KGB, Oswald link

MOSCOW — The Soviet KGB never recruited the assassin of President John F. Kennedy, but thought he was a Western spy and kept him under constant surveillance, a newspaper reported Friday. Lee Harvey Oswald was kept under watch while he lived in Minsk from 1959 to 1962, and might have been drugged to make him talkative, according to the newspaper Izvestia./9A

Airman's wife sues

SAN ANTONIO — The wife and son of a 19-year-old airman want almost $16 million from the Air Force because it waited nearly four months last year to inform him he had tested positive for the virus that causes AIDS. As a result, Charity Krouse says, she and her son, Christopher, now also are infected with the virus. Airman Douglas Krouse told the San Antonio Light he believes the virus was transmitted accidentally to him through the negligent use of an air-jet injection device when he received his immunizations upon entering basic training./7A

Texas GOP battle

AUSTIN — Texas Republicans on Friday accused Democratic leaders of breaking the law by changing state Senate districts, and asked a federal three-judge panel to overturn the decision. The court scheduled an Aug. 17 hearing in Austin. Democrats criticized the legal maneuvering as adding to voter confusion. "Disturbances that now complicate our Texas Senate elections are the direct result of arrogant Republicans twisting our judicial system into a partisan playground," said Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin. /5A

Broccoli's revenge

HOUSTON — President Bush may not welcome this news, but a lot of broccoli is coming to town just before the GOP convention. The National Broccoli Party will present its own "platform" and announce its presidential candidate at an Aug. 14 press conference at a yet to be determined location in Houston. Chefs will present several broccoli dishes and their recipes, but it's doubtful they will generate any presidential interest. Bush has said repeatedly he doesn't like broccoli and will not eat it. In addition, one ton of broccoli will be erected behind the press conference podium. Organizers said the broccoli will be donated by MANN Packing Co. to the Houston Food Bank. The National Broccoli Party is a project of the Houston Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association and the Houston "5 A Day."

Police await autopsy results

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

BIG SPRING — Results of an autopsy expected to determine the cause of death of a 9-year-old girl should be available early next week, according to Howard County Justice of the Peace William Shankles.

Charlotte Robinson was found by her parents Wednesday night in a clothes dryer in her home. She had been playing hide-and-seek with five other children — including four siblings and a neighbor.

"She had several burn marks that looked like electrical burns," Shankles said. "However we're guessing there was a short because the dryer had not been turned on."

Police responded to the scene at 511 Benton St. at 11:56 p.m. Wednesday.

The autopsy was performed by Dr. David Hoblit on Friday.

Bush, U.N. urge caution about force in Bosnia

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Fresh allegations of atrocities by Serb forces in Bosnia surfaced Friday, but both President Bush and a senior U.N. commander counseled caution about military intervention.

President Bush, responding to swelling outrage in the world community, said the United States "will not rest" until Serbs grant full access to their detention camps. But he also said any use of force would have to be taken in conjunction with the United Nations.

Jobless rate makes slight drop in July

■ Federal jobs program boosts payroll employment by largest amount in 2 years.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate fell slightly to 7.7 percent in July as a federal summer jobs program helped to send payroll employment up by the largest amount in two years, the government said Friday.

President Bush hailed the first dip in the jobless rate since April as good news that the country was "poised for a strong recovery."

But Bill Clinton, his Democratic opponent, and various private economists said the slight decline in the jobless rate did little to change their view that the economy was still in the doldrums.

The July figure represented a break after two straight months in which unemployment had worsened significantly, surging by 0.6 percentage point to an eight-year-high of 7.8 percent in June.

The slight improvement last month still left 9.76 million Americans unemployed, down by 215,000 from the previous month, according to a survey of households.

A separate payroll survey said that the economy created 198,000 jobs in July, the biggest gain since May 1990, but manufacturing employment was essentially flat after a big drop the month before. Widespread weakness continued in defense-related industries while construction posted a second straight monthly drop, falling 15,000.

Source: U.S. Dept. of Labor AP

All of the strength was located in services, with restaurants and bars posting good gains, and in the government sector, which posted a gain of 88,000. Of that increase, 60,000 came from an emergency program passed by Congress in the wake of the Los Angeles riots to supply temporary employment for teen-agers.

Analysts said the federally funded program would have little impact on the underlying economy. They said the jobless rate could well rise once the program ends in September.

"The picture for employment is still relatively bleak," said John Albertine, head of a Washington forecasting firm. "The drop in the unemployment rate was just a tease. The economy is still in

Teen stands up to gang; courage wins scholarship

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A 16-year-old boy shot by a member of a gang that harassed him for refusing to sell drugs said Friday he'll continue to stand up to the gang because "you've just got to do what you think is right."

"I was doing something I believe in, so I shouldn't be afraid," said 16-year-old Winfred Rembert Jr. as he recuperated in the Hospital of St. Raphael from a gunshot wound to the stomach.

Postmaster general plans to make major staff cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Marvin Runyon announced plans Friday for a sharp cut in the postal work force, moving to trim 30,000 workers from the U.S. Postal Service.

"We're not mad at the 30,000, they're not bad," Runyon told a closed-circuit conference with postal managers. "We're just trying to fix the organization so it can be competitive."

The number of senior postal managers will be cut from 42 to 24 and Runyon said major changes will be made in the post office's management structure.

Five regional offices and more than 50 district offices will be closed, eliminating a layer of management jobs, Runyon said later.

Houston bags gifts for GOP delegates

By Shelby Hodge
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — When the Republican delegates and alternates roll into town later this week, they will begin receiving a cattle rustler's ransom in goodies, compliments of the Houston Host Committee's hospitality subcommittee.

Anyone with good manners knows that the best way to make guests feel welcome is to lavish them with gifts and attention. So the hospitality folks are doing just that for those attending the convention.

At check-in, GOP visitors can claim their two gift bags, one filled with information and the other brimming with 35 treats, ranging from jalapeno-flavored suckers to bolo ties, sunglasses and vitamins. And just in case the platform debates don't sit well, Maalox tablets are included.

Golf caps, coffee mugs, "Howdy from Houston" postcards, Houston Oilers drinking glasses, hand fans, key chains, T-shirts, country-western tapes, pencils and note pads are among the treasures to be found in the red, white and blue duffel bags, courtesy of AT&T. Information will fill the canvas tote bags, donated by Texas Commerce Bank.

In addition to that, delegates and alternates will receive a room gift each day of the convention, beginning with their arrival.

Cindy Garbs, host committee volunteer, said the committee has been working for six months on procurement of the various items.

"First, we want the delegates to feel welcome and second, we want them to be impressed beyond belief. It's like going for the gold, as they say, and we're excited about the opportunity to market Houston," Garbs said.

France, Britain resist Bush's bid to win U.N. support of force

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — President Bush's effort to seek U.N. authorization for the use of force to deliver food and medicine to Bosnia-Herzegovina ran into resistance Friday from Britain and France, who called it a hasty and ill prepared reaction to political concerns in the United States.

Diplomats said that Britain and France agreed with the United States on the need for some show of force to demonstrate that past warnings to the Balkan factions to cooperate with U.N. relief work and honor innumerable cease-fire agreements made and broken were not bluffs.

Such warnings to the combatants in the former Yugoslav republics were issued at the Lisbon meeting of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe in June and again at the Munich summit meeting of the seven largest industrialized nations in July.

The allies also made clear Friday that they expect Bush's tougher stance to result in the Security Council's adopting a new resolution sometime next week authorizing the use of force, even though there is no agreement on precisely what it should say.

Bush vowed Friday that he would not rest until Serbian-run prison camps were opened to outside inspection, but he stopped short of threatening to bomb Serbian positions and targets to gain access.

But Britain and France were questioning aspects of American proposals, including the military value of Bush's offer to provide air cover for relief convoys driving into Bosnia, which they said would not be effective because the main threat comes from ambushes, mines, barricades and sniper fire.

Instead, Britain and France were pressing for strengthening the existing U.N. peacekeeping force in Bosnia and making it a real fighting force capable of escorting the convoys to their destinations and overcoming resistance.

The United States has suggested rapid passage of a vaguer resolution similar to the one that authorized the Persian Gulf War. This resolution would permit unspecified countries to use "all necessary means" to insure relief supplies get through.

This would allow countries to assemble a force with the Security Council's approval but not under the U.N. flag.

Britain and France argue that such a resolution promises to create more problems than it resolves because it would probably oblige the United Nations to withdraw its small and poorly armed peacekeeping contingent from Bosnia for its own protection.

The Serbs have already warned they will treat the peacekeepers as enemies if the Security Council sides with the Bosnian government and votes to authorize forceful intervention in the country.

Which countries would be willing to lend troops to a large, heavily armed force capable of smashing relief corridors through the Serbian lines is far from clear, British and French diplomats say. Bush appeared to rule out sending American ground forces to Bosnia at his news conference in Colorado Springs on Thursday.

Germany is constitutionally barred from deploying troops outside the NATO area. Bosnia refuses to accept Italian forces because they occupied parts of it during World War II. British Prime Minister John Major has made clear that he is reluctant to send troops, and Russia does not want to fight another Slavic nation.

The domestic pressures to which the French and British diplomats attribute Bush's actions have been fueled in recent days by the revelations of new atrocities including reports of Serbian-run detention camps as well as by the tough stance taken by Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton.

They say that American diplomats appeared to have been taken by surprise by the president's new appraoch when they met with their British and French counterparts Friday and were often unclear about just what the administration wanted.

As a result, the three western allies are still drafting a new resolution and have not started discussing their ideas with other permanent members of the council.

The approach Britain and France favor could involve providing the peacekeeping force with allied air cover, which these two countries see as mainly useful in striking back at any fixed artillery positions that were the source of attacks on the convoys.

But it might also require sending in some additional troops and it would certainly involve equipping them with more armored vehicles as well as the capability to detect and disarm land mines.

U.N.: Agency knew of summary executions, ambassador says

(From 1A)

United States bogged down in any way into some guerrilla warfare," Bush said.

The Red Cross said it has visited three Serb-run detention centers in Bosnia and found harsh conditions, but no evidence so far of Nazi-style death camps.

At the United Nations, meanwhile, Bosnian Ambassador Mohamed Sacirby released a report showing that U.N. peacekeepers knew about summary executions of Muslims as far back as May. The report was written by a peacekeeper and based on interviews with 18 witnesses.

It was never forwarded to the Security Council so it could consider action, officials said.

The memo was passed part way up the bureaucratic chain of command, officials said, and then referred to the Red Cross, which has been trying to get into camps to inspect them.

Also Friday, Yugoslav Premier Milan Panic said he will order Serb officials in Bosnia to close the camps within 30 days or resign. But he acknowledged he has no authority over Serbs in Bosnia.

Panic and his Croatian counterpart, Franjo Greguric, agreed in Budapest, Hungary on the exchange of 1,500 prisoners, including 400 Serbs, scheduled for Aug. 14.

The United Nations and other sources have accused all sides in the former Yugoslavia of atrocities. Most of the latest allegations have focused on Serbs.

Muslims who were held in Serb-run camps in northwest Bosnia have told AP reporters of beatings, rapes, killings and starvation diets. Television footage has shown gaunt figures with protruding ribs in scenes reminiscent of Nazi concentration camps.

So far, the U.N. role has been limited to humanitarian work, including delivering food and medical supplies. But there have been increasing demands, including from some U.S. lawmakers, for military intervention.

Gen. Philippe Morillon, deputy commander of U.N. peacekeepers in Yugoslavia, told reporters, "What I'm sure of is that no military solution exists" at the United Nations.

"I'm a soldier, and I know perfectly well that military intervention will mean 100,000 more casualties and dead," he said.

Relief flights into Sarajevo, suspended Tuesday, were to resume early today, U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said late Friday.

In Brussels, diplomats said NATO nations were weighing military steps, including creating a land corridor and monitoring heavy arms, to help get food and medicine to Bosnia.

But Germany's defense minister ruled out sending troops into Bosnia even though other nations may consider it.

Britain, meanwhile, called for an emergency meeting of the U.N. Human Rights Commission to launch an investigation of the prison camps.

Gorazde, about 30 miles southeast of Sarajevo, is the last stronghold of Bosnian government forces in eastern Bosnia. It has been besieged for more than three months.

Residents of Brcko, a Serb-held town, told an AP reporter Thursday that Serb militiamen had held 2,000 people in a warehouse, and one witness claimed as many as 400 had been killed.

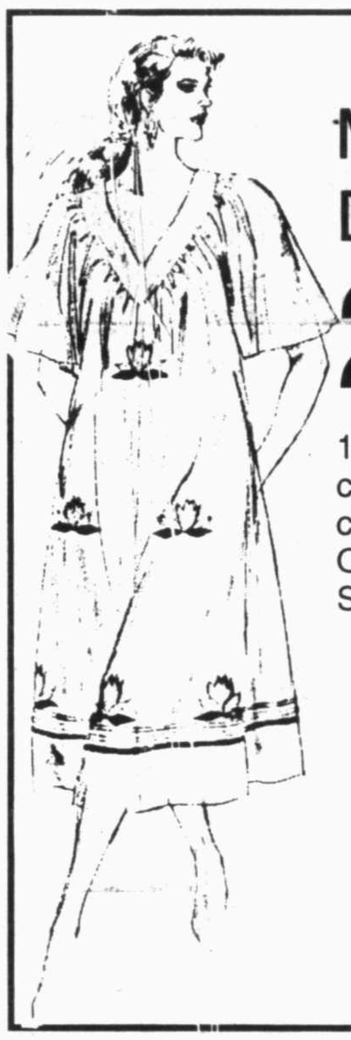

Serb authorities denied the warehouse had been a camp and said it was used as a barracks for Serb fighters. The floor of the warehouse was littered with discarded shoes, socks, bottles and cans.

The contradictory claims came during a trip organized by the Serbian government to disprove reports of internment camps.

Pierre Gauthier, spokesman for the International Committee of the Red Cross, said Friday the Swiss-run agency was pressing for access to a camp at Omarska, the scene of reported beatings, starvation and executions, and expected to get permission to visit it soon.

Gauthier said Red Cross representatives have so far visited 4,200 prisoners at 10 internment centers in Bosnia. Three of them are run by Serbs.

"If we had found any death camps, we would have been obliged to shout," Gauthier said. "For the moment, this isn't the case."

WEATHER SUMMARY

The Accu-Weather® forecast for noon today.

Temperatures climb to 90s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the upper 90s and south winds at 10 to 15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the mid-70s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Sunday should be mostly sunny with a high in the upper 90s.

After an overnight low of 64, Friday's high reached 99 compared with the record high for Aug. 7 of 104 set in 1952. The record low for that date is 54 set in 1989.

STATE

The heat wave continued across the state Friday, and temperatures are expected to rise even more over the weekend.

Parts of West and South Texas saw the only relief from the heat as a few thunderstorms developed over the southwest mountains and in the Beaumont area.

Temperatures over most of the state Friday were in the low to mid-90s. The hottest areas were the Rio Grande Plains and in South Texas near Wink, where temperatures neared or hit 100.

The state will see some of the hottest temperatures of the summer this weekend.

A heat advisory is in effect for North Texas through today with daytime heat index values ranging from 105 to 110 degrees. Skies will be clear to partly cloudy through Sunday. Highs today and Sunday will range from 95 to 101. Lows will be in the mid- to upper 70s.

South Texas may see some breaks from the heat this weekend with daytime isolated showers and thunderstorms. Highs will be from 100 to 106 in the Rio Grande Plains and 90s elsewhere. Lows will be in the 70s.

NATION

Rain and thunderstorms hit the Mississippi Valley and the Atlantic coast Friday and temperatures topped 100 in parts of California and Arizona.

Thundershowers brought as much as 2 inches of rain to the mountain areas of the Hawaiian islands of Oahu and Kauai. Rain also fell in the central Gulf of Mexico states, the Pacific northwest, northern Maine, central Kentucky, central Arizona and portions of Minnesota.

Heavier rainfall during the 6 hours ending at 1 p.m. CDT included 1.04 inches in Minneapolis and .96 inches in Duluth, both in Minnesota.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 p.m. CDT ranged from 55 degrees in Grand Marais, Minn., to 101 degrees in Needles, Calif., and Yuma, Ariz.

At midday, temperatures in much of the southern Plains states reached the low and mid-90s. The low in Atlantic City, N.J., cooled to 51 and broke the record there for the date of 55.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

JOBLESS: Analysts see economy in doldrums

(From 1A)

neutral and the parking brake is on."

Speaking to reporters shortly after the release of the jobless figure, Bush conceded that the economy has been performing "anemically" but he termed the big jump in jobs in July a signal that better days were ahead.

He said Americans need to understand this instead of the "political rhetoric that they have been handed for month after month about how horrible things are."

Democrats, who are pinning much of their hopes for recapturing the White House on unhappiness about the sour economy, played down the July improvement.

Campaigning in LaCrosse, Wis., Clinton said the July dip in unemployment did not change the fact that "most Americans are working harder for lower pay than in 1980. That cannot be turned around without a new economic plan that goes way beyond trickle-down economics."

The July report showed that the industrial states of New York, New Jersey, Michigan and Pennsylvania saw unemployment worsen in July and that, while there was an improvement in California, its jobless rate of 8.9 percent was still well above the national average.

The 1,000 increase in manufacturing jobs came even though defense-related industries lost 17,000 more jobs. In June, manufacturing employment had fallen by 52,000.

While saying that the economy remained weak, analysts said they believed there was enough strength in the July report to keep the Federal Reserve on the sidelines.

A month ago, the Fed cut interest rates for the 23rd time in the last three years as the central bank continued to battle the sluggish economy.

Those reductions have driven mortgage rates down to levels not seen in nearly two decades. The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said Friday that the national average for fixed-rate mortgages was 8.06 percent for this week, basically unchanged from last week's rate of 8.05 percent.

GIFTS: Goodies range from sunglasses to Maalox

(From 1A)

Excited, yes, but perhaps a bit weary after she and a host of volunteers assembled the 6,000 gift bags. The next challenge will be to have the bags delivered and the daily gifts channeled to the hotel rooms, which are widespread across the city. Garbs explained that numerous delivery companies have volunteered to handle the tricky task of distribution.

If all goes well, delegates will receive a fruit basket on Sunday, as well as a bottle of Texas wine. Monday is munchies time with a Nabisco snack pack that includes full-sized packages of Oreos, Chips Ahoy, chewing gum, Life Savers, cheese curls, cheese spread, peanuts and more. Tuesday's gift will light up every chocoholic's week with an acrylic cowboy boot filled with red, white and blue M&Ms. On Wednesday, delegates will receive the Risky Strategy board game (you win when you are elected president) and bottles of McCulloch's Sparkling Water. For the Thursday finale, custom-made fortune cookies bearing good wishes from Houston will be accompanied by a "Y'all Come Back!" balloon.

Garbs points out that all items have been donated by organizations or manufacturers connected with the products.

If they keep all the convention gift-bag loot, delegates also will be lugging home copies of Texas Parks and Wildlife magazine, a children's recipe book, Houston skyline photo album, an Oilers pin, hand lotion, lots of haircare samples, lip balm, M.D. Anderson Christmas cards, a gardening book and binoculars.

SHOT: 'You've got to do what's right,' teen says

(From 1A)

they had roughed him up and damaged his bicycle.

He said the gang member, a 15-year-old who has since been arrested on a first-degree assault charge, was shooting at his brother, not him.

Rembert said the gang probably would not have picked on his brother if it had not been for his refusal to sell drugs, just as his parents had said after the shooting.

"They never before had anyone stand up to them and actually say 'No,'" said Rembert, a 6-foot-3 high school junior.

He said he believed the shooting was meant to "make a point to the neighborhood that you can't say 'no' to us."

"They never before had anyone stand up to them and actually say 'No.'"

— Winfred Rembert Jr.

But Rembert said he'll continue to treat the gang's bullying the way he always has — by ignoring it. "You've just got to do what you think is right," he said.

Albertus Magnus College, a private liberal arts college in New Haven, offered Rembert a full scholarship this week for his courage. He said he'll probably accept the offer.

While saying he wasn't afraid of the gang, even after the shooting, he said he won't hang around the neighborhood much once he gets home.

A member of the high school basketball team, he'll be able to practice on a hoop his father put up in their back yard so he could avoid gang members who have harassed him at a school playground.

Very few kids in the neighborhood are able to resist the gang, he said.

He said he refused to join because "I want a better life."

Drug dealers first approached him shortly after the family moved to the neighborhood five years ago, he said. "It wasn't like they asked anyone, it was like a telling," he said.

A year ago, Rembert said he was confronted in a school cafeteria by the gang, which tried to lure him into drug dealing with the promise of fast money.

DEATHS

Truman Blair

Services for Truman Blair, 71, are set for 3 p.m. today at Fairmont Park Church of Christ with Jay Channel of Bentonville, Ark., Gary Bodine of Clovis, N.M., and Ralph Gates of Midland officiating. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Republicans launch district lines battle

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Republicans on Friday accused Democratic leaders of breaking the law by changing state Senate districts, and asked a federal three-judge panel to overturn the decision.

The court scheduled an Aug. 17 hearing in Austin.

Democrats criticized the legal maneuvering as adding to voter confusion.

"Disturbances that now complicate our Texas Senate elections are the direct result of arrogant Republicans twisting our judicial system into a partisan playground," said Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin.

The volleys followed Thursday's order by Secretary of State John Hannah to change the Senate district boundaries from the ones that were in place for the March primary elections.

Under Hannah's order, the Senate boundaries for the November general elections will be those that were adopted by the Legislature and approved last week by a federal three-judge panel in Washington, D.C.

That plan is supported by Democratic leaders and minority groups. The boundaries in place for the primary elections were mapped by a federal three-judge panel in Texas. That plan was favored by Republicans because the boundaries were set in a way that would increase GOP representation in the 31-member Senate.

Republicans accused Hannah of "bait-and-switch" tactics by changing the boundaries in mid-campaign, and circumventing the Texas judges' order.

"This state cannot be governed by whim and political desire, and party and state officials cannot be allowed to trample on valid laws and court orders," the GOP's motion said.

The Republican Party filed its motion before the three-judge panel in U.S. district court in Austin. The GOP sought an immediate court order to stop Hannah's action, and then a permanent order to re-establish the other district boundaries.

If the change in boundaries is allowed to stand, many voters will be selecting candidates that did not run in their district during the primaries.

"Hannah's directive forces some areas of the state to pick between candidates that not only were not nominated by that area, but were nominated by voters hundreds of miles away," the motion said.

"Under Hannah's plan, voters in overwhelmingly Anglo Abilene will select between the candidates chosen by the predominantly Hispanic communities in the Rio Grande Valley," it said.

Texas Republican Party chairman Fred Meyer also maintained that the Republican-backed plan was better for minorities. Asked why no minority group favored the GOP plan, he said those groups "are Democrat first and represent minorities second."

POSTAL: Top official plans to trim work force

(From 1A)

In addition, he said money would be saved by eliminating costly programs including the purchase of furniture, computers and real estate.

"We've got regions, divisions and headquarters. We've got redundancy," he said. "When you fix that, you have people left over."

Runyon told the postal managers that about 140,000 long-term employees will be eligible for an early retirement option starting Aug. 17. Those who choose to leave would receive a lump sum of six months' pay and would remain eligible for pensions, he said.

The postmaster general said he anticipates that about 40,000 employees will accept the offer and about one-fourth of those will have to be replaced later.

The moves are part of a cost-cutting campaign aimed at eliminating an anticipated $2 billion deficit next year. In addition, Runyon said he hopes to postpone the next postage-rate increase that had been expected to occur by 1994.

Eliminating 30,000 jobs would save nearly half of the projected deficit, he said. Other cost-cutting moves are being investigated, as well as finding ways to increase postal income, he said.

Asked what would happen if not enough people accepted the incentive to retire, he said, "We'll just have to wait and see." No one would be pressured to leave, he added later.

Indeed, some workers whose skills are in short supply will not be eligible for the early retirement program. These include maintenance workers, rural carriers and postal inspectors, among others.

Overall postal management, which has grown over the years, would be cut by about one-fourth. The Post Office has about 130,000 managers among its nearly 740,000 workers.

Moe Biller, president of the American Postal Workers Union, said he supports the idea of reducing the bureaucracy.

"I'm excited, but I cannot pass judgment yet," said Biller, whose union does not represent the managers targeted for reduction.

The cuts were welcomed by Art Sackler, managing director of the Mailers Council, a trade group.

Runyon, who took office only a month ago, "is living up to his commitment to reduce bureaucracy, to reduce layers of management. ... this is something the mailing community has been looking for some time now," Sackler said.

The cuts continue a trend of reductions in postal employment.

Convicted baby killer gets another chance for parole

AUSTIN (AP) — Convicted baby killer Genene Jones, who in 1984 was sentenced to 99 years in prison, is being considered for parole again, a newspaper has reported.

Parole officials are re-examining Ms. Jones' case and are expected to make a decision in October or November, the Kerrville Daily Times reported recently.

Ms. Jones was convicted of killing 15-month old Chelsea McClellan by fatal injection. The baby died Sept. 17, 1982 after suffering mysterious seizures while in the care of Ms. Jones, who worked as a nurse in a Kerrville pediatrician's office.

The case gained national publicity and recently was the subject of a television movie.

"I consider her to be one of the most dangerous people in the United States ... the most sensational child killer in the U.S.," said 198th District Attorney Ron Sutton.

Airman's wife seeks $16 million from Air Force

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The wife and son of a 19-year-old airman want almost $16 million from the Air Force because it waited nearly four months last year to inform him he had tested positive for the virus that causes AIDS.

As a result, Charity Krouse says, she and her son, Christopher, now also are infected with the virus.

Airman Douglas Krouse told the San Antonio Light he believes the virus was transmitted accidentally to him through the negligent use of an air-jet injection device when he received his immunizations upon entering basic training.

"He has none of the risk factors for getting AIDS," said Russell J. Augsburger, a San Antonio attorney working on the claim.

Krouse joined the Air Force in July 1991. Notes in his file show that HIV tests administered on May 24, 1990, and July 28, 1991, were both negative.

A couple of weeks later, while in basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, he tested HIV-positive. But Krouse says he wasn't told of the positive screening until Dec. 6, when a doctor informed him at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M., where Krouse is now stationed.

Later that month, Krouse and his fiancee took emergency leave to their hometown in Toledo, Ohio, where she tested positive for the virus, the airman said.

Their son was born March 24 in Alamogordo, N.M., and tested positive for the virus last spring at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center, Krouse said.

The Krouses claim that if he had been told sooner, he might have prevented his wife from getting the virus and passing it on to their son.

"We could have taken precautions," Mrs. Krouse said. "Now we have an innocent child infected who has never done anything."

Augsburger said the immunization shots are administered by air gun to dozens of recruits at a time. The shots are capable of drawing blood, which Augsburger said can be passed from one recruit to another.

Gay activists say they will annoy GOP convention delegates

HOUSTON (AP) — Gay activists say they are planning to agitate Republican National Convention delegates and even may resort to damaging property to gain attention to the issues of gay rights and AIDS research funding.

Some out-of-state members of ACT-UP and Queer Nation said they have been studying Texas law to find out how much property can be destroyed before being charged with a felony, The Houston Post reported Friday.

Hard-core activists, some of whom are dying from AIDS, are coming to Houston and will be risking arrest to try to get their point across.

"Our goal is to try to show the nation that the Republicans have had a genocidal attitude toward gays," said Jim Hull, an ACT-UP member from Kansas City.

Hull said he doesn't expect anyone will be physically harmed during the protests.

"But I can't say that somebody won't mess with a car, such as slitting the tires or pouring sugar into the gas tank," he added.

Houston lawyer Greg Gladden said he has been answering questions about what exactly constitutes a misdemeanor and how far that extends before it becomes a felony.

Gladden, a member of the National Lawyers Guild, said about 50 lawyers will be in town for the duration of the convention to answer activists' questions and to aid any of those arrested.

"Many of these people coming to Houston honestly don't have long to live," said Paul Mullan, a Houston Queer Nation activist. "They can't survive four more years of Bush who totally neglects the AIDS crisis."

Mullan and activists know where the delegates are staying, where they will be eating and "we will be confronting our anger to them and they will know it."

The activists, however, said they want to squelch rumors that members will try to spit, scratch or throw AIDS-infected blood on people.

KGB did not recruit Oswald, newspaper says

■ More world news/4C

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet KGB never recruited the assassin of President John F. Kennedy, but thought he was a Western spy and kept him under constant surveillance, a newspaper reported Friday.

Lee Harvey Oswald was kept under watch while he lived in Minsk from 1959 to 1962, and might have been drugged to make him talkative, according to the newspaper Izvestia.

Oswald, who married a Soviet woman and worked in a Minsk factory, returned to the United States several months before Kennedy's 1963 assassination.

The Warren Commission that investigated the assassination concluded that Oswald acted alone when he shot Kennedy and found no evidence of Soviet involvement.

The commission's findings were never fully accepted, and conspiracy theories have spread like wildfire. The controversy over the assassination recently was reopened by the Oliver Stone film, "JFK."

Oswald arrived in the Soviet Union on Oct. 15, 1959 and asked Soviet authorities for political asylum the following day. After his request was denied, he attempted to commit suicide on Oct. 21 by slashing his wrist, Isvestia reported.

In November of that year, the Soviets agreed to allow Oswald to stay temporarily and ordered him to settle in Minsk where the KGB could more conveniently watch him. Oswald was code-named "nalim," the Russian word for burbot, a cod-like fish.

Izvestia quoted security official in Belarus as saying the KGB kept Oswald under a 24-hour watch, suspecting he was a foreign spy, but never interrogated him directly.

The newspaper interviewed Belarussian KGB chief Eduard Shirkovsky, who said that "perhaps, some pills were put into his glass, the kind of pills to make him relaxed, more talkative."

The KGB probably bugged Oswald's apartment, and its agents offered him secret information and engaged him in anti-Soviet discussions, according to Izvestia.

In Minsk, the KGB used a new code name to report on Oswald, "Likhoy" — which both means "the dashing one" in Russian and is an acronym of Oswald's name.

The KGB also interrogated Pavel Golovachev, who worked with Oswald at the Horizon Radio Factory in Minsk, ordering him to supply information on Oswald. It was not clear whether Golovachev agreed, the newspaper said.

Izvestia said Oswald apparently suspected that he was under watch. He and his wife, Marina, warned their neighbors to be careful about talking to them.

In the end, the KGB concluded that Oswald was not a spy. Its representatives also deny that he was recruited as a Soviet agent, Izvestia reported.

Izvestia quoted a high-ranking security official as saying only one or two people in the state KGB knew full details about the surveillance operation, which involved about 20 agents.

The newspaper said the information on Oswald could not be verified, but cited "experts" as saying that his KGB dossier, No. 31451, was too bulky for an agent's — about six folders thick. Izvestia said Soviet agents' dossiers usually consisted of one thin folder.

Friday's article was the second in Izvestia's three-part report on the Oswald case.

In its previous report, Izvestia said reformist KGB chairman Vadim Bakatin tried to release files on Oswald last year but was blocked by veteran agents who feared disclosure of their names and methods.

Russian intelligence officers say the files shed no light on the Kennedy assassination. But they have nevertheless balked at releasing them, despite greater openness in the country since the collapse of the Communist regime.

Bakatin took over the KGB during a wave of reform after the failure of the hard-line coup last August. He reviewed the Oswald case and then agreed to Shirkovsky's request to ship the files to Minsk for review.

Bakatin has since been replaced and the KGB split into smaller agencies.

European mood grows angry at EC inaction

LONDON (AP) — Touched by nightly pictures of death and starvation in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Europeans are turning up the pressure on hesitant politicians to do something to stop the fighting and atrocities.

While there is nothing like a mass movement building, even in the traditional August doldrums Europeans have been active in donating food, offering their homes to refugees and sending checks to orphanages.

The memories of the Holocaust are sharp.

"It's as if we'd turned the clock back 50 years. You just have to replace the word 'Muslim' with 'Jew.' It makes me ashamed to be human," Lies Vester wrote in a letter to the Dutch national daily De Volkskrant.

Britain's chief rabbi, Dr. Jonathan Sacks, said Friday that much had been made of the tactical difficulties of military intervention. "But too little has been said about the moral impossibility of non-intervention," he said.

A front-page editorial in the Publico newspaper of Lisbon accused Europe of "washing its hands at this distant insanity."

Newspapers in Holland, Belgium and Britain have carried editorials calling for immediate military intervention and criticizing the European Community's inability to act.

Pictures of emaciated prisoners at a Serbian-run prison camp were on front pages Friday in Britain — two newspapers headlined "Belsen 1992," recalling the notorious Nazi death camp.

August is vacation month in Europe. Many government officials are away, parliaments are in recess, and there has been no stirring of mass protest.

But the Dutch Cabinet is interrupting its summer recess for two days next week to discuss its contribution to any international military action.

Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd has canceled his August holiday although Britain, like Germany, is firmly against force.

"If anybody thought that with two or three days of sharp military action we could bring these sufferings to an end, the moral case would be overwhelming," Hurd told BBC radio. "But, of course, you then have to ask yourself how are you going to do it and is that way going to save lives, stop suffering or is there the danger of doing the reverse."

Prime Minister John Major has said he does not "detect any support in Parliament or in public opinion for operations which would tied down larger numbers of British forces in difficult and dangerous terrain for a long period."

In some European countries opposition leaders have called for more action against Serbia, considered the aggressor in the conflict in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

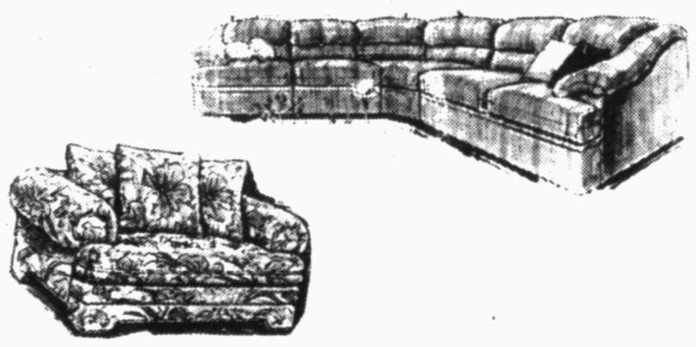

Britain's Liberal Democratic leader Paddy Ashdown has challenged the European Community to establish safe havens like those provided for the Kurds following the Gulf War, and military cover to prevent snipers attacking civilian areas like Sarajevo.

Youth admits to killing neighbor

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 14-year-old boy who admitted robbing, stabbing and setting fire to an invalid man has been sentenced to 35 years imprisonment.

The youth, whose name was withheld because he is a juvenile, was to have been tried in juvenile court next week for the July 15 murder of Thurmond Wilson, 58. He could not be tried as an adult because he was not 15 when the crime was committed.

But court-appointed defense attorney Hugh Savage said the teen-ager didn't want a trial.

"He was sorry about what happened. He wanted to come forward and admit he did it and did not want to go to trial," Savage said.

"It's bizarre," the attorney added. His client took money to fix his moped, then killed him "because if he took something, he didn't want to be caught."

The day Wilson was killed, the teen-ager told a Fort Worth Star-Telegram reporter that he was walking his dog along the street when he spotted smoke coming from Wilson's house. He said he grabbed two pillows and put out the flames on Wilson's body before a neighbor called an ambulance.

However, in his dramatic confession Thursday during a half-hour hearing before state District Judge Scott Moore, the youth said Wilson let him into his modest home.

The teen-ager said he later beat Wilson with a board and fatally stabbed him with a knife, then poured alcohol over the man's body and set him on fire.

Commission votes to temporarily lower tax

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission proposed a temporary tax break for charity bingo groups Friday, but said permanent relief must come from the Legislature.

"We're just giving some immediate first aid," said commission member Roy Orr.

The commission has heard from charity bingo operators who say a tax increase approved last year by lawmakers will force many of them out of business.

The proposed rule change would allow bingo groups to file tax reports twice a month, rather than once. That translates into a tax break because the groups are allowed to exempt $15,000 of their proceeds from taxation in each reporting period.

The change would mean $3,150 in tax relief per quarter, said charity bingo operator Jack Pinkerton of Houston, who serves on an advisory committee to the commission on the issue.

It also would mean an estimated $8 million loss in state revenue a year, according to TABC staff.

The commission is scheduled to consider giving the rule final approval in September, after allowing the opportunity for public comment. As proposed, the change would take effect Oct. 16, 1992, and expire May 31, 1993.

If approved, this would be the second tax break granted by the commission. In January, the panel changed its rules to allow bingo groups to file tax reports monthly, rather than quarterly.

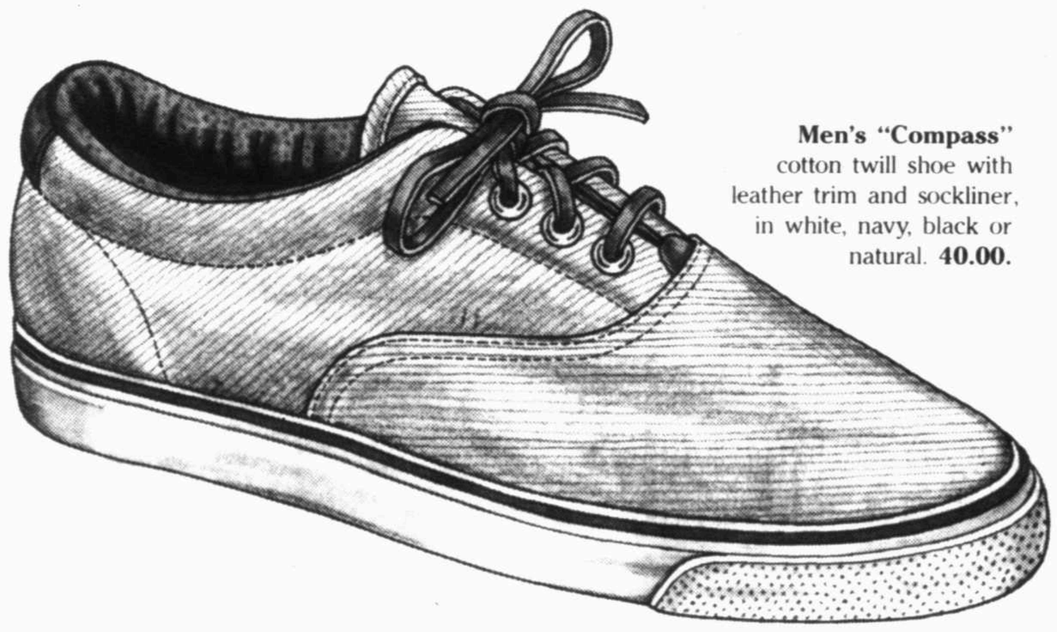

"I believe that these people need help. They need some relief. And the Legislature's not in session. They can't help them at this point," said commission Chairwoman Renee Higginbotham-Brooks.

The Legislature next meets in regular session in January 1993.

Beuerlein, Daluiso save Dallas

By Dan Sewell
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — Backup quarterback Steve Beuerlein threw two second-half touchdown passes and Brad Daluiso kicked a 24-yard field goal with 10 seconds left to give the Dallas Cowboys a 27-24 NFL exhibition victory Friday night over the Miami Dolphins.

Beuerlein hit 14 of 18 passes for 216 yards to bring Dallas back after Miami took a 21-7 halftime lead behind quarterback Dan Marino, who showed vintage form in his first action this year. Marino had 16 completions in 17 attempts for 163 yards and a touchdown.

Cowboys linebacker Bernard Clark, a former University of Miami star signed as a free agent, recovered a fumble by Dolphins tight end Doug Wellsandt at the Miami 40 with 2:14 left in a tie game. Beuerlein moved the Cowboys 34 yards in eight plays, then gave way to Daluiso for the game-winning kick on the ninth play of the drive.

Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman was also sharp, hitting 10 of 12 passes for 105 yards but left the game trailing 21-7 at the half. Neither Aikman nor Marino

Capriati stuns Graf

■ Steffi Graf, Sergei Bubka, Jackie Joyner-Kersee and the men's volleyball team are the big losers Friday.

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Sergei Bubka packed up his pole, pulled off his shoes and took a hike. He was the most startling dropout at a Summer Games where a lot of honor students played hooky Friday.

World champion Jackie Joyner-Kersee failed to defend her Olympic title in the long jump, No. 1-seeded Steffi Graf was upset by 16-year-old Jennifer Capriati for the tennis gold, and the two-time defending U.S. men's volleyball champions got stuffed by Brazil in the semifinals.

Capriati had won only three previous tournaments in her young career and had never reached the final of a Grand Slam event. This time, she slammed Graf in a baseline slugfest 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The turning point came at 4-4 with Graf serving in the final set. Capriati blew three break points before regaining the advantage, then ripped a forehand down the line to go ahead 5-4.

Serving for the victory, she was up 40-15 when Graf hit a forehand into the net, and the match was over. Capriati grinned her toothy, teen-age grin and blew a kiss to her parents in the stands.

There were no tears as she accepted the medal, but as the U.S. flag was raised, she bit her lower lip and sighed. When the anthem was over, she let out a triumphant whoop.

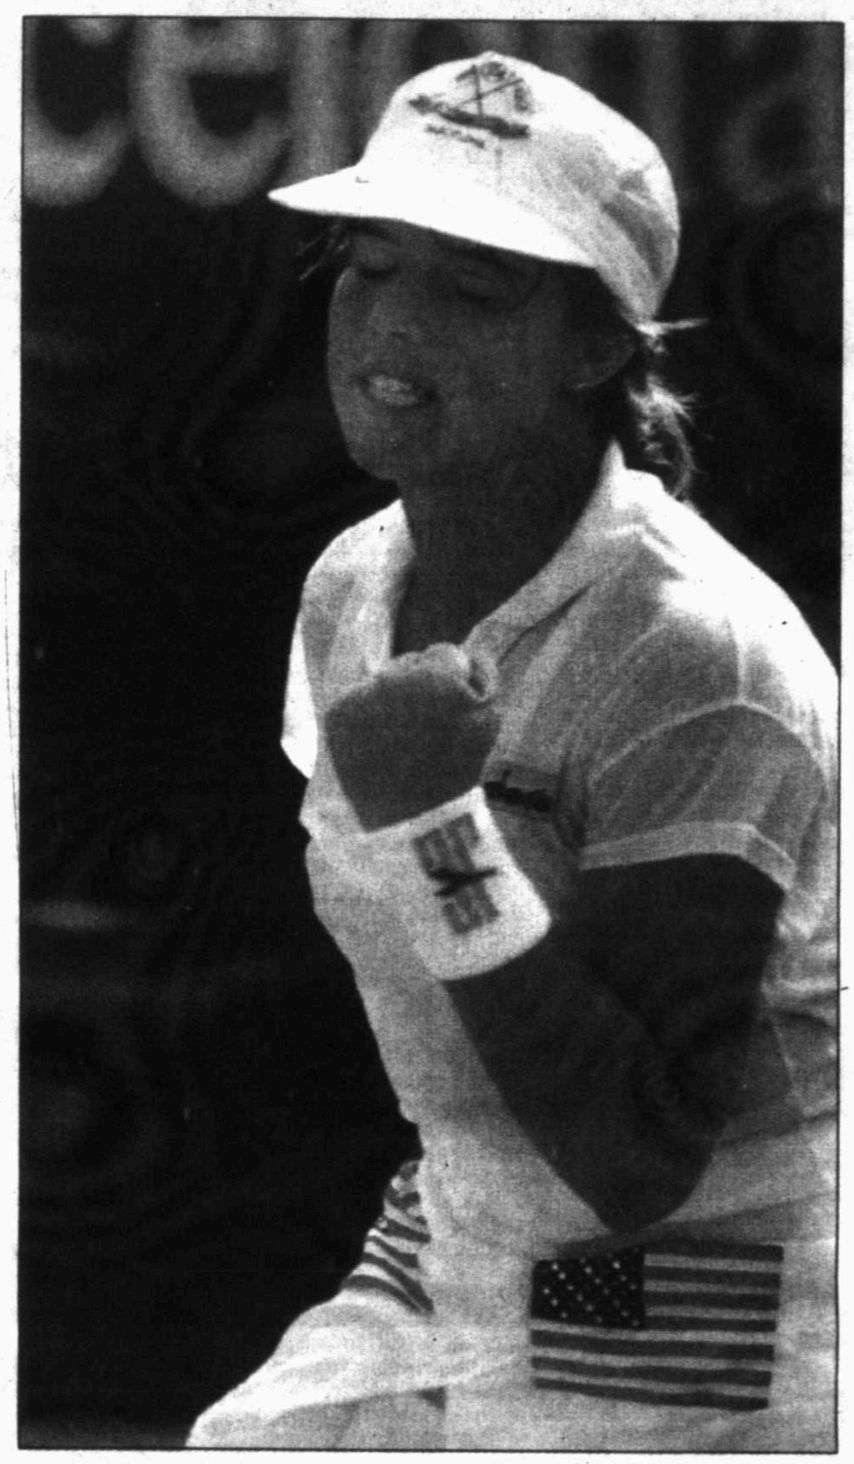

"It was so emotional up there," she said. "I had chills the whole time. I couldn't believe I was up there. I still can't believe it."

Graf, who won the gold medal at Seoul, hadn't lost in 17 matches, had beaten Capriati in their four previous meetings and hadn't lost a set here before the final.

"Not every day is going to be your day," Joyner-Kersee said. "It hurts that at the Olympics, that day is not your day."

With just two days left in the Games, the last remnants of the old Soviet sports machine revved up for one final turn around the block, de-

Blue Diamonds finally fade

■ Midland's ASA national title hopes went by the boards Friday after losing two games.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

The Midland Blue Diamonds lasted about four games longer than most thought they would.

The Blue Diamonds, a group of girls who play recreational softball, lost twice Friday and were eliminated from the Girls' National Amateur Softball Association 14-and-under Fast Pitch Tournament.

The Blue Diamonds opened play Friday morning with a spotless 2-0 record, but fell in the 8 a.m. game to the Diamond Stars, of Kelso, Wash., 8-0.

After moving to the losers' bracket as a result of that loss, the Blue Diamonds lost their Friday afternoon game, 3-2, to the Central DeKalb Lady Cardinals, of Stone Mountain, Tenn.

The Blue Diamonds led for virtually the entire afternoon game before the Lady Cards struck for two runs in the bottom of the seventh.

Three Cardinal singles and a pair of Blue Diamond errors allowed Christine Caldwell to score the tying run and, moments later, Lauren Schrauk to come home with the game-winner.

Denise Briggs struck out six for the Blue Diamonds.

In spite of the Diamonds' exit from the tournament, head coach Greg Shelton said he was not disappointed with his team and what they had done in the tourney.

"I'm not," he said. "That's why I'm still smiling.

"The parents may not realize what we had to do to win two games in a national tournament. It's quite an achievement just to be able to play to the calibre of the teams here that play 140 games a year."

Shelton said the Diamonds' ability to compete in a national tournament after playing less than 20 games together since February "shows you what we would be capable of doing if we played 140 games a year.

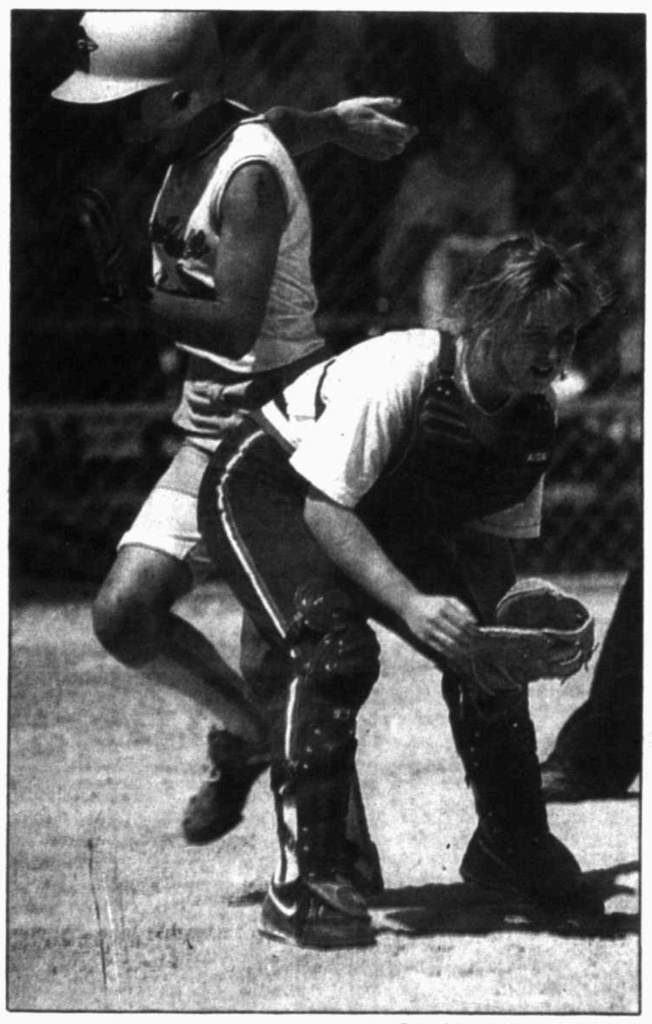

"As far as talent, we have it here in West Texas. We just don't have the opportunity to play as many games as some of these other teams."

The Blue Diamonds differ from many other teams in the tournament who play year-round softball, such as the Batbusters, from Orange County, Calif.

The Blue Diamonds are a group of girls assembled to form a team specifically to play in tournaments such as the one being held in Midland this week.

Denise and Monica Briggs, twin sisters who pitched all four games for the Blue Diamonds, were pick-up players chosen to play for the team just during the tournament. The Briggs sisters are from Bryan, Tex., and pitched for the College Station Stealers, a team which finished third in the state ASA tournament earlier this summer.

In other Friday action, Mad Dog, of Alliance, Ohio, defeated the Beatrice Blast 2-1 in 12 innings. Mad Dog pitcher Tony Hileman went the distance, allowing three hits. Hileman had a no-hitter going through eight innings.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram
Stone Mountain, Ga., Lady Cardinal runner Christina Caldwell scores the first run in a 3-2 win over Midland as Blue Diamond catcher Marissa Gortney waits on the throw during national tournament action Friday.

Beatrice got its only run of the game in the bottom of the 12th after a walk and a single.

In one of the highlight games of Friday's action, the Orange Co. Batbusters were to meet the Montclair Classic, of Montclair, Calif., in a 10 p.m. game. Scores of the late games were not available at press time. The two California teams, however, were widely regarded as two of the top five teams at the tournament.

In earlier action, three Oklahoma teams remained alive in the winners' bracket. The Oklahoma Dolls, of Yukon, Okla.,

Angels end losing skid

By Joe Wyatt
Staff writer

With their lead in the Texas League West shrinking at an alarming rate, the Angels looked to win a battle of lefties with a righthander.

And with the help of some timely hitting, Phil Leftwich — a righty — got the job done.

Mark Wasinger's pinch-hit single broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the eighth inning and Leftwich fired eight strong innings to out-duel El Paso southpaw Rafael Novoa as Midland beat the Diablos 3-2 Friday night, snapping a six-game losing streak.

The win, coupled with Wichita's loss to San Antonio, improves Midland's first-place lead in the Texas League West to 2½ games.

Leftwich, 6-7, turned in one of his best outings of the year, allowing two runs — one earned — on seven hits.

"It's up there," Leftwich graded his performance. "I've been struggling a lot lately, getting behind hitters. I just decided to come out and go after them tonight."

Troy Percival gave up one hit but struck out three in the ninth for his third save.

Wasinger, playing in just his fourth game as an Angel, whacked the first pitch he saw into left field, scoring Edgar Alfonzo from third base to unlock the tie. It was Wasinger's first RBI for the club.

Rafael Novoa went the distance for El Paso, dropping to 7-7 as the Diablos fell three games behind the Angels.

"We knew we would come out of it (losing streak) sooner or later," Leftwich said. "Tonight we got some key hits and I got a few breaks early, like a double play. Then, after awhile, I got a little more into a groove."

Leftwich walked just one and worked out of a couple of jams.

El Paso staged a one-run rally on a couple of hits in the fourth inning and pushed across an unearned tally in the fifth that might have been worse but for the defense.

Youth admits to killing neighbor

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 14-year-old boy who admitted robbing, stabbing and setting fire to an invalid man has been sentenced to 35 years imprisonment.

The youth, whose name was withheld because he is a juvenile, was to have been tried in juvenile court next week for the July 15 murder of Thurmond Wilson, 58. He could not be tried as an adult because he was not 15 when the crime was committed.

But court-appointed defense attorney Hugh Savage said the teen-ager didn't want a trial.

"He was sorry about what happened. He wanted to come forward and admit he did it and did not want to go to trial," Savage said.

"It's bizarre," the attorney added. His client took money to fix his moped, then killed him "because if he took something, he didn't want to be caught."

The day Wilson was killed, the teen-ager told a Fort Worth Star-Telegram reporter that he was walking his dog along the street when he spotted smoke coming from Wilson's house. He said he grabbed two pillows and put out the flames on Wilson's body before a neighbor called an ambulance.

However, in his dramatic confession Thursday during a half-hour hearing before state District Judge Scott Moore, the youth said Wilson let him into his modest home.

The teen-ager said he later beat Wilson with a board and fatally stabbed him with a knife, then poured alcohol over the man's body and set him on fire.

Commission votes to temporarily lower tax

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission proposed a temporary tax break for charity bingo groups Friday, but said permanent relief must come from the Legislature.

"We're just giving some immediate first aid," said commission member Roy Orr.

The commission has heard from charity bingo operators who say a tax increase approved last year by lawmakers will force many of them out of business.

The proposed rule change would allow bingo groups to file tax reports twice a month, rather than once. That translates into a tax break because the groups are allowed to exempt $15,000 of their proceeds from taxation in each reporting period.

The change would mean $3,150 in tax relief per quarter, said charity bingo operator Jack Pinkerton of Houston, who serves on an advisory committee to the commission on the issue.

It also would mean an estimated $8 million loss in state revenue a year, according to TABC staff.

The commission is scheduled to consider giving the rule final approval in September, after allowing the opportunity for public comment. As proposed, the change would take effect Oct. 16, 1992, and expire May 31, 1993.

If approved, this would be the second tax break granted by the commission. In January, the panel changed its rules to allow bingo groups to file tax reports monthly, rather than quarterly.

"I believe that these people need help. They need some relief. And the Legislature's not in session. They can't help them at this point," said commission Chairwoman Renee Higginbotham-Brooks.

The Legislature next meets in regular session in January 1993.

was intercepted.

Reserves took over in the second half.

Emmitt Smith, the NFL's leading rusher last year, gained 63 yards on 10 carries in the first half, including a 14-yard touchdown run in the first quarter for Dallas.

Bobby Humphrey, acquired from Denver for Sammie Smith in a swap of running backs, gained 43 yards on 11 carries and caught four passes for 52 yards in his debut. He had a 4-yard touchdown run.

Beuerlein, a fifth-year pro in his second year with Dallas, connected on a 13-yard touchdown pass play to Tom Agee in the third quarter drawing the Cowboys to within four points. Daluiso, signed as a free agent in the offseason, kicked a 46-yard field goal earlier in the quarter.

ANGELS: Lead in West improves

(From 1B)

Third baseman Eduardo Perez gunned Bob Kappesser down at the plate to thwart what might have been a big fifth inning for El Paso. And his diving stop by the bag in the third inning robbed John Byington of extra bases.

Midland took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Jeff Kipila singled and scored on J.R. Phillips' double into the right-center field gap.

El Paso got even when Troy O'Leary got his second of three singles to lead off the fourth inning and scored on Edgar Caceras' bouncer to third base.

The Angels used the bottom of the fourth to regain the lead as Dan Rumsey's two-out single found its way through the left side of the infield and scored Terry Taylor, who singled with one out.

The Diablos tied it again in the fifth on Bob Kappesser's RBI double.

But Leftwich faced just two batters over the minimum through the next three innings and gave way to Percival after the Angels banged out the game-winning run in the eighth.

The two teams go at it again today at 7 p.m. when a true lefthander — Hilly Hathaway (4-1) — is scheduled to start for Midland. Righty Scott Taylor (3-1) is slated to go for the Diablos.

Braves put seventh notch in win streak

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Terry Pendleton drove in three runs with a pair of singles and the Atlanta Braves swept to their seventh consecutive victory Friday night, 6-2 over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The hot-hitting Pendleton, who has 10 RBI during his latest eight-game hitting streak, knocked in two runs in Atlanta's three-run first inning and his 69th of the season in a two-run second inning.

Both of Pendleton's hits came off Los Angeles starter Kevin Gross (5-11), who gave up four hits and walked five in only 1⅓ innings. Pendleton has 12 hits in his last 16 at-bats with runners in scoring position.

Charlie Leibrandt (9-4) limited the Dodgers to six hits, struck out six and walked one for his second complete game of the season as the Braves won for the 21st time in 26 games. Leibrandt also stopped Brett Butler's hitting streak at 19 games, the longest in the National League this season. Butler went 0-for-3.

NL Roundup

Reds 4, Giants 3

CINCINNATI — Glenn Braggs and Reggie Sanders each hit two-run homers to enable Cincinnati to bounce back from a three-game sweep in Atlanta and beat San Francisco.

Jose Rijo (9-8) struck out five, gave up six hits and walked none in seven innings before getting relief help from Norm Charlton and Rob Dibble.

It was the sixth loss in the past seven games for the Giants.

Phillies 3, Expos 1

PHILADELPHIA — Rookie right-hander Ben Rivera won his first major-league game and Ricky Jordan homered and scored twice as Philadelphia defeated Montreal, ending the Phillies' five-game losing streak.

Rivera (1-2), making only his fourth major-league start, pitched a four-hitter over eight innings. Mitch Williams pitched the ninth for his 21st save.

Cubs 9, Mets 1

CHICAGO — Doug Dascenzo, starting in place of injured Sammy Sosa, hit a two-run double that highlighted a wild, seven-run fourth inning, leading Mike Morgan and Chicago over David Cone and New York.

Cone (13-5) had won eight straight decisions since June 10.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS — Randy Tomlin pitched eight innings of five-hit ball to win his first game since June 22 as Pittsburgh beat St. Louis its eighth straight victory.

The winning streak is one shy of the Pirates' season-high nine-game streak from April 12-22 that gave them an early cushion in the NL East. The Pirates also moved 3½ games ahead of second-place Montreal, which lost 3-1 to Philadelphia, and knocked the sagging Cardinals 10 games back.

It took Tomlin (11-7) eight tries to get his 11th victory as he ended a four-game losing streak and continued the Pirates' mastery of St. Louis.

Baltimore streak ends

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Paul Sorrento singled in the go-ahead run in the 13th inning Friday night as the Cleveland Indians snapped the Baltimore Orioles' six-game winning streak with a 5-4 victory.

The Indians pulled off a triple play and forced the game into extra innings with a late rally against Baltimore closer Gregg Olson, then withstood two threats after getting the tie-breaking run against Alan Mills (7-2).

Thomas Howard opened the 13th with a double and moved to third on a groundout before Sorrento grounded a single to right past the drawn-in infield.

Baltimore's Brady Anderson led off the bottom of the 12th inning with a double. But Kevin Wickander (2-0), the sixth Cleveland pitcher, came in with runners on first and third and struck out David Segui to end the threat and retired the side in the 13th for the win.

American League

Tigers 7, Blue Jays 2

DETROIT — Skeeter Barnes hit a three-run homer to key a third-inning rally that lifted Detroit over Toronto.

The win was just Detroit's third in 14 games and snapped a four-game losing streak.

Yankees 7, Red Sox 5

NEW YORK — Matt Nokes drove in four runs, three with his 15th homer, and Scott Sanderson continued his mastery of Boston.

Sanderson (9-8) allowed only four hits, all singles, walked one and struck out two over the first seven innings to earn his seventh win in nine career decisions against the Red Sox.

Chicago puts Sosa on DL

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs Friday placed outfielder Sammy Sosa on the 15-day disabled list with a broken ankle and purchased the contract of infielder-outfielder Jeff Kunkel from AAA Iowa.

Sosa fractured his left ankle Thursday night when he fouled off a pitch. Earlier in the season Sosa missed six weeks after he was hit by a pitch and suffered a break in his right hand.

"Barring a miracle, Sammy is done for the season," manager Jim Lefebvre said.

Trainer John Fierro said Sosa will be in a cast from four to six weeks.

Sosa was batting 260 with eight home runs, 25 RBIs and 15 stolen bases. Since returning from his first injury July 27, Sosa batted .385 in nine games.

"I was in shock when I heard he had broken the ankle," Lefebvre said.

Giants pave way for move to St. Petersburg

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, pioneers of baseball's move west in 1957, announced plans Friday to abandon the Bay area and move to St. Petersburg next season.

Giants owner Robert Lurie, frustrated that local voters had rejected four stadium proposals, said he intends to sell the team to a group of Tampa Bay investors who plan to move the franchise to Florida for 1993.

The deal was announced in the Florida Suncoast Dome, built with the hope of luring a major league team. Since 1988, St. Petersburg has failed in efforts to attract the Chicago White Sox and Seattle Mariners and lost in a bid for one of two National League expansion teams.

"Baseball works in mysterious ways," said Florida Progress chairman Jack Critchfield, a leader of the Tampa-area effort. "I never felt good we were going to get the Mariners for various reasons, but I feel awfully confident about this one."

The Giants' sale and relocation need approval from 11 of the 14 National League clubs — the expansion Florida and Colorado teams will vote — and eight of the 14 American League clubs.

"We stand by our earlier statements that we welcome and support another team in Florida," Marlins president Carl Bargar said at the Olympics in Barcelona.

The next owners' meeting is scheduled for September, but it was not clear whether the issue would be considered then.

Also uncertain was how much support the move would have, although there appeared to be no strong opposition from owners, who were stunned by the suddeness of the deal. There also are no legal obstacles that could keep the Giants in San Francisco.

Commissioner Fay Vincent and baseball owners have said in recent years that they were against the relocation of franchises, especially to domed stadiums and artificial turf; no team has moved since the Washington Senators moved to Texas following the 1971 season.

But following the latest stadium rejection, Vincent said on June 11 that the Giants meet his criteria to be moved. He gave Lurie permission to explore all offers, although he said he said would prefer that the team remain in San Francisco.

It was not clear how the proposed move would affect plans by Vincent to realign the National League for next season, a move in which Atlanta and Cincinnati would go to the East and Chicago and St. Louis would go West. That plan is being challenged in federal court by the Cubs, delaying the 1993 schedule.

Without realignment, St. Petersburg would play in the NL West.

"That would really be a strange thing," ownership committee chairman Fred Kuhlmann of St. Louis said. "But you have Atlanta in the West, anyway. So it's not as strange as it seems."

The Giants would be the third team this century to play in three cities. They would join the Athletics, who have been in Philadelphia, Kansas City and Oakland, and the Braves, who played in Boston, Milwaukee and Atlanta.

"I guarantee you I feel a big part of San Francisco," Giants star Will Clark said. "To just up and leave it is going to be tough."

Lurie wanted to continue owning the Giants, and wanted to keep them in San Francisco, but promised they would not stay in Candlestick beyond 1994.

Lurie, who purchased the team in March 1976, said earlier this summer that he would sell to the first bidder, and he followed through to the Florida group in a deal believed to be worth about $110 million.

Lurie's latest loss for a new stadium came this spring when voters in San Jose rejected a plan to build a $265 million stadium that likely would have necessitated a local tax increase.

The team's lease with the city of San Francisco expires after the 1994 season.

San Francisco left in state of shock over Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three decades after breaking hearts in New York, the Giants appear ready to leave their fans in San Francisco.

"I think it's pathetic," Jim Aron of Richmond, Calif., said. "My first reaction is that I'm just unhappy about it. I can't believe that the powers that be in this area were so blind or deaf to this. I think people underestimated Bob Lurie."

Lurie, the Giants owner, said Friday he intended to sell the team to Florida investors who plan to relocate the franchise to St. Petersburg for the 1993 season. He said he will not listen to other bids while baseball owners consider this offer.

"It's not a done deal until it's signed, sealed and delivered," said San Francisco Supervisor Angela Alioto, who has led a drive to build a downtown ballpark for the National League team.

The Giants moved to San Francisco from New York in 1957 and began playing at then-new Candlestick Park in 1960. Also home to the San Francisco 49ers, the stadium park is known for cold and wind.

Alioto blamed San Francisco Mayor Frank Jordan, who was to speak at a news conference later in the day.

"Financing to buy the team was being done by the mayor's office," she said. "I have to assume it's not being done."

Voters in San Francisco, San Jose and Santa Clara County defeated four stadium proposals in six years for a new stadium.

"It's a bittersweet feeling, really," said Duffy Jennings, director of public relations for the Giants. "There's a lot of emotion attached to this for everybody who either works for the Giants or is a Giants fan."

Tim Howard, 26, manager of a Union Square store that specializes sports apparel and memorabilia, said he thinks the Giants should have taken advantage of the opportunity to move to Denver in the late 1970s.

"If Bob Lurie didn't want to own the Giants in the first place, he shouldn't have bought them," Howard said.

Clemson cage program may face death penalty

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson on Friday admitted seven NCAA rule violations in its basketball program, banned off-campus recruiting by its coaches for a year and said the school could be hit with the death penalty.

The Atlantic Coast Conference school could not confirm or prove deliberate violations of NCAA rules in two other cases. The school would not release the entire report of its investigation, which was given to the NCAA before Friday's deadline.

The NCAA infractions committee is scheduled to consider what penalties, if any, it will impose on Clemson for the violations at a meeting Sept. 25-28. Clemson said it would release its report then.

"We have a situation in which some individuals simply made mistakes and some, unfortunately, exercised extremely bad judgment," school President Max Lennon said. "We have taken corrective actions and enhanced our compliance efforts to keep such incidents from happening again."

Clemson agreed with the NCAA that Wayne Buckingham should not have been eligible to play as a freshman. The investigation was prompted by possible irregularities in his high school transcript. It led to charges of improper actions by assistant basketball coach Len Gordy involving other players.

Gordy resigned two weeks ago, effective Sept. 15.

Jenkins faces Coogs with look at quarterback

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Cougars started last season reaching for everything from the Heisman Trophy to the national championship. Coach John Jenkins' troops begin 1992 climbing from the other direction.

The Cougars came off a 10-1 campaign in 1990 and a No. 10 national ranking, ready to soar even higher.

Instead, Heisman hopeful David Klingler had to run for his life most of the season, overcoming sacks and injuries, and the Cougars' run-and-shoot clunked to a 4-7 record. The defense went into a free-fall.

But Jenkins has had time to regain his ever-present smile and resilience.

"We still led the nation in passing and total offense in the conference and continued to do the things like we've always done," Jenkins said. "The adversity in the first part of the year was the injuries, which I'd never been affected by before."

Houston's primary injury woes came in the offensive line early in the season, leaving Klingler helpless to on-rushing foes. Three offensive starters were injured and another quit the team.

The Cougars allowed 43 sacks last season, and Klingler was the primary benefactor.

"Once we got that rolling at midseason, we got good steady play from our offensive line and four of those five returns," Jenkins said. "That's been exciting to have that experience in there. The offensive line should be a strength this year."

Now all he needs is a starting quarterback.

Jenkins went through spring practice without selecting a starting quarterback among 1991 backup Donald Douglas, and reserves Jimmy Klingler, David's younger brother, and Kyle Allen. Chandler Evans was in the running until a knee injury likely put him out for the season.

Jenkins rotated Douglas, Klinger and Allen in spring drills and will announce the starter prior to the Sept. 5 opener at Tulsa.

"I don't want to put all eggs in a basket with one guy," Jenkins said. "It's not fair to the players or the team. We do not have a starting quarterback coming back and that part is exciting to me."

Jenkins expects one of the quarterbacks to emerge as the starter just as Andre Ware stepped in to win the Heisman Trophy in 1989 and Klingler replaced him with a record-breaking 1990 season.

Marcus Grant (78 catches), Verlond Brown (33) and John Brown III (24) have graduated from the receiving corps but Freddie Gilbert, who led the nation with 106 catches, Tracy Good and Sherman Smith and newcomer Keith Jack will give the unnamed quarterback plenty of targets.

"Freddie Gilbert will return better than he was a year ago," Jenkins said. "It's a powerful looking crew at the receiving corps again."

TiAndre Sanders returns at superback to help lead the Cougars' ground attack. He led Houston rushers with 397 yards on 70 carries in 1991.

The Cougars' defense allowed 101 points in the final two games of the season, both losses, and ranked 90th among 106 NCAA Division I-A schools in scoring defense.

First year defensive coordinator Melvin Robertson expects better this year. Linebackers Ryan McCoy and Eric Blount will be key performers if the Cougars expect to rebound.

"We've got a great amount of experience coming back from the defense," Jenkins said. "The experience was pretty evident this spring."

The Cougars opened last season with a 73-3 victory over Southwestern Louisiana before they were decked by Miami (40-10) and Illinois (51-10), effectively ending their national championship hopes.

They'll start this season at Tulsa, hope to get revenge from Illinois in the Astrodome and then play at Michigan.

Patty Sheehan needs one victory to qualify for the LPGA Hall of Fame, but missing putts like this won't cut it. She had a 72.

Putter saves Zembriski

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — Walt Zembriski, relying on a resurrected putter, shot a 6-under-par 66 Friday to take the first-round lead in the Digital Seniors Classic at Nashawtuc Country Club.

Zembriski, who has had only two top-10 finishes in 19 events this year, had six birdies and no bogeys in building a one-stroke lead over Kermit Zarley and South Africans Gary Player and Simon Hobday.

Zembriski, of Orlando, Fla., credited an old Ping Pal putter for his impressive 28-putt round.

While rummaging through his discarded clubs two weeks ago, he came across the putter that he had last used six to eight years ago. He had it regripped and decided to test it under fire Friday.

"I was just moseying through when I saw it," Zembriski, 57, said. "It was only a shaft, so I just looked at it and said, 'Let's go and put a grip on this.' It felt good, so I put it in the bag."

Player, who has no wins but five top-10 finishes this year, refused further elaboration on the alteration of his stroke.

"Golf's a game of changes," he simply said. "You're forever changing. It's a puzzle without an answer, and when you do find out, you're too old to put it into practice."

Defending champion Thompson had a difficult round and shot a 4-over-par 76.

Fittipaldi grabs pole position

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two-time winner Emerson Fittipaldi broke his own track record by nearly 2 mph Friday and won the provisional pole for Sunday's Budweiser Cleveland Grand Prix with a speed of 142.778 mph.

Fittipaldi won the Cleveland race in 1987 and 1989, and he won the pole last year before finishing second in the race to Michael Andretti, the No. 2 qualifier last year and again Friday.

John Andretti, racing Midland's Hall/VDS entry, could only qualify 15th overall.

Michael Andretti's fastest lap on the 2.37-mile, 10-turn course was 141.764 mph. Indy-car points leader Bobby Rahal qualified third at 140.856 mph, followed by Paul Tracy at 140.422 mph, Al Unser Jr. at 140.194 mph and Raul Boesel at 138.978.

Fittipaldi and Andretti each surpassed the mark of 140.842 mph which Fittipaldi had set in winning the pole last year.

With rain forecast for Saturday's qualifying session, Friday's speeds on the temporary road course at Burke Lakefront Airport had a good chance of holding up.

"I'm 100 percent sure it's going to rain tomorrow," Fittipaldi said.

He ranks fifth in the points race with 82, far behind Rahal's 136.

Frost rips 65, takes lead

Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — David Frost may soon have a garage full of Buicks.

The South African, who won the Buick Classic in Rye, N.Y. in June, shot a second-round 65 Friday in the Buick Open, giving him a 10-under-par 134 and a one shot lead over Australian Wayne Grady at Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club.

The winner of the $1 million tournament gets $180,000 — and, of course, a new Buick.

"Actually, I haven't picked out my car from the other tournament," Frost said. "I was going to wait and decide which model I wanted after this one was over."

Frost, who started the round 5-under, bogeyed the par-3 third hole but birdied the last four holes before the turn, sinking putts of 2, 30, 20 and 35 feet to get to 8-under. He birdied the 14th to pull even with Grady, then took the lead with a 15-footer at the par-3 17th.

"It was fun," Frost said. "That's my favorite hole on this course. That's where all the rowdy people go. I said to my caddy, 'These are working-class people. They get up early and go to work, so they enjoy their golf out here.'

"And they gave me a little extra applause when I made that putt."

First-round leader Brad Fabel had to settle for an even-par 72 that left him two strokes off the lead at 136.

Defending champion Brad Faxon matched his first-round 69 and was tied at 6-under 138 with Mark Wiebe and Mike Sullivan, who also carded 69's.

King for a day (at least)

LPGA Stratton

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Betsy King's name is atop the leader board again, although she still isn't comfortable on the golf course.

Aiming for her third victory of the season and 28th of her career, King shot a 5-under-par 66 Friday for a two-shot lead after two rounds of the $500,000 LPGA Stratton Mountain Classic.

"I drove a little better and made a couple more putts," King said. "But I'm not all that comfortable.

"I need to get my putting going a little more. That will be the key."

Her 136 on the mountain course was two shots ahead of Dottie Mochrie, the tour's hottest player, and bubbly Lori West, who was very comfortable in second place after shooting a 68 in pursuit of a dream.

King and West started the day in a group of 13 players who opened with 70s.

Mochrie, the leading money winner seeking her second victory in two weeks, had been tied with Sherri Steinhauer for the first-round lead at 68. She managed a 1-under-par 70 for 138, while Steinhauer fell back with a 74.

Karen Davies followed a 72 with a 67, the day's second-best round, and was alone at 139.

Deedee Lasker, who started one stroke behind the leaders, was even par and tied with Robin Walton and Nina Foust at 140. Walton shot her second 70 and Foust had a 68.

Patty Sheehan, needing one victory to qualify for the LPGA Hall of Fame, shot a 72 for 143.

OLYMPICS: Joyner-Kersee lands bronze in long jump

(From 1B)

spite losing a wheel when Bubka flopped in the pole vault.

The Unified Team, which will compete as separate countries in the next Olympics, went into the day leading the United States by just one medal, 87-86. At day's end, the Unies led 100-96 and had 42 golds to America's 31.

Bubka, the only man to ever clear 20 feet, fouled out by missing on his first three attempts — twice at 18 feet, 8½ inches and again at 18-10½. A look of amazement on his face, Bubka stalked off, put his pole away and slid into his warmup suit.

"Most of us had problems with the swirling winds in the run up, and I was definitely one of them," Bubka said. "Maybe I took too long to prepare for each jump. But of course, it could have been my nerves playing me up."

Teammates Maxim Tarasov and Igor Trandenkov finished 1-2, Javier Garcia of Spain won the bronze, and Kory Tarpenning, who lives in Paris but competes for the United States, was fourth. Both Tarasov and Trandenkov cleared 19-0½, and Tarasov won on fewer misses.

"I've got one weeping eye and one smiling one," Trandenkov said. "My very good friend and teacher Sergei Bubka didn't achieve what he wanted, but his pupil took the silver."

Joyner-Kersee, of Conoga Park, Calif., was going for an unprecedented second sweep of the heptathlon and long jump titles. She already won the heptathlon, but had to settle for bronze in the long jump behind Heike Drechsler of Germany and Inessa Kravets of the Unified Team. Drechsler, who was second to Joyner-Kersee at the last Olympics and world championships, leaped 23-5¼, Kravets 23-4½ and Joyner-Kersee 23-2½.

The Unies, who were shut out in track and field Thursday, got another gold from Svetlana Kriveleva, who won the women's shot put with a throw of 69-1¼.

Carl Lewis, already with a gold in the long jump, will go for his second gold of these Games and eighth overall on Saturday in the men's 400-meter relay. On Friday, Lewis blew past Jorge Aguilera of Cuba and anchored the relay team to an easy victory in the semifinals.

The women's basketball and volleyball teams both settled for bronze.

The basketball players, six of whom won gold medals at Seoul, beat Cuba 88-74 for the bronze. Teresa Edwards had 18 points.

In the semifinals, the U.S. women lost to the Unified Team, ending their designs on a third straight Olympic gold.

"The tough thing was we played so hard and played so well in this game, it felt like it was a gold medal game," Katrina McClain said.

The Unified Team won the gold medal, its 100th of the Games, with a 76-66 victory over China.

The women's volleyball team beat Brazil 15-8, 15-6, 15-13 for the bronze.

Being ejected is another Ryan milestone

ARLINGTON (AP) — Nolan Ryan even makes headlines when he gets ejected.

Baseball's living legend was ejected for the first time in his 26-year major league career Thursday night, and he showed a flair for getting thrown out with style.

The ouster capped a frustrating night on which Ryan put on a vintage performance, striking out 12 in 7⅔ innings, but got no help from his teammates in the 2-0 defeat.

Ryan took it out on Willie Wilson, embedding a 1-1 fastball squarely in the outfielder's right thigh. Home plate umpire Rich Garcia tossed him immediately, apparently without the customary warning.

Ryan insisted after the game that he hadn't intended to drill Wilson, with whom he had argued an inning earlier.

"I was trying to pitch him inside after two pitches on the outer half of the plate," he said. "I didn't think it was cause to be thrown out of the game."

The ejection of Ryan, a Texas folk hero, enraged the near-capacity crowd of 36,712, who booed, chanted and littered the outfield with empty cups and food wrappers.

At least one fan was ejected from the stadium after what appeared to be a cup of beer was tossed into the A's dugout. Both benches emptied onto the field, but there was no brawl during the 10-minute delay.

Wilson, whose triple had led-off Oakland's two-run seventh, accused Ryan of arrogance.

"He's always done that. He stares people down, he walks around the mound, he just tries to intimidate everybody," Wilson said. "This is his country, his town, his stadium. He's not a legend in my mind."

A's manager Tony LaRussa said Ryan appeared to lose his composure.

"I see a lot of outstanding things that he does and I'm a fan of those," LaRussa said. "Every once in a while, he slips off that pedestal. The majority of the time he stays on it. He slipped off for a minute."

Slugger Jose Canseco, who struck out three times against Ryan and was ejected by Garcia after arguing about the third, was more understanding.

"I think he intimidates umpires," Canseco said. "Hey, they'll give him the pitch 3 or 4 inches outside, 2 or 3 inches below the knee. That's understandable. It's normal."

The dispute between Ryan and Wilson had simmered all night.

During his at-bat in the seventh, Wilson swung hard at a Ryan fastball and missed. Players on both teams said Ryan cursed Wilson after the swing. Then Wilson got into a shouting match with Ryan after hitting the triple.

Wilson had swung hard at other Ryan pitches and attempted to bunt earlier in the game.

"That's another thing you can't do when Nolan's pitching," Wilson said. "You can't bunt on him. You can't steal a base on him. You can't take a good cut on him. He's Nolan Ryan."

Wilson continued, "If I'm not allowed to take a good cut, then what's the use of going out to play the game. We should just go out there and say 'Nolan, here, win the ball game.' But we're not allowed to do this against him. He looks at us like we're crazy."

Then Canseco butted in, saying what many in the A's locker room probably were thinking.

"That's the legend," he said.

Permian's Case to lead Texas against Oklahoma

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Two quarterbacks who led their teams to unbeaten state championship seasons will start Saturday night in the 55th annual Oil Bowl football game between Texas and Oklahoma high school all-stars.

Stormy Case of Odessa Permian, who directed the Mojo to a perfect 16-0 season and the Class 5A Division II state title, will start for the Texas team.

Casey Borin, who led Crescent to a 15-0 season and a Class A state championship, will start for Oklahoma.

The Oil Bowl is sponsored by the Maskat Shrine Temple of Wichita Falls and benefits crippled children charities in the two states.

Texas and Oklahoma all-stars have met in 46 of the previous 54 games with Texas owning a 33-12-1 series advantage.

However, Oklahoma has won the last two games. When the two teams kick off at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Memorial Stadium, Oklahoma will be looking for its first three-game winning streak in the series.

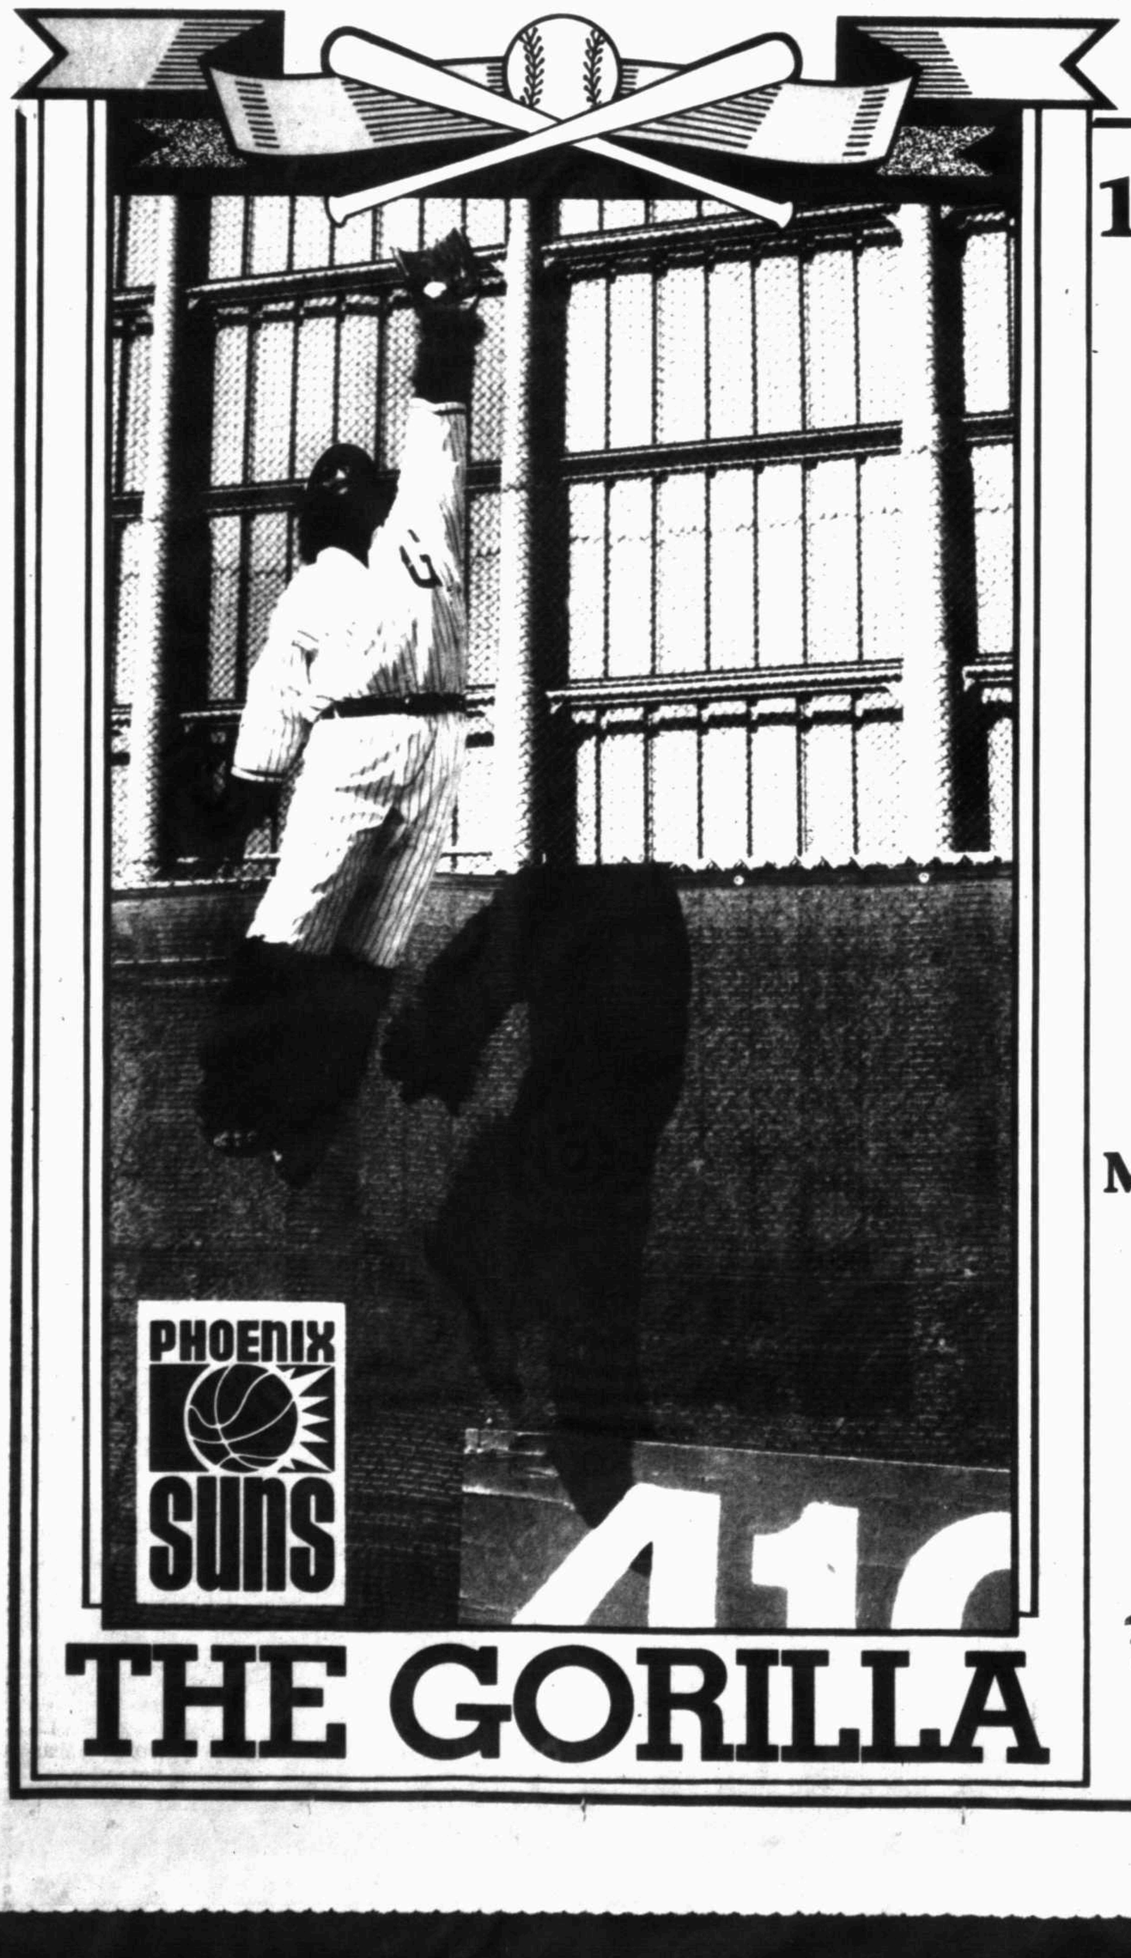

Wayne LeBleu of Wichita Falls Rider, Joe Martin of Garland and Mel Maxfield of Forney are the Texas coaches. Jim Dixon of Sulphur, Johnny Bohannon of Okemah and Steve Richards of Crescent are the Oklahoma coaches.

LeBleu, the head coach for the Texas team, said he wasn't impressed with Case in early practices.

"Early in the week, I didn't think he could throw a lick," LeBleu said. "But now he's beginning to adjust to what he's seeing and is throwing the ball pretty good.

"The timing is so important to a quarterback, and it's really unfair in an all-star game because you have only one week to prepare."

LeBleu chose Case over Irving's Jason Schneider for the starting job, he said, "because the offense we are running is more like Permian's than like Irving's."

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Members host celebration

The members of the Alexander Temple Church of God in Christ are hosting a 17th anniversary celebration for their pastor and his wife.

Services at 200 N. Tyler St. are planned through 3 p.m. Sunday. The special guest Sunday will be W.H. Watson of Lubbock, bishop and Texas Northwest Jurisdiction prelate.

The public is invited.

■ Church hosts four-week class

"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" is a four-week course taught by the Rev. and Mrs. Al Moreau beginning Sunday.

The course is based on their study in Israel both in 1983 and in July 1992. It will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Sunday and for the next three weeks at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave.

Topics include the history of Israel, geography of Israel, politics and peace in Israel today, archaeology and the Dead Sea scrolls.

■ New pulpit minister announced

The elders of Golf Course Road Church of Christ have announced the hiring of Randy Fenter of San Antonio as the new pulpit minister for the church.

He succeeds Gary Hundley who is currently preaching in Mississippi.

Fenter is the minister for the MacArthur Park Church of Christ, San Antonio, a position he assumed in 1981.

During the time of his tenure, the church doubled in size, said a release from Golf Course Road Church of Christ.

Fenter, a native of West Texas, has a bachelor of arts in communications with minors in Bible, Greek and psychology from Lubbock Christian University. He completed his graduate work at Abilene Christian University. Prior to his ministry in San Antonio, Fenter worked with the church in Raton, N.M., for several years.

Fenter and his wife, Gail, an attorney, have two daughters, Rachel and Marta. He will assume the local position Aug. 23.

■ Women to receive medallion

Several Midland women will receive the gold medallion for achievement of the Young Womanhood Recognition Award at a ceremony to be held 7 p.m. Sunday at the Gateway Chapel of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Bushman

Stephanie Bushman, daughter of Blaine and Margene Bushman, is a 1992 graduate of Lee High School, where she was a member of National Honor Society and All-State Choir, and was voted Outstanding Senior Choir Student.

At church, she has served as Young Women's pianist, class president, Relief Society chorister and a genealogy library worker. Miss Bushman plans to attend Utah Valley Community College this fall and major in music and nursing.

Paula Gray, daughter of Kenneth and Sherrie Gray, is a 1992 honor graduate of Lee High School, where she was a member of National Honor Society, Business Professionals of America and choir.

Gray

At church, Miss Gray has served as Young Women's class president and Stake Seminary Historian. She plans to attend Brigham Young University this fall and major in special education.

The Young Womanhood Recognition Award has been recognized by the First Presidency of the church as parallel in accomplishment with the Eagle Scout ranking earned by many young men.

These young women began the Personal Progress Program, which culminates with receipt of the Young Womanhood Recognition Award, at the age of 12.

"It is a goal-oriented incentive program designed to help young women develop personal and spiritual qualities and virtues in their lives," said a release from Kim Gilland, member of the local church.

In order to receive the award, they had to complete four projects, two of which are to involve service to others with each requiring a minimum of 20 to 30 hours.

Miss Bushman's projects included a Hospice Christmas project, a tribute to Parents Night and personal history scrapbooks. Miss Gray completed sewing and cooking projects as well as personal history and a Hospice Service Project.

■ Appreciation service slated

The members of Goodwill Baptist Church, 1508 S. Main St., invite the public to attend the first appreciation celebration for the Rev. and Mrs. Leroy Lenygon set for 3 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. Tony Williams, pastor of New Hope Baptist Church, will speak. Guest preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. Bill Palmer, pastor of Mount Rose Baptist Church.

■ Sign language workshop set

The Knights of Columbus will sponsor a sign language workshop at St. Ann's Catholic Church at 207 N. M Street in the parlor Aug. 15.

Sister Concheta Lo Presti, OSF, will teach the workshop on religious signs from 3-5 p.m. Following the workshop the 5:30 p.m. mass will be interpreted.

The public is invited.

■ Videotape program slated

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland will present a videotape program entitled "Ring of Fire: Spice Island Saga" beginning at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

This program is the account of Lorne and Lawrence Blair's exploration of the islands of Indonesia. They traveled 2,000 miles with the "Buggymen," the piratical Bugis Tribe, in search of the Golden-taled Bird of Paradise, the symbol of eternal life.

The public is invited.

■ Worker's conference slated

Living Way Church will be hosting a Southwest Children's Worker's Conference Aug. 21-22.

Mark Harper will be leading the conference assisted by Tim Lambert. The conference is for senior pastors, youth pastors, children's workers and parents.

Workshop topics include: children and the Holy Spirit, effective storytelling, creative object lessons, developing your preschool ministry, how to feed kids the word of God, and power packed puppet ministry.

Pre-registration rates are $20 each or $15 each for four or more registering together. Registration after Monday is $25 each or $20 each for four or more registering together.

For more information contact Living Way Church, 415 Alta Ave., 683-1750.

■ Ministries hosts 'Jesus Fest'

Desert Rose Ministries is presenting the "Permian Basin Jesus Fest '92" at the Malibu special events center next to Water Wonderland Aug. 22.

The Christian festival features live entertainment, food and drinks and booths representing area churches and Christian organizations.

Local Christian bands and groups will be performing on stage throughout the day. In conjunction with the festival, Water Wonderland will be offering reduced prices in the water park the last Saturday before the school year starts.

The festival is free and open to the public.

■ Mission Weekend to begin

Asbury United Methodist Church, 106 W. Dakota, will host its Mission Weekend Aug. 14 and 15.

Belshe

Guest speaker will be Carolyn Belshe, the church's missionary to Mozambique.

The Mission Weekend begins with a dinner at 6:30 p.m. on Friday evening followed by Ms. Belshe speaking and showing slides of her work in Mozambique. The weekend will conclude with a breakfast at 9 a.m. on Saturday morning.

Ms. Belshe is a United Methodist missionary serving with the Mozambique Conference of the Untied Methodist Church. She served in Chicuque Rural Hospital for the first term of her assignment. She serves as trainer for administrators for the church at Chicuque as well as assisting the government with administrative training for various levels of management through the hospital.

Ms. Belshe was born in Oklahoma. She has two sons and two grandchildren. Her work in the states was in the Southwest region, completing twenty-one projects in seventeen years. She holds a bachelor of science degree in occupational education and a master of business administration with Health Care Specialization, both from Wayland Baptist University, Plainview.

■ Church to accept registration

Grace Lutheran Early Childhood Program is now accepting registration for the 1992-93 year.

A preschool and a Children's Day Out for children 12-months to five-years-old is offered. The preschool has two sessions. One session meets Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. and a Tuesday and Thursday session that meets from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Extended care is provided for preschool students on Tuesday and Thursday to coincide with the Children's Day out hours.

The Children's Day Out program meets on Tuesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. For more information, call Grace Lutheran Early Childhood office, 3000 W. Golf Course Rd., 694-3063.

■ Installation slated

The Officers and Members of the Community First Missionary Baptist Church will host an installation service of the church's new pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. C.D. Joiner.

The service will be at 3 p.m. Sunday at Great New Hope Baptist Church located at 2400 East New York Ave., in Midland.

■ Tent revival planned

Wilshire Park Baptist Church will be having a youth led tent revival Sunday through Wednesday. The services will be held each evening at 7:30 p.m. in the tent located in the church parking lot.

James Shupp, pastor of First Baptist Church, in Allen, Okla., will be the speaker for the four day event. He will also be speaking at the morning worship service Sunday at 11 a.m. Shupp is formerly from Midland and is the son of Damon and Barbara Shupp.

The public is invited to attend these services.

■ Men's Bible study set

The Christian Church of Midland is hosting a weekly men's Bible study. It will be held at 11:45 a.m., Thursday in the Fellowship Hall. The course is called "Through the Bible in One Year" by Alan B. Stringfellow, Volume I, Basic Study. Thursday's lesson will be "1 Samuel." Workbooks are available at the church for $15.

For more information call the church at 684-7681.

'Muscular Christianity' turns fields of dreams into evangelism forums

NEW YORK (AP) — The first thing the Chicago Bulls did after winning the NBA championship was not to pour champagne over each other's head, but to gather together to say The Lord's Prayer.

In baseball, superstar Darryl Strawberry undergoes a much-publicized conversion to born-again Christianity, and what football fan can forget the images of New York Giants players huddled together in prayer on successive weeks in 1991 as their Super Bowl fate was decided on game-ending field goal attempts.

Public displays of religious faith on the sporting field are becoming increasingly common as scores of Christian ministry organizations have developed to preach to athletes from the junior high school to professional levels.

The Colorado Springs-based International Bible Society plans to distribute hundreds of thousands of tracts on religion and sport to spectators and athletes at the Barcelona Olympics, and an alliance of athletic ministry organizations called Sports Outreach America is already making plans for the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta.

Evangelists say America's seeming insatiable appetite for sports provides them with a platform to urge consideration of a higher playing field, but some sociologists and critics say religion is being cynically manipulated by an industry that with its drug abuse, academic scandals, high injury rates and winning-at-all-costs-attitude betrays the values of the faith being exalted.

"The church's role in the relationship has been increasingly one of accommodation to big-time sport," said Shirl Hoffman, head of the Department of Exercise and Sports Science at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. "It can't stand to risk changing or arguing for a change in big-time sports."

God was more important than king and country to the Scottish runner Eric Liddell portrayed in the movie "Chariots of Fire" when he refused to compete in the 1924 Olympics on the Sabbath. Hellfire evangelist Billy Sunday gave up his baseball career for an itinerant ministry.

But the modern movement of using athletics as a springboard for proselytization didn't begin until after the Second World War when miler Gil Dodds was used by evangelists, including an up-and-coming preacher named Billy Graham, to draw crowds to rallies, according to sociologist James Mathisen of Wheaton College.

By the mid-50s, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes was born. Athletes in Action, part of Campus Crusade for Christ, developed in the mid-60s.

The latest developments in what Mathisen refers to as "muscular Christianity" have been the recruiting of pro athletes and the coordination of athletic evangelism through groups such as Sports Outreach America for major events such as the 1994 World Cup and the 1996 Olympics.

Mathisen said the field is so sophisticated today that there are separate ministries even for Christian fishermen and weightlifters.

The Kansas City-based Fellowship of Christian Athletes, which holds regular prayer meetings and special events, is in about 4,000 schools, or an estimated 15 percent of the nation's junior highs, high schools and colleges.

Faith Temple Church to host annual Spiritual Explosion

Staff report

The Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell at Jax, will hold its 18th annual Spiritual Explosion Monday through Aug. 16.

The Explosion will be highlighted by a Founder's Banquet at 5 p.m. Aug. 15 at the Plaza Club in the ClayDesta National Bank.

World in brief

■ U.N. to send 30 observers to South Africa

UNITED NATIONS — Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said Friday he plans to send 30 U.N. observers permanently to South Africa to mediate disputes and help ease the country's transition to multiracial democracy.

The U.N. chief sent his recommendation to the Security Council, based on a report by Cyrus Vance, his special envoy to South Africa and former U.S. secretary of state.

Boutros-Ghali said the observers would draw on the experiences of 10 monitors sent to South Africa to observe black-led strikes and protest rallies this week against President F.W. de Klerk's white government.

He advised the Pretoria government to tell the Goldstone Commission, a judicial committee looking into violence and intimidation, to also probe "the functioning and operations of certain agencies, (including) the army and police."

Boutros-Ghali also recommended:

■ The Goldstone Commission look into groups accused of cooperating with government or right-wing elements to foment violence.

■ Establishment by South Africa of emergency dispute-resolution centers at major flashpoints, to be staffed around-the-clock by representatives of the government; the African National Congress; the Inkatha Freedom Party, the main black rival to the ANC, and other concerned parties.

■ A ban on carrying weapons in public.

■ Army arrests leading Haitian journalist

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The army plucked a leading Haitian journalist off a bus Friday and arrested her on charges of subversion, according to the woman's family.

Liliane Pierre-Paul, an award-winning radio journalist who was tortured during the 29-year Duvalier dictatorship, had gone into hiding following the army coup in September that toppled elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

Soldiers stopped a tour bus at Malpasse, on the border with the Dominican Republic, and removed Pierre-Paul, telling the other passengers they were arresting a terrorist, a family member quoted a witness as saying.

Pierre-Paul had been on her way to attend the Latin American Journalists' Congress in Santo Domingo, the Dominican capital.

Pierre-Paul was one of Haiti's most listened-to journalists before the Sept. 1991 coup. An outspoken advocate of free speech and democracy, she also frequently criticized Aristide, a Catholic priest who became the Carribean nation's first democratically elected president last February.

■ Croatia, Belgrade agree to exchange POWs

BUDAPEST, Hungary — The prime ministers of Yugoslavia and Croatia signed an agreement Friday to exchange more than 1,100 prisoners of war held in their countries next week.

The exchange, mediated by the International Red Cross and based on prisoner lists compiled by the organization, is to take place on Aug. 14 and is to be followed by further exchanges as additional lists are drawn up.

Yugoslav Prime Minister Milan Panic, a California executive who assumed his post in Belgrade last month, acknowledged that the accord might have a limited impact.

"On the Balkan peninsula, signatures don't mean very much," Mr. Panic said. "So it isn't the signing which is important, but the spirit in which we signed."

Inspectors arrive in Baghdad despite warning

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A team of U.N. weapons inspectors arrived Friday in Baghdad and prepared to inspect Iraqi facilities, a day after Iraq warned it would bar the experts from government ministries.

The Iraqi statement raised fears of a new confrontation like the standoff that occurred when inspectors were denied access to the Agriculture Ministry in Baghdad last month.

Team leader Nikita Smidovich of Russia, in statements before departing from Bahrain to the Iraqi capital, asserted the inspectors' right to inspect any site, but declined to say what locations the team was planning to search.

"We have our orders and our rights are clear," Smidovich told The Associated Press. "We can visit any place in Iraq."

But, he added, "We're not looking for confrontation."

President Bush, meanwhile, reiterated that the United Nations has the right to inspect any place it chooses under the terms of the cease-fire that ended the Gulf War.

Bush, at a news conference in Washington, said he could not determine how much of Iraq's latest comments were bluster but vowed that President Saddam Hussein "is going to comply with the U.N. resolution."

Executives at the inspectors' U.N. Special Commission in Baghdad, reached by satellite telephone, said the team reached the Iraqi capital in the late afternoon on the Muslim sabbath and would be setting out on its inspection missions early today.

But late Friday, Special Commission officials at U.N. Headquarters in New York said they were informed that today is a national holiday in Iraq — observing the end of the Iran-Iraq war in 1988 — and that they were asked not to begin visits that day. The commission said it agreed to begin inspection Sunday.

The commission and team leaders never give advance notice of the sites selected for inspection of documents or material related to the Iraqi weapons of mass destruction. At times, even the team leader gets his orders from New York headquarters only at the last minute.

Iraqi Culture Minister Hamed Youssef Hammadi said Thursday the U.N. searches of ministries were political, without any technical purpose related to the U.N.-mandated destruction of Iraq's weapons of mass destruction.

He said the teams were free to visit any place except ministries, so as not to infringe on Iraq's "sovereignty and independence."

In New York, the Special Commission said Friday that it had not been officially notified of the latest Iraqi position.

"We have our orders and our rights are clear. We can visit any place in Iraq. We're not looking for confrontation.'

— Nikita Smidovich, U.N. team leader

Last month, when an earlier inspectors' team was barred from searching the Agriculture Ministry, a U.S. threat of military strikes introduced what commission Chairman Rolf Ekeus called an "element of reality" for the Iraqis.

The 21-day standoff outside the building in Baghdad was the most serious confrontation between the two sides since the inspectors began their task in the wake of the Gulf War cease-fire.

Iraq eventually "caved in," as Bush put it, and Ekeus declared it a triumph that the Iraqis had accepted the principle of access to the buildings. As part of the deal, however, he also agreed to reduce the number of Americans in the teams or put fewer of them in leadership positions.

The team now in Baghdad — the 42nd — is led for the first time by a Russian.

Smidovich, a disarmament expert who is a key aide to Ekeus in New York, is leading a team that includes American experts as well as Britons, French, Germans, Australians and other Russians.

Moscow was Iraq's major arms supplier before a U.N. embargo was slapped on Baghdad two years ago. The inspectors will search for nuclear, chemical and biological weapons-related materials but will focus on Scud missiles.

The commission is not satisfied with the accounting given by the Iraqis for the Scuds.

Judge postpones Powell retrial

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — A judge indefinitely postponed an October retrial for LAPD Officer Laurence Powell and suggested the state-court case could be dismissed in light of federal charges in the Rodney King beating.

"I don't think it's in anyone's best interest to have three trials involving the same subject matter with the same defendant," Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg said Friday in setting aside the retrial.

Weisberg's decision effectively denies Los Angeles County District Attorney Ira Reiner a second chance at prosecuting Powell on a single felony charge in the King beating unless the federal case collapses.

A jury acquitted Powell and three Los Angeles Police Department officers April 29 of 10 of 11 charges in the March 3, 1991 videotaped beating of King. It deadlocked on a charge of assault under color of authority against Powell.

In May, Weisberg had ordered a state retrial of Powell, saying the "interests of justice require that there be a second trial in the case of people versus Powell."

But on Friday, Weisberg postponed the Oct. 19 retrial, saying a federal grand jury's civil rights indictment of Powell, Sgt. Stacey Koon and Officers Timothy Wind and Theodore Briseno earlier this week changed everything.

"I will say this, the court is intent on reconsidering it's opinion in regard to a dismissal in this matter now that there is another prosecution in the system, although it is in the federal system," Weisberg said.

Deputy District Attorney Terry White, who prosecuted the original state-court trial, had argued to Weisberg that any decision about delaying the trial was "premature."

"Our intent is that this trial still go forward in October," he said.

But Weisberg said keeping the scheduled trial date would be impractical.

"My view is, if there is a federal prosecution, that prosecution should go forward prior to any state trial," he said.

Powell's attorney, Michael P. Stone hailed the decision as "derailing" the state's case, adding that state law would prevent prosecution of Powell if the federal case is resolved with a conviction or acquittal.

"I am frankly pleased and somewhat surprised," Stone said. "The federal prosecution has derailed the state case, no question about it. If there is a federal trial... there will be no trial in the state case."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven D. Clymer, one of the lead prosecutors on the federal case, said that under state law, a federal prosecution generally precludes a state trial on the same matter.

The prohibition applies to acquittals as well as convictions in the federal case, he said.

Mike Botula, a spokesman for the district attorney's office, agreed that if the federal court acquits or convicts, then under state law Powell cannot be retried.

"If the matter is resolved, that is the key word, he cannot be tried by the state — that's a simple matter of fact," Botula said. "If the case is dismissed at early stage or it is not resolved, the case is still pending."

Defendant misled committee, former member testifies

WASHINGTON — Former Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton testified Friday that Clair E. George seriously misled the Senate Intelligence Committee about the Iran-Contra affair in late 1986.

■ More national news/8C

Eagleton, a member of the committee when it began looking into the scandal, described George as a "founding father of the whole sordid mess" when he was the head of the CIA's overseas clandestine operations. Eagleton strongly suggested that George's testimony to the Senate intelligence panel thwarted its efforts to investigate the affair.

Eagleton, a prosecution witness, was subjected to a bruising cross-examination in U.S. District Court by Richard A. Hibey, George's lawyer, who contended that the committee already knew most of the specific information that Eagleton said George had withheld.

Shouting and waving his spectacles as he spoke, Hibey accused lawmakers on the committee like Eagleton of setting a trap for George, allowing him to testify inaccurately to the committee.

"I didn't put a noose around Clair George's neck," retorted Eagleton, a Missouri Democrat who retired in at the beginning of 1987. "Clair George put a noose around his neck."

Overall, it was a fiery conclusion of the second week of the former CIA official's trial that in recent days had focused on a largely bland array of prosecution witnesses. They included employees of the CIA who said George had a more detailed knowledge than he admitted in his testimony.

At Physicians & Surgeons Hospital your fast recovery and personal comfort are foremost.

To make your hospital stay more comfortable we've instituted our Patient Room Service Program. Our Patient Services Coordinator visits each patient daily to ask about the quality of nursing care, food, room temperature, treatment by staff, or any other special need. We will follow up immediately on any concern to ensure your comfort and well being.

Among the courtesies we offer are a VCR and current movies, magazines, newspapers, snack items, games, fax machine, copies, typewriters, thank you notes, personal care items, interpreters and check cashing, all at no charge. We will also provide laundry and dry cleaning and travel arrangements at actual cost.

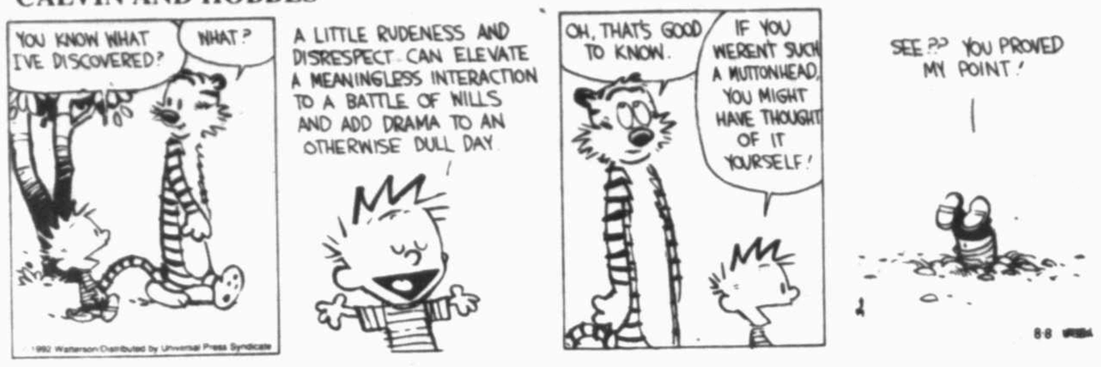

Comfort and pleasant surroundings, along with high quality medical care, all come together at Physicians & Surgeons. If you're planning a hospital stay, ask your doctor about Physicians & Surgeons Hospital.

If you have questions about the advantages of our private health care facility, please call Madilon Abbey, Patient Services Coordinator.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Planning for the future takes top priority. You could wind up with two jobs by fall. Travel for business in November. Vacationing with someone you enjoy adds a glow to the winter holiday season. January and February of 1993 are the luckiest months for business ventures. Going back to school will boost your earning potential. Join forces with a friend who is interested in self-improvement activities. A move to more comfortable living quarters is featured next June.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Richard Anderson, country singer Mel Tillis, actor Keith Carradine, movie producer Dino DeLaurentiis.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Through no fault of your own, work progress is blocked. Look for other avenues. Something that appears to be a setback could be a boon in disguise. Romance turns serious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Children are a source of great joy now. Domestic harmony will prevail if you avoid pushing too hard. Financial matters demand attention this afternoon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A settlement that is still being worked out appears to be in your favor. Beware of a temptation to take chances. Friends will help you find easier ways to do things.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Late vacationers may find that the coming weeks are just what they ordered. Keep your emotions well under control when dealing with obstinate people. Find time to relax.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A domestic situation is not all sweetness and light. Avoid anyone who tries to manipulate you in negative ways. Challenge yourself by taking on additional responsibilities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Taking the easy way out is not your best option. A relationship needs to develop greater depth. Business negotiations take time. Do not let work concerns put a damper on romance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Become more sensitive to the needs of your loved ones. Do not let impatience spoil months of hard work. Say "no" to someone who tries to waste your time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Being able to handle yourself in group situations is an important asset. Try a different approach to get yourself motivated. When renegotiating contracts, take a firm line.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pay more attention to your appearance — you are becoming more visible all the time. You have the energy to get a lot of work done today; tackle household chores with zeal.

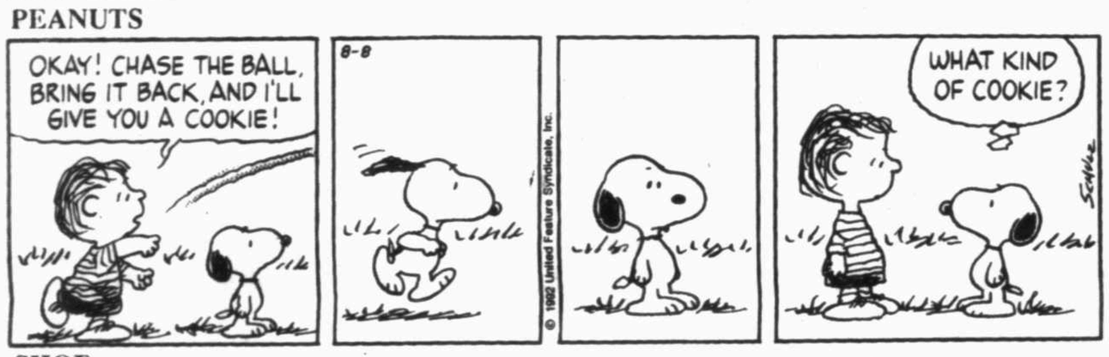

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Great ideas abound today; put them on paper. Reach out to a friend in need. Do not take "no" for an answer when confronted with a difficult client. Romance begins to heat up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take one household project at a time; trying to tackle everything at once is too overwhelming. Ask an out-of-towner to join you for a fun evening. Romance reaches new heights.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stop worrying about the unknown; trust your feelings. Dress your best if going someplace new. First impressions cannot be undone. Romance takes on greater meaning.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are good judges of character, generous to the deserving but impatient with those who slack off. Confident and reliable, these Leos are popular with teachers and employers alike. Their word is their bond. Detail-oriented and patient, they prefer to finish one job before starting another. Science and mathematics hold great appeal for these lions. Wonderful hosts, they serve only the finest food and drink. When it comes to marriage, these Leos seek a spouse whose intellect and morals match their own.

Billy Ray Cyrus delivers roses to fan in the hospital

MONROE, La. — Dawn Burns couldn't leave her hospital bed for a concert by country singer Billy Ray Cyrus, so Cyrus went to her.

"He asked her, 'Do you believe in miracles, Dawn? I do.' And he told her he was going to pray for a miracle," said Eva McCoy, Burns' mother.

With an armload of red roses, the country singer stopped by Burns' hospital room about 2 a.m., after his performance at the Monroe Civic Center.

The 22-year-old woman, struggling with a rare form of bone cancer, was having a rough night. Despite the pain, she talked with Cyrus, whose album "Some Gave All" is the nation's top-selling LP, for about 30 minutes. He held her hand, hugged her and encouraged her.

Pain medicine left Burns too groggy to talk much Thursday. Her description of the conversation: "He believes in a fighter, and he thought I was a fighter."

Burns told him she'd be his guardian angel, McCoy said. "She told him, 'You look up, and I'll be watching over you.'"

A hospital clerk who has become Burns' friend called a local radio station and the Civic Center to set up the visit.

PHOENIX — Judas Priest lead singer Rob Halford says the lawsuit a suicidal youth brought against the heavy metal rockers has made him more outspoken about his beliefs.

And one of his beliefs is that popular music, be it heavy metal or Ice-T's "Cop Killer" rap, serves merely as a detonator for pent-up rage in society.

"The fact is that most artists, like Ice-T, simply choose a subject and bring it to the attention of the world," he said. "And I suppose some people don't like having their dirty laundry aired out in public."

James Vance was 20 when he and 18-year-old Raymond Belknap tried to kill themselves with shotguns in December 1985. Belknap succeeded but Vance survived, though the blast blew away part of his face. He died in November 1988 from an adverse reaction to medication.

In his lawsuit he claimed subliminal messages on a Judas Priest recording caused the suicide pact. A judge ultimately disagreed.

SALEM, Mass. — Actor Gregory Allen Williams has received an award for helping save a man's life during the Los Angeles riots.

Williams recently played Martin Luther King Jr. in the play "The Meeting" and portrays a lawyer on the ABC series "Civil Wars." He was honored Wednesday during the dedication of the Salem Witch Trials Memorial.

"After the Rodney King verdict, I felt the same anger and rage that African-Americans are worthless," said Williams, who is black. "But I've also been blessed with the tools to deal with my anger and self-contempt.

"I have heroes in my life who have given me those tools, who have taught me that my worth is not defined by the actions of others."

The actor had gone to the riot-ravaged South Central district of Los Angeles in April to talk with residents during the violence, "but when I got there, there was a different job to do. I had to physically pull someone out of harm's way."

Williams is credited with saving a Japanese man who was beaten by a crowd and taking him to an emergency room.

PROVO, Utah — Robert Redford has offered 1,800 acres of private holdings in Diamond Fork Canyon to the Uinta National Forest in exchange for two parcels of U.S. Forest Service land in Provo Canyon.

Redford

The proposed trade for 920 forest acres could allow more homes to be built at the actor's Sundance resort in Utah County, 40 miles south of Salt Lake City.

"If they have more land, they could get a higher density" of development at the resort, said Cythia Swanson, a Uinta real estate specialist. "That was their stated intent — for future density."

But Eric Peterson, a spokesman for Sundance, said that may not be Redford's motivation.

"Bob Redford always has been interested in the land in and around the North Fork of the Provo Canyon, and in acquiring as much of that land as he is able," he said.

LOS ANGELES — People on the stand-up comedy scene are saying that fast-talking Eddie Griffin from Kansas City, Mo., may just be the next Eddie Murphy. But he likens his style to Richard Pryor's streetwise work in the '70s.

Griffin, 25, has three years in the comedy club circuit and is appearing Aug. 16 in his own cable "One Night Stand" on HBO. It was a performance with some hard-edged political satire on a "Def Comedy Jam" cable special last year that earned him the shot.

"Black comedy had gotten cutesy, but now it's going back to the grass roots," Griffin said in an interview in Thursday's Los Angeles Times. "It's going back to what's happening in the streets."

EPA: Give us your gas mowers for research

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you've got a noisy, greasy, gas-powered lawn mower that jolts the neighbors awake on Saturday mornings, you could be one of the 1,000 people to get in on a deal announced Friday:

The federal government will let you swap it for a quieter, cordless electric model so environmental researchers can determine better ways to cut air pollution generated in the pursuit of a perfect lawn.

This offer was made by the Environmental Protection Agency along with the National Consortium for Emissions Reductions in Lawn Care, an organization that contains mainly electric companies.

Up to 1,000 electric mowers, which cost about $400, will be given away to help EPA's research.

The swap works like this: volunteers turn in their gas mowers at a participating electric utility, which exchanges it for an electric mower and forwards the gas-powered one to the EPA.

The EPA tests the gas mowers for emissions. The consortium monitors the electric mowers for performance. The consumer gets a free electric mower, for keeps.

Unhappy electric-mower users can get their old mowers back.

"By including the general public, we can help them make a contribution to the environment," said Thomas Kuhn, president of the Edison Electric Institute, which is part of the consortium.

The nation's estimated 83 million lawn mowers produce as much pollution as 3.5 million new cars, the consortium said. Its preliminary studies show that switching to electric mowers could cut emissions more than 70 times over.

EPA estimates that using a gas-powered mower for one hour generates as many ozone-creating pollutants as driving a car for 50 miles.

"Put in perspective, using your gasoline-powered lawn mower for one hour will generate as much (pollution) as using your car for almost two days," said EPA Administrator William K. Reilly.

Participating utilities are Baltimore Gas & Electric, Boston Edison, Indianapolis Power & Light, New England Electric System, New York State Electric & Gas, Oklahoma Gas & Electric, Potomac Electric Power Company, Tampa Electric and Western Resources.

EPA also is working with companies that manufacture gas-powered mowers on ways to make them environmentally cleaner, Reilly said.

Reilly and Kuhn took cordless electric mowers for a test spin on a patch of downtown lawn Friday. There wasn't a noticeable difference in the quality of the cut, although Reilly's had to be pushed down before it caught any grass.

U.S. benefiting from free trade, experts say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although it could be years before a North American Free Trade Agreement is fully implemented, the United States already is reaping benefits from freer trade with Mexico, some experts say.

The Institute for International Economics estimates a continent-wide trade accord would spur a net gain of 175,000 American jobs and a $10 billion improvement in the U.S. trade balance with Mexico.

Of those 175,000 jobs, 135,000 already have been created, said Georgetown University professor Gary Hufbauer, who co-authored the private think tank's study.

"What we've got now is an anticipation of the good news," Hufbauer said.

Colleen Morton, executive director of the U.S. Council of the Mexico-U.S. Business Committee, agreed.

"It's our exports to Mexico that have been creating jobs in the U.S. over the last two or three years," she said.

Negotiators for the United States, Mexico and Canada continued to meet Friday at a Washington hotel in hopes of finalizing an accord. They were planning on weekend talks if necessary.

The trade ministers for the three nations have been meeting since Sunday in their lengthiest round since the closed-door negotiations began 14 months ago.

The trade pact, which would reduce tariffs and other barriers to the movement of goods and services across the continent, would create the world's richest trading bloc.

Even if a handshake deal is made in the coming days, Congress is not expected to vote on a trade pact before next spring at earliest. And fully liberalized trade could take up to 15 years to achieve because of slower tariff phaseouts on sensitive products.

Increased U.S. exports to Mexico are the "immediate and big payoff," Hufbauer said. "We've got a good trade surplus with Mexico and that should be maintained."

Mexico also is benefiting as foreign investment surges from U.S. and other sources, Hufbauer said.

Last year, $5 billion in foreign direct investment was pumped into Mexico as the nation's five-year campaign for economic reform and liberalization continued, said U.S. Chamber of Commerce vice president Willard A. Workman.

"It's a very vibrant, vigorous economy," Workman said. "It's become a magnet to attract U.S. products and services."

The United States has racked up a $10 billion increase in exports in the first five months of the year, 40 percent of which was to Mexico, Workman noted. "I chalk that up to the fact that the Mexican economy grew at about five percent last year and is growing at a little over 4 percent in 1992," he said.

American exports to Mexico, the nation's third largest trading partner, should total $44 billion this year — up significantly from the $12 billion posted since Mexico first cracked open its once-closed economy in 1986, Ms. Morton said.

But not all trade analysts are excited by increased ties with Mexico and the prospect of a free trade agreement.

"We continue to have factories close down and shops close up and move to Mexico," said Jeff Faux, president of the Economic Policy Institute, a Washington think tank backed by labor unions.

"In terms of the average American working family, I think there have been costs and not benefits" to increased trade with Mexico, he said. "I think those costs will continue."

American unions fear millions of jobs could be lost as U.S. factories move south of the border to take advantage of cheaper wages.

Perot backers file for November ballot

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Ross Perot backers on Friday filed petitions with more than 54,000 signatures to put the Texas businessman on Iowa's ballot as a presidential candidate in November.

"It's far from over," said Rick Ross of Waukee, a spokesman for the Perot organization. "We're going to have some fun yet."

Supporters said they would use Perot's presence on the ballot as leverage with other candidates and to get attention for the platform Perot had prepared before he decided not to make the race.

About a dozen people delivered the petitions to Secretary of State Elaine Baxter with an affidavit signed by Perot that he was a candidate. The petitions contained 54,364 signatures, Ross said.

State election officials said the filing more than meets the requirements to get on the ballot, and that Perot's name would be listed. State law requires 1,000 signatures and an affadavit of candidacy.

Perot becomes the eighth presidential candidate to qualify for the ballot in Iowa. Election officials said they anticipated as many as 11 would eventually file.

After filing petitions, the supporters headed for an organizational meeting to discuss strategy for the fall election.

"There's going to be a lot happening," Ross said.

Nation in brief

■ Intruder shoots, kills 3-month old baby

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif.— An intruder shot and killed a 3-month-old baby boy, wounded his mother and then shot and killed himself early Friday, police said.

Police said a man entered the house through a second-floor window shortly after midnight and shot the baby's mother when she confronted him. The intruder then ran into the baby's room and shot and killed the infant before turning the gun on himself, Sgt. Bob Moran said.

"The mother, 19, was shot once in the leg. She is in satisfactory condition," Moran said.

Moran said no motive for the shootings had been determined.

■ Boston bars, restaurants face condom law

BOSTON — A bill that would require Boston's 850 restaurants and bars to install condom vending machines is reopening debate on the role of condoms in the fight against AIDS.

The proposal, which the City Council approved Wednesday by an 8-4 vote, requires Mayor Raymond Flynn's signature to become law. Flynn refused to make condoms available in schools last year.

The ordinance would apply to all establishments that need city entertainment licenses, except those run by religious institutions and game rooms where youngsters are typical customers.

The proposed ordinance was sponsored by Councilor David Scondras, who called it "an opportunity to do one more small thing" to eradicate acquired immune deficiency syndrome. He said 250 new cases of AIDS were reported in the city last year.

■ Board of Governors declines to take stand

SAN FRANCISCO — The American Bar Association's Board of Governors has declined to take a stand on an abortion rights resolution, setting the stage for a possible confrontation among the group's 370,000 members.

The resolution would put the association on record as opposing state or federal legislation restricting abortions. Another advisory vote on the resolution by the group's Business Assembly, which is open to all members, is scheduled for Monday.

"This is an extraordinarily divisive issue, the likes of which we have never seen before," Anthony Palermo, a member of the board of governors, said after Thursday's 15-11 vote to remain neutral. "I don't think we need another political voice on this issue."

The ABA, which represents about half the nation's lawyers, opened its annual convention Thursday.

After the Business Assembly vote, the group's policy-making House of Delegates is to take up the issue on Tuesday. The House adopted an abortion-rights resolution in 1990 but rescinded it six months later after member protests.

If the two bodies disagree, all of the group's members would be polled on the issue.

■ City agrees to pay prostitute settlement

HONOLULU — City officials have tentatively agreed to pay a prostitute $50,000 to settle a lawsuit that contended she was forced to take an AIDS test.

The out-of-court settlement announced Thursday must still be approved by the City Council.

The 35-year-old woman, identified in court papers only as "Jane Doe," was arrested in May 1988 on charges of prostitution and reckless endangering.

Police ordered her to give a blood sample, but the state attorney general's office had it destroyed after the American Civil Liberties Union filed a complaint.

The woman's lawsuit, filed in 1990, said it was against state privacy laws to make a person take a blood test against their will.

The woman later took the test voluntarily and learned she wasn't infected with the AIDS virus.

Disappointed astronauts pack to come home

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Atlantis' disheartened astronauts packed up Friday after a vexing week in which they failed to accomplish their main goal — reeling out a satellite on 12½ miles of tether.

"Unfortunately in the space exploration business, we have to put all our eggs in one basket sometimes and try to do it all," shuttle pilot Andrew Allen said in a space-to-ground news conference.

He compared the trouble-plagued electrical Tethered Satellite experiment, which was a space first, to the trial flight of a fighter plane.

"You don't go out on the first flight and do air combat and shoot missiles and drop bombs," he said.

A jammed line forced the seven astronauts to reel in the satellite from a distance of just 750 feet Wednesday. Instead of generating the planned 5,000 volts of electricity, the tether yielded a meager 40 volts because of the short length.

"We are truly disappointed, not so much for ourselves . . . but for our scientists," said astronaut Jeffrey Hoffman, the payload commander. "We still believe in the potentials of the Tethered Satellite system."

'We are truly disappointed, not so much for ourselves . . . but for our scientists. We still believe in the potentials of the Tethered Satellite system.'

—Jeffrey Hoffman, astronaut

NASA already has begun to impound records involving the $379 million system and is forming a team to investigate what went wrong.

NASA's top official, Daniel Goldin, spoke with the astronauts Friday evening and commended them for doing "wonderful work under difficult circumstances."

Atlantis was scheduled to land at 7:39 a.m. EDT today at Kennedy Space Center. There was a possibility of rain, and NASA said it would consider sending the shuttle to the backup landing site at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The astronauts spent their last full day in orbit wrapping up atmospheric tests and stowing cabin equipment. Instruments in the open cargo bay measured the effects of atomic oxygen on materials being considered for use in NASA's proposed space station Freedom.

The crew interrupted landing preparations to chat with reporters and take phone calls from government and space officials in Italy, Switzerland and Costa Rica. The crew includes Franco Malerba, the first Italian in space; Claude Nicollier, the first Swiss in space; and Franklin Chang-Diaz, who was born in Costa Rica and is now a U.S. citizen.

Malerba told Italy's prime minister, Giuliano Amato, that the experiment validated the Tethered Satellite concept. The Italian Space Agency provided the satellite, which Malerba said performed well.

"We blew a tire in a Formula One Grand Prix, but the car was working fine," Malerba said in Italian. "I hope next time we have better tires."

Shuttle commander Loren Shriver said he supported NASA's decision to give up on the experiment, considering all the trouble the crew was having. At one point, the tether went slack and the half-ton metal ball on the end of the cord swayed back and forth above Atlantis.

"It was a pretty white-knuckle experience," said Shriver, who steadied the tether and satellite with a shuttle maneuver.

NASA had already extended the flight from seven to eight days because of earlier problems.

The astronauts had to delay releasing a European science satellite because of communications problems last weekend. Once the craft was set free, it got stuck in a low orbit because of a computer error.

The satellite, called Eureca, reached its final 315-mile-high destination Friday after the second of two thruster firings.

Judge orders hold of accused drug supplier without bond

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — A father of five accused of being one of the largest suppliers of cocaine to the Mississippi Coast has been ordered held without bond and faces a sentence of life in prison if convicted.

U.S. Federal Magistrate Judge John Roper refused bond Thursday for 27-year-old Antonia Jerome "Tony" Berry. Roper said Berry would be a threat to the community or to flee.

Berry has worked with Texas and Florida contacts, who supplied him with hundreds of pounds of cocaine, according to David Jackson, a Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics agent.

Berry, charged locally with conspiracy to distribute more than a kilogram of cocaine, surrendered to Jackson County authorities Tuesday morning. After posting a $100,000 bond, he was taken in federal custody on two outstanding warrants for narcotics-related charges issued by the U.S. Court for the Eastern District of Texas.

Authorities said Berry dealt cocaine in Mississippi, Texas, Alabama, Florida and Georgia.

Eddie Garcia and Devon Livingston, both of Texas, have been named as Berry's main suppliers, and Michael Todd Ward Caples and Reginald Jenkins of Mississippi have also been named in connection with Berry.

According to Jackson, Jenkins was stopped by police Nov. 5, 1991, in Beaumont. About two kilos of cocaine was found in his vehicle, and Jenkins was arrested. Jenkins allegedly told authorities he was connected with Berry.

Berry is the nephew of state Rep. Billy Broomfield, who defended the suspect.

When asked if he and other family members would support Berry emotionally and financially, Broomfield replied: "Absolutely, without a doubt. We're that kind of family."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jay Golden asked Broomfield if Berry had contributed any money to his campaign. Broomfield said: "Absolutely not."

Grand jury indicts killer

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. (AP) — A grand jury Friday indicted a man who admitted killing six girls or women.

The indictment naming Nathaniel White, 32, will be unsealed Monday, said District Attorney Frank Phillips, who wouldn't reveal the charge.

Bernard Brady, White's attorney, said the charge likely involved the slaying of 14-year-old Christine Klebbe, whose body was found Tuesday by police following White's directions.

More than 100 mourners attended her funeral Friday.

Quayle attacks Clinton's policies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle charged Friday that Democratic candidate Bill Clinton's economic, tax and regulatory policies would put up to two million Americans out of work.

Quayle, on the second and final day of a campaign swing through Ohio, was using the same cudgel that President Bush employed Thursday that the Clinton campaign was quick to counter.

Faced with GOP attacks on his economic policy, Clinton said during his campaign's stop in Iowa Thursday that his plan would result in one million new jobs for each of the next four years.

Quayle also boasted that "during the '12 long years' our opponents talk about, median family income increased by 8.4 percent." But his aides later admitted that income has been flat during Bush's 3 1/2 years in the White House.

Quayle, addressing a conservative business group, put a negative spin on Clinton's health care, budget and tax proposals as well as environmental ideas suggested by running mate Al Gore in a recent, best-selling book, "Earth in the Balance: Ecology and the Human Spirit."

"When you add up their entire package — their proposed cuts in the defense budget, their federal government-mandated programs, their family leave mandates, their training tax and all the rest — they're talking about a loss of almost two million jobs in a year," Quayle claimed.

His staff produced figures from the Republican staff of the Joint Economic Committee as well as some think tanks to buttress the attack.

The committee's majority staff later in the day issued a seven-page statement taking issue with the GOP effort, saying their work "makes up programs which are not part of the Clinton plan and then attributes job losses to these fabrications."

It's a Buyers' Market

...and Classified is the Buyers' Marketplace

Times like these make many of us think twice about buying anything, let alone a home. But it you look closely, you'll see there's rarely been a better time to buy. Interest rates are at their lowest levels in years; affordability is strong, and prices in many areas are declining. And despite what you may have heard, real estate should continue to appreciate at a rate above the current level of inflation. So, take advantage of this buyers' market—and look to Classified, the buyers' marketplace, for all the information needed to make a sound decision. Because, sometimes, good things come to those who don't wait.

BUY IT. SELL IT. FIND IT. CLASSIFIED.
