While much of the nation is just getting around to discovering country music, West Texans have long been fans of "the Nashville sound."

Country superstar George Strait has set a stop on his national tour for March 28 in the Ector County Coliseum, while Wynonna Judd has selected Midland's Chaparral Center as the site for her solo debut concert on April 2.

Both artists have been responsible for dozens of hits, but which are your favorites?

Would you rather make "Amarillo by Morning"? Or, is "The Chair" more your speed?

Was Wynonna on target when she sang "Momma, He's Crazy"? Or is your sentiment "Love Can Build a Bridge"?

The Cityline COMMUNITY PULSE wants to know. Call 560-2400 and select category 1890 to express your opinion on your favorite song by each artist.

One free call to the COMMUNITY PULSE will allow you to vote twice — once for each singer, as well as leave a brief comment about either artist.

This special survey will remain open until March 26, and results of your calls will be tallied and reported in the March 27 edition of the Reporter-Telegram.

Officers called

LUBBOCK — Eighteen people, including 11 Lubbock and Odessa police officers, have been subpoenaed for an exhumation hearing amid questions over an autopsy performed by a Lubbock pathologist. A hearing is scheduled April 2 in Canyon to determine whether the body of murder victim Hilton Raymond Merriman Sr. may be exhumed. Attorney V.G. Kolius of Amarillo, who represents defendant Douglas Nathan Palmer, contends Lubbock forensic pathologist Ralph Erdmann made mistakes in his autopsy of Merriman.

Shaving death

CANTON, Ohio — A man was electrocuted while shaving with an electric razor, a coroner said. Kenneth Koon, 22, of Canton, died Friday after he collapsed in the bathroom at his mother's house, where he lived. Stark County Coroner Dr. James Pritchard said after an autopsy Saturday that Koon was electrocuted.

Panel halts checks list

Committee: Fairness, timeliness in conflict

■ Question of bank's delays in posting deposits carries enormous political implications, chairman says.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The head of the ethics committee investigating overdrafts at the House bank says so many members are complaining of errors in the bank's records that there is "no way" the panel can issue its report this week naming 24 members who abused their banking privileges.

On March 12, the House approved a resolution authorizing the release of the names after 10 days. Ten days after that, the panel was to release the names of 331 other House members or former members who overdrew their accounts at any time from July 1988 to October 1991.

But as the first 10-day period expired this weekend, the panel's acting chairman, Rep. Matthew F. McHugh, D-N.Y., said the committee was not ready to release any names.

"There is no way we can give people due process and disclose at the end of that 10-day period," he said.

The names of the 24 have been widely reported, but not officially confirmed by the committee, which is also supposed to provide details about overdrafts in those members' accounts.

Many of the 24 are still exercising their right to appear before the committee or its staff, and some are complaining that the bank was so slow in recording deposits that it caused an increase in the number of apparent overdrafts.

In an interview, McHugh said the committee faced conflicting pressures. On the one hand, committee members want to disclose data on overdrafts as soon as possible, and end the political agony of lawmakers waiting for a verdict in an election year.

On the other hand, he said, the committee wants to be fair to House members and to guarantee the accuracy of its report.

"There are two conflicting goals: our desire for due process and fair hearings, and our desire to make the

Plane crashes in snowstorm; at least 19 die

NEW YORK (AP) — A USAir jet carrying 51 people crashed in a snowstorm Sunday while trying to take off from La Guardia Airport and skidded part way into the frigid waters of Flushing Bay. Authorities said at least 19 people were killed.

AP

Emergency Medical Services Lt. Adelaide Connaughton said 19 people were confirmed dead. Sgt. John Murphy of the Port Authority police said 28 people were known to have survived and four others were still missing.

Mayor David Dinkins said in an interview from the scene that rescue workers believed the missing were dead inside the submerged part of the wreckage.

An eyewitness said the plane left the ground, then fell back and burst into a "huge fireball" before sliding into the water.

"It looked like the sun coming up," said Manny Dias, another witness. "The sky lit up. It was just about to take off. It just exploded."

USAir Flight 405, bound for Cleveland, skidded down the runway about 9:30 p.m., said Fire Department spokesman Jerry Sanford.

Brown opens fire on Clinton in bid to win black vote

By Jeffrey Schmalz

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Breathing fire and brimstone as he opened his New York City campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. shouted from the pulpit of a Harlem church Sunday his portrayal of Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton as a hypocrite.

Brown said Clinton was a man who curried black support but who had done nothing for blacks and said Clinton had even played golf at a whites-only country club.

Mocking suggestions by Democratic Party officials that he run a gentler campaign so as not to weaken Clinton, the party's presumed standard-bearer in November, Brown let loose with

Unsolved 'yogurt murders' shake Austin

By Roberto Suro

N.Y. Times News Service

AUSTIN — Three and a half months have passed since the night that four teen-age girls were bound, shot and set on fire in a yogurt shop, and this city still grieves.

"We will not forget" has become an unofficial slogan emblazoned on buttons, T-shirts, banners and even coffee mugs.

White ribbons adorn clothing, trees and automobile radio antennas, symbolizing the innocence of the victims who have come to be known as "the four Texas angels."

A song has been recorded and memorial funds have been established. Billboards, placards and handbills advertise a $25,000 reward for information leading to arrests.

In its mourning, Austin is trying to cope with a new-found fear of crime. The city is blessed with hills, water and the deep shade of Texas live oaks.

For more than a century it was a placid state capital and university town, which set its tempo at country music bars and delighted in the parochial scheming of legislators and lobbyists.

But since the mid-1970s Austin has grown office towers and subdivisions as it has become a nucleus for the nation's high technology industries. "Quality of life" was the mantra recited by city promoters.

Ad agency faces lottery challenge

■ Emotions surrounding the account to put GSD&M under an intense public spotlight.

By Evan Ramstad

AUSTIN — Texas, It's Like a Whole Other Country. Don't Mess With Texas. Coca-Cola, Texas. The State Bird of Texas.

Starting to notice a pattern?

They are some of the successful ideas from GSD&M, an advertising firm with a view of the state that stretches beyond the one from its hilltop office.

"We understand the uniqueness that is Texas," says GSD&M president Roy Spence. "It changes every day, but we understand it pretty well."

So well, a state comptroller's board thought earlier this month, that it gave GSD&M the coveted $20 million contract to promote the new Texas lottery.

That award has been challenged by the runner-up in the nationwide search, Dallas-based Tracy-Locke Inc., the state's largest ad firm. The comptroller's office, responsible for administering the lottery, is conducting a review.

But GSD&M, pressed to get things going by summertime, is moving forward with its lottery campaign — "Play the Game of Texas."

"It was all about Texans loving to play games," Spence said of the GSD&M pitch. "We couched it

WEATHER SUMMARY

Expect clouds, high near 70

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high near 70 and south to southeast wind at 10 to 20 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the mid-40s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tuesday should be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 70s.

After an overnight low of 39, Sunday's high reached 65 compared to the record high for that date of 91 set in 1934. The record low for that date is 20 set in 1952.

STATE

Lower temperatures moved across the state Sunday as a cold front worked its way south. But North Texas began a slow recovery for thermometers even though winds remained strong.

Lufkin reported sustained winds of 29 mph with gusts to 37 mph. Temperatures ranged from 46 to 69 degrees in North Texas but clear skies helped in the warmup.

Decreasing cloudiness was reported in the central and eastern parts of the state where temperatures ranged from 34 in the northwest to 42 in the southeast. Skies were generally clear except for scattered mid- and high-level clouds. Temperatures ranged from the upper 40s in the Panhandle to the lower 70s in the Far West and Big Bend Lowlands.

There was some rain offshore of Galveston. Small craft advisories were posted along the entire coastline.

It should be mostly fair and mild today with highs 64 to 70 across the state. It'll also be warmer tonight with lows from the lower 30s in the northern Panhandle to near 50 for South and West Texas. The trend will continue Tuesday with partly cloudy and warmer weather and highs 70 to 76, except in the Big Bend valleys where they'll reach 80.

There is a slight chance of thunderstorms in the north central part of the state today.

NATION

A spring storm pushing heavy snow and winterlike cold moved over the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley toward the East Coast on Sunday, dusting New York City with flakes. Elsewhere, thunderstorms doused the South.

Thundershowers also pelted California and Nevada, turning to snow at higher elevations in the north and in Nevada. Two-inch hailstones fell in Arkansas.

At noon CST, snow extended from the lower Great Lakes across New Jersey and northern Virginia. New York City began getting snow by late afternoon.

Rain stretched from Virginia across the southern half of the Appalachians, much of the lower Ohio Valley, the Tennessee Valley, and most of the Southeast. Heavier rainfall during the six hours ending at noon CST included 0.80 of an inch at Biloxi, Miss. and 0.77 of an inch at New Orleans.

Snowfall during the same six hours included 4 inches at Erie, Penn., 3 inches at Bradford, Penn., and Youngstown, Ohio, 2 inches at Cleveland and 1 inch at Detroit.

Overnight, up to 10 inches of snow fell over Michigan and 6 inches fell in northern Indiana. Northwest Ohio had up to 8 inches. Snow also fell in the central Rockies.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

CHECKS: Report naming abusers to be delayed

disclosures in a timely way," said McHugh. "There is a conflict between disclosing accurate information and disclosing it in a reasonably timely fashion."

Today, he said, the committee will send letters to all members of the House explaining how they can challenge the panel's preliminary findings about overdrafts written on a total of 355 accounts, for 296 members and 59 former members.

In addition, the "Dear Colleague" letter will explain how lawmakers may challenge the committee's conclusions about which House members had overdrafts.

The panel, known formally as the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, needs at least another week to verify and analyze data for the 24 people on the "preliminary abuser list," McHugh said.

The delay in disclosing the 24 names will delay publication of the longer list showing all members who overdrew their accounts.

In a resolution approved unanimously March 13, the House instructed the ethics committee to publish the longer list "not less than 10 days" after issuing the list of 24.

The ethics committee has not decided how to deal with the bank's delays in posting deposits. The question of when a deposit should be credited to a member's account sounds like an arcane technical issue, but it could have enormous political implications because it might determine whether a member is listed at all.

McHugh said, "The problem with the longer list is that we are dealing with literally hundreds of potential questions from members" who dispute the accuracy of the records. He said he had no idea how long it would take to resolve those questions.

The only way to verify the number of overdrafts is to compile a history of a member's account — in effect, a running balance, day by day, for the 39 months under investigation. That is a tedious process, McHugh said.

The committee has microfilm copies of all checks and deposits. But it is difficult to retrieve the documents relating to a specific member because they were filmed in chronological order and are scattered among the microfilm records of hundreds of other people who had accounts at the bank.

Rep. Robert J. Mrazek, D-N.Y., already has appealed to the staff of the committee, which in its preliminary review found 972 overdrafts on his account.

Rep. Edward F. Feighan, D-Ohio, is expected to make a similar appeal. But Rep. Edolphus Towns, D-N.Y., said he did not intend to go before the ethics committee.

"I don't understand what difference it would make," Towns said Sunday in an interview. "The damage is already done. My name has already gone out to every newspaper in the country."

CRASH: Commuter jet goes down during takeoff

(From 1A)

the water and to the Delta shuttle terminal, Port Authority police said.

The first four survivors to walk away from the crash crawled onto a nearby highway where they flagged down a van for help, said EMS worker Adelaide Connaughton. "They were the walking wounded."

Nearly three hours after the crash, helicopters were hovering over the bay, searching for more survivors. Other workers using metal cutting equipment were heard prying open the wreckage of the plane in the water.

Bodies of the dead were visible stacked in body bags at the end of the runway next to the water.

Port Authority police told reporters that the plane veered left at the end of the runway and hit a snow-covered barricade just before the water.

The nose, wing and engine snapped off while the rest of the plane was in the water with its top sheared off, the Port Authority police said.

Witness Patrick Silver said the plane lifted off briefly, then slammed back down onto the runway, bursting into flames.

"It catapulted three or four times before it went into the water," said Silver, who witnessed the accident from his home. "It lit up the living room. It was a huge fireball."

In Cleveland, friends and relatives of passengers aboard the plane were in seclusion at Hopkins International Airport. Airport police said people waiting for the flight were being directed to a private lounge.

USAir spokeswoman Lynn McCloud in Arlington, Va. said there were 51 people on the jet, including 47 passengers, two pilots and two flight attendants. The airline said the flight had originated in Jacksonville, Fla., and five of the passengers were booked all the way through to Cleveland.

Six people, including two severely burned passengers and one amputee, were hospitalized at Bellevue Hospital in Manhattan, Police Lt. Robert Nardoza said. Other injured were being taken to Elmhurst Hospital and Booth Memorial Hospital in Queens, the spokesman said.

More than 150 firefighters and 32 engines were at the scene, along with police divers.

Snow had been falling since about 5 p.m.

Ms. McCloud, the USAir spokesman, said the temperature was 31 degrees, wind about 15 mph, and the runway was wet with patches of snow. She said visibility was three-fourths of a mile.

She said the jet had been de-iced at 8:30 p.m. and again at 9 p.m.

The aircraft was an F-28 4000 commuter jet, USAir spokesman John Bronson said in a tape-recorded message.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Fred Farrar described the plane as a "relatively small two-engine jet with both engines on the rear of the fuselage."

"Something happened just about at rotation that caused it to come back down again," said Farrar. "We don't yet know what happened."

It was the second time in three years a plane has skidded off a runway at La Guardia. Both times they were USAir flights.

On Sept. 20, 1989, USAir Flight 5050 bound for Charlotte, N.C., skidded off the end of a runway into the East River and broke into several pieces in an aborted takeoff.

Two people were killed in that accident.

The F-28 has been involved in other crashes during takeoff. Twenty-three people were killed March 10, 1989, when an Air Ontario Fokker F-28 crashed into trees and burst into flames shortly after takeoff from Dryden, Canada. This also occurred in a snowstorm.

BROWN: Candidate launches assault on Clinton

(From 1A)

both barrels, raising the prospect that New York would be perhaps the meanest primary campaign yet.

Brown hit the racial issue the hardest Sunday, hoping to wrest from Clinton a consituency that he desperately needs and believes is rightly his.

But throughout the day Brown was unrelenting in his attacks on a broader front, portraying the Democratic front-runner as unelectable, as an abuser of the public trust, and as fiscally — and perhaps morally — irresponsible.

"Mr. Clinton is presenting himself as the friend of the Afro-American community," Brown told the congregation of the Memorial Babtist Church on West 115th Street as he stood before a lighted cross.

"Well, even George Bush wouldn't dare play golf at an all-white golf club."

Clinton has conceded that he was wrong to play golf at a whites-only club in Little Rock, Ark., and has vowed not to do it again.

Brown said that unlike most states, Arkansas does not have a state civil rights statute. He also said that in the Georgia primary campaign Clinton appeared in a newspaper photograph, standing in a prison before a group of inmates, all of them black.

"What's the message of that?" Brown asked the congregation, which interrupted with applause and shouts of "yes!" and "amen!" "He's saying: 'We have them under control, folks. Don't worry.' "

Party leaders give Brown little chance of winning the nomination, fearing his only role now could be to weaken Clinton and thereby help President Bush.

Brown said in an interview that he resented such talk, adding, "What is this, the Politburo? There is only the candidate picked by the power structure?"

"I'm not the spoiler," he continued. "Slick Willie's the spoiler. If he gets the nomination, he's going to ruin the whole Democratic Party."

Brown also said his own campaign was in the black while Clinton's was in the red. "How's he going to solve the country's budget problems," he asked, "when he's run his own campaign into the red?"

LOTTERY: Ad agency faces toughest challenge

more as a game vs. gambling."

Because many Texans object to the lottery, Spence believes it is the most challenging account in the agency's 20-year history.

"We must be very sensitive," he says. "Florida, California, New York, it's different, they've been exposed in a sense ... but we're more hometown."

The emotions surrounding the lottery will put GSD&M under a public spotlight that few agencies must endure.

Also, the account will test the firm's ability to get things done quickly and cost-effectively as never before, Spence said.

"We came in less than anybody else," he said. "We knew it would be an investment on our part ... but also it would be a challenge to see how we can become even more efficient and productive.

"If we can somehow do it there, we can do it with anybody."

Spence and partners Tim McClure, Judy Trabulsi, Steve Gurasich, Bill Gurasich and Jim Darilek began making movies and multimedia presentations as students at the University of Texas in the late 1960s. After graduation, they went into business as GSD&M.

Bill Gurasich and Jim Darilek later left. Spence went to Washington in 1984 to help run Walter Mondale's presidential campaign but returned. He remains active in Democratic politics, a fact not lost on rivals who accuse the firm of an insider role in the Austin establishment.

But the city has never been an advertising center, and GSD&M pushed for years to raise its profile. "If the ship doesn't come in, you gotta swim out to it. I think that's toughened us," Spence said.

The payoff came in 1981, when Dallas-based Southwest Airlines hired GSD&M. The fortunes of the two companies have evolved virtually as one since.

GSD&M came up with "The Company Plane," "Just Say When," and other campaigns. It tied Southwest with one of its other clients, Sea World of Texas, and painted three of the airline's 737s like killer whales. For Southwest's 20th anniversary, it painted another jet to look like a furling Texas flag.

But the agency's most memorable campaign was created in 1985 — "Don't Mess With Texas" — for the Texas Department of Transportation. The campaign is credited with cutting highway litter by 72 percent since then and the slogan has become a veritable mantra for the state.

That year, GSD&M began shedding clients for a "fewer and better" focus. With 80 accounts and $60 million in billings at that time, GSD&M has now trimmed to 19 accounts, including Wal-Mart and Coors, and over $150 million in billings.

"We're not in the advertising business," Spence says. "We're in the business to build our clients' business."

MURDERS: Austin faces new-found fear of crime

(From 1A)

Now, just as any death in a family brings intimations of mortality to the survivors, the murders at the yogurt shop have reminded Austin that it is on its way to having big-city problems.

Several people who have come to Austin's Counseling and Pastoral Care Center with emotional problems have spoken of the crime, said the center's director, Dr. William E. Denham.

"It's not that this is what specifically bothers them; it's a little more distant than that," he said. "It's something that contributes to their overall anxiety.

"Because of the yogurt murders, people say they are scared, scared to go out at night, scared to be alone, scared for their children. It's a kind of underlying fear people were not accustomed to here."

Mayor Bruce Todd said he thought there were several reasons for the continuing outpouring of emotion.

"First of all," he said, "is the horrible nature of the crime, young defenseless women brutally slain for no apparent reason at a place not perceived as a high-risk location. And there's the fact that the crime remains unsolved. Also, the girls were special, so well-liked, so involved in the community. And you have the parents playing a role, too."

More than any of the other parents, Barbara and Frank Suraci, the mother and stepfather of two of the victims, Jennifer and Sarah Harbison, have become public figures in Austin, appearing at news conferences and at ceremonies dedicating memorials.

"We hope that all the public attention will make whoever did this feel afraid and exhausted," said Mrs. Suraci, a bank credit officer, "knowing that they cannot hide from an entire city, that they will be haunted for the rest of their lives and that they might as well just give themselves up."

The first public indication of a possible break in the case came last Monday, when the police released a sketch of a man seen by witnesses outside the yogurt shop about the time of the slayings on Dec. 6. Even this small development showed how the city remains obsessed with the crime.

In the first three months of the investigation, police said they received nearly 1,000 phone calls offering leads. In the first three days after the sketch was released, they got another 500.

"We are just about overwhelmed by the response, but we are going through all the information we get, bit by bit," said Lt. Andrew Waters of the Austin police homicide squad.

On the night of the slayings, Jennifer Harbison, 17, and her close friend, Eliza Thomas, also 17, were working at an I Can't Believe It's Yogurt! shop on a busy commercial street in northwest Austin, a predominantly white and prosperous area of the city.

Sarah Harbison, 15, and her friend, Amy Ayers, 13, had been at a nearby mall, and sometime after 10 p.m. they apparently walked to the yogurt shop, police said. Investigators think the killings occurred around 11, as the shop was about to close.

At 11:47 p.m., firefighters responded to a report of a blaze at the shop. About a half-hour later, after they had extinguished the flames, they advised police that they had found several bodies that apparently had gunshot wounds.

Police have said little more, except that there is evidence that there was more than one assailant.

A month after the crime, police released an assessment of the probable personality characteristics of the killers, developed with help from the FBI.

The assessment speculated that the offenders were in their late teens to mid-20s, abusers of alcohol and drugs, high school dropouts and, as the FBI put it, "thuggy" in appearance.

The assessment also concluded that the killers probably live near the yogurt shop — speculation that has raised anxieties in the area.

"We get murders, rapes and robberies, but most of it is limited to the so-called bad part of town, and so our community has been apathetic about the real problems of a growing metropolitan area," said Daryl O'Neal, marketing director for KOOL 99, a radio station that helped organize the recording of "We Will Not Forget," a song performed by 43 local celebrities.

Austin, with a population of 465,000 people, has a relatively low crime rate for a city its size.

World in brief

■ Moscow fears breakup, issues appeal

MOSCOW — Amid fears that the Russian Federation may begin to splinter, the government of President Boris Yeltsin Sunday appealed to the oil-rich rebel region of Tatarstan to remain part of Russia after it approved a referendum calling for self rule.

Russian First Deputy Prime Minister Gennady Burbulis made the plea in an interview with Russian television after results of Saturday balloting showed that Tatarstan's 4.5 million people had approved the referendum.

"We cannot allow ourselves to be indifferent to what is known as the territorial integrity of Russia," Burbulis said.

■ Opposition claims victory in Albanian vote

TIRANA, Albania — The opposition Democratic Party claimed victory over the former Communists after voters in Eastern Europe's poorest country turned out in heavy numbers to elect a new Parliament.

Leaders of the majority Socialist Party, as the former Communists had renamed themselves, said Sunday that the returns were too sketchy to make a prediction. But the mood at the party's headquarters was somber, in contrast to the jubilant crowd that gathered outside the Democrats' offices to cheer incomplete results announced from a balcony by a party aide.

■ Parties aligned with junta gain slim win

BANGKOK, Thailand — Political parties aligned with Thailand's junta won more than half the parliamentary seats at stake on Sunday in general elections, the first since the military toppled a democratically elected government in a coup 13 months ago.

While the results should allow the pro-military parties to dominate the new government, their victory was slim enough that it could dash hopes within the junta that one of the leaders of the coup will be named Thailand's prime minister.

Those three parties — Chat Thai, Samakkhi Tham, and Social Action — won 190, or 53 percent, of the 360 seats in the lower house of Parliament, according to a complete but unofficial tally.

■ Labor nudges ahead in British challenge

RISCA, Wales — Stirring old passions in his native Wales and exuding new confidence as his Labor Party nudges ahead, Neil Kinnock has established a formidable challenge for power.

One week into the campaign for Britain's April 9 election, continuing bad economic news has put Conservative Prime Minister John Major on the defensive.

A fiery and eloquent platform speaker, Kinnock, 49, is also a natural street campaigner: thrusting into crowds on the main street of Ricsa, a former mining town in his Islwyn parliamentary district, clutching outstretched hands, hugging old ladies, remembering names, inquiring after an ailing husband.

■ Chinese satellite launch fails on live TV

BEIJING — In an embarrassing failure broadcast live on nationwide television, a Chinese rocket didn't make it off the launch pad Sunday, dealing a blow to the country's young commercial launch industry.

The rocket — a Long March 2-E, the latest model in the series — was to have carried an Australian satellite into space, in what would have been China's second foreign commercial launch.

The live broadcast reflected the government's confidence and pride in competing with Western companies in the high-technology field.

Chinese authorities seemed chagrined by the failure.

Fed-up French vote Socialists a setback

PARIS (NYT) — Confirming France's mood of disgruntlement, voters dealt a major political setback to the governing Socialist Party in regional elections on Sunday, with early results and projections giving it barely 19 percent of the votes, its worst performance at the polls in 23 years.

A coalition of the two main conservative parties came out on top with about 34 percent of the votes, but fared worse than it has in recent elections. And as voters turned away from traditional parties, the main beneficiaries were the far-rightist National Front and two environmentalist parties.

The elections in France's 22 regions will have no direct effect on the government of President Francois Mitterrand and his prime minister, Edith Cresson, but they were nonetheless regarded as a form of plebiscite on the Socialists' performance after nearly 11 years in office.

With the results also viewed as a gauge of the electorate's preferences in next year's parliamentary elections, they are certain to bring fresh calls from the Socialist Party for Mitterrand to replace Mrs. Cresson as prime minister.

In a television interview on Sunday night, Mrs. Cresson said she had no plans to step down, but she conceded that the results showed that "the French want to be heard more."

"They want more direct democracy," she said, "less rigid administration."

Culture Minister Jack Lang said: "We could have done better and will do better."

Early results and projections gave the Socialists 19 percent of the votes on Sunday, compared with 23.6 percent in the last elections, which were for the European Parliament, in 1989. In the regional elections of 1986, however, the Socialists won 30 percent, and they took 36.4 percent in the 1988 parliamentary elections. Their worst result on Sunday was in Paris where, with 14.5 percent of votes, they ran behind the National Front, which won 16.3 percent.

The strong performance by the "anti-immigration" Front had been widely predicted, with its leader, Jean-Marie Le Pen, winning about 30 percent of the ballots in the Alpes-Maritimes department in southern France, where he was a candidate. The National Front received about 14 percent of the votes nationwide, up from 11.8 percent in voting for the European Parliament elections of 1989. Le Pen himself won 14.4 percent in the 1988 presidential elections.

While Le Pen, a 63-year-old former paratrooper who has built up his party around the slogan "France for the French" and a demand for the repatriation of many of France's 3 million immigrants, he has also won support by campaigning against France's political establishment and exploiting corruption scandals involving the Socialist Party.

Arab League meets to mull Libyan crisis

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Arab foreign ministers on Sunday turned down Libya's request that they ignore sanctions Western countries have threatened to apply against Libya in connection with the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103.

The foreign ministers, representing the 21-member Arab League, instead urged the United Nations to solve the dispute through mediation.

The December 1988 bombing killed 270 people. The United States and Brtain are demanding the extradition of two Libyans indicted in the case.

Libya's refusal to hand over the two officials alleged to have been involved in the bombing has sparked increasuing tensions. The United States, France, Germany, Switzerland, Greece and Italy have urged their citizens in Libya to leave.

Winding up its emergency session Sunday, the Arab League ministers adopted a resolution calling on the U.N. Security Council to "avoid taking any economic, military or diplomatic measures that could have negative consequences on the region."

The resolution said the Security Council should wait the outcome of International Court of Justice appeal filed by Libya on March 3.

The ministers reaffirmed their condemnation of all forms of terrorism and "welcomed Libya's readiness to cooperate with any international efforts to end this phenomenon.'

They promised to exert efforts on all levels to avert any threats against Libya and try to solve the problem through peaceful means.

Rebounding TB must be battled

Until recently AIDS, drug abuse, the plight of the homeless and rampant crime were social concerns for the majority of Americans, but they did not constitute a major health hazard. That may not be the case any longer say health experts in parts of the nation where an old disease — tuberculosis — appears to be returning stronger than ever.

A half-century ago tuberculosis — or consumption, as it was commonly known — was a major killer in the United States. The hacking cough and emaciated bodies of victims are still haunting memories.

Medical science brought tuberculosis under control. In fact, eight years ago, the United States had the lowest tuberculosis — or TB — rate in modern history, as a direct result of improvements in nutrition, hygiene and hospital care. In 1985, TB incidence started rising again sharply because of what medical spokesmen say is the failure of American society to protect drug-abusers, the homeless and AIDS victims from the deadly disease. To make matters worse, drug-resistant TB, which the spokesmen say is fatal in 50 to 80 percent of the cases, has shown up in 17 states since 1989.

In a recent edition, Newsweek magazine quoted Dr. Michael Iseman of the National Jewish Center for Immunology and Respiratory Medicine in Denver, Colo., as lamenting, "We knew how to cure it. We had it in our hands, but we dropped the ball."

While assurances have been given that the disease's resurgence will not threaten the American middle-class, the facts make those assurances appear weak. TB can be spread through the air. The contagion factor has been greatly increased by the use of "holding pens" for some criminals in certain parts of the country and shelters for the homeless and others which lump hundreds of people together in close surroundings.

Taking the steps to make medicine available to those who have contracted TB is essential. Obviously, states will need to scrutinize more closely the manner in which they house their prisoners and how they protect the homeless and drug abusers.

TB is a killer. And since it is returning strongly, the question of whether or not to try to counter the threat has already been answered. U.S. officials must take steps to fight this disease and the problems that have given it renewed strength.

Saddam should remain under constant pressure

Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein's latest defiance of the United Nations may yet lead to real trouble, but anxiety over the prospect would be premature at this stage.

The problem comes over Saddam's refusal to cooperate with a U.N. team sent to destroy Iraqi Scud missile production equipment. Saddam claims the equipment could also be used for "civilian purposes," and he has refused to allow its destruction.

The United Nations has now given a fair hearing to Saddam's diplomatic envoys, and it has rejected Iraq's pleas for leniency. That's as it should be, as the relevant language of the U.N. resolutions now in force, accepted by Saddam, make clear.

Nobody misunderstands Iraq's situation, the Iraqis least of all. Even as the latest round of jockeying for position was undergone, U.N. experts were busily at work in Iraq blowing up chemical weapons. . . . There is no chance that anything connected to Scud production will be allowed to stand. The goal is to keep the pressure on and get results.

Sharp urges courage for Congress

We spend so much time trying to kill alligators we don't have time to drain the swamp."

So said Texas Comptroller John Sharp when he went to Washington the other day. It was his way of saying that government needs to have a sensible blueprint for action instead of moving from crisis to crisis.

Sharp should know. He and his auditors came up with ways to cut billions of dollars in state spending and streamline state bureaucracy. He helped set a pattern Texas should be able to follow — and benefit from — for decades.

Because of that, the Joint Economic Committee invited Sharp to Washington to tell how Congress might do likewise. So Sharp obliged, adding that one requirement for cutting government cost is courage. Courage, Congress, courage.

The federal government — and local governments, for that matter — would be wise to follow the example set by Sharp. They are, after all, up to their necks in alligators, and the only way to even begin beating them off is to get on with a little draining of the swamp.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, March 23, the 83rd day of 1992. There are 283 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Two hundred years ago, on March 23, 1792, Joseph Haydn's Symphony No. 94 in G Major was performed publicly for the first time, in London. It's known as the "Surprise Symphony" because of an unexpected crashing chord in the second movement.

Customs' problems go before Congress

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Customs Service has been bobbing and weaving for more than a year, parrying accusations of mismanagement and cronyism. In three days of hearings this week, Congress has the chance to knock some sense into the agency.

Anderson

The well-deserved blow has been a long time in coming. We first began exposing Customs' soft spots in January 1991 with a series of stories about the good-old-boy system that fosters incompetence in offices along the critical U.S.-Mexico border.

The deeper we dug, the more incompetence we found. There were the Customs agents caught cruising the Mexican border in their Blackhawk helicopter, "test firing" their semi-automatic weapons by strafing jackrabbits on the ground. There were the two off-duty agents under investigation for shooting up an empty restaurant in Detroit when they had too much to drink.

There was the senior Customs official in Chicago under investigation for allegations that he was pressuring junior employees for sex in exchange for promotions. There was the agent who jumped out of his car during a drug sting, forgot to put the brake on and accidentally shot his fellow officer in the back.

There was the case of hundreds of guns missing from a Customs warehouse in Georgia. There was the daffy Customs program to recruit washed-up pro football players as agents because they are beefy and know how to take orders.

Customs first reacted by denying the problems, and gave us a blistering lecture on how mistaken we were. Next, Customs set out to stop the leaks of information to us. All along, there were attempts to intimidate whistleblowers who were agitating for reforms.

In May, Customs Commissioner Carol Hallett appointed a panel to look into allegations of corruption and mismanagement in the Southwest region. The panel's report was a stinging indictment and urged Hallett to appoint someone to oversee drastic reforms. Then, in September, the Treasury Department's inspector general reinforced those findings with more bad news — that Customs often botched internal investigations of misconduct, that the Southwest region had been badly mismanaged and that some employees were given bonuses in the same years that they committed improprieties.

Hallett accepted the findings and pledged to do better, but investigators have had to ride Customs to keep the reform process on track, as will be evidenced in the hearings before a House Government Operations subcommittee this week. The committee is chaired by Rep. Doug Barnard, D-Ga.

Seven months after the special panel appointed by Hallett recommended that she hire someone to implement the reforms, the job is still vacant. One investigator told our associate Dean Boyd that the delay "was a signal to the bureaucracy that (Customs) didn't necessarily mean business."

Investigators say that without their constant prodding, Customs would have whittled the new oversight office down to nothing. Customs officials originally proposed staffing the office with only seven people. But Barnard fired off a letter to the Treasury Department and the proposed staffing is now at 38.

Investigators have noted some progress, but they are pessimistic that Congress can win this battle with the entrenched bureaucracy. "A culture like that normally outlives their political bosses," one investigator told us. "I think Customs will prevail in a lot of their old habits."

CHARLEY REESE

Politicians love to promote phony issues

A great deal of American politics is baloney. Politicians as a rule are loath to discuss really important issues. Some of them don't even know what the important issues are.

Reese

Here is a list of phony issues — phony in the sense that they are of marginal importance in choosing a president.

One is abortion. Whether you are on one side or the other this is essentially a private and moral issue. Even if the Supreme Court overturns Roe vs. Wade, all that will happen is that the Supreme Court will say states may or may not, as they choose, restrict access to abortion.

Contrary to popular myth, abortion was already legal in some states prior to Roe vs. Wade and will no doubt remain legal in many states even if Roe vs. Wade is reversed or modified. Who the president is will have relatively little effect on the issue unless the Supreme Court building collapses on top of the all the justices within the next few weeks.

Another distracting issue is funding of the arts. The only legitimate question is whether government should fund any art at all. I don't happen to think it should. I have a rather austere view of government, believing it to be inherently incompetent. Therefore it should undertake a limited number of jobs.

But if a majority want government to fund art, I can live with that. It is not all that important. If it does, you can be sure, no matter which art it chooses to fund, somebody won't like it. Taste in art is subjective. The claptrap over allegedly obscene art funded by the National Endowment for the Arts is just that — claptrap. A minuscule amount of money has funded, indirectly in most cases, some things that I agree are tasteless and silly. So what? America is awash in tasteless and silly stuff. It is not an issue that belongs in a presidential campaign.

In the first place, Buchanan's problem is really with his own Republican Party because Republicans in the House and Senate helped pass it and urged Bush to sign it. In the second place, it is not really either a quota bill or a civil rights bill. It is a relief bill for hungry lawyers that makes it easier for them to sue and to collect larger fees in certain discrimination cases.

What you have is one group of politicians wanting to fool minorities into thinking they were doing something for them and another group of politicians wanting to fool whites into thinking they were against quotas.

The two basic laws are the original civil rights act and the voting rights act. As long as no one proposes to abolish them — and no one is — civil rights isn't really much of an issue anymore except to those people who make a living pretending that it is.

Another phony issue is trade. In the first place, we don't practice free trade anymore than anyone else. In the second place, Americans aren't losing jobs because of imports. They are losing jobs because American firms are closing factories and moving them to Mexico and other cheap labor countries. They are losing jobs because the recent administrations allowed financial pirates to wreck many good companies. They are losing jobs because many firms, like General Motors, are mismanaged.

Recently, Sony, which has been making TV sets in California for 20 years, announced it was starting a second manufacturing plant outside Pittsburgh. About the same time, the last American company still making TV sets in the U.S., Zenith, announced it was moving its plant to Mexico.

Thus if you want to buy an American-made TV set, you will have to buy a Japanese brand. The Japanese-brand TVs are made in America. The American-brand TVs are made in Mexico or other foreign countries.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

Ballplayers need to learn to 'just say no'

The big boss here at the paper summoned me to his office. I wondered why. Could I be in some sort of trouble? Or was he sending me on some exotic assignment.

Grizzard

There had been the constant rumors that Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, the front-running Democrat in the presidential primaries, possible had had an affair with cartoon character, Daisy Mae.

Would I be off to Dogpatch, USA , in the Ozarks, to investigate?

I could see the headlines: "Grizzard Exelusive: Li'l Abner Says Daisy Mae Rocked with the Guv in Li'l Rock."

"Take a seat," the big boss said, blowing blue rings of smoke from his cigar that turned to dollar marks as they reached the high ceilings of his inner chamber.

Perhaps he was giving me a raise. It might be as much as ten bucks a week. "I've had my eye on you," he continued, "and I like what I see."

Fifteen bucks?

"I've been talking to my accountants and my lawyers and I've decided to give you a raise."

If he said $20 a week, I'd faint.

"We kicked the amount back and forth and we finally agreed on a number," the big boss went on.

"I'm offering you a new, six-year contract at $6 million a year. These baseball players are getting salaries like that these days, and, by darned, it's time we in the newspaper game caught up."

Did he say $6 million a year for 6 years? That's about what Ryne Sandberg of the Cubs got.

"I just want to be certain I heard you correctly," I said to the big boss. "Did you say $6 million a year for 6 years, which comes to a total package of $36 million?"

"That's what I said, son," he answered. "And on top of that, you always get to fly first-class, have a suite in every hotel, get a couple of hundred per diem for meals and expenses and if you get a hangnail and can't type for a month, we'll still pay you the entire amount."

I was shocked. Here we are in the middle of a horrible recession. There's the problem with the homeless and the problems with health care.

Everybody knows these superstar professional athletes are nothing but a bunch of spoiled brats and don't deserve anything near what their beleaguered owners are paying them.

How could I, in good conscience, accept such an exorbitant salary.

"I really appreciate your offer, sir," I said to the big boss, " but it just wouldn't be right for me to accept that kind of money.

"It's just not the American way for a worker like myself to take advantage of his or her employer. Perhaps a few more people buy our product because of me, but I don't need any more compensation for that.

"You already provide me with a desk and a telephone. What more could I really ask?"

The big boss looked puzzled. "Sir," I went on, "I'd rather you keep your money. I'm sure you need it. Take the wife on a long vacation or buy her that small New England state she's been wanting.

"I can get by just fine on what you pay me now. And perhaps I can set an example for these money hungry ballplayers and show them how wrong it is to accept the enormous salaries team owners are giving them.

"This will be a better society if everybody who was rewarded with an increase in salary just said 'No.' Now if you'll excuse me, I'm off to Arkansas."

"At least fly first-class," said the boss.

"Nope," I replied, "The bus is just fine with me."

Kohl-Bush talks end with no sign of progress on farm goods issue

WASHINGTON (NYT) — A weekend of talks between President Bush and Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany, leaders of the two biggest exporting nations, ended on Sunday with no suggestion of progress on a dispute over farm goods that is blocking a global agreement to lower trade barriers.

At a news conference at the White House, the two leaders expressed optimism that the proposed trade accord among 108 nations can be completed in mid-April, as negotiators have pledged.

But administration officials have long said that the agreement hangs in part on the ability of Germany, the dominant force in the European Community, to persuade France and its other neighbors to break down a network of subsidies and trade barriers that protect farmers.

Kohl indicated on Sunday that his talks with Bush had produced no breakthrough. He also appeared to call for the United States to drop its demands for a more open European market, something Bush can ill afford in an election year in which he will depend on the farm vote. Canada and Australia have supported the United States in making these demands on Europe.

After two days of talks with Bush, at Camp David, Md., Kohl said: "We still have some questions to solve before we can reach agreement. When we talk about compromise, it means that both sides have to move."

The talks also covered aid to the former Soviet republics and emerging democracies in eastern Europe, world environmental problems and preparations for a summit meeting of the seven largest industrial nations, scheduled for July 6 in Munich.

Both leaders consider the trade agreement crucial both to promoting growth in developing nations.

Non-profit groups' executives earn top salaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey of 117 of the nation's largest non-profit organizations — charities, universities, foundations and cultural institutions — found that more a quarter of them pay their top executives $200,000 or more.

The top salary — $509,001 — went to Harold Williams, president of the J. Paul Getty Trust of Santa Monica, Calif.

Franklin A. Thomas, president of the Ford Foundation, was second at $422,426, and the Rockefeller Foundation's Peter C. Goldmark Jr. third at $346,500.

The survey was undertaken by the Chronicle of Philanthropy, a biweekly newspaper, after William Aramony resigned as president of United Way of America in a controversy over his $463,000 salary plus generous benefits and high-style travel.

The Chronicle said in its March 24 issue that some non-profit organizations only grudgingly provided the information, even though they are required by law to make it available to anyone.

Salaries of $200,000 were paid the heads of two of the nation's best-known human services agencies — Elizabeth Dole, president of the American Red Cross, and Faye Wattleton, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

The lowest salary uncovered was the $20,000 paid the Rev. Val Peter, executive director of Father Flanagan's Boys' Home in Nebraska.

The Salvation Army provided approximately $50,000 — including salary, benefits, housing and a car — to national commander James Osborne and his wife, Ruth, president of the Salvation Army's women's organizations.

In all, 33 of the 117 surveyed organizations reported paying $200,000 or more.

U.S. government blocks $6 million deal to buy plutonium from Russia

N.Y. Times News Service

A $6 million deal is being blocked within the U.S. government, in which the Energy Department would buy plutonium 238 from Russia and fashion it into nuclear batteries for American deep-space probes and other purposes, federal and industry experts say.

American stocks of plutonium 238 are running low. If no other supply is found, a prohibition of the purchase could in time derail plans for a new fleet of American spacecraft to explore the heavens.

The plutonium sale is one of a number of deals that have been blocked by the administration in attempts to prevent Russia's military-industrial complex from posing any future threat to the United States, in this case by starving it of revenue. Other blocked sales involve Russian rocket engines, space reactors, and other aerospace items.

Critics say import restrictions should be lessened or ended to help stabilize the Russian economy, prevent a relapse of totalitarianism, and discourage Russian scientists, engineers, and technicians from leaving for jobs in the Third World.

The White House is said to be considering an increase in aid to Russia and a relaxation of some East-West trade restrictions, under which import curbs might eventually be eased.

The case of the plutonium 238 has a human dimension, as well. Russian officials and workers, desperate for hard currency, quickly went to work and made the material even before a contract was signed, experts said. To date, they have not been paid.

Negotiations for the $6 million deal got under way in 1989 and were all but completed in 1991 when they were suddenly halted, federal experts said. For nearly a year, the deal has been in bureaucratic limbo.

DEAR ABBY

Teens take notice of 'Please God, I'm Only 17'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: The piece "Please God, I'm Only 17," which I first ran in this space several years ago, has been the most requested piece to rerun in the history of my column. High school and college newspaper editors continue to request permission to use it. With Easter vacation coming in about a month, perhaps parents of teenagers would like to clip this:

Please God, I'm Only 17

Van Buren

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus. But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheedled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off; going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard the deafening crash and felt a terrible jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head! I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please — somebody — wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brothers and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody. No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!

Well, dear readers, I am happy to announce that this piece inspired a CBS Schoolbreak Special (film), which will be aired tomorrow Tuesday). Be sure to check your local listings for the time.

BINGO!

Johnnie Mae Hall waits to be paid for her winning bingo card at Midland's American Legion post.

Story and Photos By Pam Hults

Anita Johnston calls the numbers Friday afternoon at the Daytime Bingo hall. The lit nimbers on the board indicate which ones have been called.

Doris Sellers is prepared to play the game with extra markers, a drink and chips.

"B-4."

After a pause, the caller pulls another numbered ping pong ball from the swirling machine: "I-17."

Someone yells "Bingo!" and there is a grumble across the room.

On Friday, the first day of Spring, people trekked to the nearest bingo hall for both the afternoon and evening sessions.

At Daytime Bingo, the football field-sized room is disarmingly quiet as Anita Johnston calls the numbers. The two-hour session began about noon and the room is suprisingly full.

Joe Garrison, one of the owners of Daytime Bingo, said there are several wives in attendence who would just as soon not let their husbands know they're spending the afternoon competing for prizes by covering the "numbers," as they are called, in hopes of completing the design required for the game.

On the other hand, Stella Dixon and Doris Sellars are friends who cover their cards side-by-side six days and nights a week. They are playing English Blackout and have their own table at the front of the room. Few words are exchanged but there is a definite camaraderie between the two.

Frankie Fennell

Evening bingo at the American Legion is a tad livelier. You get the feeling that these people are serious.

In the back of the room is Frankie Fennell. She has been there since 6 p.m., her nine cards set up on stands and she is ready to begin. The session doesn't start until 8 p.m.

Mrs. Fennell says, "Bingo is a time for me to get away and relax. It's also a chance for me to visit." About that time Johnnie Mae Hall walks by and they say hello.

Mrs. Fennell continues, "There is not much to do in Midland and I'm not a drinker or a partier. This keeps you from being shut in. For some people, this is all they can do."

Perhaps she summarizes bingo best when she says, "It's like Las Vegas, only cheaper."

"It's like Las Vegas, only cheaper."

DEATHS

R.L. Denton

Services for R.L. "Bob" Denton are set for 2 p.m. today at First Baptist Church with the Rev. Jim Dension officiating. Burial is to follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Denton

Denton died Saturday at a local retirement center.

He was born Oct. 7, 1901, in Collinsville. After he graduated from high school in 1917, he went to work for Texas and Pacific Railway and lived in southern Oklahoma and North and East Texas.

He married Faye M. Lanford on June 3, 1922, in Aubrey.

After leaving Texas and Pacific in 1933, he went to work for Magnolia Oil, — now Mobil — in Kilgore. He was transferred to Midland in 1943 and worked for Mobil until his retirement in 1965.

He also worked for Navajo Oil Co. until his illness in February 1991.

He was a member of First Baptist Church and kept church records for more than 30 years. He was also a member of National Oil Scouts Association, Masonic Lodge, the Shriners and the National Railroad Association. He received a 50-year pin from the National Oil Scouts and had several short stories published in railroad magazines.

He was preceeded in death by his wife and a brother, Harold.

Survivors include three daughters, Nelleva Hallmark of Tyler, Doris Graham of Midland and Maurine Wells of Norman, Okla.; seven grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren and two nephews.

Pallbearers are to be Rudy Wright, Bennett Shelton, Tom Savage, Chuck Goodwin, Don Pemberton and John Mills.

Honorary pallbearers are to be Gene Cox, Freddie Springer, Wally Tingler, Weldon Settle, Don Helm, Joe Thompson, Bud Hart and James Mims.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to Shriners' Crippled Children's Hospital, 2222 Welbourn, Dallas, 75219.

Manie Travis

GILMER — Graveside services for Midlander Manie I. Travis are scheduled for 10 a.m. Tuesday at Gilmer Cemetery with J.C. Henderson officiating.

Local arrangements are with Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Travis was born and reared in Gilmer and graduated from White Oak High School.

She married James Travis and they moved to Crane. She was licensed vocational nurse in Crane and Kermit. They also lived in Atlanta, Texas. After her husband's death in 1969, she moved back to Gilmer and then to Midland to be close to her family.

Mrs. Travis was a member of Calvary Baptist Church in Gilmer.

Survivors include a son, Terry Travis of Midland; a daughter, Judy Brewer of El Paso; two sisters, Jimmie Ruth Bishop of Longview and Elizabeth Johns of Pittsburg, Texas; five grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and several nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers are to be Dulon Bishop, Ron Bishop, Bill Bates and Royce Bates.

James Logan

Services for James E. Logan were Sunday at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Logan died Saturday at his home.

He was born April 30, 1907, in Billings, Mont. He attended school in Los Angeles and graduated from the University of California in 1929.

He was stationed in New Guinea for four years during World War II.

He married Lillian Ermatinger in 1946. They moved to Midland in 1950, where he had been an independent landman.

Survivors inlcude his wife, Lillian Logan, of Midland, three sons, Jim Logan of Boulder, Colo., Richard Logan, Tony Logan and David Logan, all of Midland; a sister, Mary Wallace of Los Angeles; and eight grandchildren.

Jack Cowden

Services for Jack R. Cowden are set for 11 a.m. today at First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Byron Crozier officiating. Burial is to follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Cowden died Friday at a local retirement center.

Pallbearers are to be Niran Kellog, Bill Huebnet, John Bunch, Jack Armstrong, Ben Hoffacker, Jim Hardwick, John Kolb and Hyle Doss.

Gracie Thompson

Services for Gracie Thompson are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Sunday afternoon at a local hospital.

Russell to be branch manager

Staff Report

Russell

Will Russell has been named branch manager of Pactel Paging's Midland office, located at 710 W. Washington. Russell replaces Ray Carroll, who has been transferred to Madrid, Spain, with Pactel International.

As branch manager, Russell is responsible for all facets of Pactel's communications service in the Permian Basin territory, which includes Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Andrews, Kermit, Monahans, Crane and surrounding areas. He transferred here from Pactel's Denison office. Russell's territory led Pactel's Dallas/Ft. Worth District in sales the latter half of 1991.

Pactel offers personal, communications and pocket pagers for business, medical, civil and personal use. It also offers mobile phones for business or personal use.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Pedestrian escapes with minor injuries

Staff Report

A pedestrian received minor injuries Sunday afternoon when he walked into the path of a vehicle in the 2600 block of N. Midland Drive, according to police reports.

Forty-six-year-old William Earl Shannon, 516 N. Loop 250 West, was treated and released at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center following the 2:04 p.m. accident, hospital officials said.

According to reports, 36-year old Mary Williams Bidlack was southbound on Midland Drive in her 1978 black Buick Park Avenue when she struck Shannon, who was crossing about 25 feet north of the designated crosswalk, according to reports.

Ms. Bidlack, 1801 N. Midland Drive, and Dora Pelayo, 35, a passenger in her car, were not injured.

Shannon was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way to a vehicle, according to reports.

Police seek robber

Midland police are searching for a 22-year-old male in connection with an early Sunday morning robbery of the 7-Eleven convenience store at 2601 North A Street, according to police reports.

After entering the store the man indicated he had a gun in his pocket and demanded money. He fled on foot with $25 in cash, according to reports.

He is described as a Hispanic male, 5-foot-5 and 150 pounds, according to reports.

Report: Pentagon overbills NASA by $9 million

HOUSTON (AP) — Auditors have found the Pentagon billed taxpayers for as much as $9 million in overcharges on NASA contracts between 1985 and 1990, a newspaper reported Sunday.

In a copyright story, The Houston Post said an audit last September shows the overcharges stem primarily from an arcane billing system that had put an 18.5 percent surcharge on every NASA contract handled by the military.

The surcharge, which was first levied in 1985, was only applied to NASA contracts. Investigators say it was costing taxpayers about $2 million a year before it was abolished in 1990.

The Post, which obtained the information under the Freedom of Information Act, said investigators found the Pentagon was double-billing the space agency by charging NASA for administrative work done by clerks and supervisors.

Under the terms of an agreement between the space agency and Department of Defense, such work is supposed to be included in a basic charge.

When NASA and the Pentagon first agreed to let the military administer space agency contracts in 1968, the basic rate was set at $9 per hour. By 1990, that rate had climbed to $38.74 per hour, auditors found.

A NASA commission first questioned the costs of contract administration in 1986, when taxpayers gave $34 million to the Pentagon to handle NASA contracts. Since then, Pentagon billings have soared to more than $60 million per year.

While the National Aeronautics and Space Administration spends nearly 90 cents of every tax dollar on service contracts for items ranging from paper to rocket systems, it spends little overseeing the contracts, the auditors said.

"DOD has advised NASA management that no mechanism exists ... to research the appropriateness of the surcharge billings," space agency officials told auditors. "Further, NASA does not have the authority to conduct a formal inquiry into the surcharge billing practice."

Most of the overbillings occurred at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where surcharges for 1989 alone totaled $1.7 million or about 85 percent of ali space agency centers.

Since the audit report was completed, the space agency has asked Pentagon investigators to examine the issue, said Scott Thompson, an official with NASA's procurement division.

Thompson also said NASA now will be receiving Pentagon bills individually, rather than in bulk. NASA officials said they also would check the Pentagon bills on a monthly basis and adjust them once every three months.

But NASA officials initially have ruled out trying to recover tax dollars from previous overbillings. Officials said billing records no longer exist and reconstructing the overcharges would be too costly.

Earl Nichols, a spokesman for the Pentagon's Defense Logistics Agency, said no reforms would be needed in the billing process. The surcharge and the double-billing both were done by the Air Force, he said, and the Air Force no longer administers the contracts.

Blaze destroys historic warehouse

WEATHERFORD (AP) — Authorities say they are baffled by a fire that destroyed a 19th century warehouse used to store tires, old appliances and memorabilia.

The historic John L. Heartsill Store warehouse, northeast of downtown Weatherford, burned Saturday.

"A lot of history went up in that smoke," said owner Mamie Ruth Heartsill.

The stone structure — believed built in the 1880s — has housed two castor oil companies, a tanning plant, a Coca-Cola bottling plant and an American Legion Hall. It also reportedly had been used as a Ku Klux Klan meeting place, Mrs. Heartsill said.

About 200 Parker County firefighters were attending a fire certification school in Mineral Wells when the fire broke out about 2:45 p.m.

Most of the firefighters returned to Weatherford, 29 miles west of Fort Worth, to battle the blaze, said volunteer Fire Chief Larry Dodson.

Mrs. Heartsill and her husband, John L. Heartsill, have owned the warehouse since 1978.

Creative West Texans keep shelves full in Menard Country Store

AP Laserphoto

Ann Ray looks over jars of jellies and preserves recently at the Menard Country Store in Menard. The 20-year-old cooperative venture is operated by the Menard Area Arts and Crafts Club, whose members sell items they make there.

By Le Killgore
Associated Press writer

MENARD — Jams and jellies and baby booties and, above all, Dickie Davis' Sweet and Hot Sauce are the backbone of the Menard Country Store.

The cooperative venture operated by the Menard Area Arts and Crafts Club has been working to the benefit of its members, its neighbors and travelers for almost 20 years, and there's no sign of a slowdown.

"I was one of the charter members in 1973," said Myrtle "Muzzie" McDaniel one recent morning during one of her half-day stints at the shop.

The whole idea originated with a group of artists, including her late husband, Mrs. McDaniel explained.

People with hobbies — whether painting, crocheting or baking — must have some sort of outlet, she said.

"You can't just keep it all."

So the group decided to set up a place where the fruits of their talents could be displayed and sold, with the artist keeping a portion and the balance going to operate the store.

"We started small, and we've grown so much from just a little old place," she said.

She waved her arm around the displays: the booties and hats lovingly and expertly crocheting in pale pastels, the aprons and potholders and country-style skirts, the colorful quilts, the finely crafted dolls with "take-me-home" smiles embroidered on their pretty faces.

And over there, down at the long end of the big open room, the food: fresh bread of all types, jams and jellies, cakes wrapped and ready for slicing and hot and spicy sauces of the sort West Texans love to spoon over their food or onto thick slabs of bread.

The Country Store, located on U.S. Highway 83 at the edge of Menard, draws travelers and helps local folks as well, "because it's really the only place to buy gifts," Mrs. McDaniel said.

"We have arts and crafts and handwork, and it's amazing how much people buy," she said. "But Dickie Davis' Sweet and Hot, that's what keeps the store going."

Mrs. Davis makes her superb sauce — yes, the recipe is a secret — on a regular basis, "and we ship it just everywhere," Mrs. McDaniel said.

She admits to being somewhat surprised that the store has lasted so long and grown so much. She said the credit all goes to the members, who are committed to its continued success.

The success is self-evident: During the half-hour interview and tour around the shop on a weekday morning, Mrs. McDaniel had to stop three times to help a customer, wrap a purchase, wish a good day and offer an invitation to "come back soon."

About 24 "working members" spend either four half-days or two full days working at the shop and another 10 or so members pay dues.

Working members keep 85 percent of the sale price of their goods, turning the remaining 15 percent over to the operation of the store.

Non-working members return 30 percent of the sale price, Mrs. McDaniel explained.

Though they all are volunteers, the members take their responsibilities seriously, keeping close tabs on goods and never letting food items stay on the shelves too long, Mrs. McDaniel said.

In March 1988, state health inspectors closed the store for failing to obey the state law that requires food items for public sale to be made in a kitchen dedicated solely to that task — in other words, the cakes and pies and hot sauce couldn't come from members' kitchens as they had for some many years.

"So we built this kitchen," Mrs. McDaniel said, proudly showing the well-equipped kitchen with its appliances and generous counter space.

They reopened in the fall of that year.

The Negro Business and Professional Women's Club has announced the 1991-92 Outstanding Students.

Honorees are Sheila Sims, Takenya Hall, Michelle Stewart, Sheldon Phillip, Michael Brackens, Matthew Houston, Maurice Lewis, Nicole Niblett, and Latisha Williams.

Sheila, the daughter of Jimmie and Sylvia Sims, is a Lee High School student. She has served as secretary for Spanish Club, State Youth Convention, and Dream Launchers for Christ-in-Youth-Action. She has served as president of the Texas Alliance for Minorities in Engineering and the Youth in Action Usherboard.

She has participated in varsity basketball and volleyball, D-FY-IT (Drug Free Youth in Texas), the National Honor Society, Peer Assistance Leadership, Senior Girls, Student Council Cabinet, Business Professionals of America, and Big Brothers/Big Sisters. She has received awards from the Optimist Club and was named Outstanding Speech Student.

She plans to major in electrical engineering at Texas Tech university.

Takenya, the daughter of William and Maxine Hall, attends LHS. She is active in Senior Girls, FHA star events, TAME, and French Club. She also participates in softball and was a 1992 debutante. She plans to study medicine at Texas Tech.

Michelle, the daughter of Arthur R. Stewart Sr. and Millie B. Stewart, attends LHS. She is the president of a youth group, and is affiliated with Greater New Hope Baptist Church. She has lettered three years in both basketball and track. She was the LHS nominee for the North American Scholastic pageant, and an All-City band student for three years. She has also received awards of excellence in solo and ensemble categories. She plans to study criminology and psychology at the University of Texas at Arlington.

Sheldon, the son of Hubert and Adonia Phillip, is involved with video production at LHS. He has served as a disc jockey for the Midland and Lee Youth Centers and has volunteered as a lecturer for his church, the Greater Ideal Baptist Church. He has participated in D-FY-IT, Student Council, and PALs. He plans to pursue a career in producing, or in operating a radio station or youth center.

LHS student Michael, the son of Mae Brackens, particpates in football, the Faith Temple Youth Deliverance Choir, the Faith Temple Church of God in Christ group "Chosen," and is president of Faith Temple Connection. He is a former Boy Scout. He plans to pursue a career in engineering and or music.

Matthew, the son of Elizabeth Houston, attends Midland High School. He is a member of the MHS and the City of Midland swim teams. He is also a member of the Student Council, and Young Life. He is affiliated with St. Anne's Catholic Church. He plans to major in criminology at a four-year university in Texas.

MHS student Maurice Lewis, the son of Jessie and Norma Lewis, was named a commended student in the National Merit Scholarship qualifying competition. He was also chosen Outstanding Athlete of the Year and Outstanding Lineman. He in involved with D-FY-IT, the Junior Classical League, Latin Club, and plays baritone in the MHS band. He also participates in MHS track and football. He plans to get a degree in physics at Southwest Texas State.

Nicole, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nelson, attends MHS. She is a member of the National Honor Society and was named to Who's Who Among High School Students. She is a member of Business Professionals of America and was nominated for the USBEA award. She is also affiliated with Holy Trinity Church. She plans to study pediatrics and business management at UT Austin.

Latisha, the daughter of Lorenzo Williams Sr. and Cathy Ann Williams, attends MHS. She was also named Midland Rotary Club Student of the Week. She is a member of TAME, Soul Club, the National Honor Society, D-FY-IT, Business Professionals of America and has participated in MHS varsity track and junior varsity basketball. She has received three academic letters, the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority academic award, and was named to Who's Who Among Athletic Students. She plans to study mechanical engineering at Texas A&M or UT Austin.

Congressman to propose domestic drug summit

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A key congressman will ask President Bush to follow up last month's international drug summit in San Antonio with a domestic version.

Rep. Charles Rangel, a New York Democrat who chairs the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control, plans to announce the proposal today, the San Antonio Light reported Sunday.

"The summit format seemed to work for discussing international drug strategies in Cartagena in 1990, and in San Antonio just a few weeks ago," Rangel said. "There is absolutely no reason why we cannot transfer that same strategy to the drug fight here at home."

Rangel also plans to release a study on the societal costs of crime, drugs and violence.

"We really have yet to make any noticeable gains in reducing serious and addictive drug use at home," he said in a letter to Bush.

Five vets sue state for failure to pay judgment

AUSTIN (AP) — Five Austin veterinarians have sued Comptroller John Sharp to force immediate payment of $207,500 an arbitration panel says the state owes them.

Sharp had balked on paying the doctors because he said the state doesn't have the money earmarked.

Chapter 105 of the Civil Practices and Remedies Code, lets citizens recover damages for lawsuits brought by the state that a court deems unreasonable or frivolous.

Last year, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales accused the veterinarians of conspiring to restrain trade. In January, the suit was ruled frivolous, and Morales' office sent vouchers to Sharp's office for payment of the judgment.

Newspaper: Military wages war against whistle-blowers

DALLAS (AP) — Some military whistle-blowers have been forced to undergo psychiatric evaluations to discredit information they provide to investigators, a newspaper reported Sunday.

Military commanders have ordered subordinates to undergo evaluations and have sent them to mental wards in a form of intimidation or reprisal, The Dallas Morning News also reported in its copyrighted story.

Military and civilian employees who report wrongdoing have been targeted, along with political dissenters or those who simply annoy commanders, said current and former service members.

"It is intolerable," said Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., "that military whistle-blowers should be intimidated by such an insidious tactic and that those responsible should go unpunished."

In a three-month investigation by the newspaper of 27 psychiatric cases involving the military, most alleged victims had spotless records until they challenged the system.

Many have spent years since in federal court or administrative proceedings seeking redress.

The Pentagon denies the allegations.

The newspaper investigated nine cases in detail.

The House Armed Services Committee has held hearings on psychiatric abuses since 1987 and continues to prod the Pentagon for reforms. The Pentagon has resisted procedural reforms as potentially harmful to military order.

Prices slide

NEW YORK — Energy futures prices settled lower Friday after Iraq appeared willing to allow U.N. teams to destroy its weapons arsenal.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in April, which rose 22 cents on Thursday, lost 39 cents to settle at $18.90 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Other contract months also lost ground. Lower-grade sour crude for delivery in May settled at $16.29 per barrel, down 31 cents.

Local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian lowered their posted price 50 cents to $17.50, while some such as Texaco Trading and Transportation lowered their price 25 cents to $17.75.

Natural gas for delivery in April settled at $1.268 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 1.5 cents from the previous session.

Stocks advance

NEW YORK — Stocks staged a modest advance Friday despite considerable turmoil in the government bond market and powerful technical forces in the stock market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 14.99 to close at 3,276.39. It was the seventh-highest close for the index, surpassing the close of 3,275.27 on March 2, 1992. The index was below the all-time record of 3,290.25 set on March 3. For the week, the Dow index rose 40.48 points.

Consumers wary of new statistics

High unemployment, layoffs keep Americans skeptical of recovery

By Bill Mintz and Kyle Pope
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — While a flurry of government statistics shows the nation's weak economy is on the mend, wary Americans say it's going to take more than numbers to convince them that the worst is over.

At the Clayton's Food Market in north Houston, Assistant Manager Mauro Gutierrez sees two telling signs that business remains sluggish: More customers are paying with checks that bounce and more overqualified people are applying for positions as checkout clerks.

"We may be right on the edge of a recovery, but we're not there yet," he said.

At the Gentleman's Closet second-hand clothing store near Rice University, penny-pinching consumers have kept the cash registers ringing. Owner Toni Coleman says business more than doubled in February from a year earlier.

"People are cautious about their spending because everything seems so uncertain," she says.

"The average person will know the recession is over when he sees people walking out of the auto parts store with a new tire, not just a tire patch," says John Silvia, chief economist for Kemper Financial Services in Chicago.

"The recovery is not noticeable," he says. "People have to see activity — they have to see people in the stores. When they talk to their friends, they have to hear about people getting a job, not another story about somebody losing his job."

Several government reports Tuesday suggested drastic improvement in the economy: Housing starts, industrial output, and car and truck production surged in February, while inflation remained in check.

Economists say the recession ended last spring. But the recovery faltered almost immediately, and unemployment — the most visible sign of bad times — remains stubbornly high. At 7.3 percent in February, it was the highest since July 1985.

Persistent unemployment and continued layoffs have made many consumers skeptical of the recovery.

"For most people, the recession will be over when their disposable income starts rising again and they are not worried about being laid off," said Lawrence A. Hunter, vice president and chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "For many people, that is not going to be clear right away."

Even optimistic forecasters say the nation's unemployment rate will not drop dramatically in 1992. Michael Boskin, President Bush's chief economic adviser, said last week that he believes unemployment will remain above 6.5 percent through the November election.

Layoffs and high unemployment bring low consumer confidence, which reduces the personal spending that accounts for two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

As layoffs hit home over the last year, the impact was magnified because millions of people who still had jobs decided they would be better off paying down the balances on their credit cards and paying off car loans than they would be making additional purchases.

Many economists have been confounded by the chronic consumer pessimism.

"If you were an economist sitting in a room, being fed a constant stream of indicators, you would have ahard time explaining the persistent drop in consumer confidence," said Dick Peach, an economist with the Mortgage Bankers Association in Washington.

Despite lagging confidence, the economic cycle has natural mechanisms built into it that will help right the economy, said Jack Albertine, a Washington economist.

For example, the average car on the road is about 8 years old — far older than it has been historically.

"For three years, people have been putting off buying things," said Michael Penzer, vice president and senior economist at the Bank of America in San Francisco. "There is more and more pent-up demand for durable goods."

Businesses have begun expanding to meet that anticipated demand.

"Today, they have their people working overtime," Albertine said. "When they are convinced the recovery is sticking, they will start calling back their laid-off workers."

Employers also are using more temporary workers — an action which usually precedes more hiring.

2 vie for post of commodity exchange chief

NEW YORK (NYT) — In a bull market, few members of an exchange worry about who sits in the chairman's seat. But when members of the Commodity Exchange elect a new chairman Tuesday, amid a sagging market, they will look to the new leadership to turn things around.

The candidates are Donna Redel, 39, the executive vice president of Redel Trading Co., and Sidney Rothberg, 67, an independent floor trader.

Both are described by colleagues at the New York exchange as smart and scrappy fighters, the kind of people who succeed in the free-for-all atmosphere of the raucous trading pits. But Comex members disagree about who can best handle the habitual mistrust and lumbering egos that complicate the governing of the exchange.

In a first round of voting March 3, Ms. Redel had the edge, winning 252 votes to Rothberg's 227, out of a total of 772 members. Several members said they expected Tuesday's runoff to be even closer.

Apple to unveil IBM-compatible printer, scanner

SAN FRANCISCO (NYT) — In a foray into enemy territory, Apple Computer Inc. will introduce a laser printer and a scanner Monday tailored for computers using the Microsoft Corporation's Windows operating system for IBM-compatible equipment.

The products represent efforts by Apple to increase its revenues by spreading its technology beyond users of its Macintosh computers.

Apple has recently begun making some software available for computers other than the Macintosh.

The number of IBM-compatible computers is far larger than the number of Macintoshes in use.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Stockholder seeks to avoid capital gains tax

By Bill Doyle

Q: Some 20 years ago, my wife inherited stock, which is much more valuable now than it was at the time of her inheritance.

Doyle

My understanding is that if she gives the stock to our children and they sell it, the tax will be the same as if my wife sells it. It also is my understanding this will not be true if she transfers the stock to me.

However, suppose she transfers the stock to me and I then give it to the children and they later sell it. What would the tax be in that situation?

A: The same as it would be if your wife sells the stock.

The second part of your "understanding" is awry. Two sets of rules concerning "basis" – cost for tax purposes – come into play here. We'll take them one at a time.

The basis of inherited property, including stock, is the value placed on it when the estate is settled. That's usually the market value on the date of death. The seldom-used xception is when an alternate valuation date is used.

The basis of property received as a gift is the donor's basis, if the property is later sold at a profit. But if the gift property is later sold as a loss, the basis is either the donor's basis or the market value on the date of the gift – whichever is lower.

So, assuming an alternate valuation date was not used, your wife's basis on that stock is its value on the day the person who bequeathed it to her died. If she transfers the stock to you, that would be a gift from her to you. Transferring the stock to you or to your children – even in two steps – wouldn't change the basis.

When stock is sold, the difference between its basis and the proceeds from the sale is either a capital gain or a capital loss. Because your wife's stock has greatly increased in value, the taxable capital gain will be the same whether she sells it, gives it to you and you sell it or if the stock is given to your children and they sell it.

Q: It occurs to me that a sure-fire way to legitimately avoid capital gains tax is to never sell stocks or other capital assets I own. Instead, I'll leave everything to my heirs. The basis of my stocks, real estate, etc., will "step up" to its market value on the day I die.

When my heirs later sell, there will be little or no capital gain -- unless the market value of what I leave moves higher between the date of my death and the sale date.

Am I right?

A: Right as rain, as far as ducking capital gains tax is concerned. You have that down pat.

However, there is another wrinkle, which might cost your family tax dollars.

Keeping everything you own until you leave this earth could result in "death taxes." Our federal government levies an estate tax. All 50 states and the District of Columbia add on inheritance or estate taxes.

The federal estate tax kicks in at $600,000. The levels at which state death tax bites come into play vary far too widely to be spelled out in this space. Check that out locally.

So, if the total value of what you leave is large, the cost in inheritance or estate taxes might exceed the capital gains tax your family members would pay by selling stocks and other property you give to them while you are alive.

This situation is so complex, each family has to do its own calculation – based on federal and state rules.

If you leave a relatively small estate, the method you outline is probably the smart thing to do. However, if you are wealthy, you probably can save family tax dollars by giving stocks and other property away while you are alive.

TCU ready

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Texas Christian coach Moe Iba has no fear of playing Purdue on the road Monday in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

The Boilermakers are 290-58 at Mackey Arena since it opened in 1967 and have won 55 of their last 60 non-conference home games, including Thursday's 82-56 victory over Butler in the tournament's opening round.

"We've done well on the road this year," Iba said. "And we're not unaccustomed to hostile crowds."

Texas Christian won its NIT opener 73-61 over Long Beach State at home. Of its 22 regular-season victories, 12 were on the road.

The Horned Frogs (23-10) and Purdue (17-14) are meeting for the first time since 1973. The Boilermakers won the previous two games, 90-74 and 101-70.

Chang wins

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Michael Chang broke Alberto Mancini's serve in the final game of each set for a 7-5, 7-5 victory Sunday in the final of the International Players Championships.

Chang extended his career-best winning streak to 12 matches and became the first player to earn three titles this year. He earlier won at San Francisco and Indian Wells, Calif.

The pairing and style of play looked like something out of the third round of the French Open. Both players survived the upset-filled men's draw with steadiness from the baseline, and that's where they stayed in the final.

Long rallies left the sellout crowd subdued, except when movie star Kevin Costner was spotted in a front-row seat.

In the first-ever meeting between Chang and Mancini, a few shots late in each set decided the match.

UTEP now NCAA darling

■ Miners shock top-seeded Kansas, 66-60, in Midwest Regional.

Associated Press

DAYTON, Ohio — The last time Texas-El Paso won a game this big, the school was called Texas Western.

The Miners, junking the offense that got them into the tournament, shocked No. 2 Kansas 66-60 Sunday and knocked the Midwest Region's top seed out of the NCAA tournament.

UTEP (27-6) used a spread, trying to slow down the game and befuddle Kansas coach Roy Williams. The Miners hadn't even practiced much in the delay.

"The first time all year was yesterday," UTEP coach Don Haskins said. "(Williams) couldn't have seen it before unless he got a tape of yesterday's practice."

Haskins has 606th victories in 31 years at Texas-El Paso, the biggest a 72-65 win over Kentucky in the 1966 championship game, the first NCAA title for an all-black starting five. The school changed its name from Texas Western in 1967, and since then had appeared in 10 NCAA tournaments, never going beyond second round.

"Coach Haskins has been around the block a few times," Williams said.

Haskins decided on the spread after watching Kansas rout Howard 100-67 Friday.

"I think all good teams come from a good coach," UTEP senior said Prince Stewart. "He has confidence in us to let us go out and play."

Players realized it might be their best chance to beat Kansas, an 11½-point favorite.

"We thought it was a great plan," Stewart said. "We started working on it in practice yesterday. We figured holding onto the ball longer would make getting some penetration that much easier. We said, 'Let's get the open shot and let the big guys get into the game.'"

UTEP's defense frustrated Kansas, and the offense ran a Princeton-like weave, taking up almost the entire 45-second clock before shooting.

Sunday's victory ranked right up there with the magic of '66.

"This is one of the best, Kansas being ranked as high as they were," Haskins said. "We're in the NCAA tournament now. There's a big apple out there and everybody wants it. ... They're not a team that you can beat everyday. I thought Kansas might be the only team to beat Duke. But we'll never know."

No. 12 Cincinnati 77, Michigan St. 65

DAYTON, Ohio — Anthony Buford scored 21 points and Cincinnati, which blew big leads in losses to Michigan State the last two years, beat the Spartans.

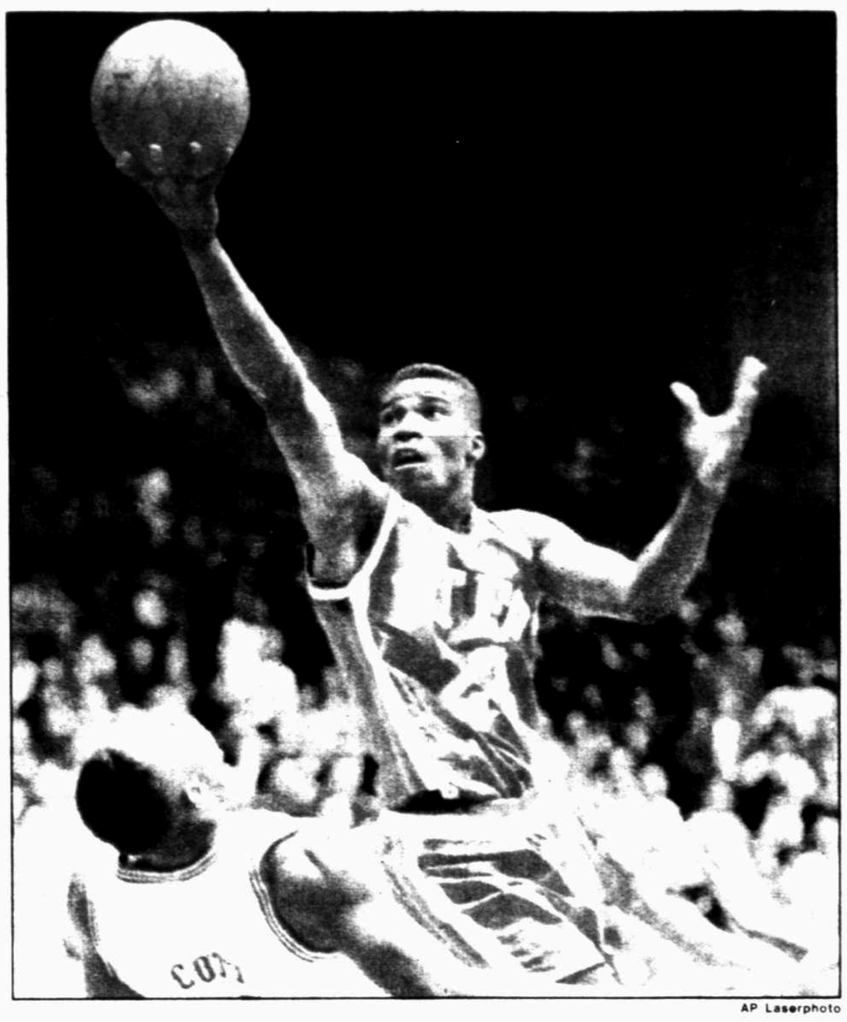

Herb Jones added 15 points and Corie Blount 14, all in the first half, for the No. 12 Bearcats (27-4), regular-season and tournament champions in the Great Midwest Conference.

Shawn Respert led Michigan State (22-8) with 27 points and Dwayne Stephens added 15.

In each of the last two years, Michigan State overcame an 18-point deficit to beat the Bearcats on a shot in the final seconds. In December, Kris Weshinskey capped the comeback on a 3-pointer with six seconds left for a 90-89 victory.

This time the Bearcats built a 17-point lead in the first half before Michigan State came back to trail 42-35 at the half and by four twice in the second half. But

Fittipaldi races to Gold Coast crown

■ Flat tire costly for Midland's Hall/VDS entry.

SURFERS PARADISE, Australia (AP) — Emerson Fittipaldi overhauled four rivals over the final seven laps Sunday to win a chaotic, rain-plagued Gold Coast Indy Car Grand Prix.

The Brazilian veteran passed his Marlboro Penske-Chevrolet teammate Rick Mears on the 63rd of the 65 laps and survived a slide across a chicane to score the 14th IndyCar win of his career.

Mears finished second to give the team a 1-2 finish.

Pole sitter Al Unser Jr., who led for six laps, was fourth in the new Galles-Kraco Galmer-Chevy, followed by Danny Sullivan in fifth.

1991 Gold Coast Indy winner John Andretti, who is still driving for the Midland's Hall/VDS team, placed sixth after a flat tire early in the race. Mario Andretti was seventh.

The team's new set-up made a successful debut to score a record 68th win in IndyCar racing for Penske.

Fittipaldi, a two-time Formula One champion, finished the 185.545 mile race in two hours, 20 minutes and 32.477 seconds.

Emerson Fittipaldi
...first 1992 IndyCar winner

Mears was 2.81 seconds behind at the finish, with Bobby Rahal third in the new Rahal-Hogan Chevy, 8.11 seconds off the lead.

The experimental Penske-Chevrolet 92 V8-B engines performed well in the changing conditions.

Fifteen laps were raced under yellow flags with three separate interruptions. Six racers had turns at holding the lead.

"With a new car, a new chassis and a new engine, we did a lot of testing in the winter and it paid off in today's race," Fittipaldi said. "Today was one of the most exciting races I've ever raced."

Mears was less enthused.

"I didn't think it was that exciting," he joked, making reference to Fittipaldi's audacious passing manuever on the 63rd lap.

Fittipaldi said he kept cool during his late charge over the rain-drenched street circuit despite a spin on lap 51.

"When racing restarted with seven laps to go I was fifth and I knew it was an extreme racing situation," he said. "I was able to pass people and win the race. Our new engine is strong. We are there."

Fittipaldi said he expected a season-long struggle between the new Lola-Ford Cosworths of the Newman-Haas team and the Penske's team new Chevrolets.

Fittipaldi roared to victory after an eight-lap rain delay during which all cars pitted to change to wet weather tires.

Lady 'Horns fall to UCLA

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Rehema Stephens hit a 17-foot jumper with 36 seconds left to lift UCLA over No. 19 Texas 82-81 Sunday and into the second round of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Texas (21-10) had two chances to win the game after Stephens' basket, but failed to get off a shot before the buzzer.

Stephens finished with 20 points and 10 rebounds and hit only 9 of 26 shots. Natalie Williams led UCLA with 24 points and 11 boards.

Trailing 47-42 at intermission, UCLA (22-9) outscored Texas 16-9 to open the second half for a 58-56 lead with 15:05 left.

The Bruins were leading 68-64 when Texas went on an 11-0 run that put the Lady Longhorns up 75-68 with 6:44 left in the game.

UCLA, in only its fourth tournament appearance, outscored the Lady Longhorns 14-6 down the stretch.

Rebels, Bulldogs back to square one

■ Midland Lee opens the soccer playoffs against Burkburnett, a team the Rebels have already beaten 5-0 this year.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

ABILENE — It's back to square one for the Midland Lee Rebels and the Burkburnett Bulldogs, who went their separate ways following an early-season meeting here.

Their paths cross once more at 7 p.m. today when the Rebels and the Bulldogs collide in a bi-district soccer game that will block the road for one team and open up new horizons for the other.

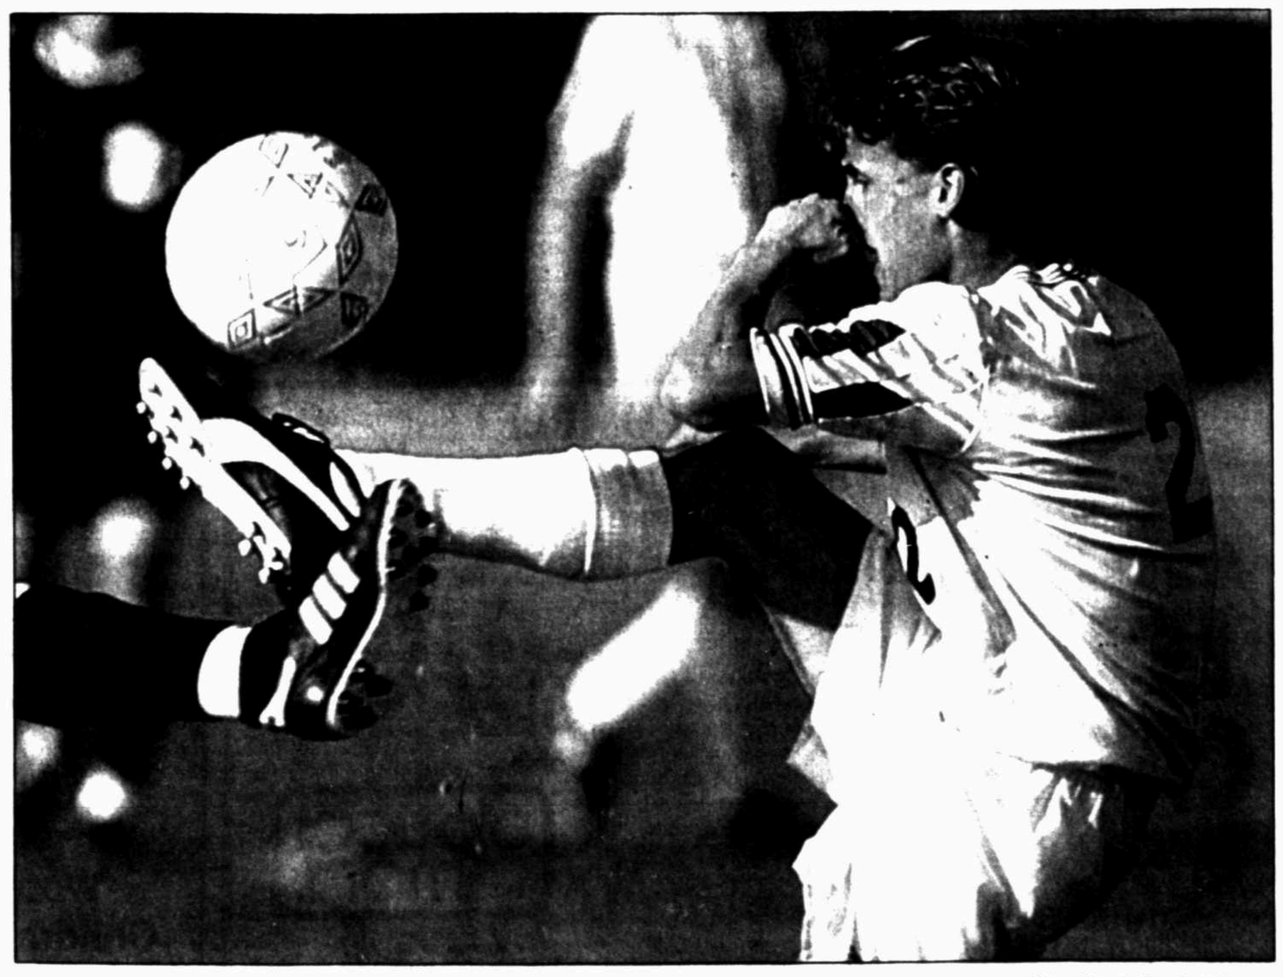

The Rebels, champions of District 3, have a 14-1 record and take on District 4 runner-up Burkburnett (14-4-3) in sudden-death playoff action at the Lee Soccer Complex. It's the same site the Rebels used to capture a 5-0 decision from the Bulldogs in the second round of the Abilene Invitational.

The survivor of this one earns the right to advance to the area playoff round Saturday against the winner of a game on Tuesday between El Paso High (19-1) and El Paso Hanks (16-2).

The Rebels, district runners-up a year ago, are making their second trip to the post-season party. Lee fell, 1-0, to Wichita Falls Rider in the 1991 bi-district round, but the Rebels have already tasted success against Burkburnett, which is in the playoffs for the first time.

WOMEN: SFA defeats Creighton

SFA 75, Creighton 74

NACOGDOCHES — Lynn Corn hit a bucket with two seconds left to give No. 4 Stephen F. Austin a victory over No. 21 Creighton in the second round of the NCAA West Regional.

Creighton (28-4) tied the score at 73 when Kathy Halligan hit a layup and was fouled with :10 left. Halligan, who finished with 19 points, made the free throw to put Creighton up by one.

After two timeouts, Stacy Hairgrove took the ball down court for Stephen F. Austin (28-2) and drove in for a layup. Corn rebounded Hairgrove's miss and put in the game-winner.

Lori Davis led the Lady Lumberjacks with 22 points, while Melissa Peay added 16.

Both teams shot well from the field, with Creighton holding a slight edge, 56 percent to 54 percent, over Stephen F. Austin for the game. The Lady Lumberjacks led 39-30 at halftime.

Kris Kugel led Creighton with 21 points and seven rebounds. The Lady Jays were without their third-leading scorer and top rebounder, Shannon Struby, who was out with torn knee ligaments.

Stephen F. Austin, which will play the winner of the Montana-Southern Cal game in Thursday's semifinals, is undefeated against top 25 teams this season. The Lady Lumberjacks also have victories over Houston, Western Kentucky, Arkansas and Louisiana State.

West Virginia 73, Clemson 72

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Jodie Runner came off the bench to hit a jumper with 11 seconds left to give West Virginia a victory over Clemson in the NCAA East Regional.

A short jumper by Clemson's Shanna Howard fell short as time expired.

No. 5 seed Clemson (21-10) pulled out to a 30-12 lead with 8:55 left in the first half. From that point, fourth-seeded West Virginia (26-3) went on a 20-9 scoring run to cut Clemson's lead to 39-32 at the half.

Virginia 97, G. Washington 58

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Tammi Reiss scored 22 points and No. 1 Virginia shot 58 percent from the field as the Cavaliers beat No. 16 George Washington.

Virginia (30-1) put the game away in the first half, racing to a 48-23 lead at halftime.

Virginia made 32 of 55 shots from the field and converted 31 of 39 free throws. The Cavaliers outrebounded George Washington 42-23 and forced 27 turnovers.

Ammaccapane 'Pings' again

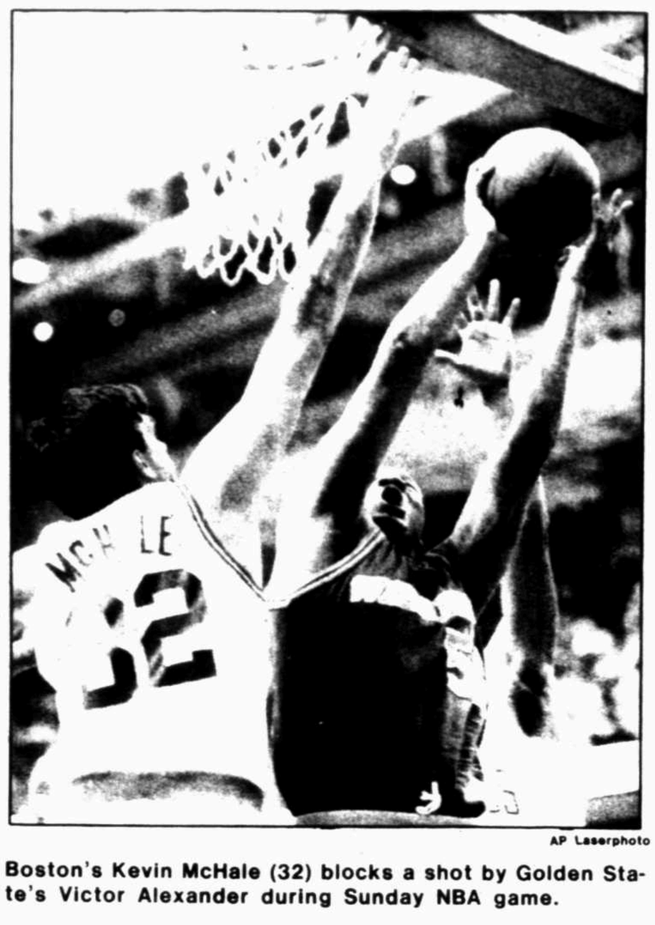

LPGA

PHOENIX (AP) — Danielle Ammaccapane, employing the home-field advantage, shot a 4-under-par 67 on Sunday to win her second consecutive LPGA Standard Register Ping title by two strokes.

Ammaccapane, 26, birdied the first three holes to pull away from Spain's Marta Figueras-Dotti, who was only one stroke back when play began Sunday on the Moon Valley Country Club course.

Ammaccapane, a Phoenix resident whose high school team played its home matches at Moon Valley, completed 72 hole in 13-under 279, collecting $82,500 in winnings and a champagne shower from tour member Nancy Harvey on the 18th green.

Figueras-Dotti, 34 and in her ninth pro season, saw her chance for a first-ever victory slip away when she bogeyed the par-4, 398-yard sixth hole to fall five strokes behind Ammaccapane, her playing partner.

Mavs blow 26-point lead, lose 113-105

Associated Press

NBA Roundup

DALLAS — Eddie Johnson scored 31 points and the Seattle SuperSonics came back from a 26-point deficit to hand the Dallas Mavericks their 13th consecutive defeat, 113-105 Sunday night.

Rolando Blackman scored 30 points for the Mavericks, who tied a club-record with 46 first-quarter points, but couldn't hold a 53-27 lead with 9:43 left in the second quarter. It was the biggest lead Dallas has ever blown, surpassing a 23-point advantage the Mavericks allowed Denver to overcome in 1985.

Dallas hasn't won since Feb. 28 in running up its longest losing streak of the season. The team record, set in 1981, is 15 consecutive losses.

The SuperSonics still trailed 90-78 after three quarters, then outscored the Mavericks 35-15 in the fourth period to win going away.

Seattle, with Rickey Pierce scoring nine of his 24 points, tied the game at 98-98 on Johnson's two free throws with 4:38 remaining.

The Sonics took a 104-101 lead on Nate McMillan's 3-pointer with 2:41 remaining and boosted their advantage to 106-101 with 2:11 left on Derrick McKey's layup.

Heat 107, Nets 100

MIAMI — Grant Long scored eight of his season-high 29 points in the final 2:02 and Miami scored 11 consecutive points late in the game to beat New Jersey.

Derrick Coleman, who scored 32 points for the Nets, hit three throws during a 7-0 run that gave them a 98-93 lead with 3:04 left.

The Heat, who moved past Milwaukee and New Jersey in the race for the eighth and final playoff spot in the NBA's Eastern Conference, then scored the next 11 points for a 104-98 lead with 1:01 remaining.

Celtics 114, Warriors 97

BOSTON — Kevin Gamble scored 16 of his 25 points in the third period and was joined in double figures by five Boston teammates as the Celtics beat Golden State for its third consecutive victory.

Kevin McHale had 22 points, Reggie Lewis 15, Robert Parish 12 and John Bagley and Larry Bird 11 each for the Celtics against the Warriors, the NBA's top-scoring team with an average of 118 points per game.

Bird also had 15 rebounds and seven assists, but connected on only 4 of 15 field goal attempts.

Hornets 113, Pistons 101

CHARLOTTE — Rookie Larry Johnson scored 22 points as Charlotte set franchise records for wins and home wins by beating Detroit for only the second time in 15 games.

The Hornets, 27-39 in their fourth season, topped their records set last year of 26 overall wins and 17 home wins. They have won 10 of their last 13 games to move into the race for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff spot.

Detroit, which has lost three of its last four, was led by Joe Dumars with 23 points and Dennis Rodman with nine points and 17 rebounds.

Bucks 109, Bullets 88

MILWAUKEE — Alvin Robertson tied a season high with 29 points and keyed a second period streak that led Milwaukee over Washington.

Robertson, averaging 11.8 points this season, nailed a pair of 3-pointers to start a 10-0 run and finished the streak with two free throws as the Bucks grabbed a 66-46 lead with 1:09 left in the half.

Washington, which has lost five consecutive games, never got back in the game after that streak.

Pacers 108, 76ers 100

INDIANAPOLIS — Detlef Schrempf and Rik Smits each had 23 points and 10 rebounds as Indiana stretched its home winning streak to a franchise record 10 games.

Charles Barkley led Philadelphia with 37 points and 16 rebounds. Johnny Dawkins had 22 points for the 76ers.

Cavaliers 123, Hawks 80

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Brad Daugherty and Mark Price combined for 31 first-half points as Cleveland built a 23-point halftime lead and beat Atlanta.

The win was Cleveland's seventh in eight games. The Hawks have lost nine of 12.

Cincinnati has played in the NCAA tournament 11 times, but is making its first appearance since 1977. It is the first time since 1975 that the Bearcats have won two games in the tournament.

West Regional

New Mexico St. 81, SW Louisiana 73

TEMPE, Ariz. — William Benjamin's game-tying 3-pointer started a 9-0 run that carried New Mexico State over Southwestern Louisiana.

The Aggies made 16 consecutive free throws, eight by Chris Hickman, to end the game after Cliff Reed missed a pair which could have broken a tie with 3:20 left.

After Benjamin's 3-pointer tied it at 65, Sam Crawford made two free throws to give New Mexico State a 67-65 lead with 2:50 remaining.

The Aggies (25-7), the region's No. 12 seed, won their eighth straight despite missing many layups in the first half. They will return to their homestate for the regional semifinals in Albuquerque.

The Ragin' Cajuns, the 13th seed, finished 21-11 after going without a field goal in the final 6½ minutes.

Reed led all scorers with 21 points, Hickman had 18, and Crawford had 14 and 10 assists.

Todd Hill, Marcus Stokes and Michael Allen scored 15 each for the Cajuns.

There were eight lead changes in the first half, but the Cajuns stabilized things after taking a 19-18 edge with 9:34 to go, and it took a Crawford-led rally to cut the margin to 41-38 at halftime.

No. 4. UCLA 85, Louisville 69

TEMPE, Ariz. — Tracy Murray led a first-half run with 10 straight points and Gerald Madkins sparked a second-half spurt as fourth-ranked UCLA beat Louisville to advance to the round of 16.

Murray, who finished with 26 points and eight rebounds, scored his 10 in a row in a 12-3 spurt that gave the Bruins (27-4) a 23-10 lead midway through the first half.

Madkins, who had 14 of his 16 in the second half, sparked a 9-2 run early in the second half after Louisville, trailing 32-25 at halftime, had closed to 37-33. Included was a four-point play when Madkins was fouled making a 3-point shot.

Southeast Regional

No. 11 Oklahoma St. 87, Tulane 71

ATLANTA — Byron Houston and Corey Williams each scored 27 points and Oklahoma State shot a NCAA tournament-record 80 percent from the field as the 11th-ranked Cowboys crushed Tulane.

The Cowboys (28-7) made 28 of 35 shots to break the previous mark of 79 percent set by North Carolina in 1988.

The victory sends the Big Eight runner-up to the regional semifinals in Lexington, Ky., where Oklahoma State's Eddie Sutton coached Kentucky until leaving after the 1988 season during a recruiting controversy that eventually landed the Wildcats on probation.

Tulane, in the NCAA tournament for the first time in school history, fell to 22-9, in only their third season since disbanding basketball for four years because of a point-shaving scandal.

Tulane's pressing defense, sparked by reserves known as the Posse, gave the Cowboys some trouble, but it didn't matter because of OSU's shooting touch.

No. 15 Michigan 102, E. Tennessee St. 90

ATLANTA — Freshman Chris Webber had a season-high 30 points and No. 15 Michigan frustrated East Tennessee State inside and outside, ending the Buccaneers' hopes for a second straight NCAA tournament upset.

The sixth-seeded Wolverines (22-8) moved into Friday's Southeast Region semifinals in Lexington, Ky., against Oklahoma State, an 87-71 winner over Tulane.

Michigan also began in Atlanta and passed through Lexington in 1989, the year the Wolverines won the national championship with Steve Fisher as their interim coach.

Fisher's now got the job on a permanent basis, and his latest team of five freshmen starters was too much for undersized East Tennessee State.

The 14th-seeded Buccaneers, with just one regular over 6-foot-6, overcame their lack of size with 13-of-25 shooting from 3-point range in Friday's first-round victory over No. 10 Arizona.

But the Wolverines were able to negate East Tennessee State's quickness and perimeter shooting with dominating inside play and a hustling defense that limited the Buccaneers' 3-point effectiveness.

East Regional

No. 17 Massachusetts 77, No. 21 Syracuse 71, OT

WORCESTER, Mass. — Harper Williams made a desperation 3-pointer as the shot clock ran out with 30 seconds left in overtime, and Massachusetts advanced to the East Regional semifinals.

The 17th-ranked Minutemen (30-4) were seeded third and had to defend that position until the victory over No. 21 Syracuce, which was seeded sixth.

Massachusetts, the Atlantic-10 champions and winners of 14 straight, will meet No. 6 Kentucky (28-6) on Thursday night in Philadelphia. The Wildcats beat Iowa State 106-98 in the second round.

Williams, who had struggled all game with his shooting, was forced into the role of hero after a controversial out of bounds call gave Massachusetts the ball with 35 seconds to play — and just six on the shot clock.

The Minutemen inbounded and Williams, a 6-foot-7 junior center, was left with no option except the shot from just beyond the line. His shot, which gave Massachusetts a 75-71 lead, was his second 3-pointer of the season and just his sixth attempt from beyond 19 feet, 9 inches.

No. 6 Kentucky 106, Iowa State 98

WORCESTER, Mass. — Jamal Mashburn scored 27 points and sixth-ranked Kentucky fought off a late Iowa State rally to reach the final 16.

Led by Justus Thigpen, the Cyclones cut an 88-76 deficit with 6:52 left to 93-90 on two free throws by Brad Pippett with 3:18 to go. But Iowa State (21-13) came no closer.

The second-seeded Wildcats, banned from the NCAA tournament the past two years while on probation, play in the regional semifinals Thursday in Philadelphia.

Kentucky (28-6) led all the way, but had little chance to relax as Thigpen had 32 points and Ron Bayless 30, both career highs, for the 10th-seeded Cyclones.

After the Wildcats took an 86-74 lead, Mashburn got their next six points, but Thigpen got 14 of Iowa State's next 20 points. Thigpen made the score 98-94 on his two free throws with 54 seconds left.

Kentucky's Richie Farmer and Bayless then traded two foul shots each before Farmer hit two more, making the score 102-96 with 34 seconds to go.

SOCCER: Winner to play either Hanks, El Paso High

one," said Lee coach Eddie Bull, whose team has shut out nine opponents this season. "The good thing is that we've played them once and we know a little bit about their personnel.

"But the bad thing is that we could be over-confident since we already beat them. That's what we've been working to avoid."

Burkburnett has been forced to make at least one change in personnel since facing the Rebels. Bulldog goalie Chad Rowland suffered a cracked knee cap with three games left in the regular season. He has been replaced by junior varsity keeper Rob Turner.

But despite coming up empty against Lee in the invitational, the Bulldogs do have the ability to score. Miller Spessarb is the leading scorer in the history of District 4 soccer. Ranked among the top 10 scorers in the state as a junior, Spessarb has used his senior season to amass 14 goals and 13 assists for Burkburnett. Teammate Dent Keltner also has 14 goals to his credit.

Lee will counter with sure-handed keeper Freddie Silva and a stingy defense that has given up just 10 goals on the year. Five of those came during the last two games.

"We need to focus ourselves on defense. Containment is the main thing," said Lee co-captain and fullback Cody Welch, a senior.

"They (Bulldogs) are going to come out really intense, and we can't rely on what we did in the past.

"This year there's a little more pressure on us in the playoffs because we were first in district. We need to win our bi-district game and keep going as far as we can."

Tim Tucker has 11 goals to lead the Lee attack. Todd Meade has nine tallies and Brett Ramsey and Jason Gotcher have chipped in with seven and six goals, respectively, while a total of 13 Rebels have scored to date.

"Last year it was real fun getting in (playoffs), but we know more about what we're getting ourselves into this year," said Tucker, another of Lee's captains. "I think we're going to wipe it out of our minds that we've already played them.

"We're going to go in and play our hardest, like we've never seen them."

NOTES: District 3 runner-up Abilene High (14-5) visits Wichita Falls for a game at 6 p.m. Tuesday against District 4 champion Rider (14-2-3).

If Lee wins today, the Rebels will either host El Paso Hanks or visit El Paso High in the area round since the home-and-away coin-flips have already been performed.

Burkburnett is under the tutelage of third-year coach Martin Metcalf, a former All-America player at Midwestern State University.

It's Couples! Who else?

Nestle Golf

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Fred Couples confirmed his status as the best player in the world with an expected, almost casual victory Sunday in the Nestle Invitational.

With the low-key, easy-going Couples holding a six-shot advantage when the final round began, the outcome was all but a foregone conclusion to an umbrella-toting gallery that endured a series of showers to witness the emergence of a new force in world golf.

The question was not so much whether Couples would win against the best field of the year, but by how much.

He answered that by ambling to a 2-under-par 70 for a nine-stroke margin, the largest since Jose Maria Olazabal won the 1990 World Series of Golf by 12 shots.

Couples led from start to finish and scored the run-away triumph on a 269 total, 19 under par on Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club.

Gene Sauers finished a distant second at 278 after a 73. No one else was within a dozen shots of the winner.

It was Couples' second victory of the season and his fifth around the world since June of last year.

In the period beginning with the 1991 U.S. Open, slightly more than nine months ago, Couples has finished sixth or better 19 times in 23 worldwide starts and won $2,362,975, an average of $102,738 a start.

That includes the $180,000 he collected for this victory, increasing his season-leading total to $704,412.

The best of it has come in the last four weeks: a win at Los Angeles, second in the Doral Open, a playoff loss in the Honda Classic and the rout here.

The streak — which also included Couples' critical contribution to the United States' dramatic Ryder Cup triumph over Europe — propelled the powerful, popular, 32-year-old to the top of world golf.

Hill wins title on playoff

Arco Senior

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP) — Mike Hill sank a 5-foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole Sunday to beat Tommy Aaron and Jim Colbert in the Arco Vintage Senior golf tournament.

Hill, three shots off Aaron's lead when the day began, shot a 2-under-par 70 to complete 54 holes at 203, 13 under par for the 6,830-yard Mountain Course at the Vintage Club.

Aaron, who had 65s each of the first two rounds, slumped to a 73 on Sunday. Colbert, six shots back when play began, got a spot in the playoff with a closing 67.

Lee Trevino shot a 68 to miss the playoff by one shot.

"The key shot for me was to hit it close at the 17th," Hill said. "I didn't hit the ball well today but my putter kept me in the game."

Hill had put a pitching wedge just two feet from the hole at 17, and the birdie putt got him to 3-under for the day and into a share of the lead.

Wallace pads point lead

Miller 500

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Kenny Wallace padded his NASCAR Busch Grand National series point lead with a victory Sunday in the Miller Genuine Draft 500 at Martinsville Speedway.

It was Wallace's third career Grand National victory, his first at the .526-mile Martinsville track.

Wallace extended his points lead over Jeff Gordon from 13 to 43. Wallace, who took the lead on lap 100 of the 200-lap event, never had to pit for fuel in his Pontiac.

Wallace, who got $19,150 from a purse of $107,788, drove to victory by seven-10ths of a secong over Joe Nemechek's Chevrolet and Chuck Bown's Pontiac.

"Everything was perfect with the gas mileage, and that's a tribute to our motor man, Ron Hutter," Wallace said. "We even had some left over at the finish."

Wallace narrowly avoided colliding at the finish with Nemechek and Bown. They were battling for position coming out of turn four when their cars touched. Bown's Pontiac turned sideways and Nemechek spun across just inches before Bown.

Robert Pressley finshed fourth and Tracy Leslie fifth.

MONDAY, MARCH 23, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your professional goals can be realized if you end a relationship that is going nowhere. Keep up to date with the latest developments in your field. Self-discipline will help you stabilize a financial situation by May. An intriguing romance could add glamour to your summer vacation. A Thanksgiving or Christmas reunion leads to better relations between parent and child. Signing a new contract early in 1993 will mean greater financial security.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: basketball star Moses Malone, director Akiro Kurosawa, singer Chaka Khan, actress Joan Crawford.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put your thoughts on paper instead of calling long-distance. It is possible to get out in the evening without spending a fortune. Make certain the clothes you wear are in good taste.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Visiting friends gives your spirits a lift. Go with the flow. Your home can be the perfect setting for a festive family gathering. Plan activities all ages can enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep your mind on your work. You have a chance to advance if you use the right techniques. Who you know is a terrific plus. Do not become unraveled if a romance falters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be flexible in your closest relationships. You need to give a little, especially when it comes to affairs of the heart. The business outlook is golden.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You must get down to business in order to make your dreams come true. Ask yourself why you are such a procrastinator. Your co-workers' cooperation is essential to progress at work.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You attract members of the opposite sex without even trying. Your living conditions improve dramatically once you make certain changes. Always insisting on having your own way will alienate others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Even routine tasks may not seem so dull after a weekend spent away from the job. Plunge right in; be on the lookout for an opportunity for advancement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Set your sights on a specific objective and go after it. Although other people may call you a dreamer, you can succeed. Guard your health by getting enough rest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Seek a professional opinion before tying yourself down to any kind of business agreement. You need to know more about a prospective partner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Find a way to make your routine more productive. Once family and career obligations have been met, try the social scene. You may be able to combine business with pleasure this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may not make much headway today. Taking a long-range view will keep you from feeling frustrated. Do not make important decisions on the spur of the moment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make a fresh start today and streamline work procedures. Pay more attention to your appearance. If you believe romance is out of the question, think again!

TODAY'S CHILDREN are bright, ambitious and artistic. They admire people who are successful and want to make a name for themselves. Since these Aries are prone to hero-worship, concerned parents will help steer them toward positive role models. These youngsters' strong desire to take charge could alienate playmates. Team sports is one way to show them the benefits of group efforts. Talented and determined, these children will grow up to be confident, successful adults.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1073 ♡AJ95 ◇KQ3 ♣73
Partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you respond?
A.—You have a good hand but no idea where you want to play. Therefore, all you can do for the moment is make a simple response. With two four-card suits, bid your suits up-the-line, so the correct response is one heart.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1073 ♡AJ95 ◇KQ3 ♣73
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—In support of either major, you have more than enough to insist on game. If you play that a jump raise in a major is a game force, jump to three hearts. Otherwise, wheel out whatever gadget you use to announce a forcing raise.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1073 ♡AJ95 ◇KQ3 ♣73
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—You are in the slam zone, but because of your ruffing value in clubs the hand should play better in a suit if a 4-4 fit exists. To explore that possibility, start with the Stayman Convention. Bid two clubs.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1073 ♡AJ9 ◇KQ3 ♣Q73
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—Regardless of whether you play a 15-17 or 16-18 range for your no-trump opening bids, you don't have quite enough to commit the hand to slam. Jump to four no trump to invite partner to bid slam if he has a maximum one-no-trump bid.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ ♡K1062 ◇AQ74 ♣A85
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—With a hand worth about 21 points in support of hearts, you want to be in game no matter how weak partner's response was. The sure way to get there is to jump to four hearts. A jump to three hearts would be invitational and might get passed.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 ♡AJ8 ◇AKJ63 ♣KQ109
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You have a very good hand, but the fact that there is a possible misfit should make you tread warily. A jump shift to three clubs could lead to problems. Bid two clubs. Should partner pass that, we doubt that your side has the wherewithal to make game.

Academy Oscar ceremony is like bobbing for apples, Beatty says

RADNOR, Pa. — The Academy Awards ceremony is like bobbing for apples, said new dad Warren Beatty, one of the top nominees this year.

Beatty

"I go for the enjoyment of seeing the people ... that I've worked with and know. With the understanding that it's all slightly masochistic," he said in the March 28 TV Guide.

"It's sort of enjoyable in the way that bobbing for apples is enjoyable. But when you bob for apples you get wet and ruin the party. You can't take the game too seriously," Beatty said.

Beatty, who just had a baby with actress Annette Bening, turns 55 on March 30, the night ABC broadcasts the 64th annual Academy Awards. He'll be there.

Beatty's movie "Bugsy" is up for 10 nominations, more than any other film. He starred and was nominated for best actor.

PITTSBURGH — Actor Jack Nicholson, in costume as Jimmy Hoffa, signed autographs and waved to onlookers as he puffed cigarettes while wrapping up filming of a movie about the late Teamsters leader.

Danny DeVito, who directs "Hoffa" and plays Hoffa's right-hand man in the film, also charmed those who stopped by the film location Friday. He waved onlookers over to his directors chair.

"I was very impressed with his openness and vulnerability," said one of them, Emily Rampa. "He was an absolutely charming, wonderful man."

The movie documents Hoffa's life from the 1930s until his unexplained disappearance in 1975.

DALTON, Ga. — In case anyone is awaiting word, Marla Maples said she and the Donald are "doing terrific."

Ms. Maples paid a visit (ter small, Georgia hometown Saturday night and had developer Donald Trump in tow at a fundraiser for an Alzheimer's disease organization.

Asked whether they have set a marriage date, she groaned and laughed.

"Oh, I hate that question. I'm working at it. I've always wanted a fall wedding, but we missed it this year," Ms. Maples said.

Trump divorced his wife, Ivana, after his relationship with Ms. Maples began, but the two broke off their engagement last year, only to patch things up.

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. — Welcome to Tahlequah, Dave.

David Letterman tossed aside Lebanon, Pa., in favor of this Oklahoma town as his late-night television show's most recent fictitious home office.

Lebanon, he said on the show Friday, "would send us a variety of smoked meat every now and then, but we had to change it because of a hostage situation or something."

Someone in the audience shouted out Tahlequah the night before and was rewarded with a box of snow.

Tahlequah, population 9,000, is in wooded, hilly country along the Illinois River.

"We'll make him admiral of the Illinois River Navy," said Tahlequah booster Ed Fite.

LONDON — The former fiancee of the son of South African President F.W. de Klerk said their cross-racial engagement faltered after he wouldn't stand up to his parents, a newspaper reported Sunday.

Adams

"I hate to say it, but he was a weakling and my friends started to tease me for going out with a wimp," The Mail on Sunday quoted Erica Adams, 25, as saying.

Ms. Adams and Willem de Klerk, also 25, were living together in London and announced their engagement last year, but they called it off earlier this year and "did not part as enemies," she said.

Ms. Adams said she believed the de Klerks disapproved because she is of mixed race. The de Klerk family has refused to comment on the relationship.

She said the stress was apparent Feb. 8, when she returned from a vacation.

"He said that during my absence he had finally reached the conclusion he could no longer cope with our relationship because of the pressure from his parents," Ms. Adams said.

LOS ANGELES — Edy Williams, the perennial starlet whose see-through gowns have become an Oscars-night tradition, said she plans to tone down her arrival at this year's ceremony.

"This year, I'm going to do something totally different. This year, it's going to be dignified, smart and elegant," said Miss Williams, who has paraded before paparazzi at 17 Academy Awards ceremonies.

Miss Williams said she hopes a more dignified entrance to the March 30 ceremony will appease critics. She said she was influenced by her astrologer, Jackie Stallone, the mother of Sylvester Stallone.

"My horoscope said you should try to contain your overenthusiasm. That's what I'm going to do in 1992," Miss Williams said.
