Atlanta Newspaper Stands Firm In Demand That Cornpone Should Be Crumbled—Sterling Is Neutral

ATLANTA, Feb. 18. (AP)—The constitution today still stood as "firm as Horatious" in its demand that cornpone be crumbled and not dunked in potlikker, but Huey P. Long, Louisiana's governor, senator-elect, and doctor of laws, declined to retreat an ell from his vigorous crusading for the dunking technique.

Governors of the southern states and other eminent authorities on potlikker consumption also rallied around their respective banners or maintained a diplomatic middle ground. Gov. Henry P. Horton of Tennessee said he crumbled his cornpone, but had no prejudice against those who dunker it.

Gov. Ross S. Sterling of Texas said either dunking or crumbling was good etiquette in great open spaces. He also congratulated both parties on arguing over "potlikker" rather than "some other kind of liquor."

The Telegraph, of Macon, Ga., joined the contest by agreeing with the constitution in the matter of technique, but not on the subject of taste.

ROY STEPHENSON IN PLEA OF GUILTY

SEVERANCE IS GIVEN M'GEE THIS MORNING

Sentence of 5 to 99 Years Awaits Bandit; Testimony For Jury Verdict Begun This Afternoon.

BRYANT COMING

Same Plea to Assault Trial Will Be Made, According To Attorneys, Studer, Teed, and Wade.

Roy Stephenson through his attorneys this afternoon entered a plea of guilty to robbing the Alanreed State bank two weeks ago, brief testimony was to be offered before charging of the jury to return a verdict of from 5 to 99 years in the Texas penitentiary.

Stephenson's attorneys indicated that the accused man also would plead guilty to the indictment charging him with shooting Jim Bryant, Alanreed blacksmith who was wounded during the robbery.

Many Alanreed citizens helped fill the district courtroom this morning when the trial of Roy Stephenson, charged with robbery of the Alanreed State bank, two weeks ago, got underway in 114th district court. Jurors in the case were to be selected by 2 o'clock.

The court granted Roy McGee, co-defendant, a motion of severance which asked that Stephenson be placed on trial first. Stephenson assented to the motion.

Tom Wade, Arthur Teed, and John Studer were appointed by the court to represent Stephenson. Eli Willis was appointed to represent McGee. Stephenson is also under indictment for assault with intent to kill in connection with the shooting of Jim Bryant, Alanreed blacksmith, at the time of the robbery. Bryant has partially recovered from the bullet wound in his stomach and is scheduled to testify for the state this afternoon. Bryant has identified Stephenson as the man who shot him.

Both Stephenson and McGee have been identified by E. E. Fredrick, cashier of the Alanreed bank, and Miss Jennie Sherrod, bookkeeper.

Charges of robbery instead of robbery with firearms were filed against the defendants in order to make it unnecessary to summon a special venire.

Judge Stennis Corrects Spelling Of "Potlicker"

Judge S. D. Stennis took sides today with Governor Long of Louisiana in his potlicker-corn pone argument with the Atlanta Constitution—except that Judge Stennis used to live in Louisiana says that both the Constitution and the governor should spell it "potlicker" instead of "potlikker."

The judge relates that he knew Huey Long and his whole tribe of kinfolks and brothers and sisters in Louisiana. He asserted that he knows positively that Huey was glad to get potlicker while he was growing up, "and if he doesn't know how to eat it, who does? How much potlicker and corn pone do you reckon the Constitution ever ate? Potlicker in Georgia and Louisiana is poor folks' grub because they eat more of it than the so-called 'quality folks.' Potlicker and corn pone is about all they have at times."

BIG SESSION UNDER WAY AT ABILENE

Enforcement of Law Requiring Filing of Lists of Assets, Earning Objective of City Officials.

RATE CUT ASKED

Company Heads Will Join In Conference; Railroad Commission Is Asked To Make Investigation.

ABILENE, Feb. 18. (AP)—Appointment of a fact-finding committee to enter negotiations with gas company officials for lower rates was predicted by Mayor Thomas E. Hayden, Jr., of Abilene as an outcome of a meeting of mayors or their representatives from 25 cities in the oil belt district, arranged here today.

The morning session was expected to be given over to effecting a permanent organization.

Mayor Hayden said he believed the starting point of discussions would be the present Texas law, article 1211 of the revised civil statutes, requiring that by March 1 each year all gas companies should file at every town in which they operate an itemized statement as to their properties, revenues and expenditures. He said no attention had been paid to the law heretofore.

Many Delegates

Wichita Falls, Henrietta, San Angelo, and other cities notified him they would send representatives to the meeting, and Frank L. Chase, vice president and operations manager of the Lone Star Gas company advised the mayor he would attend.

CHILDRESS, Feb. 18. (AP)—Representatives of six towns of this vicinity at a meeting here yesterday voted unanimously to urge their respective city councils to pass ordinances lowering gas rates 33 1-3 per cent. Delegates from Childress, Paducah, Quanah, Memphis, Wellington, and Hedley attended. Delegates from Vernon failed to arrive but sent word they would abide by the decision of the meeting.

JUDGMENT BEING DRAWN IN LOCAL INJUNCTION ACTION

Filing of Appeal by County Commissioners Will Be Done at Once.

A five-day discussion between Judge Clifford Braly and the plaintiff, J. L. Noel, concerning the latter's contention that the county commissioners should be restrained from paying Tom Jackson a $3,840 gravel bill, appeared to be near an end today when Mr. Noel's attorneys drafted a judgment to conform to the court's ruling.

Last Friday, Judge Braly granted Mr. Noel's petition for an injunction and declared that he would enjoin Miss Mabel Davis from paying the bill and Mr. Jackson from collecting it, but would not enjoin the commissioners court from ordering the bill paid.

"I'm not going to sign anything until they submit the judgment I said I would sign," the court announced this morning. "I can't enjoin the commissioners in this case because they never acted. I'll admit that they were on the verge of acting but the fact remains that they didn't."

Drawing Judgment

Chas. C. Cook, of the firm of Cook, Smith, Teed, Wade and Sturgeon which represented Mr. Noel said this morning that a judgment was being drawn up today and that it would be submitted to Judge Braly for his signature. The judgment will enjoin Miss Davis and Mr. Jackson but not the commissioners. Attorneys for Mr. Noel are considering filing a cross assignment of error alleging that the

Washington And Lincoln Topics In Rotary Talks

Interesting discussions of the lives of Washington and Lincoln were given before the Rotary club today in a patriotic program commemorating the birthdays of these two men.

Arthur Teed discussed the life of Lincoln, telling of the recent books written about the man and other publications attempting to show the more unpleasant parts of his life. "Many of these writers are natural cynics and prefer to suggest, either with or without actual facts, that what the people have believed about the lives of the great men is not true." These same men usually attack the church, civic clubs, and other worthwhile organizations.

W. J. Smith told of the activities of Washington and described the life of the man, explaining the characteristics which made him the most respected man of his day, and described yet by many as the embodiment of the ideals of the nation.

The program was in charge of Mr. Smith, who introduced Miss Iva June Willis and the Pampa High School Girls Glee club who gave two musical numbers.

SENATORS IN APPROVAL OF VETERAN BILL

President's Recommendations in Letter to Smoot Tabled As Committee Approves Measure, 13 to 3.

VOTE THURSDAY

Administration Fears Plan Would Delay Prosperity And Thereby Be Harmful To All Citizens.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—The senate agreed today to take up the veterans loan bill tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—Overriding the expressed opposition of President Hoover, the senate finance committee approved the veterans' loan bill today without change.

Quick senate action was looked for. The president's views were given in a letter to Chairman Smoot and read to the committee. He went on record as fearing the legislation will not only nullify the benefits to the veteran but inflict injury to the country as a whole.

Within an hour, the committee voted 13 to three for the house measure after rejecting a substitute.

Democrats Vote Solid

Democrats voted solidly for the bill as passed by the house.

Six republicans, led by Senator Watson, the party leader, joined in support of the house bill after the futile attempt to substitute it.

Those voting against the bill were Chairman Smoot and Senators Reed of Pennsylvania and Bingham of Connecticut, both republicans.

Those for the measure were: Republicans, Watson, Shortridge, Couzens, Keyes, LaFollette, and Thomas of Idaho. Democrats, Simmons, Harrison, George, Walsh, Massachusetts; Barkley, Thomas of Oklahoma and Connally.

King Doesn't Vote

Senator King, democrat, Utah, withheld his vote.

In the hearing, Reed suggested making the loans available only to those who have already borrowed on their certificates at six per cent interest.

Two Proposals

Harrison protested this would not help those in distress. Hines recommended two proposals: Limitation of the loans to those in distress, and payment of the loans over monthly or quarterly periods. The administrator expressed confidence that the veterans own statement would be sufficient to determine the factor of need.

Hines estimated about 200,000 or 300,000 veterans in distress and in need of the loans.

"I think we could handle the cost of aid to them," he answered to Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts.

The text of Mr. Hoover's letter follows:

"I have given thought to your request that I should express to you and to the senate finance committee my views upon the bill passed by the house of representatives increasing loans to World war veterans upon the so-called 'bonus certificate.' In view of the short time remaining in the session for its consideration, I shall comply with your request.

Gives Details

"The proposal is to authorize loans upon the certificates up to 50 per cent of their face value. And to avoid confusion it must be understood that the face value is the sum payable at the end of the 20-year period (1945) being based on additional compensation to veterans of about $1,300,000,000 granted about six years ago, plus 25 per cent for determent, plus four per cent compound interest for the 20-year period.

"As the 'face value' is about $1,423,000,000 loans at 50 per cent thus create a potential liability for the government of about $1,711,000,000, and, less the loans made under the original act, the net cash which might be required to be raised by the treasury is about $1,230,000,000 if all should apply.

"The administrator of veterans

If Threats Are From Organized Crime, The Challenge Is Accepted

If, as rumored, the liquor interests of this territory have expressed their displeasure with activities of Sheriff Lon L. Blanscet, the answer to them is simple and short: What of it?

Sheriff Blanscet was not elected to please the bootleggers. He is not answerable to them in any form. Law violators may be expected to register disapproval of law enforcement. It is anticipated that they shall make threats, offer bribes, and otherwise seek to stay the hand of justice. Their number is large and their ramifications devious.

Threats are meaningless. Fearless officers are seldom harmed in communities which expect and support law enforcement. Violence defeats the ends sought. This community is largely law abiding. It is not an "oil town" of wide-open propensities.

Sheriff Blanscet will have full community support in replying to these threats with energetic drives against organized and unorganized crime. It would be a sad chapter in Gray county history were the bootleg elements allowed to dictate the activities of duly elected officers.

The threats serve only to make the officers more alert and to cause citizens to give closer attention to law enforcement.

HOOVER—

affairs informs me by the attached letter that he estimates that if the present conditions continue, then 75 per cent of the veterans may be expected to claim the loans, or the sum of approximately $1,000,000,000 will need to be raised by the treasury.

"I will not undertake to enumerate all of the grounds for objections to this proposal.

"There are a number of more serious objections, some of which are matters of method and some of which are matters of fundamental principle affecting the future of our country and the service men themselves.

Recalls Principles

"I have supported, and the nation should maintain the important principle that when men have been called into jeopardy of their very lives in the protection of the nation, then the nation as a whole incurs a special obligation beyond that to any other group of its citizens.

"These obligations can not be wholly met with dollars and cents. But good faith and gratitude require that protection be given to them when in ill health, distress, and in need.

"Over 700,000 World war veterans or their dependents are today receiving monthly allowances for these reasons. The country should not be called upon however, either directly or indirectly, to support or make loans to these who can by their own efforts support themselves.

"By far the largest part of the huge sum proposed in this bill is to be available to those who are not in distress.

"The acute depression and unemployment create a situation of unusual economic sensitiveness, much more easily disturbed at this time than in normal times by the consequences of this legislation, and such action might quite well result in a prolongation of this period of unemployment and suffering in which veterans will themselves suffer with others.

Cites Other Aids

"By our expansion of public construction for assistance to unemployment and other relief measures, we have imposed upon ourselves a deficit in this fiscal year of upwards of $500,000,000, which must be obtained by issue of securities to the investing public. This bill may possibly require the securing of a further billion of money likewise from the public.

"Beyond this, the government is faced with a billion dollars of early maturities of outstanding debts which must be refunded aside from constant renewal of a very large amount of temporary treasury obligations.

"The additional burden of this project can not but have damaging effect at a time when all efforts should be for the rehabilitation of employment through resumption of commerce and the industry.

"There seems to be a misunderstanding in the proposal that the government's securities already lodged with the treasury to the amount of over $700,000,000 as a reserve against these certificates constitute available cash to meet this potential liability.

Must Sell Securities

"The cash required by the veterans can only be secured by the sale of these securities to the public.

"The legislation is defective in that this $700,000,000 of government securities is wholly inadequate to meet either a potential liability of $1,280,000,000, or approximately $1,000,000,000 estimated as possible by the administrator of veterans affairs, and provision would need to be made at once for this deficiency.

"The one appealing argument for this legislation is for veterans in distress. The welfare of the veterans as a class is inseparable from that of the country.

"Placing a strain on the savings needed for rehabilitation of employment by a measure which calls upon the government for a vast sum beyond the call of distress, and so adversely affecting our general situation, will in my view not only nullify the benefit to the veterans but inflict injury to the country as a whole.

"Yours faithfully,

stood 9 to 3 for conviction. When they reported to the court this morning that they stood 11 to 1 and were unable to agree upon a verdict Judge Clifford Braly sent them back to the jury room. The jurors were unable to agree upon the question of guilt or innocence only it is understood.

After the verdict was read, Mr. Myers was placed in the county jail. Through his attorney, Newton P. Willis, Mr. Myers filed a motion for a new trial.

Immediately after the jury left the court room yesterday, District Attorney Raymond Allred filed charges of perjury against Myers in connection with statements alleged to have been made to Sheriff Lon L. Blanscet and the deputies who arrested him. Mr. Myers on the witness stand denied that he ever told Sheriff Blanscet that he wasn't "going to deal in liquor any more." He also denied that he told officers and James Todd Jr., justice of the peace, the three and one-half gallons of whiskey found behind a secret panel of a wash-stand in his house belonged to him.

Bond was fixed at $1,000 by Judge Todd. Myers posted bond at 6 o'clock and was released.

Myers testified on the stand that the whiskey belonged to a man called "Slim." The defendant said "Slim" had the room rented and owned the wash-stand.

"God help the man who gets in the way of an aroused public opinion," said the marine commander, who recently was censured for a speech in which he related an episode of which he had been told, describing Premier Mussolini of Italy as a hit and run driver.

"I've had an experience of that sort," he added.

For the most part Butler confined his remarks to a description of his administration of the Philadelphia crime "cleanup" a few years ago. He recommended the constant shifting of policemen from one beat to another as a means of putting a stop to corruption.

The out-spoken general, who said he had never posed for motion pictures, engaged in a blustery exposulation at the start of his speech with news reel men whom he finally permitted to set up their cameras and incandescent lamps before the speaker's table.

"I greet you although I cannot see you," he told his audience, squinting into the blinding lights.

After an attempt to begin his talk he suddenly halted.

"I wish you'd get those things out of here," he exploded, glowering but with some good nature at the cameramen. The machines ground on and on as the general stopped and fixed them with what his subordinates used to call his "gimlet eye."

Potlikker, it may be explained, is simply the soup of such things as cabbage, turnip-tops, spinach, and beet-tops.

Every two years since 1923, State Senator J. J. Nejdl of Whiting, Ind., has introduced an old-age pension bill in the Indiana legislature. It has always failed to pass.

School to War on Dullness

Lively Talks to Be Heard At City Hall Auditorium

Armies may proclaim armistices, navies may cease to build ships, crowned heads may confer in peace pacts, and governments may sign treaties, but in her quest for charm, success, and happiness womankind will tolerate no armistice, or cease to build her hopes. She will sign no treaty with the enemy Time, and make no peace with dullness. That is, if she is a wise general who knows that triumph is to the strong when the battle is strategically planned, even if the odds are against her.

But sometimes even the bravest soldier finds her courage flagging, and she wonders whether her strategy is correct or not, and the enemy camps of plainness and dismay loom ominously strong.

But reinforcements are coming!

The city hall auditorium is to be the battleground when the News-Post holds its first annual Charm school there from Feb. 24-27, and Nancy Earle is the wise and valorous general who will lend the women of Pampa to new victories against the ancient enemies of age and unattractiveness.

New plans of attack, new little strategems, new ammunition, new courage, and new vision Nancy Earle brings. And to those who march under her wise leadership are promised the conquered lands of charm and happiness.

"This matter of being charming is indeed a battle," Nancy Earle asserts. "An endless warfare. The rewards of charm-victory do not fall, like the golden apples of the Hesperides, into the outstretched palms of those who merely turn their supplicating eyes heavenward.

"Whether a woman is gifted with loveliness of face and form and mind, or whether she has to evolve these things from an apparently scanty store of material, she has to keep battling. If she rests easy in her tent, even the most beautiful woman will soon find the enemy encroaching upon her. Her figure that was so perfect will begin to melt gradually into that indefinite outline that just a few additional pounds may make unlovely. That transparent smoothness of her skin will almost imperceptibly alter, if she neglects the principles of scientific diet and cosmetics, so that one day her mirror tells a grievous story of lines and coarseness to her who felt so secure.

Teeth that were once so pearly cry out for the dentist. Hair that was bright and smooth slips into scraggles. And that personality, which with its sparkle and vivacity and grace was once the envy of all her friends, has sunk, under the weight of perhaps just a few years, into a colorless, lifeless, anonymous thing. Defeated, this marvelously fortified woman, because she felt she need not fight.

"And what battles, what gay and gallant battles, that woman must wage who must march from the very bottom of the hill. Many of us do, you know, but the most delightful thing about it is that those of us who do have to begin at the very beginning have even a sweeter victory than those who launch the battle with waving plumes. Not only the keen sense of satisfaction in winning over handicaps, but also the fact that our reward is actually greater. That is to say, the charm which a woman who is not merely pretty attains has a subtle element of power to which prettiness can never aspire. I am almost convinced that prettiness is an actual liability, so often do I see pretty women utterly lacking in charm, and clever women surmounting what might be their plainness and with an adroit hand turning some positive irregularity into an elusive, intriguing and potent charm.

"And another delightful thing about this warfare of the born-plain, is that success and triumph are assured. No woman lives who cannot make of herself an attractive, charming and happy person."

So sounds the clarion call. The cohorts are gathering for the initial foray on Tuesday, Feb. 24, in the city hall auditorium. And thence the grand offensive proceeds on Feb. 25, 26, and 27. The News-Post believes that every woman in Pampa will want to join the ranks.

BRIDGE CLUBS ARE ENTERTAINED TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Black and White Are Colors Used By Mrs. Swanson

Black silhouettes of George and Martha Washington adorned the tallies for an attractive party given by Mrs. Arthur Swanson Tuesday afternoon for members of the London Bridge club. Score pads were in a similar design, and the black and white theme was used throughout the party.

Favors wrapped in black were presented to Mrs. W. E. Coffee for high club score, Mrs. Hogue for high guest score, Mrs. W. M. Lewright for low, and Mrs. P. O. Sanders for high cut. A dainty salad course was served.

Members present were Mesdames J. Wade Duncan, Otto Studer, John Studer, J. D. Sugg, W. E. Coffee, Clarence Barrett, William T. Fraser, P. O. Sanders, Curtis Douglass, M. D. Oden, Porter Malone, Warren Neffus, and the hostess. Special guests were Mrs. W. M. Lewright, Miss Marjorie Buckler, Mrs. W. C. Hogue, and Mrs. Lowe.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Clarence Barrett.

Mrs. Longworth Appears In Gown From Trousseau

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP) — Daring as always, Alice Roosevelt Longworth turned back the clock a quarter century last night, to appear at her silver wedding party in the bulging pompadour of 1906 and a costume from her trousseau.

The slender, youthful looking "Princess Alice" required of the guests invited to dinner at the Longworth home that they too wear gowns of the same era. If they had no ball gowns left they were commanded to appear in shirtwaists, skirt and sailor hats, so that inside the home everything recalled the Feb. 17 when at the White House President Roosevelt gave away his daughter to young "Nick," who now shines as the sartorially perfect speaker of the house of representatives.

Alice did not attempt appearing in her wedding gown and veil, substituting a gown of gold satin. The pompadour was topped with a glittering diamond tiara of the same period. She wore too the necklace of matched diamonds which was the groom's gift, and the bracelet sent by the emperor of Germany as a wedding gift.

Canadian Police Holding Mexican

WICHITA, Kans., Feb. 18. (AP) — Wichita police were informed last night that Jose Rocales, a Mexican wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Miss Lucille Price of Newton, Kans., had been arrested at Canadian, Tex. Jess Granado and Amada Vasquez, two Wichita Mexicans questioned about the murder, were released late yesterday at the request of Harvey county officers who said they had insufficient evidence to hold them.

RECEIVES POSTAL CARDS

Postal cards showing scenes of the Palo Duro canyon in color have been received by the chamber of commerce. They are on display ni George W., Brig's office. The original pictures were taken by a Canyon photographer and they were sent out by the Canyon chamber of commerce. The process used in tinting the cards is a late discovery and the colors are exceptionally natural and vivid. The cards are of linen paper.

Catholic Church Ushers In Lent

The holy season of Lent, a time of self-denial and personal efforts to appease the justice of God, was ushered in this morning in the Holy Souls Catholic church by the blessing and distribution of ashes. Father Joseph Wonderly officiated at the service.

This evening at 8 o'clock there will be Lenten services at which Father Wonderly will say the stations of the cross and Father McGee, who is visiting at the rectory, will preach a sermon on the meaning and purpose of Lent. This will be followed by benediction, and the services will be closed with the distribution of ashes.

On Friday evening the Rev. Edward McFadden of Price Memorial college, Amarillo, will preach the first of a series of Lenten sermons that will be given every Friday evening.

During Lent there will be holy mass each morning at 8 o'clock except Mondays, when Father Wonderly will be at Canadian. Catholics are asked to assist daily at mass during Lent, and the general public is invited to any or all of the services.

Chimes End Gay Festival; Also Usher In Lent

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18. (AP) — The chimes of the old St. Louis cathedral, one of the most historic churches on the American continent, brought another Mardi Gras to a close at midnight this morning and at the same moment ushered in Lent's 40 days of atonement.

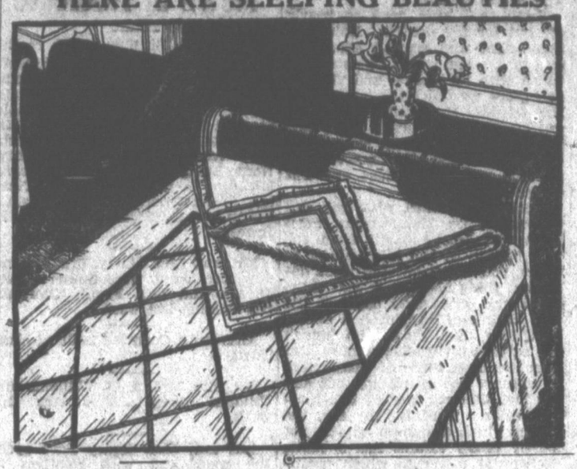

As the pealing bells hushed the din of dance and masquerade, King Rex retired from the throne of fantasy to become again Edward E. Soule, a business man, and the unidentified King Zulu, negro carnival ruler, returned to the workaday world.

The concluding event on the Mardi Gras program was the ball of Comus, god of laughter, at which Miss Adele Jahncke, daughter of Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy, was queen.

HERE ARE SLEEPING BEAUTIES

By MARGERY TAYLOR
Interior Decoration Editor, McCall's Magazine. Written for Pampa Daily News.

The newest blankets seem to be the result of the scientific discovery that their purpose is to keep one warm and comfortable.

If you think that every blanket maker and buyer has known this since sleep was invented, go back to your adventures with blankets on any cold night.

Growing chilly, you add a couple of blankets. Though warm as you doze off, for some reason you don't sleep soundly. You are restless and breathing isn't easy. Then you wake up shivering, and find yourself exposed to the fresh air—too much of it.

Scientific sleep experiments by university psychologists have revealed two main reasons why the old blankets were wrong. One is that the blankets, in order to be warm, were made of such a texture as to be too heavy, and the pressure handicapped breathing and caused excessive dreaming. The other reason — and how many will agree!—is that blankets were too short.

The new blankets weigh less than five pounds. The secret of warmth is in the weave, and the best blanket is now a closely woven insulator with a dense and long nap almost like fur.

The wise buyer holds the blanket up to the light. If none comes through, the weave is close enough. Squeeze the wool—it should be soft, spongy and elastic.

As for sizes, single and twin beds need blankets at least 60 or 66 by 84 inches. For three-quarter beds the width should be 66, and 72 inches is the width for double beds. The newest blankets spread 80 by 90 inches and the old double blanket is giving way to the single.

Art joins with science in the new blankets. Plaids are losing their popularity to plain colors, and the height of style is the two-tone reverrible combination, including blue and gold, orchid and green and orchid and peach.

In bindings, satin is the favorite, but on the elite of blankets brocade is used. On finer blankets the binding goes all around.

Appliques of flowers or butterflies have appeared on some blankets, but more popular is the monogram, particularly on trousseau blankets.

FEMININE FANCIES

BY HOLLYCE SELLERS

Fitter, fatter, and fairer—that was the pronouncement by physicians for nine young women who lived four weeks on a diet costing 28 cents a day apiece, according to an Associated Press report. The experimenters were two instructors and seven students at the Washington Missionary college.

It is true that many people are eating themselves to death, and yet are undernourished. It is all in knowing a few simple principles of dietetics and in applying them. Upon first thought, it would appear that the girls would go hungry. But no. The novelty of such an experiment would appeal to a girl so strongly that she would make every penny count for the most, and would get more food value from her 28 cents than one would ordinarily get with a much larger sum. And the meals would be balanced.

Although Fancy Earle, who will conduct a Health and Charm school here Feb. 24-27, is not to bore the women of Pampa with drawn out discussions of dietetics, she will touch on the value of proper eating and will answer any question which is perplexing a member of the audience.

Food has a definite bearing on the charm of any woman, not only through proper eating, but on easy and graceful serving as well. A woman's charm is in its greatest danger when her husband brings home an unexpected guest or when friends "drop in" unexpectedly for a visit. The wise woman has prepared for such occasions with an emergency shelf, upon which are packaged and canned goods which can quickly be turned into delicious dishes.

For interesting uses of canned goods, the following have been suggested to the woman's department of the News-Post:

"Add shredded coconnut to puddings or mix it with canned or fresh fruits to make a cocktail or dessert that looks festive. Canned grapefruit makes an excellent cocktail or combined with lettuce and dressing a delicate salad. Pour flavored corn syrup and nutmeats over the ice cream to make a professional sundae from the ice cream bought at the corner store. Use it, too, to make a sauce to pour over the stale cake used for the pudding or to glace the carrots, sweet potatoes or other lowly vegetables. Dates stuffed with cheese may be added to the salad servings to make enough to "go 'round," and the plain dates make an admirable addition to the homely baked apple. Canned pimientoes are a means of eking out the entree, and are a real life-saver in the preparation of salads and sandwiches. The ready-prepared desserts, with a cornstarch base, are quickly turned into company dishes, and come in a multitude of flavors.

Says Repentance is Repulsive But Very Necessary

Speaking before a crowd of more than 100 people last night in the auditorium of the First Baptist church, Rev. H. R. Whatley used the subject of repentance. Rev. Whatley emphasized the importance of the doctrine of repentance, telling his audience that no subject about which he could have talked could mean more to humanity.

"I am going to begin tonight by talking about the importance of repentance," said Rev. Whatley. The importance of this subject is emphasized by the words of the text, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

"There are two things that go hand in hand; repentance and faith, they are both inseparable. So when a talk about repentance you must know that faith is present."

"In the text we are told of an incident, the fall of the tower of Siloam. There was a tower in Siloam which fell on a number of people and killed them. The question immediately arose, were these sinners above all others? Christ answered, "Think ye the eighteen on which the tower of Siloam fell were sinners above all others? Nay, I say unto you that except ye repent you shall likewise perish?" People in our cities are no worse than those in the country. The people killed in the disasters such as the earthquake in San Francisco, the flood at Galveston, or the fire of Chicago, were no worse than the people in Texas. The importance of repentance is the same to all people. "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish."

"Repentance is repugnant to the human family. You can compliment people and win their respect, but to tell them of their sins and ask them to repent is something repulsive to the human family. You can go to a prominent business man and tell him his influence is good and needed at the revival, and he will come. But you tell him he needs to repent, and he will be insulted. I tell you repentance is repulsive to the human family; but it is the only way man can obtain salvation."

"Repentance means you are sorry in your heart toward God for the wrongs you have done Him. It means that you turn to Him for the forgiveness of your sin, begging His pardon for the sins you have committed against Him."

At the close of the service there was one addition to the church. The general public is assured of a cordial invitation to attend services each evening at 7:30, and each morning at 10 o'clock.

INJUNCTION

court erred in failing to enjoin the commissioners.

Mr. Noel took the position that Judge Braly granted the injunction because he found that the contract was void, and that because the commissioners had no right to make such a contract they had no right to order the contract bill paid. He argued that the court's action in failing to enjoin the commissioners was inconsistent. If the contract is void, as the plaintiff, Mr. Noel, contends, then the commissioners should be enjoined, his attorneys argue.

Meanwhile, the county commissioners are impatiently waiting for the court to render judgment in the case. Through their attorney, Judge Newton P. Willis, they have already filed notice of appeal. The appeal will be taken as soon as the judgment is filed, it was announced Saturday. Commissioners believe that the Court of Civil Appeals will act on the case within three weeks after it is filed. Injunctions have precedence before any other kind of suit, it is understood.

The record will be made up in the case as soon as judgment is filed, Mr. Willis said.

Death followed an operation on Monday. His condition had been reported satisfactory until a few hours before death. He was about 40 years of age.

He was suffering from an abdominal ailment brought about by a strict diet which he had followed to reduce his weight for a part in a picture.

When he entered the hospital he had lost about 30 pounds.

After the operation, an attending surgeon, Dr. Clarence Hopkins, said a condition had been disclosed which might necessitate another operation when the actor recovered but death came as he tried to regain his strength.

ROMANCE was shut out from their lives

MARJORIE and Evelyn Blake were free to enjoy all the pleasures of wealth but still were forbidden the happiness even the poorest might expect.

Their aunt and guardian, Annabelle Querdling, with cunning malice and effective weapons, tried to bar from the lives of these attractive, vivacious girls every bit of affection and romance. So long as the aunt lived, she stood between them and marriage to the men they loved.

But Miss Querdling was killed—murdered—and the finger of suspicion pointed in bewilderingly opposite directions, at the two girls, their lovers, their friends. The crime is solved in a brilliant story of mystery and romance.

JACK DEMPSEY AVOIDS ALL FIGHTS OUTSIDE OF RING

OLD MAULER IS NOTED AS GREAT HOST

He Never Fails to Send Gifts on Big Occasions For Friends — Fond of Children; Has None.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)— Can you imagine Jack Dempsey running away in a panic because a 135-pounder dared him to put up his fists and fight like a man? It has happened.

The old man mauler would tackle anything that ever lived inside the ropes of a prize ring but wax pugnacious out in public and you'll lose part of your audience abruptly. Juries in damage suits have ways of sympathizing with the amateur warrior.

"Drunks," he said, "are the worst. They think they can lick the world. I've run away from more fights outside the ring than I ever had in them."

Dempsey probably won't fight again because no one has asked him to. His comeback "feelers" haven't excited anyone to make him an offer. He'd rather keep on refereeing but he is subject to financial temptation. One thing he has sworn never to do is manage a fighter. They gave him Leo Lomski once and he gave Leo right back.

Extravagant Host

He is one of the greatest hosts in sport. One party at his $250,000 home in Hollywood cost $20,000. He likes to talk about the swimming pool that cost $25,000 and the 400 persons who can dance in the ball room at one time. He hates to be alone.

When wandering around the country Dempsey carries a pocketful of cash and any hard luck story is worth 10 or 20. Obvious charity embarrasses him.

He was sitting with Tex Rickard at his attorney's table inside the court room rail on the opening day of Jack Kearn's suit against him when he noticed a big fellow with a pronounced limp coming into the room. He turned away quickly and scrooched way down in the seat.

Only one person in the place saw him drag all the money he had from both pockets, put the bills in one hand and the change back, lean over, whisper to Rickard, and as quietly frisk him of every bit of paper money he carried.

Aids Cripple

Dempsey straightened up then, crumpled the bills into his right hand and with a show of great surprise, discovered the big, dragging fellow as he was helped into a seat. He rushed over, rung his hand for a long time, chatted with him, and came back to his seat. His right hand was empty.

"That crippled guy used to work with Dempsey but the punching ruined him," someone explained.

He's probably the champion godfather of America. He never misses a marriage, birth, death, christening or the sailing of a friend. There is always a gift or personal note. His greeting so hearty it sometimes dislocates shoulders. He likes to play rough.

Estelle Taylor always wears his orchids or gardenias when they're together. He's crazy about youngsters. His greatest disappointment is that he has none of his own. When they took the bandages off his remodeled nose his wife gasped "Ginsboig" and she has called him that every since.

The Schneider hotel bowling team sprang the surprise of the season in the Industrail league last night when the hotelmen five took two games out of three from the league leading Diamond shop. The hotelmen lost the opening game but took the second encounter by one pin and the final game by the narrow margin of three pins.

The Gordon store team won two out of three from Cal Farley's boys and Cabot company took two from Foxworth-Galbraith.

Byrd of the Foxworth-Galbraith team was high point man of the night with 573 pins. He was closely followed by Murphy of the Gordon store team with 561 pins. De Prez of the Foxworth-Galbraith five had high game score with 233 pins.

Bids on Drilling Of Well Rejected

All bids to drill another water well rejected by the city commissioners yesterday afternoon. Bids will be advertised again.

The commissioners also received bids to build another unit to the sewerage disposal plant. Final action on these was postponed until next week.

YOUNG BOY HURT

MERKEL, Texas, Feb. 17. (AP)— Jack Huddleston, 12-year-old Merkel boy, escaped probable death today when he threw his body clear of truck wheels as the machine pinned and fractured one of his feet as he ran across a street here. J. D. Chapman, employe of the Austin Bridge company, driver of the truck, said he did not know the boy had been struck until he had driven about two miles. He returned and reported to officers, but was not detained.

RADIO DAY by DAY

by C.E BUTTERFIELD

(Time Is Central Standard)

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Tomorrow night is moving time for radio roundup, the WABC network feature which corrals a wide group of stage and radio stars each week.

It goes on an hour later, at 10:30, so that appearances of stage personages will not conflict with their theatrical engagements.

This week's bill is to include Roy Atwell, stage monologist, and the return of Annete Henshaw, contralto, to the microphone. Freddie Rich's orchestra supplies the necessary tunes.

Henry M. Neely, veteran radio personality, is making plans to revive his old stager's memories, in which light opera is reviewed. When he starts via an NBC hookup has not been definitely settled, but plans for the new series include an orchestra directed by Harold Sanford and a number of vocalists.

Up to a year or so ago, Neely, as the old stager, put on a similar weekly period on WJZ and stations on Friday nights.

Try these on your radio tonight:

Morton Downey, tenor, and Freddie Rich's orchestra, WABC and stations at 6.

Bobby Jones' golf chat, WEAF and network at 7.

Mary Pickford interviewed in the musical cocktail, WABC chain at 7:30.

Will Rogers guest of Olive Palmer and artists, WEAF network at 8:30.

Tandy MacKenzie, tenor, singing in the pleasure hour, WJZ and one network at 8:30, repeated at 10:15 for another hookup.

Little Bill Johnson, tennis star, interviewed by Grantland Rice, WEAF setup at 9:30.

MATADORS TO MEET BUFFS IN TWO TILTS

Clever Outfits To Clash Tonight And Tomorrow At Buffalo Gym—Tradition At Stake.

CANYON, Feb. 18. (AP)—The West Texas Buffaloes are expecting to find the going plenty hard, when Texas Tech Matadors pay their visit to the Buffalo range Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week.

These are the last regular scheduled games for the Buffs for the 1931 season and every effort will be made to put them in the win column. The championship of the T. I. A. A. will be determined in a three game series with East Texas Teachers of Commerce, but the place and time have not been determined.

Monday and Tuesday were spent in smoothing off the rough places in the offense. The big coach seems pretty well satisfied with the way in which the Buff's defense has been clicking.

A month ago the Buffs made a two-night stand at the Matador gym. The first game was tucked away in fine fashion but the second game was a bear, and the Buffs winning basket was made just as the timer's gun stopped hostilities.

This game had one of the most spectacular endings one could imagine. The score was tied with one minute and 10 seconds left to play. Tech secured possession of the ball and kept it for a minute, when Comer made his fourth foul of the evening. Tadlock, for Tech, had the opportunity of a life time, when he was given a free throw from the charity line, with only 10 seconds to play. He missed. Burk, for the Buffs, recovered the rebound, dribbled to center field and shot, while the ball was still in the air the timer's gun sounded. The goal was good and West Texas had won 37 to 35, bringing the total wins for all time with Tech to 19. Tech has defeated the Buffs only twice in 21 games played, but they make take one most any time and Coach Burton is driving his men at top speed making ready for the invasion of the Matadors.

The Herd has never been able to find a walk-over on the Tech Matadors, even if they do hold a majority of wins over them. There has always been a struggle from start to finish and neither of the teams has ever been certain of victory until the game ended. Both schools have started off in a lead and ended up losers.

Coach Burton has practically a new outfit this year for his first-string team, while, W. L. Golightly, Tech coach, has some of the old-timers, such as Tadlock Fisher, and Hodges. These men have been with the Matadors from two to four years and are well acquainted with the Buffs system of play. They found it possible to beat the last year's champions of the T. I. A. A. just a day after the Buffs were awarded the crown.

Southwest Golf Stars To Start Houston Meet

HOUSTON, Feb. 18. (AP) — The southwest's star golfers lined up today for the last qualifying test in the Houston country club's 17th annual invitation tournament.

Two youngsters from Dallas surprised everybody yesterday by tieing for high with '73's. Gus Moreland, 19, and Feynolds Smith, 18-year-old student in Southern Methodist university, took the honors while veterans and favorites were battling with a damp course and the new official ball, which all pronounced difficult to handle.

Johnny Dawson of Chicago, defending champion, scored 76; and Jimmy Manion of St. Louis and Johnny Goodman of Omaha, both former trans-Mississippi champions, had a hard time shooting 75's.

The first fighters go over 18 more holes today to determine the 16 men who will compete for Dawson's crown.

Meanwhile all second and third fighters who did not start yesterday will get under way today.

'Gringo' Customs In Mexico Barred

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18. (AP) — A vigorous campaign against "gringo customs" in the National university, backed up by a "terror committee" of upper classmen, today counted among its casualties a freshman in a nearby hospital with a bullet wound in his leg.

As a consequence of the fracas, which occurred in the school of plastic arts, university authorities today considered prohibiting all carrying of pistols by students save by special permit. The trouble occurred when the freshman, Manuel Jimenez Ceballos, who wore side burns, rebelled at having his head shaved by senior students. He broke away and ran whereupon the student who had been appointed barber drew his gun and shot him in the leg.

The activities of the "terror committee" were most in evidence about the law school where wearing of spats, going hatless, side-burns, carrying of canes, and other "gringo customs" by freshmen were under a strict student ban.

The ban was extended yesterday to include use of chewing gum and several freshmen who defied the order had their mouths scoured with flour. Other violators were ducked in a water vat.

HORNSBY AT HELM OF CUB PACK TODAY

All Hands Ordered to Be At Practice At 11—To Use Soccer Games As Leg Remedy.

AVALON, Calif., Feb. 18. (AP) — Rogers Hornsby's managership of the Chicago Cubs started formally and informally today as he cracked the whip in the first spring practice of the 1931 campaign.

One workout daily, starting at 11 a. m., and lasting "until," —was the Rajah's training plan. He has arranged for soccer games during each training season, to strengthen the legs and aid the wind.

The advance guard of the Cubs—the batterymen and the few rookies who couldn't wait for the second squad of infielders and outfielders—landed on William Wrigley's magic island yesterday. Manager Hornsby gave them the afternoon to get located and play golf—then ordered all hands on deck for today's initial workout.

Business Stops To See Doug Fairbanks

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 18. (AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, motion picture actor, virtually paralyzed business along the waterfront today when he arrived aboard the liner Belgenland.

Almost all of the workers left their jobs to get a glimpse of him.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 persons jammed the pier while another huge throng lined the streets outside.

Members of the crowd carried him to a waiting automobile, almost a quarter of a mile away, and put him on top of it rather than inside, so the waiting "fans" could better see him.

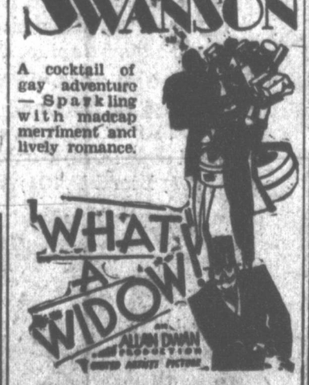

Fairbanks is en route to Siam, where he will hunt and photograph big game.

SISTER DIES IN FALL

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18. (AP) — Losing her balance and falling into an elevator shaft, Sister Mary Clsnevieve, 72, was killed almost instantly today at the convent of the Sisters of Mercy here.

Sister Mary fell as she reached into the elevator shaft from an upper floor to catch hold of the rope to descend to a lower floor. She fell about 30 feet into the shaft.

Thurnblad To Try To Repeat Victory

CHICAGO, Feb. 18. (AP)—Arthur Thurnblad will attempt to prove that his triumph in the recent world's three-cushion billiard championship tournament was not a fluke.

The rangy Chicago Swede, who beat a field of champions to win the 1931 title, is booking an exhibition tour to prove his mettle.

"My challenge is open to Willie Hoppe, Welker Cochrane and any others who didn't compete in the recent tournament, as well as to those who did," he said. "According to the rules of National Billiard association, my title cannot be risked for one year, but I'll play for vindication — and wagers — to show 'em I'm the champ."

Last Basketball Will Be Tonight For Boys' Team

The curtain for local basketball by the Harvesters and the reserves will be rung down tonight with Mobeetie teams furnishing the opposition.

The Wheeler county champions are reported to be stronger than most people believe. The games will start at 7:30 o'clock.

The Harvesters will enter the Canyon tournament.

Golfing Army to Be Much Longer

CHICAGO, Feb. 18. (AP)—The golfing army of the United States will be swelled by at least one million more duffers this year, Gordon Beckley, Chicago club manufacturer, estimated today.

"Miniature golf courses, which grew up like mushrooms last summer, are largely responsible for the large number of recruits," Beckley said, "although the sensational record established in 1930 by Bobby Jones has stirred the imagination of many."

He estimated that 6,000,000 already are playing golf in the United States.

An appeal for the return of unsold Christmas seals in Missouri brought stickers dating back to 1925.

BIOGRAPHY

Nancy Earle's life has been divided into three major classifications:

Cultural Training-Newspaper Columnist
Dramatics and Social Leadership
Lecture Work.

Miss Earle, the daughter of influential southern parents, was given every opportunity to develop her talents. Her early education was followed by study in leading universities which led to three college degrees. While in college Miss Earle won distinction, both in her studies and in outside activties, which included research work in fashions, dietetics, and kindred phases of work.

Because of her concrete knowledge of those things of universal interest to women she was secured by a large newspaper syndicate to pass on her knowledge to their women readers. Her articles and personal column proved of great interest to women in all parts of the country.

Dramatics and social work took a large portion of Miss Earle's time for a number of years. President and director of five women's organizations, acting and directing in Little Theatre work, professional stage work, a continuation of her newspaper articles, together with further research work in the three cornerstones of woman's life—fashions, health, and homemaking—occupied Miss Earle's time for a number of years.

On account of her exceptional groundwork and past success Miss Earle was secured to take her messages direct to the women of the United States. Her itinerary carries her to every part of the country and her talks have been the means of entertaining and helping thousands of women.

CHAPTER XLVIII

"That would be impossible, Miles! Your wife is already dead!" Then, silencing the hoarse oaths of the men and the screams of the women, came slow, terrible words: "Tracey Arthur Miles, I arrest you for the murder of your wife, known as Juanita Leigh Selim, and for the murder of Dexter Sprague. And it is my duty to warn you that anything you say may be used against you!"

Tracey Miles lifted his ashen face and stared at the detective blankly, as though he had gone deaf and blind. "All—over—isn't it? May I—have—a drink?" he managed to articulate at last.

"Poor devil! He needs it," the too soft-hearted young detective told himself, as Tracey Miles poured a drink from the almost empty whiskey decanter and raised the little glass to his lips.

"I have—nothing— to say!" the murderer gasped thickly, then fell heavily to the floor.

It was three-quarters of an hour later. District Attorney Sanderson, Captain Strawn and Dundee were alone in the house where Nita "Selim" had been murdered and where her husband had confessed his crimes by committing suicide. The morgue ambulance had come and gone. . . . .

"I should have known," Dundee admitted ruefully, as the three men entered Nita's bedroom, "that so ingenious a criminal as Tracey Miles would not have failed to provide against the possibility of discovery. He must have snatched an opportunity to spill cyanide of potassium into the decanter when my eyes were off him for a moment—and upon Lois Dunlap."

"I'm glad he did," Sanderson said curtly. "But it was ghastly that poor Lois had to know that it was she, in all innocence, who fired the gun."

"It was," Dundee sighed. "But I believed that the only way I could make Miles confess was to frighten him into thinking Flora would be killed."

"Captain Strawn and I are still in the dark as to exactly how Miles managed his wife's murder," Sanderson reminded him. "This morning you chose to tell us nothing more than that a Hamilton man had married Nita Leigh in New York in January, 1918, and that eight years ago, when he saw her picture in The Evening Sun, along with the story that 'Anita Lee' had committed suicide, he had felt free to marry again. . . . You said then you knew who the man was but you would not even tell us how you knew—"

"Because I had very little actual proof then," Dundee answered. "As to who he was, the salient clue had been staring me in the face the whole time, but it was not until I was fooling with a set of anagrams last night, idling spelling out the names of all the men who might have married her and then murdered her, that I saw it—"

"Saw what?" Strawn demanded irritably.

"That Selim is simply Miles spelled backward," Dundee explained. "Possibly because he considered it the sophisticated thing to do, Miles used an assumed name at the party at which he met Nita Leigh. Even the first name, 'Mat,' by which she knew him, was only his initials reversed."

"Simple — but clever," Sanderson commented.

"Just as all of Miles' schemes were after Nita, egged on by Sprague, turned up in Hamilton to demand 'back alimony' as the price of her silence. . . . . But let me show you how he killed his wife."

He strode to the big bronze lamp. "It took me less than an hour today to reconstruct the death machine so that it would be almost exactly as it was when Miles finished his work just before 2:30 last Saturday—and as it remained until he had an opportunity to come back here and dismantle it. Trust him to find out that the guard was removed from the house Thursday!"

As he spoke, he was unscrewing the big, jewel-studded bowl of the bronze lamp. Wedged, at a downward-slanting angle, inside the bowl, which was 12 inches in diameter, was Judge Marshall's snub-nosed automatic and silencer, the end of the silencer projecting slightly from a hole whose jewel was missing.

"There's a blank cartridge in the gun now, of course, but Miles, in his panic, took my words literally . . . . See the electro-magnet strapped to the gun butt? He got it from the bell Sprague had installed from here to Lydia's bedroom. The magnet was connected with the electric wire in one of the two lamp sockets, as you see it now, and the long cord of the lamp was connected with the wire of the bell in the dining room—so connected that when anyone stepped on the two little metal plates under the dining room rug, the kitchen bell would ring and the gun would be fired simultaneously. But if you will examine the jewel hole," he suggested, as he removed the gun, "you will see that Miles had to enlarge it considerably, using a reamer, which I found in the tool chest in the basement, along with all the apparatus which Sprague had bought for installing Nita's alarm bell. I could see no reason for Sprague's having needed a reamer, however, and this morning I was lucky enough to get proof that Miles himself had purchased it at a hardware store on Tuesday."

"How did he connect the lamp cord with the dining room bell?" Strawn puzzled. "These modern houses don't have exposed wiring."

"You forget Sprague's wiring for the alarm bell from here to Lydia's room.

He threw back the rug. Near Nita's bed there was a hole in the floor, and out of it came a short length of electric wire, ending in two small metal plates. But attached also to the wire was the cord from the bronze lamp.

"The plug of the lamp cord is nearly out of the baseboard outlet behind the bookcase, just as Miles left it, so that there is no contact with electricity there. And the rug hid the joining of the two wires.

An unexplained wrapping of adhesive tape both on the lamp cord and on the wire of Nita's alarm bell here gave me the clue. In installing the alarm bell, Sprague copied the arrangement under the dining table, of course. And Miles simply had to drop a bit, fastened to the augur Sprague had bought, down the four inches which separate the dining room floor from the basement, and bore a hole through the ceiling. It was that hole I could not understand, and which Ralph Hammond assured me was not there Saturday morning. Miles joined a piece of electric wire to the dining room bell wires, and pushed them down through the hole he had bored into the basement ceiling. Now if you'll come down to the basement—"

"See this long wire running along the ceiling from the hole beneath the dining room bell? The tacks he used to secure it were also returned to the tool chest, but he could not get rid of either the augur hole or the tiny holes showing the course of the wire. Let's follow it!"

He led them across the basement to a door leading into a dark, unfinished portion of the cellar. The wire passed under the top frame of the door, and, with a flashlight in his hand, Dundee showed how it continued along a rafter until it reached the place where it was joined, by adhesive tape, to the wire Sprague had dropped from Nita's bedroom floor.

"Miles simply cut the wire here where it enters another hole through Lydia's bedroom wall, and attached the new wire," Dundee explained. "The connection between the dining room bell and the electro-magnet in the lamp upstairs was then complete . . . . . Sprague had bought yards too much of the wire—fortunately, so far as Miles' scheme was concerned."

"But what a chance Miles took on the bullet's not hitting her in a fatal spot!" Sanderson commented in an awed voice.

"No. He would only fire the gun if Nita was seated before her dressing table. As an experienced marksman he could calculate the course of the bullet to a nicety. Of course the machine had to be used that very day. As you know, Nita herself gave him his chance. Miles, standing at the sideboard, listened until the first faint notes of Juanita told him that Nita was powdering her face, and he could be sure she was sitting down to the task. Nita saw nothing to alarm her, but the gun kicked, and the big lamp was rocked so that it banged against the window frame, shattering the one bulb Miles had left in it. Of course he moved the lamp a foot or so, in the resulting excitement. And if she had been wounded only, living to tell not only how the shot was fired, but who had motive to kill her, Miles would have committed suicide then."

"What if Nita had not asked him to mix the cocktails or had not gone to powder her face?" Strawn asked.

"The whole party was going to dine and dance at the Country Club. Miles would have escorted her home, as he had done on Monday night, and would then have made his opportunity. But I must tell you that on Saturday morning, according to the telephone operator in Miles' office, Nita rang him to say she must see him as soon as possible, her unexpressed intention being to tell him that she was not going to bother him again. He told her he would be right out, but Nita said she and Lydia were going into Hamilton and would not be back until 2:30 — the time the bridge game was scheduled to begin. But Miles came on out, having previously stolen the gun and silencer and having studied the house—"

"How did he get in-" Sanderson wanted to know.

Judge Marshall had lent him a key in February, when Miles wanted to show the house to an engaged young man in his offices, and Miles never returned it. . . . . Well, when Miles arrived he found Ralph Hammond here, and had to leave, waiting at a safe distance until the coast was clear about one o'clock. But even so he had more than an hour to do his carefully planned job."

"But you were wrong about the secret shelf!" Strawn gloated.

"No. It was the absence of fingerprints there that kept me on the right track. Miles had searched the shelf for the marriage certificate which he could not know Nita had already burned."

"How was Sprague killed?" Sanderson interrupted impatiently.

Dundee reached into the tool chest and brought out a narrow deep drawer. "First I must tell you that Miles got the gun out of the lamp Saturday night, sneaking in while I was talking with Lydia in the basement. A little later he came back poisily enough to offer Lydia a job as nurse in his home. Without question he assured himself that she knew nothing, or she would have gone the way of Nita and Sprague. . . . . Now as to Sprague. Despite my warnings Sprague attempted to carry on the blackmail scheme. Perhaps Miles put him off for a day or two, but on Wednesday afternoon he made an appointment with Sprague, telling him that, if he would come to his home that evening, and manage to leave the bridge game while he was dummy, he would find the money in a drawer of the cabinet that stood in the trophy room between the two windows. . . . . This drawer."

"But—how—?" Sanderson frowned.

"Very simple! When Sprague pulled open this drawer, which was just at the height of his stomach, he received a bullet in his heart. . . . . See these four little holes? . . . A vise was screwed into the bottom of the drawer so that it gripped the gun with its silencer at an upward angle. A piece of string was tied to the trigger and fastened somehow to the underside of the drawer, so that when Sprague pulled the drawer open the string was drawn taut and the trigger pulled. Practically the same mechanism by which he tried to murder me. . . . The kick of the gun jerked the drawer shut. All Miles had to do when he was pretending to look for Sprague was to turn off the trophy room light, by a button in the hall."

"Then he had the rest of the night to remove the gun!"

"Yes. Sometime during the night, after Flora was asleep with a sedative, he removed the gun and the vise, but he could not remove the holes the screws had made. His next concern was to make the murder jibe completely with Captain Strawn's theory of a gunman who had trailed his quarry to the Miles home and shot him through the window. The window was already open, but the screen must be raised, too, and Sprague's fingerprints had to be on the nickel catches by which the curtain screen is raised or lowered. Of course Sprague had not touched the screen—"

"Do you mean to say he lugged the corpse to the window and lifted it up so that he could press the stiff fingers upon the nickel catches?"

"No," Dundee answered. "That was not necessary. He simply removed the curtain screen and carried it to where Sprague's right hand lay, palm upward, on the floor, and pressed the thumb and forefinger against the nickel catches. But the finger prints thus made were reversed — as I discovered when I examined the prints in Carraway's office today. Miles could not turn the stiff hand over without bruising the dead flesh; consequently the print of the forefinger was on the catch where the thumb print would normally have been."

"Well—" Sanderson drew a deep breath. "He was a cleverer man than any of us suspected, and it is a pity that Nita did not fear him as she feared Sprague's vengeance when she made her will."

"Hello! What are you doing back here?" Dundee exclaimed in surprise when, upon returning to the living room, the three men found Penny Crain.

"Dad wants a private word with you," Penny explained, her brown eyes glowing with happiness. "He's on the front porch. . . . And you ought to see Mother! She looks like a 20-year-old bride!"

When Dundee joined him on the porch, Roger Crain's handsome face flushed painfully, but there was happiness in his brown eyes, too.

"Serena Hart asked me to thank you for giving her Penny's message to pass on to me. I'm sure you've guessed a lot, but what you probably don't know is that Serena used the securities I had sent to her for safe keeping, to play the market with. She wouldn't let me touch a penny of the money until she had turned it into enough to clear up all my debts in Hamilton. . . . Then," and he sighed slightly, "she sent me home. . . . . Not that I'm sorry. I'm going to try to make Margaret and Penny happy—"

"Through?" Penny called from the doorway, and her red lips were so adorably rounded over the word that Bonnie Dundee forgot Tracey Miles and his ingenious schemes. There was room for nothing in his mind but an ingenious scheme of his own—a plan to get her alone so that he could kiss that soft, provocative mouth. . . . .

Army's Big Sky Dreadnaughts Now Ready

NEA Philadelphia Bureau

Carrying out the U. S. government's five-year program to bring its air equipment up to maximum strength, 73 super-bombing biplanes in full war equipment are now being turned out at a Bristol, Pa., factory. Product of seven years experiments, these two-motored planes, with a wingspread of 75 feet can carry 2520 pounds of high explosives, in addition to machine guns fore and aft, a crew of five men and complete radio equipment. Captain Lowell Smith, in command of the army's round-the-world flight in 1924, is the government's representative at the field, testing the big ships as soon as they are completed. Two views of one of the new monsters are shown here.
