Senate votes to cut health care benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate voted overwhelmingly Friday to slash $17.5 billion from Medicare and Medicaid spending over the next three years, then refused on a tie vote to recommend a symbolic 10 percent pay cut for members of Congress.

"I think we ought to think about this over the weekend," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said after his bid to cut congressional pay fell short. "Here we are asking everybody to accept cuts, and we come to the question of our own compensation, and we come up with a 49-49 tie."

The move to cut congressional pay of $75,100 by $7,510 was a surprise, and was denounced afterwards by Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., as "frivolous." Rockefeller, a multi-millionaire and heir to a family oil fortune, voted to sustain the current salary.

The vote to preserve congressional salaries over, the Senate ended its budget debate for the week in time to allow several senators to catch early afternoon airplane flights to Louisville, Ky., site of the weekend running of the Kentucky Derby.

Many Democrats supported the motion to cut Medicare and Medicaid because the proposal called for less of a cut than an original Republican budget, backed by President Reagan. They also said they would seek to restore additional funding next week.

By a margin of 93-6, the Senate accepted a recommendation that would freeze Medicare payments to most hospitals and doctors for one year, and gradually increase premiums for beneficiaries over the next five years. Under Medicaid, which provides health care for the poor, states would be expected to make up for a reduced federal contribution.

In addition, the Senate rejected a move by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, to abolish the Legal Services Corp. and use the money to beef up soil conservation programs. The vote was 71-27.

The rapid-fire series of votes on domestic programs came as Reagan criticized the Senate's decision on Thursday to trim the administration's military buildup by $17.7 billion over three years.

"It's an irresponsible act," said the president, talking to reporters in West Germany, where he is attending an economic summit meeting. "We've already made reductions we could make in military spending without reducing our ability to maintain the security we must have."

Jury finds former bank officers acted 'dishonestly'

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

A U.S. District Court jury deliberated nearly five hours Friday to find that two former officers of Odessa's Permian Bank & Trust Co. did act "dishonestly or fraudulently," although only one of the officer's acts cost the bank any money.

Permian Bank, in the suit filed against U.S. Fire Insurance Co., its bonding company, claimed former president Max Malone and Boyd Jumper, former vice president and loan officer, committed dishonest or fraudulent acts that cost the bank more than $750,000. The bank also claimed the insurance company refused to make restitution on the losses, under bonds purchased to cover such occurrences.

The jury found Jumper, in loan dealings with Jimmy R. Culver, owner of Captain Hooks topless bar, did act dishonestly or fraudulently and that such acts cost Permian Bank $150,000. This was the only dollar award to come out of the three-day trial.

Jurors found Malone had acted dishonestly or fraudulently in connection with loans made to Jack Parker Industries Inc., but the acts did not directly result in any loss to the bank.

In connection with loans to Action Aire Inc., jurors found that Jumper did not act dishonestly or fraudulently and awarded no money.

Jumper had been accused of accepting a trip to Switzerland from Action Aire owner Al Mercer, whose wife, Brenda, was Jumper's secretary at Permian Bank.

The jury of five men also found the bonding requirement that notification of loss be made to the insurance company within 100 days was unreasonable.

In addition to contending any losses experienced by Permian Bank were not due to dishonest or fraudulent acts, under the terms of bonds purchased by the bank, insurance company attorneys argued the bank had not notified the company within the required 100 days.

The loans Jumper made to Culver, described by USFI attorney James Knox as a convicted felon, were secured by a race horse named Native Sparkle. To determine the value of the collateral, Jumper testified, he checked with several people who knew Culver and the horse. He also relied on a letter in which Odessa's Herb Graham, also a horse owner, purportedly offered Culver $100,000 for the horse. Other testimony indicated the horse was worth only a small fraction of that amount.

During nearly five hours behind closed doors, jurors had to sort through conflicting testimony concerning Malone's alleged ownership of 15 percent of Jack Parker Industries Inc. (JPI) for which he arranged loans to help the company get started in the fall of 1980. JPI was a specialty welding firm that did subcontract work for the now-defunct Texas Tank Co.

Testimony showed JPI defaulted on loans totaling nearly $237,000. Parker took the stand during the trial and stated he did not feel obligated to repay the loan because he had given Eddie Thomas, former president of the failed Metro Bank, and Malone 30 percent of JPI's stock.

It's not all economy, arms talk at summit

BONN, West Germany (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher spoke of the high cost of maintaining British manor houses. President Reagan recalled his cavalry service. Italian Premier Bettino Craxi almost missed the "family photo" of summit leaders.

These were among the less formal moments outside official meetings at the two-day economic summit.

As the leaders of the seven nations gathered for their traditional picture on the rain-soaked grounds of the chancellor's official reception building, Craxi found himself 10 feet behind the other national leaders and their foreign ministers. He rushed up and found a spot on the outside corner, after photographers had already begun firing away.

Reagan refers to the British leader as "my good friend Margaret Thatcher" and the two often stroll together when the summit leaders are seen in public.

On Thursday night, they spent more than 15 minutes admiring the Augustusburg Palace, an ornate building outside Bonn used as a residence for German princes until the 18th century.

Mrs. Thatcher noted that in Britain many large manor houses and castles must have outside financial support to maintain them.

"Private people can no longer afford to keep them up," she lectured Reagan and U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz. "But the houses that live best are the houses that still have family living in them."

Mrs. Thatcher and Reagan then turned to the subject of the several generals, including Dwight D. Eisenhower, who have become U.S. presidents.

"Well, I was a second lieutenant in the cavalry," Reagan finally added as he and Shultz headed out of the room. Reagan served in a reserve cavalry regiment in his days as a young broadcaster in Des Moines, Iowa, before World War II.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl escorted Reagan around the party for most of the evening, hardly waiting for the official interpreter to catch up with his rapid-fire German.

"Go ahead and have some," Kohl boomed out in German as Reagan was handed a glass of champagne.

Reagan's lectures on the old days of Hollywood — "when actors still kept their clothes on" — even drew a smile from staid French President Francois Mitterrand.

Mitterrand, somber-looking in his familiar dark-blue coat, marched alone at the head of a team of aides and security men, as the French delegation headed into the Friday afternoon session of leaders.

Colleagues' remarks don't affect Hance

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — Former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock failed to let criticism from statewide Democratic leaders affect him when he carried the announcement of his switch to the Republican Party to Austin Friday afternoon.

Calling the Democratic Party more liberal today, Hance said he was always having a fight with the leadership while in Congress and reached the point he didn't have input.

Meanwhile, state Democratic leaders from the governor down to former state legislative friends agreed Hance might feel more at home in the GOP.

"I'm very relieved that my personal political philosophy will no longer be in conflict with my party," said Hance, 42. But he declined to validate speculation that he will enter the gubernatorial race in 1990.

National-Republican Executive Committee member Ernest Angelo of Midland read a telegram from President Reagan, another former Democrat, congratulating Hance on the switch.

"From one former Democrat to another, welcome to the team," Angelo read from the telegram. "You will have many new friends to support you in the Grand Old Party."

Hance wasted no time in criticizing Democratic Gov. Mark White and in pointing out an issue both parties have ignored.

Looking at the tax increase approved by White last summer,

Hance said, "I think he's sure been off on some issues. I was a man who cut taxes and didn't raise them."

Agriculture has been neglected by both parties, he said. "It's evident what has happened in the last 10 years hasn't worked no matter who has been in the White House." He said Larry Combest, a Republican who took Hance's seat in Congress last January, "has some good suggestions."

Hance criticized farm credit legislation, saying farmers "need a price for their commodities, and not additional credit. If they don't have a chance to pay out, it doesn't make sense to loan them additional money."

White, who said as late as Thursday that Hance wouldn't switch, remarked, "He (Hance) had said not too long ago that the difficulty with switching parties is that your old friends don't like you and your new friends don't trust you. I consider myself an old friend and I guess his new friend is Bill Clements."

U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, said he had not supported Hance last year in his bid for the U.S. Senate seat. "He is more responsible than any other single member of Congress for the huge deficits our nation is struggling with today. Kent Hance is a pleasant and entertaining fellow, and I find him personally likeable. But in my opinion, he just never has had the interest of the average American citizen at heart. He probably will feel more at home in the Republican Party."

Mission Dorado office complex work starts

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — In a ceremony near the Mission Dorado cable television office late Friday morning, ground was broken for a $15 million, 15-acre office and retail complex that will be known as Lakeview Center.

Mission Dorado was carved out of the 35,000-acre Parks-Faudree Ranch, situated between Midland and Odessa, which dates back to 1918.

"I am so pleased that our first commercial project is under way," said Harriett Parks Faudree, founder of HBF Corp., a Midland-based development firm. "Our family is proud to be involved in a significant way in the economic growth of the Permian Basin."

Tom Wageman, president of RepublicBank First National Midland, said Lakeview Center is the first development of this kind for sometime in this area and the bank is proud to have had a part in it.

Grand jury resumes Lucas investigation

WACO (AP) — A McLennan County grand jury on Friday resumed its investigation into confessions by convicted murderer Henry Lee Lucas to two local slayings, as the debate on his other confessions continued.

Lucas has repeatedly recanted on confessions he has made to law enforcement authorities around the country. He once claimed to have killed as many as 800 people, then denied killing more than three people. Then he said he killed only one — his mother.

Most recently, Williamson County Sheriff Jim Boutwell produced a letter in which Lucas said he lied to McLennan County authorities and wants to return to the Georgetown jail where he was kept until moved to Waco April 12.

Lucas has denied the existence of the letter quoted by Boutwell. The sheriff has denied receiving a royalty from the sale of a book about the convicted killer.

Lucas told a Dallas author he delivered the poison used in the 1978 mass suicides at the Rev. Jim Jones' camp in Guyana.

"I cannot stop these people" in McLennan County, Boutwell quoted Lucas' April 28 letter as saying. "I have to do like they want me to do. I want back in Georgetown to clear up my cases. Look at the facts. They know (law enforcement) didn't show me the (crime scenes). I took them there."

Henry Lee Lucas

But Lucas' attorney, Guy Cox of Waco, said he has never heard of the letter.

McLennan County District Attorney Vic Feazell said Thursday that "Lucas has been asked about the alleged letter and he says it does not exist."

Boutwell denied Cox' claim that the sheriff was receiving a 2 percent royalty from the sale of Dallas author Max Call's book, "The Hands of Death — The Story of Henry Lee Lucas."

Cox told the Waco Tribune-Herald, "I find it disturbing that people in law enforcement have been present when Lucas was signing book rights."

"Henry Lucas, to be a real money-maker, needs to be a mass murderer. Now that he has recanted these hundreds of confessions, he's newsworthy to a point, but he's not near the special man he was in Georgetown when he was going around confessing to all these crimes," Cox said.

Boutwell told the Taylor Daily

Press he wrote the book's foreword but has never accepted a royalty from it. He said he was asked by the lay Catholic worker who had been Lucas' spiritual advisor to write a foreword.

"I thought it was to be a religious type book and was disappointed when I received a gratis copy and found it was not as I had expected," Boutwell said.

"Later, I received an unsolicited $450 check from the publishing company," he said. "The company offered me a royalty and I did not accept it."

Boutwell also denied receiving any money for allowing writers to talk with Lucas.

Boutwell said Lucas told him in the letter:

"Maybe I have accepted some (murders) that are not mine, but how can I say which ones? I don't know."

"Jim, you have been honest until lately. Why are you not keeping your word to me? I told you the truth sometime ago, but you refused to believe me. The Hands of Death has more power than the police."

"You can't even keep a prisoner in your custody after I even gave you all the information about all these killings. You and the Rangers spent two years almost with the world's most worst killer and now The Hands of Death is going to win."

Innocent man freed from prison

HOUSTON (AP) — A 37-year-old man, freed from a 75-year prison sentence for murder after law officers admitted they had the wrong man, says his 10-month ordeal should never have happened.

Pedro Torres is now back home in Fort Worth, working with his wife as a maintenance team at an apartment complex, miles from where Dallas police arrested him last August for a Houston man's murder.

Torres, an illegal alien from Mexico, was released last Friday after officials realized they had the wrong man, despite three witnesses who positively identified him during a trial in March.

In an interview with The Houston Post, Torres said he was drinking beer with friends at a Dallas park when a police officer approached them and asked them their names. The officer returned a few minutes later and asked Torres how long he'd lived in Houston.

"I said, 'No, I have never lived in Houston. Not a single day.' That's when he told me I was wanted for murder," Torres said. He was jailed two weeks in Dallas before he was transferred to Harris County where he stayed until his trial and conviction. He was found guilty of killing Manuel Ortega, 16, on April 17, 1983 during a dispute over back rent.

Torres says he is bitter — not at spending 10 months behind bars for something he didn't do, but at the many authorities who ignored much of the conflicting evidence.

"I don't even look like the other Pedro," he said. "That other man is taller, fatter and doesn't look anything like me. I told them over and over I never killed anyone."

The Pedro Torres wanted in connection with the slaying is still at large, authorities said.

Torres' wife Shirley Gallegos said, her husband "was nowhere near Houston. Nobody wanted to listen. It was just an easy way for them to solve a crime."

Torres said his court-appointed attorney, Carlos R. Garcia, only visited him three times during his incarceration.

"I wanted to see him more involved. I wanted to tell him more, but I never felt like he believed me," Torres said.

STATE IN BRIEF

Mattox: Lawyer needn't be appointed in misdemeanor

AUSTIN (AP) — A court-appointed attorney is not required in a misdemeanor case unless a defendant faces a possible jail or prison sentence, state attorney general Jim Mattox said Friday.

Webb County Attorney Richard G. Morales had asked if an attorney must be appointed for an indigent defendant in every misdemeanor case, particularly in justice of peace courts.

Mattox said it was a well established fact that an attorney must be appointed for all felony cases and in misdemeanor cases where punishment includes confinement in jail.

However, the attorney general's opinion said, neither the U.S. Constitution nor the state's criminal code provides the indigent with an attorney in a case which does not involve possible incarceration.

Examiner rules on death

DALLAS (AP) — The Tarrant County medical examiner's office has ruled the death of a 23-year-old man in the custody of Arlington police was caused by a "choke hold" administered by one of the officers.

Police said William George Aman

III collapsed on a parking lot when he was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct at a lounge in southwest Arlington on Nov. 27.

The ruling on the cause of death was issued Thursday. The case will be referred to a Tarrant County grand jury, said Police Chief David Kunkle, who defended the officers' actions.

Report: Not much grade changes

AUSTIN (AP) — Many students in the urban school districts of Austin, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and El Paso are still posting failing grades — despite being tossed out of extracurricular activities, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

Reports show the number of high school students who received a failing grade in one class or more in the last grading period rose slightly at eight Austin high schools, but plunged at LBJ High School.

The overall increase in Austin and other school districts indicates that the new "no-pass, no-play" rule is having little immediate effect on grades, some educators said.

The rule, part of education reforms enacted last summer by the Legislature, bars students who fail a course from participating in extracurricular activities for six weeks.

Figures compiled by the Austin district suggest that 39.4 percent of the high school students in the district received at least one F for the grading period ending April 17.

During the previous six-week grading period, 38.5 percent of the 15,247 high school students received at least one F.

Glynn Ligon of the school district office of research and evaluation said there was disappointment with the grades.

"There was a collective expectation that the number of F's would decline," partly because of the no-pass, no-play rule, he said.

Superintendent John Ellis said he thought the no-pass, no-play rule would have boosted grades by inspiring students to work harder.

"We had hoped the rule would have caused these figures to pick up," he said.

However, he said he was not surprised.

"The percentage of F's has remained consistent for several years," he said.

Although eight Austin high schools reported more students receiving an F in the latest six-week period, LBJ High School in north-east Austin reported an 11.1-point drop in the percentage of students receiving at least one failing grade.

LBJ Principal Dorothy Orebo said the improvement resulted from a combination of the no-pass, no-play rule and hard work.

"More than half of our students participate in extracurricular activities," she said. "This is part of their lives, so they buckled down. Plus, our teachers have been working harder with students. We have fewer F's this time, and we feel very good about it."

A district with a significant reduction in the number of students receiving an F is the Dallas Independent School District.

During the previous grading period, 54.4 percent of the 35,144 high school students in the district received an F, but the percentage dropped to 50.9 during the last grading period.

Other districts that reported an increase in the number of students receiving an F were the San Antonio Independent School District and the Corpus Christi Independent School District.

A spokesman for the San Antonio district said that during the previous grading period, 48 percent of the 15,781 high school students in the district received an F. During the most recent grading period, that percentage climbed to 50.

Chris Garcia of the Corpus Christi district said that although complete breakdowns were not available, 46 percent of the 8,000 high school students in the district received an F during the current grading period.

That number was "a little higher than the number who received F's during the entire first semester," Garcia said.

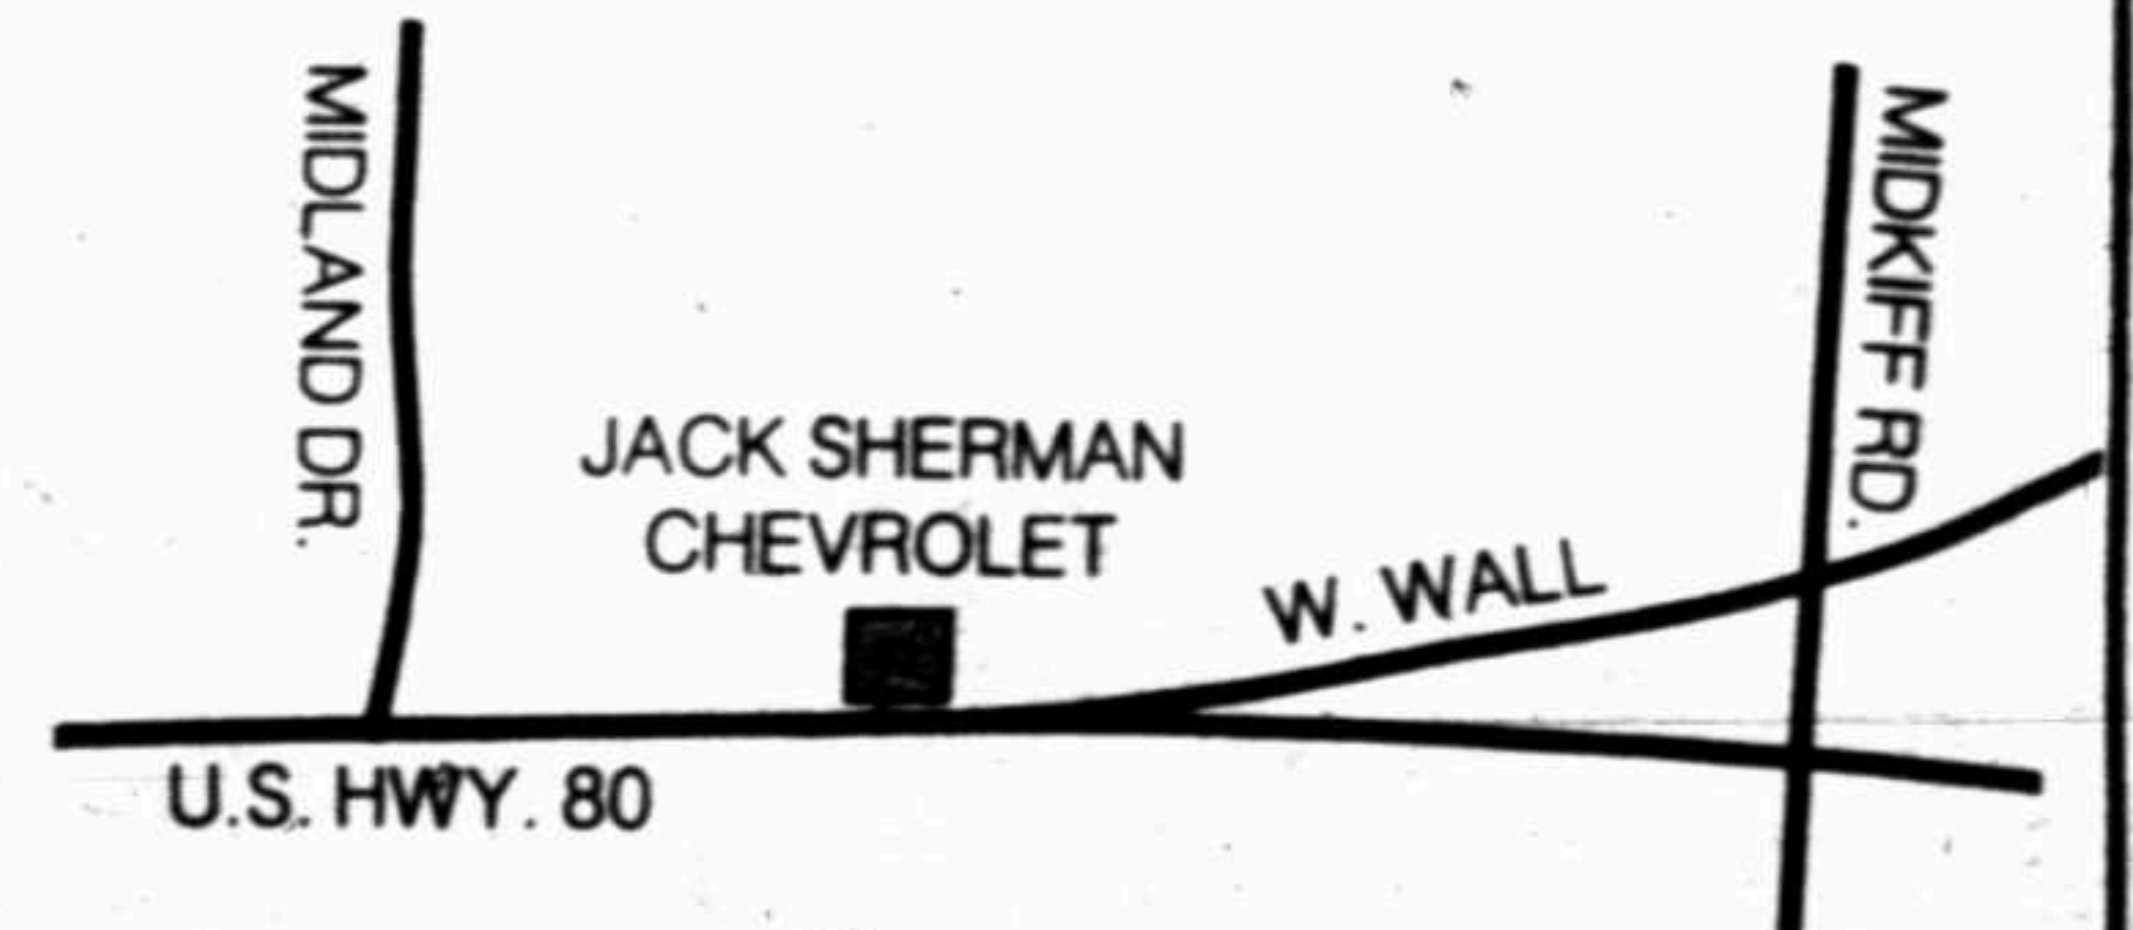

Although current figures for the El Paso school district were not available, district spokesman Robert LaGrone said, "There has been so much confusion and turmoil over the rule, it hasn't provided any motivation to students here. So far, things have not improved."

The Medicare and Medicaid vote marked the apparent beginning of a new phase in efforts by Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole to protect the three-year package of budget cuts that was shredded earlier in the week with the defense vote and a successful move to cancel proposed curtailment in Social Security cost of living increases.

The initial GOP budget called for $20.1 billion in domestic cuts, but in private negotiations with dissident Republicans, Dole and administration budget director David Stockman agreed to restore $2.6 billion. The agreement included elimination of a proposed cap on Medicaid patients that many states had lobbied vigorously against, as well as cancellation of some of the recommended increase in Medicare beneficiary fees.

Those concessions brought votes from many Democrats, even as they also made it clear they will seek next week to restore more funding for the two programs.

Johnson and his wife, Lois, moved to Fort Worth from Houston in 1958 to begin studies for the ministry. Since receiving his bachelor of divinity degree from Bible Baptist Seminary, he has earned a bachelor of arts degree, a master of arts degree and has been honored with doctorates from five schools.

From June, 1961, when the Johnson family moved to Midland to pastor the Kelview Heights Baptist Church, the church has grown from just a few members to several thousand.

In addition to his duties as pastor directing a multiple staff, who oversees the varied ministries of the church including a bus ministry; an outreach to Midland nursing homes; the Caraway Street program for elementary children; Awana Club; children's choir; and a class for special children; Johnson serves as the president of the Pacific Coast Baptist Bible College located in Los Angeles, California.

The congregation invites the friends of this ministry and Johnson to attend these special services.

BANK

Malone testified Thomas first told him of Parker's plans to start the specialty welding company, saying it looked like a good profit opportunity. Malone said he discussed it with his wife and they decided they were already overextended and rejected the offer. Malone said Thomas, who has since been convicted on 14 counts of embezzlement and banking irregularities, asked him if he (Malone) would handle JPI financing at Permian Bank. Malone said he agreed, if Thomas would guarantee the loans.

Other testimony from some of those involved directly with JPI tended to substantiate Malone's contentions, though Parker stated he believed the 30 percent of stock he gave Thomas was to be split equally between Thomas and Malone.

Thursday afternoon Louis Rochester, a principal stockholder — described as the owner — of Permian Bank was on the witness stand responding to questions concerning loan policies at the bank.

USFI attorney James Knox of Dallas asked Rochester if, after Malone became president of Permian Bank, loan policies had been liberalized.

Rochester, saying the economy began to run up and "the oil field was lush and plush," stated a decision was made that the bank would look for ways to make, rather than not make, loans. Bank examiners, he said, described the bank in "great shape" and suggested the bank should be more aggressive.

Malone testified that when he became Permian president the bank's assets amounted to about $18 million and, by the time he left, those assets had increased to about $120 million.

Jumper's attorney, Bill Alexander of Odessa, questioned Rochester about Permian Bank having to write off about $20 million in uncollectible loans, saying it was a lot of money. Rochester shrugged and said, "Big deal."

MISSION

Wageman noted that Mission Dorado "stands in the City of Odessa, in Midland County, and is an important link between these two cities that will contribute to the growth of the area." As the Mission Dorado area develops, Wageman said, it will do much to bring these two cities together.

RepublicBank First National Midland has provided interim financing for Lakeview Center. Total cost of the first two-story building, named 8180, is estimated at $1.2 million.

HBFC Corp. has designated 600 acres in the Mission Dorado master plan for commercial purposes. Lakeview Center itself will encompass 10 acres for office facilities, with an adjacent five acres for retail outlets.

The new commercial center will consist of three two-story and two three-story buildings with a combined 130,000 square feet. The first building, for which ground was broken Friday, will be a two-story facility with a total of 10,000 square feet. The building is 75 percent pre-leased, with commitments made for the remainder.

"This is the culmination of three years of planning and development, beginning with the opening of Mission Country Club and the construction of a wide range of homes to appeal to any lifestyle," said Larry Bell, HBFC Corp. president.

"Now, Lakeview Center is the first opportunity in West Texas for people to work where they live and play," he said.

Completion of Lakeview Center is targeted for December 1985.

"I wish him happiness and good health, and just hope he never gets another chance to hurt the people as he did," Wright said.

Despite Wright's support of Lloyd Doggett in that senatorial Democratic primary, his choice squeaked out only a narrow win over Hance in a runoff.

State Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle of Sherman said, "I know that his reputation for truth and veracity is not high with me. The only currency you have in politics is your word. I think the Democratic Party's future is in good shape. Anyone who changes over now is making a big mistake."

But Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby was less vitriolic in his remarks: "I am very sorry to hear of Kent Hance's plans. In spite of my difference in party affiliation, Kent is and will remain my personal friend. In my opinion, Kent had a very bright future in the Democratic Party."

A former Hance colleague in the State Senate, Bill Sarpalus, D-Canyon, said, "Kent and I have been good friends for a long time. I'm a big admirer of the work he did for West Texas while he was in the State Senate and Congress, and I wish him luck in whatever he decides to do in the future."

Sarpalus said he has no plans to switch parties and the only way he would be if "a conservative from a conservative district could no longer effectively represent his district as a Democrat."

State Republican Chairman George Strake, Houston, said: "The switch of Kent Hance...dramatically illustrates the swift emergence of the Republican Party as the principal home for Texas' conservative majority."

Iran-Iraq topic of discussion

"Iran-Iraq War — What Role for the U.S. in the Persian Gulf?" will be the third in the four-part "Great Decisions" discussion series held at 7 p.m. Sunday at Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway.

Dr. Howard Lukens, professor of management at the University of Texas — Permian Basin, will conduct this discussion which seeks to examine the historical background of the Iran-Iraq war, including geographic, cultural, religious, political and economic factors; to recognize possible effects of the Iran-Iraq war on regional security, superpower relations and the flow of Persian Gulf oil; and to analyze foreign policy positions of neighboring states in the Middle East, the Soviet Union and the U.S.

Lukens has recently returned from Saudi Arabia, where he was a consultant for the Arabian-American Oil Company. Prior to coming to UTPB, he spent five years as the director of operations for Bell Helicopter International in Tehran, Iran. Previously, he had a long career with the U.S. Army, including service in the South Pacific, Korea and Vietnam.

Lukens holds a doctorate degree in business administration from George Washington University; a masters degree in education from Troy State University, Alabama; a masters degree in personnel management from George Washington University; a masters degree in aerospace management from the University of Southern California, Los Angeles; and a bachelors degree in economics and political science from the University of California, Berkeley.

Argentina's economic crisis forces government to take more action

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The 14-year-old civilian government, its room for political maneuvering shrinking with the value of the peso, is reluctantly turning to traditional belt-tightening tactics to combat an inflation rate rapidly approaching four digits.

The change in attitude is evident in an Economy Ministry decision to do what it once called unthinkable — give workers a pay hike that will not fully compensate for the soaring cost of living.

A 1,000-peso note buys only about what 100 pesos bought a year ago, with inflation for the past 12 months officially registered at 851 percent — breaking all records in a country where the problem has been chronic for more than a decade.

At the very least, it threatens to sink President Raul Alfonsín's plan for promoting Argentina as a good place to do business. From some quarters come more dire warnings.

"Inflation can make something more disagreeable than price rises," said a public-service advertisement in a local financial magazine, Mercado. Below the statement was a portrait of Adolf Hitler.

The ad gave an account of Hitler's rise during a period of severe economic decline in Germany.

"It's absurd to think that something like this could happen in Argentina. It was absurd to think it could happen in Germany," the ad said, appealing for selflessness on the part of Argentines.

Economic woes are an old story in this country of 28 million people, extolled for decades as South America's richest nation in natural resources and productive potential.

With memories of a standard of living that rivaled industrialized Europe in the 1930s, Argentines have watched their production fall off the world pace for more than half a century. In terms of volume, the country now exports less per inhabitant than 50 years ago. Exports for 1984, mostly grain and beef, totalled $8 billion.

No one expected a sudden reversal when Alfonsín took office in December 1983, ending eight years of military rule that saw heavy government spending and foreign borrowing. The annual deficit had risen to about $11 billion — or 16 percent of the gross national product — and the foreign debt rose from $8 billion to $45 billion.

But, with 16 months' hindsight, many observers now criticize the civilian administration's early arguments that no major sacrifices by the public were needed to restore economic well-being.

In his first year Alfonsín took steps to cut government spending and curb imports. But he resisted stiff austerity measures, contending they would bring on a recession that would spawn social unrest and threaten civilian rule.

He also maintained that the worker had suffered enough under military leadership, when the buying power of the average paycheck was halved and many Argentines were forced to get second jobs. He pledged monthly pay increases that would more than make up for inflation.

White House stresses Reagan's crusade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and his aides, struggling to keep a few minutes at a West German cemetery from dominating the president's 10-day European journey, are trying to focus public attention on Reagan's desire to recommence the crusade for democracy he launched in London three years ago.

Following more than three weeks of bitter controversy over the president's decision to visit the Bitburg military cemetery where Nazi SS troops are buried, one administration official said the White House is trying to deal with the gathering storm "by not talking about it and trying to keep it from being the central theme" of Reagan's four-nation journey.

Reagan himself has given a series of interviews to foreign broadcasters and journalists, but his questioners have been warned in advance that they are not to ask about Bitburg.

Instead, Reagan has sought to emphasize the emergence of democracy in Western Europe since World War II and his desire to promote freedom elsewhere, including in the Soviet satellite states of Eastern Europe.

Bonn least suited to host summit

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Of all the capital cities in the West, Bonn may be the least suited to host a major economic summit.

When 4,500 officials and journalists descend on this small river city, population 295,000, for this week's economic summit of Western industrial nations, they will be literally overflowing into the Rhine.

Hotel space for the summit ran out in December, and hundreds of journalists will be housed in five ships on the river, anchored next to the parliament building.

Food will be served from a tent nearby, because there aren't enough area restaurants to feed all the guests.

"Bonn is no metropolis," said Karl-Egbert Mroch, a chancellery official involved in the planning for the summit. "We aren't like London or Tokyo, and we don't try to be."

"We want this to be a real Bonn summit," he said.

Most of Bonn's deficiencies stem from its history. Until it became the "provisional" capital of West Germany in 1949, Bonn was a sleepy little town inhabited largely by university students and retired folks.

When the politicians moved in, they had to set up the parliament in a former teacher's college and scatter government ministries all over town. To this day, not every parliamentary deputy has his own office.

Bonn's most obvious deficit this year is its lack of a monument where an official can speak a few solemn words.

Doctors support 'struggle theory' in von Bulow case

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Two physicians Friday backed up a third doctor whose surprise testimony bolstered a new prosecution theory that Claus von Bulow struggled with his wife when he allegedly tried to kill her with insulin injections.

Dr. Ralph P. Earp, who examined Martha "Sunny" von Bulow the day after her admission to Newport Hospital on Dec. 21, 1980, in a coma doctors say is irreversible, said he saw an abrasion on her right cheek, a scratch on the left, a swollen lip and "a markedly swollen right forearm."

He said her condition began to deteriorate because her brain was swelling, and he called in Dr. Jeremy Worthington, a neurologist. Worthington took the stand after Von Bulow's attorneys chose not to cross-examine Earp.

Worthington supported Earp's observations and added that he saw five to seven shallow scratches on Mrs. von Bulow's right leg.

Worthington said he believed the scratches between 6 and 8 inches long "could have been made within two hours anywhere up to 48" hours from the time he began to examine her.

He said he did not believe the injuries could have occurred in the course of rushing her to the hospital.

Dr. Gerhard C. Meier testified Thursday and Friday that he found a scrape on Mrs. von Bulow's cheek and an abrasion and swelling on her right wrist hours after she was admitted to the hospital.

The so-called "struggle theory" is the most significant addition to the state's case since Von Bulow's first trial on two charges of attempted murder.

The prosecutor at the first trial, during which Meier testified, has said he was aware of bruises but decided not to bring the matter up.

Defense attorney Thomas P. Puccio noted that the doctor had not mentioned the abrasion on the cheek at any other time.

"And whatever it was, it was not significant enough for you to include it in your medical records, is that right?" Puccio asked.

Meier, speaking with a German accent, responded: "Counsel, when it is the matter of a life of a patient, we may forget to record certain details."

His answer was stricken from the record after a defense objection.

Puccio then asked if a cut on the lip Meier did include in his initial report could have occurred because Mrs. von Bulow fell. Meier said that was possible.

The defense contends Mrs. von Bulow, heiress to a Pittsburgh utilities fortune, caused her 1979 coma and the one a year later by abusing alcohol, drugs and sweets. It also contends she had fallen before being found in her second coma in her private bathroom of the family's Newport mansion.

Superior Court Judge Corinne P. Grande allowed Meier's testimony on the injuries over objections. And on Friday she allowed Meier's explanation that he did not immediately notice the marks because in some cases of hypothermia — which Mrs. von Bulow was suffering at the time — they would not appear until the body began to warm up.

The doctor, chief of medicine at Newport Hospital, said Mrs. von Bulow's body temperature was an extremely cold 81.6 degrees.

Meier said he ordered an insulin-level test on Mrs. von Bulow the day she entered the hospital in December 1980. He said he had never ordered such a test before in his medical career but that he did so after recalling her first coma in 1979.

He said he suspected an agent such as insulin might have caused her first coma.

The judge did not allow Meier to answer prosecution questions about what the test revealed. At the first trial, he testified the test showed an abnormally high level of insulin.

Meier, who has said he saw no needle marks on Mrs. von Bulow's body, also testified Friday that a hypodermic needle allegedly found in a black bag seized from von Bulow's closet would not leave a visible mark on the skin if used properly.

He said the needle was small enough to be injected into a person without causing pain, but that comment was stricken from the record.

Von Bulow, 58, was found guilty on two attempted-murder counts in 1982, but the convictions were overturned by the Rhode Island Supreme Court on state constitutional grounds.

Prosecutors allege von Bulow wanted his wife dead so he could inherit about $14 million of her $75 million fortune and be free to marry his mistress, a socialite and former television soap opera actress.

Meier said he also ordered tests for the presence of barbiturates, alcohol and aspirin in Mrs. von Bulow's blood.

School marks anniversary of killings

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The Kent State University campus observes the 15th anniversary of the killings of four students by Ohio National Guardsmen this weekend amid signs that students have grown weary of the annual event.

"I try to put myself in the place of the four students who died," said Lisa Sanders, a 19-year-old sophomore and a member of the May 4th Task Force. "I feel some sort of moral obligation to them, even though I did not know them and I did not come from their generation."

Miss Sanders, however, said she is an exception among Kent State students, many of whom were toddlers when the shootings occurred during a campus protest of the U.S. invasion of Cambodia during the Vietnam War.

"A big question we get from the students is, 'Why don't you leave it alone?' or 'Why not put it to rest?'" she said. "Well, we're just trying to give them the facts and help them decide for themselves what really went on."

The anniversary observance was to begin with a traditional candlelight march through the campus Friday night, followed by an all-night vigil to mark the spots where students Allison Krause, Sandra Scheuer, Jeffrey Miller and William Schroeder were killed.

The anniversary observance continues at noon today on the university Commons. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Elaine Holstein of Glen Oaks, N.Y., the mother of Jeffrey Miller, are to speak along with Kent State students and faculty members.

Eight of the nine students wounded in the gunfire planned to attend the ceremony.

One of those wounded, Alan Canfora, said, "There has been an intense media interest this year" in the anniversary.

Republicans assessing cost of Reagan's visit

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are nervously looking beyond Bittburg and trying to assess the political price GOP candidates may pay for President Reagan's visit to a German military cemetery.

For while the president is the focus of the current protests, his party may suffer politically in 1986. As the president departed for Europe, Republican politicians were taking polls and contacting Jewish and veterans groups in an effort to minimize what many view as the inevitable domestic political fallout from the controversy over the brief cemetery stop that has dominated the pre-trip publicity.

"We've been bailing water on this one as fast as we could," said Levi Rabinowitz, a New York political consultant who is being bombarded with requests from Republican politicians anxious about the reaction within the Jewish community. "Everybody's trying to get some feel how deep the current is running," said Rabinowitz, who was a consultant to Reagan's re-election campaign.

Rabinowitz will do opinion polling before and after Reagan's visit to the cemetery on Sunday and the Republican National Committee is anxiously watching its continuing surveys.

In addition, the GOP is reaching out to veterans as well as Jewish groups, said party political director William Greener III because "we want to make clear that what they're saying is being heard."

Before he left Washington, Reagan said in an interview with foreign reporters: "I think it is morally right to do what I'm doing, and I'm not going to change my mind about that."

A lot of Republican politicians wished he would change his mind. Among those concerned about the political fallout were Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato of New York and Sen. Paula Hawkins of Florida. Both will be running for re-election in 1986 in states with large concentrations of Jewish voters.

If Democratic Gov. Robert Graham goes ahead as expected with a challenge to Mrs. Hawkins, she could enter her re-election race as an underdog.

Treatment center honors Mrs. Reagan

CASTEL GON-
DOLFO, Italy
(AP) — Her voice cracking with emotion, U.S.
First Lady Nancy Reagan accepted an award today from a drug treatment center supported by Pope John Paul II.

Mrs. Reagan Nancy Reagan told a crowd which included ex-addicts and youths currently undergoing treatment: "I don't want to lose you to drugs, not even one of you."

The "Project-Man" award was presented by the Italian Solidarity Center, a drug treatment and rehabilitation center in a villa Gandolfo donated by the pope in Castel Gandolfo, a mountain resort south of Rome where the papal summer residence is located.

The Rev. Mario Picchi, who founded the center, said the award was one way the young residents of the center could say, "thank you for your unfailing commitment to promoting an extensive program of prevention and rehabilitation."

Before receiving the award, the first lady listened to nearly a dozen men and women undergoing treatment.

"I would like to thank you for being here because in this way I feel important and I feel that I have proven myself for those who had given me up for lost," said 25-year-old Cinzia, a heroin addict for five years.

WORLD

In her speech, Mrs. Reagan said:
"The world needs your sensitivity, it needs you out there. And the main reason I came today was to tell you that I believe in you and what you can accomplish."

Mrs. Reagan had lunch with 88-year-old President Sandro Pertini and then left Quirinal Palace, via helicopter to the drug center to accept the bronze sculpture award.

The pope, whom Mrs. Reagan meets today, and Pertini are the only previous recipients of the award. Anna Craxi, wife of Italian Premier Bettino Craxi, joined Picchi in presenting the award.

U.S.: Iran arms sent to Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — A shipment of Iranian arms and ammunition has arrived at the North Korean port of Hungnam and is awaiting delivery to Nicaragua, U.S. officials said Friday.

The shipment is reported to contain more than 9,000 Soviet-made AK-47 rifles, "several million rounds of ammunition," rocket-propelled grenades and landmines, the officials said.

According to the officials, who spoke on the condition they remain anonymous, much of the weaponry is believed to have been captured by Iran in its war with Iraq.

The Iranian-Nicaraguan transaction is thought to have been worked out during a January visit to Manaagua by Iranian Prime Minister Mir Hussein Musabhi.

President Reagan has said that Musabhi's visit to Nicaragua represented a "new danger" to Central America.

The reported Iranian-Nicaraguan connection would appear to be consistent with Iran's status as one of the world's most stridently anti-American countries. The administration believes that Iran is responsible for the kidnappings of six Americans in Lebanon and is intent on eradicating U.S. influence in that country.

Nicaragua has relied for the most part on the Soviet bloc for its military equipment. Although not a member of that alliance, Iran has some of the same foreign policy objectives as Moscow.

North Korea has had a military relationship with Nicaragua for some time. U.S. intelligence sources learned several months ago that Nicaraguan army recruits have been receiving training in hand-to-hand combat from North Korean experts in Nicaragua.

The U.S. officials offered several possible reasons for Iran's apparent decision to use North Korea as a conduit for the shipments.

They said the Iranians may have wanted to conceal the origin of the equipment by sending it through North Korea. In addition, shipping via the Pacific Ocean would permit use of the Nicaraguan port of Corinto, which is better equipped to handle large deliveries than Nicaragua's Atlantic Coast ports.

The shortest route for shipping from Iran to Nicaragua is the Atlantic Ocean via the Suez and Panama Canals. But, the officials noted, use of these waterways would require a declaration of the on board cargo.

North Korea has supplied Iran with weaponry since the start of the Iran-Iraq war 4½ years ago.

Nigeria driving out illegal aliens

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The Nigerian government told 700,000 illegal aliens Friday that they have a week to leave the country and that the borders are open for their departure.

The nation's frontier has been closed for a year during a nationwide crackdown on corruption and currency smuggling.

It was Nigeria's second mass expulsion of aliens — migrant workers drawn by an oil boom or refugees from drought. Two years ago,
Nigeria drove out about 2 million.

The economy has slowed with falling oil prices and the feeling in Nigeria is that the foreigners deprive citizens of jobs. The authorities also blame them for high crime rates in the cities.

The treaty between Nigeria and its neighbors on freedom of movement allows foreigners to remain here only for 90 days.

Interior Ministry vehicles will drive the aliens to the borders, or they will be allowed to buy airline tickets with Nigerian currency, the official Lagos radio said. The government requires other foreigners to buy tickets in foreign currency.

About 300,000 of the aliens are migrant workers from Ghana, according to Ghanaian authorities.
An additional 100,000 are from Niger and most of the remainder from Chad and Cameroon. Most of the non-Ghanaians crossed the border into Nigeria to escape drought and threatened famine.

The government appeared to be planning carefully to avoid the instances of violence that marked the 1983 expulsion.

Visitors to veterans memorial feel no lesson learned from Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP)—A stinging wind tears at the cherry trees and howls past the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, a long wall of black marble barely big enough to hold the names of the war dead.

It is 7 a.m., too early for tourists. Joe Dube, a 38-year-old former Army medic from Fishkill, N.Y., has the wall almost to himself. "I saw some of these people die," he says. "It's like talking to your friends again. They are all here."

Dube touches the wall reverently, running his fingertips over the cold marble and into the letters sandblasted on the surface. It is a communal act. He stays four hours, touching.

By 10 a.m., the pathway at the memorial is clogged with people. The wall, the National Park Service says, outdraws every monument but the Lincoln Memorial. But it seems blasphemous to call it a tourist attraction.

The Park Service says the crowds have grown thicker with the approach of April 30, the 10th anniversary of the final act of the war, the fall of Saigon to the Vietnamese Communists.

Lucille Siegel, 61, of Seaford, N.Y., says she has made the trip to Washington just to see the name of Willie F. Oxendine III. "He was a friend," she says. "He died early in the war." Frank L. Bosch, a park ranger, places a memorial brochure over Oxendine's name and rubs with a thick number 2 pencil. He hands the rubbing to Siegel, who clutches it to her heart.

She says she does not understand why her friend died, that she does not know what lesson can be drawn from all of the killing, and that she is certain it has taught the country nothing. "We are," she says, "a stupid race."

It is a typical response. Most of the Americans interviewed here over three days say they do not know the lesson of Vietnam, and they say that whatever the lesson may be, the nation probably has failed to learn it.

Like Siegel and Dube, most who come here reach out to touch the names. Many search for the name of a friend or family member. Some have stuck a yellow rose between two marble slabs, next to the name of Richard Vandergier.

Children approach the memorial skipping and giggling but quickly turn somber, overcome by the enormity of the 483-foot-4-inch-long wall. The most often overheard comments are: "What was it for?" and "So many names!"

"Most of them died believing they were doing something for their country," Dube says. "They believed they were winning. In a way, they are the lucky ones. We know that we lost."

Dube says he cannot swallow President Reagan's statement that the war was "a noble cause." He holds his hand up, marking off about one-fifth of the names. "Somewhere about here," he says, "it stopped being noble."

"I could never talk to my wife about it," he says.

"She never understood. So, I brought her here. She shivered and cried. If you want to understand this war, come to the wall."

But the wall seems to offer no answers. "It makes no statement," said Steve Alemar, a 31-year-old Vietnam veteran who now watches over the memorial for the park service. "It just lists the price of the war: 58,022 dead and missing."

Sometimes the wall seems to be a mirror, reflecting the faces of the visitors, reflecting their sorrow, reflecting the confusion so many Americans feel about the nation's longest war. Other times, when the light changes, the black wall loses its mirror-like quality and seems instead to be a tunnel.

Alemar is talking to a group of students, explaining that the names on the wall are arranged chronologically by date of death. This way, he says, a veteran looking up the name of a friend may also find others from the same unit whose names he may have forgotten.

"All sorts of things are left at the wall," Alemar continues. The items have included full dress uniforms, letters, a green beret, a pint of Southern Comfort, notes attached to beer cans, photographs, Teddy bears, women's panties, medals. "I've seen every medal but the Congressional Medal of Honor," he says.

One woman left an old Teddy bear, a photograph of a 1950s-vintage automobile and a note. "I'm bringing your Teddy bear and a picture of your loved race car," the note says. "I realize they can't stay here long, but they are yours and I want you to have them."

Jury acquits lawmaker

BEAUMONT (AP) — State Rep. Frank Collazo was acquitted Friday of a bribery charge alleging he solicited business partnerships in exchange for his influence as a legislator.

Collazo, 53, said he was happy with the jury's decision but angry that he was forced to endure a trial.

"I feel it was a conspiracy, bringing the charge to assassinate my character and my political life. If you conspire with a lie, you have to tell another, and you saw a lot of lies here. Thank God, the jury saw that," he said.

Asked if his political career has been damaged, he replied, "Time dictates that one."

A panel of seven men and five women deliberated about four hours over two days before deciding the five-term lawmaker was innocent of the charge.

Collazo, D-Port Arthur, embraced his attorney, former state Rep. Wayne Paveto of Orange, when the jury foreman read the verdict.

Jury foreman Buddy Morris, a Beaumont auto salesman, said prosecutors didn't have enough evidence to convict Collazo.

"If there had been just one more witness," Morris said afterward. "As it was, there was a reasonable doubt."

Prosecutor Randy Drewett said he had no quarrel with the verdict.

"I told the jury when we first started, that our duty was not to make convictions but to make sure justice was done and it was," Drewett said.

The key prosecution witness was Chester Slay, a Beaumont shipyard owner and former state representative who last year lost a water pollution lawsuit brought by the state.

Slay served one term in the Texas House before he was defeated in a bid for the state Senate by Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur. Parker, 50, has been indicted on charges of distribution of pornography and engaging in criminal enterprise by conspiring to distribute cocaine.

Slay, now a substitute school teacher, testified that Collazo sought an interest in two of Slay's companies in exchange for offering to influence the Texas Water Quality Board and the state Department of Water Resources.

Collazo was indicted by March 21 on a single charge of bribery, a second-degree felony. If convicted, he would have faced up to 30 years in prison.

The indictment claimed Collazo in 1982 solicited partnerships in two of Slay's businesses — the Golden Triangle Shipyard and State Welding and Marine Works, in exchange for his influence.

Slay testified that after a July 1982 oil spill, the U.S. Coast Guard and Texas water resources staff frequently visited his shipyard business.

Slay testified part of the business included buying waste oil from Elias Vasquez, owner of an oil reclamation business, treating it and selling it back to Vasquez.

About one month after the spill, Collazo called Slay and offered to use his influence as a legislator, Slay testified.

"His reason for calling was point blank to offer a partnership agreement between us. He said he could remove pressure from the Texas Water Quality Board. In return, he wanted part of my shipyard," Slay said.

Tower: U.S. must maintain proper military strength

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — U.S. arms negotiator and former U.S. Sen. John Tower told a university commencement audience Friday the United States must maintain proper military strength or "we will have delivered our future into the hands of an adversary who does not have our best interests in mind."

Tower, a Texas Republican who represents the U.S. at the current strategic arms negotiations in Geneva, told Texas A&M University graduates America's military budget cannot be sized to "budgetary constraints, but must be sized to requirements driven by that threat."

Texas teachers to be considered for shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency and a national education group on Friday announced that two Texans are among 114 quarterfinalists in a search for a teacher to fly on the space shuttle early in 1986.

Peggy Lathlean of Westwood Elementary in Friendswood and Stephen A. Warren of Stephen F. Austin High in Austin were named as quarterfinalists.

President Reagan announced the teacher-in-space project last year.

The group, and two more to be chosen by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, will attend a national workshop June 22-27 in Washington. They will be briefed about the space program and be interviewed.

Soon after the workshop, a national review panel will announce the names of 10 semifinalists for consideration by NASA's Space Flight Participation Committee.

These will be interviewed again and taken to the Johnson Space Center in Houston in mid-July for physical examinations and briefings. Those results will go to NASA Administrator James M. Beggs who will select a primary and backup candidate.

The list, compiled by the Council of Chief State School Officers, said the two nominees from the Bureau of Indian Affairs were to be announced.

Sunny skies and mild temperatures will bless this day if the weatherman's forecast comes true.

The high today is to be in the low 90s, and winds are to be southerly at 10 to 20 mph and gusty, according to the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The weatherman is forecasting a fair night with a low in the low 60s. The high Sunday is to be near 90 degrees.

STATE

Fair skies and temperatures in the 70s and 80s prevailed across the state Friday as a ridge of high pressure continued to dominate Texas weather.

Other than a few low clouds dotting the High Plains, Rio Grande Valley, coastal waters and parts North Central Texas, the state's skies were cloudless, according to the National Weather Service.

Late-afternoon temperatures were in the 70s and 80s, and the 5 p.m. extremes ranged from 75 at Wichita Falls to 88 at Laredo.

In the forecast for North Texas, skies should be fair through tonight and partly cloudy Sunday. High temperatures both days should be in the 80s, while overnight lows should be in the low 60s.

West Texas weather should be mostly fair through Sunday, with isolated late afternoon and evening thunderstorms in the southwest mountains. Highs both days should be in the 80s and 90s, while overnight lows should be in the 60s.

In South Texas, skies should be mostly fair through Sunday with warm days and mild nights. Highs both days should be mainly in the 80s and nighttime lows in the 60s.

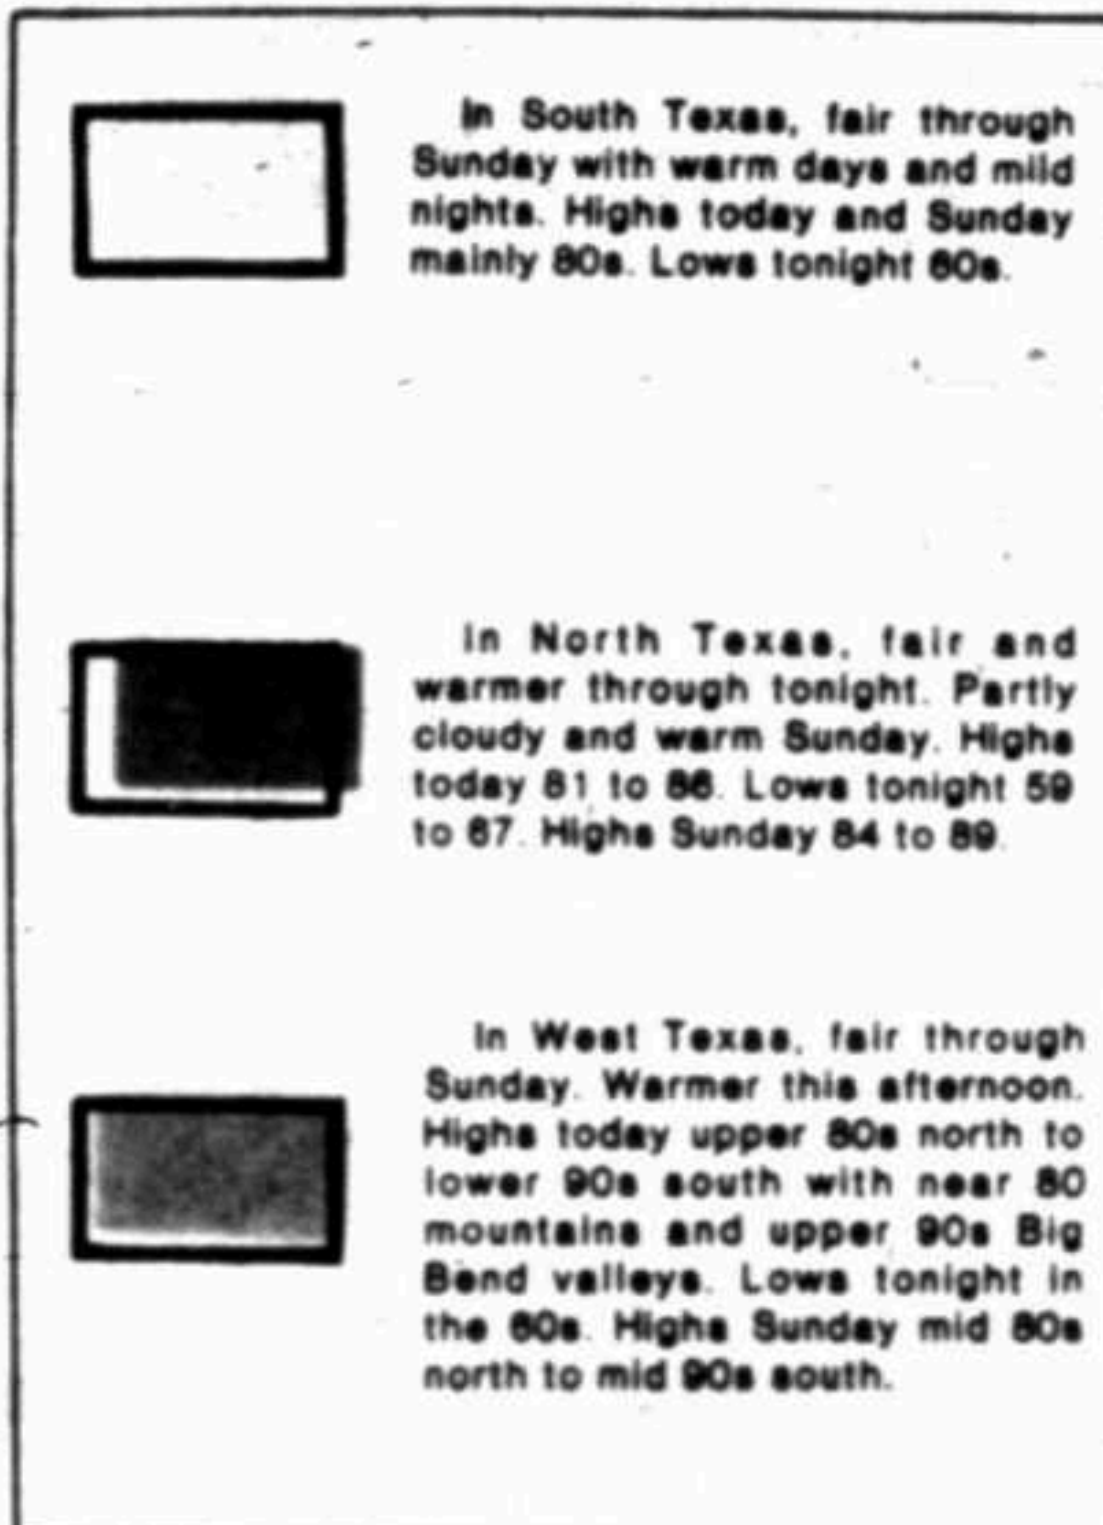

NATION

Showers and thunderstorms drenched much of the Atlantic Coast on Friday, bringing some relief to drought-stricken states, while scattered rain fell in the Northwest and northern Rocky Mountains.

Record rains soaked New York City and nearby Newark, N.J., which are both covered under water use restrictions imposed after drought emergencies were declared.

Skies were generally overcast from Florida to New England and over the central Gulf Coast states.

Davis breaks Region I mark and slump

By Terry Williamson
Assistant Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — Midland High's Darrell Davis, feeling disgusted with his loss of 59.9 at the District 4-5A track meet two weeks ago, went Friday morning and threw himself back to the state meet with a record-setting 62.8 to win the Region I shot put title at the Texas Tech track.

It was here a year ago that Davis first broke the 60-foot barrier with a 60-8 and he went on to turn in a third place finish at the state meet.

It was never a contest Friday as Davis tossed a 60-6 1/2 on his first try, four feet better than second-place finisher Desmond Royal of Temple. His second throw was the record-breaker and after that he was just throwing against himself, scratching on his last three throws in the finals.

"I was really on my own after the first two throws. No one was really a threat," said Davis. "The rest of the time I was just overthrowing, trying to get one out there and I scratched three times."

MHS COACH Johnny Williams said, "Darrell just went out and took the pressure off himself. He was really relaxed on those first two throws. He just went out and won it."

Meanwhile, Midland Lee's Rebels suffered only one setback in the running preliminaries to move into good position today to challenge for the Region I team title. Lee will have seven individuals and two relays with which to score points and look to own the most potent point potential in the field.

The Lee and MHS girls also fared well today, with Lee losing only its 800 meter relay team. MHS had no casualties.

Lee's David Almand was the only casualty in the running prelims, finishing fifth in his heat of the 800 meters and missing today's finals by one position. Lee coach Sam Volpe was pleased with the overall results.

"We did what we set out to do. We knew the 800 was going to be tough for David, but we survived everything else," said Volpe. "We have a chance to win the team title, but it's going to be an exciting day with a lot of exciting races. There are some very fast people."

LEE'S TWO relay teams set school records, but neither had top qualifying times for today's finals. In the sprint relay, Harold Woods, Marq Brackens, Quintus Hampton and Walter Jones combined for a 41.4 as Fort Worth's OD Wyatt set a region record with a blazing 40.9 in the same heat.

In the 1600 relay, Brad Cooper, Craig Swearingin, Hampton and Brackens posted a school best of 3:14.3, but Sherman had a 3:14.2.

"We'll just have to break the school record in the sprint relay for the third time this year if we're going to win on Saturday," said Woods. "We already set the record at the Tall City Relays with a 41.7."

Jones also safely qualified in both the 100 with 10.9 and 200 meters with a 21.5, less than personal bests, but he remained confident for today's finals.

"In the 100, I just tried to run good out of the blocks," said Jones. "I just wanted to qualify. In the 200, I wanted to run the curve hard and then just qualify. We can do better in the sprint relay because we just made sure today that we got the hand-offs."

JONES RANKED third overall in the 100 and tied for second best in the 200. He was third in his 100 heat and won his 200 qualifying heat. He will also be in the long jump today. The big surprise of the day for

Lee came when Cooper walked on the track to compete in the 400 meters. Brackens was the 4-5A qualifier in the event, but dropped out of the rest to allow Cooper, who finished third at district, to run in the region meet. Cooper finished second in his heat and fifth overall.

"The 1600 relay is really my event and that's what we had to get down to win this thing," said Brackens, who won a state berth in the 400 last year. "I need to be fresh for the relays. Hampton has to run the hurdles and sprint relay. I'm also in the sprint relay and Cooper was only in the mile relay."

Cooper added, "We didn't make the decision until after the sprint relay and I really wasn't mentally prepared to run the 400. I would have liked to have a little notice." Hampton had a 38.4 in the 300 hurdles, second in his heat and fourth overall, saying, "I just didn't feel right. We haven't run in two weeks, but I'll be okay by tomorrow." Midland High sophomore Ethel Edwards paced the girls with a 24.8 in the 200, the best qualifying time of the day, winning her heat by about three yards.

"I didn't really run hard. I knew I was where I wanted to be when we all hit the straightaway," said Edwards.

MHS coach Brenda Mitchell said, "I really feel good about the finals as far as Ethel is concerned. She really looked smooth. I think she can win it."

Lee junior Tami Carter's 12.3 was second best in her heat and fifth best overall to gain another finals berth while teammate Tami Woodberry, a sophomore, posted a 15.1 in the 100 hurdles to rank seventh overall and third in her heat.

If fate takes a hand, it will be Chief's Crown

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—If breeding and fate play any part in Saturday's 111th Kentucky Derby, Andrew Rosen figures Chief's Crown will be a lock.

Of course, it doesn't hurt that the colt can run, too, and he has — all the way to a $1.2 million bankroll and victories in nine of 12 lifetime starts.

But it's history and sentiment that make Chief's Crown extra special to Rosen and his family.

"There's a whole lot of genes here — the owner, the racehorse and the trainer," Rosen said Friday. "Some things have a funny way of working out."

"I think there's a little destiny involved."

That feeling starts with the colt's famous grandparents: Derby winners Northern Dancer and Secretariat, as well as filly champion Chris Evert.

Then there's Rosen, whose late father Carl talked

Calvin Klein into a jeans deal back in 1977 that turned into a $250 million gold mine. Carl Rosen was known as "The Chief," and Chief's Crown was named for him.

AND DON'T count out trainer Roger Laurin, whose father, Lucien, won the Derby in 1972 with Riva Ridge and the Triple Crown the following year with Secretariat.

Rosen just wishes The Chief were around to enjoy it.

Carl Rosen's father founded Puritan Fashions in

The field for Saturday's 111th Kentucky Derby, with post position, horse's name, jockey's name and odds:

Sons of Danzig could make him biggest winner of 111th Derby

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The horse with the most to win Saturday in the 111th Kentucky Derby won't be in the starting gate, or even at Churchill Downs.

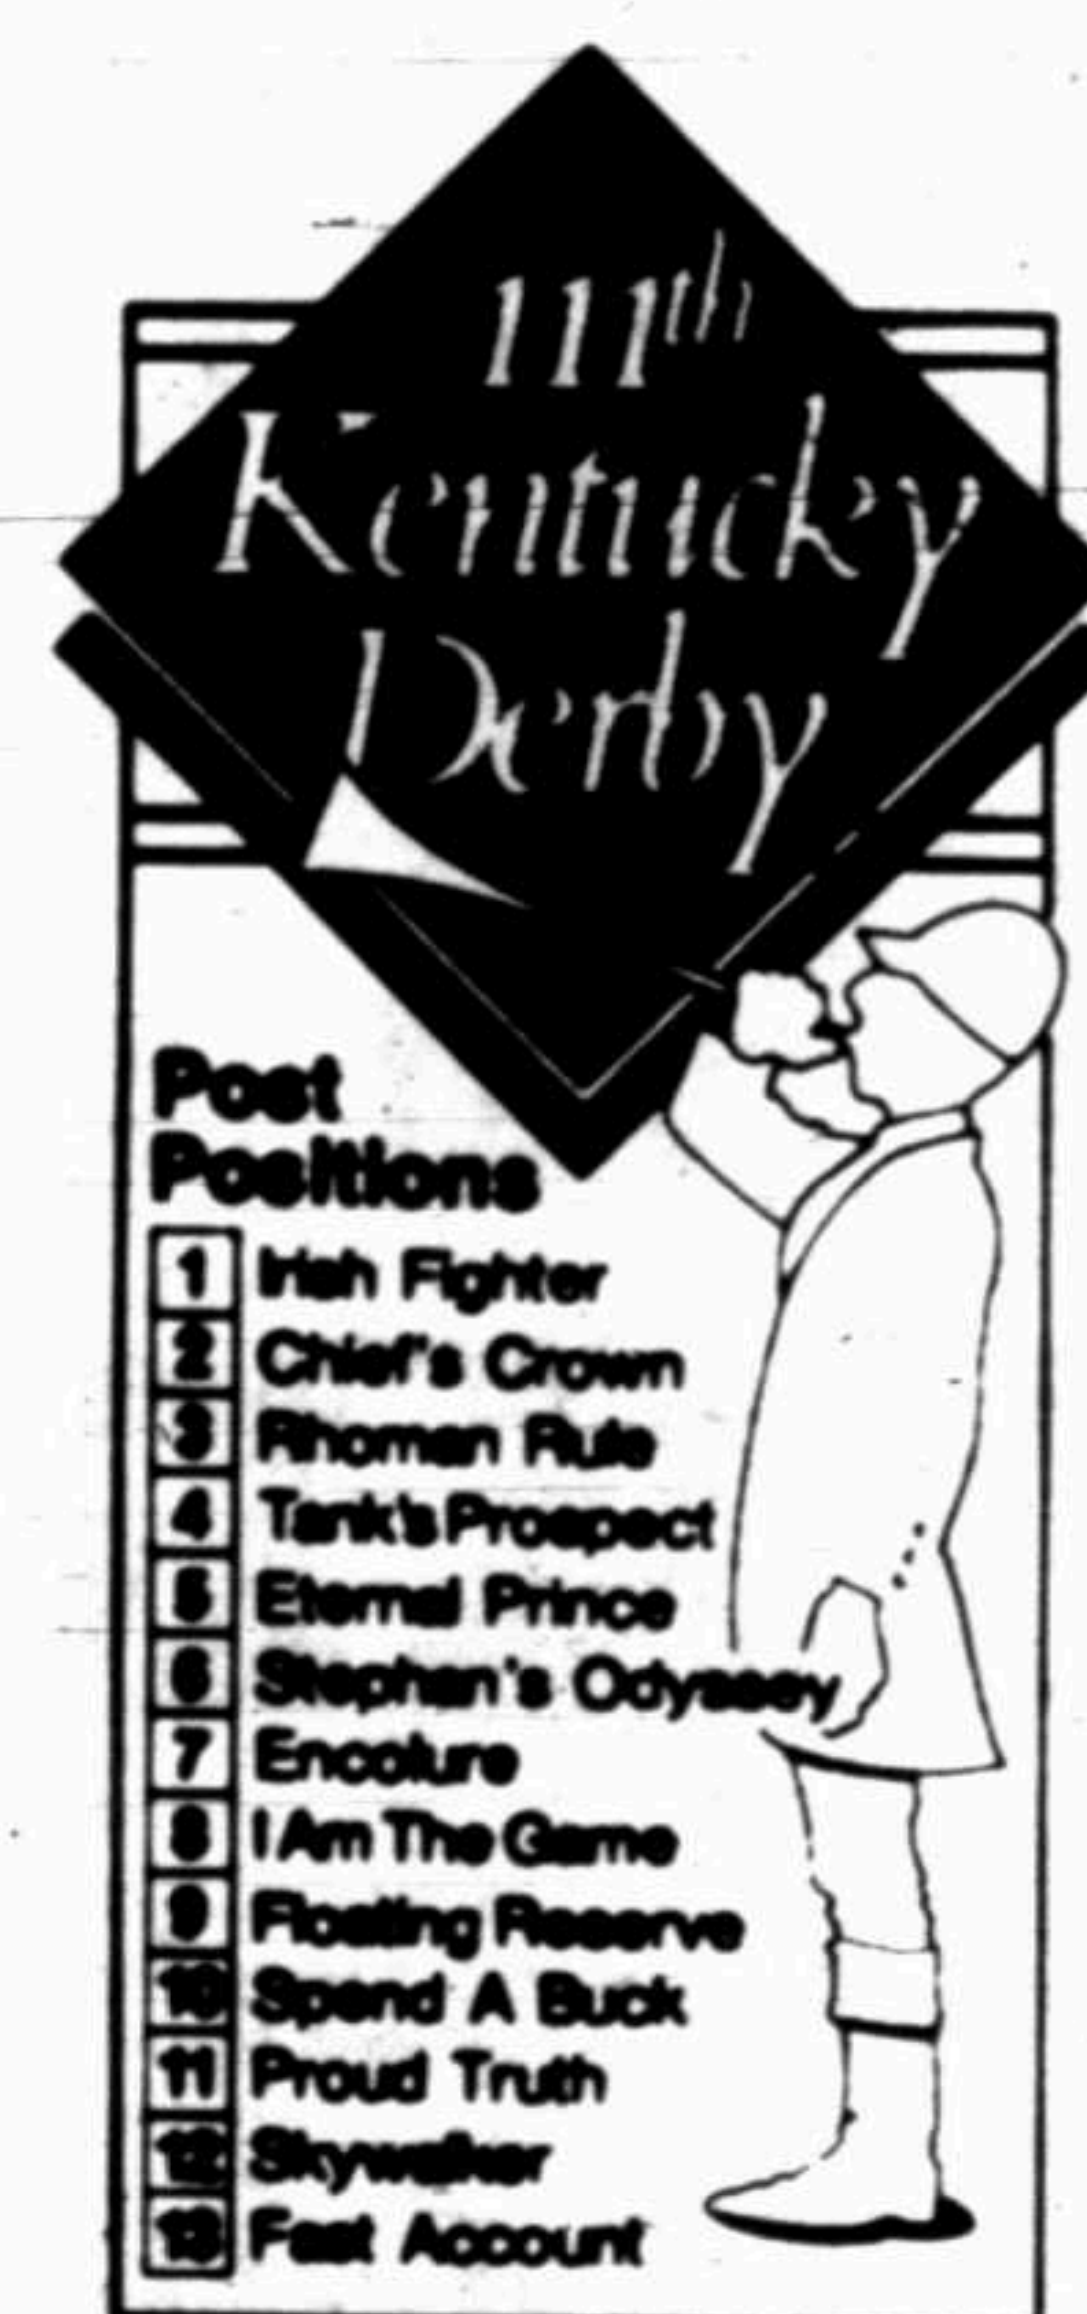

Danzig will be back on the farm in Paris, Ky., but he has two sons entered in the Derby. If either favorite Chief's Crown or Stephan's Odyssey comes out on top, Danzig's value is certain to soar.

The 8-year-old son of Northern Dancer already is the hot young stallion in Kentucky after producing those top two colts in his first crop. Shares that sold for $80,000 five years ago now go for $1.7 million, and Danzig's trainer, Woody Stephens, said he just turned down an offer of $300,000 for one-time breeding rights next year.

"The Danzig horses may be 1-2," said Stephens. "I feel very good about having two in there."

DANZIG NEVER made it to a stakes race. After winning his first race, Stephens said he discovered a bone chip in Danzig's left knee. The knee was operated on and Danzig made two more starts, winning both in good times by a total of 18 1/2 lengths.

"No horse ever put a head in front of him," Stephens said. "He really could run ... but I had an awful time keeping him good. That knee was always bothering him. "There's no telling what he could have done."

The knee injury cropped up again and veterinarians advised the trainer that racing the colt again could kill him. So Stephens convinced Claiborne Farm president Seth Hancock to syndicate Danzig, even though "it's awful tough to sell a horse that's never won a stakes."

So now it's especially satisfying — and fairly lucrative, since Stephens owns two shares — to see Danzig's first sons do well.

"Seattle Slew has been a real good stallion, but this horse is getting more runners," Stephens said. "This horse is getting a gang of them."

Chief's Crown, whose dam is a daughter of 1973 Derby winner Secretariat, has won $1.2 million and nine of 12 starts. He was last year's 2-year-old champion and hasn't lost at 3.

Stephan's Odyssey is four of eight, with $739,635 in winnings. The colt's dam, Kennelot, is a half-sister of Cannonade, the colt that won Stephens his first Kentucky Derby in 1974.

STEPHENS ALWAYS points out that Stephan's Odyssey lost to Chief's Crown by 1 1/4 lengths in the controversial Flamingo Stakes and to Proud Truth by a neck in the Fountain of Youth despite giving up 10 pounds.

The trainer figures Chief's Crown, trained by Roger Laurin, is the "one to beat" Saturday, but he likes his own colt's chances.

Favorite Chief's Crown seems bored by the competition at today's 111th running of the Kentucky Derby in Louisville, Ky.

Angel rally beats Gators

From Staff Reports

Trailing 4-2 in the top of the eighth inning, the Midland Angels were handed new life twice. They took advantage of a pair of Beaumont Gator errors and came up with key hits to rally for a 5-4 Texas League victory and a 3-2 edge in the five-game series.

Devon White was the first Angel to find new life when his foul popup was dropped by Beaumont catcher Benito Santiago, who was charged with an error. On the next pitch, White was hit by Gator starter Mike Mills.

Dan Murphy followed with a single to chase Mills. Reggie Montgomery greeted reliever Mark Poston with a sacrifice fly to center field to score White.

One out later, Billie Merrifield ripped a double to the right-center gap to score Murphy and tie the game at 4-4.

Tito Nanni received an intentional walk and then Merrifield became the second recipient of a Gator give away. Poston had Merrifield picked off second, but second baseman Dave Corman dropped the ball on the tag.

David Heath followed with the game winning RBI, a single that scored Merrifield. Poston ended up suffering the loss and fell to 4-1.

Psaltis came roaring back to strike out Rico Rodriguez and, after walking Mark Wasinger, got Gary Green, who was 3-for-4 going to the plate, to fly out to center to end the game.

Fred Wilburn took the victory for the Angels in relief of starter Bob Kipper and first reliever Ed Delzer. Wilburn and Psaltis, who received his first save of the year, allowed no runs, three hits and one walk in the final three innings on the mound.

Angels open 5-game homestand with front-running San Antonio

From Staff Reports

Midland's Angels return from a 10-game road trip for a five-game Angels Stadium stand against the San Antonio Dodgers at 7 p.m. tonight. The teams play a 2 p.m. game Sunday and 7 p.m. contests Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

After that, Midland will be on the road for its first inter-divisional competition. The Angels will be at Tulsa and Shreveport for five games each before returning home May 21. Since leaving home for series in Beaumont and San Antonio, Midland has made some roster changes, adding Bob Kipper from the California Angels and Daryl Sconiers, former California first baseman, being sent to Midland to play himself back into shape.

FIRST BASEMAN Sconiers joined the club in Beaumont Thursday and will be with the Angels for 21 days. He has played with California for four years after leading the Texas League in batting with a .370 average at El Paso in 1980.

Kipper won his first start at San Antonio after joining Midland from California. Last season, he was a 17-6 pitcher for Redwood of the Class A California League.

In other roster changes, pitchers Steve Finch and Tom Bryden were moved up to Edmond of the Class AAA Pacific Coast League. Finch, a starter, had spent five seasons in AAA ball. Bryden posted an 1-2 mark for the Angels in relief before being promoted.

With the departure of Finch and Bryden and first baseman Doug Reibel to Redwood, the Angels were able to activate relief pitcher Fred Wilburn from the disabled list.

HALO HOOPS—Assistant GM Bill Davidson is happy with Midland attendance for the first homestand, which shows an increase of 4,608 over last year. The Angels have drawn 19,371 fans versus 14,763 for the first 10 dates a year ago. The April 14 opener attracted 2,140 and four other crowds have surpassed 2,000. "It is very encouraging to see a full ball park this early in the season. With a continued emphasis on good promotions and an exciting club on the field, we hope to approach the Midland attendance record...The Midland Cubs drew a record 124,144 in 1983."

The first 1,000 fans entering the park with a paid admission tonight will receive an Angels T-shirt, courtesy of KMD. Sunday, it will be Odessa Community day and Dr. Pepper Day. Anyone entering the park with three Dr. Pepper cans will receive free admission and a free Centennial souvenir cup filled with Dr. Pepper...

Dr. J bails out 76ers

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA—A pair of field goals by Julius Erving in the final 56 seconds after Philadelphia had blown an 18-point lead gave the 76ers a 109-104 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Friday night and a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series.

The Bucks led 104-102 with 1:20 to play after breaking the seventh tie in the final period on a basket by Alton Lister. Erving then hit a long jumper about a foot inside the three-point line as the 24-second shot clock was about to expire, tying the score with 56 seconds left.

The Bucks then came downcourt and Philadelphia guard Maurice Cheeks stole the ball from Terry Cummings and passed to Erving for a layup that put the 76ers ahead to stay at 106-104 with 38 seconds remaining.

Milwaukee had two more chances to tie the score again, but jump shots by Lister and Ricky Pierce failed to connect.

Andrew Toney led the 76ers with 20 points, while Erving and rookie Charles Barkley each had 19 for the Philadelphia, which has a chance to finish a 4-0 sweep here in Game 4 Sunday.

CUMMINGS HAD 21 points, 17 of them in the first half, while Paul Pressey collected 20 and Sidney Moncrief 17 for the Bucks.

The Bucks trailed 85-77 at the start of the final period, but scored the first eight points of the quarter to tie it with 9:53 left.

The score was tied five more times, the last at 97, before a field goal by Cummings at the 2:48 mark sent Milwaukee ahead 100-99, the Bucks' first lead since the first quarter. Pierce dropped in a pair of free throws for a 102-99 edge.

But Barkley made a three-point play at 1:35 to tie it again at 102-all. Lister's field goal gave the Bucks their last lead, but they didn't score again.

THE BUCKS had an early 10-11 margin, with Cummings scoring nine of those points. But the 76ers scored 23 of the next 30 points, including 10 straight in one span, and led 54-23 at the end of the first period.

Trailing by 14 with 7:43 to play in the second period, the Bucks cut the 76ers' lead to eight three times, the last at 51-43 with 2:36 to play. But the 76ers scored the last six points of the quarter to lead 57-43 at halftime.

In the third period, Philadelphia took its largest lead at 74-56 with 6:38 remaining. Milwaukee's 21-11 run closed the gap to eight at the end of the period.

Craig Hodges scored 10 of his 12 points and Moncrief nine, each with a three-point basket, to lead the Bucks back into contention.

Julius Erving of Philadelphia finds himself boxed in here, but Erving escaped to lead the 76ers to a 109-104 NBA playoff win over Milwaukee Friday.

MC lands freshman trio

Coronado's Duncan tops list

From Staff Reports

Lubbock Coronado's Todd Duncan has signed to play basketball for Midland College next season, it was revealed by MC Coach Jerry Stone.

A two-year starter, the 6-1½ guard, noted for his marksmanship, set a school record with 21.5 points per game his senior year, hitting more than 55 percent of his field goal attempts and more than 80 percent from the line.

"Todd is an outstanding pure shooter, one of the best I've ever coached," said Coronado coach Jimmy Robinson. "At this stage, he's comparable to Bubba Jennings as a shooter." Robinson formerly coached Jennings at Clovis, N.M., product who was the Southwest Conference MVP this season while leading Rech to the SWC title and tournament championships.

"WE THINK Todd can give us the outside scoring punch, plus he also can handle the ball and play as a point guard," Stone said.

"Todd is one of the hardest working youngsters I've ever seen," said Robinson. "He's always in the gym trying to improve his game. Right now, all he needs is more strength and a little more experience."

Duncan helped Coronado to a 22-9 record last season. "I'm excited about coming to Midland College," he said. "They have a winning tradition and coach Stone is well-known as a good coach and one who helps his players develop and move on to Division I schools."

He plans to major in Business Administration of Physical Education at MC.

DUNCAN IS the third player signed by the Chaps this spring. He'll join Wendell Nibbs from Houston Madison and Rusty Harris from Houston MacArthur. Nibbs, 6-5 and 210 pounds, was a key player in Madison's 40-0 record and the Class 5A state championship. Harris is 6-4 and 200 pounds.

The Chaps took fourth place in the National Junior College tournament this year after winning their fourth conference title and third regional crown. They finished the season at 31-6, the fourth time in the past five years they've won 30 or more.

MC is losing five sophomores from the 84-85 squad, including junior college All-American Tevin Binns. The 6-9 sophomore was MC's fourth All-American in the last five years.

"We started only sophomores until Lawrence Chumbley hurt his knee in January. Tony Wright took his place, so he's the only returning starter we have," said Stone. "However, everyone played a lot down the stretch, so we do have some experience among our freshmen. But we're going to be depending a lot on people like Todd to come in and play for us immediately."

New site possible for '85 Bluebonnet Bowl

Associated Press

HOUSTON—The Bluebonnet Bowl will have a new kick-off time New Year's Eve and the game's site may also change, bowl officials said Friday.

Jack Busiek, president of the Greater Houston Bowl Association, said the bowl's board of directors voted to move the game to Rice Stadium. The Bluebonnet has been played at the Astrodome since 1968.

"There is a strong possibility that we will play our 1985 game at Rice Stadium," Busiek said. "Hopefully, we'll be able to make an official announcement next week."

Now, everybody tops the magic 200 mark

Associated Press

TALLADEGA, Ala.—When Benny Parsons turned a lap of 200.176 mph at Alabama International Motor Speedway in May 1982, it marked the first time that any driver had ever been over 200 mph in a stock car.

Parsons, who says that wild ride was far more "thrilling" than he likes to think about, is frankly amazed by what has happened in the three years since that historic ride around Talladega's 2.66-mile tri-oval.

The former Winston Cup champion qualified at 200.326 mph for Sunday's $504,275 Winston 500, a speed that was only 18th fastest in the 40-car lineup headed by pole-sitter Bill Elliott's all-time stock car mark of 209.396 mph.

"Everybody's talking about what Bill has done, but just about everybody is going faster and the big difference is aerodynamics," Parsons said Friday. "When we were first going over 200, the cars were really a handful. Now, they're set up a lot better and it's nowhere near as bad."

Stallions trip, 38-24

Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Quarterback Mike Kelley completed 21 of 28 passes for 231 yards and two touchdowns Friday night as the Memphis Showboats tamed the Birmingham Stallions 38-24.

The victory was Memphis' first in four meetings with Birmingham since the Showboats joined the league last season. The Showboats are now 6-5 while the Stallions dropped to 7-4.

The 'Boats broke a 17-17 halftime tie less than four minutes into the third period by turning a Stallion fumble into a touchdown when running back Harry Sydney zipped 18 yards for the score.

Sydney added another touchdown early in the final period with a 1-yard plunge over his own left guard to cap a 62-yard drive.

After the kickoff, Stallion quarterback Cliff Stoudt fumbled and Reggie White gathered it in and lumbered 20 yards for six points.

Then Birmingham managed an 11-play, 72-yard drive ending with Stoudt's 18-yard pass to Ken Toler with less than five minutes left in the game.

The Showboats jumped to a 7-0 lead on their first possession, taking the kickoff and moving 79 yards in MIDLAND'S BOBBY Hillin qualified in the seventh position with a time of 202.585.

Looking ahead to Sunday's race, scheduled to start at 1 p.m. CDT, Parsons said he doesn't expect a lot of real racing in the early going.

"When you get a car out front of the lead pack running around at 205, all you can do is follow. If you pull out of line, you'll just go backwards."

"Actually, though, that's the safest thing that can happen. If someone tries to pass at 200 miles an hour, it becomes a real jumble all the way back through the pack. Everybody shuffles position."

Elliott, whose Ford Thunderbird broke the all-time qualifying record of 285.114 mph that he set in February at Daytona, has been criticized by some of his competitors for showing his strength rather than finessing the rest of the field.

But Parsons, who has taken a special interest in Elliott's career, takes exception to that attitude.

"He and the other guys on the team have worked so hard to get where they are, he has the right to put our nose in it and rub it," Parsons said.

six plays before Kelley connected with tight end Mark Rough for five yards and the first touchdown.

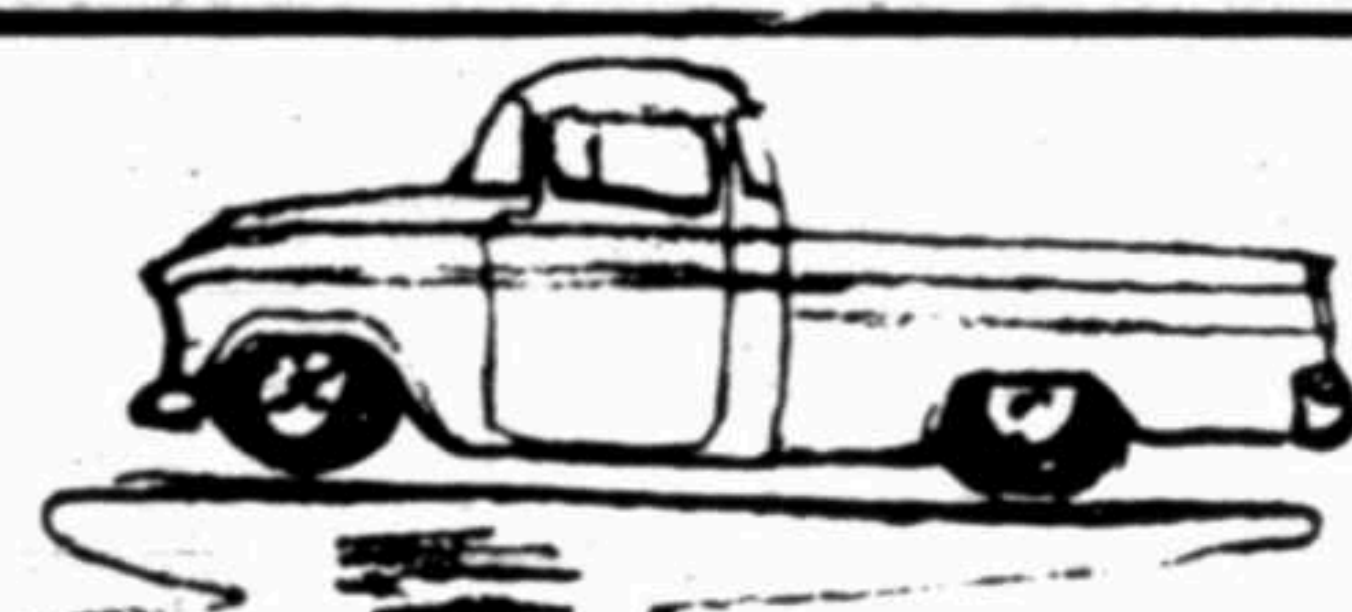

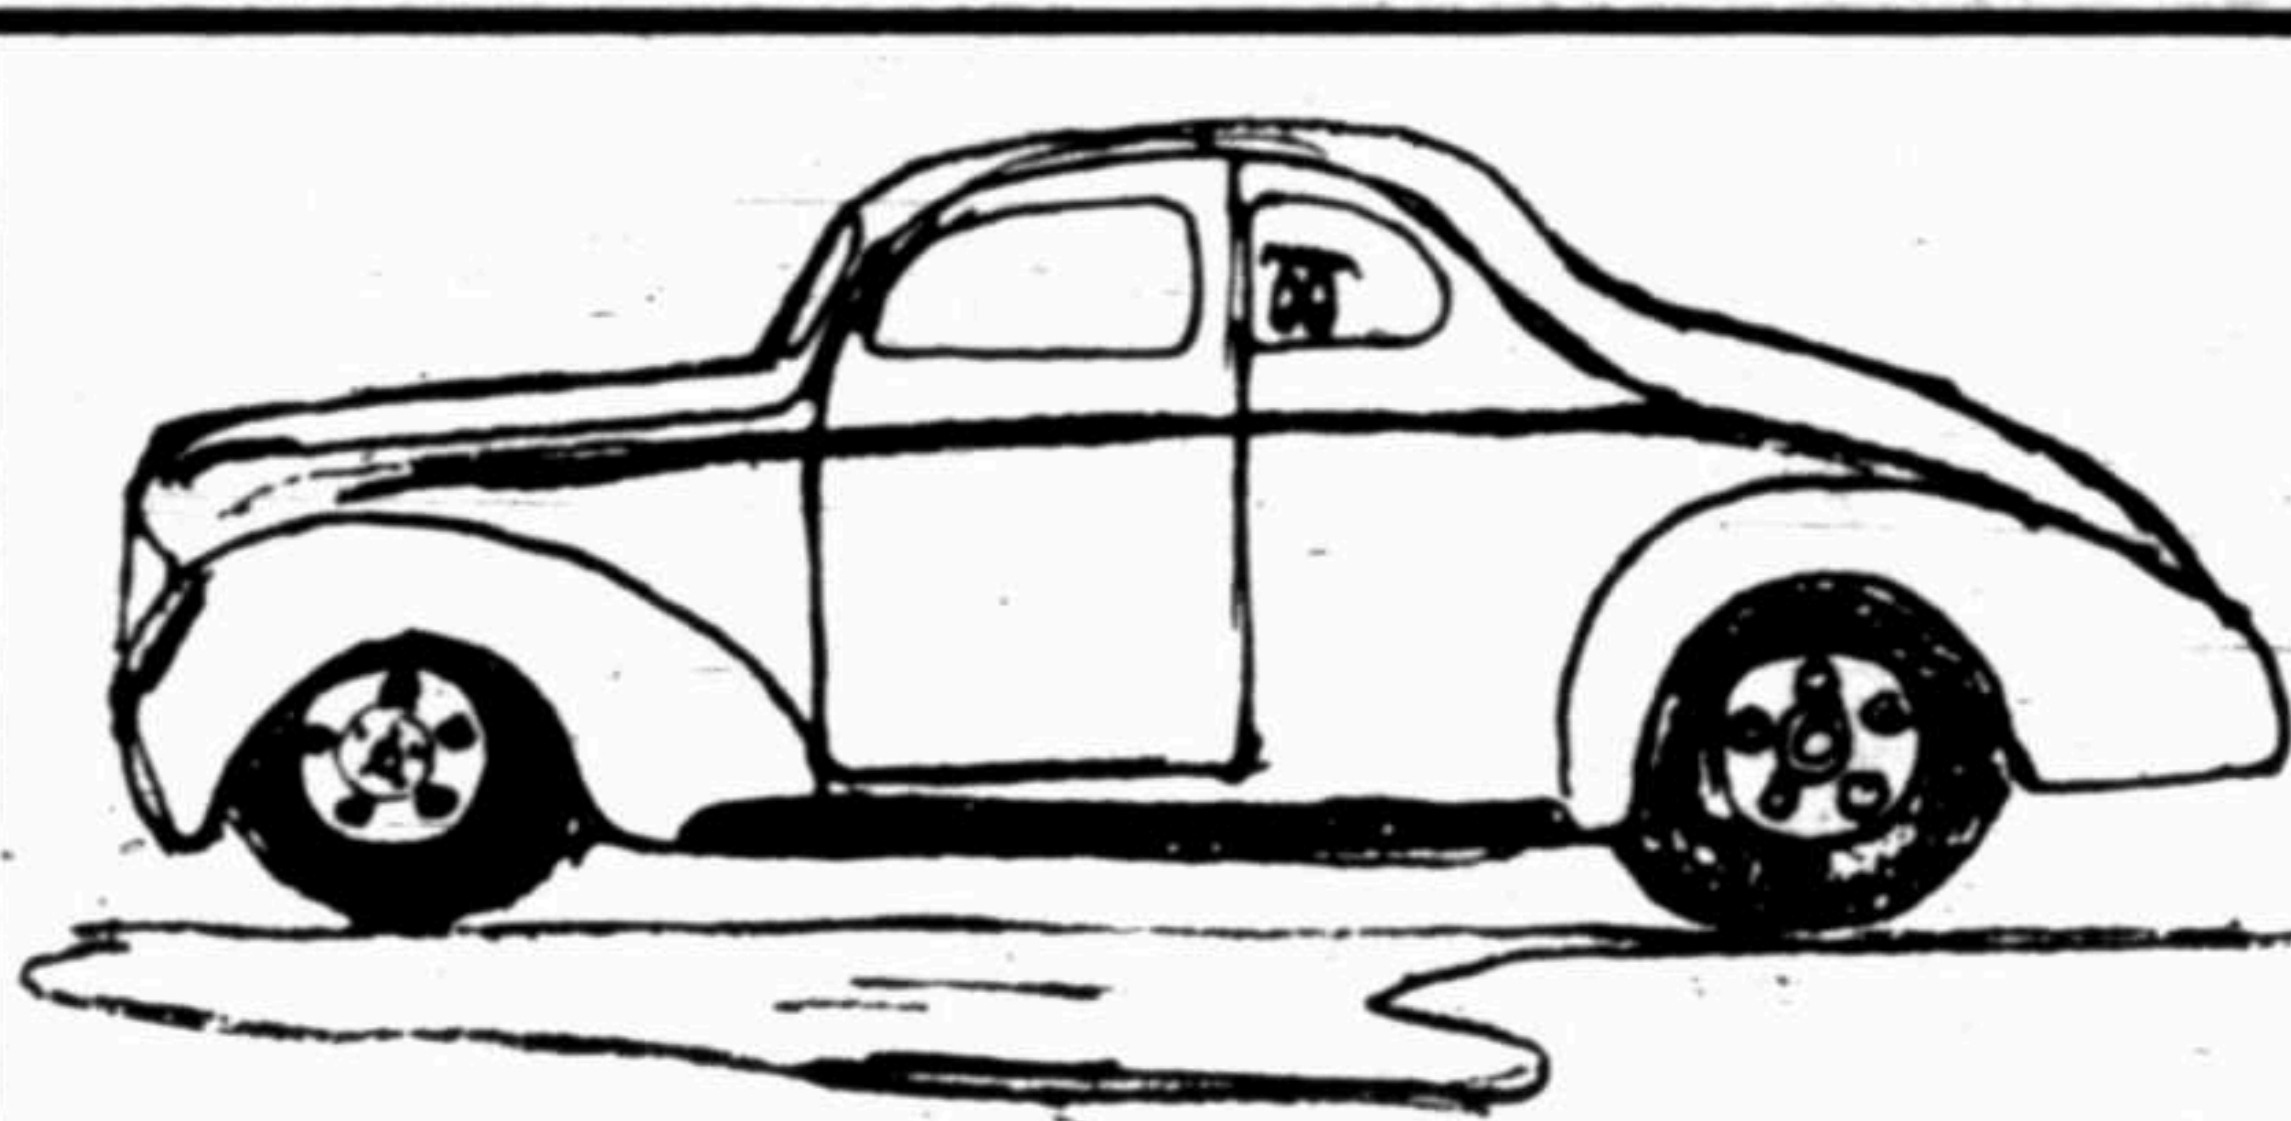

THE SHOWBOATS' defense stopped the Stallions short of the goal line late in the first period and Birmingham settled for a 31-yard Danny Miller field goal.

The Stallions went ahead 9-7 less than a minute later when the Showboats fumbled the kickoff and Stoudt tossed to Toler for 34 yards and another touchdown.

Wide Receiver Derrick Crawford caught a 9-yard touchdown pass from Kelley and Duncan booted a 20-yard field goal to give the 'Boats a 17-9 lead late in the second quarter.

But the Stallions put together a seven-play, 68-yard drive and a 2-point conversion to tie it at the half. Wide receiver Jim Smith caught a 15-yard toss from Stoudt for the touchdown, then Toler gathered in a Stoudt pass for the 2-point conversion.

California's Angels wearing halos atop AL West

By TIM LIOTTA
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif.—The California Angels are riding atop the American League West, but not because of any individual player.

"There's not anybody exceptionally hot with the bat," said second baseman Bobby Grich. "It's not a case of somebody carrying us, it's been a different player every day. Everybody's been contributing."

After dropping four of their first six games, the Angels used a communal work ethic to win 13 of their next 17 games, including a six-game win streak that lifted them to the top of the West.

The Angels, batting just .266 as a team in their first 23 games, have had eight different players contribute game-winning hits, a responsibility they hope to continue passing around throughout the season.

"In the past, on the successful teams I've been associated with, like in Baltimore, it's never been one guy or two guys carrying the team," said third baseman Doug DeCinces, who leads the club with three game-winners. "You can't say one player on Detroit carried them last year. It has to come from everybody."

For the most part, it's been a different individual each night coming up with the key hit, clutch pitching, whatever has been needed.

THE BIG names have contributed, some more significantly than others: Grich is hitting .328 entering Friday night's game against Milwaukee; Ruppert Jones was batting .325; Brian Downing was .284 with 15 runs batted in; Rod Carew was at .274; DeCinces was at .241 with a team-leading 16 RBI, and Reggie Jackson was hitting .226 with four homers and 11 RBI.

During the Angels' recent winning streak, which was halted Wednesday night by the AL East-leading Toronto Blue Jays, it's been a young pitching corps that has provided whatever timely rescue was needed.

There was Donnie Moore and rookie Stu Cliborn combining for 6 2-3 innings of shutout relief in the Angels' 3-2, 15-inning win over Boston.

The night before, it was six innings of one-hit relief by 23-year-old Pat Clements, who earned his first major-league victory in the Angels' 7-6 victory over the Red Sox.

It was starter Mike Witt, coming off three losses, who tossed a three-hitter in a 3-0 victory over the Seattle Mariners that began the six-game streak.

"When we broke spring training, we knew we had a good club," Grich said. "I don't think the start has really surprised anybody. We're encouraged but not surprised. We're taking it in stride."

"You know, there were a couple of games in there that we should've won but didn't, so it could've been even better. It's a good start, not great."

Defense has been a key to the Angels' good start.

"One thing I think has been overlooked is that this is an outstanding defensive ballclub," said DeCinces. "We're not going to beat ourselves. We're always going to be in the game."

made only seven mistakes.

Winners of six of seven one-run contests and both extra-inning affairs so far this season, the pitching staff knows what it has to be thankful for.

"This is the best defensive team I've ever had behind me," said Moore, who leads the Angel relievers with four saves.

Despite the auspicious beginning, the season is still young.

"We've got a lot of veterans on this club who know it's only May and who are not going to get excited about win streaks—that the important thing is to win that game that night," DeCinces said. "There's a long way to go."

Tribe's Blyleven gets well on Rangers' hitters, 4-0

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Bert Blyleven tossed a four-hitter for his first victory of the season and Tony Bernazard doubled and hit a sacrifice fly as the Cleveland Indians blanked the Texas Rangers 4-0 Friday night.

Blyleven, 1-2, struck out nine and walked three. The 34-year-old right-hander pitched his second complete game of the season and 46th career shutout, moving him into 25th place on the major leagues' all-time shut-out list.

Mike Mason, 2-3, yielded all four Cleveland runs on seven hits over the first 4 1/2 innings to take the loss.

Cleveland took a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Chris Bando blooped a triple down the right field line and scored on Bernazard's sacrifice fly.

The Indians scored twice after two outs in the fourth. Joe Carter singled and took third on Brook Jacoby's single. Carter and Jacoby then pulled a double steal, with Carter scoring and Jacoby moving to second. Carmen Castillo later doubled in Jacoby.

Bernazard led off the Indians' fifth inning with a double, took third on Brett Butler's bunt single and scored when Julio Franco lifted a sacrifice fly to build Cleveland's lead to 4-0.

Texas threatened only in the third inning. George Wright led off with a single and stole second before Toby Harrah drew a two-out walk. But Ward fled out to right to end the threat. Blyleven allowed no other runner to advance beyond first base.

White Sox 7, Tigers 1
DETROIT — Tom Seaver hurled a seven-hitter for his 29th career victory and Carlton Fisk belted a two-run homer as the Chicago White Sox beat the Detroit Tigers.

After two were out in the Chicago fourth, Dan Petry, 4-2, walked Greg Walker before yielding his first hit, an upper-deck shot by Fisk, his fifth home, on a 2-2 count. The blast wiped out a 1-0 Tiger lead.

The White Sox added two runs in the eighth on Oscar Gamble's bases-loaded single, chasing Petry, and three more in the ninth on a sacrifice fly by Luis Salazar and a two-run single by Harold Baines.

The Tigers' only run came in the second when Lance Parrish doubled, took third on Larry Herndon's fly ball and scored on a sacrifice fly by Nelson Simmons.

Seaver, 3-0, walked only one batter and struck out one in his first complete game of the season.

Petry, who had never been defeated in four decisions by the White Sox in Tiger Stadium, gave up five hits, walking six and striking out three in 7 1/2 innings. It was the third successive defeat for the Tigers, who have lost nine of their last 14 after getting off to a 6-0 start.

Yankees 7, Royals 1
NEW YORK — Dennis Rasmussen pitched a five-hitter for his second complete game in 29 major-league starts and the New York Yankees made Billy Martin's first home game in his fourth term as manager a success by defeating the Kansas City Royals 7-1 Friday night.

Kansas City's first two hits came in the fourth inning when George Brett doubled and scored on Hal McRae's single, the first earned run off Rasmussen, 1-1, in his last three starts.

In scoring more than six runs for the first time this season, the Yankees collected five off Danny Jackson, 1-1, who had allowed only five in 29 1/2 previous innings.

Kansas City, which lost all six of its games in Yankee Stadium last year, scoring only six runs, made it 3-1 in the fourth but the Yankees chased Jackson with two more in the fifth.

Meacham got a checked-swing infield hit, Henderson walked and they scored on Mattingly's single and Winfield's double.

New York nicked Mike LaCoss for an unearned run in the sixth on a walk to pinch-hitter Mike Pagliarulo. Sample's hit-and-run single and an error by third baseman Brett on Meacham's grounder.

A triple play got LaCoss out of the inning. With the runners moving on a 3-2 pitch, Henderson hit a soft liner to second baseman Frank White for the first out. White's throw to Steve Balboni easily doubled Meacham off first and Balboni's throw to shortstop Onix Concepcion completed the triple play.

Orioles 8, Twins 7
MINNEAPOLIS — Cal Ripken, playing in his club record-tying 463rd straight game, smashed a two-run homer in the eighth inning to lift Baltimore Orioles over Minnesota and break the Twins' 10-game winning streak.

Ripken, who also singled twice, tied the consecutive game mark of Hall of Famer Brooks Robinson. His two-out homer came on a 1-0 pitch off Curt Wardle, 0-1, and drove in Fritz Connally, who had walked, to give the Orioles an 8-6 lead.

Roy Smalley's bases-loaded walk off Tippy Martinez, the third of four Baltimore pitchers, had tied the game 6-6 in the Minnesota seventh.

With runners on second and third, Martinez intentionally walked Tom Brunansky, but then walked Smalley. Don Aase, 3-0, relieved Martinez with the bases loaded and got Gary Gaetti to bounce into a double play to end the inning.

Aase surrendered a run in the eighth on Mickey Hatcher's RBI single but Baltimore held on for its fourth straight victory.

Jim Dwyer and Fred Lynn each belted two-run home runs to stake the Orioles to a 6-2 lead.

Mike Young's RBI double and Rick Dempsey's run-scoring grounder preceded Dwyer's homer in Baltimore's four-run second inning off Twins starter Mike Smithson.

A homer by Gary Gaetti and back-to-back doubles by Greg Gagne and Tim Laudner in the second brought Minnesota within 4-2. But Ripken led off the third with a single before Lynn hit his fourth homer to make it 6-2.

Kirby Puckett, who had four hits for Minnesota, belted a two-run triple in the fourth to close the gap to 6-4 and chase Baltimore starter Scott McGregor. In the sixth, Gagne reached on a three-base error by left fielder Mike Young and scored on Tim Teufel's sacrifice fly.

Brewers 7, Angels 0
ANAHEIM, Calif. — Ted Higuera, making only his fourth major league start, pitched a four-hitter and Cecil Cooper drove in three runs with three hits to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a victory over the California Angels.

Higuera, a 26-year-old left-hander from Mexico, only walked one batter and struck out four while handcuffing the Angels.

Higuera, whom the Brewers purchased from Juarez of the Mexican League in September of 1983, was hooked up in a pitching duel with California veteran Tommy John, 1-2, for six innings before the Brewers broke the game open with a six-run seventh.

John, making his first home start of the season, then was sent to the showers in the seventh, when the Brewers sent 11 men to the plate.

John yielded a single to Ben Ogilvie and a double to Paul Hogue. Doug Corbett relieved John and gave up a two-run single to pinch-hitter Doug Loman and a bunt single by Molitor. Reliever Scott Clements replaced Corbett and was touched for a bunt single by Jim Gantner and a two-run double by Cooper.

Toby Harrah of the Rangers arrives at second base only to find Julio Franco of Cleveland there with the ball waiting for him. Texas also lost the ballgame 4-0.

STOCK CODES

All Stock Codes are based on industry standard Ticker Symbols provided by broker or available from any Standard & Poor's Stock Ticker Guide. Codes are made up of a series of two-digit numbers, each representing one of the letters in the Ticker Symbol.

To determine the two-digit code for any letter of a Ticker Symbol, remember the first key to be depressed is always the one on which the letter appears. The second key is always a "1", "2" or "3" indicating that letter's position on its key (first, second or third position). EXAMPLE: "IBM" = "43 25 61". "BX" = "22 92". Remember to depress the star key (*) after entering each code.

NATION IN BRIEF

Mother granted $72,500 award against mortuary

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A woman who said she has suffered nightmares since she found the wrong corpse in her son's casket when she went to a mortuary to view his body has been awarded $72,500 in damages.

Vera M. Durr, 63, of Garden Grove, Calif., was granted a judgment against Humphrey Mortuary of San Diego.

Her son, Petty Officer 1st Class Joseph A. Durr, 26, and two other sailors died in an accident aboard the cruiser Bainbridge in San Diego on Jan. 25, 1982.

Two of the bodies were given toe tags carrying Durr's name, and the wrong one was shipped by the mortuary to a funeral home where the Durr family was to view it.

Company repays Air Force

DENVER (AP) — Martin Marietta Corp. has repaid the Air Force $200,000 that Pentagon auditors said was improperly billed to the government to pay for scale models of the Titan missile.

The aerospace company, prime contractor for the Titan missile, gave the models to employees and Air Force personnel involved in the program, primarily when they were transferred or retired, officials said.

The settlement was agreed two months ago, officials said. The government agreed not to take the company to court and Martin Marietta made no admission of wrongdoing.

Tree destroyers charged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two men have been charged with destroying trees that prosecutors say were historic, the first such charges brought under the city's 5-year-old oak tree protection law.

The Oak Tree Coalition, an environmental group, said the oaks, which were destroyed last month, were part of a grove in suburban Chatsworth that was the site of an 1800s stagecoach stop, and earlier, an Indian encampment.

Jack Sinder, 62, and Robert Switzer, 54, were ordered Thursday to appear for arraignment May 23 in Municipal Court.

Shooting suspect arrested

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — A man wanted for allegedly shooting his probation officer in Dallas four years ago has been arrested here, the FBI said Friday.

David L. Hope, 24, was arrested Thursday night while driving in East Orange, where he has been employed as a machine assembler since 1981, said Michael McDonnell, a special agent in the FBI's Newark office.

Hope, who was wanted for the Jan. 18, 1981 wounding of his probation officer, was unarmed at the time of his arrest, McDonnell said. Hope was on probation for a forgery conviction, he said.

McDonnell said Hope was arrested on a federal warrant for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on the charge of attempted murder. He was being held at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in New York City awaiting extradition to Texas, the FBI said.

Officer found guilty of living with woman who wasn't his wife, lying TREASURE ISLAND, Calif. (AP) — A court-martial panel found a Navy commander guilty Friday of living with a woman who wasn't his wife on a military base and lying to a superior officer about their relationship.

The board deliberated less than two hours before finding Cmdr. James Wyatt III innocent of two other charges of lying to his superior officer. It also found him guilty of residing with his lover, Lt. j.g. Etienne Boatwright, who was under his command.

Wyatt, 40, a senior naval aviator with 19 years of service, told the five-member court-martial board he should have asked his commander for advice on how to handle his relationship with Ms. Boatwright, 23.

"We're glad it's over. We're glad we won half the charges," defense attorney Robert Bryan said. "We're glad the jury showed some understanding."

The court martial now enters a penalty phase, during which the defense will bring witnesses, including one or both of Wyatt's sons. The maximum penalty would be loss of pension, dismissal from the service and one year and four months at hard labor.

The five-member board had begun deliberations after final arguments from both sides and instructions from military Judge Capt. Philip Roberts.

In his final argument, prosecutor James Hohenstein said Wyatt intentionally deceived his superior officer. "He lied to his superior officer and it is beyond a doubt conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," he said.

Navy Cmdr. James Wyatt III leaves court martial where panel found him guilty of living with woman who wasn't his wife and lying to superior officers about it.

But defense attorney Robert Bryan said Wyatt "is not so stupid to deliberately make misrepresentations when everyone around him knew and that he, in effect, had told the whole world."

Bryan also noted Wyatt's 19 years of flawless military service, saying,

"How much should a person be punished? A fine officer is destroyed. How much more punishment should he receive?"

"I made an error in judgment. My judgment in my personal life was impaired because I was in love," Wyatt said under questioning from Bryan.

"I screwed up when I didn't go to my superior and (say), 'I need some help,'" he said. "If I had gone there, I wouldn't be here right now."

Wyatt, who was legally separated from his wife, met Ms. Boatwright when they were stationed at Moffett Field in Mountain View in 1983. While stationed on the Indian Ocean outpost of Diego Garcia, they announced their engagement Dec. 31, 1983, and began living together in Wyatt's trailer the following month.

Ms. Boatwright, who served as the intelligence officer for Wyatt's squadron, was granted immunity in exchange for her testimony.

Wyatt said that if he were in the same situation again, he would probably agree that either he or his lover should be transferred. "In retrospect, I set a poor example. But a criminal act? No."

Defense witness Lt. Carl Bailey, who was under Wyatt's command, said that Wyatt's relationship was common knowledge in the squadron and that Wyatt explained it to two other officers in at least two meetings.

Bailey said the relationship had no impact on the performance of Wyatt, Ms. Boatwright or the squadron. "The squadron did things no other squadron did before or since," he said. "Commander Wyatt ran a tight ship."

Webb's foster father doubts recantations

CHICAGO (AP) — The foster father of Cathleen Crowell Webb, the woman who recanted her charges that she was raped by Gary Dotson, said Friday she is a "liar" and has become the "puppet" of a lawyer who is out to make money.

Bernard C. Smith, who raised Mrs. Webb during her high school years, told the Chicago Sun-Times that his foster daughter's recantation is inconsistent. "Something happened that night that she's leaving out," he said.

"They should have shut up about all this when Gov. (James R.) Thompson set the clemency hearing," Smith told the newspaper. "But, no. They want the publicity. They want to keep it hot. I just know there are ulterior motives."

Smith said he expects books and "all kinds of royalties" to develop from the Dotson case. "I'd like to know who will be getting the money for all this."

Smith also told the newspaper he wants to know who is paying Mrs. Webb's attorney, John McLario, of Menomonee Falls, Wis. Mrs. Webb met him through her minister.

McLario was unavailable for comment Friday, his office said.

"Whatever the arrangement is, he sure has a big stake in all this," Smith said. "She's a puppet, and he's pulling the strings. She won't utter a word, not even to us, without him present."

Mrs. Webb, now a 23-year-old mother of two living in New Hampshire, says she concocted a story that she had been raped by Dotson on July 9, 1977. She says she had sex with a teen-age boy, feared she was pregnant, and wanted to hide her sexual experience from her foster parents.

But Circuit Judge Richard Samuels, who originally sentenced Dotson to a 25- to 50-year-prison term after Dotson was convicted of rape and aggravated kidnapping, said last month he didn't believe her recanted testimony and refused to overturn the conviction.

Dotson was freed Wednesday from prison after the Illinois Supreme Court set a $100,000 bond pending appeals.

On Tuesday, Dotson's attorney will ask the Circuit Court for a new trial. Two days later, Thompson will sit with the Illinois Prisoner Review Board in an unprecedented joint clemency hearing.

On Thursday, at a news conference in Jaffrey, N.H., when McLario was asked who paid for one of Mrs. Webb's recent trips, he said, "You should know that you shouldn't be asking that. Yes, expenses have been incurred. I've been arranging for them. That's all I have to say on the matter."

Warren Lupel, Dotson's attorney, said Friday in taping a program on WBBM-TV, that he still trusts Mrs. Webb's story and said she told him "she was not very close" to her foster parents.

Lupel also said he didn't know how McLario and Mrs. Webb were financing their trips. He added he has paid for transcripts because McLario said he couldn't afford them.

Previously, Pastor Carl Nannini, of the independent Pilgrim Baptist Church in Jaffrey, had said the church was helping the family meet financial burdens caused by one trip to Chicago made in connection with the case.

Nannini said Friday he was surprised by Smith's remarks.

"Why would a foster parent feel the need to come forward and say something unless they were prompted by somebody," Nannini asked in a telephone interview.

"She doesn't want to attack them," he added. "I think she's wondering why they want to attack her... They're going out of their way to damage her credibility."

Smith told the Sun-Times he questions what he portrayed as continuing efforts to attract attention to the case.

Smith told the Sun-Times he and his wife decided to go public with their doubts about Mrs. Webb's recantation after Mrs. Webb told her story in a recent People magazine issue.

He said they were particularly angry with Mrs. Webb's characterization of her life with his wife's mother, who raised Mrs. Webb for several years.

"Out of one side of her mouth she talks about God and all these Christian things," Smith said. "Out of the other side of her mouth, she says her grandmother made things so tough on her."

"You'd think she's some kind of saint and everybody else is the culprit," he added. "And to think she said she would take full responsibility for herself."

ADULT BASIC EDUCATION —

Man trains retrievers to be competitors

By DAVID MONEY

BOLIVAR, Texas (AP) — Abby sat motionless next to the man wearing a hunting cap and holding a whistle. "Back," the man shouted and Abby bolted, heading for her mark. It didn't matter that her mark, a white, oblong, hard-rubber bumper, was a few hundred feet away, floating in a small pond.

Abby is a retriever, and a good one. "She's pretty smart. She's a Labrador, almost two years old," said Bryan Voth, a professional retriever trainer.

Voth has been training Labrador, Golden and Chesapeake Bay retrievers, grooming them for field trials, local and national competitions among retrievers, trainers and owners, for the past four years. But he has been around hunting dogs all his life.

As a child growing up in Minneapolis, he often went hunting near the little burg of Godahl, Minn., north of his hometown. Because he hunted mostly ducks and geese, the dogs came in handy, he said.

"I've always had a hunting dog; they were always around. I've been hunting for the past 24 or 25 years," he said.

There is a big difference, however, in an everyday hunting dog, or gun dog as some hunters call them, and one that is competitive in the field trials, Voth said.

"The field trials are very competitive. Their natural instincts come in. About 95 percent to 99 percent don't make it (in the competition)," he said.

There are four classes in the competition: the open class for dogs trained by professionals; the amateur where the owners run the dogs; the qualifying for dogs 2 to 3 years old; and the derby for younger dogs, Voth said.

Voth begins training the dogs for competitions at the tender age of 6 weeks. In the beginning it is basic stuff, he said. "They learn to heel, sit

"I Think we should sell," says a voice in a TV commercial for a stock brokerage firm. The narrator tells of the hard-working, hard-driving broker who goes out to dinner with some friends and is interrupted for a business call. He describes the personality of the broker as ambitious and constantly preoccupied with his job and how to succeed.

Jesus said: What shall it profit to gain the world and lose the soul? (see Mark 8:36).

The Midland Foursquare Church will present Zig Ziglar, of Dallas, in a three-part film series beginning at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Ziglar says he has learned to apply the scriptures and Christian principles to his daily living and this is what he credits for his success in the business world. He believes he can show others how to do likewise.

The first film to be viewed is titled, "Zig's Story" which relates his own "rags to riches" success journey.

The second film to be shown at 7 p.m. May 12 is "Success Starts Here" and gives the necessary foundation for a person to reach their God given potential.

The third and concluding film shows "How God Sees You". The message of this film is that man is created in God's image, and he wants to heal any flaw that may have developed in an individual which has hampered the person's self image and interfered with his relationships in life.

There will be no charge for seeing these films, although a freewill offering will be received. The church is located at 415 Alta Ave. just off N. Big Spring St., behind Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Minister, wife honored

The Rev. John Anderson, the interim minister at First Presbyterian Church, and his wife Nancy, will be honored with an appreciation breakfast Sunday. This event will be held at 10:15 a.m. in the fellowship hall of First Presbyterian Church. Friends of the Andersons are welcome.

Anderson served First Presbyterian Church in Dallas as Senior Minister for 11 years, retiring in 1984. He has a distinguished record of leadership in the Presbyterian Church, and served as Moderator of the General Assembly in 1982.

Church to present musical

The Sanctuary Choir of Crestview Baptist Church will present performances of the resurrection musical

"The Day He Wore My Crown" at 7 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The choir, directed by Ty Morris Jr., minister of music, will be accompanied by keyboards and a brass percussion ensemble. Through music and drama, the work, created and arranged by David Clydesdale, depicts the life of Christ during his final days on Earth.

The church is located at 3300 Thomas Ave. The public is invited to attend either of the free performances.

Weekday communion set

The Service of Holy Communion is being observed each Wednesday morning at 7:15 in the sanctuary of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 West Kansas.

This celebration has become a regular part of the worship services of the church. "All who believe in Jesus Christ as their Lord and Saviour are cordially invited to this service of the Eucharist," says the Rev. Jarrell Sharp, pastor.

The service is concluded in time for individuals to be at their places of employment before 8 a.m.

Church establishes fund

Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St., has established a fund and drop-off point for donations for the Hensleys, church members whose home recently was destroyed by fire.

The family lost everything in the fire. Donations of money, food and clothing are welcome. In clothing women's dress sizes 12 and 14, shoe sizes 7 and 8, and men's size 18 shirt, 40 by 28 pants and 8½ shoe.

Donations may be brought to the church address or call the Rev. Jonathan H. Holmer, the church's pastor, at 683-1936 or 685-1830.

Church honors couple

ODESSA — Jim and Judy Cavender of Odessa were honored by their church, the 6th and Jackson Church of Christ, at the annual Appreciation Dinner.

The couple was awarded a plaque for faithfulness to the church and dedication to foster children. They have been foster parents for 10 years and have served 30 foster children, many of them with physical handicaps.

Four inmates help CIA

Four inmates from the Big Spring Federal Correctional Institute assisted townspeople in repairing homes in Midland's "Christmas in April" project on April 27.

The prisoners, furloughed by correctional authorities, were supervised by Prison Fellowship staff and by volunteers during the one-day project. The men stayed in the homes of local families who had volunteered through their churches to participate in the project.

The men were sponsored by the Petroplex Covenant Church and its pastor, Rev. John Setzer.

This project was conducted in conjunction with Prison Fellowship's community service projects; a program where inmates are furloughed for up to two weeks to repair homes of the elderly and the poor. Nearly 50 have been conducted nationally since 1981 and have received national attention and praise.

Prison Fellowship Ministries is an international Christian ministry to prisoners, ex-prisoners and their families, founded by former presidential aide and Watergate figure Charles W. Colson. Prison Fellowship has over 30,000 volunteers across the United States.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, May 5, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: A summer romance blossoms into true love. A situation that has clouded the business or financial picture disappears. New financial gains make money worries a thing of the past. Consult experts before changing investments. Something you have held onto for a long time could suddenly become more valuable. Joining a special club or professional group widens your circle of friends. Look for new outlets for your creative talents.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: actress turned pharmaceutical company spokeswoman Alice Faye, singer Tammy Wynette, comedienne Ann B. Davis and Pat Carroll, Detroit Tigers' Dave Gumpert, Cincinnati Reds' Ron Oester, cookbook author James Beard, socialist Karl Marx.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): To avoid a confrontation at a family gathering, keep your opinions to yourself. Accept an unavoidable delay with good grace. A visit to an older person proves rewarding.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A friend helps you see someone in a new light. A long-lasting romance could result. Use public transportation if you must travel. This is no time to play games with loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your charm and good looks have a dramatic effect on a newcomer. Turn to an old friend if you want honest advice. Enjoy a romance without pressing partner for a commitment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cooperating with mate or partner will create an atmosphere of good will. Spend the afternoon with congenial friends or relatives. A romantic gesture thrills you. Share any good news.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stay home today and invite a few neighbors or close friends over. A casual gathering proves more enjoyable than a more elaborate event. Be resourceful and everyone will have a great time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An attractive member of the opposite sex seeks your company. The financial outlook is splendid. Continue to be conservative where spending is concerned. This is not the time to purchase luxury items.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Greater give-and-take will improve your relationship with an older person. Look for social functions that you and loved one can enjoy. Someone who once gave you a hard time cooperates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Although work occupies your thoughts part of the day, social events get most of your attention. Spend the evening relaxing with loved one. A heart-to-heart talk brings happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Attending a religious service gives you a good feeling. Romance blossoms anew when you show greater interest in mate's plans and problems. Plan a special outing for just the two of you!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A stranger could play a prominent role in your day. Family affairs will have to take a temporary back seat to business. Keep spending within reasonable limits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cheer up a friend who feels down in the dumps. An unexpected gift or food offering works wonders! A small child shows you more affection. Set aside time for a hobby.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Distant developments take on new meaning. Visitors from afar add glamor to your social life. You find the answer to a tricky personal dilemma. Share any good news with family members.

Astronaut Rhea Seddon never thought she would orbit world

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When she was a girl, astronaut Rhea Seddon thought she might make it to Memphis, maybe.

But orbiting the world in a space shuttle certainly never crossed her mind, she said here Thursday on her way home to nearby Murfreesboro for "Rhea Seddon Day."

Ms. Seddon, a physician, was accompanied by Karol Bobko, commander of the shuttle Discovery on which she flew last month, and her 2½-year-old son, Paul Gibson.

The boy waved a tiny flyswatter, given him by relatives as a souvenir of his mother's fashioning of a homemade device to try to flip a switch on a defective satellite the Discovery crew had launched.

LONDON (AP) — The British just don't go to the movies much any more, preferring to stay home to watch the telly. And movie makers would like to change that.

"It's nicer to see films in a cinema than at home," said Tom Conti, star of "Reuben, Reuben," "Merry Christmas," Mr. Lawrence, and "American Dreamer," as he and other British stars kicked off a year-long push Thursday to persuade people to go out to the movies more often.

Industry officials say the British cinema industry, which sold 1.6 billion tickets in 1946, sold only 66 million in 1983.

Almost 30 percent of British homes have video recorders, believed to be a larger percentage than in any other nation. Tape rental shops have mushroomed in recent years.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Bette Midler and Walt Disney. Can the twin ever meet?

Evidently they can. The "Divine Miss M." who wrote the book on flamboyantly suggestive rock 'n' roll, has signed a film deal with Walt Disney Pictures, the bastion of family entertainment.

The announcement came Thursday at the wholesome studio that put its foot in the water of racier material with last year's hit film "Splash," about a lovestruck mermaid.

The studio said Miss Midler would be involved in film development with the studio and may appear in a film for Disney.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace cried in a meeting discussing the problems of Alabama's workers, said House Speaker Tom Drake, one of his closest political allies.

He said Wallace, 65, became emotional when a lobbyist accused him of helping big business and ignoring workers.

"It got him real bad," Drake said. "The governor shed some tears. He's very emotional about this. The governor is very, very sensitive. He's very compassionate when you start talking about anybody without a job or who can't feed their families."

Drake's comments were made in an interview with The Birmingham News published Thursday.

Ferrell Patrick, a spokesman for Wallace, said he "teared up" but did not actually cry. "I don't think there was anything unusual or unmanly about it. I've seen him tear up on numerous occasions."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director David Stockman and his wife Jennifer are the parents of a 6-pound, 6-ounce daughter, born early Friday.

Carol Stockman, the child's grandmother, made the announcement from her home in St. Joseph, Mich. She said the baby, born at Sibley Memorial Hospital in Washington at 1 a.m., will be named Rachel.

"Everyone is very happy and doing fine," Carol Stockman said. "They are very happy parents."

Stockman, 38, and the former Jennifer Blei, 29, were married Feb. 12, 1983.

Before his appointment as budget director, Stockman represented a western Michigan district in the U.S. House of Representatives.

DALLAS (AP) — Rock singer David Crosby has been freed from jail after a state appeals court ruled that he could not be held without bond while he appeals two felony convictions.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin on Wednesday granted Crosby's request to be allowed to post bond and go free.

Crosby, 43, posted $15,000 in bonds early Thursday and left Dallas county jail with singing companion Graham Nash, said attorney Jerry Banks.

Newscaster says she's 'hidden from world'

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP) — A 91-year-old Cleveland newscaster who says she's tired of being "hidden from the world" has asked attorneys to help her get out of a nursing home, where she has been recuperating from a stroke since September.

Dorothy Fuldheim, who had just interviewed President Reagan when she was stricken and has interviewed many other world leaders, said that despite her persistent requests to return to her Shaker Heights condominium, her guardian has kept her in the Margaret Wagner House in Cleveland Heights.

She told The (Lake County) News-

Herald in an interview published Friday that she wants family friend Samuel H. Miller removed as her guardian. Miller referred questions to his lawyer, Joseph Gibbons. His secretary said he was tied up with clients and unavailable for comment.

Miller has said previously he was acting on the advice of Ms. Fuldheim's doctors.

In January, Michael W. Devereaux, chief of neurology at Mount Sinai Medical Center of Cleveland, said part of the reason for keeping her in the nursing home "was to protect her memory in the community — her own image."

Ms. Fuldheim said she turned to the Legal Aid Society of Cleveland after unsuccessfully appeals to private law firms. Wilma Sevick, attorney-in-charge of the society's Older Persons Law Office, would not discuss the case.

"I didn't commit a crime, I'm not convicted of anything," Ms. Fuldheim said. "Why am I hidden from the world? What's the point of that? I don't see it at all."

Ms. Fuldheim suffered a stroke July 27 shortly after interviewing Reagan for WEWS-TV, Channel 5, where she has worked for nearly 40 years. She underwent surgery to remove a blood clot.

New playwrights appear like 'Magic'

By THOMAS MURPHY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With an eye toward the avant-garde and absolutely no intention of starting a theater company, a group of student actors agreed in 1967 to stage Ionesco's "The Lesson" in a Berkeley bar.

So began the Magic Theatre, a small but extraordinarily successful company that has turned out some of the arts world's greatest contemporary playwrights. Michael McClure, Martin Epstein, Sam Shepard, Adele Edling Shank and John O'Keefe each have premiered several plays at Magic, including Shepard's "Buried Child," which won the Pulitzer Prize for drama in 1978. Shepard also was a writer-in-residence at Magic, premiering "Angel City" there in 1976, "True West" in 1980 and "Fool for Love" in 1983.

This year, 2,500 playwrights — many of them new writers — submitted their work, hoping theirs would be among the eight plays chosen for the 1985 season. Why are so many new writers drawn to Magic?

"We settled on the idea that what we were going to do was to concentrate on new American work and develop the writer," said John Lion, actor, director and founder of the Magic.

"Every theater has to start somewhere. Some start with the designer, some start with the ensemble, some start with classical repertory. We start with the writer. What's needed with the writer is what is most important."

Shepard, who is considered one of the finest American playwrights, presented 13 or 14 revisions of "Fool for Love," according to Lion, who auditioned more than 100 actresses for a part that Shepard later wrote out. But Lion wasn't complaining.

"One of the things that separates us from other theaters is that, when we do a new work, we demand the playwright be around," he said. "Most theaters find that an anathema, to have the writer in residence while the work is going on. We feel strongly that the writer should be around and should be actively participating in the situation.

"The writer's work may change," he continued, "but the writer knows why. No one is ever hustled through that."

Staging untried works might raise the stress level around many theaters. However, the Magic Theatre has always lived a dangerous life.

"When we made the decision in 1970 to do only new work, we knew that the name of the game was uncertainty. It's exactly that that is the most exciting aspect," said Lion.

"My reasoning has always been that if we don't have new writers and places for them to grow, and hopefully prosper, that we don't have any classics of tomorrow," he said. "Moliere, Shakespeare, Ibsen, Shaw — all of those writers had awful struggles getting their plays done for the first time."

"If you hadn't heard of Shakespeare, and his few plays was opening tomorrow, would you go? It might as well be anyone else."

So far, the risks have paid off. The theater has found a steady stream of excellent writers, and while some have gone on to greater things, others have filled the void. Berkeley playwright Lynne Kaufman's first play, "The Couch," is the latest success. Magic has extended its run three times, playing to capacity houses almost every night.

And the number of season subscribers has risen steadily over the years as Magic has attracted an audience that shares Lion's enthusiasm for the unknown.

Magic has moved 10 times since the words of Ionesco graced the Steppenwolf bar in 1967. However, Lion now seems content to remain at Fort Mason Center, a factory-like facility Magic has called home since 1977.

"I've never felt that building a new building is a tremendous achievement in itself," he said. "I'm more concerned with what's going on in those buildings, because if we don't watch out, we're going to have a lot of great new buildings that are mausoleums to dead art."

Who's No. 1 in prime time TV?

Some say CBS; Some say NBC

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — The 30-week prime-time season is over. The television junkies' chant is just beginning: "Who's No. 1? ... Who's No. 1?"

CBS and Nielsen point to CBS, which won the household ratings race for the sixth year in a row. CBS had the most viewers and more shows in the Top 10 than either of the other networks. And CBS had enormous loyalty with the Geritol set.

Most advertising executives, however, support NBC. NBC won the demographics derby by having the most elite viewers and more shows popular with younger consumers. NBC earned the Yuppies vote.

"In actuality, NBC did better because they ended up getting more younger people, but CBS won the season because it won on households," said Marilyn Fisher, vice president and director of broadcast services for the Marshchalk ad agency.

Would ABC care to break the tie? "Anything I would say would sound like sour grapes," said Lewis H. Erlich, president of ABC Entertainment. "I just know it wasn't us."

The high-profile prime-time competition ended Sunday. The exact A.C. Nielsen Co. figures will be available Tuesday. But the ratings results — measuring the percentage of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes watching, on average, a given minute of a network's prime-time schedule — have been a foregone conclusion for weeks: CBS, first and slipping; NBC, second and soaring; and ABC, third and fading.

CBS, on the strength of Top 10 series "Dallas," "Falcon Crest" and "Knots Landing," and high-rated perennials "60 Minutes" and "Simon & Simon," was No. 1 again. Throughout the season, CBS was either first or a close second on Monday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

Through 29 weeks, CBS' average prime-time rating was 16.9, down markedly from last season's 18.1. The network placed seven series in the 10 top shows with people over 50. Three were on Sunday: "60 Minutes," "Murder, She Wrote," CBS' only hit from its new fall series, and "Crazy Like a Fox," TV's only second-season success.

But in the category of adults aged 18 to 49, advertising's most coveted viewers, only "Simon & Simon" cracked the Top 10, and only "60 Minutes" was among the 10 favorite shows with males 18-49.

"CBS is not No. 1," said John Sisk, senior vice president and director of network negotiating for the J. Walter Thompson ad agency. "They're still solid, but not as strong as they once were." Sisk noted that when advertisers buy time on network TV, most deals are based on reaching adults 18-49.

The argument made by advertisers and many broadcasters is that this age group has more spending power, is more likely to be influenced by advertising and has bigger households.

"Younger people have larger families living at home, which means they'll buy more cereal," said Erlich.

Harvey Shephard, CBS' senior vice president for programming, said leading in households reflects across-the-board strength. "All the consumer brand studies look at the total picture," he said. "You can't say that 18-34 is more important than 50-64."

NBC, in last place for a decade, vaulted into second and will end up closer to first than third. With the combined network prime-time rating down 3 percent, only NBC gained audiences, improving its ratings average to 16.3 from last season's 14.9.

NBC did better than last season every night of the week. Only five new shows were successful this season, and NBC had three of them: "The Cosby Show," "Miami Vice" and "Highway to Heaven."

'Strangers and Brothers' poses artistic question

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Strangers and Brothers," the newest "Masterpiece Theatre" miniseries on public television, raises an interesting artistic question: How much of a good book can you cram into an hour of television time?

Or in this instance, how much of six novels into less than seven hours, allowing host Alistair Cooke five minutes of each episode for his introduction, which in yet another example often seems more interesting than the drama about to unfold.

The quick answer is, not much. Consider this scene in the first hour Sunday night:

Sheila — "What do you believe in?"

Lewis — "I believe in people, I suppose."

Sheila — "Yeah? I believe in joy."

That may have been what the author, C.P. Snow, intended his characters to say, but with insufficient preparation and a quick fade, the brief exchange of sentiment comes across as hollow and trite.

Or what does Lewis see in Sheila, who insists that she does not love him, cannot love him, and never will?

"Other people's passion makes me cruel and uneasy," Sheila (played by Sheila Ruskin) tells her father. Yet Lewis (Shaughan Seymour) persists, and ultimately marries the young woman he recognizes as unstable. Their marriage is doomed from the start.

Again, the viewer must assume Snow spent the better part of a novel developing the relationship. A few lines of script will not support the complex pairing.

Literature can provide the foundation for quality television.

TV spot spurs seat belt controversy

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — A televised public service announcement, making its point without blood and guts but with a shattered windshield and an unbuckled seat belt, has produced disagreement about the effectiveness of automobile safety-through-scare messages.

The rift has the look of traffic going in opposite directions, and it underscores the conflict between insurance companies favoring air bags or some other form of automatic restraint system vs. the automobile manufacturers who prefer mandatory seat belt legislation.

Even the federal government is involved. Last year, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole ordered that new cars be outfitted with air bags or automatic seat belts by a certain date, although the edict would be rescinded if states with two-thirds of the population enacted laws requiring seat belt usage by mid-1989.

Many insurance companies, concerned that the issue has become an either-or situation, want both bags and belt laws to best save lives. And some insurance officials say buckle-up announcements might actually be counterproductive over the long run.

"The evidence is that PSAs don't make any difference. They don't influence behavior," said Brian O'Neill, executive vice president of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. "We've been exhorting people to use seat belts for years, and there's only 14 percent usage."

O'Neill says attention-getting campaigns have been waged around the world, including one in Sweden showing a nude woman, but "voluntary approaches have been a total failure every time."

"Nobody pays any attention to them," said Ron Arnold, an assistant vice president at the State Farm Insurance Co. "We need to go the step beyond voluntary campaigns."

State Farm has filed a lawsuit against Mrs. Dole. "We don't oppose seat belt laws. We just don't want them to the exclusion of other technologies," said Arnold. "If mandatory seat belt use is enough, then the automobile manufacturers will be off the hook and not have to improve."

Many car manufacturers are resistant to automatic restraints that will raise prices. They favor mandatory seat belt legislation and applaud any seat belt awareness campaign.

"We're all for that PSA," said Al Rothenberg, spokesman for the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers. "Air bags only work under certain conditions (head-on crashes, for people in the front seat), so why not use what we have now and try to save lives?"

Thomas H. Hanna, president of Traffic Safety Now, said: "We think PSAs are effective in conjunction with mandatory use laws. They can raise the public consciousness on this issue."

Joseph Vogt, the filmmaker behind the PSA, is used to controversy. He produced the American Cancer Society's cigarette-smoking fetus spot that was rejected by CBS and NBC but broadcast by ABC.

The puffing embryo caught the attention of the American Trauma Society, which had Vogt produce the seat belt PSA. The $40,000 spot will be on the air nationwide in about a month, and the Distributing National Association of Broadcasters doesn't expect any station complaints.

"Regardless of the nobility of the message, it's a question of taste," said Shaun Sheehan, an NAB vice president. "These spots come into living rooms, and that's what we ran up against with the embryo. This one seems to be a skillful, powerful presentation, but not provocative."

With the roof of a car sawed off so a camera could peer in, this PSA opens with an inside shot of a shattered windshield. Vogt said it took two smacks with a bowling ball to crack the glass. The camera then pans back revealing a seat belt flapping in the breeze.

"The head that could have made the decision to fasten the seat belt no longer can," says the somber-toned narrator Paul Frees, who played Boris Badenov on the old "Rocky and His Friends" cartoon and has been the voice of the Pillsbury Doughboy for 25 years.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Peasants Party: Jaruzelski should be made marshal

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Peasants Party has urged that Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski be made a marshal of Poland, the official news agency PAP reported Friday.

It said the party, which is technically independent but allied with the Communist Party, passed a resolution at a meeting Thursday urging the action because of the Polish leader's work in "strengthening the socialist state."

The rank of marshal has traditionally gone only to generals who commanded in time of war. The only living marshal is Michal Rola-Zymierski, 94, who led the clandestine People's Army in World War II.

Youth becoming laborers

PEKING (AP) — About 4 million young people have taken factory and construction jobs every year since 1975, and 60 percent of China's 120 million industrial workers now are under age 35, the All-China Federation of Trade Unions said Friday.

It said most new employees have high-school educations and "are becoming the backbone of the country's industrial labor force, with large numbers of aged workers retiring every year."

Marcos: Media play role

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos said Friday the news media play an important role in peace and stability, and people who kill journalists are enemies of society.

Marcos cited the case of Charlie Aberilla, a provincial radio commentator shot by unidentified gunmen recently while making his daily broadcast in an announcer's booth.

in the southern Philippines, according to a news release from the presidential palace.

At least eight other journalists and broadcasters, including some critical of the government, have been killed in the past two years.

Driver leaves with money

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The driver of an armored truck sped away Friday with 12 million schillings ($540,000) that two armed guards had just put aboard for delivery to banks, police reported.

The guards had locked the rear doors and were about to join the driver in the cab when he drove off, the report said. The vehicle was found abandoned several hours later.

Chinese jurist to visit U.S.

PEKING (AP) — The president of the Supreme Court left Friday on a visit to the United States at the invitation of Warren Burger, chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The trip to the United States by Zheng Tianxiang, accompanied by other jurists, is the first by a chief of the Chinese high court. Burger visited China in 1981.

ANC member dies in wreck

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — The Zimbabwe representative of the African National Congress, the South African guerrilla movement, has been killed in an auto accident, the organization announced Friday.

It said Judson Diza Khuzwayo was killed Wednesday when his car overturned on a road between the north-western Zimbabwe towns of Karoi and Chinhoyi, 163 miles from Harare.

Khuzwayo, 43, was a long-time member of the ANC and served a 10-year jail sentence in white-ruled South Africa.

Officer 'not happy' about invitation

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A West German army officer whose father led a plot to kill Adolf Hitler said Friday his military superiors asked him to accompany President Reagan to the Bitburg cemetery, and he indicated he was not happy about it.

"It was a command — no, let me say a request — that came through normal channels, from the Ministry of Defense," Col. Berthold von Stauffenberg said in a telephone interview from his Stuttgart area home.

Von Stauffenberg, 50, is the son of Lt. Col. Claus von Stauffenberg, a German army officer executed in 1944 for leading a plot to kill Hitler by placing a bomb under the Nazi leader's conference table.

Hitler suffered only minor injuries, but 5,000 officers and their friends and relatives were sent to concentration camps or executed outright in retaliation.

"I'm sure I would not have been invited if I had a different name," said von Stauffenberg, a career military officer who studied at the U.S. Army Staff College in Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

"That's a mixed blessing. It's something that you have to live with, and I'm resigned to the fact," he added.

The West German government announced Thursday that von Stauffenberg would join an as-yet undisclosed number of relatives of Nazi resistors accompanying Reagan and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl at his controversial wreath-laying ceremony on Sunday.

A West German official, who would not allow use of his name, said the invitations were conceived by his government "to make Bitburg more popular...to get rid of the disharmony." Earlier, U.S. officials had failed in efforts to have the leaders joined by Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal and Holocaust survivor Elie Wiesel.

The planned trip has been criticized by majorities in both houses of the U.S. Congress and by Jewish, veterans and other groups because among the 2,000 German soldiers buried there are 49 members of the Nazi Waffen SS forces, including some from combat units accused of atrocities.

Von Stauffenberg, assigned to the 55th Home Defense Brigade, said he received the invitation this week. But West German press officer Claudia Konrad said, "It would certainly not be proper to describe this as a last-minute consideration."

Von Stauffenberg declined to evaluate the Bitburg ceremony designed to demonstrate post-war reconciliation, but he said he would not have volunteered for it.

"I am not one to put myself forward," von Stauffenberg said. "I wouldn't have volunteered, no matter whether I feel (the ceremony) is right or not. Outside my (army) unit, I prefer to stay private."

Von Stauffenberg said he was "surprised" by his invitation, but denied reports he was reluctant to attend. "I never said I was reluctant," he said.

Von Stauffenberg, who was 10 when his father was executed, said he is often asked to speak on the German resistance to Hitler, but normally declines.

"I usually feel it's not my place," he said.

Von Stauffenberg said he took part in ceremonies marking the 40th anniversary of the July 20, 1944 plot against Hitler.

"That was the difficult one," he said. "I do not think Sunday will be as (emotional) for me."

Von Stauffenberg said he had no details on what was expected of him at the event.

He said his family was "proud" of his father's part in the plot against Hitler but that, "it is not something we talk about very often."

Bulldozer disturbs Molly Malone's grave

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A bulldozer invaded Molly Malone's graveyard by mistake this week and set off a gush of nostalgia about the famous fishmonger who will remain alive, alive or as long as there is a song in an Irish heart.

The Irish Times, in a front-page story Friday headlined "Now Her Ghost Wheels Her Barrow," said the bulldozer may have disturbed Molly Malone's bones when it mistakenly cut through part of St. John's cemetery beside Christ Church Cathedral early this week.

Dublin city officials confirmed Friday that a few bones were disturbed, and said they were respectfully placed in plastic bags and reinterred.

The officials said the bulldozer had been working on a trench for a wall foundation.

Molly Malone's name became the title of the song that has her selling cockles and mussels as long as Irish people sing. She was a real person, but died before the song became known in the 19th century, historians say.

Peter Walsh said the St. John's parish register lists a fishmonger named Molly Malone who was buried in 1734 in the graveyard near the corner of John's Lane East and Fishamble Street, but there is no gravestone bearing her name.

"She's a bit like Robin Hood," said Walsh, who is archivist of the Guinness Museum and a veteran of archaeological digging into Dublin's Viking past.

"She's a folk figure, but basically she existed, and stories about other individuals were applied to her," he said.

Walsh said the bulldozer did no serious damage, but he expressed concern about development projects in that area of Dublin, which he described as "the birthplace of Dublin city." Vikings landed there in the middle of the 9th century.

A recent book, "Viking Dublin Exposed," says 12,500 people were buried in St. John's graveyard over the centuries. Walsh said the church was closed 100 years ago, and the last burials were in the 1850s.

Israel ferries Christian refugees out of Lebanon

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — About 1,000 Christians who had fled a Druse and Moslem assault on their southern Lebanese villages crowded onto two ferries at this Israeli port Friday for a 10-hour trip to a Christian port north of Beirut.

The refugees, many tearful and weary looking, carried suitcases and small bundles of clothing in their arms as they boarded the Lebanese boats.

Many of their neighbors had been killed in the assault on their villages by an alliance of Palestinians, Druse and Lebanese Moslems, they said.

"I don't know where my mother or my father is," said Nazih Yussef, a man in his 20s. "I just left at night. They had guns and knives and many people were killed."

"A minute can mean the difference between life and death for us now," said George Kazez, who said he fled by car from a small village near the Lebanese port of Sidon. As he left his village, he turned and saw the people in the car behind him being shot, he said.

The group of refugees was the first Israel has brought to Haifa in an effort to help rescue its former Christian allies from the fighting that began after Israel withdrew its occupation force from the Sidon area Feb. 16.

The refugees, mostly from villages around Sidon, were transported in 16 buses from Marjayoun in the area still occupied by Israel to this Mediterranean port 22 miles south of the Lebanese border.

Israeli government leaders have said Israel will do what it can to help Christian refugees, but planned no military intervention to protect them.

A military source, speaking on condition he not be identified, said: "I don't know of any new boat lifts being planned but I wouldn't exclude the possibility there be more. I think if there is a need, there probably will be more."

Cesar Saqr, a spokesman for the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army militia, told The Associated Press this week in Marjayoun that the influx of refugees had overwhelmed the tiny Christian villages near Israel's border and that there was not enough housing or jobs to support them.

Saqr and other local Lebanese officials said they would have to depend on Israel to help them cope with the refugees, but that they understood Israel's economic pinch prevented massive assistance.

She is looking directly at the camera. The man, on the right, is wearing a dark tuxedo with a white shirt and a dark bow tie. He is also looking at the camera. They are standing in front of a large, ornate arched mirror. The mirror reflects the woman's face and upper body. To the left of the mirror is a decorative wall panel with a floral design. To the right is another decorative wall panel with a floral design. The background is a wall with a grid pattern.
