Dry

"We are doctoring (the cattle) more as we have a lot of bacteria in the air," said Wheeler. He said he didn't think the present conditions are quite as bad as it was in August. However, he said the wide temperature ranges on the cattle with the cold nights and hot days is not good for them.

Pasture cattle are also experiencing the same symptoms as those in the feedlot, he said.

"A rain and good hard freeze would help everyone — cattle and humans," said Wheeler.

"We probably have a good sub-soil moisture, but that first foot is pretty dry," said Nusser. He said it is important for area residents to water their trees and plants during the current trend of above-average temperatures for November.

There have been day highs of 80 degrees, while the night low has reached temperatures in the mid-40s.

Nusser said the trees and plants have a much higher potential for freeze injury when higher than average temperatures have existed before a freeze and the homeowners have not been watering. "Even though there are dormant conditions present, water is needed," he said.

He said the normal daytime average temperature for this season of the year is 62, and local temperatures are now considerably above that mark. The average low is 35, and the present low is 45. There is no end to the higher than normal temperatures in the immediate forecast, as the temperature is expected to be in the 80s through Sunday.

"We could sure use a real wet snow," he said.

Privacy vs. states' rights to be argued in U.S. Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Supreme Court justices weighed states' rights vs. motorists' privacy today in a spirited debate over whether Congress properly banned states from selling the personal information that

Justice Antonin Scalia suggested to Waxman that states could say "state records and what a state does with its records are very much its own business."

But Scalia also told Condon he did not see how the law commandeered state employees to do the federal government's work.

"All they're telling you is don't give out information," Scalia said. "Why is that hard to comply with?"

appears on drivers' licenses.

Releasing drivers' license records is "the equivalent in terms of personal safety to being required to walk around all day with a sign" disclosing a person's name and address, Solicitor General Seth Waxman said in asking the justices to uphold the law.

But South Carolina Attorney General Charles Condon contended the case was not an issue of motorists' privacy but of state workers being unconstitutionally "pressed into federal service" to enforce a federal law.

"We're simply saying let South Carolina be run by South Carolinians," Condon said.

The justices questioned both sides closely about the 1994 Driver's Privacy Protection Act, which bars states from selling personal information on drivers' licenses, such as people's addresses and phone numbers.

Justice Anthony M. Kennedy compared today's case to a 1997 ruling in which the Supreme Court said the federal government could not require state and local officials to conduct background checks on handgun purchasers.

As in the handgun case, Kennedy said, the drivers' license law "completely blurs that line" between state and federal functions.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor asked Condon whether he believed Congress lacked the authority to bar states from taxing transactions conducted over the Internet.

And David H. Souter questioned whether Condon's argument also would mean the federal minimum wage law could not be enforced against the states. Condon said he was not disputing the application of that law to the states.

Many states routinely sold drivers' license information to businesses and political candidates before the federal law took effect in most states in 1997. These sales earned millions of dollars for states each year.

Congress enacted the ban in 1994, partly in response to the 1989 death of actress Rebecca Schaeffer. She was killed at her California home by a stalker who had obtained her address from driver's license records.

Last month, President Clinton signed a new law intended to buttress Congress' authority to keep states from making motor vehicle records public.

The federal law bars states and their employees from releasing personal information from motor vehicle records, although exceptions are allowed for disclosure to law enforcement officials, courts and sometimes to businesses.

South Carolina's challenge relies on recent Supreme Court rulings that have reined in congressional power in the name of states' autonomy. The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled for the state and struck down the federal law as unconstitutional.

The 1994 version of the law was based on Congress' authority to regulate interstate commerce. The law enacted last month imposes essentially the same restrictions on states but is not tied to Congress' power over commerce.

Demand After Mother's Funeral Still Rankles After Many Years

DEAR ABBY: My parents divorced when I was 2 years old, and remarried soon afterward. Unfortunately, the man my mother married was an abusive alcoholic whose beatings eventually contributed to her death in 1981. My father had remained on good terms with my mother throughout the years, and he and my stepmother attended the funeral.

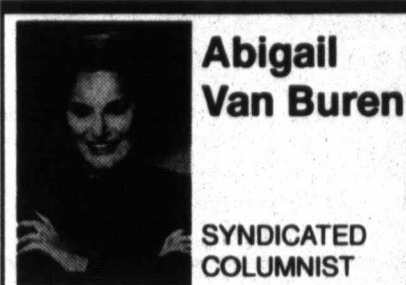

After the funeral service, my stepmother said to me, "I insist that you thank your stepfather for putting up with your mother all those years. You should spend the rest of the afternoon with him and his family."

Not wishing to cause a scene, I did what she ordered. It was the hardest thing I've ever done in my life. Abby, no one deserved the punishment my stepfather inflicted on my mother. My stepmother knew exactly what he had done to my mother and to me, too. How could she make such a demand?

After all these years, at 42, I am still troubled by my stepmother's demand, and the fact that I actually obeyed! What can I do to get over this?

STILL TROUBLED AFTER ALL THESE YEARS, ROCKLAND, DEL.

DEAR STILL TROUBLED: Your stepmother's comments were outrageous. She may have hated and resented your mother, and felt she had gotten what she deserved. And, like many victims of abuse, your self-esteem was so low you obeyed her without question.

Abigail Van Buren

Counseling can help you work through the feelings you're experiencing. Since you're still troubled, I hope you won't wait any longer.

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the letter from the 23-year-old manager of a suburban fast-food restaurant and the teens who were bound and left after a robbery. I want to address the fact that the parents of these teens never came to find out why they were out all night. As a parent of a 15-year-old and a 13-year-old (and for 10 months, a 17-year-old foreign exchange student), I have an explanation for the apparent lack of concern from the parents. Exhaustion!

Our 17-year-old had curfew hours on the weekend, which her mother and I set. Our student would be home exactly on time or call us if there was a problem. At first, I stayed up to make sure she got home — but after arising for work at 5 a.m. every day, I was too exhausted to be efficient. I shared this problem with other parents of teen-agers. Here's how I solved it:

I set an alarm for the time the child should be home. If the child gets home before the alarm goes off, he or she turns off the alarm and goes to bed. If the child does not arrive home in time, the alarm goes off and wakes the parent. Parents get their sleep — and the teens get to keep the hours they desperately want.

ANGIE IN L.A.

DEAR ANGIE: I received a stack of mail from defensive parents of teens about my reply to that letter, for saying that the parents of those young girls weren't doing an adequate job. Many said that their teen-agers ignore their attempts at discipline and refuse to accept their authority or curfews. Others said they were unable to wait up for their children and still function the next day.

For households where there is mutual respect and order, your solution is ingenious. I only wish I had stock in an alarm clock company.

Gotti tapes show 'Dapper Don' talking with family, airing gripes

NEW YORK (AP) — It's the "Dapper Don," up close and personal.

ABC today broadcast prison videotapes of John Gotti's visits with his family. Portions of the conversations, in which Gotti rages that he wants to "slaughter" federal prosecutors who targeted his son, aired on "Good Morning America" and more were to be shown on "20/20."

ABC said the conversations, culled from four hours of tapes made over two days in January, are fair game because Gotti is a public figure.

Gotti's lawyer, Bruce Cutler, said ABC was "on a mission to try and rip away at Mr. Gotti's dignity, pride and principles."

"This is an abomination, a most ignominious act of cowardice by the fellows who stole these tapes and disseminated them," he said. "It's just dirty pool."

On "Good Morning America," the tapes show Gotti complaining about prison food and about his family's relationship with some friends.

"We're like the Kennedys and the Bushes," he said. "We help each other."

Another excerpt showed Gotti complaining that he didn't get a group picture of his family at Christmas.

"This is just like in the movies," said "GMA" host Charles Gibson.

The tapes, recorded at the federal penitentiary in Marion, Ill., are made routinely by prison authorities to make sure there is no improper contact between inmates and visitors. They are only shared with others through a court order or congressional subpoena, said Scott Wolfson, spokesman for the Bureau of Prisons.

In this case, the tapes were requested as evidence in the racketeering trial of Gotti's son, Wolfson said. As a result, they passed through many hands — the FBI, prosecutors, investigators and defense attorneys.

The tapes were obtained by the Daily News, which printed partial transcripts. The two reporters who wrote the story, Jerry Capeci and Gene Mustain, have since left the paper. They were hired as consultants at ABC, bringing the tapes with them.

Capeci and Mustain would not reveal how they obtained the tapes. ABC correspondent John Miller said they haven't told the network.

Wolfson said he believed there was "an inherent concern as to the privacy rights of the inmate in this case." The tapes were part of evidence that was supposed to be sealed under a court order, he said.

Miller said there were lengthy discussions at ABC about the privacy issue. Ultimately, it was decided that Gotti forfeited those rights as a celebrity. ABC will take steps to minimize the exposure of the family members who were also taped, including Gotti's daughter, Victoria, he said.

Signs posted in the prison area where Gotti met his family make clear that it is electronically monitored, Miller said.

"His expectation of privacy in the context of a man who has lived half of his adult life under electronic surveillance is probably very low," he said.

Although he didn't give interviews, Gotti hardly shunned the spotlight when he was out of prison, Miller said. In fact, he seemed to revel in the attention.

"The public interest concerns outweigh any privacy concerns that he may have," he said.

Funeral set for boy who shot self, thinking he had killed father in hunting mishap

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — A funeral will be held this week for a teen-ager who shot himself in the head after mistakenly thinking he had killed his father in a hunting accident.

Chris Leif, 16, died Monday night at Lutheran Hospital in La Crosse, Wis.

His father, John Leif, 50, was released from the same hospital the next day.

The shooting occurred Oct. 30 as Chris and his father, an investment broker, were squirrel hunting in a wooded area about 100 miles southeast of Minneapolis.

Chris' .22-caliber rifle apparently fired when he stumbled and the bullet hit his father in the head, knocking him unconscious. Thinking his father was dead, Chris shot himself in the head with the rifle, Houston County Sheriff Michael Lee said.

Leif came to about four hours later and went for help.

A service for Chris will be held Friday in Mankato.

"It will be a big funeral," said Dave Knopick, president of Security State Bank, where the elder Leif works. "This has been such a roller-coaster ride. Just about everybody in town knows John."

Lawyer: Aide admits Gingrich affair began in 1993

ATLANTA (AP) — A congressional aide has admitted that she began an affair with former House Speaker Newt Gingrich six years ago, while he was still married.

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution reported today.

Callista Bisek, 33, was questioned for more than two hours Tuesday by attorneys representing Gingrich in his divorce from his wife, Marianne. Mrs. Gingrich's lawyers also want to question Ms. Bisek, an aide to the House Agriculture Committee.

Gingrich's lawyers told the newspaper that Ms. Bisek refused to discuss details of her sex life with the 56-year-old Gingrich. Ms. Bisek's lawyer, Pamela Bresnahan, said she advised her client not to answer any questions that could expose her to "infamy, ridicule or personal contempt."

Wells Fargo cuts ATM access in Santa Monica ahead of ordinance to reduce fees

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wells Fargo & Co. said today it is cutting off access to its automated teller machines in Santa Monica to everyone except its account holders, a slap back at a city ordinance taking effect there Thursday to ban ATM surcharges.

The Santa Monica City Council voted last month to prohibit banks from charging noncustomers the typical $1 or $2 surcharge for ATM use, the first such ban in the nation to be enacted by a city government and part of a growing consumer backlash.

"We built our network of ATMs for our customers," Wells Fargo spokesman Larry Haeg said today. "It's a service we provide to them, and we believe that is only fair for noncustomers who want to take advantage of the convenience of the network to help support it."

Haeg said the bank's 12 ATMs in Santa Monica would be cut off by Thursday to everyone but Wells customers.

Wells Fargo has not decided what to do in San Francisco, where a similar ban approved by voters last week and scheduled to take effect in December is tied up in court. It was the first voter-approved initiative in the country banning such fees. A day after the measure passed by 66 percent to 34 percent, California banks sued to block it.

Dear Chamber Members,

It is November and the 1999 Country Fair is now history. This year's fair was a tremendous success and could not have gone better. We want to thank everyone involved such as the many businesses that donated products or services for our auctions. In addition, we have listed all of those that volunteered their time to help make this year's Fair so exceptional. Also, thanks to all of you in the community that turned out to take part in this event; without you, success would not have been possible. BASKETBALL

DALLAS (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers don't think much of Don Nelson's Hack-a-Shaq strategy.

Nelson had his Dallas players foul Shaquille O'Neal at the end of the second quarter, but the tactic didn't stop the Lakers from beating the Mavericks for the 18th consecutive time.

"They play a frustrating style, all that fouling Shaq," guard Ron Harper said after the Lakers' 123-101 victory Tuesday night. "That's not basketball. Late in the game, maybe. But not before the half, that's ugly basketball."

O'Neal missed 11 of 14 free throws, but overpowered Dallas' front line with a 12-of-16 night from the field. He finished with 27 points and 10 rebounds.

"I am struggling from the line, but I find a way to come in and do my thing every night," said O'Neal, who is shooting 35 percent (23-of-65) from the foul line this season. "I'm going to start hitting them. I'm not worried. I've been averaging 27, and once I step up and start hitting them, I'll be averaging 37, 47, 57."

O'Neal made only 10 of 23 free throws in Sunday's 105-97 victory over the Mavericks at the Staples Center, with Dallas fouling him every time he touched the ball in the fourth quarter.

O'Neal and Lakers coach Phil Jackson expressed their displeasure at Nelson's tactic, but Nelson said he was desperate to end the long drought against the Lakers and would try any ploy to do so.

In the fourth quarter on Tuesday night, O'Neal threw down a thunderous dunk, and then glared at Nelson.

The Lakers took a 54-49 halftime lead, but the Mavericks' strategy of fouling O'Neal whenever he touched the ball in the closing stages of the first half kept Dallas close. O'Neal missed nine of 10 first-half free throws, including six straight over the final 1:33.

Jackson said Nelson's fouling strategy had no effect on the Lakers.

"We weren't open to it at critical times," Jackson said. "So basically I can't comment on it because it wasn't effective tonight."

Glen Rice added 21 points and Rick Fox had 18 for the Lakers, who haven't lost to the Mavericks since April 5, 1995.

The Lakers broke the game open with a 14-0 run midway through the third quarter to win for the fourth time in their five games.

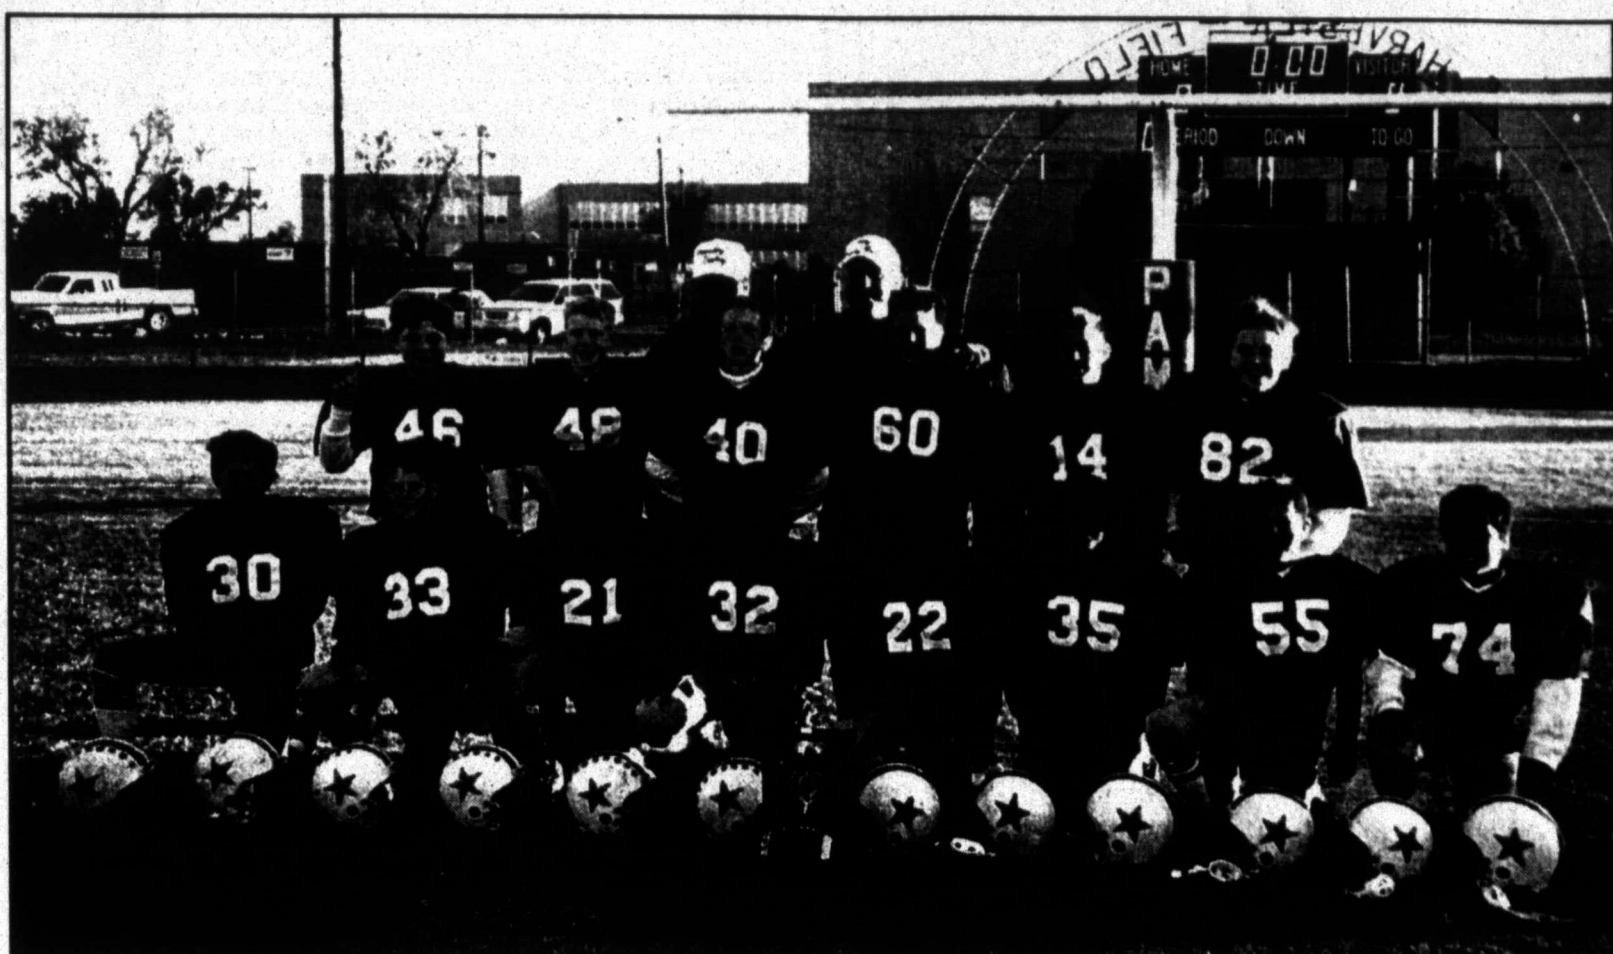

Los Angeles was in front 58-54 when Derek Fisher triggered the decisive run with a three-point play.

Rice made a 3-pointer and later hit a jumper to complete the run, pushing the Los Angeles lead to 72-54 with 6:06 left in the third quarter.

O'Neal added two baskets during the third-quarter spurt, which gave the Lakers an 88-71 lead going into the fourth quarter.

Michael Finley and Erick Strickland scored 19 points each, Cedric Ceballos added 18 and Steve Nash 17 for the Mavericks, who have lost three of their first five games.

Pampa team is runnerup in All-Star tourney

DUMAS — The Pampa Stars competed in the Dumas 5th-6th Grade All-Star Football Tournament and brought home the second-place trophy. The Stars got to the championship game by defeating Dalhart 24-0 and Sunray 22-6.

In the first game against Dalhart, Trevor Day started the scoring for Pampa with a 30-yard run, then completed a pass to Garrett Kotara for the two-point conversion.

In the second quarter, Dylan Henley blocked a punt inside Dalhart's end zone and Grant Stucki recovered the ball for a touchdown. Grant Stucki then threw a TD pass to Cody Ellis to make score 16-0 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Pampa's second-team offense moved the ball as well as they took the ball from their own 40 and moved on the ground with some hard running by Jared Moler, Cody Ellis, Tyler Klein and Colby Scott. The last 25 yards came on a Grant Stucki to Ryan Hansen pass for a TD. Chase Harris added the two-point conversion to make the final score 24-0 for Pampa.

In the second game, the Stars used ball control to dive the ball 65 yards behind the outstanding blocking of Eric Kingcade, Jarod Moler, Chad Malone and Michael Garjada to score first. Ross Andreen ran the ball in from 6 yards out and the two-point conversion failed.

In the second quarter, Taylor Fatheree took the ball in from the 10 yard line and Erick Kingcade added the two-point conversion with some strong running up the middle.

In the third quarter, a Sunray defender intercepted a Trevor Day pass and ran it back for the only Sunray score. The two-point conversion failed to make the score 14-6, Pampa's favor after three quarters.

In the fourth quarter, Pampa's Trevor Day took the ball around right end and went 35 yards for the TD. Chase Harris added the two-point conversion to make the final score 22-6.

In the championship game against Borger, the Stars moved the ball well at times, but couldn't score.

Trevor Day had an outstanding game as he completed 8 out of 12 passes for 130 yards. Ross Andreen, Taylor Fatheree, Eric Kingcade, Tyler Klein, Colby Scott, Jared Moler, Marcos Campos and Cody Ellis all made some outstanding runs.

Also, Jarret Kotara, Dylan Henley, Michael Robinson, Chase Harris and Ross Andreen had some outstanding catches.

"Although the Pampa Stars didn't win the first-place trophy, the team was given high praise by the Dumas officials. They said the Pampa team had very good discipline and good sportsmanship. That is as good as gold," said Pampa coach Mando Ramirez.

Coaches Dick Henley and Ramirez said they were proud of their players as a team.

The Stars had two injured players, Grant Stucki and Chad Malone, but both coaches are hoping they will be able to play this coming weekend. Pampa hosts an All-Star Tournament Saturday for the fifth-sixth grade division.

Aikman could be close to retirement

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Troy Aikman better get ready. It's almost time for Leigh Steinberg to give him "The Speech."

After suffering two serious head injuries in eight days, the Dallas Cowboys quarterback has undergone a battery of tests to determine whether any brain damage has been done and, if so, how bad it is.

Should doctors discover find anything wrong, Steinberg won't hesitate to tell Aikman to retire. It may not even take that much for the agent to tell his top client enough's enough.

"That's a discussion for later in the week," Steinberg said Tuesday. "We'll just have to see how he does, how he progresses."

Cowboys coach Chan Gailey said Aikman has not yet been ruled out of Sunday's game against Green Bay. Steinberg, however, said: "It doesn't strike me as being a huge probability that he'd play after suffering two head injuries in eight days."

Emmitt Smith and Michael Irvin will miss the Packers game. Should Aikman also sit, it would be the first time since Smith joined the league in 1990 — a span of 152 regular-season games — that none of Dallas' so-called triplets are in the lineup.

Gailey said he assumes Aikman will be out only a week, but Steinberg said it's too soon to know. He said Aikman was still having side effects Tuesday when he underwent a diagnostic exam and an MRI.

Aikman's sixth concussion of his 11-year career came Monday night when Jerry Ball sacked him in Dallas' 27-17 loss to Minnesota.

It actually might have been Aikman's seventh concussion, considering how woozy he was after Jeff Burris hit him the previous Sunday against Indianapolis. Aikman briefly returned to that game and the team never labeled it a concussion.

What's most worrisome is that Ball didn't hit Aikman as hard as Burris did, yet Aikman felt much worse after Ball's blow.

Canadian meets Quanah in 2A bi-district playoffs

BOYS RANCH — Canadian is a 12-point favorite over Quanah in a Class 2A bi-district game Friday night, starting at 8 in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium.

Both teams have 9-1 records. The Wildcats completed the regular season by hammering Boys Ranch 51-7 last weekend.

The Wildcats were led by George Peyton's 27 points. He scored on runs of 18, 11 and 6 yards. Peyton also kicked a 24-yard field goal.

Eric Hall and Jarrod Timmons rushed for touchdowns. Canadian also scored twice through the air. Nathan Reyes caught a 25-yard touchdown pass from Derek Maupin. Miles Henderson caught a 21-yard TD pass from Coleman Bartlett.

Frenship favored by 9 over Pampa

Harris Report has Frenship favored by 9 points over Pampa in the bi-district game Friday night at Harvester Stadium. The Harvesters will need the homefield advantage. That second-round game is tentatively scheduled to be played in Dick Bivins Stadium. Wheeler's BEN DOLLAR is well on the way to becoming a two-time all-state player. Royals' Beltran named top AL rookie

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Baseball economics being what they are, the Kansas City Royals might have to dig to the bottom of their shallow pockets to keep Carlos Beltran.

But on Tuesday, at least, the Royals were simply celebrating the 22-year-old outfielder's nearly unanimous choice as American League Rookie of the Year.

"This represents a lot about what we're trying to do as an organization, which is to take our young players and build with them to get better and better," said general manager Herk Robinson, speaking from the baseball GMs' meeting in Dana Point, Calif.

Beltran, the first rookie in 24 years with 100 RBIs and 100 runs, received 26 of 28 first-place votes in balloting announced Tuesday by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. He also received one second-place vote and was bypassed on one ballot, earning 133 points.

He is honeymooning in the Caribbean after his marriage Saturday. Beltran was informed of the honor Tuesday, but was not available for comment.

"He's a very confident kid, very proud," Robinson said. "I'm sure he'll think this is a tremendous honor. He's had a great year."

Beltran, who made the major league minimum of $200,000 this year, hit .293 with 22 homers, 108

RBIs, 112 runs and 27 steals in 35 attempts. He is the third Kansas City player to win the award, following Lou Piniella in 1969 and Bob Hamelin in 1994.

He won't be eligible for arbitration for two more years, or for free agency for three years after that.

"I hope we can keep him forever," Robinson said.

Robinson and manager Tony Muser both said they weren't worried about a sophomore slump for Beltran.

"I'm sure the competition in the league is going to make adjustments to him," Muser said. "That always looms in the sophomore year — how you adjust to the adjustments."
