Fed decides to increase short-term interest rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve nudged a key short-term interest rate higher for the first time in five years today in a move analysts said would be felt almost immediately in higher business and consumer rates.

In a highly unusual step, the Fed actually announced its intention to push interest rates higher, saying the decision had been taken at a closed-door meeting of top policymakers, known as the Federal Open Market Committee.

Analysts viewed the announcement and later Fed operations in the bond market as confirmation that the Fed has established a new target of 3.25 percent for its federal funds rate, the interest that banks charge each other on overnight loans.

This was an increase from the 3 percent level where the funds rate had been since September 1992.

Although the Fed had been widely expected to raise rates, financial markets were taken by surprise. Stock and bond prices fell sharply in the minutes after the news.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had been little changed before the announcement, plunged nearly 40 points before regaining some ground. Shortly before noon EST, the Dow was off about 29 points to the 3,939 level.

David Jones, an economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., said he expected the rates that consumers earn on their bank certificates of deposit to move up almost immediately, reflecting the higher rate.

However, he said bank's prime lending rate, a benchmark for many business and consumer loans, would probably stay at 6 percent until the Fed nudges rates up another quarter-point, something that Jones said would probably occur before midyear.

The Fed announced its decision in a written statement issued by Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan.

"The decision was taken to move toward a less accommodative stance in monetary policy in order to sustain and enhance the economic expansion," Greenspan said.

In the past, the Fed has not announced changes in the direction of the federal funds rate, leaving it to market watchers to guess at the Fed's intentions from its action in the bond market.

However, Greenspan said the central bank decided to immediately announce today's decision in order "to avoid any misunderstanding of the committee's purposes, given the fact that this is the first firming of reserve market conditions by the committee since early 1989."

Strong leadership qualities key for new superintendent

A small but concerned group of local residents told a search consultant Thursday that the person hired as Snyder public schools' superintendent needs to be a strong leader who will follow through on policy and put the students' interests first.

Thirteen people attended the public meeting at Worsham Auditorium, one of 12 meetings the consultants are holding to allow input on issues and qualifications pertaining to the hiring of a superintendent.

The Texas Association of School Boards firm has been hired by the school board to search for a superintendent to replace Dalton Moseley, who is retiring at the end of the school year.

Some 55 people attended a meeting held earlier in the evening Thursday. Groups have included business and community leaders, teachers and administrators. The series of meetings ended today as the search team heard from retired teachers and senior citizens.

In Thursday's public meeting, Dr. E.C. Leslie, search consultant, posed a series of questions. One was, "What is important about living in Snyder?" Dr. Leslie received responses that Snyder is a good place to raise kids, has friendly people and is community oriented.

Other topics of discussion included the key issues facing a superintendent. Those in attendance cited a declining tax base, low teacher morale, equality of education in all elementary schools, not just those supplemented by federal funds based on the school food program, and the need for a fine arts program throughout the district.

When asked what personal views and traits the public wants to see in a superintendent, the list of answers was lengthy. In general, the citizens stated the new superintendent should be a strong disciplinarian but with common sense, no "nitpicking."

This person should also have a positive attitude toward kids and see that they receive equal opportunities, starting in kindergarten, the group said.

The group went on to say the superintendent should be able to communicate well, and more importantly, listen well to the community, teachers and students.

Remarks coming from the 12 profile sessions will be compiled and presented to the board, and eventually, to the new superintendent. They will also be used to help consultants "target" their search for a superintendent who will be compatible with the

Pact to trade with Vietman angers vets, pleases business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Families of missing Vietnam-era servicemen say President Clinton's decision to resume trade with Vietnam breaks a promise he made to keep the pressure on Hanoi to fully account for MIAs. But U.S. businesses are reveling at the prospect of a new multibillion-dollar marketplace.

By dropping the 19-year trade embargo, Clinton has assured U.S. companies a sizeable share of business expected to be generated as Vietnam modernizes its fallen-down infrastructure, updates its telecommunications system and develops new consumer markets.

"The bottom line is it allows us an equal footing to compete for the business in Vietnam," said Robert Driscoll, president of the U.S.-ASEAN Council, an association of about 100 U.S. companies.

Mark Rosenker, vice president of the Electronic Industries Association, said the trade sanctions "outlived their usefulness" and renewing trade would be key to "insuring competitiveness over the long term."

In announcing his long-anticipated and controversial decision, Clinton on Thursday insisted it was based solely on securing further Vietnamese cooperation to account for U.S. servicemen missing in action from the Vietnam War.

"I wanted to make sure that the trade questions did not enter into this decision. So ... we never had a discussion about it," he said.

One administration official said, however, that while the POW-MIA issue was the overriding concern, economic pressures also were noted.

Clinton cited considerable progress in recent months in accounting for 2,238 American MIAs in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

But veterans and MIA family organizations criticized Clinton's decision. They had lobbied heavily in favor of maintaining the embargo as a pressure tactic to get a full accounting of all the missing.

"I think it's a mistake. ... We have 2,000 people over there who are unaccounted for. The Vietnamese will not send us any remains now," said Roy Jessee, who was selling T-shirts and buttons to raise money for veterans' causes at the Vietnam War Memorial.

"The embargo was the only leverage that we had," said John Summer, executive director of the American Legion.

Ann Mills Griffith, head of a Vietnam MIA-POW group, said the president has "clearly broken" his promise from last summer that he would maintain the embargo until Vietnam provided a full accounting of the missing Americans. "I fault the bureaucracy ... for misinforming the president and giving him advice that doesn't hold water."

But Clinton said ending the embargo was "the best way to ensure cooperation from Vietnam."

He said the United States will not fully normalize relations with Vietnam until there is "more progress, more cooperation and more answers."

One wheelchair-bound Vietnam veteran who attended Clinton's White House announcement said the decision "ends the war for us."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

James Roberts, in the Andrews County News, sometimes gets fed up with situations involving government. He recently wrote:

"This country ought to import more Puerto Ricans — they've got more sense than us Texans when it comes to government.

"A few weeks ago, in a national non-binding referendum, the residents of that tiny island voted down joining the U.S. as another of the 50 states.

"And we don't blame them. Puerto Ricans are U.S. citizens and enjoy about $4 billion a year in transfer payments from the U.S. government.

"The amount we send down there amounts to about 26 percent of the gross national product for the commonwealth.

"They get the goodies — and as a commonwealth instead of a state — do not pay one dime of federal taxes to Uncle Sam.

"Wonder if we couldn't talk Congress into making the state of Texas one of those commonwealth creatures?"

Speedy Nieman, in the Hereford Brand, says a local Deaf Smith County woman was asked for advice.

Her son wanted to know what he should buy his girlfriend for Valentine's Day. Finally, he asked his mother, "If you were 16 years old, what would you want?"

The mother answered without hesitation: "Not a thing."

Director for DCOS on agenda today

Employment of a director of economic development could occur today at a 5 p.m. meeting of the Development Corporation of Snyder.

A committee composed of DCOS members and economic advisory committee members met this morning to discuss the post with Doug Hutchinson of Burton.

Hutchinson was in Snyder last Wednesday and Thursday as one of three finalists for the newly-created position to direct Snyder's economic development activities.

Other finalists interviewed were Marie Muse of Mt. Pleasant and John Castro of Georgetown.

Members of the DCOS board include President Bill Seale, Dan Cotton, Roy Baze, John Fagin and Miller Robinson.

The value of a well-rounded doctor

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please settle an argument. My friend would rather see a doctor who reads novels; I would prefer a physician who reads medical journals. Who is right?

DEAR READER: Every patient is entitled to a physician who keeps abreast of the medical literature. Remaining "current" is each practitioner's goal and duty. Therefore, it's important to choose a doctor who engages in continuing medical education, be it through seminars, conferences, video- or audiotapes, journal-reading, or other methods of on-going education.

On the other hand, caring for sick patients requires a broader view than [illegible]. The good doctor takes into account many such aspects, including psychological, ethical, humanitarian and socio-economic factors. In dealing with people, the capable and competent physician must consider far more than the disease process.

Consequently, in answer to your question, I'd have to say that you and your friend are right — and wrong. What you both need to find is a doctor with balance, someone with technical skills who is more than an automaton.

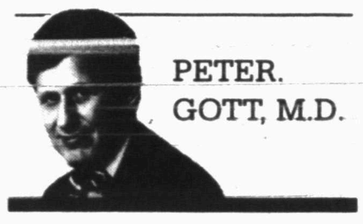

Most well-rounded physicians eagerly learn of new advances and therapies. But they will be equally eager to broaden their horizons by reading novels, seeing plays, going to concerts and the opera, and participating in other, non-medical activities that are intellectually stimulating. The "complete" doctor also values time spent with his family, with recreation, in spiritual pursuits, and in community service.

In my opinion, patients are best served by a practitioner with varied interests. I am not unique in this view. Many medical school admissions committees have recently recognized the value of a liberal arts education, and often give preference to applicants who are well-rounded, in contrast to the previous emphasis on purely scientific backgrounds. In short, the pre-med who is familiar with Faust may turn into a better doctor than the young person who spends all his or her time unraveling the mysteries of DNA synthesis.

Thus, you raise an important question. The most skilled doctor must, of course, keep up with medical advances in journals. However, an equal emphasis on non-medical topics will also serve to enrich the doctor and those he or she serves.

Man receives death sentence

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — A Comal County jury has sentenced a man to death for his part in the brutal beating and stabbing deaths of three members of a Kerrville family.

The sentence was handed down Thursday for Samuel Clark Gallamore, who had been convicted in the March 1992 deaths of Clayton Kenney, 83; his wife, Juliana, 74; and Mrs. Kenney's daughter, Adrienne Arnot, 44, at their country home just east of Kerrville.

Defense lawyer Steve Pickell said a key element in the jury's decision was a poem written by Gallamore while he was jailed in the slayings.

The poem read: "Not once did I beg or pleed (sic). Not like the people I sat and watched bleed."

The poem also spoke of the possible death sentence, saying "But if to kill me is your decision. Then an escape I will plan with great precision."

District Attorney Ron Sutton read the poem to jurors during the punishment phase of the trial.

Jurors deliberated about five hours Wednesday and about an hour Thursday before deciding Gallamore should be put to death rather than face life in prison.

The same jury found Gallamore guilty of capital murder Tuesday after two hours of deliberation.

"I am satisfied that the jury followed the evidence and that the sentence is well-deserved and justified," Sutton said after the verdict was announced. "This is one of the most brutal murder scenes I have ever seen."

A medical examiner said each of the victims had been beaten with a cedar club and each had knife wounds to the throat. Either the beatings or stabbings would have been fatal, he said.

James John Steiner, 21, also is charged with capital murder in the case and is awaiting trial set for April 7 in Georgetown.

The two were arrested July 23 after law enforcement officers received two Crimestoppers tips that provided information about the slayings.

Texas A&M probe clears professor

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A Texas A&M chemistry professor accused of misconduct in connection with a research project that involved trying to turn mercury to gold has been exonerated by a university committee.

A four-member panel appointed to investigate Dr. John O'M. Bockris said Thursday it found no evidence "to sustain charges of misconduct in science in proposing, conducting or reporting of research."

Bockris was accused of conspiring with California businessman William Telander to obscure the intent of his research and that he later did nothing to stop Telander and a business partner, Joe Champion, from exaggerating the results of his work.

In a letter dated Wednesday, Bockris thanked the committee for its work.

"I look forward to once again applying my full energies to the work before me," he said. Bockris' attorney, Gaines West, said his client had nothing else to say.

"We can't comment presently because we're considering our options," West said Thursday. "But we're very pleased he was exonerated."

The committee was charged with determining if school policies and procedures and the highest research standards were followed, said Robert A. Kennedy, an A&M vice president.

"No one on the inquiry committee was looking at science," Nancy Sawtelle, a spokeswoman for Kennedy, said when asked about the mercury-to-gold claims. "That should be left to the scientific community, to peer review."

Bockris was under internal scrutiny for accepting $200,000 to conduct the research, called the Philadelphia Project.

The results of two other investigations into how Bockris spent the donated money and into the procedures used in accepting the donation should be released in a few days, university officials said.

Kennedy said he did not know if the committee members specifically asked Bockris if he was trying to turn mercury into gold. Professor Duane C. Kraemer, the committee's chair, could not be reached at home or his office Thursday evening for comment.

West said his client "was working on a research project to see if certain experiments could be replicated." When asked if that included duplicating a process of transforming mercury to gold, he replied: "Among other things."

W. Michael Kemp, executive associate dean of the College of Science, brought the misconduct charge against Bockris. Kemp said Thursday he had not seen the committee's report.

"I had two complaints based solely upon what I heard Dr. Bockris say (in a newspaper interview)," Kemp said. "I feel that from what Dr. Bockris said he intentionally misled our office as to what the nature of the research was."

"As of this moment I have no reason whatsoever to believe that my charges against Dr. Bockris were inaccurate or unfair," Kemp said.

Telander is under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission and recently was indicted for a string of fraud cases. Champion is in jail in Arizona on unrelated theft and fraud charges.

"The way this has been handled so far will inevitably make our university an even bigger laughingstock than it is now," chemistry professor Albert Cotton, one of Bockris' colleagues, said Thursday after reading the committee findings.

Gang leader convicted of rape-murder

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors say they'll seek the death penalty for a 19-year-old gang member convicted of capital murder for participating last summer in the gruesome gang rape and slayings of two teen-age girls.

Peter Cantu smiled and scratched his ear Thursday as a Houston jury, after just one hour of deliberations, announced they had found him guilty of killing Elizabeth Pena, 16, and Jennifer Ertman, 14.

The same jury today was to begin hearing testimony whether Cantu gets a life prison term or should be put to death.

Prosecutors said Cantu was the ringleader of a group called the Black and White youth gang and directed the strangulation and repeated rape of the two girls, whose bodies were left abandoned for four days in 100-degree weather.

The case horrified Houston and was seen nationally as yet another example of youth gang violence.

In testimony Thursday, a police detective said even before making a written statement, Cantu boasted that he and his friends killed the girls.

Tea slated for prospective nurses

Howard College Accelerated Degree of Nursing Program and Cogdell Memorial Hospital will host a tea for all prospective students who want to attain their RN degree.

The tea will be held in the doctor's lounge, Monday, Feb. 7, from 1:00 to 2:00 p.m. at Cogdell Hospital.

Jose Rheinscheld, RN, MSN, dean of nursing, Howard College and Velma Clay, RN, MSN, instructor-coordinator, Snyder campus, as well as ADN graduates will be on hand to explain the program.

Prospective students need to have completed application and paper work in the ADN office by March 1.

The ADN office is located at the Medical Arts Building, 5303 Trinity Boulevard, Suite E (across the street from CMH).

For additional information, please call the ADN office 574-7348 or 574-7349.

Your Birthday

Saturday, Feb. 5, 1994

Trial and error from your past experiences have taught you valuable shortcuts. Objectives which you previously had difficulty in attaining might be achieved with relative ease in the year ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone you recently met is as eager to know you better as you are to know him/her. However, at this point in time it is up to you to precipitate the relationship. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to be successful today it is important you are assertive without being aggressive. If you focus on the latter, instead of the former, it could be self-defeating.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a quick study today, capable of learning more from exchanges with others than you may from books. Closely observe the habit patterns of people you admire.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today could be one of those days when who you know is of equal important as what you know. You have some associations who could prove very helpful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your greatest asset today is your cooperative spirit. Persons you go out of your way to assist will feel impelled to respond with some type of equivalent gesture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It will enhance your feelings of self-worth today if you have productive involvements that busy your heart, head and hands. Make today count.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There is an additional facet to your charisma today that could make you even more appealing than usual to members of the opposite gender. You'll sense this strength, so use it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Anything you can personally do today to make things happier in your household should be given top priority. You already know what they are.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today's social activities are likely to be more fun if there aren't too many people involved. Limit the participants to a few choice friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your material aspects continue to look hopeful. Today there is a possibility you might derive some type of profit through an involvement with a relative or friend of the family.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The gift of persuasion is one of your strongest assets today. If you have an idea, issue or product you're trying to promote, this is the day to make your presentation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your greatest benefits today might come through the good auspices of others rather than from things you do on your own. Good people may feel inclined to help other good people.

U.S. sending more Border Patrol agents

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Border Patrol agent Ann Summers had just caught one group of illegal aliens and was waiting for a van to take them away when another bunch dashed right by in the night. Outnumbered, her hands full and no other agents nearby, she could only watch.

"You do the job to the best of your abilities," Summers said. "But it gets frustrating to constantly be so overrun."

On Thursday, when Attorney General Janet Reno announced she will put 1,010 more front-line agents at the Mexican border, Summers felt relief.

"Anything we get down here will help," said the 10-year veteran.

But in the increasingly bitter fight over America's borders, other foes of illegal immigration were less satisfied.

Gov. Pete Wilson called Reno's plan a mere "first step." The Federation for American Immigration Reform said it failed to address "profound, structural problems," including immigrants' right to apply for asylum.

Border activist Roberto Martinez just felt sadness. The same day Reno outlined her plan, a federal jury in Phoenix acquitted a former agent who fatally shot an unarmed Mexican in the back.

"With the abuses out of control like this," Martinez said, "the last thing we need is more agents."

Border Patrol agents catch about 1.2 million people entering the country illegally each year. There is no estimate of how many elude agents.

Five months after she toured the rugged, mountainous border at San Diego, Reno proposed two main lines of attack against people illegally crossing from Mexico.

First, her plan would beef up the United States' ability to keep people out. The Border Patrol will hire 500 more front-line agents and shift 510 others from desk jobs. Currently, 3,461 agents are stationed along the Mexican border; the exact number on the front line was not disclosed.

Last summer, Congress approved $45 million to hire up to 600 more Border Patrol agents.

Second, Reno announced plans to prevent illegal aliens from getting work once in the United States. The government would spend $28 million to investigate and prosecute businesses that hire illegals.

With the market in forged documents booming, the government also will do more to make green cards — legal residency cards — tamper-proof.

In general, those involved in the nation's immigration debate are split over the two approaches Reno chose.

Some, like Wilson, believe illegals come to take advantage of schools, welfare and medical care. That group wants to stop aliens at the border and force the federal government to pay states' costs to educate, feed or hospitalize aliens.

Others, like Martinez, believe migrants come because there are jobs. They believe the United States is being hypocritical unless it tries to eliminate that magnet by penalizing employers.

Both tactics are unproved.

Illegal crossings dropped dramatically when El Paso agents last year began standing right at the Rio Grande, which separates Mexico from the United States. But other agents believe that the El Paso blockade, and San Diego's steel border fence, merely push immigrants to less-enforced spots along the nearly 2,000-mile border.

Reno's proposal also will do nothing about the thousands of green cards already in circulation that can be tampered with. Forged documents are someties so good that employers find them difficult to pick out.

Health officials have banned fishing at Donna Reservoir

DONNA (AP) — Citing high levels of PCBs in fish samples, Texas health officials have banned fishing in the Donna Reservoir and its canal system.

"This is no longer just an advisory. This is a ban," Dr. David Smith, Texas commissioner of health, said Thursday.

The latest results in a study in Hidalgo County showed high PCB levels in 40 percent of the fish samples examined, according to a statement by the Texas Department of Health.

However, the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission has determined that the local drinking water is safe, Smith said.

Eight of 10 fish sampled from feeder canals running from the Rio Grande to the Donna Reservoir had significantly high levels of PCBs. The area is frequented by people who fish and often eat their catch, Smith said.

PCBs, known scientifically as polychlorinated biphenyls, are suspected of causing cancer in rats. They have been linked to acne, nail deformation and liver enlargement in humans, Smith said.

"It's bad stuff to have in your body," he said, although he added that he was unaware of any specific cases of health problems linked to PCBs in the area.

The health agency will begin taking new fish samples from the Rio Grande and the Donna intake canal within three weeks, he said. If those tests show similarly high results, the TDH could restrict fishing and fish consumption on a portion of the Rio Grande.

"Now we're trying to pinpoint the search area and we're going to have to search for the cause," Smith said in a telephone interview.

Smith said he was hopeful the sampling would lead to the discovery of the source. Discarded transformers are an example of a past source of PCB contamination, he said.

"It also could be industry," Smith said.

The department issued an advisory in June 1993 warning residents not to eat fish in the Donna Reservoir and its canals, the North Floodway, the Arroyo Colorado and all irrigation canals in Hidalgo County.

In November, after further testing, the advisory was scaled back to the Donna Reservoir and its canal system.

Judge sets March 17 as date for execution

ABILENE (AP) — A March 17 execution date has been set for James Edward Clayton by a judge who refused to appoint an out-of-state attorney, saying it would cause further delay.

Judge Billy John Edwards of the 104th District Court set the date Thursday after the Texas Resource Center, which assists death row inmates with appeals, said it could not recruit "volunteer counsel" for Clayton.

In a letter to Edwards, the center asked the judge to appoint a Baltimore attorney for Clayton. Edwards refused; he had given Clayton, who has exhausted all direct appeals, until Jan. 28 to find a lawyer.

"There may be some courts that do that, but Taylor County's already spent a lot of money on this case," Edwards said.

Clayton has been on death row since 1988 for the kidnapping and murder of Hawley school teacher Lori Michelle Barrett.

March 17 can by no means be considered a final date, however. Another lawyer or Clayton himelf can file further writs in hopes of delaying the execution. For instance, he could claim trial or appellate attorneys were not competent, which could lead to additional hearings.

In her letter to Edwards, TRC executive director Mandy Welch said the organization has, since Dec. 1, recruited lawyers for seven previously unrepresented death row inmates and will continue to seek one for Clayton.

Priest posts bond after turning self in

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 37-year-old priest has surrendered following his indictment on charges of sexual assault of a child and indecency with a child.

The Rev. Carlos Lozano, 37, was released Thursday from the Bexar County Justice Center after posting $10,000 bond each on one count of sexual assault and three charges of indecency.

An application for a personal recognizance bond was denied by District Judge Mike Machado, in whose court Lozano is to be tried.

A warrant for Lozano's arrest was issued Wednesday after a Bexar County grand jury issued the indictment.

Lozano has been on administrative leave from his job at St. Anthony's High School Seminary in San Antonio since Dec. 17, when four students, ages 16 and 17, told police a spiritual adviser at the school had fondled them several times during the past year.

One of the youths reported having oral sex with the priest, reports noted.

St. Anthony's is a preparatory school for boys considering vocations to the priesthood or religious life.

Lozano, a native of Kingsville, was ordained last year. He had been at the school two years.

Before his ordination, he served as a dormitory proctor, taught computer science and had been in charge of music, school officials said.

Shrimper arrested by Coast Guard

GALVESTON (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard has hauled in an Aransas Pass, Texas, shrimp boat on charges it illegally trawled with devices that prevent trapped turtles from escaping fishing nets.

The Coast Guard escorted the shrimper Thursday to Galveston, where an agent of the National Marine Fisheries Service seized the catch of 1,206 pounds of shrimp. The catch was sold to a local fish house and its proceeds placed in escrow pending disposition of the case.

The boat reportedly was trawling with the Turtle Excluder Devices in all four of its nets sewn shut, a violation of the Federal Endangered Species Act.

The case will be referred to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. The maximum penalty is a $12,000 fine and confiscation of the catch.

Jacksonville, Fla., was settled in 1816 as Cowford. It changed its name in 1822 in honor of Andrew Jackson.

Bulldogs entertain Snyder cage teams

Both Snyder varsity basketball squads will visit Plainview today in hopes of stopping District 2-4A losing skids.

The Lady Tigers, 8-17 and 1-7 in league games, are trying to bounce back from a 56-21 loss to Frenship on Tuesday, while the SHS boys, 15-10 and 1-5, hope to atone for a 43-40 defeat to FHS.

The Snyder girls will face a Plainview team that played No. 2 Levelland close, before losing, 39-30, in its Tuesday outing.

Snyder is led by seniors Annie Ragland, who averages over 12 points a game, in spite of being limited to just two against Frenship, and Meriah Worthen, who led SHS on Tuesday with a 9-point effort.

The Lady Tigers will wind up the season with a Tuesday trip to Estacado.

In other girls' games, Lamesa visits Levelland and Frenship is at Estacado.

Levelland (8-0 in 2-4A) and Frenship (7-1) have both clinched playoff spots.

The SHS boys will battle a No. 3 Plainview team that has had trouble beating Estacado (78-70 in OT) and Levelland (51-49) in its last two contests.

PHS standout Steven Riddley leads the Bulldogs, averaging over 14 points and almost 10 rebounds a game.

Plainview is unbeaten in six district games and boasts a 23-3 overall record. The 'Dogs lead Frenship and Estacado by two games in the loop chase.

Snyder is led by senior wing Adrian Sneed, who scored a team-best 14 against Frenship on Tuesday, and Ricky Post, who was good for six.

Odessa downs Lady Dusters

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Odessa College swooped into Scurry County Coliseum Thursday and claimed a do-or-die 75-67 upset win over Western Texas College in Western Junior College Athletic Conference basketball action.

The Lady Wranglers, now 14-9 and 1-4, had been winless and a loss here could have been a fatal blow to their hopes of making the NJCAA Region V post-season tournament.

"We're not dead yet," said Odessa head coach Ken Hefner. "This was a real important win for us. We really had to have it."

"I think they were playing real hard because they knew they had to have this game," said WTC coach Ron Jones.

"Odessa wanted to win worse than we did and I think that's why they won it."

Odessa standout Tisa Morris poured in a game-high 35 points, including the Lady Wranglers' lone three. Teammate Cecely McNeil scored 15 before fouling out late in the second half.

"She's a good player," Jones said of Morris, "but we didn't do a good job. We didn't prepare well. The last couple of days' practice wasn't good. We just didn't deserve to win.

"You can't tell me that one or two offensive players can beat us, and that's really what happened."

Western Texas post Paulita Murrell, who finished with 24 points, kept the game close by hitting crucial shots all night, including three straight buckets in the middle of the second half that closed a 6-point gap and tied the game at 54-54 with 8:30 to play.

However, Odessa went on an 8-0 run, highlighted by a driving layup by Morris and a jumper from the top of the key by Truest Bradley, to effectively put the game away.

Trailing Murrell for team scoring honors was Carri Moss, who chipped in 11 points, including a trey in the first half that cut an early OC margin from seven to four points.

The Dusters, besides losing Thursday's game, lost a chance to gain sole possession of first place in the conference.

WTC went into Thursday's [illegible] league lead.

Howard was trimmed by South Plains College, 64-61, Thursday throwing HC, SPC and Western Texas into a 3-way logjam at 4-2 in conference games.

"I told the girls to forget about losing to Odessa, there's nothing we can do about it now. What we have to do is concentrate about going up and beating New Mexico. This conference race is far from over. We've got a lot of work ahead of us."

The Dusters will visit New Mexico Junior College Monday, followed by a non-conference road trip to Clarendon on Thursday and a Valentine's Day trek to Howard.

Their last home contest of the season will be a Feb. 17 battle against South Plains.

Hermleigh, IHS meet in crucial 21-A battle

Friday's Ira-Hermleigh girls' basketball matchup at HHS, besides being a renewal of a hot cross-county rivalry, could go a long way in deciding the playoff seedings in District 21-A.

The Lady Cardinals enter the contest with a 14-7 overall mark and a 6-1 slate against district teams, while the IHS girls sport an 11-11 season record and a 5-2 loop mark.

Hermleigh's last outing was a 53-45 upset loss at the hands of Westbrook on Tuesday.

Brandi Bates scored 16 and Connie Payne added 14 in the losing effort.

Ira, which shares second in the loop with Highland, was a 71-29 winner over Loraine on Tuesday.

The Lady Bulldogs are paced by Jody Rankin, who poured in 28 points against Loraine, and Angie Robinson, who chipped in 12.

Hermleigh won the previous meeting, 47-37, at Ira.

The Ira-Hermleigh boys' game will pit the 4-15, 2-5 Cardinals against the 3-17, 0-7 Bulldogs.

Hermleigh lost to Westbrook Tuesday, 82-72, in spite of a 15-point outing by Billy Luna, 14 from Chris Lambaren and Chris Roemisch's 13.

Ira was a 79-42 loser to league-leading Loraine in its Tuesday contest. The 'Dogs were led by Coy Henderson's 18 points and 11 from Cory Beltz.

Action begins at Hermleigh High School with the 6:30 p.m. girls' game, followed at 8 p.m. by the boys' battle.

Cardinals hire Ryan as coach, GM

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — By definition, "Buddyball" should be an improvement on what Phoenix Cardinals fans have been watching since 1988.

"He's a winner," Phoenix owner Bill Bidwill said Thursday after hiring Buddy Ryan as the team's new general manager and coach.

Bidwill said he never discussed Ryan's scrapes with Philadelphia Eagles owner Norman Braman or Ryan's punch at Houston offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride on the sidelines of last season's New York Jets-Oilers game.

"I'm more concerned with winning football games, and that's what Buddy Ryan can do for us," Bidwill said.

Ryan, who last month completed his 24th year of NFL coaching as Houston's defensive coordinator, was given a dual role because of the NFL's new collective-bargaining system, which includes a salary cap. The Cardinals have been without a general manager since Larry Wilson resigned Dec. 14.

A side benefit might be to prevent friction.

"I think Buddy the coach thinks Buddy the general manager is a pretty good fellow," Bidwill said.

Cowboys tab Zampese to take Turner's place

IRVING (AP) — After losing offensive coordinator Norv Turner, the Dallas Cowboys have replaced him with his mentor, who designed the offense Turner used to help win two Super Bowls.

Ernie Zampese, 57, agreed to a three-year contract with Dallas Thursday, the day after Turner was named coach of the Washington Redskins. Turner was an assistant under Zampese in Los Angeles before taking over the Cowboys offense in 1991.

"Certainly he's the one we wanted for the job, he's a natural — we think he'll fit right in, he obviously knows the offense well," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said by conference call from the Cowboys practice facility.

"He knows the importance of the running game in our offense, so he was our guy from the word go."

Zampese has been the Rams' offensive coordinator the past seven seasons. Last year, he coached the league's fifth-best running offense, which featured 1993 rookie of the year Jerome Bettis. Bettis finished second to Emmitt Smith in the NFL rushing race.

Before joining the Rams' staff in 1987, Zampese was in charge of the "Air Coryell" offense of the San Diego Chargers under Don Coryell. He was the Chargers' offensive coordinator from 1983-86.

AHS netters nudge Snyder

Snyder's girls tennis team took wins in seven of 10 matches, but Andrews' boys proved too much for SHS to handle in a dual match here Thursday.

The Mustangs wound up with a 10-7 slate in individual matches, including a sweep in boys' singles.

"The kids really played competitively," said SHS coach Teri Hoerster. "They played really hard, they were in the matches emotionally, Andrews just has some good players."

Snyder standout Christina Gonzales took a straight-set 6-3, 6-0 win over Shawn Leeper, and Amy Herrera knocked off Andrews' Sky Smartt, 6-1, 7-6 (10-8) in girls' singles.

Herrera and Gonzales teamed up for a 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 win in the tops girls' doubles match, while Michelle Spencer and Katie Thornton gave SHS its other doubles win in girls' play by outlasting Audra Lindsey and Kristi Hudson 6-7 (4-7), 7-6 (7-4), 6-3.

In boys' singles, Snyder's Kevin Jones took Reo Pugao to three sets before falling 5-7, 6-4, 4-6, and Greg Jones was a split-set loser to AHS' Wade Findley, 7-6 (8-6), 6-7 (3-7), 4-6.

Tracey Chavez and Jones combined for a 9-8 (7-4) decision over Brent Henager and Pugao, and Salvador Aguirre and John Purcell dropped Andrews' Mitch Gray and Findley in boys' doubles.

Snyder will see its next varsity action at the Feb. 18-19 West Texas Championships in San Angelo.

8th grade B tops S'water

D.J. Garcia scored 16 points and John Border added 11 as Snyder's eighth grade B team handed Sweetwater a 35-24 cage loss Thursday night.

Snyder B moves to 3-6 on the season with the victory.

In Thursday's nightcap, Snyder fell to the Colts, 50-44, in spite of Kyle Beck's 13 points and 10 from Nathan Jones.

Both teams will be in action Feb. 10 at Lamesa.

The B squad will host the Snyder B tournament, a four-team round-robin event, today and Saturday.

Snyder eighth graders will take on Colorado City today at 6:30 p.m. at SHS. Snyder's seventh grade B team will play C-City at 6:30 p.m. at the junior high.

7th B posts 30-25 victory

Snyder seventh grade B, behind a 12-point effort from Jim Collins, dropped Sweetwater 30-25 in a Thursday night cage contest at Travis Gym.

Aaron Stansell added six points and Tyler Warren contributed five in the Snyder win.

The Tiger A squad was downed by the Colts in the late game, 57-39, in spite of 14 from Sam Bedell and Cory Mandrell's 10.

Snyder's seventh grade B will face Colorado City today at 6:30 at SJHS in the opening round of the Snyder B Tournament.

Ira JH girls trim W'brook

Ira's junior high girls moved to 12-3 on the season and within one game of the District 21-A title with a 41-40 win over Westbrook Thursday.

Terri Robinson scored 14 points and Olga Juarez added 12 in the Lady Bulldogs' win.

The Ira boys, led by 12 from Todd Collom, were downed by Westbrook, 66-30, in the nightcap.

CUBS to sign up Saturday

The final session of registration for Tiger Creating Unbelievable Basketball Skills (CUBS) will be held Saturday from noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Snyder High School gym.

SHS girls' coach Steve Qualls will be the instructor for the group, which will consist of boys and girls in kindergarten, first and second grades.

The CUBS will develop basketball ball-handling skills, which will help prepare young players for Little Dribblers, and will perform choreographed routines at halftime of area basketball games.

Registration is $30 and includes a T-shirt and a basketball.

Watch out for that horse

By Phillip Alder

The professional golfer Dave Stockton observed: "It's always hard to sleep when you've got a big early lead. You just lie there and smile at the ceiling all night."

This can happen in a bridge deal too. Sometimes you receive a friendly lead that gives you a bonus trick. But make sure you benefit from your good fortune, ending with a birdie, not a par. Watch out for the bunkers still on the course.

North plunged straight into three no-trump, as would we all. Luckily, West led a spade, not a heart. How should South have continued from there?

South won the first trick with the spade queen, crossed to dummy with a club and took the diamond finesse. Seeing no alternative, West won with the king and switched to the heart three. East won with the ace and correctly returned a heart. (If West had wanted a spade back, he would have led a high heart, not his fourth-highest.) The defenders therefore took six tricks.

At trick one, South had visions of overtricks, having mentally placed East with the diamond king. However, he should have been wondering what to do if West had the key king. To try to discourage a heart switch, South should have won the first trick with the spade ace.

Then, after a club to the dummy and a losing diamond finesse, what will West do? Placing his partner with the spade queen, he is bound to continue with a low spade. South wins with the queen he is known not to have and claims 11 tricks. And, if he is feeling fiendish, South will cast a quick eye in West's direction to see the look on his face.

Space shuttle, Discovery...

Russian astronaut works on experiments

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The first Russian to fly aboard a U.S. shuttle and his American crewmates collected bodily fluids for medical research today and prepared the spaceship's robot arm for a satellite release Saturday.

Discovery lifted off at sunrise Thursday on an eight-day flight that was heralded as the dawning of a new post-Cold War space age. The flight is a prelude to a shared space station and possibly a joint trip to Mars.

The former Space Race rivals are cooperating in a manned mission for the first time since the 1975 Apollo-Soyuz docking.

Today, the crew members took blood, urine and saliva samples and drank a solution of water and bromide for studies of how spaceflight affects the body's metabolism.

They also checked out Discovery's 50-foot robot arm by maneuvering it around the open cargo bay. NASA said the arm was in good shape. It will be used Saturday to release a research satellite that could someday lead to new manufacturing processes in space.

The satellite, a stainless-steel disk 12 feet in diameter, will be used to grow high-quality semiconductor films in the ultra-pure vacuum it creates in its wake as it hurtles through space. The crew will use the robot arm to pick up the satellite two days later.

Another of the experiments aboard the shuttle involves 12 rats. Half were treated before launch with a drug to stimulate their immune systems; the others got a placebo.

Scientists want to know whether the drug, Interleukin-2, can counteract the slowing of immune functions caused by the weightlessness of space.

Cosmonaut Sergei Krikalev caught a glimpse of his homeland as Discovery passed more than 200 miles overhead. "We just had a great view of St. Petersburg, Sergei's hometown," shuttle pilot Kenneth Reightler said.

Dairy farmers and activists spill milk

by The Associated Press

Dairy farmers and consumer activists around the country spilled milk in the streets to protest a genetically engineered hormone that makes cows give more milk. Opponents also took their fight to the courts and to Statehouses.

The drug, bovine growth hormone, or BGH, goes on sale today. It is made by Monsanto Co.

The Food and Drug Administration, the American Medical Association and the National Institutes of Health have all pronounced BGH safe, but many people aren't convinced, and some dairy farmers worry people will stop drinking their milk. Other farmers worry that more milk will mean lower prices for them.

"We don't need the extra milk, and consumer reaction to the added hormones is quite high," said Dan Cummings, a dairy farmer in Otisco, N.Y.

The hormone represents the first use of genetic engineering on living creatures to produce a food.

Cows produce the hormone naturally. But Monsanto has developed a chemical equivalent that can be regularly injected into cows to boost their milk production by more than 10 percent. The FDA approved it after nine years of study.

Supporters say it will mean greater efficiency for all farmers. And Donald De Jong, president of the Texas Association of Dairymen, predicted consumers will see lower prices over the next three or four years.

"It is unfortunate that the opponents of this technology have irresponsibly sought to undermine public confidence in the safety of the milk supply," Monsanto spokesman Tom McDermott said.

Nevertheless, it's under fire around the country.

"We just don't have evidence if it's safe or not," Pamela Teisler of the Pure Food Campaign said at a New York City demonstration where people dumped milk. Similar protests were held in Chicago, Atlanta, Minneapolis, Washington and other cities.

"You can't tell your children, 'Don't do drugs,' and give them BGH," said Darcy Kemnitz, who demonstrated in Madison, Wis.

In Wisconsin, opponents went to federal court to halt its production. In Wisconsin and Vermont, two of the largest dairy producers, lawmakers considered proposals to notify the public which producers use BGH.

Kerrigan plotters called 'amateurs'

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — About the only person who used his head in the scheme to attack Nancy Kerrigan was hit man Shane Stant. Trapped by a chained exit door at the ice arena where he had just whacked Kerrigan in the knee, he escaped by butting his way through a plexiglass window.

For a conspiracy that rocked the world of international sports, the plotters turned out to be a remarkably hapless and inept band of amateurs.

They made phone calls from their own homes. Stayed in motels under their own names. Used their own credit cards. Astonishingly, recorded their plotting on tape.

For a brief time, while investigators and reporters feverishly speculated that the attacker might be a deranged Kerrigan fan, the three men who carried out the attack gloated over the riches they felt certain would come their way.

"They did it ... for the rewards that would follow by being the world bodyguard service to the stars," said Ron Hoevet, the lawyer for Tonya Harding's former husband, Jeff Gillooly.

Gillooly, for his part, was primarily motivated by outrage at the low scores awarded Harding at a skating event in Japan in December and his conviction that the U.S. Figure Skating Association favored Kerrigan, according to his statements to officials.

All four men charged in the case have confessed to their parts in the crime. Gillooly, who pleaded guilty to racketeering, said Harding was in on it from the start. Harding insisted she learned of the plot only after she returned from her victory in the U.S. championships in Detroit, where Kerrigan was assaulted just six weeks before the Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway.

A look at Gillooly's henchmen, called "the three stooges" by District Attorney Michael Schrunk:

— Shawn Eckardt, Gillooly's 310-pound friend, who calls himself a bodyguard and makes outlandish claims about his experience in unconventional warfare and surveillance. According to his boasts, Eckardt, now 26, would have been 16 when he was supposedly supervising protection activities for a Swiss corporation by training agents in counterterrorism and coordinating intelligence.

— Derrick Smith, a friend and former business partner of Eckardt, was contacted to carry out the plot hatched by Eckardt and Gillooly, according to court documents. Eckardt told Gillooly he could trust Smith because Eckardt had previously bought marijuana from him.

— Shane Stant, an Arizona bodybuilder and former football player hired by Smith, his uncle, to attack Kerrigan. He told authorities he bought the collapsing baton used in the assault at a store called Spy Headquarters in Mesa, Ariz., near his home. At his first meeting with fellow plotters, Gillooly recalled, Stant wore "a hat, black Australian outback coat and black fingerless gloves" — and never removed them.

Smith agreed to do the job because Eckardt convinced him and his nephew that frightened skaters would sign them to hefty contracts as bodyguards after Kerrigan was attacked, Gillooly said.

"We're going to make a lot of money. We're going to make a lot of money," Gillooly recalled Eckardt saying before the two men hugged at the end of one of their planning sessions.

The plotters were so sure of their plan, which eventually cost less than $5,000 to execute, that they gave Gillooly a money-back guarantee and promised to have cost proposals ready for the bodyguard work they were certain to win from the figure skating association, Gillooly said.

From the outset, the plan went awry. Stant first flew to Boston to stalk Kerrigan. He checked into the Logan Airport Hilton under his own name Dec. 28 but couldn't rent a car for two days because his sole credit card, for an account shared with his girlfriend, carried only her name and signature.

By then, Stant knew Kerrigan was practicing at the Tony Kent Arena on Cape Cod, and checked into a second hotel about 12 miles away. Despite repeated visits to the rink, he never saw Kerrigan on the ice. On Jan. 4, someone at the arena told him Kerrigan had already left for Detroit.

Stant tried to buy a train ticket but learned no trains were going to Detroit. So he boarded a bus. It took 29 hours.

According to Gillooly, Stant had run out of money in Boston and had nothing to eat on the bus trip. As Gillooly tells it, he and Eckardt discussed what to do while the big bodyguard's mother made fudge.

Senate confirms Perry

To head U.S. defense forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — The view new Defense Secretary William Perry gets today from his Pentagon office takes in a shrinking military force and an array of regional threats simmering on three continents.

With almost unprecedented speed, the Senate on Thursday unanimously confirmed Perry as the nation's 19th defense secretary, a job that dates back to the early Cold War years after World War II. Shortly after the Senate vote, Perry took the oath at the Pentagon.

Although the Soviet threat is gone, the swift elevation of Perry from his No. 2 position at the Pentagon reflected apprehension among lawmakers about leaving the Pentagon rudderless for too long.

Former Defense Secretary Les Aspin announced his departure two months ago, and Clinton's first choice to succeed Aspin, Adm. Bobby Inman, dropped out of the running last month saying he was the victim of unfair press attacks.

"It's essential and in the interest of national defense to fill this position quickly," Sen. John Warner, R-Va., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said prior to the 97-0 vote.

Despite concerns about the administration's new regulations on gays in the military, Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., said Republicans "came to the unanimous conclusion that it's too important a position to be held up."

Obituaries

James Durham

1906-1994

BROWNFIELD — Services are set for 11 a.m. Saturday in the First Baptist Church for James Durham, 87, who died Wednesday in South Plains Nursing Center. Burial will follow in the Terry County Memorial Cemetery.

Born in Clairemont, he was reared and attended school there. He married Bertha Ethridge on Dec. 23, 1929 in Snyder.

The couple moved to Brownfield in 1946 and he farmed until 1969. He then worked for the Brownfield News for 18 years, retiring in 1987. He was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Bertha Durham of Brownfield; two daughters, Patty Goldston of Brownfield and Vada Beth Mason of Morton; a son, James Durham of Orange; a sister, Margaret Capps of Edmonton, Alberta; 12 grandchildren; and 22 great-grandchildren.

Martha Nalls

1920-1994

BIG SPRING — A memorial service is set for 2 p.m. Saturday in the College Heights Christian Church for Martha "Dutchie" Nalls, 73, who died Wednesday in a Big Spring nursing home.

The former owner of A-1 Lock and Key Shop, Mrs. Nalls was the sister of Juanita Kizer of Snyder.

Born in Novice, Mrs. Nalls had lived in Big Spring most of her life. She assisted her late husband, Lloyd Nalls, in his Shrine work with the Crippled Children's Hospital and Burn Center. She was a member of the College Heights Christian Church. She was also preceded in death by her first husband, Homer Burns.

Survivors include one son, Dennis Burns of Big Spring; two daughters, Phoebe Trammell of Big Spring and Denise Jackson of Vealmoor; three step-sons, Scott Nalls of San Angelo, Coleman Nalls of Farmington, N.M., and Robb Nalls of San Antonio; three other sisters, Coy Fitzgerald of Big Spring, Janie Bardine of Stockton, Calif., and Pearl Hair of Ardmore, Ala.; and five grandchildren.

Election school set

In order to assist election judges and clerks, an election school will be held in Room 109 at Snyder High School from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 on Monday.

The program, presented by the Secretary of State's office, will be a live satellite broadcast. Those attending will be able to call in questions through a toll-free, telephone talk-back system.

The program will assist judges and clerks in preparing for the March primaries and the November general election, as well as the May school and college board elections and city council election.

The general public is also invited.

The application period will close on April 4 and applications will be reviewed by the school board April 11. The first series of interviews are to be conducted April 14-16, according to a timetable established by the consulting firm and the board.

Moseley's replacement is to be named on April 28.

Officers note mishap, arrests

Local peace officers made six arrests Thursday and early this morning, including five on drinking-related charges.

Officers also worked a one-vehicle accident in which a woman was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room for treatment.

Eighteen-year-old Stephanie Hall of 700 37th St. was treated for multiple abrasions to the thigh and knee area suffered when she was struck by a vehicle she had been driving. According to the report, she was exiting a 1990 Chevrolet pickup with her 19-month-old child at the Fieldcrest Apartments when the accident occurred shortly after noon Thursday. She apparently did not have the parking brake engaged. The vehicle rolled backward and she was struck by the driver's side door. The baby, a boy, was not injured. The pickup also struck a light pole owned by TU Electric.

Hall was released after being treated at the emergency room.

Police arrested a 17-year-old woman at 4:11 p.m. at 28th Street and Avenue M for disorderly conduct, language.

At 11:49 p.m. Thursday, officers arrested a 49-year-old man at Town & Country for public intoxictation.

A 35-year-old woman was arrested for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated in the 1400 block of U.S. Highway 84 at 12:26 a.m. today.

At 12:54 this morning, officers arrested three people in the Pro Parts parking lot. Taken into custody were a 19-year-old man for public intoxication, a 19-year-old woman for public intoxication and a 28-year-old man for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated and revocation of probation.

Killer granted repreive

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A U.S. Supreme Court decision allowed condemned killer Orien Cecil Joiner to be spared from an early morning trip today to the Texas death chamber for hacking two Lubbock women to death more than seven years ago.

Joiner, 44, was spared by Justice Antonin Scalia about eight hours before he was to receive lethal injection. Scalia said he wanted the full court to hear the ex-truck driver's appeal.

Joiner faces death for the gruesome 1986 murders of Carol Lynnette Huckabee, 26, and Eva Marie DeForest, 29.

The two women who shared a Lubbock apartment were stabbed repeatedly in the Dec. 17, 1986, assault. Ms. DeForest alone had some 41 stab wounds, was beaten and had her throat slashed. A broken knife blade was left in her chest. Ms. Huckabee was stabbed in the chest, back and face and also had her throat cut. One of the women also was raped.

Death penalty opponents said Joiner had no attorney and asked the federal appeals courts for a reprieve so a lawyer could be appointed and have time to get familiar with the case.

Snyder baby needs platelet donations

Anyone interested in making a platelet donation for an eight-month old Snyder girl is asked to come to Cogdell Memorial Hospital lab for a pre-screening draw.

There is no charge for this service, which is being held Monday through Friday before 1 p.m. Cogdell is providing the screening as a community service in conjunction with United Blood Services.

Anyone who is accepted as a donor must be willing to go to Lubbock for the actual donation. An appointment for the donation will be made.

Cogdell technicians said blood type does not matter; however, anyone who has a cold, flu or any other illness is not eligible.

The child, Macie, is the daughter of Noah and Tammi Bilano of Snyder. She has a brain stem tumor and is in severe need of platelets.

Indian Men's Love 'Secrets' Should Come As No Surprise

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I recall reading several letters in your column some time ago (perhaps four or five years) in which you said Native American Indian men were exceptionally good lovers.

This subject is very interesting to me. I would appreciate it if you would kindly print those letters again.

Thanking you in advance, I am signing my name, but if this is printed in your column, please sign it ...

DEAR L.R.: The column to which you refer has had two "curtain calls" to date, but here it is again:

DEAR ABBY: When "Ed in East Illinois" asked you if it was true that Indian men were superior to white men in the art of lovemaking, you suggested that he contact either the Bureau of Indian Affairs or the American Indian Movement.

Since I am the executive director of the American Indian Movement, I feel it is my duty to respond.

For the Indian man, "love" does not begin when the lights go out or when pot or liquor is consumed, and it is not confined to the bedroom or any other hidden place.

The way the Indian man treats his wife throughout their marriage is the key to making him a superior lover. His daily acts of kindness, consideration and respect for her demonstrate his love.

While we recognize that the sex act may send a man's mind afloat for a few fleeting moments, it is but a minute part of the overall act of love.

The above code of behavior, plus the American Indian's respect for women, have been passed on from father to son.

I personally have 15 children and I am an Objibway Indian.

DENNIS J. BANKS

DEAR ABBY: May I answer "Ed in East Illinois," who asked: "Is it true that closely guarded tribal secrets on how to please a woman are passed from father to son, making Indians better lovers than white men?"

First the white men took all the Indian's land and some of his women. Now they want the Indian's "love secrets," too. I say, "No way!" The Indian needs something to call his own.

HALF-BLOODED INDIAN

DEAR ABBY: Now I know why the Lone Ranger never got the girl. They all ended up with Jay Silverheels, that good-looking Indian who played "Tonto" in the movies.

SEMINOLE IN FLORIDA

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Ed": Yes, there are many closely guarded Indian lovemaking tricks. You will notice that divorce is very rare among Indians. That's because they know how to treat their women.

Secrets like the "Apache Grip" and the "Kickapoo Twist" will never be sold or given away by a true Indian.

MIKE WHITEFEATHER, SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Ed in Illinois": I have lived with a Mandan Indian for five years, and I wouldn't trade him for five white lovers. He is the greatest!

LINDA IN MARYLAND

DEAR ABBY: I am one-half Indian and have had two Indian squaws, who both ran off with white men.

Apparently, the "closely guarded secrets" of lovemaking from the Indian side of my family were not passed on to me.

Sharp says auditors to count all beds

AUSTIN (AP) — State auditors are going to prison to determine just how many empty state prison beds might be put to use without violating court orders and the constitution.

Finding that number should take five to six weeks, Sharp said.

"We're simply trying to answer the questions that folks have," Sharp said Thursday. "How many (empty beds) are out there? What would it take to use them?"

Sharp acknowledged that "there is a wide difference of opinion" on whether any of the empty prison beds could be used to help alleviate severe overcrowding in county jails. More than 20,000 state inmates are being held in the jails awaiting transfer to state prisons.

Last week, the Houston Chronicle reported that Sharp's office had determined that as many as 6,000 state prison beds are empty.

Prison system officials said that's true. However, they also said that the beds can't be filled because of a federal court settlement in which the state agreed not to use them.

In the negotiated settlement to a 20-year inmate rights lawsuit, the state agreed to limit the population of some prison units and to increase the population of others only if showers, dining halls, medical and other support facilities were added.

Sharp said Thursday that it appears unlikely many of the beds could be put to immediate use.

He and his staff said some prisons may require renovation, construction of more facilities and additional expenses before using any empty beds.

"No one is saying, I think, that you can go in and do something immediately without this study," Sharp said.

"There is a wide difference of opinion. You're not going to settle that difference of opinion until you go in bed-by-bed, and count as the governor has instructed us to do," he said.

A lawyer for counties that have sued the state over being forced to hold its prisoners said such an accounting is long overdue.

"This should have been done a long time ago," said attorney Margo Frasier, a former county jail superintendent.

"Go out there bed by bed by [illegible] ure out once and for all whether you can use these beds, how many of these beds you can use, how much it's going to cost and get on with it," she said.

Ms. Frasier said that perhaps 4,000 of the beds could be used. But even 1,000 extra beds would help ease county jail crowding, she said.

"While 1,000 beds may not seem like much in the scheme of things, to a sheriff — if they get to send, Dallas County, 150 or Harris (County) 200 for every 1,000 beds — that does make an impact," she said.

Sarpalius elected subcommitte head

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Congressman Bill Sarpalius has been named chairman of a House agriculture subcommittee that oversees farm commodities.

The Amarillo Democrat was elected Thursday to the chairmanship by a unanimous vote of the full House Agriculture Committee.

"I am extremely excited to have this opportunity to better serve my constituents as well as agriculture throughout the United States," Sarpalius said.

His panel deals with issues concerning commodities such as cotton, wheat, corn, feed grains, rice and soybeans. His ascension to a chairmanship resulted from a shuffle on the full committee prompted by the retirement in December of Oklahoma Democrat Glenn English.

Sarpalius becomes the fourth Texan with a leadership position on the committee, which is chaired by South Texas Democrat Kika de la Garza. Stamford Democrat Charles Stenholm chairs the subcommittee that oversees operations of the U.S. Department of Agriculture; and Lubbock Rep. Larry Combest is ranking Republican on a subcommittee overseeing credit, environmental and rural development matters.

Task force cracks down on network of marijuana

DALLAS (AP) — Eight people have been arrested on charges of operating a major marijuana distribution network from Dallas to Michigan, Tenn., the U.S. Attorney's office said.

Authorities said the arrests came out of an 18-month investigation into the activities of Reymundo Gonzales, Jr., whose organization allegedly distributed about 10 tons of marijuana from November 1991 to December 1993.

Authorities said Thursday that Gonzales' organization packed the marijuana in boxes of produce and transported them by truck to the Farmer's Market in Dallas.

The marijuana would then be transferred to other vehicles and delivered to customers in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and Tennessee, officials said.

The Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force, which includes the Texas Department of Public Safety, the Dallas County Sheriff's Office and the Dallas County District Attorney's Office, led the investigation.

Pair seeking fresh start loses U-Haul, cats

DALLAS (AP) — So far, it's been a bad move.

Billy Johnson and Carolyn Barrentine left Florida recently, in part to get away from crime. But their van full of belongings — and two cats — was stolen this week from a northeast Dallas church parking lot.

"I knew it was going to be a new start," Johnson said Wednesday. "But this is ridiculous. I just can't believe it."

Dallas police found the empty truck Tuesday. Also gone was Ms. Barrentine's beloved cats, 3-year-old Buster and 8-year-old Stephanie.

"The stuff I can replace," Ms. Barrentine said. "I'm just worried about the cats, because they're both inside cats, fixed and declawed. They've never been outside so they don't know how to take care of themselves.

"They're like my children," she said. "They are my children."

Ms. Barrentine, 34, and Johnson, 28, hit town Saturday with their van full of furniture and personal belongings. They had been living in Pompano Beach, Fla., since March.

They had parked the truck at Fellowship Bible Church next to the Meadowlark Condominiums where they were staying with a friend until their own Dallas apartment was expected to be ready later this month.

Ms. Barrentine said she was keeping the cats in the truck because their host was allergic. She took off their collars and tags so they wouldn't snag on anything.

PROPHECY FROM THE JAILHOUSE

AS MOST PROPHETS, JEREMIAH AROUSED THE ANGER OF HIS KING, CONCERNING THEIR ALLIES. THE PROPHET TRADITIONALLY LOOKED TO GOD, AND THE KING USUALLY TO EGYPT OR BABYLON...NEVER THE TWAIN SHALL MEET! IN FACT SO INCENSED WAS HE THAT THE KING PUT JEREMIAH INTO JAIL. EVEN SO THIS DID NOT STOP HIM FROM PROPHESYING. HE CALLED FOR HIS FRIEND BARUCH THE SCRIBE AND IN THE CONFINES OF THE DUNGEON DICTATED HIS PROPHECY WHICH BARUCH INSCRIBED ON LEATHER SCROLLS. JEREMIAH IS PROBABLY THE ONLY BOOK IN THE BIBLE WHICH ACTUALLY COMES TO US FROM BEHIND BARS.
