U.S. answers Libya's attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Libya today fired an undetermined number of additional missiles at U.S. warplanes flying over the disputed Gulf of Sidra, and the United States struck back against two or more Libyan patrol boats and a radar installation, the Pentagon said.

Defense Department sources, meantime, disclosed the United States might conclude its naval maneuvers off the Libyan coast before the end of the week.

"If they stop shooting at us, we'll probably stop soon," said one source.

Robert Sims, the Defense Department's chief spokesman, said one Libyan boat was left in flames; debris was spotted after the other was hit by an American missile. That brought to at least four the number of Libyan boats attacked by U.S. planes. The American forces sustained no damage.

Sims said it was not clear how much damage had been inflicted on the radar site.

Sims indicated this morning that up to 12 SA-5 and SA-2 missiles had been directed at American ships and planes since the first two were fired Monday.

But Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger cast doubt on that report later by saying he wasn't sure exactly how many missiles had been fired.

Weinberger also clouded the earlier report by indicating that U.S. forces might have attacked a fifth Libyan patrol boat.

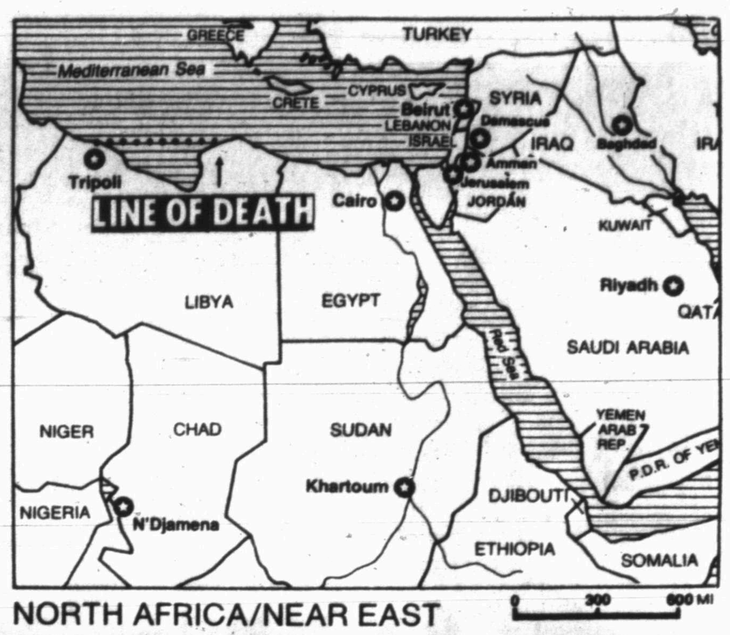

But he indirectly lent weight to the reports that the maneuvers might end later this week.

"The exact time of completion is pretty much up to the fleet commander," Weinberger said. "The (exercise notice) is for a number of days. The usual practice is to complete the exercise sometime short of that."

Last week, the Pentagon had said the exercises would run until April 1.

Earlier, Sims said that six Libyan missiles had been fired at U.S. forces between 7:52 a.m. EST and 2:15 p.m. EST Monday. Another six missiles were fired late in the day, with the last being detected between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. EST Monday, he added. Eastern Standard Time is six hours behind the time in the gulf.

Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy had threatened any of the U.S. forces taking part in a large naval exercise if they crossed his "line of death," which cuts across the northern boundary of the Gulf of Sidra. Libya claims the gulf, an appendage of the Mediterranean, as its own; the United States regards it as international waters.

Invasion prompts funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, responding to a large-scale Nicaraguan incursion into Honduras, has approved $20 million in emergency assistance for the Honduran military, U.S. officials said today.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said Reagan acted in response to a request Monday night from Honduran authorities after Sandinista forces penetrated up to 15 miles inside Honduras in an attempt to destroy Nicaraguan rebel bases.

The Nicaraguan incursion was described as the largest of more than 100 Sandinista border crossing into Honduras since the Contra rebels began using that country as a base of operations more than four years ago.

The officials said Reagan has notified appropriate members of Congress that he intends to exercise his emergency authority under the Foreign Assistance Act to provide Honduras with materiel, training and services.

The military material that has been requested includes air defense weapons, conventional ordnance, spare parts and armament for helicopters and essential training, according to the officials.

Word of the aid package came as Reagan and Senate Democrats worked to strike a compromise on his request for $100 million in aid for the Contras.

The officials said Reagan was expected to sign an order authorizing the release of the assistance later today.

In addition, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger has dispatched Gen. John Galvin, commander in chief of the U.S. Southern Command, to Honduras to assess the situation and provide intelligence and advice to the Honduran government.

Galvin has been instructed to undertake every precaution to avoid placing members of the U.S. armed forces stationed in Honduras into situations of potential conflict, the officials said.

At McDonalds site...

Drainage system is 'extra'

The building of Snyder's new McDonalds restaurant has entailed one "extra" construction phase caused by the creek bed which runs through the site property at 3400 College Ave.

The dirt and concrete subcontractors for the project are now nearing completion of a concrete drainage system which will carry water flowing under College Ave. to Deep Creek to the east.

The drainage network is being built by McDonalds to ensure against any water runoff backing up on College or at their facility.

An existing box culvert under the roadway has now had a 40 ft. extension added to it. This extension will also have a metal grate for its top, allowing water to flow into it from above also.

Two 4 ft. in diameter concrete pipes extend from this boxed culvert to the east some 250 ft.

These pipes will then connect into a concrete spillway. At this point — some 300 ft. east of College Ave. — the water runoff will flow toward Deep Creek in its natural channel.

Curb and gutter along the southern edge of McDonalds' property will also be slotted so that runoff will flow uninterrupted over the driveway and parking area.

The project also entails moving some 9,000 yards of dirt to the site to cover the drainage network.

The city has authorized workers for Laredo Construction — the Oklahoma City-based subcontractor for the dirt and concrete work — to retrieve this dirt from the old channel of Deep Creek.

When the dirt work is completed, the site adjacent to College will be level with 300 ft. of the old creek bed covered.

The drainage work is projected to add an additional $75,000 to $80,000 to the restaurant's construction cost.

A 90-day construction period is now estimated for the entire project. The McDonalds building will be built by Mid-Continent Construction of Chicago.

The facility will be located on a 41,000 sq. ft. location. The building will entail some 4,000 sq. ft. of this.

The Snyder McDonalds will be one of 500 new restaurants built

Bullet recovered in Sunday killing

The bullet which killed convenience store worker Jack Huddleston has been recovered during an autopsy ordered by Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway.

Local police declined to identify the caliber of the bullet, however, noting this was evidence they would hold for future questioning of possible suspects.

Tuesday morning, Callaway said Huddleston's body had been returned to Snyder from Dallas. An autopsy was conducted there by pathologists at the Southwest Institute of Forensic Sciences.

Services for Huddleston, 53, are scheduled Thursday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Chapel at 2 p.m.

He was found by a customer Sunday around 4:40 a.m. He had been shot once in the back of the neck after being taken to the store's walk-in cooler area.

The last person to see Huddleston alive reported they had made a purchase in the College Ave. convenience store around 4:15 a.m. Two other individuals were seen in the store at that time, identified only as "two blacks."

Huddleston — who had previously worked for BLJ Salt Water Depot Inc. at a water disposal site west of Snyder — had taken the job of night clerk at the convenience store in late Feburary.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Judging from some TV ads, there are no longer any unmentionables that you can't mention."

Colonial Hill Minister Miller Robinson doesn't miss many opportunities to jab his fellow coffee drinkers. When you deal with Miller, you have to be alert.

Miller was in rare form one recent morning, and a pause in conversation finally allowed a response. Three fellows reached for a clipping they had saved especially for Robinson. The item had appeared in a civic club magazine, and all three had saved the clipping for the same purpose–to give to the preacher.

The story told about a minister who took his car in for repairs. Upon leaving, the preacher told the mechanic, "Remember, I'm a poor preacher."

To which the mechanic replied, "I know, I've heard you."

Another of Robinson's members offers a "more or less accurate" account from a recent sermon–one in which the man of the cloth touched on the relationship between fact and faith.

The member quoted the minister: "That you are sitting before me in this church," he said, "is fact. That I am standing here, speaking from this puplit is fact.

"But as for faith–it is only faith that makes me believe anyone is listening to me."

Cogdell Hospital has a new maternity program which they call Lullaby Lane. It's been one of the most successful things to come along, and much of the credit goes to Kathy Minemier, public relations director for the hospital.

A lot of interesting things happen when excited parents, proud grandparents and uncertain young brothers and sisters all show up to view the new arrival.

One baby sister was among the new crop of babies on display in the hospital nursery.

Holding the older brother, the dad pointed through the glass and said, "There's baby sister. Do you want to take her home?"

"No," said big brother, pointing at another baby. "I want that one."

Ask Us

Q. — Is it true that the U.S. Postal Service is going to abandon its plan to add numbers to the Zip code?

A. — No, according to Snyder Postmaster Wendell Thomas. He said there were recent erroneous reports regarding this, including a magazine article and an item on the Paul Harvey News radio program. He said the postal service is now seeking corrections from both sources. The Zip code is scheduled to go from five digits to nine.

Weather alerts are needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hazardous weather alerts for pilots remain slow and inadequate and could cause another plane crash like the one at the Dallas-Fort Worth airport last summer that left 137 people dead, a congressman says.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., told a news conference Monday faster warnings must be provided or "we will face another air catastrophe very soon."

Glickman released preliminary findings of a General Accounting Office investigation that federal air controllers are instructed to provide weather information to pilots "to the extent possible" contingent on other duties.

Controllers "feel that they do not have the time, training or expertise to discern, interpret and communicate present hazardous-weather messages," according to the GAO, the investigative arm of Congress. It said broadcasting such messages takes 23 minutes because of numerous frequencies over which the forecast must be repeated.

The GAO said Federal Aviation Administration procedures call for supervisors to determine which messages will be transmitted by the controllers.

Wind shear — an abrupt, powerful gust of wind — has been cited as a factor in the crash of a Delta Air Lines plane at Dallas-Fort Worth last Aug. 2.

The FAA is withholding comment on the GAO's findings until it can study the entire report, spokesman Fred Farrar said.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently my doctor suggested that I undergo cardiac catheterization. Is there a risk in this procedure? Also, what is the main purpose of a stress test?

DEAR READER — Cardiac catheterization is termed an "invasive" procedure because it involves the introduction of instruments or material into the body; therefore, it carries some risk, depending on the patient's condition. On the other hand, the technique is enormously useful and, when performed by experienced experts, is remarkably safe.

A small-bore plastic tube is inserted into an artery — usually at the front of the elbow. It is guided up into the aorta, through the aortic valve and into the heart. Pressures in two of the cardiac chambers can be measured. At appropriate times, a radio-opaque material — a substance that shows up on X-rays — is injected into the heart or into the blood vessels that supply oxygen to the cardiac muscle. X-ray movies are then obtained. The films show the direction and strength of bloodflow, as well as the patency (openness) of the coronary arteries. Based on these findings, a specialist can discover many cardiac abnormalities and can determine whether surgery is indicated to correct those abnormalities.

A stress test is not an invasive procedure. It is a cardiogram obtained during exercise, while the patient walks or jogs on a treadmill. Sometimes radioisotope material is injected during the test in order to measure certain aspects of cardiac function. When a patient is exercising, the heart requires more oxygen. Therefore, a stress test is a useful method of determining how efficiently the coronary arteries supply blood to heart muscle. Unlike a cardiac catheterization, the stress test does not indicate the location of circulatory abnomalities; it gives information of a more general nature.

Both a catheterization and a stress test are relatively safe methods of evaluating heart disease. Each gives important measurements of heart function.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is any progress being made in the research on treatment or a cure for emphysema?

DEAR READER — Although I cannot detail specific research advances being made in the study of emphysema, I can assure you that research is being carried out in many medical centers. A great deal is already known about the disease. Fundamentally, it consists of a loss of the tiny, feathery, terminal air sacs in the lungs; this results in difficulty taking up oxygen and exhaling carbon dioxide.

Emphysema can be inherited. It is common in some lung conditions, particularly a pulmonary disorder known as alpha-1 anti-trypsine deficiency. Cigarette smoking causes emphysema, as can certain forms of chronic air pollution and industrial exposure. It can occur with age.

The condition is treatable, but not curable, with medicine, oxygen, high fluid intake and aggressive therapy (such as antibiotics, postural drainage and special breathing exercises) for bronchitis and lung infection. Obviously, the best treatment is avoidance of air pollution, particularly tobacco smoke. Many adults could avoid emphysema if they simply stopped smoking cigarettes.

Alaska's Dogsleds Nowadays Come With Four-Wheel Drive

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was astonished by your reply to "Annoyed Canadian." It is apparent that many people have misconceptions about Alaska.

As congressman for all Alaska, I can assure you that we, too, have "beautiful summers, dress like most Americans (we are Americans), and live in houses just like you do." While some in the "bush" or outlying areas may use dogsleds for travel, most people in Alaska use cars, planes and boats as do those in the "lower 48."

I've enclosed a travel guide to give you a better idea of what our state is like. Better yet, do come to the Great Land and see for yourself. Best regards,

DON YOUNG, CONGRESSMAN
FOR ALL ALASKA

DEAR REP. YOUNG: Thank you for your gracious letter. I don't know where my head was when I told a reader that he must have been thinking of Alaska when he mistakenly assumed that all Canadians lived in igloos, traveled by dogsled and dressed like lumberjacks.

I know that you have beautiful warm summers, and I was also aware that your annual dogsled races had been recently canceled, due to "no snow."

Please forgive my colossal goof. I really knew better.

However, my Alaskan gaffe brought me an unexpected bonus. Robert Atwood, editor and publisher of The Anchorage Times, invited me to Anchorage to see the truth firsthand.

I also received the following editorial from the Juneau Empire:

DEAR ABBY: I would have written you sooner, but I didn't get my newspaper until just today. Three different kids tried to deliver papers this week, but they all got ate up by polar bears. The fourth kid finally made it through to my igloo by riding on a moose, and then the moose yelled "Timber!" and chopped up those polar bears with a chain saw.

Abby, you're probably surprised that us up here can even read a newspaper. Well, a handful of us can. We sit around and read your column to the others while they scratch their heads with old eagle claws they dug out of the snow.

And our sled dogs listen, too. Those dogs have long been our best friends, and they're the only way we can get from igloo to igloo. Really great dogs like Blazer and Celica and Bronco and Subaru and 1966-Chevy-Needs-Work-Runs-Good.

There are some folks who say people up here sometimes even wear Nike shoes instead of lumberjack boots. Well, let me tell you, we wear those funny little sneakers to stay ahead of the wolves when we run down the trail to the outhouse.

People say we have real summers, too. That's a lie told by some of our good neighbors to the south. We get all our sled dogs to haul away the snow whenever those tourists from California show up in July and ask us about the exchange rate on Alaska money.

I'm writing you in desperation, Abby, to make sure schools Down There teach your children about us right.

You're probably surprised any of us can even write a letter. Well, one or two of us can. I tried to write you in bear blood on a musk ox chip, but I figured you might think that's something they do in Ontario.

So I gave up and just yelled, "Mush!" at my faithful IBM-PC with enhanced color display.

Your Birthday

March 26, 1986

What you have already begun is going to work out well for you in the near future. Don't start making changes just for the sake of change.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It will prove unwise to tell any tall tales today because what you say will have to be verified later. Speak sincerely without any embellishments. Major changes are ahead for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's important today to be able to distinguish between wishful thinking and genuine optimism. Unrealistic daydreams won't be fulfilled.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A well-intended friend's tips on how to make extra money could amount to a big zero today. Don't plunge into any schemes without thoroughly investigating.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is a day where you are going to be judged by the company you keep. Be sure to select companions who'll enhance your reputation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone you once promised to help, but didn't, may make a similar promise to you today. This person won't follow through either.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be on guard today because you might have to deal with someone who likes to manipulate people to his advantage. Don't be one of his puppets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could be too easily influenced by others for your own good today. If an important decision is required, think for yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are endowed with exceptionally fine powers of concentration, but today they might not be up to par. Your work will reflect this.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A shopping excursion could turn out to be rather expensive for you today if you yield to your impulses for instant gratification. Be a disciplined spender.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The spirit may be willing but the flesh could be weak. Don't let others down by failing to do what you told them you would.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's not in your best interests to mix socially today with someone who has deceived you in the past. This person's character hasn't altered.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Keep a close eye on your possessions today if you get involved with strangers. Someone in the pack might not be too honest.

Library information given

Mitchell has been with the library for two years. The library has a philosophy of "pure service," serving everyone equally.

A project of the library was the balloon launch. The balloon found the furtherest distance away held the name of Stargazer member, Kaye Clawson and son, Chris.

Children 14-years-old can get a library card without parents signature and there is no limit on the number of books that can be checked out at one time.

The Scurry County Library keeps one year back issues of magazines and on microfilm are magazines that date back to 1958.

Texas is divided into 10 districts with Abilene the head of Snyder's library. If a certain book is needed, Abilene is contacted. Abilene can then contact the other districts to locate the book. If one is not found they go interstate.

Abilene has 16 mm film that teachers use in story or movie time. Nurseries use the film for story time. Film strips with cassette tapes and slide pictures are also used. The viewing of these films is free and over 8000 viewed them last year, mostly students.

The library has large print books that come from Abilene. The books are rotated at the Senior Center.

The library will be getting a Apple II computer in the future. This will be available to the public.

Scurry County Library contains a variety of information. Included are video cassette collection for VCR, new filing system, reference books (most up-to-date), genealogy (a large selection with parts on microfilm), young adult and biographys.

Loel Forrest presented a program on genealogy and the points needed to trace your family tree. Start at home with your parents, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, grandparents or friends. Talk to the older generation. When stories are passed down, tape them if possible. Write down the name of the book, page and all census that you might need to refer back to.

The library is the "Peoples College University for Learning."

Attending were three members. The next meeting will be April 19 at Snyder National Bank Community Room with the program of "cleaning made easier."

Games and safety for visiting children

Honey Do Extension Homemakers Club held its regular monthly meeting on March 19 in the home of Earline Gray at 2219 41st St.

The program topic was "Little Visitors in Your Home" presented by Kathy Roberts, extension agent.

Roberts suggested ways to entertain children in your home. A handout sheet was given on what activities children of different ages could do to stay occupied. Safety was stressed with examples of getting cords out of the childrens path or reach and covering all electrical outlets.

The business meeting was conducted with plans made for the members to participate in. Included are the 1986 Healthfest to be held on May 10 at the Coliseum and members are to start collecting recipes for a club cookbook.

Members participated in a bake sale on March 22 at Furr's and Everybody's. A contribution was made to the Aubry Russell Scholarship Fund. The scholarship supports a student from the district majoring in home economics at Texas Tech University or Lubbock Christian College.

In honor the the Texas sesquicentennial, the club discussed the new sesquicentennial stamp and an article was read concerning the stamp.

Hostess for the meeting was Earline Gray. Members present were Virginia Fogle, Earline Gray, Mary Vaughn, Texa Jones, Shirley Bullard and Kathy Roberts. Guests attending were Francis Suttle and Deidri Gray.

Seven-level stretch

By James Jacoby

If there is a common uncontrollable urge infecting bridge players the world over, it is the avid desire to bid a grand slam when only 12 sure tricks can be counted. The prevailing view is that the 13th trick will surely appear somehow someway. If you happen to be playing in a money stakes game, remember that going down in a grand slam means you lose the bonus for making the small slam as well as the game bonus, so there is a case to be made for conservatism. Today's declarer was of the liberal mold, and wild horses could not have kept him from bidding the grand slam.

The lesson in making the grand slam is one of proper timing and of conserving entries. As is so often the case, trumps cannot be drawn immediately, because dummy's spade 10 is a crucial card that must be utilized at the proper moment. Declarer must win the heart king and immediately play A-K of diamonds. If one of those high diamonds is trumped by an opponent, too bad. The grand slam would never have made.

Then the third diamond is trumped. Dummy is re-entered with the spade 10 and another diamond is ruffed. That makes dummy's last diamond a winner. Trumps can now be drawn and the ace of hearts remains in the North hand as an entry to the winning diamond. Of course you might have played differently and, if opponents' diamonds were 3-3, still have made your contract, but not with today's deal.

Madonna clashes with press

LONDON (AP) — Former Beatle George Harrison, defending pop star Madonna in her continuing battles with the news media, says some members of the British press are "a bunch of animals."

Harrison, who is producing the movie "Shanghai Surprise," made his comment Thursday at a news conference attended by Madonna, who is in the movie, along with her husband, Sean Penn.

Madonna and Penn have clashed with photographers several times since they arrived in London last month.

"I have nothing to apologize for," Madonna said. "I never imagined success could be like this."

Harrison, co-producer of Hand-Made films, who said this was his first news conference since 1974, called some reporters "a bunch of animals."

Local officials attend state clerks' meeting

COLLEGE STATION — Scurry County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth and 132nd District Clerk Polly Underwood joined some 450 other officials for the 14th annual County and District Clerks' Seminar. Using the theme "Informational — Not Political," the seminar was held Tuesday through Thursday at Texas A&M University.

"During an election year, we're interested in efficiently carrying out our job of conducting elections," said Ainsworth. "That means staying abreast of current information about election codes and responsibilities rather than political rhetoric."

Underwood added, "Conferences such as this give us an advantage in providing the best public services possible while minimizing the burden on local taxpayers. With federal and state governments cutting back on funds for local governments, county officials have to be more resourceful in making ends meet."

Robert Aldemeyer of Kenton County, Ky., president of the National Association of Counties, and Texas Secretary of State Myra McDaniel addressed the group during the conference. Major discussions included election codes, probate law, child support enforcement, records management and juvenile law.

The annual seminar is one of the educational programs sponsored by the V.G. Young Institute of County Government, a part of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The institute provides a forum of mutual support for county officials, the extension staff and various government, academic and business leaders in Texas.

Texas delegation supports retaliation

DALLAS (AP) — Texas senators and congressmen were unanimous in their support Monday of President Reagan and the Defense Department for military retaliation against Libya.

The legislators used words such as "pirates, loud mouths and bully" in reacting to Libyan moves against U.S. ships and planes operating in the Gulf of Sidra that led to Monday's retaliatory raids against some patrol boats in the gulf and some missile batteries on the Libyan shore.

"(Libyan leader Moammar) Khadafy normally attacks innocent civilians in aiports. Today, he attacked the U.S. Navy," U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said.

"I think our reprisal was totally justified," Gramm told The Dallas Morning News. "We can't let pirates go around telling us we can't operate in the Mediterranean Sea."

Lawyers are hard to find

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The same department whose task it is to execute Texas Death Row inmate Johnny Penry is now in the peculiar position of trying to save his life.

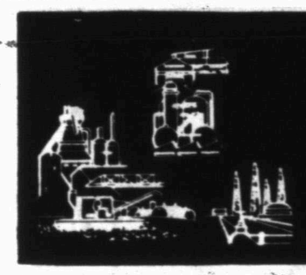

When Penry couldn't get an attorney who would seek an appeal without pay, the Texas Department of Corrections' Staff Counsel for Inmates reluctantly agreed to take on his case.

It will be the first time that TDC attorneys will seek a stay for a death row convict. But it may not be the last, now that finding lawyers to work for free is getting more and more difficult.

Penry, an illiterate, got no help from the American Civil Liberties Union or the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, two national groups that specialize in finding volunteers to represent the destitute among the nation's 1,700 death row inmates.

Helen Gros, executive director of the Houston ACLU chapter, said it has become impossible to find free legal help. It costs more than $100,000 to appeal a stay to the U.S. Supreme Court, she said.

"It's very difficult to find help because nobody wants to get involved in these cases," said Carolyn Garcia, who represents about 30 death row inmates.

Cancer therapy works on cells

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — In a process a bit like making a juvenile delinquent grow up to become a responsible citizen, researchers are experimenting with turning cancerous, immature body cells into noncancerous adults.

If the approach works, it might be useful in conjunction with surgery and standard chemotherapy, which seeks to kill cancer cells rather than mending their ways, said Dr. Paul Marks, president of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City.

Research has already shown people can tolerate one maturation drug without side effects, and another study is just starting to see if the substance works in people as it has in the laboratory, Marks told a science writers seminar sponsored by the American Cancer Society on Monday.

The approach is based on the idea that many kinds of cancer involve cells that are blocked from leaving an immature stage of development, he said. As such, they rapidly divide and don't take on the characteristic specialization of mature cells.

For example, some laboratory experiments have used mouse leukemia cells that were blocked by a virus on their way to becoming mature red blood cells. Most human cells have reached the mature state, but immature cells stand by to replace them as they wear out, Marks said.

Indecision by OPEC means lower prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil prices may level off in the $10- to $12-a-barrel range, at least until OPEC devises a way to restrain production and reduce the world oil glut — and that could take years, industry analysts say.

Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil ministers broke off a nine-day attempt at that goal Monday, triggering a nosedive in prices of crude and refined products.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed at $12.13, down from Friday's $13.94 close, but up from the low of $11 a barrel earlier Monday.

April contracts for unleaded gasoline slid from Friday's close of 44 cents a gallon to 40 cents; regular gas dropped to 39.55 cents from 44.24 cents; and heating oil closed at 47.69 cents, down more than a nickel from Friday's 52.83 close.

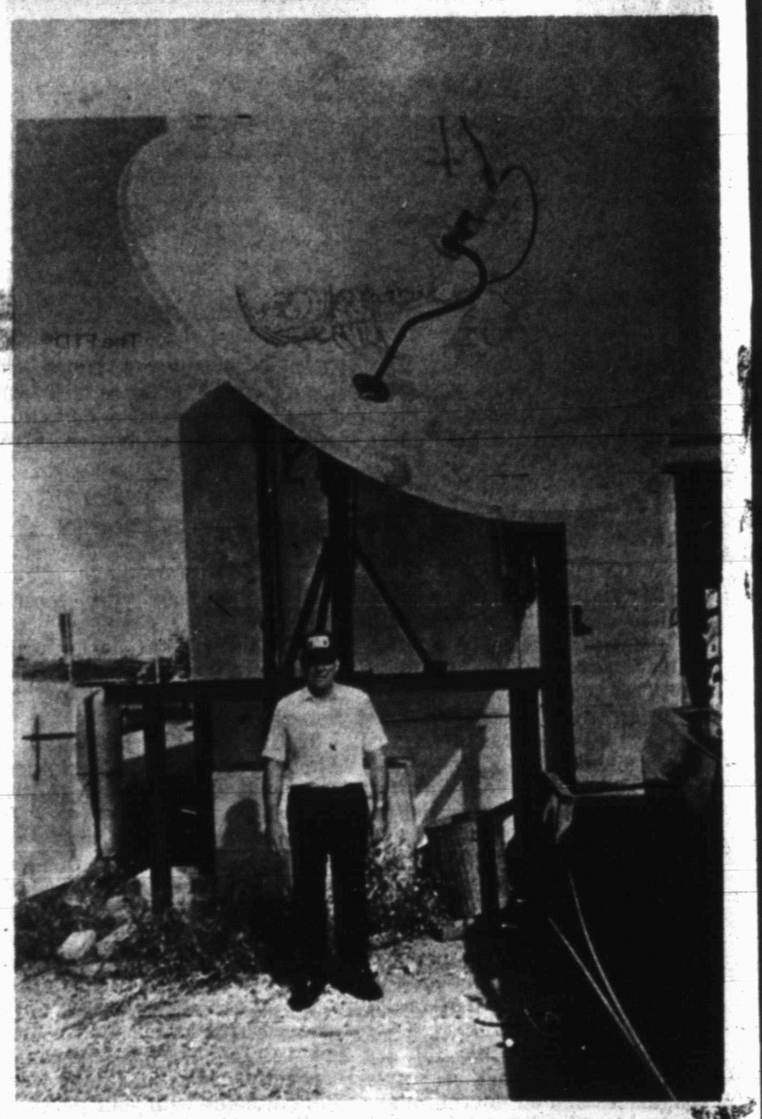

Analysts said that if crude oil prices fell below $10 to $12 a barrel, demand would eventually force those prices back up.

At the end of their Geneva conference, the OPEC ministers said they would meet again April 15.

In Los Angeles, the chairman of Chevron Corp., George Keller, predicted OPEC "will reach some sort of agreement on prices" by summer, and that crude would cost about $20 per barrel by year-end.

Several analysts, however, expressed doubt that an early resolution of the issue was likely.

"We could have $11, $12 oil for 1986 and 1987 — perhaps into 1988," said economist John Lichtblau, head of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation in New York.

"'How could ANYONE parlay $5,700 a year into $10 billion in 20 years?' WISE INVESTMENTS!"

Hance intensifies criticism

HOUSTON (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, insisting his comments weren't personal, has gone after Bill Clements again with reminders that the former governor once called Texas legislators a "bunch of idiots."

Hance, stumping for the GOP nomination for governor, added Monday that his opponent once dismissed the comments of a Mexican immigration expert as those of "just another Mexican with an opinion."

"It's certainly nothing personal," Hance assured Clements before launching his latest attack in the increasingly acrid campaign. "I have the utmost respect for Bill Clements."

Clements offered no reply to Hance's comments.

"I'm not going to respond to anything in that nature because that gives a sense of legitimacy to it and a sense of importance to it that, in my judgment, just doesn't exist," he said.

Besides, Clements said, Hance's statements "are out of context" and "absurd."

Hance, Clements and Rep. Tom Loeffler, who are squaring off against each other in the May 3 primary, shared the same platform three times Monday in Houston.

For his part, Loeffler tried to steer clear of the Hance-Clements fray and chose instead to sketch the details of a new law-and-order plank he is adding to his campaign.

Loeffler said he would "cross the Rio Grande to work with the governors of the states of Mexico to control this problem on both sides of the border."

"There is a war being waged today in Texas, affecting every citizen and the very future of our state. I'm talking about the war against crime, and, unfortunately, it's a war we are losing," he said.

Meanwhile, two Texas Supreme Court candidates are taking turns disputing each other's charges.

Associate Justice Raul Gonzalez and challenger Jay Gibson came close to name-calling Monday as they accused each other of desperate campaign tactics.

Gibson, an Odessa attorney who served three terms in the Texas House, told a Capitol news conference that Gonzalez was being financed "lock, stock and barrel by the insurance company lawyers and their clients."

Gonzalez replied that Gibson' charges were nothing but "a loose interpretation of Grimm's fairy tales — Mr. Gibson is desperate."

Both are Democrats with two other candidates in the primary race for the Place 4 nomination.

In spite of a 1983-84 campaign against "spiritual pollution," aimd partly at erasing foreign influence in China, Western dress has gained in popularity.

World bank said considering loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexico, Argentina and other Latin American nations would be the recipients of hundreds of millions of dollars in new loans in a program under consideration by the World Bank.

A bank spokesman said Monday night that the bank's board of directors would consider the major loan package in the next few weeks.

"They're the first in a series, the first of a new initiative," the spokesman, Peter Riddleberger, said of the loans. "But they haven't been confirmed. They're not absolutely assured."

The loans are part of a $1.5 billion package for Latin America, which officials expect will be approved before April, The New York Times said in today's editions. The package would be the largest commitment ever to Latin America in such a brief period, the newspaper said.

The loan agenda, contained in World Bank documents, includes $500 million to Mexico to assist in trade liberalization and $400 million for reconstruction needed after last year's devastating earthquake, the newspaper said.

Interest rates are down sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell sharply in Monday's auction, with the rate on six-month bills dropping to the lowest level since 1977.

The Treasury Department sold $6.8 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 6.36 percent, down from 6.52 percent last week. Another $6.8 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 6.43 percent, down from 6.55 percent last week.

The rates were the lowest since three-month bills averaged 6.32 percent on May 15, 1978, and six-month bills sold for 6.42 percent on Dec. 30, 1977.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors.

Bingo declining source of income

By The Associated Press

The archbishop of New York is thinking about abolishing bingo in the nation's richest Roman Catholic diocese, but the game has its defenders across the country as a vital source of funds and a social outlet for members.

"It's a good pastime for the people, especially the old people. They look forward to it," the Rev. Joseph Gillespie of St. Gregory's Church in Phoenix, Ariz., said Monday. "It doesn't cost too much money."

Cardinal John J. O'Connor, however, complained to a group of priests in New York recently that bingo "orients a parish to money-raising rather than the spiritual," according to the archdiocese newspaper, Catholic New York.

Bingo has been debated within the church for years, and there are wide variations in church policies. Some parishes see it as a necessary, painless way of raising funds, others reject it as gambling and feel that supporting the church should be a sacrifice, not an amusement.

The Rev. Peter Finn, a spokesman for the New York archdiocese, said O'Connor was disturbed after learning that some parishes sponsor as many as four games a week.

The archbishop suggested that tithing — pledging 10 percent of a member's income to the church — would be a "dignified substitute" for bingo. Finn said there are no formal plans to phase out bingo or institute tithing.

Special fundraising, including bingo, bazaars and other events, raised $11.1 million for the archdiocese in 1983-84, the most recent fiscal year on record, he said. He did not know how much of that came from bingo.

Oil, timber industries may keep tax breaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The oil and timber industries, which would lose a big chunk of their special tax breaks under President Reagan's tax-overhaul proposal, are one step closer to retaining them as part of the plan being developed by the Senate Finance Committee.

The panel, whose membership is heavy with lawmakers from oil and timber states, agreed tentatively Monday to keep provisions in the tax law that were designed to help those industries, as well as provisions that benefit mining and farming.

However, that decision, which came without a vote or consideration of any amendment, is subject to change. Several members said they want to offer changes later.

Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., complained that retaining those special tax benefits was simply shifting the burden to others.

"That money's going to have to come from someplace else" to pay for the tax-rate reduction and higher personal exemption promised in the bill, he said.

The tentative decision on the oil and gas provisions also killed the tax credit of up to $300 that had been allowed taxpayers as an incentive to insulate or otherwise increase the energy efficiency of their homes. The credit died last Dec. 31. Although there is some sentiment for renewing it, Reagan wants to let it die and the House already has voted to do that.

Crash landing after flying start

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The telecast of the 58th annual Motion Picture Academy Awards on ABC got off to a flying start, but it crash-landed before long.

The opening was intriguing: a bevy of beauties singing and dancing on the wings of an airplane in a musical takeoff of "Flying Down to Rio."

The trouble was they kept on singing and dancing for the next two hours.

Ticket charge leads to third inquiry at UT in year's time

AUSTIN (AP) - A report that University of Texas football players sold complimentary tickets has led to the third inquiry into the Longhorn football program in the past year.

The Austin American-Statesman reported Monday that an investigation last spring examined the use of money raised at summer barbecues and golf tournaments during Fred Akers' nine years as coach but turned up nothing wrong.

The second probe involved a car lease signed by running back Edwin Simmons and also failed to uncover any wrongdoing, according to university officials.

DeLoss Dodds, the men's athletics director at Texas, said the university began looking into purported ticket sales by players last week after it learned that The Dallas Morning News planned a story on the subject.

The copyright story Sunday said 24 Longhorn football players had sold their complimentary tickets for up to $600 a ticket, and that some players netted as much as $4,000 a year from ticket sales.

All three investigations have been conducted by lawyers with ties to the school: John Fainter, a former secretary of state under Gov. Mark White who received undergraduate and law degrees from Texas, led the first inquiry; Knox Nunnally, a former end for the school's football team who now practices law in Houston, led the other two.

The barbecues from the early 1970s until 1981 were held to raise money to supplement the salaries of assistant coaches, the American-Statesman said. Texas stopped the events after the National Collegiate Athletic Association prohibited them.

Starting in 1983, the newspaper said, Akers organized golf tournaments in several Texas cities to raise money to underwrite his weekly television show in the fall.

Steve Ross, a Texas publicist who hosts the Akers show, said the 12 shows each year cost at least $300,000. Akers said he made a profit from the show last season but would not say how much.

Dodds said Fainter was hired to look into how money from the fund-raising events were used, and Fainter's report indicated no problems.

"We don't have anything to hide," Akers said.

Ron Brown, UT's vice president for student affairs, said the school administration had received "scattered allegations of suggested improprieties on Coach Akers' part."

He said Fainter's report indicated that the "allegations are not anything that would in any way justify disciplinary action on our part and on the part of the NCAA."

The investigation into the fund-raisers stemmed from an annual barbecue picnic that Louis Pearce, a Texas booster from Houston, had sponsored at his ranch for years. Pearce discontinued it after 1981.

Former assistants and Texas alumni have said that thousands attended the barbecues at a cost of $10 a person. Akers said the money went to his assistants. "We're talking about $15,000 or less," he said.

ABC hatchet cuts Namath; O.J. moved to college ball

NEW YORK (AP) - Joe Namath's career as a football analyst at ABC is over.

Namath, the Hall of Fame quarterback with the New York Jets who joined Monday Night Football as an analyst last year, has been dismissed by ABC, a network source said early today.

Ironically, Namath's first telecast for ABC was last summer on the day he was inducted into the Hall.

Capital Cities, which now owns ABC and is in the midst of cost-cutting measures, bought out Namath's contract for "less than $1 million but more than $800,000," said the source, who asked not to be named. In 1985, Namath signed a two-year contract worth approximately $1 million a year.

The release of Namath was not the only change ABC made in its Monday Night Football lineup.

O.J. Simpson was offered a position as analyst on college football and, the source said, will accept it. Frank Gifford, who did the play-by-play on the series every year since 1971 - Keith Jackson handled those duties in the series' debut year of 1970 - has been offered the analysis spot on Monday Night Football.

Al Michaels, currently ABC's top baseball announcer, who also does play-by-play on some college football games, will take over as the NFL play-by-play announcer for the network.

Simpson, who worked three years on Monday Night Football, had been contacted by CBS and NBC about working NFL games. But, instead of leaving ABC, the source said he will join Jackson on CFA telecasts, replacing Frank Broyles.

Only Broyles could be reached for comment and the athletic director at Arkansas told USA Today:

"The reorganization by the new owners at ABC is understandable. A new broom sweeps clean."

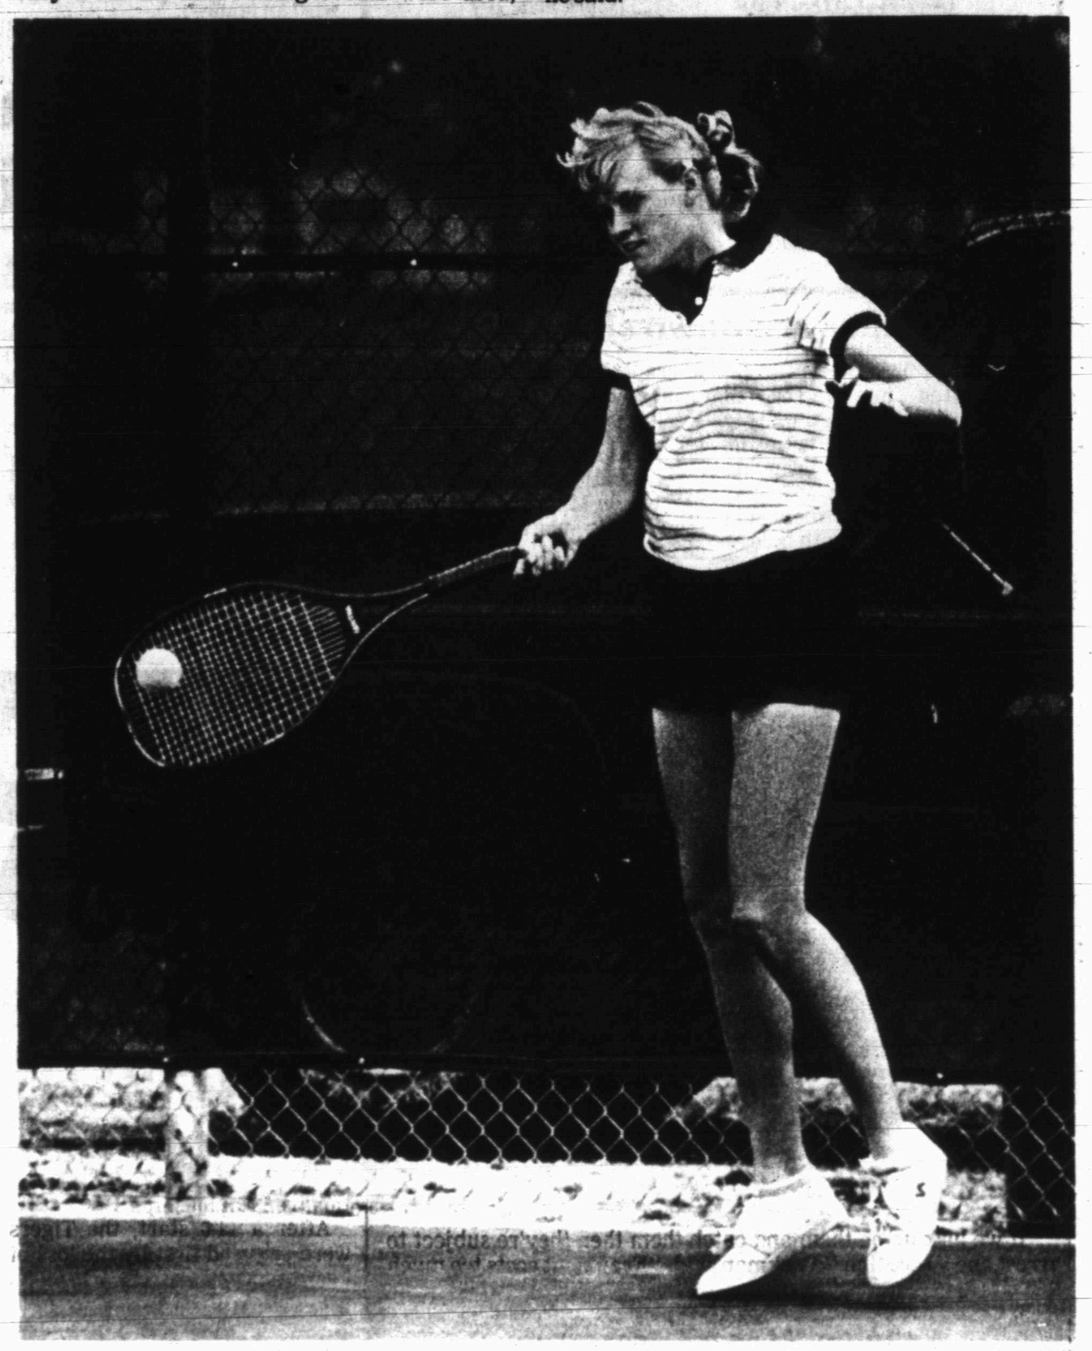

Though it was not known if Gifford would accept the switch in assignments, he did begin his football broadcasting career as a color analyst at CBS.

Though Monday Night Football's ratings soared last year, the network's sports operations lost between $30 million and $50 million a year. Capital Cities apparently felt Namath and Simpson had nothing to do with those improved ratings.

ABC is planning to go with only two announcers for Monday Night Football for the first time. Ever since the series began, with Jackson, Howard Cosell and Don Meredith in the booth, there have been three voices doing the games.

ABC also is making some announcing changes on its baseball telecasts, with Jackson returning to Monday night games. He will handle backup contests, with Michaels doing the main telecasts.

It has also been reported New York Mets anpoucer Tim McCarver will join the ABC "A" team for Monday night baseball telecasts.

Agency calls for ban of lead shot in water fowl hunting by 1991

By BILL SCHULZ
Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. (AP) - The organization that represents game management agencies in all 50 states on Sunday night called for a complete ban against the use of lead shot in water fowl hunting by the 1991 season.

The resolution, which is not binding, was approved 27-9 by the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies at its general business meeting. The group's members include fish and wildlife biologists across the country.

"It's a fresh position for us," said Jack Berryman, the association's executive vice president.

Lead shot is blamed for poisoning millions of water fowl each year. The birds die from lead poisoning after they are wounded by lead shot or after they eat the spent shot while feeding on the bottoms of ponds and marshes.

The non-toxic alternative to lead shot are shotgun shells loaded with steel pellets. Hunters and gun-owners' groups opposed to this alternative contend it would cripple more fowl than does lead shot because of the different ballistics of steel, including its lighter weight.

The resolution sets standards for states to begin phasing in the ban against lead shot in 1987.

"This is a position that reflects the opinion of the association," Berryman said. He said it would be up to state agencies to carry out the resolution.

The National Wildlife Federation is seeking a court-ordered ban against lead shot in water fowl hunting. The federation has asked the U.S. District Court in Sacramento to order the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to impose a ban on lead shot by the 1987 season.

Fish and Wildlife Service criteria force agencies to prove a need for a ban before one can be imposed, Berryman said. He said the resolution would seek to place the burden of proof on the states to show there is no need for non-toxic shot.

Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation, called the association's resolution a "pretty courageous statement."

"Now it will put more pressure on the Fish and Wildlife Service to negotiate an end to our lawsuit," Hair said.

The federation's lawsuit seeks a ban based on the Endangered Species Act. The federation contends that lead shot promotes the death of eagles because they may eat water fowl poisoned by lead shot. Eagles are protected by the Endangered Species Act.

The nine against the resolution were Alabama, Alaska, California, Georgia, Illinois, Louisiana, North Carolina, Texas and Washington Department of Game. Washington is among the states represented by two state agencies in the association.

X-rays prove negative...

Sampson apparently all right

BOSTON (AP) - Ralph Sampson walked out of a hospital early today with a sore back and a stiff neck four hours after a doctor raised the possibility that Houston's All-Star center had broken his back.

"I feel pretty good," Sampson said as he left Massachusetts General Hospital where X-rays on his head, neck and back were negative. "We'll take a couple of days and get the stiffness out, get the soreness out."

NCAA, NIT, NBA basketball news on following page

The 7-foot-4 Sampson was injured Monday night with 2:19 left in the second quarter of Boston's 114-107 NBA victory over the Rockets.

While jumping for an offensive rebound, he fell backward and hit his head and back on the floor without apparent hard contact from any other players. He initially lost feeling and motion in his right leg, Celtics' team physician Thomas Silva said through club spokesman Jeff Twiss.

He was carried off the court on a stretcher.

A half hour later, he was taken on another stretcher out of Boston's locker room and into an ambulance.

Soon after, Twiss quoted Silva as saying there was "a possibility of a mid-back fracture."

But an examination at the hospital showed the injury wasn't as serious as first thought.

"I have a sore back and a stiff neck," Sapson, who has played in all 72 of Houston's games this season, said as he left the hospital for the team's hotel.

Houston trainer Dick Vandervoort, who accompanied Sampson to the hospital, said the earlier loss of feeling and motion "was just from the jar and the shock. ... He has the feeling back in his leg."

He said Sampson never lost consciousness.

Asked whether Sampson's playing status would be determined on a day-to-day basis, Vandervoort said, "We'll see how he feels. We don't play (Tuesday)."

Houston's next game is Wednesday night at Indiana.

Rockets' Coach Bill Fitch, who coached the Celtics from 1979 to the end of the 1982-83 season, said the Sampson incident reminded him of the demolition several years ago of the Hotel Madison, down the street from Boston Garden.

"When they tore down the hotel over here, that was the last time I saw something fall that hard," he said.

Boston forward Scott Wedman, who was standing beside Sampson when he fell, said, "It seemed like he tried to take a shot while he was falling down."

"He went up for a two-handed rebound," said Houston forward Robert Reid. "He seemed to skid on the floor.

"He was scared," Reid added. "The only thing he was saying was, 'Oh, my God. Oh, my God.'"

Sampson had been the most dominating player in Monday night's game before being hurt. He had scored 17 points and had five rebounds in 22 minutes and left with the Rockets leading 53-51. They trailed 61-57 at halftime.

Duke, Kansas in showdown to reach NCAA title match

by The Associated Press

One of the reasons 36-2 Duke is ranked No. 1 and 35-3 Kansas No. 2 heading into Saturday's NCAA semifinal showdown in Dallas is because when they met back in December, Duke came out No. 1 and Kansas No. 2.

"We're a much better team, but so are they," says Danny Manning, Kansas' 6-foot-11 sophomore and Player of the Year in the Big Eight Conference.

And, adds the hero of Kansas' 75-67 victory over North Carolina State in the Midwest Regional final, the Jayhawks will lose again to the Atlantic Coast Conference champions - No. 7 Louisville faces LSU in the first semifinal - if they play with the same lack of intensity as they did in the earlier game.

"It was like they wanted to win more than we did," Manning said, recalling the championship game of the Big Apple NIT Tournament. "The thing I remember about that game is all the loose balls we didn't get and all the rebounds they got and we didn't get. They have a great team and they beat us, but we really weren't very aggressive that night."

Senior forward Ron Kellogg also has bitter memories of that game.

"I remember the man I was guarding, David Henderson, scoring 30 points against us," he said. "It's the most points anybody ever scored against me. He was making his first start of the year and I didn't have any idea of what to expect.

"Coach (Larry) Brown told me to be careful because he was a tough player. He was. He penetrated hard to the basket and went right past me. That's one of the things we're going to have to correct."

Brown agreed that the Jayhawks have improved.

"I know as a coach I'm more comfortable with this team today than back in December," he said. "I want the kids to be proud of what they accomplished in getting to the Final Four. But I don't want them to be content. Not yet. We still have a goal of a national championship. That's within our grasp."

And it is certainly within Duke's grasp, even though Coach Mike Krzyzewski doesn't necessarily agree with the Blue Devils' role as favorite.

"I think we're Cinderella. The dance is just longer," Krzyzewski said.

But don't get the idea that Duke lacks for confidence. Since the Blue Devils became No. 1 in the Associated Press poll on Feb. 25, the college basketball world has been waiting for them to stumble.

"Teams come into games thinking they can beat us," Krzyzewski said. " 'We match up well with Duke.' I've heard that for 38 games."

Of course, if the Blue Devils don't play tough defense, forget it.

"I've given them a lot of freedom on offense, but we're strict on defense," Krzyzewski said. "On defense, they are supposed to be at a proper place at a proper time. If they don't, we get beat."

Unranked LSU is the surprise team of the Final Four, having knocked off Purdue, Memphis State, Georgia Tech and Kentucky to get to Dallas. A national championship will come as no surprise to senior forward Don Redden.

"Everybody is hungry now," said Redden, who scored 27 points against Georgia Tech and 15 against Kentucky in the Southeast Regional. "Once we get five players clicking at the same time, we should win the national championship."

After a 14-0 start, the Tigers were crippled first by the loss of leading scorer Nikita Wilson to grades and then by an outbreak of chicken pox that weakened John Williams and precipitated a string of three defeats in five days.

Rolls-Royce may buy tickets to Final Four

DALLAS (AP) - Basketball fans are so eager to get tickets to the NCAA Final Four tournament this weekend that they're willing to trade cash, trips and even a used Rolls-Royce.

Prices vary from $650 for so-so seats to $1,500 for more prime seats in the lower level, agents said. And folks are eager to pay those prices for tickets to the basketball championship at Dallas' Reunion Arena.

"We buy them one minute and we sell them the next," said Spectrum Tickets' Bob Zidell, a former stockbroker who added that the atmosphere at his agency was as charged as at a commodities exchange.

He said phones rang constantly Monday with inquiries from prospective ticket sellers as well as buyers.

"It's big," said Scott Daima of Texas Tickets. "We're selling as many as we can get our hands on."

Agents said the volume of tickets sold is small, about about 20 to 30 sales a day, because agencies must purchase the tickets before they can sell them.

The $46 general tickets, distributed by lottery, sold out several months ago, said Zidell, who describes himself as a "ticket broker" pricing his commodity by the laws of supply and demand.

Zidell said he has been offered free trips to London, Hawaii and Vail, Colo., in return for seats.

"We're considering dealing with a Fort Worth gentleman who's considering trading his used Rolls-Royce," Zidell said. He said the car, worth about $12,000, was offered in return for several tickets.

Ticket scalping, or selling tickets for more than their face value, is prohibited on city property, but Reunion Arena manager Jack Beckman said he doesn't have enough people to enforce the law.

"If we lurk up on them and catch them then they're subject to arrest and a $200 fine," Beckman said. "Frankly it costs too much to do it."

He said he expects to see scalpers trying to buy tickets Saturday morning and after the games trying to buy tickets from fans whose team will not be playing in the Monday night final game.

Muscle matchup in NIT final pits Ohio State and Wyoming

NEW YORK (AP) - Ohio State and Wyoming, who used superior size and strength to win in the semifinals, won't have that luxury again when they meet for the championship of the 49th National Invitation Tournament.

The Buckeyes, led by lame-duck Coach Eldon Miller, got an overpowering performance from 7-foot forward Brad Sellers in a 79-66 victory Monday night over Louisiana Tech, which had no one taller than 6-8.

On Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden, Ohio State will face Wyoming, which ousted Florida 67-58 with strong inside play from sophomores Fennis Dembo and Eric Leckner. Florida's tallest player was 6-7 Kenny McClary.

Sellers, who had 23 points, 13 rebounds and nine blocked shots, equaling the NIT shot-blocking record set in 1980 by Virginia's Ralph Sampson, said he expected a physical meeting with the Cowboys.

"They're a big, strong team, similar to our Big 10 competition I faced," Sellers said of Wyoming. "It should be a good game."

Dembo, not a tall forward at 6-4 but boasting big shoulders and a barrel chest, scored 23 points and Leckner, a 6-11 center, added 19 points and 12 rebounds as the Cowboys rallied from a 12-point first-half deficit against the Gators.

"Our strength and size paid off for us," said Dembo, who was 10-for-15 from the field, with nearly all of his shots inside.

"We used our strength," Wyoming Coach Jim Brandenburg said. "We gutted it up in the second half and played them a little tighter."

Florida, 19-13, led 25-13 at the 8:51 mark of the first half as Joe Lawrence hit six consecutive shots from long range, shell-shocking Wyoming, now 24-11.

Sampson-less Rockets fall to Boston Celtics, 114-107

by The Associated Press

It was a bad night all around for the Houston Rockets, who lost a big game and got a big scare at Boston Garden.

"There was nothing Ralph could do to stop that fall, that's what was so scary about it," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said Monday night following a 114-107 NBA loss to the Boston Celtics that cost him the services of 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson for an indefinite period.

Sampson was carried off on a stretcher after falling late in the first half while going for a rebound. He was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, where head, neck, leg and back X-rays proved negative.

"I tend to look away at times like that," Celtics center Bill Walton said of the moment Sampson was taken off the court on a stretcher. "These type of things tend to cast a pallor over the game."

The Celtics won their eighth straight game and increased their club record for consecutive home victories to 24, three shy of the single-season league mark set by the Minneapolis Lakers 36 years ago.

The defeat reduced first-place Houston's lead to one game over Denver in the Midwest Division.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Lakers clinched their seventh straight Western Conference title with a 124-102 victory over the San Antonio Spurs. In other NBA games, it was Washington 100, Philadelphia 93; Dallas 126, Indiana 120, and Utah 116, Seattle 108.

Lakers 124, Spurs 102

Kareem-Abdul Jabbar scored 20 points to lead the Lakers, who had clinched a tie for the conference title earlier Monday night when the Rockets lost to the Celtics.

The Lakers led 90-83 after three quarters and outscored the Spurs 16-4 in the first four minutes of the final period to break the game open.

James Worthy added 18 points as eight Lakers scored in double figures.

Bullets 100, 76ers 93

Jeff Malone scored 29 points and led an 8-0 run in the fourth period that enabled Washington to draw away from Philadelphia.

With the 76ers leading 77-74 early in the final period, Malone scored four points in the run and Cliff Robinson and Gus Williams two each. The Bullets led the rest of the way.

The Bullets have won two straight games and two of three under new Coach Kevin Loughery.

Mavericks 126, Pacers 120

Mark Aguirre scored 25 points to lead Dallas over Indiana. Aguirre's rebound jump shot with 10:50 left in the game ignited a 16-1 scoring spurt for the Mavericks.

Rolando Blackman contributed 23 points to the victory, while Brad Davis and Jay Vincent had 22 each for Dallas.

Jazz 116, SuperSonics 108

Adrian Dantley scored 32 points and Mark Eaton added 20, including 10 in the final period, as Utah downed Seattle.

Eaton hit all six of his shots from the field and went 8-for-8 from the free throw line. The 7-foot-4 center also pulled down 12 rebounds and blocked three shots. Thurl Bailey contributed 17 points for the Jazz.

Incaviglia to start for Texas Rangers

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Rookie Pete Incaviglia, in his first professional season after a record-setting collegiate career, will start in right field for the Texas Rangers, manager Bobby Valentine announced.

Incaviglia, 22, joins the New York Yankees' Dave Winfield and Atlanta's Bob Horner as the only three players jumping directly from college to the major leagues.

"It's a great day for the Texas Rangers to be able to make this announcement with confidence," Valentine said Monday. "Pete Incaviglia will provide this organization with a lot of excitement. The potential reward outweighs the risk of my being called too immature to make this kind of decision."

Incaviglia is hitting .306 with a team-leading three home runs and 10 RBIs in 12 games this spring. He led Oklahoma State into the College World Series last June.

He said playing in Arlington Stadium on April 8 for the season opener against Toronto will be like a homecoming.

"I'll be thinking, 'I'm finally here. I'm where I belong,'" he said.

"There was no doubt in my mind, but I didn't want to come here and step on anybody's toes. If I can fit in with Larry Parrish, Gary Ward, Pete O'Brien and Oddibe McDowell and help this team win, that's all I want," he said.

Incaviglia, who set NCAA records with 48 home runs and 143 RBIs last season as a college junior, said he is not intimidated by the idea of playing in the major leagues.

"I want to hit 30 to 40 home runs and drive in 100 runs," he said. "That's what I'm here for."

Team officials said they believe Incaviglia is ready for the major leagues.

"Pete's shown the defensive capabilities and the proper mental approach to this game to go along with his outstanding offensive potential," Valentine said.

"His hitting mechanics are sound," said coach Tom Robson. "He's tremendously strong but he's not the typical big man with a big swing and a lot of holes. He's really beyond strong."

Monday's announcement provided Incaviglia with some vindication after several scouts had discounted his chances of playing in the major leagues.

Area contest next...

Ira one-act wins district

Ira was named co-winner, along with Sterling City, Saturday in District 6A one-act play competition. In addition, six of seven thespians also earned recognition.

Ira will advance to the area contest April 12 at O'Donnel where they will also compete with District 4A and 5A schools.

Chuck Barbee was named best actor. Three students were named to the all-star cast including Kaila Barbee, Kyle Sorrells and Suzy Foster. Honorable mention honors went to Cathey Crowder and Kerri Carter.

Ward Baze also appeared in "The Small World of Millie McIvor." Kristi Carter and Kara Sterling were members of the stage crew.

Sue Parham is the director.

'Africa' named best picture

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Out of Africa," the romantic epic of a woman's passion set against the landscape of colonial Kenya, turned an Academy Awards race with no clear starter into a rout, capturing seven Oscars while the top-nominated "The Color Purple" was shut out.

William Hurt, the homosexual prisoner obsessed with movies in "Kiss of the Spider Woman," and Geraldine Page, as the ailing widow determined to return to her childhood home in "The Trip to Bountiful," took the top acting awards in Monday night's presentation of the 58th Academy Awards.

Sentimental favorite Don Ameche, 77, was named best supporting actor for playing the retiree who found the fountain of youth with the help of visitors from outer space in "Cocoon." Anjelica Huston, the vengeful Mafia princess in "Prizzi's Honor," won as best supporting actress.

In addition to best picture, "Out of Africa" won for director, screenplay, score, sound, art direction and cinematography, but failed to win Meryl Streep an Oscar for best actress or for Klaus Maria Brandauer as best supporting actor.

"I could not have made this movie without Meryl Streep," director Sydney Pollack said in accepting his award. "She is astounding — personally, professionally, all ways."

Miss Streep had been favored to claim her third Oscar for her role as the strong-willed Danish author, Isaak Dinesen.

Instead, the award became a long-awaited triumph for the 61-year-old Miss Page, who failed in seven previous nominations dating to 1953 despite her belief that she would win each time.

"I have thought so every time," she confided backstage. "I was so wonderful. I'm my biggest fan."

The acting award left the 34-year-old Hurt nearly speechless.

Rushing to the stage after a bear hug from his Brazilian director, Hector Babenco, he clutched his heart and exclaimed: "Baboom, baboom, baboom it's incredible!"

"I share this with Raul," Hurt said, referring to Raul Julia, who played the Brazilian political prisoner who shared his cell.

As the evening wore on, a wipeout for "The Color Purple" became evident. It had been engulfed in controversy since its release, with complaints that the movie based on Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel reinforced black stereotypes.

Of its 11 nominations, none was for director Steven Spielberg.

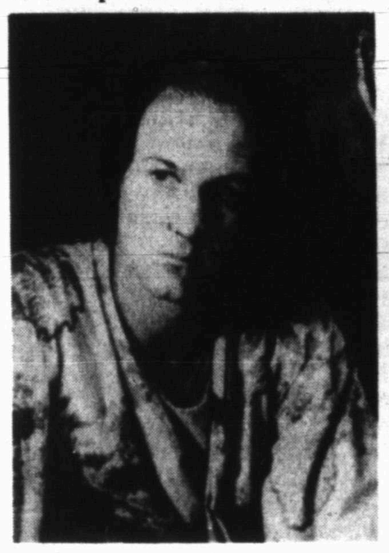

Whoopi Goldberg, in the running for best actress as the oppressed black woman struggling for her own identity, had spoken out angrily about the snub.

"It's a small bunch of people with small minds who chose to ignore the obvious," she said — a comment which may have helped clinch her own loss.

Robert Wise, president of the Academy, said after the ceremonies he couldn't explain the outcome "except that maybe it was a reaction of the academy at large over questioning the integrity of the director's branch," which nominates directors.

"Perhaps the voters felt that the academy's reputation had been maligned," he said.

Only "The Turning Point" in 1977 had ever gained as many nominations and failed to win an Oscar, but Quincy Jones who produced "The Color Purple" and created its musical score, was philosophical: "The picture got 11 nominations. It did $78 million as of today. I mean, how greedy can you get?"

Texans sharing in Academy Awards

DALLAS (AP) — The Lone Star State is now in the mainstream of the world film community after two Texas-produced movies won Oscars, a producer of the pair of films said.

Although the producers of "Kiss of the Spider Woman" and "The Trip to Bountiful" were in Dallas and not Los Angeles for the Academy Awards presentation Monday night, they don't consider themselves outsiders anymore, said Sam Grogg, one of three general partners in FilmDallas Investment Fund I.

Grogg formed the partnership with fellow Dallasites Richard Kneipper and Joel Williams. In the past 1½ years, the trio produced four films, including "Kiss of the Spider Woman," which netted a best acting award for William Hurt, and "The Trip to Bountiful," for which Geraldine Page won the best actress Oscar.

"I think 'Bountiful' is true testimony of the quality this independent film industry is capable of creating. Texas is now a mainstream player in the world film community and we're not going to be denied that role in the future," Grogg said Monday.

The two movies were funded by $2.4 million raised by the partnership. "Spider Woman" was nominated for best film, best actor, best director and best screenplay adaptation. "Bountiful," which was filmed in Irving and Waxahachie, was nominated for best actress and best screenplay adaptation.

"It just goes to show that risks and independence can pay off for film producers outside the Hollywood mainstream," Grogg said.
