STILL GOING STRONG—Thirty-six hours and 600 records after he started a marathon broadcast, KSNY disc jockey Ronnie Spittle is shown giving his jaw a rest this morning. Spittle's continuous broadcast has been liberally sprinkled with safety reminders for holiday motorists. Spittle said he felt "pretty good" this morning but his voice was showing signs of wear. Guerrillas Claim Attacks Fail

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGIERS (AP) — the Algiers guerrilla command claimed that its troops repelled attacks by regular army forces at two points south and west of Algiers early today.

Lt. Ali Allouache, spokesman of the guerrilla Wilaya zone No. 4 controlling Algiers, said the regular forces supporting Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella attacked at dawn at Ain Boucif, 75 miles to the south, and Charon, 150 miles west of the capital.

Allouache said the defending guerrillas put up determined resistance and the regulars withdrew after brief engagements.

The reported clashes continued a pattern of brief, indecisive engagements between the Wilaya 4 gurrillas and regular army troops which entered the Wilaya territory in central Algeria Saturday to end the guerrilla command's rebellion against Ben Bella.

In Algiers, however, more than 100 persons were reported killed or wounded in a two-hour battle Sunday night between guerrilla troops and supporters of Ben Bella.

Allouache said the regulars south and west of the capital were "feeling out our defenses all around our borders to try and find a point of weakness."

Ain Boucif is an outpost on the Sahara fringes, some 30 miles east of Boghari where a skirmish between the two forces ended with a local cease-fire Sunday.

The bulk of the regulars at Boghari—about 600 men — withdrew and tried to encircle Boghari by moving up a desert track to Ain Boucif.

Charon is a small market town on the Oran-Algiers highway some 15 miles west of Orleansville. The reported engagement there indicated that Orleansville rmained of Wilaya 4.

Allouache said heavy rifle and machine-gun fire continued for some hours at both Ain Boucif and Charon, but he had no information on casualties on either side.

Ben Bella apparently had ordered the regular troops to halt any attack meeting stiff resistance., in an effort to avoid bloodshed.

The gun and grenade clash in the Algiers casbah was the worst fighting so far between the rebellious guerrillas of Wilaya (zone) No. 4 and Ben Bella's supporters.

Reports said a guerrilla patrol was ambushed in the narrow twisting streets of the quarter by a force headed by Yacef Saadi, leader of a terrorist group in the capital during the war for independence.

Guerrilla troops poured into the casbah, seeking to root out the resistanee fighters, and machine-gun fire rattled through the crowded area. There was no indication of how many of the casualties were dead or how many belonged to which side.

The Wilaya 4 command accused French troops stationed near the casbah of participating in the firing. French military authorities denied the charge.

The army's closest approach to Algiers was at Boghari, a Sahara fringe outpost 75 miles south of the capital.

Six persons were reported injured on each side at Boghari after brief exchanges of gunfire Saturday and early Sunday. Then thousands of civilians poured into the streets demanding an end to the fratricidal fightings, and the local commanders arranged a cease-fire.

Clashes were reported at several other places inside Wilaya 4 territory, but all fighting ceased Sunday when Ben Bella ordered a cease-fire from his operational headquarters at Tiaret, 200 miles southwest of Algiers.

At Boghari, several hundred regular troops remained deployed along a sandy ridge overlooking the town. Their heavy machine guns and artillery pointed toward the guerrilla defenders who were dug in on another small ridge about 300 yards away.

There is widespread popular disgust with the power struggle that is keeping the two-month old nation in turmoil. Crowds demonstrated for peace repeatedly in Algiers and throughout the surrounding area. The country's premier in name only, Ben Youssef Ben Khedda, who lost a power struggle with Ben Bella last month, called on all rival leaders to meet immediately in the capital to head off the threatened civil war.

Nation's Road Death Toll May Be Headed For Record

By The Associated Press

Traffic	334
Boating	19
Drownings	31
discellaneous	61
Total	495

Traffic fatalities across the nation mounted today at a pace that threatened to set a new record for a Labor Day holiday weekend.

The National Safety Council said the toll for the three-day period, the final holiday of the summer season, could reach 500 if the highway carnage continues at its present pace.

The traffic toll reached 384 today and traffic officials said they look for the rate of fatalities to increase later as millions of vacationing motorists commence the homeward trek. In addition to traffic deaths, another 19 died in boating mishaps, 31 drowned and 61 died in miscellaneous accidents for an overall total of 495.

Before the start of the 78-hour holiday period at 6 p.m. local time Friday, the Safety Council had estimated between 410 and 490 lives would be lost in traffic accidents. But a sharp increase in the hourly rate of deaths Sunday caused the council to raise its estimate.

The revised estimate of 500 traffic fatalities, if reached, would surpass the record Labor Day toll of 461 deaths in 1951. The holiday period ends at midnight (local time) tonight.

The third six-victim car crash of the holiday period occurred Sunday in a head-on collision of two cars near Roosevelt, Utah. Four persons lost their lives Sunday night when three cars collided on a mountain highway near Craig, Colo.

Earlier, a head-on crash killed six persons in two cars near Litchfield, Minn., and six other persons lost their lives when two cars collided in a driving rainstorm near Weiner, Ark. Five elderly persons were killed in a crash of their car with two trucks in Schuyler, Neb. Three young persons and two truck drivers were killed in a head-on collision between a car and a trailer truck on the West Virginia Turnpike south of Charleston.

Traffic deaths last Labor Day weekend totaled 386, only the third time in the last 12 years that the toll was below 400. The record low toll for the holiday in recent years was 246 in 1946.

The safety council said the traffic toll averages 330 for a 78-hour late summer non-holiday weekend. An Associated Press survey of accident deaths in the 78-hour non-holiday weekend from 6 p.m. Friday Aug. 17 to midnight Monday, Aug. 20, showed 256 traffic fatalities, 43 killed in boating accidents, 54 drownings and 85 killed in miscellaneous accidents for a total of 438.

Typhoon Toll Still Rising

HONG KONG (AP) — The toll from Typhoon Wanda, Hong Kong's worst storm in a quarter of a century, rose steadily today as rescue workers continued digging into flooded and demolished homes.

The government reported at least 134 dead, 41 missing, 515 injured and 46,350 homeless. Local Chinese newspapers estimated more than 300 were killed.

Wanda hit the refugee-crowded British colony with winds of 160 m.p.h. Saturday. Damage was estimated unofficially at between $2 million and $4 million.

The dead included five Royal Air Force men whose bodies were found Sunday night near a camping sight on a neighboring island.

Most of the dead were refugees from Communist China. Some drowned when a 6-foot tidal wave flooded their flimsy fishing village shacks. Others perished as winds and landslides swept away squatter huts perched on Hong Kong's steep hillsides.

The tidal wave swept over Shatin, near the Red Chinese border, leaving half the town under water.

The gusts blew down 90 per cent of the huts in one squatter village and destroyed a fishing fleet in the New Territories.

Hong Kong's usually placid harbor turned into a raging cauldron that grounded three ocean freighters, tore seven others loose from their moorings and sank hundreds of sampans and junks.

The storm damaged the homes of many Americans and Europeans as it blew out windows of modern apartment buildings overlooking the harbor. Authorities reported considerable damage to military establishments. Hong Kong Airport, closed down during the storm, also suffered some damage.

Wanda swept up across the nearby Portuguese colony of Macao but caused only minor damage. By the time it hit Red China's south coast, it had weakened to gale force, and there was no immediate report of serious damage on the mainland.

Meanwhile another typhoon, Amy, hovered 540 miles southeast of Formosa. The storm, with 160-mile winds, had remained stationary for more than 24 hours. Weathermen said they could not say yet whether it would head for Formosa or veer toward Okinawa.

Denver Hotel Hit By Fire

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Fire raged out of control for more than four hours in the 300-room Alban Hotel Sunday, killing one person and injuring around fifty.

About 270 guests climbed down stairs and fire escapes or were helped from windows onto ladders by firemen. The flames stopped operation of elevators in the seven-story strucfure.

The one victim was Stella Bruce, 35, a waitress, whose body was found in a basement employes lounge. Police said she apparently was overcome by smoke and heat.

Rescue units treated about fifty persons, mostly firemen, for smoke inhalation. None were seriously injured.

QUIET HOLIDAY OBSERVED HERE

Most of the citizens of Snyder observed the Labor Day holiday today.

Clear skies, a bright sun and warm air lured many to the lake, the parks, and picnic areas.

A check shortly before noon revealed no accidents of any importance had taken place, and in Scurry County at least, the holiday was being observed in a rather quiet manner.

There were no accidents last year during the Labor Day holiday.

The next general holiday on this year's calendar is Thanksgiving. That date is 80 days away.

Youth Dead After Inhaling Glue Fumes

PORT NORTH, Nov. (AP) — Wayne McKowen, 16, was found dead Sunday after inhaling vapors from model airplane glue.

Police said the boy's mother found him with a plastic bag covering his face. Inside the bag were paper towels saturated with the glue.

Medical Examiner Dr. Arthur La Salle said the boy died of trichoior ethylene poisoning. The chemical is an ingredient of model airplane glue. An autopsy was ordered.

Wilson Denies Another Race

AUSTIN (AP)—Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said today he will resume his private practice in January and has no plans to run for another political office.

Wilson, defeated candidate for governor, has been active in the Billie Sol Estes and slant hole oil drilling investigations.

He said his statement was made in reply to a report published Sunday in some newspapers speculating that he would run against railroad Commissioner Ben Ramsey.

"I will enter the practice of law in Austin in January, 1963. I have no plans to run for any office in the future and positively will not be a candidate for railroad commissioner," Wilson said.

Mysterious Blast On Chinese Island

MACAO (AP)—A mysterious explosion on a Chinese Communist island about 500 yards off Macao today rocked this tiny Portuguese colony on the South China coast.

The island is believed to be a Chinese naval base.

Several explosions have been reported on the China borders of Macao and Hong Kong in recent weeks. Time bombs were believed planted in food parcels sent to China from the adjoining colonies.

Cool Spell Forecast In North Texas

By The Associated Press

Cooler weather is in prospect for North Texas, the weatherman says, following Sunday's heavy rains that drenched parts of Northwest Texas.

Monday was to be clear to partly cloudy and continued warm.

Forecasts call for scattered thundershowers late Monday in Northwest Texas, the Panhandle and North Central Texas. Temperatures are to turn cooler Tuesday in the Panhandle and in the northwest portion of North Central Texas Tuesday afternoon.

Early in the day skies were cloudy over the Panhandle and light rain was falling at Lubbock. Some cloudiness was reported in San Antonio and Austin and along the Gulf Coast.

Rain-heavy thunderstorms splashed much of Northwest Texas Sunday, unleashing strong winds, and causing damage in several areas.

Colorado City and Bowie had some minor flooding. The heaviest rain was around Bowie where some rural homes were flooded.

State police reported strong winds in Stamford that knocked out plate glass windows in the business district. The winds also unroofed a warehouse.

The late afternoon storm raked Colorado City with winds gusting to 52 miles an hour. An estimated 2.18 inches of rain fell within an hour. Power failed briefly.

Loraine, nine miles east of Colorado City, also had a power failure during the storm. Some hail the size of golf balls fell and two power poles were leveled.

200 Celebrants Are Behind Bars

By The Associated Press

Youth had its fling on the last big holiday weekend of the summer, but in seaside resorts on both sides of the continent police had the final throw.

More than 200 college-age celebrants were tossed behind bars in the wake of Labor Day riots in Seaside, Ore., Ocean City, Md., and Hampton Beach, N.H.

However, in Lake George, N.Y., high in the Adirondack Mountains, nearly 1,000 young persons milled about early Monday, then scattered without incident in the face of chilly temperatures and an extra-heavy police guard.

Seaside, an Oregon coast resort community of 3,700, was hit by a riot of 1,500 to 2,000 youths over the weekend. With some participants drawing courage from liquor, the rioters erupted onto the principal street, Broadway, Saturday night and again Sunday afternoon.

Gov. Mark Hatfield called out the National Guard, but the disturbance died down by Sunday night.

At the height of the riots, police had to use nightsticks. Some heads were bloodied.

All told, some 60 rioters were taken into custody, and 40, of them early today. Bail for each was set at $300.

"We'll hold them until they rot, if need be," said Mayor M.W. Pysher. "When they go home and tell their buddies it was $300, they are going to think."

Home for a high percentage of them, said a Seaside official, was neighboring Washington State and Seattle in particular.

At Ocean City, Md., some 500 college students and teen agers milled around the boardwalk on the Atlantic Ocean early Monday, and police slapped a curfew on all persons under 25. Arrested were 48 persons, accused of violating the curfew.

Ocean City had been the scene of riots in 1961 and 1960.

Nearly 100 state and town police set up roadblocks against incoming traffic. K9 dogs were used briefly to aid in clearing the streets, but police said the situation never got out of hand.

In Hampton Beach, N.H., the disturbance began when long lines of shouting college and high school boys snake-danced along the beach and back onto a nearby boulevard, bordered by hotels and restaurants.

Police said some of the youths evidently had obtained liquor across the Massachusetts border and brought it into New Hampshire.

There were no reports of personal injury or property damage, although a few rubbish baskets along the beach were set afire.

Police took more than 100 youths into custody, and quiet was restored.

Hunger, Disease, Terror Sweep Iran After Quake

By PARVIS RAEIN

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Hunger, disease and terror today gripped northwest Iran in the wake of a giant earthquake that buried villages under mud and debris, killing from 3,000 to 9,500 persons.

The government announced "more than 3,316" dead, 5,000 injured and 100,000 homeless. But unofficial sources put the death toll as high as 9,500.

The U.S. Embassy announced that no Americans were among the dead or injured.

The quake lasted only one minute Saturday night with the worst devastation over a 23,000-square-mile area centering around Takistan, 100 miles northwest of Tehran and about 20 miles southwest of the major rail city of Kazvin.

The Iranian Red Cross said the quake killed 3,000 of the 4,000 inhabitants of Dan-Isfahan near Takistan.

The village, set on a foothill of an 8,385-foot mountain, was left a mass of mud and debris. Survivors ran screaming for help as a rescue plane landed on the fringe of the village. Of the 322 houses in the village, only one mosque and one brick building still stand.

A few half-destroyed walls stand as ghostly remnants of the tragedy.

Prime Minister Assadullah Alam, touring the disaster area, said: "Unfortunately the tragedy is bigger and greater than at first reported."

An Iranian newsman telephoned from Saveh, 80 miles west of Tehran, that seven villages had been wiped out in that area with a death toll of 355.

The injured crowded hospitals and schools in Karaj and Kazvin, on the edge of the disaster area. One train brought 108 injured to Tehran Sunday night.

A critical water shortage was reported in the area. Many wells and underground water systems were destroyed or damaged by the shock.

The quake sent shock waves as far as Tehran, and people fled into the capital's streets.

Prime Minister Assadullah prepared to tour the disaster area today. He called on Iranians to open their homes to the homeless and injured.

The League of Red Cross Societies in Geneva offered to launch an international relief program for the quake victims. The Geneva organization cabled the Iranian Red Cross for a list of most urgently needed materials.

The quake occurred the same day the Soviet Union detonated 5,500 pounds of explosives in its southern republic of Georgia, but leading American seismologists said there was "definitely no connection" between the two.

Moscow radio announced the blast had been set off in a specially dug well to study the earth's crust. The Rev. J. Joseph Lynch, director of Fordham University's Seismological Institute in New York, said the Russian blast was a "perfectly routine experiment."

Iran has been hit by more than 200 quakes in the past 50 years. The last major one in December 1957 killed 1,288 persons in western Iran.

Believe Russians Only Confirming Earlier Actions

By LARRY OSIUS

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials believe the Soviet Union's announcement that it will send military equipment and technicians to Cuba merely confirms what has been going on for a long time.

The Soviet statement Sunday said arms and technical specialists will be provided to meet "the threats of aggressive imperialist quarters with regard to Cuba." Type and amount of arms and men were not specified.

A State Department spokesman said the Soviet communique appeared to be an attempt to make legitimate what the Soviet Union and other Communist bloc nations have been doing for several months—supplying Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro with military assistance.

"What they say about delivering arms and sending technical specialists to train troops is exactly what they are doing," said the spokesman. He said the Moscow communique seems to mean such aid will continue.

There was no immediate White House comment on the Russian announcement, which came shortly after th dpartur from Mos- ic ly after the departure from Moscow of Cuban Economic Minister Ernesto Guevara and militia leader Emilio Aragones Navarro.

In other developments on the Cuban situation:

One of the leaders of a group of exiled Cuban students who shelled a Havana hotel last month said his group wants the United States to provide "the same help Castro is receiving from the Soviet Union."

An American attorney reported progress in talks with Castro about ransoming 1,100 prisoners held by the Cuban leader.

Two Democratic senators renewed their demand that the United States launch or lead military action against Cuba.

Moscow's announcement of military aid to Cuba followed recent statements by U.S. officials that some 20 Soviet ships have unloaded a large assortment of military hardware in Cuba.

So far, U.S. officials have said, about 3,000 Communist bloc military technicians have landed in Cuba but they contend there are no indications that Soviet combat troops are included.

Isidoro Borja, who said he wants the same type of military help for exiled Cuban students, declared on a television program —NBC, "Meet the Press"—"Lots of presses (stories) have called them (Communist soldiers) technicians, but we have to call them troops. I don't think that these troops have been sent there for offensive purposes. But the point is they have been landed there."

Borja, military affairs director of the Cuban Student Directorate, helped lead a foray by 23 students in a cabin cruiser and a PT boat on Aug. 24. The two boats shelled and machine-gunned a Havana hotel for about 15 minutes.

Reports from Cuba indicated there was little damage but Borja said he believed there were some casualties among Europeans in the hotel.

He said the group operated from "an undisclosed base not in U.S. territory," and did not violate the U.S. Neutrality Act.

Borja also said the student group opposes efforts to ransom some 1,100 Cubans captured by Castro in the abortive invasion attempt of April 1961. Castro has asked $62 million for their freedom.

"With the $62 million which could be used to liberate 1,000 men we can free 6 million people," Borja said.

James Donovan, New York attorney, is in Cuba representing the Cuba Families Committee of the United States in an attempt to negotiate the prisoners' freedom. He met with Castro for two hours Saturday and said later the discussions were progressing favorably.

Borja said that while he wants U.S. military equipment and technical assistance, he believes Cubans in exile can overthrow Castro "without direct intervention by the United States."

But two Southern senators called for the United States to take a direct hand in ridding Cuba of Communist leadership.

Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., said "The United States should sponsor a Western Hemisphere military organization to "face up to the problem in Cuba."

He said in an interview: "Latin American countries in increasing numbers have come to realize the Communist problem is much more of a threat to their governments than it is to that of the United States, and I believe the time is ripe to create a NATO-like agency to deal with communism in Cuba and elsewhere in this hemisphere, in military fashion."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., in a letter to constituents said, "If the circumstances in 1960 and early 1961 justified decisions by two administrations that a U.S.-sponsored invasion of Cuba was essential, how can the far worse, circumstances of today require less? The longer the United States waits to expel communism from Cuba, the more difficult will be the job."

"There is substantial evidence that there are now at least four intermediate range ballistic missile bases in Cuba," Thurmond said.

President Kennedy in his news conference last week declared, "I am not for invading Cuba at this time. The words do not have some secondary meaning. I think it would be a mistake to invade Cuba."

New Harbor Dedicated

PORT MANSFIELD, Tex. (AP)—The $7.3 million Port Mansfield, newest Texas harbor, was dedicated Sunday.

The port, built by local and federal funds, is about 25 miles east of Raymondville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

"It will be a big boost in bringing tourists to Texas," Waggoner Carr of Lubbock, candidate for attorney general, said during the dedication ceremony.

Texas has lost a half million tourists a year since 1957, he said.

"Port Mansfield is one of the 10 best fishing spots in the state," he said.

The 18-foot channel from the harbor to the Gulf with a 26-foot-deep entrance and jetties were completed June 1. A Coast Guard station is planned at the port.

A boat parade, led by a Coast Guard cutter, was a feature of the dedication.

R. F. Allen, chairman of the Willacy County Board of Navigation and Canal Commission said the celebration was the "culmination of a 22-year-old dream."

Revival Of Bill Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chances of reviving President Kennedy's extended unemployment insurance bill may depend on what a few key House members hear during their Labor Day visits home.

Administration strategists, it was learned, have decided against any immediate attempt to try for reversal of the 13-12 vote by which the House Ways and Means Committee shelved the bill Tuesday.

The program would provide as much as 13 weeks' extra benefits for long-time jobless.

One supporter of the bill said privately he thinks the vote switch needed to revive the bill is more likely to come from among the nine Republican members who voted against it than the four Democrats who crossed the party line to oppose it.

Some of the Republicans come from industrial districts where unemployment has remained high for months.

Miss Texas To Contest

DALLAS (AP)—Penny Lee Rudd, Miss Texas of 1962, left for Atlantic City Sunday and the Miss America contest.

The pretty East Texan flew to Chicago where she had to sit out operation Sky Shield, the military exercise that grounded all civilian planes during the afternoon.

Afterwards she flew to Philadelphia and went by car to Atlantic City.

Penny, 19, a University of Texas student, held a dress rehearsal for her dance number Sunday in Fort Worth.

Her home town of Waskom, population 1,300, staged a big going-away party for her, followed by a parade in nearby Marshall.

Dredge Supervisor Is Viet Nam Hero

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Most of us would never think of fighting the cold war as a dredging supervisor in war-torn Viet Nam. But to Otto B. Coleman, 48, a shy, slightly built, professional dredgeman, it seems the most natural thing in the world.

Coleman has just returned from almost four years in Viet Nam.

He comes back with a Meritorious Service award, with dysentery, with a profound respect for the Vietnamese workman and with a price on his head by the Communists.

Coleman doesn't look like a hero. He doesn't act like a hero. He doesn't think of himself as one.

"I had a job to do," he says, "and I did it."

In 1958 the U.S. government decided it would help Viet Nam's economy if its canals were cleaned out. Easier to get crops to market. Better sanitation. Irrigation.

Viet Nam's delta region—"It's flat as a pool table," Coleman says—is ideal for man-made waterways. The first were dug by hand in the 1850s. Mechanical dredges were brought in later.

Ironically, U.S. fliers, in what now seems excessive zeal, sank these in World War II.

No one can recall now how Coleman, who is from Portland, Ore., and the government got together, particularly since at that time Coleman had a dubious view of foreign aid.

Nor was Coleman eager for adventure.

"I was out that way in World War II"—Okinawa, Guam, Saipan —"and I had had enough of that nonsense."

But he signed on, anyway, and he and the Vietnamese seemed to hit it off from the start.

As a poet grows misty when he thinks of a waterfall, or a dentist glows at the sight of perfectly spaced teeth, so Coleman lights up when it comes to dredges.

He obviously is happy when he thinks of those eight Viet Nam machines, chugging away 24 hours a day, six days a week, his idea of a perfect form for U.S. aid.

You see, dredging operations are lit up at night. They're noisy. They get results instantly. So that no one would miss the point, he kept the emblem of the Agency for International Development (AID)—with its clasped hands—freshly painted.

"Since it was costing the American taxpayers money," he says, "I had the strong idea that the Vietnamese shouldn't get mixed up and think the Russians or the French or someone else was doing it."

The Communists got the point, too. They made three attempts to blow up the dredges. Seven men were killed, but the dredges were repaired and sent back into action.

Coleman is proud of the Vietnamese crews, of the 20 million cubic meters of dredging they accomplished together, and of a rather unusual linguistic policy.

To make sure there would be no misunderstanding, Coleman insisted the technicians go to a language school.

"They all speak English as badly as I do," he says with a grin, "and with the same northwestern accent."

Pledge For Ban Proposed By Burma

GENEVA (AP) — Burma proposed today that President Kennedy, Soviet Premier Khrushchev and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan join in a personal pledge suspending nuclear weapon tests.

Burmese delegate James Barrington suggested to the 17-nation disarmament conference that the three government chiefs of the nuclear powers put their own responsibility at stake to stop nuclear explosions.

Barrington proposed that the big three issue declarations assuming personal responsibility:

1. That there would be no nuclear testing while a comprehensive treaty banning all explosions is worked out;

2. That their negotiators would continue their efforts to conclude a treaty soon, and

3. That an international scientific commission be formed as soon as possible as the first step in the creation of an organization to administer a test ban.

Western conference sources described Barrington's proposed formula as an uncontrolled moratorium which the United States and Britain so far have refused to accept because of their own vital security interests.

Barrington was not the first nonaligned delegate to suggest such a procedure. Arthur Lall of India proposed last week that the nonaligned powers pledge to refrain unilaterally from nuclear testing. The Western side interpreted this, too, as an uncontrolled moratorium.

2 Policemen Are Attacked

DALLAS (AP)—Two policemen, investigating a minor traffic accident Sunday night, were attacked by a self-styled expert killer and his father while a shrieking throng of Negroes shouted: "Kill them police."

The uproar ended with the arrival of more policemen.

The father and son, both Negroes, were jailed for aggravated assault on police officers. Six of the most vocal members of the crowd of 20 or 30 were jailed for disturbing the peace.

Mock Air Battles Expected To Benefit Defense Plans

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Mock air battles waged at supersonic speeds over the North American continent will be of lasting benefit to defenders of the United States and Canada, says the commander of the North American Air Defense Command.

More than 1,600 aircraft carried out the grim make-believe warfare Sunday in Operation Sky Shield III while virtually all civilian planes were cleared from the air from 2 p.m. until 7:30 p.m. EST.

This is the third time in as many years that Norad has matched its intricate defenses against the might of a simulated aggressor employing fleet bombers and mythical intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Norad and Defense Department officials never have made known their highly classified evaluation of the exercises. But they say each Sky Shield operation has led to the development of new techniques and electronic devices that improve the defense posture of the free world.

Gen. John K. Gerhart's statement came at the end of a 5½-hour exercise in which U.S. and Canadian interceptors, directed from Norad's headquarters here, rose to challenge simulated attacks carried out by B52 and B47 bombers of the United States' Strategic Air Command.

In case any aggressor nation might have picked the time to make a real attack, about a third of SAC's bombers were held ready for action.

Some 40 mythical ICBMs were launched at North American targets, complicating the problem of defense forces.

In an accident not related to the defense exercise, a civilian aircraft crashed at Everglades, Fla., killing its two occupants. The crash occurred during the time when non-military aircraft were supposed to be grounded.

It was the only report of mishap during the drill, in which a Norad spokesman estimated 3,000 sorties —single plane flights — were flown. More than 800 Norad units were active, including electronic detection stations on the Distant Early Warning, the Mid-Canada and the Pine Tree lines along the top of the continent.

The spokesman said a quarter-million men and Army, Navy and Marine units of the United States and Canada participated.

The maneuver was based on a three-prong striking force of 1,000 bombers and support craft streaking along the East Coast, into the heart of the continent and down toward the Rocky Mountain region and Pacific Coast.

A few civilian craft on essential missions were permitted in the air during the exercise. These included planes fighting forest and brush fires in California, a plane hunting a boy lost in a boat near Ottawa, Canada, one plane in the East directing heavy automobile traffic caused by the Labor Day weekend and three mercy flights in the Southeast.

Military estimates were that 1,800 commercial flights in the United States were cancelled or delayed, along with 130 in Canada and 31 of foreign airlines.

Air lines took the opportunity in many cities to hold open house celebrations, inviting the public to inspect commercial planes.

Mexico Has Iron Reserve

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexican iron ore is distributed in 108 deposits in 20 states and totals an estimated 570,812,000 tons, the general manager of the National Chamber of the Steel and Iron Industry said Sunday.

Leopoldo Baeza Acevez said iron reserves are estimated at 62.6 million tons in Sinaloa, Sonora and Lower California.

Those of Chihuahua, Coahuila, Nuevo Leon, Durango, Zacatecas and Tamaulipas were figured at 133.5 million tons. Those of Jalisco, Colima, Michoacan and Guerrera were estimated at 280.7 million tons.

Coal reserves were estimated in 60.5 million tons in the Mixteca zone, 18.2 million tons in San Marcial, Sonora and 3,995.8 million tons at Sabinas, Coah., plus 6.2 million tons at Santa Clara, Sonora.

Government Payroll Hits Record Mark

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government's civilian payroll reached a record high of $14,296,000,000 in the last fiscal year, a congressional committee reported today.

The Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures also said the total of 2,443,808 persons on the civilian payrolls was the highest average since fiscal 1954 when it reached 2,436,164.

Robyn Beaver Is Named County Gold Star Girl

Miss Robyn Beaver of the Fluvanna 4-H Club has been selected as 1962 Gold Star Girl of Scurry County. The Gold Star award is given by A&M College and is presented to the girl and boy in the county who are selected as the most outstanding 4-H members. It may only be awarded to a 4-H member once.

The selection was made by a committee consisting of Mrs. Welden Wiggins, 4-H leader, Mrs. D. M. Pope, Joy Stirling, Gold Star Girl for 1961, Gail Thornburg of Plainview 4-H Club, and Linda Wiggins of Ira 4-H Club.

Robyn has been in 4-H club for nine years. She has had projects in clothing, food preparation, frozen food, craft, leadership, bedroom improvement and livestock.

In clothing Robyn has made 25 garments and 10 articles. She had won a blue ribbon in County Dress Revue every year since she has been in 4-H work, has been to District Dress Revue three times receiving ribbons there. One year she was first alternate to State Dress Revue. This year Robyn has made a white three tiered squaw dress, a suit of striped ticking material, a blue wool fully lined dress with no waistline seam, bloused by its self tie belt, western shirts for herself and her small sister and other garments.

Leadership has been a favorite project for Miss Beaver. She has been clothing leader and food leader for her local club, held all offices in her club, chairman and treasurer of county-wide 4-H committee, chairman of county camp two years and treasurer of county camp. She has led sessions in craft, recreation, and other subjects at county camp five years. Robyn helped organize a Junior 4-H Club in Fluvanna and served as a junior leader in this club for two years.

Leadership led Robyn into public speaking contests. She has entered this contest three years in the county, been to district two years and this year was one of two representatives from our 20-county district to go to the state contest a A&M College. This was one of the big events of Robyn's 4-H career; every 4-Her who participates in the contests would like to go to state.

In her livestock projects Robyn has had both good and bad luck. This year she won the 4-H showmanship trophy for lambs in the spring livestock show. Then the calf she was raising for the '63 show died with rabies and Robyn and all her family had to take the shots for rabies...a very painful experience for them all. She had shown two calves previous to this experience.

In food work, records show that she has prepared 402 meals and more than 800 dishes. She has frozen 251 quarts of food before this year. Their peach crop was a failure this year and the peas will be ready in a few days, so Robyn will probably have an after-school job for the next few weeks.

When her family built a new home several years ago, Robyn had bedroom improvement as one of her projects. She painted her bed, made curtains, had a dressing table made from a solid door, using metal legs and planned good storage in her closet. This year she has redone her bedroom, painting the walls, bed and dressing table, stool and making other improvements. The results are very attractive.

Robyn has won eight medals in 4-H, the 4-H showmanship trophy for lambs, two purple ribbons, 28 blue, 15 red, eight white, and a yellow. She has received the locket given by local Home Demonstration Clubs and has been chosen and attended district camp one year.

When asked what she like best about 4-H Robyn said: "Oh, just 4-H,... I like it!"

Runner up for the Gold Star Award was Gwen Landrum, also of the Fluvanna 4-H Club. Gwen has been in 4-H club eight years, has won 54 ribbons including one purple, 37 blue, 11 red, and five white. Five of these are district ribbons and two state.

Clothing has been one of Gwen's favorite projects; she has made 60 garments and 58 articles, including smocked pillows and many other things for her home. She has won a blue ribbon in county dress revue each year she has entered, and been to district two times. Gwen has bought one dress in the past three years; she makes her own clothes and some for her mother.

Recreation is another of her favorite projects. She has planned and led recreation for her local club and for county parties and camps.

She has entered the "Share the fun contest" at county three years, been to district three times, and to state two times, bringing home a red and a whie ribbon.

Her other projects have included food preparation and preservation, gardening, craft and leadership. Gwen is also a junior leader for the junior 4-H Club in Fluvanna which she too helped to organize.

Robyn and Gwen have worked together in leadership and other projects and competed on a friendly basis for honors in 4-H. Both have won many. Scurry County and Fluvanna community can well be proud of both of these 4-H girls.

Never Work On Holidays; You Might Become Wealthy And...

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It was Labor Day in the year 1997, just 35 years from now.

A great trim white yacht stood at anchor in the East River off Manhattan.

At ease on its deck sat handsome Henry Palmer Bucksbound, the famous business tycoon, smoking a $2 cigar and brushing the ashes from his $450 vicuna sports jacket.

At his feet sat his three current chorus girl favorites—Rosebud la Lulu, Gloria Glamour and Tawny Hyde.

"Let's go to Southampton for a swim and a lobster dinner, Daddykins," suggested Rosebud.

"Tomorrow," grunted Henry. "Can t today. Have to go to the office."

"But Labor Day's a holiday," said Tawny. "Nobody works on Labor Day except bus drivers, policemen, pickpockets, and—"

"—And your Daddykins," finished Henry. "Shall I tell you why?"

The girls looked at each other restlessly. They hated Daddykins' long stories—but, after all, he did buy such nice big diamonds. Dutifully, they leaned back to listen.

"Back in 1962," began Henry, "I was a young clerk in the shipping department. So was my best friend, Jim Broadbeam. We were both courting a secretary, Amelia Bland.

"I was supposed to take Amelia to the beach on Labor Day, but the night before I lost all my money in a poker game. So Jim took Amelia instead, and she was so mad at me that when he proposed to her on the boat ride back she up and accepted him.

"Having nothing else to do, I went into the office that morning to clean up some orders I should have sent out the week before. Old J. P. McGrim—he ran the firm then—came in and saw me, and said, 'I'm glad somebody around this place besides me thinks of something besides play.'

"The next week I got a raise and a promotion. That taught me all I needed to know.

"When Thanksgiving rolled around old McGrim came in and saw me at my desk, and made me head of the department."

Henry tossed his cigar on the deck and squashed it out with his $175 alligator shoes.

"After that," he continued, "the rest of the staff worked between holidays—and I worked only on holidays. Old J.P., who had come up the hard way, was more and more impressed.

"He made me his assistant, then president, and chairman of the board when he retired. When he died he left me his fortune, and I'd have gone to his funeral except it was on the 4th of July—and I felt I should be in the office for fear, even then, he might show up and find me missing."

"What happened to Jim and Amelia?" asked Rosebud.

"Oh, Jim's still in the shipping department," said Henry. "They had six kids. They all work for me now, too."

"Maybe if you had gone to the beach that day with Amelia instead of going to the office, she'd have married you—don't you ever think of that?" suggested Gloria.

"Yes, I do," said Henry. "I saw Amelia at an office dinner last year, and I must admit she has something you girls don t have."

"What?" the three girls chorused.

"Wrinkles," chuckled Henry. "Well, cuties, I'll have to leave you now. I still go into the office on holidays as a sentimental gesture."

"What'll you do if you find a young man working there, just as old Mr. McGrim found you on Labor Day 35 years ago?" Tawny asked. "What'll you do?"

"Fire him, of course!" said Henry Palmer Bucksbound. "You can't trust a man like that."

Moral: Never work on your holidays. Even if it doesn't cost you your job, in the end it will only make you old and rich and surrounded with pretty girls.

Junior Editors Quiz on ART

QUESTION: How did art originate?

ANSWER: Art is very old. Our illustration shows a scene of perhaps 20,000 years ago. Realize that the first traces of writing and civilized living do not show up on the human record until long after this, and you will understand how deeply men have always felt about art. The first artists were hunters, to whom animals were all-important as sources of food, fur and bone. It is thought that the cave paintings, many of which may still be seen, were done as a kind of magic. Inside a cave, by torch light, man painted a fine buffalo; the idea was that this would give him a better chance of killing a real one next day. But these paintings appeal to us today in another way—they have beauty. This may be because the first artists tried to draw the animal's motion as well as the animal and so became acquainted with that flowing graceful quality we call "rhythm." This is something we all enjoy and as time passed, men came to realize that the creation and enjoyment of beauty were the most important reasons for making pictures.

FOR YOU TO DO: You may think you have no feeling for art. Put a record on a phonograph. Now start swaying back and forth to the music, clapping your hands to the time. Don't you feel the rhythm? It's the same kind of thing the cave men were expressing with their graceful drawings.

(Joanne Dunn of Portland, Maine, wins $10 for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper.)

Successor To DeGaulle Is Discussed

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP)—The hail of bullets that narrowly missed Charles de Gaulle on a lonely street near Villacoublay airfield raised in dramatic form the question:

Who and what are likely to follow?

The subversive Secret Army Organization is scattering handbills calling De Gaulle a traitor who must be "shot down like a mad dog." In other words, other attempts against De Gaulle's life are likely despite the greatly increased security around him.

In any case De Gaulle is 71. If he should decide to run for re-election at the end of 1965 when his term expires, the question of his successor certainly would figure in the campaign.

Many people are thinking of what might happen if De Gaulle dies before then.

If the secret army's assassins were successful, it surely would attempt a putsch to install a tight military - type dictatorship. It would appeal to extreme right-wing army elements and diehards, fanatic officers from North Africa to help take over.

Amid the turmoil, secret army commandos probably would try to release ex-Gen. Raoul Salan from prison to be their candidate-dictator, and would summon home exiles like Jacques Soustelle and Georges Bidault to give political guidance to the new regime.

Opinions vary as to how successful the commandos could be.

Barring a putsch, the most likely sequel would be the emergence of a strong premier under a relatively modest president, backd by a center party agreement to share De Gaulle's impressive powers. Center party leaders met last May to study such a contingency—and are scheduled to confer again this fall.

Only De Gaulle's towering personality, the Algerian upheaval, and widespread public disgust with governmental instability enabled the president to take so much power into his own hands. The constitution, on its face, splits executive power between the president and the premier.

But De Gaulle's stature enabled him to tilt the balance to a point where the premier became a sort of glorified messenger boy.

Algeria was a great help in this maneuver; other politicians were only too happy to let De Gaulle take the rap for a nasty business. Then, too, there was a conviction that under the circumstances De Gaulle was the only public figure with sufficient prestige to carry it off.

If De Gaulle should disappear, the constitution says that the Senate's presiding officer takes over as acting president pending election of a new president by an electoral college consisting of members of Parliament, members of the country councils and delegates from municipal councils.

The Senate president is Gaston Monnerville, 65, a Negro from French Guiana who has represented a county of Southern France in the Senate since 1948. He might replace Premier Georges Pompidou with a much stronger person from middle-road parties. The leaders would then work out some compromise for the presidency, with the premiership probably remaining in the new man's hands.

Last May three ex-premiers, Guy Mollet, Pierre Pflimlin and Antoine Pinay, secretly discussed what to do in case De gaulle suddenly disappeared. They agreed to meet again before the end of the year. Other leaders who would play a key role include Edgar Faure and Maurice Faure (not relatives) and Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

Viet Nam Effort May Be Increased

TOKYO (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said today that the United States will increase its military effort in South Viet Nam "if necessary."

"Our progress in South Viet Nam has been encouraging since my visit there last October," Taylor said on his arrival in Tokyo. "Our government is watching our efforts there and if they are not enough, we are fully prepared to do more."

Taylor succeeds Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer as chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff next month.

Richardson Stars As Yanks Nip A's

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

In six of the last eight years, a New York Yankee has won the American League's Most Valuable Player award. Yogi Berra, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris each have claimed it twice.

It looks like the honor will go to a Yankee again this year but it probably won't be Yogi, Mickey or Roger.

Most likely candidate for the coveted award is Bobby Richardson, the littlest Yankee of them all. The 5-9 second baseman, the most consistent performer on the pennant-bound Yankees, gave another demonstration of his worth Sunday. He crashed a ninth-inning double that drove in the winning run in his team's 2-1 triumph over the Kansas City Athletics.

The victory enabled the Yankees to maintain their four-game margin over second-place Minnesota, a 5-2 winner over Boston. Los Angeles' third-place Angels defeated Washington 4-2 to remain 4½ lengths behind the Yankees whom they engage in a four-game series starting with a doubleheader today.

Chicago's fourth-place White Sox outslugged Detroit 10-8 and Baltimore took a doubleheader from Cleveland 4-1 and 2-1 and swept past the Tigers into fifth place.

In the National League, New York's Mets nipped St. Louis 4-3 and Houston edged Chicago 3-1. On the West Coast, Los Angeles blanked Milwaukee 8-0 behind Don Drysdale and San Francisco nipped Cincinnati 6-4. The scheduled game between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia was postponed because of rain.

Richardson, 27 last month, is enjoying his best of six seasons with the Yankees. Already he has reached his high mark in hits, 173 (which also leads the league); home runs, eight; runs batted in, 51; and doubles, 29.

His 29th double came off Orlando Pena with one out in the ninth and scored Tony Kubek from first base to snap a 1-1 tie. Trailing 1-0, the Yankees tied the score when Pena committed a bases-loaded balk with two out in the sixth.

Minnesota's Jim Kaat became the first American League lefthander to win 15 games, limiting the Red Sox to eight hits. Kaat also excelled at the plate. With the score tied at 2-2, he opened the ninth with a bunt single, moved around to third on hits by Lennie Green and Vic Power, and scored the tie-breaking run on Rich Rollins' sacrifice fly. Harmon Killebrew's double drove in two insurance runs.

Leo Burke, a utility infielder-outfielder purchased from Dallas Saturday, smashed a three-run homer in his first game with Los Angeles to highlight the Angels' 4-2 triumph over Washington. Blanked by Don Rudolph through five innings, the Angels snapped Rudolph's scoreless streak at 31 consecutive innings when Earl Averill singled home Jim Fregosi with the first run. Burke followed with his home run to give Eli Grba his seventh triumph.

The Tigers, trailing 10-1, chased three Chicago pitchers in the ninth, scoring seven runs before Turk Lown retired Rocky Colavito for the final out, leaving the potential tying runs on base. Sunday slugger Charlie Maxwell drove in two Chicago runs with a single and double against his former mates. Eddie Fisher, who yielded four hits until the ninth, recorded his ninth victory.

Strong pitching by Milt Pappas, Hector Brown and Hoyt Wilhelm featured Baltimore's two victories over Cleveland. Pappas turned in a five-hitter for his 12th triumph in the opener. Dave Nicholson's homer and Jerry Adair's two run-scoring hits were the key blows for the Orioles against Jim Grant.

Brown blanked the Indians in the nightcap through seven innings and was relieved by Wilhelm after serving two singles in the eighth. Wilhelm induced Chuck Essegian to hit into a double play, then held off the Indians in the ninth after a run had scored. Russ Snyder and Gus Triandos drove in the Orioles' runs in the nightcap.

Scott, Parker Storm Into Labor Day Tourney Finals

D. R. Scott and S. A. Parker swept into the finals of the Labor Day Weekend Golf Tournament here yesterday at the Snyder Country Club, and meet today in an 18-hole match for the championship.

Scott polished off Bill Atwood in the first round of the match play tourney, then followed up by ousting J. E. Harney, who had eliminated city champ Johnny Boren in his opening round duel.

Parker plowed Wayne Boren under to open his bid, after which he rolled into the finals with a victory over Dr. R. J. Kidd. Kidd was runnerup to Boren in the Men's City Tournament held earlier in the summer.

Atwood and John Pickering, a first-round victim of Kidd, will get together today for the championship consolation title following triumphs of yesterday afternoon over Johnny and Wayne Boren, respectively.

One titlist has already been decided, with first flight honors having been nailed down by Jim Stehley. The schedule called for him to vie with R. S. Yorgesen in the finals of that flight, but due to a conflict the latter golfer will not be able to compete today, giving Stehley the crown by forfeit.

All the championship and consolation rounds of today will be of 18-hole duration. A barbecue supper at 6:30 for everyone competing in the tournament is also scheduled at the Club.

Maxwell Nabs Lead As Bolt Skyrockets

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Billy Maxwell, the Texas red head, was in a very strong position today to win his first golf tournament in a year. He could ask nothing better than a 4-stroke lead going into the final round and that's what he boasts in the $35,000 Dallas Open.

Maxwell fired a 2-under-par 68 for a 54-hole total of 206 Sunday to move from second into the lead as tempestuous Tommy Bolt, the angry man of the links, skied to a 78 and fell down to a tie for 17th at 215. Bolt had led at the halfway mark with 137.

Johnny Pott, the Dallas Open champion in 1960, was in contention with a par 70 that gave him 210 and second place. Jack Nicklaus, the National Open champion, shot a 68 to tie Juan Rodriguez, the Puerto Rican, for third at 211. Rodriguez had a 69.

Billy's great approaching was the story of Sunday's round. He was getting so close the law of averages gave him a large percentage of his putts. He had putting trouble on only one hole where he took three strokes and he had another bogey when he drove into a rut on an asphalt walk.

Heat Taking Toll In Grid Workouts

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Southern Methodist University center Mike Kelsey died Sunday after suffering an apparent heat stroke during football practice and at least five other Southwest Conference gridders were hospitalized by similar attacks.

Kelsey, 20, a 200-pound junior from Corpus Christi, died in Baylor Hospital without regaining consciousness after he collapsed Saturday. His temperature shot to 110 degrees and death was attributed to a heat stroke although the football practice was conducted in 77-degree weather. A spokesman for SMU said no autopsy was performed.

Kelsey's death was the first in college football in the nation this season but was the second among college and high school players in Texas.

Raul Rodriguez, 16, an end for San Felipe High School in Del Rio, suffered a dizzy spell and collapsed during practice Thursday. He died Friday.

At Austin, University of Texas guard Reggie Grob of Spring Branch was described as being in serious condition after he collapsed Saturday during a workout in 95-degree weather.

Coach Darrell Royal said that although Grob had regained consciousness, he remained in the intensive care ward of an Austin hospital because of a kidney misfunction apparently caused by the heat stroke.

Two other University of Texas players — guards Jim Basselman and Lee Hensley—were hospitalized after being felled by the heat during practice but were to be released today.

Two Texas A&M players — end Ronnie Carpenter and guard John Brink—were hospitalized Saturday after collapsing in hot and humid weather as Southwest Conference teams opened fall training. Carpenter is expected to be out of action for at least two weeks.

Royal said Sunday night that the Longhorns will break all future practice sessions into 30-minute periods and that during breaks each player will be required to take a salt tablet with every eight ounces of water.

Assistant SMU coach Charlie Driver said that during a defensive drill Saturday "Mike held up his hand to me and said 'Coach, I can't go.'"

Driver said that Kelsey collapsed soon after reaching the sideline.

Teammates said that Kelsey seemed to be in top physical shape when the workout started but assistant coach Herman Morgan said Kelsey appeared ill during an offensive drill and asked to be excused. He later rejoined the practice for the defensive drill.

An attending physician said that "all indications point to a heat stroke" but he added that a heat stroke was unusual "no hotter than it was."

Members of the SMU football coaching staff and squad will be honorary pallbearers when funeral services for Kelsey are held at 3 p.m. today at the Highland Park Methodist Church.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Jo-Anne Gunderson has no intention of turning professional, despite the par-busting golf she played in winning her third U.S. women's amateur golf championship last week.

"I like to play golf solely for fun,' says Gundy, who manages to escape the pressures that dog most outstanding athletes. "I like to win, sure, but I don't want golf ever to become more than a game.

"That traveling around from place to place isn't for me. I want to win the women's national open as an amateur in competition with professionals, and I'd like to win the British women's amateur. But that's as far as it goes.'

"I probably won't touch a club for a month," she said while recounting her 9 and 8 victory over 17-year-old Ann Baker of Maryville, Tenn., in Saturday's final at the 6,161-yard, par 36-36—72 Country Club of Rochester course.

If she happens to pick up a club by mistake, she'll likely find it still sizzling from the golf she played in winning her third national amateur title in the last six years. She also won in 1957, when she was 18, and in 1960.

During the 28 holes the scheduled 36-hole match lasted, the 23-year-old strawberry blonde was 3-under-par. She had seven birdles and an eagle included in her performance. They led to a 2-under-par 70, bettering the course record, in the morning round, after which Gundy led 6 up, and a 1-under-par 35 on the front nine of the second round.

Bad Memories Haunt Giants On Return To Green Bay

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Giants return to the scene of one of their wildest football nightmares tonight when they visit Green Bay, Wis., to battle the National League champion Green Bay Packers in an exhibition scrap.

It was in the proud Wisconsin community where the Giants met the vaunted Packers last Dec. 31 for the 1961 NFL crown and came away with a humiliating 37-0 spanking.

Nobody has been able to master the Packers since that memorable afternoon. Green Bay has marched past four pre-season foes and is one of two remaining undefeated NFL clubs. The other is the Cleveland Browns.

The Giants haven't fared too well so far this exhibition season. They've won one, a 31-24 triumph over the Los Angeles Rams; tied one and lost one.

Green Bay has scored 17 straight exhibition victories, having last been beaten 14-0 at Bangor, Maine, in 1959 by the Giants.

Minnesota's Vikings, fired by quarterback Fran Tarkenton's brilliant passing, put the only blemish on Baltimore's exhibition record Sunday by spanking the Colts 24-13.

Cleveland remained unbeaten Saturday night with a last-ditch rally that nipped the Rams at Los Angeles 26-24. The Washington Redskins ended an 18-game losing streak in exhibition action Saturday night by edging the Chicago Bears at Norfolk, Va., 29-28.

In other NFL games, the Philadelphia Eagles routed the Pittsburgh Steelers at Hershey, Pa., 34-14; the Detroit Lions trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals at Omaha 19-14, and the San Francisco 49ers bombed the Dallas Cowboys at Sacramento, Calif., 26-7.

The only activity in the American Football League Saturday night saw the San Diego Chargers clip the New York Titans at San Diego 14-9 and the Buffalo Bills squeeze by the Boston Patriots at Boston 7-6.

Tarkenton tossed two touchdown passes in the third quarter against the Colts at Minneapolis-St. Paul, erasing a 10-3 advantage Baltimore held at the half. His payoff pitches were 2 yards to Hugh McElhenny and 6 yards to Gordie Smith.

Cleveland waited until the final 57 seconds to best the Rams. With time running out, quarterback Jim Ninowski found John Brewer with a 21-yard pass that produced the Browns' second fourth-period touchdown and nailed down the decision.

Trailing 10-0 at halftime, the Browns got back in the game with Ninowski's 50-yard pass to Rich Kreitling. After that, Los Angeles moved far out front 24-3 on Zeke Bratkowski's 84-yard strike to Duane Allen and Jon Arnett's 1-yard run.

Washington's Norman Snead hit Fred Dugan with passes of 17, 26 and 8 yards for touchdowns and Bob Khayat kicked field goals of 37, 19 and 22 yards in upending the Bears, who haven't won in four tests.

Substitute quarterback King Hill came to Philadelphia's rescue in the second quarter against Pittsburgh and hit Tommy McDonald with payoff passes good for 48 and 26 yards. The Eagles now have a 3-1 record.

Detroit picked up its third victory in four outings by driving 28 yards in the fourth period against St. Louis. Tom Watkins' 9-yard burst, Milt Plum's 11-yard flip to Ken Webb and Webb's drive over center from the 2 turned the trick.

Nineteen points in the final quarter produced San Francisco's victory over Dallas. After Tommy Davis broke a 7-7 deadlock with a 33-yard field goal on the last quarter's first play, John Brodie came up with the big blow, a 65-yard pass to Bernie Casey for six points.

In the AFL, Cookie Gilchrist's conversion gave Buffalo its close triumph over Boston after Al Dorow had tied the game at 6-6 with a 1-yard quarterback sneak in the final quarter. Boston's only points came on Gino Cappalletti's 30 and 40-yard field goals.

Jack Kemp and Lance Alworth were the big guns in San Diego's conquest of the Titans. Kemp flipped two touchdown passes of 48 and 5 yards, both to Alworth.

Austin Gains Playoff Berth

By The Associated Press

The Austin Senators completed the Texas League playoff field by trouncing the San Antonio Missions 6-2 Sunday night and capturing fourth place in the regular season competition.

Tulsa drubbed Amarillo 8-2 and Albuquerque racked up El Paso 6-3 in games that didn't affect the relative standings of the teams.

The same teams meet in Labor Day performances but the tilts will be anti-climaxial.

For the fifth place Missions, who lost their big chance Monday night, and the hapless Amarillo Gold Sox, who never had a chance, it will be the end of the season. For the other four squads the games will provide practice for the playoffs.

The loop-leading El Paso Sun Kings will meet the Senators and second-place Tulsa and third-place Albuquerque will tangle in the first round of the playoffs.

Stakes Races In Spotlight

By The Associated Press

Two $100,000-added races headline the Labor Day program at the nation's thoroughbred tracks, with Carry Back and Ridan clashing at New York in the Aqueduct stakes and Prove It going for his sixth straight stakes victory in the Washington Park Handicap at Chicago.

The $30,000-added Del Mar Handicap highlights that California track's holiday program, while Atlantic City offers the $25,000-added Pageant Handicap and the $20,000-added Labor Day handicap tops the Hazel Park program. Labor Day Handicaps also top the card at Rockingham and Lincoln Downs.

Indianapolis Reigns Again

By The Associated Press

The Indianapolis Indians are champions of the American Association for the second straight year, and now all that remains of the regular season shambles is to settle the next three places for post-season playoff berths.

The Tribe split a Sunday doubleheader with Louisville, but got their big assist from Denver's Bears.

Denver nailed second place Omaha twice, 4-3 and 8-2, and knocked the Dodgers 10 games off the pace. Both Indianapolis and Omaha have eight games left to play.

At Louisville, the Colonels went 11 innings to win 1-0, then bowed to the champions 3-1 in the nightcap. Dallas-Fort Worth beat Oklahoma City 4-1, then lost 7-6 in a 10-inning affair.

Omaha and Denver are assured of playoff berths, and Louisville needs only three victories in its 10 remaining games to join the post-season society. Those four teams then will duel with the winner representing the American Association in the Junior World Series.

Mrs. Katherine Price's Carry Back, world's third biggest money winner with $1,134,650, heads the 1⅛ mile Aqueduct under 128 pounds. The J.G.W. Stable's Ridan, 3-year-old ace challenging older horses, has 123. Carry Back leaves later this month for Paris and Europe's richest race, the Prix de L'Arc de Trimphe at Longchamp. Carry Back is 4-5 favorite, Ridan is 2-1.

Fred W. Hooper's Crozier, 114, and Calumet Farm's Yorky, 119, also are entered in the seven-horse lineup. The winner will get $70,985 if all seven start in the race, grossing $109,300.

A dozen were named for the mile Washington Park Handicap to be raced at Arlington Park. Prove It packs 131 pounds and is listed as 7-5 choice, going as an entry with Wallet Lifter, 111.

Seven were entered for the 1⅛-mile Del Mar feature, a wide open event headed by Vista Hermosa Farm's Crazy Kid, 120, and Wonder Y ranch's Sea Orbit, 122.

Three-year-old fillies clash in the Pageant, a mile event on the Atlantic City grass course. Harbor View Farm's Royal Patrice and Darby Dan Farm's Polylady, who finished 1-2 in Arlington's Pucker Up Handicap last month, top the field of nine. Both carry 123 pounds.

Nine were named for the Hazel Park feature at 1 1-16 miles with Grand Wizard and Tin God the highweights at 116 pounds apiece.

Giants Invade Los Angeles

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The San Francisco Giants are in town for the biggest National League series of the year, and they couldn't have found a more hostile environment if their plane had landed on the moon.

The Giants haven't won a game here in more than a year. Now, in a four-game series opening today, they must win at least three times to make any headway at all on the league-leading Dodgers.

Los Angeles awaited the Giants with all the cordiality of a lynch mob. The fans were equipped with duck calls—hoping to break the National League record for most vulgar noises in one series—and the infield at Dodger Stadium was as hard as the Hollywood Freeway.

The Giants, trailing by 3½ games as the series opened, planned to pitch Jack Sanford (19-6), Billy Pierce (13-4), Juan Marichal (17-10) and Billy O'Dell (16-12) in that order. The Dodger rotation was Stan Williams (12-9), Pete Richert (4-3), Johnny Podres (12-10) and Don Drysdale (23-7).

Birchers Shunned By Both Parties

NEW YORK (AP)—The Republican and Democratic national chairmen each attempted in a television debate Sunday to link the John Birch Society to members of the opposing party—not his own.

Republican William E. Miller and Democrat John M. Bailey appeared on the first of eight weekly broadcasts on "The Campaign and the Candidates" over NBC.

NBC newsmen Chet Huntley and David Brinkley asked the questions on the hour-long program, taped in Washington last Thursday.

Huntley asked the debaters to account for the "rather sudden appearance of groups like the John Birch Society."

Miller said he doesn't know whether most of the members of the ultra-conservative Birch Society are Democrats or Republicans. But he said the society has many chapters in Texas and he presumes that many of the members there are Democrats.

Bailey replied: "The John Birch Society and the Republican party are pretty close together."

Miller shot back: "That is not true, and you know it."

Huntley asked Miller and Bailey if they disowned the John Birch Society.

Each answered that there is no need for his party to disown the Birch Society — meaning that there has never been any connection to disclaim.

Miller said of the administration's medical care bill: "The program is very bad and I think that is why it was defeated in the Senate by the Democrats and Republicans alike." Miller said 11 Democratic committee chairmen voted against the plan in the Senate.

Miller said his party has supported President Kennedy about 48 per cent of the time in the House and about 40 per cent in the Senate.

Bailey said to Miller: "On the real vital issues you have tied up with the Dixiecrats."

"They are your party," Miller retorted.

Bailey claimed that "since 1961, the country has been run pretty well under President Kennedy."

"That is a purely personal opinion," Miller replied.

Log Saves Youth, 17

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AP)—A log held fast by rocks saved a 17-year-old boy from being swept over the Horseshoe Falls Sunday night by swift currents of the Niagara River.

Richard Nicholson of Kenmore, who escaped with only cuts on both knees, said, "I thought it was all over for me if I missed that log."

Nicholson said he swam for all he was worth to reach the log 300 feet above the falls.

"I'm not a particularly good swimmer and the current was strong," he said.

He was pulled from the water by a bystander, who tied a rope around his waist and waded 20 feet out to the log.

Nicholson said he jumped on top of a spillway retaining wall here, thinking there was dry land on the other side.

"Before I could catch myself, I fell into the spillway and was swept into the river," he said.

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Premier Constantine Caramanlis conferred today, and the Greek premier reportedly put on more pressure for new American aid commitments.

The Greeks are openly disappointed over a $20 million cut in U.S. aid ordered last July.

The vice president flies to Rome Tuesday.

President On Visit With His Father

By CORNELIUS F. HURLEY

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—President Kennedy interrupted his Labor Day weekend today to take a helicopter flight to Hyannis Port, Mass., for a visit with his ailing father, Joseph P. Kennedy.

The President planned to join his father for a cruise on the family yacht, Marlin, and return to Newport late in the afternoon.

The President went to sea Sunday despite rain and clouds, boarding the Coast Guard ocean racing yacht, the 62-foot yawl Manitou, with Mrs. Kennedy and a large party of guests for two hours on the water.

The voyage aboard the Manitou took him out to the area where the yacht races for the America's Cup start Sept. 15, with an Australian challenger, Gretel, meeting the U.S. defender, Weatherly.

The Kennedys attended Mass at St. Mary's church where they were married nine years ago. A crowd of 500 was on hand, held back by police ropes, as the President and Mrs. Kennedy entered and left the church near downtown Newport.

Afterwards the President took a swim in a heated pool at Bailey's Beach, which fronts on the ocean in the section filled by Newport's famous mansions.

Mrs. Kennedy wore a yellow dress for church, and donned a bright yellow slicker for the sail.

Sailing party guests included Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., with his wife and daughter, and Mrs. Kennedy's half-sister and half-brother, Janet and Jamie Auchincloss.

The President issued Labor Day statements lauding the achievements and goals of American working men, and announcing an international conference to provide more trained manpower for economic development of other lands.

The international labor conference is to be held in Puerto Rico Oct. 10-12 under sponsorship of the U.S. Peace Corps.

Hunt Padlock From Switch

GREENWOOD, Ind. (AP)—Railroad detectives and FBI agents today hunted a padlock missing from a siding switch as the key to a freight train derailment which killed one crewman and injured three others.

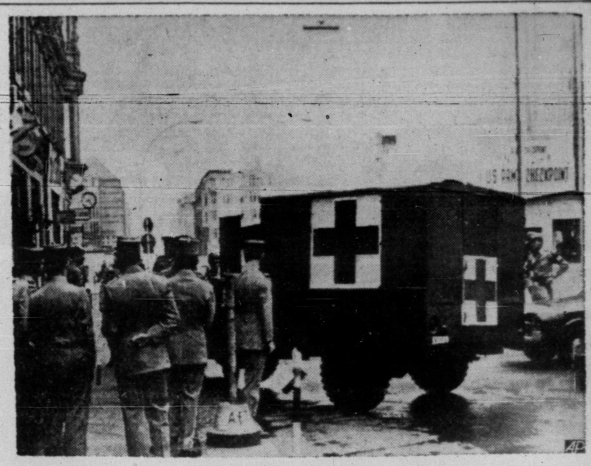

The switch, normally locked, was open late Saturday night when a 55-car Pennsylvania Railroad train hit it at high speed, leaping from the main tracks and scattering itself across a muddy field.

"There is every indication the switch was tampered with," said a railroad spokesman. "Whether it was thrown deliberately to cause the derailment is something else. The lock is missing and we're looking for it."

A fireman, Jacob B. Kranz, 59, Sellersburg, died of a broken neck as all three diesel units and 23 of the cars left the rails. The engineer, another fireman, and a brakeman were hurt, none of them seriously.

Klan Crosses Flame In 14 Towns Of North Louisiana

By The Associated Press

Ku Klux Klan crosses flamed in 14 north Louisiana towns and at the state Capitol in a blazing demonstration against integration during the Labor Day weekend. The Georgia hooded order planned a large rally tonight at racially troubled Albany.

A Louisiana Klan spokesman, who declined to reveal his name, said the Saturday night cross burnings were intended to show the KKK has reactivated in Louisiana and is "publicly demonstrating resentment to integration."

"Our forefathers fought and died for their principles and beliefs and we stand ready to do the same, if necessary, to preserve our way of life," he said in a statement given to a newspaper.

At Baton Rouge, five fire trucks were called out to douse a 4-foot cross that blazed in front of the 32-story state Capitol building. Crosses also flared before three Negro schools and a Negro minister's house in north Louisiana.

In Georgia, the grand dragon of the United Klans of America Inc., said a 7 p.m. rally would be staged in Albany "to show that the white people of the South are tired of federal and northern intervention."

Grand Dragon Calvin Craig predicted there would be more than 1,000 persons at the meeting on private property just outside the city limits of Albany in southwest Georgia.

Craig said Klansmen in Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and South Carolina had been asked to attend the rally.

In another Albany development, eight churchmen who are on the sixth day of a prison fast sent an open letter to President Kennedy urging him to bring Negro and white Albany leaders together in an effort to resolve the city's racial differences.

They were among 75 clergymen and laymen arrested last Tuesday during a prayer vigil protesting segregation. Most of the others posted $200 bonds.

In Washington, 19 Negroes from Hartford, Conn., 12 of them children, said a brief silent prayer before the White House for the Negroes of Albany.

In Spring Hope, N.C., Police Chief Opie Pate was looking for the leaders of an estimated 300 Negroes who stormed the jail in an unsuccessful attempt to force officers to release a man arrested for beating a woman.

Pate said he understood some of the ringleaders "already have gone back to New Jersey." He was bruised and suffered an injured wrist in the Saturday night scuffle.

Both segregation and integration groups picketed an All-Nations Day festival in a segregated amusement park at Woodlawn near Baltimore, Md. About 40 officers were on hand but no arrests were made. Six embassies and the Pan American Union withdrew exhibits from the festival last week because of the park's segregation policy.

The school board at Prince Edward County, Va., has made public a "desegregation plan" which apparently assumes no white youngsters will attend the public schools if they are reopened.

The document specifies the board will pay for schools for 1,250 pupils, provided county supervisors appropriate necessary funds. That number of pupils corresponds roughly with the number of school-age Negroes in the county where public schools closed three years ago to avert court-ordered desegregation. White pupils have been attending private segregated schools.

At Englewood, N.J., Negro attorney Paul Zuber said an Integrationist group planned to boycott Lincoln Elementary School at the start of classes Wednesday to protest what was described as racial imbalance. Enrollment at the school was 98 per cent Negro last year.

Twenty Negroes swam at the recently integrated Riverside Park pool in Baltimore while about 500 persons watched. There was some jeering but no violence. Order was maintained by 70 policemen, reinforced by police dogs.

TV Actor-Writer To Face Charge

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Police have booked a television actor and writer on suspicion of murder in the death of his roommate.

Robert Richards, 34, was booked Saturday after an autopsy disclosed that James Yarbrough, 44, died Friday night from inhalation of his own blood. Yarbrough was once a director on the "Rawhide" show.

Richards told officers he slapped Yarbrough to keep him awake after the director took an overdose of pills.

Yarbrough died in an ambulance en route to the hospital.

Freeze In Mountains

By The Associated Press

It was chilly this morning in the northern plains and Rocky Mountain region with freezing weather in some areas.

Seasonable temperatures prevailed in most other parts of the nation. Showers dampened areas in the northern plains and the Southeast.

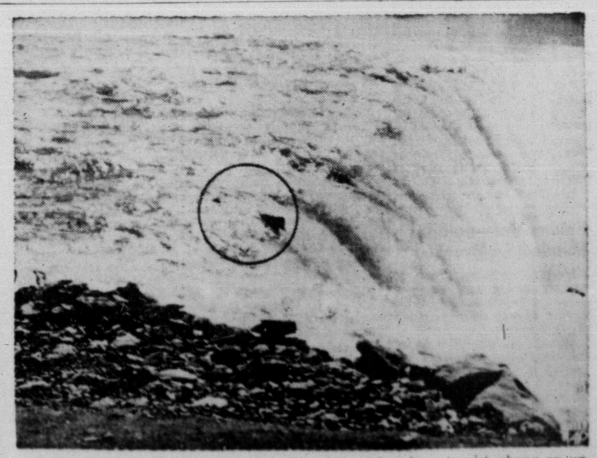

Northerly winds fanned cold Canadian air into the northern plains and Rockies. The mercury dropped to 32 in Great Falls, Mont., Sunday night and readings in the 30s were general in nearby areas.

In other parts of the country temperatures ranged from the 50s in New England and northern sections of the Great Lakes to the lower 80s along the Gulf Coast and to the 90s in the Southwest desert region.

Another Blast Is Fired By Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has fired another nuclear test blast in the arctic atmosphere, the Atomic Energy Commission reports.

The AEC said Sunday night the explosion in the vicinity of Novaya Zemlya was in the intermediate yield range, between 20,000 tons and one million tons of TNT. The shot was the ninth announced by the AEC in the current Soviet series.

RADIATOR COMPONENTS DISPLAYED—Frank D. Stephenson, "The Radiator Man" shows the various parts of a radiator and indicates the most important part — the core. Stephenson can use the lower and upper tanks and the anchorage or "harness" and replace only your worn-out core. Cost of replacement of the original two-tube core with a new heavy duty three-tube core is less than replacement of the entire radiator with the standard two-tube core. In addition to auto radiators the service is available for heater cores, and radiators for trucks, tractors, and specialized industrial equipment including road machinery, combines and oil field engines.

Now Is The Time To Service Radiators, Says Stephenson

Has winter's first cold spell ever caught you with your radiator down?

Almost everyone who owns a car or truck has been caught in that plight, Frank D. Stephenson, owner of Snyder Radiator Service, 1105 Ave. T, said.

And "The Radiator Man" knows whereof he speaks too, because his shop becomes one of West Texas' busiest places during such times.

"Many car and truck radiators which apparently give no trouble during the summer, reveal a leak or start heating up when anti-freeze is put in for the first time each winter," he said.

"A small leak or clogged tube usually doesn't cause much trouble during summer months, because water can be added to keep the level up, but in winter when anti-freeze is lost, serious damage can result to your car," he said.

Heater elements too, which may have developed tiny leaks during the summer will also cause trouble when anti-freeze is added. These problems, like the cooling system problems, can be taken care of easily by Snyder Radiator Service.

Stephenson suggests that if your car is several months or perhaps a few years old, it would be a wise idea to have the cooling system checked and repaired or cleaned if it needs it—before the first cold spell.

"Only a few minutes are required to check the system, and any repairs can usually be done in just a few hours while the shop is not too busy," he said.

"However if you wait until the cold weather hits, the radiator shops will be 'snowed under' and repair work will be delayed, sometimes causing much inconvenience," he said.

Stephenson has a modern and complete radiator repair shop and offers repair and service on all types of radiators from the small heater radiators to the largest oil-field and industrial units.

Radiators for most popular models are kept in stock at all times. For older models or special radiators, overnight delivery can be had, with some orders coming in as quickly as three hours after they are placed.

All work done by Snyder Radiator Service is guaranteed.

Soblen Memorandum Handed To Brooke

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Robert A. Soblen's lawyers today presented a 20-page memorandum from the fugitive spy to Home Secretary Henry Brooke.

Although the contents were not disclosed, Soblen presumably was making a last-ditch attempt to stave off deportation to the United States, where he faces a life sentence as a wartime Soviet spy.

The 61-year-old psychiatrist presumably asked Brooke either to grant him political asylum in Britain or to allow him to leave Britain for some country offering him asylum, as Communist Czechoslovakia has.

Indian Tribes Assembled In Pow-Wow

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — On the tree-lined banks of the Oconaluftee River today stood the wigwams of the Comanche, Mohigans, Cheyenne and Crow.

Here, too, are the Apache, Sioux, Chipewa and a thousand braves from scores of other Indian tribes, gathered for a gigantic pow-wow on this Cherokee Indian reservation of the Smoky mountains.

It is officially billed as the 19th annual convention of the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI), and this is the first time it's been staged east of the Mississippi River.

In tribal regalia, the Indians from 75 tribes arriving for the six-day convention—and the palefaces who came to watch—created a bumper-to-bumper traffic situation Sunday that lasted well into the night.

Many Indians gathered in groups for some Indian politicking. A vice president is to be elected, and the office carries plenty of prestige.

Three candidates considered the favorites are incumbent Nelson Jose, a Pima Indian from Sacaton, Ariz.; John Shaw, an Oklahoma Osage from Burbank, Okla., and Chief Osley Bird Saunooke of the host Eastern band of Cherokees.

Walter Wetzel, chief of the Blackfeet of Montana, is president of the NCAI, which was organized in Denver in 1944.

A colorful parade, with the Indians in full tribal costume, was to get the convention under way today. John W. Carver Jr., assistant secretary of the Interior, will make the keynote address. Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., also is on today's program.

There also will be a buffalo barbecue, war dancing contests, various tribal ceremonies and an Indian stickball game, a contest in which anything goes.

Dr. Walter R. Miles, chief scientist of the U.S. Naval submarine base at New London, Conn., who introduced red goggles to pilots in World War II, was given the highest honor in American psychology.

He received a gold medal at the American Psychological Association convention at St. Louis in recognition of his contributions to psychological research on aging and on sensory processes.

As a consultant to the armed forces during World War II, Miles introduced red goggles which, while preparing pilots for seeing in the dark for night flights, made it possible for them to read and play cards during the long waits.

John Barrymore Jr. announced in Rome that his wife, Gabriella, had given birth to a daughter, the first child of the couple, married in October 1960. Barrymore has a son, John, from a previous marriage to actress Cara Williams.

Barrymore said the girl will be named Blyth which, he said, is the real name of the Barrymore family.

The elderly daughters of Peter J. McGuire, the founder of Labor Day, said that if he were alive today he would be concerned that the day "has taken a lot of political background."

The daughters, Kathryn Caya, 75, and Lillian McGuire, 76, live in Collingswood, N.J., not far from their father's grave.

Mrs. Caya said that her father believed "labor and politics don't mix."

The first Labor Day was celebrated Sept. 5, 1882, the same year that McGuire, an organizer of the AFL, proposed that the workingman should have a holiday of his own.

Former President Herbert Hoover was reported "progressing nicely," getting out of bed for longer periods and taking more nourishment at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York City.

The 88-year-old ex-president was operated on last Tuesday for removal of an intestinal tumor.

JFK Needs Plenty Of Luck To Get Action On Program

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has rough going ahead in final-month attempts to salvage some major segments of his legislative program in a weary and cranky Congress.

Kennedy's lieutenants apparently are going to need the luck of the Irish, plus some fast footwork on compromises, to get approval of eight proposals the President wants wrapped up before members begin belated intensive campaigning about Oct. 1.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, deputy Senate Democratic leader, said he is confident that when the firing is over the Democratic-controlled Congress will wind up with "a solid record of substantial achievement."

But Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said he thinks that what the sesson hasn't accomplished "is greater than what it has accomplished."

Senators straggling back from a long Labor Day weekend will resume debate Tuesday on the administration's tax revision bill. The few House members expected to put in an appearance will confine themselves to routine chores for the rest of the week.

The tax bill situation in the Senate offers an example of the administration's difficulties in getting most of its major legislation into a final form satisfactory to Kennedy.

The President is being urged to accept an amendment to the measure which would provide for tax deductions for self-employed persons who set up qualified retirement funds. Kennedy, who has been reluctant to back such a provision, has been told that the Senate is going to put it on the bill and he might as well claim what credit he can for that action.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said there is increasing opposition within the Senate Finance Committee to House-approved terms of Kennedy's international trade bill.

The committee won't get down to final work on the measure until the Senate takes final action on the tax bill. Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said that action could come late in the week.

The administration's battered farm legislation is getting a new going over in a Senate-House conference committee. Most of the controls teeth Kennedy originally proposed have been pulled. Others may be extracted in final compromises.

A House-passed postal rate increase measure is still locked up in Senate committee. It may be combined with pay increases for postal and other federal employes that Kennedy won't be prepared to swallow.

A $900-million public works bill the administration wants to help fend off any recession has to be run through the House mill again because of a minor clerical error. If it is cleared again, the drive will be on to get Senate acceptance.

The administration's foreign aid money bill and the Senate-passed measure to authorize the purchase of $100 million in United Nations bonds are in deep trouble. The House won't even take up the measures until later in the month, when adjournment fever will be at its height.

About the only bright spot centers on the Senate-passed drug safety bill. When it gets around to it, the House is expected to whip through a similar measure.

Mariner 2 Makes First Maneuver

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Scientists said today that U.S. spacecraft Mariner 2 has successfully completed the first of two key maneuvers en route to its December rendezvous with Venus.

Mariner swung a yard-wide antenna around Sunday and focused it on earth—sending a powerful radio beam back across the 1.2 million miles now separating Mariner from its home planet.

Space scientists pondered the data coming in from Mariner to decide when to have it perform the next maneuver: the firing of a rocket engine to aim it into Venusian skies. This may be done some time today.

The rocket is needed to correct Mariner's course through space. On its present course it would miss Venus by 233,000 miles—too far for the experiments Mariner is to make as it nears the solar system's most mysterious planet.

The midcourse maneuver can correct the course to bring Mariner only 10,000 miles from the cloud-shrouded planet, according to experts at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena.

The antenna maneuver was performed by Mariner on command of a timer aboard the 447-pound craft.

The midcourse maneuver will be on an order from the ground.

An official of Jet Propulsion laboratory, builder of Mariner 2, said, "The earth acquisition maneuver was carried out successfully, and results are being evaluated."

"Earth acquisition" is the term for pointing Mariner's directional antenna at the earth. The antenna can transmit a narrow beam of radio signals up to 64 million miles—but it has to be pointed at the point in space where the signal is to be received.

Up to now Mariner has been sending signals from an omni-directional antenna which has a range of only 8 million miles.

Mariner has to travel more than 180 million miles on its long, looping journey from earth to Venus. When Mariner reaches the vicinity of Venus in December it will be 36 million miles from earth.

Loew May Not Press Complaint

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film executive Arthur Loew Jr. says its an "iffy question" whether he'll press a criminal complaint against a French actress who smashed a brandy snifter in his face.

Agnes Laurent, 26, has admitted throwing the glass in Loew's face Friday night during dinner at a Polynesian restaurant. Doctors took nine stitches to close cuts in Loew's face.

Loew filed the assault with a deadly weapon complaint Saturday but said Sunday he is undecided about prosecuting it.

Miss Laurent said Loew, 36, had been needling her during the dinner. He denied it.
