Clovis Youth Injured In Truck Accident Tues. Night, Near Here

J. N. Giten, a Clovis youth, was run over by a truck Tuesday night about 9 o'clock on the south Floyd road two miles west of Portales.

Giten was pushing on the rear of the truck operated by his uncle, W. F. Fenn, when his foot caught in the rear wheel of the truck, pulling him under and letting the truck run over his entire body lengthwise.

As the wheel reached Giten's head it caught his chin and bruised his face considerably.

Giten was rushed to a doctor and his wounds and bruises dressed. The doctor reported that his condition was much better Wednesday evening.

The truck was loaded with 8,000 to 10,000 pounds of grain and was stuck in the mud during the rain Tuesday evening.

The road was freshly graded by the highway construction crew, who have been working on it for the last few weeks. When the truck passed over Giten, his body was pushed down into the loose mud, which undoubtedly saved his life from being crushed out.

Giten, a 20 year old youth, had been visiting his uncle, W. F. Fenn, in the Floyd community.

DR. S. N. HANCOCK ORDERED TO TAKE REST

Dr. S. N. Hancock was taken to the clinic at Lubbock for examination and was advised to spend the next few weeks recuperating from a severe attack of the flu which he suffered last December.

Dr. Hancock will go to Albuquerque Monday and, until he can make some satisfactory arrangement, his office in Portales will be closed.

He failed to recover his strength after the illness and the doctor felt a complete rest for a while would be most beneficial.

Old Timer Here to Visit Saturday

J. F. Wallace, an old settler of Roosevelt county but now living in Arizona, was in Portales Saturday morning to visit his old friends.

Mr. Wallace remembers when the wire fences did not interfere with straight courses in this county because there were none except the drift fences and they were so far between that they did not hinder a great deal.

He says he likes Arizona fine as far as the appearance of the country is concerned. It looks like a garden spot, he says. However, there are more people out of work there than here. The country is having to feed people by the hundreds.

Grains are higher there than here, it seems. He said that maize retails at $1.05 per hundred.

Seniors to Present Matinee Today

The senior class will present their annual play to the student body this afternoon at a matinee performance. The title is, "It Happened in Hollywood." The custom of playing a matinee performance of school plays was adopted last year to give the pupils who come to school on trucks a chance to witness their presentation.

Friday night the seniors will present the play in the high school auditorium, when the general public is invited to witness it.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

Members of the Taxpayers association are requested to meet with the county commissioners Monday, April 3, says Lewis A. Little, president of the organization.

HOBOS IN TOWN

About a dozen hobos stopped off in Portales over the week end and could not catch a train out. The night watchmen kept the men under control as much as possible, although there was quite a number that approached back doors for handouts and quite a bit of "panhandling" on the street, until they were "shipped" out of town.

Lee Carter, J. B. Fridy and G. W. Carr have returned from a few days fishing trip. They were accompanied on the trip by an off-time fishing partner of Mr. Carr's from Fort Sumner.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McDonald, Harold McDonald and Paul Wurster motored to Lubbock, Tex., Sunday, where Harold has been receiving treatment for the past many months. The doctor is delighted with the progress shown in the bone development of Harold's hip, and it will not be necessary for the patient to make another trip to the sanitarium for about six months.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Myers and their little son Bobbie have returned to their home at Borger, Tex. They came to Portales on Wednesday of last week with the body of their son Gerald, who had passed away in the Borger hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Myers were with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Myers and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cummings while they were in Portales.

Area Scouting in Serious Condition

Friday night of last week E. N. Wheeler, C. J. Sparks and J. G. Greaves attended the executive council of the Boy Scouts of this district at Roswell.

It was found that the area finances were in the red, and very few of the towns in the area had met their quotas. Unless additional funds can be raised over the area, the office of the area will have to be closed. Portales was one of the towns that have met their obligations.

This is no time to discontinue the Scout work, as we are facing a problem of shorter school terms, and unless the boys are occupied scouting will lapse and many of the boys will be brought face to face with influences which are not for their good.

Scouting has been one of the best methods to reduce crime, and this work should not be allowed to lapse at this time.

The scout executive has had a great reduction in salary, and if sufficient funds over the area can be raised he will take another large cut and continue the work. Otherwise the area office will have to be closed.

This is something the leaders in the various communities should consider, and means taken to keep this work going. We cannot afford to let the Scout work drop.

B.Y.P.U. to Hold Quarterly Meeting

The Portales B. Y. P. U. will be host to the district quarterly meeting next Sunday at the local Baptist church at 2 p. m.

A missionary program has been arranged and Rev. J. G. Chapman will speak on foreign missions while Rev. J. F. Nix of the First Baptist church of Clovis will speak on home missions. Several other prominent speakers are scheduled to appear on the program.

All churches in this association are urged to be represented at this meeting.

First Warm Days of Spring Arrive

Sunday and Monday were the first warm days of spring. The thermometer showed a maximum of 78 degrees Sunday and a maximum of 82 on Monday.

The minimum of the two days was 31 degrees above on Tuesday morning.

FARMERS HOLIDAY ASS'N MEETS AT COURT HOUSE

The Farmers Holiday association will meet at the court house next Saturday, April 1, to complete the county organization in this county. Each local is allowed three delegates to represent it. The meeting will be called to order at 11 a. m. the usual time.

Sixth Graders Take Declamation Contest

Charles Armstrong of the sixth grade B class and Orion Drake from the A class of that grade won the serious and humorous declamation contests which were held Thursday afternoon in the high school auditorium.

In the serious contest the second place went to Pauline Moore of the 4A, and in the humorous Joy Ruth Kennedy of the 5A took second.

The students participating in the serious declamation contest included: Charles Armstrong, Pauline Moore, Frieda Hamons, Viola Newberry, Geraldine Carter and Luther Tyson.

The five contestants giving humorous readings were Virginia Thomas, Joy Ruth Kennedy, Peggy Hill, Joe Grunig and Oran Drake. The pupils from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, with their teachers, came to the high school auditorium for the program.

Mrs. Josie Hamilton has been a guest in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bert Rawlins, for a few days, but now has returned to her home in Lovington.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Steiner are moving this week from the residence on Main street to the Mill Price house on Pine street recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. N. Stool and family.

Mrs. A. M. Smith came up from Roswell last Sunday and has been a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. King during the week. Mrs. Smith is the mother of Mrs. Lundgren at Roswell and came from her home in Michigan to visit in Roswell during the winter.

CHOIR IS ORGANIZED AT METHODIST CHURCH

The singers of the Methodist church have organized a choir and at the last rehearsal thirty-two singers were present.

Bert Rawlins was chosen president with Miss Ethel Orr as secretary and Mrs. A. W. Freeman as pianist.

All musicians of the church are invited to join the choir and assist with the musical worship of the services.

Plummer Ships Car of Cattle

Last Thursday night John Plummer and his son Chester Plummer shipped a car of fat cattle to the Kansas City stock yards.

The shipment was composed of yearling steers with an average weight of over 800 pounds each. There were thirty in the car. The largest one weighed a little over 1,200 pounds.

The steers had been kept on the Plummer ranch and fed since November. They were hauled to town to prevent the loss of weight.

Mr. Plummer says that he believes it is better to sell grain as fat stock than to give it away.

County Valuations Drop $1,396,944 Below Valuations of Previous Year

The following tabulations from the county assessor's office show that valuations for the year 1933 will fall short nearly a million and a half dollars of that of the previous year, 1932.

Total values, 1932	$8,530,654
Corporation values	1,570,091
Total values less corporate, 1932	$6,960,563
Total values less corporate, 1933	$5,564,619

Reductions by Co. Assessor: $1,396,944

This reduction in assessed valuations amounts to 20.95 per cent. While the corporate values are fixed by the state tax commission, a reduction in the valuations of the state will demand a reduction in valuations of one and a half million dollars.

The greatest sufferer from this condition is the schools.

The taxpayers have been hard hit owing to low values of farm products, live stock, etc., and even with this great reduction their tax problems are acute.

All of us are looking for considerable adjustment of conditions within the next few months, and the trend is for better prices for farm products and live stock.

With a business revival all over the nation these conditions will be relieved in a great measure.

LICENSE PLATES CAN BE BOUGHT FOR 1/4 YEAR

To those people who have been letting their cars stand in garages to keep from paying license penalties notice is given that they can get their license for one-fourth less now, since the first quarter of the year is gone.

Affidavits must be made that the cars have not been run in order to avoid penalty.

C. of C. to Employ Freight Rate Expert

Committees from the Portales Chamber of Commerce have been busy this week trying to raise the necessary funds to employ a rate expert to bring action before the Interstate Commerce Commission asking a reduction in freight rates on commodities going out of Portales.

To employ this expert will necessitate an expense of $800, and every business man is being given an opportunity to subscribe to the fund.

It is estimated that an adjustment of freight rates will mean a saving of more than $50,000 annually to the farmers of Roosevelt county.

E. T. Longacre, who has been in the Veterans' hospital at Albuquerque for the last month, returned home Tuesday of this week.

First Crop Loan Checks Arrive Here

The first of the 1933 crop loan checks arrived in Portales Saturday and was given to Roy G. Hanvey. There were three other checks delivered Saturday and five more were received and ready to be delivered Monday.

The average amount of the checks sent so far was $150. In most cases the amount was cut from the sum the farmers asked for, but none have been entirely rejected as yet.

The Portales office has handled 164 applications for loans so far this year.

Compares Poultry Prices Here With Northern Markets

In comparing the weekly market reports of Portales with that of a small place within a short distance of St. Louis and Chicago, it was found that Portales markets were just as good and in one or two instances it was 1/2 to 1c above.

The egg market, the only one that was higher than Portales, was paying 9c per dozen to 7c per dozen in Portales. The poultry market was above that of the eastern market. No price on cream was listed in the northern market.

Portales markets may not be so bad, as the above mentioned town is near enough to the big markets that it should be higher than the market here.

TELEPHONE OFFICIAL HERE

M. E. Bernet, advertising manager of the Mountain States Telephone company, was visiting the local telephone office in Portales Wednesday of this week.

Roosevelt County Breeders Have Many Fine Animals of Show Class

Last Saturday the News editor had the privilege of visiting the ranch of J. H. Jett in the Cloudcroft community and seeing many line-bred Hereford cattle.

Now for beauty there is nothing that equals a herd of pure-bred white-faced cattle, especially when they have been well cared for and are in reality of the show class.

Heading this herd of pure line-bred cattle is a 3,000 pound bull which cost $1,000. At this time this might seem a big price for a bull, but when you see the fine calves with weight and breeding, and when it is explained that it costs no more to feed such than it does the scrub, one can readily see where the profits come in.

This herd contains cows that cost as much as $500 when heifers, and their calves are pictures.

In fact, this herd has many animals that would command attention in the show ring. This herd is one of the best cared for and best fed herds in the county, and no herd contains a better strain of blood.

Three Cars Sweet Potatoes Shipped to Western Coast

Tuesday of this week three cars of choice Portales valley sweet potatoes were shipped to the California market.

Two of the cars will go to Los Angeles and the other will go to San Francisco. One car was shipped by Johnston & Bradley and the other two by Breshears & Son. Harold Franks accompanied the cars.

Portales Officers Arrest Waco Boy on Robbery Charge

Portales officers arrested a Waco man who gave his name as Billy Still, and is believed to be one of the burglars who entered the Osborn second hand store in Clovis, Still was in Portales Monday trying to sell some watches and guns. Three watches were sold to Portales people and the guns were taken to a second hand store where they were recognized as the property of the Clovis firm. Officers were notified and Still was arrested and turned over to Curry county authorities.

The money and a ticket were taken from Still and returned to the purchasers of the watches.

FLOYD

Ernest Shaffer, Tye Terrell, Harley Borden and Don C. Foster, vocational instructor, attended the Future Farmers of America Tri-state convention at Texas Tech on Monday, Mar. 27. There were 82 schools represented and 325 boys attended the meeting, Floyd being the only New Mexico chapter present. There were many interesting and valuable suggestions for F. F. A. work made. Frank E. Wimberly, state supervisor of vocational agriculture, came back to Clovis with the Floyd boys. National President Vernon Howell of Guyton, Okla., and Strib Stout of Stockdale, Tex., were present at the meeting. The F. F. There will be a meeting at Floyd Thursday night for the purpose of organizing a Farmers Holiday association. All people of the Floyd community are urged to be present for this meeting will be of great importance.

Some of the home economics pupils entering the national essay contest were Helen Cox, Tiny Jones, Leora Olson and Louise Hale. Helen Cox placed first in the elimination contest. Mrs. Foster sent the winning essay to compete in the national contest conducted by the Home Makers Educational service, Freeport, N. Y.

April 21 Is Date of District Track Meet

After conferring with the officials of the various schools in this district Friday, April 21, has been chosen as the date for the district track meet to be held here. This early date was selected because a number of the schools will close soon after that date.

There will be no entry fees nor admission charges for the event. The business men of Portales have donated the awards for the first, second and third places in thirteen events. While the United Dry Goods store and J. C. Penney will give the trophies for first and second places, Fields & Bonner will supply the award for the relay event.

MALCOLM HALL MOVES TO CARLSBAD, N. M.

Malcolm Hall has purchased a cleaning and pressing plant in Carlsbad and left Sunday to operate his new business in that city.

Mr. Hall has been in the cleaning and pressing business in Portales a number of years and also was manager of the Portales laundry until recently.

Kenneth Hall, a brother and partner of Hall Cleaners, will continue to operate the plant here.

Add Hobbs and family are enjoying a visit from his father, who arrived in Portales last week from Oklahoma and will visit here for the next several weeks.

Late Tuesday evening Roosevelt county received its first good soaking rain in the new year of 1933. The rain commenced about 4 p. m. and continued off and on until after 10 o'clock. Hail stones fell with the rain and some damage is reported over the Portales valley.

The city received 1.15 inches of rain, according to the government gauge. The Floyd community received a little more rain than fell in Portales, while in the southern part of the county only a light sprinkle fell.

NO AMOS 'N' ANDY PROGRAM TUESDAY

The lights in Portales went out about 9 o'clock last night, just after the radio listeners had tuned in on Amos 'n' Andy, and the power did not come on again until nearly 9:30, when the program was over. Radio fans had to wait until Wednesday night to catch up with the blackface comedians.

the rain, and the barn of J. M. Oakley in the Floyd community was blown down. No other damage from the wind has been reported.

A fire was reported in the southern part of the county near the county line. It is said a farmer's feed stacks and barn burned but no details of the fire could be learned.

The hail which accompanied the rain did some damage to the fruit trees and other small shrubs, but no great damage was reported because very little of the farm or truck crops are up enough to be injured.

The rain will prove of immense value to the farmers of the county in the preparation of land for the spring planting, and is splendid for all the grass land.

Floyd Farmers Up With Work

Paul Hagan was discussing the general farming conditions in the Floyd community Saturday. He said that the farmers as a rule had their work well in hand, and were as cheerful about the economic conditions as could be expected.

"There is a good underground season," he said. "The winds have not damaged the land to speak of so far. The stock is in good shape, taking the country over."

He seems to think that there will be a good acreage of cotton planted this year.

Missionary Society Presents Program

The Woman's Missionary society of the Baptist church will entertain the public with a program at the high school auditorium next Tuesday evening, April 4, beginning at 8 o'clock.

One portion of the evening will be devoted to a one act play presented by the students from the public speaking department of the Portales high school. This is a comedy entitled, "The Blue Teapot."

Jane Van Cleave carries the role of the Grandmas; Glynden Esley, Grandpa; John Redmon, Jimmie; Doris Doyal, Cynthia.

The women of the union also will present a humorous entertainment called "Crazy to Reduce."

The admission for the entire evening program will be only 10 cents. Some of the patients coming to Dr. Lefevreover to be made over are Sally Swayback, Ima Nutt, Sophie Cobb, Thelma Thump, Edeline Screech, Belladonna Wheeze, Belinda Beller, Griselda Schmitz, Mrs. Hemaway, Mrs. Tiny Waite, Mrs. Hummingbird, Naomi Nibble-nix, Mrs. Widemore Bunch, Leona and Fatima Lott and Mrs. Dubois Wellington Humphrey Vandoozen.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD CHURCH

James R. Cole, district manager of the gas company at Clovis, was in Portales Tuesday looking after business at the Portales office.

CORRECTION

It was stated in last week's Portales Valley News in the article relating to the sale of a horse that the case was settled by Judge Burke. Later it was found that the case was not settled by the justice of the peace, since the seller of the horse failed to refund the $5 to the purchaser. Whereupon a fight ensued.

So far no one has settled the case, but Principal L. L. Brown is going to try to get a peace treaty signed, or at least an armistice.

HEADS UP

The day was dark. There seemed no way out. But on Mar. 4 when President Roosevelt delivered his memorable inaugural address, the entire nation was inspired and confidence was restored.

America cannot fail. Its leaders of a century or more ago build well when they framed the constitution. The British yoke was thrown off and America became the leading nation of the world.

America cannot fail. Time and again leaders have arisen to meet the emergency. The Republican machine had turned the nation over to the money changers of Wall street. The humblest citizen of the land felt the choking hand.

The nation prayed for a leader. Roosevelt was elected by the greatest sweeping majority of any President. Immediately after the election last November he became busy studying the needs of every section of the nation.

He knows your condition. He has spoken, and congress has given him the greatest power of any past President.

The money changers were immediately kicked out of the temple. Finances were reorganized. Normal business is on its way, and before 1933 passes on into history the hungry will be earning their daily bread. The farmer will have found a market for his products. The small merchant will have dusted the cobwebs out of his windows and replenished his shelves with new goods. The public will again become buyers.

This is no time to join the calamity howlers.

Heads up, and forge ahead, if you would profit by the return of prosperity.

DO NOT THROW A WRENCH IN THE GEARS

The action of the American Federation of Labor in trying to hamper President Roosevelt's employment program is no more than throwing a monkey wrench in the gears of an automobile.

This plan works no hardship on labor, organized or otherwise. It is merely an emergency program to give relief to thousands who are now in the bread lines, and its supervision by the army only saves giving the greater profits to bosses and foremen.

The army already is on the pay roll and should be used for some constructive purpose.

The millions of unemployed in the congested centers are a menace to health, peace and prosperity. Camp life would improve the sanitary conditions under which they live.

The salary provided in this measure in addition to food and housing is more than any common laborer receives under private employers.

Labor will either have to aid in the recovery of the nation or they will wreck the nation. For the last few years, under the distribution of charity, we have been breeding a nation of beggars and providing hiding places for criminals.

Under the Roosevelt plan, the unemployed would be earning their way until conditions so adjust themselves that they can return to private employment.

PLANNING THE FARM PROGRAM

During the last three years the average farmer has become so discouraged that a constructive planning of the farm program has been neglected. At this time a study of the world's market conditions will be a help in planning such a program.

If there is a surplus of wheat, and the market shows that this surplus will keep the price down below the cost of production, then it would be wise to curtail the wheat acreage.

Cotton should be limited to a normal carry-over, so that the annual crop will not beat down the price below cost of production.

The best way to plan the farm program is to plant only such acreage as is necessary to meet the cash needs of the farmer, and then see that plenty of grain and other feedstuff is raised to take care of the farm livestock for at least two years.

Two years supply of feed is advised because, it will be recalled, in the past when bountiful crops have been produced the price was low, and should the following year be drouthy a shortage of grain and feed would develop and the farmer would have to ship in and pay a high price for that which he should have saved from the crops of the year before.

Every wise farmer produces as much of his living at home as possible and then turns the surplus into cash.

Feeding operations have increased in the last few years, and farmers find it is more profitable to market their grain via the feed lots than by long hauls to market.

A good poultry flock, a reasonable number of dairy cows and enough pigs to take care of the farm waste have proven profitable in the past, and will be profitable in the future.

Present prices are discouraging, but fortunate indeed is the farmer who has sufficient feed to take care of his farm needs until he sees whether another crop will be produced.

WE ARE TURNING THE CORNER

By MARK HAMILTON
Boston Financial News

In this banking crisis I believe we have come to the end of the depression which has held us in its grip for more than three years. From now forward things MUST get better. I view this dragging of the national and international problems into the light of day the greatest benefit we could possibly receive. It is darkest before dawn.

President Roosevelt's inspiring utterances and action indicates to me that we not only have a leader in the White House, but a man who recognizes that it is well to get the crisis in our national and international affairs over as soon as possible—that we may start rebuilding immediately.

Every national problem can be solved. Mr. Roosevelt faces those problems with courage and vigor. He is apparently determined that there shall be no more evasion, no more delay, no more putting off of the evil day.

His determination, his aggressiveness, and the harmony between himself and Congress is a beacon of hope for the American people.

Within a month I believe we shall be shown the way out. We shall be able to visualize the paths that lead to the return of prosperity. This is a great country, rich in resources, rich in brains, rich in purchasing power. These are indisputable facts. Our difficulties are those of maladjustment wholly. That maladjustment could not be solved by talk. It takes action—swift and concerted action. We are going to get it.

We are going to get such action as we have not seen in this country since the end of the World war. That action leads to the restoration of industry. It will set the wheels turning again. It will bring us out of the slough of depression.

I face the future with great confidence. I believe we are now turning the corner. I believe that the man who is a bull on America will make money fast—perhaps a fortune. I have been waiting for this situation for many months. I knew that it would have to come, that a climax in our national and international affairs was inevitable. That climax is here.

This is the beginning of what I believe will be one of the greatest periods of prosperity the country has ever seen.

DRY LAW REPEAL IS NOT ENOUGH

Unless all the signs are wrong, the prohibition amendment is on the way out.

And while this will be the cue for most of us to rejoice or to weep, depending on our individual attitudes, it would be a very fine thing if we sat down quietly, while there is still time, and figured out just what is going to come next.

We have set our faces toward repeal, apparently, and we have done it because the prohibition amendment hasn't worked out nearly as well as we expected it would.

In trying to abolish one set of abuses we saddled ourselves with a new set, and it begins to look as if we aren't going to put up with this new set very much longer. But while we're getting rid of them, we want to make perfectly sure that we don't revive the old set.

The old-time saloon wasn't a great deal like the speakeasy, but it created evils just as real as those which the speakeasy has created. It made a sore spot in the neighborhood which women actually feared to pass. It periodically disgorged frowzy drunks in such a way that it was unwise for women to appear unescorted on the streets at night. It was a festering breeding spot for rotten politics.

Now there is no sense in our forgetting those facts and pretending anything at all will be better than the present era of bootleggers, rum runners, crooked officials and shady speak-easies.

We ought to be intelligent enough to find a system that would do away with the evils of the present regime without restoring the evils of the past. We shan't do it if we try to kid ourselves into thinking that the evils of the past really didn't amount to much.

Finding the right solution is going to take a lot of earnest thinking. We had better start thinking right now; and, in the process, we want to remember the tinct sets of abuses to correct, and Tucumcari, N. M.

New Orleans, March 26.--(UP)--A trim little freighter, anonymous because the captain and Navy censors want it that way, rammed and sank a Nazi submarine when the ship's crew was unwilling to be torpedoed without doing anything about it, Navy officials said today.

The ship, without guns, armor plate or any other offensive or defensive equipment, turned suddenly on the U-boat and sank it without question, the captain said.

The submarine, believing itself safe, had surfaced and fired a torpedo at the looming hulk of the ship. It was night and the captain said it was sheer luck that the salvo missed.

The second torpedo missed because the crew manned the decks and helped swing the little ship around suddenly in a sharp maneuver that carried it directly at the submarine.

The submarine, expecting an easy victory, was unprepared and could not escape. She did not crash dive, indicating that the hatches were open in preparation to shelling.

The action took place early this year less than 100 miles from Colon at the Atlantic entrance to the Panama canal, but news of it did not leak out until today. The ship put in dry dock here for repairs to her bow.

The freighter, spurting forward under full speed, struck the

HEADS UP

The day was dark. There seemed no way out. But on Mar. 4 when President Roosevelt delivered his memorable inaugural address, the entire nation was inspired and confidence was restored.

America cannot fail. Its leaders of a century or more ago builded well when they framed the constitution. The British yoke was thrown off and America became the leading nation of the world.

America cannot fail. Time and again leaders have arisen to meet the emergency. The Republican machine had turned the nation over to the money changers of Wall street. The humblest citizen of the land felt the choking hand.

The nation prayed for a leader. Roosevelt was elected by the greatest sweeping majority of any President. Immediately after the election last November he became busy studying the needs of every section of the nation.

He knows your condition. He has spoken, and congress has given him the greatest power of any past President.

The money changers were immediately kicked out of the temple. Finances were reorganized. Normal business is on its way, and before 1933 passes on into history the hungry will be earning their daily bread. The farmer will have found a market for his products. The small merchant will have dusted the cobwebs out of his windows and replenished his shelves with new goods. The public will again become buyers.

This is no time to join the calamity howlers.

Heads up, and forge ahead, if you would profit by the return of prosperity.

DO NOT THROW A WRENCH IN THE GEARS

The action of the American Federation of Labor in trying to hamper President Roosevelt's employment program is no more than throwing a monkey wrench in the gears of an automobile.

This plan works no hardship on labor, organized or otherwise. It is merely an emergency program to give relief to thousands who are now in the bread lines, and its supervision by the army only saves giving the greater profits to bosses and foremen.

The army already is on the pay roll and should be used for some constructive purpose.

The millions of unemployed in the congested centers are a menace to health, peace and prosperity. Camp life would improve the sanitary conditions under which they live.

The salary provided in this measure in addition to food and housing is more than any common laborer receives under private employers.

Labor will either have to aid in the recovery of the nation or they will wreck the nation. For the last few years, under the distribution of charity, we have been breeding a nation of beggars and providing hiding places for criminals.

Under the Roosevelt plan, the unemployed would be earning their way until conditions so adjust themselves that they can return to private employment.

PLANNING THE FARM PROGRAM

During the last three years the average farmer has become so discouraged that a constructive planning of the farm program has been neglected. At this time a study of the world's market conditions will be a help in planning such a program.

If there is a surplus of wheat, and the market shows that this surplus will keep the price down below the cost of production, then it would be wise to curtail the wheat acreage.

Cotton should be limited to a normal carry-over, so that the annual crop will not beat down the price below cost of production.

The best way to plan the farm program is to plant only such acreage as is necessary to meet the cash needs of the farmer, and then see that plenty of grain and other feedstuff is raised to take care of the farm livestock for at least two years.

Two years supply of feed is advised because, it will be recalled, in the past when bountiful crops have been produced the price was low, and should the following year be drouthy a shortage of grain and feed would develop and the farmer would have to ship in and pay a high price for that which he should have saved from the crops of the year before.

Every wise farmer produces as much of his living at home as possible and then turns the surplus into cash.

Feeding operations have increased in the last few years, and farmers find it is more profitable to market their grain via the feed lots than by long hauls to market.

A good poultry flock, a reasonable number of dairy cows and enough pigs to take care of the farm waste have proven profitable in the past, and will be profitable in the future.

Present prices are discouraging, but fortunate indeed is the farmer who has sufficient feed to take care of his farm needs until he sees whether another crop will be produced.

WE ARE TURNING THE CORNER

By MARK HAMILTON
Boston Financial News

In this banking crisis I believe we have come to the end of the depression which has held us in its grip for more than three years. From now forward things MUST get better.

I view this dragging of the national and international problems into the light of day the greatest benefit we could possibly receive. It is darkest before dawn.

President Roosevelt's inspiring utterances and action indicates to me that we not only have a leader in the White House, but a man who recognizes that it is well to get the crisis in our national and international affairs over as soon as possible—that we may start rebuilding immediately.

Every national problem can be solved. Mr. Roosevelt faces those problems with courage and vigor. He is apparently determined that there shall be no more evasion, no more delay, no more putting off of the evil day.

His determination, his aggressiveness, and the harmony between himself and Congress is a beacon of hope for the American people.

Within a month I believe we shall be shown the way out. We shall be able to visualize the paths that lead to the return of prosperity. This is a great country, rich in resources, rich in brains, rich in purchasing power. These are indisputable facts. Our difficulties are those of maladjustment wholly. That maladjustment could not be solved by talk. It takes action—swift and concerted action. We are going to get it.

We are going to get such action as we have not seen in this country since the end of the World war. That action leads to the restoration of industry. It will set the wheels turning again. It will bring us out of the slough of depression.

I face the future with great confidence. I believe we are now turning the corner. I believe that the man who is a bull on America will make money fast—perhaps a fortune. I have been waiting for this situation for many months. I knew that it would have to come, that a climax in our national and international affairs was inevitable. That climax is here.

This is the beginning of what I believe will be one of the greatest periods of prosperity the country has ever seen.

DRY LAW REPEAL IS NOT ENOUGH

Unless all the signs are wrong, the prohibition amendment is on the way out.

And while this will be the cue for most of us to rejoice or to weep, depending on our individual attitudes, it would be a very fine thing if we sat down quietly, while there is still time, and figured out just what is going to come next.

We have set our faces toward repeal, apparently, and we have done it because the prohibition amendment hasn't worked out nearly as well as we expected it would.

In trying to abolish one set of abuses we saddled ourselves with a new set, and it begins to look as if we aren't going to put up with this new set very much longer. But while we're getting rid of them, we want to make perfectly sure that we don't revive the old set.

The old-time saloon wasn't a great deal like the speakeasy, but it created evils just as real as those which the speakeasy has created. It made a sore spot in the neighborhood which women actually feared to pass. It periodically disgorged frowzy drunks in such a way that it was unwise for women to appear unescorted on the streets at night. It was a festering breeding spot for rotten politics.

Now there is no sense in our forgetting those facts and pretending anything at all will be better than the present era of bootleggers, rum runners, crooked officials and shady speak-easies.

We ought to be intelligent enough to find a system that would do away with the evils of the present regime without restoring the evils of the past. We shan't do it if we try to kid ourselves into thinking that the evils of the past really didn't amount to much.

Finding the right solution is going to take a lot of earnest thinking. We had better start thinking right now; and, in the process, we want to remember that we have two entirely distinct sets of abuses to correct, and not just one.—Daily News, Tucumcari, N. M.

FARM FORECLOSURES

It is to be hoped that some feasible plan may be devised to halt the run of foreclosures on farm lands. While it is true that a foreclosure may be a blessing in disguise to many a farmer who is burdened with a debt that he never would be able to pay, enabling him to make a fresh start without the millstone of debt around his neck, it is inevitable that wholesale foreclosures will result in widespread discontent and bitterness, if not actual violence.

The home farm, built up by a lifetime of toil and thrift, is not willingly turned over to creditors. The man in whose very being is bred a love for the land regards the farm as more than a piece of property. It represents the goal of his material ambitions, and perhaps his dreams for his children. To eject him, and thousands of his fellows, from the farm threatens to create a problem of dangerous import.—The Independent, Northfield, Minn.

SALT OF THE EARTH

No truer words were ever spoken than these once said by former Gov. John M. Slaton of Georgia: "No country ever lasts long without a country people. They afford the strength of the church; they maintain the sacredness of the family tie; they supply the reverence for eternal principles not to be found in congested communities. They think for themselves and no temporary fad sweeps them from the lasting paths of truth. From them comes the strong fresh blood that dominates and enriches commerce, industry and the professions.—Donley County Leader, Clarendon, Tex.

How Doctors Treat Colds and Coughs

To break up a cold overnight and relieve the congestion that makes you cough, thousands of physicians are now recommending Calotabs, the nauseless calomel compound tablets that give you the effects of calomel and salts without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of sweet milk or water. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish—no danger.

Calotabs are sold in 10c and 35c packages at drug stores. (adv)

C. A. Warner of Floyd community has his land listed and ready to plant. He is not certain just what he will plant this year. The season of the spring will have some influence on what he plants.

The SILVER FLUTE

By Lida Larrimore
W. N. U. SERVICE

What would she have said, he wondered, if he had put the ring on her other hand? He had wanted to but he had been afraid. She looked so young in that yellow jersey with the ribbon around her hair. Did she understand that he loved her, as a man loves a woman, that he wanted to share the adventure of her life? There were times when she seemed grown up. But this morning, under the willows, except for a moment, her eyes had been younger than Gay's. Better wait. But suppose he should lose her. Some one would always be falling in love with Barbara. He was leaving tomorrow.

Barbara, silent now, watched the trees running past. What was Bruce thinking? He was so quiet, looking straight ahead. Was he, too, feeling sad, in spite of being so happy? He seemed to have forgotten her. She had only imagined that, under the willows, he had looked at her in a different sort of way. She felt, all at once, very small and lost and forlorn.

But the feeling vanished when they scrambled down the steep drop of slipping sand to the beach. She couldn't feel forlorn. It was such a beautiful day.

They raced down the wide white beach. They played with a beach ball and invented a brand new game. It was fun to shout and sing and make a lot of noise. There was no one to hear them. They were alone in a world of sand and sunshine, a blue and golden world, sand, sunshine and ocean and sky.

They Were Alone in a World of Sand and Sunshine.

They opened the basket of lunch and gobbled like greedy children. Everything tasted so good. And there was a surprise in the bottom of the basket—maple candy stuffed with hickory nuts. Martha had bothered to make it. Wasn't Martha a dear?

When they couldn't hold another crumb, they stretched out on the blanket. Bruce lit a cigarette and blew smoke rings, one inside the other. Barbara admired them. She admired Bruce. He was so good looking, his golden brown tan, his eyes that were as deeply blue as the sky on a frosty night. It was fun to be with him, lying there, drowsy and warm, washed with waves of sunlight.

Bruce propped himself on his elbow to see her more distinctly. She lay, curled like a kitten, her eyes half closed, her head pillowed on her arm. Tenderness swelled in his heart.

"Barbie," he said gently.

"Hm?"

"Barbie . . . I'm leaving tomorrow."

The humming ceased. Her brown eyes opened wide.

"Leaving, Bruce?"

"Going back to New York."

Barbara turned her head. She didn't want Bruce to see her face. She knew she was going to cry.

It was strange, she thought, that she should want to cry about Bruce. Last year and the year before he was just one of the young artists who came, in the summer, to Provincetown and were always stopping in at the house to talk to Father and look at his paintings and drink his wild-cherry wine. Only Bruce was nicer looking than any of the others, more friendly and amusing. Father liked him especially. The children liked him, too. And she had liked him—the way she liked old Itamon the shoemaker and Mame who took her sailing and all of her Provincetown friends.

"Barbie! Look at me, Barbie."

She couldn't look at him then. She looked, instead, at a puff of cloud sailing across the sky. This summer it had been different. From the very first, she decided. It was the way Bruce had looked at her the day he came back to Provincetown that June. "You're growing up, Barbie," Bruce had said and somehow the look in his smiling blue eyes had made her feel happy and shy.

"Barbie, dear . . ."

His voice sounded sorry about something. Maybe Bruce had guessed and was sorry because she loved him so much. Her heart turned over with the surprise of a discovery. Why, she loved Bruce, not as she loved Father and the children, but in another way. That was why it had been different this summer. That was why she wanted to cry, sometimes, and was always imagining things. Bruce had guessed. He was sorry because she loved him so much.

"Barbie," he said again. "I'm leaving tomorrow. I'm going back to New York."

She felt so miserable she wanted to die. But Bruce mustn't be sorry for her. She swallowed past a sudden lump in her throat and made her voice sound gay.

"Well," she said, not looking at him. "I hope you'll have a nice trip."

Bruce heard her voice, gay and blithely unconcerned. A shadow slipped across his face. He couldn't see that her lashes were wet with tears.

The sky had clouded over. The wind was rising.

"It's going to storm," Bruce said. "We'd better turn back."

"Where did it come from?" Barbara asked. "It's been a beautiful day."

"There was a red sky this morning." They had turned and were walking rapidly. The wind rose higher, blowing the sand, frothing the waves with white-caps.

Red sky at morning, Sailors take warning, Barbara sang, exhilarated by the wind. "That isn't good poetry, is it, Bruce?"

"Better save your breath," he advised.

He took her hand and they tried to run. The wind pushed them back. The blowing sand stung their eyes. The waves made a crashing sound, pounding against the shore.

"Bruce!" Barbara cried, clinging fast to his hand. "I can't move! I can't keep my feet on the ground!"

"Try," he shouted, bending his head so she could hear. "If we can make that shack—"

They had noticed it as they walked up the beach, a shack made of planks and branches hastily nailed together, set in a sheltered curve of the sand bank. Children had built it, they thought. They had smiled at it as they walked up the beach. Now it seemed a safe haven, a refuge from the storm. They made it after a struggle, dropped, breathless and panting, on the sand beneath the flimsy roof of pine branches.

"It was a refuge of sorts. In the sheltered curve of the sand bank they were protected from the fury of the wind. They waited for the rain."

"No rain?" Barbara asked, after an interval.

"It's a wind storm," Bruce answered. "Are you cold?"

"Sort of."

"Wish we had the blankets. Come here. There! That's better, isn't it?"

It was lovely, she thought, to have Bruce hold her close, to feel through the soft flannel shirt the comforting warmth of his body. The wind shook the flimsy roof.

"It's like the storm Manuel tells about," Barbara's voice was tinged with awe. "You remember, Bruce—when seventeen men were drowned. That storm came on a beautiful day."

Thinking of Manuel's story made her suddenly afraid. Why? She didn't know. It was like something seen through a fog, a dim white ghost of fear. She shivered and pressed closer to Bruce.

"Frightened?" he asked, conscious of the shiver.

She nodded, seeing it still, the dim white ghost of fear.

"I don't know. Sing to me, Bruce."

"I'll tell you a story instead."

"That will be nice." She nestled against him, sighed. "A happy story, please."

Child, Bruce thought, feeling still the hurt of her unconcerned, "I hope you'll have a nice trip." He saw her fingers curling around his hand and all other emotions were

TUESDAY EVENING BRIDGE

Members of the Tuesday Evening Bridge club gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Batton this week for dinner and an evening of cards. Dinner was served about 7:30 o'clock and was delightfully informal, with the diners seated at three quartet tables.

Miss Kate McManaway and Mrs. Rusa Smith substituted for two of the players who were unable to be present. Mrs. A. M. Smith, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. King, was a guest of the evening, but did not join in the card games after dinner.

No prizes were given for scores. The party consisted of Judge and Mrs. T. E. Mears, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rawlins, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. King, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Batton, Mrs. Ed J. Neer, Mrs. A. M. Smith, Mrs. J. C. Compton, Miss Kate McManaway and Mrs. Rusa Smith.

OUTDOOR BOYS

Harold Brasell, with the assistance of his mother, Mrs. Dora Brasell, entertained the members of the Outdoor Boys' club last Thursday evening.

The lawn at the home of Mrs. Brasell was well lighted for the games and contests which had been prepared by Alfred Powell, sponsor for the boys.

All these were directed out in the yard and at the same time Mrs. Brasell was preparing a delicious and bountiful supper which was announced later and came as a surprise to the guests.

JUNIOR HI BRIDGE

The girls of the Junior Hi Bridge club were entertained last Friday afternoon by Otis Belle Lovorn.

REBEKAHS TO CLOVIS

There were ten members of the Portales Rebekah lodge who drove to Clovis Tuesday evening for a joint meeting of several lodges. The Hereford drill team had expected to be in Clovis to give the work, but was kept at home on account of the rain.

The Portales members going to Clovis were Mesdames Harry Cissell, Preston Williams, C. C. Pendley, Homer Barnett, Bertha Dittfurth, Miss Fay Walker, Miss Elzora Valmore, Miss Ruth Jean, Miss Nadine Morris, Ed J. Neer and Alvin Kiker.

GIRL SCOUT BANQUET

The Portales Girl Scouts celebrated the twenty-first anniversary of the organization last Tuesday evening with a banquet at the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The birthday cake, with trimmings of green and white, held twenty-one candles representing the years the organization has functioned in America.

The tables were suggestive of Easter time in the decorations, with nests of bright colored eggs serving as centerpieces in the three long tables arranged for the banquet.

Fluffy yellow chickens were the individual favors. These were standing upon the place cards.

The three troop advisors, Mrs. Carl Case, Mrs. C. J. Whitcomb and Mrs. E. E. Neer, assisted the girls with the preparation of the splendid banquet. The serving was done by the members of the youngest Girl Scout troop, Miss Elsie Parnell was announcer and introduced the speakers of the evening, as well as announcing the other program numbers.

The program opened with the several troops singing the prayer song. Marie Neer gave a review of the life of Mrs. Juliette Lowe, organizer of the Girl Scout organization. Mrs. Lowe had come to America with her husband from their home in England interested in advancing the Boy Scout work which their friend, Sir Baden Powell, had started in their homeland.

While Mr. Lowe worked with the boys his wife became interested in a like organization for girls and in March, 1912, the national organization of American Girl Scouts was perfected. "The headquarters remained at Mrs. Lowe's home city of Atlanta, Ga., until after her death, when it was changed to Washington, D. C."

Vivian Case was the second speaker and told of the work which has been done in Portales during the two years since the formation of the local troops. She reviewed the scout pledges in which the girls promise their lives shall be ones of honor, ability, service and consideration. Miss Case told of the work of the local captain and lieutenant, Miss Loreta McCarty and Miss Virginia Kessler, who assisted with the Portales organization and have continued with the work.

Miss Frances Estelle Bryant gave an interesting account of the vacation trips to the Mary White camp in the Sacramento mountains each summer. Here the girls are under able instructors and their recreation dates as well as industrial hours are under the guidance of leaders of ability. Crafts of various kinds are taught the girls during the camping period. Many of the scout songs were given during the course of the program, which was closed with the scout members forming a circle and giving the organization benediction.

The visitors of the evening included Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Olden, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Steiner, Mayor J. N. McCall, Mrs. W. H. Catt and Mrs. James Christie.

Eastern New Mexico & West Texas Ready For the Decentralization of Business

The people of this country learned from their recent experiences, which made it necessary to declare a nationwide bank holiday, that it is a waste of time to discuss the merits and demerits of the unit bank, the branch bank, the group bank, the big bank and the little bank. As a result of the events of the last few weeks the public knows that the big bank and the so-called liquid bank is in the same class as the frozen asset bank when the people generally decide to keep their own money and start a run on the banks. Neither the size of the bank nor diversification of investment, nor the two combined, can keep the banks open when millions of depositors decide to keep their own money. The nationwide bank holiday has made both the banker and the depositor realize that the policy of the bankers in the past with respect to saying to the public that a depositor, who as a rule never deposited anything but checks, could get the amount of his deposit in currency on demand, is all wrong. The bank holiday has made both the banker and the depositor realize that money is intended to be used solely as a medium of exchange and as such must not under any circumstances be hoarded. The public fully realizes today that all banking, like all business transactions, must be bottomed wholly upon the confidence of the public in the soundness of the banking system and business methods.

Banks Sound

According to the best information available at this time, out of approximately 6,891 Federal Reserve Member banks in the United States, 5,342 were re-opened prior to March 25th, or about 77 per cent.

In Texas there are approximately 529 Federal Reserve Member banks, and 516 opened prior to March 25th, or about 95 per cent, which was 18 per cent higher than the general average of the Federal Reserve Member banks in the United States.

There were approximately 12,432 non-member banks operating in the United States before the bank holiday and approximately 10,570 re-opened prior to March 25th, or about 85 per cent, although some of the non-member banks were under restrictions. While in Texas there were approximately 535 non-member banks and 534 were re-opened, although some were under restrictions, prior to March 25th, or approximately 100 per cent.

In towns supplied by the Plains division of the Texas Utilities Company with electric service, out of 18 Federal Reserve Member banks 18 have re-opened, or 100 per cent.

In the Plains division of the Texas Utilities Company there were 23 non-member banks operating before the bank holiday and 21 re-opened prior to March 21st, 16 without restrictions and 5 under certain restrictions. The two banks which have not re-opened will, according to reports at this date, be re-opened within the next few days.

In the towns supplied with electric service by the Southwestern Public Service Company, located in the Panhandle of West Texas, out of 7 Federal Reserve Member banks 6 have been re-opened. There were 7 non-member banks operated in the territory supplied with electric service by the Southwestern Public Service Company before the bank holiday and 7 have re-opened, or 100 per cent.

Out of 6 Federal Reserve Member banks and 2 non-member banks operated in towns supplied with electric service by New Mexico Utilities Company in Curry and Roosevelt counties, New Mexico, and by Southwestern Public Service Company in Chaves and Eddy counties, New Mexico, 7 have been re-opened.

According to the most reliable information obtainable the banks operated in Eastern New Mexico and West Texas, above referred to, have all shown substantial increases in deposits since the bank holiday. The average increase in deposits since the holiday in the above banks is conservatively estimated to be approximately 5 per cent.

The above comparison of the banking conditions in the towns in Eastern New Mexico supplied with electric service by New Mexico Utilities Company and Southwestern Public Service Company, and in the towns located in West Texas supplied with electric service by Southwestern Public Service Company and Texas Utilities Company, clearly shows that the banking and business conditions in Eastern New Mexico and West Texas are as sound as can be found in any section in the United States.

The World Is in the Throes of a New Birth

We hear on every hand the statement that, "The world today is in the throes of a new birth." The economist, the statesman, and the business man in every walk of life is occupied in studying and discussing the several factors that can be identified as those most likely to determine the character of the change that is going to take place. It is generally conceded that the trend toward decentralization in our business structure is by far the most important factor.

Decentralization Made Possible by Development and Use of Electric Power

According to the economist, "The use of electric energy is about to reverse in certain fundamental respects this whole century of evolution toward centralization and concentration." All congested centers are suffering from the movement, which is now worldwide, to abandon the large city as a manufacturing center. The modern factory, in the opinion of the present day economist, will move as rapidly as possible, under existing conditions, from the large cities to the smaller communities where an adequate and dependable supply of high-line electric power can be made available for manufacturing purposes at reasonable rates.

Eastern New Mexico and West Texas Ready for the Change

Eastern New Mexico and West Texas offer the finest agricultural opportunities, the best transportation facilities, and the most advantageous power service to the modern factory seeking a new location, in order to meet changing conditions, which can be found in the United States. The above analysis of the banking conditions of the country discloses the fact that the banks of Eastern New Mexico and West Texas are as sound as the banks in any section of the United States and that Eastern New Mexico and West Texas banks are today in a position to provide adequate banking facilities to meet all the requirements necessary to take care of the development of the territory.

Confidence and Courage Are Chief Assets

Confidence, courage and co-operation are far more important during the troublous period of readjustment through which the country is now passing than all of the gold and other tangible assets in this country. The hope of Eastern New Mexico and West Texas today is the courage of the citizenship of this territory to DO, and the willingness to take it on the chin whenever necessary, to make sacrifices for the general welfare. No outside forces can arrest the development of Eastern New Mexico and West Texas as long as the spirit of the people of this territory to DO lives.

Sees Lots of Rain on California Trip

By MRS. J. D. CYPHERS

In the latter part of January I left for California. I rode over two thousand miles through different types of country—deserts, valleys, plains and mountains. I passed over the scene of the tragic disaster of Tehachapi pass. How much snow there was! Scarcely any bare ground until I arrived at Bakerfield. Nothing much aroused my attention from there until I approached San Francisco. At the bay I left the train and took a huge ferry boat that was loaded to capacity with trucks, busses, autos and pedestrians. As I stood on the deck trying to get my bearings and locate the lights of the city, I could see nothing but water below and water above. The rain was coming down in sheets. I never saw so much water in my life. It certainly was a change for a dry-land resident. After awhile we arrived at the ferry building and there the whole universe had turned out to meet us, it seemed. People from all parts of the globe and all walks of life rushing here and there.

How glad I was to see my nephew and to get into an automobile again. Soon we crossed the bay near the place where the famous Golden Gate bridge is now under construction. Here we started on a 112 mile ride by motor through more water, as it was raining with more determination than ever. I never knew one road could have so many turns, but was to find one worse later.

At last we reached Ukiah in the dead of night and still it was raining. I was greeted royally by my nephews and their young wives and their friends at the Baptist church. Here later I was to hear a wonderful pipe organ recital which thrilled me beyond words.

The next day they took me out again to show me more water, as it was still raining and was to continue for two weeks day and night. There is a beautiful part to the rain—there is no wind, lightning or thunder. The sun comes out the instant the rain stops and shines so friendly and feels so close to you.

Now about Ukiah (it certainly is on the map). Ukiah, an Indian name meaning deep valley. It is a beautiful little city completely surrounded by green hills. Ukiah was first settled by the Pomo tribe of Indians and visited by the first white people in 1835, when Capt. Vallejo came. He was followed by white settlers in 1848. The elevation is 610 feet above sea level and has a population of 3,900 people. The main crops are grapes, pears and hops. The city is very busy and prosperous, and has a railroad and airport.

Any direction you look you see vineyards dotted on the hills that are so steep that you have to wind around and around to climb to their summits. In the valleys you see pear orchards and nut vineyards. The hills are covered with beautiful trees and bushes which are ever green and colorful. There you find different varieties of oak, manzanita, madonna, dogwood, pepperwood and poison oak, which means that nature study is done from a car.

Ukiah is the gateway to the redwood empire and is on the famous Fern Redwood highway. Here is the International observatory—one of the four in the world. Ukiah also is the county seat of Mendocino county—a county which is twice the size of the state of Delaware. There are several institutions here, beautiful schools, hospitals and an orphan's home, together with many churches.

The people are very friendly and as I walked into the Baptist church the people greeted me so lovingly that I could not help but feel that my departed sister had left a host of wonderful friends. How kind everyone was to me! I did not have time to get homesick.

One of the interesting things I saw was the State Fish hatchery, where steelhead and Atlantic salmon are hatched for planting in the streams of the state.

Another interesting trip was to the beautiful lake country a few miles east of Ukiah on the Ukiah-Clear Lake Tahoe highway. Here we saw small lakes, large lakes and all sorts of lakes that are surrounded by beautiful hills and scenery. Clear lake is the largest body of water in the state. One lake and pond called Liverna became so closely resembles the Lucerne in Europe. A wonderful highway skirts the shores for thirty-five miles and is a drive you can never forget. You see the fashionable hotels and resorts that are crowded during the summer by people from everywhere. Here they have boat races and water sports every year. Many millionaire homes are near these lakes among the beautiful hills.

At the Fern Redwood park. Here are some of the largest redwood trees in existence—the oldest living things in the world. Many of them were growing before the coming of the Savior. As I looked at them I had to wonder at the handiwork of God. It is practically impossible to describe or express your feelings as you gaze at those old giants towering up there so majestically for three hundred feet into the air.

Then to the El river dam, where they have the steelhead spawning station. Here I saw my first fish ladder and the fish going over it. Just imagine my punishment at seeing those fish over three feet long and not being allowed to even throw in a hook! Here at this dam a tunnel was bored through the hills and connected with Russian river in order to make irrigation possible in the valleys below.

Last but not least, the wonderful trip to the coast near the city of Mendocino.

At 5 o'clock we were off. Sunday morning the party of three started on the way to the Pacific ocean. I thought I had seen crooked, winding roads on my way to Ukiah, but this one over those mountains surpassed them all for narrow turns.

For miles we soared among the stars, and then at last we were down again to sea level. By air we live only thirty miles but by road it is almost three times as far because of the mountains. After we had crossed the summit we wound down into a valley and came to a lovely little river that we followed. It led us through groves of huge ferns higher than an average person and by wonderful redwoods. The valley grew more narrow as we drove along and then we climbed a long hill and, as we topped the last rise, there below us was the great Pacific ocean. I can not describe my feelings as I gazed at that wild mass of waves. How rough it was! As far as the eye could see it was boiling up with white caps. Then I realized that all the water I had been seeing in the form of rain was nothing at all.

Every place we went the people told us it was the wildest they had ever seen it. We learned that the earthquake was probably the reason for the waves.

The fishing boats could not go out for fear of being dashed to pieces. How I loved to watch those waves as they thundered up against those rock cliffs. How powerful and mighty the force behind them! Hour after hour I spent by the sea, under its spell. One of the dreams of my life was realized as I watched the sun set behind the ocean and turn it to different colors as it sank farther and farther toward the horizon. How much larger it looked as the sun was sinking—it seemed as if the scope of vision was doubled by the slanting rays shooting out in every direction. How little man is compared to the force and power of that great god!

As I watched the scenes of the Bible trouped up in my mind. How the Lord had calmed those roaring waves with a few words. How Peter, when walking on the water, lost faith when he took his eyes off the Savior and looked at the waves. We talked of the many stories that belonged to the sea that night and listened to the boom and roar 'til we went to sleep with its sound ringing in our ears.

Morning found us up drinking in the sunrise and still the old ocean was wild. We were unable to fish from the rocks as the waves were washing over them. Even the spray came up over the cliffs we were on, a hundred feet above the sea. We watched three badly tossed ships through our glasses way out at sea. Time passed too quickly, but at last I had to leave the cliff where I had sat for hours dressed like an Arctic explorer. All things must end, as did our lovely trip.

After all these thrills I was treated to a big dose of poison oak, which I gladly accept, as the trip was certainly worth it all.

Now that I have heard of the tragic earthquake at Long Beach I have a great desire to go home and be with my friends and relatives in New Mexico, and I will be homeward bound very shortly.

THANKS

Not seeing any resolutions of thanks from the New Mexico Farm Holiday association in any of the papers, I suppose in the rush of business and entertainment and the confusion of organizing the matter was overlooked; therefore I take this means of expressing the thanks of the association to the Portales city school board and F. D. Golden, superintendent, for the use of the high school auditorium, and to the editor of the Portales Valley News for the faithful manner in which the meetings in general and the speech of Mr. Reno in particular were reported in his paper.

I am sure I voice the sentiments of the entire state membership when I say we sincerely appreciate these courtesies.—J. Whitfield Taylor, secretary New Mexico Farm Holiday association.

USE CANNED FOOD IN VARIOUS WAYS

Unexpected guests dropping in to dinner do not worry the housewife who has a plentiful supply of canned food in her larder, says Veda Strong of New Mexico State college.

Well balanced meals may be served at a moment's notice with very little effort now that the average home has everything from soup to dessert in cans or jars ready to use in an emergency.

In summer and fall when a supply of fresh fruits or vegetables are available a supply should be canned for future use. Meat should be canned during fall and early winter for use during the warm months when a fresh supply cannot be kept for any length of time.

Vegetables, whether fresh or canned, are important in the diet. The year excellent sources of minerals and vitamins. They contain cellulose, which aids in the elimination of waste from the body. Canned fruits likewise are valuable in the diet for some vitamin C content, also for their acid which gives them laxative properties.

Canned vegetables may be prepared in almost as many ways as fresh ones. To keep the family responding enthusiastically to the use of more vegetables they must be prepared and served in different ways so that they will be attractive and palatable.

Canned vegetables may be served with just seasoning and butter, with cream sauce, scalloped, in soups, in combination salad, or in many other ways.

Canned fruits may be used as they come from the jar or can, but delicious variations may be made by combining them with gelatin, whipped cream or stiffly beaten egg whites for whips and puddings.

The supply of canned meat should include roast, steak, meat loaf, stew and soup, which will insure variety in the meals from day to day. The stew meat may be combined with vegetables and made into a meat pie or used as it comes from the can.

GLADYS TOLLETT FLETCHER

Gladys Tollett Fletcher was born Nov. 25, 1910, at Tazewell, N. M., where she spent her childhood days. At the age of 17 years she was united in marriage to Dee Fletcher, on Jan. 25, 1927. Ever since then the greater portion of her life has been spent in this community.

Her love for Christ dated back past her memory, and at an early age she joined the Methodist church, in which she has ever been a consecrated worker for God. The influence of her quiet, Christ-like life was felt by every one she met until her death on Mar. 24, 1933.

Faith must lead—where human minds reach their limitations of understanding God's will in taking a character like that of Gladys from our midst. Yet God's will was her will. She shed no tear at thought of leaving her 24-day-old baby Katherine to her husband's care, saying she would be in Heaven with Jesus, waiting the coming of her loved ones.

Besides her husband and baby, she leaves to mourn her loss a father and mother, three sisters and one brother, an aged grandfather, other relatives, and a host of friends.

God has called her from this earth. She'll be with us no more.

She is singing with the angels On Heaven's golden shore.

She was a true and faithful wife.

A tender, loving daughter;

Nagging Pains are

Warning Signals

TEMPORARY pain relief remedies may save you much suffering at the moment, but putting a mask over a warning signal does not clear up the condition it was telling you to avoid.

When periodic pains, due to a weak, run-down condition, distress you, treatment for the cause of the trouble should be started without delay. Take Cardui to build up against the nagging symptoms of ordinary womanly ailments. So many women praise CARDUI, it must be good to have the widespread use that it has today. Sold at drug stores. Try it!

There is no one to take her place. No, there is none other.

She lived a life above reproach.

As sister, wife and friend;

Sweet smiles she had for everyone.

Was faithful to the end.

She did not fear at all to die.

The thought of death was sweet;

She knew that Jesus would be near.

To lead her on the golden street.

Dear ones, do not weep not;

She is where there is no pain;

Weeping, sadness, sorrow, anguish,

She will never know again.

Sweetest peace is ever with her;

She is resting now above;

In the arms of blessed Jesus,

In the sunlight of His love.

There on flowery hills of pleasure

In the fields of endless love

She'll be waiting for our coming

To that happy home above.

Members of the Home Art club were invited to the home of Mrs. J. M. Sanders last Thursday for an all day meeting. Several extra friends were invited to join in the pleasures of the day and at noon the husbands were asked to be the special guests at the midday meal. Each of the women took a covered dish of food and this comprised the bountiful meal served at noon.

Because It's Better...

By HENRY T. EWALD
President, Campbell-Ewald Company, Detroit

Merchandise is advertised because it is better—also, it is better because it is advertised.

That is neither a paradox, nor a wise-crack. It is a truism.

The influence of advertising is two-fold. It reaches out into the world, and sways public opinion in favor of a worthy product. It reaches back into the factory and inspires the manufacturer, the shop foreman, and the humblest workman to build better and better and still better value into the product.

It establishes a standard of quality that leads the buyer to expect much, and that impels the maker to measure up to the expectation.

To this extent, then, merchandise is advertised not only because it is a better product—but it actually becomes a still better product because it is advertised.

Consistent advertising is the manufacturer's pledge of quality. It is a visible proof that he has faith in his product to back it with his name—and with his money.

People know instinctively that a product so sponsored is worthy of their confidence. They prefer it, naturally, to its unheralded, unsung competitors.

Advertising cannot work miracles. It may sell inferior merchandise for a short time, but it cannot keep on selling it. When you see a motor car, or a breakfast food, or a fountain pen advertised consistently, year after year, you know that it is a good product and that it is giving satisfaction. You buy it with confidence, and you are seldom disappointed.

Advertising is educational in its influence. It carries the news of business into the far-flung corners of civilization. It displays the new styles on Main Street the same day they make their appearance on Fifth Avenue. It makes familiar to millions of people the names and trade-marks and qualities of innumerable products.

It makes it possible for the woman in Tucson or Bangor or New York to shop with equal confidence, knowing not only what she wants, and what it will cost, but what she can expect from

"TWENTY THOUSAND YEARS IN SING SING," SUN & MON.

Seldom, if ever, has the human side of prison life, with its laughter and tears, its romances, its thrills and its grim tragedies, been painted in such vivid and dramatic coloring as in the first National picture, "Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing," at the Portales theatre Sunday and Monday.

This screen drama was taken from the book by Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing prison, who unquestionably knows more about the criminal heart and criminal life as well as the technical side of prison affairs than any other man in the country. It is a document of facts and truth which is stranger and more fascinating than fiction.

The story deals with the life of a "big shot" gunman who, when finally convicted, believes he can rule the prison as he ruled his political gang. His personal attachment for the warden becomes so strong that he voluntarily returns to the prison and the chair when on parole, rather than let the warden down. Besides the many thrills, including a prison riot, there is a glowing underlying romance, made inspiring by the touching loyalty of convicts' women for their misguided husbands and sweethearts.
