

"Man's labor, there can be no doubt of it, is dear to God. Saint Benedict, founder of the Benedictine Order, stated this fact early in the history of Christianity. He had as his personal motto, 'To labor is to pray.'"

Solon Asks More Arms For Berlin

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A member of the Senate Armed Services Committee has called for an Allied military buildup in Germany that would enable the West to defend Berlin against any Soviet move.

Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., said the United States is in no position now to back up its commitment to resist the Russian threat to oust the Allies from Berlin. He said, "we don't have the divisions over there to support a real action in Berlin."

Engle called for abandonment of World War II equipment and giving Allied troops better rifles, tanks and anti-tank weapons. Then, if NATO countries put in the men they should, he said, the Soviets probably wouldn't go through with their Berlin threat.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said Friday there were no present plans for a military buildup in Germany. But he did not rule out the possibility that one might be ordered before the end of the year.

Engle, appearing on a radio program, said the United States should proceed with the military buildup while at the same time giving Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev a negotiable way to "squirm" out of his present ultimatum.

Engle said he felt Khrushchev had left himself some "loopholes" in recent statements on East-West affairs. For one thing, he said, the Soviet premier asserted that if the West would agree on a general disarmament, he would accept any kind of inspection the Allies wanted.

But Engle laid his greatest stress on the military buildup. He said the best chance of avoiding war was for the Allies to put forces in Berlin that would dissuade Khrushchev from making any move he felt might lead to actual conflict.

Shutdown of Blimp Program Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy today ordered the shutdown of its historic blimp program at Lakehurst, N. J.

Eight of 10 lighter-than-air ships remaining in the Navy will be stored and all other activities will be discontinued because of a "shortage of funds and personnel."

In addition, helicopters now perform the functions of the airships, an announcement said.

Toothpaste Tube Contained Gems

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—A nationalized Mexican was being held today on charges of contraband after customs authorities nabbed him with a tube of toothpaste that also had 100 diamonds inside.

Authorities said French-born Michel Anaf-Franco tried to sneak his valuable dentifrice past inspecting officers at the central airport here.

ORDER FILLED — As a joke, Mrs. John Weir left a note to her milkman to leave the cow instead of the usual nine quarts of milk. Since this is Dairy Month, her milkman Don Trojahn, left, filled her order. Here, the happy Weir children, Joe and Lauren, ask their surprised mother whether they could keep the cow. They couldn't.

Costly Flooding Occurs In State

While torrential rains were sweeping some sections of the state, causing death and destruction, Pampa and vicinity received only light showers over the weekend, according to Weather Bureau reports today. Additional intermittent showers are predicted for this afternoon and tonight.

The 24-hour rainfall report showed that, while the area was under a severe weather alert Saturday night and Sunday afternoon and night, Pampa received .76 inch of rain. Berger, during the same period, reported .30 inch rain with the fall greater in some sections. Perryton had .30 Dalhart .19 and Amarillo .37.

Foster Whaley, Gray County farm agent, said that the rains were not presently seriously affecting wheat growers. He said most of the country's wheat had been harvested and that some plowing was in progress. Plowing, however, has been delayed by the rains which kept combines from the fields for several days.

While the area was under a severe weather forecast Sunday that extended from Liberal, Kan., to Childress, Texas, nothing unusual occurred. There was some lightning early Sunday evening and thick, dark clouds approached from the west. They drifted southward, however, with little noise and rain.

Nothing severe was anticipated for this afternoon and tonight unless conditions change, the Weather Bureau reported.

Cat Requires 12 Days For 55-Mile Hike

LAKE ISABEL, Colo. (UPI)—Tom, an alley cat who planned to make it big, loyalty-wise, hero-wise and publicity-wise, was just worn, torn, and a little wiser today.

Mrs. Nick Radakovich of Pueblo, Colo., gave Tom a home last winter. This spring, she brought him to Lake Isabel, to spend the summer at her mother's home.

On June 11, Tom left town. Last Friday, after a 12-day, 55-mile hike, Tom showed up at the Radakovich home in Pueblo. He needed a bath, several square meals, treatment for mites, and some rest.

He got them all. And Sunday, he got a fast, 55-mile automobile ride back to grandma's house.

Rites Held For 'Ma' Ferguson

AUSTIN (UPI)—The state of Texas today mourned the death of Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson, a housewife at heart who became one of the first women governors in the nation because she loved her husband so much and wanted to clear his name.

She hated to be called "Ma," but the name stuck. It was a price she paid to become a public figure. She disliked politics because it took her away from her flower gardens and family.

But she had a job to do, and she did it. She became "home folks" to Texans and was as well loved by some as she was controversial to others.

Mrs. Ferguson, 86, died at her home in Austin Sunday quietly and without fanfare.

Services were at the Ferguson's two-story, white, stucco home on Windsor Road in an old, stately section of the capital city. Rev. Charles A. Summers, pastor of St. David's Episcopal Church, officiated.

Mrs. Stuart Watt, her only living daughter, and several grandchildren were at her bedside at the end. Her other daughter, Mrs. George Nalle, preceded her in death. Other survivors are George Nalle Jr. and James Stuart Watt, both grandsons of Austin, and three great-grandsons.

Ma Ferguson and her husband, James E. (Farmer Jim) Ferguson, who was also known as "Pa," dominated Texas politics for two decades. She served as governor for two terms—from 1925 to 1927 and from 1933 to 1935. Pa Ferguson was elected (See RITES, Page 3)

President Invokes Law To End Shipping Strike

Cuban Band Seeking To Revive Deal

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—Ten disheartened emissaries for Fidel Castro sought today to persuade the American Tractors-for-freedom Committee to revive its campaign to liberate 1,174 Cuban prisoners.

The long-shot possibility that the committee members would re-establish the defunct organization loomed as the prisoners' last hope for early freedom.

The 10-man delegation, which represents the captives of the ill-fated April invasion of Cuba, conferred for several hours Sunday with John Hooker, executive secretary of the former committee. He relayed the appeal for reviving the committee to other members.

Hooker said the prisoners should have their reply by today or Tuesday.

He added he had received "no indication that the committee would be revitalized."

The 10 hostages, who arrived here Saturday afternoon, were bewildered and dismayed upon discovering the committee had been disbanded.

Hooker said the committee headed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Walter Reuther and Dr. Milton Eisenhower, could not understand why Castro sent the men back.

"Dr. Castro changed his demand for tractors to one of dollars and began calling it indemnity," said Hooker. He pointed out that the committee had no legal right to discuss indemnities and therefore "found this intolerable."

Still the prisoners and their Florida-based relatives were hopeful. The relatives believe Castro would accept an intermediate offer between the $3.5 million worth of tractors offered and the $28 million in heavy equipment demanded by Castro.

But there was no assurance Castro would accept this even if the committee were revived. There was no indication that a new counter-offer accompanied the prisoners.

Lawyer Raps 'Switch' On Tax Program

WALLER (UPI)—Don Yarborough, a young Harris County attorney, accused Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey Sunday of double-crossing the people of Texas.

"He is putting his promises to sales-tax lobbyists before his sacred promise to the people of Texas," Yarborough said.

Yarborough opposed Ramsey in the last race for lieutenant governor and is expected to run for a statewide office again in 1962. He made the accusation at a county-wide Democratic rally in Waller.

Yarborough said Ramsey promised voters during his campaign that he would fight a state sales tax if elected to a sixth term.

"But since his election, Ramsey has used his tremendous power as presiding officer of the Senate to try to force through a stiff sales tax law," Yarborough said.

"All five senators appointed May 22 by Ramsey to a House-Senate conference committee to work out a compromise version of the sales tax bill were known to favor a sales tax in its purest form."

It was the first time since taking office that Kennedy invoked the Taft-Hartley law, which he voted against as a congressman.

He acted today on the basis of reports from government agencies over the weekend that the strike was having a substantial impact on the economy.

The reports were collected by Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg who conferred with Kennedy during the morning on the shipping tie-up which has hit the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf Coasts.

Three striking unions offered Sunday to lift their picket lines for critically needed food and fuel shipments. This had been viewed as an effort to head off Kennedy's use of the emergency Taft-Hartley machinery.

The board was expected to go into immediate session in New York.

The board consists of David L. Cole, a veteran labor arbitrator as chairman, and Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, special White House counsel during the Roosevelt administration, and Prof. James J. Healy of the Harvard Business school.

The three unions wired Kennedy urging him to appoint an impartial board to designate food and fuel cargoes "essential to maintain national health, safety and security."

"In cases where the board certifies cargoes as essential, the unions will lift picket lines and their members would sail the ships," they promised. They said military shipments were going through despite the strike.

The telegram was signed by Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union; Charles M. Crooks, president of the Master Mates and Pilots organization, and William R. Steinberg, president of the American Radio Association.

The other striking unions, the Seafarers International Union and the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, said they had been clearing vessels carrying essential goods since the strike.

Walkout Found National Peril

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy today invoked the Taft-Hartley labor law to halt the nationwide maritime strike for an 80-day period. One union leader had already warned that a worse strike would follow the injunction period.

By executive order, the President found that the current shipping strike threatens to "imperil the national health and safety." He set up a special board of inquiry to investigate the dispute and report back to him by June 30.

After receiving the board report, the President then can turn the cause over to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy who could petition a federal district court for an injunction halting the 11-day strike and sending 75,000 striking seamen back to work for 80 days.

It was the first time since taking office that Kennedy invoked the Taft-Hartley law, which he voted against as a congressman.

Solons To Keep Penny Gas Tax

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress went back to work today on a pile of legislation — most of it concerning money — in hopes of winding up by Thursday night so members can take a long fourth of July weekend.

The House — and probably the Senate — was to complete action today on a bill to cancel a one-cent gallon reduction in gasoline taxes scheduled to take effect Saturday.

This measure also would boost taxes on the trucking and tire industries by $150 million a year to help keep the 41,000-mile interstate highway building program on a pay-as-you-go schedule for completion by 1972.

The House also planned to debate and pass legislation to raise the temporary limit on the national debt by $5 billion. The new ceiling of $298 billion would enable the government to pay its bills during the coming year. The Senate Finance Committee also was to vote on it.

If the debt ceiling wasn't raised, the temporary limit of $293 billion would fall to $285 billion on Saturday — and this would be about $1 billion less than the government now owes itself.

Other congressional news: Space: Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., urged support for President Kennedy's goal of "a clearly leading role in space achievement." The member of the Senate Space Committee charged in a prepared Senate speech that inept administration and power struggle among the military services had cost the United States a two-year lead over Russia in the space race.

Incomes: Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said he would introduce legislation to limit the rights of states and cities to tax the incomes of non-residents. Case said in a statement that his proposed constitutional amendment was designed to help "millions of Americans now paying taxes to more than one state." At present, 34 states have income taxes and all of them tax non-residents as well as residents.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U. S. space chief James E. Webb predicted today the United States would beat Russia in the race to put a man on the moon and bring him back to earth.

Webb, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the first manned lunar landing would put three Americans on the moon "before the end of the decade."

The achievement will cost between $20 billion and $40 billion, "probably toward the $20 billion level," he said. But, he added, it will have side products in developing scientific and technical knowledge that "will be most valuable in other parts of our economy."

"When it comes to all the technology — to make a 'soft' landing and bring the men back — I think we're starting slightly ahead," Webb said.

But he conceded the advantage was with Russia in being first to orbit a multi-manned spacecraft around the earth and also to fly men around the moon.

"The kind of over-all space effort that President Kennedy has recommended... will put us there (on the moon) first," he said. He listed U.S. developments in the fields of big boosters, multi-manned spacecraft, weather, communications, navigation and generally "in terms of the ability to solve all the technical problems."

Rebels In Venezuela Are Sent Ultimatum

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)—The army garrison at the port city of Barcelona, 150 miles east of Caracas, rebelled today in another of the crises which have plagued the government of President Romulo Betancourt.

The government forces gave the rebels an ultimatum to surrender at once or face an all-out attack.

The government officially confirmed the uprising in the city in the midst of the rich oilfields of the northeastern Venezuelan coast.

But it said it crushed a smaller, pocket-sized revolt by the garrison at nearby La Guaira, the port of Caracas.

It was learned from official sources that the Barcelona rebels controlled the city and had seized the governor of Anzoategui state and other high civil authorities.

The Barcelona radio station Emisoras Unidas, apparently under rebel control, reported that insurgent troops were marching on the big port city of Puerto La Cruz. This is about six miles from Barcelona and is one of the country's biggest oil ports.

The revolt of the 600-man garrison at Barcelona early today seemed to be one of the most serious crises yet to face the revolt-ridden Betancourt government.

The fact that it came simultaneously at Barcelona and La Guaira indicated fairly wide coordination.

Caracas itself was calm, with radio stations continuing their normal programs.

In a later broadcast, the Emisoras Unidas station identified itself as "radio Barcelona" and broadcast rebel proclamations accusing Betancourt of heading toward communism and completely selling out the country to petroleum companies.

It was reported unofficially that leaders of the revolt were Capt. Ruben Maso Perdomo and Maj. Virgilio Vivas Ramirez.

Traffic leading to the presidential Miraflores palace and the interior Ministry building in downtown Caracas was blocked by the troops shortly after local radio stations began broadcasting news of the revolt.

Vivas Ramirez and Maso Perdomo had taken part in previous attempts against Betancourt and were being harassed by authorities. Both were dismissed from the armed forces when their first attempt against the government was crushed.

Dear Abby...

Wife Of Gambler Cinch To Lose

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What future is there for a young man, 24, who lives to gamble? It started out to be a hobby, but now it is his full-time occupation. He has ideas about this world when it comes to making a fortune gambling. He is good-looking, well-liked, and educated. He says he has studied the odds, and he gambles "scientifically," so he can never lose. He claims he has read extensively on "the psychology of gambling." So far he has been lucky. But do you think a girl can be happy with a man who makes his living this way?

GAMBLER'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: The "psychology of gambling" is not very complicated. It is the science of trying to get something for nothing. Don't bet on a gambler. You are a cinch to lose.

DEAR ABBY: Why does a mere wife think she has special privileges? Everyone knows "Till death do us part" is old-fashioned. If a wife can't hold her husband, why doesn't she get out?

I was married and had one child, aged 4. I fell in love with another man. We worked together. He was married in name only. His wife was older than he was. He married young and didn't know the score.

We planned to get divorced and marry. He wanted to wait. I did not, so I divorced my husband. My boy friend stalled. So I phoned his wife and let her know that I was in the picture. I wrote her letters telling her everything. I also parked outside her house, wanting to talk to her in person, but she ignored me. My boy friend started feeling sorry for his wife and told me to lay off. I refused. Then he finally gave me the old excuse about his wife being sickly, and his children needing him. My home is broken up because I believed his lies, so why should I give him up without a fight? I owe her nothing.

THE OTHER WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: There is no man to "fight" for. He has given you up. To paraphrase your own words, "If a woman can't steal another's husband, why doesn't she lay off?" Look for a man in your league.

DEAR ABBY: A bunch of catty women wrote in asking you if their neighbor, who went to barber college to learn how to cut her husband's hair, carried a hot lunch to his place of work every day instead of packing him a sandwich, never disagreed or argued with him, and always called him "Sweetheart" and "Baby." Was she the ideal wife, or were the rest of them just "average slob." And your answer, Dear Abby, didn't sound like you. Tell me the truth, do you write your own column every day? Or were you on vacation?

ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: I write my own column every day. And I never go on vacation. If I said that woman was anything but an ideal wife, I must have had a geranium in my cranium. Forgive me?

Summertime comfort can be achieved in hot weather with tricks like these. Fill a hot water bottle with ice and slip it into bed shortly before you go to sleep (left). At the end of a hot, humid day, relax in a tub of soapy, tepid water. This will both cool and refresh you. This girl uses an inexpensive foam headrest to make herself comfortable (center). In the morning, a light spraying of cologne is a spicy touch that makes you feel and look cool (right).

T. Ramsey, Sherry Shelley, Lynn Taylor, Venia Turcotte, Judy Watkins and Leslie Watkins.

Miss Judy Robison, club president, led the group in repeating the club pledge.

Refreshments of punch and cake were served from a table appointed in the club colors, purple and white.

More Beauty Tips For Torrid Days

The gal who looks cool, clean and pretty on a humid summer day captures many an admiring glance. And there's little doubt that she feels a lot more comfortable than her shiny-faced, wilted companions.

There's an art to keeping cool that is easy to master once you know the facts.

Your eating habits play a big role. For example, cold snacks continue through June 29. The pledging period will conclude with a Heck Night party.

and drinks can actually make you feel hotter unless they're combined with sensibly balanced hot foods. Your body must expend energy to warm up and assimilate chilled foods. This process warms you up, too.

Warm baths cool you more effectively than cold ones, for warm water causes blood vessels to enlarge so that body heat comes to the skin surface and disappears. A half hour spent soaking in a tub of comfortably warm soapsuds can keep you cool for hours. The most effective times to bathe on hot days are the first thing in the morning, before dressing for a social engagement, and before bedtime.

After your bath, dust with powder to absorb any traces of moisture. As a final cooling aid, try a light spray of cologne from an atomizer.

You'll never look or feel cool if your hair is stringy and limp from the humidity. So for the summer months, at least wear your hair in a short, simple fashion that is easily cared for. If you don't want to cut your hair, it's best to pull it back from the face in a cool-looking chignon or French twist. Perspiration and salt water must be washed away to preserve an attractive setting. So shampoo every few days during the summer swimming season.

Wash your face often during the day and keep your makeup toned down. Heavy make-up will only run and smear on a sizzling day. The result will be most unattractive.

A good trick for keeping cool is to fill a hot water bottle with ice water and slip it between the sheets a short while before you go to bed. Your bed will be comfortably "air conditioned" when you climb in.

Remember, too, that cottons, linens and blends with these natural fibers are more absorbent and porous than clothes made of 100 per cent synthetics. Choose your summer wardrobe accordingly. You'll feel and look comfortable.

Imaginary Tour Taken By Group

Woman's Missionary Society of the Central Baptist Church met Wednesday morning in the church for the monthly business meeting and missionary program.

Mrs. Jack Cullison, president, called the meeting to order, and the W.M.U. hymn was sung. Following the business meeting, Mrs. Charles Terrell read the calendar of prayer and led in prayer.

"Our Task as Just Begun" was the program topic. Scripture was read by Mrs. Dale Gallaher.

Mrs. Charley Thomas, program chairman, gave the introduction to the program on Central and East Africa, leading the group on an imaginary tour to mission points. Points for discussion were Northern Rhodesia, Southern Rhodesia, Tanganyika, and Kenya. Those giving parts were Mmes. E. B. Davis, J. H. Reeves, L. R. Tyson, N. R. Lowe, Dale Gallaher, A. R. Newman, Bill Fulcher, J. B. Hillman, Paul Howard, and Wayne Cobb.

Mrs. Charley Thomas led the closing prayer. The thirty women present were served refreshments at the close of the program.

Gamma Conclave Center Hostess

The Gamma Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota Sorority were hostess at a party given Thursday afternoon in Senior Center. Representatives of the sorority were Mmes. Margie Crouse, Charles Meech, Teresa Humphries, C. W. Stowell, J. E. Tatum, D. L. Mackie, Otto Mangold, Dan Johnson and Miss Betrie Tatum.

Look Great On Land ...Or By The Sea

ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The time for swimming and other water sports has come, and girls from 16 to 60 will flock to the beaches to enjoy the sun and fun.

But bright sunshine and salt water can be detrimental rather than beneficial to health and good looks if proper precautions aren't taken.

We must use lotion to protect our skin from the burning rays of the sun. Hair creams and frequent shampooing are summer "musts" to halt the drying effect of sun and salt water on our hair.

But even more important is the protection we give our eyes, for the harmful effects of glare are not to be discounted.

Here, from Mala Rubinstein, are some common sense measures that can be taken for summer eye care.

First, never look directly into the sun. This can cause serious damage to delicate eye tissue. Sunglasses should be worn when driving to the beach and when near the glare of the water.

When you lounge in direct sunlight wear a large beach hat to provide shade for your eyes. You'll get the extra beauty protection bonus for your hair at the same time.

Turn your gaze away from the water frequently. Look into the distance at the landscape away from the beach in order to rest your eyes. And, above all, don't read in bright sunlight. White paper reflects the sun directly into your eyes.

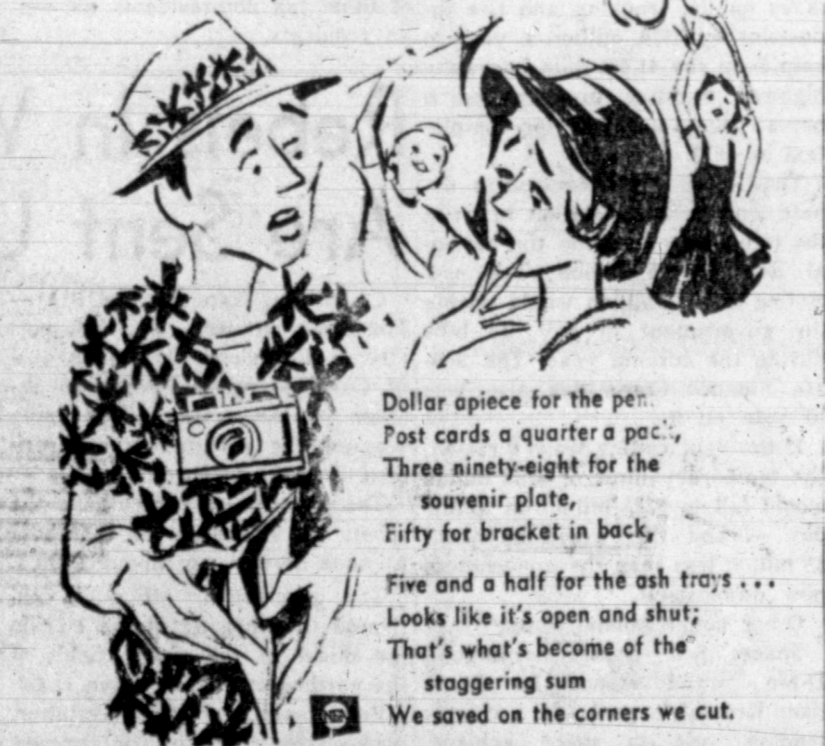

If your eyes have become strained from the brightness or irritated by dust particles during your drive to the water, refresh them with a few drops of soothing solution applied gently at the inside corners.

We all want to look attractive at the beach, but there's nothing we can do about wet, plastered-down hair when we've just come out of the water — except to focus attention elsewhere. And here's where eye beauty will do the trick. Apply waterproof eye make-up very carefully before swimming. Liquid eye liner and mascara will point up the beauty of your eyes, and your limp locks won't matter. There will be no danger of the make-up running and marring the effect.

So for protection from the sun's rays and added beauty insurance be sure to pack sunglasses, eye solution and waterproof eye make-up in your beach kit.

It's Wise Bride Who Knows Whereof Wedding Traditions Had Their Start

By MARCIA MILANOWSKI
United Press International
CHICAGO (UPI)—The tradition of June weddings persists today from ancient times when it was believed that any girl who married in June would receive Juno's blessing — and the promise of a happy life.

The long white gown the contemporary bride wears down the aisle also is a tradition left over from ancient Rome.

If a girl married in any other color but white, her marriage was said to be doomed to misery and unhappiness.

The wedding veil is a tradition that's been carried through centuries from a custom followed by people in the Far East.

All unmarried females were required to wear veils covering the face up to the eyes. Not until they married were they allowed to unveil their faces in public.

The two rings that symbolize marriage today were no less symbolic in times past. In days when marriage by purchase was customary, a prospective bridegroom proved his worthiness and good intentions by showering gifts of cattle, food or jewelry on the bride-to-be and her father.

Later, the gift to the bride was a personal ornament or ring. The diamond is given at the time of the engagement in keeping with a custom dating back many centuries. It was believed the diamond signified the fire of love.

The wedding band has an even earlier beginning. Some say it goes back to the primitive bride who sat before her cave and displayed a circlet of rushes about her wrist or ankle to signify her recent marriage.

Then an earnest husband changed the band to iron to signify the lasting quality of the marriage contract.

Later, this was modified to the gold band used today.

The ring is placed on the third finger of the left hand according to an ancient belief holding that an artery directly connected this finger with the heart.

Gold was considered the best conductor of heart impulses.

Don't honk the horn on arrival to pick up a friend. Go to the door and ring the bell.

Woman Being Sought In Kidnap-Drowning Of Her Third Victim

EDITOR'S NOTE: When the body of the third child kidnaped in Buffalo in the past two months was found floating in a park lake, bound and gagged, UPI mobilized a special reporting team of Martin Gleason, R. E. Egan, William J. Monahan, Egan, William J. Monahan, Thomas O'Toole and Bruce Agnew to cover a city in fear. Their report follows.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—"A little kid like that," a cab driver said as he drove by a lake where lovers used to go canoeing. "It isn't right."

"Andy was a friendly little boy," a woman said as she stared across the street at a park where in the daytime children laugh. "Whenever he saw me, he used to say, 'Hi-ya, hi-ya.'"

"I figured when I got out of college, everything would be fine," said 26-year-old Francis C. Ashley, as he stood outside his home thinking of his 3-year-old son, Andy, whose bound and gagged body was found Sunday floating in the park's lake. "And then this had to happen."

These are the voices of Buffalo, N.Y., today, a city horrified by three child kidnappings since April—two of them last week and all of them within a few blocks. A city-frightened that the "woman maniac" who killed one of the three children she lured away is even now watching another child. A city anxiously waiting for its police to solve what they admit is "a most difficult crime."

Andrew (Andy) Ashley, three and a half years old, blond, blue-eyed and friendly, was found floating in the lake Sunday afternoon, about 48 hours after he had disappeared from his home a mile away. His hands and feet were bound with a woman's nylon stockings, and he was clad only in underpants and a T-shirt. A towel was tied around his neck, but not tightly enough to strangle him. He had not been sexually molested. His death was caused by drowning.

Police today worked to complete a composite drawing of Buffalo's murderous Pied Piper in skirts. They had descriptions of her from her two other victims—a boy and a girl, both 5, who managed to free themselves from their bonds—and they had descriptions from witnesses who saw a woman pulling a little boy along by the hand in the park area.

Through the night, police questioned witnesses who had responded to pleas that they telephone headquarters if they had seen a woman and a boy in Delaware Park Friday afternoon.

Four women said they had been driving by the lake Saturday, and had seen a woman carrying a little boy with no shoes toward the water, at about the time Andy is believed to have been thrown in to die. One of them said the boy's feet were tied, and that she had suddenly been afraid the woman was going to throw him into the water.

Another witness, Edwin J. Ehrig, who knew Andy, said he had seen the boy being dragged reluctantly toward the entrance to the park zoo, about a block from Andy's home, earlier that afternoon.

Police Inspector William H. Schneider said Andy might never have died if only it hadn't been raining that afternoon, if only the park had been crowded.

"If there were people in the park, we think she might have chucked him under a bush like the other kids," Schneider said. Tentatively, police described the murderer as in her mid-thirties, five-foot-six to five-foot-eight with dark stringy hair. They said she was wearing a white blouse with a full skirt and had on a beige raincoat. She wore flat brown shoes and was hatless.

Andy's father was the first to be told Sunday afternoon that a National Guardsman had found the body. He took his wife into a bedroom of their small basement apartment, and gently told her.

"Who killed my baby?" she screamed. "Who killed my baby?"

Later, she said "I hope whoever did this to my son can be found soon, so that no other family will have to suffer a tragedy like this."

Mayor Frank A. Sedita appealed to parents not to let their children out of their sight "until we apprehend the person responsible for this horrible crime."

Only the day before Andy disappeared, 5-year-old Richard Edgington, whose home is only a few blocks away, was kidnaped, partially undressed, bound, gagged and left—possibly to die—near railroad tracks with a plastic bag over his head.

Richard managed to free himself within about four hours. His frantic mother then received a phone call from another woman who spotted the girl walking across the street in his underwear and had hustled him indoors.

On April 23, Susan Benedict, also 5, had been lured away in the same fashion, bound in the same manner, and left to struggle free near the railroad tracks. Susan freed herself within a matter of minutes.

Both children told chillingly similar stories to their parents—and then to the police. Richard said he had seen the woman in the area during recent weeks. But when she asked him to go with her for a walk through the zoo, Richard told her "I can't go with strangers."

The woman grabbed his arm and dragged him with her. She told him that if anyone stopped him, he should smile and say "My name is Davy Johnson."

Richard cried out for his mother. She was washing and didn't hear him.

Dragging Richard along, the woman threatened to throw him in the lake if he didn't behave. Richard sucked in his breath to keep from crying.

When they got to the railroad tracks, the woman took off Richard's outer clothes and shoes, and told him they were going to play "cowboys and Indians." Then she left him, with the plastic bag over his head.

Little Susan also told the strange woman she wasn't supposed to go anywhere with strangers. And again, the woman grabbed the child by the arm and led her to the railroad tracks.

Walkout
cargoes "as a matter of routine practice and traditional policy."

All five unions previously rejected Goldberg's proposal to go back to work for 60 days while a three-man White House commission investigated the dispute and made recommendations for a settlement.

The American Merchant Marine Institute, representing the shipowners, accepted the 60-day truce. After the unions rejected the proposal, the institute supported use of the Taft-Hartley injunction.

The dispute involves economic issues, such as pay rates, as well as union efforts to organize American-owned ships flying foreign "flags of convenience." Such ships usually are registered in Panama, Honduras or Liberia to escape U.S. taxes and labor costs.

Rifle Is Reported Stolen From Car

The theft of a .22 Remington rifle belonging to Dr. T. J. Worrell, 1707 Christine, was reported at 7 a.m. Sunday, according to the police.

Worrell told police that the rifle which was 25-years-old, had been stolen sometime Thursday night from his car, which was parked in the driveway.

College Report Plan To Be Heard

The Public Improvement Committee of the Chamber of Commerce will meet tomorrow noon in the Cibola Room in the Coronado Inn, according to E. L. Henderson, chairman.

Committee members will hear a report from Dr. C. C. Colvert, professor of Junior College at the University of Texas, relative to the feasibility of a junior college for Pampa and County.

Weather

blamed on the drenching rains of up to five inches which hit the area Saturday night and Sunday. The dead man was identified as 45-year-old Jerry Volpert of Denison.

The Trinity River passed flood stage in Dallas early today, but the Weather Bureau said dikes would prevent flooding. It was expected to crest at 32 feet later today, two feet above flood stage.

The town of Crandall downstream on the Trinity was warned to expect flooding by Wednesday.

Four blocks of Wichita Falls was flooded with three feet of water from a 4.78 inch rain that fell in six hours. National guardsmen, Civil Defense workers and Air Force personnel from Sheppard AFB helped move some 30 families and their belongings out of their homes until the flood waters receded.

But the worst damage was in Richland Hills where flash floods on Big and Little Fossile creeks chased 110 families from their homes and flooded another dozen vacant houses and washed out one bridge.

The creeks flood annually, but this was the worst in years. The flash floods at Fort Worth killed Alton Theodore Young, 30, of Rhome, and Oliver James Shaffter, 70, Fort Worth. Their pickup truck was swept off of a road north of Fort Worth. They were found inside it about seven hours later submerged in Haslet Creek.

The storm was also blamed for the death of Gene F. McCorkle of Gainesville, who died when his car smashed into a tree during a blinding rain. A companion, George Kennedy Jr., was seriously injured.

The Trinity River leaped its banks at several points between Dallas and Fort Worth and at Arlington it splashed across State Highway 175.

The area flooded at Richland Hills is one of the wealthier sectors of Fort Worth with homes ranging from $15,000 to $40,000. Despite the suddenness of it, only two persons were reported injured.

These were Mrs. E. D. Dossey, 50, and her sister, Mrs. James E. Armstrong, 63, who received electrical shocks as they moved about in water over their ankles.

Commie 'Take-Over' Plan In Laos Scored

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States said today Communist China is promoting a Communist "take-over" of Laos to establish a gateway to Southeast Asia.

The charge was made by Ned Nordness, spokesman for United States delegation at the 14-nation conference on Laos.

Nordness' statement followed a bitter rejection by the Chinese Communists of the American and French proposals for effective controls to ensure a free and neutral Laos.

Chen accused the United States of trying to "rekindle the war in Laos" and demanded abrogation of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization's pledge to protect Laos.

Nordness told a news conference after today's meeting: "It seems to us they do not want any kind of controls to stop the seven-year-old North Viet Nam infiltration into Laos. They are adamant in their desire to keep the road wide open from north to south so that they can fulfill their plans of using the North Vietnamese infiltration, subversion and ultimate takeover of Laos, to establish a gateway to Southeast Asia."

Chen made no mention of Communist Vietnamese troops in his address. He charged the foreign forces causing trouble in Laos were American-backed South Vietnamese, Thai and remnants of Chaiang Kai-shek's armies.

The hands-off occurred Sunday night at a party given by the two Communist-backed princes of Laos—Souvanna Phouma, the neutralist leader, and Souphanouvong, the Pathet Lao chief.

The Communist-supported princes clearly believed they had won a substantial victory over the third rival prince of Laos, pro-Western Premier Boum Oum.

Souvanna said discussions among the three factions on forming a coalition government for the little Asian kingdom would begin in 10 or 15 days in Laos. He implied that Boum Oum would have to make most of the concessions.

The three held a summit conference in Zurich last week but did little more than agree to talk some more.

Police, firemen, civil defense and airmen from Carswell Air Force Base manned boats to evacuate dozens of persons who had to climb on their roofs to escape the water.

They found one man floating on a road north of Fort Worth. He was an air mattress under the eaves of his house.

Temperatures today were expected to be about the same as Sunday when maximums stretched from a low of 72 at College Station to 100 at El Paso and a high of 105 at Presidio.

Early morning temperatures today ranged from 54 degrees at Alpine to 79 at Corpus Christi and extended five-day forecasts said mild weather would continue through most of the week.

governor in 1914 and again in 1916.

In 1917 he was impeached and removed from office for fiscal irregularities and barred from ever holding any other state office.

So, Mrs. Ferguson donned her sunbonnet in 1924 and tackled eight male opponents. She pleaded with wives, mothers and sisters to help her clear the family name. They responded, wearing big buttons with campaign slogans such as "Me for Ma," and "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet."

Opponents charged that if she were elected, she would be a figurehead and that "Pa" would actually be running the state. Pa and Ma turned the charges to their own use and brought out another campaign slogan: "Two Governors for the Price of One."

They made good the promise. Pa shared the executive offices in the state capitol and made most of the major decisions while Ma stayed at home and devoted a large part of her time to household chores she loved.

Her husband died in 1944 and she had the satisfaction of hearing the legislature order that he be given an honored burial in the state cemetery despite his impeachment. The monument for him reserved a spot for her alongside his grave.

"All Texans mourn the passing of one of our great citizens," Sen. Ralph Yarborough said. "Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's life is an example of absolute devotion and love of her family under great difficulties and concern for all the people."

"The Ferguson family did more than any other Texas governors of the 20th century to advance public school education in Texas... she left a record that will inspire the people in the future to elect some other woman-as governor."

Mrs. Ferguson's last public appearance was in 1955 when she celebrated her 80th birthday at a banquet at an Austin hotel.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who was then Senate majority leader, attended and hailed her and her husband as "people who stand for the folks—four square, without apology and no compromise."

Teachers Open National Meet

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UPI)—The National Education Association, an organization of 785,000 teachers, opened its 99th annual meeting today with a promise from President Kennedy that the fight for better schools will continue.

In a pre-convention message to the organization, the President said the battle for better schools will not end this year even if Congress passes a federal aid to education law.

"More money alone is not the answer," Kennedy said. It will require continued leadership and stimulation by the federal government—including the enactment of other educational measures already proposed.

The President said the fight also will require increased efforts by state and local school systems, school boards, parents and individual citizens.

"But perhaps the greatest responsibility of all," he said, "will rest with the teachers of America."

The organization's president, Mrs. Clarice Kline, shared the President's optimism on passage of the bill. She told a news conference that "1961 may well be the year in which the American public had to choose whether the schools were worth the price tag."

Tower Raps Government Paternalism

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Sen. John G. Tower, newly-elected Republican from Texas, charges the federal government is guilty of a paternalism that can lead to "benevolent dictatorship."

Tower, who gained Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's former Senate seat, said Sunday night on a weekly radio forum that government is the "natural enemy of the people."

Many federal officials feel the government should siphon off excess public income and "spend it in the manner that the government feels most beneficial for the people," Tower said.

"This is, I think, tantamount to advocating benevolent dictatorship. The people should be allowed maximum liberty, and the function of the government only is to preserve order."

"But perhaps the greatest responsibility of all," he said, "will rest with the teachers of America."

The organization's president, Mrs. Clarice Kline, shared the President's optimism on passage of the bill. She told a news conference that "1961 may well be the year in which the American public had to choose whether the schools were worth the price tag."

Reds Increase Lead; ChiSox Keep Winning

By United Press International
The major leagues staged an early July 4 celebration Sunday with a display of fireworks involving a home run record, a brawl and a 380-foot force play which recalled the most famous "goner" in baseball history.

When the short tempers and long homers had at last been all recorded it was a day on which—Norm Cash hit three home runs as the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians split a doubleheader to move within four of Rudy York's 23-year-old big league mark of 18 homers in one month.

—Volatile Jimmy Piersall touched off a near riot when he scuffled with pitcher Jim Bunning during the Tigers' 6-3 first-game victory and Vic Power narrowly avoided a "Merkle boner" on the play which enabled the Indians to win the second game, 4-3.

—The Cincinnati Reds fought off late-inning threats to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-2, and go three games in front in the National League.

—The Chicago White Sox whipped the Washington Senators, 7-3 and 6-3, to run their winning streak to 10 games and give them 17 victories in their last 18 games.

—A record 16 pitchers saw action as the Baltimore Orioles downed the Los Angeles Angels, 9-8, in a four-hour and 42-minute 14-inning marathon.

Cash drove in four runs with his 22nd and 23rd homers of the season to spark the Tigers in their opener and his 24th of the season in the nightcap gave him a total of 14 for the marathon.

Piersall precipitated the brawl on the field when Bunning hit him on the shoulder with a pitch in the fifth inning. Piersall charged to the mound and began to throw punches as both benches emptied and players swarmed onto the field. Piersall, Johnny Temple and Bob Hale all were ejected when order was restored.

Power avoided goat's horns of monumental proportions in the ninth inning of the second game which ended when Chuck Essagian hit a 380-foot drive to right field with the bases filled and one out. Power, thinking the ball would go over the fence for a homer, neglected to run and was forced out at second base when Al Kaline relayed the carom off the fence to second base. Essagian lost credit for a hit but Mike de la Hor's run counted because the forceout of power at second base was only the second of the inning.

It was the same type of play by Fred Merkle which cost the New York Giants the 1908 pennant and caused him to be ridiculed for a half-century.

Vada Pinson's double was the key blow of a first inning in which the Reds scored all three of their runs. Joey Jay shut out the Dodgers until the seventh when Jim O'Toole and Jim Brosnan went to his rescue. Brosnan preserved Jay's ninth win by striking out Daryl Spencer to end the Dodger rally.

Billy Pierce pitched an eight-hitter and struck out 10 to win the 180th game of his career with the White Sox in the opener and then Early Wynn came back with four-hit pitching for eight innings to win his fifth game of the year and 289th of his career.

Ron Hansen's 14th inning homer broke up the long struggle at Los Angeles but not until 41 players had seen action. Dick Hall, seventh New York Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins, 8-4, and the Kansas City Athletics topped the

Russia, U.S. Dual Meet Next Month

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States will send its youngest international track team in modern times against the might of the Russians in a dual meet at Moscow next month.

"A great group of youngsters emerged from the National AAU championships," said Jim Elliott of Villanova, who will coach the Yanks on a four-stop tour of Russia, West Germany, Britain and Poland. "It will give us a great start toward the 1964 Olympics at Tokyo."

First and second place winners in the National AAU championships were eligible for the tour but some of the older guard, including shot putters Dallas Long and Parry O'Brien, hammer thrower Hal Connolly and two-time Olympic discus champ Al Oerter declined the invitation. Long and Connolly were among the 20 AAU champs crowned Saturday and Sunday while Oerter and O'Brien qualified as runners-up.

"However, we do have miler Dyrrol Burleson, who is only 21," said Elliott. "And others like schoolboy Ullis Williams, who finished second in the 440, and a couple of Villanova sprinters named Frank Budd and Paul Drayton."

Budd, 21, set a new world record of 9.2 seconds in winning the 100 yard dash on Saturday and Drayton, second in the 100, won the 220 with Budd third behind Charles Frazier of Texas Southern.

18 Americans Begin Play In Wimbledon

LONDON (UPI)—Eighteen Americans opened play in the all-England tennis championships at Wimbledon today, but only two of them — Chuck McKinley and Ron Holmberg — were conceded a chance at Australian Neale Fraser's men's singles title.

In a field of 128 men competing in the singles, Fraser and fellow Aussie Rod Laver and Roy Amerson were rated the ones to beat, with McKinley, a 20-year-old Davis Cupper from St. Ann, Mo., seeded No. 8, the highest seeded Yank in either the men's or women's ranks.

McKinley, a strong, powerful player, met the experienced Sergio Tacchini of Italy and Holmberg, of Brooklyn, N.Y., who has displayed some excellent tennis in international competition, played Enrique Morea of Argentina, also on the center court.

Women's singles play doesn't begin until Tuesday with Sandra Reynolds of South Africa, the No. 1 seed, favored to win the title. Margaret Smith and Lesley Turner, seeded two and four respectively, are the top Aussie stars with Karen Hantze of Chula Vista, Calif., the only American seed at No. 8.

Maria Bueno of Brazil, the defending champion, is missing from this year's field. Miss Bueno is suffering with an attack of jaundice and is recuperating at Paris.

NCAA Tennis Won By UCLA

AMES, Iowa (UPI)—UCLA won its second consecutive NCAA tennis championship Sunday as top-seeded Allen Fox provided the one-point margin that nosed out Southern Cal.

Fox defeated Big Ten champion Ray Senkowski of Michigan, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4, to take the singles title for the second consecutive year and build UCLA's point total to 17 for the week-long tournament.

Palmer's 69 Nips Snead In Western

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer's severest critic must be Arnold Palmer.

The Latrobe, Pa., perfectionist admitted he wasn't too pleased with his iron Sunday after winning the Western Open golf championship for the first time with a 72-hole score of 271.

"I'm hitting the greens okay but I'm not getting close enough to the pin," Palmer complained. "You can expect to sink a few 20-footers but not all of them."

Palmer posted a two-under-par 69 in the final round to turn back old rival Sam Snead by two strokes. Snead, who started the day in a six-way tie for fourth place at 207, finished with a 66 to give Palmer a run for the $5,000 first prize.

However, Palmer conceded that having Snead in the same threesome in the final round didn't bother him at all.

"He was three strokes behind me until the 16th and if you start worrying about guys three shots back, you've got about 150 guys to worry about," Palmer said.

So Palmer just played the same steady golf he displayed in the three previous rounds and upped his 1961 earnings to $50,585, second only to the $53,970 taken by Gary Player of South Africa on the current tour. Player, at 283, won $265 to finish in the money for the 39th consecutive time.

Doug Sanders, who started the final round in second place, had a one-over-par 72 and had to settle for fifth place money.

Smith, in addition to taking the win, banged out three hits in three trips.

J. Davis was the loser.

Eaton's Six-Hitter Sinks Pampa, 10-3

Rubber-armed Jim Eaton threw a nifty six-hitter here Sunday afternoon as the Woodward, Okla. amateur nine ripped Pampa's Optimist Colts, 10-3 at Optimist Park in a Tri-State league game.

On a day evidently more befitting for water-skiing than baseball (less than 150 fans showed up), the Woodward nine gained revenge for a 5-2 licking the night before by the Colts on their own grounds.

And this was the one that went into the official record books at Liberal, Kan. The Colts are now 1-2; Woodward 4-0.

Eaton, who makes it a habit of pitching a lot of baseball, (he once twirled every game his school-boy team played) did that this hot, sticky afternoon.

Growing stronger as the game progressed (he allowed only three hits after the fourth inning) the happy-go-lucky mound flipper had the Colts hitters in a "dither" in the latter stages of the game. On many occasions the Colts batsmen were either swinging too soon, too late, or nary at all.

Ivan Wooten, who was working on a string of 13-plus scoreless innings, saw his magic spell dissolve in the very first inning as lead-off man Karn walked and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly.

Wooten, who hurled six frames, allowed seven runs on eight hits, with all but one of the runs earned.

Kippy Williams, his relief in the visitor's five-run seventh, fared no better as he allowed three earned runs on three hits in facing only three men.

Newt Secret, who then came in with the bases loaded, gave up two straight hits (good for three runs) before putting out the fire.

The Colts playing co-manager was double tough the rest of the way whiffing five.

The Colts, who have a penchant for subscribing to an early lead, and the surrendering it, tallied two markers in the bottom of the third to take a 2-1 edge. Third baseman Bobby Nutt, who made some fine fielding plays at the hot corner, got on via an error to lead it off.

Second baseman Ruben Strickland then doubled him to third and both then rode home on short stop Larry Powers's two-base smash down the leftfield foul line.

Raymond Dean, hitting .321, then boosted the margin to 3-1 in the next inning by banging Eaton's first offering over the Mohawk sign in deep left-center.

However, the Colts stampede was ended for the afternoon, as it was the visitors time to bowl.

Which they did to the tune of four runs in the sixth and then the five big "cake icers" in the seventh.

Wichita Falls Amateur Goes To Thompson

WICHITA FALLS (UPI) — A pair of University of Houston golfers captured top honors Sunday in the flood-plagued 33rd annual Wichita Falls Country Club invitational tournament for amateurs.

Rocky Thompson of Wichita Falls fired a five under par 66 to take the championship and Fred Martati of Houston, Fred Martati of Houston, was second one stroke.

Don Cherry of Wichita Falls finished third with a 67.

Nearly four inches of rain washed out nine holes at the course, and tournament officials had to makeshift to play 18 holes during the afternoon. The finals of the tournament originally was scheduled for 36 holes.

Sovereignty

We noticed that Governor Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey, in his recent visit to these parts, suggested that America requires a system of "relative sovereignty." What was bothering the governor was the recognition that there are a great many "sovereign" nations throwing their weight around, including the United States of America.

In this touchy climate of international suspicion and tension, such tactics are loaded with danger. And the danger is so large as to pose a threat to the whole human race.

But the observation by the governor ended up being part of a parcel of the same old argument offered by those who envision a super, world government. Meyner doesn't want an end to political sovereignty, which is what causes the trouble. With typical political shortsightedness, he wants a larger and more perfect sovereignty, built into a world government.

So it must be that Mr. Meyner and this editor are going to stand on different sides of a very high fence.

There is only one kind of sovereignty which interests us even remotely. That is the natural sovereignty which man holds over himself, as an individual. We do not believe that this sovereignty can be or should be "relative." We believe that because of the nature of human life this kind of sovereignty is natural and real and that it must not be tampered with.

Indeed, we will go so far as to say that our problem today stems from our failure to recognize this fact as an abiding principle. We live in a situation of relative sovereignty as it is. The individual's rights to manage his own affairs and be true to his own best interests have already been abridged by political effort within this nation, not only a national level but at state and local level. And Meyner's contribution to thought is that what is already bad should be made worse.

Advance And Retreat

Food is basic. And ever since men learned how to become agriculturists instead of nomadic hunters, civilization has advanced. The man who takes the land and uses it in steady production of crops of forage is the keystone to our ability to stay alive.

But when men advanced the next step, it brought confusion to many. For it used to be that the number of farmers gainfully employed in a given territory rather well signalled the degree of prosperity which might be expected in that territory.

Now, however, man's technological and tool-making facility has greatly improved. And ever since this phase began, fewer and fewer men have been needed to work the land.

It is true, of course, that acres and acres will always have to be employed to raise the things we need as food. But our ability to devise ways and means of growing things has advanced so rapidly that it is literally true that with proper tools and proper chemicals, human beings should ultimately be able to raise enough to feed the populations of the world in an area no larger than the state of Texas.

The American Way

By John T. Flynn
YOU CAN STOP COMMUNISM
Will Americans ever learn what communist subversion inside the United States really means — and how to fight it? It is possible, of course, that the people generally are "way ahead of their leaders" in this respect. Last month, for instance, at one of his press conferences President Kennedy had something to say on this subject. He took to task those citizens who are troubled about the manner in which communists and communist objective so seriously infiltrate our institutions and our thinking. He said these people ought to pay more attention to subversion in Laos and Vietnam, and to Moscow's exploitation of poor nations.

That was a very revealing statement. It showed that Mr. Kennedy harbors somewhat the same blind spot which has been congenial with a large part of American officialdom for a good many years. This blind spot is composed of two dangerously inaccurate ideas.

The first is that the communist threat stops at the three-mile limit; that communism is something to be concerned about only in the faraway places of the world. Perhaps this is why it seems much more important to Washington officialdom to resist it a bit more vigorously — now and then — 10,000 miles away rather than 90 miles from our shores.

The second fallacious idea is that communism inside the United States is no menace unless it is a wild-eyed, bushy-haired revolutionist brandishes a bomb and threatens to blow up a government building. But that is not how real subversives work.

First of all, the dedicated subversives — and their knowing or unknowing dupes — are just as suave, clean-cut, well-dressed and well-educated as any ordinary citizen. And they don't go around yelling "Down with the U.S. Government; up with the Dictatorship of the Proletariat." They work ceaselessly to implant their ideas and aims in the minds of otherwise perfectly good Americans, who then carry forward communist objectives without ever realizing what they are doing or what has been put over on them.

When this nation began, a pronouncement was made that in point of fact individual man by his nature was free. And if man is by nature free, then it follows that each man is boss over his own affairs, and no others, and that no man can possibly be the dominating, controlling, regulating medium over the affairs of others. Someway, we have been more inspired by a reading of the Declaration of Independence than we have ever been by listening to or reading the words of political mendicants who wish to revise the nature of man.

Man, by his nature, is free. The control that is exercised over him is an inner control which he exercises over himself. Outside, political authoritarianism is contrary to his nature, whether it arises in states, in federations or in world forms of governments. Man must be free to fulfill his destiny.

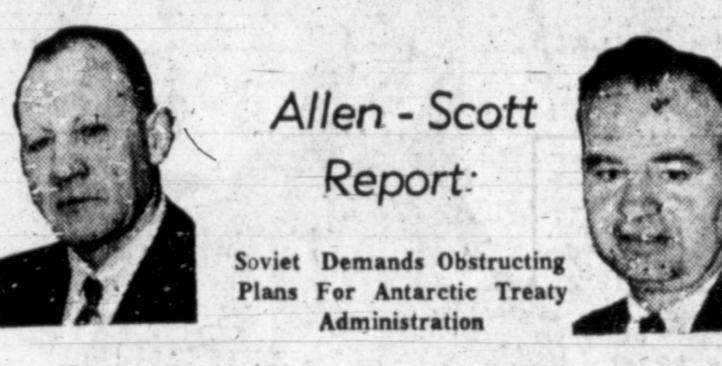

That Texas should embark on total feeding. We refer to size, not to state objective.

In the United States, ability to free men from the land has advanced so well that quite recently only one out of five persons in this nation were employed on the farm. Now only one out of 11 has to be so employed. In other words, every man so engaged, 10 have been freed to perform other tasks. In Russia, that ratio is now approximately four workers out of five so engaged.

Thus, while America has been moving forward at a great rate, our principle competitor in growth and expansion has moved scarcely at all.

Unfortunately, as we have learned to release men from the farm by better methods, we have not learned to release men from government service. Indeed, in government, the reverse is true. Whereas it used to take but the merest fraction of our population to inhabit the various departments of force and violence, now the numbers are growing astronomically.

Soviet Demands Obstructing Plans For Antarctic Treaty Administration

WASHINGTON — The Kremlin is characteristically throwing a monkeywrench in still another important international conference — which hasn't even convened as yet.

The 12 member-nations of the Antarctic Treaty, preparing to meet July 10 in Canberra, Australia, to set up the administrative machinery for that pact, already have been thrown into a snarl by typical Soviet obstructionist demands:

—That the notorious three-headed "troika" system be applied to the control organization of the Antarctic Treaty.

—Poland and Red China to be admitted as members of the pact. Neither of these Communist countries has done any exploring in the vast South Polar continent, or displayed any interest in it. Under Treaty provisions, Poland, a UN member, can be brought in by a majority vote. But China, not a UN participant, requires a unanimous ballot.

In the preliminary backstage discussions now underway in Washington, the U.S. is flatly rejecting both Russian proposals.

Moscow is arguing they should be referred to the UN on the ground it has a direct interest in Antarctic affairs. The U.S., supported by Britain and other Treaty signers, takes the position that only its members have the authority to determine what is done under it.

On the basis of the fundamental differences evincing themselves in the preparatory talks, the outlook is dim that much, if anything, can be accomplished at the Canberra parley.

The indications are strong that the Kremlin is bent on being as disruptive there as at the Geneva conferences on Laos and nuclear testing.

The U.S. is adamantly opposed to allowing Red China to become a member of the Antarctic Treaty, or to permitting the frustrating "troika" system to control it. Both moves are viewed as designed give the Soviet the dominant voice in Antarctica.

SPACE LABORATORY — The growing importance of that Polar region is evidenced by the fact it is slated to be a key laboratory for the man-on-the-moon project.

With recorded temperatures of more than 125 degrees below zero, Antarctica is ideal for testing equipment, clothing and the other devices and apparatus needed for human survival on the moon — where temperatures are more than 200 degrees below zero.

Things Americans Miss While Visiting Abroad

ROME, Italy — Being Nothing More Than A List Of Things An American Misses After He Has Been Abroad For A While:

American sounds. Everything sounds different over here, and one's ear never grows accustomed to that difference. That goes for birds, train whistles, church bells, voices, street cries, noon whistles, the hum of traffic, dog barks, the start and stop of trolleys, children at play, men at work, and trucks pulling up a hill or rounding a corner.

Without knowing it, one strains to hear a familiar sound. That is why, I suppose, when the visitor abroad hears Americans talking he moves toward them. It isn't so much a desire to get in on the conversation as to hear sounds that fall naturally on the ear. I can tell the sound of the door of an American car being slammed a block away, and for a split second one is home again. A American laughter is especially different. Blindfolded, I could pick an American laugh out of a roomful of laughs.

American shoes. The American must have the most patriotic feet in the world. They just can't be comfortable in shoes made in any other country. Men's feet, I am talking about. I don't know about the ladies. I have tried shoes made in Italy, France, Spain, Portugal and England (supposed to be the best) and haven't found a fit yet.

Italian shoes are too pointed, and give no play to American toes, and French shoes are pointed at both ends, thus cramping the style of both toes and heels. Spanish shoes fit like gloves, which is a bit tight, and Portuguese ones speak for months. This goes even for tennis shoes and loafers. Maybe one's feet become cosmopolitan after a while, but at the moment mine are as nationalistic as apple pie, fried chicken, and corn on the cob.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN

My recent recommendation of nursing as an ideal career for young women eager for an opportunity to obtain professional training without sacrificing the opportunities for marriage, child-bearing and domesticity has aroused some constructive comments.

The son, husband and father of nurses contributes, in his words, "these few corrections to an otherwise excellent article":

After four years of education and at the cost of $5,000 plus, the R.N. gets $300 to $375 a month or as much as she could earn as a typist or clerk without being responsible, at times, for a human life.

"This same R.N. could take a six-week course (some states have much more stringent requirements) and be a licensed practical nurse and make almost as much money."

"In other words, the education for a nursing career is fine. But the pay is not."

I agree thoroughly with my correspondent. The salary figures he gives are, of course, for institutional nursing. The other side of the coin is the considerably higher rate of $16 to $24 a day that is the prevailing scale paid by the patient or family for private duty in and out of hospitals.

Writes a freshman student at "about the best hospital and nursing school in the country": "I loved your article but I certainly had to chuckle at your statement that social contacts with medical students, interns and visiting physicians are encouraged. Nothing at our school could be further from the truth. One instructor was so angry at what you wrote that he went to the director and said that any student who even went out with a doctor should be kicked out of school. He said he realizes doctors have got to be married, too, but they should stay away from nurses. I respect his opinion but I have an aunt and uncle who are nurse and doctor and they couldn't be happier in their marriage."

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

No one thought the task would be easy when French and rebel Algerian delegates sat down to the conference table in the resort town of Evian-Les-Bains to try to reach agreement on peace for Algeria.

But no one foresaw that in the first three weeks, the statistics would read: At the conference table: Deadlock.

In France and Algeria: 133 civilian deaths as result of Moslem attacks. On the French extremist side, 155 separate attacks, three times as many as occurred in all of 1960.

The issues: Sovereignty over the oil and mineral riches of the Sahara, guarantees for European settlers in Algeria, a ceasefire. Immediate prospects: Nil.

This week the talks were in recess for what the French called "reflections." The Algerians said Tuesday they hoped the talks would be resumed by next week. Adding to the gloom was an element not even mentioned in the statistics.

It was the French army. Two months ago, after the collapse of the "Generals Revolt" in Algeria, it had been believed that President Charles de Gaulle had at least eliminated the force which could most surely wreck the talks at Evian-Les-Bains.

Back of this was the belief that the army finally had lost its taste for politics. In Paris, it came as a shock that the Algiers revolt led by Gen. Maurice Challe had much wider support inside the army than first supposed. Proof of government concern were continuing shakeups in military commands.

Algerian Nationalists, at their headquarters in Tunis, claimed that de Gaulle faced such strong opposition from the army that he could not impose a solution there even if the negotiators should agree upon one.

The French blamed suborners of the Algerian negotiators for the deadlock, and from the Tunisian government of President Habib Bourguiba they received some support.

In any event, this week hopes for an Algerian peace were at a low ebb, and there was a fear that even de Gaulle could not settle it.

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — If Republicans could turn for a moment from their recent political triumph in Texas they might look for some good party news in two great Eastern States, Pennsylvania and New York.

Like anchor men in a tug-of-war, the great cities of Pennsylvania and New York are Democratic election muscle.

Democratic mayors are now in trouble in the two greatest of these metropolitan areas, Philadelphia and New York City. Scandal has raised its ugly head. Everything, of course, is comparative. Scandal has raised its ugly head higher and more often and longer in New York City than in Philadelphia.

Democratic mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City has had municipal scandal of one kind or another on his hands for months. His present scandal relates to the building and maintenance of public school buildings. Thirty nine of Mayor Wagner's school construction inspectors and supervisors are threatened with suspension. The charge: Taking payola from building concerns.

An even dozen of Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth's employees have been suspended, sacked or arrested. More payola, this time from a contractor, repairing an elevated railway line. Neither Wagner nor Dilworth is accused, suspected or capable of being implicated in the payola-take.

The mayors are the responsible parties, however, the misadventures having taken place in their administrations. No elected officials are involved in the New York school troubles nor in Philadelphia. But the two big city Democratic administrations are stuck with the scandals just the same.

Scandal in these two cities raises some political questions. What effect will the bad news have on Mayor Dilworth's effort to be elected governor of Pennsylvania, assuming that he makes the race? Will Democratic scandals enable the Republicans to regain political control of Philadelphia which they held so long and abused so nobly that the voters finally kicked them out? Does democratic trouble in Philadelphia offer Republicans a chance to regain political control of Pennsylvania?

The top question in New York City is double-barreled: Will Mayor Wagner seek re-election and, if so, will the scandals enable the Republicans to lick him?

The governor of New York State, a Republican, Nelson A. Rockefeller. New York governors have a special authority for surveillance over municipal affairs. Wagner, like Dilworth, is using his own authority to discover misdeeds and to turn the rascals out. If Wagner overlooks any misdeeds or rascals, Rockefeller's agents will be glad to help the mayor find them.

The scandal pressure has made Dilworth a bit edgy. He has begun to complain that the newspapers are slugging too hard.

Private Housing Demand To Grow, Report Declares

NEW YORK (UPI) — Builders and real estate salesmen generally agree that new home construction this year probably will lack the progress of the late 50's, but what of other years ahead?

The Commission on Money and Credit, a privately-financed group which laid its recommendations on the nation's money and financing system on President Kennedy's desk this week, got cautiously hopeful about the outlook for more private housing during the forthcoming decade.

The commission, set up by the Committee for Economic Development, numbered bankers, manufacturers, representatives of union labor, farming, business and the law.

They had no axe to grind. When the commission was brought into being, the CED specifically charged that "all research is to be thoroughly objective in character and the approach in each instance is to be from the standpoint of the general welfare and not from that of any special political or economic group."

Assuming that this instruction was carried out, the report of the commission offers new cheer to those who believe that residential

Stock Market Investigation To Open Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House investigation chairman announced Saturday an array of blue chip witnesses for the opening of hearings Tuesday into operations of the nation's stock markets.

Rep. Peter F. Mack, D-Ill., who heads the investigating subcommittee, said the group was concerned over what he called "widespread evidence of speculation and apparent manipulations."

"I'm beginning to wonder whether stock prices are not definitely out of line with the dividends being paid," he said.

Mack said that G. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, is the first scheduled witness.

Edward T. McCormick, president of the American Stock Exchange; William H. Clafin, chairman of the board of the National Association of Securities Dealers; and Chairman William L. Cary of the Securities & Exchange Commission are scheduled to follow.

The subcommittee is an arm of the House Committee. Its main aim is to collect evidence to justify a $750,000 SEC study of the stock exchanges and over-the-counter operations. If approved by Congress, this would be the first over-all study of the selling of stocks and bonds since the SEC was established 26 years ago.

But Mack said he also intended to continue his own investigation of the markets. He said there might be further subcommittee hearings from time to time.

Lubbock Resident Held As Slayer

LUBBOCK (UPI)—Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred West filed murder charges Saturday against Juan Leos, 61, in the fatal shooting of his wife Friday night.

Mrs. Leos was shot three times with a .45-caliber pistol and died about 30 minutes afterward.

West said Leos tried to kill himself after his wife was shot but his 27-year-old son grabbed his arm. The bullet missed him. West said Mrs. Leos ran out of the house after she was shot and collapsed in the back yard.

Highway Death Toll Up To 958

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texas' highway death toll rose to 958 through the past week, compared with 928 at the same time last year, the Department of Public Safety said Saturday.

The fatalities were caused by 771 fatal accidents, compared with 754 fatal accidents to the same time last year. The increases were 2 per cent in fatal accidents and 3 per cent in traffic deaths.

construction is bound to grow. The CMC, in approaching its recommendation that the FHA be continued, said:

"The need for a federal underwriting program in the future is apparent. The demand for new residential construction during the sixties, especially the latter half, will probably be greater than in the fifties.

"The projected increases in the number of new families, and the prospective rise in family income affecting both new and replacement requirements will stimulate private housing demand. And programs for improving our cities will require more rapid replacement of dilapidated dwellings."

But the commission also saw the need for the federal housing administration loan insurance programs to continue "to facilitate the flow of private funds into residential construction," and made a formal recommendation to that effect.
