President Orders Halt To Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon halted the massive bombing of North Vietnam's heartland Saturday after North Vietnam agreed to resume "serious negotiations" with Henry Kissinger on Jan. 8.

The White House announcement came against a backdrop of protests at home and abroad of the war's heaviest raids on the Hanoi-Haiphong complex. And it apparently followed a clear signal from Hanoi's leaders that they are ready to bargain earnestly with Kissinger, Nixon's assistant for national security affairs.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren announced that Kissinger's negotiations with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy would resume in Paris on Monday, Jan. 8, and that technical talks between experts from both sides would resume on Tuesday, Jan. 2.

Then, in response to questions, Warren said: "The President has ordered that all bombing will be discontinued above the 20th Parallel as long as serious negotiations are under way."

He said that Nixon's order to halt the raids went out "as soon as it was clear that serious negotiations could be resumed at both the technical level and between the principals ..."

In Paris, the North Vietnamese delegation to the peace talks confirmed that negotiations would resume and said the bombing halt had already gone into effect. The Viet Cong issued a statement indicating approval of the resumption of bilateral talks.

Negotiations broke off on Dec. 13, with each side accusing the other of raising new issues to thwart the signing of a peace agreement drafted in October, when the presidential assistant said "peace is at hand."

On Dec. 18, Nixon ordered full-scale bombing resumed above the 20th Parallel. Since then, except for a brief Christmas pause, American B52 bombers and other warplanes have steadily pounded targets in the Haiphong/Hanoi area with the most massive bombardment of the war.

During the bombing period, the United States acknowledged that it lost 27 aircraft and 93 airmen killed, captured or missing. The bombardment marked the first time that giant B52 bombers were used against North Vietnam.

The Pentagon said Saturday that despite the bombing halt, minefields will remain in the approaches to North Vietnam's main ports.

After the White House news conference, Warren would not say how or when Hanoi signaled its willingness to resume talks.

But it was understood that Kissinger had been in direct contact with the Communists and had received a clear signal of their readiness to bargain earnestly. There was no sign, however, that Hanoi had agreed to make major concessions to reach a settlement.

Apparently because of this, indications were that Nixon viewed resumption of negotiations with wariness and wants to be shown that Hanoi, indeed, is willing to negotiate seriously.

Officials have said repeatedly that the President is determined to continue military pressure on North Vietnam until a settlement is reached.

U.S. officials said the air raids were aimed at military targets and were intended to knock out North Vietnam's ability to wage war. Hanoi claimed the bombing was indiscriminate and caused heavy civilian casualties.

The intensive raids brought a barrage of criticism from foreign capitals, allied as well as Communist. Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai said U.S.-Chinese relations could not improve so long as the raids were taking place, and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev reportedly decided to delay his planned spring visit to the United States because of the air attacks.

There was mounting criticism in Congress, too, with some previous supporters of Nixon's policy joining ranks with Capitol Hill's antiwar forces.

The National Peace Action Coalition said the announcement will not deter its plans for an antiwar march on Washington Inauguration Day.

Two Found Alive

MENA, Ark. (AP) — Two persons were found alive Saturday in the wreckage of a Piper Cherokee 180 near Rich Mountain on the Oklahoma side of the Arkansas-Oklahoma, border near Mena.

ANOTHER YEAR GONE BY---Celebrating the arrival of a New Year will be a festive occasion for Kimberly Michelle Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Moore, Lefors. Turning 2-years of age on Jan. 3, Michelle was Gray County's first New Year baby in 1971. Others throughout the area are also readying today for observance of the coming of 1973.

Hanoi Gives Clear Signal

WASHINGTON (AP)—A clear signal from Hanoi that it was willing to negotiate seriously was the major factor in President Nixon's decision to suspend the wide-scale bombing of North Vietnam.

No official at either the White House nor the State Department would talk publicly about the decision announced Saturday that Henry A. Kissinger would return to Paris Jan. 8 with the bombing above the 20th Parallel to be stopped in the meantime.

But it was learned that President Nixon was acting in line with a very deliberate policy of toughness toward Hanoi, blamed by the administration with intentionally stalling the previous efforts to reach an agreement.

Three alternate suggestions were put to administration officials to explain Nixon's sudden decision to stop the massive air raids:

—The President gave in to growing domestic and foreign pressures, to stop the bombing or see relations deteriorate with allies as well as Russia and China.

—Nixon wanted to signal North Vietnam of his willingness to resume negotiations in a way more to Hanoi's liking.

—Hanoi had reacted to the constant and heavy air raids by indicating to Nixon's satisfaction it would deal in good faith in future sessions between Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, North Vietnam's chief negotiator.

The third alternative was clearly the one the officials here wanted known as the only one acceptable.

Jumbo Jet Crash Kills 78

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The watery terrain of the Everglades apparently cushioned the crash of a giant Eastern Air Lines TriStar jet and was responsible for the "almost incredible" survival of 93 of the 177 persons aboard, a federal official said Saturday.

John H. Reed, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, visited the wilderness area 20 miles west of Miami where the Lockheed L1011 jet went down Friday night and said that the 93 apparently lived because of the "nature of the terrain, the water in the Everglades environment. This cusioned the impact."

Reed said "it would appear that about 78 are dead." Among the passengers aboard the New York-to-Miami flight were a number of babies, airline officials said.

The Coast Guard said the survivors were pulled from the wreck and surrounding water and muck by crews who toiled through the black night in mud that sometimes reached their waists.

The three-engine, $18 million plane, which can carry 226 passengers, had been cleared for landing at Miami International Airport when it disappeared from the radar screens at 11:42 p.m. EST Friday and smashed into sawgrass covered by two feet of water.

There was no official word on the probable cause of the crash. Weather and visibility were good at the time.

It was the first fatal accident involving the new generation of jumbo jets which, besides the TriStar, include Boeing's 747 and Douglas' DC10.

The cause of the crash "could have been any one of a dozen things — birds in the engine, pilot error, control failure," said Robert K. Bingham, the airline's flight training supervisor.

Reed said the TriStar had "a very safe flight record to date." Eastern introduced the jet last summer.

The plane broke apart on impact, and with the coming of daylight, the swamp was dotted with shards of metal along a quarter-mile gash cut by the jetliner.

Reed said the transportation board inspection team found "gross disintegration" of the aircraft and added that the only identifiable pieces of wreckage were half of a fuselage section straddling part of the one remaining wing and the tail, which still carried one of the plane's huge turbine engines intact.

Reed said the TriStar apparently had been circling in a counterclockwise direction and was heading southwest when it slammed into the huge swamp that covers millions of acres at the tip of the Florida peninsula.

Reed said the instrument flight recorder and a voice recorder containing the last 30 minutes of conversation in the cockpit had been recovered and sent to Washington, D.C., for analysis.

Reports from various hospitals indicated nine of the plane's 10 stewardesses survived the crash.

"The captain and the first officer did not survive," Eastern spokesman Ed Northscott said. The plane's captain was Robert A. Loft of Miami, a 32-year Eastern veteran whose seniority was 50th out of 4,000 Eastern pilots. The first officer was A. J. Stockstill of Miami.

"The second officer, D. L. Repo, was in critical condition at Hialeah hospital," Northscott said. Repo also is from Miami.

City Plans To Honor Gov. Smith

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith will oversee groundbreaking for two University of Texas health science facilities here Wednesday and be honored with an Appreciation Day by San Antonio officials.

There is a connection between the two events.

Smith will be principal speaker when ground is broken for the University of Texas Dental School at San Antonio and the University of Texas School of Nursing at San Antonio.

The two facilities will be constructed on land adjacent to the University of Texas Medical School at San Antonio.

Dr. James Bauerle, chairman of the Gov. Preston Smith Appreciation Day, says Smith paved the way for the schools when he was lieutenant governor and remained firm in the belief that both the dental and nursing schools should be placed in San Antonio.

Bauerle, a former member of the board of managers of the Bexar County Hospital District, says the dental school was set to be located in Dallas when Smith was lieutenant governor in 1967.

Construction costs for the dental school are estimated at $28 million and the nursing school at $3.85 million.

Prior to the groundbreaking, San Antonio civic officials will host a breakfast at the St. Anthony Hotel for Smith, who relinquishes the governor's post, Jan. 16 to Dolph Briscie.

New Congress Set To Battle President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 93rd Congress convenes Wednesday, a Democratic counterforce likely to plunge quickly into battle with President Nixon.

The contests taking shape now threaten to be the fiercest since the late Harry S. Truman took on the 80th Congress a quarter century ago.

Their Senate majority enlarged to 57, their House losses held to a minimal 12 seats in the face of Nixon's landslide reelection, the Democrats talk of challenging the Republican president on an agenda of issues ranging from the Vietnam war to federal spending.

The biggest fights are sure to be over Nixon's refusal to spend Congress-approved money in an effort to cut federal spending—and his revenue-sharing approach which turns some of Congress' program control over to states and cities.

The President and Congress' Democratic leaders also are at loggerheads over most other issues sure to dominate the 93rd Congress: extension of wage-price controls, national health insurance, tax reform, a higher minimum wage and Nixon's government reorganization plans.

And adding to the friction, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's Senate Judiciary subcommittee is doing ground work for what could become a major congressional investigation of alleged White House links to the Watergate bugging affair.

Between fights with the President, the 93rd Congress must also renew a host of expiring federal programs such as farm subsidization and elementary education. And drives are under way in both the House and Senate for congressional reform.

But Congress' first order of business Wednesday will be to set up shop and install leaders.

House Democrats will caucus the day before to replace Majority Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana, presumed dead in an airplane.

Democratic whip Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts is unopposed to succeed Boggs.

City, County Awaiting Last Revenue Check

Pampa and Gray County officials are looking forward to the second week in January when their second revenue sharing checks are due from Uncle Santa Claus in Washington.

The county's first check for $89,597 and the city's initial handout of $80,698, both received in mid-December, are in the bank drawing interest while city and county officials seek more information on just how the federal landfall can be spent.

The first checks covered the first half of 1972. The second check, which the U.S. Treasury Department announced yesterday will be mailed out next Friday, will cover the last six months of 1972.

Just how much the second checks will total is problematical. When the first ones were received, there were notes with them stating the possibility of future adjustments for errors and inequities.

U.S. Deputy Under Secretary James Smith announced Saturday that five per cent of each allotment will be withheld to establish a fund to take care of the adjustments.

In the first distribution of revenue sharing checks only one per cent was withheld.

The Treasury published an inch-thick volume of fine print showing the economic, tax and population data on which the allotments to each of 39,000 local governments are being made.

These also are being mailed to the communities, Smith said. Governors, mayors and local authorities are being requested to report to the Treasury by Feb. 12 any errors in the data.

These challenges will be analyzed as rapidly as possible, Smith said, and the local governments will be notified of the findings made. These determinations, too, will be subject to challenge within 60 days from the date of the findings.

Smith said allocations to the 50 states will be close to those of the first distribution of tax-sharing funds.

The second allocation to governmental units across the nation will total $2.65 billion.

Pampans Ready To Bid Adieu To The Old Year

By TEX DeWEESE

Pampans once more are on the threshold of a New Year.

At midnight tonight bewhiskered Old 1972 will totter off amid adieus and diaper-attired 1973 will be greeted with toasts, song and merry-making.

Because New Year's falls on Sunday this year there will be some changes in the usual programming.

Most public night spots will not be open. They did their revelling last night.

Private clubs, not affected by Sunday prohibitions, are planning regular New Year's Eve celebratons.

The Pampa Club in Coronado Inn will have its usual New Year's Eve celebraton tonight. Festivities also are scheduled to see the Old Year out and the New Year in at some fraternal organizatons.

Police said most public drink and dance places will be closed tonight because of the city ordinance prohibiting sale of alcoholic beverages.

City, county, state and federal offices will be closed all day Monday.

There will be no mail deliveries on Monday on city and rural routes. Window service at the post office will be suspended for the holiday, although service will be maintained for postal box patrons.

Many department stores will be closed tomorrow, but some will remain open on the first day of the year.

Food stores will be open and a number of service establishment also will remain open tomorrow.

New Year's Day will bring a lot of television parades and football games. These will include the Parade of Roses from California, the Orange Parade from Florida and the annual Cotton Bowl Parade from Dallas.

The Rose, Orange and Cotton Bowl games also will be on television during the day.

The big football feature for Texas fans, of course, will be the Dallas Cowboys vs. Washington Redskins scheduled for 2 o'clock this afternoon to decide which team will play in the Super Bowl against the winner of the Miami-Pittsburgh game today.

As usual, city police and the county sheriff's department, along with the Texas Highway Patrol, have put out warnings to motorists to make caution the key word for holiday driving in order to hold down traffic fatalities.

County Sets Swearing-In Ceremonies

District Judge Grainger McIlhaney will preside over swearing-in ceremonies Monday for new officer holders, according to Gray County Judge Don Cain.

The rites are set for 10 a.m. New Year's Day in the county court rooms. Judge Cain emphasized that families and friends of the elected and appointed county officials and deuputies are invited to be present for this occassion.

Immediately following these ceremonies, members of the Gray County commissioners court will conduct their first meeting of the New Year.

With one exception, the agenda contains routine business such as paying bills, executing annual leases and interim positions.

Commissioners will authorize the county judge to advertise for bids for a depository for county funds for a two-year period.

This is usually the nature of the meeting of the court at the first of each month. The "regular" meeting at which most of the hearings and discussions are held on vital issues comes at mid-month.

Israeli Warplanes Strike At Arab Military Camp

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes roared across the Syrian border before midnight Saturday and bombed a Syrian army camp 120 miles inside the Arab state, the military command reported.

The raid followed Syrian shelling of Israeli-held territory.

Damascus Radio said the shelling, near the cease-fire line where heavy fighting flared last month, was a Syrian reprisal against the earlier Israeli air raid. The Israeli command said Syrian artillery fired an hour-long barrage into the northern Golan Heights section and then shelled the southern sector.

The Israeli command reported that its warplanes flew into Syria before midnight Saturday and bombed the army camp at Nebk, north of Damascus and 120 miles inside the border.

The air attack was "in retaliation to Syrian artillery shelling directed at civilian settlements and positions on the Golan Heights," an Israeli communique said. It said the planes returned safely.

The Israelis reported no casualties in the Syrian shelling, and gave no estimates of bomb damage or Arab casualties from the air attack. Israel captured the Golan Heights in the 1967 Mideast war.

The night bombing raid, ordered under Israel's new "strike fast" policy of hitting the Arabs hard after even minor provocations, came less than two days after Arab Black September terrorists seized the Israeli embassy in Thailand and held six Israelis hostage for 19 hours.

The hostages were released unharmed and the Arab commandoes flew to refuge in Cairo.

ON LAST DAY AT WORK

State Attorney General Dies

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The death Friday of Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin saddened Texans who knew him and treasured his lack of pretentiousness.

Martin, 56, will be buried in the State Cemetery here at 3 p.m. Sunday following funeral services at the Convenant Presbyterian Church.

He was struck down by a heart attack on his last day in office. Only three days remained in his term—the New Year's weekend—and he had not intended to return to the Supreme Court Building northwest of the Capitol, where the attorney general's office is located.

"He was a straightforward person, a plain person, not a slick guy" said Austin Municipal Court Judge Allen Hill, who worked as an assistant attorney general under Martin and who traveled with him frequently during Martin's re-election campaign.

"He was unimpressed with his position as attorney general and always accessible to people who needed him," Hill said. "To me, he was the epitome of what a public servant should be."

"Crawford Martin's sudden death marks the passing of another soldier who has given his life to his fellow man," said Travis County Dist. Atty. Bob Smith, who previously praised Martin's cooperation in the investigation that led to Smith's successful prosecution of former Speaker Gus Mutscher on a charge of conspiracy to accept a bribe.

"Not only has he served his country, but he has done so with unprecedented honor," Smith said.

John Hill, who defeated Martin in the Nov. 7 general election, said he felt the "deepest sorrow" over Martin's death. "He will be missed and his many years of good public service will be long remembered," Hill said.

Hill first announced he would postpone his swearing-in ceremony from Tuesday to a date to be announced later. When he learned that the pay for members of the attorney general's staff would not start until he takes the oath, he set the ceremony for 11 a.m. Monday.

Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe Greenhill will administer the oath in the old Supreme Court Room in the Capitol.

A former mayor of Hillsboro, Martin served in the Texas Senate from 1948 to 1963, when he was appointed secretary of state by Gov. John Connally.

He was elected attorney general in 1966 and was re-elected in 1968 and 1970.

Survivors include his wife, Margaret; a son, Jim, of Houston; two daughters, Nancy Martin, a student at Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos, and Mrs. Tom Hill of Victoria; a brother, William Martin of Hillsboro; a sister, Mrs. Bill Daniel of Liberty; and a grandson.

Britain Invades Common Market

LONDON (AP) — Britain joins the European Common Market this week and for the first time in its 1,000-year history takes on a continental role without an invading army.

Entry into the world's richest trading club could be Britain's most important peacetime decision in this century, certainly its most controversial shift in foreign policy since World War II.

More than a year ago Parliament formally agreed that the country should join the market Jan. 1, 1973. Public opinion polls still indicate that most Britons opposed this action. They are suspicious of the political and economic changes it will bring.

Prime Minister Edward Heath's government became convinced Britain had no other choice. This island nation lives by foreign trade, and Europe had grown into a more important export market than either the Commonwealth or the United States.

Furthermore, Heath argued, Britain could only maintain a political influence in the world by speaking jointly with its closest neighbors as part of a united Europe.

The decision had the blessings of most Commonwealth nations and the U.S. government, which has sought to promote West European unity since 1945. Britain's decision induced Ireland and Denmark to join the Common Market, too.

But Heath's countrymen remained deeply divided on whether market membership would reverse or accelerate this country's long postwar decline.

That decline, Dean Acheson used to say, came about because Britain had lost an empire but had not yet found a role. Heath believes that in Common Market membership Britain has finally found the role.

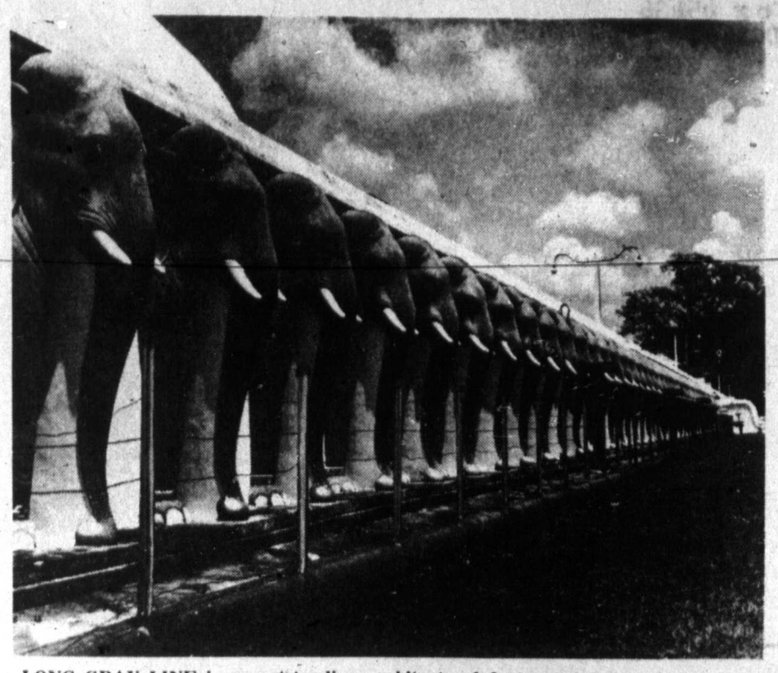

Heath and his government believe entry can boost British exports by over $700 million a year, more than enough to cover the costs of entry.

The six original Common Market countries — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — have done better than Britain over the years.

When they formed the market in 1958, Britain had a higher national income per capita than all except Luxembourg. Today Britain's per capita income is lower than all except Italy.

This is largely because Common Market economies have grown about 5 per cent a year. The British economy in the same period showed an average 2.7 per cent growth rate.

Wages in the Common Market are higher and rising faster. Working hours are shorter. Holidays are longer. Britain's currency is weaker, its unemployment higher, its strike record generally worse and inflation problem more severe.

LONG GRAY LINE is an outstanding architectural feature of the ancient ruined city of Anuradhapura, historic treasure of the island nation of Sri Lanka, formerly Ceylon. Greatly revered by all Buddhists, the town with its lifelike elephant wall is some 2,000 years old.

Kiwanis Hear Of Planned Parenthood

Purposes and methods of operation at Pampa's Planned Parenthood Clinic for low income families were explained to Pampa Kiwanis Club members at their Friday luncheon in First United Methodist Church.

The speakers were Shirley Boddy and Jane Kadingo, clinic representatives.

They pointed out the chief reason for the clinic is to give parents an opportunity to limit the size of families.

It is no problem for middle and upper income families, it was stated, because they can afford birth control methods prescribed by doctors. Lower income families are faced with the problem because they cannot afford the medical prescriptions.

The speakers explained local doctors have donated services at the clinic and a registered nurse is on duty.

The clinic attendants will counsel with both men and women but girls under 18 must have parental consent for counseling.

Girl Treated After Accident

Brenda Kay Wallace, 15, 1512 Hamilton, was taken to Highland General Hospital for examination and treatment following a two-car collision at Banks and Kentucky Sts. Friday.

She was a passenger in a car driven west on Kentucky by Kenneth Wayne Moler, 16, 1616 N. Faulkner, when a vehicle driven by Leta McCumber Scott, 76, 1420 Market St., turned directly in front of them.

Mrs. Scott was travelling east on Kentucky and made a left turn onto Banks.

FPC Suspends Phone Rate Hike

DALLAS (AP) — The Federal Price Commission has ordered Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to suspend a rate increase the utility ordered into effect Friday for the Dallas area.

C. Jackson Grayson, chairman of the Price Commission, told Southwestern Bell in a letter Friday that all of the increase is suspended.

Some $14 million annually in additional net revenue would have been realized from the rate increase.

Grayson did not flatly turn down the increase, saying it would be suspended until the commission decides.

Wallace Brunworth, Southwestern Bell division manager, said, "Based on the content of several meetings with the Internal Revenue Service (which has some price control functions) and the Price Commission people in Washington and Dallas, this suspension comes as a complete surprise to us."

Brunworth said Bell had clearly demonstrated the need for better earnings "if we are to continue giving good service."

Brunworth said the 7.6 per cent return rate for Dallas is lower than returns being allowed by state commissions around the country.

The company had ordered a rise to $7.33 from $6.35 for private residence, and to $21.23 from $18 for business telephones.

About half the total land area of the United States is devoted to farming.

Texas Lass Selected As Cotton Maid

A lapse in memory during her speech in the contest finals Friday night couldn't prevent Debra Ann Ploch from capturing the crown—the second Texan in a row to do it.

She succeeded Debbie Wright of Tahoka, Tex., as goodwill ambassador for the cotton industry.

Another Texas lass was first runner up. She is Marion James, 19, of Cedar Hill. Second alternate is Vivian Craig, 20, of Stanley, N.C.

The 17th of the 20 contestants to march on stage and deliver a speech on the merits of cotton, Miss Ploch found herself suddenly stumped.

Her voice faltered, and then dropped off into quiet.

"I'm sorry I seem to have drawn a blank. I can't finish," she said, and turned quietly for the darkened backstage, embarrassed and believing she had lost.

Miss Ploch said the other girls cheered her and helped her regain her confidence.

Her fear didn't spread, though. "I've known since we arrived in Memphis Debbie was going to win. I'm so proud," said her mother, Mrs. Alex Ploch of Dallas. "Debbie is a sensitive young lady who cares about people—cares about things."

The junior at the University of Texas at Austin says she thinks the women's lib movement is blown out of proportion.

"I'm for it only as it regards equal rights for women," she said. "It is so abstract, women's lib. I enjoy being a woman."

New Trains Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Encouraged by the interest in its fast East Coast trains, Amtrak says it will begin running four high-speed passenger trains in the Midwest by next summer.

The trains will run on Chicago-Milwaukee and St. Louis-Chicago routes, and are capable of operational speeds of up to 100 miles per hour, Amtrak said Wednesday.

CHANGING ROUTES

Texas Amtrak Travel Plans Causing Uproar

DALLAS (AP) — A source in Congress has thrown plans for Amtrak passenger service in Texas into an uproar by saying officials of the semi-official agency have changed routes again.

The source, not identified, said in effect that Amtrak officials have scrapped announced plans for a route through Arkansas, Deep East Texas and on to Laredo.

Instead, said the source, Amtrak now plans to use the existing Chicago-Oklahoma City-Fort Worth-Houston route, with a split-off at Temple which would give passenger service to Mexico through Laredo.

Amtrak officials would not comment.

Just how solid the reported new plan is could not be determined.

Dallas leaders are preparing to go to Washington Jan. 26 when the Amtrak board next meets to present a case for Amtrak service through Dallas. This trip was announced before the report that the Deep East Texas route had been cancelled.

On Dec. 14, Amtrak announced that deep East Texas passenger service would be established between St. Louis and Laredo using a route over Missouri Pacific tracks in Texas.

This would take the service through Little Rock, Texarkana, Marshall, Longview, Jacksonville, Palestine, Milano, Austin, San Marcos, San Antonio and Laredo.

Such a route would omit Dallas, Waco and Temple.

There was an immediate outcry from Dallas leaders who were planning to purchase for Amtrak use the old Dallas passenger terminal which has been unused for years. Efforts got under way to reverse the decision not to bring trains through Dallas.

The congressional source indicated that the split-off of the Fort Worth-Houston route at Temple was selected because it would save money.

Originally, passenger service through Texas to Laredo was believed scheduled to begin around Christmas. Officials of Amtrak indicated, however, that it could not be started then because the administration had not released funds to get trains rolling on that segment.

The original allocation for the St. Louis to Laredo route was $4.1 million, and late reports indicated that Amtrak still had not received the funds.

There was a further dispute over money. Some Dallas leaders blamed this for the loss of the service to Dallas. A Dallas route have included a segment of rails between Waxahachie and Hillsboro which was described as full of curves which would reduce speed radically.

Amtrak officials said it would require $2 million to revise the Waxachachie-Hillsboro segment; although Dallas leaders said the cost would be no more than $200,000.

The current route to Houston which will be used if the congressional source's information is finally borne out, is from Chicago through Kansas City, Wichita, Kan., Oklahoma City and Fort Worth.

Violence Increases Deaths For Holiday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Death by violence on Texas highways and from other causes such as gunfire began its usual spiral upward Saturday during the long New Year's holiday.

At a late hour, the toll was 10, with eight victims dying in taffic.

The count began at 6 p.m. Friday and will continue until midnight Monday.

The Department of Public Safety estimated that 41 persons will die in traffic mishaps during the period. The department forecast 46 deaths in the Christmas holidays of the same length and the count reached 47.

Latest reported deaths were:

Arthur Curtis Hodges, 42, of Lamesa was killed Saturday morning when his pickup truck left Interstate 20 and overturned near Stanton in West Texas. He was riding alone.

Otis Jackson, 24, of Houston was killed in a Houston shooting Friday night.

A head-on truck and passenger car collision early Saturday near Levelland took the life of Roy Arnold Hyatt, 38, of Levelland. He was the driver of the passenger car.

Two men, each riding alone in their cars, died Friday night in a head-on collision on Interstate 20 about two miles southeast of Ranger in West Texas. The victims were Maco Fred Williams, 67, of Eastland and Paul R. Hill, 32, of Charlotte, N.C.

An automobile crash occurring when he failed to negotiate a turn resulted in the death of Andrew Jackson Hawkins, 40, of Kilgore. The accident occurred early Saturday in Longview.

Funeral Held For Victims Of Bus Crash

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Brief, simple funeral services for 14 of the 19 persons killed Tuesday in a New Mexico bus crash were held Saturday in Austin Municipal Auditorium.

Fourteen caskets were lined up before the cross-decorated pulpit, each one marked simply by a name and number and a single spray of flowers.

"God is good and heaven is richer," said the Rev. James Abington, pastor of the stricken Woodlawn Baptist Church, who gave the funeral sermon.

Separate funerals for the other five victims were held earlier.

From the auditorium a procession of 14 hearses, 11 pallbearer cars and 11 family cars made their way to four Austin cemeteries for burial rites.

Several thousand persons attended the mass service, including former President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, who sat immediately behind the families along with Austin Mayor Roy Butler and his wife.

It was a simple service with the grief and shock of the past several days hanging heavy over all. There were frequent sounds of muffled sobbing and many tears.

Pampa Rider In Stock Show Invitational

FORT WORTH--Nancy Stockstill, of Pampa, will be among 75 pretty young ladies vying for a share of $5,450 in prize money during the Ranch Girls Invitational barrel Race at the 1973 Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, Jan. 26 through Feb. 4.

Sponsored by Heaton Cattle Company, Inc., Pampa the young lady will be racing her horse against the clock in the four go-rounds scheduled during the 20 performances of the "World's Original Indoor Rodeo."

A part of the Fort Worth Horse Show, the barrel racers are the most skilled competitors and are entered by "invitation only." This assures the audiences of the best in barrel racing.

Dressed in colorful costumes, the charming contestants will run a cloverleaf pattern in the arena of Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum. The excitement, speed and color makes the Invitational Barrel Race a favorite of Fort Worth Rodeo crowds.

The racers are sponsored by a ranch, city or town.

New Meat Grading Termed Consumer 'Short Change'

"American consumers will be short changed if a proposed revision of the USDA beef grading standards is enacted," said Lloyd D. Miller, new president of the U.S. Beef Breeds Council, after a recent meeting of the group.

Speaking for the council's members representing the nine major beef breed registry associations with more than 128,000 members nationally, Miller said the proposal advanced by three meat packing associations would lower the minimum quality standards in each of the three most used and trusted USDA grades. The changes, now under consideration by the USDA, at the request of the three packer groups, would lower the marbling requirements for USDA good, Choice and Prime grades, for all carcasses from cattle over a year of age.

At their recent annual meeting in Dallas, members of the U.S. Beef Breeds Council voted unanimously to oppose any grading changes which would short change the consumer, and cause them to lose confidence in the quality of American beef, particularly beef graded USDA Choice.

The change would allow the top one-third to two-thirds of all carcasses, that currently are graded USDA Good, to qualify for a USDA Choice stamp. By the same token the top one-third or more of all carcasses graded USDA Standard today would be eligible to be rolled USDA Good. During the first 10 weeks of the current USDA fiscal year some 81 per cent of all cattle graded received the USDA Choice label while on 13 per cent graded USDA Good and 5 per cent Prime. By including more than one-third of the current Good grade carcasses in the USDA Choice grade the proposed grading change would make at least 86 per cent of all graded beef USDA Choice.

Under the present USDA grading standards a carcass with a physiological age of 9 months requires at least a "small-minus" amount of marbling to qualify for USDA Choice. A carcass of about 16 months of age must have marbling that at least falls into the middle of the "small" classification and cattle with a physiological age of around 24 months of age needs nearly a "modest" amount of marbling to be rolled USDA Choice.

Irrigated Corn Production Is School Course

At the request of farmers in Southwest Kansas and the Oklahoma-Texas Panhandle, a special school of instruction will be offered at the Liberal Area Vo-Tech School, Liberal, Kans. on the techniques of corn production under full irrigation.

An organizational meeting and enrollment will be held Jan. 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Agri-Science department at the Vo-Tech School. It will be determined at this time on which nights the class will be held and whether the length of the course will be 40 or 60 hours.

This course will consist of tillage, varieties, plant population, plant foods, weed control, insect control, timing of irrigation, and grain saving methods.

Similar courses of this nature will be offered later on grain sorghums and alfalfa. This class will be taught by Mr. Kenneth Schuster.

Anyone interested in enrolling in this class should contact Muriel Fuller, director of adult education at the Liberal Area Vocational-Technical School.

Cotton Harvest Is Picking Up Office Reports

Cotton harvest moved into high gear over the Memphis area this week, according to W.E. Cain, in charge of the USDA, AMS, Cottom classing Office in Memphis.

The office graded 13,140 samples to bring the season total to 66,775. This compares to 29,325 on the same date a year ago.

The predominant grade classed this week was strict low middling. (41) with 33 per cent followed by strict low middling light spotted (42) with 29 per cent and middling Light Spotted (32) with 22 per cent.

The predominant staple classed this week was 33 with 52 per cent followed by staple 32 with 43 percent.

Micronaire, fineness and maturity, readings showed 73 per cent miked in the desirable range of 3.5 to 4.9 The 3.3 to 3.4 range accounted for 13 per cent and the 3.0 to 3.2 range accounted for 11 per cent.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS

Dr. Herbert Grubb and John Perrin of the Texas Input-Output program, through the Division of Management Science of the Office of the Governor, have prepared a booklet listing facts and figures in a number of economic endeavors that reflects the dependency of the rest of the state on our West Texas area.

We are carrying the introduction of the booklet to acquaint our area people of this great contribution.

"The fifty-six county area known as the Texas High Plains is a major grain sorghum, cotton, wheat, and livestock producing area. To a large extent, the agricultural production and the economy of the area are dependent on ground water irrigation. Furthermore, the economy of the High Plains makes a significant contribution to the state's economy.

"The population of the High Plains in 1970 was 960,479. The area experienced a decline of 3.4 percent from the 1960 population of 994,291. In the same period the entire State population increased 16.9 percent from 9,579,677 in 1960 to 11,196,730 in 1970. The High Plains dropped from 10.4 percent of the State's population in 1960 to 8.6 per cent in 1970.

"Employment on the High Plains has been shifting from agriculture, mining, and construction to manufacturing, trades, and services. Agriculture held its rank as the third largest employer from 1950 to 1970, although the number of employees in agriculture decreased.

"In 1970, the High Plains accounted for 9.2 percent of the total personal income in Texas and 39.4 percent of the state's total farm earnings. Personal income of the High Plains area increased an average of 5.5 percent each year from 1965 to 1970 while personal income of the State increased an average of 10 percent each year. The High Plains personal income is very dependent on the area's agricultural production and varies from year to year with crop and livestock prices and production. In 1970, farm earnings accounted for 17.8 percent of the total personal income of the High Plains."

Based on current trends, the population of Carson County will increase from 6,350 in 1970 to 6,500 in 1980 and will then decline to 5,800 in 1990. It is pointed out in the study that this will occur if we do not find another source of water. The study also shows that Gray County will increase from 26,949 in 1970 to 28,900 in 1980 and will then decline to 25,600 in 1990. Potter County with a 1970 population of 90,511 will increase to 93,400 in 1980 and slowly increase to 94,900 in 1990.

The booklet carries a table giving some very interesting comparisions between our 56 county region and the state. In 1967, agricultural production in the state of Texas was $3,661,500,000 with the High Plains contributing 33 percent of the total. Mining produced $6,046,500,000 in 1967 with the High Plains contributing 35.7 percent. Construction produced $6,237,200,000 in 1967. We contributed 7.1 percent of the total. Manufacturing produced in 1967 the amount of $26,788,900,000 with the High Plains contributing 5 percent. Transportation state-wide yeilded $2,549,300,000 in 1967 with our portion being 10.6 percent. For Communications, the State's total was $90,230,000. The High Plains produced 9.3 percent of the total. Utilities produced $2,886,900,00in 1967 with the High Plains portion set at 15.9 percent. The total for the State in the wholesale trade was $4,255,000,000 with the High Plains yeilding 11.5 percent. For the retail trade, the state's total was $6,404,700,000 with the High Plains contributing 8 percent.

Packing Firm Tells of Sales, Profits Gains

American Beef Packers, Inc., an Omaha-based meat processor with a new facility under construction at Dumas, has announced increased sales and earnings for the first half of its fiscal year ending Dec. 2.

Sales increased 53 per cent over the same period last year while profit was up 226 per cent equal to 58 cents per share on almost two million outstanding shares.

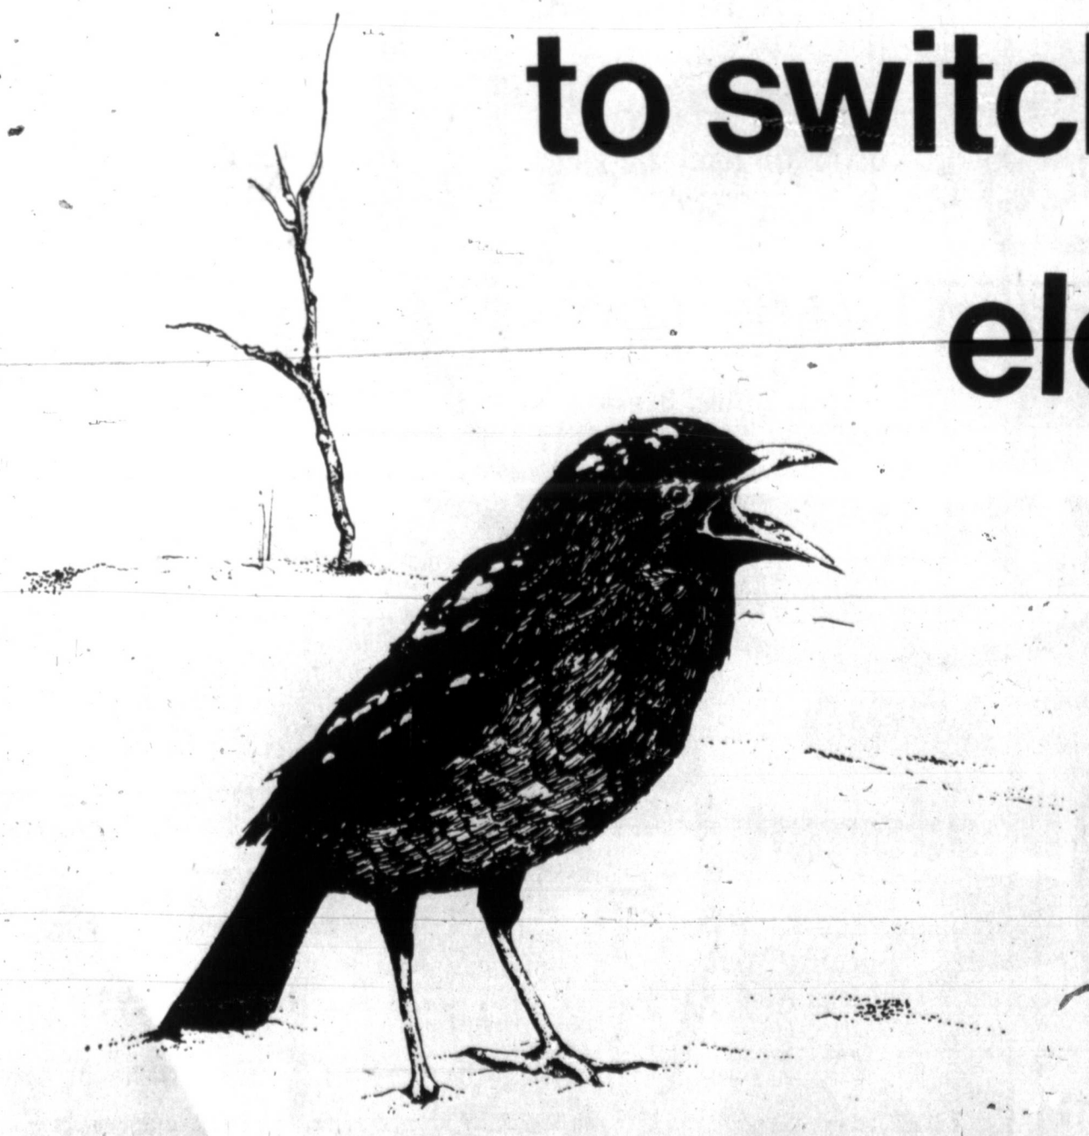

Both increases were attributed directly to improved operations, increased cattle supplies and a brisk demand for carcasses and fabricated cuts.

No opening date has been announced for the Dumas facility. The company has six other plants in Nebraska, Iowa and Colorado.

Organized Labor Gears For New Battles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor is licking the wounds of its severest political split in history and gearing up for major 1973 contract battles that could spell new economic crises for President Nixon.

Echoes of the presidential election in which Nixon trounced Democratic nominee George McGovern could haunt crucial labor bargaining such as the Teamsters' national contract for 450,000 truckers and the United Auto Workers' negotiations for 750,000 auto and farm-implement workers.

Big Labor split into Nixon, McGovern and neutral camps in the White House election.

Teamsters' President Frank E. Fitzsimmons, who will head the union's trucking talks, was Nixon's No. 1 labor supporter in the election, a fact that will be difficult to ignore if the government finds it necessary to intervene in the contract negotiations.

Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock went all-out for McGovern in the presidential race, and officials of his union belligerently denounce Nixon's wage controls.

Altogether, contracts covering nearly two million workers — most of them among the nation's highest paid — are up for negotiation, and a high Labor Department official says privately that 1973 bargaining could be the most crucial of Nixon's two terms in the White House.

Many union officials warn of pent-up demand by workers for big wage hikes that will run headon against the Nixon administration's efforts at moderation to hold down inflation.

The AFL-CIO's 78-year-old president, George Meany — who was roundly denounced by many labor officials for breaking traditional labor support for the Democratic presidential nominee — emerged, as the title of a new biography describes him, as the "unchallenged boss of American labor."

Meany, after strongly indicating the AFL-CIO would support any Democratic nominee except George Wallace, New York Mayor John Lindsay or "someone who advocates surrender in Vietnam," led the 13.6 million member labor federation to a neutral position in the Nixon-McGovern race.

Many pro-McGovern labor officials charged Meany was more "neutral" for Nixon than for McGovern, but political analyst Richard Scammon said after the election that Meany was "the man who comes out smelling like a rose."

Scammon, coauthor of "the Real Majority" and director of the Election Research Center, said Meany correctly read that labor union members were sharply divided between the two White House contenders and wisely kept the AFL-CIO neutral. Fitzsimmons's Teamsters have not been part of the AFL-CIO since they were booted out on corruption charges in 1955 during the scandal-ridden reigns of former Teamsters Presidents Dave Beck and James R. Hoffa.

The wounds over the election will not heal easily in some cases, and some insiders predicted an effort to overhaul the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education with an eye to prevent future major political splits.

The AFL-CIO Machinists union, a major McGovern backer, warned of renewed efforts in Nixon's second term at "antilabor" legislation in Congress, which remains in the hands of the Democrats.

Nixon withdrew his "crippling strikes" legislation late in the presidential campaign, saying it was obvious it couldn't make it through Congress in 1972.

But his labor secretary, James D. Hodgson, said the question of strike legislation would be taken up again by the new Commission on Industrial Peace that Nixon intends to set up.

Labor leaders — including Meany — had sharply denounced the "crippling strikes" bill as a thinly disguised effort at compulsory government settlement of labor disputes, and fought it tooth and nail in Congress. Another fight would surely result if any similar legislation comes up this year.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Notice how "Tremendous" Jones changed his 11-year-old son into an avid reader of books! He modified the old adage that said "You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink!" For he believes motivation merely involves, "salting the oats."

CASE V-581: Charles "Tremendous" Jones shared the speakers' platform with Gen. Lewis B. Hershey and me in Flagtown, U. S. A.

"Tremendous" was to deliver the sermon at 11 A.M.

He isn't an official preacher but has addressed 4,000 church and sales conventions.

For he is really a "ball of fire" at the microphone.

"Readers aren't always leaders," he said, "but leaders are always readers."

With that in mind, he mentioned the lackadaisical attitude of his 14-year-old son regarding books.

"You can lead a horse to water," he recited the old adage "but you can't make him drink.

"But you can salt his oats heavily till he grows mighty thirsty!"

Then he told the crowd that he tried to figure out some way to figuratively "salt the oats" for his son, thus motivating him to read widely.

"I knew he'd be wanting to drive a car by the time he was 16," "Tremendous" explained.

"So I sat down with him and told him I'd help him get his own auto.

" 'I'll furnish you the money, but I'll not give you the car.'

" 'Instead, I'll pay you $10 for every book I prescribe for you if you'll also give me a digest of it after you finish reading it!' "

The boy perked up instantly at this "salting" of the reading process.

"And within the next 2 years" his dad smiled broadly, "he had completed 22 books!"

"Did he buy himself a car when he reached 16?" I asked.

"Tremendous" shook his head.

"No, Dr. Crane, he'd become so smart by then that he just stuck all that money in the bank and used my car, plus my gasoline!"

"Tremendous" then added that his son is now finishing seminary, having become a brilliant student throughout high school and college.

"Tremendous" is a great rooter for Dr. Peale, as well as Dale Carnegie, and he employes that adjective "Tremendous" whenever he sees anything of merit in his companions.

So that's how he now has become saddled with "Tremendous" as his middle name.

Dale Carnegie's writings so enthused him about salesmanship when he was 22, that he became an insurance agent and soon set records for his tremendous volume of sales.

After attaining top honors in that field, he retired and began conducting sales seminars all over America.

On this Flag Day Sunday, he thus donated his services to come from Pennsylvania to Flagtown, U.S.A. (Mellott, Indiana), because of his sincere moral and patriotic fervor to help sparkplug practical idealism.

But I wanted especially to show his clever strategy in "salting the oats" regarding reading good books.

I've often told you about rewarding our 5 Crane children with $1 for each of the 66 books of the Bible they would read.

Also, I paid them for attaining good scores on my daily newspaper quiz column, called "Test Your Horse Sense."

And I have repeatedly urged you smart parents to surround your kiddies with dozens of the splendid 25 cent "Classics, Illustrated" books, to make sure they become good readers, for only such can handle college courses!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Red Cross News

By LIBBY SHOTWELL

Mrs. Ruth Carter, water safety instructor, completed Beginner and Advanced Beginner swimming classes at the Youth Center Pool, Dec. 20. Mrs. Lee Baggerman, one of our new WSI's, assisted in these lessons.

Those receiving cards in the Beginner Class were Lori Crawford and Eugene Baggerman. Those receiving cards in the Advanced Beginner Class were Lynn Crawford, Donna Minnick, Ian Horn, Betina Horn, Dawn Cosgrove, Kirk Cosgrove, Stephen Cosgrove, Dan Ekleberry, Todd Rithaler, Bryan Smith and Stephanie Simpson.

We have all been concerned about the terrible disaster in Nicaragua, where the earthquake hurt so many people and left them homeless at this Christmas season. The calls from our friends have been many and we urge all who want to help these people to send their contributions to the Red Cross Office, Box 1036, Pampa.

We will send the contributions to the National Red Cross to be sent to the families of the Nicaraguian people.

Since Monday is New Year's Day, our office will be closed. However, we will be in Pampa or have someone answering the phone as the Red Cross is on 24-hour duty.

Happy New Year's Day to all of you and may the new year of 1973 be a happy, prosperous year for all of you.

Berrigan Returns

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The Rev. Philip Berrigan has returned to the Baltimore headquarters of the Josephite Order, but there is no word from the Catholic order on when he will resume his duties.

The 51-year-old antiwar priest was paroled from the federal correctional facility at Danbury, Conn., on Dec. 19 after serving 2½ years of concurrent six-year sentences for destroying draft records at Baltimore and Catonsville, Md.

He was also serving a two-year sentence for smuggling letters in and out of the Lewisburg (Pa.) Federal Penitentiary while confined there.

Film Critics Reveal Movie Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoisie" has been voted best picture of the year by the National Society of Film Critics. Its director, Luis Bunuel, was named best director of 1972.

Cicely Tyson, who played the stalwart mother in "Sounder" won the best actress award and Al Pacino's performance in "The Godfather" won him best actor award.

The sixth annual awards were announced by Hollis Alpert, World Magazine critic and 1972 chairman of the society, which is composed of 23 newspaper and magazine critics.

The award for best supporting actress went to Jeannie Berlin of "The Heartbreak Kid" and the best supporting actor vote ended in a tie between Joel Gray of "Cabaret" and Eddie Albert of "The Heartbreak Kid."

Ingmar Bergman won the award for best screenplay with "Cries and Whispers," which also won Sven Nykist the award for best cinematography.

The group also made its first two Rosenthal Foundation awards of $2,000 for films considered outstanding but not yet recognized by the public.

One award went to Claude Jutre for "My Uncle Antoine" and the other was shared by Ivan Passer, the director responsible for "Born to Win" and by Robert Kaylor, director of "Derby."

Salvation Army Working To Aid Earthquake Area

DALLAS — The Salvation Army's Texas division delivered $2,000 in cash to its co-workers in Managua, Nicaragua, Wednesday, Dec. 27, to purchase food and other necessities for earthquake victims.

The money represents initial contributions from Texans to the Salvation Army's Nicaragua earthquake relief mission. Additional money will follow as contributions are received.

The funds will be used to purchase supplies in countries bordering Nicaragua in order to speed up shipment to the stricken population.

Dan Eddy, chairman of the Good Neighbor Commission of Texas and the Army's associate disaster relief director, transferred the checks to Major Bernard Smith, head of the Salvation Army's relief effort in Managua. Eddy left Dallas for Managua Wednesday in a plane loaned by Dr. J.R. Maxfield, Jr., of Dallas.

Major Smith arrived in Managua from neighboring Costa Rica shortly after the tremor struck. He is a veteran of earthquake disasters in Chile and Peru.

Contributions to the Salvation Army's Nicaragua Earthquake Relief Fund are being accepted at P.O. Box 2608, Dallas, Tex. 75221.

Double-Ring Service Unites Becky Taylor, Alvin Ferguson

MRS. ALVIN WILLIAM FERGUSON, JR.
...nee Miss Becky Jane Taylor

Miss Becky Jane Taylor became the bride of Alvin William Ferguson, Jr., of Fayetteville, Ark., at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 29, in the Calvary Baptist Church of Pampa.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Mildred Taylor of Pampa and Dennis Taylor of Cucumonga, Calif., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Al W. Ferguson, 1000 S. Banks, Pampa.

THE CEREMONY

Rev. Dave Adkins officiated at the double-ring service.

Mrs. John Gill, organist, played "More," "Till There" Was You," and accompanied Rick Harris as he sang "Twelfth of Never," and "Wedding Prayer."

The couple exchanged vows before an altar background of rainbow candelabra, entwined with greenery, and two tall spirals holding 15 tapers completed the setting.

Opened Bibles were placed on the piano and organ in remembrance of the deceased grandmothers. Pews were marked with white satin bows.

Following the wedding vows, the bride presented the bridegroom's mother with a long-stemmed rose and the bridegroom handed the bride's mother a long-stemmed rose.

THE BRIDE

The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, O.L. Satterfield. She was attired in a formal gown of white bridal satin designed with a high neckline, a bib-front, and long Gibson-girl sleeves complemented with ruffles and edged in re-embroidered lace. The floor-length skirt was semi-bouffant. Her two-tiered mantilla of illusion edged with lace, fell from a bandeau of re-embroidered lace and rose appliques highlighted with seed pearls which extended into a chapel train.

She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses and white carnations atop a white Bible.

The gown was made by the bridegroom's mother.

For "something old," the bride wore a penny with the couple's birthdate; for "something new," her wedding gown; and "something borrowed," she carried a Bible belonging to the bridegroom's sister; for "something blue," she wore a garter.

ATTENDANTS

Carol Rose, Pampa, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Beth Everson, of Canyon, and Renee Cox and Brenda Cox both of Pampa. Flower girl was Beth Redell, of Pampa. They wore identical gormal-length gowns of red satin trimmed in white lace, and carried nosegays of peppermint carnations. The flower girl carried a basket of white and red rose petals.

Randy Ferguson, cousin of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

John Roth served as best man and Garvin McCarrel, Bob Owen and Mike Redell were groomsmen. Serving as ushers were Mike Taylor, brother of the bride, and Dale Ammons.

MOTHERS

The bride's mother wore a formal gown of hot pink velvet fashioned with an empire waistline trimmed in silver.

The bridegroom's mother wore a formal A-line gown of aqua blue.

Both wore corsages of split carnations.

RECEPTION

For the reception in the Flame Room, the serving table was covered with a white cloth overlaid with white lace. The bridal bouquet served as the table centerpiece and two tall silver candelabra completed the setting.

The four-tiered cake made by the bridegroom's mother, was decorated with white cherubim, red roses and topped with lovebirds.

Serving the cake from the bridal table was Mary Price.

Gloria Ashby, cousin of the bride, and Janie Price, presided at the punch bowl which was served from a tall silver fountain centered with a red glowing light that held a cherub. Nan Blanda registered guests.

At the bridegroom's table, Pam Ferguson, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Kay Tinsley served chocolate cake from a round table covered with a red and white checked cloth top, accented with a red skirt.

Mrs. Ginger Foster, sister of the bridegroom, served coffee.

For the wedding trip to Oklahoma, the bride traveled in a pantsuit and lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside at Fayetteville, Ark.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Pampa High School.

The bridegroom was graduated from PHS in 1972 and is presently attending the University of Arkansas where he is a member of the Razorback football team.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS

The bride was honored with a shower recently hosted by friends of the bridegroom at the Church of the Nazarene.

A lingerie shower was hosted by Carol Rose, Shirlene Romines, Sherry Stafford and Carol Lowe in the Hospitality Room.

Another shower was given by friends of the bride, with Mrs. Donna Sims, 1940 N. Faulkner, serving as hostess.

Quotable Quotes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"Women's liberation will have to take place in underdeveloped countries before they can really develop economically. Uneducated, submissive mothers, nonpersons, cannot be expected to raise superior children who can make full use of modern education and training toward their country's development." Margot Higgins, nutrition advisor for CARE relief and development agency.

"We're not here to baby them. Sometimes it seems cruel, but we'll let them make mistakes to learn responsibility and cooperation." Pam Lewis who, with her husband, is a house-parent in a Cedar Falls, Iowa, hostel for handicapped young men.

"... One of the greatest humanitarians of our time ... He will be remembered not only by the American people but by all mankind as one of the great men of this century." Premier Golda Meir of Israel in a cable to Mrs. Truman.

"There is no better position to learn about the business world than as a secretary. She has access to the inner workings of a company; she can closely observe management in action. If she's sharp, she really has an opportunity to move up into an executive position." Rosemary Hamed, director of a personnel search firm in Akron, Ohio, speaking about women in the business world.

"You couldn't find such a learning experience in a textbook. Organization ... responsibility ... conquering fears ... there are so many facets to such an experience." Susan Reiter, 21, a Boston University student, after completing a 21-day survival course braving rapids, rock climbing, canoeing and portaging.

Ladies Meet For Bible Study

SKELLYTOWN — The Ladies Bible Class of the Church of Christ met recently for Bible study.

The meeting opened with prayer by Mrs. Bennie Woodward.

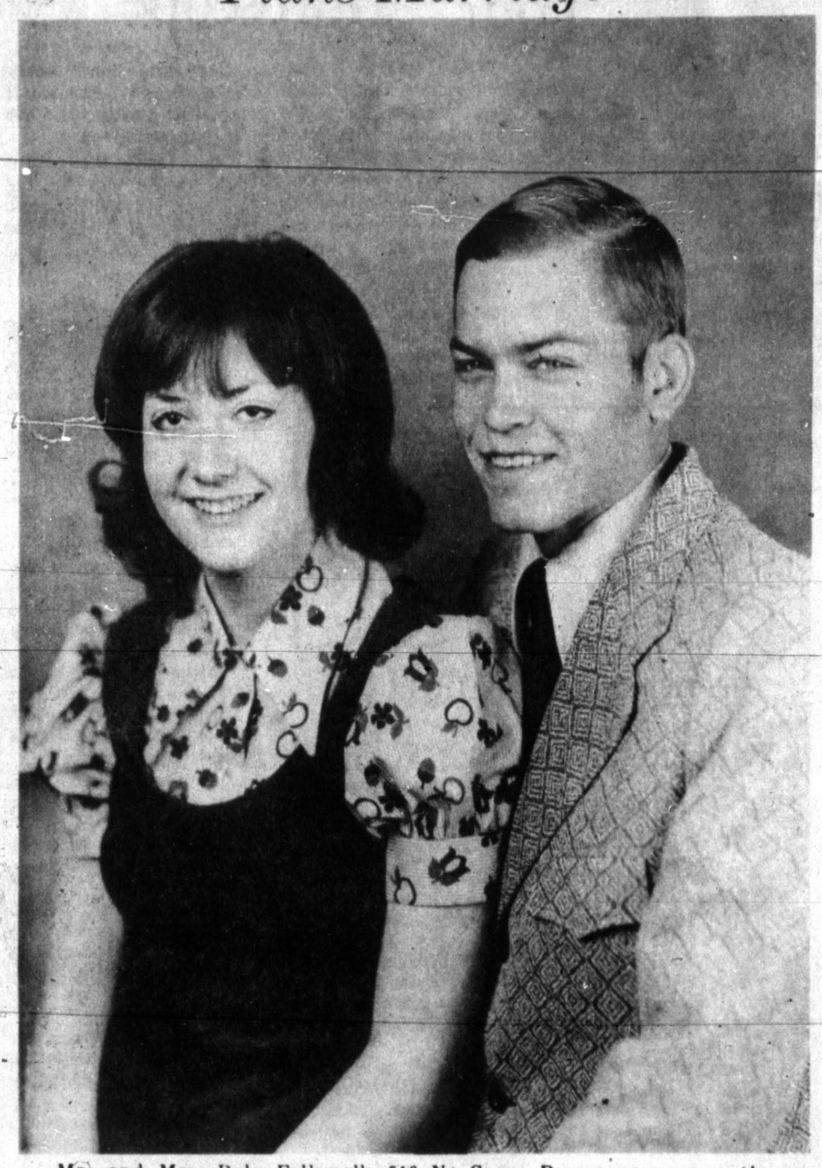

The lesson, a "String of Pearls," from Proverbs was taught by Mrs. Mary Cousins.

Mrs. Juanita McCarthy gave the closing prayer.

Attending were Mmes. Sadie Lane, Bennie Woodward, Bill Wood, Juanita McCarthy and Mary Cousins.

Plans Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Followell, 516 N. Carr, Pampa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jo Dale, to Rodney Wayne Greenhguse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Greenhouse, Miami. The bride-elect is a 1972 graduate of Rankin High School, Rankin, Tex., and attended Clarendon Jr. College. The prospective bridegroom, a 1972 graduate of Miami High School, also attended Clarendon Jr. College. He is presently employed by Case Co. The wedding is planned for Saturday, Feb. 17, at First United Methodist Church Chapel, Pampa.

Miss Wana Moore Becomes Bride Of Robert Payne

Nuptial vows were exchanged by Wana Moore and Robert Dale Payne, 1301 S. Barnes, Saturday, Dec. 23, at 6 p.m., in the R.L. Woody home, 308 N. Somerville, Pampa.

The bride is the daughter of W.C. Moore, 1125 Seneca, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Betty Temple, Guymon, Okla.

Rev. Harold Starbuck, pastor of Hi-Land Christian Church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony, before a Christmas tree background.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal floor-length wedding gown of white velvet designed with a square neckline, empire waist, long Camelot sleeves and soft flowing skirt. Inserts of Venice lace, complimented the waistline of the gown. Her double veil of imported illusion fell from a bandeau of white lace and extended to a chapel train. She carried a cascade of white roses.

The gown was designed and made by Mrs. R.L. Woody.

Maid of honor was Miss Vickie Lee Woody, who wore a floor-length gown of red velvet, styled with an empire waistline. She carried a nosegay of red and white carnations.

Stan Morrow, Pampa, served as best man.

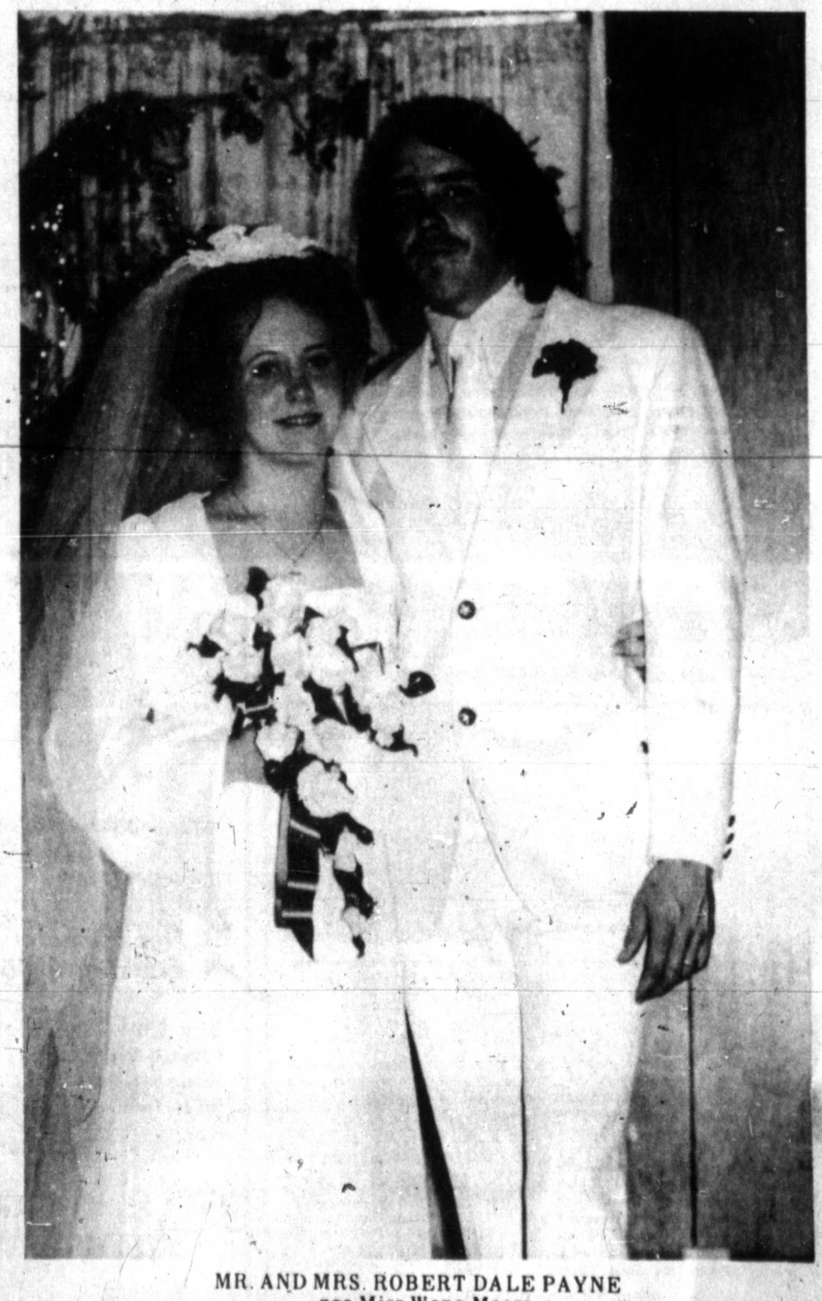

The wedding cake, three-interlocking hearts, with red trim, was topped with a minature bride and bridegroom.

The couple will be at home at 1104 S. Christy.

The bride is a sophomore student at Pampa High School and the bridegroom attended school at Perryton. He is employed by Flint Engineer and Construction Co.

Out-of-town guests included Dennis Wells and Mike Parnell, both of Perryton and Elaine Burlin, of Shattuck, Okla.

Rain-Proof Boots

Waterproof boots before you wear them in the rain. Wax polish also provides an extra layer of protection against moisture. And never dry out boots too close to the heat or the leather will become hard and crack.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

MONDAY, JAN. 1

Youir birthday today: Reorganization in the way you look at life forces changes in all circumstances. You have the energy and the initiative. Today's natives usually have very good memory for even trivial details.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Now is the time to apply for any improvements, higher ratings, open campaigns to get a reasonable share for yourself.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Take the trouble to review your reserve funds, the shares you hold in collective ventures. Budget for the coming month and year.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Your opposite number is after your attention, will do almost anything to get a better understanding with you. Don't be rushed.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Skipping your usual schedule helps offset minor annoyances. People are inclined to perverse moods when you want simple agreement.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: More actual work is going on than you had bargained for, some of it with great personal satisfaction, some of it for no reward.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Home is the finest place to express your creative impulses, not just resolutions, but doing something to get things moving.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: If you are restless, pick up and move about—there are many places to go briefly, errands better run now than later.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Successful planning can be done today. When you are satisfied you're on the right track and far enough along, call it a day.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: You are near your best in morale and style, so do a bit of showing off. The business of the day is minimal.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You catch up with some wandering possessions, find out what has been happening without your proper attention.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Let your friends step forward and speak first. Your solutions tend mainly to fit yourself and your needs, not theirs.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: It is normal to feel that nearly everybody is asking quite a lot from you—they are. Set priorities early in the day.

Your birthday today: Everything depends on whether you really do your own thinking, follow your own intuitive guidance. Today's natives have strong instincts concerning giving and getting protection, are willing to do much for the general welfare.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: The brightest idea now is to get done with whatever you must do so early and then organize unhurried.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Spread the work as well as the rewards for doing it, get coverage on all fronts. Social activity flows readily, enjoy it.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Be tactful, but get others to join you in getting a move on; it's time and for some things overtime. Pursue romantic aspirations.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Today promises a generally pleasant atmosphere. Gather your friends and neighbors for fun, share your favorite pastimes.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: As you make the most of a good day, look about you, see how much you have going for you, what luck you've had in getting there.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Younger people around you bring both cheer and a new puzzle to solve. Parties naturally crowd out business efforts.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Now that it's both weekend and the year's end, there may be people handy who are not normally accessible.

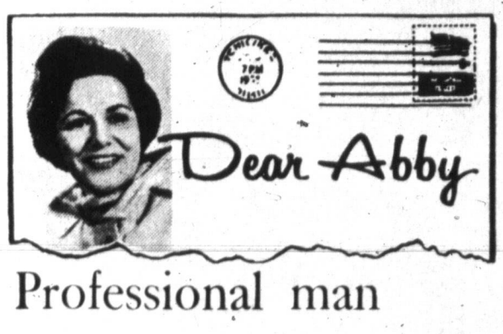

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: A touch of showmanship hurts nobody, and spur of the moment ventures have a better than usual probability of success.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Being yourself and being in an appropriate place doing the sensible things attracts interesting personal rewards.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: There are good ideas in plenty going the rounds now. You can sort them out better if you are making some travels of your own.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Talents you didn't fully appreciate come to the surface naturally when you extend yourself to please others.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Your energy and will to be creative should be thoroughly expressed. Crowd into the day all that you can.

Professional man really loves his work

By Abigail Van Buren

[c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: My home is on the verge of breaking up and there seems little I can do about it. If I leave my husband, there will be three teen-aged children without a father, but I see no other solution.

My husband is a professional man with a valuable career. He has admitted to having had sexual relations with a young woman patient 10 years his junior and now he says he's in love with her, but he claims he is also still in love with me. Can this be?

We were married when we were both in college 23 years ago and I still love him. Our sex life has been tremendous, yet he tells me that "in the line of duty" he helped this woman to find her "ego identity" by teaching her how to love.

I can't stay married to a man who would have relations with other women in the line of duty or for any other reason.

Is this something new in psychotherapy? I can't believe psychologists really believe this will help their patients. What of their own emotional involvements and that of their families?

HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: No professional man in his right mind would have sexual relations with a patient. Your husband needs treatment himself and should not be allowed to continue practicing until he has been rehabilitated.

If you love him, don't leave him, but DO insist he see a psychiatrist about his problem. If he continues as he is, he will not only lose his family but his practice as well.

DEAR ABBY: I finally found one answer to the age old "I never received a 'thank you' for my gift" problem.

A few months ago, the son of a very close relative was married. Prior to the wedding, the bride-to-be had more showers, lunches, and dinners than most young girls. The gifts she received were very lovely — more like wedding gifts.

Many people were invited to the showers and, of course, to the wedding, so many, many gifts were given to this young couple. To date, not one person has received a "thank you" note.

Rather than bother the bride's mother [or mother-in-law] I called the bride. I figure that if she's old enough to get married, she is old enough to explain why she didn't bother to thank people for their gifts. Also, I wanted to know if mine was received.

Her answer was, "Oh, yes, I got everything, but if I only thank some of the people, the others will get mad."

How would you have responded to that? E. K.

DEAR E. K.: I'd have told her that since she thanked nobody, EVERYBODY was mad!

DEAR ABBY: We are wondering how many married couples are suffering from a social status game people play when two or three couples get together. It goes something like this:

"We have three cars, two boats, and now HE is talking about buying another snowmobile! How do we get all that in a two-car garage?"

Or, "We spent the weekend at the lake cabin with [your favorite friends] and drove over to this place for dinner. Altho the tab was $83 for four of us, we weren't impressed with the salad."

Abby, are we out of it? Why do people try to outbrag each other? Is this something new in our affluent society?

MIFFED IN ST. LOUIS PARK

DEAR MIFFED: No. There have always been people who talk about what they have, where they've been, and who they know. The really worthwhile people talk about ideas and issues.

DEAR ABBY: You once gave a definition for "MATURITY" before a high school audience in St. Louis six years ago. What was it?

LOREN D.

DEAR LOREN: To be able to stick with a job until it's finished, to do one's job without being supervised, to be able to carry money without spending it, and be able to bear an injustice without wanting to get even.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Miss Veale Takes Gourmet Foods Course

Deborah Anne Veale, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J.B. Veale, Jr., Pampa, was among 16 Texas Christian University coeds to take part in a gourmet foods course in which students learned to take simple dishes and adding some garnish or using some unusual ingredient, make a gourmet dish.

Miss Veale, a junior majoring in biology at TCU, is scholarship chairman for Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and information officer for Angel Flight, the Air Force ROTC auxiliary.

Along with another classmate, she prepared the original recipe of chicken with curry sauce for the final project.

The recipe follows:

CHICKEN WITH CURRY SAUCE

One chopped onion
One chopped apple
2 cloves garlic, minced
4½ cups milk
½ pint sour cream
2½-4 teaspoons curry powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
dash of pepper
dash of chili powder
¼ cup sauterne

In pan add one chopped onion (medium) and one chopped peeled apple. Add two cloves minced garlic - saute until tender in a small amount of fat. Add four and one-half cups milk to make cream sauce. Add one carton sour cream. Stir until smooth over low heat and add seasonings.

Put chunks of stewed chicken in casserole and top with sauce. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 45 min. - 1 hour. Serve over rice.

Angora Twins

Euzzy angora twin sweater sets have matching berets made of the same material for a totally coordinated look.

Darker Base

Try a deeper shade of foundation if you're suffering from the winter pales. Use a darker shade base, carefully blend, then use a peach or pink blusher.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a hand from the Swiss teams at the Lancaster Nationals. It doesn't show any particularly bad play but the leading expert who managed to make exactly 10 tricks didn't think much of his play.

We'll let him describe what he did in his own words.

"As anyone can plainly see, five spades is a laydown. All I had to do was win the club in dummy and lead a heart to my king. West would pop on his ace but there would be no way for the defense to stop me ruffing my other two hearts and winding up with 11 tricks.

"I was careless enough to let the club come to my hand. Then I played two rounds of trumps before leading a heart. West took his ace and was mean enough to lead a third trump.

"Now I could ruff only one heart. I was in potential trouble so I ducked a diamond in an effort to set up some diamonds for discards. East won and forced dummy with a heart. I played dummy's ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond, but the suit didn't break and my last heart had become a loser.

"Then I played out clubs; they broke and I wound up losing only one IMP because my poor play had just cost me an overtrick, not my contract."

More Women Make News In 1972

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Women in America demanded attention in 1972 as individuals, whether they were homemakers, politicians or concerned citizens.

They continued to fight for equal rights on their jobs, at home and in the world of leisure. In April, the Senate approved the equal rights amendment to the Constitution, designed to end discrimination based on sex, and sent the measure to the states for ratification. The action had been blocked since 1923, but was revived by support of 92 national organizations. Rep. Martha Griffiths of Michigan had led the fight.

In California, the Assembly voted that women would not have to declare whether they were Mrs. or Miss when they register to vote. The United States Treasury Department ended its requirement that women use the title Miss or Mrs. when purchasing savings bonds. Men previously did not have to say whether or not they were married. Now all must give a social security number.

There were more women in politics in 1972 and one less man — because of a woman. Martha Mitchell got her husband to bow out of politics as chairman of the committee to reelect the President. She called the former attorney general's avocation "a dirty business."

Pat Nixon showed a gracious, friendly face to the world in visits to Africa, China and Russia early in the year. Her personal brand of diplomacy found her donning African headdress and costume, touring Chinese kitchens and shaking hands — or paws — with a bear in a Russian circus.

DIGNIFIED and serene, Mrs. Richard Nixon visited China and Russia.

MARRIED for 25 years were Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip.

And she traveled with one suitcase and a plastic dress bag.

Among women activists in politics in 1972 was outspoken Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm. As a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, the New Yorker appealed for votes on behalf of women and blacks as underrepresented in the political process. Although Mrs. Chisholm garnered only a small percentage of the primary vote, the campaign seemed to give the congresswoman a national constituency.

Another political loser was admired in the election year — Mrs. George McGovern, wife of the Democratic presidential candidate. Just over 5 feet tall, weighing 93 pounds at the beginning of the campaign and 10 pounds less at its end, Eleanor McGovern campaigned tirelessly across the nation. She spoke out on issues and was not afraid to disagree with her husband's point of view. In the future, she said, people will expect more of a candidate's wife than a sweet smile.

The number of women holding elective office across the United States increased slightly in the November elections.

Five women were elected to Congress for the first time, offsetting three who retired, and two who were defeated. Among the winners were two black women: Barbara Jordan, a Texas Democrat who was the first black in the state senate, and Yvonne Braithwaite Burke, Democrat of California, who has served in the state assembly. Also returning to Congress was the tough-talking feminist from New York, Bella Abzug.

One familiar face will not return to the United States Senate. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith was defeated in her race for a fifth term. The 74-year-old, fresh-rose-a-day senator had for years been the only woman in that body.

A Mexican-American woman, Romano Acosta Banuelos, was named 34th treasurer of the United States by President Nixon. She was a Los Angeles businesswoman. Dr. Marina von Neumann Whitman, an economist at the University of Pittsburgh, was named to the three-member President's Council of Economic Advisors. She had previously served on the price commission. Another Nixon appointee, Maritime Commissioner Helen Bentley, was the first woman to receive the Man of the Year Award from the Freight Forwarder's Association.

At Republican and Democratic party conventions to nominate presidential candidates, women fought for and won support for women's rights and opportunities in the party platforms.

Patricia Roberts Harris served as chairperson of the important Democratic Credentials Committee which seated more women, young people and minority representatives than ever before.

Jean Westwood of Utah was named to chair the Democratic National Committee. After the defeat of George McGovern in November, she immediately came under attack by old-line party regulars and she fought to retain her position. She lost.

The Air Force named its second woman brigadier general during 1972. She was Ann Hoefly, chief of the nurse corps. Alene Durek, director of the Navy Nurse Corps, became the nation's first woman admiral.

POLITICS — Shirley Chisholm ran for president.

Two young women were nominated to the U.S. Naval Academy by their congressmen, were turned down by the secretary of the Navy but offered instead the opportunity to join Naval ROTC.

Bernice Gera won a three-year battle against organized baseball in 1972. She got a contract to umpire in Class A New York-Pennsylvania baseball. After officiating in her first game she quit, saying it was the principle that mattered.

In business, Juanita Kreps, an economics professor at Duke University, was named the first woman director of the New York Stock Exchange. Sally Priesand was graduated from Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati and became the first woman rabbi in reform Judaism.

Women took sex discrimination charges to court in 1972. In one such case, the G.C. Murphy Co. was charged with discrimination under the equal rights law but the case was settled for $548,000 in back pay and $97,000 in expenses and attorney fees for employes. In return for the out-of-court settlement, the company was able to avoid admitting any violation of the law. Other cases had similar results.

Shirley Temple Black, best known as child movie star and later as a Republican politician and representative to the United Nations, surprised many by speaking out on a subject about which most women keep quiet. From her hospital bed after radical surgery for breast cancer, she warned American women to be alert for early signs of the disease.

PRESIDED — Mrs. Jeanne Martin Cisse led the Security Council.

Angela Davis, the Communist professor who had been accused of murder and conspiracy in the San Rafael courthouse shoot-out which left four dead, was acquitted of the charges and released from prison.

On the international scene, Mme. Jeanne Martin Cisse of Guinea was the first woman president of the U.N. Security Council. Queen Elizabeth II of England celebrated the 25th anniversary of her marriage.

APPOINTED — Mrs. Romana Banuelos was 34th treasurer of the nation.

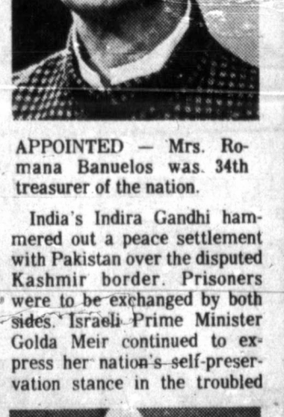

India's Indira Gandhi hammered out a peace settlement with Pakistan over the disputed Kashmir border. Prisoners were to be exchanged by both sides. Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir continued to express her nation's self-preservation stance in the troubled Middle East.

1972 was the year of Ms. rather than Mrs. or Miss. More women were using the term. It was even the title of a magazine, which published an introductory issue in January and its first regular issue in July. Circulation has grown to 350,000. Marriage contracts were highly publicized as providing a division of labor at home and on jobs.

Among well-known women who died in 1972 were actresses Jessie Royce Landis, Marilyn Maxwell, Miriam Hopkins and Janet Munro; famed opera and concert singer Helen Traubel; Helen Bonfils, chairman of the board of the Denver Post and patron of the theater; Mahalia Jackson, empress of gospel music; Jane Grant, co-founder of the New Yorker magazine and an early feminist; Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, pioneer efficiency expert and the mother character in "Cheaper By The Dozen"; Dame Margaret Rutherford, the muffin-faced British character actress; and America's best known poetess and baseball fan, Marianne Moore, who won the Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1952.

ADMIRED — Eleanor McGovern was the candidate's wife who cared.

SURGERY stopped Shirley Temple Black.

EMBATTLED — Jean Westwood sought to keep her Democratic party post.

SOUGHT PEACE — Indira Gandhi talked with Pakistan.

"Let's Keep Christmas" Presented At Forum Party

Twentieth Century Forum met recently in the home of Mrs. Aubrey Steele for the annual Christmas party. Evergreen, candles, ribbon table streamers and the traditional Christmas tree complimented Mrs. Steele's home.

Mrs. David E. Holt, president, opened the meeting with Peter Marshall's "Let's Keep Christmas."

"What Miracles Are Made Of," by Margaret Cousins, was reviewed by Mrs. McHenry Lane. The book is Ms. Cousins' own love story. The miracle of love between a man and a woman that can surmount all obstacles, drouth, the drudgery of life on an old, worn-out farm, and the lack of simple necessities and still illuminate every fiber of their lives, makes a Christmas story worth re-telling.

A cookie party was held with members exchanging home-made candy and cookie recipes.

Mrs. H. Joe Franklin, projects chairman and Mrs. John W. Warner made and decorated Christmas cookies to be presented to the "Head-Start" kindergarten classes. Also the annual Christmas dollars were collected to be used in a high school charitable project.

Local Woman Receives Pin

Mrs. Elizabeth Kretzmeier received a 50 year Jewell from Mrs. Lillie Fulton, Noble Grand, at a recently held meeting of the Pampa Rebekah Lodge, 355. Mrs. John Holt, Jr. and Mrs. Ted Mastin, presented the presentation and Roy Kretzmeier, pinned the Jewell on his mother.

Mrs. Kretzmeier was initiated by Queen Ester Rebekah Lodge 19 in Clay Center, Kan., June 4, 1920.

Refreshments of cake, honoring Mrs. Kretzmeier, coffee and tea were served to members and guests who attended the meeting.

Paper, Paper Everywhere– And How It's Used, We Care

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Paper ... paper ... paper!

One fears we may be strangled by paper.

Napoleon Bonaparte said an army marches on its stomach. But the modern U.S. business world marches on paper. The American economy produces an estimated one million pages of new documents every minute, of which some 250 billion pages a year must be stored, temporarily at least.

Business firms alone — leaving out the work of government paper shufflers — now store and maintain more than a trillion pieces of paper in 200 million file drawers. Each year they are adding 175 billion new pieces of paper to this enormous trove. Storage costs alone now run into billions of dollars annually.

The problem of handling all this material has given rise to a new profession — records management — says Dr. Maxwell Pollack, president of Van Dyk Research Corp., of Whippany, N.J., a firm active in communications technology.

Dr. Pollack predicts that in the future this paper blizzard will intensify rather than lessen and have far-reaching effects on the economy.

"More paperwork is inevitable in a fast-paced and increasingly computerized world," he said. "The profusion of electronic machines in offices will not cut employe levels but add to them, thus creating a need for new legions of Girl Fridays.

"The clerical work force is growing five times faster than the general population, and now receives about $80 billion a year in salaries.

"The 10 million clerical employes now on the job is almost double the 1940 total."

Dr. Pollack noted that despite the current recession there is still a shortage of stenographers and trained secretaries. Other studies have shown that business managements often are more reluctant to cut their office clerical staffs than their factory employes.

The job future is also brighter today for office workers. The government has predicted there will be a need for at least 200,000 new secretaries a year for some time to come.

The paper storm is heightened by the increasing output of educational institutions. It is estimated that more than a majority of all the scientists ever born on earth are still alive. They are producing fresh paper mountains of documents, graphs, research reports and learned journals. One of the biggest problems of science is how to digest its own output.

It won't be long, some experts figure, before America will be using 500 pounds of paper a year for each man, woman, and child in the population.

So what can we do about all this? I don't know about you, but I know what I'm going to do. I'm going to clean out a couple of file drawers — and I'm also going to plant a few trees in my back yard. I don't want my descendants to run out of paper.

Pampa Girl Accompanies Vocal Group

Miss Susie Stowers of Pampa will be touring with the Columbia College Double Sextette Jan. 14-19. She is an accompanist for the vocal touring group.

Each year the troupe tours a different section of the United States. This year, the 12 young women, along with three accompanists and two honorary members, will travel through western Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska.

She is a sophomore at Columbia College, where she is a member of the Concert Choir, Operation People, Campus Ambassadors, St. Cecilia Society, Lineage Club, and Beta Beta Beta music honorary. She is a member of the College Senate, and president of her sophomore class.

Organized in 1920 by Mrs. Anna Froman Hetzler, mother of singing star Jane Froman, the Double Sextette was a precision-trained group of outstanding vocalists who specialized in good showmanship as well as excellent harmony.

The Double Sextette programs include selections from "Camelot," the Trolley Song from "Meet Me in St. Louis," a novelty number entitled "The Mickey Mouse Club," and production numbers entitled "Moments To Remember" and "Stand Up and Cheer."

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Sunday, Dec. 31. This is the last day of 1972.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, the end of World War II was proclaimed officially by President Harry S. Truman.

On this date:

In 1862, President Abraham Lincoln signed an act admitting West Virginia to the Union.

In 1879, Thomas A. Edison first demonstrated the electric incadescent light.

In 1890, Ellis Island in New York harbor was opened as a center to receive immigrants.

In 1921, the United States and Germany resumed diplomatic relations after World War I.

In 1943, there was a near-riot of bobby soxers in New York's Times Square as Frank Sinatra opened a singing engagement at the Paramount Theater.

In 1945, Bermuda voted to end its ban on the use of cars on the island.

Ten years ago: Several Canadian leaders denounced the United States for alleged interference in Canadian defense matters.

Five years ago: France and West Germany took major steps toward setting up a single tax system in Western Europe.

Today's birthdays: Violinist Nathan Milstein is 68. Industrialist James J. Ling is 50.

Thought for today: Always remember that your own resolution to succeed is more important than any other one thing. — President Abraham Lincoln.

Champions Divorcing

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The popular dance team of Marge and Gower Champion — which thrilled stage, television and movie fans for a quarter century—is being dissolved by divorce.

Marge Champion filed for divorce from her husband of 24 years Wednesday in a Superior Court suit, citing "irreconcilable differences." The action ended a storybook romance and a career that made them the top dance team in America.

Presidential Profit

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — A Miami attorney representing President Nixon said today he "couldn't verify one way or the other" a report that Nixon made $100,000 profit on the sale of two canal-front lots near his Florida home.

Europe Awaiting New Political Era

LONDON (AP) — Nations of the Old World expect West Europe, Japan and China to join the United States and the Soviet Union as the world's main power centers in 1973.

They think the tidy postwar pattern of East-West "alliance politics" will begin fading out. In its place, the dawn of a new political era is foreseen: an era of political maneuver in which relations between nations and between continents will ebb and flow with the tides of shifting interests.

This delicate process, in the view of East as well as West Europeans, will pose great challenges as well as great chances: challengers to the existing order of things; chances to bring about peaceful political and social change.

But 1973 will not be all politics.

A primary problem facing all in West Europe is how to deal with ever-accelerating inflation—higher prices chasing even bigger wage settlements. Each government is trying to cope in its own way, with varying success.

Lives of 55 million Britons will be changed when their country enters the enlarged Common Market Jan. 1. John Bull will have to adapt every aspect of his living to continental standards.

In the other direction, London must continue to seek an end to bloody terrorism in Northern Ireland.

In Russia leaders are likely to try all they know to check the contagion of liberty which already seems to be creating a ferment of dissent among some of the country's intellectuals. As Western nations press for a freer flow of ideas, people and goods, the rulers of the Kremlin may be expected to clamp down even more severely against all displays of nonconformity.

A country like Spain has other problems—from new bullfighting laws insisting that the animals must be at least 4 years old to cleaning up the debris 30 million tourists will be leaving on the beaches. But few political developments are foreseen so long as Francisco Franco, the leader for 33 years, remains in command.

National elections set for March dominate the facts of life in France. The new year begins with stock and money markets jittery at the prospect reported by the pollsters that a popular front of left-wing parties, including the Communists, is apt to make big gains. If they do President Georges Pompidou may find himself with a constitutional crisis on his hands just when it seemed he was set for years of power.

Italians, wobbling from one governmental crisis to the next, still are gripped by uncertainty over whether to preserve their two-year-old divorce law—a law resisted from the start by the Vatican. Already 85,000 marriages have been dissolved under that act. But it seems possible antidivorce groups will force a national referendum on the issue.

West Germany under Willy Brandt, having all but closed the books on World War II, will be carrying its Ostpolitik or Eastern friendship policy to its logical conclusion. This means normalizing relations with Hungary and Czechoslovakia. But Brandt's main preoccupation is likely to be with the country's lagging program of social reform: Abortion is soon to be legalized. Marriage laws will be revised giving women more rights. Taxes are to be made fairer.

Eastward, old yearnings for the new comforts of the consumer age seem likely to be satisfied only spottily.

In Poland, Hungary and Romania wider selections of goods in the shops already have appeared. Houses are being built better. Wages are higher. But most of these countries, to carry such policies forward, need more credit. In turn, credits from the West may require greater liberalism. Thus a choice going to the center of policy will face Communist leaders in the months ahead.

Soviet leaders will push ahead with their own arrangements for attracting U.S. investments and trade—but not, so they are saying, at the cost of ideology. If anything, they may be expected to redouble their efforts to counter Western cultural influences. Intellectual dissenters are sure to get short shrift, especially if they demonstrate any tendencies to exploit or to meet any Western initiatives for greater liberalism within Soviet society. The campaign against restless Soviet Jews—or Zionists as Moscow labels them—is not over.

Dallas And 'Skins Play For Super Bowl Berth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hoping to duplicate the 1942 season when they won the world championship, the Washington Redskins meet the defending champion Dallas Cowboys Sunday to determine the National Football Conference entry in the Super Bowl.

Coach George Allen's Redskins will have to beat back not only the challenge from the Cowboys but also from the flu bug. At least nine players have been affected this week.

Allen identified the nine as guard Paul Laaveg, offensive tackle Terry Hermeling, defensive tackle Bill Brundige, strong safety Brig Owens, linebacker Harold McLinton, kick return specialist Alvin Haymond, reserve running backs Mike Hull and Bob Brunet and taxi squad defensive end Jimmy Jones.

Allen said several other players, whom he did not name, have also shown some minor flu symptoms. But on a brighter note for the Redskins, he said guard John Wilbur's bleeding kidney condition had improved enough that he would likely be activated for the game, although he probably would not start.

"We need everybody at full strength and not making any mistakes to beat the Cowboys," Allen said. "They have the No. 1 offense in football and, even though they have given up some points this year, they have an outstanding defense."

The Redskins captured the NFC's Eastern Division title, their first championship of any kind in 27 years. The last division title was in 1945. Their last world title, in 1942, came when they bested the Chicago Bears 14-6 in Griffith Stadium here.

Now the Skins play in Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium and Allen is participating in his first conference title contest as a head coach.

Washington advanced to Sunday's game by crushing the Green Bay Packers 16-3 last week while the Cowboys had to come from behind to down the San Francisco 49ers 30-28 to qualify.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry has picked Roger Staubach to open at quarterback for the Cowboys, but Allen said it didn't matter who was on the field.

"We're ready if Dan Reeves starts," he said, alluding to a former Cowboy running back who has also served as an assistant coach and emergency quarterback.

The Redskins and Cowboys split their 1972 games, with Washington winning in RFK Stadium 24-20 and the Cowboys taking a 34-24 decision in Dallas. Washington finished the regular season with an 11-3 mark, the most victories in the team's 36-year history in the National Football League, while Dallas wound up with a 10-4 regular season mark.

Defensively, Washington was ranked second in the conference, yielding only 23 touchdowns and 336 points. The Cowboys were ranked fourth, giving up 268.2 yards per game while the Redskins allowed 256.8 yards.

Offensively, Washington ranked fifth and Dallas second.

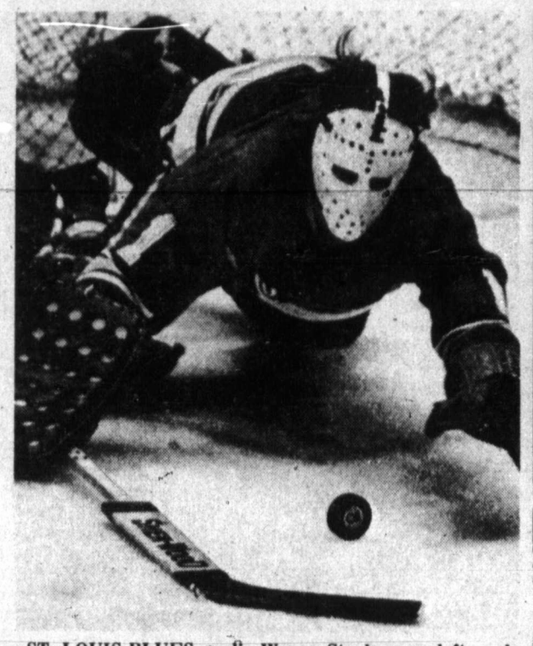

Allen said he wouldn't make any adjustments in his defense because of Staubach's tendency to scramble.

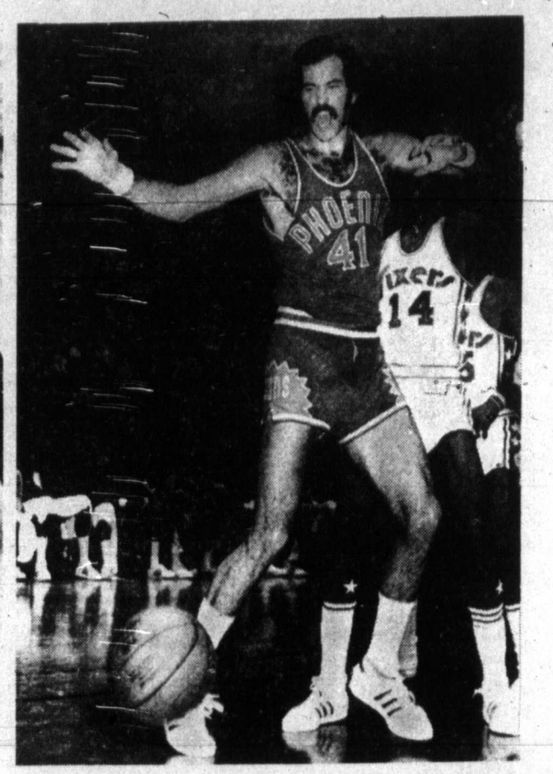

"If he scrambles and runs with the football, he's the one who has to take the punishment," the Washington coach said.

It was during a scramble in a preseason game that Staubach suffered a shoulder separation which knocked him out of the starting lineup until Sunday.

One thing the Redskins will not do, Allen said, is keep the five-man defensive line that bottled up Green Bay's John Brockington and MacArthur Lane. The reason is Dallas' outstanding receivers and more-than-adequate passing attack.

The nationally-televised game is scheduled to start at 2 p.m. CST.

ST. LOUIS BLUES goalie Wayne Stephenson, left, and Phoenix Sun center Neal Walk seem to have the same problem: trying to capture an elusive object.

Harvesters Beaten By Andrews, 57-52

ABILENE (Spl)—The Pampa Harvesters lost 57-52, to Andrews yesterday in the consolation bracket finals game of the Hardin Simmons Invitational High School Basketball Tournament.

The game was marked by numerous fouls and errors on the part of both teams. Pampa drew 23 fouls in the game while the Andrews squad was making 14. Of those 37 total fouls, six of them were technicals.

Andrews coach Edd Farmer drew one of the unnecessary penalties and the others were made by players for each team.

Two athletes were thrown out of the game; Freddy Wilbon for the Harvesters and Wayne Roberts for Andrews.

At the end of the first quarter, Pampa and Andrews were tied at 10-all. Andrews took a five point lead into the locker room at the half, 31-26, and never trailed in the second half of play.

At the end of the third period Andrews led 41-38.

Steve Richardson led the Harvesters in scoring with 15 points on six field goals and three free throws. Sophomore Billy Wilbon was next high for Pampa with 12 points on six field goals.

Freddy Wilbon made 10 points on five field goals before he was ejected from the game. Tied with him at that figure was Bill Simon, on three field goals and four foul shots. A. J. Brewer and Ricky Beesley made 2 points a piece and Keith Samples added one.

High point man for Andrews was Ronnie Tearson with 15. Three others on that squad hit for 10 points each—Larry Scott, Jim Leach and Roberts.

The Harvesters and Andrews played each other last year for third place in the tournament. Pampa won that contest 61-59. The loss dropped the Harvesters to 9-6 on the year while the winning Andrews team upped its mark to 15-3.

After losing its first game in the tourney, 62-60, to Snyder Thursday night, Pampa gained the consolation bracket finals by whalloping Wichita Falls Hirschi, 85-54, Friday night.

Richardson again led the Harvesters in scoring in that game, dropping in 25 points from the floor. Billy Wilbon was the second leading scorer for Pampa, making 16.

The 1973 junior amateur golf championship will be played July 31-Aug. 4 at the Singing Hills Country Club, El Cajon, Calif.

Aggies Third At All-College

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Texas A&M unleashed a ferocious full-court press in the second half Saturday afternoon, stunned Mississippi 100-83 and salvaged the consolation championship—fifth place—in the All-College basketball tournament.

Penn State capitalized on a second-half scoring drought by cross state rival St. Francis to take an 84-64 victory, and seventh place, in the other afternoon game.

Mississippi built up an 11-point lead in the first half and stretched it to 57-41 early in the second, but the Texas Aggies regrouped into their pressure defense and forced the Rebels into repeated errors.

The Aggies outscored the Rebels 41-21 in the final 14 minutes and hit the 100-point mark for only the second time this season. Randy Knowles led the Aggies with 25 points and Jeff Overhouse and Bob Williams had 22 apiece.

Coolidge Ball scored 20 for Mississippi.

Penn State led St. Francis throughout, but only by narrow margins until St. Francis lost track of the basket nine minutes before the end. The Nittany Lions scored 19 of the next 21 points.

Rose Foes Contrasted

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Rose Bowl football game here Monday is more than a battle between the nation's No. 1 and No. 3 college football teams. It's a match of a cold computer against boiling blood.

"I like to keep the blood boiling," says stern Woody Hayes, head coach of the emotional, always fired up Ohio State Buckeyes, who as No. 3 are challenging the No. 1 position of unbeaten Southern California.

"We're not much for the jumping up and down and hollering stuff," acknowledged John McKay, head man of the Trojans, "we don't think that wins football games. We try to stress precision and absence of mistakes."

Few big games in recent years have presented such a marked contrast in coaching styles and player reactions.

Hayes, a pillowy little man who has been the scourge of the Big Ten for 22 years, is old fashioned in that he has not shifted over to the modern, almost impersonal techniques but still puts tremendous emphasis on hard-driving, inspirational measures that hark back to the days of Knute Rockne.

Hayes, 59, a native of Clifton, Ohio, has done all his coaching in the state, 22 years at Ohio State where he has won eight Big Ten championships and two national crowns. His teams rarely fail to make the Top Ten.

An avid student of military tactics, he frequently quotes such generals as Caesar, Napoleon and MacArthur, but in replying to a question of Southern California's apparent invincibility, Woody pulled out a new name—Joe Stalin.

"Stalin said victory depends on the strength of human will," Hayes said. "When somebody reminded Stalin that the Pope was being critical, Stalin asked, 'How many divisions does he have?'

Not so John McKay, a dignified, gray-haired man, always nattily dressed, who could easily be mistaken for a Wall Street tycoon. It's not too far from the mark at that.

McKay is Southern California's Chairman of the Board. He has a bevy of assistants who carry out the hard work, mental and physical. One man watches over quarterbacks. Another is in charge of pulling and inserting receivers. There's a specialist for linebackers, tackles and guards.

McKay is the overseer—an astute one, it's true—but he runs his job as he would a business.

Until recently, McKay watched over training sessions from a raised platform. Lately he has adopted a golf cart, moving from one group to another, quietly observing.

McKay, 49, is in his 13th year as head coach, one away from his 100 victory. He has won seven Pacific-8 championships, two national titles and has sent teams to the Rose Bowl on five previous occasions, winning three.

The present squad is rated the best of his career—big, fast, versatile, with a punch from the air and on the ground and rugged defense. Some say it may be the best college team ever developed.

Ohio State will help find out.

Bears Fall To Cougars

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Washington State blunted a late Baylor rally Saturday to score a 65-64 victory and gain fourth place in the Far West Basketball Classic.

The Cougars wasted most of a 12-point halftime lead before Randy Dolven came to the rescue in the final minutes.

Baylor closed to within one point with 44 seconds remaining and Chester Green's last second shot bounced away.

Dolven led all scorers with 28 points.

Lee Griffin led the losers with 20.

Earlier in the day, Bill Evans hit on 11 of 16 field goal attempts and scored 25 points to lead Columbia to a 74-61 victory over Texas Christian for seventh place in the classic.

The Lions took the lead for keeps late in the first half and pulled away to lead by as many as 15 points in the final period.

The Frogs, led by freshman Lynn Royal, rallied to within four points at 63-59 with 1:47 remaining, but Columbia scored the next nine points to put the game out of reach.

Royal wound up with 34 points to top all scorers and was the game's leading rebounder with 12.

Eight Teams Enter Tourney

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Twice as many teams calls for twice the action as the 2nd annual Midwestern University Top-Of-Texas Collegiate Basketball Tourney gets underway here Thursday afternoon.

Last year's tourney had only four teams but this year eight collegiate basketball squads will converge on MU coliseum for the three day affair.

East Texas Baptist, last year's champion, will not return to defend its title, but the other finalists, Central State of Edmond, Okla., will be among the eight teams.

Other entries include Midwestern Univ., Southeastern State College of Durant, Okla., Weyland Baptist College, Cameron State College, Lubbock Christian College, Texas Wesleyan college, and Bethany Nazarene College.

Tennis Set

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — The spring sports season here will officially kickoff Feb. 16-17 with the 21st annual Wichita Falls High School Invitational Tennis Tournament at the Coyote's courts.

The spring board to the city's spring sports season is annually one of the biggest net tourney's of its kind in the state.

Tigers Roll 24-3

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sixth-ranked Auburn, a Cinderella team, converted turnovers into an early lead and struck again on wingback Mike Fuller's 22-yard touchdown pass to Rob Spivey to give the Tigers a 24-3 upset over Colorado in the nationally-televised Gator Bowl football game Saturday.

The Tigers, rolling behind a vicious defensive unit that had carried the team to a 9-1 regular season record, appeared on the verge of handing Colorado its first shutout in 53 games until Fred Lima booted a 33-yard field goal with 7:31 left to play.

Auburn, an 11-point underdog, dominated this 28th annual event, choking off a vaunted Colorado attack that had averaged 363 yards per game.

Auburn cashed in another turnover late in the game after Dave Beck recovered a fumble at the Buffalo 32. Then, on a fake field goal attempt, Beck lofted a 16-yard touchdown pass to Don Nugent with only 1:10 remaining.

The 13th-ranked Buffaloes netted only two yards in the first quarter and entered Auburn territory only three times before their field goal drive, one of those coming on an early fumble recovery at the Tiger 37.

Vols Beat LSU 24-17

HOUSTON (AP)—Quarterback Condredge Holloway, who passed up a $90,000 pro baseball contract to play football, scored two touchdowns and passed for another in the first half to lead 11th-ranked Tennessee to a 24-17 victory over 10th-ranked Louisiana State in the 14th annual Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl Saturday night.

Holloway, a Sammy Davis Jr. look-alike, ran for touchdowns of 15 and 10 yards and completed a six-yard TD pass to Jimmy Young in the first half as the Volunteers, appearing in their eighth straight bowl game, leaped to a 24-3 halftime lead.

Rusty Jackson, one of the top punters in the nation, booted a 29-yard field goal for LSU's only score in the first half. Sophomore kicking sensation Ricky Townsend, a soccer-style barefoot kicker, smacked a 33-yard field goal for Tennessee in the second quarter.

But Tennessee's tradition-steeped defense had to hang on in the second half as the Tigers, trying to prove they could come back from a disappointing sag at the end of the season, stopped Tennessee cold in the third quarter and scored touchdowns on runs of two yards by Bert Jones and a oneyard plunge by sophomore Brad Davis.

Allan Lowry Gets Treatment

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Texas quarterback Alan Lowry was treated Saturday for what was described as a slight case of tonsilitis as the Texas Longhorns prepared for Monday's Cotton Bowl game with Alabama.

Head trainer Frank Medina painted Lowry's throat before and after Saturday's sweat suit practice session at the Cotton Bowl.

Medina expressed concern about Lowry's condition but there was no indication that the infection would prevent him from playing New Year's day.

Shortly after the practice session began, reserve halfback Lonnie Bennett apparently pulled a leg muscle while sprinting out for a Lowry pass.

"Well, I guess we've lost him," said Texas Coach Darrell Royal dejectedly, as Bennett limped off the field.

East Triumphs 9-3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An East team featuring a powerful ground attack spearheaded by Otis Armstrong of Purdue beat the West 9-3 Saturday in the 48th annual East-West Shrine Football Game, giving the East its first victory in five years in the all-star classic.

Armstrong, a 5-foot-10, 197 pound running back, was the unanimous choice as the game's outstanding, offensive player. He rushed for a Shrine Game record-of 139 yards in 16 carries before leaving the game late in the third quarter with a shoulder bruise.

Kyle Rote set the old record of 130 as a Southern Methodist senior in 1951.

Dick Jauron of Yale scored the game's only touchdown halfway through the first quarter on a five-yard plunge over the right side. The score was set up by one of the game's many turnovers—a fumble by Nathaniel "Puddin" Jones of Houston on a pitchout from West quarterback Ty Paine of Washington State. John LeHuep of South Carolina recovered on the West seven, and Jauron plunged across on the second rush, but Brad Van Pelt of Michigan State was wide on the conversion.

Jauron, who took over the main rushing chores for East after Armstrong's injury, gained 88 yards in 24 carries as the East rolled up 270 yards on the ground to West's 110. That was a Shrine Game team rushing record, bettering a 229 mark set by the East in 1944.

The West got on the scoreboard midway through the third quarter with a 21-yard field goal by Bruce Barnes of UCLA after a 14-play, 61-yard drive.

Dolphins, Steelers Are Set To Tangle

PITTSBURGH (AP) — This smoky capital of industry, its three rivers slushing into a giant aquatic wishbone, crackles with excitement as the Pittsburgh Steelers try to take the big step into Super Bowl VII.

But, Miami's unbeatables are here and Coach Don Shula's Dolphins are three-point favorites to stem the Steeler enthusiasm Sunday in the American Football Conference championship game at Three Rivers Stadium.

The Dolphins, winners of the AFC East, are searching for a second chance at the Super Bowl. The Dallas Cowboys defeated Miami 24-3 a year ago at New Orleans.

Sunday's AFC survivor meets the winner of the National Conference showdown between Dallas and Washington in the Jan. 14 Super Bowl at Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh, 12-3, won the AFC Central Division, and the Steelers brim with confidence after beating Oakland 13-7 with a miracle play in last week's playoff opener.

"We'll beat the Miami Dolphins," Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw firmly predicted, even though he was lying in a hospital bed with the flu at the time.

"I need a haircut," said defensive back Mike Wagner of the Steelers, "but I think I'll wait and get it on the West Coast when we're out there for the Super Bowl."

Statistically, the Dolphins have a gigantic edge over the Steelers. Miami was No. 1 both offensively and defensively in the AFC, but there's a nagging claim that the Dolphin schedule was the easiest of all playoff entries.

Miami's bread and butter is its rushing game, a three-man corps of Larry Csonka, Mercury Morris and Jim Kiick. Both Zonk and Merc gained 1,000 yards, the first time that happened in one NFL backfield, and Kiick is a money player of note.

Pittsburgh has, if there can be such a thing, a fabled rookie. Franco Harris has become a one-season legend as a 1,000-yard runner and producer of game-breaking plays.

He's half-black, half-Italian and the Pittsburghers love him. Helmets, armbands, placards are everywhere, noting "Franco's Italian Army."

Four Athletes Inducted Into Texas Hall Of Fame

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Sports Hall of Fame inducted four new members Saturday during traditional Cotton Bowl week ceremonies. The honorees represented four different sports.

The quartet included the late Texas League pitching star Joe Pate, Texas Christian athletic director and former football coach Abe Martin, bowling star Bill Lillard and former Southern Methodist basketball coach E.O. "Doc" Hayes.

The Hall of Fame is co-sponsored by the Texas Sports Writers Association and the Dallas Salesmanship Club. Bob Galt of the Dallas Times Herald, president of the sports writers, presided over the annual event.

On hand for the ceremonies were the players and coaches of Texas and Alabama, who meet New Year's Day in the 37th Cotton Bowl football game.

One of the Cotton Bowl's super stars, former TCU All-American Jim Swink, delivered the induction speech for Martin, his coach in the 1950s.

"I remember my first meeting with Coach Martin," Swink, now a Fort Worth physician, said. "It was in a cow pasture back in East Texas.

"He showed me right off just how smart he was. We were standing there. I was kicking cow chips and so was he. Only he knew right off which ones he could kick and which ones he couldn't."

Hayes, who won nine city championships and one state title at Dallas Crozier Tech High School, coached SMU to an unprecedented eight Southwest Conference basketball titles in his 20-year tenure.

Hayes was inducted by Bob Prewitt, his successor at SMU and a member of his first Mustang team.

"The thing Doc Hayes was always proudest of was the fact that almost every player he gave a scholarship to at SMU eventually graduated," said Prewitt.

"He awarded 102 scholarships and 90 of those kids got their degrees. I doubt that any coach anywhere can match those figures."

In inducting Lillard, a six-time American Bowling Congess All-Star classic bowling whiz Don Carter noted:

"I guess this means that, at last, bowling has made it to the big time."

Lillard, the first bowler to be enshrined, added "This is a wonderful honor. You know, I owe a lot of my success to my wife. We've moved around a lot and she's backed me 100 per cent. We've had a lot of high moments and a lot of low ones, too. Coming in second to Don Carter provided a lot of those lows."

Pate was a 30-game winner in successive seasons during his amazing Texas League career, a career in which he won 20 games or more on six occasions. Declared a free agent after the 1925 season, Pate pitched in the majors only one year—1926. He won nine and lost none.

Before his death in 1948, Pate attributed his success to a pitch he never fully mastered—the then legal spitball.

"But I faked it, they fell for it and it drove the hitters crazy," he said.

The posthmous award was accepted by Texas League president Bobby Bragan.

Tickets Go On Sale

Basketball tickets for the five District 3-4A Pampa Harvester home games will go on sale Tuesday according to Homer Craig, business manager for the Pampa schools.

Tickets for the five home games will be $5 per person and will be on sale up to the date of the first game, Jan. 26.

Pampa's home district games this season will be against Palo Duro, Jan. 26; Amarillo High, Jan. 30; Caprock, Feb. 6; Tascosa, Feb. 9; and Borger, Feb. 20.

Orange Bowl Pits Nebraska And Irish

MIAMI (AP) — For the first time in three years, Monday night's Orange Bowl game will not decide the national college football championship as both Notre Dame and Nebraska are two-time losers.

But a capacity crowd of 80,000 and a national television audience viewing the 8 p.m. New Year's night contest will view the coaching exodus of Nebraska's Bob Devaney and the final games of Cornhusker stars Johnny Rodgers and Rich Glover.

They'll also see the renewal of what used to be one of football's great rivalries, broken off in 1948 with each team owning five victories and a piece of one tie.

"I'd like to go out a winner," said Devaney, 57, who will devote full time to his athletic director duties next season.

Devaney led the Cornhuskers to the national title two years ago by beating Louisiana State 17-12 in the Orange Bowl, then successfully repeated the honors last year by destroying unbeaten Alabama 38-6 in the Orange Bowl.

Nebraska was favored to win its third straight title this year, but lost its opener to UCLA 20-17, was tied 23-23 by Iowa State, and lost its final game of the season 17-14 to Oklahoma.

Devaney blamed inconsistency for the losses and maintains his team is as good as any "on given days."

Longhorns And Alabama To Compare Wishbones

DALLAS (AP) — If Texas and Alabama had on the same colored jersies, the 37th annual Cotton Bowl Classic on New Year's Day would look like an intra-squad scrimmage.

Alabama looks just like we do in the Wishbone (offense)," says Texas Coach Darrell Royal, "only they throw it very well. They are the best passing Wishbone team I've ever seen."

Of course, Royal was the innovator of the triple option offense which Alabama Coach Paul Bear Bryant began using two years ago. Since then the Crimson Tide has lost only two games.

Bryant called Royal for valuable information on the offense but Royal says "I don't want much made out of what I did for him. He's (Bryant) done a lot of things to help us.

"We picked up a little ole counter option that they (Alabama) throw off of and we used it in the Arkansas game effectively," Royal said. "We get some ideas from them ... it's not all one-sided."

The fourth-rated Crimson Tide was a touchdown favorite over the seventh-rated Longhorns on the basis of the passing excellence of quarterback Terry Davis. Alabama averaged 35.7 points per game with its explosive offense.

Bryant said "We didn't scout Texas and they didn't scout us, but we exchanged films. We've exchanged films all season since we got our offense from Darrell Royal and wanted to keep up with what he was doing this year. In exchange, we've been sending him our films ... so it isn't like we don't know anything about each other."

Texas raced to its fifth Southwest Conference title with a 9-1 record behind salty senior quarterback Alan Lowery, a converted defensive back, and sophomore fullback Roosevelt Leaks. Texas averaged 25 points a game.

The Longhorns allowed fewer points than Alabama, 10.8 to 12.1 per game.

Alabama's defense, however, couldn't be blamed for two quick touchdowns on blocked punts with which Auburn shocked the Tide 17-16 in the last game of the season.

The Longhorns are 5-0-1 against Alabama and a Bryant-coached team has never beaten a Royal-tutored outfit. Bryant is 0-2-1 against Royal.

The Longhorn coach says too much is made out of the fact Bryant has never beaten him.

"We haven't played that much," Royal says. "that's no big ole string."

Royal's team has a reverse string of its own going. Texas has lost in the last two Cotton Bowl games—to Notre Dame and Penn State.

"That's no big thing either," Royal says. "I think that you'll find when two outstanding teams play it will usually come out 50-50. Some people are saying we're not a good bowl team. Well, all I can say is that they've got short memories."

Royal's teams have a 4-4 record in the Cotton Bowl.

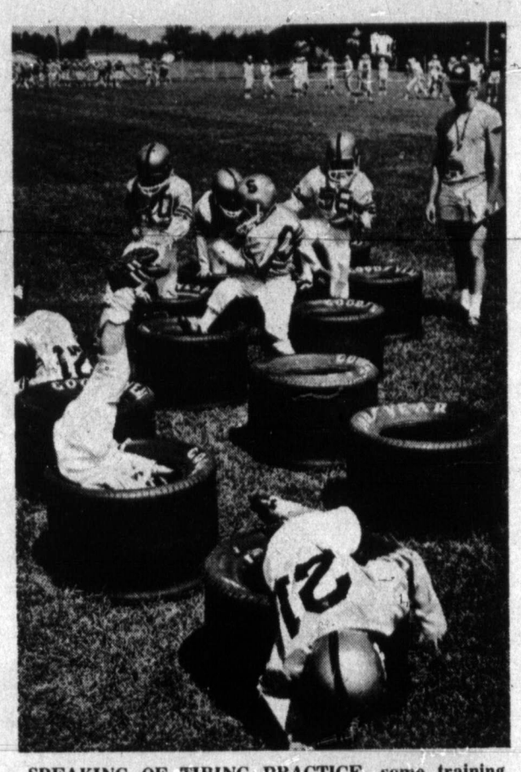

Texas is the most frequent host team in the Cotton Bowl—13 previous trips—and Alabama is the most frequent guest team—three previous trips.

It will be the 14th consecutive bowl appearance for Alabama since Bryant became coach of the Crimson Tide.

A sellout crowd of 72,000 has been assured for the 1 p.m. CST kickoff in the nationally televised joust.

Both teams boast excellent lines with Alabama led by All-American guard John Hannah and the Longhorns paced by All-American tackle Jerry Sisemore.

When Davis' arm isn't on target, the Tide relies on the plunges of fullback Steve Bisceglia who gained 603 yards on a 4.8 yard average. It's ironic that Texas' Leaks has the same average per carry 4.8 yards en route to a 1,000-yard plus season for the 'Horns.

SPEAKING OF TIRING PRACTICE, some training aids originally designed for racing cars are just about more than a peewee league squad working out at Akron, Ohio, can handle.

North Carolina Beats Tech In Sun Bowl 32-28

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — North Carolina quarterback Nick Vidnovic rifled a clutch 13-yard touchdown pass to Ted Leverenz with 60 seconds left to play Saturday to give the Tar Heels a 32-28 victory over Texas Tech in the 38th Sun Bowl which was marked by a controversial unsportsmanlike penalty that cost the Red Raiders a touchdown.

Vidnovic's pressure performance came after George Smith had dashed five yards to put the Red Raiders ahead 28-24 deep in the fourth quarter. Smith also scored on runs of 65 and 46 yards as Tech rallied from a 9-7 halftime deficit.

Vidnovic also nailed Leverenz with a 62-yard pass and run touchdown in the third quarter as the Atlantic Coast Conference champion Tar Heels trailed 21-9. A three-yard touchdown run by North Carolina's Billy Hite put the Tar Heels ahead 24-21 to set up the last-minute flurry of scores.

The unsportsmanlike penalty came in the second quarter after Tech's All-American nose guard, Donald Rives, picked up a blocked Tar Heel punt and rumbled 32 yards for an apparent touchdown.

Referee Burns McKinney ruled that members of the Tech bench had come onto the field during Rives' run. A 15-yard penalty was assessed from the spot of the foul near the bench, much to the chagrin of the men on the Tech bench where a great deal of helmet throwing took place.

Asked about the penalty, McKinney said, "The (Tech) coaches came on the field, and that's why they were penalized."

It was the seventh Sun Bowl loss in eight appearances for Tech and was North Carolina's first bowl victory since 1963.

Smith set a Sun Bowl record with 172 yards in 14 carries but it was still not enough to overcome Vidnovic's performance. The Tar Heel quarterback completed 14 to 26 passes for 215 yards.

The Tar Heels jumped to a quick 9-0 lead when Dennis Alexander kicked a 22-yard field goal in the first quarter and Dick Oliver thundered 22 yards for another score in the second period.

Quarterback Joe Barnes rallied his Red Raiders to put them on the board with 1:45 left in the second quarter n a 14-yard scoring pass to Andre Tillman.

After Smith's two long-distance third-quarter touchdown runs, the Red Raiders, runners-up to Texas in the Southwest Conference, appeared to have North Carolina on the run.

But Vidnovic found Leverenz open in the flat with a short toss and the Tar Heel wingback shook several tackles as he raced down the sidelines to climax the 62-yard play that put the ultimate victors back in the game.

Smith was voted the most valuable offensive player in the game, and freshman Ecomet Burley, a superb defensive tackle for Tech, was voted the most valuable defensive player.

The victory gave the 16th-ranked Tar Heels an 11-1 season record and was their second bowl victory against five post-season losses.

Tech now has a 2-12 bowl record as it completed its season with an 8-4 record.

Skater Undecided About Third Try

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Figure skater Janet Lynn has fond memories of the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, but she is not certain about a third try for a gold medal in the 1976 Winter Games.

Miss Lynn, 19, now is training vigorously for the United States and World Championship meets early next year.

The bronze medal winner at Sapporo, however, says "I'm not sure yet" about entering the 1976 Olympiad. Janet performed in her first Olympics in 1968 at Grenoble, France, finishing ninth as a 14-year-old.

"Four years is a long time to decide ahead of time," said the vivacious Miss Lynn, who was the darling of Japanese sports fans and received "about 16,000" letters this year from Japanese admirers.

Janet said she has answered every letter, "with a little outside help."

Janet, who practices daily on an ice rink at nearby Rockton, Ill., recalled that she enjoyed visits to Nara and Kyoto after the Sapporo Games.

"It was fun to be at both places, to see things and not have to skate," she said. "I liked Kyoto very much. It seemed what I would picture Japan to be like. As for Nara, I thought it was really quaint."

Her training grind at the Wagon Wheel rink occupies Janet from 8:30 in the morning until 2:30 in the afternoon every day except Sunday.

"In the morning, I work on school figures for 2½ hours," she said. "Then I free skate for 1½ hours and then I work almost 2 hours again on school figures.

"Once a week, I also take dance classes, in modern dance, ballet and tap dancing. I also have a stretch class."

Janet is also a part-time freshman student at Rockford College.

New Year's Day will find her on the practice rink. "I've got to get ready for the U.S. championships in Minneapolis in late January," she said.

Has she been approached to turn professional, or does she plan to do it some day?

"Not really," Janet replied. "I honestly don't know yet what I want to do.

Joe Paterno Unsure About Lions' Chances

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Joe Paterno says he's not sure his football team belongs on the same field with Oklahoma.

But the Penn State coach adds quickly that he's looking forward to finding out when his fifth-ranked Nittany Lions go against the second-ranked Sooners Sunday night in the Sugar Bowl.

Both teams bring 10-1 records into the fray, but oddsmakers have installed Oklahoma as a two-touchdown favorite. Paterno finds it hard to disagree with their assessment.

"We will have to play as good as we can and get some breaks to have a chance," said the coach.

"We've had some good practices and we will play well," he added. "But if we play as well as we can and they play as well as they can and you wipe out the breaks, we can forget it."

"Yet," the coach mused, "you don't want to let your opinion of the other team get you in a frame of mind where you think you can't win. That's what a football game is all about—finding out.

"If we're good enough we can win and if we're not, we won't and that will be that," he continued. "I don't know how good we are. I'm really looking forward to find out."

Coach Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma says he's not taking Penn State lightly-especially after the Lions surprised Texas' Wishbone 30-6 last year in the Cotton Bowl.

The length and severity of Sooner workouts here last week bore out Fairbanks' declarations. They opened with a two-and-a-half hour workout Tuesday that was their toughest since early in the season and maintained a similar pace throughout the week.

Fairbanks admitted that the hope of winning a national championship if Oklahoma wins and Southern Cal loses in the Rose Bowl "is certainly in the back of everyone's mind."

"But the real challenge is getting ready for a fine team like Penn State," he said. "They're very sound defensively and they are a very dangerous team assaulting with the football."

Oklahoma has averaged 36 points a game and Penn State 33, but both coaches agree that the New Year's Eve contest, first night game in Sugar Bowl history, is not likely to be a high-scoring affair.

"It doesn't look like it's going to be easy for us to score a lot of points on them and we have confidence in our defense," said Fairbanks.

"If it is a high-scoring game, we're dead," said Paterno, "because nobody is going to score a lot of points on them."

A crowd of 80,000 is expected for the 8:05 CST kickoff.

Tennessee Gives Battle 5 Year Pact

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The University of Tenneessee president announced Saturday morning the extension of head football Coach Bill Battle's contract for five years through 1977.

Dr. Edward J. Boling, Tennessee president, made the announcement following a meeting of the executive committee of the trustees eight hours before Tennessee's game with Louisiana State in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl here.

"Coach Battle had three years remaining on a five-year contract," Boling said. "The extension of his contract for five years effective next month reflects the university's confidence in him."

Battle, 30, became Tennessee's head football coach in January 1970 after four years as an assistant. Battle's Tennessee teams have won 30 games and lost 5 and have gone to three consecutive post-season bowls.

"Coach Battle has demonstrated his ability to lead young athletes and has established himself as one of the nation's finest head coaches," Boling said.

Boling said Battle's contract is being extended under mutually agreeable terms. The salary figure was not announced.

Dee Powell Joins SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Dee Powell, Texas A&M defensive football coach for the past eight years, has joined the Southern Methodist University staff, a school spokesman said Saturday.

Powell, 37, will be in charge of the defensive line.

Powell was the chief Aggie defensive coach for seven years. During the past season he dealt only with the defensive line.

Coburn Leaving

BOSTON (AP) — John Coburn Jr. is leaving the New England Whalers as executive vice president and treasurer and will accept an interim position with the World Hockey Association.

Cotton Bowl

Hannah

Alabama (10-1)

This game begins on a downbeat because the football world—assuming such a looney place does exist—had been anticipating an Alabama-Nebraska Orange Bowl rematch. Even Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian was critical of 'Bama coach Bear Bryant for "avoiding" Nebraska. Also, Alabama was on its way to a possible No. 1 national ranking before being dumped in the final game of the season by Auburn, 17-16. Alabama remains an explosive team with its high-scoring Wishbone offenses. Alabama's strongest point is its offensive line, led by NEA All-American guard John Hannah.

(Jan. 1; television: 2 p.m. EST on CBS.)

Sisemore

Texas (9-1)

Texas, winner of the rugged Southwest Conference, lost only one game this season, to Oklahoma, 27-0 in its fourth game. Darrel ("Daddy D") Royal would like to have that one to try again. But Alabama must suffice. Like Alabama, a strong Texas asset is its offensive line, bolstered by two-time NEA All-American Jerry Sisemore. The Texas defense, however, came on strong the last part of the season, allowing only 24 points in the last five games. Its offense rolled up 224 points to Alabama's 393 points.

Prediction: Texas 27, Alabama 14

Sugar Bowl

Pruitt

Oklahoma (10-1)

The Sooners averaged 478 yards per game in total offense, most of it with a gluttonous ground game. The main fulfillment of the Wishbone offense is flashy Greg Pruitt, but the other halfback, Joe Wylie, fullback Leon Crosswhite and quarterback Dave Robertson are also accomplished runners. On those rare occasions when Robertson deigns to pass, he usually looks for Pruitt, Wylie or tight end Al Chandler. Also watch work of All-America center Tom Brahaney. Defense lacks big names but it held Nebraska to 14 points in Sooners' upset win (Oklahoma's only loss was to Colorado).

(Dec. 31; television: 9 p.m. EST on ABC)

Hufnagel

Penn State (10-1)

Nittany Lions have lost only two games in the last two years, both to Tennessee. Coach Joe Paterno, one of the most civilized and successful of coaches, has a versatile quarterback in John Hufnagel, who set 16 school records. His passing and option play adventures are complemented by the running of tailback John Cappelletti, who gained more than 1,000 yards as the dot in the I formation. Tight end Dan Natale is the most receptive receiver Oklahoma's earthshaking offense will confront. Paterno's rotating 4-4 defense, anchored by end Bruce Bannon and linebacker John Skorupan, with ex-quarterback Gregg Ducatte leading the secondary. Oklahoma ranked a bit higher in polls but Penn State should win.

Prediction: Penn State 23, Okla. 22

Preston Smith And Wallace Have Wager

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith has a bet with Alabama Gov. George Wallace over the outcome of the University of Texas-University of Alabama football game in the Cotton Bowl Monday.

The stakes—a Texas-size watermelon against 50 Alabama wishbones.

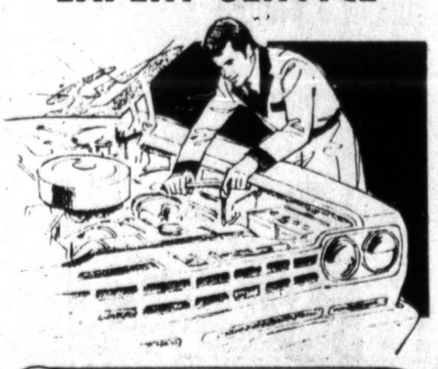

Smith, who originated the bet, said "producing watermelons in January may be impossible in Alabama ... but we can do a lot of things in Texas that others say can't be done. That goes for winning football games when we are the apparent underdog."

Wallace replied that he was wagering the 50 wishbones because they "are symbolic of the great poultry industry in Alabama and also represent the 50 points that I expect the Alabama Crimson Tide to gain against the University of Texas."

Ominious Draft Note

With Richard Nixon firmly entrenched in office for four more years and the campaign, with all its promises, receding into the past, the suspicion grows that two of the major promises upon which he was re-elected—peace in Vietnam and an end to the military draft—are as far from being actualized as they were when the promises were made.

With respect to the first, peace in Vietnam, it becomes increasingly clear that Mr. Nixon was promising something he, alone, does not have the power to bring about. At any rate, the war continues; along with its destruction and drain upon the U.S. tax payers.

As for the second major promise, even before the election the Nixon administration had started to hedge its earlier promise to "end the draft" by June 30, 1973. With draft-age youth placated with the vote, the terminology used underwent a subtle change.

What had once been an unqualified promise to "end the draft," period, was gradually eroded away to a promise to "end the peacetime draft" and to suspend the actual conscription of youth by June 30; two entirely different concepts.

The draft machinery, we were gradually given to understand, was to remain intact. The annual draft lottery would be held as in the past, and youth would continue to be registered, examined, tested, and recorded—"just in case of an emergency." Perhaps like the "Tonkin Gulf Resolution," for instance?

That was before the election.

Now, with the election safely tucked away, an even more ominous note is creeping into administration pronouncements. Now, according to an item in the Dec. 11 issue of U.S. News and World Report, even the promise to suspend actual conscription by June 30 is in danger of being broken. Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, notes USN&WP, is now publicly speculating that "SOME draft-age youths with 1-A classifications MAY be inducted into the National Guard or the Army, Navy or Air Force Reserves later on if their volunteers continue to decline."

Of course, as untold thousands of former servicemen who got involved in shooting wars via that route well know, once National Guard, and Reserve units are manned with such inductees, it is a simple matter to declare an "emergency" and order such units to full-time active duty.

When, oh when, are the American people going to rebel at being conned?

No. 1 Industry Problem

What's the biggest security problem in industry today? Espionage by competitors? Bomb threats? Riots?

None of these. According to a nationwide survey by the American Society for Personnel Administration in Co-operation with the Bureau of National Affairs, the No. 1 eration with the Bureau of National Affairs, the No. 1 headache is still theft—most often theft by employes. Vandalism comes second in frequency, bomb scares are third and drug abuse is fourth.

To get an indication of current polices and practices in industrial security, the two organizations polled a cross-section of companies in a variety of industries. Responses were received from 176 of them—63 per cent manufacturing, 25 per cent nonmanufacturing and 12 per cent governmental and non profit concerns.

Security problems have brought many changes in company polices. The survey found that practices include:

Lie Detector Tests—20 per cent of the large companies (more than 1,000 employes) use them.

Package Checks—40 per cent of the large companies and 20 per cent of the small companies (fewer than 1,000 employes) have initiated them.

Indentification Badges—50 per cent of the large companies use them.

Electronic Surveillance—30 per cent of the large companies use it in high risk areas. This includes closed-circuit television.

Moral deterioration, less respect for authority and greater instability among today's employes were some of the explanations offered by personnel executives for the increased need for security programs.

On the encouraging side, however, while just under half of the companies said that employe theft was a relatively frequent occurrence, more than half reported it was rarely, if ever, a problem for them.

An Arizona Ghost Tells Him To 'Git'

By PAUL HARVEY

Americans had their perspective shocked into focus when outdoor editor Don Dedera saw a ghost.

Editor Dedera says he was exploring northern Arizona when he found this tumbledown ranch house with leaning walls and a ruptured porch and rotting floors and holey roof. But surrounded by a fragrant piney forest under a peaceful turqouise sky.

What a perfect retreat, he thought, from the pace and pressure of modern living.

That's when the ghost showed up.

A ghost with a beard, leaning on a stick, dressed in ragged denim, emerged from the doorway of the dilapidated house, cupped one hand to his mouth and shouted: "You faker!" I heard you thinking! You are a phony, a fraud and a faker!"

Mr. Dedera said, "Wait a minute there, ghost, who you callin' names!"

"You, you faker," replied the ghost. I'm fed up with you soft city dudes stoppin' by my place feelin' sorry for yourselves."

"But," Mr. Dedera said, "it's just that the rest of the world seemed to be moving so fast. People under strain cracking up or burning out. No time for refreshment midst the hectic problems and tumult of the 20th century."

The ghost spat an ethereal stream of tobacco juice into the eye of a nearby daisy and said, "That's too bad about you!"

"But," said Mr. Dedera, "you don't know what it's like to have to put up with criminals and conflicts and corruption and pollution and inflation and taxes and strikes and wars. That's why we young people of this generation long for your good old days when life was simple, unhurried, enriching--close to nature."

That was the last thing Mrs. Dedera had a chance to say; the ghost did the rest of the talking.

"You phony, self-pitying pipsqueak, now let me tell you about those good old days.

"I got up at 4:30, made the fire, fetched the water, milked the cow.

"Then I fed the stock, slopped the hogs, chopped the wood.

"I hitched the team, plowed a field, mended fence.

"Then I had breakfast.

"I planted crops, hoed weeds, trapped wolves, fought bears that carried off calves. I harvested whatever the drought and the bugs left me to harvest and then took the crops to market if there was a market.

"My woman baked bread, canned vegetables, crocked eggs, cooked soap, churned butter, filled lamps, carried ashes, ground coffee, scrubbed clothes and killed snakes.

"She was an old woman at 27...in those 'good old days.'

"We had a 20 per cent mortgage at the bank, a bill at the store and no cash. And no government check and no welfare department between us and starvin'.

"Yes, we lived close to nature. One year we were flooded out. One year a forest fire burned us out.

"Our kids died of diseases that had no names, let alone cures.

"We had time for reflection? Poppycock," said the ghost.

"Man, in 44 years I never had one minute to stroll around daydreamin' like you're doin'. Now start movin' those $30 shoes and get off my place!"

Our Affluence Is A Problem Itself

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

(Second of four related articles.)

WASHINGTON (NEA) —The unique thing about American life today is that affluence which we were told would solve virtually everything seems to many millions of us like a prescription for failure.

Of course affluence is not yet universal. We still have poverty and hunger. But some of our "poverty" would be more than bearable to peoples in Asia, Africa and Latin America. And we do keep lifting more and more people out of it.

That's not our real dilemma. Anybody can understand failure when it is spelled "16 million people out of work" as in 1933. What is not easy to grasp is why a rich society can't collect its garbage, can't do a thoroughly honest and proper job of repairing its homes and cars and television sets, can't provide decent health care at reasonable cost, can't keep its museums open as long as it did 30 years ago, can't prevent its cities from decaying even as it throws up showy new skyscrapers, can't produce some things of sufficient quality to compete with the products of other lands, can't get off a dizzying escalator that carries prices and wages and taxes to ever higher levels.

What we have learned, then, is that affluence is not in any full sense its own reward. The economists and socialogists forgot to tell us that, while it would eliminate "want" in its most fundamental meaning, it would bring with it an imposing array of problems peculiar to itself.

Having too much doesn't sould like a serious difficulty as compared to having too little. But it is a difficulty. We are awash in the chaos of too many cars, too many shopping centers, too many hamburger stands. Our wealth of numbers is both blessing and curse. The affluent, competing for parking space, for elbow room in the stores, for breathing area in a house or apartment, grow edgy, annoyed, irritable. Theirs is not the desperate grasping of the poor for bread, but their frustrations are nonetheless real.

Deeper in its effect is the idea that an affluent society, rooted in the marvels of modern technology, ought to be able to achieve everything and quickly.

The phrase "age of rising expectations" was coined by men who had in mind the developing aspirations of the world's poor peoples in an era when "plenty" seemed ever closer to their reach. But the real thing is that affluence has been oversold.

It may end poverty, but it does not end problems. Liberals in this country have for decades decried America's emphasis upon material gain. But they have been major contributors to it. As they have looked at economic injustice and disparity, they have called endlessly for poultices of money to be applied to these wounds.

So, the American today knows two things he did not appreciate even a decade ago: large sums of money lavished on government programs do not necessarily solve problems; and money in his own hands does not free him of his personal problems either.

As he sees it, he has more of these than he ever had, and no leader and no institution seems able to do much about it. No single one of his problems overwhelms him the way joblessness engulfed the nation in the Great Depression. But in their totality they are dispiriting and discouraging. Affluence was supposed to have the brightness of the rainbow. To him it looks gray.

H. L. Hunt Writes

LESSON FOR ECOLOGISTS

Conservation has long been of great importance to good oilmen. A small group of clever, articulate and glib opinion-molders have ignored all the fine efforts of the oil industry to preserve the environment in order to mount an attack on the industry and use it as a "whipping boy" for deceitful propaganda which harms our national security and threatens millions of jobs.

The crowded nations and cities of Europe have always been dependent almost 100 per cent on foreign oil for their very existence. Europe also has long sneered at the U.S. for putting so much emphasis on progress and more and better jobs: "ecology" made headway in Europe before it became a fad with U.S. opinion-molders.

Now the North Sea has become a center of offshore drilling activity and it is forecast that by 1980 perhaps as much as 20 per cent of Europe's demands for crude oil can be provided by these finds. One strange point noted about the new North Sea oil boom: the governments and people of Britain and western Europe are not allowing their "ecology" spokesmen to delay or interfere in production of oil.

Both the British and continental Europeans have suffered from pollution of all kinds, especially from coal smoke, polluted streams and, in recent years, oil spills. Much money and effort has gone into relieving the problems especially those from coal smoke. Also, however, they have suffered financial disasters from loss of jobs and production when oil sources were closed suddenly by politieal action or wars. Experience has taught them that the death of jobs and industries means extreme poverty for too many people, so the North Sea oil boom must be encouraged, not hampered.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Victim of 'Geographic Tongue'

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am 38 years old, and in excellent health. My problem is my tongue, which looks like it has been scalded in hot coffee. The sores move to different locations, and the tongue cracks. This condition has lasted two years. When it gets so bad I feel I can hardly stand it, by morning it can nearly heal.

After getting a dental checkup a year ago, the dentist suggested I see a doctor fast. I did, more than one, and they didn't know what it was. Nevertheless, they sent me a bill.

At last I was referred to an ear, nose and throat doctor and he stated it was geographic tongue. He says there is no cure, but it is hereditary and he gave me a mouthwash with some healing ingredient which didn't taste nice and did no good.

I do not have any problems and am not under any stress. All my tests are fine. I even tried vitamins. If you can tell me anything or recommend anything I would certainly appreciate it very much. This is not a life and death matter, but it is an irritating problem.

Dear Reader—You have given a good description of the geographic tongue, particularly in saying that it can disappear almost overnight. Some of the taste buds on the tongue enlarge and others decrease in size, causing a hill and valley effect which gives rise to the term, geographic tongue.

The reason your doctors haven't done anything more for you is because the condition isn't well understood in terms of defining any specific cause, and the treatment is even poorer. It is indeed fortunate that this problem isn't a serious medical disorder, considering how little we really know about it. Mouthwashes are sometimes tried in the hopes of eradicating any non-specific infectious agent, and usually they don't accomplish very much. Vitamins are sometimes tried because similar disorders related to vitamin deficiencies are sometimes observed. The most likely ones would be the vitamin B complex group, and you might be well advised to take a daily vitamin B complex tablet or capsule, but don't expect too much.

In addition to that you would be well advised to avoid the use of coffee, alcohol, tobacco, spices and hot irritating drinks.

It seems to me that perhaps the most important thing that needs to be done has already been accomplished in your case, namely, making certain that you realize what you have is not "a life and death matter" and is not a serious health problem.

The tongue is often a good indicator of health. When the doctor asks a patient to "stick out your tongue" he can learn a great deal. The cigarette smoker and coffee drinker usually have a stained tongue.

IT HAS just come to our attention that Sen. George McGovern is a former resident of Pampa.

Remember the senator? He's the fellow who lost the Nov. 7 presidential election to Mr. Nixon.

In a note from some very observant person in the office of County Clerk Wanda Carter, it was learned that McGovern, who was a B-24 bomber pilot in Europe, earned his wings in the fall of 1943 at the Pampa Army Air Field.

The information turned up in a recent Star Light Column edited by Wanda J. Campbell in the Austin American.

Someone wrote to the column and asked where in Texas Senator McGovern was stationed during World War II and where he and Mrs. McGovern were married.

McGovern got some of his pre-flight training at Randolph Field in San Antonio in 1943 before being transferred to the Pampa Air Base. He and Eleanor Stegman were married that year in South Dakota.

"We lived in Pampa as newlyweds," says Eleanor, who was with her husband until he went overseas.

One observer points out that had it been generally known McGovern was a former Pampa boy, he might have carried Gray County in the election.

On second thought, the way the senator bumbled things, even that probably wouldn't have helped any. After all, he didn't even carry his home state of South Dakota.

RECENTLY WE asked early day school teachers and students to tell us of any recollections they may have of the first year of operation in the 52-year-old Pampa Junior High School Bldg. which will be abandoned at the close of the current school year in May.

Our good friend J. Wade Duncan was the first to answer.

Here is his note:

"You were inquiring about when the o.l Pampa High was built. It was started in late 1919 and finished for the opening of the 1920-21 school term.

"W.R. Silvey was its first superintendent, Fred Ditmore its first janitor and furnace man.

"They moved us high school students out of the old red brick into the new building for the start of that term.

"I was art editor of the first Pampa High annual (The Harvest) to be published. I also managed to go on and graduate in May of 1922 (and that was 50 years ago)."

Anyone else like to come up with nostalgia concerning good old Pampa Junior High?

THIS IS the morning of New Year's Eve. And if you are among those who must have alcoholic cheer to see the Old Year out and the New Year in--you're out of luck if you didn't stock up last night.

Liquor stores cannot open on Sundays in Texas. New Year's Eve is no exception when it falls on Sunday.

New Year's Eve dances and parties will be held as usual in private clubs and homes--but not in the public night spots around town.

There are city ordinances which prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages on Sunday and dancing in public places on Sunday. And the same holds true under state law out in the county.

As a result, those who have to celebrate New Year's Eve in the public night spots--moved their observance to last night and probably are nursing their hangovers today instead of tomorrow.

* * *

TONIGHT AND tomorrow combine to set up the time when you make those New Year's resolutions.

Many who smoke will resolve to cut out cigarettes. Many who drink will resolve to quaff hard liquor no more. Those who are too fat will swear off eating sweets and slash the calories to a minimum.

There are scores of resolutions that will be made. The question is: How many will be kept? The answer: Very few.

As far as being kept, most resolutions fall into the category of the fellow who says he's going to make one resolution that's easy to keep.

He 's going to quit smoking. How does he know it's easy? Because he has quit dozens of times. Nothing to it.

* * *

LOOKING UP some background on New Year's, we discovered it is only in relatively modern times that Jan. 1 was arbitrarily selected as New Year's Day.

The Julian calendar, which began its year on March 25, was, in fact, used by Great Britain and its American colonies until the middle of the 18th century, long after the rest of Christendom had adopted the Gregorian or reformed calendar.

Have you ever wondered why New Year's Day falls so quickly on the heels of Christmas? Maybe this is a clue to the reasoning behind our calendar:

With Christmas comes the observance of the Nativity, the warm feeling of good will that manifests itself and affects even the Scrooges among us--and a sort of summing up of what we've done or failed to do during the year about to end.

Some of that is bound to carry over for at least a week. Perhaps it's a good idea that New Year's Day, a time to make resolutions for the future, should fall during that time of the year when we are most receptive about thoughts on making a new beginning.

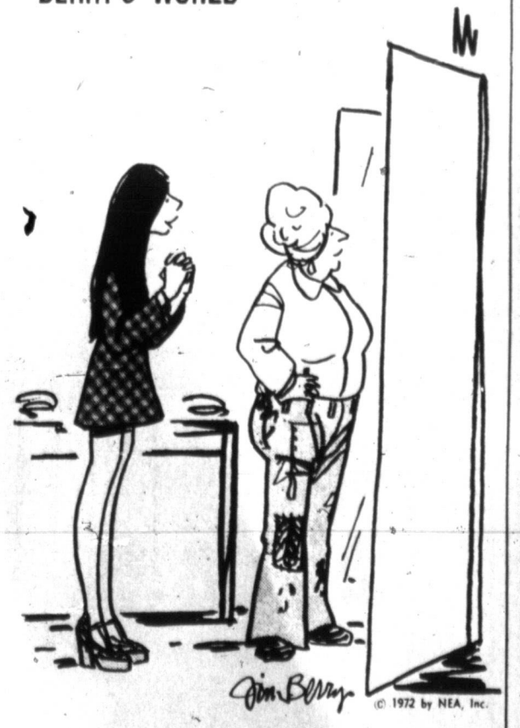

Actually there is no compelling reason that we observe Jan. 1 as the beginning of a new year--it's just that the Christmas spirit is still in force, prodding us with thoughts that now is a good time for a new start.

One suspects New Year's Day, like Christmas, is something that happens in the heart, as Don Oakley of Newspaper Enterprise Association told us in a note the other day.

So, it is hoped that in every heart on this New Year's Eve is the same wish:

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Helium Fight Set

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A 9-year legal fight over royalties for helium produced in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas is due to go before a U.S. district court in Wichita, Kan., early next year to divide the payments.

State Sen. Gene Stipe of McAlester, Okla., an attorney in the suit, said no date has been set yet but it will be heard in the court of U.S. District Court Judge Wesley Brown.

Watermelon Wager

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Texas Gov. Preston Smith has told Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace by telegram that he'll bet a Texas-sized watermelon that Texas will whip Alabama in the Cotton Bowl football game New Year's Day.

Wallace, when informed of the wager today, said he would put up "50 Alabama wishbones" that the Crimson Tide will beat the Longhorns.

MORE THAN $3,691,000 IN DIVIDENDS!

In 1972, nearly 18,000 First Federal savers shared over $3,691,000 in dividends paid or credited. These generous earnings represent a good part of a lot of plans for the future. There's peace of mind there, too. The earning power of a First Federal account is protected by prudent management. And it's insured to $20,000 by a federal agency.

Start your future here — now — at First Federal. More than ever, now is the time to open or add to your savings account. Here's why.
