EVENTS CROWD PROGRAM FOR C-C CONVENTION

Three Governors to Make Addresses On First Day Of Meet

LARGEST PARADE

And Spudders Will Play Cats While Maids of Honor Watch

Gorgeous spectacles; musical events; one of the largest street parades in the history of Texas; banquets; addresses by prominent officials of the United States and southwestern states governments, will be on the program for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention to be held May 16 and 17 in Wichita Falls, according to an announcement made Saturday by the general committee in charge of arrangements for the convention.

Sheppard to Speak.

The program, which has been arranged by the staffs of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, is said to be one of the best which has been arranged in the history of the West Texas convention. The program will in reality begin Sunday, May 15. At the 11 o'clock services, prominent lay church leaders from various sections of West Texas will fill the pulpits of the various churches. In the afternoon at the big convention tabernacle. J. Morris Sheppard, senior United States senator from Texas, will deliver a patriotic address. This will be followed by a sacred concert by the massed bands. In the evening a similar sacred concert will be given.

Opening the program Monday morning, three governors are expected to deliver brief addresses. They are Governor Moody of Texas; Governor Dillon of New Mexico and Governor Johnson of Oklahoma. Robert Ellis, who will then be president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will speak at probably 11 o'clock.

The first business session of the convention will be concluded about 1 o'clock and shortly thereafter the great convention parade will be staged. In this the "Congress of Nations" idea will be featured and it is expected several score of West Texas cities and towns will be represented in the line of march with large delegations garbed in the colors of the country they represent. This is expected to make one of the most colorful spectacles of the kind ever seen in Texas. It will at least be one of the most unique processions that ever wended its way over the streets of any city in the southwest.

Monster Parade.

Last year's convention parade was approximately three miles long and 42 uniformed bands were in the line of march and furnished music for the thousands of folk who marched to the tune of popular airs. This year it is expected that fully 50 uniformed bands, most of them in the dress of some foreign country, will be in the line of march. Following the parade there will be a baseball game at Spudder park, between the Wichita Falls and Fort Worth teams of the Texas league. This game is expected to set a new record for attendance at Spudder park as thousands of West Texas baseball fans have asked that these teams play here during the convention as one of the outstanding entertainment features. Following the baseball game, the maids of honor, or sponsors, will be presented on a specially constructed platform in front of the grandstand at Spudder park and this feature will be followed by one of the greatest fireworks displays ever brought to Texas. Concluding the evening program will be the Queen's ball and other entertainment features of that character.

Tuesday morning's business session will be featured with an address by the James J. Davis, United States Secretary of Labor. After the business session is concluded in the early afternoon there will be other entertainment features among which will be the baseball game between the Fort Worth and Wichita Falls teams of the Texas league. This will be followed by the closing session of the convention and the selection of the next meeting place. Then the ninth annual convention session proper will have been concluded. It is expected, however, that a number of social events will take place in the evening.

Breakfast for Scribes.

Opening the Tuesday program, however, will be a breakfast to visiting newspaper men and, possibly to chamber of commerce secretaries. Plans for the major courtesies for the distinguished visitors, the directors of the West Texas organization and other special guests have not been concluded.

Numerous committee meeting to make the necessary plans for the convention have already been held and many others are scheduled. At an early date the convention headquarters will be opened in the Hamilton building, headquarters for the convention having been donated by W. B. Hamilton. Representatives of the staff of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce

MOODY SIGNS BILL DEFINING LIBEL BOUNDS

Newspapers Allowed Greater Sway in Publication Of Information

VICTORY FOR PRESS

Truthful Reports Of Public Meetings Permitted In New Law

By Universal Service.

AUSTIN, March 12.—With a sweep of a golden pen, presented to him for the occasion by capitol correspondents, Gov. Dan Moody today, stripped the flesh cutting libel shackles from Texas editors and made it possible, by signing the new libel bill, for newspapers to tell the truth without fear of the editor being haled into court and forced to dole out gold balm for "damaged reputations."

Troubles of Editor.

Under the old law if an editor published the fact that John Doe became mad at his spouse, slapped her down and kicked her out of the family wigwaam, he was promptly brought into the court room by a sheriff and, although he brought several eye witnesses to the assault, he was promptly found guilty, for the Texas libel law clearly stated that truth was no defense in a libel suit.

Or if a public official went on a rampage in a public meeting, the editor was denied the right to give his readers even a stenographic report of what transpired in the meeting together with the names of those involved under pain of a possible stretch in the penitentiary, fine and possible damages to soothe the "besmirched" character of a politician.

For the burden of proof was placed on the press, regardless of the truth of the charges, and mitigating evidence was not permitted to be introduced in libel suits.

For years editors have worked for a just and equitable libel law but each time a bill was submitted to the legislature, opponents promptly blocked its passage.

Wood Pile Worries.

And even now, the Texas editor is fearful lest there be a dark soul lurking in the cordwood. True, Governor Moody has signed the new libel law, permitting editors to publish truthful reports of events, but nowhere is it made clear just what constitutes a public meeting.

And more libel suits have been based on what took place in a public meeting than on anything else.

The Texas press has been unfettered and the releasing of the stringent libel shackles by Governor Moody is regarded by newspapers as the most noteworthy achievements of the 40th session of the Texas legislature.

When the plane was about seventy feet off the ground, according to spectactors, Kotze shut off the motor—or perhaps it stopped. It did not pick up again, though he appeared to be trying to restart it. The plane shot into a nose-dive when about fifty feet in air.

POLICE SEEK MAN'S SLAYER

Clarendon Officer Found Shot to Death

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, March 12.—A suspect was arrested, later to be released on an examining trial in connection with the shooting of John Slaughter, 34, night watchman for the city of Clarendon, whose body was found in the middle of the street just before daylight Saturday morning, the right side riddled with shot from a 12-gauge shotgun.

The body was found by Clyde Douglas who was on his way to meet the early morning train. Slaughter had been shot just under the ribs on the right side, while an empty shell was found close by the side of the body.

Suspect Released

The man who was arrested Saturday is said to have quarreled with Slaughter several days ago over money matters, but this could not be coupled with the killing and was released.

Police officials admitted Saturday night that the mystery showed no signs of lifting and the only theory advanced was that the shot had been fired from a passing car which Slaughter might have been attempting to stop, since deep tracks of an automobile, made in swerving around the corner were found near the spot where the body was lying.

Every town nearby where a possible call could have originated for the night watchman to be on the lookout for a stolen car has been communicated with, but no calls have been found.

Slaughter's children, a girl 8 and a son 2, are with his sister at Wills Point. He is also survived by four other sisters, father and mother, and three brothers. Funeral arrangements are held up pending the arrival of relatives from Fannin county.

Funeral Sunday

Funeral services will be held at his home in Clarendon at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. He is survived by his parents, two small children, one of whom is 18 months old and the other eight years, three brothers and five sisters.

Officials were lukewarm to the suggestion that his slayer might have been the bandit who held up a filling station here last Wednesday evening and escaped in a hail of bullets after shooting one of the employes.

The five men were convicted here one week after they went to trial January 31, but the sentences were withheld until today. Judge Hutcheson said sentencing was delayed in order that he might send investigators to Willacy county to learn what kind of men Teller and those convicted with him were.

The trial opened with testimony of two Washington, D. C., youths, Leomrd Swanson and Allen Nichols, who told that they had been inducted to go to the Rio Grande valley on the promise they would receive $1.25 per hundred pounds for picking cotton as well as their rooms and board.

SOLONS VOTE TOBACCO TAX

Bill Would Make Users Of Weed Help State

AUSTIN, March 12. (AP)—Yanking one foot from the grave, the house tobacco tax bill today took a deep breath and galloped down an ambushed road to a victory.

The house passed the bill, 61 to 59. A few hours later the senate forced a committee report and the measure was brought to the floor with a hotly contested recommendation that it "do pass."

Prevailing belief in the senate tonight was that the bill will ride out for the governor's signature, although the possible filibuster was seen.

Proponents Steam Roller

House proponents steam-rollered the way by solidly voting their majority strength through a maze of parliamentary obstacles reared during an uproarious noon hour fight by a minority that held out for two-thirds vote under sessiond rules.

The opposition was about to gain its point that a two-thirds vote would be required to call the bill up, when a majority vote upheld Representative Weil's point of order that the insistence on rules was "dilatory tactics." A showdown was forced when Speaker R. L. Bobbitt reminded the house that it had agreed a few days ago to consider any bill brought up by members in alphabetical order. The two-thirds rule, which some disputed as being effective at noon today, thus was dispensed with and a vote taken. Before that juncture, however, the clock had been set back an hour in some undetermined way, while tax opponents were raising points of order and bridging over the time remaining before the 72-hour rule would have become effective. There still was some doubt tonight as to whether the rule ordinarily would have taken effect today or tomorrow.

One Cent For Ten

The bill would levy a tax of one cent for each ten cents or each fraction thereof on all retail tobacco sales through operation of a stamp system. Proponents claim that it will yield $6,000,000 annually after next year. The money is to go to the public schools.

Representative Bayron, leader of a steering committee, unobtrusively brought the bill out to the house floor by securing unanimous consent just before an afternoon adjournment and got it printed in the journal.

About two nights later the bill was engrossed after a hard fight as an "amendment" to the Sanders bill. The new measure is modeled along the lines of the Louisiana laws and follows closely the provisions of the bill of Representative Snelgrove, withdrawn several weeks ago. Snelgrove was an active member of the steering committee.

Senate Surprises

The quick action in the senate this afternoon surprised opponents. Committeemen had set it for hearing Monday morning, but a motion by Senator Wood ordering an immediate report carried over strenuous protests of the Senators Reed, Witt and Hall.

Senator Real said he had been "in the senate ten years and never seen such proceedings."

The others stuck up for "constitutional rights of our constituents," to be heard at an open committee session Monday.

Wood declared that the previous administration "has left the school system in a bad shape," and that the schools need the money.

Presence of U. S. Marines Pleases Residents Of Country

ARRIVAL OF MARINES PLEASES NICARAGUANS

By Universal Service.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 13.—The arrival of 3000 United States marines, commanded by Brigadier-General Feland, is pleasing to the majority of the inhabitants supporting President Diaz's policy, but not notably pleasing to the Liberal party still relying on material support from the Mexican government.

The Liberals, as yet, do not believe in American intervention and, in time, expect to dethrone Diaz.

Not a single bluejacker of the British cruiser Colombo, while at Corinto, came to this city, although the vessel remained there a week and sailed, because she marines will extend protection to British residents and their interests when required.

At any moment General Moncado's forces at Muymuy and Matiguas will be forcibly struck by the government's 7000 soldiers, because the two peace delegations escorted by two American naval officers achieved absolutely no good result in conference with the vain-glorious Moncado.

The government authorities feel that only in this way will peace be made complete.

Haiti Excludes U. S. Senator King As 'Undesirable' Visitor To Country

WASHINGTON, March 12.(AP) The Haitian government has notified Senator King, democrat, Utah, that it will not permit him to visit the island as he had planned.

Senator King, who is now touring the West Indies to survey conditions in Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Haiti, has persistently attacked the policy of the American government in the Haitian republic and has sought the withdrawal of marines from the island. The Haitian government based its refusal to let him enter that country on this attitude.

In a statement received today by the republic's legation here from Camille Leon, the Haitian minister of foreign affairs, Haiti notified the Utah senator "that it considers him as undesirable and the access of the territory of Haiti is forbidden to him."

Death Of Pretty Woman In Chicago Hotel Starts Official Quiz Into Case

By Universal Service.

DETROIT, Mich., March 12.—An investigation was started today by Coromer A. L. French into the mysterious death of a woman found in her bath tub in the Statler hotel. The theory that death was caused by heart disease was scouted after a physical examination.

The woman had registered as Helen Nash of Chicago, she was about 45. The sole address left among her possessions, "1221 Spruce street, Chicago," proved fictitious.

No water was found in the lungs although the body had been submerged in the bathtub.

The suicide theory was also scouted by the hotel management, which stated that her bill due was $9. The sum of $145 was found among her possessions.

OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE OPEN TO ALL, SAYS BIEDERWOLF

HAPPY OVER SUCCESS HERE

Evangelist Gives Special Message to City

Appreciation of the reception given him in Wichita Falls was vouchsafed Saturday night by Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, evangelist, who is conducting union revival services at the tabernacle.

In expressing his appreciation, Dr. Biederwolf through the medium of The Record-News addressed a letter to the citizenship of Wichita Falls. His letter follows:

Expresses Thanks.

"To the people of Wichita Falls: I want to thank you for the fine reception you have given to me and the members of my party. Such courtesy is quite beyond the usual and it encourages us for the great work we are undertaking with you for the quickening of the religious life of your city.

"The meetings thus far have been great; great in the fine preparation you have made; great in the large attendance in the tabernacle; great in the offerings you have made for their financial support; great in the spiritual atmosphere already created and great in the decisions already made.

Urges Attendance.

"This week ought to be tremendous. Heaven is bending quite low over Wichita Falls in these days. Let every Christian do his duty. Be much in prayer. Lay aside your social engagements and let God's Christ have the right of way for these few weeks. God pity the Christian who could be indifferent in days like these. Such days seldom come to a community.

"I am yours gratefully, but I am expecting great things from you."

Evangelist Biederwolf has been invited into some of the wealthiest homes throughout the United States to address a large number of invited guests, and the following is one of the sermons used recently on one such occasion:

"Society is a grand word. It's mighty big with meaning. Man is a social animal. There isn't any doubt about it that God meant us to go into society. Birds go in flocks, fish go in schools, sheep go in droves, bees go in swarms and man must have his companions.

"I have sometimes wondered what we would do if we didn't have friends and didn't have society and didn't have people to associate with. I think most of us would die with loneliness. Once in a while you find some old recluse, some sort of a half made piece of humanity that will go out and live in the mountains or shut themselves up in some musty old monastry and be satisfied. They remind me of an old hard-shelled turtle like we used to find out in the woods along the river that pulls his head and his tail and his feet inside of his shell and shuts himself up and forgets everything and everybody but himself. But a man like that is no man at all. He's a wart, somebody says, on the face of the universe. The world can go to the Devil for all he cares.

"Some people think that's the way to be holy. But the man that's worth while, the woman that's worth while is the man or the woman who can be holy and white and clean and brush elbows with their fellow beings in business and politics and society and everywhere where God meant men and women to be.

Now, of course, the way to spend your life must be determined by the reason why you are here. We have got to get a definition. If you are here just to have a good time and you can do it better out in the woods or in a monestary all by yourself, why go to it. Nobody's going to kick. You'd be very foolish to have anything to do with society.

But, on the other hand, if a woman can enjoy herself more fondling a poodle dog, caressing a Spitz, drinking society branmash and cocktails and playing bridge whist, why, that's where she ought to be. She's be very foolish to go out in the woods or live in a dug out by herself.

Duty to Society

"But if on the other hand, that definition of life is wrong and God has us in this world for a purpose and we are here to do good and to lift up humanity as well as to enjoy ourselves, then we must go in society to do it. It becomes absolutely necessary. Now I am sure we will recognize that there ought to be a meaning to our lives. God put everyone of us here for a purpose and for a mission and we will have to give an account to God for the way we spent every hour of these lives He has given us. And if we would only realize that, then we would not only be careful of the kind of society into which we go, but we would have a care as to how we spend our time whenever we are in society.

"Society is not without its danger, of course—the danger of being carried away and into all sorts of senseless extremes. Many a woman has murdered time and character by a senseless over-indulgence in the doings of the social world. You know that as well as I do. They make a God out of fashion and worship at her shrine, and Oh, the stories I could tell you of extravagance and living beyond one's means and the heartaches of husbands and estrangements and divorce and suicide, and it all comes from the failure to realize what I mentioned a moment ago, that your life is a mission and not a tale told by an idiot signifying nothing, as the poet has put it.

Work of Girl

"I remember when we were in Atlanta in connection with the Men and Religion Movement that we went out in what is called "Martha Home," a small farm with a big residence where the poor, unfortunate girls from the Red Light district were privileged to go and find comfort and Christian care and a good life when the city authorities broke up their former haunts of sin. We went by invitation and the quartet sang and I was privileged to say a few words. I wish I could describe the scene and tell you what we saw. They were looking then for someone to manage the home and some months after we left the city I learned through an article in one of the religious journals that a southern gentlelady, a young lady by the name of Miss Appleyard, a young woman of highest cultivations, who had known only the association of the pure daughters of sheltered homes, a young woman of delicate nature had volunteered to come and lay her life along with the ruined and degraded victims of vice. Her sacrifice was so perfect and so spontaneous that the committee while it marveled did not dare protest, but in her beautiful and unselfish simplicity she soon overran her physical strength, and recently she died. But she said she was gladder than ever before in all her life and as I read about it I confess my eyes filled with tears and I said to myself there was more of a thrill for humanity went out of one of her sweet, beautiful, Christlike acts than ever went out of the whole long life of any woman who lives merely for society and for dress and for pleasure and social function.

"And I have come here this morning to ask you about your own life. I know that you are, many of you, interested in many of the things I might mention, but Oh, are you making your life count for the most? You've only one life and it's slipping fast away from you.

"What do you know about the White Slave Traffic? Do you know much about the fact that there are sweet, beautiful girls being captured and sold for a price into a slavery so awful as to make your blood chill at the thought of it. Do you know that every eight minutes some mother's precious daughter loses her virtue and goes down into shame. Count up the minutes you have been here this morning and divided them by eight and you will know how many have been ruined and gone down while you have been sitting here in his beautiful home.

Opportunity

"How much do you know about the poor of your own city? What do you know about the slum life of our great cities and the efforts to redeem it? What do you know about the work of ridding your own city of the terrible traffic in rum and what part are you having in the crusade? Do you know anything about the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals and about the campaign against the tearing of wings off of living birds to furnish ornaments for some people's hats? What do you know about the Anti-Tuberculosis campaign? How well are you acquainted with the movement for the securing of pensions for worthy mothers? What do you know about the parent society and what do you know about the movement for playgrounds and public baths for the poor children of our great cities?

"Oh, my friends, all about humanity is calling for the touch of your hand and the sound of your voice, and the message I bring to you this morning is, Give to life it's right definition, and give anew yourself to Christ today that the world may read and learn that definition in the way your own life is spent so that society may know when you have gone that your life indeed was not lived in vain."

Insurance Man Mistaken for Bandit When He Drives Stolen Auto Home

Mistaken for the bandit who Wednesday night held up a Gulf Refining company filling station and shot one of the employes, an Oklahoma City insurance man, who was returning the Chrysler coupe which had been stolen from the streets of that city and used by the hijacker, was arrested in a small Oklahoma town Saturday afternoon, and was forced to remain in jail for several hours until word could be sent to Chief of Police George Hodgins.

The automobile stolen from Oklahoma City the night before the robbery here, was found Thursday about noon near Wichita Falls and identified as the one used by the bandit.

A representative of the insurance company holding the policy on the car came here Saturday morning to get the automobile. He was warned by Chief Hodgins that he might be mistaken for the bandit and arrested, but he considered the matter lightly and told police that he could establish his identity easily.

But Saturday afternoon Chief Hodgins received a telegram from the sheriff of an Oklahoma county stating that he believed he had the hijacker. An investigation revealed that it was the insurance adjuster.

Hamilton and Adair Present Road Plan To State Board Monday

Conference between the members of the state highway commission and W. B. Hamilton and H. J. Adair, composing a committee appointed by the chamber of commerce to confer with the commission relative to the designation of three miles of road in Wichita county leading to the Grandfield bridge, as a state highway, will be held Monday in Austin, Hubert Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, said Saturday.

The conference will be held in connection with the efforts of a chamber of commerce committee, headed by Claude Miller, to have the Grandfield bridge purchased by Wichita county and Tillman county, Okla., and then operated as a free bridge.

The county officials are favorable toward the purchase and the owners have agreed to sell, however, it will be necessary to have three miles of highway leading to the bridge designated as a state highway before a free bridge can be operated.

Child Gets Sick Cross, Feverish if Constipated

Look at tongue! Then give fruity laxative for stomach, liver, bowels

"California Fig Syrup" can't harm children and they love it

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remembers, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask you druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup company."—Adv.

HORDES HUNT GOLDEN TROVE

Nevada Valley Jammed By Gold-Crazed Throng

TONOPAH, Nev., March 12 (AP) Evidence that Weepah, new gold boom town northwest of here rests on a golden foundation was plentiful here today after its discovery had given demonstrations to skeptical arrivals.

While 200 persons looked on, an Oakland newspaper reporter, guided by Frank Horton, owner of Weepah's principal claim, dug his fist into the earth and pulled out as much rocky soil as his hand could hold. A San Francisco newspaper man crushed it and it was panned by Horton. It produced two table spoonfuls of gold. Thirteen ore sacks, filled as the result of leisure picking on the claim stood nearby. Each contained about 80 pounds of ore. Horton said each sack would produce $1800 worth of gold.

Claim Brings $100,000

Fred Gilbert, seasoned young "desert rat" who recently sold a claim 12 miles from Weepah to New York interests for $100,000 and who not so long ago found ore near here which produced $12 in gold to the pound, declared after seeing the find that he "never would speak of high grade ore again."

Sourdoughs and prospectors who have ranged from the Yukon to Peru and from Cripple Creek to Hudson Bay looked on and said they never had seen the like before.

"I broke open a chunk of rock a while ago about six inches in diameter," said Gilbert, "and found the whole inside plastered with free gold. And I saw other boulders disclose the same values. They were at least 60 per cent gold. Weepah today began to blossom forth as a real town. Its first 'emporium' hung out a sign reading: 'Water $2 a barrel; gasoline 50c a gallon; ham and eggs 80c; white mule 50c a drink; chaser free'."

All Hunt For Gold.

So far as blossoming into a regular town, Weepah is under a serious handicap. No one will work for $10 a day at carpenter work while there is the prospect of becoming rich overnight by hunting gold. There is no lumber in the camp with which to build. Brokers, organizers and promoters are working feverishly, doing their best to get "toe-holds" before "big money" comes in and drives things out of their reach. Their favorite method of closing a deal is to arrange for spot cash payments for stock with deferred payments extending up to six months. Stock in any company that happens to be incorporated is sought in a clamor.

Printing presses here are working day and night printing gold seales certificates. New companies are incorporated by telegraph. The first company organized worked so fast that 200,000 shares in it had been sold before announcement of the incorporation appeared in the newspapers.

Move Ready Houses

Scouts were out today looking for an architectural nucleus for Weepah. They don't want carpenters, masons, brick layers and other building trade artisians. Building is too slow a process. They want houses already built and they are finding them.

TULSA, Okla., March 12.(AP) A continuance of the present production of crude oil for many months is looked for by Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, who arrived in Tulsa today with a party of officials of his company on an inspection trip of the midcontinent field.

Until the reserve stocks of petroleum now above ground are permitted to function as a real reserve to be drawn on in place of new production a higher oil market is unlikely, he said.

"The potentialities already indicated by such developments that have taken place in the Seminole, West Texas Panhandle and California fields are so great that an upward trend in crude oil production is bound to occur for several months; consequently affecting crude oil prices adversely," Mr. Teagle remarked.

"Most people are under the impression that the trend of the country's production will necessarily sway with Seminole. This is an error. While this region is a tremendous producer, West Texas and California are conspicuous in the picture as all oil produced finds a common market."

Against this coming large crude production, however, there is some relief as the consumption of fuel oil which for some years has been on a decline, turned upward in January, the Standard chief pointed out, and will of course increase during the remainder of the present year.

New Beauty in Overstuffed

Those ornately carved mahogany frames extending around each piece of this suite give it a much richer setting and relieve the appearance of being overly massive. The cover is of fine mohair, still most popular in quality upholstery. Reversible cushions in damask.

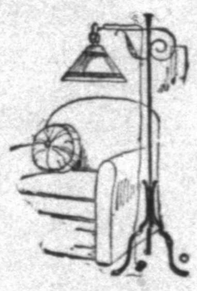

In the New Blended Walnut Finish

Here is a suite that will immediately strike the fancy of those seeking something different, for it is that. There is the two-tone walnut effect, popular of late, with a new blending of lighter tone—very distinguishing. This suite is one of a number featured now.

High-Lighted Mahogany

brings new beauty to such pieces as this daybed, making it a most attractive living room piece. The upholstery is of fine velours.

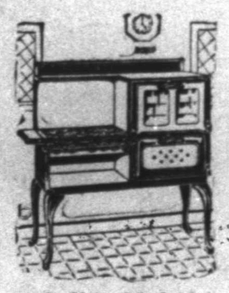

New Charm In Lamps

Furniture for the Outdoors Abundant

'Twon't be long now before you'll be on the porch and in the yard again. Then you will want couch hammocks such as this.

OPEN POLICE ...NSOR BOOKS

H... Nine New Volumes Barred From Public Sale

BOSTON, March 12.(AP)—Nine books, including some of the best sellers of the winter season, are on a police prohibitory index, it became known today with announcement that a Boston book sellers' committee was co-operating with the authorities in suppression of objectionable volumes.

On the list are "The Plastic Age" by Percy Marks, "The Rebel Bird" by Diana Patrick, "The Butcher Shop," by Jean Devanny, "The Ancient Hunger" by Edwin Granberry, "Antennae" by Herbert Footner, "The Marriage Bed" by Ernest Pascal, "The Beadle" by Pauline Smith, "As It Was" by "H. T." the "Hard Boiled Virgin" by Frances Newman.

All have been taken from shelves of local bookstores despite the fact that the sellers believe police have erred in their choice of several volumes. Sale would not be resumed, it was said, until individual publishers had indicated willingness to assume full responsibility for what might happen in the courts.

So far no occasion has risen to challenge the decisions of the police but it was predicted that court action might be initiated should authorities undertake to add to the list Sinclair Lews' "Elmer Gantry."

The police allege that the books prohibited contain "obscene, indecent or impure language" or tend to corrupt the morals of youth, although it is conceded that the degree in which individual volumes offend good taste differ widely.

VALLEY VIEW NEWS

Special to The Record News.

VALLEY VIEW, March 12.—Under the direction and supervision of Mr. McMortie and Mr. Barns working through the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, a pig club was organized among the boys of this community. The club was divided into two groups, one working with the Duroc-Jersey breed and the other working with the Poland China breed.

The pigs are to be obtained through the co-operation of the local bankers, who are to lend the individual boys the necessary funds to join and belong to the club. The following officers were elected by the club: Clevis Childers, president; Loyd Hamilton, vice president and head of the Duroc-Jersey section, Wade Watson, secretary and treasurer of the DuroeJersey section; Franklin Love, vice president and head of the Poland China section and Charley Glazner, secretary and treasurer of this section.

Scholastic Census.

Supt. J. R. Steedman of the Valley View school has begun the annual enrollment of the scholastics in this district. It is expected that the census will show a drop this year on account of the farming conditions during the past year that has made it necessary for many to move out of the valley.

Athletics At Valley View.

With a large number of boys coming out daily, it is expected that some excellent track and field material will be in shape to enter the county track meet that is to be held April 1 and 2. Two or three men have shown good form for this time of the season, on long runs.

Two post-season basketball games are to be played at the Valley View school next Saturday night, one between the Valley View girls and County Line girls, and a boys game between the Valley View and the Eagle Bend team.

Tennis Club Organized.

With the coming of spring weather the lure of the tennis court resulted in the organization of a Valley View tennis club. Tentative arrangements have been made for two courts and some playing has already begun. Aaron Drumheller was elected president of the club.

ROADS FIGHT FOR TUNNEL

Crossing Through Rockies Cause of Rivalry

NEW YORK, March 12.(AP)—Fight for the Moffat tunnel, short route over the transcontinental divide, is impending between three railroads controlled by Arthur Curtis James and the Union Pacific, the New York World says today.

The James roads and the Union pacific, the World says, are anxious to secure control of the Denver & Salt Lake railway, holder of a 50-year lease on the tunnel.

The Moffat tunnel, 6.02 miles long, is the longest in the country. It shortens the distance between Denver and Salt Lake by 173 miles.

Use of the tunnel would give the Union Pacific a more direct route from Denver to the coast, eliminating the detour northward to Cheyenne through Wyoming where at Granger it branches off to Salt Lake City.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Western Pacific and the Denver, Rio Grande & Western would form a direct route to the coast if the James roads could secure the tunnel.

ILLICIT LOVE RITE OF CULT

Scandal Bared by Police In Probe of Sect

OAKLAND, Calif., March 12. (AP)—Secrets of the "Sacred School of the White Brotherhood" which authorities say sought to produce a "superman" through illicit love were unfolded here today as bay city investigators gathered here to further question five or more members of the cult which was exposed as the result of their arrest Thursday.

Lloyd Alley, 15, son of Russell Alley of Los Angeles, and Miss Caroline Merwin, 18, of Oakland, who authorities said were chosen as the means of producing the "superman" were the centers of the probe. Young Alley and his father, both under arrest, were on their way here to submit to questioning.

Although the girl admitted there had been relations of questionable propriety between young Alley and her, the boy, interviewed yesterday in Los Angeles, denied that there had been any wrong doing. The elder Alley also professed surprise at the charges, declaring he was innocent.

The elder Alley said he had been the "grand Omar" of the organization and had given lectures in biology to its members in Oakland. Alley, Mrs. Gertrude Wright, alleged member of the cult, and Miss Erma Gibbs, secretary to Mrs. Wright, were charged with contributing to the delinquency of young Alley and Miss Merwin by fostering love parties for them. The youngsters were held in custody, but formal charges were not lodged against them.

Branches of the cult were said to have been located in Chicago, Reno, San Antonio and eastern cities as well as in the bay district.

The contestants were as follows: Troop 12, Glenn Wharton, Joe Perry, Kenton Wharton. Troop 2, John Weller, Gaylord Giles, Eggleston Ramey, Bill Morton and Melvin Giles.

The first event, 30-yard target shooting, was won by Troop 12, with a large margin.

The second event, 40-yard target shooting, was won by Troop 12 with a majority of over ten points.

The third event, 50-yard target shooting, was won by Troop 2, with one point in the lead.

The fourth event was distance and was won by Joe Perry, Troop 12, who shot 204 yards. Troop 2 won second and third place in this event. The total score, which was on a five, three and one basis, was in Troop 12's favor.

Plans are under discussion for a tournament between Wichita Falls and Electra archers. Electra has an excellent team of archers. Taylor Cash, scoutmaster, is a very experienced archer and has the finest bow in the immediate vicinity.

TROOP THREE

Troop 3, Lee Loeffler scoutmaster, held their regular meeting at the First Methodist church Friday night, with the Lion patrol in charge. The meeting opened with "To the Colors," by Harold Kimmell, troop buzier, followed by patrol inspection. All patrols were 100 per cent in attendance, making a total of 12 scouts and six visitors present.

Homer Lee gave some selections on his harmonica that were so excellent that the scouts decided to elect him as their representative in the harmonica contest to be held at the coming Jamboree. He is also yell leader of the troop and sometime was spent practicing the "Spyrocket," "Railroad" and "Troop 3 Special."

The scoutmaster led in some exercises, among them the game Kelly says.

Charles Aston, patrol leader of the Alligator patrol, gave an interesting talk on "Uses and Abuses of the Knife and Axe," which was followed by a fire by flint and steel contest between Oscar Thornton and Billy Mowery. Billy was champion, having a blaze in 25 seconds. Bollin Dixon talked on "Knots we do not know," and demonstrated them.

The following boys received the troop initiation: Springer Williams, John Hoag, Mack Taylor, Paul Pendelton and Milton Cooke. J. C. Daniels received his application to join the troop and Springer Williams, recently transferred from Troop 4, was presented with the senior patrol leader's badge and the official Troop 3 neckerchief.

The newly appointed junior assistant scoutmaster, Charles Aston, had the honor of lighting the evening campfire, around which the scouts formed the never-ending circle and sang songs accompanied by their scoutmaster on the banjo-ukelele, and told stories.

It was announced that the troop will have an advancement hike soon. The scoutmaster stated that since every troop is ranked according to tenderfoot second class, or first class scouts, he wanted his troop to be called a first class troop. On this advancement hike every boy will be expected to pass at least one test.

TROOP TWELVE

The meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance and the scout oath.

Don Ross, scoutmaster, gave a talk on archery and appointed S. I. Wharton and Mr. Perry as the committee to start organization of a troop archery club. All scouts that have long-bows brought them to the meeting and gave a demonstration of archery. They were as follows: Kenton Wharton, one snake wood and one lemonwood; Glenn Wharton, lemonwood; Joe Perry, lemonwood; and Don Ross, lemonwood. Plans were made for an archer's hike, to be held some Sunday in the near future.

The Inter-Patrol contest was ended with Patrol 1, Elgin Green, patrol leader, in the lead. The score was as follows: Patrol 1, over 7000 points; Patrol 2, over 1000 points; Patrol 3, over 1000 points; Patrol 4, over 4000 points. The patrols are numbered according to their efficiency. Patrol 1 being the best in the troop, etc.

Orby Hodges, new member of the troop, demonstrated a model mono-plane which will fly over 70 feet, with an altitude of over 15 feet. The troop is planning the organization of an Aviation Club.

The meeting closed with the scout oath and the pledge of allegiance. After the meeting Patrols 2 and 4 went on an over-night hike.

TROOP FOUR

Troop 4, John Tevis, scoutmaster, held a meeting Friday night at the First Christian church. The meeting opened at 7:30 with "Assembly," by Edwin Sutton, Troop Bugler, which called all scouts to their patrol rooms. After short patrol meetings "Assembly" was blown again and all scouts assembled in the troop room for the regular meeting, which was opened with "To the Colors" and the scout oath and laws.

Wayne Hankins, fire by friction champion of Troop 4, challenged the rest of the troop to a contest and was again champion, having a fire in 26 seconds.

Earthquake Wipes Out Balkan City

Bryant Creighton, champion flint and steel firemaker of the troop, challenged the fire by friction champion to a contest and was victor, building a fire in 15 seconds.

James Hafliey was elected yell leader and led the troop in several good yells which will be given at the next Jamboree.

Mr. Tevis, scoutmaster, made some important announcements which were followed by an attendance contest. Thermon Conrey won first prize, a Boy's Life magazine, and Herbert Wiley won second prize, a First Aid pamphlet.

Each patrol gave a stunt and the Beaver Patrol won first place, which gave them 15 points on the inter-patrol contest.

After playing some lively games, taps was blown at 9:30 o'clock.

TROOP TWO

Troop 2, Bill McClure, scoutmaster, met at the First Methodist church Friday at 8:30 o'clock, with 25 boys in attendance. The meeting opened with the scout oath, laws and the pledge of allegiance.

Artificial respiration, as given to Albert Frick, was explained by Mack McClure and 45 minutes was spent in practicing.

A report was given of the hike the troop had last Sunday, when 25 boys met at the scout room and went to the rod and gun club. Tests were passed by every scout present.

A large part of the evening was spent in playing basketball. The stag and owl patrols tied, with a score of 4 to 4.

TROOP ONE

The members of the troop were reviewed on the scout laws, having to name them in order, give each law when its number was called, and finally repeat them in reverse order.

Credit cards from the Western Tire service were given to the boys to be distributed throughout the city.

Plans were made for an overnight hike, to be held in the near future. The meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer.

TROOP ELEVEN

Troop eleven, the live wire troop, held a meeting at the Floral Heights Methodist church Friday night with Floyd Billingsley, scoutmaster, in charge. The meeting opened with the scout oath, followed by roll calls.

The troop was led in some drills by Bill Steger, patrol leader, after which each patrol put on a stunt on the mats, including a wrestling match and pyramid building.

Mr. Milton Johnson, troop committeeman, gave a short talk.

The troop was then divided into two parts and a handkerchief game was enjoyed.

A hike was planned for Sunday afternoon. The scouts will meet at 2:30 at the troop room and hike out into the country to pass tests.

The meeting was closed with the scout oath.

ANOTHER EAGLE SCOUT

Chief Creighton announced Saturday morning that Paul Scheurer, member of Troop ten of this city, has passed all requirements for his Eagle Scout badge.

TROOP FIFTEEN

Troop fifteen, A. King Davis, scoutmaster, met Friday night at the Highland Christian church. The meeting was called to order at 7:30 with the scout oath and roll call.

Scout songs were practiced, following which Charles Crocker, assistant scoutmaster, gave several selections on the trumpet, among them, "Juanita," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "The Star Spangled Banner."

An informal initiation was held and each boy present was compelled to run the gauntlet at least twice.

At 9 o'clock the meeting closed with the pledge of allegiance and a song by the scouts, accompanied by the trumpet.

RAILS ACROSS STATE ROAD

Difficulty Develops Over Rail Crossing at Estelline

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, March 12.—According to information received from County Judge A. C. Hoffman, Highway No. 5 through Hall county was inspected one day this week by O. B. Kercher, assistant federal engineer, and he recommended that Hall county proceed with the topping or paving of this highway. All grading has been done and is sufficiently settled for the paving.

Judge Hoffman states that Hall county is ready to begin the paving of this Highway No. 5 immediately, but says he is satisfied there will be a delay, owing to the fact that the new Denver railroad to the South Plains has crossed the highway at Estelline, both with its main line and Y, and it is alleged they did so without the consent of either the county or state officials, which matter will have to be adjusted before they can proceed with the work of paving.

Regarding this matter, Judge Hoffman says:

"My understanding is that federal engineers have filed a protest with the state highway department in regard to the Denver's new railroad to the South Plains crossing Highway No. 5 with its main line and Y north of Estelline without securing a permit from the county or state and that the federal engineers also recommended that a relocation of Highway No. 5 south of Red River be made to the north side of the town of Estelline, including an overhead crossing over the main line of the new Denver road. Mr. Kercher seems to think that it would be impossible to retain a highway at the present location and under the present existing condition without endangering the lives of those who travel the highway."

Judge Hoffman favors a change being made as suggested by the engineer, provided same can be done without an additional cost to Hall county. He expresses serious doubt about an overhead crossing being built and maintained on the route suggested by the engineer, because it will run over the top of a chain of sand hills which would be insufficient to support a highway.

800 PER CENT GAIN ON HOGS

Taylor County Farmer Has Record Business

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, March 12.—A. J. Lane, a Taylor county farmer realized a profit of 800 per cent in the hog business in less than twelve months. In April of last year Lane paid $10 each for two small, six weeks old gilts. The animals were not registered, but were subject to pedigree. They weighed less than 25 pounds each when Lane bought them.

Each of the sows farrowed a litter of pigs before they were a year old. Since the first of January, Lane has sold ten pigs from these two animals for $10 each, or a total of $100. He now has two of the pigs left for which he has been offered $15 a head and also the sows, now valued at $50 each.

Figuring the pigs sold and the present value of the animals still on hand, the initial investment of $20 has made a clear profit of $160 in less than 12 months.

All feed consumed by the hogs was home-grown. The animals were cared for in the spare time of members of the Lane family and he considers that he did a very profitable piece of business when he bought the two little pigs. The two sows, just now past a year old will be kept for breeding.

Lane has 80 native pecan trees on his 30-acre farm, which adjoins Elm creek. He has also set out 60 paper-shell trees on the farm. One of the native trees produced $52 worth of nuts last season and another made its owner $45. Lane will top-work the trees and insert paper-shell buds in them this season.

'Hidden City'-Bootleg Lair In Marshes Falls After Siege By Federal Squad

NORFOLK, Va., March 12.(AP) "Hidden city," bootleg metropolis, concealed in an almost impenetrable wilderness of swamp land in Dare county, North Carolina, has fallen before an attack of federal prohibition forces.

Warned by outposts stationed in high trees overlooking the water approaches the bootlegger inhabitants, however, escaped before three coast guard rum chasers carrying more than a score of prohibition agents could land the expedition. The raid of the stronghold, called by dry agents the wettest spot on the Atlantic coast, nevertheless proved successful in the destruction of several hundred gallons of liquor and 12 stills valued at more than $50,000.

The raiders returned to Manteo, N. C., last night suffering from hunger as the expedition which lasted 10 days had been caught in the recent blizzard without sufficient provisions. Word of the raid reached prohibition officials here today.

6000 Settlers To Be Brought Into Texas To Colonize 1500 New Farms

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, March 12.—A group of Chicago and Detroit capitalists will come to Austin early in April, and complete first steps toward the largest colonization project in the history of Texas. They will meet here Nacogdoches associates and Austin attorneys who are at work on legal phases of the organization and will prepare to bring into Texas approximately 6,000 people to be located on 1,500 new Texas farms.

G. A. Blount of Nacogdoches, brother of Former Representative Eugene Blount and Luther Swift, Nacogdoches, are associated with the Chicago and Detroit men, among whom are Studebaker, head of the Studebaker automobile organization, Orville Taylor, member of one of Chicago's largest law firms and others.

The noted Ortiz ranch of 80,000 acres, in Webb county and surrounding Laredo on three sides, is being purchased for the colonization. The Austin law firm of Harris and Harris, composed of June C. Harris and Audley Harris, both formerly of Nacogdoches, are handling the extensive title examinations to the 53 surveys which make up the Ortiz ranch.

This ranch cost approximately $750,000 for the land. The new owners will spend more than $1,000,000 in building from 1,200 to 1,500 houses and in improvements on the land and will bring in families from the North to settle this land. A demonstration farm and an agricultural agent will be maintained.

Taylor recently went to Laredo and inspected the ranch. He has notified Harris and Harris that he and all his associates will meet in Austin in April and will spend several days here, visiting the capitol and in looking over Central Texas while they complete arrangements for the Webb county colonization.

Beauty Spot Of Davis Mountains May Be Given New Name To Avoid Mixup

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, March 12.—Beautiful mountain scenery, deep walled canyons, valleys flourishing with waving vegetation are the charming possessions of the Balmorhea region, but possessions that at present are causing some question in the minds of local residents. The problem of "what's in a name" is disturbing Balmorhea and Toyah, according to work sent in to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Toyah Valley is fairly well known over the state of Texas and in many other sections of the country as an irrigated farming section where good crops are grown at the foot of the famous and picturesque Davis Mountains. Tourists, who have heard of this valley, on reaching the town of Toyah to the north of the valley, expect to see fields of irrigated beauty, and not seeing them feel that stories they have heard of the beautiful Toyah valley are tales of unscrupulous real estate agents. West Texas chamber advertisements state. It is a common occurrence for tourists to inquire in Toyah for Toyah valley, thinking that the town of Toyah is in or near Toyah valley.

For this reason, Balmorhea is puzzling as to whether to change the name of the valley or not. The problem has become one of general interest in the town and citizens are livin gup their arguments on both sides.

Th ename receiving most favorable consideration and one that is known throughout the United States is that of Madera valley, which spells to the hearer mystic mountain coves, picturesque scenery, and rugged, deep scarred canyons. The name Madera which is being placed before the public every day, is linked with a place where people of the east, not only of East Texas, but of eastern states and other sections, are coming to know a lovely mountain resort, popular for both summer and winter vacationists.

The Madera canyon, which broadens out into Toyah valley, is popularly known as the most beautiful spot in the Davis mountain range, and Madera Springs, "The Vacation Spot of Texas," is rapidly becoming as well-known as any of the pleasure resorts in the United States. For this reason the name Madera valley would be associated from the start with irrigated farming sections, beautiful scenery, pleasant pastimes, and healthful climate. Citizens of Balmorhea and Toyah seem to favor selection of Madera valley as substitute name for Toayh valley, but no definite decision has yet been reached, word to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce reports.

OIL ACTIVITIES IN OLNEY AREA

Ward Expected to Develop Several Producers

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, March 12.—Development in the territory of the Ward producers this week seems to almost prove that it will be one of the biggest pools in the entire Olney district when developed. Half a mile west of production, Marland Oil company has cemented casing after drilling four feet of fine sand and without a doubt have a commercial producer. A mile and a half north of the discovery, Harry Hines is setting casing on the sand and expecting to make a producer. These wells if they make paying wells, define a producing area which is probably larger than any of the pools in the Olney territory.

In spite of the fact that there have been two or three cuts in crude prices within the past week, activity in this section are intensive and expected to continue so.

TWO TRAGEDIES

Violence Bereaves Electra Family Twice In Two Months

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, March 12.—Upon the passing of W. A. Gillispie of Harrold, Wilbarger county traffic officer early Friday morning, tragedy stalks twice in the same family in two months for Joe McClendon, a brother-in-law of the dead man was accidently burned to death in the Rock Crossing oil fields on Jan. 11, two months before the date of Mr. Gillispie's death

Mr. Gillispie is the son-in-law of T. M. McClendon, a pioneer figure in the development of Wilbarger county, still holding much property in the Guyer community, north of Harrold. Mr. Gillispie married Miss Bessie McClendon 10 years ago, who with two small children survive him.

The deceased is well known in Electra, having resided here in 1922-23.

LEASES COVER 12 COUNTIES

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, March 12.—A dozen West Texas counties scattered from Andrews and Winkler, adjoining the southeastern corner of New Mexico, down to Val Verde county and as far east as Concho have been the scene of late lease deals in which prices have ranged from $2.75 to $100 an acre. Most of the purchasers have been made by companies operating in this section.

The top price has been in the purchase by the Prairie Oil and Gas company in Winkler county of the west half of the southwest quarter of section 3, block B-12, public school land. In Andrews county, adjoining Winkler on the north, the Prairie bought the west half of section 8, block A-35, public school land at $2.75 an acre. In Ward county, Winkler's southern neighbor, Simms Oil company paid $7.50 an acre for the northeast quarter of section 26, block B-29, and Prairie bought 560 acres at $12.50 an acre in block A. G. M. M. B. and A. survey.

Buying In Ector.

In Ector county, adjoining Winkler on the east, the Southern Crude Oil Purchasing company bought the north half of section 5, block 45, township 25, for $4,800, and the east half of section 15, block 46, township one south for $2,560. The Amerada Petroleum Corporation bought the northwest quarter of section 30, block 4, H. and T. C. Ry. Co. survey in Crane county for $800. In Martin county, between Andrews and Howard, the Prairie purchased the southwest quarter of section 3, block 26, township one south, at $3.25 an acre and the Amerada secured the northeast quarter of section 16, block 36, township 1 south at $2.75 an acre.

In Borden county, due north of Howard, the southeast half of section 310 and the southeast quarter of section 365, block 97, were purchased by Humble at $5 an acre. Glasscock county was in the play with the sale of the southwest quarter of section 37, block 36, township 1 south, to the Amerada at $5 an acre, and the purchase by Roxana at $20 an acre of 480 acres out of block 36, township two south, and 240 acres out of block 35, township two south.

Near the Arkansas Fuel Oil company's No. 1 Hartgrove in Concho county, the Roxana bought the west quarter of the southwest quarter of section 46, John Minor survey, for $7.50 an acre. In the same area, out of the Minor survey, J. W. Davis bought the northwest quarter of section 46, section 1,843 and 1,844, and the eighty acres out of section 46, at $10 an acre.

Dixie Buys Heavily.

In Val Verde county, where a half dozen tests are drilling, the Dixie acquired twenty-five sections in block BB and a section in block OV at $1.50 an acre. In Terrell county, the Houston Oil company bought sections 11 and 16 in block A-4. In Crockett county, Amerada paid $30 an acre for the south 80 acres of the west 160 acres of section 1, block PP, G. C. and S. F. Ry. Co. survey. In the same county Humble paid $25 an acre for the southeast half of section 45, block 31, H. and T. C. Ry. Co. survey, and $5 an acre for the southeast quarter of section 26 and the southeast quarter of section 35, block 5, University lands.

NEAR BORGER

The American Refining company's No. 4 Weatherly, in section 18, block Y, of the M. & C. survey, near Borger in Hutchinson county, is an 85 barrel well after a 120-quart shot from 2979 to 3014 feet.

Archer, Iowa Park, Montague Climb In Production During Past Week

Big gains in Archer county, Iowa Park and Montague county, with the latter field setting a new high mark, barely offset declines in some of the other sections of the Wichita Falls district in the past week and pipeline runs were only 45 barrels higher than in the previous week.

Other fields showing higher averages were Baylor, Cooke and Jack counties. The most precipitate fall was taken in Young county where a loss of 425 barrels is shown.

Archer county's gain was largely accounted for by the excellent wells completed by Bobby Burns on his Turbeville-E lease in block 142 of the Robert Carson survey. Montague county's new peak was caused by the normal development in the Nocona field where hardly a week passes without seeing a number of good wells completed.

Daily runs by fields follow:

Field—	This Week	Prev. Week	Difference

Overproduction Cuts Number Of New Locations In West Texas Field

SAN ANGELO, March 12.—Eight new locations, all of them in proven areas except one, were made in the West Texas area during the week. Four of the new locations were in Crane county while Pecos county gained two, and Upton and Reeves counties each added another.

In Crane county the Tidal Oil company made two new locations and the Gulf Production company and the Independent Oil and Gas company made one each. The Texon Oil and Land company which is completing a well four miles south and east of the Mid-Kansas No. 1 Yates discovery well has made two offset locations. The Dixie Oil company added another in the southeast extension of the Burleson area in Upton county and the Exploration company of San Angelo has announced a location in Reeves county.

Overproduction, with a low crude oil market and inadequate storage and pipeline facilities in West Texas are the reasons assigned for the small number of new locations.

Oil production in eight West Texas counties daily running to pipelines totaled 81,496 barrels, representing a gain of 1632 barrels a day over the report for the pervious week. Reagan county is still in the lead with 28,500 barrels a day to its credit, and Upton county is running a close second with 23,685 barrels daily. Crane county has increased in proportion, with 16,224 barrels daily as its total, and Pecos county has jumped from near the last of the list to fourth place with 5046 barrels from only one well.

CHAPMAN WELL

The Roy Chapman No. 1 Montgomery, one mile south of the Bulcher field in Cooke county was drilled in Friday and made a five minute flow when swabbing was started. The well is estimated at 50 barrels and the sand is 1308-16 feet, salt water being evidenced at 1317 feet

BULCHER FIELD

The American Refining company's No. 9 Dennis in the T. J. Moss survey, Cooke county, is swabbing 40 to 50 barrels from 1295 feet. Dennis No. 10 is drilling at 400 feet and No. 11 is a location 500 feet east of No. 5.

TENTH WELL IN NOODLE CREEK

Contys Production Averages 1200 Barrels

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, March 12.— Noodle Creek oil field got another producing well this week, Phillips Petroleum company's No. 2 Tessie, south offset to the same company's No. 1 Tessie, south of the Joe Winter discovery well in the south Jones county pool tapped the pay sand at 2527 feet Wednesday and produced 35 barrels of oil by swabbing during the first nine hours after the sand was hit. Reports received here are that the well looks good and Phillips employes declare that the No. 2 Tessie may become one of the best producers in the pool.

The well completed this week gives the Noodle Creek field ten producers, making an average of 1200 barrels per day.

Phillips' No. 1 Thornton, southwest of the Tessie No. 2 is drilling ahead at 2630 feet after apparently missing the Joe Winters pay. Production will be sought in the Marland level at around 2936 feet.

Phillips Next

The next completion due in this field is the Phillips' No. 1 Beasley, which is approximately 1-2 mile southwest of the discovery well and a west offset to the Atlantic's No. 1 Howell, a 100-barrel well. The Beasley well is drilling past 2430 feet. Phillips' No. 3 Mason, west offset to Marland Oil company's No. 3 Mason, the biggest producer in the field, is down 2272 feet and is being watched closely on account of its proximity to the big well.

Gillette and Hickey-Cowboy Evans' No. 1 King, Manuel Bueno survey, three miles west of Hawley in south central Jones county, which made two heads of oil last week blowing over the rig both times, while the crew was fishing for an under-reamer lug, has been shut down this week on account of machinery troubles. Lease trading in the vicinity of this well has been exceptionally heavy the past week and good offers for acreage and royalty have been made by numerous operators. This well has been full of trouble for more than two months and the full testing of the showing of oil which was found at 2070 feet has been delayed by machinery troubles and caved in hole.

Zoch & McCamey are reported to have struck a good gas showing in their No. 1 R. M. Clayton wildcat, in southwestern Fisher county, near Claytonville. The gas was coming from 3055 feet and through 3000 feet of salt water. Efforts are now being made to shut off the water.

The Fred Phillips and others' wildcat nine miles northwest of Noodle Creek, in eastern Fisher county is drilling below 2600 feet. The drillers are expecting to pick up the Noodle Creek sand at about 2610 feet in this test. Eight-inch pipe has been set to case off two veins of strong salt water which have been encountered.

Two Failures

Two wildcat tests in western Jones county have failed to find the Joe Winter lime from which the Noodle Creek wells are producing. These two wells are Grishma-Hunter corporation and Wildman Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Williams and No. 1 Phillips estate, leagues 333 and 334. The Williams No. 1, League 333 is reported drilling at 2615 feet and the No. 1 Phillips estate is down 2870 feet. Both wells are to be carried on down in search of the pay struck at Noodle Creek below 3000 feet in the Marland No. 2 Mason. These wells are about 15 miles north of the Noodle pool.

Grisham-Hunter's No. 1 D. O. Huddleston, Grimes county school land, five miles southeast of Merkel in Taylor county, is drilling at 2125 feet.

Gibson & Johnson's No. 1 Larcent, three miles east of Noodle Creek is down 2135 feet and is drilling in a hole full of salt water coming from one of the regular water sands found in the wells of the Noodle field.

The Swensondale Oil company of Breckenridge has built a rig for a deep test on the T. M. Caton tract in northeastern Jones county, about six miles south of Stamford. Drilling is to be started within a few days.

SOUTH ARCHER

Harry Hines will set casing on a saturated lime at 9036 feet in his No. 2 Ward Brothers, located in the R. R. Rainey survey in southeast Archer county. The Halliburton test showed 40 feet of oil and the well looks like it will open up a new pool.

HEAVY PRODUCERS COMPLETED DESPITE CRUDE REDUCTIONS

PROVEN POOLS ARE WIDENED

Burns-Turbeville Pool Proves Districts' Sensation

By TOM TRULY
Record News Oil Editor

Further proving up of pools in Wichita and Archer counties provided the bulk of new production in the Wichita Falls area the past week. Archer county chalked up three wells which are far above the average in size while Wichita county furnished two with promise of a third late Saturday.

L. T. Burns has uncovered a sensational area in his "D" and "E" leases on the Turbeville ranch in Archer county. Continuing his northward march Burns completed his No. 8-D swabbing 300 barrels from the sand at 1438 to 1459 feet and two days later carried the producing limits of the pool over into block 124 of the Carson survey by completing his most profitable venture in No. 1-E which swabbed and flowed between 800 and 900 barrels from the sand at 1437-70 feet.

The American Refining company which has been completing nice wells at regular intervals down in its block 150 pool this week brought in its biggest well. From a total depth of 1515 feet this well filled the pit with oil when swabbing was started and the swab could not be put to the bottom. It is estimated that this well is a 400 barreler.

South of Iowa Park

Petroleum Producers company and United Producers company got their best well in the M. A. Love pool, south of Iowa Park in Wichita county, in No. 3 Love, which swabbed only six hours and filled the slush pit with oil. A conservative estimate gives this well an output of 250 barrels in a semi-settled state. These companies also finished up their No. 4 which is swabbing 250 barrels from 1808-16 feet, the same level from which No. 3 is producing. O'Donohoe and Gates, finding the sand at the same level as the other two wells, are reported to have attained equal success in their No. 1 Love which was being drilled in Saturday.

Cooke county apparently is assured its fourth oil pool, one mile south of the Butcher field, with Roy Chapman's No. 1 Montgomery having made two flows, the latest of which was on Friday when the plug was drilled out. Oil came out of the hole unassisted for fully five minutes. The sand is at 1308-16 feet and the total depth is 1317 feet. Water was encountered in the bottom. Since this well encountered the sand, lease trading has been brisk and other tests are expected to follow.

New Shallow Sand

Much interest is being given the Nicholson and Fraley well northeast of Forrestburg and on the Montague-Cooke county line which has found 20 feet of new sand at 736 feet and is being completed as a small producer. Subsequent wells in this area will be followed closely as they will determine the extent of the new structure.

Development was lethargic in Throckmorton county, but the Falls Production company completed its No. 1 Graham in section 985, T. E. & L. survey for a 110-barrel pumper in the 1506-18-foot sand.

In the Marland pool on the Ward estate in southeast Archer county additional land was proved with the completion of Marland and Consolidated's No. 4 and No. 3, both of which made ordinary producers.

Texas company and Consolidated Oil company brought in the best well to date for the area between the Waite Phillips and Oldham pools in southwest Archer in their No. 2 Love which swabbed 50 barrels of oil containing some water from the regular sand.

Area Blackballed

The Gulf Production company boosted production in Wilbarger county by making an 180-barrel well of its No. 2 Blackman in the W. M. McKinney survey from the 1460-foot horizon. Casing trouble prevented another completion in Roxana's No. 1 Milner while Fain-McGaha's No. 5 Fluhman a 50 barreler.

Pipeline runs gained 45 barrels over the previous week with Archer county, Iowa Park and Montague county setting the pace in amount of gain. The latter county hung up a new peak at 13,275 barrels.

GENERAL SPRING CLEAN-UP

Commencing March 15. All residents are requested to clean up all rubbish, place in containers and set out along side of alleys so wagons can pick it up. No brush or garbage will be hauled in trucks. Please be prompt and have your trash ready when trucks go through alley. Pick up all cans on premises and keep it clean thereafter.—Adv.

Rules Oil Lands

Navy department has placed Rear Admiral H. H. Rousseau, civil engineers corps, U. S. Power Company Head Seeks Textile Mills For Texas In Tour Of East

WALDO C. COLE

Waldo C. Cole, industrial commissioner of the Texas Electric Service company, has been sent to Boston and other New England cities in an effort to bring a number of textile industries to Texas, John W Carpenter, vice-president and general manager of the Texas Service company, announced recently. Mr. Cole will remain in the east at least six months, acquainting capitalists and textile mill owners with the possibilities in Texas.

Mr. Carpenter, himself, a native Texan, has devoted much of his time the last five years to trips through northern and eastern states to confer with capitalists interested in the textile industry and bring back ideas that would be helpful in the industrialization of his state. Several of the newer textile mills are now operating in Texas as the result of Mr. Carpenter's efforts.

Mr. Cole was reared in the cotton mill sections of the Carolinas, where he received much of his practical training. Until a few years ago he was in charge of the largest textile mills in Mexico.

Before leaving for New England, Mr. Cole made extensive trips through Texas, conferring with Texas mill owners, studying the growth of these mills and gathering detailed information and samples of the goods to use in presenting the case of Texas.

One of the newest advantages of Texas for textile mills which Mr Cole will present during his stay in the east will be information about Texas Technological college at Lubbock, which has become one of the ranking textile institutions in the south, although only in its second year.

PANHANDLE OIL SELLS AT $1.25

"Wildcat" Buyers Sign Contract at Former Price

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, March 12.—In one of the most uneventful weeks the Panhandle area has experienced in some time, chief interest again swung back to the Humble test in Moore county.

This is again increased with the announcement that W. S. Farish and a party of Humble officials would reach Amarillo Monday to visit this all-important operation, now thought to be nearing the pay.

Situated in section 28, block 44, eight miles south of Dumas, hopes of many are resting upon it for an early opening of a new pool to the district. It has just succeeded in muddying off the gas and has resumed drilling below 3540 feet with the hopes of officials of the company that oil will be found around 3600 feet.

Few Completions

Practically no new completions were registered during the past seven days for the local field, activities chiefly centering around efforts to complete important tests on the outer edge of Hutchinson county. Chief among these was the Paramount just south of the river bank on the western edge of the county and Anderson and Pritchard's No. 1 Yake, across the river on the eastern edge of the north Hutchinson field.

Pessimism, presumably arising from the recent price slash given the local product, to join the chorus of other fields, has about disappeared with the entrance of "wildcat" buyers, now said to be posting prices and signing contracts for crude ranging around $1.25. The recent cut placed oil for which this price is being offered at $1.05.

While completions for the week ran low, two top-notch wells are now being completed. These are Prairie and J. R. Phillips wells on the western edge of the south Hutchinson pool and in the heart of the original Borger pool.

Prairie Oil and Gas company's No. 1-A Johnson, section 21, block Y, has been flowing at the rate of 3000 barrels after starting off at 3590. Pay was at 2945 feet, the usual depth for this area.

The other heavy producer is the J. R. Phillips No. 4 Ward, section 12, block Y, which has been completed for 1500 barrels after a prolonged fishing job on top of the sand. It was given a 500-quart shot and bridged, but after being cleaned turned into a heavy producer.

The Derby Oil company is adding another good producer to the latter territory, near the Prairie well, in section 20, block Y, which was brought in to make 1400 barrels.

Reduce Storage Oil

While reductions in the oil now stored in the Panhandle are predicted because of the slackening of operation following the price cut, indications point to a heavy movement of oil now in storage. There are now shown to be 12,000,000 barrels in stock with a number of producers protected by contracts ranging around $1.25 and running as high as $1.50.

In wildcatting Marland Oil company's test, north of the river and along the Hutchinson and Moore county line is drawing into the limelight with that of the Humble farther west and south. This is the No. 1 Carver in the William Heath survey, which had drilled to 2690 feet. The lime was reported encountered there at 2340, which gives a favorable contour compared to the Hutchinson county producers, and production there will extend the present north Hutchinson field and add to the prospects for oil in Moore county.

Dallam and Hartley

Despite the fact that the Humble's test on the southern edge of Hartley county was abandoned when granite was drilled into, both Dallam and Hartley are still showing spirited drilling.

Renewed interest is being exhibited in Hartley, brought again into the limelight by the Ramsey test in Cimarron county, Okla., by the blocking of 4630 acres north of Dalhart by Waite Phillips. It lies along the Fort Worth and Denver near the town of Perico, and includes sections 7, 8, 9, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21 of block 2.

Hartley county's leading wildcat is the J. E. McKenna No. 1 Shelton, lot 29, league 202, which is now in a blue shale below 3350 feet. This is the test which recently gave that county its first showing with a rainbow at 3112.

POOL DEFINED

Three Dusters Establish East Boundary to Earlsboro

TULSA, March 12.—Two dry holes in the Earlsboro pool reported yesterday, making three in a row, definiately defines this wonderful deep sand pool to the east. Philmack Oil company and McGraw yesterday encountered water in the Wilcox sand in their No. 2 Harjo in the northeast corner of the northwest of southwest of 15-9-5. Wilcox sand was topped at 4331 feet and when drilled in the hole began to fill with water. Their No. 1 across the 40 to the east came in as a water well several days ago.

The third dry hole in this section of the pool is that of the Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Anderson, in the northwest corner of the northeast of southwest of 15-9-5 topped the Wilcox sand at 4321 yesterday when the hole filled with salt water.

Production in the Seminole area showed a decline of 6,000 barrels yesterday. The production figures showed 306,700 barrels from 262 wells. Approximately 275,000 barrels daily are taken care of by the pipelines and around 30,000 barrels a day are going to storage.

SHUTTING DOWN

The Phillips Petroleum company is shutting down operations on a number of its proposed new wells in Wilbarger county, according to scouts. Many of the wells which are being temporarily abandoned have derricks up Other companies are said to be reducing activity in Throckmorton, Archer and Montague counties. The Phillips company will within a few days have shut down on 102 wells, most of which are in Texas. It has been announced that no new acreage will be purchased for a while.

234 OPERATIONS

The Wichita Falls district reported a total of 234 operations last week, according to the Oil Weekly. Of this number 77 were rigs, 96 were drilling wells, 23 were shut-down wells, 38 completions. In the Mid-Continent the total was 4133, a decline of 26.

HOWARD CO. FIELD ACTIVE

Majors Take Lead in Developing Shallow Area

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, March 12.—With the Marland Oil company and the Magnolia Petroleum company leading in the number of locations and drilling wells, the shallow producing area in southeastern Howard county is receiving a play so far unequalled by any other shallow field in West Texas. The count for that area is twenty-nine producing wells with a daily production of 2,688 barrels and thirty drilling wells and locations.

The major oil companies are far in the lead of the independents in the development of the Howard county field. The production to date is owned by the Magnolia Petroleum company, the Marland Oil company, the Humble Oil and Refining company, Coate and Henshaw and Lockhart and company.

In the list of concerns now drilling or preparing to drill are Bowers and others, Carey and others, Comet Petroleum Corporation, Dixie Oil company, Inc., Gulf Production Oil company, Humble Oil and Refining company, Lockhart and company (three wells), Magnolia Petroleum company (nine wells), Merrick and Bristow, Reeves and Apperman (two wells), the Texon Oil and Land company, jointly with the Marland, and the Marland Oil company.

Locations made but, not yet active inc'ude, Francis and Brunson, Donnelly, Mann and Freel, Magnolia Petroleum company (five) and the Mid-West Exploration company.

Featuring the development of the field is the Marland Oil company, which recently bought control of a large part of the proven and semi-proven acreage, and since then has made a large number of locations. To date all of the Marland drilling and producing wells are on either the Chalk or the Clay properties. Marland has twelve producers on the Chalk and three producing wells on the clay. Total production is 1,176 barrels daily.

Nine wells on the Clay and ten wells on the Chalk are now being drilled by Marland. On the Clay are located the No. 2, 3, 4, 5, A-1, A-3, B-1, C-1 and D-1, while No. 10, A-3, A-4, A-5, A-6, A-7, B-1, C-1, D-1 and E-1 are on the Chalk leases.

Production in the field is usually obtained at between 1,300 and 1,500 feet and ranges all the way from comparatively small wells to 500 barrels a day for the largest. Average production runs about 80 barrels a well daily. The field is only a little more than a year old, but is already in fifth place among the oil producing counties of West Texas.

Borden county, which adjoins Howard county on the north, is coming in for a heavy lease play with many of the major companies blocking up acreage and independent operators active in that area. Heretofore more or less neglected, Borden county is now receiving attention due, in one respect, to the greatly increased drilling programs in the shallow production areas in southeastern Howard county, where the Marland Oil company recently purchased extensive acreage with several producing wells, and is now drilling a large number of wells.

While Borden county has had a few scattered tests for oil, it has never had much of a play and while the present buying does not necessarily forecast a big drilling campaign, especially in view of the present low market on crude oil, it is felt that protection on future reserves of possible producing acreage is essential. The same sort of play was made in Winkler and Ector counties following the discovery of oil in the Church and Fields well in northern Crane county.

TRAMP, TRAMP, TRAMP SHAW IS MARCHING

The shiny green Chrysler roadster which "Hank" Shaw, Roxana scout, recently convinced Dallas officials he needed is now in a local repair shop where efforts are being made to bring the car back to its former excellent condition. It all happened when a man in dire need of means of transportation drove the car away from Shaw's home Friday night and later crashed into another car on Eleventh street. An arrest was made shortly after the wreck. In the meantime Shaw is reported to be covering the territory on foot.

SAND IN KEYS WELL

Bridwell and Heydrick are setting pipe at 1398 feet in their No. 1 Keys, located in block 43, J. W. Harrison subdivision of Archer county. Sand showing oil is at 1398 to 1404 feet, and a dry sand at 1385-98 feet with shale intervening.

REAL OIL WELL

The Ramsey Brothers discovery well in Cimarron county of the Oklahoma panhandle is a real oil well, according to reports from Amarillo.

After the lost bailer was recovered from the hole late Wednesday, it was cleaned out and swabbed Thursday and put 250 barrels into a 500-barrel tank by daylight, swabbing. Its total depth is 4140 feet, steel line measurement, and said to be sandy lime, although some geologists claim that the well is bottomed in granite wash. Its top was 4090 feet.

First Reports

Tumbling Prices Cause Decline in Drilling

The regularity with which crude prices have been tumbling of late put a crimp in new drilling the past week. No new locations outside of a few in the proven areas were reported from Young, Wilbarger, Throckmorton or Montague counties. Following are some of the interesting tests in Wichita and Archer announced as the week ended:

Golding and Cochran and the Texas company No. 1 J. & J. Waggoner 150 from the north and 107 from the east line of block 34, H. George survey, abstract 454, Wichita county.

L. T. Burns No. E-2 Turbeville, 500 feet west of No. 1 and No. E-3 is 300 feet east of No. 1 in block 124, Robt. Carson survey, Archer county.

Plains Production company No. 1 L. F. Wilson is 150 feet from the south and west lines of the north 40 of the south 270 acres of the Day Land and Cattle company survey in Archer county.

Petroleum Producers company No. 1-B Turbeville, 150 feet from the south and east lines of the east 40 of the west 80 of the south 152 acres of block 124, Robt. Carson survey in Archer county.

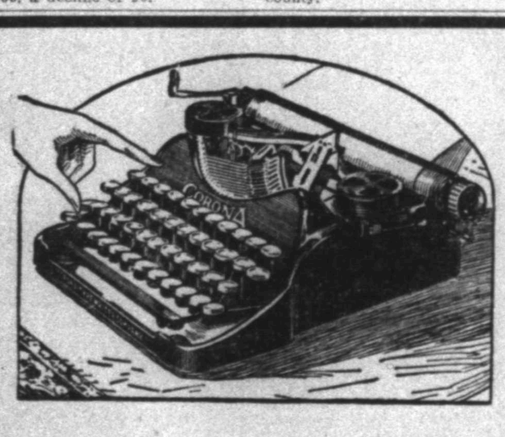

A number of other locations were announced earlier in the week.

ROBERTS, GRAHAM

The Roberts Oil company and Allday No. 1 Graham in section 3401 North Young county, which opened up a new pool in the 800 foot horizon 10 days ago, is on the pump and making 220 barrels daily.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you," weep and it keeps on laughing.

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT—

Zbyszko's Knee—
Old Man's Era—
Could Be Worse—
No It Couldn't—

By GENE FOWLER.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Stanislaus Zbyszko, getting on in years, twisted a knee some months ago. When it was inferred that an opponent had twisted it, Stanislaus said:

"No, it could not have been an opponent. Only I, Stanislaus, had the great strength to twist such a great knee."

Then he went to Europe, for, after all, what do American manipulators know about untwisting Zbyszkovian knees? The answer is the same today as it was tomorrow—nothing, precisely nothing.

At Baden-Baden, four powerful medicos worked on the knee. They failed miserably and one of them reported:

"All I can say is that I'm glad it was not his neck. Nobody could untangle such a neck. Maybe Hercules or Ajax would do something with the knee, but never the neck."

The celebrated wrestler next moved himself and knee to Havre, France, where they put Stanislaus in dry dock. While the winches were screeching and chains were rumbling, Stanislaus went slowly skyward, hanging head down. In turning to wave to a friend, he suddenly snapped his knee back into place. The French thought someone had discharged a 16-pounder, so great was the concussion.

When the unscrambled Stanislaus was launched, one of the officials of the French line broke a bottle of champagne against his ribs. And now he is back in America, having read how this country is going in for Mike McTigues, Ty Cobbs, Tris Speakers and other antiques. Concerning age, Stanislaus said:

"This is the time for men who have passed the days of youthful folly. Thomas A. Edison is just about ripe for getting a record in the pole vault. Chauncey Depew, playing in the Philadelphia Athletics outfield, would be a tower of strength to Connie Mack. Henry Ford is a bit too young yet to do anything in professional football, but with proper farming out to the minors, he ought, in fifteen or twenty years to prove to be the logical successor to Ruth in summer, Red Grange in Autumn and long underwear in Winter."

Everett Scott, formerly of the Yankees, had one of those trick knees. He was cured when his spine was readjusted. This spinal treatment also pulled Bullet Joe Bush out of a lame arm season. When Stanislaus was asked if Brittle athletes could be repaired by the spinal method, he replied:

"Maybe it is so. But I, Stanislaus, think it is quite the impossible, because so many of the boys have no spine. And with no spine to work on, then I, Stanislaus, would ask, how can that be done? I would illustrate by asking you, how can you drive a wagon that has no horse?"

"The automobile," was the reply.

"In that case," and Stanislaus expanded fourteen inches, "you make my knee feel worse. It is fellows like you that interfere with art."

* * *

Possibly the most acute case of knee trouble ever reported to Dr. Lorenze was that of Plithkins Blivver, lineman for the telephone company. Plithkins had a habit of retiring to his bed fully dressed, as it took too much energy to undress. And he loved his work and was a demon for efficiency.

Blithkins always wore his climbing irons, the kind that have those steel spurs, to bed. He claims that he suffered from the deadly nightmare, and the only way he could escape the horrid phantom was to jump in bed and climb the wooden posts. Of course, one method of climbing a bed post is to use the body scissors, but climbing irons keep you from slipping. Clever fellow, Plithkins!

Well—it is all recorded in the archives of the congressional library—when Plithkins was trying his midnight escape from the nocturnal filly, he caught his climbing iron spurs in the sheets. Here, indeed, was a dilemna, if not worse than that. He knew what to do, but couldn't do it. So he did it anyway. He took a violent plunge and alighted on his head. No damage there, obviously, but he wrenched his left leg. The left leg, as all professionals know, is very important in the business of telegraph pole climbing.

So Plithkins consulted Zbyszko. Stanislaus took one look at the knee and clamped on a toe hold. Plithkins spurred Stanislaus with his irons, and although Zbyszko, clearly had a claim of foul, he refused to make it. He merely kicked Plithkins in the jaw. This dislocated Zbyszko's knee in the same old place. Things were getting complicated. Two dislocated knees where one grew before.

Zbyszko, profiting by his experience in a French dry dock, let a contract to the Brooklyn Navy Yard to fix both his knee and that of Plithkins Blivver. Wrestlers, who are liberal but economical, say that Zbyszko figured he and Plithkins could save cab fare if they strapped their bad knees together and used the two good legs that remained to them for walking purposes. Thus they set out for Brooklyn's Navy Yard, two good men and true, walking on a total of two good legs. It was a gorgeous spectacle.

At Canal street and Lafayette, Manhattan, Zbyszko stopped in obedience to the red light from the signal tower. But Plithkins disobeyed the signal and tried to move against traffic. Moving against traffic is well enough if you get away with it, but little did Plithkins reck that he also was moving against the great Zbyszko.

The result was that Plithkins' unorthodox manouvre snapped the knee of Stanislaus back into place. But Plithkins dislocated his good knee. Thus, the sum total was the same as before—two good knees and two bad ones. But both the bad ones belonged to Plithkins. They still do. Isn't Fate a funny thing?

S-s-sh, Don't You Dare Tell Anybody About 'em

Our Mr. Williams Wants to Keep Truth About His Spudders Secret and Then Fool Rest of the Boys Over the Loop

BY BLONDY CROSS

"Well, that's all settled and I'm glad of it. Now we don't have to worry about anything but can enjoy ourselves playin' ball for the fun of it and just to see how many of 'em we can win anyhow," chuckled Carl Williams, veteran pitcher and manager of the Wichita Falls Spudders.

The announcement was caused by a sports writer who showed Williams a Dallas newspaper in which was "bannered" a story quoting Sniper Conley as declaring that the Dallas team positively, undoubtedly and otherwise, will cop the Texas bunting again this year.

And then the scribe, who happened to be a Houston sports ed on a tour of Texas camps, broke right down and laughed with Carlos until tears welled up in his eyes—laughed at Snipe Conley.

"I've looked Dallas over. I've looked the Cats over and I'm looking all of 'em over, but I never saw as tough a looking outfit in class A ball before in all my life as you have right here," yurbled the noble critic. "And the funny thing is nobody's said anything about it this year. Got the meanest club in the loop and won't tell anybody. Must be trying to spring a dirty surprise."

There you have it in an acorn shell. A team that batted past the .300 mark for the 1926 season average and which will see two changes at the most this year in the batting order, a team with the sharpest catching staff in the league, a team which has plugged its sole weak spots—short and third, and a team that at the moment boasts at least ten pitchers of class AA caliber—that's Wichita Falls for you as Williams worries his head not about who is going to fill this position and that but how he is going to keep on feeding all of 'em.

Same Old Outfield

The Spudders step out this summer with the same cold outfield—unless some of the youngsters slip up and fool somebody else. There's Tom Jenkins in the left pasture. Swings from the left side of the plate. Didn't do so well with the stick last year, but managed to lead the league, at that. Howard Fitzgerald, who can't remember the time he muffed a fly in center or failed to get under any drive that stayed in the park, is back on deck hale, hearty and hilarious. Fitz wields the willow well within the charmed circle, also. Then turn to the right and you see Lyman (Lucy) Lamb, another one of these .300 whammers and probably the most agile fielder on the circuit—at least, the most acrobatic. Lamb likes to spear warm drives while in the act of turning somersaults or sliding on his stomach. Pushing these veterans for berths are Flody Trexler, Three-Eye leaguer; Sam Jones, flashy Dallas semi-pro, who looks good enough to play on any man's team, and Clyde Wren, Rogers Hornsby's double in stature and features, a speedster who managed the McAlister club in the Western association last year.

Infield the Berries

The infield looks like a cut and dried proposition and if you will place credence in the assertion of none but Mr. Williams himself, is the class of the league which includes a revamped inner works at Houston of which the Bayou City boys have yurped many a gleeful blub this spring. Look 'em over: George LaFayette, the former Portland star, at first base. LaFayette joined the floundering 1926 Spudder machine just as it started sinking last summer, joined the club in worse shape than no shape at all can be. Took him almost the remainder of the race to round into form but he came back with the proverbial smash. This spring he's in better condish than at any time during the 1926 scramble. He'll show 'em all, declares Williams, and that takes in Walter Golvin, the San Antonio first baseman, too, who some declare is the class of minor league initial cushioners. Then cast your glims at the keystone. There you find the veterdin Pete Turgeon just as spry as ever. Check your statistics, brethren, and you'll discover Pete topped the field last year, was the best all-around second sacker in the league. And that midget can wallop! Johnny Mann, the Macon flash and the king shortstop of his league last year, another Tavener in movement but heavier and apparently a stronger hitter, appears slated for shortstop. Mann will lead the league's short fielders in every department, declares Williams who swears he is not an optimist—just honest and doesn't care who knows it. Walter (Swede) Swenson who joined the club just a few days ago and on his first time out looked like he is in top condition, seems in line to protect the dizzy corner. Just naturally looms as a tough break for Rabbit Benton who may be shifted to the utility chores. Swenson was voted tthe leading third baseman in the Three-Eye last year by the sports writers. He hit well past the .300 figure and will punch the pill at .330 this summer in Texas or Tom Jenkins talks too much, doesn't know his vegetables and made an awful miscue when he offered to wager half his season's salary on Swenson to turn in better than a .329 slugging average.

Kimbrough, the Simmons college shortstop flash, is giving several of the boys much to meditate over, and, of course, Benton, whom several clubs in the league tried earnestly to purchase the past winter, cannot be counted out. Rabbit poles 'em past .300 and he's a battler. Do your own guessing. If Benton cannot break into that infield as a regular, try to figure out just what kind of an infield it must be. However, Rabbit hasn't failed to climb the hill yet.

Great Mask Corps

Catchers? Well(how many do you want? There's Pete Lapan, agreed by many to be the cream of the circuit. Certainly never was a pluckier scrapper nor harder hustler. And can this guy hit 'em? Whew! Ask any flinger who faced him last summer. Another one of these charmed circle birds. Frank Tobin, bought from Portland, Fussell declares to be the smartest receiver in the loop and then ducks a swing from the good-natured Lapan. Williams comes to bat again with noble words of praise. Both Carl and Fussell worked with Tobin on the coast in other seasons. Emanuel Peschek, husky maskman from Chicago smei-pro circles, stacks up as one of the greatest discoveries of the era. He hits 'em, he throws 'em and he catches 'em. He's major league timber, needing just a little seasoning. Elmer Francis, another semi-pro, works behind the plate like a veteran. Class and speed to him. Few catchers as fast.

They're off this week, ladies and gentlemen.

Starting with the Frederick exhibition affairs, the boisterous Mr. Williams sends his wallopers into the field for a heavy run of practice competition

St. Paul, March 18, 19, 20.
White Sox, March 21, 22, 23.
Oklahoma City, March 25, 26, 27.
Okmulgee, April 1, 2, 3.
Detroit, April 1. 2.....
Detroit, April 7. 8.
Des Moines, April 9, 19, 11.

Gosh, Look At the Flingers

Who'll do the chunking? Nobody knows. How can you tell when you recall there is a player limit to cope with? You can't figure Fred Fussell, the most formidable wronghander in the league, out of it, can you? Nor can you sidetrack the youthful Buster Ross, one of the most baffling lefthanders to ever enter the circuit which was buffaloed for so long by that peer of minor league portsiders, Joe Pate. Jess Sargent, the Pacific Coast semi-pro, stacks up as a forkhand menace, too. World's of stuff and pretty nice control.

Then there's Long Jim Roberts, the righthander and last year Williams' main silencer. Now tag 'em off. What are you going to do with Tom Estell, the sturdy spitballer? Where do Shovel Hodge, Joe Kiefer and Williams himself, all holdovers of proven meitle, come in? After you've doped that out settle for us, if you please, the status of Milt Steengrafe, purchased last winter from the White Sox at a neat sum, and G. Washington Payne, bought from Portland at another nifty price, according to Prez Alvin Gardner. Got that settled? Well, how about Lester White, one of the most promising young righthanders in the league; Herb Cobb, another promiser, and Hal Devinev? Then figure the raft of recruits in, too. You can have the job picking 'em and it's a safe gamble Williams wishes he didn't have it.

Indian Baseball Men Hard At It

Non-Conference Competition To Fill Schedule

Coach Herb Ludgate and his Junior college Indians have been rocking right along with their baseball practice and are showing a lot of promise for the coming season. They have been working with a very small number of men and as yet have had no chance for a scrimmage of any kind.

Among the best prospects of the team are several of the high school stars of last year. Coach Ludgate has not matched any games for the future, but will get some lined up as soon as possible.

Ludgate announced Friday afternoon that the Indians were not going to enter the State Junior College conference in baseball but will confine the team's playing to local competition and nearby high schools. He hinted, however, that he might take on one or two college teams before the year was out.

Homer Doke, the chubby maskman, is counted upon to be one of the big guns of the team this year. Doke is a smart catcher of several years of high school experience and he can hit the ball.

Lefty Robertson is promising to be the leading pitcher of the team. Like Doke, Robertson is a graduate of the Wichita Falls high school and from the high school nine.

Kennard Rundell, another old Coyote star, will be in the infield, but at what position is yet to be decided. Rundell is a sharp hitter and a fast little fielder.

Olin Harvey is another who is showing up well for an infield berth. Harvey is a fast man on foot and a smart hitter.

There are several other very promising prospects on hand and they should have a very successful season of it.

SCHOCKER QUITS YANKEES

Urban Shocker reached a parting of baseball ways with the New York Yankees at St. Petersburgh, Fla., thus adding to the troubles of Miller Huggins, who must watch a $210,000 Yankee investment, Babe Ruth, hobble around with the aid of a cane for a week or so. Shocker is leaving camp soon because the Yanks will not meet his terms. Babe gained an extra yard sliding into a bag Wednesday, but nearly lost a foot when his cleats caught. The Yankee manager has decreed a week's rest for the torn muscle in Babe's left leg.

ALONZO-HUNTER WINNERS

PALM EACH, Fla., March 12. (AP)—Manuel Alonzo and Francis T. Hunter won the Florida state doubles championship on the Royal Poinciana courts here Saturday, defeating William T. Tilden II and Wilber Coen Jr., in three straight sets, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

PACK GRIDDERS BUZZING ALONG

Spring Calesthenics Displays Bright Outlook

Spring football hopes of the Wichita Falls Coyotes are looking more than passing fair. They have been working hard for about two weeks now and have commenced to round into such condition that their showing has been more than pleasing to Coach Bud McCallum.

The squad was split last week into two teams and turned over to old letter men capable of handling the teams and Coach McCallum turned his attention to the track team.

The two men, who took charge, as coaches, were Coyal Francis and B. D. "Red" Ewing. Both have proved to be worthy of the responsibility and the work that they have been doing with their own squads have been of a very worthy nature.

If the team can keep in the same shape all summer as they are now showing promise of being when the spring session is over they should go farther than the bi-district games next fall.

The two teams will clash soon and this contest should be a game of much interest to the fans of Wichita Falls. This game should draw a great attendance and should be one way in in which the fans can get a line-up onthe chances of the Coyotes in 1927.

While there are several of the much counted upon men of next year not out for the spring workouts, the fans know of what they can do and they are only wanted to get a line on new comers in the ranks of the Cardnal and Black machine.

Captain Absent

Raymond Mitchell, the captain-elect of the football team next year is among those missing at the counting of noses in the spring practice. The fans know that he is counting noses in the spring fast, and shifty and a good ground gaining backfield man.

Maurice Alred is missing, too. Alfred has showed he packs the fight and the ability to play his position at end or half with the team. There are few better prospects on the team for the coming season than Maurice. This lad has the great desire to be a four letter man for his last two years of high school. Already this season he has lettered in two sports, football and basketball, and is trying hard for a letter in track and tennis.

Another young man is being counted upon this coming year in the line is none other than little Pete Powell. With Junior high school year before last, Powell showed up to be one of the best men that school has ever turned out, and they have turned out a good many of the Coyotes' former and present stars.

Both of the squads as they stand at the present time are looking very good and should make the each other hustle when the two clash. This long looked for clash will probably come the latter part of this week.

McKinney Helps

In Melvin McKinney, Coach Ewing has a very able assistant with his tutoring task. McKinney is another that is capable to handle the work that has been out for him. This little fellow started last year at quarterback but the injury to Jewel Sisk forced him to take an end position at this post he carried on the fight in a manner that brought him much praise from the fans.

With the Francis crew there has been several young men that are coming fast to the front. Lefty Watson, kid brother of the famous Shorty, of Coyote fame, some years back, is a great lover of the game and one who gets in there and gives his best all the way. He is fast and shifty. He has his eyes on a backfield berth.

The two Bell brothers, Edwin and John, are also looking good on the Francis crew. Both of these youngsters have been working hard to make the grade.

With Ewings' crew is mostly a list of linesmen. Eggleston Ramey, Randal, Hanks, and Duncan Perkins are the linesmen who are flashing brightly.

Shorty Hicks, well known quarterback for several years with Junior high school, is doing the quarter work with the squad and is making a good job of it.

Maurice Bullard is showing up exceptionally well in a halfback position and should develop into a good man by next fall. He is fast and shifty and hits a line with plenty of force.

Lofton Edmonson is expected to round out the team this spring in the backfield. Edmonson was with the team last year and made a great showing until he was injured. He is big and has a good many pounds of real power behind him when the lunges into a line of scrimmage.

Difference of Three Ounces May Make Fothergill Leading Batsman of League

By George Moriarty, Manager, Detroit

SAN ANTONIO, March 12.—A difference of three ounces nearly gave Bob Fothergill the coveted recognition of being the leading batsman of the American league last season. Readers who presume that the three ounces came off Fothergill's frame are entirely off the track. The reduction pertains to his bat. In baseball a difference of a few ounces in a piece of wood may lead to achievement, and that is the story.

* *

The big left fielder related his experience here today. Fothergill, who is a great natural batsman, was in the throes of a most aggravating slump during the middle of last season.

Unable to snap out of it himself he sought the advice of his teammates which is customary when a player is off stride. Red Wingo was the first to speak. "Try a lighter bat, and your troubles will be over, Bob," was Wingo's comment. With that advice he tossed his favorite club to Fothergill who walked up to the plate and belted the first ball pitched for a hard, clean single.

* * *

"As soon as the ball shot off the bat I knew a radical change had taken place," said Fothergill. "My own clubs weighed 40 ounces each, and Wingo's totaled only 37. I seemed to get the lighter bat around with a quicker follow through and it felt well balanced, while my own bat was top heavy and awkward." From that time on Fothergill's average started steadily upward.

Two, three and sometimes four hits was his daily portion against the enemy. Fans all over the country began to name him as the batting champion because of his phenomenal spurt. Three weeks before the season ended he was leading the circuit by a comfortable margin and then came a streak of hard luck that found him pounding line drives at the fielders. Just about this time Heinie Manush, another powerful slugger of the Tigers, staged a clouting bee which won the laurels for him during the last two weeks of play. It was a tough break for Fothergill because I was told in Detroit last week that he was to be presented with a luxurious motor car if he had won the batting crown.

Moriarty Praises Marty McManus

By GEORGE MORIARTY.

SAN ANTONIO, March 12.—A change of ball clubs has evidently had an exhilerating effect upon Marty McManus, the new second baseman of the Detroit Tigers.

He is displaying that rare brand of willingness and enthusiasm in the arduous preliminary grind, to such an extent that he has already been advised to slow up in his efforts to eliminate the possibility of going stale after the first half of the American League race.

* * *

Coach Lefty Leifield, who was intimate with McManus, during the regime of Lee Fohl at St. Louis, had the following to say about the new Tiger infielder today:

"I have never seen McManus get over the ground any faster than he has done in the past few days. His throwing, particularly, is a revelation to me.

* * *

"I never thought he could shoot the ball around the diamond with the speed he has revealed here.

"Under the circumstances, I would like to see Marty save some of his pep for the strenuous months of July, August and September, and round out the season with the top speed that everyone is predicting for him." McManus, himself, has perfect confidence in his ability to make good. "Perhaps the change of clubs has something to do with it," commented McManus, "because I feel like I am starting all over again, and could be ready if the bell was to ring in 10 days.

"As much as I regret leaving the Browns, I realize it is all part of the game. In Tavener, I shall have one of the cleverest and fastest shortstops to team up with, and I want to gear myself to his particular style of play before the season begins.

* * *

"Tavener makes most of his double play throws in over-handed fashion, while Gerber, my former partner, adhered to the side arm and scoop style in starting the double killing.

"Best of all," concluded McManus, "is the fact that I have never felt better since I started playing professional ball, and I am eager to hook up with Tavenor in order to map out our plans for the various plays that pop up around the keystone territory."

* * *

The entire Detroit team is glad to have McManus as a fellow member because they figure he has beaten them single handed to the extent of five or six games every summer, by virtue of his clouting proclivities.

If ease of mind, endurance and aggressiveness indicate the proper spirit, everyone in camp believes that McManus is set for the best season of his career.

HOMER LOCKS SCORE

Roy Mahaffey and Guy Morrison, rookie pitchers, made an effective impression in the intra club game of the Pittsburgh Pirates at Paso Robles Friday only three hits being garnered off the righthanders who worked for the regulars. The yannigans, however, held the regulars to a 4-4 tie in nine innings, a homer by Comorsky of the yannigans in the sixth locking the score.

Olney Schools Organize Team

Track Squad Will Compete In County Meet

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, March 12. — Track teams are being organized and trained in the high school both among the boys and girls preparatory to the county interscholastic meet to be held in Olney on March 18 and 19. New interest was aroused in girls athletics by the organization this week of a girls' volley ball team, and the girls are also training to compete in the 25-yard dash, the 50-yard dash, the 100-yard dash, and shot put, the discus throw, the javelin throw and other events.

The boys coached by O. P. Herm, are developing some very promising track material and Olney hopes to come out of th meet with a creditable array of honors in these events. The following boys are trying out for places on the track team: Earl Suite, Charlie Russell, Edgar Hart, Bennie Hart, Stewart Lamb, Elliston McKinney, Rhea Anderson, Braton Harville, James O'Brien, Elbra Cosby, Irving Watkins, Carl West, Doyle Hankins, Glenn Jones, Haskell Crain, Leon Roberts, Cleon Lipe and Doyle St. John.

Heavy Lies Head Of Champion Pilot

Flag Winner Finds it Double Tough to Repeat

By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, March 12.—Here is an old saying slightly paraphrased: "Needles and pins, needles and pins, when you win a pennant, your trouble begins." Paradox that it may seem, the team that wins a pennant, is usually set for a series of shocks.

Look back at the pennant winners of the past, and one will note that very few of them have won flags three times in succession, because that is a rare exception. In the majority of cases a club wins once, and many times it will come under the wire twice in succession, but in all cases, it augurs a process of rebuilding.

That First Danger.

The first danger warns the manager that a few cogs of the machine are badly worn, and he knows that the punch will be missing the following year. Usually, the pitching staff displays signs of lost power, and it is likely that a manager may discover this while he is winning or losing a world's series. Perhaps, his catcher, shortstop and an outfielder reach the ragged edge at the same time. If this is so, and the incoming crop of youngsters fail to fill their places, the club is obliged to put up a last stage battle to finish in the first division.

It seems logical that 25 athletes cannot keep on winning without showing the inevitable flaws that come with the grind. There is also another odd phase in connection with a flag winning team. The following season every player on the club asks for an increased salary, which, of course, is justified. In case the club does not again cop top honors, the wise club owner realizes that he has merely boosted his players' pay checks as a reward for winning the previous year. Clark Griffith once told me that the winning of a pennant meant at least a 25 per cent increase in players' salaries the succeeding season.

Sens Lucky to Get Meyer.

The Washington club is very fortunate in picking up a player like Benny Meyer to replace Roger Peckinpaugh. While Meyer is not his peer as a fielder, he is clever, and should show a big improvement in the handling of ground balls this season. Meyer's real strength is his hitting ability, in which he easily outclasses his great predecessor, Peck. Stanley Harris is as good as ever at second, and with those two important spots reliably filled, the Senators' inner works is apt to loom up as formidable as of old. Tris Speaker will undoubtedly add punch to the outfield. If the Senators can show a decided improvement in the box this coming years, every club in the American league will find them dangerous opponents.

Just how fast is the Texas league, anyway? Incidentally, the boys and girls of the inner circle aver she'll be much speedier than she was during the whirlwind campaign of 1926.

* * *

But back again, just how fast is she? Andy Anderson, the Buff scribe, wurps a little nourishment for thought. For instance, he says, "Well, how fast do yuh figure Deebie Foss and Huck Betts? Yuh know what I mean What class ball player do you dope 'em?

* * *

CAN YOU IMAGINE THAT?

"Oh, almost everybody knows Deebie and Huck aren't good enough to make the grade with any Texas team other than Waco." I simmered at him trying to guess what his point was. I missed it, for he replied. "That's the big catch. Those guys can't even get over at Waco, but do yuh know St Paul has 'em calculated as champions? Yessir, Foss and Betts who aren't smart enough ball players to roll over the ripple in the Texas league are looked upon as world beaters in the Saints' camp where I was the other day. Got those guys figured as regular kings in a class double-A league. Now, that's just how fast the circuit Mr. Roberts rules is."

* * *

And then I walked off quite awed and wondered what St. Paul would do if it had infielders like Petey Turgeon, outfielders like Jenkins and pitchers like Roberts and Fussell. Why those birds, the Saints, would think they ought to be playing in the world's series instead of just fooling around in the American association.

* * *

JUST ORNERY

Haven't been able yet to analyze whether Lamb megely has a wonderful sense of humor or is just naturally mean. For instance, photographer wished to take a shot at Tom Jenkins. There was a loud disturbance at the batting cage. "Whoap! Whoa! Don't fire yst." It was Lamble who was coming a-running. He'd dropped his bat and forfeited his turn at the plate. "Let him stand up beside me so he'll look like SOMEBODY!" Lucy blurbed at the astonished picture puncher.

NARROW ESCAPE

Jenkins, by the way, we have learned from fairly reliable sources not so many hours ago stood wobbling on the brink of a matrimonial catastrophe Now, Tut, you know, has bushy eyebrows longer than the average flapper's bob. It seems that Mrs. Tot got gay with him while the swarthy slugger was taking a siesta and swung into action with a pair of shears. The great man awoke in a heavy rage. For, so he declared, his prowess like that of the one-time famous Kid Samson lies in his hair. Not that of the head, however, that of the eye-brow. But he got himself a couple of base knocks that afternoon in a varsity-freshman game and peace reigned again on connubial seas.

* * *

Mr. Jenkins any day hungers more for base blows than for food. Talk about curtailing hickory exercises and straightway a moan and howl similar to that of a fatally wounded lion cub rolls from the disgruntled lips of the mighty mauler. If ever by some oversight, and that's impossible, Jenkins forgot to take his regular turn at bat thereby missing out, the Spudders would have a suicide case on their hands. That spirit, girls and boys, is the reason the Spudders have listed on their roster the Texas league's most brutal bludgeoners instead of Tom Jenkins, just another outfielder. Practice, my boy, continues to have much to do with proficiency in all walks.

BEAUMONT NINE WINS

BEAUMONT, March 12. (AP)—The first exhibition game of the season for the Exporters resulted in a 7 to 4 victory over the House of David team here this afternoon. It was a free hitting affair with Stump Edington and First Baseman Kent, a rookie, getting home runs for the home team. The visitors made their four runs in the ninth inning by getting to Clyde Nance, former East Texas league pitcher, for six hits. Score:

Davids	4	10	0

J. Robertson, Emmons, Nance, C. Robertson and Wheeler; G. Sharrock and Swanson.

BUFFS MEET DAVIDS

HOUSTON, March 12. (AP)—The Buffaloes will inaugurate their exhibition games with a battle with the House of David team here tomorrow. Joe Mathes has indicated that he will select his hurlers from Bernier, a St. Paul semi-pro, Lefty Myers from Fort Smith, Roy Boyd from Syracuse, John Moore from the Rio Grande Valley league and Ray Pipkin, a holdover.

The Buffalo chief is well pleased with the progress his squad has made after a week of training.

FORT WORTH CATS WIN

FORT WORTH, March 12. (AP) The Fort Worth Cats won their first exhibition game of the season at Panther park Saturday afternoon, 9 to 8, from Oklahoma City, when Ziggy Sears, going in as a pinch hitter singled with the bases filled and none out in the last half of the ninth inning. Eddie Moore had slammed a home run into the right field stands in the eighth inning to pull the Panthers into a tie for the second time with the Indians.

Spudders Defeat Frederick Boosters In Opening Joust

Wichita Falls Texas Loop Entry Takes Long End of 8 to 5 Score in Exhibition

BY BLONDY CROSS
Sports Editor, Wichita Falls Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., March 12.—Playing a fast game here this afternoon despite a cold, high wind, the Frederick Boosters went down in defeat before Wichita Falls' Spudders by a score of 8 to 5. The game was cut to seven innings because of the near gale which prevented throwers arms from limbering up like they should.

The Boosters presented a wonderful array of ball tossers to battle the Wichita Falls Texas league entry, Zeller, the pitching ace of the home crew, looked at times like a major league twirler.

Banks, initial sacker, besides playing a snappy defensive game thrilled the fans with a four-ply swat. Albright, the shortstop, played a whale of a game throughout and drew much comment from the visiting players.

Hussey Plays Well.

Hussey, guardian of the hot corner, played flawless ball defensively and slammed out three safeties one of which was a triple, another a double and the other a single. This lad strolled to the plate in the final frame with the bases drunk and cleaned up with a sizzling double.

Frank Kimbrough, the former Simmons college Cowboy and one of the flashiest rookies now in a Texas league training camp, played second base in the place of Wee Pete Turgeon who was left at home to work on a charley horse and he played it well. He proved himself a wonder at fielding and at the platter he straightened out one of Zeller's slants for a double and another for three cushions.

Joe Bill Bullock of Newcastle did a neat job of third basing and got two clean safeties squarely on the nose.

Francis, the young catcher from Fort Worth, looked like a million dollars in both phases of the great pastime. He hit safely both times at bat and to top off a great day he caught a runner off first base.

Mann Shows Speed.

Johnny Mann, the new Spud short fielder, covered his territory in a clever manner very pleasing to Boss Williams.

Lyman "Lucy" Lamb gave the Frederick bugs a bit of a circus thrill when he shagged a long foul and turned two flips on his ear in doing it. LaFayette the first baseman fielded 12 chances perfectly and looked like another Hal Chase scooping up numerous bad tosses in the high wind.

The two clubs hook up again at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. Manager Carl Williams has not yet announced his starting pitcher for the second game but it will probably be Fred Fussel, the great left-hander, who was rearing to get some action Saturday. But Williams was saving this ace for the big Wichita Falls crowd which is expected out Sunday.

BEARS SIGN STAR

SAN ANTONIO, March 12. (AP) Interest in the Tiger-Bear clash, opening the exhibition series here today, was centered on Walter Newman, young pitcher from Cuero. When he picked up his glove to take the mound against such reputed cudgel swingers as Heinle Manush, Bob Fothergill and Harry Heilmann, it almost appeared like a farewell message but as the game progressed and he held the 3 to 1 hit between them there was evidence that he did not need a bell to sound the alarm that the Bears have a pitcher who is going to make himself hard and felt this year.

STEERS LOSE AGAIN

DALLAS, March 12. (AP)—Dallas Steers pulled up valiantly in the late phases of Saturday's exhibition ball game with the St. Paul Saints to avert another disaster by the timely strikeout of Eich, Lind and Walker, new members of the 1927 herd, the adverse score was kept down to 8 to 5 a favorable contrast against the 20-7 calamity the Saints precipitated Friday at Mineral Wells.

BILL MOORE REPORTS

FORT WORTH, March 12. (AP)—The number of Cats missing from training camp here were reduced to three Saturday when Bill Moore reported. He is the right hand pitcher secured from the Rochester club of the International league. Lindimore, Weber and Clayton are still out, but all have sent word they will be here early next week. The Cats play their first exhibition game this afternoon with the Oklahoma City club, of the Western league

PALS CLASS WINS

CORSICANA, March 12.(AP)—The Pals class of the Corsicana Baptist church Saturday defeated Galveston 55 to 17 in a semi-final game of the Sunday school basketball tournament being played here. The Pals and the Gaston Gorillas of Dallas meet tonight to decide the championship.

Bears Trounce Detroit Tigers

San Antonio Club Trims Feline Claws

By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, March 12.—The Tigers claws were clipped and his knashing teeth were filed down to a respectable smoothness here today by Mr. Grizzly, who not only showed George Moriarty's sluggers some unexpected pitching strength but by taking liberties with the southpaw shoots, slants and whatnot offered by Rudy Kneisch, won the first exhibition game by a 4 to 1 decision.

Honus Hitze, Bear manager, almost fainted when the final out was recorded for he honestly expected the Tigers to feast on Bear meat for nine innings.

Detroit got only two singles off Newman in five frames and one hit, a triple by the reliable McManus, off Sep Good, a rookie twirler, the rest of the way.

Holloway and Gibson, Detroit right handers, did not allow the Texas leaguers a hit in the five innings they labored under the hot sun but Kneisch was freely hit in the fourth, fifth and sixth frames, two triples and one double being garnered off his reportoire of shoots.

The fielding of both clubs was brilliant, despite the four errors.

The Bears made four double killings and the Tigers one. More than 3500 witnessed the tussle.

'Big Train' Put To Bed For Rest

Injured Foot Forces Noted Twirler to Bed

TAMPA, Fla., March 12. (AP) In his bed at the Tampa Bay hotel today lay a diamond star beginning his 21st year as a major league player, but his first siege as an invalid.

Walter Johnson sought to forget in the conversation of numerous visitors the weight of plaster cast on his left leg which kept him from joining his mates in their spring maneuvers and will keep him out of uniform for six weeks more.

Trainer Mike Martin, who refused to make the trip with the Senators after Johnson suffered a broken bone Wednesday when a line drive from Joe Judge's bat struck his ankle, hovered about his charge as a physician would attend a patient.

"When I'm not playing baseball," Johnson confided, "I'd rather be following a good bird dog When I can't do that I like to fish. Least of all I like to stay in bed and do nothing. It's something new to me."

It is Johnson's first experience as an invalid in his 20 years of service.

MOSTIL OUT OF GAME

SHREVEPORT, La., March 12. (AP) — Physicians attending Johnny Mostil said today that the White Sox outfielder would never be able to play baseball again as a result of his recent attempt at suicide. He slashed himself with a knife in the attempt and physicians said that the tendons leading to the second and third fingers of his left hand were severed. While the were connected and would heal, they are not expected to be normal again.

TWO OLDTIMERS SIGN

Two old timers who relatively are newcomers in the Lakeland spring training camp of the Cleveland Indians, have stepped in to put a lot of fire in the tribe. Sherry Smith, veteran southpaw, who has yet to sign a contract, polished the youngsters off in disguising delivery and Joe Sewell's voice booming across the infield just about made a rah rah session of the meeting Friday.

TILDEN IN NEW COURT

Arrested on the south Dixie highway for displaying too much speed, on the road, he was taken to police court. The judge told him to confine his speed to the tennis court or he would find himself "receiving a sentence," and "serving time."

TO DEVELOP PITCHERS

Manager George Moriarty of the Detroit Tigers is putting his pitching staff through a stiff course of fielding practice at the club's camp in San Antonio. It is the ambition of the New Tiger boss to develop pitchers who can field the ball on a par with George Dauss and Carl Mays.

TWO CARDS HOLD OUT

Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, is at the Avon Park, Fla., camp but was unable to give any news of the two holdouts. Pitcher Flint Rhem and Shortstop Tommy Thevenow. He refused to talk about the two players which was taken as an indication the club was no nearer signing them than before.

COYOTES FAIL IN TRACK TILT

Pack Unable to Score At Fat Stock Show

FORT WORTH, March 12.—When they announced the names of the winners in the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show track meet held Saturday afternoon none were chalked up as being members of the Wichita Falls Coyotes.

Several of the representatives from the city without a falls were able to place in the heats but in the semi-finals were obliged to take the dust from representatives of other Texas high schools.

Truman McCoy was the oustanding representative from Wichita Falls. He went into two dash semi-finals but did not place in either one.

Meredith Comes Sixth

In the 440-yard dash Filmore Meredith came in sixth in a field of 41 entrants. Another Wichita Falls entrant in this event, Miller flopped on one of the turns and due to injuries was forced to withdraw from the event.

Second money in the third heat of the 120-yard high hurdles went to Walter Pinney, star sky jumper for the Coyotes, but in the semi-finals he failed to place.

Ninety feet, and little over, was not enough distance for Bob West and John Welle. Coyote discus heavers, to place in the hurling event. West and Welle chucked the plate over 90 feet but several heavers from other Texas schools whirled it over the century mark.

16 Records Broken

Sixteen records were broken and two tied in the two divisions, eight being shattered and one tied, respectively in the classes.

Records shattered in the college division were the high jump, shot put, mile run, 440-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles and the mile relay. The one tied mark was in the pole vault. Burgess of Texas A. and M. led the boys in the matter of record shattering, setting two new marks for athletes to shoot.

He sped the 100-yard dash in 10 second flat, two-tenths of a second under the previous mark established by Kirksey of Burleson college in 1925. The other mark to fall through Burgess' efforts was the 220-yard dash, which he ran in 23 seconds flat. Wilson of A. and M. set the old mark of 23.1 second in 1926.

S. M. U. Sets marks

S. M. U.'s entries in the meet were responsible for four of the new marks. The team established a time of three minutes 32.2 seconds, three and five-tenths seconds under the old mark set by North Texas State Teachers college in 1926. In order to accomplish the feat, the S. M. U. quartet was forced to give its all to come out the winner over the Eagles, winners of the trophy the past two years.

The two final men in the teams, Hooper of S. M. U. and Noah of the Eagles, displayed a great race to the several hundred fans present. Getting off to about a 20-yard advantage, Hooper found himself hard pushed. However, the fast pace of the Eagle runner began to show on him 50 yards from the finish and Hooper pulled in the victor.

Boys Set Fast Pace

Hooper, Brown and Hooks were the three individuals setting the pace for the boys. Hooper showed the way to the boys in the mile run, coming in the record time of four minutes 32.2 seconds.

Hooks sent the 16-pound shot put practically three feet beyond the mark set by Jim Cantrell of T. C. U. in 1926. The new mark is now 43 feet one and one-half inches. Brown was the class in the 220-yard low hurdles. He pulled in at the finish with a new mark of 25 three-tenths seconds. The old mark was 26 seconds flat established by Jones, unattached in 1926.

Ernest Parker, Fort Worth and Captain of the Texas A. and M. track team, won new laurels in the 440-yard dash, reeling it off in 52 one-tenth seconds. Noah of the North Texas State Teachers college held the old mark of 52.4 seconds.

Terrill Star Shines

Joe McRoberts, star of the Terrill school team of Dallas, was the eighth man to give the boys something new to shoot at in the meet to come, clearing the bar at six feet two inches in the high jump. Crawford of Southwest Texas State Teachers college held the old record of five feet 11 inches. Dingwell of S. M. U. tied the one record of the past meets when he sailed over the bar at 11 feet in the pole vault.

Over in the high school division Robert Hall of Masonic home was the leader in record breaking. He established his two marks in field events, tossing the discus 138 feet; 12 feet three inches over the mark set by him in 1926. His other honors were won in the shot put, sending the iron ball 47 feet 3 inches. Stewart of Central high held the old record of 46 feet 3 inches.

Those two record marks gave Hall point honors in the high school division with ten and placed his team fourth in the ranking.

Baldry Leads Team

Baldry helped his school, Forest Avenue high of Dallas carry off first honors by setting a new mark in the pole vault going one inch over the old record of 11 feet, held by Bassinger of Central high, Fort Worth. Hamiter was another steller performer for the Dallas school setting a new mark in the 440-yard dash, traversing it in 1.4 seconds better than the time set by Terrell of Central in 1926.

Beames aided his team, Kingston, in finishing in a tie with Electra for third place by going 22 feet one inch beyond the board in the broad jump.

Key of Anson was another youth to return to his home town in glory, showing the way to the remainder of the field in the 220-yard dash; speeding over the distance in the time of 23.9 seconds.

Will Charley Lose Out This Time?

CHARLEY GRIP

Undefeated and ballyhooed as one of the greatest men at his weight who ever stepped onto a canvas, Charley Grip, the Buffalo junior middleweight, stands ready to defend something or other against all comers.

The busy bullet-head has scampered all over the section cleaning up on everything he encountered. He's won so many matches on the local mat there's talk of boycotting him.

Charley has been on the verge of defeat here several times, swallowed gobs of punishment but always came back fighting. Now, they say, he's in for more trouble. He tangles with Billy Halias, the Cincinnati Greek man of malm who is declared to be one of the very toughest and roughest in the game today. Match is carded Tuesday night at the Palace.

The battle is to be supported by a boxing card. Country Boy Lance of Gainesville tackles Pug Humphries of Wichita Falls in a ten-rounder. The original Jamaica Kid meets Fighting Sam in six rounds, and Leo Voss scraps Soldier Burns in a four-rounder, according to the promoter's announcement.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

As unpredicted as it was masterly, Michael Francis McTigue has taken it upon himself to accept his first absolute fight and guaranteed defeat (through the hands of a refereeing official).

Baseball's training in the south,
The season is beginning;
The fan does practice in the north,
For his seventh inning.

moreso than at any stage of his career. His shady career still shadows. Michael can say, "I was not hurt; my mouth was bleeding. Why should the bout with Sharkey have been stopped? I might have knocked him out in the twelfth round.

Who can answer Francis McTigue?

Mike will always be a contender, always a fighter, also can answer—always he can answer.

* * *

It had been rumored that McTigue learned his game in taking a subsequent knockout from M. Chapdelaine, a light heavyweight from Canada, which was evident, but unlasting.

He was boisterous in his radiated learning when cross-mitting with the wrestler, Berlenbach. His experience with Sharkey should be educationally complete. What Francis has learned from Sharkey has no financial market now.

Now Michael Francis McTigue must slap Gene Tunney down on the street to prov his contending qualities.

All sports seem to be flourishing but the wrestling business. Wrestling is a game that is undoubtedly beyond the control of human endeavor. It is still a sport that will be watched, for what reason we have failed to find. There is only one solution to its success, and that's complete exhaustion of one of the participants.

As the game stands today, all are exhausted—the ringside goes along with the champion and his opponent.

In the days of Greek glory wrestling was the most popular of sporting events. The two warriors who then wrestled would hang on until one fell, completely out. Even the winner would fall after he was awarded the crown of olive leaves, and that's all he got for his trouble.

The loser was generally dead when the event closed.

That is the only seeming solution to wrestling. Choke the other fellow to death. As it is, they are choking the game and all the gate receipts.

It is so easy to act when wrestling. Facial expressions are the

Spring's awakening now has come,
The baseball's in the groove;
The checker players yawn again,
It's the other fellow's move.

only count. If you are on your back and your tongue is sticking out, you lose, to meet the same guy the next night and win.

Wrestling cannot prove a thing. We take it for granted that the winner won and the loser lost. Can't somebody choke somebody else for a decision, or let the falls count. The game must be rearranged for the convenience of the fan.

WASHINGTON U. WINS.

AMES, Iowa, March 12. (AP)—Washington University repeated its annual performance of winning the Missouri Valley conference swimming meet this afternoon. The St. Louis team scored 60 points compared with Iowa State college swimmers, who trailed in second place with 25 points.

GIRL LOOPERS IN TWO GAMES

Decision Tests Set For Wednesday Night

Something big is bound to happen Wednesday night when the four Wichita Falls girls basketball teams tangle in a pair of games at the Junior college. The possibilities include a championship for the Electrics and a four-way tie of every team in the league.

The Electrics and P. B. M. are now tied for first place with a percentage of .667 while the Conocos and Whippets are tied for the cellar or second place at .333.

P. B. M. plays the Conoco club and the Electrics take on the Whippets in an effort to break the deadlock and decide the championship club.

The Electric flappers copped the first half of the chase and should they whip the Whippets and the Conocos trounce the department store girls Wednesday the Texas Electric Service company will have sponsored a championship feminine team. On the other hand, there are a number of ways to guess the outcome and as stated above, something big is just bound to happen.

Followers of each of the four aggregations are marshalling their forces to assure a victory and the season's largest crowd is expected to be on hand.

BALLOON JUMPING.

By Universal Service.

LONDON, March 12.—England's attempt to introduce "balloon jumping," whereby sportively-inclined individuals fasten a balloon between the shoulders and proceed to cover the countryside in leaps and bounds a la kangaroo, has met with dire results.

F. Dobbs of the Royal Air Force, tried the new Dodge. He cleared tree-tops, fences and barns but failed to clear high voltage wires. Dobbs is the first martyr to balloon jumping.

HORSE RACES STOPPED.

By Universal Service.

RACE TRACK, POMPANO, Fla., March 12.—Governor John W. Martin stopped horse racing here today.

Several thousand fans waited an hour for the meet to start, when it was suddenly announced by President Paul Beacom that his last appeal to the governor had failed.

Preparations were commenced immediately to remove the entire racing establishment, human and equine, to northern courses.

NEW BALE PARK.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 12. (AP) Mill work will start soon on new stands to make the Houston, Texas, baseball park rank the best in minor leagues, it was announced tonight by President Sam Braeden and business Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals following a conference Saturday at Avon Park, Fla., training camp. Houston is a Cardinal farm.

ALTUS CAGERS WIN

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., March 12. Grandfield girls and Whiteflat will meet in finals by virtue of their victories over Gould and Humphreys.

BOY'S GAME FATAL.

BRECKENRIDGE, March 12. (AP)—Playing the game of "stealing a ride" was fatal here Saturday for Joe Jones, 7-year-old son of Mrs. C. J. Jones. The boy was riding on the coupling pole at the rear of a wagon, and fell off into the path of an automobile. He rolled beneath the wheels of the automobile and was killed.

SEVEN-RUN INNING

Expansive grins shown forth from the faces of the Browns Saturday as they talked over their seven-run feat in the 11th inning of an exhibition game in which they beat the Cincinnati Reds at Orlando Friday.

GOLF ULTIMATUM.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 12. (AP)—The quiet of a blue law Sunday for the third successive week will prevail over South Carolina tomorrow, Governor Richards having issued another ultimatum today to stop golf playing and the sale of gasoline in the state in the compliance with a century-old statute.

THREE PLAYERS HURT.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 12. (AP)—Old Man Hard Luck has visited the training camp of the Pittsburgh Pirates with the result that three regulars are on the shelf with minor injuries. They are Glenn Wright, star shortstop; Herman Layne, left fielder, and Clyde Barnhart, another outfielder, but who has been doing some duty in the infield.

TO ALL FEE-EARNING LAW ENFORCING OFFICERS,
Or others:
Having had houses entered without search warrants and tenants treated as if on assumption all are guilty of offense of one sought, I wish the public and all officers to know that the law requires search warrants for any intrusion by officers with some few exceptions in which burden of proof is on officer. Otherwise no officer has any more right than other trespassers.
I have tried at all times to comply with laws, and aid legal and courteous efforts to enforce laws, but I do not believe that all encountered by fee-earning officers are necessarily guilty, and do not propose to tolerate illegal, impudent and discourteous searches to aid fee-earners. I therefore give this public notice to all officers, that unless within the law, I shall on any entrance of any place of mine without search warrant or permission of tenant or owner, file suit for damages against all concerned.
Rents paid and reasonable care taken to property any tenant of mine has all rights of ownership, as to possession of premises, and I shall use all legal means to see that such rights are respected.
Spill the facts and spread them, and laws will be respected and also rights of individuals.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, March 12.(AP) —Export sales here and at the Gulf of Mexico brought about a late upturn in wheat values today, largely overcoming earlier declines. Wheat finished irregular, ⅜c net lower to ⅛@⅝c advance, corn ⅛@¼c off to ⅝c up, oats at ⅝ to ⅝c gain, and provisions varying from 1c decline to a rise of 5c.

Corn and oats closed strong and at about the best prices of the day. Stormy weather and slackening of receipts of corn were chiefly responsible. There was talk too of export business in oats.

In line with the hog market, provisions held about steady.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, March 12.(AP)—Cash grain prices Saturday showed no change from Friday's close. Demand was reported a little slacker but dealers were able to dispose of nearly all receipts before the market closed.

TEXAS VEGETABLES.

SAN ANTONIO, March 12.(Texas Market News Service.)—Cabbage shipments continue to show volume, yesterday's movement from the southern part of the state totalling 140 cars. There was also a movement of one car of cauliflower, 48 of spinach, five of sweet potatoes, 62 of mixed vegetables and two express cars of strawberries.

There was evidence for a further restricted demand in shipping point markets yesterday. Spinach was dull at 50@75c per bushel basket cash track and 60@80c on wire orders. Cabbage at Brownsville brought $16 per ton and at Corpus Christi $16@18. Beets and carrots were steady, the former being around $1.00@1.10 and the latter $1.10@1.15 f. o. b. loading station.

Cotton

WEEKLY COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.—A reactionary trend came about in cotton this week as a result of liquidation of the weaker long interests, prompted partly by reports that the edge was off the spot demand, and increasing evidence that the acreage this spring will not be reduced according to the talk of the winter.

As for the spot demand the turnover in the markets of the south remained large for this time of year, especially ing off in the inquiry probably could be laid to the filling of end of February commitments. We understand that the yet is a large March short interest to be filled.

The extent to which the mills of the world are reaching out for American cotton continues to be well illustrated by the export movement and by the out-of-sight movement. Hester this week counted world takings of American cotton at 257,000 bales vs. 211,000 this week last year and 278,000 this week two years ago. Such an out-of-sight is very large for this time of year, especially so since takings thus far season already amount to the very large total of 7,156,000 bales against 10,005,000 to the same time a year ago and 9,916,000 to the same time two years ago. The export movement for the week was 191,965 bales against 62,366 and 182,866, which brought exports thus far for the season up to 7,926,269 bales against 6,903,231 and 6,-252,832.

Weather over the belt this week was not too favorable for picking or plowing, taking the entire area into consideration, and it looks as if cotton in the northwest will never be picked. Much of the north and north-central belt complains that the soil is too wet to be plowed. The eastern belt received considerable moisture during the week which was needed to put the soil in shape for plowing. Extreme southern Texas reports much of its cotton planted and a good part up to fine stands. The Corpus Christi section seems to have an early crop but the valley crop is considered rather late.

A week from Monday brings the final ginnings report of the season. This means that the coming week probably will be featured by ginnings figures from private bureaus. It looks to us as if the ginning returns are bound to be well under the government's latest estimate of 18,618,000 bales, and in discounting this the market should rule somewhat higher. We think well of buying cotton on breaks.

J. H. BALDWIN AND CO.

NEW ORLEANS SPOTS.

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady, unchanged; sales 1362; low middling 12.10; middling 14.00; good middling 14.45; receipts 6248; stock 555,196 bales.

LIVERPOOL SPOTS.

LIVERPOOL, March 12.(AP)—Cotton spot quiet; prices easier. American strict good middling 8.21; good middling 8.21; strict middling 7.86; middling 7.61; strict low middling 7.11; low middling 6.61; strict good ordinary 6.31; good ordinary 5.81. Sales of the day, including 5000 American; receipts 6000 bales, American 4000. Futures closed barely steady; March 7.28; May 7.44; July 7.56; October 7.65; December 7.66; January 7.66.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, March 12.(AP)—Continuation of the selling movement which has been noted in the cotton market for the past two or three days, was reflected by a further moderate decline in prices today. May contracts sold off to 13.94 or six points net lower and into new low ground for the movement and closed at 13.97. The general market closed steady at net declines of three to eight points.

The market opened steady at a decline of one to four points under overnight selling orders and local selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables. A few stop orders were uncovered on the break through the 14-cent level for May contracts, the market soon showing net losses of about six to eight points. There was trade buying as well as considerable covering for over the week-end on the decline, however, and after stop orders had been absorbed, prices became steadier. March sold up from 13.91 to 13.94 at the close, but prices were within a point or two of the lowest on the later months.

A disposition to cover short contracts for over the week-end was promoted by reports of heavy rains in parts of the southwest, and a feeling that the declines early in the week had left the market in a healthier technical position, otherwise and except for the trade buying in small lots on scale down orders, the market appeared to be without much support, and sellers evidently found some encouragement in the easier ruling of Liverpool.

Private cables reported hedge selling combined with local and continental liquidation in the English market, but said the falling off in cloth demand for India was considered temporary.

The amount of cotton on shipboard at the end of the week was estimated at 183,000 bales against 122,000 last year, which was regarded as pointing to a well maintained export movement, while expectations of bullish figures on domestic mill consumption for February from the census bureau on Monday, probably helped to steady the market at the decline.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.(AP)—Cotton prices during Saturday's short session were downward with covering and trade buying helping a recovery near the close. Easing off from the start prices at one time showed a loss of eight to 10 points under yesterday's close. The close registered losses of five to six points for the day.

During the last hours when strength was shown, May traded to 13.97, July 14.11, and October 14.21.

Liverpool was lower than due and first trades here were unchanged to four points down. At the lowest prices reached today May was trading at 13.92, July 14.05 and October 14.21.

MARKET GOSSIP

J. H. Baldwin and Co., brokers, basement Bob Waggoner building, today received the following from New York, New Orleans and Chicago connections:

Wheat: While Winnipeg and other foreign markets have undergone only a natural reaction from a recent sharp advance, Chicago which has responded very slightly to foreign bullish demand demonstrations, displayed marked weakness. The weak feature appears to be unusually heavy stocks of red winter wheat for which there is little or no demand. Winnipeg continues to hold a premium over Chicago futures and both markets are apparently about 10 cents per bushel above a shipping basis with Liverpool, this has not interferred at all with sales of Canadian grain abroad, but there has been a very small and unsatisfactory export demand for American varieties. In some quarters the opinion has been expressed that the movement of Canadian grain represents business contracted for some time ago. The outlook for the new crop continues very excellent for prospects of a winter kill much below the average.

The big increase in planted acreage last fall together with a large effective area than usual might easily make for a record-breaking production of winter wheat.

The government will not estimate the acreage remaining for harvest until May 9th. The government report on estimated farm stocks as of March first was 120,444,000 bushels against 109,127,000 bushels last year and the five-year average of 128,059,000 bushels. Mill and elevator stocks were placed at 56,000,000 bushels against 76,700,000 bushels last year. Total wheat holdings in all position including terminal markets aggregate 277,000,000 bushels, compared with 324,000,000 bushels in 1926. This report was issued a few minutes before the close on Tuesday and was interpreted as very bearish. At this writing prices are near the bottom of trading area that has been traced and re-traced for months. With the outlook just as discouraging as it has been numerous times before.

Corn: Continued to mark time and showed little or no trend during the past week. The government report on farm stocks of 1,115,581,000 bushels against 1,329,581,000 bushels last year and the five-year average of 1,128,037,000 bushels was taken as bearish, but values did not act as low as they did a week or so ago. The figures were considerably larger than expected. From a statistical standpoint, the corn situation as a whole appears to be bearish. The visible supply is near record proportions, stocks at Chicago are very large and the demand is very indifferent. Farmers are still showing a disposition to market their holdings on every rally and the demand does not improve. One redeeming and perhaps saving feature, however, is that farmers stop selling on breaks and the demand improves moderately. A continuance of this proceedure a little longer may take care of the weekly-held stocks in the available supply and provide a foundation for a good advance.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, March 12.(AP)—Extensive week-end readjustment of speculative accounts imparted irregularity to the price movement in today's stock market. Trading was fairly heavy for a half holiday session, with major speculative operations again on the upside.

Easy money, coupled with reports of improving business, appears to be the foundation on which the "bull" movement is based, further proof of the ease of the money situation was seen in the weekly clearing house statement showing excess reserve in excess of $60,000,000, the largest in over a year, on the eve of the federal income tax payment date. Reports that the proposed strike of soft coal miners in the Pennsylvania fields on April 1 would be averted and the denial of Ford price cuts also helped to maintain bullish sentiment. Rails were again the leaders. Heavy profit taking in such issues as Atchison, Norfolk and Western, and Gulf, Mobile and Northern, all of which closed 1 to 3¼ points lower, resulted in the development of new leaders such as Union Pacific, Western Pacific, and St. Louis-Southwestern, all of which closed 1 to nearly 5 points higher. Some of the selling in Atchison may have been inspired by President Storey's denial that a stock dividend was in contemplation, or that the road was committed to a higher dividend policy on the present stock.

Norfolk and Southern, which was bid up in spectacular fashion yesterday, moved up nearly 4 points to another new record high at 95¾ today, but later lost all its gain. Unconfirmed reports of a possible compromise in the eastern railroad consolidation controversy attracted widespread attention.

Flurries of selling swept through the motors but offerings generally were well absorbed. Oils also were subjected to pressure as a result of the extension of recent crude oil price cuts and the announcement of another cut in gasoline prices by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, effective Monday. Rubbers continued to attract buying on rumors of an early advance in tire prices.

Westinghouse Air Brake was one of the outstanding strong spots in the industrial list, touching a new high record for all time at 157¾. Other issues to reach new high ground included Federal Mining and Smelting, which jumped 11 points to 120 on a comparatively small turn-over.

STOCKS MOVE TOWARD PEAK

Industrials Show Way To Other Offerings

BY BROADAN WALL.
Universal Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Industrials moved higher on the average, today, while rail stocks lost slightly in continued irregular trading. Continued pressure by the professional bears again failed to bring out liquidation of importance, however, and the market displayed the same firm undertone it has exhibited for the past week. Special influences and technical positon of individual stocks proved the most important factors in trading so that while a few stocks showed fairly wide fluctuations the list as a whole moved in a rather narrow range. There was considerable nervousness aroused over the numerous rumors in circulation regarding plans of Mr. Ford as the street was left in doubt as to what action he would take because of the greater competition he is meeting. Foreign exchange held fairly firm in quiet trading. Commodities were unsettled again with both cotton and wheat options not lower for the half session.

The trading community met quite a little information regarding the condition of the canning industry when it arrived in the street this morning. The upset condition of the industry has been realized by those active therein for quite awhile. Coincident with the reports of important liquidation of American Can as a result thereof the stock was pushed up over a full point on a comparatively few sales. Brokers on the floor of the exchange regarded this operation as particularly interesting as they recall the the days of three years ago when the insiders were accumulating Can.

At that time every bit of good news put on concerning Can was immediately followed by pressure on the stock that caused sudden break of a few points and scared out the weaker holdings.

MEXICO GETS "THREAT" NOTE

U. S. Bluntly Warns Calles He May Lose Recognition

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—A blunt threat to withdraw support of the Calles government in Mexico has resulted in a temporary diplomatic victory for the United States, it was learned in high official quarters here today.

This is the reason for the sudden visit to Mexico City of Ambassador Don Manuel C. Tellez, on a secret mission. He is credited by officials with having averted the imminent break.

It explains the high suspense and secrecy, without parallel in the frequently tense relations between the two countries existing during the past two weeks.

U. S. Sends New Note

On Saturday, Feb. 26, the state department forwarded to the Mexican government a new note on a "new subject." This note, it is understood, took drastic exception to alleged Mexican propaganda in this country and interference with the American policy in Nicaragua. It declared the latter to be an unfriendly act, as it did the recently enforced land and petroleum laws.

It threatened the recall of Ambassador James R. Sheffield, it is understood.

The note to the Mexican government was forwarded through the diplomatic mail pouch to Ambassador Sheffield to be delivered by him in person. At the same time a copy of the note was handed to Ambassador Tellez in Washington, as "information."

The ambassador immediately telegraphed the contents to his foreign office, as is customary, and tt the same time asked for permission to go to Mexico to discuss the note in person with the president and foreign minister, it is learned.

The permission was granted and he immediately left for Mexico by rail. He had reached St. Louis when the foreign office considered his presence here of such importance that he was ordered back. He immediately returned.

Mexico Drafts Reply

Upon his arrival here he found that his telegram had reached President Calles in person and that he had ordered Tellez to proceed. He left the same afternoon and went direct to Mexico City. He arrived there shortly after the American note, going by mail, was delivered.

He went from the station in Mexico City direct to a conference Between the president and his cabinet, who had the note before them. Former President Alvaro Obregon was also present. These conferences last almost continuously until a reply was drafted, which is now in the hands of the state department.

This note, it was learned, is an acceptance of the American views in a general way on the moot question of land and petroleum laws, but leaves the issue in status quo until the Mexican courts have acted. It is said to be a complete disavowal of the alleged system of propaganda and obstruction in Nicaragua and to give assurances that nothing of the kind will occur.

Documents Secret

These documents, it was learned at the state department, may never be published and certainly will not be if Mexico finds a way to meet the American objections to the alien laws and continues to act as a "friendly, neighborly nation."

Tellez is understood to have brought this about by convincing President Calles and the Mexican officials that the United States is serious and would adhere closely to President Coolidge's announcement of policy concerning the protection of American property rights. It was the general belief in that country, officials declare, that the United States was merely "writing notes."

While much remains to be done officials were confident today that the situation is more hopeful of a solution than it has been in many months.

No Recall Idea

It was emphasized here that there was never any idea in official quarters that Ambassador Tellez had been recalled to Mexico when he left here so hastily, but that he went of his own accord in an effort to bring his government to a realization of the gravity of the situation. This he is understood to have done. He is now reported on his way back to Washington.

Henry Ford Faces Suit for $1,000,000 Damages Brought On Claim That His Paper Libelled Jews of United States

DETROIT, March 12.—Henry Ford must come into the federal court Tuesday and reveal a conspiracy of Jews to gouge the United States, or admit himself a believer and teller of fairy tales against those people. Mr. Ford will appear not as a manufacturer of automobiles, but as publisher of the Dearborn Independent, his mouthpiece, printed weekly at his Dearborn plant here.

He has been sued for a million dollars damages for alleged libel by Aaron Sapiro, of Chicago.

Heads 60 Associations

He has organized more than 60 of these associations, with a membership exceeding 500,000 and he is their legal counsel.

He directs the marketing of farm products each year worth $400,000,000 and is a power in the distribution of foodstuffs.

Mr. Sapiro is a Jew. His activities in organizing growers so that they may obtain higher prices for their cotton, tobacco, wheat, wool, apples, potatoes, etc., have been branded in Mr. Ford's newspaper as part of an international plot of Jewish bankers to mulct the American farmer and the American people.

It is as a Jew, who feels his people have been much maligned by the richest man in the world, that Mr. Sapiro has sought redress in the courts.

The Jewish lawyer from Chicago knows that the loss of a million dollars means nothing to Ford; his object is to stop attacks upon Jews, and the course of the trial by jury before Federal Judge Fred Raymond, who is coming here from Grand Rapids to preside, will be closely followed by Jews and Gentiles throughout the world.

Articles Cause Suit.

The articles in the Dearborn Independent which aroused the indignation of Jews in the United States were prepared, it is alleged, by Robert Morgan, alias Dunn. These, according to Sapiro's complaint on file in the office of the clerk of the federal court "charge and represent that there existed a conspiracy of Jews, of which the plaintiff was the author and leader, having for its objects and purposes the wrongdoing, suppressing, exploiting and impoverishing of American farmers the control of the products of American farmers and particularly of the sale and marketing thereof, the spreading in the United States of America and particularly among farmers and producers, the doctrines and principles of communism, the reduction of the farmer to a state of economic dependence upon the members of said conspiracy, the financial ruin of merchants in small towns, and the control of the education and development of the children of American farmers with the end and purpose of so restricting, directing and guiding same as to facilitate the accomplishment of the remaining objects and purposes of said conspiracy."

Events Fill C-C Meet's Program

Numerous cities have already signified their intention of sending special trains to the convention. Among these are: Fort Worth, Waco, Sweetwater, Lubbock, Plainview, Cisco, Ranger, Brownwood and possibly several score of other Texas towns. The New Mexico cities which have membership in the organization are likewise planning a special train and it is likely two of these will be required, as New Mexico is planning to send the largest delegation that has ever come to the convention. Borger, Panhandle and other points in that section are also planning for special trains, so that it may be seen that Wichita Falls accommodations will be taxed to the capacity for this great convention.

Much progress has been made in the plans for the "Congress of Nations." Many cities have already asked that they be assigned nations and this promises to be one of the most colorful spectacles which has ever been presented on the streets of any Texas city. Some of the assignments have already been made and in these the hands are already practicing with the music of the national anthem of the country to be represented. For instance, the city which has chosen Hungary expects to send a band that will be able to play Hungarian music. The musical treat alone will be something worth while. The "Avenue of Nations" will be another interesting feature. Plans are being made to erect booths on a downtown street. These are to be 15 by 20 feet and each city, or town, represented will have a booth on this avenue and this will be decorated in the colors of the country represented. Thus will the colors of the foreign countries be blended in such a way that this is expected to be a spectacle in itself.

DENVER TRAIN WRECKS AUTO

Two Youths Here Hurt While Third Escapes

Snatched from death under the grinding iron wheels of a Fort Worth and Denver City railroad locomotive, three Wichita Falls youths Saturday figured in a thrilling escape when a southbound freight train hit their Ford coupe at the Broadway crossing in North Wichita Falls.

The accident, which narrowly failed to prove fatal for the youths, two of whom were severely bruised and shaken while the third escaped unscathed, was on the scene of the crash which just a month ago cost the life of C. K. Spencer, local insurance agent, who was fatally injured when a train hit his car.

Paul Key, son of W. D. Key, who lives about two miles west of the city on the Iowa Park highway, the most seriously injured of the trio, is in the General hospital with severe cuts and bruises about the body, although his injuries are not serious, it was reported.

E. L. Evans, 20, 1714 Sixth street, was slightly bruised and was sent home after receiving first aid treatment at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital while B. A. Evans, 18, his brother, was not hurt.

The automobile which they were driving was practically demolished by the crash and was carried for about 25 feet down the track before the heavy train could be brought to a stop.

Key, who was driving the car, said the boys were going to his home for a short visit. He said that he did not see the approaching train until too late to avoid the collission.

Officers who investigated the accident reported that had the train been traveling at a greater rate of speed all of the youths would probably have been killed.

TWO INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

The condition of Mrs. Mary Blandon, who was injured in an automobile crash at the corner of Tenth and Buchanan streets about noon Saturday, was reported as improved late Saturday night at the Hargrave-Walker hospital.

Eleanor, the 7-year-old daughter of Mrs. Christie, was also injured but she was permitted to go to her home early Saturday evening when it was revealed that her injuries were not serious.

Pretty Girl Directs Plot In Escape Of Six Slayers

Two Shot In Battle Which Leads to Recapture of Five Condemned Men; Another Free

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Pretty Juanita Gallado, 19-year-old Mexican girl was said to have admitted to the authorities late today that she had smuggled into the Will county jail, the saws used in the sensational jail break at Joliet this morning. She is said to be the sweetheart of Bernardo Roa, one of the escaped slayers, and the only one still at liberty. The other two, Gregorio Rizzo and Robert Torrez, have been captured. Rizzo was shot in a battle with policemen, during which one of the officers, Leo Grant was shot in the stomach. He is in a hospital, and is not expected to live.

Aid From 'Inside'

That the girl was given "inside" aid at the jail, the authorities are said to have little doubt. The break worked too smoothly, they point out, for it to have been of spontaneous origin.

Following the sawing of the bars at the jail, the three Mexicans, sentenced to the gallows for the murder of Deputy Warden Peter M. Klein at the Joliet prison, overpowered the jail guards, and disarmed them, giving the guns to three other convicts who were sentenced to hang for the same murder.

The other three, Charles Duchowski, Walter Staleski and Charles Shader, unable to escape from the jail, barricaded themselves in one wing and took possession. They were finally subdued by tear gas rushed from the prison.

Convicts Seize Taxi

The Mexicans, forced Guard Kirinich to drive them to South Chicago in the Will county sheriff's automobile, where they commandeered a taxi cab driven by John Marcinoak.

They were surprised in this cab by a bureau squad. The Mexicans opened fire, which was returned by the police. Rizzo was shot as was Policeman Grant. They were both rushed to a hospital. Marcinoak was shot in the hip. He identified Rizzo as the man who shot him.

Torrez and Roa escaped during the shooting. Torrez was finally captured in a basement of a Mexican's home, where he had gone for shelter. Roa is still at large.

Girl Keeps Secret

The girl, who is held for questioning, has steadfastly refused to reveal the inside workings of the plan, by which the killers escaped, except to admit she smuggled in the saws. Further questioning, however, the police believe, may reveal some startling features.

Klein was killed when the six killers and Charles Price, who has never been captured beat him into insensibility in their fervor for escape.

The six men testified during their trial that Nathan Leopold, one of the college boy slayers of little Bobby Franks actually planned the break, but he has never been tried.

Sheriff Is Stunned

Sheriff Albert E. Marquaff said today that he is stunned by the action. He declared that only two weeks ago he had made a "housecleaning" at the jail, because he became nervous over a tip that the six were planning a break.

An appeal from the death verdict in the case of the slayers is now pending before the state supreme court.

CHICAGO GANG CHIEF SLAIN

Machine Gun Strife Adds Another Victim

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Frank "Lefty" Koncil's great desire to become the leader of the "Polack Joe" Saltis gang of beer runners, was blamed today for his death at the hands of a machine gunning party. With him died Charles Hrubeck, an underling in gangland.

The shooting was the first since the truce was declared the latter part of last October, which was destined to stop all machine gunnings, such as that which took the life of Assistant State's Attorney William H. McSwiggin and Earl Hymie Weiss, who was shot from ambush. Scarface Al Capone was blamed for both killings.

However, today's episode in the spectacular gang warfare was not the result of encroachment of one gang on another gang's particular booze territory.

"I'd give $5,000 right now to anybody who will tell me who killed Koncil," he said.

"I know nothing about the killing. This time, I'm in the dark. I've been sick for two months and Monday I'm going to West Baden, Ind., for my health."

Saltis and Koncil were recently tried for the murder of John "Mitters" Foley and were acquitted. The verdict was said to have been one of the greatest miscarriages of justice in Cook county.

It was while they were on trial that Weiss was slain, while sitting in his automobile in front of the Holy Name cathedral.

The shooting of Koncil and Hrubeck took place on the south side. They were shot as they attempted to reach cover, after an automobile loaded with gangsters, armed with a machine gun drove near them.

Koncil fell with seven bullets in his back. Hrubeck was dropped with a charge of buckshot in the back.

Little if any more shooting is expected as a result of the outbreak today, as it is classed as warfare within the gang, in which Saltis is left as the leader and his rival is dead.

MAID DEFIES BAR TO CUPID

Feminine Heir to English Title Loves Commoner

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Marcella Duggan, daughter of Lady Curzon of Kedleston and one of the most beautiful debutantes of the last season, is the heroine of a romantic dispute with her mother, which is deadlocked today by the fact that the young woman has fled the parental roof.

A week ago, to the surprise of all Mayfair, the announcement was made of the engagement of Marcella to Edward Rice, a young lawyer of no particular eminence.

Lady Curzon, who, for many years, has been one of the most prominent hostesses in London, promptly denied the report, much to the chagrin of her daughter.

Marcella Defies Mother.

Marcella, who is now nineteen and was presented at court last season, tearfully pleaded with her mother to acknowledge the engagement. When Lady Curzon refused, the daughter resorted to defiance.

Lady Curzon ordered her to her room but while she was looking for the key, in order to lock Marcella in, the little "bud" slipped away from the Curzon house on Carlton House Terrace.

A little later, Marcella telephoned to her mother with the information that she was staying with friends of her fiance.

The following day, Marcella sent her French maid to the home she had deserted to fetch some clothes.

She very obdurately declines to return home until her mother yields on the engagement question and Lady Curzon, who hoped that her daughter would make a brilliant marriage, is equally firm, refusing to countenance the present love affair.

Lady Curzon Worried.

The distracted mother refuses to comment on the affair. Young Rice is reported to be away from London.

Marcella Duggan is the late Lord Curzon's step-daughter. Her father was Alfred Duggan of Buenos Aires, and her grandfather was J. Monroe Hinds, formerly United States minister to Brazil.

"Newsboys' Club," For Benefit Of Juveniles, Urged By J.T.Cabe

A plan for the organization of a Newsboys' club in Wichita Falls as an institution for the benefit of all juveniles, was unfolded to The Record News Saturday by Juvenile Officer J. T. Cabe.

Mr. Cabe said that he would ask the co-operation of the newspapers and the civic clubs of the city in an effort to perfect such an organization.

"Boys like to feel that they are something, that grownups consider them of importance," he said. "The boy who is kicked around becomes sullen and 'down' on the world. If you act toward a boy as if you believed that he would lead a life of crime, it is likely that the boy will do just that.

Club Room Needed.

"The parents are really to blame. Wichita Falls is in need of more 'dads' and 'mothers'. Recently I was called to town about 11:30 o'clock at night where an eight-year-old boy and a 10-year-old girl were wandering about the streets. They told me that their father was in South Texas, and their mother had gone to Burkburnett to spend the night, leaving them to shift for themselves."

Mr. Cabe's plan for a Newsboys' club is this: It would be open for all boys who were endeavoring to make good. "If a boy became delinquent his membership would be dropped."

A meeting place and club room could be provided, and weekly meetings could be held, with talks by successful business men in Wichita Falls who would take an interest in the boys.

Plans Campaign.

"It is simple to hold the character of a boy the right way if you get an early start," he said. "Boys, generally do not want to do wrong, but in most instances they do not know better. It is the duty of every man to take an interest in boys, whether they are his own or not.

"In such an organization we would be able to instill a proper spirit in the minds of the young so that they could grow to be good citizens."

Mr. Cabe said that he intended to speak before the luncheon clubs of this city and appeal to them for aid.

Woman's Forum Will Present Well Known Author In Lecture

William Allen White, editor and author of national reputation, will be presented in a lecture by the general Forum, March 29. Mr. White whose word has weight and whose opinions are read and quoted the country over has been the honored guests of presidents at the White House on numerous occasions. He is the author of books that will go down in history as valuable records of American life. His latest and probably most widely read book is "The Life of Woodrow Wilson."

In this book because of his knowledge of politics and national affairs as well as international, Mr. White has given us one of the very best portrayals that has been written of Woodrow Wilson. To know him as William Allen White has pictured him is to know him in a new light.

News was received by the program committee of the Woman's Forum that Fannie Hurst, who has been scheduled to appear here as a general Forum number on Tuesday, March 15, is ill and unable to travel at this time. The cancellation of her engagement came only after two physicians forbade her to undertake the tour at this time. Should the accomplished writer be able to tour this spring it is the purpose of the Forum to bring her here, according to the program committee chairman.

Spring Approaches— Junior Club Fete—
Exodus of Lent— Cultural Activities—
Fringe, All Rage— Women and Trees—

WITH the approach of spring—and the reason I know it's near, Kitty, is because hostesses this week have used hyacinths, jonquils and all kinds of spring flowers in their decorations—and there seems to be a restlessness to get out, where nature is "beating us to it" by putting on her new spring togs, before even the March wind blew in and announced that the first spring month was on the threshold standing ready to push open the door.

But Lent and the Biederwolf evangelistic campaign are having a restful effect on society, for in one week all elaborate parties ceased, and the gatherings for the most part are of a cultural nature strictly. One petite matron remarked, "we just don't have any dances to go to, our evening gowns are going to rot before we have an opportunity to wear them out."

HOWEVER Lent also means getting away from the scene of our social activities and this week saw the exodus and return of a group of young people from Fort Worth where they attended the coronation of the queen on Monday night and the Steeple Chase ball on Wednesday night. Long will Wichita Falls be remembered in the grand royal pageant in the Panther city, because it was freely whispered that Princess Wichita (Margaret Smith) was the prettiest princess there. "She carried herself perfectly, such poise I have never seen before, O we were just too proud of her for words," several matrons from here who went down for the occasion told me, and needless to say I felt all puffed up.

Among those from here who went down for the festivities were Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGaha, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moore, Mrs. Fitzhugh Hurley, Tex Bowden, Mrs. A. E. Myles, Mrs. J. O. Smith and Mrs. Tom Hunter.

BUT since I have mentioned how beautiful Margaret looked in her royal robe I know that your curiosity is aroused and that you are eager to know what she wore. So while I am on the subject will tell you as nearly as possible. Her gown was a straight line Bab model made of gold sequin cloth studded with topaz. The long court train was of gleaming gold metal cloth lined with apple green satin and bordered with gold point lace. The Queen Elizabeth collar was of gold lace studded in topaz and emeralds and matched the three tier crown fashioned of lace and studded in the stones. She carried a gold staff studded in the topaz and emeralds and her slippers were of gold brocaded satin with gold heels.

AND while I am speaking of clothes, I note that fringe is all the rage now, and some of the loveliest dresses seen at the pageant had graceful beaded and crystal fringe falling around the feet. I also heard that Tallulah Bankhead, appearing at a London theater in the American play, "The Gold Diggers" wore a dress composed entirely of fringe. The skirt was fashioned of layers of fringe made of white irridescent seguins, and the bodice consisted of another row of the same material, having rather a bolero effect, hanging from a sort of yoke, high in the shoulder, till just below the waist. This style is, however, only suitable for young and slim women.

Lenten season and revival have failed to stop social activities of the school crowd, and Friday night the usual dance was given by the seniors at the Kemp hotel. Another dance which drew a large crowd was at Camp Noble when the Business and Professional Girls club entertained with a benefit affair.

ANOTHER event in which the school crowd was especially concerned was the annual banquet given by the Spanish club of the Junior college. This was held in the college cafeteria and the Spanish theme was prettily carried out in the vivid decorations of red, orange, green and white. Flowers in brilliant colors were arranged the full length of the table and covers were marked with small bouquets of violets and hand-painted place cards. The girls were lovely Spanish shawls and the social hostesses who were Mabelle Moore, Virginia Moore and Mary Catherine Gould, were dressed in Spanish costumes.

* * *

I TOLD you in the beginning of my letter that we are turning more to cultural activities now for a few weeks and when I said that I had in mind in particular the Woman's Forum meetings. One of the most interesting of these was held by the art department at the Oriental studio recently and a subject dear to the heart of every housewife was ably discussed by Mrs. Luther Hoffman when she described and demonstrated art in the home. Mrs. Hoffman is an artist of noted ability and is also an expert in interior decoration work. Another talk filled with interest especially for those fortunate enough to have new homes, was given by David R. Williams, local architect who discussed various types of houses.

* * *

AND then at a meeting of the civics department of the forum, the worthwhile subject of caring for the trees throughout the city was discussed by such civic leaders as Mrs. J. A. Kemp, Mrs. A. R. Bleakley and others, while later in the week, the forum group turned their attention to literature and heard a most interesting paper read by Mrs. W. P. Bolding concerning the humanitarian and scientific age in literature, and then enjoyed the book review of Charles Dicken's "The Tale of Two Cities," given by Mrs. C. R. Hartsook.

That's all. And if you haven't heard enough about balls, and the Princess' dress, take an airship, fly down and see us and hear all this chatter about going to church, and Lent, for someone has said that before the season is over we will be praying on our knees, dancing on our feet and playing cards with our hands, and not giving the newspaper reporters a single story, even if they do tell them to—

BY MRS. FLOYD ALLEN BASH
President of the Reagan Junior High P-T. A.

The Reagan Junior High Parent-Teacher association is a comparatively new club as the school is a recent addition to the city system, and in so short a time no great things have been accomplished by this organization.

The first move of importance probably was arranging the time of the regular meeting at night so that the fathers can attend as well as the mothers. The fathers are just as interested in the school life of the child as the mothers, and they are a great help when enlisted in this important work, this club has found.

P-T. A. President

Mrs. Floyd A. Bash, president of the Reagan Junior high P.-T. A. writes the third article in the series of histories of local P.-T. A. organizations which are Sunday features in The Record News. Mrs. Bash is prominent in social and church circles and is the wife of the Rev. Floyd A. Bash, pastor of the First Christian church.

In selecting a name for the old Junior high, the school board considered that of John H. Reagan ideal. Leaving school at the age of 13 to help support his family, he was determined to educate himself. After years of struggle he won a degree from the university. Later he won places of great honor in the state and the nation. No name could be more worthy of emulation that that of the great commoner, John H. Reagan.

The association is providing a picture of Judge Reagan to hang in the hall of the school building. The picture of the great man shows so much of fineness, yet strength of character, that it can not fail to have a good influence on our boys and girls.

Officers of the association are Mrs. Floyd Allen Bash, president; Mrs. M. Staniforth, first vice president; Mrs. L. E. Dickey, second vice president; Mrs. W. D. Cook, third vice president; Mrs. Souther, recording secretary; Mrs. Leon Deaton, corresponding secretary and Mrs. R. Lee Joiner, treasurer.

Rev. Grieder Talks To Girl Reserves

"There is no ideal wife without an ideal husband, but there is an ideal woman who would be an ideal wife with the proper companion. The ideal wife must have sympathetic ideals and visions—she must have individuality and personality," the Rev. Dan Grieder, junior pastor of the First Presbyterian church told members of the Junior college Girl Reserves which met Friday afternoon at the school.

The lecture, which was on "My Idea of an Ideal Wife," was the first in a series to be given the Girl Reserve organizations by prominent citizens of the city, when they will talk on problems of interest to girls.

"It is well for the husband and wife to have mutual opinions but the ideal wife must not look to her husband for all expression of opinion. She must be liked for herself and her work, not for her husband and his work. The ideal wife must have beauty not only of features but also of mind. If a woman cannot be of the Madonna type of beauty she can be attractive, and attractiveness is the one essential of the ideal wife. She must have a soul sensitive to the beauty and idealism of a Christian life."

In conclusion Dr. Grieder urged every girl not to waste her treasures on the superficialities of life, but to save them for the great love which might some day come to her.

The program was in charge of Misses Edna Bobo and Harriett Peterson. Misses Virginia Barron and Elizabeth Powers gave a vocal duet, and a group of school boys presented a playlet.

And Digest Heavy Meals Just Like a Boy

Diapepsin is probably the most powerful aid there is when the stomach seems worn out. It enables you to get away with foods that so often cause the utmost misery. Pie, cheese, cream, sausage, seasoned stews and foods that frighten a dyspeptic even to think of, are as modified milk to a cooing infant when followed by Diapepsin.

A host of people are denying themselves half the pleasure of life hunting for patent, prepared foods that don't meet their needs. For after all it is the state of the stomach secretions that counts. Diapepsin adds to the secretions and actually works on the starches, meats, eggs, cream, etc., and that is what a tired, feeble stomach needs.

Presbyterian Women Will Hold Meeting

The Woman's Missionary society of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church will meet at the church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock for Bible study. Every member is urged to be present.

IN THE GLOW OF THE CAMP FIRE

"In the last few years we have begun to take the boy and girl seriously, to try to plan our schools and other institutions for the child, instead of trying to fit the pupil to the school. When I think of some of the crimes that have been committed against youth, I wonder how we could ever have been so blind," R. O. Jonas told members of the Guardians Training Course at the First Presbyterian church Thursday evening.

A discussion of the subject "Understanding Girls" furnished interesting program topics, and Mr. Jonas talked on the "Psychology of Adolescense."

"There is a great responsibility placed on the guardians shoulder—to know how to plan your programs so as to give the girls wholesome companionship with one another and to keep them busy and interested in constructive work so they won't have time for the questionable activities, is your problem," Mr. Jonas told the guardians.

"I think the companionship is the greatest craving of the adolescent age. If a boy or girl doesn't learn how to make friends before he is grown, he or she will never really learn how to make friends easily. Another outstanding characteristic of the adolescent is the desire to create. Your program again offers the girl honors for work of her hands and brain which gives opportunity for self-expression. To understand the girl and direct her into clean, wholesome ideals of life is a great problem. The guardian can influence the girl either for good or for bad, and care must be taken to make your influence for good."

Miss McIlheran emphasized the opportunity the guardian has in gaining the influence of the girl and leading her into the highest ideals of life of service and happiness.

Special Program.

All Camp Fire Girls are urged to attend the "Go to Church Sunday Service" at the First Christian church on Sunday, wearing white dress uniform. A special Camp Fire Girls program will be given—all girls and guardians will meet at the church not later than 10:40 on Sunday a. m.

Called Meeting.

At a called meeting of the Temskatawa Group Thursday afternoo it was decided that Edith Crump would be temporary guardian until a permanent guardian can be found. The Temskatawa Group will have complete charge of publishing the Camp Fire Girls Bulleton, Flickers, for April. An editor, assistant editor, manager and assembling manager will be appointed in the near future, while these girls will have definite duties to perform the other girls will assist in various other ways. It is hoped that every member of the Temskatawa Group will be present at the First Christian church next Sunday morning when the Camp Fire Girls will have a definite part in the program.

Members of the Alahi group of Camp Fire Girls met at the Catholic church hall Friday afternoon in a ceremonial session. Honor beads were awarded and the candle lighting ceremony held. The seven laws were repeated and each girl told the law which meant the most to her and why.

Those attending included Alma Nickolas, Mary Teresa Doyle, Milly and Nellie Pastusek, Frances Hyland, Grace Kerwin, Margaret Davis, Dora J. Nix, Margaret Ossenbeck, Louise Van Emden, Edna May Stegall, Charlott Kennedy and Mrs. A. W. Ayers and Mrs. J. F. Hyland.

Colds Stop

In a day—the effects disappear The $1,000,000 Way

Colds can be stopped in 24 hours. Fevers and headaches cease. Then the bowels are opened, the poisons eliminated, the whole system toned. Millions of people know that from experience.

All this is done by one perfect compound—HILL'S. It is so quick, so efficient, so free from ill results that we paid $1,000,000 for it.

Every home should keep HILL'S on hand. Take it at the first sign of a cold, so the trouble can't get started. That saves much discomfort.

But if the cold has started, HILL'S is the way to end it. Begin it now. Every hour of delay adds injury. Do nothing else, for the best helps are combined in HILL'S.

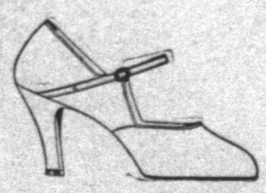

Do nothing less, for a cold is a serious matter. It is folly to take risks. HILL'S was developed in one of the world's largest laboratories, and no one can excel it. Tell your druggist that you want it, and that nothing else will do. Don't wait an hour. After one use you will always employ it. —Adv.

OUSTED POLICE HEAD CLEARED

AMARILLO, March 12. (AP)—Former Chief of Police Charles J. The jury was out 10 minutes. The woman was placed in jail without a formal complaint. Woman's Day Of Work and Play

Political Preparedness

The League of Republican Women this spring will repeat their "School of Politics," which they originated in Washington two years ago, and "political preparedness" will be the policy of women of both major parties this year.

The school will be held in Washington for four days from March 23 to 26. The tentative outline of the program is "the Republican party, origin and principles, 1856-1876; development, 1876-1917, and 1917-1927." "Women in politics, chief aim, organization, development." "National politics, immigration, farm relief, tariff, national defense, army, navy and aviation." "Foreign relations, European, Pan-American and Asiatic."

What Vote League Seeks

Speaking of women voters, the various divisions of the National League of Women Voters now has a comprehensive program before them.

Measures providing for the retention and improvement of the direct primary system of nominating candidates, women jury service and immediate state appropriations to match federal funds for maternity and infancy work represents "The Big Three" in a majority of legislative programs now being pressed by state leagues of women voters in 45 states.

Although no two state legislative programs are alike, a recent study made by the National league reveals that all bills in these state programs coincide with policies laid down in legislative recommendations approved at the 1926 national convention.

Legislative interests of state leagues fall into two general groups, those aiming to improve election laws and those for the promotion of the public welfare. "Hold fast to the direct primary" is the clarion call of the majority. The short ballot and an extension of absent voters' laws to include persons who are physically ill are other measures supported in the interest of more efficient government.

Dolls As Friendship Envoys

The Japanese festival of dolls, celebrated recently, included thousands of doll "messengers of friendship" sent by children in public and church schools of this country. Each doll had a tiny "passport" giving its name and the name and address of the child or group by whom it was dressed, and a message written by the children themselves. This festival in honor of home training and household ideals lasted for three days. The dolls from America were received by a committee from the Japanese department of education, which distributed them in the public schools, but 48 of them, selected to represent the 48 states, were given a place in the Imperial museum at Tokio.

Child Welfare Exhibit Travels

Wisconsin sends out a traveling children's clinic called the "Child Welfare Special," which visits rural communities remote from cities and hospitals. In the last five years this "special" has traveled about 30,000 miles, visiting 70 counties of the state and examining 23,579 children. Most of the children were infants or of preschool age, and more than three-fourths of them were found to have preventable or remediable defects.

The doctor and nurse of the "special" give no medical treatment, but provide the parents with records of the physical difficulties of their children and suggest that they be taken to the family doctor. This traveling clinic is very popular, and many requests are received from parents, teachers and local officials for its return. Other states may copy this idea.

WHAT to WEAR and HOW to WEAR IT

BY LUCY CLAIRE,
Favorite Fashion Adviser of the Smart Set.

In these days of imitation furs, lizard skin shoes and pearls, I wonder if some of you have not been under the same impression as I was, that what is called camel's hair cloth is also an imitation. You know I have often looked longingly and admirably at that lovely soft coat material and always I have puzzled over what gave it the name.

Was it really camel's hair? My curosity led me to question, and to my great surprise I learned the most interesting things about camels and caravans upon the desert sands. These patient creatures of the sand wastes, who have known the sun and stars of generations, must travel their endless ways from oasis to oasis in the burning heat of day and at dusk find their rest beneath the open skies, often in the sudden coolness that is characteristic of the desert. Man fortifies himself against these hours of heat and chilling breezes with all manner of clothes and trappings. Not so with the blessed camel: he has only the coat which nature gave him. But there is his secret—the soft silky hair which covers his body insulates against the heat and cold.

When a study of camel's wool was made, the great advantages of having such a fabric—soft and light in texture, yet providing warmth — was soon apparent. From its introduction, it has been exceedingly popular for spring and all-season wear.

The coat on the left illustrates the camel's hair for sports wear and all-around service coat. It is double-breasted, with large pockets, and is lined throughout in the same soft color of biege as the camel's hair is.

For the young person who has a flair for plaids, there is nothing which approaches the smartness of camel's hair plad shown on the right. It is to be had in tempting shades of biege and brown, with a beautiful soft badger collar. The same coat is also made up in a heavenly blue plaid which has a grey fox collar.

A camel's hair coat is not only a wise investment but a real joy. It will wear longer than other materials and will not wrinkle and pull out of shape quickly. Another advantage is that all camel's hair cleans beautifully.

With any one of the soft crushed felts or ribbon hats which are being shown this spring, and a gay silk scarf knotted after the chic fashion of the young lady's shown here, a camel's hair coat could not fail to protect Milady against the spring breezes. She will also find it of use throughout the summer, particularly for motoring or weekends in the country or at the shore. It is a valuable asset to her wardrobe.

OBSERVATION IS RIGHT

WASHINGTON—When is a concealed weapon not a concealed weapon? Marie Charmaine, 24, admitted to a police trial judge here that she was carrying a blackjack in her silk stockings and intended to use it to "lay out" her sailor sweetheart. "But I don't see how I'm charged with carrying a concealed weapon," she said, "because anyone can see through my silk stockings, where I was carrying it." John P. McMahon ordered her to Gallinger hospital for observation.

ABSENCE NOT CUPID'S AIDE

Old Adage About Fond Hearts Flops

By SOPHIE IRENE LOEB

Once upon a time there was a husband and wife. They were very much in love with each other when they were married, but after a while they began to quarrel. As usual, the quarrels were mostly about trifles. One word would bring on another, until mole-hills would become mountains.

After one of these differences, the woman would rush off to her bosom friend and tell her all about it. The husband would go to the club and talk about what a failure marriage is.

The couple quit speaking. But the next day the bosom friend would come around to fix things up.

At first, as the man and wife were very much in love, it was not a difficult thing to settle such disputes. But after a while the quarrels grew more bitter and the period before reconciliation grew longer.

The bosom friend grew tired of being peacemaker. Another friend was sought by the wife or the husband found someone else to patch up the misunderstanding.

Then came the day when all these good friends were busy about their own business and had no time to adjust the now common quarrelsome occurrences.

It was a very, very angry couple, indeed, this time. Neither would acknowledge that he or she was wrong. They hardly spoke at meals and only left notes for each other as to their mutual activities in the home.

One day almost the same note was written by each to the other. It stated that they had better separate, at least for a time, and reflect as to whether they would go on or quit. It was agreed.

The woman packed her trunk and went to visit relatives. The man stayed at home and attended to business. Pride came to the rescue of both for about a week.

During this time he went about whistling at his work, content with the belief that he had asserted himself "as a man." She, being young, joined in all the merry-making of the people she was visiting.

Yet, by and by, when he turned his key in the door as he came home, a sudden chill of loneliness came over him. As he passed through the house, familiar objects that were hers made him feel more lonely. Things that he had given her, that were lying about, seemed to accuse him of neglect. A favorite dressing gown of hers would make him think of old times.

The days dragged along. Neither communicated with the other. At first she enjoyed the freedom of it all and seemed to have a good time. After a little while this wore off and the pleasures did not seem so attractive.

Somehow there was something missing when she went out to enjoy herself. When she came home she could not help wondering what he was doing.

The longing to see him grew upon her. Then it became unbearable. She realized how foolish their little quarrels had been and how big the distance was now. Also he kept thinking what a "brute" he had been and reproached himself for having allowed the petty mixups to enter.

By a strange coincidence, each received a letter from the other, suggesting to quit all quarrels. The wife returned home, and it was many a day before they needed any friends to act as arbitrators.

Governor 'Ma' Ferguson Draws Severe Criticism of Jurist For 3000 Pardons

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 12. (AP)—A denunciation of parents who send their boys to college with an automobile was made by Judge William S. Kenyon of the United States circuit court of appeals in an address before the American Homes National Congress here.

Rather than do that, he said, "I would buy 30 cents worth of powder and blow him up. It would be fairer to the boy."

Judge Kenyon criticised Aimee Semple McPherson, who, he said, "crossed the entire country capitalizing on her notoriety," and Judge Lindsey for "his absurd idea" of companionable or trial marriages.

"These are indeed hectic times," he said, and expressed the hope that the women may succeed in doing something about it. "Men haven't succeeded in doing much," he asserted.

He talked of corruption of government officials and pleaded "for a return of political honesty."

The judge also criticised the prevalence of pardons and paroles. "If our sentences were carried out today it would do more toward the repression of crime than when paroles and pardons are given out to many or all," he said. He denounced "Ma" Ferguson for pardoning more than 3000 in Texas and asserted the woman governor was "a shining example of everything a governor should not be."

FASHION is turning Burbank as pink and other pastel shades are added to the popular white and purple violets.

A two-toned boutonniere is often seen—most often in violets, for they are la fleur de l'heure!

A very new and captivating vogue is that for an identical cluster of flowers on hat and shoulder. One young woman, whose reputation for being well dressed is most enviable, chose white gardenias on a close fitting black straw.

And from where did these advance notes come. P. B. M., of course. Their fashion scouts send authentic information by cablegram direct from Paris and P. B. M. is prepared to supply the smart things mentioned.

THE dainty housewife who wishes to express order, cleanliness and beauty in every detail of her home, will be delighted with the new line of metal cabinet Frigidaires at the Texas Electric company.

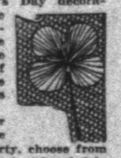

All are equipped with freezing trays in which you can freeze cubes of ice from pure drinking water. These trays can also be used to make delicious desserts and appetizing salads. Double-depth trays provide ample capacity for keeping creams, sherberts, ices and salads. Just think of having ices and tempting frozen salads as often as you wish throughout the warm July and August weather, minus the perspiring effort usual in their preparation!

It is not in summer alone that Frigidaires excel, however, they are a year around utility. The new metal cabinets are the result of months of research and experiment in the engineering laboratories of Delco-Light company and General Motors corporation and have set new standards in refrigerating cabinet construction. Even the most casual observer must feel the strength and durability of the steel construction of the new Frigidaires and realize how much more convenient they are, with an exterior finished ice box. A Frigidaire is an ornament to any kitchen and may be placed in the most convenient location without other consideration.

Women who do not possess a Frigidaire, but have friends who own one, know the many great differences this beautiful cabinet of electric refrigeration can make. For one—it is not necessary to remember to put the card up and leave the back door open. Purchase may be made on time payments at the Texas Electric Service company.

The cast includes piquant eighteen-year-old Lois Moran, the Hungarian vampire, Lya de Putti, Jack Mulhall, and William Collier Jr. New Orleans, during Madri Gras, provides the setting. The story is simple and sincere, dramatic suspense being created by the ingenious device of two gamblers' dimes which Fate passes through the hands of the leading characters. The director, Herbert Brenon, produced Beau Gueste and Peter Pan.

Now don't miss "God Gave Me Twenty Cents." Byron Quale (tenor) and his Dream Girls afford sparkling vaudeville entertainment.

McClurkan's is justly proud of a beautiful line of spring coats in the Shagmoor knitted fabric. Attractive all over designs in soft grays and tans, fur collars of squirrel and natural fitch and, above all, the unexcelled cut of the renowned Shagmoors, place them far above the average in style, becomingness, appropriateness and length of service.

All of the merits women wish in a spring wrap, and none of the faults so often discovered, would give an adequate definition of these coats.

THE woman who wishes "one of those smart black satin coats" which are the rage of the season and so appropriate for almost all occasions, should go to Miller-Ferguson's where an exceedingly wide variety is offered.

A large, light-colored skunk collar makes a striking contrast to the shiny black of the satin one model while another, with white kasha lapels, white fur collar, bow at the back and very deep cuffs, is an ultra chic exponent of the mode. Yet other new trends may be noted in a reversible black satin and colorful Roman stripe taffetta—it, too, has a bow (on the left shoulder this time) and the high, upstanding collar is fringed with monkey fur.

For every form and every type there is a flattering coat at Miller-Ferguson's. Irene Castle says, "Real charm lies in being true to type," and in this wide assortment there must be one which will make you more decidedly "you."

A bright, golden yellow called popcorn, flaming Castillian red, fuschia with its hint of Venetian luxury, and clear, bright Queen's blue, the color of a sky that has just been washed and hung out to dry!—These supply the vivid shades for spring and summer wardrobes.

Among the more subdued are yet blues and blues, for the blues, called indiscriminately navy, and the beiges lead in smartness. Gobelin blue, Independence blue and Liberty blue should be listed with French beige (newer and richer than beige has previously signified) and Vert de Gris as the conservatives.

Any of these smart hues or others equally "good," the City Laundry is prepared to give last year's frocks by means of expert dyeing. Whether the dress is a combination of fabrics or of some mixed material is no longer a matter of moment, as the Union Dyes employed by this reliable establishment affect cotton and silk alike, so that there need be no risk as to the outcome. Simply select the desired shade, and get twice the wear and twice the pleasure from last year's garments. Often to economize on clothes means to wear something not quite up-to-the-minute and which, consequently, is anything but a source of pride. The City Laundry now offers this enjoyable new way of maintaining a chic wardrobe. Call 4355.

GALLI CURCI says that if she were a man she would be a real "he-man," walk miles and miles in big boots, and raise substantial things like cabbages and beans. As a woman, Galli Curci's favorite recreation is gardening, and her slender form speaks well for the preference.

THERE is something irrisistible about the rustle of taffeta, and perhaps no other silk lends itself as gracefully to the youthful basque frock so much in favor this season. Crisp taffeta seems distinctly suited, too, to the springtime, and McClurkan shows the most delightful navy blues and black with occasional bright plaids.

Their tight fitting waists and flaring full skirts (much fuller than those of this time last year) make the appeal of the picturesque, while the elaboration reveals skilled fingers and artistic eyes of Paris and Fifth Avenue. Ruffles, deep berthas of cream lace, jaunty boleros, the ever present shoulder bow, and skirt baskets of colorful taffeta flowers, give these frocks the individual air always discernable in McClurkan's carefully selected stock.

High Blood Pressure

GAYLORD WILSHIRE
Inventor of I-ON-A-CO

Dear Mr. Wilshire: My first treatment with the I-ON-A-CO reduced my blood pressure 6 points, and after six treatments it has been reduced to 192—which is equal to a reduction of 28 points. I consider this very interesting, as I have tried all kinds of treatments in the past 7 years, and the I-ON-A-CO is the first thing that has been of any benefit to me.

2 Arguyo Terrace, San Francisco, MRS. F. E. OLDS.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE is caused by an accumulation of unoxidized toxic material in the blood. The blood is consequently thickened, and an increased effort—or pressure—on the part of the heart is necessary to keep the blood flowing. Before this toxic material can be removed from the blood, it must be oxidized. Now the process of oxidation is controlled by the iron in the body. That is, the iron is an oxygen-carrier, and iron can be magnetized. Hence, through magnetization the I-ON-A-CO improves the oxygen-carrying ability of the iron. The toxic material is then quickly oxidized and eliminated.

As blood pressure can be accurately measured, there is no room for doubt when a patient reports that his blood preasure has been reduced. And in case after case, the I-ON-A-CO has produced a reduction in blood pressure with one treatment.

The Dog and The Dog

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

"Being a woman isn't so much of a handicap to me in the medical profession as you might think," said the Doc. "But it is a drawback when it comes to handling dogs—especially police dogs, like this one." She indicated, with the point of her slipper a tawny creature, which slowly rose to an unexpected height, placed its great paws on her lap, and began to lick the top of her bobbed head. A clip on his sensitive nose repressed his affection, and he subsided to the floor.

There Is Bedlam in the House Every Time We Take Him Down Cellar Or Bring Him Up Again.

"I found him in one of the cages in the laboratory," she went on. "They had picked him up on the street, and not recognizing his blue blood had brought him here and sold him for three dollars, with a bunch of other street dogs for purposes of experiment. He was too big to experiment on safely. There were no men around the place who would have taken the risk of overpowering him to give him chloroform. So he just staid on and on, and when I found him all his ribs and all his vertabrae were showing through his skin because the ration served to the dogs in the place made just about an appetizer for him. The ration allowance being limited, he had to get what the other dogs were served, and he was slowly starving to death on it.

"I decided to take him out home and make a watch dog out of him. I thought, too, he would make an appropriate strolling companion for my husband, who is six feet something tall and rangy, like my little canine friend.

"So I bought meat for him, and had him fed up till he had strength enough to walk, and then I called a taxicab, and when it came I opened the door of the cage and invited him to come and take a ride with me.

"He could hardly totter when he first got on the floor, for he hadn't been able to stand up in that little cage, and all his legs were cramped and bent by confinement. But presently he picked himself up, wagged his tail, and limped after me to the head of the stairs. There he stopped. He was afraid of stairs, as I discovered then, and have been rediscovering ever since. He just sat down, yelped once or twice and refused to move.

"I hunted around till I found a rope and tied it to the strap around his neck. Then I hauled with all my strength, and although he kept digging his toes into the floor, I managed to pull him all the way down.

"There wasn't much room for me in the taxi with him, and everybody we passed stared at us, for he kept howling dolefully all the way to the station and kept trying to climb out through the window. But we got there at last, and I called a red cap, and asked him to tote the brute to the train for me. I had just fifteen minutes to catch the train I needed, for I had a dinner engagement, and I was in a hurry to get home.

"The red cap dashed through the gate with the dog dragging after him, and endeavoring to back like a balky horse. When I caught up with them I was met by an ill tempered conductor who informed me shortly that no dog could be carried on that train without a permit.

"'Where do you get a permit?' I asked him.

"'At the station master's.'

"I went to the station masters, whose office was about a quarter of a mile away. There I was told that I would have to get the permit from the superintendent of the line, four flights upstairs in the office building.

"The superintendent was in conference, but I broke in on him. I was in a hurry. When he recovered from his shock he gave me the permit, and then I dashed back to the train, just as it was about to pull out. The dog was still there with the red cap, and I was about to thrust him into the baggage car when the conductor demanded to see the permit. I showed it to him.

"'The permit's all right,' he said, 'where's your ticket for the dog?'

"'Does the dog have to have a ticket?'

"'All right, I'll go back and get a ticket.'

"'Very well, but don't expect the train to be here when you get back. We can't upset a time table, even for a dog.'

"Well, that was all there was to that. The train pulled out, and I sent the red cap up to check the dog, and took the next one. I had had enough experience to know that I would have to see at least five people to get the dog checked. I gave the red cap my name and address, and told him to give it to the man he left the dog with.

"I drove into town with my husband that night, kept the dinner engagement, and went around to the station afterward to get the dog. First I tried the check room, but there was no dog there. Then I tried the baggage room. Again no dog. I started to make a row then, and some body suggested that I try the hand baggage.

"Well, that dog, which weighs a hundred pounds if he weighes an ounce wasn't exactly hand baggage, but there he was, just the same.

"We got him out and into the car, but he evidently had become attached to somebody in the hand baggage place for he howled all the way home and three or four bicycle policemen chased us on the way out at different times, being convinced that we were bandits and were murdering somebody.

"I don't know how we talked them out of it, but we did. The first one seemed to think that the dog was part of the party, and was attending to the assassination himself. He looked like that kind of a dog. But he couldn't find any victim in the car, so he let us go.

"The next day the dog finished a good meal, and feeling healthy and happy started out to play with anybody he could find around. He romped into a collection of school children, who looked at him once and then ran shrieking home to their mothers, who promptly came over to see me and inform me that if I didn't restrain the dog they would have me arrested. I restrained him till the next morning when I went back to the laboratory. Then he broke a cellar window and went forth to romp with a couple of puppies in the next street. The puppies also ran howling home and there was more trouble for me from their owners when I got back that night.

"The dog stays in the cellar now. He goes out sometimes with my husband, but his refusal to climb or go downstairs, confines the route to the open spaces. My husband attempted to take him to the club house where he wanted to get some cigarettes. But although he is a large powerful man he wasn't equal to carrying the dog up the steps, and as he could not get him in any other way he went without cigarettes, and was in a bad temper all day.

"The trouble is now that we like the dog, with all his faults, and don't want to give him up. But I do wish he would forget whatever it was that made him afraid of stairs. There is bedlam in the house every time we take him down cellar or bring him up again. If he was a man I would think somebody must have led him up a gallows and half hanged him in his youth."

Stolen Auto Captured After Crash In One Hour

A Chrysler roadster belonging to the Roxana Petroleum corporation and in the use of Henry Shaw, Roxana scout, was recovered by police within an hour after it was stolen from Shaw's residence, 709 Wofford street, Friday night.

Sideache, Dizziness

"FOR a long time I suffered dreadfully with pains in my sides," says Mrs. Owen Stout, of Ada, Okla. "At times these spells would become so bad I would have to go to bed. I dragged around and was pale and listless. I had no 'pep' or ambition. I did not want to go anywhere or do anything.

"When my sides hurt, I would grow dizzy if I was on my feet any, and I had to lie down most of the time. I had bad nervous headaches which caused me awful suffering. It seemed as if my head would split open from the pain up the back of my neck and across my temples.

"I read about a woman who had taken Cardui for trouble similar to my own, so I thought this medicine would be worth trying. If it helped her, it might help me. I got a bottle of Cardui and began to take it. It was really remarkable how fast I improved after I began taking Cardui. In time the cause of my suffering was removed and I recovered my former health and strength."

BODY BLOW FOR DOHENY AND FALL

AND now the court of last resort, the supreme court of the United States, has spoken. Edward L. Doheny of California and Albert B. Fall of New Mexico were sent to trial in the City of Washington charged by indictment with conspiracy to defraud the United States government in the famous naval reserve oil lease cases. A verdict of acquittal was returned by the jury. Now the civil case against Doheny instituted by the United States government has been disposed of by the supreme court.

Albert B. Fall awarded to Doheny the leases of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve. Fall was secretary of the interior. Upholding the find of the circuit court of appeals, the supreme court, in a unanimous decision, held that these leases not only were illegal but were obtained by fraud and corruption. The government was sustained in every position taken by special counsel. All the leases and contracts are cancelled by the decree and Edward L. Doheny must look to congress for any relief he may consider himself entitled to for the expenditure of more than $10,000,000 in the erection of storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Albert B. Fall's reputation, if he had any left, was blasted beyond repair by the decree. Edwin S. Denby, who was secretary of the navy at the time, did not escape the burning castigation of the court of last resort. Fall and Denby were members of the cabinet of Warren G. Harding. Harry F. Sinclair obtained leases from Fall. He won in the lower court. His case was appealed by the government and the decision in the Doheny case forecasts a like decision in the Sinclair case. Senator Thomas P. Walsh of Montana is the nemesis of Doheny and Fall. He made the investigation. He forced action by the government.

It is remarkable that the opinion in the Doheny case was written by Associate Justice Pierce Butler of Minnesota. Butler was named for the bench by Warren G. Harding. There was opposition to his confirmation. It was said that he was the leading corporation lawyer of the northwest and out of sympathy with the people and their rights. Now an opinion by Butler sustaining every member of the court of last resort, has stripped Doheny and Fall of their naval reserve lease plunge and written into the record that former Secretary of the Navy Denby was derelicit as a public servant.

It is said that justice travels with a leaden heel. This may be so, but it is said to strike mighty hard. It struck hard in the Doheny-Fall case. All the naval reserves leased by Doheny are returned to the government and the prophets say that the Sinclair leases will travel the same road.

JOHN BULL IS ANGRY

JOHN BULL goes blundering along, but he always wins. He has warned the soviet government that a break in relations will result from the continued propaganda of the Russian Reds. It appears that Moscow gold, a million sterling of it, was contributed to aid the British general strike in the coal fields last year, and this strike was considered a revolutionary movement by the British government.

Prime Minister Baldwin has information that Russian Reds are active everywhere, in China and India, where British influence dominates and all to stir up hostility against Great Britain and her interests. China is in the throes of a great war. There are three factions in China and all factions fighting for control. There are revolutionary movements in India and the Russian Reds are everywhere in evidence. This is the direct charge of the Baldwin government, and this is the main reason why Soviet Russia has been given its warning.

Soviet Russia is an outlaw among the nations. In the beginning the Soviet Russia repudiated the loan of $4,000,000,000 that had been made by the French people to the Romanoff government, loaned years before the coming of the World war. Great Britain had loaned billions to the Romanoff government. These loans were repudiated. It appears to be impossible to keep the peace on the Russian border line or in the Balkan nations.

It appears to be impossible to keep the peace in China. It may be possible for the League of Nations to function until the disputes between the nations of the earth may be settled by arbitration, but the skies of the world are a bit gloomy and the warrior nations of the world are not disarming. These have ever fought for power and pelf.

There is only one nation on the map of the world that hasn't fought for power or pelf. It is the nation founded by George Washington whose anniversary was celebrated on the 22nd of February. He fought for liberty and peace. He won. Those who came after him have fought for liberty and peace and justice for all men and all nations.

TWO FAVORITE SONS

VICE PRESIDENT CHARLES G. DAWES threw his influence to the McNary-Haugen bill, and now many republican statesmen, or rather managers of republican campaigns, are looking to Dawes as an available man in 1928 should Calvin Coolidge take himself out of the contest.

Frank O. Lowden is another favorite son of Illinois. He was born in Minnesota, made his start in Iowa, made his political record in Illinois, won his spurs as a teacher in the first state, his spurs as a lawyer in the second and his spurs as one of the most successful modern farmers in the state of Abraham Lincoln.

It all depends on the price of wheat next year, the price of corn and the price of hogs. In 1924 the late Robert M. LaFollette had a great following in the wheat states when the price of wheat was away down. Then the campaign began and the price of wheat began to climb.

It continued to climb until the followers of LaFollette deserted their idol and then voted the straight republican ticket. Man's pocket-book has a vast deal to do with his conviction in political campaigns and on election day.

New York Shown At Worst In The Book Of The Week

By BURTON RASCOE

* * *

The title, "East Side, West Side," is from the Tammany campaign song, "The Sidewalks of New York." The novel is an attempt to present the multitudinous facts of life in the polyglot metropolis. A narrative of one man's career runs through the 415 pages of the book; but the main interest of the author is not in any particular human beings, but in the character and personality of the city itself.

Riesenberg shifts the scene of his novel from the East river docks to the Ghetto, to Tammany hall and to pugilists' gymnasiums, to Park avenue and to Columbia university, to night clubs and to the Bowery mission. He presents pictures of New York in the dead of winter when cold and hungry men stand in long lines outside of the free coffee dispensaries and in the springtime when children play in the park of Morningside heights; in summer when workers swelter in sweatshops and in the autumn when Broadway decks itself for the theatrical season. He attempts to paint a panorama of the whole city.

The Story

The novel opens with a catastrophe in the Hudson river, 20 years ago. John Breen is 16. His father is captain of a river barge and all of John's life had been spent on the craft and about the river docks. Then one night there is a collision. The barge sinks. Captain Breen and his wife are drowned. John, already a strong and hardy youth, swims ashore.

John makes his way from the docks to the Ghetto, engaging in a fist fight with members of the Grogan gang while he is still damp from the river water. He is taken into the home of Channon Lipovitch, who runs a clothing emporium. While living with the Lipovitchs he is attacked by several members of the Grogan gang who terrorize the Ghetto with their fights and thefts and depredations. He beats them all, nearly killing the leader of the gang.

Immediately he becomes a hero, not only to the family that has taken him in, but to all the Jews in the neighborhood who have a fighter at last to defend them. They bid for his favor. They wait upon him. Becka Lipovitch idolizes him.

Although John works in the store, his real business in life becomes that of a fighter. Nearly every day he triumphs in some exploit of force until he has cleaned up the Grogan gang. Then Sol Lipovitch decides to exploit him as a prize fighter, and Pug Malone trains him.

John becomes a Tammany bruiser, inextricably mixed up in politics and prize fighting. He is winning bouts with all comers, when Gilbert Van Horn takes a personal interest in him. Gilbert Van Horn is a wealthy member of the old aristocracy. He is also a follower of prize fights. Before Van Horn and John meet the reader learns that John is Van Horn's illegitimate son. John does not know this; nor does Van Horn until much later.

John's intellectual curiosity has been aroused by a little reading and he feels the need of an education so greatly that he neglects training in order to read. He slumps as a fighter; but some Tammany leaders have backed a physical culture farm with Malone as the chief trainer and Malone takes John along as his assistant.

To the physical culture farm come rich men whose health has broken down because of their sedentary life or because of their over-eating, over-drinking and other dissipations. The description of the regimen enforced by Malone on the farm is very much like that described by Theodore Dreiser in "Twelve Men." Dreiser based his description upon the camp of William Muldoon, who trained Theodore Roosevelt and built up the health of many broken-down Wall street men by strenuous methods years ago.

Van Horn goes to the camp and there has many long talks with John. He learns that John has ambitions to acquire an education and become a civil engineer. He adopts John and sends him to Columbia. John fits into his Park avenue surroundings as easily as he did into the home of Channon Lipovitch, because he is natural, forthright, and without guile.

Van Horn has a pretty and very sophisticated niece, Josephine. She is piqued by John at first because her efforts to make him feel his origin fall flat. She teases and cajoles him alternately until he falls in love with her. They become engaged. John is graduated and goes to work with the city as a civil engineer. Meanwhile, Josephine, though she loves John, frets so much over John's lack of money that she decides she cannot marry and be happy on his income. She meets and marries a rich promoter.

This breaks John's heart for a time. He gets drunk, has a wild night and goes to the Ghetto in search of Becka. He had felt all along that he loved Becka and Becka certainly loved him. After a brief courtship they are married. Then Becka is run over and killed by a motor truck.

This tragedy and the multitudinous tragedies of the city increase in John a desire to relieve the plight of helpless human beings caught in the maw of the murderous city. He accepts a commission to tear down slums and build model tenements. This work so engrosses him that, when he might have married Josephine, who had become a widow and rich and who used all her wiles to recapture him, he refuses to do so, and dedicates all of his energies to the fulfilling of his dreams of better dwellings for the poor of the East Side.

Comment

Riesenberg is almost as thorough as Dreiser in documenting a novel; and if New York is to be expressed in a single tale, he has gone a long way toward expressing it. His style is not felicious; and when he breaks into a chant, cataloguing all the adjectives and phrases that may be used in describing the city, he often spoils a very good effort by a flat and trite phrase or by words that are too brutal.

Riesenberg sees New York as a feverish and fantastic dream. Images of vice and degradation float through his mind. He sees the mass of people as wolfish and predatory, nerve-tortured, libidinous and futilely going around like squirrels in a cage.

"Fireful, alluring, magnetic city of lies. Home of harlots, preachers, princes, janitors and housewives. Sodom, Gomorrah, Babylon, Jerusalem, Kansas City, all in one. Wicked, noisy, rich and cruel. City of fires, of flames, of light, heat, power. City of urge; city of Ur.

"How they have picked on you, how they have plundered you, how they have loved you, great, juicy lopsided city. City of tenderloins, contract cuts and fools. How they have smeared their names on the red record of your bleeding! Ahern, Amory, Brady, Cassidy, Cohalen, Crocker, Devlin, Devery, Engeman, Fisk, Gaffney, Callahan, Gilroy, Tweed, Murphy—and many, many others.

"Great common barrack of nourishment, filled with garlic, bread, cheese, meats, fruits, fish and tripe. Appetizing city of indigestions. City of hors-d'oeuvre and handouts. . . ."

It may be said that Mr. Riesenberg has succeeded excellently in giving a physical impression of New York; but it is a novel observed rather than felt.

Put Great Men to Work for You

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

·LINCOLN· ·CICERO· ·RALEIGH· ·JACKSON·

CONSIDERING that it costs nothing, I am surprised that so few people have the great men of the world working for them. Personally I should hardly know how to get through a week without their help.

I am in a business that has no office hours: there is no one except myself to assign my work and see that it gets done. And frequently there are days when I kick against my boss and do not feel like doing any work at all. For such days I have discovered a remedy. I go to my desk a little early, and instead of starting at once to work, I pick up the biography of some great man and read a chapter out of the most interesting portion of his life.

After half an hour or so, I am conscious of a new feeling. My spiritual shoulders are straighter; my reluctance has disappeared. I say to myself: "How trivial is my task compared with the marvels he achieved!" I am on fire with his example, eager to make the day count.

The discovery that great men can be drafted for help in even the humblest office is not original with me. Many another has profited by it; Emerson, for example:

> I cannot even hear of personal vigor of any kind, great power of performance, without fresh resolution. We are emulous of all that men do. Cecil's saying of Sir Walter Raleigh, "I know that he can toil terribly," is an electric touch. So are Clarendon's portraits of Hampden, "who was of an industry and vigilance not to be tired out or wearied by the most laborious, and of parts not to be imposed upon by the most subtle and sharp, and of a personal courage equal to his best parts," and of Falkland, "who was so severe an adorer of truth that he could as easily have allowed himself to steal as to dissemble." We cannot read Plutarch without a tingling of the blood; and I accept the saying of the Chinese Mercius: "A sage is the instructor of a hundred ages. When the manners of Loo are heard of, the stupid become intelligent, and the wavering, determined."

There is in biography an antidote for almost every mood.

Are we inclined to be afraid? It stirs new depths of courage in us to read of Stonewall Jackson, whose motto was: "Never take counsel of your fears."

Do we vacillate between two courses of action? There is in all literature no such warning against vacillation as the pitiful uncertainties of poor Cicero.

I would commend these willing helpers to every man who finds his task sometimes heavy beyond his individual strength. There is no limit to their service. The fact that I employ them does not keep them from working with equal efficiency for you. They answer at a moment's notice, and may be dismissed peremptorily without the slightest hurt upon their feelings.

In their companionship is the secret of mental and spiritual growth. It is fairly easy to be as great as our contemporaries. It is hard to lift ourselves by our own boot-straps to distinguished effort and achievement. But these great men any one of us may make his own contemporaries and companions if he will; and there is no danger that we will outgrow them.

They are a daily stimulation to that which is best and most effective in us—the golden peaks of achievement along which even the least of us may climb a little nearer to his best ideals.

Topics for the Week

"CHRIST IS A SPIRIT"

Sunday

"Christ is Spiritual

SCRIPTURE: Read—Colossians 1:9-23.

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God" (Jn. 1:1, 2). "The Son of his love; . . . who is the image of the invisible God" (Col. 1-13, 15). "Jesus said . . . before Abraham was born, I am" (Jn. 8:58).

See—Luke 4:18, 19; Philippians 2:6; 1 Corinthians 8:6; Ephesians 3:9-11.

MEDITATION: How unique is Jesus Christ—in his character, in his knowledge, in his assertions about himself, in his love, in his joy, in his self-sacrifice! How are we to explain this? He is an embodiment of divine thought, feeling and will. He is a revelation in human personality of the infinite God. He is love incarnate producing in himself the fruits of the spirit, and begetting spiritual life in us.

"No description of Thy heavens could declare their glory to the born blind; no description of Thy Christ could manifest His greatness to the loveless soul."

HYMN:

Sun of my soul, Thou Savior dear,
It is not night if Thou be near;
O may no earth-born cloud arise
To hide Thee from Thy servant's eyes!

When the soft dews of kindly sleep
My wearied eyelids gently steep,
Be my last thought, how sweet to rest
Forever on my Savior's breast!

Come near and bless us when we wake,
Ere through the world our way we take,
Till in the ocean of Thy love
—John Keble, 1820.

PRAYER: Thanks for Christ.

Pray for— appreciation of Christ; pastors; theological students.

Collect—Lord of all truth, whose mind is quick and powerful, we praise Thee for the universe, so vast, so orderly, so dependable. We bless Thee for the persons of men and the powers of friendship in them and us, but yet more for friendship with Thyself, for fellowship with Thy Son, and for Thy pervading presence with us in the Holy Spirit. Precious are the moments of intimate intercourse with Thee. Reprove us, we entreat Thee, for the pursuit of things to the forgetting of friendships human and divine. Give us the discriminating mind which detects the subtlies of sin and the beauty of holiness. So shall we know victory in the conflict. Therefore we covenant with Thee to put first things first by the grace of Christ. Amen.

The Man Nobody Knows

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

Renunciation.

It was as splendid a picture as ever stirred the pulses of a ambitious man, when the multitude surged forward toward the little hill where Jesus stood. For only an instant Jesus allowed his eyes to rest on it. Then he saw the other picture—the vast dumb multitudes of men, his brothers and sisters, the blind being led by the blind, their souls squeezed dry of vision and hope by the machinery of formalism.

He saw generations born and die in spiritual servitude which nothing could end except the Truth that he had come to declare. To put himself at the head of this army of fantical patriots would be perhaps to risk his life and his message with it. But worse than the possibility of failure was the probability of success. To be king of the Jews would mean a lifetime spent in the defense of his throne and title, a life time of bloodshed and intrigue, while his message remained unspoken.

Living, he would give his people only a semblance of national life; dying, he would leave them to be re-enslaved by the Roman power. And the Truth which he had come to declare, which was capable of continuing its work of emancipation throughout the world so long as time should last, would be traded for a glittering crown and an empty name. In a flash he saw it all and made his decision. Even as the multitude surged forward, he gave a few crisp orders to his disciples and disappeared.

"Jesus, therefore, preceiving that they were about to come and take him by force to make him king, withdrew again into the mountain himself alone."

In that hour of crisis he proved his right to be the silent partner in every modern business; to sit at the head of every directors' table. There is no mere theorizing in his words: he speaks out of what he himself has proved. If he says that a man's work is more eternally important than any title, he has a right to speak. He himself refused the highest title. If he says that there are things more vital than merely making money, let no one question his authority. He was handed the wealth of a nation and handed it back again. Idealist he is, but there is nothing in the whole hard world so practical as his ideals. "There is a success which is greater than wealth or titles," he says. "It comes through making your work an instrument of greater service, and larger living to your fellow men and women. This is my Father's business and he needs your help."

He told one business story which should be published every year in all magazines of business, all trade papers, all house organs. It concerned a certain rich man whose enterprises prospered beyond all expectations. His land "brought forth plentifully," so much so that he said to himself: "What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits?"

And he said: "This will I do: I will pull down my barns and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods."

"And I will say to my soul, 'Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry.'"

But God said, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee."

The poor fool had regarded his business as nothing but a means of escape from business. He had hoarded his wealth, denying every generous impulse; spent his health, forfeiting every chance for wholesome enjoyment; sacrificed the joy of living for a selfish satisfaction that he hoped was coming when he had made his pile. And Fate laughed in his face. He though he had provided for every contingency, but the one great event which is always unexpected came like a thief in the night and found him unprepared . . .

With that business anecdote should be published another, which is also a tragedy. It concerns the little hotel in Bethlehem, "the inn."

The mother of Jesus of Nazareth knocked at its doors and could not come in. It might have sheltered the greatest event in human history, and it lost its chance.

Why? Why was Jesus born in a stable? Because the people in the inn were vicious or hostile? Not in the least. The inn was full, that was all; every room was taken by folk who had affairs to attend to and money to spend. It was busy.

There was no "room in the inn."

Men's lives are sometimes like that inn.

You know a man whose heart is broken because his son is a fool. Yet deep within himself he knows that the fault is his own. All through the formative years of the boy's development, he never gave him any time. Not that he didn't love the boy; but he was busy. There was no room for family life; and his son is a fool.

You know men whose health is gone; men whose taste for reading and music and art is gone. Men who have literally no interests in life beyond the office which has become a mere treadmill whereon their days are ground away.

In the process of being successful they have sacrificed success. Never once forgetting themselves they have forgotten everything else. This is not Jesus' idea of what a life should be. He, who refused to turn aside from his business to become a king, was never too busy to turn aside for a sick man, a friend, or a little child. He never forgot that one night his mother had stood on a threshold where there was no welcome.

The threshold of the little inn in Bethlehem. It was so busy that the greatest event in history knocked at its doors.

HASKELL SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, March 12.—Last Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the Haskell County Federation of Clubs met at the First Baptist church in one of the most far-reaching programs that it has sponsored since its organization. B. M. Whiteker, exhibit manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, was the main speaker and his subject was "The Greatest Needs of Haskell County." Every one expected that he would say good roads, and he did, but he made them secondary to "Builders," logically pointing out that when Haskell citizenry waked up to the fact that good roads, paved streets, federal buildings and good homes all over the county, owned by the people, were economic assets, these would come as a matter of course. Mr. Whiteker also stressed the good that would be accomplished by having a county demonstrator. Other splendid addresses on clean-up campaigns, tree planting and beautifying the home were given by Carl Cook of the Farmer's Bank of Haskell; Mrs. C. O. Davis, Rule, and W. B. Gregory of Weinert.

Mrs. J. U. Fields Showered With Honors

Mrs. J. U. Fields and Dr. Georgia M. Moore of Haskell were in Henrietta last Saturday and Sunday by special invitation, house guests of Mrs. Moore's sister, Mrs. P. O. Moore, and at 1 o'clock Saturday Mrs. Fields was the honor guest at a lovely five-course luncheon tendered by the Delphian club in the home of Mrs. J. M. Douthitt. Mrs. Edwards was toast mistress, and besides the honoree, Mrs. J. U. Fields, those who responded to special toasts were state chairman of clubhouses, Mrs. P. P. Langford; chairman of junior clubs, Mrs. Paul Donald, Bowie, Texas district chairman of drama, Mrs. Inez O'Neal, Wichita Falls; district chairman of conventions and civics, Mrs. Frank Holliday, Henrietta. Mrs. Fields was the recipient from the Delphian club of a lovely corsage from the Henrietta P.-T. A. and the Music club, beautiful cut flowers from Miss Virginia Edwards, an original hand-painted picture. In the evening at the First Christian church the Unity club, whose president is Mrs. F. O. Moore, tendered a magnificent reception honoring Mrs. Fields. There were representatives from 17 clubs in Clay county present. The church was decorated in potted ferns and plants in full bloom. Mrs. Fields gave her famous address, "The Spirit of Beauty," and at the close an was given a bouquet of Marchelneil roses by the Civic club; a buffet supper was served later. Before leaving Henrietta on an early Sunday morning train, Mrs. Fields was honor guest at a special breakfast by Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Paul Donald of Bowie was also a guest.

Music Pupils In Recital

Standing room was at a premium at the Magazine club rooms last Friday evening at 7 o'clock when Mrs. G. H. Morrison presented her beginner, intermediate and some of her advanced pupils in piano recital. She was assisted by Miss Clarine Branpom, violin, and Miss Katherine Rike, reader. The following pupils rendered piano selections: Dater Bell Pierson, Anna Bell Stanton, Audra Gayle Roberts, Maxine Quattlebaum, O. D. Cook, Delpha Case, Maxine Simmons, Audra McKnight, Mary Frances Sutherlin, Mary Anna Williams, Charlene Baughman, Eva Dell Sawyers, Virginia Sue Couch, Selda Maples, Nancy Guest, Virginia Sills, Mattie Muriel Walling, Oleta Bland, G. W. Reynolds, Irene McGregor, Mary Pearsey, Naomi Poteet and Annabel Burt.

Mrs. Roberts Club Hostess

Last Tuesday afternoon was bright and sunshiny after several weeks of inclement weather and members of the Golf Widows club met with Mrs. Shirley Roberts and played "42" for several hours. Potted plants were the only decorations except the St. Patrick's emblems which were evident in the cards and the menu plate which carried a delicious salad course.

Special guests were Mesdames W. C. Williams, Paul Kuentzer, John Wilson Gilstrap, Vaughn Bailey and W. A. Duncan. Members present, the president, Mrs. Hardy Grissom, and Mesdames A. C. Pierson, Leo Southern, Bruce W. Bryant, R. C. Cooch, R. C. Montgomery, O. E. Patterson, J. G. Foster, W. H. Murchison and A. H. Wair.

Harmony Club Meeting

The Harmony club rendered a Texas composers program last Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. M. L. Baker directed the following. In chorus, "Texas, My Texas," by Marsh, with Mrs. G. E. Pate at the piano; vocal solo, "Last Rose Bonnet Song," Margaret Scott Penn, by Miss Perry Lee Smith; a brief survey of Texas composers, Mrs. M. L. Baker, piano solo, "Sleep and Good Dreams," Lorie Rogers. Mrs. O. E. Patterson then rendered two selections, the first was "En Bercant," by Vernel, and second an original composition, a Waltz; Mrs. H. D. Neff played two original compositions (a) Valse, (b) Fleeting Dreams. The Harmony club embraces the most talented musicians, both vocal and instrumental, that Haskell affords.

Montgomery and Mesdames O. E. Patterson, E. Sutherlin, Leo Southern, Andrew Shriver, R. J. Earnest, W. Simms, Bob Harrison, J. G. Mulker, Elmer Irwin and Mrs. C. T. THE STRONGEST STEP

YOUR CREDIT

The standard of a man's worth is —Credit! Therefore, the strongest step he can take is to protect that standard at all costs.

You've heard this said about someone you know: "He may be all right, but he doesn't pay his bills."

A collector at the door oftener than usual . . . an account closed against further retail credit . . . . a name brought up in the meeting of a bank's loan committee . . . notice in the "Court Review" . . . here are dozens of ways in which the credit record of a person becomes clouded.

A man is judged in the business world as well as socially by the way he pays his bills. Whereas a record once clouded may be cleared up . . . it can only be done with difficulty. It is much wiser and easier to maintain a good record for prompt pay than to rebuild one that was permitted to become unsatisfactory.

For the sake of your good name . . . for the sake of the credit standing that may mean so much to you in the future, pay your bills promptly.

NOTED ACTOR TELLS OF TRIAL

It's No Simple Method to Be "Mean"

It takes years of practice and training to be able to be thoroughly bad, or at least that is the opinion of Jay Morley, who has the role of the "heavy" in "With Daniel Boone Thru the Wilderness," historical pioneer epic which will be shown at the Gem theater today.

Morley, who is everything but a villian in private life, being noted for his excellence of character, attributes his ability to portray villainous roles to his long training in this kind of character.

Since the early days of the Lubin company, Mr. Morley has carried the reputation of being the perfect villain. As a master of makeup, the smooth face of Morley is covered with a stubble beard as Gerty, the renegade in the "Daniel Boone" picture. The beard would be the envy of any character whose aim it was to be villainous looking.

It has always been the aim of Mr. Morley to be a natural "heavy" in appearance, and he never wears a false beard, but grows them in order for the productions in which he appears. A few days' delay was necessitated by this artist during the filming of the picture when the beard failed to attain proper length to suit him on the starting date set for the production.

Sergeant Chaney Of 'Devil Dogs'

The sinister cripple of "The Penalty;" the tragic clown of "He Who Gets Slapped;" the one-eyed monster of "The Road to Mandalay," has forsaken his weird trappings—for a disguise even more amazing.

He roars his way through the role of a tough old Marine sergeant; years in the service; veteran of many a battle—battering the new generations of recruits into the traditions of the service that is "first to fight."

A grim old fellow, this sergeant of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle, "Tell It To The Marines." But, under it all, proud of his boys; as fond of them as a father might be, even while he belabors them like a Simon Legree.

His is the story of many a tough old "top kicker" of the corps—and the explanation of the fanatical adoration Marines have for their sergeants—the tougher the better.

"Tell It To The Marines" is Simon pure entertainment—but it is more—it is the very soul of Uncle Sam's great service thrown on the screen.

It is full of sensational thrills—a great battle fleet thundering its defiance to the world; desperate battles, and with a wonderful love story woven through its laughs. The government saw its value—that is why it was made with the co-operation of the whole corps—why hundreds of Marines play in its dramatic action—why great battleships lent themselves to its needs. It does for the Marines what "The Big Parade" did for the soldiers.

William Haines, as the irrepressible recruit, has a role that was "custom made" for him, and Eleanor Boardman makes a charming heroine. Carmel Myers, Eddie Gribbon and others, including George Hill, director, merit praise.

Buffalo Bill, Jr. At Mission Today

How close comedy lies to tragedy. The two emotions, thought so far apart are really side by side. This is aptly demonstrated in the newest starring vehicle for Buffalo Bill, Jr., "The Galloping Gobs." In this feature, which comes to the Mission theater today, Morgan Brown who plays the leading comedy part in the picture gets most of his laughs on the misfortunes of the character. What is that strange something that makes us all laugh when we see someone slip on the ice. This thought is the theme of the action created for laughs, that director Richard Thorpe has Mr. Brown do in this picture. The story was written with a thought to the comedy possibilities and the picture may well be called a western comedy drama.

Also in the cast will be seen, Betty Baker, formerly leading lady for Harry Langdon in "Long Pants." Miss Baker is a Southern girl and brings to the screen a wealth of beauty and talent.

CAL PETS RACCOON.

WASHINGTON, March 12. — What is a white house without Rebecca? Answer: Lonely. When the Coolidges moved Rebecca was left behind in the regular domicile which is being repaired. Her lord and master found he needed her to pat in the evening. So the presidential limousine took her to the temporary residence in Dupont Circle. Rebecca is a pet raccoon.

If you are unable to forget an injury, you are going to be busy all your life, but you won't get anywhere.

MEXICO TO IRRIGATE

By Universal Service.

MEXICO CITY, March 12.—A project to increase the fertility of the land on the west coast of Mexico, eight fold at a cost of about 20,000,000 pesos, by extensive irrigation measures, planned by a group of American engineers was reported today by the national irrigation commission, a division of the Mexican department of agriculture and development.

STEALS TWO BIBLES

TOPEKA, Kan.—A thief who recently entered the Church of the Nazarene in Newton, carried off as loot two Bibles and a reading glass. The intruder also ransacked the study of the pastor, the Rev. William Lamberts, but obtained nothing. "I hope the thief will read both Bibles," was the comment of the pastor.

LYA DE PUTTI AT OLYMPIC

Noted Cast For "God Gave Me 20 Cents"

New Orleans during the Mardi Gras! Crowds run riot. Street parades. Beautiful floats. Grotesque figures. Confetti. Music. Dancing. Laughter. Drinking. Romance. Drama. Intrigue. Noise. Gayety. Mardi Gras!

There you have the background against which Herbert Brennon has faithfully transcribed a story of the New Orleans Mardi Gras, "God Gave Me Twenty Cents." A ship has docked and the men have joined the merrymakers. Up the street, laughing, singing, shouting. They pause before a restaurant. Seeing a shy little girl waiting on table, the mob's leader runs in, takes her in his arms, enthrones her on a float and they continue through the town.

It is late when he leaves the child at her door and it is the first time either of them have ever known what it is to love. Five days pass, six—and they are married. She, of the pensive look; and he, of the roistering sailor crew.

The seventh day arrives. The boat is about to leave harbor. He goes to a cafe to say goodbye before returning for a last word with his wife. Cassie enters. She is hard, hard as steel; but steel bends, and he is the only one ever to enter her heart. Her man—married, and going away. She wants, asks, taunts, begs to go with him. Finally, before all his fellows, she dares him to match his luck against hers. She'll toss two dimes in the air. Should both show heads, Cassie goes. If not, she stays.

The coins spin and drop. Both are—but why try to describe what happens? "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," which comes to the Olympic today, is heralded as one of the season's finest dramas. Lois Moran, Lya de Putti, Jack Mulhall and William Collier Jr. are featured.

"That old woman whose hair you just bobbed would have looked better with it long."

Leatrice Joy, a highly popular star, will be seen at the Strand theater today, in her latest Alan Hale picture production from the DeMille studios, "The Wedding Song." Playing opposite her in this sterling photoplay is Robert Ames. Miss Joy has the role of a crook girl whose efforts to rob an islander of a fortune in pearls is frustrated when she falls in love with her proposed victim. There are many thrilling moments in the picture. The supporting cast is high grade.

HAVANA, March 12. — Telephonic conversations were exchanged today across the Atlantic between Senor Hortiz, Cuban foreign minister and Godfrey Lampson, representing Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign minister, absent in Geneva at the conference of the League of Nations. This conversation marked the opening of the new service between the two countries.

"HARD BOILED" STARS TONY

Noted Horse Given Difficult Test in Picture

Tony, wonder horse of the Tom Mix ranch, has had some big moments in his screen career, but according to his master the lion-hearted animal exceeds all previous performances by the work he does in "Hard Boiled," Fox Films version of Shannon Fife's romance of the West, now at the Garden theater.

In this story, laid in the great open spaces, Tony has to dash so close to a rapidly-moving train that the step almost brushes his forefeet. At no time does the big horse balk, however, for he has been made to understand that Tom is to leap to the top of the swaying train—and the slightest misstep by Tony may spell disaster.

Once on the train Tom grapples a band of crooks and defeats them in a terrific single-handed battle while Tony gallops alongside, still eager to be in the contest.

LEGAL TO CHASE CATS

ST. PAUL, Minn.—The state committee on dairy products and livestock was ready to recommend for passage a bill to allow any person to kill a dog found chasing that person's "domestic animals or poultry." Then one senator feared that this night permit too sudden a dispatch of a dog engaged in "the pastime of chasing cats." The committee amended the bill to read: "Livestock and poultry," and recommended passage.

THE OLD STORY!

MOSCOW.—Ivan Popov lost his job as head of the soviet butter trust, was expelled from the communist party and arrested for negligence and extravagance because he spent much soviet gold and sold little butter on an official trip to China and Japan. Instead of sending home orders for butter, it is alleged that Popov sent letters to friends in praise of the geishas of Japan.

MUFFLER AIDS FUEL ECONOMY

Modern Silencer Perfected By Dodge Bros.

The influence which the muffler or exhaust silencer may exert on the fuel consumption of a motor car is frequently overlooked by the motorist of today in the opinion of Bob Cornelision, manager of the McFall Brothers, local Dodge Brothers dealer.

"Back in the old days when many makes of cars were regularly equipped with muffler 'cut-out' valves and the owners of many cars of other makes added such equipment," Mr. Cornelision says, "it was not uncommon to hear a driver boast of the extra speed he could attain with the noise making device open. And perhaps it was true of many of the cars on the road over a decade ago.

Now Seldom Heard.

"Between two evils, a noisy engine and chassis and the roar of the open exhaust, it is perhaps not strange that some drivers in the old days preferred the barking of the open cut-out. But conditions have changed. The car of today equipped with a cut-out is unusual and the sound of an open, unmuffled exhaust is seldom heard except from aircraft—and doubtless within a few years there will be legislation against noisy airplanes.

"The old 'cut-out' before it was abandoned, however, did accomplish one good thing. It attracted attention of the motorist, and of the engineer and designer as well, to the inefficiency of some of the many types of mufflers. Some mufflers silenced the exhaust effectively enough but they caused too much back pressure and loss of engine power—and when the cut-out valve was opened many cars showed marked increase in speed and hill climbing ability.

"The natural result was the evolution of more successful, more efficient mufflers. Today the fitting of a cut-out valve to the exhaust pipe should give so little increase in power, if any, as to be scarcely noticeable to the driver.

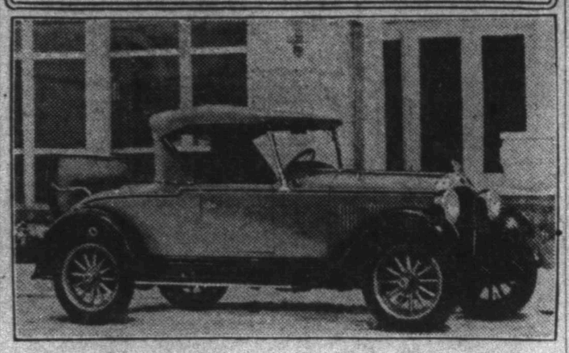

"The function of the muffler is to receive the hot gases which are exhausted from the cylinders at high pressure several hundred times each minute and after allowing them to cool and expand discharge them into the air in a nearly constant stream—minus the loud reports which would occur if they escaped through a short open pipe. Further, the gases must flow through the exhaust pipe and muffler with so little obstruction that they will not be held back and prevent proper emptying of the cylinders.

Ideal Model.

"Dodge Brothers engineers after exhaustive experiments have developed an improved muffler which closely approaches the ideal. To insure strength the shell and intermediate expansion chambers are of steel with the joints so made as to be stronger than the metal away from the joint. The pressed steel heads are held in the outer shell by a rolled lock joint made on special machines designed for the purpose. There are no castings in the construction—all the joints are mechanical, no welds or bolts or rods are depended upon to secure the heads, shell and intermediate chambers together where they must withstand bursting strains.

"An interesting advantage of the design, the engineers point out, is that the heated gases are expanded and cooled in the large outer chamber before passing into the smaller inner chambers on their way to the outlet pipe. If the heated gas enters the muffler at a temperature of 600 to 1200 degrees and due to the cooling while passing through a muffler of this construction is cooled 100 to 200 degrees the volume is considerably decreased. This cooling and consequent decrease in volume aids materially in reducing both back pressure and exhaust sound."

New Sport Roadster in Pontiac Line

New car has been added to new Pontiac Six line just announced. Rumble seat is feature.

With the introduction of a Sport Roadster to the new Pontiac six line announced last week, there has entered the low priced field a type of automobile which hitherto has been associated only with the more expensive makes of cars. This new body type added to the line is in every sense a sport roadster—with all the equipment, smartness, color harmony and dash that has been deemed essential to this outdoor-type of motor car.

It has seating capacity for four adults, a rumble seat in the rear, easily opened and easily reached, giving the extra carrying capacity for two persons. The car coloring of Lucerne Blue Duco, striped with Faerie red is as distinctive as the rakish body lines.

The upholstery is of Shark grain leather and deep side pockets are provided in both doors. Nickel plating is used extensively in the hardware of the car. The windshield arms are nickel plated as are the rear deck bars and the rumble seat side arms, door handles and interior hardware. The rumble seat is entered by means of two aluminum steps on the right side of the car, one on the frame and the other mounted on the fender.

Some of the unique features include the inside door handles which are placed toward the extreme front of the doors to be easily accessible; the outside door handles which are inlaid with imitation mother of pearl and the head and cowl lights which are finished in the same Duco color as the body of the car. The spare tire is neatly carried on the left front fender. Automatic windshield cleaner and rear view mirror are standard equipment.

When the rumble seat is used, the entire top may be removed or the back curtain may be raised or taken off altogether when the top is up. A glass window inset in the back curtain is framed in aluminum.

This car reflects all the many improvements of the new Pontiac six line, longer and lower bodies, deeper radiator, larger, heavier and more sweeping crown fenders and more massive headlamps. The beading slopes down at the back of the Sport Roadster to conform to the graceful slope of the rear deck.

One of the unique features of the car is the new tilting-beam headlights which are controlled by a switch on the floor boards. This switch which is most simply operated by the foot either throws the beam down on the road for city driving or straight ahead for country driving at night—without dimming the [illegible] of the light. A 17-inch steering wheel with aluminum spider is another refinement to the Pontiac six line. Other new mechanical features include new transmission and brake levers, a clutch even more smooth and positive in action and an oil-sealed universal joint. The car lists at $775 f. o. b. factory.

Chevrolet Sales Prove Popularity

Responding to an unprecedented and enthusiastic demand on the part of the public for "the most beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet history" with its numerous refinements at lowered prices, the Chevrolet Motor company during February again smashed all previous monthly production records by producing 85,821 cars.

February production this year showed an increase of 34,518 cars or more than 67 per cent over the total of 51,303 Chevrolets built in February, 1926.

Despite greatly enlarged facilities provided under the $10,000,000 expansion program completed Dec. 1, 1926, the Chevrolet Motor company was forced to extend its operations by working overtime, day and night, to meet the nation-wide demand for Chevrolet cars—a demand marking the rise of this company to its position as the largest manufacturer of gear-shift cars in the world.

"There is only one reason for the phenomenal growth in popularity of the Chevrolet car," said W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor company, "and that is—it has pleased the public. It has met the desire of the public for a high grade car, of exceptional quality and performance, at a reasonable price. It is this constantly growing approval of the Chevrolet car that is causing the company to extend its production to meet the increasing demand."

In the first two months of 1925 the Chevrolet Motor company built 46,373 cars; in the same period in 1926 it built 97,740 and in January and February of this year it totaled 159,497 cars—an increase in two years for this period of 113,124 cars.

Australian Press Praises Chrysler

Lengthy articles appearing in Australian newspapers now being received, report in detail a series of remarkable feats performed by a Chrysler car, which had previously been briefly covered in cables some time ago.

The car, a stock Chrysler "70", broke all Australian records for every distance of from 100 miles upward and for continuous driving for 24 hours. On the Maroubra speedway at Sydney this car covered 1468 miles in 24 hours and did the first 1000 miles in 955 minutes.

The previous record for the Maroubra speedway was 1408 miles for 24 hours. "The car ran wonderfully well", says the Sydney Sun. "There were no long stoppage, though the high speed caused excessive wear on tires and occasional stops had to be made to change the tires.

"The average speed for the first six hours was 64.8 miles an hour", says the Sydney Daily Telegraph, "and after 14 hours running the car had averaged 65 miles an hour. After continuous running for six hours, one lap was made at a speed of 71 miles an hour.

"The car was the same in which Smith, its driver, broke the Brisbane to Sydney record and is described as a standard model except for an extra leaf in the springs and a free exhaust.

FALLS FOR OLD ONE!

NEW YORK.—Once upon a time "bunco steerers" did a thriving gold brick business on the Bowery. Those days have passed, but Joseph Ioppolo was waiting for a train when a nattily-dressed stranger accosted him. "Aren't you Joe Ioppolo? Why, you're just the man I've been looking for for weeks. I don't suppose you've heard that your brother has died in Spain and left you quite a fortune." Joe believed him and parted with $1250 for a ticket to Spain that was as mythical as the fortune.

MARCH GOAL 30,000 CARS

Willys-Knight Expects New Record Sales

Production of Whippet and Willys-Knight cars for March will be 30,000, according to a statement just given out by factory officials. This will bring the total production for the first quarter up to the number necessary at this season to meet the 300,000 schedule set for the year.

The March production will be 88 per cent in excess of production for the same month of last year and 60 per cent in excess of February production for this year.

Orders on hand for the balance of February will keep the factory oversold for the month on the Whippet production and on the Willys-Knight Great Six, both of which cars are now being built in the largest volume in the history of the company.

Production on the recently announced Whippet Six is being stepped up as fast as the factory can turn its facilities over to this model.

Heavy production has been the rule on the "70" Willys-Knight Six the first of the year but at the present time this model is oversold on two enclosed types.

Advance orders already in for March delivery indicate that total orders for the month will exceed the 30,000 production mark which will mean that the factory will not be able to catch up with orders by the end of March.

March production will be divided 60 per cent Whippet including the Whippet Six and 40 per cent Willys-Knight.

Harry Hartz, '26 Speedway Champ, Joins Studebaker Engineering Staff

Harry Hartz, the smiling race car pilot who flashed his way to the pinnacle of his profession to become 1926 speedway champion, has been retained by the experimental engineering and research department of the Studebaker corporation, according to an announcement just made public by H. S. Vance, vice president in charge of production. Hartz will perform special testing work in connection with other work going forward in Studebaker's research laboratory and proving ground near South Bend.

In joining the Studebaker engineering staff Hartz brings to the corporation many years' experience as one of the most consistently successful drivers in speedway history and a thorough knowledge of the most advanced type of motor design.

The most outstanding record of Hartz' career was the 300-mile mark he set at Atlantic City last May, when he finished the opening race of the new speedway there at an average of 134.1 miles per hour. Hartz also holds the record for 200 miles, having covered the distance at an average of 123.26, and the 50-mile record made at Culver City, Cal., at an average of 129.35. The blonde Californian took the speedway championship with a total of 2934 points, well ahead of Frank Lockhart, who finished second. That the distinction of being national racing champion carries with it something more than mere honor is indicated in the fact that Hartz' winnings in his own car totaled $71,100 for the year.

His knowledge and mechanical skill will be of great value to the Studebaker corporation, which with his appointment rounds out a staff of automotive engineers and scientists who are acknowledged leaders in their respective fields. Hartz is more than a fast driver of fast race cars. His racing career has been founded solidly on a mechanical skill that enabled him to have his cars in perfect condition before the start of every race he entered as well as an uncanny judgment of pace that brought him across the finish line well within the money in a majority of his starts.

Willis-Knight Six Averages 24 Miles To Gallon In Long Test

An average of 24 miles to the gallon of gas on a 7500-mile tour over the Rockies and Big Horn mountains, through muddy and rough roads as well as paved highways is the accomplishment of a "70" Willys-Knight Six driven by Dr. E. F. Tiessen, of Freeman, So. Dak.

In describing the performance of his Willys-Knight, Dr. Tiesen has this to say in a letter to the Willys-Overland factory:

"We made an average of 300 miles a day, the lowest average being 50 miles, with 24 miles to the gallon of gasoline. We never had a hot engine, changed oil and grease every 1000 miles Never touched the engine at any time to look for trouble and I have between 11,000 and 12,000 miles on the car now and have yet to remove the first spark plug.

"We went through the Big Horn mountains, the Cascade twice, the Rockies twice and over the Contentinal Divide twice but not once did we have to take any of the steep grade in medium or low, the Willys-Knight responding in high gear although we passed many larger sixes struggling along in medium or low."

"In the same mail, comes an unsolicited letter from Dr. F. M. Turner of Savannah, Ga., who tells of the sturdy performance of his Willys-Knight Great Six in a journey through the Blue Ridge mountains and across the states of North and South Carolina.

"Not until I drove off in this silent Willys-Knight did I realize that the motroing of yesterday is not to be compared with the new sensation of ease, luxury and comfort afforded by this new monarch of the road," he declares. "We have covered nearly 7000 miles with our Willys-Knight Great Six and have yet to find our first engine or car trouble."

TO ALL CONCERNED:

This is to certify that we, the undersigned official judges of the "How Many Miles Will a Ford Go On One Gallon of Gasoline" contest, examined each of the Ford Automobiles entered in the contest; saw the tanks and carburetors were completely drained of gasoline; that one gallon of commercial gasoline (as furnished by the various oil companies represented on the ground) was, by standard government measure poured into the tank of each car of each entrant; and that the tanks and hoods (both sides) were officially sealed.

The cars, in the order that they were filled with one gallon of gasoline, were released from the tape, going down the Henrietta road.

We, the official judges, certify under oath that we measured the distance covered by the contestants, with an officially tested speedometer, and found all seals intact, and, that the following is the true and correct record of the nine leading cars:

DRIVES AUTO OVER LAKE

He Guides Packard Through Blizzard With Compass

Cruises far out on Lake Huron in his motor car with only a compass for a guide were daily experiences of Captain J. C. Reid, deep sea sailor and wrecker, during a considerable period this winter.

Captain Reid is the owner of a naval wrecking company with a big fleet of salvage ships all over the Great Lakes and along the whole Atlantic Coast of the United States. He received an urgent call at his home in Port Huron, Mich., for help from one of the big Great Lakes ore carriers which had become wedged tight in the ice off Saginaw Bay. A big, powerful, ice crushing tug was dispatched at once to the rescue.

While the tug fought its way through the ice Captain Reid in his Packard eight runabout hurried overland to Saginaw. The blizzard which was blowing rendered almost anything ten feet away invisible. However, Captain Reid set a compass course for the ship and headed out into the lake over the ice. A few seconds after he had started visibility was ended as effectively as if a giant white blanket had been thrown completely around his car.

Windrow ice occasionally threw all four wheels into the air. Deep snow at other times threatened to hold car and driver marooned miles from shore. The big Packard eight, however, each time dug its way through and the course he had steered eventually brought Captain Reid out of the white wall of the blizzard at the engine room gangway of the ship almost on a level with the ice.

So fast had the freighter been wedged and frozen in that it was several days before the tug could break her loose. In the meantime Captain Reid daily travelled between the ship and the shore in his Packard. Heavy snow storms, blizzards or high winds wiped out his trail and he had to rely on the compass mounted on the instrument board for direction for practically every trip.

Captain Reid has practically foresworn the use of anything else but the motor car for personal transportation in his business. He travels almost altogether in his Packard runabout and probably covers more miles by motor car than any person in the country, except professional cross country drivers for he is on the road almost daily and the territory he covers is the entire chain of Great Lakes and the whole Atlantic seaboard.

BRITAIN USES U. S. INVENTION

And Thereby Starts Rows Among Englishmen

By Universal Service.

LONDON, March 11.—The exclusive use by the royal British navy of the Sperry gyroscope compass, invented by Elmer A. Sperry of Brooklyn, has raised a storm of protest in political and newspaper circles.

The Sperry compass is a steering device known in steamship circles as "Iron Mike." It is used on all modern steam propelled ocean going vessels as a fuel saver as it automatically guides the ship in a direct course.

It now develops that the British admiralty has been using the Sperry invention exclusively for more than 14 years.

The controversy over the Sperry instrument is a part of the campaign to compel the use of all the English inventions and manufactured products in an effort to rehabilitate British industry.

A British concern, the S. G. Brown, limited, of Northaction, have informed the government that their marine department is in grave danger of closing altogether unless the admiralty will agree to use at least a limited number of their compasses.

Claims are made that foreign governments will not use British compasses unless they can be marked "as used in the royal navy."

It is also claimed that the American compasses cost twice as much as the British product.

The Morning Post today said:

"Brown says his compass was the first in the field. The American company, however, came forward with what was virtually its own invention."

The controversy will be aired in the house of commons next week.

"KITTY" SAVED FROM FIRE!

NEW YORK.—While fire burned through the second and third floors of a three-story building four pinochle players stood on the sidewalk and wailed for a "kitty" of $2.65 which they had left on the card table in their hurried exit. When the embers had cooled the players crawled through water and ashes to find the card table intact and the $2.65 safe.

HUPP SALES SET RECORD

February Highest Month In History of Company

Indicative of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation's plans to make 1927 the most successful year in its history is its statement that shipments of Hupmobile during February were 4106 cars. This is the greatest February shipment in its history, and is a 49 per cent increase of January.

"We are continuing to increase our capacity, both in our eight and six-cylinder divisions," he said. "The demand for each of those cars this year will be the largest we have ever enjoyed. Additional plant capacity will be come available the latter part of this month and in April. This will permit of material gains over our record sales of 1926."

Mr. Cole reports that shipments of two of the three Hupmobile Eight custom body models were started in February. These models, of Dietrich custom design, are the town car, sedan-limousine and five passenger sedan. Advanced modes of design and construction, even for custom cars, are found in each model. One feature of these custom cars that the company is stressing is the non-shatterable glass in all windows, together with front window pillars of bronze casting, combining great strength with remarkable clear vision.

PRODUCT of GENERAL MOTORS

KNIGHT WINS MOTOR USERS

Two Port Sleeve Valve Is Most Popular

DETROIT, March 12.—Start of production of the Falcon-Knight at its new factory in Elyria, Ohio, next Wednesday marks the first introduction of this type of motor into the popular price class.

Knight motors for passenger car purposes are controlled exclusively in this country by John N. Willys. His acquisition of this Ameircan right and the early history of this motor are very interesting and play an important part in the automobile industry.

The story of the Knight motor in the automobile world reveals many vicissitudes encountered by the inventor before the recent acceptance of his power plant in any quantity by the American public.

Many Use Motor

Today it is used in passenger cars of companies in which Willys is interested and by numerous truck and bus manufacturers, including the General Motors corporation.

It was in 1907 that Charles Y. Knight built the first engine to employ the two port sleeve valve principle. It became known as the Knight sleeve valve engine. Previous to this date there had been built a single sleeve valve type operating on a different principle.

All of the experimental work on the invention of Knight was carried on at his home in Oak Park, Ill. When fully developed the engine was presented to a number of American manufacturers of poppet valve powered cars. Knight failed to arouse their interest. Some told him that he had "something" but the cost of changing over would be too great.

Goes to Europe

Failing to arouse the interest of American makers Knight went to Europe with his invention. The Daimler company of England took it at once. The first Knight motored Daimlers were manufactured in 1908. Daimler had the world patent rights on the motor which soon became recognized in the old world as a real product.

Several other European manufacturers bought rights for their respective companies. Knight engined motor cars appeared in France, Belgium, Germany and several other countries.

It was in 1911 that the F. B. Stearns company in the United States secured the American rights and started to manufacture the Stearns-Knight car.

Only a few months later another American right was granted the Moline. Several manufacturers have manufactured under this right since that time.

Willys Buys Rights

Willys secured his American rights in 1914. This was the third right granted. He invested considerable money in research and development and it was not until 1924 that capable machinery was developed for the manufacture of the motor in quantity. It was in 1925 that the first Willys-Knight six was presented. The Willys motors before had been fours.

In 1926 the Knight rights expired in Europe and immediately six new European manufacturers started to build Knight motors. Willys rights are understood to run until 1932.

Another new Knight product will make its appearance in April when the Stearns-Knight eight cylinder car will be introduced. The motor for this car is said to develop 115 horsepower to 3100 revolutions per minute. This makes it one of the most powerful motors used for passenger car purposes in America today.

Knight At Its Best

Knight engine production has been developed today to its highest point in the Wilson foundry at Pontiac, Mich. Here all of the Willys motors are manufactured, as well as the power plants for the new Falcon.

Over three million dollars has been spent at this plant for special machinery to manufacture sleeves with the precision that is necessary for the successful operation of this kind of motor.

Despite the wide variety of huge machines of standard type being built for manufacturing purposes today, it was necessary for the Wilson company to have more than 25 per cent of its machinery designed especially for this production.

Double Production

At the Falcon company headquarters which are maintained in Detroit it is declared that with the distribution of the Falcon during the next year will come an almost doubled production of Knight motors over the past ten years.

Falcon officials claim that the extensive manufacturing development gone through during the past decade is virtually completed and for the first time quantity production is now possible.

RABBIT'S FOOT FAILS HIM

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — When Clifford Carter was arrested for inebriation, and searched in the warden's office, he pulled a time-worn rabbit's foot, practically devoid of hairs, from a pocket. "By gosh, ole feila," he said, "you sure done me a big injustice this time." As his change was dumped on the desk his eyes grew large and his mouth flew open. He had exactly $12.13. "That's all right, buddy, you ain't to blame," he told the rabbit's foot. "Course you couldn't beat them figgers. Lock me up, gentlemen, lock me up!"

Whippet Is Christened

The "Collegian" is the name of the new Whippet roadster with which Willys-Overland startled the smart set of the motoring world a few weeks ago. George Lewis and Dorothy Gulliver, stars in the Universal series "The Collegians," which was written by Carl Laemmle Jr., were so taken with the new sport model that they asked for the privilege of christening it. Dorothy Gulliver crashed the bottle while George Lewis expressed his approbation. The two "Collegians," the Whippet and the film series, are looked upon as popular favorites in the junior handicap for the year.

Two-Car-Per-Family Plan Gaining In Popularity, Says Marmon Head

A decided trend toward automobiles of unquestioned quality and a rapid spreading of the two-car-per-family idea are two highlights of the 1927 season, according to H. H. Brooks, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car company, who announces that sales of the large Marmon series 75 are keeping pace with the sensational acceptance of the new Marmon Eight, introduced at this winter's automobile shows.

"Approval by the motoring public of Marmon's full line of quality motor cars, which has resulted in a very great increase in our sales, indicates that the motorist is turning to quality cars not only where large, luxurious cars are desired, but also where transportation requirements should conform to present-day traffic conditions," declares Mr. Brooks.

Marmon rounded out its line of quality cars this season by the addition of its eight-cylinder chassis on which is mounted seven standard body styles and four custom-built styles. On the large Marmon series 75 the company is offering ten standard body syles and an unlimited range of custom bodies which are built by the country's foremost designers.

The two-car-per-family idea, according to Marmon officials, is rapidly gaining favor. Countless families, it is declared, who now own large cars are finding it necessary to purchase smaller automobiles which are more readily adaptable to congested traffic conditions.

"Many families have not owned two cars because it was not possible to obtain a small automobile that retained the advantages and quality features of the large car," Mr. Brooks states. "The new little Marmon Eight has been accepted as the car the public has been waiting for to bring the two-car-per-family idea into a prominent place in the automotive picture."

CAMEL GIVES WAY TO TRUCK

Graham Bros. Machine Does Work of 40 Animals

The desert section of Egypt, where the very landscape shifts as hot winds pile and re-pile billows of sand, leads the world in the permanance of its work of man. The pyramids, built more than 3000 years ago, stand practically unchanged by the ravages of time.

This ideal of building for long life, originated centuries ago, still endures in Egypt. So, when the Asiatic Petroleum company, Egypt, Ltd., sought to build up a transportation system of utmost reliability and permanence for distributing motor fuel, Graham Brothers trucks were selected. The long life and superior ability of these trucks to meet desert conditions has been demonstrated by practical use over a period of many months.

The Graham Brothers trucks in many instances have taken the place of camels formerly used to carry gasoline. In making the change, remarkable figures on the long life of Graham Brothers trucks as compared with camels came to light.

This is true despite the fact that the camel, next to the elephant, is known as one of the longest lived beasts of burden—the average camel being useful 20 to 40 years. But a single Graham Brothers truck can carry eight camel loads and at a speed of more than five times that of a camel. Thus the working capacity of one of these trucks for a given period of time corresponds to that of a caravan of more than 40 camels.

Many Graham Brothers trucks have exceeded this mileage with still more miles of useful service to give. The maximum life of these trucks has yet to be determined.

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS.

NEW HAVEN, March 12.—To an English reader a big American newspaper seems an astonishing organization for the prevention of reading except for the wonderful provision of human interest paragraphs or the daily jet of witty shots. The view was given by Samuel K. Ratcliffe, British editor, in a lecture at Yale.

Cadillac Stations Equipped To Give Complete Service On La Salle

The preparation of every Cadillac service station throughout the United States and Canada to render complete and immediate service on the LaSalle, is a feature of the recent announcement, by the Cadillac Motor Car company, of its new companion-car to Cadillac.

The LaSalle is manufactured by the Cadillac Motor Car company entirely within its own plants, and embodies the same high qualities of workmanship and standards of performance that are typical of the Cadillac.

Under the direction of H. M. Stephens, general sales manager, and Nicholas Dreystadt, general service manager, preparations were carried on and completed for the rendering of prompt and efficient service in any locality, entirely in advance of the introduction.

According to the announcement, reserve supplies of spare parts are already held in every distributing center, in case there may be need of accident replacements. Mechanics in every part of the country have been carefully instructed so they are thoroughly familiar with every feature of the new car.

A well-trained force of service representatives have, during the past months, visited every distributing center instructing the various maintenance managers as to the approved methods of servicing the LaSalle.

The announcement also states that all tools necessary to perform maintenance operations on the new car with complete instructions as to their use, are already in the hands of the service organizations of the distributors and dealers.

Because the new engine is a 90-degree, V-type eight and embodies the same fundamental principle as that use in the Cadillac for the past 13 years, maintenance men, because of their past training, are even better prepared to give efficient service on the LaSalle.

According to Mr. Dreystadt, the same high standard of maintenance, which has always been characteristic of the Cadillac, will operate to its fullest extent with regard to the new product. Contrary to the usual procedure, the maintenance of Cadillac cars is an integral part of the activities of the sales division. The company maintains that the Cadillac or LaSalle owner has not only purchased a car but is entitled to the most highly satisfactory transportation service at all times. Because it is expected that a great many LaSalle sales will be made to persons who are already Cadillac owners, and because many more contacts are made with owners through service than in any other way, the recognition of this obligation as a sales activity is regarded by the company to be of extreme importance.

NEW YORK, March 12.—It will cost $11 to buy one of 6400 seats for the opening of Roxy's new $10,000,000 movie palace tonight. Once a corporal of marines himself, he has hired a couple of ex-sergeants to boss his ushers.

TRAIN OF AUTOS

693 Nash Cars Move Out of Factory on Four Trains.

KENOSHA, Wis., March 12.—Six hundred and ninety-three automobiles —four solid trainloads —were shipped today from the company's three factories at Kenosha, and Milwaukee, to San Francisco and Los Angeles. The cars were about equally divided between Advanced Six, Special Six and Light Six models. The shipment left the Kenosha and Milwaukee plants over the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad and left the Racine plant over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad.

The cars will arrive on the Pacific coast in about ten days. As the long trains laden with approximately three quarters of a million dollars worth of automobiles, steamed out of the yards at the various Nash factories for their long trip to California, they presented a graphic picture of industrial activity.

Included in the large shipment were many of the new enclosed models, introduced to the public during the automobile show period in New York and Chicago. These models have forward-sweeping French type backs and French type roofs, like all cars in the Nash line, are equipped with 7-bearing crankshaft motors.

The "70" Willys-Knight Six Sedan $1495 f. o. b. factory

A triumph of Engineering Leadership

Your first glance tells you that the improved, finer Willys-Knight Sixes are the most advanced of today's motor cars.

Even a casual inspection of the finer "70" Willys-Knight Six is enough to excite your enthusiasm. But drive the car. A 25 mile ride will reveal to you a new order of motoring. Far ahead of any performance standards you have previously known:

Amazing power on hills—53 h. p. motor

Quietness, smoothness, flexibility that only the patented Knight Sleeve-Valve engine can give

Safety—the quickest-stopping, easiest-handling car you have ever driven

Because of its patented sleeve-valve principle, this engine actually grows smoother, more powerful and more efficient with every mile of service.

It has no valves to grind. You never lay it up for carbon-cleaning. It has no springs to weaken. It is practically fool-proof and wear-proof. No Willys-Knight motor, so far as we know, has ever worn out . . .

These advantages make fast and enthusiastic friends for Willys-Knight. They explain why the Knight-motored car has grown so tremendously in popular favor during the past four years.

Please see these improved, finer cars . . . may we arrange a demonstration?

"70" Willys-Knight Six prices from $1295 to $1495. Willys-Knight Great Six, "for those who want the finest," $1850 to $2295. Prices f. o. b. factory and specifications subject to change without notice. Purchases may be arranged on convenient credit terms. Willys-Overland, Inc., Toledo, Ohio.

MEXICO DENIES OVERT ACTION

Anti-U. S. Propaganda Not Fostered Is Reply

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 11.—An emphatic denial that either the Mexican embassy at Washington, or the consulate-general at New York, have ever conducted any propaganda in behalf of the policies of Mexico, was issued today by Arthur M. Elias, the consul-general.

Mr. Elias' rebuttal was made by Representative James A. Gallivan.

Mexico in Denial

"I deny categorically that any of the publications issued by this consulate-general contains one single word which may be construed as an attack, or veiled attack, against any American public official. On the contrary, the greatest respect for the opinions and policies of said officials has always been shown in the publications and statements of this office.

"In regard to the pamphlet, 'Hands Off Mexico,' it is sufficient to quote the statement made by its author, Mr. Norman Thomas, who said:

"'The Mexican consulate did not know of the publication, 'Hands Off Mexico' until we sent them a copy.'

"I also declare in the same manner that this consulate-general has always limited itself, in answering questions and in public statements, to explain certain points of the Mexican laws which were not understood by the American public, and in this regard has done nothing but to fulfill the mission entrusted to the consulate or making all possible efforts to maintain cordial commercial relations with the countries to which they are accredited.

Answers Gallivan

"I also deny that this consulate-general has expended the amount mentioned by Mr. Gallivan in his statement, as this office has not spent but the insignificant sums necessary for the printing of its publications."

ACTORS DON'T NEED BRAINS
By Universal Service.

LONDON, March 12.—Do actors need brains?

"No," says Owen Nares, London's foremost matinee idol. He adds: "There are, of course, actors with fine brains but even some of the very greatest haven't any.

CUBA ABROGATES PACT
By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Parcel post service between the United States and Cuba will cease June 30, it was reported today. Cuba's abrogation of the general mail convention wit hthe United States is given as the reason. The failure of congress to pass a bill which would admit importation of Cuban cigars and cigarettes in lots of less than 3000 is given as the cause for the abrogation of the treaty by Cuba.

NEW PRINCIPLE FOR AVIATION

Aero Pioneer Devises New Kind of Plane

Copyright, 1927, By New York American And Universal Service

NEW YORK, March 12.—Dr. George A. Spratt of Coatesville, Pa., scientist and aero pioneer, whom the late Octave Chanute induced to aid the Wright Brothers in their early flying experiments at Kittyhawk, N. C., in 1900, and who turned the first failures of the Wrights into success, came to New York today to demonstrate for the first time the metacenter and true principle of successful flight by mankind.

In a conference with engineers, including Major Edmund B. Cairns, designer for the navy of the first all-steel plane and rated as one of the premier aircraft designers of the world, Dr. Spratt put little test surfaces into action. He also displayed a model of an actual plane which school boys have been able to fly with a motor from a Ford car. This plane can almost hover in the air like a bird and can fly or can land or take off at 25 miles an hour within a space of approximately 100 feet.

Engineers declared Dr. Spratt's analysis correct and his detections practical. The performances of Dr. Spratt's planes at Coatesville, such as his latest model, are undoubted. Aviation's next step, Dr. Spratt believes, is the adoption of the principle he has discovered. It has already been presented for consideration by the Guggenheim foundation of aeronautics at New York university. Rear Admiral Cone of the advisory board has agreed on thorough scientific tests.

The Spratt 1925 type plane, representing the expenditure of a small fortune, suspends the fuselage with its engine and useful load from the metacenter and beneath biplane wings through circular openings in the center of the two wings. Therefore, the fuselage is suspended horizontal with the ground, due to the power of gravity, no matter whether the wings are tilted sidewise for banking or upward or downward for rising or descending.

The Spratt machine is declared to be free from the dangers of the under-powered plane. It does not dive, sideslip or skid, because of the definite metacenter, exactly fixed with relation to the wing surfaces.

Engineers who have inspected carefully its flying points, believe it will find a thousand uses and a thousand pilots where existing airplanes find one.

CULMINATION - By FANNIE HURST

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

Wanda Whalen, a small-town girl with a big-town spirit. Wanda, who rode horseback like a daredevil through the streets of Medrose—whose name and photograph were forever in the papers—whose interests lay all in the world beyond Medrose. Wanda, who found her fate at last in faraway Italy.

Although she had been born in the pretty town of Medrose, a thriving enough little place situated on a river notable for the beauty of its winding banks, Wanda had practically never lived there. That is, until she came home from an Eastern college and found herself, for the first time in her eighteen years, confronted with the idea of spending a winter at home.

Up to that time there had been the two years that the Whalens had spend abroad, previous to the death of her father, Cyrus Whalen, president of the Medrose City Bank.

Then there had been Wanda's years at a young ladies' school in Boston and the subsequent four years at a girls' college in New York State. Summers had been spent either at the elaborate camps of elaborate friends, the Medrose estate in Canada or in Europe.

Meanwhile, the town had grown. Quite a residential district had sprung up around the end of town that was still dominated by the handsome old Whalen mansion.

What with her parents' recent death and the marriage of an only brother and his subsequent removal to Salt Lake City, Wanda was virtually the head of that mansion. When in Medrose she shared it with a maternal aunt named Rosa Lee Masters. A faded, rather lovely-looking edition of the more robustly charming woman who had been Wanda's mother. Rosa Lee ran the house with effectiveness and skill. The brief periods that Wanda spent at home were entirely devoid of the responsibilities of her elaborate household or of the many duties that might naturally clamor for the attention of a young heiress recently come into large holdings.

Between Rosa Lee and an old distant family relative and lawyer named Jade O'Higgins, Wanda's days continued to be peculiarly care-free and devoted almost entirely to the business of making them as enjoyable as possible. To the girls of Medrose, who sometimes did Wanda injustice to regard her frequent comings and goings as snobbery, she was, nonetheless, an object of perpetual fascination and mystery. There was something exotic about Wanda. She belonged to a great outside world of doings that made her a person apart from the usual run. Even the Medrose girls who were in a position to travel about a bit themselves, and who had enjoyed the advantages of finishing school, were nonetheless a little under the spell of Wanda.

She rode horseback like a dare devil. The streets of Medrose gaped to see her striding through them in natty knickers on a cross-country jaunt. She had a swimming pool built on the extensive grounds of the Whalen mansion and there were rumors of midnight swims when Eastern friends came out for house-parties. Once a motion picture star of international reputation, a Polish pianist and a Senator from New York State had made up the personnel of one of these visiting groups.

Wanda's name and photograph were forever in the Medrose paper, to say nothing of the Eastern society and daily sheets.

The town agreed, a little reluctantly, that Medrose was no place for her. There was really nothing there to keep entertained and occupied a girl-of-the-world like Wanda.

Wanda, although she felt an affection for her little home city, came to about the same decision that first winter she spent there. There were one or two girls who were agreeable to her. Edna Martin, who rode horseback with her. And the young daughter of the mayor of the town. A pretty girl named Tyron. There were even one or two of the local boys congenial to her. Larry Piexotto, who was a lawyer's apprentice and who drove his father's car like a whizz. And a rather reserved young fellow, Claiborne Clay, whose father had once been one of the influential men of the state, but whose family had gradually fallen into arrears until Claiborne and his mother, last survivors, occupied a little gray frame house on the edge of the town.

Claiborne was good fun because he was of a quieter and more thoughtful nature than any of the boys who frequented Whalen's. He was an architect by preparation and was already eagerly working toward the day when he would have earned sufficient for his first trip abroad.

But outside of this small group of picked friends, Wanda's interests lay in the world beyond. New York with its theatres, its concerts, its pastimes lured her. There were old ties to be renewed with friends she had met during the years abroad. Wanda yearned for a year in Paris. Another in Rome. Budapest! Vienna!

Her first quick judgment in these years after the death of her parents was to sell the Whalen house and take up permanent abode in New York. Sentiment forbade that. Beside it was fitting that while Rosa Lee lived the house should be kept up for her.

But it was decided almost without opposition, indeed with the cooperation of Jade O'Higgins, that the thing for Wanda to do, now that her business interests were sufficiently concentrated, was to practically transfer her residence to the metropolis. In a subtle way. In a fashion not to bring the rebuke of Medrose down upon her pretty head.

Because, after all, it was in Medrose that the Whalens had accumulated their fortune. Medrose had been kind to her family. Deep in her heart, however, much as the sleepy little town might have bored her, Wanda felt this and was grateful.

So, on the bright spring morning that Wanda set out from Medrose for New York, few except her intimates knew that there was anything unusual about this particular departure. To all external intents and purposes, Wanda was simply off on another of her frequent jaunts, here, there and everywhere. The society column reported it. The society weekly commented upon it. And there was an end of it. But what the town at large did not know was that Wanda was practically, as she stood chic and gayly dressed at the station that day, shaking the dust of Medrose off her pretty feet.

Edna Martin and Tyron and Larry and Claiborne were at the station to bid her adieu. There was a more solemn note than usual lying underneath it all.

Wanda was practically leaving for good. Tyron, in spite of the fact that Wanda was promising to take her abroad with her the next summer but one, shed frank tears as the train pulled out. The boys doffed hats rather sadly. There was something a little too final about it all, not to be depressed by it.

For twenty-eight months Wanda did not set foot in Medrose, and, contrary to her expectations, neither did she go abroad, because of a course in interior decoration which had caught her attention in New York and to which she devoted the major part of her time. Tyron went to Paris on funds gaily supplied by Wanda, but, to the surprise of those who knew her, the young heiress went through with the work that was interesting her at home.

At its conclusion, however, she did go abroad. On a twelve months' tour of Italy and France, devoting her time to a study of the galleries and old interiors of the larger European cities.

They were pleasant months, filled with interest in her work and an honest and sustained desire to get on in it.

Again her friends marvelled. Wanda was displaying a consistency of purpose they had never suspected in her.

Of course there were frivolities. Wanda was by nature as gay and as temperamentally many-colored as a humming bird. Wanda liked to flirt, Wanda liked to drive fast cars. Dance the shimmering, shimmying dances of the period. Ride gondolas to moonlight with a youth proper to the occasion.

Somewhere on the face of the globe that she was free to wander at will, there lurked what she sought.

Turning a shaded walk, suddenly, in the Boboli gardens, she came upon the left shoulder of a young man dabbing paint upon a canvas that was propped upon a small easel.

For ten minutes, standing there regarding that left shoulder, Wanda, the level-headed Wanda, knew, before he swung around to face her, that she was in love.

Knew it with a curious, and in this case a most sure-fire, instinct of hers that was never to fail her.

It was the face of Claiborne Clay.

It was the face that was ultimately to lead her from the four corners of the earth, back to Medrose for the culmination of her romance.

Making Electicity from Light of the Sun, Moon or Stars

ELECTRICITY may soon be made from light of any kind—sunlight, moonlight or even starlight, according to a startling discovery recently made by Dr. William W. Coblentz, chief of the Radiometry Section of the United States Bureau of Standards, at Washington. As the result of experimenting with molybdenite, a form of crystal, Dr. Coblentz learned that this rare mineral possesses the property of generating an electric current when a ray of light falls upon it. Scientists say that if this result, now attainable only on a very small scale, should ever yield itself to large-scale production, science may have a discovery which will change the course of the world's history—something more revolutionary than the radio, the airplane, the telegraph, the telephone or even the utilization of steam. It would mean a direct utilization of the vast flood of sunlight to turn the wheels and do the work of the world. Even as it is, the result attained is described as "one of the most astounding miracles of modern science," by S. R. Winters, writing in The National Spectator.

Dr. Coblentz's success in transforming light into electric current is attributed solely to the marvelous phenomenon manifested when molybdenite is exposed to the sun, moon, or stars. It, however, reacts only to certain wave-lengths of light, just as a radio receiving set will reproduce music or speech only when tuned to certain wave-lengths.

This sensitive mineral, when exposed to the sunlight or moonlight, differs in several respects from the behavior of the thermopile used in measuring heat of planets millions of miles away. The amount of current developed by the thermocouple is in proportion to the energy value to which it is exposed—that is, the amount of solar radiation, for example. Molybdenite, according to Dr. Coblentz, responds only to certain wave-lengths—those in the visible spectrum and the near infra-red rays.

The piece of molybdenite used by the Bureau of Standards is no larger than the head of a pin. Only a small spot of each piece of molybdenite manifests that inexplicable phenomenon of changing light into electric current. This sensitive spot, small as it is, when exposed to the sunlight, generates enough electric current to throw the needle of an electrical measuring instrument clear off the scale.

Samples of molybdenite used by the Bureau of Standards in its experiments of transforming light into electricity, are placed in ordinary pill boxes, the piece of mineral being soldered between two fine wires. A single pin hole is made in the pill box, the tiny hole being opposite the magic spot on the mineral, and when exposed to the sun, sufficient electricity is generated to deflect the needle of the galvanometer.

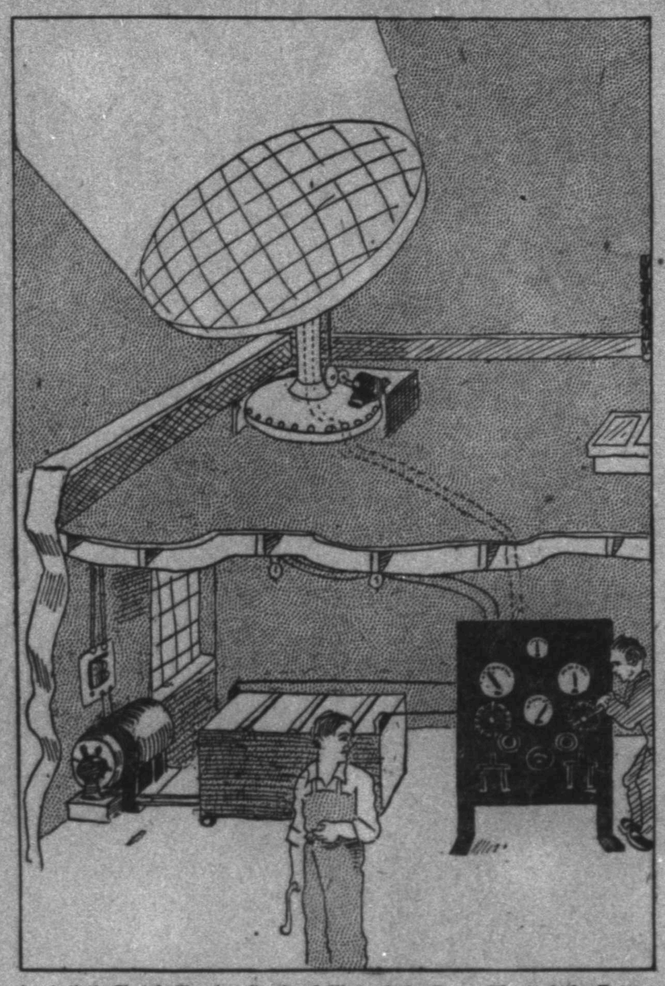

The accompanying illustration shows how electric sun power plants of tomorrow may generate electric current. Electricity from light-activated cells charges a storage battery, the current being drawn from the battery as required.

"Unfortunately, there is a present scarcity of samples of molybdenite containing spots that possess this phenomenon," says Dr. Coblentz. "Molybdenite having a high electrical resistance is rare. Some examples cut from this material exhibit, have in spots, a high photo-electrical sensitivity when subjected to an impressed electro-motive force and exposed to light. Thus far I have found these two properties only in certain samples of material from York Peninsula, South Australia. Upon inquiry it was found that the mine from which the present material probably was obtained has been abandoned. Further material from this source must be sought for in museums and private collections."

Dr. Coblentz is now conducting an investigation which has for its objective the discovery of artificial means of sensitizing molybdenite or other minerals. Out of twenty-seven samples tested at the Bureau of Standards — originating in Canada, Japan, and Australia—twelve had a positive thermoelectric power and fifteen had a negative. In some cases this action was so strong that daylight incident upon the molybdenite was sufficient to throw the galvanometer deflection off the scale.

"The next thing to be done," Dr. Coblentz explains, "is to isolate the spots exhibiting high sensitivity and examine them separately. This will be a tedious, time-consuming undertaking. The material is of rare occurrence, and the risk of injury or loss is too great to attempt to attain the goal in one step."

Dr. Coblentz has received many requests for a substance that "transforms sunlight directly into electricity." Since he has, in a small and experimental way, accomplished this very thing his amazing achievement may again prompt the oft-recurring question, "What is electricity?" and "What is light?"

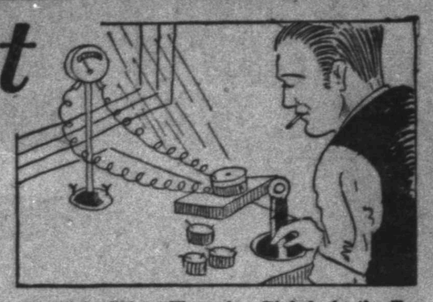

An Artist's Sketch Showing Sectional View of the Power Plant of the Future Where Light Will Be Converted Into Electrical Energy.

Scientists have determined that the longest infra-red rays and the shortest electric waves are identical in properties. Electric or radio waves, traveling through the ether, and light waves have the same velocity—186,300 miles per second. If sunlight and moonlight are to be transformed into electricity on a large scale, other similarities between light and electricity, hitherto unknown, may be unfolded.

Dr. Coblentz is the builder of an instrument known as the Nichols radiometer, used in measuring radiant heat and studying the laws of radiation. He has also built a bolometer and a radio-micrometer, and was the first to make an inter-comparison of these devices.

During a period of ten years Dr. Coblentz has constructed more than 100 instruments for measuring radiant heat, handling 20,000 pieces of material. Many of his investigations and results challenge the imagination to the stretching point. For instance, an instrument which he uses in conjunction with a thirty-six-inch mirror is sensitive enough to react to the feeble heat of a candle located at a distance of fifty miles. As long ago as 1914, he was able to measure the heat of stars to the seventh magnitude, and the most recent accomplishment was the measurement of the temperature of the poles, and of the bright and dark areas on Mars.

Studying Dogs to Find a Cure for Diabetes

ALMOST all that is known about the cause and relief of diabetes has been learned from dogs, because they, being omnivorous, could be fed starchy food, meat, fat and any desired combination, according to Dr. Walter B. Cannon in an article in Hygeia on man's debt to the dog.

Two German investigators, Mehring and Minkowski, found that diabetes appears if the pancreas is removed. Later Sandmeyer showed that feeding starchy food causes diabetes if the pancreas has been previously damaged; starchy food overburdens the weakened organ. Still later Allen demonstrated that if the weakened pancreas is being overburdened, its service to the body can be preserved by keeping the intake of starchy food within the narrowed limits of pancreatic ability. Finally, a few years ago, Banting and his collaborators proved that an extract of the pancreas, if injected into the body, can abolish the diabetes due to the absence of pancreas. By that discovery many of the most dangerous features of diabetes were placed under the control of physicians.

"Every step of this progress must be credited to the dog," adds Dr. Cannon. "It has been estimated that in the United States alone there are now about 1,000,000 people who already have diabetes or who will develop it. Formerly it was a quickly fatal disease in young people."

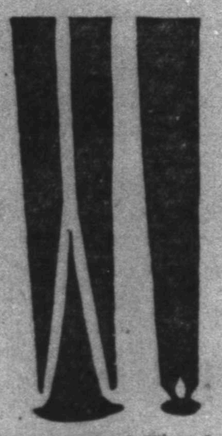

E. P. Joslin, the distinguished American authority, has suggested that every diabetic child should have a dog to care for in recognition of the dog's life-saving service.

The Secret of a "Cool Smoke"

THE secret of a "cool smoke" has been solved with a device invented by Nicholas Nelsen, a Danish journalist, in which a smoker's pipe is equipped with a mouthpiece designed so as to convey the smoke into the mouth in such a way that the air in the buccal cavity will act as an automatic cooler. Numerous tests, according to A. S. Bee, writing in Tobacco, have shown that this ingenious principle is very efficient and as it is applicable to all stems, it is just as effective for cigar and cigarette holders as for pipe-stems.

The inventor explains that the pipe is kept cool by turning the direction of the smoke coming through the stem to either side, or both sides. This distributes the smoke into the cavity of the mouth above the tongue and gives, he asserts, a perfectly cool smoke. He claims that by this simple expedient, pipe smoke is as mild as the mildest cigarette.

Attempts have been made since time immemorial to invent means for cooling tobacco pipes. In many Oriental countries the problem was solved several centuries ago by the water pipe. But it is not a good pipe, as all who have smoked one know. It cools the smoke, but it kills all the taste and aroma of the tobacco. The cooled smoke drawn through it tastes like water vapor.

Austrians and Germans endeavored to solve the heat problem by making the pipe-bowls long and narrow from porcelain and other bad conductors of heat. They also make the stems exceptionally long of cherry-wood, so that the smoke will be carried a long distance before reaching the tongue. They attain some results, but not what they desire.

In Napoleonic times, when clay pipes were most popular with smokers, European pipe-makers developed pipes of excessively long stems, known as serpent or serpentine pipes. These long stems, reaching in some cases to eighteen feet or more, were coiled up into bunches six or seven inches long. They did a certain amount of cooling, but not much.

Recently, as the world's patent records show, inventors have again tackled the problem of securing a cool smoke and have exercised considerable ingenuity. They have centered their attention largely on the bowl. Some have made this double so as to have an air-jacket between the smoking and cooling bowl. Others have circulated air at the bottom of the bowl. Many have had wells for air and the collection of moisture at the bottom of the bowl or the entrance of the stem. They appear to have left the problem of a cool smoke more or less open.

How BURIED Fakirs Keep ALIVE

HOW a "fakir" can be buried in a hermetically sealed "coffin" and remain alive has been revealed by an experiment made by a Frenchman, M. Paul Heuze. He made the casket shown in the accompanying illustration. A is the air-tight zinc "coffin"; B are gutters filled with water; C is the zinc lid resting in the water-filled gutters, and thus ensuring air-tightness; D indicates the volume of air left when the experimenter was in the coffin (about 400 litres). M. Heuze was "buried" in such a coffin, in which he remained for an hour and a quarter.

Theoretically, at the rate of sixteen inspirations of half a litre of air a minute, the person in the "coffin" could breathe for fifty minutes. In practice, however, after the air has been expired, the lungs still contain oxygen, and a new mixture is formed. Further, the more vitiated the atmosphere, the quicker the breathing. Various scientists suggested from fifteen to forty minutes as the possible duration of a safe stay in the "coffin." M. Heuze got into the coffin at 10:30, and it was not until 11:45 that he signaled by knocks that he was beginning to feel uncomfortable, and he was then released. The sensation of discomfort and quickened breathing had begun after fifty minutes.

An adjustable steaming grid is offered as the solution of the problem of efficient cooking. The grid is made adjustable to fit different sized pots, within certain limitations. It lies snugly therein and the meat or vegetables to be cooked are placed upon it. The water barely covers the bottom of the pot and the steam is not allowed to escape. A small flame will maintain a heat of 180 degrees Fahrenheit in the covered utensil. Meats, fish and poultry are cooked in the same way. They not only retain the juices and flavor, but the value of the mineral salts, as well as the vitamines and other health-giving properties are conserved. The saving in shrinkage is also a matter of importance.

A Swedish railroad engineer, Magnus Tacklind, of Stockholm, has designed a railway motor car said to attain a speed of fifty miles an hour with no more noise than the clicking of the rails. The silent car has an underslung motor, entirely separate from the frame of the car. Power is supplied to the drive wheels from the motor by distinct sets of gears, all in simultaneous use.

"TREE of HEAVEN" Is Called a "VEGETABLE SKUNK"

IT is not unusual for cows, pigs, and chickens to be outlawed in cities, but it reads like fiction that lawmakers should take steps to prevent certain trees from becoming vegetable citizens. In some American cities it is a violation of the law to permit an ailanthus to grow. Yet in Malakka it is called the "Tree of Heaven." The chief objection raised against the ailanthus tree is on account of its offensive odor when in bloom. It is also claimed that when the air that contains the small grains of pollen is breathed it aggravates hay fever and causes catarrhal troubles.

But not all ailanthus trees, as Robert Sparks Walker points out in The Flower-Grower, are guilty of the charges preferred against them, since all of them do not give off the offensive odor. The fertile-blooming type does not carry the ill-scented pollen, but it is the male, or pollen-producing tree, that causes all the trouble.

"As repulsive as such scents are to our nostrils," says Mr. Walker, "it is well to remember that all such things do not happen so without a just cause. Trees and plants have a means of knowing their friends as well as their enemies, and they seem to know their likes and dislikes. Therefore, they do all within their power to favor and attract their friends and go to the limit in discouraging visitations by their enemies. For this reason the flowers of various trees and plants are so constructed as to attract the attention of the proper insect, and they make it comfortable and pleasant for them when they come on their visits.

"Some naturalists think that probably the ill-scented odor that is so pronounced in certain types of the ailanthus tree serves as a means of driving off the insects that are incapable of cross-fertilizing their flowers. If this is true, then the tree is probably dependent on certain insects like the carrion fly to transport its pollen to the pistillate flowers. It then becomes necessary for its ill-scented odor to mimic decaying flesh to make certain that the carrion flies will not pass it by.

"But it still remains for some person to discover a means of distinguishing between the male and the perfect blooming ailanthus tree before it reaches the blooming age.

"The ailanthus tree has many virtues which so far outweigh its vices that it deserves protection. In many large cities, such as we have in the United States, the smoke and dust clog the breathing pores of the green leaves of many species of trees, which makes it quite impossible to grow them successfully. The ailanthus is a tree whose foliage successfully resists the smoke and dust nuisance of the city and makes a splendid shade. It is a native of China, and the species that is commonly found in the United States is known as the ailanthus glandulosa.

"It thrives in almost any kind of soil and its winged seeds fly and establish themselves in almost every conceivable nook. Even in the steeple of one of the churches in Chattanooga, Tennessee, a number of ailanthus trees have been growing for about ten years. Just how they have managed to thrive in such an exalted position is marvelous, and if we knew their secret, we certainly ought to be able to increase our savings accounts! In this instance the 'Tree of Heaven' seems to be trying to realize the full meaning of its common name.

"The foliage of the ailanthus tree lends a tropical effect to the surroundings. Its leaflets are set on a stem like the leaves of the walnut tree. When the ailanthus tree has been left growing for two or three years and is then cut back, the new shoots come out so rapidly they make a dense screen.

"But did you ever examine the bark of a large tree of this kind? It is so extremely hard that it is difficult to remove a piece of it with a pocket-knife without breaking the blade. There is an oleoresin derived from its bark which is an effective vermifuge, and, when taken internally, produces sweating and vomiting. The trunk of an old ailanthus tree is usually blotched up with this rosin.

"The ailanthus tree in favored soils attains a height of sixty feet or more and is fairly hardy in the North, but young growths are rather tender in the severe colder climates.

"It is a tree that makes a dependable friend of the poor children of the cities, for its winged seeds fly to barren spots or to cinder heaps, and after they have germinated, strong, healthy trees soon rise up, thus asguring a good shade for many American children who would not otherwise enjoy such a luxury in the warm Summer months. Owners of rental property, especially the cheap kind, do not usually go to the trouble to plant any shade trees for the benefit of their tenants. However, while they are neglecting such duties, Nature slips stealthily in and plants the seeds of the ailanthus tree, and before the owner is scarcely aware of what has taken place, trees are growing in almost every conceivable nook."

FACE-LIFTER as an AID to BEAUTY

A BANE to womankind is the tendency of the muscles of the face to sag as, when youth is past, the inexorable years march on. Wrinkles appear in the cheeks and neck, with accompanying furrows from the nose to the mouth corners, and there is a drag about the eyes which gives to the face a tired look.

To remedy this condition, there is a face-lifting device which, it is claimed, will smooth out the wrinkles, take away the tired look, and measurably restore the youthful expression.

Two non-elastic straps, buckled over the top of the head at the back, carry at their free ends rubber "stay members" encased in fabric. These latter are meant to be fastened in front of and above the ears, one on each side of the face, each of them being provided with an adhesive strip to make it stick.

Each stay member is connected to the strap end by four short tapes so arranged as to equalize the pull on it. When both stay members have been firmly stuck in place by the above-mentioned means, the two straps are buckled at the back of the head, being drawn taut.

To apply the device, the hair should be pushed back from above the ears to the crowns of the head, and the upper hair brought forward, bunching and fastening it on top with hairpins. Then the stay members are adjusted, moistening the adhesive to the requisite degree, and smoothing and holding the strips until dry. When they are firmly fastened, it only remains to pull the connecting straps taut and buckle them together.

Latest Love Row of That Lively Candler Clan

Now It's the Georgia Bishop's Irate Son Who Is Demanding a Divorce and His Kiddies' Custody, and What the Brand New Game of "Flirtation Golf" Had to Do with the Domestic Explosion

Mrs. Onezima de Bouchel, New Orleans Beauty, Who Sued Asa G. Candler for $500,000 After the Breaking of Their Engagement.

THERE'S a new love tangle in that famous Candler family of Atlanta—the same faimly which has produced a great Bishop, a manufacturer of soft drinks worth many millions, and a Justice of the Supreme Court—not to mention a succession of matrimonial tangles and damage suits.

The tough luck of the "Candler boys" in the realm of the affections has become proverbial, although of late years they—particularly the senior members of the clan—have shown a tendency to settle down domestically and abandon their former strenuous heart battles. There have been two touching reconciliations between Candler wives and husbands, and people were beginning to say, "Well, the boys' luck has turned," when——

The newest mixup reverses the old order in which the Candlers were made the objects of various lawsuits, and puts a woman on the defensive. Furthermore, the disturbing wave has washed over the sides of the Asa G. Candler family and inundated the heretofore calm marital premises of Bishop Warren A. Candler's son.

For John C. Candler, this same son, brought suit against his wife, Henrietta Hammond Candler, charging her with being a believer in that vaguely definable cult known as "free love," and having manifested a "humiliating and unbearable" propensity for flirting with other men. This inclination, the son sets forth, has no place in a Bishop's family, nor has the doctrine of "love where you can and when you can, just so long as the conscience is clear."

Young Candler asks the custody of their two children, and also charges that his wife carried on her flirtations on the golf course at such times as to interfere, not only with his golf game, but likewise with his sense of propriety and dignity. Furthermore, he asserts that at such times as he remonstrated with her she attacked him orally, criticizing and upbraiding him and reminding him that, in real love, what one person chose to do was no business of anyone else.

The Candler family melodrama actually began thirty-five years ago, when the senior Asa G. Candler, then a poor pharmacist's clerk, corked his first bottle of non-alcoholic liquid, and left it to stand overnight prior to opening it and trying out its "kick." When he did open it the cooling substance effervesced and bubbled out of the bottle, much as troubles have since bubbled out of his fortune.

For thirty years thereafter Asa G. Candler lived a full and productive life. He became many times a millionaire from his soft-drink business. He built banks, founded a fine university, gave away money in great sums and came to be known as "the South's wealthiest man and its greatest benefactor." His sons grew to manhood in his footsteps, married happily, and all seemed well with the circle.

Ornate Home of the Soft-Drink King in Druid Hills, Near Atlanta.

Then, a little less than four years ago, "things" began to happen. The first untoward incident in the family's serenity came when the wife of Walter T. Candler, second son of the millionaire capitalist and philanthropist, left her husband after constant disagreements. A short time later Walter Candler embarked on a trip to Europe that was destined to be the agency for opening up a succession of legal difficulties for the family, all having women for their background.

On the way back from Europe, so it was charged in a subsequent suit against him, Candler entered the stateroom of Mrs. Sarah Byfield, young and pretty bride of Claude K. Byfield, an Atlanta automobile dealer. Byfield and his wife had gone to Europe as Candler's guests. While Candler was in the stateroom Byfield entered, and, a short time after the boat docked, suit was brought against Candler for $100,000 by Mrs. Byfield.

It developed at the trial that Candler had given Byfield a note of settlement of $21,500 in addition to $4,500 in cash, but had attempted to prevent payment of the note. After a trial of considerable sensationalism, a judgment favoring Candler was returned. Later Candler was obliged by a Georgia court to pay the note, which he did. Appeals were taken on the $100,000 suit, but developed nothing further.

The Byfield-Walter Candler furore probably marked the high spot of all the Candler difficulties with women. The various ramifications of a case of this kind at sea served to give it a scope that even the love-balm suit of Asa G. Candler, to be discussed later, did not afford. In fact, had it been found that the accusations made by Byfield were true, Walter Candler would have found himself in one of the most unomfortable positions to which an erring lover has access. For it is a known rule of the sea that crimes such as that of which he was accused are regarded as capital offenses and so treated on the high seas.

But Byfield made no charges at sea, and he likewise failed to substantiate such charges as he did make when he landed. He maintained that Candler's payment of $25,000 was equivalent to an admission of guilt, but Candler refuted this contention with the claim that he was only doing Byfield a favor in the form of a loan and that it had nothing to do with the alleged scene in Mrs. Byfield's stateroom. Furthermore, Candler declared that the door to Mrs. Byfield's stateroom had not been closed when he entered, and that he did not close it. He hinted that it had been surreptitiously closed by "someone," but since the court elected to decide against the Byfields, the weight of this contention was not fully passed upon.

The manner in which Walter Candler's wife, although estranged, stood by him during the Byfield difficulty is said to have touched a warm spot in Asa G. Candler's heart, and it is rumored that he played a sort of vicarious Cupid in the negotiations that resulted in the reconciliation. Despite the troubles that have beset their marital ways, Asa G. Candler has remained devoted to the families of his sons and there are rumors that the Walter Candler reunion caused somewhat of a change in his plans for a will. What effect subsequent events have had on this document, it would be difficult to say, but there is reason to believe that they had some.

The decision in the Byfield case acted as a tonic to the now aging father of the defendant, and his health and enthusiasm for life and its problems reverted to the vigor shown prior to the appalling news of the charges against Walter. He plunged into his politics, his banking and his philanthropies with a new and smiling zest, convinced that the name of Candler was permanently dissociated from any hint of scandal or marital squabbles.

Then came the second blow. A woman, known to Asa G. Candler, he said, as a worker for the Red Cross, appeared in his office in the city hall at Atlanta—he was at that time Mayor—and, after a man unknown to Candler had entered his office and hinted at "compromising positions" and "nice fixes," the woman demanded "protection money." After some litigation both the man and woman were sent to prison for one year, and the soft-drink millionaire breathed easier again.

But his rest was short-lived. He had become lonely in his old age, what with his sons living their own lives and wrapped up in their own families, and, as is the way with youth and second youth, his thoughts strayed away from his office toward romance. Shortly thereafter he announced his engagement to a Mrs. Onezima de Bouchel, member of an old New Orleans family, and bearing more than a local reputation as a beauty.

But after a time the aged millionaire thought it all over and broke the engagement. The winsome widow, heartbroken to have her dream thus blasted, brought suit for $500,000 heart balm. Candler contested it and succeeded in winning a verdict. During this vexatious period he suddenly discovered that the stenographer in his own law firm was a handsome, capable young widow who had possibilities as a successor, in his heart to the New Orleans charmer.

A few months later friends and relatives learned with surprise that Mr. Candler had married this widow, and ten months later they learned, with about the same amount of surprise, that they had separated after Mrs. Candler had been arrested in a raid on what the police officially classified as a "dive." It developed that the arrest had been the work of a friend of Candler's, who had been "shadowing" Mrs. Candler. She was found with two men in the apartment of a friend, and the records showed that there was a bottle of some potent liquid on a nearby table.

After a year of bickering and threatened divorces, Candler was reunited with his estranged wife, Walter Candler and his wife were reconciled and it seemed that the family's love troubles were over at last.

Then came the John C. Candler bombshell from another family sector, and the disturbing hint that the "woman hoodoo" had not really departed, but had merely withdrawn temporarily to begin a powerful offensive from another direction.

"Offensive," is right, in the estimation of Mrs. Henrietta Hammond Candler. "What?" she ejaculates. "Flirty? Me? That's just plain foolish. As to free love—fantastic."

But, despite the note of conviction in these firmly expressed remarks, her husband, John C. Candler, went right on with his legal action, his features indicating that he still thought her attitude was "humiliating and unbearable."

DEAREST Raymond: This is going to be good-bye. I can't stand it any longer, so I've got to go. Poor darling! How I shall miss you, if I do wake up in some other world. But I don't believe I shall. Heaven is the bunk; and it's only hell on earth.

Don't let them tell you I killed myself on account of overstudy, nerve strain or any of that rot. Or that it was because I "loved too much." Though, of course, I did only get two letters from you in the last year. It wasn't liquor, either. Perhaps just a sort of curiosity to know what it's all about.

I feel the acid burning my throat—can't write any more—so good-bye and with loads of real love, my dear—— EVA.

FAREWELL letters to loved ones, like the above, have in recent months added to the already many-knotted perplexities of the tragedies stalking youth of both sexes today. While in most cases clues to motives are hinted at, they are never conclusive, and parents, social workers, and especially college and school teachers are banding together to banish the dread spectre of juvenile suicide, which has grown to a country-wide scourge.

Heretofore three causes have been considered sufficient material from which to extract the explanation of self-destruction—disappointment, financial difficulties and fear.

To this trinity must be added a fourth, even more menacing. It involves the curiosity of youth and caters to the impressionistic something that stirs youth as it cannot stir age.

Call it boredom, satiation, a form of "insanity—as, indeed, all suicides are attributed to a form of insanity—call it what you will, the fact that it has cost the lives of thirteen intelligent boys and girls in the last few months endows it with a danger that no amount of explaining can mitigate.

During the last Christmas holidays of the colleges and universities of the country three youths took their own lives. They were friends—two had spent the vacation together—they left letters and notes of a vague, incomprehensible character, and they had been known to meet regularly in gloomy discussion of the mysteries of death and the life beyond death.

Two of the suicides occurred almost simultaneously. The third was discovered a few hours later. One took place at the home of the victim, the second in a fraternity house at a Western university, and the third in a dormitory in a second Western school. The methods were identical—the self-administration of poison.

Because of the time, the methods employed, the letters and notes and the previous behavior of the trio, investigators accepted the theory of a suicide pact. But they went further. They searched for other members of a mysterious death cult, members who had handed on to their colleagues the choice of living or daring death that they might know the after-death.

The shock of this tragedy had scarcely cleared when there came a fourth, and probably the most tragic of all. Richard Starr Untermeyer, scion of distinguished parents, wealthy, brilliant, surrounded by all that a young student could desire, took his life by hanging in a Yale University dormitory suite.

He left no note to explain his act. There were no recollections of a premeditated suicide among his friends and intimates. But he did leave one indelible clue—he had been a close friend of the three youths who had taken their lives in the West—had been known to correspond with them and had frequently been in their company.

Furthermore, he had been an avid student of philosophy, and particularly of Spenser and Nietzsche, grimmest and most dangerous to the young mind of all those great minds who have sought to reveal the secrets of the morbid brain and to direct them. Spenser's "Faerie Queen" had been one of his favorite books and he had given close attention to its study in his classes.

Through this "Faerie Queen" Richard Starr Untermeyer had come to know the "Cave of Despair" and the philosophy that beckoned mortals from it to the "eternal rest" of death. Scorning the pleadings of friends and the counsels of austere scholars who had given their lives to the study of these writings, he heeded instead the beckoning pagan, who said:

"The longer the life, the greater the sin; the greater the sin, the greater the punishment."

From these he turned to Nietzche to read of the philosophy of the many-too-many, of the theory of the useless and the parasitic, of the scorn of failure and the disgrace of living death. He read there of the beckoning poison, doubtless as his colleagues in the West had read, but he chose the cord of his bathrobe, made fast to a transom, as his means of obeying the summons of those who had reached out from graves long green to drag him down to their clay.

A few weeks before Untermeyer's body was found in his suite, John C. Hilton, brilliant young advertising writer, son of a wealthy banker, and former campus leader at Williams College, took his life by plunging from the window of his office, twenty stories above the street. Before leaping he had stabbed himself eleven times with a pair of office scissors.

At first friends were unable to explain his act, but later it was learned that he had read inveterately during a two weeks' illness, and that out of his reading he had emerged to the trail that led him back to considerations of his school-day pursuits—the study of philosophy, the explorations of the mysteries of the after-life, and the urge that possesses all intelligent human minds to know more intimately the adventure of death. Thus, with a brilliant future before him, an inspiring home and the love of a schoolday sweetheart he was soon to marry, he obeyed the beckoning finger of curiosity and gave his life as the price of heeding it.

Shortly thereafter an eleven-year-old boy was found dead in his Brooklyn home. His name was David Stern, and he had been regarded as somewhat of a prodigy in school. He read after school hours, searching through the more advanced mysteries of writing in an effort to satiate his passion for knowledge.

The police turned to health records, to school behavior, to possible puppy love, to all the angles of the three stock explanations of suicide in an effort to solve the mystery of a young boy's self-chosen death. In the end they, with his parents, learned the lesson that the new danger is teaching—curiosity to know the infinite, goaded by a nervous affliction that had interfered with his study, had claimed another youthful sacrifice.

Ethel Sweet was young, pretty, well educated and comfortably off. She was married to the love of her youth and he had proved a dutiful and thoughtful husband. They had a two-year-old baby, healthy, bright and pretty. She had the ideal wife's disposition, singing at her daily tasks, blissful in the possession of her child.

One day neighbors heard the pistol shot in her apartment. They summoned police, who forced their way into the little home. The girl-mother's body lay across the threshold of an inner door, a bullet wound in her right temple. She had died instantly. Beside her was a note and in the note was an underscored line:

Relatives investigated. They found she had been reading the sort of literature that prompts the impressionable niind to considerations of the grave and its secrets. They discovered that she had spent many hours by herself, brooding. They remembered that morbid pictures, morbid plays, had engrossed her, the while she pretended cheerfulness and contentment.

During this sequence a suicide pact that added doubly to the burden of the new curiosity-complex shocked the fashionable Wellesley Hills community just outside Boston. Sterling Mills, eighteen-year-old leader of high-school activities, and Priscilla Amidon, daughter of a prominent family, and his sweetheart, kept their nightly tryst under an old tree in Wellesley Hills.

They talked long and earnestly, locked in each other's arms. Then they kissed, their eyes tear-filled, their lips trembling. They said good-bye and Priscilla raised a revolver—her father's—to her pretty head and fired. She fell unconscious at her lover's feet.

Stooping down, Mills kissed the fifteen-year-old girl, picked up the revolver and shot himself. He, too, fell unconscious, but at a hospital it was found that he still lived. His sweetheart was dead. But he was not told, and Priscilla's mother sent flowers to his bedside each day, representing them to be from Priscilla.

Mills told their story. They had been in love from earliest childhood. Their love had taken a strange, morbid course. It had grown so sacred that they grew to believe it would be profaned by contact with others. That it should be publicly known they regarded as unthinkable. These trysts under the tree served for a time to give them the refuge they longed for. Then, finding even that sanctuary invadd, they saw only the world beyond as the Utopia in which they could love as they believed that they alone loved.

Thomas O'Donnell, 18, was a senior in the Hempstead, L. I., high school. He was popular, a leader in student activities, light-hearted and the type of youth to whose leadership others naturally gravitated. He had been known as the model student, devoted to his studies and imbued with unusual ambition to succeed.

The time came for the high school's annual senior play. "Seven Keys to Baldpate" was selected, and Thomas O'Donnell was chosen for the lead. During the action of the play he appeared with a revolver—part of his mimicry. So well did he carry off the part that a brilliant future on the legitimate stage was predicted for him.

Two days later the students at the high school were filing into the auditorium for their morning exercises. Thomas O'Donnell was in the line, but as he passed the school teacher, dropped out. Unnoticed, he slipped into the dressing room where he had prepared for the stage part. His schoolmates filed on into the auditorium.

A short time later another student entered the theatre dressing-room and stumbled upon the huddled form of Thomas O'Donnell, crumpled upon the floor. At his side was the revolver he had used in the play. In his right temple a gaping wound told such of the story as remained to be told.

These are but a few of the tragedies that have rocked the nation—that have turned erudite scholars from the pursuit of old masters to a study of the ever-present problem of youth. These are but a few of the instances of the new morbidity, the new curiosity, that has led many parents to look upon too much study as a menace and to wonder if, after all, some college curricula are too great a strain upon impressionable youth.

These are the problems that have been added to the old, old problem represented in the death of Marion Hunt, beautiful young cloak model, found shot to death by her own hand on the front step of a relative's home. The stark tragedy of Broadway's exactions, the terror of brute force breaking down her puny efforts to save herself and, last, her once beautiful, now broken body crumpled across an ice-covered step, is not a new story on the Great White Way. But it stands out in bold relief from the newest problem of youth.

A Table and Finger Ring Trick

TELL your friends that you can push a table through a fingerring. Your announcement, doubtless, will be greeted with amazement and incredulity, followed by a demand that you make good your promise. This trick is easily done as follows:

If you are not wearing a ring, borrow one and place it over your forefinger. Now place this finger against the table and push. Thus you "push a table through a fingerring."

Latest Facts from Science, Mechanics and Invention

VARIETY in skin color of the different peoples, ranging from the fair, almost pigmentless, skin of the typical Swedes to the almost ebony-like blackness of the aborigines of parts of Africa and Australia, is so obvious that it has been taken as a basis for dividing mankind into several distinct varieties, and today one of the most generally accepted classifications of mankind is based on skin color, so that the white, black, brown, yellow and red races are recognized.

One method of measuring the color of the skin, which is described in Natural History by Charles B. Davenport, Director, Department of Genetics, Carnegie Institution of Washington, employs a color mixer or the color top. When using this top to record the skin color, one must select the paper color discs, according to the known color elements in the skin.

"The color of the skin proper, without pigment, may be regarded as white," Mr. Davenport says. "This is nearly the color of the skin of the cadaver, especially if viewed from the inner surface. The color is not chalky white, but more or less creamy, due to the presence of a yellow pigment. The color of the 'white' skin may be reproduced by using, in the color top, discs of white and lemon yellow (pure spectrum yellow). The amount of this yellow pigment in the skin varies in different persons and in the different races of mankind. It is most obvious in many of the peoples of Eastern Asia (whence the yellow race). It is abundant in the negro race also, but here it is largely obscured by black pigment. It shows in many mulattoes who are sometimes referred to as yellow negroes.

"The third constant color constituent of the healthy skin is a red color due to the blood circulating in the skin capillaries. . . . Apparently, human arterial blood is not of a spectrum red color, but contains much black.

"The fourth constituent of skin color is black. This is due to melanic pigment, which, when viewed under the microscope one granule at a time, is seen to be not really black, but of a sepia color. In masses, however, light is so completely absorbed by it that melanic pigment appears completely black.

"The skin color differs on the various parts of the human body, just as it does on the body of the pig, hippopotamus, and other relatively hairless mammals. The color of the skin of a given person, is, therefore, not very significant unless we know the location of the skin that was measured. It is desirable, therefore, that all skin measurements should be made at corresponding points on the surface of the body. Areas to be excluded are those that are excessively exposed to the sunlight and wind, so that they are tanned. Areas thus affected change their color in the same person with the seasons. On this account face and hands are especially to be avoided. Areas that are naturally especially highly pigmented are also to be avoided.

"Areas that are naturally especially little pigmented must also be excluded. Thus the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet, and, to a less marked degree, the axillary region of the upper arm are relatively devoid of pigment, even when constantly exposed. The spot on the skin to be selected should be convenient and easily accessible and, at the same time, ordinarily not too much exposed to sunlight. The part of the upper arm, over the lower portion of the deltoid muscle, between the biceps and triceps, is recommended. This part of the arm can be placed upon a table, close to the spinning color top, to facilitate comparison.

"With the aid of the color top it is now sible to describe in exact quantitative terms the skin color of the different races of mankind and hybrids between them, and to reproduce those colors in the laboratory.

"In the children of two mulattoes there is an extraordinary variability in skin color. These measurements show quantitatively that two mulatto parents may produce 'white' children and full-black children. The evidence leads to the conclusion that two pairs of black-producing factors are present in full-black negroes, and only one pair in mulattoes, while the children of mulattoes may have 0, 1, 2, 3 or 4 factors for black. . . . In the first generation hybrids between negroes and whites the proportion of black is about halved and yellow becomes a much more prominent element of the skin color. In the later generation the black segregates."

Mr. Davenport says that the skin color of eastern Asiatics and the American Indians approaches that of tanned South Europeans and red is about equally abundant with black. Yellow and white are correspondingly reduced. Even in Indians the proportion of black becomes very greatly reduced when the skin has been long protected from exposure to the sun and wind, and under these circumstances the yellow element becomes very large. The eastern Asiatics were formerly classified as the yellow race—a terminology justified by the large size of the yellow factor. This factor is large, also, in Indians, although much covered over by, and possibly in part converted into, black pigment.

"Thus it appears that the several types of mankind differ from each other in the proportion of black and yellow pigment," Mr. Davenport continues. "The blackest pigment is found on the borders of the Indian Ocean from Australia through certain parts of India, to the whole of central Africa. Europe is characterized by a comparatively small amount of the black pigment which, however, may be much developed in certain races by exposure to the sunlight. In Eastern Asia we find certain races which on exposure to the sunlight develop a considerable amount of black but which have, also, a large amount of yellow pigment that appears when the black pigment is diluted through hybridization. This yellow pigment also seems to be present in negroes in a greater degree than in Europeans, though ordinarily covered by the black pigment.

"It is impossible to state definitely what was the original color of the skin in the immediate ancestors of man. Possibly just as different species of anthropoid apes differ in skin color (the gorilla having a black skin and the chimpanzee having a light one) so a certain section of mankind may have arisen from light-skinned and another from dark-skinned ancestors. There is no theoretical reason for believing that there was a single pair to which we could point, if we only knew enough, as the progenitors of all human beings; but just as there are different kinds of gorillas today so there may well have been a variation inside the species which constituted the primitive man—a variation which had been inherited from still earlier prehuman ancestors.

"If we adopt the hypothesis that the ancestor of mankind was black-skinned (and apparently a black skin was very widespread, even over Europe in prehistoric days) then the semi-albinic condition characteristic of Europeans and most of the inhabitants of Asia must have arisen through a mutation unfavorable to the production of black pigment. If, on the other hand, we assume that the ancestors of mankind had a chimpanzee-like, creamy-colored skin, then the deep pigmentation found in the negroes, negroids and Australians must have arisen by a special mutation in the direction of melanism."

How BULLETS Are BOB-TAILED to Make Them DEADLIER

THE "bob-tailed" bullet recently adopted by the United States Army marks a great advance over the old-style bullets. It increases the effective range of rifle fire, enables the soldiers to improve their aim and lengthens the life of the rifle itself. It was realized during the World War that the form of rifle bullets could be greatly improved, and since then the United States Government has been carrying on an elaborate series of experiments for this purpose.

The secret of the success of the new bullet is merely that it offers less resistance to the air than the older forms. This has been accomplished by studying the effect of a streamline body on air resistance. It might seem that the shape of a bullet made little difference, since it is hurled through the air at such enormous velocity and its weight is so much greater than that of the air.

State, is a school boy named Edwin McRae.

end, while its base is squared off so that it forms a perfect cylinder. The new bullet has the same kind of nose, but is slightly tapered toward its base. This taper makes an angle of six degrees with the horizontal. The bullet meanwhile has been increased in weight from 150 to 170 grains.

As the bullet flies through space the air displaced as it moves forward rushes in behind. It has been found that the new form allows the air to rush in more smoothly. The bullet produces less suction in its flight which tends to pull it back. The result is that the force exerted by the powder in launching the bullet into space, therefore, carries or propels it considerably further and with greater accuracy than in the case of other forms of bullets.

Careful experiments have proved that the range of the new bullets is 1,300 yards greater than that of the old bullets fired with the same initial velocity, despite the increase in weight. The increased range, which is so important in firing, is, of course, due to the slightly tapered tail, reducing the drag of the air. In the tests recently made in rifle matches the superiority of the new bullet was universally admitted.

BOYS Become BAKERS of BISCUITS

THE United State Government Bureau of Home Economics thinks that every boy should learn to cook. He may, later on, marry a girl who doesn't know how.

Prizes are given at country fairs in North Carolina for the best boy-made biscuits. The champion biscuit-maker of Peachland, in that State, is a school boy named Edwin McRae.

North Carolina boys not only make biscuits but sell them; likewise pies and cakes, baked by their mothers. On Saturdays they wheel to market their little carts on which are mounted cleverly constructed boxes with a door and shelves to hold trays. These are miniature bakery wagons and the youngsters drive a brisk trade with folks who have learned to appreciate the excellence of their wares.

A New Bathtub

A SANITARY bathtub with a shower incorporated therein, has been invented by Mitchel I. Klein, of Brooklyn. N. Y. The inventor claims it has three improvements over the old type of bathtub and shower bath, and they are—first, a shower in the rear of the tub, eliminating the necessity of a curtain; second, no dirt can cling to the side of the tub, as it is washed out of the overflow, and third, the tub cannot overflow as might be the case when a person goes to sleep in the bathtub with the water turned on. Furthermore, dirt, which naturally floats on the surface of the water, is washed out of the overflow.

Why Newly Turned Earth Smells Fresh

WHY does fresh-turned earth have a refreshing odor? Two French scientists, Berthelot and Andre, who investigated this matter, came to the conclusion that the odor is due to the presence of some organic compound that escapes with water vapor. They supported this opinion by the fact that the odor is especially strong in dew-wet earth in the late Summer and Fall. This theory was also verified by the German investigator, Rollman, who actually obtained the perfume in the form of chemically pure double-refracting crystals. He also succeeded in tracing it to a micro-organism, supposed to be a bacterium, which he isolated from various soils. More recent study of this odoriferous organism has revealed that because of its biological and morphological properties it must be classed as a radiant fungus.

This organism is found in every field, on grass, straw, or ears of grain, and their culture is simple enough for even a layman to undertake. To do this fill a large glass dish partly full of sterilized sand and moisten it with boiled water. Then take a few bearded ears of grain, moisten them with water and stick them in the damp sand, after which cover the dish with a double layer of filter paper. While growth is best at a higher temperature, ordinary room temperature will enable this interesting fungus to grow. Even in a few days' time, or in a week at latest, one will see a chalk-like deposit on some of the ears.

This deposit, according to the German authority, consists of colonies of the fungus. If one transplants these colonies to a fresh artificial soil, such as a culture medium containing about 5 per cent of glycerine, and rich in carbohydrates, then under favorable conditions one will find in about five days a profuse growth of the fungus colonies, possessing an intensive degree of the earth fragrance.

It is a highly interesting phenomenon that on a gelatin culture-medium odorless and odoriferous colonies will grow side by side. But if the odorless colonies be transplanted to a culture-medium containing carbohydrates, such as sterile pea-soup, the earth fragrance will once more be perceived.

The Food Value of Pie and Cake

PIE is essentially an American dish. Until recently it shared, in certain quarters at least, the chracteristic derogation that has often been directed at some American products and customs. Forgetting how Yankee forefathers included pies as the veritable basis of their daily diet, the critics have sought to impugn this widely-eaten American product and to assail its use.

The dictionary has long defined pie as "prepared food baked either between two layers or crusts of pastry or with only an upper or lower layer." The almost infinite variety of combinations with fruits, meats and what-not that the use of flour in the ready-to-eat form of pie permits has served greatly to enhance the popularity of the edible food. Of course, there are pies and pies, yet the diversity of pastry cooks and their unlike talents scarcely warrants the unfortunate repute that pie has acquired in many quarters.

Foremost is the charge of indigestibility; but why the combination of flour with fat and fruit should preferably be in the form of bread and butter with apple sauce or fruit jam rather than as delectable apple or strawberry pies is difficult to fathom, in the opinion of a writer in the Journal of the American Medical Association. At any rate, the experts or "food specialists" seem to be showing a change of heart and a revision of ideas.

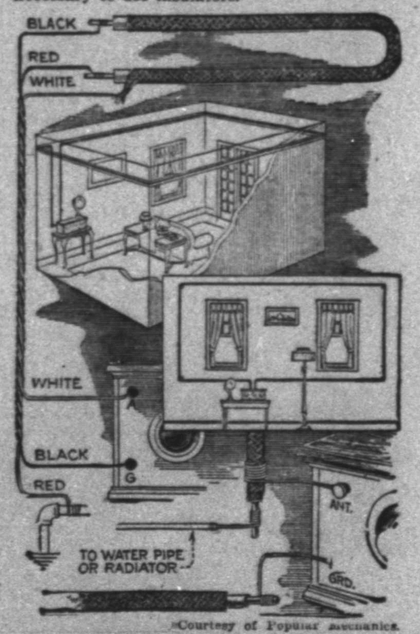

Cake likewise seems to be coming into its own, this authority points out. A recent writer has justly insisted that cakes are real foods. They should not be regarded solely as confections to tempt the jaded appetite, but for what they are—good sources of food essentials. To the charge that cakes are too 'rich' for many persons, it should be noted that as a general average these products contain 1,500 calories to the pound, or only 25 per cent more than the average bread. If we translate a culinary blend of flour and eggs with butter, fruits or nuts into terms of foodstuffs, the answer indicates proteins, fats, carbohydrates, mineral nutrients and vitamins. A slice of bread and butter is almost twice as rich in fat as "gold cake" or "devil's food."

An EFFECTIVE Indoor Radio AERIAL

A NEW and unusual type of aerial for indoor use has a center core of solid copper, over which a rubber insulation of high quality is placed, while the covering consists of braided tinned-copper wire.

When this antenna is used in the form of a loop, according to Popular Mechanics, the inner core acts as a magnetic return ground, d signed to increase selectivity and tone quality; when used as a straight aerial the outside tinned-copper braid, because of its larger surface area, is an ideal wave collecter, the inner core acting as a magnetic-field ground.

This dual-conductor construction has the effect of a condenser the full length of the aerial, and it is claimed to be an ideal filter for grounding out or neutralizing noises, leaving the aerial to bring in the radio waves without distortion. If used in the attic or around the room, it is unnecessary to use insulators.
