Tax 'Keep' Bill Slated For Passage

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate was expected to give final congressional approval today to a bill that would extend taxes for another year on new cars, liquor, cigarettes, telephones, travel and corporation profits.

President Kennedy wants the $3.7 billion revenue to keep the federal budget from slipping further in the red. The House already has passed the tax extention bill.

The levies first were made during the Korean War. Labeled as "emergency" taxes, they have been retained ever since.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and Finance Committee Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., expressed confidence the Senate would take fast action on the measure.

If it went through unaltered, as they expected, the bill would go to the White House for signature into law. This would prevent the taxes from expiring automatically at midnight, June 30.

Other congressional news:

Housing: A test vote was scheduled on a scaled-down Republican substitute for President Kennedy's $4.9 billion housing bill. The GOP-sponsored bill would be for one year and cost only $1.1 billion. Democratic strategists, however, were confident they could defeat the substitute and gain passage of the administration measure.

Prices: The Senate antitrust subcommittee summoned several mystery witnesses to the hearings on price fixing in the electrical equipment industry. Chairman Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., refused to name the witnesses.

Highways: House - Senate conferees planned to discuss differences in legislation to finance completion of the interstate highway system. Both Democrats and Republicans predicted the final measure would include a Senate-passed provision to continue bonus payments to states which restrict billboards along rural routes of the federal road network.

Russia May Halt Arms Slash Due To Berlin, Nuclear Crisis

Senator Wants World To Defy Soviet Threats

By United Press International

Tough military talk and tightly drawn positions on international problems cast a new diplomatic chill over Soviet - American relations today.

There were strong indications in Moscow that the Soviet Union either has halted or will halt the Red Army cutback of 1.2 million men which it announced more than a year ago.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's statement Wednesday that Russia will resume nuclear testing if the United States does was viewed here as a clear sign of a growing strain between Moscow and Washington.

Khrushchev made his statement in a speech marking the 20th anniversary of the 1941 invasion of Russia by Nazi Germany.

The Soviet leader said his country has developed several new nuclear weapons which might require testing.

Although the U.S. and Soviet governments still are on talking terms — both on a two-nation level and in international conferences — the lines of opposition are becoming stiffer on such crucial issues as Germany, Berlin, Laos, disarmament and nuclear testing.

From Khrushchev's speech an increase in the Soviet budget for arms seems likely and the blame will be placed at the doorstep of the United States.

Khrushchev's other main points Wednesday repeated the strategy he laid down last week in his television report to the nation on his summit talk with President Kennedy in Vienna:

—He will sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany at the end of this year if he cannot sign one by then with all of Germany.

—The Soviet Union is ready to accept any international controls the West wants if the West will agree to a treaty of universal and complete disarmament first.

—Russia will not accept Western proposals for international controls over a nuclear weapons test ban alone without general disarmament "because such control would in fact be spying."

In washington Senate Democratic Whip Hubert H. Humphrey said the free world "ought not to be intimidated, blackmailed or moved" by Khrushchev's threats to resume nuclear bomb tests.

The Minnesota Democrat said he did not expect President Ken-

Mild Virus Infection Hits JFK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy today suffered a mild infection which his doctor forecast would run its course in another two or three days.

The infection was described as bacterial-viral.

Kennedy was confined to bed and forced to cancel all appointments for the day, including his concluding conference with the Japanese Premier Hayato Ikeda.

The chief executive spent a sleepless, uncomfortable night. As his fever dropped under treatment with antibiotics, he fell asleep during the morning.

Kennedy awoke at 1:30 a. m. with a painful throat and a fever. He personally called Dr. Janet Travell, White House Physician, who rushed to the executive mansion and began treatments with antibiotics. She also called in her assistant, Capt. George Burkley.

Dr. Travell summoned a New York orthopedic specialist, Dr. Preston Wade, into consultation this morning.

The White House said after Wade's examination that the specialist found that the pain connected with the chief executive's back ailment had subsided and that Kennedy's fever during the night did not seem to have affected the back condition.

Kennedy's temperature reached a high of 101.6 degrees.

Dr. Travell said that while it was necessary to cancel all of the President's engagements today, he might be able to resume a limited schedule Friday in his residental quarters.

In her first appearance before reporters since the chief executive suffered a lower back strain May 16, Dr. Travell said Kennedy was so improved Wednesday that she thought "we were about through with the back trouble."

Then at 1:30 a.m. he telephoned, saying he had a sore throat, that he had taken his temperature and had a fever and, in general, felt poorly.

Mr. Travell rushed from her home and examined him at about 2 a.m. Her diagnosis was that he seemed to be suffering from what she called "the current virus" which actually reflected in upper respitory infection stemming from both the bacterial and viral sources.

She conceded that the ailment was known by a number of names including "flu," but that the chief executive was not suffering from specific influenza.

Dr. Travell first gave him an intra-muscular injecton of 1.2 million units of penicillin to attack the possible bacterial source of infection, when started hm on another course of treatment, taking tetracycline by mouth.

Wilson Suspects Price Collusion On School Buses

AUSTIN (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said there are indications of price fixing in the sale of school buses to the state.

He filed a request Wednesday for courts of inquiry in Austin and Dallas to determine if there is any such practice. The legal move was the result of an investigation he said indicates that companies are holding down competition.

"This is another step to bring about more real competition among companies dealing with the state," Wilson said.

He said the Texas school system could save up to $1 million "if we are successful" in bringing bus bids more in line with other states.

The suspicion of price-fixing was raised Wednesday in a front-page story in the Houston Chronicle. Wilson said it "gave us the lead" about the situation. Wilson said the newspaper held up stories until the investigation was carried out.

Wilson's petitions were filed in Judge Travis Blakeslee's county court in Austin and Judge Owen Giles' court in Dallas.

Hearings will begin in Austin Monday and in Dallas next Wednesday. Witnesses from six body firms in those two cities will be questioned.

There are seven bus distributor firms in Texas which sell to the schools.

Wilson said school bus sales total "more than $4 million a year," under the minimum foundation program. The prices are supposed to be settled through competitive public bidding.

Rivals Announce Accord Reached On Laos Regime

ZURICH, Switzerland (UPI) — The three rival princes of Laos today announced agreement to ask King Savang Vathana to establish a government of "national union" in the embattled South-east Asian kingdom.

The agreement was worked out at a conference of pro - Western Premier Prince Boun Oum, "neutralist" Prince Souvanna Phouma and Prince Souphanouvong of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

A joint communique issued by the princes at the end of their "conciliation" conference said all rival factions would be represented in the provisional unity government.

The communique said the government "will be formed through a special procedure by designation and direct nomination of his majesty the king without being passed by the national assembly."

Details of the planned coalition were not given in the communique.

Souvanna Phouma, a neutralist who has the backing of Communist countries, has appeared confident he would be named premier of any new government. Western diplomats appeared resigned to this as the price for restoring the country to peace.

Two Maritime Unions Charged

HOUSTON (UPI)— Two maritime unions involved in a nation-wide strike today were charged with unfair labor practices as a second major oil producer announced drastic cuts in crude oil purchases.

In Wichita Falls, the North Texas Oil and Gas Association asked President Kennedy to invoke the Taft-Hartley act in order to prevent a depressed oil economy from worsening.

The North Texas group said the six-day maritime strike along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts already was threatening the production and movement of oil to the detriment of the national security and economy.

Meantime, charges were filed with the National Labor Relations Board in Houston accusing the National Maritime Union and the Marine Engineers Benevolent Association with secondary boycotting of two refineries and a shipyard.

American Oil Co., whose refinery at Texas City is being picketed by NMU, filed one charge against that union. Similar charges against the NMU were filed by Kellogg Construction Co. and Sinclair Refining Co.

Kellogg is building a major addition to the AMOCO Refinery in Texas City and NMU pickets have been outside the Sinclair refinery on the Houston Ship Channel since the strike began six days ago.

Todd Shipyards at Galveston filed a secondary boycott charge against the engineers. Todd claimed pickets set up against three ships in its drydocks have kept shipyard workers off the job.

In Houston, NLRB director Cliff Pottor said he would begin an immediate investigation of the charges.

Run Away Youth Hangs Himself; Brother Hunted

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Tommy Wilkinson, 12, and his younger brother ran away from home Wednesday.

They found Tommy hanging from the second floor railing of an apartment house, but still hadn't located the brother early today.

"It appears Tommy hanged himself because he was angry at his father for whipping his brother," Detective Steve Salas said. "His parents said the only thing they could think of was the whipping. That's why they left home. It seems the kids had brought something home that didn't belong to them."

At first, police were skeptical of suicide because Tommy's hands were tied in front of him tightly with the same type of plastic cord that was looped around his neck.

But Dr. Robert Hausmann, county medical examiner, said it was possible for Tommy to tie his own hands and then jump off the second story porch.

"It looks like he didn't want to trust himself not to fight once he was on the end of the cord," Salas said. "We believe it was suicide."

Salas said he was worried about Tommy's brother. He said the boy may have watched the hanging and now be afraid to go home.

The place Tommy chose to kill himself is several blocks from his home. It is located on Suerte Street. In Spanish it means "luck."

Jaycees Oppose School Aid Bill

ATLANTA (UPI) — The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce ends its 41st annual convention today by electing a president for the 200,000 member organization.

Candidates from Iowa, New York, Tennessee and Arizona were expected to receive nominations. They are R. Dean Arbuckle of Jefferson, Iowa; Lewis A. Aronwitz, Albany, N. Y.; Robert Conger, Jackson, Tenn.; and John E. Holgate, Phoenix, Ariz.

The Jaycees Wednesday approved a resolution opposing federal aid to education. The organization said it favors "the traditional methods of financing public schools both in construction and payment of teacher salaries."

The Jaycees said they are opposed to all legislative programs calling for federal subsidies for public school construction and payment of teacher salaries.

Wednesday night they staged their second 'State Party" in two nights—a party in which each of the 50 states tried to outdo the others in providing food and refreshment. Wednesday morning, despite cool weather with occasional downpours, the Jaycees put on a three-hour parade through the main business section of Atlanta.

Test Pilots End 17-Day Simulated Flight Into Space

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Two Air Force jet pilots walked out of a high-altitude chamber at Brooks Air Force Base today after completing a 17-day simulated flight into space.

Capt. Louis Gang of Phoenix, Ariz. and Capt. Bernard J. Westfall of Iowa City, Iowa, both said it was "an ideal run" and they would like to do it again.

Westfall hugged his daughter, Vickie, as he emerged from the simulated flight capsule at the Aero-space Medical Center and wished her happy birthday. She was 7 years old Tuesday.

Gang said he lost three pounds and Westfall lost six. The men lived on nearly pure oxygen at a simulated altitude of six miles during their more than two-week stay in the chamber.

Their time in the capsule was not a record, the Air Force said, but just another in a series of tests to see how men react to living in space flight conditions.

Latins Claimed Wary Of Reds

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—Adlai Stevenson's tour of South America convinced him that Latin leaders are more keenly aware than ever before of the threat of Communist subversion and the need for economic and social reform, it was reported today.

The goodwill ambassador is expected to advise President Kennedy to that effect in the report on the tour he is to submit soon after his return to Washington late today.

Stevenson, whose trip was intended specifically to lay the foundation for Kennedy's "alliance for progress" program of aid to Latin America, is bringing home with him requests for about $3 billion in financal assistance spread over periods raging up to 10 years.

While his report undoubtedly will include specific recommendations, Stevenson is expected to tell Kennedy the United States cannot lay down any hard-and-fast general rules for aid to Latin nations.

The trip is believed to have convinced him of the need for sympathy and understanding in dealing with the greatly diversified problems of the region.

Everywhere he went, Stevenson found authorities at least paying lip service to the need for economic and social reform, members of his party said.

He told government leaders the Kennedy plan differs from previous U.S. offers of aid to Latin America because it will attempt to mobilize hemisphere resources for economic development for the mutual benefit of all concerned.

Stevenson visited Venezuela, Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay, Paraguay, Chili, Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia and Colombia — all of the 10 nations of South America.

Communists whipped up demonstrations against him or against the government in Bolivia Colombia and Peru, but he was not personally involved in any of them and was generally well received. His receptions were particularly cordial in Paraguay and in Ecuador, where he stayed a day longer than he had intended.

Houston May Lose State GOP Office

HOUSTON (UPI)—The possibility of the Republican State Executive Committee moving its headquarters from Houston to some other city in the state will be pondered this weekend in San Antonio.

A spokesman said the session was moved from Austin to San Antonio because of the "importance of the special Congressional election in Bexar County."

In addition to the usual business of filling vacancies on the committee and confirming new county chairmen, the group will make plans for the 1962 elections, fund-raising and a poll tax campaign.

Fair Skies Span State; Victoria Battling Flood

By United Press International

The rampaging Guadalupe River passed an expected 30-foot crest at Victoria today and the Weather Bureau warned it would rise still higher, perhaps forcing more families out of their homes.

More than 25 families already have been chased by the swirling flood waters, driven over the river banks into lowlands by heavy rains that pounded Texas for a week.

A 50-man emergency crew stood alert with sandbags to reinforce a levee south of Victoria. A baseball park, a golf course and the southwest edge of a residential section of Victoria were already flooded.

Otherwise, the first day of summer was an almost perfect beginning. Fair skies and bright sunshine spanned Texas from border to border. Temperatures were generally in the upper 80s and low mid-90's.

The Weather Bureau said more of the same clear to partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures are on tap for the state today. There is a chance of isolated thundershowers as slightly cooler temperatures invade the extreme southwestern section from New Mexico.

A mild cold front was moving toward Texas from the Pacific Northwest and was expected to shove temperatures down slightly in the northwest portion by Friday.

Civil Defense officials said that all of the families advised Wednesday to leave their homes at Victoria had done so by Wednesday night But several more may have to move today.

Flood stage at Victoria is 21 feet. It had risen to 29.5 feet Wednesday night and nearly trapped some 550 baseball fans who went to see the Texas League game between San Antonio and Victoria. The baseball park is only a few hundred feet from the river.

Olin Culberson, Member Of State Commission, Dies

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)— Railroad Commissioner Olin Culberson died today at an Austin hospital. He was 74 years old.

Culberson's office said the state official had been admitted to Seton Hospital Wednesday with a heart ailment.

Culberson served as chairman of the state agency which regulates the oil industry at one time during his term on the commission.

Accused Czech Leaving Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Accused Czech spy Miroslav Nacvalac prepared to leave by plane for Prague today, stripped of his diplomatic immunity in the United States.

The United States had warned that he would be deported if the Czechs didn't get him out of the United States. The Czechs had refused earlier to recall Nacvalac.

The United States charged that Nacvalac, who had the title of counselor of the U. N. delegation, was actually "chief of Czechoslovak civilian intelligence operations in the Unted States.

Auto Insurance Rate Hike Asked

AUSTIN (UPI)— The State Board of Insurance today considers how much more Texans will have to pay for automobile insurance. It may be anywhere from 8 to 20 per cent higher.

Board Chairman Thomas C. Ferguson said his actuaries report "a recommendation of increases in the neighborhood of 8 per cent in comprehensive auto insurance, perhaps 10 per cent for collision coverage and somewhere about 20 per cent or a little better in liability insurance."

Sen. Grady Hazlewood, who led attempts in the legislature to modify the "safe-driving" auto insurance plan, also planned to attend the hearing.

Woman Observes 104th Birthday

LOCKNEY, Tex. (UPI)— Today is just another day as far as Mrs. Nancy Caroline Dagley is concerned—even if it is her 104th birthday.

Mrs. Dagley, who still moves about with the aid of a cane, said she moved to Texas during the Civil War in 1862 from Little Rock, Ark.

Asked how she preserved her health she said: "I follow the old adage of early to bed and early to rise."

Federal Judges To Hear Racial Case On July 10

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A panel of three federal judges today was ordered to hear a motion aimed at preventing Mississippi authorities from enforcing segregation on buses, trains and planes and in terminals.

An order scheduling the hearing here July 10 was entered in the federal court records by Elbert P. Tuttle of Atlanta, chief judge of the 5th Circuit Cout of Appeals.

Tuttle named himself to the panel along with Mississippi's two federal district judges, Sidney Mize of Gulfport and Claude F. Clayton of Tupelo.

The motion, designed to halt arrests of "Freedom Riders," was filed here two weeks ago by NAACP attorneys Thurgood Marshall and Mrs. Constance Baker Motley of New York and R. Jess Brown of Jackson.

It was brought as a class action by three Jackson Negroes, Samuel Bailey, Joseph Broadwater and Burnett L. Jacob.

Defendants include Mississippi Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson, the city of Jackson and several of its officials, bus companies, Illinois Central Railroad and Cicero Carr, who operates a restaurant at the local airport.

Castro's Pilots Buying Supplies In Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Cuban pilots are stuffing their pockets with a variety of items before returning to Fidel Castro's "paradise" where nothing is missing, airport shopkeepers report.

The Cuban Aviation Co. fliers load up with such things as razor blades, medicines, candy, cotton and—say the store clerks—plenty of aspirins, all of which have virtually disappeared from the Caribbean island.

'JFK Special Report' Called Unimpressive

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Putting on a "JFK Special Report" without JFK is like sending the New York Yankees into a ball game without Mickey Mantle.

Nevertheless, Tuesday night NBC-TV gamely left President Kennedy, the traditional star of these shows, on the sidelines when it examined his administration's posture after five months in office.

The President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy — remember when we called him Bobby?— filled in with a 20-minute interview that was taped in his office at the Department of Justice. The younger Kennedy expressed his confidence in legal procedure as the ultimate weapon in civil rights disputes. Ray Scherer's questions didn't go into the day to-day office routine, nor did the cameras take us on an office tour.

The program droned along and flashed only occasional signals to show achievement; modus operandi and personality. Too often, opportunities to explore meaty topics were wasted. Once, Scherer spoke of a "new coalition" that the President has put together on Capitol Hill. No further explanation.

Another wasted oportunity led to the sprightliest and, at the same time, most dismaying part of the show. It was a verbal duel between NBC's Sander Vanocur and Lawrence O'Brien, the President's personal lobbyist on Capitol Hill. Or, as Vanocur billed him, "the unhidden persuader." Vanocur tried a couple of times to get down to cases and start a discussion about patronage but O'Brien made it sound as though the word didn't exist.

"If we have a weapon," said O'Brien, "it is the feeling of the American people towards their President." It seems curiously unresponsive, in this age of televised political conventions, to talk about legislative tactics and refrain from dealing with patronage weaponry.

The program, for some reason, was unable to pursue topics that would have spread before us a more fruitful analysis of the administration. Maybe it should have been clipped to a 30-minute show instead of one hour.

Dialing and Filing: Tuesday night was a big one for Gene Autry. The "Wyatt Earp" episode on ABC-TV was filmed at Autry's Newhall Ranch in California and, later, Red Skelton's guest star on the CBS-TV halfhour was "Champion," Autry's horse. That's known as proxy guest shots.

It was also a big night for "Candid Camera," which inspired the scripts for "The Tom Ewell Show" and Skelton's antics. Ewell's re-run dealt with his futile attempt to avoid a TV show's hidden cameras. Skelton's so-called comedy skit dealt with a Candid Camera crew that perched in barn. Maybe it's an end-of-season letdown, but Skelton's show was bogged down into a dreary production. The gags are ancient and the songand-dance numbers may be unimaginative, but the pre-recorded sound is terrible.

"Wyatt Earp" offered an episode titled, "Gunfight at the O.K. Corral" that purported to be a documentary-style treatment of the famous 1881 gun battle in Tombstone, Ariz.' Anyone who believes that presentation will believe anything.

The Channel Swim: The 15-part epic Shakespearean series, "An Age of Kings" will be presented on the National Educational Television (NET) network beginning Friday, Oct. 21. Cost of the presentation is being underwritten by one sponsor, Humble Oil.

"Video Village, a daytime game show, has spawned a kiddy version that will enter CBS-TV's Saturday morning schedule in the fall. The Heatter-Quigley package, to be called "Kideo Village," will follow 'Captain Kangaroo.'"

Johnson Stamps His Approval On Island Program

CORPUS CHRISTI (UPI)— Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson came out squarely yesterday for federal preservation of Padre Island, but he refused to get embroiled publicly in a hot local fight over the length of a proposed national seashore park.

Johnson said he was "very proud of the movement we have on Padre. I want to do anything I can to see it become a reality."

But the vice president in news conference remarks said the matter of the length of the park was something to be worked out between the Department of Interior and the Congress.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., has submitted a bill to create an 88-mile preserve as recommended by the National Park Service and backed by Secretary of Interior Stewart Udfall.

Reps. Joe Kilgore and John Young, Texas Democrat who represent districts in which the 117-mile barrier reef island lie, have proposed a 65-mile park with connecting roads to built up areas.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., said he believed Padre Island preserve would be approved this year and he added he also thought national seashore parks on Cape Cod, Point Reyes, Calif., a national park in the Great Basin of Nevada would be authorized in this session of Congress.

Udall said if all were authorized, it would be the largest area put in the national park system since the end of World War II.

The park service wants to spend an estimated $8 million over a five-year period to develop Padre Island. Its plans include putting aside 57,000 acres of dry land and 147,000 acres of water and marsh land for park purposes. Plans for a road are indefinite.

Johnson and a party of lawmakers and administration officials went on a personal inspection tour of the island following dedication ceremonies of a saline water conversion plant at Freeport.

At a civic reception given by Mayor Ben MacDonald, Johnson called national parks "much more than a luxury. They are of such vital importance that even in nations where people are facing appalling problems, the desire for such areas is deep in their hearts. . ."

"Now Texans," Johnson continued, "your senator and congressmen are sponsoring legislation to protect this heritage (Padre Island) for all time to come. And we shall not regret putting aside minor differences to act now so future generations can enjoy what we have enjoyed."

U.S. Heritage Theme Of Talk At Rotary Club

Cameron Marsh, principal of Pampa High School, yesterday talked to Pampa Rotarians on the foundation stones of our American heritage. Marsh, using large plastic blocks to illustrate his message, started with the basic support of a belief in God. From this, he continued to add stones representing such elements as the Bill of Rights, Constitution, etc.

Everyone was urged by club president R. E. (Dick) Batson to attend the installation banquet to be held June 27, at 7 p.m., in the Starlight room of the Coronado Inn.

Visitors and guest for the day were Joe Gordon, Theron Crockett, Jim Foster, Kinsey Davis, Ed Morris and Ralph O'Niel.

nedy to break off the lagging test ban talks in Geneva but rather to reduce them to a token status.

At the same time, he expressed the belief that Kennedy would "reserve the right to resume testing" if this country's national security required it.

Humphrey made the statements apparently convinced the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee that there is military justification at least for a resumption of U.S. nuclear testing.

—U.S. officials said Khrushchev's remarks strengthened their belief that he no longer is interested in a test ban treaty. They said he apparently is trying to force the United States to break off the Geneva talks and resume underground tests so Russia could resume its experiments and blame this country for ending the test moratorium.

—Arthur Dean, chief U.S. test ban negotiator, arrived Wednesday night for consultations with Kennedy on the stalemated Geneva conference. Dean, who said he would be here for "a few days," met with White House disarmament adviser John J. McCloy shortly after his return.

—General disarmament discussions here between Soviet U. N. delegate Valrian A. Zorin and McCloy were in recess until Friday. After the third day of talks ended Wednesday, one diplomat summed up what had been accomplished as "some more sparring."

Humphrey said that if it became apparent Russia was "cheating" with nuclear tests or developing some new weapons the military reasons for resuming tests would "overbalance" political reasons for suspending them.

Meantime 5,000 troops of Berlin's American garrison sped to action stations at dawn today in a surprise alert designed to test their ability to move fast in case of trouble.

The rumble of tanks surging through the streets awakened West Berliners at 5 a.m. as armor and infantry moved from suburban barracks to key positions in the Communist-encircled city's American sector.

At important intersections combat-clad soldiers replaced traffic policemen as they would in a real emergency.

Recorded Script Used In Training Salesmen

NEW YORK (UPI)— Paul J. Meyer is entranced with the sound of the human voice—properly packaged in a form to tell salesmen how to sell.

At 33, already a veteran of a sales career that could be regarded with satisfaction by a man twice his age, he has set up in Waco, Tex., his own company, called Success Motivation Institute, Inc. It turns out volumes of phonograph records to help companies train salesmen, and even to help them solve their management problems.

"I feel like I had been 10 years getting set for this business," said Meyer, a former paratrooper. "I say I'm home now; but there may be another mountain to climb."

He believes that success is a frame of mind. But he believes that the ideas which will create the proper train of thought in a man's mind have to be repeated to make a lasting impression.

Sixty - two per cent of all ideas are accepted only after they have been heard or repeated for the sixth time," he says, and it was this need for repetition that led him into the recording business.

The script for each of the recordings is written by an expert in a particular field. Millard Bennett, nationally known among salesmen, was the writer for "the Power of Inspired Salesmanship." Mona Long, telephone sales consultant, wrote the script for "How to Get Sales Appointments by Telephone."

From his experiences in the sales field, Meyer might have written a script or two of his own.

He once sold so much insurance that he almost put a company out of business.

In 1955 he went to work for a life insurance company in Miami and in 60 days made 150 sales totalling more than $1 million in insurance. Within three years, he was earning $20,000 a month, was rated a millionaire with half of his assets in cash, plus a yacht, a plane and an office building.

A second company, a small one, then offered him a job as sales manager. He went to work wholeheartedly—only to discover that the management of the company was inexperienced and he had so much business on the books that the firm could not absorb it and was faced with insolvency.

Rather than walk away from the situation, Meyer and several other stockholders worked for a year and a half and saved the company. It cost him most of his personal assets to protect policyholders, company and banks.

"But it was worth every penny it cost me," Meyer said.

He then became a vice president and national sales director of Word Records, Inc., Waco, which was selling religious recordings, and from there, after building a multi - million dollar sales volume, he went into his own recording venture.

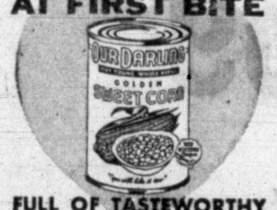

"A lecture once given is lost, unless taped or recorded," he said. "But a recording can be listened to over and over and over so that every shade of meaning becomes a part of the listener."

A father of three boys; a Sunday School teacher and a busy man, Meyer insists that his life includes ample time with his family.

"What good is it to 'be a success' if a man's wife leaves him and his children dislike or ignore him?" he asks. "Success has to be an all-round thing to be real."

Religious Issue Features Race For Mayor Of New York City

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The development of a religious issue in politics is a political way of life in some parts of the United States. Racism in politics equally is a localized way of political life.

That this is true will surprise many citizens, perhaps most of them. Those surprised will be the same citizens who were shocked at the ugly characteristics of the religious issue raised in 1928 against the Democratc presidential nominee, Alfred E. Smith.

These same citizens were shaken again last year when the issue of his religion was raised against the presidential candidacy of John F. Kennedy. Smith and Kennedy were Roman Catholics, but with a difference — Kennedy won and Smith lost.

A mayoralty election is coming up in New York City and what do we have? We have municipal tickets chosen with precise attention to the bloodstreams and places of worship of the several candidates. The more religious and racial minorities represented the better.

A good election receipe in New York City for the top three municipal jobs is a Jew, an Italian-American, an Irish - American. Italian-Americans and Irish-Americans are likely to be Catholics. The Republican municipal ticket is precisely that:

State Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz, for mayor; Paul A. Fino, for president of the City Council, John J. Gilhooley, for controller.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, of German descent, has decided to seek re-election. He is a Democrat. There has been trouble within the Democratic party in New York City and state. So Wagner has chosen new running mates to supplant the Democrats who twice previously have been elected to high municipal office with him.

They are: Paul R. Screvane, for president of the City Council, Abraham D. Beame, for controller.

Screvane and Beame displaced politicians of Italian and Jewish background. Political writer Leo Egan (in the New York Times) reporting on Mayor Wagner's selections, wrote:

"The selection of Mr. Screvane and Mr. Beame would continue the present religious and racial balance of the Democratic ticket."

There is some rebellion among New York City Democrats against the mayor's single-handed selection of candidates to run with him. But there is no challenge to the precious concern with which he sought racially and religiously to balance the Democratic municipal ticket.

Such a balance creates in New York City, of course, some degree of discrimination against those politicians who cannot boast a recent bloodline extending to Europe or the desirable religious affiliation. However that may be, such a balance pays off in votes on election day, and both major parties are committed to such discriminaton as may be involved.

APPROVE ESPIONAGE LAW

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House approved and sent to the Senate Monday legislation which would make espionage against the United States a crime anywhere in the world.

The bill would extend present regulations which allow the government to prosecute only if the act of espionage is committed in the United States or on board an American ship.

Linen was the first woven clothing material and wool probably was the second.

Walter Rogers Reports

Fidel Castro's Effort Nothing But Blackmail

Castro's sordid attempt to blackmail this country has gone far enough, and should be branded before the entire world for what it is and what he stands for. His "iron for flesh" deal was recognized by all decent human beings as nothing more than an act of international piracy and a perfect example of the philosophy that constitutes the difference between our way of life and that to which he subscribes. This pronouncement, above all others, clearly demonstrates the basic principle upon which Castro and his cohorts operate. The dignity of the individual has no place in his ideology, except as regards his own person, which is usually the case with dictators.

At the time Castro proposed this unconscionable and inhuman trade, everyone should have recognized that the author of such deviltry must be wholly devoid of character and integrity. Nevertheless, many people in this country took the position that the humanitarian thing to do was to accept the offer and thereby show to the world that this country, in pursuit of its Christian principles, considered human life as the property of God, and would do whatever was necessary to prevent its destruction. Others took the position that this was not the issue, but that the whole matter was a question of pure and simple blackmail in which no individual in this country should have a part. This controversy has raged during all of the negotiations, and will probably not be settled regardless of what is done.

Looking at the matter objectively as it presently stands, it would seem to me that the recent statements and demands of Castro's prove beyond any question of doubt that he had no intention of ever releasing the prisonrs. His sole intention was the same as that which usually prompts the pirate, the extortionist, and the blackmailer. That is, to get hold of the material wealth demanded and then destroy the victim. In my further opinion, his greed has caused him to overplay his hand. When he was able to have a visit from negotiators, he probably felt that he may as well ask for more, so long as people were willing to deal with a scoundrel. This, in my opinion, is where his greed completely condemned him. He has now proven beyond any question of doubt that his Communistic beliefs underwrite the proposition that material is superor to human life, and that he is completely devoid of any character or integrity.

Assuming that there was some justification in the first instance to try to meet the requirements of the "iron for flesh" offer, it should now be clearly evident that the chances for the salvation of these prisoners will not depend upon whether or not tractors or bulldozers are delivered to the Bearded Wonder. If ten thousand bulldozers were delivered to Castro tomorrow, the lives of the prisoners in Cuba wouldn't be worth a plugged nickel. If these prisoners, or any of them, are saved, it is going to be because the world recognizes what has happened. The world should be told now in unmistakable terms that Castro has not only made the offer but has openly admitted it, and has now reneged on it and is trying to extort more and more. Under the circumstances he has convicted himself completely under any system of law ever employed by mankind. Hence, it would seem to me that the time is ripe to tell Mr. Castro that there will be no tractors and there will be no bulldozers, but that if he harms even one of the prisoners he has attempted to use as pawns, he must stand condemned before the bar of world opinion and every judicial system in existence as an international murderer, and that he should expect to pay the same penalty as has been paid by other international murderers-to wit: Hitler, Mussolini, and company.

Two Men Fight Extradition On Bombing Count

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Two Americans accused of blowing up three vital communications towers are fighting extradition to Las Vegas, Nev., despite their calm confessions to the sabotage.

Bernard Jerome Brous, 51, a bewhiskered ex-house builder, and Dale Chris Jensen 23, who cackled about the crimes, were arraigned Tuesday for the May 28 explosions in Utah and Nevada.

The pair, the vanguard of an anti-big business organization they call the American Republican Army, requested a removal hearing that would force the federal government to prove sufficient basis for charges against them. U.S. Commissioner Betty M. Graydon set July 7 for the hearing.

RECORD BOW OUT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Veteran airline pilot Wendell Peterson closed out his career Tuesday by setting a new commercial record of four hours and 41 minutes on a flight from New York to San Francisco.

Peterson, who will be 60 years old Sunday, must retire under government age regulations. His mother and wife made the last flight with him aboard the Trans World Airlnes Boeing jet.

Too Late To Change Your Mind

What if some glib salesman signs you up for an encyclopedia, or a set of pots and pans. Next day you change your mind. Can you cancel the order? Chances are you can't.

The typical pattern runs thus: the salesman fast-talks poor Joyce [illegible]ning an order for a set of cooking ware, silver, or what-haveyou. She pays a nominal amount down, the balance to be over a long term. The price is high enough, plus a big carrying charge, but the installments run for a long time and at first look reasonable. When the shipment arrives, Joyce decides she doesn't want it, and can't afford it anyhow, so she refuses to accept it and tells the company she is cancelling the order.

But poor Joyce is out of luck. The company promptly tells her that they "sold" her installment contract to a bank or financial institution, and she must now deal with them, not the company. The company thus got its sale price in full, the salesman his commission, and the new owner of the contract expects his money in full. Sorry, but it is too late to cancel the order. This is not at all like buying from a local store, where you can usually return the goods if they are unsatisfactory or if you change your mind. If Joyce ships the merchandise back, the company will most likely refuse to accept it.

Moreover, the companies buying such contracts are hard - boiled about collections, If Joyce doesn't pay, they will not hesitate to report her to a credit rating agency, or even sue.

The moral is, be sure you know who you are dealing with, and be sure you know what you are signing and the consequences.

Ike Personally Approved U2 Trip, Former Aide Says

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sherman Adams said in a book published today that former President Eisenhower personally approved sending the U2 spy plane that Nikita Khrushchev used as his reason for scuttling the 1960 East-West summit conference.

However, the onetime presidential assistant wrote that Eisenhower felt the Soviet premier had planned to sabotage the Paris talks long before the U2 was downed over Soviet territory.

Eisenhower could not be reached immediately for comment on Adams' statements in the book, "Firsthand Report" (Harper and Bros., 463 pages).

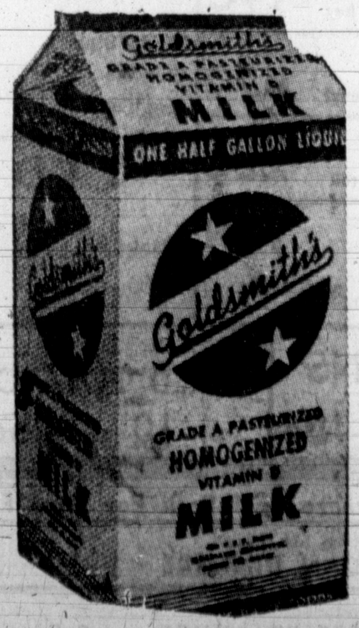

In a report to the nation on May 25, 1960, 24 days after the Soviets captured U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers, and recovered wreckage of the plane, Eisenhower said he took full responsibility for approving all the "programs undertaken by our government to secure and evaluate military intelligence."

Eisenhower did not link himself with personally approving the ill-fated flight itself.

GOLDSMITH... For MORE FUN IN THE LIVING!

How To Give Friendly, Gay Hawaiian Luau

The luau, traditional Hawaiian feast, provides an exceptional party theme for party-givers anywhere. Gay, friendly, beautiful — it's easy to give and fun to go to.

Everyone enjoys the informal atmosphere, the melodic music, and colorful decor that are part of the luau spirit. Perhaps you'll want to take advantage of the coming warm summer days and evenings to give your first luau in your patio or backyard.

To stimulate the Hawaiian theme, use the materials and foods available in your kitchen or local grocery store. With a little imagination you can achieve that lavish tropical look with a minimum of cost. Here's how!

Cover your table with a dark green cloth or paper table cloth. For your luau centerpiece, combine ferns with melons, pineapples, oranges, bananas, coconuts, and other fresh fruit — all spilling profusely out of a native straw hat (purchased at the dime store).

Simplify service to a minimum. Use pastel paper plates, cups and Table Server napkins. Add even more color with a paper lei around each place setting. The gift of a lei symbolizes joy, welcome, farewell - and a thousand other emotions.

You can make the leis yourself out of Kleenex tissues. Just take about 60 tissues, open them and fold into thirds lengthwise, and then thirds across. Cut out circles. Each tissue will give nine 3 inch squares. Thread circles onto a 42-inch piece of string with a darning needle. Tie the string together. Twist circles by placing thumb and first finger of each hand on circle on both sides of the string. Twist circle in oposite directions . . .and repeat for each succeeding circle.

Plan a menu you can manage. Try to serve at least one dish that is typical of the islands, or include a traditional island food such as bananas, pineapples, coconuts, sweet potatoes, pork, chicken or salmon. You'll want to have a variety of orange, pineapple and guava drinks served in frosty glasses or hollowed-out coconuts.

Ask your guests to come native —tell them comfort is the prime requisite. Typical luau wear are muumuus or sundresses for the women and multi-colored "aloha" shirts for the men.

Music is not essential, but the lilting strains of island music will help set the mood for the festvities. A phonograph and a stack of Hawaiian records are ideal — unless you have a friend who loves to play the guitar or ukelele.

Most important is that you keep the gay informal luau spirit—and your party will be a delightful success.

Heavenly Meat Treat!

Fruits, vegetables, and two kinds of coconut, make this main dish unusual—and excellent. Served on a bed of fluffy rice, it makes an interesting meal when company comes, with just the addition of an avocado-Romaine salad, garlic French bread and pineapple sherbet atop a fruit compote for dessert.

Hawaiian Meat Balls

1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons flour
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 pound ground beef
1 cup Baker's Fine-Grated Coconut
¼ cup corn oil
1 small clove garlic, finely minced
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ cup vinegar
1 cup chicken broth
2 cups sliced green peppers
1 cup orange sections
Flaked coconut

Combine egg, flour, pepper, ½ teaspoon salt; blend well. Shape beef into 16 balls. Roll in egg mixture; then in coconut. Heat oil in a large skillet. Add garlic. Then add meat balls and brown lightly on all sides.

Combine cornstarch, sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, soy sauce, vinegar, and chicken broth. Add to meat balls in skillet, stirring until sauce is thickened. Add green peppers. Cover and simmer over low heat 8 to 10 minutes, or until peppers are almost tender. Stir in orange sections. Serve with rice and flaked coconut. Makes about 5 servings.

Popcorn Crackers Are Fun On Fourth These Kind Crackle, But Don't Blow Up

For a "safe and sane 4th," serve the youngsters amusing popcorn firecrackers. They will crackle but won't blow up.

Popcorn Firecrackers

Cut into four - inch lengths the cardboard tubes from the centers of paper toweling, waxed paper, aluminum foil, etc. Cover the outside of three tubes with red paper, using rubber cement or cellophane tape to hold in place. Cut pieces of waxed paper the same width as tubes, roll them up and drop into tubes, folding just a little over the top edge of tubes.

Make butterscotch syrup (recipe below); mix well with 2 quarts of popped corn. Fill tubes to overflowing with popcorn, and stick a short length of pipe cleaner or stick candy in the top for a wick. Shape any leftover corn into balls, wrap in cellophane and tie with red, white and blue paper ribbons.

BUTTERSCOTCH SYRUP

1 pound butterscotch candy patties (or light brown sugar)
½ cup butter
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup water

Combine candies (or sugar), butter, water and salt in heavy saucepan, and melt over low heat, stirring frequently. Cook syrup to 280 degrees F. (light crack stage); remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Pour over popped corn and mix thoroughly.

Fashion's New Pink Shown In Angel Cake

Fashion's new pink is revealed in the filling of this Rhubarb Angel Food Cake. It starts with a baker's angel food cake. Cut a ½-inch slice off the top, then hollow out the insides of the cake (reserving the crumbs) — leaving about a ½-inch shell on outer and inner sides, and bottom. Prepare a sweetened rhubarb sauce (using 1 pound rhubarb), coaxing it to a pretty pink with a few drops of red food coloring. When cool, fold rhubarb and 2 cups of the angel food cake crumbs into 1 cup of heavy cream, whipped. Place in scooped out cake and replace cake top. Spread top and sides of cake with more whipped cream and chill thoroughly before serving.

HOW, NOW, MOUSE?

If you have talented mice who seem to know the trick of removing the piece of cheese from the trap without getting caught, try fooling them by using cheese spread instead.

Spring Bouquet Chicken Provides Excellent Meal-In-One Casserole

Copperware lends itself admirably to cooking, as copper is an excellent conductor of heat. A favorite of many cooks, copper skillets are now made in such lovely shapes that they are a great addition to a buffet table. Cleaning copper is no problem today, thanks to a new tarnish resistant copper cleaner in paste form.

Made in a copper skillet or on the range, this recipe for spring chicken is an excellent meal - in-one, as the vegetables can be cooked along with the chicken.

SPRING BOUQUET CHICKEN
(Serves 2)

1 2½-to-3 pound spring chicken, split into halves
2 tablespoons butter, salt, pepper and paprika
1 cup chicken stock or white wine
¼ cup tomato paste
1 cup fresh or frozen peas
1 cup tiny whole carrots
¼ cup sliced scallions
1-3 cup sliced water chestnuts
1 tablespoon choped pimientor

Split chicken into halves. Melt butter in skillet. Sprinkle chicken halves with salt, peper and paprika.

Brown chicken halves in butter. When well browned on both sides add chicken stock or white wine mixed with tomato paste. Cover tightly and cook over a low flame until chicken is almost tender.

Add peas, carrots, scallions and water chestnuts. Cover and cook until vegetables are tender. Sprinkle with pimiento.

Serve with hot biscuits.

Peppermint Parfait Makes Bang-Up Dessert For Patriotic Celebration

A day of patriotic celebration calls for a bang-up dessert. One that soars with good flavor, bursts with excitement and makes everyone say "Ah!"

Peppermint candy and heavy cream give this dessert its distinction. Try it. It rates three cheers.

PEPPERMINT PARFAIT
(Makes 1 quart)

¾ cup light corn syrup
¼ cup sugar
3 egg whites
1 cup heavy cream
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup crushed peppermint candy

Combine corn syrup and sugar in saucepan; cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally until sugar is dissolved and mixture reaches a full boil. Meanwhile, beat egg whites until they mound slightly when beater is raised. Gradually beat in corn syrup mixture; continue beating until mixture forms soft peaks when beater is raised. Cool to room temperature (about 10 minutes).

Meanwhile, add vanilla to heavy cream and whip. Fold carefully with peppermint into corn syrup-egg white mixture. Pour into freezing tray and freeze, with cold control set for fast freezing, about 3 hours. Set control midway between fast freezing and normal for storage.

Green Vegetables Star At Market

Turning to "what to have" as a main dish in a summer menu, the market offers the greenest of asparagus. The bright spears, combined with buttered bread crumbs and cheese sauce, spark this Asparagus-Cheese Casserole.

ASPARAGUS CHEESE CASSEROLE

3 slices enriched bread
3 tablespoons sharp cheese spread
2½ cups cut, cooked asparagus
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk or asparagus liquid
1 No. 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
½ teaspoon salt
2-3 cup buttered bread crumbs
2 asparagus spears
1 thin slice pimiento

Spread bread with cheese; cut into ½-inch cubes. Combine bread and cheese with asparagus in a greased (1½ - quart) casserole. Melt butter in a small saucepan; blend in flour. Add milk and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add undiluted mushroom soup and salt. Combine mushroom sauce and asparagus mixture. Top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about fifteen minutes, or until crumbs are brown. Garnish with 2 asparagus spears and a slice of pimiento.

Yield: 8 servings

Pack Simple Fare For Summer Picnic Outings

Family outings — whether to the country, beach, local park, or even in your own backyard — are a lot of fun for young and old, and all that is needed to make them enjoyable, is a little preparation to keep work to a minimum.

Awell-balanced meal can be fixed up in a jiffy so that the homemaker, as well as the children, can enjoy eating out in the open. There are certainly a multitude of nutritious and tasty foods of the convenience variety which can be quickly purchased.

Fresh fruit is always a good idea to take along, as well as relishes in easy-toopen but tightly lidded jars. Sandwiches, prepared easily, should be tightly wrapped to preserve freshness.

If your family likes to roast frankfurters or hamburgers, these meats usually taste best over an open campfire or your own grill.

HEED HIS ADVICE

When dieting under a doctor's guidance, stop at the weight figure he suggests. If you go on, believing that you will look more willowy and glamorous, you'll probably only succeed in looking pale, wan and weary.

HARMONIOUS HINT

When you wear a flower hat in multiple hues, choose as your color key the one shade that stands out from the mass. Then match it to harmonize it with your lipstick shade.

IS IT A BARGAIN?

No costume is a bargain if it doesn't suit you. Check the sales, but check your impulses, too.

COSTUME "DRAMA"

Drop earrings provide drama for late day dresses in black. But to wear them well, keep your hairdo short and simple.

Potato chips can serve double duty as part of the meal, as well as a snack afterwards.

And don't forget to bring lots of liquids. Thermos bottles are useful for both hot and cold foods, as well as drinks.

To save time and bother during the summer, here are several menus that will help you make your "outing" a big success:

1. Roasted Frankfurters and Baked Beans on Buns, Scallions—deviled eggs — lettuce hearts, Whole Tomatoes — Cucumbers, Green Peppers (sliced), Potato Chips, Cookies, Cubed Watermelon and Fresh Fruit, Beverage.

2. Fried Chicken (Prepared at home. Wrap pieces in foil) Corn cooked over an open fire, Sliced Tomatoes, Macaroni salad (prepared at home; Potato Chips, Fresh Fruit in Season, Cup Cakes, Beverage.

3. Cold Meat Loaf (prepared at home), Potato Salad, Carrot and Celery Salad, Sweet Pickles, Olives, Buttered rolls, Potato Chips, Sliced peaches mixed with blackberries (sugared), (or if you'd prefer, bring fruit whole and let picnickers eat as they like), Chocolate layer cake, Beverage.

Variety Spice Of Outdoor Barbecue Where Man Of House Reigns Supreme

Now that the outdoor barbecue season is here, beckyard cooks are attempting to add variety to the family's menu. Since the preparation must be done over the fire, steaks, chops and frankfurters are a prime favorite. Variety can be added to the family's fare with a wide assortment of side dishes.

Roasted corn for instance can provide fun and zest to the barbecued meal — especially since corn is at its best during the summer months. And the grill can be used to prepare tomatoes topped by onions, cheese, potato chips and green pepper.

The barbecue grill provides a source of constant heat to keep a sauce warm to top the steak prepared as you like it.

One of the important points of the outdoor meal is a generous portion of potato chips, iced lemonade and other family favorites. These provide "fun foods" as well as nutritional benefits.

A well balanced meal can be kept simple yet contain all the necessary ingredients to make it enjoyable and varied.

In order to be sure your barbecued meat is prepared just as you like it here's a time-table for cooking over charcoal:

BEEFSTEAK 1 inch thick (placed 9 inches from charcoal):
Rare — 4 to 6 min. on each side.
Medium — 60 to 8 min. on each side.
Well — 10 min. or more on each side.

BEEFSTEAK 2 inches thick (placed 9 inches from charcoal):
Rare — 6 to 10 min. on each side.
Medium — 12 to 17 min. on each side.
Well — Up to 30 min. on each side.

LAMB CHOPS 1 inch thick — to 9 min. on each side.
CHICKEN halved — 15 to 23 min. on each side.
HAMBURGERS — 5 to 6 min. on each side.
HOT DOGS — 3 to 4 min. on each side.
SHISH KEBABS — 5 to 8 min.
FISH— 4 to 6 min. on each side.

Monkey Business May Mean Call For Tarzan

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It's getting to the point where a body can hardly turn around any more without stumbling over a coincidence.

On Monday past; to cite one that I just tripped on, a House subcommittee released some testimony given by Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover.

Then, for release today, came a report from the Smithsonian Institution.

What made this coincidental, rather than just plain incidental, was the fact that the Smithsonian's report, tied right in with part of Rickover's testimony. Or so it seemed to me.

Rickover, you may recall, poked a bit of fun at a psychiatric study which indicated that the success of West Point Cadets depended on whether they had a father or a mother complex.

He jocularly commented that the Cadets might get along better if they had no parents of either variety.

Well, sir, what Rickover presumably didn't know was that the Smithsonian has started an experiment in which capuchin monkeys are being reared entirely without parental care and training.

I am not, let me emphasize, in any way suggesting that there is a direct connection between West Point Cadets and capuchin monkeys.

But when you consider the implications of the Smithsonian's experiment, it gives a new meaning to Rickover's little jest.

Th ecapuchin, or "cowled monkey," is described as the most intelligent and humanlike animal in the Smithsonian's wildlife reserve on Barro Colorado Island in the Canal Zone.

The Smithsonian says it can be "a quite aggressive fighter" and "sometimes fights with other troops of monkeys larger than itself."

Furthermore, the Smithsonian is convinced that "the normal behavior of the capuchin is greatly influenced by training as an infant, according to the instinctive drives of the mother."

That, as coincidence would have it, is almost exactly what the Army psychiatrist said about the West Point Cadets.

It is still too early for the Smithsonian to predict how its study will turn out. It says, however, that the experiment "may throw considerable light on the relative roles of heredity and environment in adult animal behavior."

I won't venture any predictions either, but I think I can see the handwriting on the wall. If it turns out that those monkeys are better off for being unmothered, it's only a question of time before we human parents are declared obsolete.

In fact, it wouldn't surprise me if some psychiatrist eventually decided that our children would be better adjusted if reared by capuchins.

Tarzan, take it away!

Cows wil produce more milk if they do not have to swish off flies with their tails all the time, tests have shown.

Russian Spaceman Plans Cuban Visit

HAVANA (UPI)—Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin, first human to orbit the earth, will come here to participate in ceremonies marking the anniversary of Premier Fidel Castro's revolution July 26, the government announced today.

Castro's forces overthrew the regime of Fulgencio Batista on Jan. 1, 1959, but he has chosen to celebrate the anniversary on July 26, the date of the unsuccessful attack led by Castro against Moncada barracks eight years ago. His "26th of July" movement took its name from that incident.

Land Boom Aids Southwest Area

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A Major land "boom" is changing the face of the desert and cattle country in the sparsely settled areas of the Southwest.

Thousands of families from all 50 states soon will be moving to the newly planned communities where the climate is dry, land reasonable and industry growing.

The communities are located in the Arizona-New Mexico-Texas triangle whose base is less than 100 miles from the Mexican border.

Joseph Timan, president of Horizon Land Corp., said the demand for land in his newly-planned communities is "unprecedented." His Tucson-based headquarters receives an average of 4,000 seeking to relocate, he said.

Timan's Rio Grande Estates, 32 miles south of Albuquerque, was "sold out" within six months after it was placed on the market. Thirty thousand applicants from all over the country sent deposits to purchase $6 million worth of land in the community, which is designed to grow from a township to a city in progressive stages.

Timan's latest venture is Paradise Hills, four miles west of Albuquerque, which he estimates will eventually house 100,000 persons.

Timan, a vigorous 51-year-old dynamo, is a former New York attorney who came here three years ago to retire. The retirement lasted as long as it took him to unpack.

He said he felt the desert and cattle country was "the new Florida, the new California, only more so."

He said that the population explosion expected over the next 40 years made it essential that cities be planned from the ground up and not grow in "crazy quilt" fashion as many of our larger cities have done.

His planned cities are molded from a master plan. They contain properly zoned industrial and business areas, recreational areas for both young and old and even cemeteries. The entire community is laid out in advance with every tree, bush and building having its special place.

Jaycee-ette Club Starts

Wives of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce members met in the Palm room in City Hall recently to organize a Jaycee-ette club.

Mrs. Buddy Palson was acting chairman of the meeting. Mrs. Bennie Shackelford served as temporary secretary.

A discussion on the purpose of the organization occurred.

Representing the Amarillo Jaycee-ettes, Mrs. Leroy Thompson and Mrs. Max Cliver, answered questions concerning the laws and by-laws of the new club.

Committees were appointed to set up the constitution and by-laws. They are; Mrs. Bob Blakney, Mrs. A. J. Carubbi, Mrs. Gary Fraizer and Mrs. Ken Castanien.

The next Jaycee-ette meeting will be held Thursday, June 29.

Cuban Molasses Buying Opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said today that President Kennedy still feels that current purchase of Cuban molasses by an American firm is "not in the public interest."

White House officials said Publicker Chemical Corp. was negotiating with the Agriculture Department to buy government-held surplus corn at a reduced price instead of using molasses from Cuba.

The company had agreed to pay the Cubans about 10 cents a gallon for more than two million gallons of Cuban black strap molasses which was unloaded from a Norwegian tanker in New Orleans Tuesday.

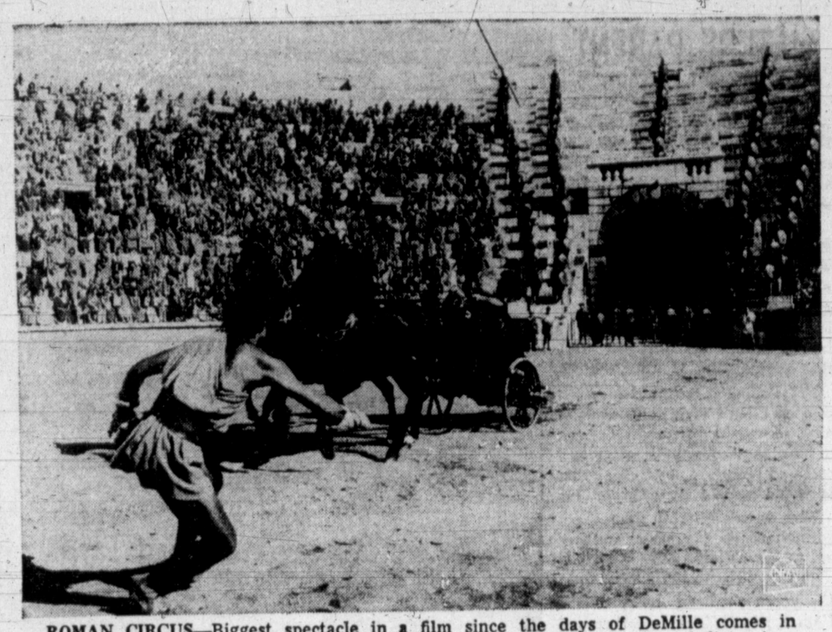

A White House official said that if the negotiations for surplus government corn are successful, the molasses already landed will be held and not used, at least during the life of the corn contract.

The corn cost the government roughly $1.06 a bushel. If the contract is concluded, Publicker will pay about 62 cents a bushel. The corn has deteriorated in storage and would not return the government its investment of the open market, officials said.

HONOR MARY PICKFORD

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The American Institute of Fine Arts Sunday named former silent film star Mary Pickford the "First Lady of the World."

Miss Pickford, one of the institute's founders, received the honor at a luncheon attended by 600 persons. She displayed many of her art possessions from Pickfair and her 1929 Oscar.

ROMAN CIRCUS—Biggest spectacle in a film since the days of DeMille comes in "Barabbas" and filmed in Verona, Italy, arena. In it Jack Palance as a gladiator in a chariot tries to run down and kill victims. Among them: Anthony Quinn (Barabbas).

Unity Called For As Two Baptist Groups Combine

ODESSA (UPI)—A plea for spiritual unity among Anglo and Latin-American Baptists was issued in Odessa Tuesday night by the last man who served as president of the Mexican Baptist Convention of Texas.

The Rev. I. E. Gonzalez of Corpus Christi concluded his term as president of the Mexican group with an address urging unity of purpose and spirit, as well as organzational unity.

Special ceremonies marked the merger of the Mexican Convention with the Baptist General Convention of Texas, ending 51 years of separate operation by the two groups.

Some 25,000 Latin Americans belonging to 400 churches in Texas joined the 1½ million member BGCT in a unified evangelism and misson program.

BEHAN IRELAND-BOUND

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Brendan Behan, the Irish author who often imbibes too much and holds his tongue too little, left for Ireland Tuesday following a goodby party at the railroad station.

Behan informed the 19 lunch guests that he had worked on a new play, "Richard's Cork Leg," during his Hollywood holiday and discussed a deal with movie producer Jerry Wald.

Spanish speaking Baptists will continue to hold annual session, but as a departmental meeting of the general convention.

The Rev. Gonzalez said the merger didn't mean the dissolving of a small group into a large body.

"It means," he said, "the beginning of a new era in which both Anglo and Latin American Baptists join for a triumph to the glory of God."

Texas Baptists have sponsored a language mission department for some years. A special committee is continuing to study ways to improve the joint program.

Juniorette Club Meets At Groom

GROOM (Spl) — The Juniorette 4-H Club met recently, at the club house. Carolyn Brooks, president, called the meeting to order and the 4-H pledge was led by Ellen Latta in the absence of Sandra Clark. Twila Wade led the group in a song and roll was answered with a swimming safety rule.

Election of officers was held and new officers named were; President, Sandra Clark; vice president, Janice Britten; Secretary, Carolyn Brooks; Treasurer, Sandra Kotara; reporter, Twila Wade; Council representative; Jane Hudson, and song leader, Patricia Hunt.

Ellen Latta gave a demonstration on safety and outdoor recreation and also led the recreation program. Refreshments were served to the members and leader and one visitor, Mrs. W. H. Ollinger, by the hostess, Karen Ollinger.

The first steamboat ascended the Ohio River in 1817.

Summer lingerie should be cool, lightweight and still provide a gentle shaping for the figure. Under this sheath with easy lines (left) goes a featherweight girdle-and-bra team. Slim lines of this print linen sheath (center) require corselet of lightweight fibers. Boning is out and comfort is in. Custom-made feeling comes (right) with this new panty girdle. It permits the wearer to switch garters around to any spot she prefers. Tiny openings all along the leg bands make this possible. Look for pastels and prints when you shop for lingerie this summer.

Gentle Shaping Of Summer Lingerie Enhances Beauty Of Pretty Frocks

ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Any woman, however slender, should wear a girdle. And the gal who thinks she can get away without one is only fooling herself. Even the slimmest model knows that she can't show clothes to advantage without the firming control of a good girdle and bra.

For some seasons now, curves have not been exagerated, but neither are they ignored. And so the function of girdle, corselette and bra these days is not to confine the figure, but to refine it.

You can find the right girdle for every occasion among the many styles available. There are seamless briefs to wear under swimsuits, short styles for short shorts, regular length for casual dresses and longer shorts, and long-legged pantie girdles to wear with tapered pants.

For dress-up occasions, when a slim sheath dress is worn, a lightweight corselette is your best bet. The all-in-one garment will smooth out any waistline bulges that might show if you wore a separate girdle and bra.

Pantie girdles that have garters adjustable to several positions around the leg preclude any chance of garter "bumps" marring the smooth silhouette of your skirt.

For the gals who prefer to go barelegged during summer, there are pantie girdles with cuffed leg bands to hold them in place.

The prettiest summer dresses can be worn only with strapless bras. Up until now, they've often been uncomfortable. Now many have a rubber back band to make them cling and stay put when you stretch. On some, the cups have thin, flexible boning, nylon stiffening or porous molded polyethylene as their fiting effect. These should be less rigid than wire.

Try on several styles in both girdles and bras until you find just the right one for your purpose. And once you've bought it, don't be afraid that laundering will hurt the garment.

New fabrics have been introduced that are, in the main, machine washable in warm, sudsy water. But don't toss elasticized garments into an automatic dryer.

Direct or intense heat will weaken the stretch.

Shape a bra or girdle after you've laundered it. Your bra should be hung over a rod or line, but not by the straps. Your girdle should be placed flat on a towel to dry, or hung by the garters from a hanger.

Above all, if you've been of the opinion that you don't need a girdle, try on your favorite dress over the right foundation. You'll prove to yourself how much more attractive it looks.

Dear Abby...

Shabby Old Theme In Fancy Language

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After twelve years of marriage, I have come to the concluson that I don't love my husband. I have grown accustomed to him as you would to a pet. I didn't realize this until I met Mr. R. He is the man I wish I were married to. I would not be foolish enough to break up my home because I love my children, and they need me. Mr. R. also has a family, and he feels the same way about his family. Our situations are smilar in that he doesn't exactly hate his wife. He just doesn't love her.

Mr. R. and I haven't done anything to be ashamed of. We've met a few times and told each other our troubles. He says there is no harm in being "silent sweethearts" as long as we are discreet. I am tempted. Should I?

ON THE BRINK

DEAR ON: You have dressed up a shabby old theme in fancy language. A "silent sweetheart" is a guy on the side. And to be "discreet," under such circumstances, means to cheat behind locked doors. Direct some of that romantic energy toward your "pet." The adventure you are considering is loaded with dynamite.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about a man who makes a date with you several days in advance, and doesn't show up or phone to tell you he won't be there? This has happened to me twice with the same man. The first time he told me he fell asleep, and the second time he said he "forgot" we had a date.

He is a nice person, and has given me (and others) reason to believe he is very much interested in me. I cannot understand this treatment. I am 32 and he is 35. Neither of us has ever been married, and all our friends think we would make a wonderful couple.

CAN'T FIGURE IT OUT

DEAR CAN'T: Don't include this man in your plans for the future. A woman your age needs someone who sleeps less and remembers more.

DEAR ABBY: A certain relative just refurnished her place. It is no fun to go there any more. She follows you around like an FBI agent to see that you don't put a wet glass down anywhere. And the minute I light a cigarette, she keeps her eyes glued on me to see that an ash doesn't fall on the rug. When she has a few people in, she polices everyone every second. She makes me nervous. And she makes everyone else nervous, too. Should I tell her, as one sister-in-law to another, that she was a better hostess when she was more relaxed and didn't have all that fancy furniture? Or would she think I was jealous?

NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: If your furnishings are not as fancy as hers, she will probably think you are jealous. Skip it, and be careful where the ashes fall or somebody will be burned up.

DEAR ABBY: This is for your readers who would rather not answer when someone asks them how old they are:

Just say, "I'm old enough to know the score — and young enough to play the game."

'Think Cool' Advises Top Fashion Models

Woman's View
By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A model must look cool as a lemon ice even though the temperature is torrid and she is showing store buyers winter coats, suits and furs.

How do the fashion models manage that calm, cool and smiling appearance when the temperature is soaring into the 90s outside, the dressing rooms in the clothing houses are crowded, hot and harried, when they must change costumes every four or five minutes, and hurry from showroom to showroom during a busy garment-buying season?

I asked four of them, figuring that the models' methods might help the rest of us get through the summer.

"I think cool," said China (pronounced cheena), the exoic beauty from Shanghai who was the darling of Givenchy, Balenciaga and Cardin fashion shows in Paris before she moved to New York to live and work.

China, who is with the Eileen Ford agency, dresses in the cool-looking colors, greens and pale blues, and "always stick to the shady side of the street."

She crowds in two or three tepid showers a day, and believes in frequent sprays of eau de cologne.

"I think cool too," said Joan Stephens. "A lot of beating the heat is mind over matter." Miss Stephens, with the Society of Models agency, is one of the busiest mannequins on Seventh Avenue, the heart of the New York garment industry.

"Many of the dressing rooms are not air-cooled," she said, "although the showrooms are. Between shows, I try to find a glass of ice water and just sit someplace with my feet up and shoes off. During the rush season, I have practically no social life. If you're rested, you can stand the heat better.

"I keep my hair short and off my neck in the summer."

Dovima, the brunette beauty who is one of New York's highest paid models, sips warm tea between fashion shows or photographic assignments. The model, who is with the Plaza Five agency, makes a satchet of powder a regular part of her band-box equipment in the summer.

She pats the powder on her neck and shoulders frequently. A flacon of perfume always is with her, to be patted on her hands and between her fingers. Scenting lingerie during the laundry also helps to add to the feeling of coolness, she said.

Liz Hildebrandt, a tall, platinum blonde born in Hamburg, Germany has found that a light diet helps toward summer coolness — "I love cold milk and I eat a lot of salads," she said. Miss Hildebrandt, who is with the Candy Jones agency, also eliminates heavy jewelry in the summer, and finds the sleeveless sheath dress one of the coolest garments for treading hot pavements.

MATURE PARENT

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Often without warning Mrs. G's 13-year-old Ellen suddenly stops talking to her and enters into a stubborn silence that can last for several days.

At first Mrs. G tries to ignore it. But as it continues she starts to wonder how and when she offended Ellen. A faithful addict of child guidance books, she searches anxiously back into herself for the failure in understanding and love that accounts for her punishment.

Not finding it, she'll then start making Ellen's favorite desserts or offer to entertain her friends, only to have these overtures result in a curt and hostile "I don't care" that is would involve Mrs. G. in un-

Why doesn't Mrs. G slam a pot down hard on the stove and cry out to her child:

"What's the matter with you? I'm not a chair you bumped into. I am a person. Then speak up and tell me what's wrong!"

Because the risk would be too great. To so reveal herself as the distressed and outraged person she is would involved Mrs. G. in unknown consequences. And like others among us, Mrs. G must always be safe.

This week I heard Dr. Rollo May, one of this country's most creative psychologists, say:

"Our being begins at the point where we can commit ourselves to what we feel, what we see, what we say. Our existence begins at the moment of acceptance of risk."

We modern parents are terrified of risking ourselves with children. Instead, what we do when their behavior gives us pain is to try and understand the behavior. By struggling to understand Ellen's reason for hostile silence, we escape our own feelings toward it—and the moral responsibility of expressing them to her.

We're scared to death to risk ourselves and ride our outraged feelings toward Ellen's silence to wherever they take us. So Ellen never gets to know us at all.

Children have tongues of their own with which to convey their reasons for behavior just as they have legs to convey their bodies from here to there.

We teach them to convey their feelings to us by conveying ours to them. However, though this is true, I don't like writing it. It promises Mrs. G a safe consequence of expressing her distress and indignation. That's not good.

To experience the exhilarating sense of ourselves that Dr. May was talking about we have to risk ourselves without any promise of safety.

Alabama Capital Quiet As More 'Riders' Arrive

By United Press International

More "Freedom Riders," one month to the day after martial law was declared in Montgomery, Ala., following racial violence, will leave the Alabama capital today for Jackson, Miss., where they face arrest.

The biracial group of five Negroes, three white girls, and a white man pulled into Montgomery Tuesday from Atlanta. Martial law was no longer in effect, but the crowds were there, sullen but restrained.

About 60 police officers surrounded the Greyhound terminal, scene of the May 20 mob violence which greeted the first "Freedom Ride" into the former capital of the Confederacy. They kept a crowd of about 300 white persons at bay.

The "Freedom Riders" made no attempt to use bus terminal facilities. Police and firemen had received bomb threats minutes before the riders' arrival and the integrationists complied with police requests not to enter the building.

In Biloxi, Miss., a federal district judge was to conduct a hearing today on a petition asking him to declare the arrest of "Freedom Riders" in the state unconstitutional.

Municipal Bond Sales To Attract Industry Are Found On Increase

NEW YORK (UPI)— The sale of municipal industrial bonds, securities issued by cities and towns to attract private industry, has become a growing business, a private banking group reports.

Southern states, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama, have been the four leaders in the field, the Investment Bankers Association of America reported in a summary that was critical of this use of public credit for private industrial facilities.

The post-war growth of the municipal industrial bond sales has been generally upward, particularly in the years 1958-60, the summary disclosed. In 1951, 16 such issues were made, totaling $6,920,500. In 1960, there were 74 issues, totaling $46,867,000.

Fifteen states authorize cities to issue such bonds, although the report found no record of issues in seven of the states.

In most cases, the bonds issued by a city for plant or factory construction are secured by the rental payments for the plant itself. Tax features of the arrangement usually make it appeal to the industry taking advantage of the facilities, the investment bankers admit.

The state of Michigan got an object lesson on how attractive such bait can be in the impending moves of two goal sized plants, from Muskegon and from Detroit, to Arkansas.

The Norge division of Borg-Warner Corp. planned to close its Muskegon plant and move to a new one near Ft. Smith, Ark., Rep. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan said the factory was financed by $7.5 million in tax-exempt bonds issued by Greenwood, Ark. The Scott Valve Manufacturing Co. planned to close its Detroit plant and move to Blytheville, Ark., under a similar financing arrangement.

The investment bankers explain what makes the setup attractive to cities who want new industries, and to the companies involved.

The bonds themselves are exempt from federal taxation in most cases.

The industry which signs up to use the plant erected by a city may deduct, for federal tax purposes, the rent it pays to the city.

A LOVE STORY

BOSTON (UPI) — Maybe true love can't move mountains, but it can open a marriage license bureau on Sunday.

Rachael Brahm, 22, lost her license to marry Harvey L. Saganov Sunday. A rush call got state Rep. Julius Ansel, D-Boston, into the act.

Ansel first tried reaching the city clerk and then the mayor, but to no avail. Finally he reached Deputy Mayor Henry A. Scagnoli, who found the name of the person in charge of the clerk's office and sent his car for the bride-to-be.

Three-and-a half hours before the planned 7 p.m. nuptuals, Ansel and Miss Brahm got together with the representative of the clerk's office at City Hall and a duplicate license was issued.

Penalty Assessed Against Attorney Upheld By Court

AUSTIN (UPI)— The Court of Criminal Appeals ruled today that sharptongued Corpus Christi lawyer Neal Dancer has to serve five more days of his sentences for contempt of court and pay $225 more in fines.

Dancer was held in contempt for his verbal exchanges with Dist. Judge John H. Miller of Beeville during Dancer's defense of Carroll Strickland in an armed robbry trial that ended in a hung jury.

Miller ordered Dancer to pay $925 in fines and to serve 27 days in jail on 10 different counts, some of which he later ordered made consecutive, after Dancer had started the jail term. Dancer served three days in jail at various times and paid $600 in fines.

NAACP Is Chastized By PGA

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UPI) — The Professional Golfers Association said today that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People "should have taken a moment to check" Negro golfer Charlie Sifford before charging that the PGA is guilty of "un-American practices."

"It is unfortunate that the NAACP did not take the trouble to learn the facts in the case before making unwarranted charges," said PGA President Lou Strong. "If they had taken a moment to ask Sifford about the PGA and the PGA championship, he could have given them the facts and cleared the air."

NAACP officials were quoted Tuesday as saying that the 1962 PGA championship was withdrawn from Los Angeles when California's attorney general asked that Sifford be permitted to play.

"No such request was ever received by the PGA from the attorney general of California," said Strong. "Moreover, the cancellation of the championship at Los Angeles had absolutely nothing to do with Charlie Sifford. Nor is there any truth in the implication that Negro professional golfers are barred from the PGA championship.

Hickey Triumphs In City Tourney

"I thought I was a goner for sure."

Max Hickey, Pampa's red-hot linkster, was regressing on his blazing round Wednesday afternoon which gave him the Pampa City Golf Championship over Melvin Chisum.

"After Melvin eagled that first hole I thought it was going to be one of those days" Hickey said.

"Luckily," he added, "I pulled my game together, and had one of my best rounds."

Hickey, in winning the championship, carded a six-under par 65 to close out the match on the 13th hole. He strung together seven birdies and one boggy during his hot round.

When did he think he had it won?

"On the 10th hole," he answered. "When I won that one I began to breathe a little easier."

K-P Wins 2

Knights of Pythias, with Delbert Daniels turning in an "Iron Man" stunt, swept both games from Hobart Merchants in an Industrial League softball twin bill here last night.

Daniels allowed only five hits in winning the opener, 19-6; and was touched for nine safeties as K-P won the night cap, 19-12.

Leading hitters for KP were Don Galleher (3 home runs and a double); Paul Hubrey (3-hits) and Travis Taylor (3-hits)

Hobart was paced by John Perry, (4-hits) and Tooter Willet (3-hits).

Colts Rap Laverne

LAVERNE, Okla. (Spl) — Ivan Wooten twirled a nifty three-hitter here Wednesday night as the Pampa Colts blanked Laverne 7 to 0 in a semi-pro exhibition game.

Wooten, who now has chalked up a skein of 13 and two-thirds innings of scoreless frames had the Oklahoma nine eatng-out of his hand on this hot, humid night.

Only one Laverne runner reached second base — first sacker Alvin Howard — as Wooten's assortment of slow stuff and a humming fast ball sent 13 Okies down via the strikeout route.

The Colts rocked Laverne starter Larry Patterson and his reliever Robinson for seven hits, two each by Ruben Strickland, Ray Dean and Tom Snow.

Snow was the big gun, plating four runs on a round-tripper and single.

The Colts scored one in the first and tallied thrice in both the third and ninth frames.

BOROS BOUNCE — Steve Boros stumbles forward after his attempted bunt bounced and hit him in the face on his home grounds at Detroit. The Tigers' star third baseman, whose hat went flying, was uninjured on the play. The Boston catcher is Jim Pagliaroni.

Four Is Magic Number For Durable Spahn

NEW YORK (UPI)—The magic number for Warren Spahn today is four.

Just that many more victories and the lean, hawk-faced southpaw of the Milwaukee Braves will post victory number 300. It will put him in a storied circle with an even dozen immortals of the past who reached that figure in major league triumphs.

But, while it will be his biggest thrill, Spahn actually considers those four wins—and those which seemingly are certain to follow them — as a matter of sheer necessity.

"You've got to keep winning or you lose your job," explains the 40-year-old with the 20-year-old arm. "You just can't afford to let down. Stand still and the first thing you know somebody is ready to take your place."

Question the percentage value of his 8-7 record if you will, but in compiling it, Spahn has proved to have a durability which well may be envied by a lot of much younger hurlers. He has gone the full distance in eight games and has pitched a two-hitter and a four-hitter.

Also a no-hitter.

"This is ridiculous," he says of his no-hitter against the Giants. "A fellow my age just shouldn't be pitching no-hitters. I pitch 15 years in the National League and don't get one. Now, bango, I've got two."

The other one came last Sept. 16 against the hapless Phillies, one of his 21 victims as he climaxed his 11th 20-game season. But in case you think they give Spahn the plush pitching assignments against the cellar clubs, take notice that of his eight wins this season, five have been against big clubs. Three times he beat the Giants and added the scalps of the Pirates and the Cards once each.

"How do you figure it?" he asks of his sudden no-hit splurge.

LONDON (UPI) — British track and field circles set the minimum standard performance for the high jump in 1834 at 5 feet, 6 inches. John Thomas topped this mark by almost 2 feet in 1960.

Sievers Socks Three, Drives In Nine Runs

By United Press International

Roy Sievers has the poor pitchers going ga-ga and if they don't stop him soon those go-go White Sox are liable to be going going gone.

Ordinarily Sievers is a hard man to arouse.

He doesn't care much for politics or the stock market, rarely gets into any hassles with the umpires and usually can be found quietly laboring over a crossword puzzle before a ball game.

But maybe Manager Al Lopez got under his skin a little recently when he benched him for missing an easy throw and bobbling a ground ball.

At any rate Sievers is taking out on the pitchers — which is perfectly okay with Lopez.

The slugging Chicago first baseman hit three home runs Wednesday night and drove in a total of nine runs as the surging White Sox ran their record to 13 victories in the last 14 games by sweeping a twi-night doubleheader from the Cleveland Indians 15-3 and 11-1.

The two victories stretched the White Sox' latest winning streak to six in a row and dropped the slumping Indians into third place. Sievers drove in seven runs in the opener with his 15th and 16th homers, then accounted for two more runs in the nightcap with his 17th homer plus two singles.

Minnie Minoso also homered in the first game off loser Gary Bell while Al smith hit two homers and drove in four runs in the nightcap.

Don Larsen who relieved starter Frank Baumann in the opener, pitched scoreless ball over the last seven innings to win his third game of the season and the first of his career against the Indians. Juan Pizzarro was the winner in the nightcap, losing his shutout on a ninth-inning homer by Bubba Phillips.

The New York Yankees moved to within a game of first place with a 5-3 triumph over the Kansas City Athletics; the Los Angeles Angels beat the Boston Red Sox, 5-1 and the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins 11-5. The Detroit-Washington game was postponed because of rain.

In the National League the first place Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 9-2; the Los Angeles Dodgers took two from the Chicago Cubs 4-1 and 4-2; and the Milwaukee Braves downed the San Francisco Giants, 5-3. Rain washed out the Pittsburgh-Philadelphia game.

Two 'Bums' Engage In Fisticuffs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Shortstop Maury Wills and first baseman Norm Larker, stars on the pennant contending Los Angeles Dodgers, got in a free swinging fist fight behind clubhouse doors last week, the Los Angeles Examiner reported today.

Baseball writer Bob Hunter, writing from Chicago, said the fight, in which diminutive Wills injured his shoulder and had to miss two games, took place Wednesday, June 14, prior to the club's first game with the Chicago Cubs at the Coliseum.

Hunter said the Dodgers front office tried to cover up the fisticuffs, but a member of the Cubs told him about it.

The informant told Hunter Wills became angry at Larker during the pre-game warmups. He thought Larker was trying to hit him with some line drives while batting fungoes. Wills supposedly threw a ball at Larker and hit him in the leg.

Hunter said the battle erupted into a fist fight when the players went back to the locker room for a team meeting. He said both players landed good punches before being separated.

Veteran Gil Hodges tried to break up the fight and suffered a swollen nose in the melee. The front office said he received it from a foul tip in batting practice. Officials said Wills' injured shoulder was the result of a bad hop hitting him there.

Top Field Shooting For 'Western' Open

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Newly crowned U.S. Open king Gene Littler headed a field of more than three dozen of golf's top money winners today as they teed off in the first round of the 58th annual $30,000 Western Open at Blythefield Country Club here.

Along with Littler, the field included such top links stars as Masters champion Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Sam Snead, Mike Souchak and Doug Sanders.

However, there was not a dyed-in-the-wool favorite in the bunch because all the entrants have been giving par a shellacking in practice rounds this week.

The ease with which the 6,730 yard course played in practice Wednesday gave nearly all the golfers dreams of winning the nation's second oldest major golf tournament and its $5,000 first prize.

No less than 28 players shattered the 36-35 — 71 standard Wednesday.

Honors for the day went to Bob Rosburg, Portland, Ore., and Charlie Sifford, Los Angeles, the only Negro regular on the pro-tour. Each fired a six under par 65.

Palmer, the 1960 U.S. Open King, played 27 practice holes and admitted he was "under par." But, he said "the course is not going to take any great beating—but there are not going to be any real bad shots either."

Back for another shot at the title he won last year was defending champion Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B. C., who took the 1960 Western in a sudden-death playoff with Art Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa.

Sanders and former National Open king Jack Fleck of Los Angeles shot 67's in their final tuneup while Billy Casper of San Diego, Calif., and terrible-tempered Tommy Bolt of Crystal River, Fla. came in with practice 68's.

The 72-hole event — the first Western held here since 1911 — ends Sunday.

Olympics To Include Judo In '64

ATHENS (UPI) — The joy of Japanese Olympic officials over the inclusion of judo in the 1964 games was tempered today by the problem of the modern pentathlon.

Modern pentathlon requires horses and the Japanese just don't have enough for the rugged requirements of this Olympic event.

"We just don't have the horses for this expensive sport," complained Kazusige Hirasawa, editor of the Japan Times and a member of the Japanese Olympic delegation.

"The Hungarians were kind enough to provide us with 100 horses, but who is going to pay the transportation?" Hirasawa asked.

The Japanese, who will host the 1964 games, had asked the International Olympic Committee to add judo and volleyball to the program for the next Olympaid, and to drop canoeing and modern pentathlon.

The IOC added judo and volleyball, but retained canoeing and the pentathlon, increasing the program to 20 sports.

Avery Brundage, the American president of the IOC, said judo was added as a "courtesy" to the Japanese hosts.

Although little more than one-fifth of the world's judo athletes lives outside Japan, there were only two opposing votes out of 43 in the roll call on judo.

At its final session, the IOC also drew up a new amateur code and vowed to keep it. The new code generally had more positive wording than the old one.

Patterson, McNeeley Fight Is Proposed

BOSTON (UPI)—A heavyweight title fight in Boston next fall between champion Floyd Patterson and undefeated Tom McNeeley was one step nearer reality today.

New York promoters Tom and Al Bolan applied Wednesday to the Massachusetts Boxing Commission for a license to stage the 15-round bout, which would be held, presumably outdoors, in either September or October.

The Bolans, former Lynn, Mass., residents, said they were forming a corporation called Massachusetts Championship Sports, Inc. The Bolans head Championship Sports, Inc., and Feature Sports, Inc., which promoted the last two Patterson title bouts.

Massachusetts law requires that promoters of fights be residents of the state.

The Bolans, following an hour-long closed-door conference with the boxing commission, said the new corporation would have all Massachusetts residents as its principal stockholders.

Colts Expect To Obtain Mel Triplett

Cult Of The Group

The new world has produced many a hero from Nathan Hale to Alan Shepard.

Hale and Shepard are military heroes, but there are scores of others, the most outstanding of whom are recognized as among the greatest leaders of all time.

There are George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin, for instance. They are among the American heroes revered from their wisdom in thought and deed.

Thomas A. Edison was one of the greatest inventors in history. His works have contributed immeasurably to the advancement of civilization. A little more than a quarter of a century ago, the world was acclaiming Charles A. Lindbergh, who had the courage and the coolness to fly the Atlantic alone.

These men were — and are — honored for the qualities as individuals. For one or more reasons they stood out from the group, and by their example they inspired others to greater achievements.

Now we have Comdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., the nation's first space man. The courage he showed in jeopardizing his young and pleasant life in the line of duty is another example of traditional American intrepidity.

But forget it! says the White House, in effect, according to a story appearing in a recent issue of the San Francisco Examiner.

The article, datelined Washington and written by Rowland Evans Jr. of the Herald Tribune News Service, states that the White House has a two-fold policy in regard publicity about the commander's space flight: "Avoid all sensationalizing of Shepard's exploit of vaulting 115 miles into space, because of the heavy work ahead; and avoid any appearance that this country caters to 'the cult of the individual'."

It would be interesting to know who formulated that policy. It sounds like Khrushchev denouncing the Stalinists. But even so, they're honoring "Gaga," the Soviet spaceman, just like any unashamed capitalist country admires its heroes.

In this modern age of the new US Frontier, however, individualism and individual rights apparently are to be subverted.

Pretty soon, if the trend continues, we shall all be named Smith, or Jones or something — whatever the majority decides. And it won't make any difference which door we enter when we go home after work because all the houses will be alike — and all the people in them as faceless as the Cult of the Group can possibly make them.

Inconsistency

Those who object to the way in which socialists perpetually seek to enlarge the function of government are unable to remain consistent if they also seek to enlarge the power of government in order to restrain socialists.

Story Of School Stand

Some 20 years ago Jane, the daughter of R. C. Hoiles, now Mrs. R. C. Hardie, Yuba City, Calif., was attending Santa Ana, Calif., tax-paid schools. She was then reading the Rugg books, which had more general circulation than any other social studies textbooks in the United States. The books consisted of six volumes of 500 pages each. She complained to her father about some of the things in the textbooks. He started to read the textbooks and found they were anti-free enterprise and very socialistic. He quoted, day by day, from these books on the front page, and then editorialized, explaining what these quotations meant. This got the American Legion and the Elks interested in these textbooks. The result was, they were put out of the Santa Ana schools. He thought he had accomplished quite a feat to get these books out of the schools.

He used to believe in government schools; in fact, he used to teach in government schools. He had never read the great thinkers on how government should be limited, such as Adolphe Thiers' "A Refutation of Socialism and Communism" or 'A Defense of Private Property"; Frederic Bastiat's "The Law"; Edmund Burke's essays and speeches; John Ruscard, the great Swedish economist; Pareto, the great Italian philosopher; and von Mises, an Austrian and the greatest economist now living. Nor had he read Karl Marx's "Communist Manifesto," that lists tax-paid schools as its tenth plank.

He, then, naturally believed what most people believed that tax-paid schools, which are based on the use of aggressive force, could be made useful by eliminating double standard books. He did not realize that when the state has a practical monopoly on textbooks it was almost impossible to get authors and publishers to furnish books based on a single standard of right because there was such a small demand for books of this kind that there was little if any profit in producing them.

Then he started to read the other textbooks that were substituted for these Rugg books. All told, he read more than ten thousand pages of social studies textbooks. He was never able to find a single, solitary social studies textbook used in any government school that stood for a single standard of rightness.

He did not realize at that time how impossible it was for schools that were based on the theory that the majority had a right to do things that no individual who understood the Decalogue believed he had a right to do, to successfully teach a single standard of rightness and respect for the inalienable rights of the individual. They could not really teach a belief in the Declaration of Independence — that is, an understanding of it — or the moral principles in the Ten Commandments.

Realizing this and believing it was unfair to our children to be teaching them various forms of collectivism or centralized government that deprived the individual of his inalienable rights, he came to believe that it was his responsibility as a publisher to make his findings known to the public. For this reason he believed he could not retain his own self-respect if he did not take a stand against tax-paid schools.

It is doubtful whether anybody who believes in tax-paid schools has read many of the textbooks. They just take them as being good because they're recommended by the politicians at the state capitals.

Most of the parents, like the editor, had not read widely on how government should be limited. He had been trained in a high school and graduated from a Methodist college which got its right to issue diplomas from the state, so it could not take a stand against tax-paid schools.

And that's the story as to why Freedom Newspapers are obliged to point out to the readers the harm that comes from subjecting their children to training where the politicians select the textbooks and force the children to read them whether they believe in them or not.

Of course, the columns of this newspaper are open for anybody to refute the above conclusions.

It is doubtful whether any person who believes in government schools who has not read the textbooks would put his money in a bank or a building and loan where the officers would not answer germane questions.

And the way we treat our children is infinitely more important than how we treat our dollars.

If we are to judge government schools by their fruits — the condition we are in today — there must be something seriously wrong with the way the youth of the land has been trained for the last 50 years.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK— The news that Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy is taking the dust covers and the locks off certain treasured items in the White House i. good news and so is her determination to share these treasures on view with the people of the United States. The long lock-up of the Biddle Collection of vermeil, for example, was a senseless hiding of items of real beauty as well as historic importance. It is true that Mrs. Biddle herself did not know how historic certain items were, such as a tureen once given to Frederick the Great by Louis XV of France and only recently authenticated.

But as these treasures are brought to light and placed on proper exhibition, I am bound to wonder what Mrs. Kennedy is going to do about a large and hideous sterling silver ship in full sail, the gift of a nation which shall be nameless, and which during the Roosevelt administration (the Franklin D. one, that would be) was on a sideboard in the family dining room. Once and only once was I invited to dine at the White House and was so transfixed by this object that I fear my table conversation with Eleanor Roosevelt left much to be wanted in brightness and scope.

Thanks to a motion picture actress named Joan Fontaine, who had steeled her squeamishness enough to go through, literally and honestly, the entire Nurses' Aid course during World War II, I made it to the White House. Miss Fontaine was asked, having graduated with honors from certain sordid and unpleasant facets of being an aid to hospital nurses, to address 3,000 such sturdy young women in Constitution Hall and I was asked to escort her from Hollywood to Washington. This earned me my small part of the White House dinner bid, else I could not have even cast a shadow on its front door.

Once we had arrived, punctually to the minute, had been frisked for weapons by alert Secret Service men and had the one allotted cocktail, a watery concoction as I remember and far from the best cocktail I ever had, we followed Mrs. Roosevelt into the little dining room and were seated. We were six: Harry Hopkins and his second wife, Mrs. Roosevelt and a gentleman whose name I cannot remember (the President was on a secret trip to the West Coast), Miss Fontaine and myself. Forthwith I saw the silver ship and was so stunned by its ornate ugliness and uselessness that I fell utterly silent.

Mr. Hopkins was charm itself as he rasped to Miss Fontaine that she worked for "thieves and robbers," a conversational gambit which left her fairly silent, too, since she did not wish to enter into a debate with him on the moral character of film producers. Guest and all that, you know. Mrs. Roosevelt took a reasonably and courteously tart view of Mr. Hopkins' gaucherie and I still remained silent, even though she was on my right and, by the rules, the lady I should hold in conversation.

Finally, she asked me what I thought of the war and since it was, as you see, a broad topic I managed five minutes of resume without much trouble, ending with the suggestion that, since she knew so much more about it than I, I felt at a disadvantage pursuing the theme. And, once again, was enthralled by the hideous galleon on the sideboard. She followed my stunned gaze and smiled narrowly, saying it was dreadful, wasn't it? I agreed that it certainly was and where in Heaven's dear name did it come from. She told me, but my lips are sealed. I do not wish to arouse critical international incidents.

And so, as I read the list of treasures being brought to light and exhibition by Mrs. Kennedy, the First Lady in years to do anything at all about changing things at the White House, I can but wonder what she will do with that silver ship. Her good taste already is so evident that I am pretty certain she will ask if there is a sub-sub-basement into which it can find hiding place forever more.

Allen - Scott Report:

President To Ask Up To $2 Billion In All-Risk Insurance For Foreign Investments

ROBERT S. ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Government guarantees for U.S. business investments abroad are to be considerably expanded in both scope and amount.

President Kennedy will ask Congress to add to his controversial $4.8 billion foreign aid bill a provision authorizing up to $2 billion of so-called "all-risk" insurance for U.S. business ventures in foreign countries.

Express purpose of these safeguards is to encourage business undertakings in the undeveloped countries of Latin America, Africa and Asia.

The new "all-risk" guarantees are designed to protect U.S. businessmen from losses due to revolution, insurrection, riots, confiscations and sanctions imposed by other countries, including the U.S.

At present, approximately 500 U.S. investments totaling $575 million in some 30 countries are covered by limited guarantees.

An overall total of $1 billion of such government insurance was authorized in 1948 in the Truman Administration. Under the plan, administered by the foreign aid agency, businessmen pay one-half of one percent of their guaranteed investments.

To date, no payments have been required under this program.

Only claim pending is $100,000 for alleged currency conversion losses in the Philippines.

Until Fidel Castro began his sweeping seizure of U.S. properties in Cuba, businessmen largely ignored this form of government insurance. Since then, it's been extensively sought.

As of June 1, $1.6 billion in new applications were pending before the foreign aid agency for such guarantees in 40 countries.

Of this amount, $958 million was for investments in Latin America.

WHY IT'S NEEED — Frank Coffin, director of the Development Loan Fund, is explaining this new $2 billion "all-risk" business insurance plan to foreign affairs leaders of Congress preparatory to its formal submission to them.

In these backstage discussions, Coffin is stressing two points:

(1) The pressing need to expand private U.S. investments abroad to meet the growing demand for economic aid in undeveloped countries; and (2) the intensifying "political risks" in many areas due to Communist and other pressures.

Cited as instances of that are the recent military take-over in Korea, the military rule in Pakistan and Turkey, and the ominous unrest in Iran.

Brazil was particularly singled out by Coffin as a striking illustration of the urgent need of U.S. business investments to assist that vast country to avoid economic collapse and political chaos.

"Under a new government dedicated to orderly financial management," Coffin said, "and to domestic measures directed toward a sound development program, Brazil, with a population of some 65 million, is confronted with a degree of economic instability that can be overcome only by an extraordinary infusion of external assistance.

"That is not going to come about unless U.S. business is given assurances that its investments will be safe. The proposed 'all -risk' guarantee program will provide that assurance. It is essential that this government protection be included in the foreign aid measure."

The strong appeal the expanded insurance plan has for businessmen is pointed out by the State Department in a memorandum to ths Senate Foreign Relations Committee, as follows:

"The investment guarantee program has an unprecedented volume of applications directly prompted by the widespread expropriations in Cuba and the growing unrest in other undeveloped areas of the world. It is now clearly apparent that the original program does not have adequate guarantees to meet today's risks.

"Notwithstanding this, as of June 11, applications in excess of $1.6 billion for such guarantees were pending. This intensified interest in guarantees can be expected to continue as the need for them grows."

In addition to the $958 million in applications for protection of U.S. investments in Latin America, others pending total $245 million in the Far East; $172 million in South Asia; $141 million in the Middle East; $85 million in Africa; and $12 million in Europe.

Guarantees sought for U.S. investments in Latin America include:

Argentina	$524,927,000
Haiti	90,544,000
Colombia	65,559,150
Guatemala	54,962,500

WITH AND WITHOUT — That widely-published speech of Representative Chet Holifield, D-Calif., chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, urging the resumption of underground nuclear tests was "cleared" with the White House. Holifield, a member of this powerful Committee since it was established more than a dozen years ago, discussed his highly significant address with the President and his top foreign affairs and defense advisers . . . On the other hand, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., let no one know in advance about his speech urging that Berlin be made a so-called "free city." He did not submit it to either the White House or State Department, although he did talk it over with some secondary officials of the latter who favor the neutralization of Berlin. Secretary Dean Rusk was decidedly irked by Mansfield's talk, and said so to House leaders.

U.S. Ambassadors in Latin Amesica, Africa and the Far East have been directed to get on friendly terms with parties and groups opposing the governments in the countries they are stationed. The instructions were sent out by Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles, who followed that policy when he was Ambassador to India in the Truman Administration. Bowles wants U.S. Ambassadors "to widen their contacts without upsetting relations with the governments and officials in power." It's Bowles' view that U.S. diplomats tend to isolate themselves from the people of the countries to which they are accredited.

GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE

Everybody's Money

By MERYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

The Horatio Alger spirit of getting ahead is an important ingredient in our national growth.

Economics would be a less dismal science if it dramatized case histories of successful businessmen rather than focussing on the theorizing by deans and dons on the university campuses who are somewhat removed from the blood and thunder of the competitive battles.

J. Paul Getty, who made millions in oil, turns to vocational guidance for ambitious young men and women in a current magazine piece. Mr. Getty argues with the widespread illusion that the day of opportunity in the United States has passed. The millionaire is impatient with the negative view that since you were not present when Manhattan Island was sold for $24, you have missed the boat to all real estate investments.

"I never cease to be astounded," he says in Playboy, "by the prevalence of this negative — and, in my opinion, totally erroneous—attitude among supposedly intelligent people. Certainly, there is a tremendous mass of evidence to prove that imaginative, resourceful and dynamic young men have more opportunities to achieve wealth and success in business today than ever before in our history. Countless alert and aggressive businessmen have proved this by making their fortunes in a wide variety of business endeavors and enterprises in recent years.

". . .There are examples galore to prove that it can be done, that success in business and even 'making a million'—or millions—are entirely realizable goals for young men starting out today. . . Basing my opinion on the information I have been able to gather throughout the years, I believe that, barring cataclysmic unforeseen events, the outlook for business is good and that it will be even better as time goes on. I feel that forsighted, progressive — and, above all, open minded—American businessmen, be they beginners or veterans, have ample reason to be optimistic about their prospects and profits for years and even decades to come."

This yea-saying by Mr. Getty recalls the aphorism of the late Orlando F. Weber, son of a Wisconsin labor leader, who started out with a small bicycle repair shop in Milwaukee. Mr. Weber, who left $32,000,000 used to say: "I prefer the courage of youth to the timidity of age."

A great and invaluable natural resource—the exuberance of youth —is sometimes impaired by bad teaching and destructive counselling. The dilution of courage with cliches about economic security damages the well being of the nation.

It is heartening when men of experience let their hair down and advise youth to face courageously the risks and adventures of competitive life.

Hope, ingenuity, research, and courage are the ingredients for building national economic greatness.

Even during occasional recessions, such as the one from which the country has recently emerged, merely constitute taking one step backwards before taking two steps forward.

In a nation, where popalation increases and where research continuously shakes new secrets from the trees of hidden knowledge, the future potentially can be bright indeed.

In the circumstances, youngsters of ability should be trained for venturesome careers — unafraid of the normal hazards in the business of life. To personalities of such character, it is demoralizing to put the accent on unemployments benefits, retirement pensions, and job security.

Excellence creates its own use security — even in times of setback.

Parents, teachers and counsellors, in advising young folks about to be graduated from schools and colleges, should bear in mind the sage observation of the poet Robert Browning, who once said: "It is better to aim high and fail than to aim low and succeed."

This month's baccalaureate sermons on the campuses in these tense cold war days should inspirit young people by accenting the positive.

On the economic side, academic lecturers should make crystal clear that the American economy, which gives the individual optimum free choice in selecting vocations, goods and services, and ideas, is a merit system, which is inherently social minded.

The abused phrase, "the forgotten man," should be reexamined in the authentic sense with which William Sumner, the sociologist, used it. Sumner said that amidst political dogooders the genuinely forgotten man was the self supporting person who pays the taxes.

Mr. Getty has added to his luster by welcoming brave newcomers into the competitive struggle in the business world.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self - addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Baseball Is Declared Catching On In Italy

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROMF, Italy—Baseball is catching on in Italy, and that's not to be wondered at.

If ever there was a game designed for a national temperament, baseball was made for the Italian one.

Baseball is a game that feeds on enthusiasm and excitement, and the Italian sports fan contains more of both to the square inch than the fan of any other nation on earth.

It takes little to send his spirits soaring, and less than little to send him to the depths of despair. No matter which way he is going, up or down, he is not quiet about it.

He alternately shouts with happiness, groans with anguish. He jumps high in the air one moment, and sinks to the ground, in a state of collapse, the next. Everything is black or white with him. There is no gray. He is either exulting or dying.

Last Sunday I watched a game between the Roman Senators and the Bologna Canastas, both members of the ten-team group that forms Italy's major league. Not even the Brooklyn fans of old, who used to cause tidal waves on the Gowanus Canal with their noise, matched the fans of the Senators.

They suffered, and aloud, with every pitched ball. They hailed or criticized every play by every man. The umpires were baited without let-up from the time they appeared at home plate to receive the batting order, until the last man was out.

Sensitive players wouldn't last long in Italy. A Ted Williams would either quit or go berserk, for the Italian fans leave no adjective unturned in expressing their opinion of the players.

The Italian baseball fan is a perfectionist. He expects every ball, no matter how fast or how far, to be caught. He expects every ball thrown by the pitcher to be a strike. He has no patience with walked batsmen, fumbled grounders, wild throws, or even home runs over the wall. He expects the fielders to do the impossible, and the infielders to follow suit.

A few years ago — no longer than three, in fact — the players outnumbered the spectators at the Italian league games. Even a visit to Rome by Milan, the league champs, would draw fewer than fifty fans.

Sunday, with both clubs boasting only so-so records, the 1,500-capacity stand was filled fifteen minutes before game time. And 95 per cent of the admissions were paid by Italians. There was only a sprinkling of Americans.

The park, built by the Olympic committee, which runs all sports in Italy, is a lovely one, with an infield that would do all right in a major league park at home, and a beautifully turfed outfield.

How do the Italians play? I'd say about the way baseball is played in Class D leagues at home. The average, that is. Some of the players would do well a notch higher in the United States, and one or two might not make a Class D league.

The fielding is surprisingly good, especially when it is remembered that the Italians have learned 99 per cent of their baseball by reading books on the game. The hitting is sharp rather than powerful, and the base running okay. The pitching is on the short side, but getting better each year. And the catchers could use a few lessons from Berra. They appear to be a bit on the shy side.

Italy could use a summer sport. With no soccer, about the only summer sport is bicycle racing, and when the field goes by a corner, the spectator has had it. Given lights and night baseball, the game would triple its attendance, for the Italians are night owls. They like to be out and about when the sun is down.

LOUNGE ON WHEELS—It looks like a well-appointed airport waiting room, but actually it's the interior of a mobile lounge now in service at Dulles International Airport, Washington, D.C. The giant bus transports 90 passengers from terminal to plane without their ever touching ground. Music is piped in from terminal; tinted glass reduces light glare.

Ernie Ford Not Sorry His TV Show Is Ending

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Vernon Scott is on vacation. Today's guest columnist, Tennessee Ernie Ford, discusses his TV retirement.)

By ERNIE FORD

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I'm not sorry I'm going.

I'm leaving my weekly show, and after five years you can bet there's lots of memories I have to say goodbye to. But I'm too easy-going to keep it up. Every single week's a big responsibility, to keep millions of friends entertained.

When you read fan mail, as I try to do as completely as possible, and when you meet people from all over the country at NBC seeing the show every week, you realize that your audience on the other side of that TV camera is a living, breathing thing.

Real live people sit in front of their sets and watch what you're doing. They take time out to write letters, make a special point to see your show in Hollywood when they're visiting California ... These people have to be treated with respect. They're friends.

So there I am, up there in front of all these "friends," trying to do something new and entertaining, and sometimes funny, every week of the year. Believe me, that's a tall order. After five years, I'm plumb tuckered out.

I have a wonderful crew with me on my weekly show and all of them deserve as much credit —or really a lot more — than I do for making the show a success. Certainly I'm going to miss seeing them every week.

You get to know people quite well in five years, working as closly as you have to in television. I'll still be doing shows and seeing everyone I know in television. But it won't be as hectic. And that I like.

It's fun for a year or so to be on every week, but after you've been on five years you're your own worst enemy.

If I tell a joke that I don't think is really uproariously funny, it bothers me.

And when you begin to worry about being funny on schedule, it's time to drive the plow to the barn.

I'm still in the world of records, up to my pea-picking neck. I'll be singing on records whenever I'm asked to because that's always relaxed and fun. And I'll be guesting on other TV shows and maybe doing a show on my own every so often ... because when you just get together without that weekly pressure to put on a show, that's fun too.

So it's not all over with old Ern and show business. In fact I'll probably be as busy as ever, if everyone that claims they want me to do a guest appearance for them means what they say. But when you don't have the responsibility of living up to your audience's confidence in you every week, it's all just fun.

Whatever it was, television has been good to me. I hope we're parting as friends.

DANNY THOMAS SILENCED

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) Comic Danny Thomas, ordered by doctors to keep his mouth shut for at least two weeks, will have to depend on his arsenal of sight gags.

Thomas suffered excessive throat fatigue following a month-long tour in behalf of his St. Jude building project. His television series starts filming early in July.

$23,000 Garden Leads To Arrest Of Texas Owner

FORT WORTH (UPI)— Frank C. Jones, 34, told police Tuesday he collected seed for about a year so he could grow his own garden.

The only trouble was it was marijuana seed.

"I've been smoking it about 10 years and decided it would be easier to raise my own crop than buy it," he said.

Jones emphasized that if his crop had been allowed to ripen, it was not intended for sale but for him and several close friends to smoke.

Police said the garden had a commercial value of about $23,000. They said charges of possession of marijuana would be filed today.

Mexico Shipping Pact Is Sought By Texas Group

DALLAS (UPI)— A treaty draft which would break a transportation bottleneck between the United States and Mexico is being pushed by the Texas Good Neighbor Commission at a meeting in Dallas this week.

Boxcars and truck trailers would be hauled to the border by one country and picked up there by vehicles and drivers of the other.

Under the present system, each shipment must be unloaded and re-loaded to get individual clearance.

This delay hampers the shipping of perishable items, commission chairman Watson W. Wise of Tyler said.

The commission also called for additional funds to bolster a teacher exchange program with Mexico. Teachers from Mexico are given short courses in Texas colleges and universities under the program.

The commission, which was established in 1943 to promote good will between the two countries, elected Frank Kelley of Colorado City to replace Wise, who is retiring to take a position on the Texas Commission of Higher education.

Saga Of DC3 Air Liner

Most Successful Plane Ever Built Still In Service After 25 Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The world's most beloved airplane is celebrating its 25th anniversary in scheduled airline service.

It was on June 25, 1936, that American Airlines launched DC3 service on a Chicago - New York flight. And at the time, not even the proud parents — the Douglas Aircraft Co. — realized that its new DC3 still would be playing a major role in air transportation a quarter century later.

The saga of the DC3 (D for Douglas, C for commercial) — has no parallel in aviation history. It is the most remarkable and successful airplane ever built. Douglas turned out about 12,000 DC-3's and half of them still are flying, with more than 600 used on scheduled airlines throughout the world.

There are 276 DC3's now flying in U.S. scheduled airline service alone. Douglas itself says there is no way to tell how many passengers it has flown in 25 years but estimates the total at a conservative 650 million.

Pilots are a notoriously unsentimental lot, but not where the DC3 is concerned. It was always a "pilot's plane" — dependable, easy to handle, untemperamental, unbelievably sturdy and almost completely forgiving of cockpit mistakes. From the day of its first flight, it was remarkably free of "bugs," with one exception — the cockpit windshields often leak in rain, leading a pilot to radio on one occasion "light rain outside, heavy rain inside."

The relability of the DC-3 s ai legend. A DC3 lost five feet of wing structure in a collision and landed safely. Another ripped 12 feet from its left wing when it brushed a mountain, turned around and flew 40 miles back to the airport. A DC-3 in World War II once carried 74 passengers, which is something of a minor miracle for a plane designed to carry 21.

One of the most famous DC3's was "Whistling Willie." Willie was strafed by Japanese fighters and the holes in the wngs and fuselage were patched with canvas. Willie took off with 61 war-refugees and flew from China to India. Enroute, the plane encountered a monsoon and all the canvas patches tore loose. When Willie landed, an Air Corps major told the pilot:

"You didn't need to radio us. We could hear you coming for 50 miles."

The DC3 has had many names. It's "Dakota" to the British, "C47" to the Air Force and "Gooney Bird" to thousands of revering pilots who regarded a DC3 as only slightly less effective than prayer in a tight squeeze. They still tell of the DC3 that collided with a Jap Zero. The fighter crashed but the DC3 landed safely with all but 18 inches of its rudder chewed away.

But more than sentiment has kept the DC3 legend alive. It was a plane that brought maturity and safety to commercial aviation. Not until the DC3 was introduced did insurance rates for pilots drop to the level of an ordinary pedestrian.

"It was the first airplane that could make money just hauling passengers," recalls President C. R. Smith of American Airlines.

The comment is significant. Until the DC 3 came along, as a pilot once put it, "aviation's greatest danger was starving to death." Up to 1936, the airlines carried more mail than passengers. The DC3 changed this literally overnight because its reliability gave the airlines what they needed almost as much as money — a reputation for safety.

The most amazing thing about the DC 3 is that its safety reputation never dwindled even when newer, faster and more efficient airliners went into service. The DC3 for years has been operating under an indefinite government airworthiness certificate because it can't meet modern performance standards. But no Civil Aeronautics Board official dares suggest that maybe the old gal should stop hauling passengers.

"First, we'd get lynched," one CAB man explained. "Second, it's still a helluva safe airplane."

American was the first of the major airlines to retre its entire DC3 fleet. That was in 1949 and American oe rdttelh foasstic American offered the last of its "Dee-Cee's" to the Smithsonian as a museum piece — much to the annoyance of the other airlines still flying DC3's. But even today, the plane refuses to be relegated to museum status. When United merged with Capital, it retained three of Capital's DC3's for short-haul use but scrapped all of Capital's Constellations and DC4's — another tribute to this remarkable airliner.

In a way, the durability of the DC3 also is a tribute to the maintenance procedures of U.S. airlines. There really is no such thing as an old DC3 still flying. North Central Airlines is believed to be operating the oldest DC3 in scheduled service—N-21728, which came out of the Douglas plant on August 17, 1939, and was delivered originally to Eastern Air Lines.

In 1952, Eastern sold the plane to North Central. As of June 25, 1961, N-21728 will have flown 74,583 hours, consumed 6,690,960 gallons of gas at a cost of $2,341,836, used 119 different engines, worn out 497 main landing gear tires, gone through six major reconditionings, and fired 21,456 spark plugs.

Probers Forced Man To Resign, Senator Asserts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D - Ark., claimed today a Senate investigaion forced Gordon M. Tiffany to resign as staff director of the Civil Rights Commission.

McClellan, chairman of the Government Operations Committee, said the investigation and closed - door hearings held last year showed Tiffany lacked both executive ability and competence for the job.

McClellan, in a speech accompanying the submission of the committee's report, said "the lack of competence and the arbitary actions of Mr. Tiffany made it quite clear that inefficiency prevailed in this agency."

Tiffany, former New Hampshire attorney general, was named staff director by former President Eisenhower shortly after the commission was created in 1957. He resigned last January.

George Washington laid the cornerstone of the U.S. Capitol on Sept. 18, 1793.
