Stakes Girl's Life On Faith Healer

A father's faith in the power of prayer to heal—so strong that he would stake the life of his daughter on it—was shunted by the law to give the child medical treatment for second and third degree burns. The girl, Frances Mitchell, is recovering in a Houston, Texas hospital, after a court order remanded her to the custody of a probation officer over her parents' protests. The 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Mitenke is shown above, left, with her nurse, Miss Gloria Cates.

NORWEGIANS, ALLIES SHOW SOLID FRONT

Driven Into New Positions by German Assault

By The Associated Press
Allied and Norwegian forces, pushed out of shattered Steinkjer by a furious German assault, dug into new positions six miles north today and presented an unbroken front to Nazi soldiers in that sector of embattled Norway.

While the fighting raged in the Steinkjer area, a German flank- ing force was speeding up the Glomma river in eastern Norway near the Swedish border. That force was converging on the town of Roros, 180 miles north of Oslo and about 100 miles south of Steinkjer, on a straight line.

The strategy of the German forces seemed to be to cut off the allied forces in the vicinity of Lillehammer, 90 miles above Oslo, and to control the main line of communications inland from strategically located Trondheim.

Reports on the Norway land fighting, through Stockholm, told of a pitched battle at Steinkjer, 50 miles northeast of Trondheim, where reinforced German battalions met and beat back allied and Norwegian troops. Steinkjer was reported in German hands, but the Nazis' opponents were said to be still holding many important positions north of the town.

The picturesque fjord hamlet was a shell of a town, blasted by artillery and air bombardment.

At Narvik, the situation was reported unchanged, with the allies organizing their forces to fall on that important iron ore port.

Southeast, several thousand more allied troops were under- stood to have reached the Lillehammer area, from where they will try to fan out through south Norway.

LOBO BAND LEAVES FOR STATE MEET

Soloists and ensemble groups from the Cisco Lobo band left early this morning with their director, R. L. Collier, for Abilene, where they were to participate in Region Two Texas Music Educators' association competition and festival, being held today, Friday and Saturday at Fair Park grounds.

It was reported that approximately 200 contestants representing more than 45 bands would compete in the solo and ensemble groups, with more than 2,000 expected for Friday's and Saturday's activities.

Cisco band members competing today are: soloists, Ralph McCannell, bass; Mary Woods, alto saxophone; Paul Ely, cornet; Glenn Tableman, cornet; Burkett Huestis, baritone, and Glenn Boyd baritone.

Ensemble groups competing are: Brass sextette, Glenn Tableman, Oran Clark, James Flournoy, F. E. Sage, Ralph McCannell and Glenn Boyd.

Brass quartette: Paul Ely, Oran Clark, F. E. Sage and Arthur Johnson.

Woodwind trio: Eugenia Jackson, Patty Boyd and Clyde Isaacs.

Twirlers: H. F. Litchfield, Roy Brock and Jesse Cleveland.

The remainder of the members will go to Abilene Friday to compete with 15 other Class B bands against a set standard of rating.

The Cisco group was rated superior in last year's contest, and this high standard is expected to be upheld this year. Playing begins at 9:30 Saturday morning.

Marching exhibitions will begin at 7:30 Saturday evening at Hardin-Simmons athletic field. There will be a small admission charge, proceeds to be used to defray expenses of the meet.

Marching contests, colorful and snappy, have always been a drawing card to the general public.

Because of superior rating in last year's national marching contest, the Cisco group will be ineligible to compete Saturday night, but will give an exhibition march immediately following Class B competition.

Judges for the band playing and solo contests for the three days are: Everett McCracken, Baylor university bands' director, senior judge; Weldon Covington, Austin band director; Glenn Johnson, Texas College of Mines; Charles S. Eskeridge, Lubbock band director; James Nevins, Slaton band director; D. W. Crain, Abilene Christian college; Herbert M. Preston and E. Edwin Young, both of Hardin-Simmons university.

Next night an avalanche tipped the inn off its rock foundations and dumped a part of it on the Grindelwald glacier a thousand feet below.

SERIAL STORY

BET ON LOVE

BY CHARLES B. PARMER

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
 SHERRY BOND — Society girl, owner of race horse, Pepper Boy.
 PAUL WHARTON — Rival owner, determined to teach Sherry that racing is not a woman's game.
 SHERP GRANT — Young gentleman rider.
 WILLIE BOND — Sherry's uncle, a turf "adviser."

CHAPTER I

Night blanketed the race track. The figure of a slim girl—a moving silhouette against the gloom—crossed the darkened infield. Behind her under pale stars, loomed the grand stand, ghostlike in the darkness—empty, silent, now that its 15,000 spectators were gone and dreaming of winning fortunes on the morrow.

A few lights blinked among stables. Then the door of a tack-room opened—a sliver of a youth stepped out, shut quickly the door behind him. He stood motionless, focusing his eyes in the blackness. "Hey, Ed!" He turned, called softly through a lighted door-crack. "That dame's comin' down to her horse stable all right. Must be fixin' to start her colt tomorrow."

A tired voice asked: "How you know it's her?"
 "Huh! I can name a horse a mile off. By its gait. Same goes for fillies wearin' skirts. Besides—"

"You better be sure."
 "Besides," the jockey went on, "ain't no other girl on the race track got that swell a figger. Anyway, ain't no other dame got a horse stable behind us. She's a beauty! Got blue eyes—"

"Heck! You can't see eyes that far—"

"Saw 'em today—close up. She's the prettiest dame I ever saw—I don't blame Mr. Wharton for bein' sweet on her."

"Never mind that! You dog her down the line. Can't make no mistakes this late in the game." The girl, not seeing the jockey in the shadows, moved swiftly to Poverty Row, far in the rear. She stopped at an end stable, took out a pocket flash and threw its beam on the wood—a closed stall door streaked with wide cracks. Light rays must have passed through those cracks, for a disturbed horse clumped nervously on the straw inside.

"Get away from that stall!" The girl wheeled, threw her light to the left. It circled a mahogany-colored man with bowed legs, shaking a pitchfork with both hands.
 "You—Sam!"

The wizened fellow blinked his eyes, slowly lowered the pitchfork, said crossly: "Miss Sherry! You know better—you disturbs Pepper Boy—he can't git his rest—won't extend hisself tomorrow—"

"He's my colt! I'll do what I want to—Anyone been here tonight?"
 "That ole big Ed Duster, what trains for Mister Paul Wharton."
 "What did he want to know?"
 "If Pepper boy be up to a hard race tomorrow—"

"So you told him! He was tricking you into talking—"
 "No'm, he ain't tricked this here feller—no, ma'am! I tells him I didn't even know Pepper Boy be ready to start—that if he was my colt—bein' as he's nominated for the Derby, I'd gallop—"

"That's enough! Light the lamp in the tackroom."
 The girl followed the old fellow into a stall at the end of the row—a stall with a wooden floor, whitewashed walls with pegs from which hung two saddles and a brace of bits, and with a ragged but clean blanket folded over a line. The groom took down a brakeman's coal-oil lantern, lit it, placed it on a locker-trunk, which served as a low table. Sam looked at her inquiringly, spoke again in a soft voice:

"Anything else you wants me for, Miss Sherry? I's here."
 He was so loyal—in his way—that she was ashamed of her brusqueness to him. She smiled, said in dismissal: "Thank you, Sam; I'll call you in a few minutes."

Outside, the sliver of a figure hovered in the shadows of a straw-pile, watching, as the groom shambled from the tackroom.

For a moment Sherry Bond stood still—as Sam's footsteps died out. How to explain to him her desperate plight—her urgent need of winning money, instantly, with her colt? He would think she was crazy, or horse ignorant, starting Pepper Boy without a few more strong workouts under his belt. But she had to have money.

She knew Pepper Boy's time like her own name. Only that morning she had clocked him in a 1:41 mile.

To her social world Sherry Bond was a smart post-deb who, following the death of her last lover, had thrown herself into near relation—a penniless aunt—had purchased a fine colt, and gone to the races with him. Just to see her colors flash on the track—that's what her crowd said. Maybe that was the reason she had bought Pepper Boy, but now Pepper Boy had to run fast and often—to earn rent money for herself and for him!

Only that afternoon she had received notice from a small coal company—on whose checks she had been living. Their seam had run out—adjacent land, which they had expected to lease had been gobbled up by a rival concern.

Sherry's outfit was laying shovels down, calling it a day forever. A holding which had been worth $3,000 a year to her now was worth exactly nothing. And she owed everybody: the landlord, the telephone company, the light and gas company, and—yes, the feed man.

She had to have money now—not a month from now. Well, she shrugged, that was the beauty of racing. It was a cash business—of you won. If you did win a race, the winning amount in cash was ready and waiting for you in the secretary's office one minute later. All you had to do was to send a winner to the barrier.

Racing opened on the eastern circuit tomorrow. She had done what many a horseman did—entered her colt in two races: one a $5,000 handicap; the other, a cheap claiming race. She'd start him where she thought he had a sure chance of winning—or at least a fighting chance. Could Pepper Boy win tomorrow? She took down from the shelf a book filled with cabalistic signs and jargon: "... made the mile in 1:40—plenty of late foot." For a long while she pored over race records.

She knew Pepper Boy's time like her own name. Only that morning she had clocked a 1:41 mile.

Not so far away, stars were hovering over Park avenue. A young man in white tie and tails stepped briskly from his car, took the salute of his capped doorman. "Evening, Mr. Wharton," went inside and was carried upstairs by a muted elevator. Ten minutes later he sat behind a Queen Anne desk, the lights of Manhattan gleaming through multicolored casements. He opened a volume crammed with strange symbols and lingo: "... mile workout in 1:41—handily."

The girl and the man—each studying the workouts of the other's colt.

Finally the girl straightened, laid down the book, called: "Sam!" A brown face came out of the night, bony elbows hooked over the half-door. "You call me, Miss Sherry?"

"Sam, think we can beat that big bay colt of Mr. Wharton's—Red Soldier—tomorrow? Nothing else can touch us."

The groom rubbed his white wool, frowned. "Miss Sherry, ain't goin' to do that colt no good, givin' him a hard race tomorrow. He ain't eggaghtly ready."

"Answer my question, please." "Colt ain't never started in a real race—but we got a good chance if the jockey gets him off, fast-like." He thought a moment, added, "Yes'm, if you insists on runnin' him, I think he can win—but he'll shore have to be rid hard. He's trainin' for a route—that be a six-furlong sprint tomorrow."

The girl nodded. Got to her feet. "And if he has a chance of beating Red Soldier in the handicap, then he certainly can win that claiming race—first on the program—same distance, and eight pounds less weight and no fast competition."

"Miss Sherry!" The groom spoke in horrified tones. "You ain't goin' to start him in a claimin' race—where anybody can buy him if they puts up the claimin' price—$2,500? This here colt of ours be worth ten, fifteen, mebbe twenty thousand—"

"We hope he is," she smiled. "He's sho worth more'n $2,500! Some man's goin' to claim him, sure!"

Sherry Bond smiled in superior manner. "Oh, no, they won't! He's been entered in both races. The fact that I chose to send him out

South American Sea Battle Souvenir

AUSTIN, April 25 (Sp.)—Sea-battle souvenir of the five-year struggle between the nineteenth century dictatorship of Paraguay and a combine of three South American allies, a manuscript manual of arms has been acquired by the University of Texas library.

The exhibit is a crudely-bound instruction manual for recruits, captured by a Paraguayan warship by a Brazilian frigate in 1865. Part of the university's recently-purchased Gondra collection of South American source materials, it bears a fly leaf note of presentation from the officer who captured it, a first lieutenant of the Brazilian frigate "Amazon," to his colonel.

Formerly the private library of Dr. Manuel Gondra, twice president of Paraguay, the new collection traces much of the history of the war, which lasted from 1864 to 1865 and left the dictatorship Paraguay drained of men and resources and in a state of revolutionary chaos.

Included in the Gondra library, according to Donald Coney, university librarian, are twenty thousand other pages of manuscript, largest collection of source material on South America now in the United States.

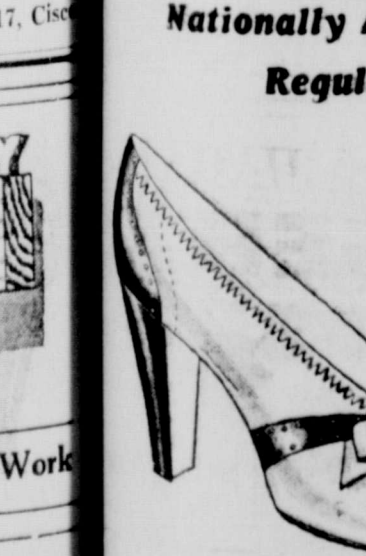

Of the total area of Iceland, six-sevenths is unproductive.

New Manager Succeeds Ed Brown at Laguna

The Laguna hotel went under new management with the arrival of J. W. Davis from Rockdale, Ill., to take over the position held by Ed Brown for the past two and a half years. Mr. Brown will leave Wednesday for Dallas where he will become manager of Cliff Towers, large Oak Cliff hotel, a position he resigned the Cisco place to accept.

Mr. Davis, who has been with National Hotels, owners of the Laguna, for five years, spent two years at Rockford, going there from Texas where he was associated with National hotels at Galveston and Lubbock. He and Mrs. Davis, whom he married at Galveston, arrived Sunday evening.

Mrs. Brown is the former Miss Laura Rupe of Cisco. She and Mr. Brown were married on February 23, 1939, Mr. Brown's birthday. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rupe.

During his residence in Cisco Mr. Brown won many friends and distinguished himself both in the manner in which the Laguna was operated and in civic work with the junior chamber of commerce, of which he became president, the Lions club and other civic organizations.

10 Per Cent Oil Allowable Cut for May

AUSTIN, April 25 (Sp.)—The Texas railroad commission has agreed on a 10 per cent horizontal reduction in the state's oil production next month, a decision calculated to bring the flow of 91,000 wells into line with the federal bureau of mines' estimate of 1,344,200 barrels needed daily to meet May demand.

In announcing the agreement, Member Ernest Thompson said 14 shutdown days would be ordered for the vast east Texas field, which this month has 12. He added the schedule could be completed before tomorrow, and would make adjustments as between fields to eliminate discriminations.

Currently average estimated daily allowable is about 1,528,000 barrels and commission engineers estimate actual production is about 3 per cent below allowable. A slice of 10 per cent in current flow would permit a new statewide figure of approximately 1,375,000 barrels daily.

Keeping Up With The Boy Scouts

Boy Scout Circus

One phase of the circus that is being perfected, along with many others, is the tableaux scenes that will be staged between acts. Much time and effort is being spent on working out themes to appeal to our sense of beauty, as well as depicting different adventures, etc., in the world of scouting.

All tickets have been sent to the scoutmasters and these leaders have been very prompt in notifying the council office of the distribution of these to the scouts. Those scoutmasters who have not sent this word yet, please do so as soon as possible.

Cub Members

Members of Cub Pack 1 of Breckenridge, with Cubmaster Sam G. Houston, and Den Chiefs Norman and William Meador, held their monthly meeting Thursday night at the Methodist church. The business taken care of during that part of the meeting concerned the registration of the pack, which will be completed soon. They plan to have their new troop field, which this month has 12.

New Troops

A meeting Monday night for the organization of a new troop at May was attended by a group of citizens of May. Scout Executive G. N. Quill was present to help with the organization. The troop committee is as follows: Rev. D. L. Barnes, pastor of the Methodist church, chairman; Rev. Floyd Dill, pastor of the Baptist church, Mayfield Gibbs, E. E. McBride, H. V. Glenn, and H. H. Black. This group elected Winifred Cornelius, a former scout of Troop 2, Brownwood, as scoutmaster of the troop. The first troop meeting will be held next Monday night, April 29, at the Methodist church.

The organization work for a new troop at DeLeon has been completed. Rev. J. H. Pritchard, pastor of the Christian church there, will be the scoutmaster. The troop committee, made up of men from the Christian, Methodist and Baptist churches, is as follows: Emmett Locke, chairman; Ruel Locke, J. H. Timmins, Rev. D. D. Tidwell, C. Harvey, E. H. Boulter, Rev. Wilshire, F. G. Adcock and Mr. Collins. So much interest in this troop on the part of the boys of the town and community has been shown that it insures their having a full troop of 32 scouts.

In 1916, the first Piggly Wiggly at Memphis, Tennessee, gave the world Self-Service, Cash and Carry, and National Brands. Piggly Wiggly made manufacturers conscious of "sanitary" packaging, and great strides forward have been made everywhere since. In the year 1936, almost every grocery chain and independent merchant is trying to copy Piggly Wiggly. But, of course, as always, your home-owned, independent Piggly Wiggly leads the field—and always will continue to do so! That's why Piggly Wiggly celebrates this wonderful Parade of Progress.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Show yourselves joyful unto the Lord... Sing and rejoice and give thanks.—Ps. xlviii, 5.

"Rejoice," said the sun, "I will make thee gay
With glory and gladness and holiday.
I am dumb, O man, and I need thy voice."
Autumn came and not rejoiced.
Then a voice that came not
From the sun, moon or stars, or the wind roving far,
Said, "Now I am with thee, hear my voice!"
And man said "I rejoice."

After a season of tears, a sober and softened joy may return to us.—Amiel's Journal.

The War After the War.

NO matter who wins the war now ravaging Europe, no matter what kind of a settlement emerges, one thing is certain. It will be followed by a war for trade scarcely less bitter than the military war itself.

Every nation in Europe is frantically expanding its productive facilities. The product of that frenzied activity is being shot away in war, to no one's benefit. But when the war ends and the survivors flock back home, jobs will be a necessity. The expanded factories will await them. The factories must run, for the men must work. They will produce goods for sale. They must be sold.

Sold they will be, by hook or crook, by subsidy or barter or political pressure. Every market in the world will be crowded with them. Into this competitive field, the United States will also be plunged.

HOW well we shall fare in that maelstrom depends much on what we do now. For instance, Britain is making heroic efforts to continue to export goods in the face of the war effort, in order to hold markets and to provide exchange to buy imports. Yet the United States has already replaced Britain as chief of Argentina's import trade. Despite the blockade and the sea war, Germany up to February had been contriving to ship to Argentina about one-fourth of her usual export shipments. The war for trade in South America has not even been suspended during the military war.

BUT all this has distinct limits unless ways can be contrived to import more from South America. International trade must be roughly an exchange if it is to be built on a permanent foundation. The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is already hot on the track to discover non-competitive products which can be more liberally bought by the United States in the south, and to encourage such trade.

All this has an importance beyond the purely commercial. Rivals for this trade do not hesitate to use methods of "economic compulsions shrewdly devised to force great areas into political spheres of influence."

Every dollar's worth of trade the United States can secure thus has a benefit beyond the purely commercial. We do not want any such "political spheres of influence." But unless we hold our share of the trade, others have just that much greater opportunity to establish them.

"A daughter born to Princess Ingrid of Denmark would have been heir to the throne if it had been a boy." And if there still is a throne.

Every time you draw a breath, the government spends $1000. But don't try holding your breath, as the spending goes on anyway.

Pennsylvania's last tribe of Indians may be flooded out of its home by a man-made flood control reservoir. Time was when Indians only feared biting the dust.

Spring is that state of things when Californians complain about the extreme heat one day, then brag about the size of hailstones the next.

Ousted from London theaters is that popular American innovation, the strip tease.
It seems the people weren't paying enough attention to the war.

Brownwood and Rising Star Exhibitors Top the Crop at Eastland Dairy Day

EASTLAND, April 25.—H. E. Cravens of Brownwood and Jack Walker of Rising Star divided top honors in the District Dairy day show here Tuesday, winning over a field of 71 animals from three counties.

Walker marched to the front with a choice two-year-old Jersey heifer, It's Dreaming Sybil, for the grand championship of the female division. Cravens won a purple ribbon with It's Dreaming Pioneer, a blue ribbon sire he bought from Walker.

Judges were high in praise for the quality of animals exhibited. County Agent Elmo Cook said it was by far the finest display of dairy animals ever assembled in Eastland county. It was interesting to note that both champions were raised in the county.

High quality of the animals shown was indicated in the bull class, when four animals were judged excellent, getting blue ribbons. They pointed out that it is unusual for bulls to receive the high awards. Before being eligible to compete for the grand championship, bulls had to be shown with three daughters.

Scores 352 Points

In the dairy judging contest, F. E. Walker of Rising Star was first with a score of 352 out of a possible 400 and his son, Bobby, won the junior division. Neal Lindsey, Rising Star 4-H club boy, won the junior division of the dairy products contest and Roy Armstrong, also of Rising Star, won the adult division.

Judges of dairy animals were W. F. Wintermeyer, dairy specialist of the United States department of agriculture; R. E. Eudaly and G. G. Gibson, dairy specialists of the extension service, and D. T. Simmons, fieldman for the American Jersey Cattle club.

W. V. Maddox, specialist of the extension service, was judge of the dairy products division. In charge of local arrangements were Cook and his assistant, Arthur Pratt, Ruth Ramey, home demonstration agent, and Margaret Blount, assistant agent.

Visiting farm and home agents from surrounding counties were Ross Brison and Clara Brown, Callahan; Knox Parr, Doc Ruhmann and Hattie Tacker, Taylor; El Flea Harrison, Shackelford; C. W. Lehmberg, Brown, Zelma Ruth Monroe and W. R. Lacey, Stephens, J. H. Jameson, Palo Pinto; and Floyd Lynch, Jones.

Principal speaker of the morning session was Jenie Camp, extension service specialist in production planning, College Station. She talked on value of milk in the diet. Assisting with arrangements were W. I. Glass and Maurine Hearn, district agents.

Lunch was served by the Eastland County Home Demonstration club, of which Mrs. Josie Nix is chairman, and the 4-H club girls, Mrs. H. R. Rogers chairman of sponsors.

Results of the dairy day contest follows:

Adults—First, F. E. Walker, Rising Star; second, Earl Blackwell, Ranger; third, C. F. Erwin, Desdemona. Juniors—First, Bobby Walker, second, James Walker, Rising Star; third, Melvin Fisher, Morton Valley.

Dairy Products: Juniors—First, Neal Lindsey; second, J. W. Elder, Jr., Eastland county 4-H; third, Wesley Dempsey, Stephens county; adults, first, Roy Armstrong; second, Mrs. J. N. Crudgington, Stephens county, and Mrs. C. M. Guthrie, Stephens county, tie.

In the dairy contest, animals were classified and blue ribbons went to excellent ones and reds to good ones.

Aged cows: blue ribbon, Shelton Bros., Brownwood; A. J. Ratliff, Ranger; Buster Wheat, Eastland; red ribbon, James Anderson, Eastland; C. F. Erwin, Desdemona; L. C. Cooksey, Ranger; G. H. Lockhart, Rising Star; John Akin, Breckenridge; three, Harold Smith, Rising Star; Louis Pitzer, Eastland.

in a $2,500 claiming race, worth only $700 to the winner, tells everybody that he hasn't class—is only a claimer after all. Everybody'll think he's running in his right group—nobody'll claim him. And we'll win, Sam—we must win, for we're broke. We've got to get that $700 if we want to start for Louisville and the derby."

"Miss Sherry?" There was a question in the old man's voice and deep concern.

"Yes, Sam?"

"I happens to know Mr. Wharton's stable thinks mighty nice of Pepper Boy. If you starts him in that claimin' race, they gonna claim him, sure!"

"Bosh, Sam! Don't you know that Mr. Wharton is a friend of mine? He wouldn't do that!"

"Wouldn't he? He been racin' five years—you been racin' five months—leastwise you been gettin' ready to race five months—you ain't never started a horse."

"That'll be enough, Sam."

"Yes'm." The colored man's head drooped. "Goodnight, Miss Sherry, if you don't need me no more."

"Goodnight." She left the stable quickly. The old fellow shook a puzzled head as he watched her move on into the night's gloom.

Twenty miles away—in Manhattan—the chap at the Queen Anne desk picked up his phone, reached his trainer in the tackroom o this stable.

"Ed? Wharton, I've been through all the records tonight. The figures say that little black colt is our main competition tomorrow—Pepper Boy won't be started in the handicap—I've just found out—five minutes ago."

"What's that? What happened to the colt?"

"Nothing—but the girl-owner thinks Red Soldier might nose Pepper Boy out. She's got to have money. So she's starting her colt in the six-furlong claiming race instead. Thinks he's a sure thing there."

"What! Then listen to me—put in a claim for Pepper Boy tomorrow. Be sure to do it!"

A moment's silence. Then, "I don't like it, sir—claiming a girl's one horse—it ain't—"

"Don't tell me what to do, Ed! If a girl races, she's got to take the same chances as men do."

A long silence. At last came the answer, "All right!"

Paul Wharton smiled with satisfaction as he cradled the phone. Sherry would try to play a man's game, would she? Well, she'd learn a few things.

LANE BURIAL ASSOCIATION

This association provides a plan of Burial Benefit, at a rate so reasonable, practically everyone can afford to carry the protection. (Ages 1 month to 90 years.)

This is a home enterprise, organized under approval of Board of Insurance Commissioners of Texas. It is directed by men who have been in the funeral business for many years, who understand the needs and emergencies that arise at the time of death.

Burial Benefit is not life insurance. All of the investment features have been eliminated. Therefore it is operated at the very lowest cost.

We are not in competition with any Life Insurance Company, but we offer you this additional Burial Protection at a price you can afford to pay. Carry it along with your regular Life Insurance.

It does not cost you any more to become a member of our Association than it does to pay your regular monthly premiums. You can pay by the year or month at our office.

We are not interested in Insurance Profits. We offer this protection to our friends who feel the need of burial benefits. The rates are low, but high enough to insure a fund large enough to meet the needs of the Association.

We urge you to investigate the plan and purpose of this burial association with as much sincerity and consideration as we had in you in bringing this highly desirable benefit to you.

death, Mrs. Butts had been honored by the Sixth District Federation of Women's clubs meeting at Colorado City, with a life membership on the district board. A short while before, during the golden jubilee celebration of the Twentieth Century club, of which she was a charter member, she was presented with the coveted pioneer club woman medal. For the last six years she was a member of the board of the Texas State Federation of Women's clubs and was on the Founders' roll of the federation's headquarters building at Austin. She served in various capacities as chairman of state, district and local federation activities, officers and on committees, devoting herself to the work with an earnestness and vigor that distinguished her. At various times she was president, secretary and treasurer of the Twentieth Century club. She never missed a convention or a club meeting when at all possible to attend.

Ardent Church Worker
She gave herself to the support and work of the Baptist church with a devotion even exceeding that which marked her work with women's organizations, and her death removed from the rolls of the First Baptist church here one of its most loyal members and one of its most liberal supporters in time and contributions.

Mrs. Butts was born Miss Bernice Smith on April 23, 1864, at a ranch near Austin, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Smith, had settled upon moving to Texas from Tennessee. She attended Alta Vista institute at Nashville, Tenn., now Ward-Belmont. She was a member of the first class of the University of Texas at Austin in 1883.

In December, 1889, she married John Jefferson Butts, young attorney and then clerk in the office of the secretary of state. The couple lived in Austin for two years, during which their first child, John William Butts, was born. This son, who graduated from West Point Military academy and became a major in the U. S. army air corps, was killed in an airplane crash at Americus, Georgia, in 1919. The Cisco American Legion post was named in his honor and Mrs. Butts was a revered Gold Star mother of that post.

Moved Here in 1895
From Austin the family moved to Fort Worth, where Mr. Butts practiced law for several years in association with the man who had been his chief as secretary of state. Fort Worth Mr. and Mrs. Butts moved their family to Cisco in 1895, where they lived for the remainder of their lives. Judge Butts, as he was affectionately known, became one of the most successful and popular attorneys in west Texas. His death occurred in 1932.

The family home on West Sixth street was built in 1900. It is the second, the first, exactly like it, having been destroyed by fire

New Sec'y of Cisco CoFC Being Sought

The Cisco chamber of commerce directors Tuesday night accepted, with a resolution of appreciation for his services, the resignation of P. R. Warwick as secretary of the chamber. Mr. Warwick asked to be released from his duties, in order to accept a position as accountant for an oil firm.

Mr. Warwick, whose profession is that of accountancy, was elected secretary of the chamber at the first of the year, and since that time has given service which the board last night commended as extraordinarily efficient. It was understood at the time he applied for the CoFC secretaryship, the board recalled, that in the event an opportunity for employment in his profession appeared Mr. Warwick would be privileged to accept it. Since his new employment is to take effect on May 1, the board was called into special meeting last night to receive and act on the resignation.

Secretary Commended
A resolution commending the retiring secretary for his services was passed and members of the board, while expressing regret at losing him as secretary, congratulated him on his new connection. Mr. Warwick expressed his appreciation for the courtesies shown him.

The board took no action on the employment of a successor. The census committee of the chamber, of which J. J. Collins is chairman, was instructed to contact census officials and confer with them on the progress of the enumeration in Cisco and means of assisting in the counting to the end that Cisco may get credit in the final tabulation for all population and other statistical data due it.

The board passed a resolution in only a few days after it was completed.

All of the immediate relatives except two will be here for the services. The two who cannot attend are Mrs. Quinton Conklin of Bolivia, S. A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Butts, and Miss Elzie Louise Butts of New York, daughter of John William Butts. Immediate survivors are: Two daughters, Miss Mary Jane Butts and Mrs. Elizabeth Wright of Cisco; one son, Edgar Butts, mining engineer, of Climax, Colo.; two granddaughters, Mrs. Quinton Conklin of Bolivia, S. A., and Miss Elzie Louise Butts of New York; two grandsons, John J. Butts II of San Marcos, and Billy Butts Wright of Cisco; two sisters, Mrs. D. H. Hart and Miss Ardie Smith of Austin, and one brother, Branch Smith, of Austin.

The constitution of Norway is called the Grundlov.

The first railroad in Brazil, built in 1854, was nine miles long.

which it commended Dr. E. L. Graham and expressed appreciation of the contribution which is being made to Cisco welfare in the remodeling and improvement of hospital facilities at Graham sanitarium.

Sec'y Warwick announced that invitations had been sent to various candidates for governor inviting them to Cisco on July 4 and that replies had been received from Gov. W. Methodist in Get-Together Meeting

On Wednesday night at the Methodist church, a large number of members and friends gathered and enjoyed a "Get-Together" supper at 7:15. Two of the Sunday school rooms had been thrown together and the long table was prepared for the platters of baked chicken and dressing, and bowls of mashed potatoes, creamed peas, and various kinds of salad, pickles, pies, cakes, bread and coffee. After the pastor, Rev. W. E. Anderson, had returned thanks to God for the many blessings, all partook of the beautiful supply of food and then went into the auditorium for a program of songs by the choir and congregation, led by Miss Della Wall, with Miss Edith Creighton as pianist. Odie Brightwell, who is president of the board of stewards, presided over the meeting. Readings were given in a very pleasing manner by Miss Dalphine Wayne Burnett of McCamey and Wynon Alread, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Alread. Two brothers, Tommy Ervin and Eldon Ervin, played a duet on their cornets that was very much appreciated. Miss Willa Dean Brightwell played a very beautiful piano solo. Dr. M. L. Power Plant Lake Scene of Tragedy

Dow Vessels, 9-year-old son of V. E. Vessels of 910 South Bassett street, Eastland, was drowned in the power plant lake east of Eastland early Sunday night, when he fell into about 25 feet of water while on a picnic with his father, his step-mother and six-year-old sister.

A strong undertow, created from the flume which returns water used by the big Texas Electric Service company power plant turbines to the lake, carried the body some distance from where the child fell in and thwarted attempts of the father to rescue the lad.

The boy and his sister had become separated momentarily from their parents when the lad fell into the lake. The sister ran to Mr. Vessels. "Dow's in the water, I can just see his head," she said.

Mr. Vessels made an attempt to rescue the boy, but was unable to locate him. Members of the Eastland fire department recovered the body an hour and 20 minutes later 18 feet from the point where the girl said her brother fell in.

Claud Boles, Jones Hargis and G. T. Webb brought the body out of the water. Members of the Cisco fire department who went to the lake to assist arrived shortly after the body had been removed. Artificial respiration was tried without avail.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at Slaton.

G. P. Miteham, Sr., Cisco rancher and a member of the association's entertainment committee, made plans for bringing the cattleman to Cisco.

With 2,000,000 men under arms in the empire against whatever the war this summer may bring, Britain also took comfort in the thought that the allies now have 7,000,000 soldiers to battle Germany's military might.

Some British attention was given to pending negotiations for a trade agreement with Russia. The Russians, however, want to continue "normal" trade with Germany, and that is a stumbling block.

Berlin declared German forces had a solid grip on all southern Norway and boasted of 57 successful attacks on the British navy since the campaign for Norway started.

The Nazis told of bringing down three allied plans which attempted to bomb strategic Stavanger airport, declared that no military damage had been caused by a British raid on the island of Sylt and insisted that the German defenders at Narvik, among them Austrian alpine troops, were ready for whatever the allies would send.

French Eye Sweden

The French high command had its eyes on Sweden. It was reported without confirmation that transports loaded with troops had steamed out of German Baltic ports. A spokesman of the French war ministry said the reported German troop embarkations were nothing less than a "grave menace" to Sweden.

"Any town or city is fortunate to receive a citizen of the quality of Brother Lambert. His interest in the common good; his spirit for civic righteousness and city pride and progress makes him a valuable citizen anywhere. He identifies himself with his city and becomes a part of its best activities.

"The Cisco Ministerial association of the city of Cisco is giving up one of its leaders, but we do it only because we must.

"The Reverend and Mrs. Lambert have our hearty good will and our very best wishes for the continued success of the Lord's work in their hands as they go to their new church. We know they will soon be among friends in Hillsboro, just as they are here.

"In this move we feel that we have lost a strong and useful man.

We congratulate Hillsboro and the Central Christian church in their gain.
