Collegiate rodeo opens Thursday

The naming of a queen will officially open the annual Western Texas College NIRA Rodeo, which begins Thursday at Scurry County Coliseum.

The annual college rodeo, co-hosted this year by Cisco Junior College, will run through Saturday with nightly shows at 8 o'clock.

A Western Texas Exes Rodeo is slated for Sunday, beginning at 1:30 p.m. in the coliseum.

Admission to the rodeo is $4 for adults and $3 for students. Tickets are available from queen candidates and at the door.

Queen candidates are sophomores Toni Evans of Snyder and Neally Hernandez of Sunray, and freshman Sarah Halsell of Crowell.

College teams from the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association's Southwest Region will participate here in bareback, saddle bronc and bull riding, steer wrestling, calf roping and team roping, barrel racing, goat tying and breakaway roping.

Western Texas' women lead the regional standings with three rodeos to go in the spring season. The Western Texas men are currently runners-up in the Southwest, trailing Vernon Regional Junior College.

The top two teams in men's and women's competition within the region will earn a spot at the College National Finals Rodeo in June in Bozeman, Mont.

Stock for the WTC rodeo is provided by the Harry Vold Rodeo Company. Bullfighters Larry Morgan of Comanche and Gerry Byrn of Woodway are scheduled to be on hand.

Concessions will be available.

'Country People' to debut

Western Texas College's drama department production of "A Quiet Country People" debuts Thursday in the college Fine Arts Theatre.

Shows run nightly through Saturday at 8 o'clock. A Sunday matinee is slated for 2 p.m.

Tickets are now on sale for $5 for adults and $3 for students. WTC students will be admitted free with their activity card.

The play's author, Harry Zimbler Jr., is visiting the WTC campus and will spend four days working with English and drama classes. Theatre-goers attending the Saturday night performance will have an opportunity to talk with him following the show.

In runoff...

Fisher defeats Mattox

Richard Fisher, who just two years ago was a foreign policy adviser for Ross Perot, today holds the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate.

Fisher garnered 54 percent of the vote in Tuesday's runo f election to defeat long-time politician Jim Mattox. Fisher received 399,199 votes; Mattox 346,337.

The Dallas millionaire businessman outspent Mattox more than 2 to 1. That came after Fisher spent more than $2 million of his own money last year to finish fifth out of 24 candidates in the special election won by Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison for the remaining 1½ years of Lloyd Bentsen's term.

Now, Fisher will face Hutchison again, in November.

Scurry County residents overwhelmingly backed Fisher, giving him 306 votes to 177 for Mattox.

Of the five state-wide races, Scurry County residents mirrored state results in all but one — the Democratic race between Betty Marshall and Gene Kelly for Place 2 on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Scurry County voters had Kelly winning by a scant nine votes, 230 to 221. But it was Marshall who grabbed 60 percent of the statewide vote to secure the Democratic nomination.

With 99 percent of precincts reporting, Marshall had 379,369 votes; Kelly had 252,651.

She will face former prosecutor Sharon Keller in the general election. Keller received 57 percent of the statewide vote to defeat San Antonio lawyer Sam Bayless in the Republican runoff.

In Scurry County, Keller polled 39 votes, Bayless 24. Statewide, Keller had 105,381 votes; Bayless had 78,328.

Incumbent Raul Gonzalez won the Democratic nomination for Texas Supreme Court Justice and will take that seat again. Republican nominee Oliver Kitzman has said he will not run in November.

Gonzalez' victory — he got 54 percent of the vote — was a hard-fought one with challenger Rene Haas.

The race was painted as a battle between business interests that generally are the defendants in lawsuits, which supported Gonzalez, versus trial lawyers who bring lawsuits on behalf of injured people, who supported Haas.

Gonzalez received 394,511 votes to Haas' 335,075. Scurry County voters also backed Gonzalez, but only by a margin of 246 votes to 232.

In one other Republican runoff, Don Wittig won the party's nomination for attorney general over Pat Lykos. Wittig received 110,196 votes, or 55 percent, while Lykos received 90,995.

Scurry County residents also backed Wittig, 43 votes to 24 for Lykos.

Reception for Boren is planned

Charlie Boren is one of just a few full-time commercial, professional sculptors in the United States who create masterpieces from large, rough pieces of wood and 27 of his works are being featured in Scurry County Museum.

A reception honoring the artist is planned at 7 p.m. Thursday in the museum. The public is invited to attend.

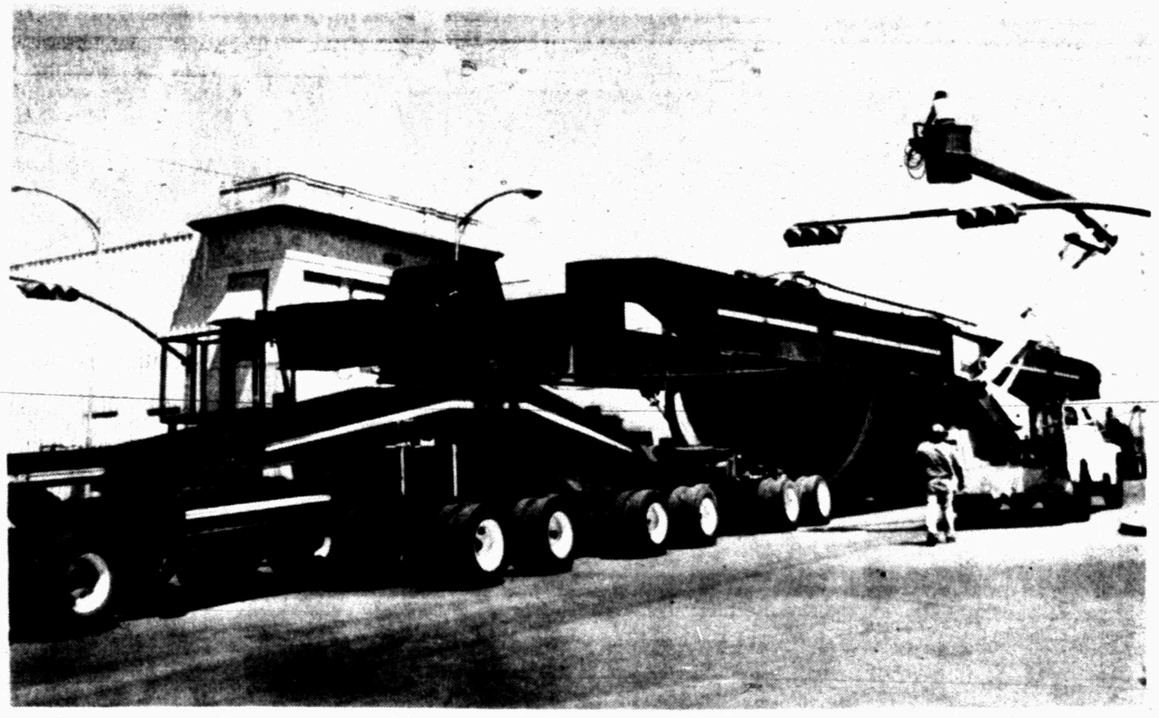

Boren will be giving a brief program on sculpting with mesquite and other woods. Dessert and beverages will be served. Admission is free.

Boren, born and reared in Snyder, worked as an educator for 25 years in Austin following graduation from Baylor University. During those years, he developed and refined his techniques in sculpture by studying with teachers from all over the United States, Canada and Europe. In 1984, he went to Oberammergau to study with master Bavarian sculptor Alexander Van Elst. In 1986, he traveled to Cheltenham, England, to carve with Britain's foremost wood sculptor, Ian Norbury. His most recent trip abroad was in 1989 when he went to the French-Canadian village of St. Jean Port Joli to work with sculptor Roger Borgault.

Boren makes his home on a farm south of Burleson and visitors can see his work there as well as at art shows throughout the state. The sculptures on display at Scurry County Museum come from the Benz Gallery at Texas A&M University where they were displayed from Jan. 10 through March 20. The collection will be shown in Austin and San Antonio later this year.

Activities for kids, parents sponsored by welfare board

Scurry County Child Welfare board has planned special events Friday and Saturday which are open to all area children and their parents.

Friday, the welfare board will host an evening program from 7 until 9 o'clock at North Elementary. The program will include parenting techniques, a panel discussion and activities for children. Refreshments will be provided and prizes will be given away.

Charlie Reynolds, DARE officer, will be in charge of the parents' program.

For children, Michael Howard will sing and perform magic tricks. Emmy, the green immunization program dinosaur, and a special purple dinosaur will be on hand. Texas Department of Public Safety will be displaying robot Trooper Bud. G-20 and Lucky 13 girls will be doing face-painting.

A finale will be held with children, the dinosaurs, Trooper Bud and Howard all performing for the parents.

On Saturday, the welfare board will have the dinosaurs at the courthouse gazebo from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. Children — and their parents or grandparents, if they wish — can have their photographs made with the dinosaurs for $2 each. All proceeds will go to the Scurry County Welfare Board.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Taxation is a bizarre system in which you spend money, save receipts and are somehow supposed to come out ahead."

Friday is T-Day. To help put you in the proper mood, consider the hefty tab faced by current and future Americans.

If every man, woman and child were billed for a share of the public debt, the bill would come to $13,345 each, or $53.30 for a family of four.

The Tax Foundation adds that by 1999, those figures will rise to $16,281 a person or $65,124 for a four-member family.

It's okay for the Infernal Revenue Service to be late, but we don't recommend common folks missing the deadline.

The IRS' backlog of unwritten regulations has risen to 576 from 572 in just one month.

The good news, if there is any: The average individual tax refund so far this year is $1,077, an increase of 6.6 percent.

Somebody has defined tax terms to help in these late hours.

Accountant — miracle worker.

IRS hotline — A free number you can call with tax questions. Chance of getting through is 25 percent. Chance of getting correct information...well.

Hotline accuracy rate — compares well with Mavricks' won-loss record.

Tax equity — a goal everybody professes to support, but nobody seems to be doing much about.

Tax simplification — A smokescreen that's often used to mask self-serving changes in the tax law.

Withholding — pay as you go.

Gross income — incomed derived from gross activities, such as being in partnership with brother-in-law.

Capital gains — the rich man's tax break.

Perez looses third election

HOUSTON (AP) — Leslie Elaine Perez, a transsexual and ex-death row inmate, failed Tuesday in her third bid for Harris County Democratic chairman, losing by a 3-to-1 margin to real estate developer David Mincberg in a runoff Tuesday.

With 80 percent of Harris County precincts reporting, Mincberg led with 46,650 votes, or 76.7 percent, to Ms. Perez's 14,162 votes, or 23.3 percent.

"I'm delighted with the results," said Mincberg. "It demonstrates the breadth of the support I have from within the county."

Ms. Perez, 56, did not immediately return calls to The Associated Press. She had said before Tuesday's election that a third loss would not deter her from trying again for the seat in 1996.

Ms. Perez topped six other candidates with 26 percent of the vote in last month's race for party chair.

Under the name Leslie Douglas Ashley, she was sentenced to death for the 1961 shooting death of Houston businessman Fred Tones, whose corpse was set afire and left in a roadside ditch.

Coping with painful polyneuropathy

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with polyneuropathy and have been given amitriptyline that didn't help. I have severe prickling and burning of my ankles. What is the cause and prognosis of this condition, and can I increase the dosage of medication for better control?

DEAR READER: Polyneuropathy, the malfunction of several nerves, often affects the legs and feet. It is caused by a variety of conditions, ranging from diabetes to nerve injury.

In most cases, treatment of the underlying disorder helps the symptoms of polyneuropathy; in other instances, the pain and burning persist — and are difficult to relieve.

Analgesics are frequently effective, for obvious reasons. Also, anti-depressant drugs, such as amitriptyline, may (for unknown reasons) reduce pain. Other therapy includes acupuncture, hypnosis and Zostrix (a topical cream made from chili peppers).

Although you should, perhaps, increase your dose of medicine for optimal benefit, I advise you not to do so without your doctor's approval. Furthermore, you may wish to obtain additional advice about your condition from a neurologist, who may — as a last resort — refer you to a pain clinic in a teaching hospital.

You should ask your family physician to explain your affliction, its cause and prognosis. Without examining you, I do not have enough information to advise you further. The neurologist can do that.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

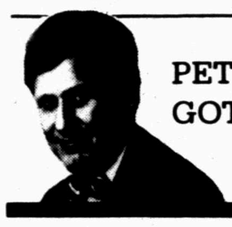

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can be done for scar tissue in the rectum? My doctor has indicated it is from previous surgery and nothing can be done. Any relief would be welcome.

DEAR READER: I wish I could help you but, alas, rectal scars from surgery cannot be cured; they are permanent.

Nevertheless, suppositories (to aid evacuation) and gentle stretching (by a surgeon or proctologist) may relieve the pain you are experiencing.

Avoiding tax man worldwide sport, even 2,500 years ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — While it never has achieved Olympic status, people through the ages have been fleet of foot when it comes to dodging the tax man. Even the ancient Greeks did it.

"If there are direct taxes ... to be paid, the just man contributes more from an equal estate, and the (unjust man) less," the philosopher Plato observed 2,500 years ago in "The Republic," his portrait of an ideal state.

Vito Tanzi, who heads the fiscal department at the International Monetary Fund, has produced "A Primer on Tax Evasion" — not a rule book for the sport but an account of its background and what some governments do about it.

The United States has some star players in the game. The Internal Revenue Service estimates that if everyone paid up when taxes are due on Friday, it would collect another $150 billion a year. That amounts to more than half the federal government's budget deficit.

Of course not everyone who owes taxes is deliberately dodging — the "tax gap" also includes people who have mistakenly underestimated their tax, or lack the money to pay.

The Treasury Department says it has no estimate of the amount lost by tax evasion alone.

Courts make a careful distinction between tax evasion, the felony that put gangster Al Capone in jail, and legal tax avoidance, or arranging one's business to incur a minimum of tax.

"A taxpayer is not bound to choose the patterns which will best pay the Treasury," one judge wrote. "There is not even a patriotic duty to increase one's taxes."

Tanzi pointed out in an interview that with big businesses hiring thousands of lawyers and accountants whose sole job is to keep taxes down, it is hard to distinguish between evasion and avoidance.

He noted in his primer, published by the IMF's quarterly "Staff Papers," that the game is popular in Mediterranean countries. Former President Luigi Einaudi of Italy once said that if his country fully enforced all its tax laws, the government would collect 120 percent of everything the country produced.

Damaged trees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has some hints for removing damaged tree limbs after the onslaught of winter.

When branches are pruned, the branch collar should not be removed. Also, don't flush-cut against the trunk and don't paint the wound. Allow young trees to develop good leaf crowns before pruning.

The best time to water landscape trees is after dark, from 10 p.m. to 8 a.m., the department says.

Claude Joseph Rouget de Lisle, the composer of the French revolutionary anthem "La Marseillaise," was a royalist who narrowly escaped the guillotine.

Serial killer Gacy's execution nears

CHICAGO (AP) — At Illinois' maximum-security prison at Joliet, a stocky man is regularly strapped to a gurney and wheeled into the death chamber.

Fourteen years after he was convicted of killing 33 young men and boys and hiding most of the bodies in the crawl space under his house just outside Chicago, Gacy may have finally exhausted his appeals, and defense lawyers are working feverishly to block his journey to the execution chamber on May 10.

"Everybody in this state is geared up to get rid of what is thought of as our worst citizen," defense attorney David Keefe said Tuesday.

Gacy, 52, was convicted in 1980 of more murders than anyone in U.S. history up to that time. That record was surpassed seven years later by Donald Harvey, an Ohio nurse's aide now serving a life sentence for 37 slayings.

A former building contractor who worked as a clown at children's parties, Gacy was accused of luring his victims to his home for sex, then strangling them between 1972 and 1978. Twenty-seven bodies were found under his house. Others were found under the concrete floor of his garage and in rivers nearby.

"If you're going to have the death penalty, you've got to have it for John Gacy," said Bob Egan, who helped prosecute him. "He killed 33 kids between the ages of 14 and 21, kids ... who just weren't even starting their lives."

Gacy originally was sentenced to die in 1980, but appeals have kept him alive on death row. He denies committing any of the murders.

The state Supreme Court set the execution date after Gacy's fourth failed appeal to the nation's highest court.

"I wish it'd be over with once and for all," said Rosemarie Szyc, whose 19-year-old son, John, was among Gacy's victims. "It would give some relief," she said, but added, "It won't bring my son back."

Gacy, slated to die by injection at Stateville Correctional Center in Joliet, would be the first Illinois inmate since 1962 to be executed against his will. The most recent Illinois prisoner to be put to death was Charles Walker, a murderer who asked to die and received a lethal injection in 1990.

Since December, the Corrections Department has held regular rehearsals at Stateville, enacting every step of the execution except the injection. An unidentified staff member with Gacy's heavyset build plays the inmate.

The rehearsals are designed to eliminate any mistakes and are standard procedure, department spokesman Nic Howell said.

As the guards practice, Gacy's lawyers are working on a federal appeal.

"If we can establish that at least one of the victims could not have been killed by Gacy," a new trial will have to be ordered, Keefe said.

In addition, their challenge to a state lawsuit seeking to make Gacy pay for his prison room and board could delay the execution, Keefe said. A hearing on that case is set for April 25.

The Illinois attorney general's office has formed a special legal team to handle promptly any further attempts by Gacy's lawyers to delay the execution.

The automatic or the pragmatic

By Phillip Alder

The robot believes that this is the best of all possible worlds. The scientist fears that it is. A variation on the old joke about the optimist and the pessimist.

When you are playing bridge, your analysis should, as a rule, be like the robot's: cold and logical, relentlessly working toward finding the right bid or play. But occasionally you must be flexible in your thinking. You must be as imaginative as the scientist, refusing to follow the textbook's rigid rules.

On lead against three no-trump, you have K-Q-J-10-9 in a suit. You lead the king, right? Well, most of the time you will, and usually you will be right. But not always.

When South opened with a strong no-trump, West decided not to overcall. Perhaps you agree; perhaps you don't. When North raised straight to game, West was delighted he had passed. The spade king appeared on the table with almost indecent haste. However, equally quickly South won with the ace, tested both minors and claimed 11 tricks: one spade, five diamonds and five clubs.

"You've got the ace and king of hearts, partner?" asked East rhetorically. "We can take the first five heart tricks."

"But look at my spade suit," replied West.

"It's true," conceded East, "that it looks tempting. However, once you've dislodged declarer's ace, you need only one entry, not two. How can it cost to start with a top heart? If the suit looks unpromising, you can switch at trick two to the spade king. Here, though, I drop the jack under your lead and you know we can run the suit."

Case closed.

Domestic demand said to increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of the expected favorable economic climate in the United States, markets are expected to improve this year for domestic aquacultural products, the Agriculture Department says.

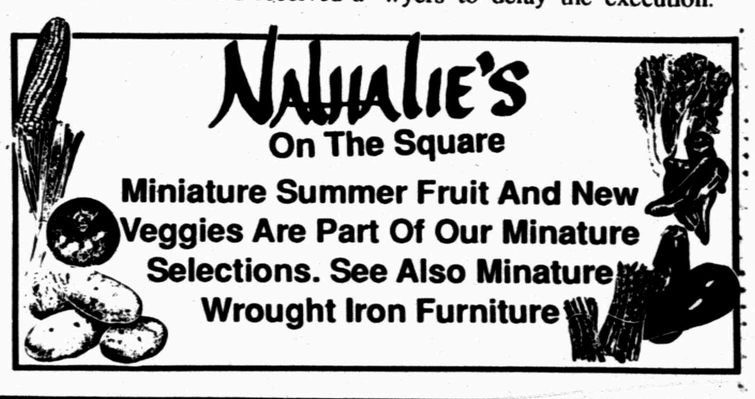

"However, with the European and Japanese economies still stagnant, foreign producers will be attempting to expand sales of their products in the United States," the department's Economic Research Service said in a recent report.

Some 459 million pounds of catfish were sold to processors in 1993, up less than 2 million from the previous year.

"Sales had been forecast to decline and much of the increase came from heavier-than-anticipated sales in the fourth quarter," the report said.

Farm prices for catfish averaged 71 cents a pound in 1993, up 19 percent from 1992. This year, farm prices are expected to remain at, or move slightly higher than, the 73 cents-per-pound average of the fourth quarter of 1993, the report said.

Total U.S. trout sales rose 6 percent to $68.7 million in 1993.

8-9 YEAR-OLD LEAGUE

White Sox 14, Indians 6

Lee Scott, Blake Grimmett and Trey Woolsey each rapped a double and a single to lead the White Sox past the Indians in a Tuesday 8-9 Year-Old game.

Matthew Vasquez added two singles, Ty Collier, Rusty Josey and Dusty Wilson each doubled, and Adam Carter and Rudy Duckworth lifted a hit apiece for the Sox.

The Tribe's seven-hit attack was paced by Isaac Ramon, who slapped a double and a single, and Brandon Graves, who punched twin singles.

Tyler Myers, Jacob Rodriguez and Jordan Day each chipped in a hit.

Cardinals 14, Cubs 2

Jessie Snyder slammed a double and a homer and Duran Lopez ripped a round-tripper as the Cards cruised past the Cubs Tuesday.

Justin Boyd drilled three hits, including a pair of doubles, Randal Rich singled twice and doubled, Kendall Tidwell and Clinton Blume each pounded three hits, and Bryan Huddleston, Bubba Walker, Enrique Perez and Barrett Munson rapped two singles apiece for the winners.

The Cubs, who combined for 19 hits, were topped by Garrett Arney, K.J. French, Trey Atkins, Zach Cain, Bobby Sands and Tucker Early with two singles each.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Indians 4, White Sox 2

Winning pitcher Sonny Cumbie struck out 16 and the Indians rallied for four runs in the last of the fifth to claim a come-from-behind win in Tuesday Little League action.

Rowdy Cumbie broke up a no-hit bid by Sox pitcher Josh Ward and Sonny Cumbie slammed a 3-run triple during the burst.

Ward, who carried a 2-0 lead into the fifth inning, fanned six on the night.

Hitting for the White Sox were Ward, who singled and stole two bases, and Martin Villarreal, who tagged a base hit.

Astros 14, Athletics 1

The Astros exploded for eight runs in the third inning to break a 1-1 tie in a Tuesday Little League contest.

Winning pitcher Chase McJimsey, and Randy Green each hammered a double and a single, Andy Perez popped a two-bagger, and Clay Preston and Braden Doolittle nailed a single apiece for the 'Stros.

The A's managed three hits, a single each from Bebos Martinez, Diego Hernandez and R.J. Hernandez.

Glen Burke was the losing pitcher.

'Dogs' defense stifles Tigers

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Each of the baseball teams in District 2-4A has its own strength.

Frenship has pitching and experience, Estacado has power and speed and, as the Snyder Tigers can attest, Plainview is blessed with almost flawless defense.

The Bulldogs turned five double plays Tuesday in their 5-2 loop win over SHS.

"In all the time I've been around baseball," said SHS coach Albert Lewis. "I don't think I've ever seen a game, even a pro game, where one team had five double plays.

"We can't be upset with the way we played," the coach added. "We hit the ball well and Reagan (Key) pitched a great game.

"What killed us was a lack of speed. We couldn't get down to second fast enough to stop the throw back to first on those double plays."

Plainview ripped off twin killings that ended threats in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings, then added one DP in the seventh.

The Tigers pounced on Bulldog starter Richard Saez for eight hits and a 2-0 lead in the third, before Henry Rodriguez came on in relief, giving up just three base hits and no runs the rest of the way.

Third baseman Curt Rinehart punched a second-inning single and scored on an RBI rap by John Clinkinbeard to give SHS a 1-0 advantage.

The lead grew to 2-0 in the third when Key singled and went to third on a pair of wild pitches and came in on a base hit by DH Gene Pollard.

Snyder's 11-hit attack was led by Clinkinbeard, who was 3-for-3 with a walk and an RBI, and Craig Lang and Rinehart, who each collected two hits in three plate appearances.

Plainview took the lead in the third with three runs on four hits, including doubles from Joe De Leon and Robert Gomez.

The 'Dogs added two in the fifth on three hits and two errors.

Key was saddled with Tuesday's loss, in spite of ringing up 11 strikeouts, including all three outs in the sixth and seventh frames. Key gave up eight hits and didn't walk a batter.

Rodriguez got the win for Plainview, limiting SHS to three hits, walking only one and fanning two.

Snyder slips to 11-10 on the season and 2-2 in league action with the loss.

Plainview is 12-10 and 3-1 after the win, tied for first place with Estacado, which knocked off Frenship Tuesday, 6-3, and defending champ FHS.

In other action Tuesday, Lamesa won its first 2-4A contest; handing winless Levelland a 12-3 loss.

The Tigers will stay home for Friday's encounter with Estacado. The Tigers and the Matadors will square off in a 7 p.m. tilt at Moffett Field.

Dallas VP Rick Sund fired as losses mount

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mavericks owner Donald Carter, the stereotypical Texan with the big grin, big hat and big wallet, has finally had enough with his team's big losses.

Carter decided Tuesday to step in and try reversing the downward spiral the Mavericks have been on since getting within a game of the 1988 NBA Finals.

His first move was firing vice president Rick Sund, a key builder of the model franchise of the 1980s and equally responsible for its collapse in the 1990s.

"It wasn't something that just happened one day," Carter said. "Let's just say it has to do with a new course that we've got to be on."

Sund, 42, joined the team as player personnel director when it began in 1980. His moves helped them reach the playoffs by 1984, although a series of bad ones recently have kept them out of the postseason since 1990.

His legacy, however, remains in Jim Jackson, Jamal Mashburn and seven first-round picks over the next five seasons, all of which makes Carter believe success isn't as far away as it seems for a team that's 10-66.

"I don't think you can say we need to make a lot of changes," Carter said. "In sports, one thing can make a difference in the chemistry and that can make a lot of difference."

Should he decide to keep making moves, the next victim probably would be coach Quinn Buckner, a major disappointment in his rookie season.

Buckner was given a 5-year contract despite having no previous coaching experience. His biggest selling point was a longtime relationship with Sund, who is no longer around to defend him.

When asked Tuesday about Buckner's future, Carter gave long pauses before answering.

"I gave him my word I will not look at his tally sheet until the end of the season and I will keep my word," Carter said.

The other main front-office member is general manager Norm Sonju. He has plenty of critics, although Sund has gotten most of the blame for trades and draft picks that didn't pan out.

Mats nip SHS in 8 innings

LUBBOCK — A seventh-inning error by Snyder forced an extra frame Monday, giving Estacado new life.

The Matadors scored in the home half of the eighth to claim a 5-4 JV baseball win.

Snyder's Patrick Cumbie got the loss, pitching the last 11/3 innings in relief of Patrick Jordan, who lasted six frames.

Top hitters for the Tigers were Jeremiah Johnson, who slammed an RBI triple and a single, Wayne Braziel, who drove in two runs on two hits, and Cumbie, who singled twice and had an RBI.

Snyder, 8-4, will host its own JV tournament Thursday and Saturday at Moffett Field. The Tigers' opening game comes Thursday at 4:30 p.m. against Sweetwater.

Cowboys offer Wilson 1-year deal

IRVING (AP) — In the wake of an expected deal between Bernie Kosar and the Miami Dolphins, the Dallas Cowboys have offered Wade Wilson a one-year contract to be the club's backup quarterback, according to a published report.

Wilson is considering signing a one-year, $700,000 contract today, agent Leigh Steinberg told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"Wade has more money being offered elsewhere," Steinberg said. "But (Cowboys owner) Mr. (Jerry) Jones is a compelling salesman."

Jones spoke to both Kosar and Wilson on Tuesday, suggesting one-year deals to both of them. But Kosar appears ready to sign with the Dolphins, possibly as soon as today.

Cowboys officials said Wilson is Dallas' top choice for a backup should Kosar leave.

Wilson, 35, started for New Orleans last year. He completed 221 of 388 passes for 2,457 yards, with 12 touchdowns and 15 interceptions. He threw for seven touchdowns and just one interception early as the Saints started 5-0, but had a 5-14 TDs-to-interceptions ratio in his final nine games before being injured.

Wilson, who was paid $2.8 million last year, was released by the Saints in March. New Orleans has offered him a deal for about $900,000 for next season. Detroit is reportedly willing to pay $1 million for the 13-year veteran.

Local Special Olympians place

SAN ANGELO — Snyder Special Olympians Jonathan Barrow, Lela Stevens, Shayne Harmon and Marvin Butler all scored first-place finishes in the softball throw, leading a group of 16 local athletes at Saturday's Area 14 Track and Field Meet here.

Other top finishers include Randy Underwood, who was first in the standing long jump and the 100-meter walk, and Mikey Lindsey, who copped first in the running long jump and the 100-meter dash.

In addition, Hope Martinez, Butler, Harmon, Tabitha Gomez and Laura Vanous were first in the 50-meter dash.

Susie Mullen was second in the softball throw, as was Ellen Cardin, and Ricky Berry. Cardin also took runner-up honors in the 25-meter wheelchair event. Bryan Daniels and Berry were second in the 50-meter dash.

Taking third in the 50-meter dash was Michael Cotton. Stevens was fourth and Mullen came in fifth.

Tom Crawley was third in the 100-meter walk, Cotton, Gomez and Vanous wound up third in the standing long jump, Daniels, Gomez, Martinez and Crawley were third and Blaine Burney was fourth in the softball throw.

Mitchell seemed to be the perfect candidate

By Tom Raum
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Mitchell seemed the perfect candidate for the Supreme Court: so popular in the Senate that confirmation probably would have been unanimous.

Now his abrupt withdrawal assures President Clinton of yet another headache in filling a key judicial appointment.

Was Mitchell gently nudged aside by the White House? Or did he truly decide on his own to devote his energies to the health care battle?

Whatever the case may be, it is almost certain that whomever Clinton picks will have a tougher time winning confirmation than would have the amiable Senate majority leader from Maine.

Mitchell was a well-respected figure nationally, a former judge with a reputation for evenhandedness.

No one on the list of potential contenders now said to be under consideration even approaches Mitchell's credentials.

The job sounds like nice work if you can get it: a lifetime post with good fringe benefits, a chance to leave a mark on U.S. legal policy and plenty of respect.

So why do presidents — and particularly Clinton — seem to have such a hard time filling vac[illegible] why do so many potential well-known candidates withdraw their names?

"I think the whole process has gone sour," said Tom Korologos, a Republican lobbyist who helped shepherd President Reagan's nominations of Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justice Antonin Scalia through the Senate. He also handled Reagan's unsuccessful nomination of Robert Bork to the high court.

"It is the biggest of all the appointments. And the most scrutinized. Everything you've ever said, every car you've ever owned, every book you've ever bought, every video tape you've ever rented come under scrutiny," Korologos said.

Clinton in the past has spoken of the virtues of appointing political figures instead of judges to the court and has cited as an example the broad experience that the late Chief Justice Earl Warren, a former California governor, brought to the bench.

And yet, with Mitchell's withdrawal, the list of individuals said to be under consideration by Clinton consists almost entirely of judges and those in the legal system — names few Americans have heard of.

If there was some hidden reason for Mitchell's withdrawal, you couldn't tell it from public statements on Tuesday by both the president and the majority leader. Both indicated that the choice to withdraw was Mitchell's and that he had been Clinton's first choice.

But there were some early signs of possible trouble, including the obvious, that Clinton really wanted Mitchell to help marshal support for his health care plan.

Or maybe Mitchell wanted to gamble that another court slot would open up — perhaps that of chief justice — while Clinton was still president.

In any event, with Mitchell's withdrawal, Clinton lost his best shot at winning quick approval for a Supreme Court nominee, and must now brace for what could yet be another nasty — but typical — confirmation battle.

Modern day battle of the Alamo now brewing in Texas

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — They're fighting at the Alamo again. This time, it's the legend that's under siege.

On one side are the traditionalists who see the Alamo as an undeniable symbol of Texas pride and independence. On the other are the revisionists who see it as just a big lie perpetuated by a "redneck culture."

Reputations of longtime heroes like Davy Crockett and Jim Bowie, killed more than a century ago defending the fort, are now under attack.

Some of the allegations seem downright blasphemous: Bowie took part in an elaborate slave-running scam. Crockett was a washed-up politician who didn't even wear a coonskin cap. William Barret Travis, the Alamo's commander, suffered from syphilis.

What in Sam Houston is going on here?

"I think there's just kind of a general re-evaluation of the Alamo that is occurring, not just among Mexican-Americans but among other people," said Avelardo Valdez, a sociologist at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

For more than a century, the tale of the Alamo was the same: In 1836, fewer than 200 Texans fighting for independence defended a fortress against more than 4,000 Mexicans.

The Mexicans won; all the Texans were killed. But their bravery was celebrated, and "Remember the Alamo" became a rallying cry when Texas fighters marched to victory at the Battle of San Jacinto.

Today, the cry is over how to remember the Alamo. Was it a heroic struggle for freedom or a ruthless display of imperialism and racism?

"I still feel that Mexican-Americans do not view the Alamo as something that symbolizes some kind of symbol of freedom or liberty. ... I still believe they see it more as a symbol of racism," Valdez said.

Defending the Alamo — and its reputation — this time is the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, a group of mostly white women who trace their ancestors to when Texas was a nation, from 1836 to 1845.

The Daughters have managed the site since the state entrusted it to them in 1905.

But critics scorn the group as an exclusive club. Valdez calls the Daughters representative of an archaic "redneck culture" that doesn't represent Texas' increasingly diverse population.

"This exclusive little clique has nevertheless succeeded in convincing many that their baseless mythology is fact," San Antonio Express-News columnist Carlos Guerra wrote. "As they see it, Texas history is about how freedom-loving Anglos came to Texas and brought civilization to the local savages."

Guerra, Valdez and others want to force the Alamo's caretakers to show off a larger slice of the monument's multicultural history.

"You have a history here that needs to be all-inclusive. But the history we have here is exclusive," said Gary Gabehart, president of the Inter-Tribal Council of American Indians in San Antonio.

One proposal would restore the Alamo and adjacent grounds as San Antonio de Valero, the Catholic mission established at the site by Spaniards in the 1700s.

Last year, city officials closed a street in front of the Alamo to keep tour buses from running over an area that is believed to be a mission-era graveyard holding the remains of 921 North American Indians and three dozen others. Upcoming Fiesta parades also have been rerouted.

The actions were taken over the strong protests of the Daughters.

"It was a mission, but that's not what made it famous," said Arthur Cavazos, the group's spokesman. "It's a place where a small group of men decided to make their stand and fight for liberty until the death."

City Councilman Bill Thornton, a mayoral hopeful and a vocal critic of the Alamo's status quo, contends that "there is absolutely no context of history" on the Alamo grounds.

"The Alamo is big enough, the message from the Alamo is strong enough, for everyone to be included and everyone's voice to be heard," he said.

Perhaps he's right. And maybe the battle is already making a difference.

One begins: "The Alamo has a long and diversified history."

Homeless given six more weeks

DALLAS (AP) — Homeless people living in a shantytown on the west edge of downtown Dallas apparently will have six more weeks before they're forced out of the area.

The Dallas City Council was expected to approve a recommendation today from its Health and Human Services Committee to delay evictions for six weeks for people under Interstate 45.

Under the plan, Dallas County would help find counseling for the homeless and housing in the form of apartments and-or treatment centers. City Hall would pay about $150,000 in rent assistance, which could cover about two or three months of lodging. The county also will help them find jobs.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development said it has 55 units of transitional housing that could be made available immediately.

The plan to delay the eviction until May 23 and help move the homeless must also be approved by the Dallas County Commissioners Court, which meets Tuesday. Officials predicted passage by both

Radiation series wins Pulitzer Prize

NEW YORK (AP) — A footnote in an old report was the first step in a six-year search by an Albuquerque Tribune reporter who ferreted out details of Cold War atomic experiments in which unwitting humans were used as guinea pigs.

Eileen Welsome's trek along that long-cold paper trail prompted congressional hearings and disclosure of other radiation tests on humans.

And on Tuesday, it won her the Pulitzer Prize for national reporting.

"The patients were all dead, the scientists were all dead. It was a big gamble all along the way. I worked hard and had a lot of luck," said Welsome, who was in New York to receive a George Polk award for the same series.

The New York Times collected three Pulitzers, journalism's top prize, on Tuesday — a present for Executive Editor Max Frankel, who is stepping down this summer to become a columnist. The Chicago Tribune won two, while the gold-medal Pulitzer for public service went to the Akron Beacon Journal of Ohio for a yearlong series on race relations.

In the arts, playwright Edward Albee overcame nearly two decades of critical and commercial rejection to win his third Pulitzer for drama, for the play "Three Tall Women," which reopened off-Broadway a few hours later.

The other arts winners were E. Annie Proulx, fiction, for "The Shipping News," a book about a third-rate newspaper reporter; former Washington Post reporter David Remnick, general non-fiction, for "Lenin's Tomb: The Last Days of the Soviet Empire" and David Levering Lewis for "W.E.B. Du Bois: Biography of a Race, 1868-1919." Poet Yusef Komunyakaa won for "Neon Vernacular" and composer Gunther Schuller for "Of Reminiscences and Reflections." No history award was given.

The winners were announced by Columbia University, which administers the Pulitzer competition. Each award carries a cash prize of $3,000 except the public service award, which comes with a gold medal.

Welsome's interest was piqued in 1987 when she saw a footnote about a plutonium experiment on humans in a declassified report on animal experimentation at Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque.

The Albuquerque, N.M., newspaper's series ran in November, profiling 18 Americans whom the government injected with plutonium in the 1940s.

Though the experiments had been previously reported to little notice, Welsome was the first to track down any of the subjects. She called it "the wildest goose chase of my career."

A congressional subcommittee is holding hearings around the country on government-sponsored radiation experiments. Other publications have disclosed at least five similar test programs, with subjects including retarded teenagers in Massachusetts and pregnant women in Tennessee.

After the stories ran, Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary revealed that about 800 radiation tests had been conducted on humans, and that some of the subjects were not aware of the risks.

Study of vitamin A benefits finds surprising hint of harm

BOSTON (AP) — Scientists who launched a major study to prove that a form of vitamin A prevents cancer were amazed when their findings suggested just the opposite.

After 10 years of study, it turns out that beta carotene might actually cause cancer.

Beta carotene is the vegetable source of vitamin A. Dozens of studies have suggested that people who get lots of it lower their risk of cancer. Beta carotene and other so-called antioxidants are widely touted as natural cancer fighters.

So scientists felt confident when they launched a $43 million study on smokers that they would find in the end that beta carotene pills helped them ward off lung cancer.

Instead, to their complete amazement, they found that people who got the beta carotene were 18 percent more likely to have lung cancer than those who did not take the vitamin.

The study was so large, involving 29,133 men, that there was just one chance in 100 that the finding was a statistical fluke. Still, some scientists, including the researchers themselves, said this might indeed be the explanation.

"We are not convinced there was definitely a harmful effect," said Dr. Demetrius Albanes of the National Cancer Institute, a principal researcher. "There is a suggestion of it. We definitely have to look at it more."

Some experts — including those at the Food and Drug Administration, which has required vitamin marketers to tone down their health claims — say the work shows the pitfalls of making assumptions based on skimpy evidence.

"It underscores the need to have safety data before assuming something is safe, and there just was not much data out there prior to this," said the FDA's Dr. Beth Yetley.

The evidence in favor of beta carotene came from large population surveys of people's eating habits. But until now, there had been no carefully conducted experiment in a Western country to see what really happens when people begin using it in large doses.

"The message to the public is: Eat a good balanced diet, be pleased that scientists are working on these complex cancer prevention strategies, but be forewarned that there are no simple answers and there is no guarantee of safety when you take capsules into your body," said Dr. Gilbert Omenn, dean of public health at the University of Washington.

The study was conducted in Finland in conjunction with that country's National Public Health Institute. The results are being published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Smokers were chosen because they are already at high risk of lung cancer, and beta carotene seemed especially promising as a way to prevent this disease.

The volunteers were randomly assigned to take 20 milligrams of beta carotene, 50 milligrams of vitamin E or dummy capsules every day for five to eight years.

During the study, 876 cases of lung cancer were diagnosed. There were 474 cases among men getting beta carotene, compared with 402 in those who did not, an 18 percent difference. There were 433 cases in men getting vitamin E vs. 443 in those who did not.

Gun foe dodges recall

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A powerful lawmaker who wrote California's ban on assault weapons survived a recall attempt backed by the gun lobby, while a San Jose councilwoman whose racial remarks angered voters was swept from office.

In Texas, Democrats nominated millionaire investor Richard Fisher to challenge U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchinson in the fall, and a nephew of Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen won the Democratic nomination for Congress.

In Houston, Leslie Elaine Perez, a transsexual ex-convict who once came within hours of the electric chair, lost her third try to lead the Harris County Democratic Party. Real estate developer David Mincberg won 3-to-1.

California state Sen. David Roberti, 54, a liberal Democrat from the San Fernando Valley, easily survived a bitter effort to oust him from office just eight months before he has to leave anyway because of term limits.

The effort was bankrolled in part by the National Rifle Association, which was angered by Roberti's authorship of the 1989 assault-rifle ban that was passed after five children were gunned down in a Stockton schoolyard.

The recall failed Tuesday night 59 percent to 41 percent.

Roberti said his survival proved that lawmakers can vote their conscience on gun issues without fear of losing office. The NRA "wanted to take the credit for victory," he said. "Now, they can take credit for a great big defeat."

NRA spokesman Bill Powers had no comment.

Some voters complained that the recall's $1 million cost to taxpayers was a waste of money. But recall leader Kevin Washburn said, "Special interests have to be challenged, especially when there's corruption in government."

Recall supporters have noted that Roberti was president of the Senate at a time of corruption in the chamber, though he was not directly implicated.

Papers show Hillary more active in final days of Whitewater

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton sold Whitewater property and received payment checks from lot owners, according to newly released documents that portray the first lady as having a more active role in the land venture's final years.

The papers also include notations showing that companies owned by President and Mrs. Clinton's Whitewater partners loaned tens of thousands of dollars to the real estate venture.

The documents, released Tuesday, included Whitewater Development Corp.'s balance sheets, bank statements and tax returns. James McDougal, the Clintons' former partner, sold copies of the documents to reporters about a week after he received them from the White House.

They show that in the early years, McDougal ran the land venture designed to be a vacation and retirement community along the White River in Arkansas' Ozark Mountains.

But Mrs. Clinton "by default took necessary steps to wrap up and wind down the company's affairs" when McDougal was debilitated by a stroke and depression in the late 1980s, David Kendall, the Clintons' personal attorney, said Tuesday in Washington.

One document listed Mrs. Clinton as having sold $16,500 worth of property in the 230-acre development in March 1990. Others showed Whitewater lot owners made some monthly payments in 1989 and 1990 with checks made in care of Mrs. Clinton.

Also, three years worth of Whitewater tax returns — belatedly prepared in 1990 by the Clintons' personal accountant — listed the company's mailing address as the Rose Law Firm, where Mrs. Clinton was a partner. Those returns were prepared June 1, 1990, by Yoly Redden.

Clinton also made a $2,900 loan to Whitewater in 1979, and still was owed $2,400 in 1980, according to the same document.

FRIENDLY DINOSAURS — Scurry County Child Welfare Board will host an evening program Friday from 7 until 9 o'clock at North Elementary. The program will include Emmy, right, the green immunization program dinosaur, and a special purple dinosaur who will be on hand. On Saturday, the welfare board will have the dinosaurs at the courthouse gazebo from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. Children — and their parents or grandparents, if they wish — can have their photographs made with the dinosaurs for $2 each. All proceeds will go to the Scurry County Welfare Board. (Contributed Photo)

Structure fire is extinguished

Snyder Fire Department responded to a fire two miles north of Snyder on the Clairmont Highway at 9:30 this morning.

Firefighters said that upon their arrival, a small barn or shed type structure was fully engulfed in flames.

The fire destroyed the structure and contents inside, which appeared to be hay or feed, firemen said.

Fire officials were still attempting to determine ownership of the property at noon today. Cause of the fire is under investigation.

2 arrested by officers

Snyder area law enforcement officers made two arrests, investigated a theft and responded to two disputes Tuesday.

Officers arrested a 17-year-old man at 12:53 p.m. in the 600 block of 32nd Street on a Texas Youth Commission warrant for escape.

At 7:59 p.m., police officers arrested a 22-year-old man in the 1800 block of 37th Street for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated.

Officers also transported a 24-year-old man from Municipal Court to the county jail at 10 a.m. to lay out fines for public intoxication.

At 10:45 a.m. Tuesday, Bass Hines contacted sheriff's in reference to the theft of some farm equipment 12 miles south of Snyder.

Snyder police responded to a dispute in the 1900 block of Avenue E at 1:35 p.m. A report for assault/family violence was filed.

At 4:22 p.m., a woman contacted police in reference to her daughter having been assaulted by another juvenile. A report for Class C assault was filed.

Officers worked a two-vehicle accident at 6:09 p.m. at 33rd Street and Avenue E. Involved were a 1978 Pontiac driven by Stephen Dale Shoemake of 500 33rd St. and a 1987 Chrysler driven by Emma Garrett of 604 33rd St.

Two enter guilty pleas

A 62-year-old Snyder man was sentenced to probation Tuesday after pleading guilty to driving while intoxicated in 132nd District Court.

Benny Vasquez Castello of 1307½ 25th St. was sentenced to four years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice Institutional Division, probated, and a $750 fine. His driver's license was suspended for one year and he was ordered to pay court costs.

According to court documents, the offense occured on Nov. 3, 1993.

This morning, 32-year-old Jose Guadalupe Torres Jr. of 1010 26th St. pleaded guilty to a Feb. 28 offense of driving while intoxicated. He was sentenced to one year in the Scurry County Jail and fined $750.

District Judge Gene Dulaney handed down the sentences.

in and around Lake Buchanan, wood that has drifted down creeks and dry washes during the floods that occur in the Hill Country," Boren said. "Nature does the harvesting and the drying. I take those unique pieces to my studio where I study each one to see what it is that I should make from it."

Boren finds that the theme of each sculpture comes from the wood itself.

"You don't just pick up a piece of wood and begin to carve a bird. You look the wood over, study it in detail, and keep turning it over and over. Like a light being turned on, something pricks the mind and the piece will not be just a bird, but a majestic eagle."

Boren's talents were recognized by the Texas Forestry Association with the 1993 Distinguished Design Award.

Most of the pieces on display at the museum are for sale, with prices on request.

One killed

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — A gunman walked into a fiber optics plant this morning and opened fire, killing one person and wounding two others.

Authorities evacuated the Sumitomo Electric Fiber Optics Corp. and combed buildings and property for a man identified by witnesses as a recently fired employee. Police in Raleigh also said they had staked out the unidentified suspect's home.

"We looked out over the plant floor — we saw people just running at random. And it was just a pop, pop, pop. We never did see the guy," Sid Gregory, a Sumitomo employee, told WRAL-TV.

"I was trapped underneath a desk and the (2-way) radio wouldn't work," said a shaken Tim Blankenship as he stood in the rain outside the plant with other employees who were evacuated. "I had to crawl out."

Dear Abby

Wife Disapproves of Way Husband Plays at Work

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, I began working with my husband at our place of business, and it became obvious to me that a female employee was upset about my being there.

A few days later, she walked over to my husband and said, "I haven't had my hug from you today." My husband then gave her a bear hug, complete with grunts and growls.

The daily hug scene went on for a few weeks, then I finally told my husband I didn't care for this daily hug business, and he replied, "Oh, I was just doing it to tease you." Abby, he's always been a hugger, but not to that extent.

Well, the next thing I noticed this woman kept putting her hands on him — rubbing his shoulders, etc. Then she touched his thigh in a way that I felt was just too intimate. After she left the room, I told my husband that I couldn't understand why he didn't realize she was coming on to him. He laughed it off and accused me of imagining things, and insisted they are just "close friends."

I feel very threatened by this and can't get him to take it seriously. What should I do? I feel like I'm ...

PLAYING SECOND FIDDLE

DEAR PLAYING SECOND FIDDLE: Tell him that displays of physical affection are inappropriate at a place of business and so are bear hugs accompanied by sound effects. Tell him that you feel threatened by this and want to schedule some sessions with a marriage counselor. If he agrees, you will know that he respects your feelings. If he refuses to go, go without him.

DEAR ABBY: I hope that you will find this topic worth mentioning, and publish the following warning to all users of hot tubs and circulating baths:

WARNING! Users of hot tubs and circulating baths should never, repeat never, put their head under water. The powerful suction could pull in your hair and drown you!

This applies to adults as well as children. We have a circulating tub with a hidden switch to deactivate the circulating pump. When our grandchildren visit, the tub pump is off unless we are there to supervise. Perhaps all such tubs (particularly in rentals) should have a prominent warning sign posted on them.

Thank you. Maybe this warning can help to save a life.

MASON LOUGHLIN,
SUNRIVER, ORE.

DEAR MASON: If even one tragedy can be averted, your letter is worth the space. Thank you for writing.

DEAR ABBY: Someone who is very friendly with a person who works at a fairly important newspaper said that some of the letters that come in for Dear Abby are real "dillies" — then she went on to elaborate on those letters.

Abby, is it true that the letters addressed to you are opened and read by the newspaper employees? If it is true, I'd be afraid to send a letter to you in care of any newspaper.

Please comment.

CURIOUS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR CURIOUS: Thank you for asking. All letters addressed to me are strictly confidential, including those sent in care of local newspapers. Newspapers are instructed to forward letters to me unopened.

Hutchison's legal fees near $1 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's successful defense against criminal ethics charges has cost her more than $900,000 and is expected to top $1 million by the time she's paid all the bills.

The Republican's legal defense fund was established last November after she was indicted on charges she used state resources for personal and political gain while state treasurer. The fund has spent $699,181 as of the end of March.

Mrs. Hutchison, who faces reelection in November, was acquitted in February after prosecutors refused to present their case following a dispute over documents seized in a raid on the treasurer's office in June.

A report filed Tuesday with the Secretary of the Senate shows that during the 41/2-month period surveyed, the legal defense fund collected $720,235 from contributors nationwide.

In addition to the almost $700,000 in defense fund expenditures, Mrs. Hutchison previously reported spending about $200,000 from her state political campaign fund on her legal case.

Hutchison spokesman David Beckwith said the defense fund will remain open for several more months, because at least $100,000 in expenses remains to be billed and paid.

Some $565,000 of the defense fund total was spent directly on lawyer fees, with the remainder going for expenses such as jury consulting, fund-raising expenses, hotel stays and photocopying fees.

Contributions to the legal defense fund were solicited by direct mail from those who gave money to Mrs. Hutchison's political campaign last year, Beckwith said.

Three-quarters of the 6,207 people who contributed to the defense fund were from Texas, but money was received from all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

"She's extremely popular around the country," Beckwith said.

The overwhelming majority of the contributors gave less than $100, but the defense fund received several contributions for the maximum $10,000. One woman, [illegible] Michigan, gave 25 cents, Beckwith said.

Astro-graphs

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Thursday, April 14, 1994

In the year ahead you might be required to carry a heavier load than that to which you've become accustomed. On the plus side the rewards for work well done will also be greater than you previously received.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Restrictive conditions could be the byproducts of your own negative thinking today. Your mode of operation will be determined by your attitude for either good or ill. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Being short of funds today shouldn't diminish your array of activities from which to choose. In fact, that which could provide you with the greatest pleasure might be free.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If an associate who seldom gives you proper recognition pulls you into the limelight today, be on guard. The move might try to mask a mistake he/she made.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be mindful of situations that could cause you problems today, but don't let your keen imagination overwhelm you by negative things that may never happen.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to make it a point today not to buy things you may never use. If your need isn't urgent and immediate, resist the inclination to spend now. Stores won't run out of the merchandise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A friend who usually takes it upon him/herself to think for others might try to make a critical decision for you today. It's best you make your own decisions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Every once in awhile you have a tendency to view problems as mountains when, in reality, they're merely molehills. There's a chance you might use your magnifying glass again today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today in social involvements with friends, don't take yourself or the activity too seriously. If you do, it could spoil the fun for you, as well as for the other participants.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Success could be denied you today if you and your mate are both striving for different objectives. Neither is likely to achieve his/her intentions and each might blame the other.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The time you waste procrastinating will be reduced from your productive hours tomorrow and you may not be able to accomplish what you could have easily done today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's best not to volunteer to manage the resources of others today, since you might have a very difficult time taking care of your own.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be too insistent upon having your own way today, because you might discover the ideas of companions work out better for you than those you conceive yourself.

'Suspicious' mail in ballots studied

ALICE (AP) — Election officials say something looks fishy about 134 mail-in ballot applications from two addresses in Falfurrias.

"It's not illegal per se, but it doesn't look good," said Elizabeth Hanshaw, a staff attorney for the Texas Secretary of State's office. "Obviously 60 to 70 people do not live in one place. It looks highly suspicious. It looks like something fraudulent is going on."

A register of mail-in ballots at the Jim Wells County Clerk's office showed that 66 applications were returned from one address and 68 were returned from another.

Both addresses are from a low-income apartment complex in Falfurrias. Neither of the registered occupants of the addresses are among those who requested the mail-in applications, according to a report in the Alice Echo-News on Tuesday.

"This deserves an investigation," Hanshaw said.
