

Mixups Change Court House Outlook

A misunderstanding in an amount of approximately $300,000 has thrown the Commissioners Court into confusion and may have put a screeching halt to any plans to renovate or rebuild the Red River County Courthouse.

All those involved admit that there is no shortage of public funds and that the error, or whatever, came about when County Auditor Maurice (Goobar) Isbell's budget for 1985, as approved by the Court, divided far less income into the Road and Bridge Funds than the four Commissioners had anticipated.

Instead, the monies were allocated to the Genral Fund, precipitating extended discussions and public meetings on whether to spend the surplus reserve fund on a renovation of the Courthouse or build a new one and abandon the present structure.

As a matter of fact, in one meeting, the Court Judge felt compelled to defend himself against "hoarding" money in a hidden account which could be used for the Courthouse work.

As a matter of fact, the funds available will probably be only some $160,000, not nearly enough for serious discussions on the Courthouse future on a cash-as-you-go basis.

In a special emergency meeting Friday afternoon, all Commissioners promptly voted to take the additional funds back for their operating account with County Judge Wm. S. (Scotty) Whiteman voting to leave the money in the General Fund.

This would give the four Commissioners a total of $1,316,000 for the precinct operations, in contrast to the $1,024,000 originally budgeted.

The entire misunderstanding was not an amicable one, with the Judge insisting that the funds should remain allocated in the budget, originally approved by the entire Court on a motion of Commissioner H.D. Pirtle and seconded by Jackie Barton.

However, the Commissioners insisted they had been misinformed and that they had expected to receive some $330,000 in funding each rather than the $256,000 which they had approved in the budget.

Isbell emphasized that there is no shortage of money but simply a misunderstanding as to how the funds were to be divided among the General and Road and Bridge Accounts.

The auditor said he had apparently made the division in a manner not understood nor anticipated by the Road Commissioners but that since there was no actual loss of income he was not overly concerned.

However, most of those involved agree that such a misunderstanding came at a most inopportune time, perhaps the worst in several years.

The Judge was especially incensed at what he said was a delay in advising him of the discrepancy.

County Treasurer Donna Townes Griffin said she had discovered the problem on March 6 and properly reported it to Isbell, who mentined it to Pirtle on March 8.

The County Judge said he was not informed until March 26 and added that he had received no satisfactory explanation as to the delay yet.

"My personal opinion is that the money should be left in the General Fund where it was placed in the budget unanimously passed by the Court," Judge Whiteman said. "The Commissioners were allocated exactly what they requested, about $180,000 each plus an additional $76,000 each for motorgraders and I feel this was sufficient."

Nonetheless, the miscalculation was certainly, as Judge Whiteman said, "opened a can of worms, because the public has been advised of an excess of funds and the Commissioners Court has gone so far in planning for the Courthouse."

Actually, the misunderstanding led directly to involving the Court in a massive brouha, dividing the county into two camps: those who favored renovating the present Courthouse for limited use and building an annex, and those who wanted to build a new Courthouse and close and abandon the present historic structure.

Rightly or wrongly, a large segment of the citizens who favored preservation received the idea that at least some members of Court favored abandonment, bringing down a storm of protests, petitions, surveys and such.

Intensifying the division was the fact that those on the Court favoring a complete new Courthouse, backed by knowledge of the nearly half million surplus, were operating from a position of strength.

Supporters of preservation feared, with or without probable cause, that the Court might use such funds and contract the new building without recourse to a vote of the people, inasmuch as a tax increase might not have been needed.

Indeed, members of the Court did contact builders who have visited the site, made cost estimates, and a plan for a proposed new structure has been posted in the Courthouse for a couple of weeks or so.

However, this controversy is apparently over for at least the time being, since there is considerable difference in a $167,000 in hand and a $457,000 bird somewhere out there in the bush of misunderstanding.

Stalking the Wild and Elusive Turtle In East Texas could well be the title of this week's column.

Color photography, and, most specifically, wildlife photography, is my major hobby.

And what has turned into the biggest challenge of my so-called career? The turtle, of all things!

I have pictures of coyotes, quite close up...likewise there is a photo of a jack rabbit that was taken within five feet of the booger. Hummingbirds, those fast aerial artists, frozen forever by my trusty lens! In the album are pictures of hawks flying, sitting and diving, cotton tail rabbits hopping, even a buck deer in full flight. Squirrels, fast as they are, have fallen prey to my faithful Minolta...but the turtle remains on the uncaptured list.

The turtles reside in the numerous pools at our house. They sun themselves on logs and other handy objects.

They sun themselves from about 9 in the morning until just after noon, when they retreat into the cool mud.

For two weeks now I have been stalking them. I have resorted to crawling slowly through the grass, taking one step every ten seconds or so, and trying to wait until they decide to come up for their morning sun bath...all to absolutely no effect!

When driving by in a vehicle they continue to sun blissfully. Stop that vehicle and they slide off into the water so fast that it makes the eye wonder if turtle ever really existed!

This is beginning to be a little frustrating. I find myself trying to tell myself that I don't really want a picture of a dumb old turtle anyway.

But, being all too human, the more the turtles evade me, the more I want the picture.

Parent Drug Awareness Night Set In Bogata

Families In Action, a group of parents concerned about drug and alcohol abuse of our youth in our community will be presenting a Parent Drug Awareness Night, April 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the Rivercrest High School Auditorium. Janet Goss, spokeswoman for Texans War on Drugs will have a presentation on Community effort to stop drug and alcohol abuse.

Today 100% of all kids in Texas schools will have to make a decision on whether or not to use marijuana, alcohol or other drugs.

Drug availability, even to elementary age children, is a fact of life.

Either parents get involved to influence children, or that power goes over to the kids who constitute your child's peer group. Parents can be powerful but they have to take action.

There is a problem in our community with drugs and alcohol. We as parents need to learn to be aware so we can help our children.

Refreshments will be served following the program.

Everyone is urged to attend. For more information call Pam Beers at 632-5940.

Bogata Homecoming '85, Success

Bogata Homecoming '85 is gone, but not forgotten. It was a great success with a record attendance and much enthusiasm. Class reunions held throughout the day created much activity and excitement as former classmates met, recalled their school days, and compared notes on what time and age had done to each one.

The meal at the cafeteria was prepared and served by Mrs. Clarice Vaughan and her staff and was delicious. They served 260 this year as compared to 192 last year.

Travis Hale presented many of the former football players and cheerleaders. The Junior High cheerleaders did an excellent job as they led the group in some spirited yells. The school song was sung by the congregation accompanied by Mrs. Peggy Graham on the piano.

Plans are now underway for Homecoming '86 with Mollie Williams as the president and Tommie Pirtle as assistant.

A committee on history and archives was appointed to collect and record the history of Bogata High School. A motion was also made to find some way to better preserve and exhibit the senior pictures.

Our thanks to each one who helped in any way with the homecoming activities. There were many who worked willingly to make this year's homecoming a memorable occasion. We are looking forward to Homecoming '86 which will be April 12, 1986.

Mark your calendar now. Bogata Homecoming, April 12, 1986.

Local Sales Tax Figures Show

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Wednesday sent checks totaling $48.9 million in local tax payments to the 1,003 cities that levy the one-percent sales tax.

Bullock cautioned against attempts to draw conclusions about the Texas economy based on one month's rebate figure but added the April payments "are in line with our projections for the state."

Locally, Blossom received a check in the amount of $900.44, for a 5.84 percent increase over last year's total to date of $4,089.09.

Deport received no payment this period, bringing the 1985 payments to date of $2,759.33, marking a 6.43 percent decrease.

Bogata received payment of $1,025.88, bringing 1985 payments to total $7,273.97, for a 13.81 percent increase over 1984.

Talco received a payment of $2,226.20, compared to a payment of $2,097.60 this time last year, bringing the 1985 payments to total $7,563.41 for an 11.91 percent decrease.

Hello,
Another Bogata school homecoming is past history and I would like to thank you and your staff for all the help you gave toward helping to reach so many people.

The open house we had in our home was well attended and we had lots and lots of fun.

Thanks again for your help.

To The Editor:

Thanks in large part to the contributors who were reminded of the Bogata Cemetery's continuing need by the News, we were able to maintain grounds of the Cemetery in 1984. This year we are once again falling behind in collecting the funds we need to weed, mow and keep the grounds tidy.

Would you please remind your readers that we depend on their contributions? Several visitors to Bogata during the recent Homecoming remembered to give, and there are doubtless others, both here and out of town, who would like to help.

With thanks to the News for its support,
Sincerely,

Sam And The $100 Bill

By Wm. C. Barnard

Back in the 1920's the Town Mothers of Deport didn't allow dancing in their homes. The young people of the community had many parties, but no dances. Occasionally a school party with dancing would be held in the Coliseum in Paris, but never in Deport. Sometimes two or three couples could dance in a home if the curtains were drawn and the volume on the record player was turned down real low, but there was no good time, hand clapping, loud fiddling and guitar playing. Out on the prairie the Mothers were more tolerant. Almost every forty acres was occupied by a farm family, and many of these people enjoyed dancing, both square and round.

Sam Bryson was a fiddler and played for many of these parties. Usually he would sit in a doorway between two rooms from which some of the furniture had been removed or rearranged to make two dancing areas. The male dancers would pay Sam a dime for each set that they danced.

One Saturday night everyone was having a good time to Sam's music and when it came time to pay, one of the boys offered to pay with a one hundred dollar bill. There wasn't a hundred dollars in change in the whole party. Sam couldn't break the bill, so the boy danced all evening free.

The next weekend at another party the boy was back with his big bill, and again danced free. In a few weeks there was another party and both Sam and the big money man were there.

This time when the $100 was presented in payment, Sam made change in nickels and dimes. That ended the difficulty with big money.

Hornflies Showing Resistance To Insecticide

Recent research and demonstrations conducted by personnel of the USDA Livestock Insects Lab at Kerrville and entomologists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service indicate that horn flies in East and Central Texas are becoming resistant to the pyrethroid insecticides used in ear tags. Generally, horn fly resistance has not been a problem in western and southern areas of the state. According to Dr. James Robinson, entomologist, the situation is causing many cattlemen to return to more traditional methods of controlling horn flies.

In a recent meeting of county Extension agents and entomologists in East Texas, most agents reported that where the insecticide impregnated ear tags had been used on herds for several years, control of horn flies was no longer being obtained. However, in herds where the tags had not been previously used, good results were reported last year. The insecticide impregnated ear tags continue to give good control of ear ticks, both the spinose ear tick and the Gulf Coast tick. Extension agents and specialists agree that each herd is probably a different situation and that the producer must look at the past history of horn fly control before making a firm decision on the 1985 control program.

Last summer and fall, Dr. John A. Miller, agricultural engineer, and Charley Schmidt, entomologist with the USDA Livestock Insects Lab, worked with Extension entomologists and county agents in several areas of Texas to learn just how resistant horn flies were becoming to the insecticide impregnated ear tags. Herds were identified where insecticide impregnated ear tags had been used for several years and resistance was apparently taking place. After varying lengths of time, flies were collected from the herds and laboratory tested for resistance to different levels of insecticides. As suspected, the flies in certain herds were showing resistance to the insecticide.

Chemical companies are working on the development of ear tags which dispense phosphate type insecticides to combat the pyrethroid resistance problem. Some of these tags are currently on the market. However, their effectiveness is not known at this time. Therefore, alternate control programs must be followed for adequate control, Robinson concludes, especially in herds where the insecticide impregnated ear tags have been used for several years.

here may help anyone considering this, and not knowing what to do, or if they can help. Manicure, treatment and care of hands and fingernails. Taking ice to the rooms of the residents. Teaching hygiene. Helping bed patients exercise. Walking patients around in their wheel chairs. Read their mail and write letters for them. Read stories to them, the newspaper, etc. Play dominoes, checkers, games with them, work crossword puzzles. Clean their closets and arrange their clothes for them. Mend clothing. Play the piano. The items above were discussed at Deport Nursing Home recently.

And remember, for any resident, patient or shut-in at home, it means a beautiful bright spot in a dreary, lonely day, no matter if the sun is shining, or rain, or winter or summer.

Congressman Hall Receives Veterans Award

Congressman Sam B. Hall, Jr. was recently selected by the National Association of State Directors of Veterans Affairs to receive the special President's Award for 1985.

In an impressive ceremony at Washington's prestigious Touchdown Club Congressman Hall was cited by the immediate past president of the veterans organization, Aubrey Bullard of Texas, for his work on behalf of America's veterans.

The annual award is given to a Member of Congress who has exhibited concern for veterans by promoting veterans programs, sponsoring and supporting veterans legislation, and demonstrating a true understanding of the concerns of veterans and their families," according to a statement by the sponsoring organization.

Congressman Hall is a member of the House Veterans Affairs Committee. He serves on the Compensation, Pension, and Insurance Subcommittee and the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations. He has also served as Chairman of the Compensation panel.

Following his acceptance of the award, Congressman Hall praised America's veterans and pledged to continue his efforts to strengthen veterans programs.

He told the group of approximately 200 from throughout the United States who attended the award ceremony of a commitment he made to the late Congressman Olin "Tiger" Teague of Texas to become a member of the Veterans Affairs Committee. Congressman Teague served for a number of years as Chairman of the Committee.

"When I first ran for Congress, my friend and fellow Texas, Tiger Teague, called and asked me to request the Veterans Affairs Committee as one of my committee assignments. Tiger Teague was one of the greatest friends the American veteran ever had, and I considered it a great honor to serve on the Committee that he had once chaired," Congressman Hall said.

Congressman Hall recently took part in hearings on the budget for the Veterans Administration for the fiscal year 1986. He expressed opposition to proposals by the Office of Management and Budget to cut back on some VA programs.

Wheat Disease Situation Stable

The leaf rust situation in Lamar County wheat was stable on Monday afternoon when several fields were checked. The rust spore count remains low at the spore trap located at Petty. However, the situation remains explosive and farmers are encouraged to check their fields every two days for signs of rust.

The spore count in Hunt County reached 130 spores per day on March 24 and 110 at Ellis County on the 23rd. At Uvalde the count reached 140 on March 31.

The rain helped matters by washing off the spores from the plant leaves. Cooler temperatures and lower humidity are also conditions that discourage rust development.

Farmers are encouraged to continue their check of fields. Dr.
George Philley, Extension Plant Pathologist, suggested a couple of "Thumb Rules" to help one determine when to and not to apply chemical. One should consider applying chemical if rust is found on 10 to 20 percent of the two leaves just below the flag leaf. This is of course if the yield potential is there. Also it is doubtful that a chemical application would be effective once the grain reaches the flowering stage.
These are general rules only.

Should we have a rust problem, obtaining a timely chemical application could be a tricky situation.
We are speaking mainly of the weather. Very few days of late hav been satisfactory because of the high wind. Waiting ones turn is also a factor as everyone will want their field sprayed first and on and on.

Just as sure as warmer temperatures appear in spring, algae appears on farm ponds. If control measures are to be used, they should be used as soon as possible before temperatures rise and the amount of algae in the pond increases.

There are two chemicals that are labeled for use on farm ponds, Aquatraz and Hydrothol 191. Follow the recommended rate on the label.
The rate will be based on so much per acre foot of water to treat.
Remember that one acre foot is one surface acre, one foot deep. One will need to determine the surface acres and the average depth of water.

Rivercrest YHT Hears Program

Mrs. Donna Winn of Sumner presented a program on Color Analysis for the Rivercrest Chapter of Future Homemakers of America during their regular April meeting. She demonstrated the selection of becoming colors in clothing and makeup on models Becky White and Mandi Dixon. Mrs. Winn, who is a consultant for Beauticare and Color, stated that skin tone, hair, and eye color should be taken into consideration. Colors are grouped according to the four seasons with winter and spring wearing cool colors, autumn and summer wearing warm colors. These do not change throughout ones life.

Vice-president Donna Unruh presided over the meeting. She gave a brief report on the state FHA convention, which was held last weekend. The chapter is planning a banquet for May 7 and a trip to Six Flags on May 11.

THE BOGATA part of the American Cancer Society campaign was kicked off. Volunteer workers will be calling on homes and businesses in Bogata and the surrounding area. From left to
