwick, who poled the bingle that scored the winning run—and then there's Joe DiMaggio, the Yankees' prize rookie, who fell off yesterday in deplorable fashion to be the "goat" of the game.

"Too Bad I Was Feeling Poorly," Is Dizzy's Lament After Hitless Work

BY BILL KING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON, July 7—Although the 1936 All-star game was voted a complete success by all of his National League colleagues, Dizzy (Winning Pitcher) Dean felt a bit cheated.

"You'd have seen something if I was feeling really good," countered the Cardinals' pitching ace when he was overwhelmed by well-wishers in the National League team's dressing room.

"I had all of my speed, but I just wasn't feeling my best. If I had I'd never have passed Appling and Gehrig."

Jubilant Charley Grimm, who piloted the National Leaguers through their first All-Star triumph in four starts, tried to raise the Dean spirits up to the level of those of his happy team mates.

"But only nine men faced you while you were in there, Dizzy," said Grimm, "and nobody could do any better than that. That's perfect."

"Why Couldn't I Hit"

But just then Dean remembered he himself struck out the only time he went to bat.

"I can't understand why I didn't get a hit," he moaned. "Any one should be able to hit those American league pitchers. They throw nothing but balls. And as for their sluggers, if they were doing their best today they ought to get down on their knees and give thanks that they don't have to work in our league, where they could see good pitching every day."

"That guy can clown almost as well as he can pitch," said Grimm as he headed for the showers, only to be stopped by Ford Frick, the young National League president, and several of the older league's club officials.

"It was a great game and a great win for us," said Grimm to Frick.

Since most of the visiting National Leaguers were hurrying to make trains, their victory celebration took the form of a slap on the back and exchanges of "you looked great out there." But it was evident to all that they were a proud and happy lot of ball players, quite a contrast to the silent group in the rival league's club house.

Grove Explains

Bob Grove, who started for the American League forces and was charged with the loss, took it upon himself to act as spokesman.

"Its the first all-star game we ever lost and we don't expect to win them all," said Grove. "Not with me in it."

Joe McCarthy, who filled in for Mickey Cochrane as the American League manager, thought it was a tight and well-played game.

"It was the breaks that beat us," McCarthy explained. "The turning point came when Durocher handled DiMaggio's line drive when we were clicking in the seventh. A foot either way on that clout and the ball game was ours."

Teams Not To Return To Play Interrupted Series; Clubs Of Section Invited To Try For Lubbock Tournament

Due to inconvenience in re-arranging schedules, Lubbock's interrupted Fourth of July baseball series is not to be resumed.

When rain forced cancellation of Sunday's windup games at College Avenue park between Muleshoe and Ropesville, Lubbock and Anton, it was agreed that the teams would return next Sunday to finish the series. At least two of the teams, however, had previously scheduled games for Sunday, and it was inconvenient to cancel them.

Lubbock's Hubbers are to entertain the powerful Roswell team here Sunday in one of the season's one-game features, and Muleshoe had made arrangements to play Sudan.

Anton also had a tentative en-

Women's City Open To Start This Morning

Large Field Anticipated For Qualifying Field; Pairings To Be Announced Tonight; Rich Prizes Donated

The male golfing element of Lubbock, particularly of Meadowbrook, is ruled out this week—it is suggested it at least wear shirts and muffle its language — as the fair sex takes over the course for the annual Women's City Open tournament.

This is official qualifying day, and the Lubbock Women's Golf association is hopeful that at least three flights will be arranged tonight when all qualifying scores are accounted for, pairings posted and the Calcutta pool party is staged.

All Play At Meadowbrook

All qualifying and all matchea will be played at Meadowbrook, but the field moves to Country club tonight to conduct the Calcutta. It is due to open at 8 o'clock. The public is invited to the clubhouse for the event.

All women golfers of the city are eligible to compete, and it is hoped they'll all turn out, regardless of their ability with the clubs.

Added attractions in the forms of valuable prizes to winners, runners up and consolation winners were announced yesterday by Mrs. Hooper Stiles, chairman of the prize committee. Mrs. Stiles reported that merchants of the city responded nobly and generously in providing and helping to provide prizes.

The championship winner is to receive a large gold trophy, partially donated by Anderson Brothers Jewelry company, which also is offering a sport watch to the consolation winner of the championship flight. To the runner-up of the top flight goes one of the most expensive trophies, a coffee service table donated by Watson's Furniture company. Winner of the second flight is to receive a Bobby Jones iron club, partially donated by Terry-Childress Hardware company, Spalding sports goods agency, and the second flight runner up receives a set of lawn chairs and table, partially the gift of Mallory's Sporting Goods store. The consolation winner receives an expensive bed spread, gift of Hemphill-Wells.

To the medalist after today's qualifying score goes a box of first class golf balls, donated by Bill McMillan and Meadowbrook Golf club.

Several "dark horses" are expected to offer strong competition for Lubbock veteran women golfers in the tournament, match play of which begins Thursday. Among the favorites, herself a comparative newcomer to championship ranks, is Mrs. K. L. Riggs, who has been hitting the ball far and accurately this season. Mrs. Ralph Trolinger, Mrs. Tom Duggan, Jr. and Mrs. C. P. Hagler are expected to offer strong competition for such established players as Mrs. Cliff Dean, Mrs. W. P. Helwig, Mrs. Guy McAfee, Miss Mary Lois Thompson and others.

Included in the expected field are

"Picture, Senor? I draw heem while you stan' in the corner to be introduced. You buy heem, please?" The rather ragged young Mexican holding the cardboard in his hand touched Dory Detton's sleeve as the latter was leaving the ring recently after a Mexico City appearance. "How much?" the perspiring Detton asked. "A peso, maybe?" hesitated the artist. "Sally," yelled Dory to his manager, "give the man two pesos, and hold this." The delighted muchacho bowed away, leaving Mrs. Detton holding the original of the above piece of art, a striking likeness of the popular Morman grappler who is back "home" in Lubbock to start another season of his popular grappling. Name of the artist and date of the drawing is shown.

Detton likes nothing better than a clean wrestling match, in which he can turn loose a fine energy in scientific movements, blocks and holds. American Tennis Places Accent On Youth In Effort To Bring Davis Cup Home

Waco Scene Of Texas Tourney In Experiment

High School Net Stars Of The State Gather At Waco This Week; Winners To Compete In National Jousts

WACO, July 7. (AP)—Wet courts forced postponement here today of the start of the National Interscholastic tennis qualifying tournament for Texas.

Court conditions permitting, the tournament, sponsored by the United States Lawn Tennis association, will open tomorrow morning on the Waco Lawn Tennis club courts.

The high school stars will vie for chances to compete in national tournaments on eastern courts in September. Qualifiers will be singles and doubles winners and runners-up.

Winners in the spring state interscholastic tournament shall not qualify for the national. The national association does not recognize the winners of the Texas Interscholastic league events.

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, July 7. — Desperately attempting to bring back America's long lost Davis Cup, United States Lawn Tennis association officials are again experimenting with youth . . . On Waco's Tennis club courts today are a group of 'teen age youngsters competing in one of the many nation-wide "experiments."

High school tennis stars of Texas have gathered for a national interscholastic qualifying tournament . . . The singles and doubles winners and runners-up qualify for the national interscholastic tourneys on eastern courts in September.

Texas' two singles representatives will vie with the nation's best high school stars in the national meet at Forest Hills in New York. Doubles winners will play at the Longwood Cricket club at Chestnut Hill, Mass. At the same time the national men's tourney is in progress.

It has been ten years since the national interscholastic meet was held . . . It was an annual affair until the United States let the Davis Cup slip to foreign shores . . . Again, however, the U. S. L. T. A has seen a need for encouraging younger players. . . There may be another Bill Tilden or Ellsworth Vines hiding in the ranks of the high schoolers.

To Baylor university and Charles MacLeary of Waco goes credit for sponsoring the tournament . . . Baylor agreed to house the potential Davis Cuppers . . . Small entry fees will be used to defray expenses of the winners to the National meet . . . Any high school player is eligible.

MUNGER IS BEATEN

DALLAS, July 7. (AP)—Jack Munger, Southern amateur champion, ran into a "dark horse" full of par-cracking shots today as he was eliminated in the first round of his own club tournament.

H. W. Goodson, who never had figured prominently in a local tournament, fired a 70, two under par, at his formidable opponent in the Dallas Country club meet and won, 1 up. Munger had a 71.

Uncle Sam's Decathlon Star Loses No Time 'Showing Up' Jarring Jim Bausch

* * * *

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—Glenn Morris believes in futures born on the spur of the moment.

The 23-year-old Simila, Colo. super-man—the world's jack-of-all-trades in track and field competition—watched Jarring Jim Bausch establish a new world and Olympic decathlon record in the 1932 games at Los Angeles. He was only a spectator; and obscure one, at that.

"Heck," he mused, "I can do all of those things and most of them better, too."

That was the beginning. He needed no outside urging. In fact nobody else knew of his intention. He first came to the fore in 1934 when he won the National A. A. U. junior 400-meters hurdling title.

It was the best showing he ever made in a national championship until ten days ago when he won the A. A. U. decathlon in world record figures and the right to be Uncle Sam's No. 1 man in the ten-event program at Berlin next month.

He stands six feet one inch; is muscled like a lumberman and weighs around 185 pounds. A graduate of Colorado State college and now a Fort Collins, Colo. auto salesman. Morris is a personable young man, but very, very modest and blushes at the slightest provocation.

The all-around star is working out daily on neighborhood tracks, completing his preparation before sailing with the Olympic team in the liner Manhattan July 15. Unlike most other team candidates, his qualifying test is over.

gagement and will go ahead with plans to meet the Wilson team Sunday. Ropesville, willing to return Sunday, probably will make other arrangements.

The local committee decided to cancel Sunday's series here and build up for the annual Lubbock Invitation tournament, tentatively scheduled to start July 26 and end Aug. 2. At least seven teams have responded to invitations in agreeable fashion. Baseball clubs from Tahoka, Abernathy, Amherst, Anton Wilson Muleshoe and Lubbock are considered almost sure entries. Both the Tahoka clubs have indicated willingness to play in the tournament. Only eight clubs are to be admitted. The tournament will be conducted on the usual two-defeat elimination basis.

Managers of clubs desiring further information regarding the tournament are invited to correspond with the sports department of the Avalanche-Journal.

City Bus Noses Out P&E, 16-15

City Bus company's softball team continued the campaign against Lubbock Poultry & Egg company yesterday, handing the Producers their second straight defeat and the third of the season in a game too close for comfort. The score was 16 to 15.

As usual, Poultry & Egg was off to a head start, scoring two runs in the first inning and another in the second for a 3-0 lead before the Bus boys put one over in the second. The latter took the lead in the third with three runs, and scored seven times to the Producers' three in the fourth. Each scored thrice in the fifth, and the P. & E. team added one in the sixth. A five-run rally in the seven by the Poultrymen tied and overcame the lead. The Bus men pushed over the tying and winning runs with one out in their half of the seventh.

Errors, almost as much as hits, played a prominent part in the game. Two home runs were laid down, Jacobs, Poultry & Egg center fielder getting one in the seventh with a mate aboard and Freeland, Bus center fielder, bagging his in the fifth with two on.

the Indiana scorpion tonight, but the scorpion is in for trouble, too. Detton is slow to anger but fans here have seen him cut the straight stuff and blast into his opponent with all the fury of a man gone mad. And when one of the "clean" wrestlers does get mad the opposition knows something is up.

The popular Detton, hardened and tanned after five months of Old Mexico wrestling and sunshine, appears to be in tip-top condition, free of physical worry and anxious to get back before his favorite crowd of spectators. For a while before he went to Mexico last February, he suffered from an old back injury, and from chronic sinus trouble. But he seems recovered. He is dressed down to a little above 160 pounds with no excess tonnage whatever, and should be his old time self at the speedy going which first made him popular here.

Mackey And Hayes

Little needs to be said of Lipscomb, who without a doubt is the most hated villain in the circuit at this time. It's his first main event here, but he's a durable cuss, can take lots of punishment, should go the route for two or three falls without tiring.

The supporting card promises classical and volatile wrestling that lend a neat balance to the evening's entertainment. There'll be a brawl at the start, the despised Hy Sharman coming back after recovering from injuries to belabor the veteran Ernie Arthur in the curtain raiser. Arthur, rarely a favorite, will be one tonight, with the crowd hoping he'll send Sharman away to a nice, quiet restful place for another long visit.

Cyclone Mackey, the perennial youngster who seems to improve with age, is also back after a long absence, and should deliver a pleasing performance tonight. He's a wrestler, applying fundamental rules of the game to his natural speed and color. He meets another wrestler, Jack Hagen of Shreveport, who has had a tough time getting started but who has shown enough skill to classify him with the upper strata of wrestling society.

Frank Parker Opens Defense Of Spring Lake Net Crown

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 7. (AP)—Frankie Parker, hope of the host club, successfully opened the defense of his title in the fourth annual invitation net tournament of the Spring Lake Bathing and Tennis club today, breezing through his first round opponent, Jack De Valla of Hollywood, Calif., without the loss of a game.

Top-seeded in the tourney, which he has won for three straight years, Parker led the seeded players into the second round.

Robert Riggs turned back J. P. Stockton, chairman of the tournament committee, 6-3, 6-4, to gain the second round.

Two of the selected eight fought their way to the third round.

They were J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., veteran seeded No. 3 and Herbert L. Bowman, New York campaigner seeded seventh.

Philly Realtors Find New Hazard On Aronimink Links

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa., July 7. (AP)—A fair par on the Aronimink golf links would be in the hundreds today.

Philadelphia realtors planned a tournament there, but a herd of 50 cows arrived first. The golfers might as well have tried putting on a big waffle iron. The cows gamboled on 12 of the greens and banqueted at random on the fairways.

Oklahoma City Keeps Eddie Marleau As Deal Falls Off

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 7. (AP)—Eddie Marleau, one of the Oklahoma City hurlers scheduled for a change of scenery in a shakeup of the Tribe's mound staff, remained in uniform tonight as efforts to add pitching strength to the Texas League club failed.

Vice President E. J. Humphries said he had notified Marleau he was to be traded and that he was trying to make connections for the balloon ball pitcher's transfer.

Fried Stiely, veteran lefthander, also may be shifted, Humphries said.

A deal by which the Indians hoped to get George Zahn, a righthander, from Sioux City of the Western League was dropped today.

Catcher Jack Fitzpatrick was missing tonight as the Indians went against Fort Worth here. Fitzpatrick left today to assume management of the Tribe's Kilgore, Tex., farm club, relieving Dutch Seebold. Benny Warren has been signed to help Dallas Warren with the backstopping in Fitzpatrick's absence.

TOO MUCH GOLF

PRINCETON, N. J., July 7. (AP)—Bill Bonthron's form reversal last Saturday when he finished fourth in the National A. A. U. 1,500 meter championship, was due to nothing but too much golf, according to his coach, Matty Geis of Princeton.

The explanation, he added, lies in the forty or fifty holes of golf Bonthron has been playing every day.

OLYMPIC FUND SWELLS

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—Gustavus T. Kirby, treasurer of the American Olympic committee, announced today that contributions of approximately $10,000 had been received since Sunday, when Chairman Avery Brundage revealed that the committee was short about $150,000 of the amount needed to finance the trip to Berlin for the full team.

"Woman's Angle" Of Session Told

Sketching briefly her impressions of her first national political convention, Mrs. W. A. Jackson told the Lions club yesterday noon the "woman's angle" of the recent Philadelphia meeting. She accompanied her husband, Dr. W. A. Jackson of Texas Technological college, a delegate, on the trip.

Burnie Phillips was program chairman. It was ladies day and the wives of many members were guests at the luncheon in the Hilton hotel at noon.

Disclaiming any attempt to picture political angles, Mrs. Jackson gave a colorful sketch of the trip, including stops at Mount Vernon, home of Washington; the nation's capital, and Philadelphia.

Met The President

In Washington, after a luncheon at the National Press club, where she met Lloyd Crosslin among other former Tech students, the Texas delegation was rushed to the White House to meet the president. After a long wait, they were ushered into the president's office where he was seated at his desk.

"He had a word for each person as they went by his desk," she said. "I don't know how he did it—it was some task."

Describes Caucus

Mrs. Jackson described her first caucus, over which Senator Tom Connally presided. She held a proxy of Meade F. Griffin, Plainview, who was unable to attend. The group adjourned the first day, but met again the second day.

"Traffic in Philadelphia is all one-way, there are no two-way streets," she said. "I saw no accidents while there."

"Our Texas delegation had the limelight," she added. "We were treated royally at all times, except by taxicab boys."

Negroes were seated as delegates, she said. Referring to the prayer offered for the convention by a negro minister, she said it was "very reverent." There were "fewer drunks" there than she had expected.

One of the big hits the Texas delegation made was with their big "ten gallon" hats. Mrs. Jackson wore one yesterday and said it was the one Dizzy Dean had worn and which he later autographed.

FIELD IS EXTENDED

HOUSTON, July 7. (AP)—The Bay City field, Matagorda county, was extended 933 feet northwest today when the Skelly Oil company's No. B-7 Cobb finaled making 375 barrels in 15 hours through a quarter-inch choke from a total depth of 7,495 feet.

Eighteen hundred feet southeast from production the same operators No. 1 Langham was preparing to perforate casing at 8248 feet. This is one of the deepest tests drilled in the bay city pool. A production test will be attempted Wednesday.

A Hectic Campaign Looms

CITIZENS who like their politics "rough and tumble" will have a field day this summer and fall, unless all signs fail.

The 1936 Presidential campaign, in the language of the poets, "will be a honey", with no holds barred and Marquis of Queensberry rules as forgotten as the once "forgotten man".

Judging from reports sifting in from all parts of the country—and especially those from the East—the 1936 vote derby will equal, in dirt and below-the-belt slugging, the campaign of 1928. Some even say there is a good chance of its surpassing the Smith-Hoover fracas.

This year's campaign will differ from that of 1928 in that both major parties will be throwing mud in copious quantities, whereas, eight years ago, the whispering and the foul hitting was done largely by the Republicans. As in 1928, this year will see the religious question tossed into the maelstrom and the ever-present race question likewise will draw plenty of fire.

The Barons of Big Business, now more or less organized, will leave no stone unturned in their efforts to "get Roosevelt" and with their dollars they will buy political mud by ton lots. But in James Aloysius Farley, an experienced ward-heeler and bar room politician par excelance, they have a foreman worthy of their steel and if President Roosevelt is to be thoroughly plastered so will GOP Nominee Landon.

It seems a shame that we, as a nation, must decide our political problems via the mud-slinging, rough and tumble route.

It is a shame that all of us, whether we be Democrats or Republicans, do not repudiate leaders who call upon us to enter into dirty, slimy campaigns.

But custom and tradition are hard to break and, unfortunately for the nation, it is customary and traditional for us to be nasty in our politics.

The late, great Texas governor, Jim Hogg, once remarked that people were interested in issues rather than in individuals but if that were true in the Hogg days times have changed.

At least the average political leader subscribes to the theory that personalities must be dragged into the public arena before issues are even considered and he leads the mob along that line.

Hence, logically, we have campaign conditions such as those of the present year.

TROUBLE ON THE DANUBE

All is not waltz-like along the Blue Danube.

There are hunger and poverty and war hysteria and undying grudges in Balkan race groups.

More ticklish becomes the position of the Austrian chancellor, scholarly Kurt von Schuschnigg, and none would welcome more than he turning over Pretender Otto reins of government.

But if it's restoration of monarchy that would help, why not step aside and let the handsome Otto bring back the Hapsburgs to the overturned throne?

The reason is simple: A powerful Yugoslav army would march at once. The hero president of the Czechs agreed with Prince Paul that an Austrian putsch would be met with bayonets. Rumania's King Carol had a hand in the proceeding.

Common economic and military planning alone will save the Danubian states. The League of Nations is not likely to help them. Ask the recently much-traveled Selassie. And France won't do so, either.

The deep-seated ire toward each other among countries of the Balkans indicates the various Danubian states do little more toward a lasting peace. It may take reorganization to cure the ills there.

WITH OUR CONTEMPORARIES

"The trail of the cowboy, the Indian and others marching in the parade of conquest, are lost on their way out of Palo Duro to oblivian." Douglas Meador comments in the Matador Tribune.

"We are not in the insurance business, but every time we see a cloud these hot, sultry days, we hold our breath for fear it might hail," Forrest Weimhold says in the Sudan News.

"It would be desirable if the exodus of the farm population into the towns and cities could be stopped in Texas, and at the same time, the conveniences and advantages of city life received by those outside," W. M. Curry says in the Crosbyton Review.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

And he said unto her, Thy sins are forgiven.

And they that sat at meat with him began to say within themselves, Who is this that forgiveth sins also?

And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace.—St. Luke, VII: 48-50.

CHURCH MOVED BY THE HAND OF GOD

In 1874 the congregation of the Methodist Church in Swanquarter, N. C., agreed about purchasing a plot of ground on which to build their church, and after much discussion it was built on an entirely different spot. The new church did not prosper and the split factions still quarreled until the question was settled for theem. On September 17, 1876 a violent tornado-like storm literally picked up the little old wooden church building and moved it 300 yards, dropping it exactly on the spot over which the disagreement arose. The congregation accepted this as an act of God, were reunited and they renamed their church the "Providence Methodist Church."

A STAUNCH DEMOCRAT

Charles F. Taylor of Bowling Green, Ky., voted for Grover Cleveland three times from three different states. In 1884 at Maysville, Ky.; in 1888 at Ashland, Kansas; and in 1892 at Rome, Georgia.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: The chief thing lacking in Inspector Hylton's effort to find out who murdered that ancient miser Arthur Burdett is a motive. And quite unexpectedly, Burdett's solicitor returns from France, discloses that his client made a new will six days before his head was bashed in, and furnishes the motive. Burdett cut out his half nephew, Dale Shipley, and willed his 60,000 pounds to his manservant, Andrew Lumsdale.

Chapter 17

CHECKING LUMSDALE

"Another half pint please," Inspector Hylton said, "in a tankard," and he smiled amiably at the pretty fluffy-haired girl who was serving him.

"Anything more to eat?" the Crown barmaid enquired.

"No, thanks, my dear. I'm afraid of my figure but if you can stand the smell of cigar smoke I'll light this thing."

"Oh, I love the smell of a cigar," the girl assured him, "seems so posh like, doesn't it?"

It was nearly two o'clock and he was seated in the bar of the Crown Inn Morechester and his morning had been a busy one. It had been a morning devoted entirely to Mr. Andrew Lumsdale.

He drew a pencil from his pocket and began to tick off points on the back of an envelope.

(1) Captain Reeves says that he left Enderton Court at 5 or ten past, and that A. B. was then alive—this may or may not be true.

(2) Lumsdale's story—here the Inspector paused and considered afresh all he had done that morning.

The West Sussex Transport System Limited had imposing head offices in Morechester, and Hylton's official card had very soon brought the entire place at his disposal. Before long he was interviewing Frederick Warner, the conductor of the 2:40 bus from Hope Enderton to Morechester on the fatal Monday.

Fred Warner was a broad-shouldered, healty young man of twenty-two or -three. Yes, he got to know the regulars on his bus pretty well. Yes, he knew Mr. Lumsdale, Mr. Burdett's man, well by sight. Mr. Lumsdale nearly always came on the 2:40 bus on Mondays; he certainly did last Monday; he came over the fields in front of the Court, and the bus had to stop especially for him by the stile.

Warner's evidence was straightforward and unhesitating and carried conviction. At the Regal ("the big place in the Square" as Andrew Lumsdale had described it) the Inspector's luck petered out. Off then to the Crown where the production of his card had worked wonders with the landlord. The presence of a big pot from Scotland Yard reduced Mr. William Trotter to humilitating depths of servility.

The Crown was famous for its billiards room and Jimmy Pratt, the marker, was a character in the town. He answered all Hylton's questions like the sharp little Cockney sparrow that he was.

Mr. Lumsdale? Certainly, he knew Mr. Lumsdale; one of his regulars. Monday? Of course he came in on Monday. About half past five as near as made no matter that was his time for coming in and played until seven. Positive? Certainly he was positive. The fluffy-haired little creature in the bar had been the next link in the chain; she, too, knew Mr. Lumsdale by sight he had acquired some degree of local notoriety by reason of the celebrated eccentricities of his master. Usually came in for something to eat on Monday nights. On last Monday he certainly did, she remembered distinctly. Time? About seven, coincident with the arrival of her own supper from the kitchen.

So far al this tallied exactly with Lumsdale's own story and it seemed pretty clear that he had not left the Crown in Morechester until say a quarter to eight on Monday evening. Even if he walked back, according to his own statement, arriving say at nine, there was nothing inherently impossible in the supposition that he went in, murdered Arthur Burdett straight away, and then reported the matter to Sergeant White.

Against this theory was the Doctor's very definite opinion that death had taken place some time before eight. Hylton realized that what Chambers had said was, after all, only an opinion, and he wondered . . .

He gently eased the long ash off his cigar and considered again the one small point in which the results of his enquiries had deviated from Lumsdale's own statement.

Frederick Warner, the bus conductor, had not only noticed Lumsdale on his 'bus, but he also happened to notice where that worthy went to when he left the bus. On Monday afternoon Lumsdale crossed over the pavement and went straight into the Post Office; of this Warner was positively certain.

With this aim n view he made his way back to Hope Enderton.

Lumsdale was in at the Court when he got there and bid him "goodday" with an independent nod of the head.

"Well, I've been ferreting around," the Inspector assured him cheerfully. "You seem to be known by sight everywhere as a matter of fact."

"More people know Tom Fool than Tom Fool knows."

"Even the imposing gentleman outside the picture place knows you."

"He's clever then, for ah've never said a word to him in me life."

"He says as far as he can remember that you went into the pictures about half past three on Monday."

Lumsdale looked up sharply from his task. "He can't remember very far then," eh said. "What would I be doing messing about in Morechester till then?"

"To tell you the truth," Hylton said disarmingly, "that's just what I have been wondering. You didn't do any shopping or anything on the way?"

"Ah went straight to pictures, Mister, ah tell you," Lumsdale repeated doggedly.

"Just so. Ah, well the florid-faced gentleman outside the Cinema must be wrong then."

Lumsdale's thin lips were pursed for some doubtless scathing comment when voices in the baeck passage interrupted him.

"Better go out and see who that is," Hylton suggested, "we don't want people poking about here."

"There's some as seem pretty handy at it," Lumsdale said as he left the room to investigate. Quick as lightning the Inspector crossed the floor and taking a photograph from the mantleshelf tucked it away in his pocket. It was a fairly recent likeness of friend Lumsdale.

"It's Sergeant White as is poking about now," Lumsdale announced, returning with White hard on his heels.

"I saw you come up the road to the Court, sir," White explained, "and I thought I'd look in to see if you wanted me for anything."

"Good man. We'll walk down to your place together. I've just been having a friendly chat with Lumsdale."

"That's right." Lumsdale gave one of his rare unmirthful laughs. "And now I'll tell you one thing as perhaps you don't know, just to show I am friendly like. Come this way."

He led them both into the room where the murder had been committed. The body had been taken to the Coroner's Court at Morechester in preparation for the inquest. It was a relief not to see that sheeted ruddle on the table and yet, in some queer way, the room seemed even grimmer and less pleasant for being empty. And what with this feeling, and the damp chill of the place, Hylton gave an involuntary shiver.

Lumsdale noticed it and nodded. "Feels a bit like that," he said. "Ah reckon t'old boy's still hanging about the Court, near that safe of his, I wouldn't wonder."

"Don't trot out any more of that ghost business, for Heaven's sake," Hylton said sharply.

"You don't believe in it, eh Mister? Well, p'raps you're right; but here's a queer go. D'you notice anything?"

They were standing now by the table and the Inspector looked carefully at the few [illegible] and adornments of that [illegible] place.

"Someone's moved that club," he said.

"Ah did; ah put it back in its right place."

"In its right place?" Hylton

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON

By Ira Bennett

LARGE appropriations by Congress for relief purposes come in mighty handy for emergency work in drouth regions—and of course the political implications are not overlooked. Relief Administrator Hopkins and Secretary Wallace lost no time in beating it out West, to get emergency relief under way.

The political department, while deploring drouth distress, looks upon this dispensation as opportunity for wiping out scattered disaffection in the farm belt resulting from laggard distribution of soil conservation "benefits." Prompt and liberal relief in drouth regions is expected to win friends for the administration.

Much of this relief must be direct financial support of suddenly impoverished farm families. Red tape must be slashed to do this vital duty.

SQUEEZE: The industrial skies are showing mares' tails and mackerel clouds. John L. Lewis, Clarence Irwin and the other leaders who are planning to organize steel workers into one big union have seen the defi issued by the Steel Institute and have accepted the challenge. Assistant Secretary McGrady, of the Department of Labor, says he doesn't see any peace signs.

A nation-sized labor war isn't relished by the administration. There's talk of quiet pressure put upon John Lewis to tone down his campaign until after election. If that attempt has been made it hasn't succeeded, for he still breathes battle. The internal row in the American Federation forces Lewis to make a fight or risk defeat of the whole industrial union plan. A. F. of L. and steel executives have Lewis squeezed.

Steel companies flout the Wagner labor relations act and the Labor Relations board. Efforts will be made to enjoin the board if it puts pressure upon the steel concerns.

PRELUDE: Are two big labor federations to emerge from the scrap in the American federation? A few days may tell the story.

Common opinion is that William Green, president of the federation, is trying to hold down the angry extremists on his side who demand expulsion of the whole outfit of industrial unionists, numbering nearly 1,000,000 men in ten big unions. But Green, while trying to hold back, nevertheless brings matters to a crisis as the only way of determining whether the dog or the tail shall do the wagging.

Strong industrial influences are supposed to support Green in attempting to hold the American Federation to a conservative course. Industrial managers agree that emergence of an Industrial Union federation would be the prelude to battles over closed shop demands, beginning with the steel industry.

HOPES: The closed shop movement hasn't the teeth it would have had if the courts had sustained the Wagner labor disputes act or the NRA. The Wagner act lives until or unless it is killed by the Supreme court, but it is crippled by lower court decrees declaring it unconstitutional. In every jurisdiction where these rulings have been made the Labor Relations board is important to enforce its orders—indeed, it is enjoined from doing so under penalty for contempt.

John L. Lewis is handicapped further by failure of Congress to pass the new Guffey bill providing for fixed prices of coal in interstate commerce. In spite of this handicap he drives forward for unionization of the steel industry, through the Committee for Industrial Organization and the steel unions already organized.

Some industrialists think they see some relief for themselves in the Federation scrap. They hope labor will fight labor to a fare-you-well.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

TALK of a mammoth steel strike is premature. The clash between the steel industry and organized labor might easily end up in such a head-on collision, but it won't happen soon if John Lewis can help it.

It's worth noting that dire strike predictions have all come from spokesmen for the steel managements. A vital time factor is involved. If a large-scale walkout must develop, the big shots of the industry would personally prefer t ohave it come as soon as possible. They have two excellent reasons. One is that the organized labor element among the steel workers is still very weak. Therefore it should be much easier to crash it now in an open fight than it presumably will be later. The other is that a major strike before election would hurt Roosevelt—which would be just dandy.

It would be hard to prove—but keen observers suspect that the industry's exceptionally open defiance of organized labor and its intimations that strikers are inevitable are bait to get a rise from hot-headed unionists. In any case it's a fair assumption that the steel companies will do nothing to avert a walkout if one threatens.

ALLIES: John Lewis, for his part, probably visualizes an eventual strike to enforce closed shop demands. But he certainly doesn't want one now, for reasons precisely the reverse of those given above. Furthermore, he's much too smart to be lured into a showdown before he is ready by a provocative technique.

Some of his organizers are bound to be treated rough, but his policy will be to abstain from retaliation in kind until he is strong enough to make it effective. Meanwhile such incidents will be given the widest possible publicity. At this stage, the battle is essentially a public relations contest.

The big question is whether Lewis will be able to restrain the thirst for action of his rank and file followers. That's where his communist pals may prove embarrassing allies. They have joined his party with the idea of taking control of it themselves after the closed shop victory. The trouble is that their specialty is hell-raising, regardless of consequences. Any rough stuff they start at present will play right into the enemy's hands—but that isn't likely to deter them.

MIDWEST: Shrewd New York observers who have recently visited the Middle West report Democratic complications in that area.

We have recently mentioned Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana as a man whose future is worth watching. McNutt has set himself up in his state much as Roosevelt and Farley have done in the nation. He runs the show. At the Philadelphia convention he completely ignored the wishes of Senators Sherman Minton and Frederick Van Nuys in making complete assignments. This was especially evident in the designation of his protege Wayne Coy—head of the state WPA—as Indiana's representative on the resolutions committee. Some of the key followers of Minton and Van Nuys are furious—which won't help party harmony in November a bit.

Political sharps also note indications of Democratic weakness in Michigan. FDR has made earnest and apparently successful efforts to induce Frank Murphy—ex-Mayor of Detroit—to accept the Democratic nomination for governor. If Roosevelt were such a cinch to win as Farley claims, it wouldn't matter who ran for governor where.

PATHETIC: A number of anti-New Deal chiefs privately express the fervent wish that the Liberty league would learn to pipe down. The announcement of the league's executive committee last week that it will preserve a "non-partisan" opposition to Mr. Roosevelt drew savage razzberries from high Republican circles. League offers to support the G.O.P. ticket directly met the brutal response that party leaders would be grateful if the league would be so kind as to refrain officially from so much as mentioning Mr. Landon's name.

Insiders say the league is gradually dying of inanition. Its most recent financial report indicates that the large funds which used to flow into its coffers are now going into more effective channels. Many wealthy anti-New Dealers have soured on the league as a difinite political liability to their cause.

A top-flight financier remarks: "It's really pathetic. The leaguers are just like the boys and girls in the advertisements who are always losing sales or jobs or beaux until a kind friend tips them off. They just cannot understand why they are unpopular."

OLD AGE PENSION

Editor, The Avalanche: To the Old Age Pensioners — Promptly on July 1, the first state and federal pension money was handed by our governor to a German couple who came to Austin to receive it. They lived in a home given them by their son. The amount was $25 each. The man was 103 years old and his wife 95.

It is said they were made very happy.

They are the only two I have heard of receiving anything. I understand this to mean if you live carefully and are of German descent and have a son able to give you a home to live in and our present governor remains in office, some time between the ages of 95 and 103 years if you will go to Austin the governor will hand you out what is coming to you.

This indeed is encouragement.

It will have a tendency for us to strive to live longer. We will know that we are provided for in our days after we are 103 years old.

We will be made happy in our old age. So I think we ought to take heart. Our legislature and our governor will take care of us. You should all feel proud that you live in a state that provides so generously for you in your old age after you are 103 years old.

Smith Shaw, sr.,
Idalou, Texas.

(Dear Mr. Shaw: Thanks for your letter. I once knew a man who lived to be 107 years old with never a thought about getting or asking for a pension from the state and government. Of course, that was quite a while back—before paternalism in government was thought about and when people took pride in paddling their own canoes. Yours truly, The Editor.)

THE TARZAN TWINS, No. 87

As Gudah's trunk whipped downward to hurl Tarzan to the ground, Tantor shot forward like a projectile fired from some prodigious gun. His quick thrust was a remarkable feat for a creature so ponderous, but he was determined to aid his friend Tarzan.

Tantor's trunk swept swiftly upward and halted the quick, downward descent of Gudah's. This violent and unexpected blow caused the taut muscles of Gudah's trunk to relax for a moment. The alert ape-man squirmed free and dropped lightly to the ground.

In a new fury of disappointment, the mad Gudah whirled to engage his elephant foe. Then, bellowing and shrieking their fearful wrath, the two giant beasts clashed. Their bodies collided with a thud. Trunks twisted and whirled. Deadly tusks flashed and plunged.

Tarzan saw that Gudah was by far the stronger. Moreover, Tantor was unaccustomed to conflict. He had dwelt for years in peace with the creatures of his jungle home. Gudah would make quick work of him, then turn again on Tarzan and the remnants of his warrior apes!

A Hectic Campaign Looms

CITIZENS who like their politics "rough and tumble" will have a field day this summer and fall, unless all signs fail.

The 1936 Presidential campaign, in the language of the poets, "will be a honey", with no holds barred and Marquis of Queensberry rules as forgotten as the once "forgotten man".

Judging from reports sifting in from all parts of the country—and especially those from the East—the 1936 vote derby will equal, in dirt and below-the-belt slugging, the campaign of 1928. Some even say there is a good chance of its surpassing the Smith-Hoover fracas.

This year's campaign will differ from that of 1928 in that both major parties will be throwing mud in copious quantities, whereas, eight years ago, the whispering and the foul hitting was done largely by the Republicans. As in 1928, this year will see the religious question tossed into the maelstrom and the ever-present race question likewise will draw plenty of fire.

The Barons of Big Business, now more or less organized, will leave no stone unturned in their efforts to "get Roosevelt" and with their dollars they will buy political mud by ton lots. But in James Aloysius Farley, an experienced ward-heeler and bar room politician par excelance, they have a foreman worthy of their steel and if President Roosevelt is to be thoroughly plastered so will GOP Nominee Landon.

It seems a shame that we, as a nation, must decide our political problems via the mud-slinging, rough and tumble route.

It is a shame that all of us, whether we be Democrats or Republicans, do not repudiate leaders who call upon us to enter into dirty, slimy campaigns.

But custom and tradition are hard to break and, unfortunately for the nation, it is customary and traditional for us to be nasty in our politics.

The late, great Texas governor, Jim Hogg, once remarked that people were interested in issues rather than in individuals but if that were true in the Hogg days times have changed.

At least the average political leader subscribes to the theory that personalities must be dragged into the public arena before issues are even considered and he leads the mob along that line.

Hence, logically, we have campaign conditions such as those of the present year.

TROUBLE ON THE DANUBE

All is not waltz-like along the Blue Danube.

There are hunger and poverty and war hysteria and undying grudges in Balkan race groups.

More ticklish becomes the position of the Austrian chancellor, scholarly Kurt von Schuschnigg, and none would welcome more than he turning over Pretender Otto reins of government.

But if it's restoration of monarchy that would help, why not step aside and let the handsome Otto bring back the Hapsburgs to the overturned throne?

The reason is simple: A powerful Yugoslav army would march at once. The hero president of the Czechs agreed with Prince Paul that an Austrian putsch would be met with bayonets. Rumania's King Carol had a hand in the proceeding.

Common economic and military planning alone will save the Danubian states. The League of Nations is not likely to help them. Ask the recently much-traveled Selassie. And France won't do so, either.

The deep-seated ire toward each other among countries of the Balkans indicates the various Danubian states do little more toward a lasting peace. It may take reorganization to cure the ills there.

WITH OUR CONTEMPORARIES

"The trail of the cowboy, the Indian and others marching in the parade of conquest, are lost on their way out of Palo Duro to oblivian." Douglas Meador comments in the Matador Tribune.

"We are not in the insurance business, but every time we see a cloud these hot, sultry days, we hold our breath for fear it might hail," Forrest Weimhold says in the Sudan News.

"It would be desirable if the exodus of the farm population into the towns and cities could be stopped in Texas, and at the same time, the conveniences and advantages of city life received by those outside," W. M. Curry says in the Crosbyton Review.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

And they that sat at meat with him began to say within themselves, Who is this that forgiveth sins also?

CHURCH MOVED BY THE HAND OF GOD

In 1874 the congregation of the Methodist Church in Swanquarter, N. C. disagreed about purchasing a plot of ground on which to build their church, and after much discussion it was built on an entirely different spot. The new church did not prosper and the split factions still quarreled until the question was settled for theem. On September 17, 1876 a violent tornado-like storm literally picked up the little old wooden church building and moved it 300 yards, dropping it exactly on the spot over which the disagreement arose. The congregation accepted this as an act of God, were reunited and they renamed their church the "Providence Methodist Church."

A STAUNCH DEMOCRAT

Charles F. Taylor of Bowling Green, Ky., voted for Grover Cleveland three times from three different states. In 1884 at Maysville, Ky.; in 1888 at Ashland, Kansas; and in 1892 at Rome, Georgia.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: The chief thing lacking in Inspector Hylton's effort to find out who murdered that ancient miser Arthur Burdett is a motive. And quite unexpectedly, Burdett's solicitor returns from France, discloses that his client made a new will six days before his head was bashed in, and furnishes the motive. Burdett cut out his half nephew, Dale Shipley, and willed his 60,000 pounds to his manservant, Andrew Lumsdale.

Chapter 17
CHECKING LUMSDALE

"Another half pint, please," Inspector Hylton said, "in a tankard," and he smiled amiably at the pretty fluffy-haired girl who was serving him.

"Anything more to eat?" the Crown barmaid enquired.

"No, thanks, my dear, I'm afraid of my figure, but if you can stand the smell of cigar smoke I'll light this thing."

"Oh, I love the smell of a cigar," the girl assured him, "seems so posh like, doesn't it?"

It was nearly two o'clock and he was seated in the bar of the Crown Inn Morechester and his morning had been a busy one. It had been a morning devoted entirely to Mr. Andrew Lumsdale.

He drew a pencil from his pocket and began to tick off points on the back of an envelope.

(1) Captain Reeves says that he left Enderton Court at 5 or ten past, and that A. B. was then alive—this may or may not be true.

(2) Lumsdale's story—here the Inspector paused and considered afresh all he had done that morning.

The West Sussex Transport System Limited had imposing head offices in Morechester, and Hylton's official card had very soon brought the entire place at his disposal. Before long he was interviewing Frederick Warner, the conductor of the 2:40 bus from Hope Enderton to Morechester on the fatal Monday.

Fred Warner was a broad-shouldered, healty young man of twenty-two or -three. Yes, he got to know the regulars on his bus pretty well. Yes, he knew Mr. Lumsdale, Mr. Burdett's man, well by sight. Mr. Lumsdale nearly always came on the 2:40 bus on Mondays; he certainly did last Monday; he came over the fields in front of the Court, and the bus had to stop especially for him by the stile.

Warner's evidence was straightforward and unhesitating and carried conviction. At the Regal ("the big place in the Square" as Andrew Lumsdale had described it) the Inspector's luck petered out. Off then to the Crown where the production of his card had worked wonders with the landlord. The presence of a big pot from Scotland Yard reduced Mr. William Trotter to humilitating depths of servility.

The Crown was famous for its billiards room and Jimmy Pratt, the marker, was a character in the town. He answered all Hylton's questions like the sharp little Cockney sparrow that he was.

Mr. Lumsdale? Certainly, he knew Mr. Lumsdale; one of his regulars. Monday? Of course he came in on Monday. About half past five as near as made no matter that was his time for coming in and played until seven. Positive? Certainly he was positive. The fluffy-haired little creature in the bar had been the next link in the chain; she, too, knew Mr. Lumsdale by sight he had acquired some degree of local notoriety by reason of the celebrated eccentricities of his master. Usually came in for something to eat on Monday nights. On last Monday he certainly did, she remembered distinctly. Time? About seven, coincident with the arrival of her own supper from the kitchen.

So far al this tallied exactly with Lumsdale's own story and it seemed pretty clear that he had not left the Crown in Morechester until say a quarter to eight on Monday evening. Even if he walked back, according to his own statement, arriving say at nine, there was nothing inherently impossible in the supposition that he went in, murdered Arthur Burdett straight away, and then reported the matter to Sergeant White.

Against this theory was the Doctor's very definite opinion that death had taken place some time before eight. Hylton realized that what Chambers had said was, after all, only an opinion, and he wondered . . .

He gently eased the long ash off his cigar and considered again the one small point in which the results of his enquiries had deviated from Lumsdale's own statement.

Frederick Warner, the bus conductor, had not only noticed Lumsdale on his 'bus, but he also happened to notice where that worthy went to when he left the bus. On Monday afternoon Lumsdale crossed over the pavement and went straight into the Post Office; of this Warner was positively certain.

With this aim n view he made his way back to Hope Enderton.

Lumsdale was in at the Court when he got there and bid him "goodday" with an independent nod of the head.

"Well, I've been ferreting around," the Inspector assured him cheerfully. "You seem to be known by sight everywhere as a matter of fact."

"More people know Tom Fool than Tom Fool knows."

"Even the imposing gentleman outside the picture place knows you."

"He's clever then, for ah've never said a word to him in me life."

"He says as far as he can remember that you went into the pictures about half past three on Monday."

Lumsdale looked up sharply from his task. "He can't remember very far then," eh said. "What would I be doing messing about in Morechester till then?"

"To tell you the truth," Hylton said disarmingly, "that's just what I have been wondering. You didn't do any shopping or anything on the way?"

"Ah went straight to pictures, Mister, ah tell you," Lumsdale repeated doggedly.

"Just so. Ah, well, the florid-faced gentleman outside the Cinema must be wrong then."

Lumsdale's thin lips were pursed for some doubtless scathing comment when voices in the back passage interrupted him.

"Better go out and see who that is," Hylton suggested, "we don't want people poking about here."

"There's some as seem pretty handy at it," Lumsdale said as he left the room to investigate. Quick as lightning the Inspector crossed the floor and taking a photograph from the mantleshelf tucked it away in his pocket. It was a fairly recent likeness of friend Lumsdale.

"It's Sergeant White as is poking about now," Lumsdale announced, returning with White hard on his heels.

"I saw you come up the road to the Court, sir," White explained, "and I thought I'd look in to see if you wanted me for anything."

"Good man. We'll walk down to your place together. I've just been having a friendly chat with Lumsdale."

"That's right," Lumsdale gave one of his rare unmirthful laughs. "And now I'll tell you one thing as perhaps you don't know, just to show I am friendly like. Come this way."

He led them both into the room where the murder had been committed. The body had been taken to the Coroner's Court at Morechester in preparation for the inquest. It was a relief not to see that sheeted ruddle on the table and yet, in some queer way, the room seemed even grimmer and less pleasant for being empty. And what with this feeling, and the damp chill of the place, Hylton gave an involuntary shiver.

Lumsdale noticed it and nodded. "Feels a bit like that," he said. "Ah reckon t'old boy's still hanging about the Court, near that safe of his, I wouldn't wonder."

"Don't trot out any more of that ghost business, for Heaven's sake," Hylton said sharply.

"You don't believe in it, eh Mister? Well, p'raps you're right; but here's a queer go. D'you notice anything?"

They were standing now by the table and the Inspector looked carefully at the few trappings and adornments of that bare place.

"Someone's moved that club," he said.

"Ah did; ah put it back in its right place."

"In its right place?" Hylton

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ira Bennett

LARGE appropriations by Congress for relief purposes come in mighty handy for emergency work in drouth regions—and of course the political implications are not overlooked. Relief Administrator Hopkins and Secretary Wallace lost no time in beating it out West, to get emergency relief under way.

The political department, while deploring drouth distress, looks upon this dispensation as opportunity for wiping out scattered disaffection in the farm belt resulting from laggard distribution of soil conservation "benefits." Prompt and liberal relief in drouth regions is expected to win friends for the administration.

Much of this relief must be direct financial support of suddenly impoverished farm families. Red tape must be slashed to do this vital duty.

SQUEEZE: The industrial skies are showing mares' tails and mackerel clouds. John L. Lewis, Clarence Irwin and the other leaders who are planning to organize steel workers into one big union have seen the defi issued by the Steel Institute and have accepted the challenge. Assistant Secretary McGrady, of the Department of Labor, says he doesn't see any peace signs.

A nation-sized labor war isn't relished by the administration. There's talk of quiet pressure put upon John Lewis to tone down his campaign until after election. If that attempt has been made it hasn't succeeded, for he still breathes battle. The internal row in the American Federation forces Lewis to make a fight or risk defeat of the whole industrial union plan. A. F. of L. and steel executives have Lewis squeezed.

Steel companies flout the Wagner labor relations act and the Labor Relations board. Efforts will be made to enjoin the board if it puts pressure upon the steel concerns.

PRELUDE: Are two big labor federations to emerge from the scrap in the American federation? A few days may tell the story.

Common opinion is that William Green, president of the federation, is trying to hold down the angry extremists on his side who demand expulsion of the whole outfit of industrial unionists, numbering nearly 1,000,000 men in ten big unions. But Green, while trying to hold back, nevertheless brings matters to a crisis as the only way of determining whether the dog or the tail shall do the wagging.

Strong industrial influences are supposed to support Green in attempting to hold the American Federation to a conservative course. Industrial managers agree that emergence of an Industrial Union federation would be the prelude to battles over closed shop demands, beginning with the steel industry.

HOPES: The closed shop movement hasn't the teeth it would have had if the courts had sustained the Wagner labor disputes act or the NRA. The Wagner act lives until or unless it is killed by the Supreme court, but it is crippled by lower court decrees declaring it unconstitutional. In every jurisdiction where these rulings have been made the Labor Relations board is important to enforce its orders—indeed, it is enjoined from doing so under penalty for contempt.

John L. Lewis is handicapped further by failure of Congress to pass the new Guffey bill providing for fixed prices of coal in interstate commerce. In spite of this handicap he drives forward for unionization of the steel industry, through the Committee for Industrial Organization and the steel unions already organized.

Some industrialists think they see some relief for themselves in the Federation scrap. They hope labor will fight labor to a fare-you-well.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

TALK of a mammoth steel strike is premature. The clash between the steel industry and organized labor might easily end up in such a head-on collision, but it won't happen soon if John Lewis can help it.

It's worth noting that dire strike predictions have all come from spokesmen for the steel managements. A vital time factor is involved. If a large-scale walkout must develop, the big shots of the industry would personally prefer t ohave it come as soon as possible. They have two excellent reasons. One is that the organized labor element among the steel workers is still very weak. Therefore it should be much easier to crash it now in an open fight than it presumably will be later. The other is that a major strike before election would hurt Roosevelt—which would be just dandy.

It would be hard to prove—but keen observers suspect that the industry's exceptionally open defiance of organized labor and its intimations that strikers are inevitable are bait to get a rise from hot-headed unionists. In any case it's a fair assumption that the steel companies will do nothing to avert a walkout if one threatens.

ALLIES: John Lewis, for his part, probably visualizes an eventual strike to enforce closed shop demands. But he certainly doesn't want one now, for reasons precisely the reverse of those given above. Furthermore, he's much too smart to be lured into a showdown before he is ready by a provocative technique.

Some of his organizers are bound to be treated rough, but his policy will be to abstain from retaliation in kind until he is strong enough to make it effective. Meanwhile such incidents will be given the widest possible publicity. At this stage, the battle is essentially a public relations contest.

The big question is whether Lewis will be able to restrain the thirst for action of his rank and file followers. That's where his communist pals may prove embarrassing allies. They have joined his party with the idea of taking control of it themselves after the closed shop victory. The trouble is that their specialty is hell-raising, regardless of consequences. Any rough stuff they start at present will play right into the enemy's hands—but that isn't likely to deter them.

MIDWEST: Shrewd New York observers who have recently visited the Middle West report Democratic complications in that area.

We have recently mentioned Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana as a man whose future is worth watching. McNutt has set himself up in his state much as Roosevelt and Farley have done in the nation. He runs the show. At the Philadelphia convention he completely ignored the wishes of Senators Sherman Minton and Frederick Van Nuys in making complete assignments. This was especially evident in the designation of his protege Wayne Coy—head of the state WPA—as Indiana's representative on the resolutions committee. Some of the key followers of Minton and Van Nuys are furious—which won't help party harmony in November a bit.

Political sharps also note indications of Democratic weakness in Michigan. FDR has made earnest and apparently successful efforts to induce Frank Murphy—ex-Mayor of Detroit—to accept the Democratic nomination for governor. If Roosevelt were such a cinch to win as Farley claims, it wouldn't matter who ran for governor where.

PATHETIC: A number of anti-New Deal chiefs privately express the fervent wish that the Liberty league would learn to pipe down. The announcement of the league's executive committee last week that it will preserve a "non-partisan" opposition to Mr. Roosevelt drew savage razzberries from high Republican circles. League offers to support the G.O.P. ticket directly met the brutal response that party leaders would be grateful if the league would be so kind as to refrain officially from so much as mentioning Mr. Landon's name.

Insiders say the league is gradually dying of inanition. Its most recent financial report indicates that the large funds which used to flow into its coffers are now going into more effective channels. Many wealthy anti-New Dealers have soured on the league as a difinite political liability to their cause.

A top-flight financier remarks: "It's really pathetic. The leaguers are just like the boys and girls in the advertisements who are always losing sales or jobs or beaux until a kind friend tips them off. They just cannot understand why they are unpopular."

OLD AGE PENSION

Editor, The Avalanche: To the Old Age Pensioners — Promptly on July 1, the first state and federal pension money was handed by our governor to a German couple who came to Austin to receive it. They lived in a home given them by their son. The amount was $25 each. The man was 103 years old and his wife 95.

It is said they were made very happy.

They are the only two I have heard of receiving anything. I understand this to mean if you live carefully and are of German descent and have a son able to give you a home, to live in and our present governor remains in office, some time between the ages of 95 and 103 years if you will go to Austin the governor will hand you out what is coming to you.

This indeed is encouragement.

It will have a tendency for us to strive to live longer. We will know that we are provided for in our days after we are 103 years old.

We will be made happy in our old age. So I think we ought to take heart. Our legislature and our governor will take care of us. You should all feel proud that you live in a state that provides so generously for you in your old age after you are 103 years old.

Smith Shaw, sr.,
Idalou, Texas.

(Dear Mr. Shaw: Thanks for your letter. I once knew a man who lived to be 107 years old with never a thought about getting or asking for a pension from the state and government. Of course, that was quite a while back—before paternalism in government was thought about and when people took pride in paddling their own canoes. Yours truly, The Editor.)

As Gudah's trunk whipped downward to hurl Tarzan to the ground, Tantor shot forward like a projectile fired from some prodigious gun. His quick thrust was a remarkable feat for a creature so ponderous, but he was determined to aid his friend Tarzan.

Tantor's trunk swept swiftly upward and halted the quick, downward descent of Gudah's. This violent and unexpected blow caused the taut muscles of Gudah's trunk to relax for a moment. The alert ape-man squirmed free and dropped lightly to the ground.

In a new fury of disappointment, the mad Gudah whirled to engage his elephant foe. Then, bellowing and shrieking their fearful wrath, the two giant beasts clashed. Their bodies collided with a thud. Trunks twisted and whirled. Deadly tusks flashed and plunged.

Tarzan saw that Gudah was by far the stronger. Moreover, Tantor was unaccustomed to conflict. He had dwelt for years in peace with the creatures of his jungle home. Gudah would make quick work of him, then turn again on Tarzan and the remnants of his warrior apes!

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—Influenced by the drouth and steel labor situation, stock market leaders continued their downward slide.

While a few issues bucked the trend, losses of 1 to 2 or more points predominated.

As in the previous session farm implements, motors, rails and allied shares reflected the probability of restricted agricultural incomes because of short yields in the principal growing districts.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped .6 of a point at 63.9 on top of yesterday's decline of .5. Transfers totaled 968,190 shares against 864,220 the day before.

A number of the utilities offered resistance as electric power consumption indicated improved earnings and possibly larger dividends for some companies.

Petroleum shares attracted a little attention. Gasoline demand appeared to be growing and crude oil production last week showed a sizable decline.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, July 7. (AP)—On the eve of the government's crop estimate, realizing and a withdrawal to the sidelines of speculative interests brought mild recessions on the cotton market today.

Futures finished from net unchanged to 5 points lower after an early period of firmness on better cables from abroad.

Around mid-way of the session reports that the cotton pool was liquidating some of its October holdings at New York checked the advance and the market sagged.

Weather reports were a little more favorable for the belt as a whole, although some of the drought ravaged regions reported little relief from the searing sun.

Oct. finished the day at 11.79, net unchanged, but Dec. at 11.78, Jan. at 11.78, and Mar. at 11.82 were nominally lower.

While the recent private estimates have led the trade to expect an acreage approximating 31,000,000 in the government's report tomorrow, most speculators got out of the market until after the official announcement at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—Cotton was irregular today. Near months were relatively firm on the spot situation but later deliveries eased under realizing and evening up in preparation for the government's acreage estimate tomorrow.

October, after selling off to 11.81, rallied to 11.89 and closed at 11.87. The general market closed very steady, net 7 points higher to 8 lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 7 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and scattering demand from foreign and domestic sources. The advance encountered scattered hedging and realizing and prices at one time showed net losses of 3 to 11 points on new crop months.

The decline was checked by covering and Wall Street buying, causing rallies in late trading. Brokers supposed to be operating for the cotton pool again supplied demand for October. Their sales were estimated at about 15,000 bales.

The official report on acreage under cultivation July 1 is scheduled for publication at noon tomorrow, New York daylight time.

Exports today 2,972, making 6,137,180 for the season. Receipts 3,862. U. S. port stock 1,365,107.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, July 7. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton at ten southern spot markets today was 12.24 cents a pound.

Farley's Leave

Dakota, first assistant postmaster general, would take charge of the department.

The start of Farley's leave was deferred until August 1, the president said, because the postmaster general wanted more time to complete the annual financial statement for the department covering the fiscal year just ended.

Cotton Markets

business has mingled with outright praise for Oscar Johnson, head of the government cotton pool, for the manner in which he has liquidated the government's holdings.

The former plantation manager from Greenwood, Miss., took over the reins of the cotton producers pool in 1933. At that time it consisted of approximately 1,600,000 bales of spot cotton and 900,000 bales of cotton futures.

Managed To Sell

At a time when the consuming centers of the world were using comparatively little American cotton and prices were being bolstered by 10 and 12 cent loans, Johnson managed to sell the spot cotton and liquidate the cotton futures with what cotton traders admit was the minimum of friction to price structures.

While many in the trade, resenting government operations in the cotton market, have disapproved of what Johnson did, few have criticized the manner in which he did it.

The 1,600,000 bales of actual cotton has been reduced to around 100,000 bales, and latest reports are that this has been sold in one lot to a prominent spot house.

Of the 900,000 bales of cotton futures, but a few thousand bales of October cotton held in the New York market remains.

Restrictions

thinks the law should not apply in this case," he said.

Should Loosen Restrictions

Lloyd Davidson, Austin, for five years state's attorney before the criminal court of appeals likewise asserted better law enforcement could be had if the legislature saw fit to a "loosen up the tight restrictions which bind the prosecutor."

Other speakers included President Max M. Rogers, Huntsville, who presided; K. C. Barkley, Houston district attorney, and A. S. Johnson, Dallas, chairman of the Texas Public Safety commission.

Staunch defense of the United States Supreme court and of the Constitution was the joint theme of W. E. Masterson, dean of the school of law, University of Missouri, and Judge John J. Parker of the United States court of appeals, Charlotte, N. C.

Raps New Deal

Rapping New Deal measures such as the Agricultural Adjustment act and National Recovery act, Dean Masterson asserted:

"These new laws violating our liberty have sprung from elements that have obtained sway in other parts of the world and are now seeking soil in this country. So far this movement has been wrecked on the solid soil of the Constitution and the courage of the Supreme court," he said.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, July 7. (AP)—In hectic price changes rarely equaled, wheat today jumped 4½ cents to topmost levels since 1934, smashed downward virtually 6 cents, and rebounded a cent.

Late reports of unexpected sudden moisture in Saskatchewan province, Canada, notably around Regina, furnishing at least some relief from drouth, led to a general selling rush just before wheat trading ended. As a result, all of today's sweeping gains of wheat prices that climaxed 25 cents climb since the beginning of June were more than wiped out with breathtaking speed. Rallies that ensued from a fresh wave of buying just at the close failed at last for the time being to overcome in full the effect of today's collapse.

Wheat closed excited, ⅛ to ⅝ under yesterday's finish, July 105⅝@106¾, Sept 105⅝@106, Dec. 106⅞@107⅛, corn 2⅛@2⅝ up, July 78⅛, Sept. 77¾@78, Dec. 73⅛@73⅜, oats at ⅛ decline to ⅛ gain, Sept. 37½@37¾, and rye ⅛ to 1⅛ down, Sept. 71⅝@71¾. The outcome in provisions ranged from 20 cents setback to 15 cents advance.

Corn, oats and barley, all influenced by drouth losses to crops, rose at times to the top limits permitted, respectively 4 cents, 3 cents and five cents, but reacted when wheat turned weak. Rye receded because of selling ascribed to foreigners.

Provisions took their cue principally from grains. Warehouse interests were conspicuous late sellers of lard.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, July 7. (AP)—Keen demand for grain existed at Fort Worth today. Estimated receipts were: wheat 10 cars, and corn 2.

Wheat No. 1 soft red winter 1.20¾@1.20¾; No. 1 hard, according to protein and billing 1.23¾@1.24¾. Barley No. 2 nom. 65@67; sorghums No. 2 yellow milo per 100 lbs. nom. 1.33@1.35. No. 2 white kafir nom. 1.30@1.35; corn No. 2 white nom. 1.04@1.06; oats No. 2 red 46@49.

Opdyke gin eastward to Smyer, but from there eastward the fall was heavier.

Lynn Gets Moisture

The rain splashed Lynn county, all towns west of Tahoka receiving moisture. The eastern and northern districts were benefitted mostly, it was learned.

"Good penetration," said Don L. Jones, superintendent of the state experiment sub-station at Lubbock. Nine-hundredths-inch fall had been received since a .42 inch precipitation of the night before.

Over a restricted section between Ralls and Floydada it was estimated the fall amounted to almost 7 inches. Crosbyton reported 2 inches.

Three Inches At Tahoka

Tahoka, a dry sector to some extent, received three inches; Lamesa received an inch and a half and O'Donnell and Post, an inch, both places needing some rain. Southland received three inches.

The Fort Worth and Denver reported two-inch rains at Quitaque and Turkey; Silverton, two and a half and Sterley and Petersburg, an inch. Wheat harvest in these areas is nearly over and the rain will probably not fill out wheat heads to any great extent.

Late reports of Monday night's rains, given by Santa Fe dispatchers, included:

Early afternoon readings including an unofficial maximum of 118 at suburban Des Plaines and Chicago's highest of the year—102 on the municipal airport thermometer.

The weather bureau in Washington announced no alleviation was likely for the next two or three days increasing the fear of planters that corn's "critical period" might resolve into added disaster.

Deaths were reported in the following states:

Heat—Ohio 1, Wisconsin 4, Iowa 3, Minnesota 1, Indiana 1, North Dakota 1.

Drownings—Iowa 9, Minnesota 8, Wisconsin 1, South Dakota 1, Idaho 1, Indiana 1, New York 1, Illinois 1.

Nebraska's death list since May 1 has included three from heat and 32 drownings, a number of them ascribed to efforts to seek relief from high temperatures.

Modify Regulations

In Washington, the AAA announced important modifications of the 1936 soil conservation program in efforts to obtain "the widest possible conservation of forage" in the drouth states.

Under the amendments farmers will be permitted to cut soil depleting crops (but not corn) and annual legumes for forage, will be allowed to mow nurse crops which previously could be pastured only or clipped green; may plant emergency forage and feed crops on any land on their farms without regard to land use classification.

With total drouth losses estimated at around $300,000,000, the chief of the AAA replacement crop section, Joseph F. Cox, in Indianapolis, said that hay and pasture were reduced in two-thirds of the states by lack of rain.

At Lincoln, Neb., regional offices of the Rural Resettlement administration, estimated 33,000 farm families in the two Dakotas now were in need of help. It will supply emergency grants of $17.50 per month.

Forest fires in Wyoming, Montana and South Dakota called several thousand men to battle against another enemy of vegetation in those powder dry areas. Nearly 1,500 attacked two blazes in the northern and western Black Hills of the latter state.

North Dakota suffered also from a grasshopper descent. At Bismark, the insect pests were reported attacking lawns after leaving the brown seared grain fields.

and Smith, who campaigned on a Townsend platform, plus the assurance he would take no part in "any third party movement," showed surprising strength.

Old Age Pension Leads

Marland's initiated old age pension petition, one of three measures supported by the governor, led in early returns.

Its companion measure, increasing from one to two per cent the state sales tax to pay the state's half of the proposed $30 a month pension, also was leading.

The governor's third bill, a measure proposing continuing his conservation board, was losing almost two to one in the early figures.

Will Rogers Ahead

Rep. Will Rogers, the Moore school teacher, seeking his third term as democratic congressman-at-large, was running ahead of a field of 15 candidates, but because of the large number of candidates he may be forced into the run-off election.

When 192 precincts reported, Rogers had polled 9,204 votes while his nearest opponent, Sam Houston 111, grandson of Sam Houston of Texas fame, had 1,228 votes.

John C. Burns of Oklahoma City and Alfred E. Williams of Tulsa were in the van on the Republican ticket, with T. R. Blaine of Kingfisher running a close third.

Rep. Wesley Disney, Tulsa, far outdistanced his two Democratic opponents in the first district. The second district Democratic race say Jack Nichols, Eufaula congressman in the lead with Harry Pitchford of Okmulgee only a few votes behind. It appeared the two would be in the run-off contest.

Rep. P. L. Glassaway, of Coalgate, the much-photographed cowboy congressman, likely will be forced into a run-off. Four opponents are contesting for Democratic nomination. While he was far in the lead on early returns, Lyle Boren of Seminole and Claude Hendon, former Shawnee county attorney were running neck and neck for second place.

American Volcano Stirs Again

With Mount Lassen above, reported to be rumbling in menacing tone and spouting steam, American tourists now may see an active volcano that is strictly a home product. Located in northern California, near Red Bluff, Mount Lassen has been erupting periodically for ages. Nearly a century ago, a great blast gouged out the huge depression shown at the right of the snow-streaked mountain. And, as recently as 1916, the volcano spewed lava and mud, and destroyed much of the timber that surrounds its base.

Story Of Will Rogers Herding Swarm Of Bees In Hale County Is Recalled

HALE CENTER, July 7 (Special)—Another interesting story about Will Rogers came to light here this week when Dr. S. J. Underwood, pioneer Hale county physician, and acquaintance of the late cowboy-humorist was invited to write the details of Will's feat of herding a swarm of bees across Runningwater draw in northwest Hale county, about 26 years ago. Dr. Underwood was requested to give a brief sketch of the incident by Harold Keith, of the University of Oklahoma, who is writing a boys book of the life of Rogers.

At that time Rogers was a cowboy in the employe of L. A. Knight, rancher of northwest Hale county. In the spring of that year, a swarm of bees left Berl Campbell's place, near where Wayland college is now at Plainview, and started up the draw. Alfalfa grew wild in the draw, seed having been washed there from neighboring fields by rains. Attracted by the growing alfalfa, the bees flew some eight or nine miles up the draw until they were near the Knight ranch.

Herds Them Into Swarm

"Bill heard the bees, and decided to make them swarm into some of the trees around Knight's house," Dr. Underwood said. "He took a tub and pounded on it with a stick. The noise made the bees bunch together and he finally was able to herd them into a swarm near the ranch house."

Underwood said he was not a witness to the event, but had heard it narrated by some of the cowboys working for Knight.

Will once made reference to this stunt in one of his first talking pictures. In "Lightnin'," a picture in which he portrayed the part of a handy-man at a summer resort hotel, he mentioned the fact in his dialogue that he had "once herded a swarm of bees across the Panhandle of Texas."

The letter to Dr. Underwood from Keith asked the names of several old-timers in Hale county who knew Rogers when he worked for Knight.

"J. O. Harral and Grover Sageser knew him pretty well," Dr. Underwood said. "They are both living in Hale county now. J. N. Morrison, another acquaintance of Rogers when he worked out here, is now in California. There's another old-timer, a Mr. Estes, living somewhere around Plainview now, who knew Rogers at that time."

DALLAS, July 7. (AP)—Six-year-old Jo Ann Hill of Wichita Falls won first place over 100 entrants today in the children's talent discovery contest at the Texas Centennial exposition with her acrobatic dance routine.

The contest was the first of a series to feature each Tuesday, children's day, for eight weeks. Winners of each week's contest will compete in finals for engagements at Dallas theaters and on the exposition midway.

HALE CENTER, July 7 (Special) — J. Frank Norfleet, noted Hale county detective, who has successfully tracked down 93 alleged swindlers in the last 20 years, was exhibiting a bit of personal property here this week which he values highly. It is an old pair of pliers which he has tied to his saddle and which have been in constant use 55 years. "I've killed snakes, repaired fences, driven nails and staples and performed a thousand other tasks with these pliers," he said.

To Take Up Work

Although some of the new enrollees will arrive July 10, work will not be undertaken at the state park site until the designated quota has arrived, Capt. Wood said. Because the junior enrollees have had previous experience and are transfers, the work at the state park will be picked up where the veterans left off, he added.

The veterans camp had been established here late last summer and had been retained in February only after considerable pressure had been brought by local, state and national groups following announcement that the camp here was among those which had been ordered completely closed.

DALLAS, July 7. (AP)—Bob Bassett of Richmond, today was elected president of the District Attorneys and County Attorneys' association meeting in convention here. He is district attorney in Fort Bend and several other South Texas counties.

"Hitler Is All Right," Says Resident Of Heidelberg Here; Visits Cousin At Abernathy

"Hitler is all right" in the opinion of Mrs. Lucie Liderith, Heidelberg, Germany, widow of an attorney, who is spending several months here, including a long visit with a cousin, Mrs. W. E. Goeth, of Abernathy. She was here yesterday on business.

Heidelberg is a town of about 85,000, she said. It has a large university, one of the famous ones of Germany. She has a daughter attending the university, studying medicine. A son, also studying medicine, is in Munich.

Mrs. Liderith speaks English somewhat brokenly, although she understands it much better than she can speak it. She arrived in New York March 24, on the S. S. Europia. After spending a day there, she went by boat to Galveston and from there to Houston, where she has relatives. She came here some time ago.

Conditions, as frequently pictured in newspapers, are not as bad as one would believe.

Mrs. Liderith plans to return home in time for Christmas. The German Christmas celebration is "wonderful" and is a family celebration. She wants to be with her children at that time, she added.

Many Germans speak English, she said. Her son has been studying it for 10 years; her daughter for four years.

Wheat Prices

in the wheat pit, weighing prices down gradually it caught fire in the other grain pits.

The selling got under way with wheat at its apex, around $1.10 a bushel. Suddenly in a pit which yesterday was void of sellers, offers appeared as if by magic. The twisting fingers of "selling" brokers shot into the air and the cries of buyers answered. Wheat prices were beaten back to a level ranging from fractions to almost a cent below yesterday's close and when the final gong sounded, July sold at $1.05 5-8 to 1.05 3-4 compared with the high of $1.10 3-8. It had touched a low of $1.04 7-8.

In three weeks time wheat had advanced almost 23 cents a bushel and today's break was the first major setback.

Will Rogers, Tech Graduate, To Teach Hale Center Class

HALE CENTER, July 7. (Special)—Will Rogers—yep, that's his name—has been employed by the Hale Center school board as vocational agriculture instructor for the local high school next term. He is a graduate of Texas Technological college, Lubbock, and this is his first year as a teacher. Local school patrons were pleased to hear that this subject is to be resumed in the high school, since it was not taught last semester.

Reese Masten, also a Tech grad, will teach departmental work in the ward school here next semester, succeeding H. Holcomb, the board announced.

Dredgeman Pulls Body From Water; Drowns In Two Hours

UTICA, N. Y., July 7. (AP)—Two hours after Samuel Curcuruto, 28, Fulton, pulled the body of a Utican from the barge canal here, his own body was taken from almost the same spot.

Curcuruto at 3 p. m. discovered the body of Henry Wildhack, 58, floating in the canal.

At 5 o'clock Curcuruto, working on a dredge, stumbled while trying to catch a heavy rope dangling from the boom and disappeared. Fellow workmen had to use the same grappling hook with which Curcuruto had removed the other body before they could locate him.

The natives of Timbuktu put up roosting poles on minarets to serve as resting places for the returning spirits of their dead.

Centennial Attendance Is Short Of Million And Half

DALLAS, July 7. (AP) — Less than 31,000 clicks of the turnstiles today stood between the Texas Centennial exposition and its million-and-a-half attendance goal.

And Centennial officials expected to reach that round figure easily—by the simple device of inviting the younger generation at a nickel a head. Children's day included a talent discovery contest designed to uncover any potential Shirley Temples or Spanky McFarlands.

Concession operators joined in the welcome to the youngsters — those under 12 years of age—with offers to grant admission to their shows at reduced prices.

Included in yesterday's 33,264 registered visitors were a delegation from Gladewater, boys and girls from Young county's 4-H club and a trainload of out-of-state visitors. On their way to San Francisco and their convention there, a special train of dentists stopped over for a visit to the big show.

The grand total up to midnight last night was 1,469,237, officials announced.

U. S. Army Flier Is Killed When Plane Crashes Tuesday

LINCOLN, Neb., July 7. (AP)—Second Lieut. Charles Edward V. Smith, 25, of Hastings, U. S. Army pilot, was killed today when his airplane crashed in flames at the municipal airport here.

Smith, in training at Selfridge Field, Mich., crashed from a height of about 500 feet and the plane (a Boeing P-26 type machine) immediately burst into flames. His body was charred beyond recognition.

Identification was established through papers and a license which did not burn. Attendants at the airport said Smith came here on July 4th to visit.

Amendments To Be Voted

Proposed Changes In Constitution Of Texas Are Of Vital Importance; Six Are To Be Voted On In November

State workmen, school teachers, high state officials, legislators, liquor dispensers, and prisoners would be more directly affected than other branches of society with the passage of six proposed amendments to the constitution of Texas, but the amendments would be of vital importance to the state as a whole, in opinion of some members of the electorate.

The amendments will be referred to the public for a vote in the general election to be held in November.

Consider Their Worth

Now is the time to begin consideration of the worth of the proposals, suggest some.

One of the proposed amendments provides for a reapportionment of representatives to the legislature, which would limit all counties with a population of 700,000 or less to a maximum of seven representatives. Counties of more than 700,000 would have an additional representative for each additional 100,000 population. This is intended as a protection to the small counties and would put them on a more equal basis with the counties of larger population.

An amendment which is causing much discussion at present, a leading proponent of the change being Lieut.-Gov. Walter Woodul, would raise salaries of the governor and other constitutionally authorized officers. The governor's salary would be raised from $4,000 to $12,000 and the attorney-general's from $2,000 to $10,000. The secretary of state, who now receives $2,000, and the comptroller, the treasurer and the commissioner of the general land office, all of whom get $2,500, would receive $6,000.

Would Retire Teachers

Under another proposed amendment, teachers employed in public schools, colleges and universities supported by the state would be placed under a retirement system. Under the proposed plan, the teachers would pay a part of their monthly salary into a retirement fund and this amount would be matched with state money as a retirement pension after the teacher had served 20 years. In case of retirement before the 20-year period was completed, the teacher would be refunded all the personal contribution made to the fund. Retired teachers who had served the 20-year period would be paid $180 a year.

A workmen's compensation amendment would provide the same type of insurance for state employes as that enjoyed by employes of large corporations. State laborers now "work at their own risk." Another amendment would place the sale of intoxicating liquors under state control, with a central office handling dispensation of all liquors.

A board of pardons and paroles would be set up by the sixth amendment, transferring the power of pardoning prisoners, which now rests in the governor's hands, into the hands of the board.

Pangborn Purchasing Plane's Equipment For Ocean Flight

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—Clyde E. Pangborn, round-the-world flier, was purchasing equipment today for a plane in which he said he would attempt a New York-Paris flight late this month to publicize the Texas Centennial.

The trans-Atlantic trip, Pangborn disclosed, will be made in a (Wasp-powered) single-wing cabin plane with no fuselage and with the tail held on by two booms.

His companion on the flight will be Monty G. Mason, Centennial representative who recently purchased the plane.

Pangborn said he would fly to Dallas July 18 and would spend a week preparing the plane. The take-off will be from Floyd Bennett field, Brooklyn, and the flight is expected to take between 28 and 30 hours.

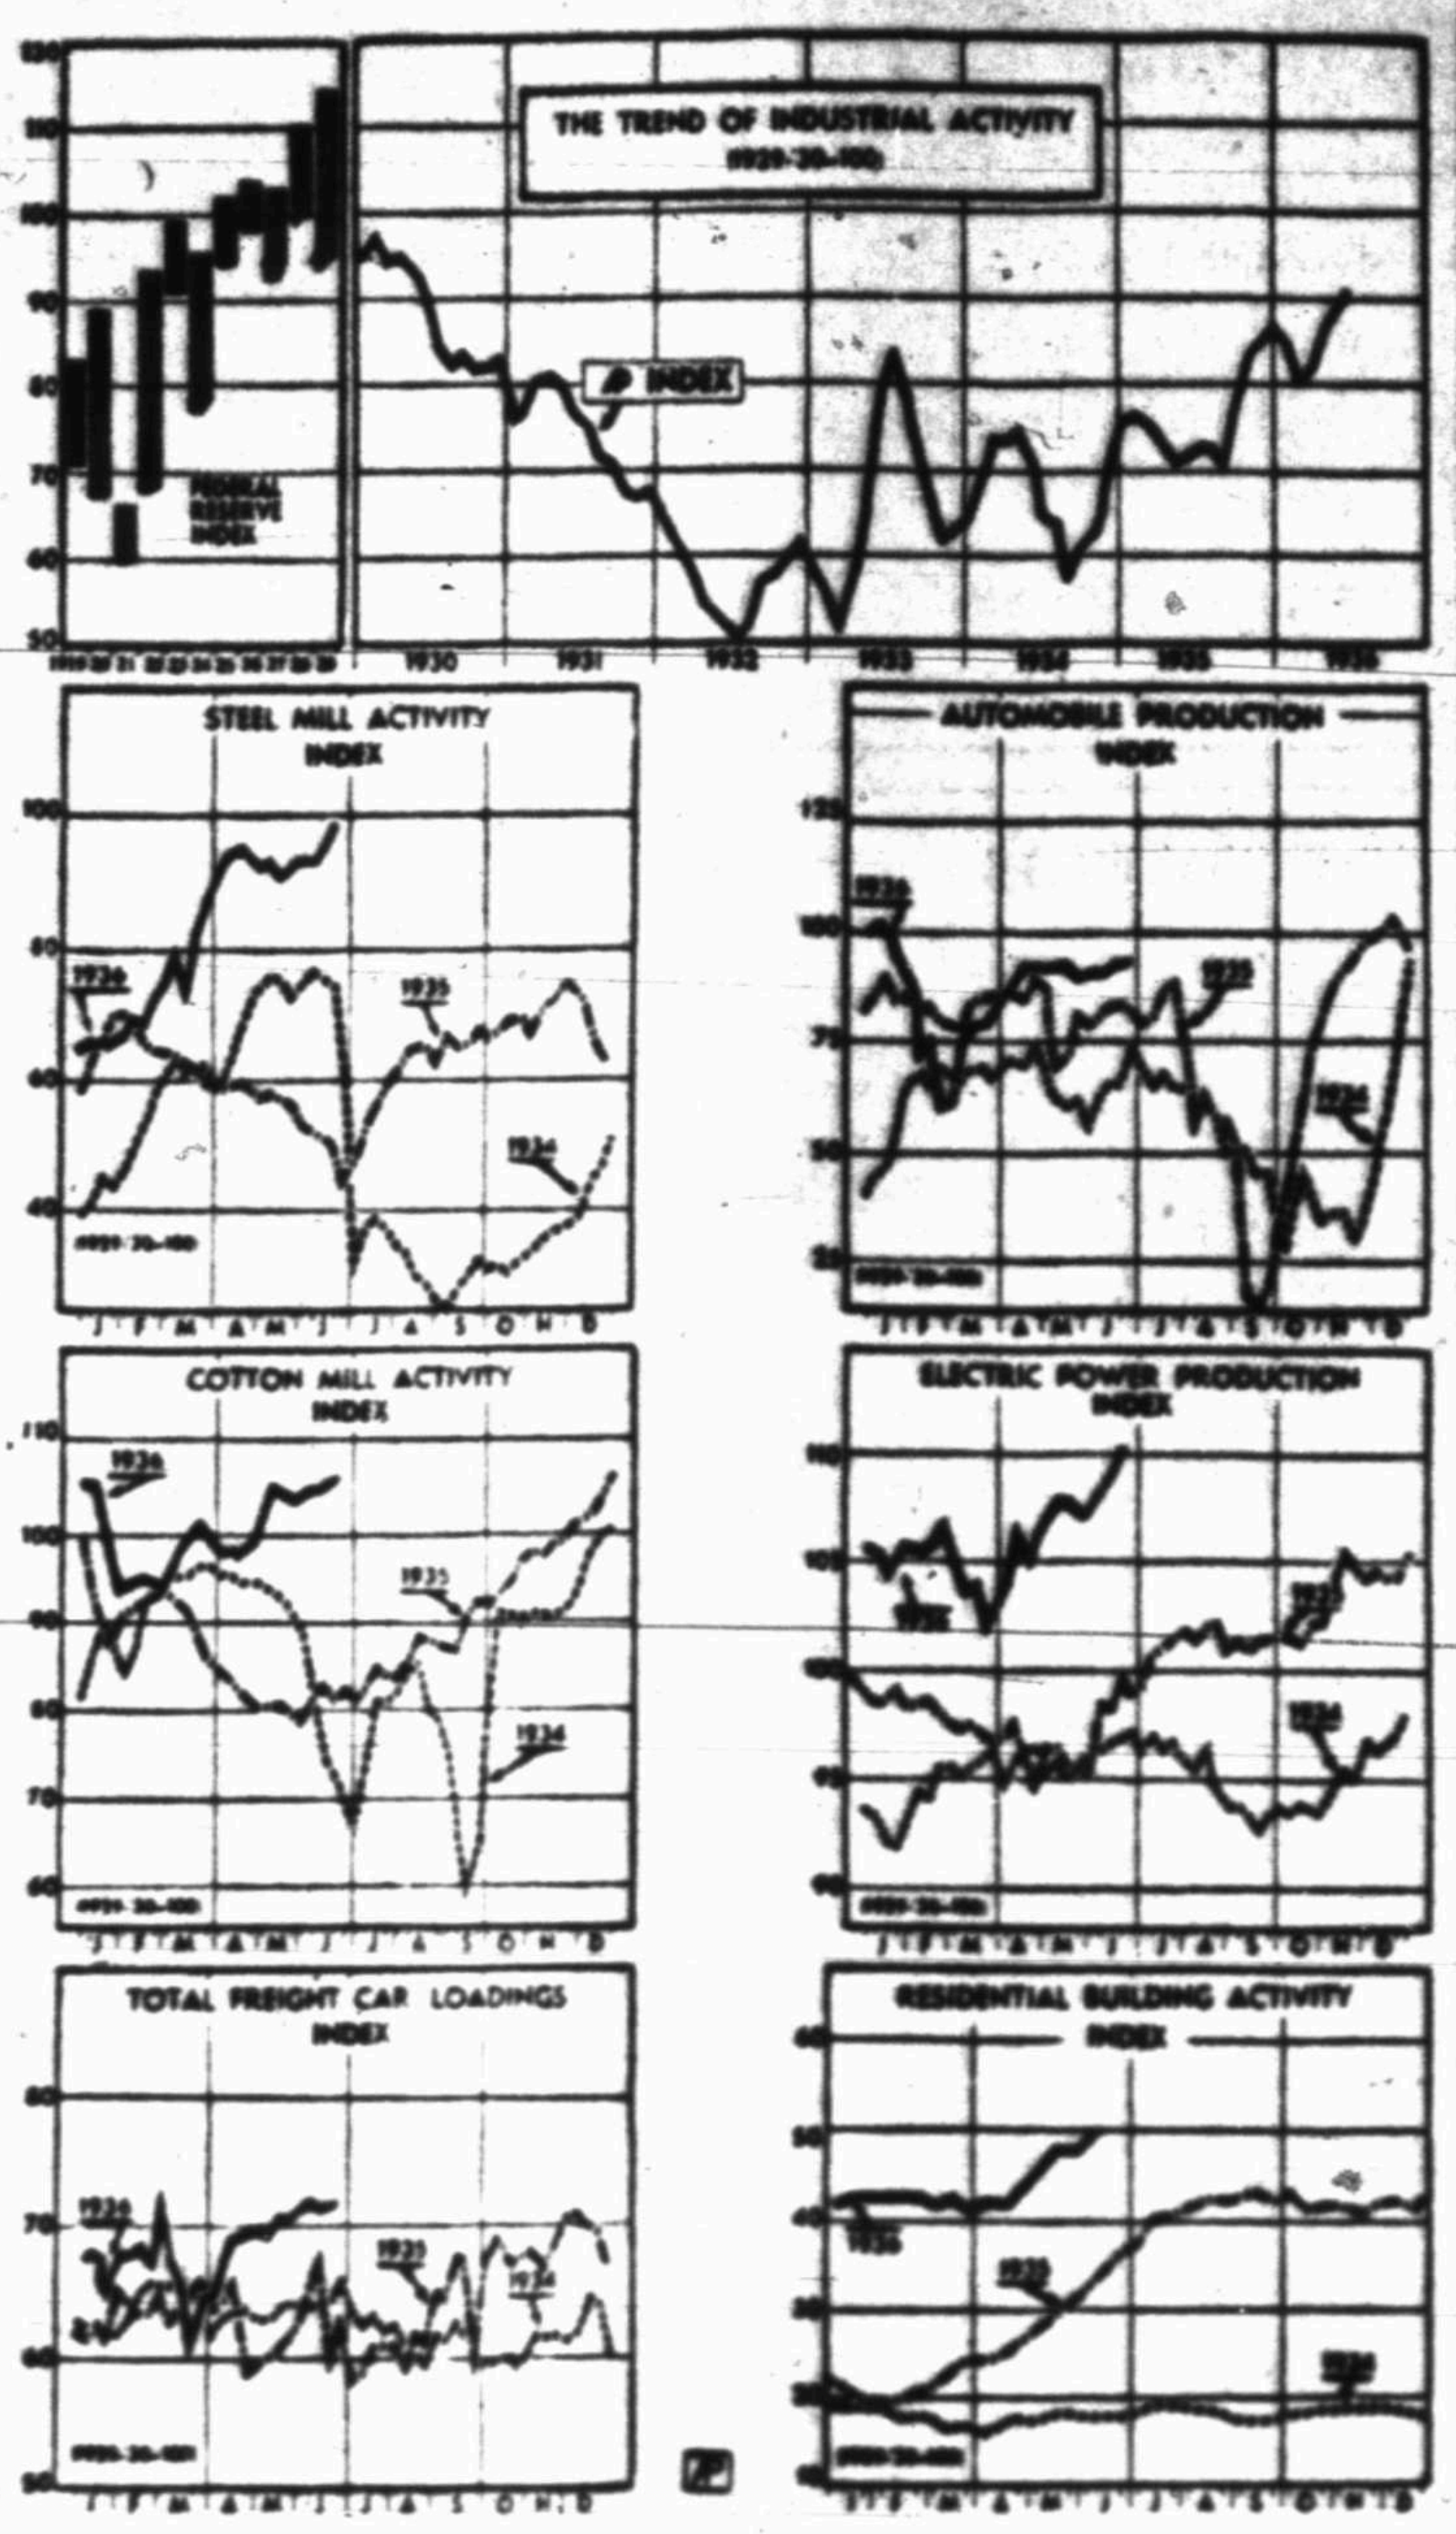
Business Activity Trend

Industry Hits Year's High During Month Of June In U. S.



(By The Associated Press)

The pace of industry during June was the fastest for the year and 16 per cent above the February low point.

This late burst of speed carried industrial activity past the half-way mark in the year's race at the quickest gait witnessed since the summer of 1930.

Main bulwark of the sustained improvement has been the high rate of steel output.

Automobile production was maintained at close to 100,000 cars weekly although June normally experiences a sizable decline. The maintenance of retail sales at better volume than was previously expected is the accepted reason.

Electric power output pushed ahead to the highest weekly figure ever recorded; with the 8,000,000 electric refrigerators, other gadgets, drought-prompted irrigation and large industrial use combining to force the rise.

Jumping ahead 21 per cent from the year's low, residential building contracts duplicated the 1935 performance of moving contra-seasonally higher. Many sections, principally urban, report shortages of small private homes.

The pick-up in freight carloadings reflected business gains, while the upturn in cotton manufacturing activity was predicated on a sharply improved demand for yard and print goods.

Relatives Of Henry Iwers Move To Continue Hunt For Fortune On Farm

(By The Associated Press)

TIPTON, Ia., July 7.—Convinced the $212,000 already dug up didn't represent Henry Iwers' total fortune, relatives today moved to organize another treasure hunt on his 880-acre farm.

Seventeen of them, left out of the bachelor farmer's will when he bequeathed his property to Cousins Louis and Margaret Voss, also turned to a district court hearing on their suit to break Iwers' will on grounds that he was incompetent when he drew it, the Vosses used undue influence on the aged recluse and it was not signed and witnessed in keeping with the law.

Next, they sought a court order authorizing a search of the farm where Iwers' wealth, hidden in the house and cached in iron boxes, was uncovered last week.

Meanwhile, Assistant Attorney General Walter Maley, approving an order to exhume Iwers' body, declared yesterday:

"Some unexplained circumstances lead us to a suspicion that his death was not from natural couses."

Socialist Leader Resigns; Sees Communistic Leaning

READING, Pa., July 7. (AP) — James H. Maurer, 40 years a Socialist and twice a candidate for vice president, resigned from the party today with a denunciation of what he termed the party leadership's "trend toward Communism."

Maurer lashed out at Norman Thomas, national leader of the party with whom he twice was paired on the national ticket, and other members of the national executive committee. They, he asserted, "are wrecking the socialist party."

He declared he will continue to vote the Socialist ticket but can not continue to be a member of a party whose leadership has "wherever possible left the doors open for the admission of Communists."

Five Convicts In Spotlight

Four Are To Die In Chair At Huntsville, July 10 While Next Day J. R. (Bob) Silver Is To Be Released

(By The Associated Press)

HUNTSVILLE, July 7. — Of the hundreds of convicts in the Texas prison, five were in the spotlight today.

Four were in death row preparing to walk to the electric chair July 10. The other, who had prepared four times to go to the electric chair, was in the warden's office preparing to walk out of the prison a free man July 11.

Silver To Go Free

Unless there are stays of execution two white men of the same name but not related and two negro brothers will die for murder. The next day J. R. (Bob) Silver, who was snatched from the chair by a comutation of sentence after he had eaten his "last meal" and heard the death chair tested for the grim job, will be released.

Heading for the electric chair were Glenn and Grady Warren, white men, and Oscar and Couple Brown. Electrocution of the four would be the largest night's business for the death chair since it received its grim initiation in 1924.

All Are Slayers

Glenn Warren was one of three convicted of the slaying of "Uncle" Charley Cansler in Angelina county Feb. 9, 1934.

Grady Warren was convicted of murdering C. Brown near Tyler Dec. 31, 1933.

The negro brothers were sentenced for slaying Byron Bleschner, Edna filing station operator, July 12, last.

Prison officials say the Warrens "look as much alike as twin brothers," but the murderers never met until they came to death row. The appeals court took final action on their cases the same day.

Saved From Chair

Silver, sentenced to die in connection with the holdup slaying of Roscoe Wilson, Fort Worth theater cashier, nine years ago, was saved from the chair by reprieves three times before his sentence was reduced to life. Good behavior with resultant earned overtime paved the way to his early release.

Silver plans to go to Kansas City to finish negotiations for a job. He was an orchestra leader before he was sentenced and has led the prison orchestra three or four years. He indicated he may decide on a musical career. He is 32 years old.
