County is above national average in home occupancy

Deaf Smith County had 7,152 housing units in 1990 and about 57 percent of these were owner occupied, according to figures included in a recent Census Bureau report.

The report indicated that the number of housing units had declined by two percent since 1980, which corresponds to a slight decline in the population count in 1990. The number of housing units in the U.S. increased by 17.9 percent over the 10-year period.

In Deaf Smith County, 5,362 housing units were classified as detached single-family residences. That represents 75 percent of the housing units here, much above the state and national percentages of 62.6 and 59.

Of the 7,172 housing units in the county, the owner-occupied total was 4,096 and the rental-occupied total was 2,086. The majority of housing units, 86 percent, were occupied. This compares favorably with state and national percentages of 86.6 and 89.9.

The median value of housing units in Deaf Smith County was $41,700. Median means that half cost more than that and half cost less.

Median rent was $239 a month, compared to $378 for Texas and $374 across the U.S.

The report showed that 795, or 11.2 percent, of all housing units in the county in 1990 were mobile homes or trailers. The percentage is slightly higher than the state and national percentage of mobile homes, 9 percent in the state and 8.3 percent nationally.

Some 499 housing units in the county were in buildings containing from two to four units. Another 174 were attached single-family residences. An apartment attached to an office or business would be an example in this category.

The report indicated that 259 of the housing units in Deaf Smith County were in apartment complexes of 10 units or more in 1990. Another 59 units were in buildings containing from 5 to 9 units.

Friday calm with no gang violence

A large force of armed officers patrolled Hereford schools, the Homecoming pep rally, parade, football game and dance Friday, but no violent incidents were reported.

The closest thing to a rumble may have been a fight at Hereford Junior High, where several students fought a student; however, that incident was not related to any gang-type violence that had been rumored.

Rumors mushroomed throughout the week that a gang or gang would do something violent on Friday. Law enforcement officers -- some in plainclothes, others in uniform -- kept a watch on the Homecoming pep rally. Others patrolled the streets during the Homecoming pep rally.

During the day, officers also maintained a heavier-than-normal patrol on Hereford streets, looking for vehicles of persons known by authorities to be members of loose-knit Hereford gangs. Many of those youngsters

EDITOR'S NOTE - It's no longer just a passing fad. Herds of country music fans are coming out of the closet, even in the land of the Ivy League. They may drive BMWs instead of pickups and wear Brooks Brothers suits while listening to Garth Brooks, but many in the Woodstock generation are turning their ears toward Nashville.

By DENISE LAVOIE

Associated Press Writer
STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) - On the dance floor at Boppers nightclub sits the sawed-off front end of a 1956 Buick, around which dancing waitresses usually strut their stuff to Elvis, the Beatles and the Rolling Stones.

But on this night, the car can barely be seen through the crowd of urban cowboys wearing Stetson hats, cowboy boots, oversized belt buckles and faded jeans.

In this one-time bastion of rock 'n' roll, country music is suddenly cool.

The club's weekly transformation into a country and western dance hall reflects the growing popularity of country music across the nation, especially in the Northeast, where not too long ago admitting you liked country music was like admitting your favorite sport is professional wrestling.

Now, on a typical Wednesday night, 200 to 300 people from Connecticut and New York suburbs make their way to Boppers to listen to the Nashville sound and learn the latest country dances.

There are secretaries, truck drivers and plumbers here. But there are also accountants, lawyers and corporate executives who leave their business suits at work and put on their best pair of jeans to kick up their heels to Garth Brooks, Alan Jackson or Billy Ray Cyrus.

"Most of the people I know who like it say it's the only music they can listen to and understand the words," says Christine Marchell, a 39-year-old New York financial analyst who sipped white wine as she listened to a country band called Little Texas.

A promise kept Author recalls story of LaPlata

(Editor's Note: The following article was submitted by Joe Smith of Riverside, Cal. He taught at Hereford High School more than 20 years and still owns a farm in Deaf Smith County.)

BY JOE SMITH

In the winter of 1944, I was pasturing 400 head of big steers on 2,000 acres of winter wheat about 20 miles northwest of Hereford. I saddled a horse about sun-up one morning in the middle of December and rode out to inspect the steers.

It was one of those mornings of supreme splendor that only the high Texas Panhandle can deliver in early winter. The cold sky glittered an icy blue. Two coyotes sneaked across the flat land toward their dens along Palo Duro draw, a mile away. The green wheat was covered with a blanket of frost, and the air was so clean I could see the rise along the caprock in New Mexico 40 miles away.

After the inspection, I rode back to the camphouse, unsaddled my horse and slapped him across the rump with the bridle reins as he went to graze. I was turning to watch the steers come in to drink when I saw a long black automobile turn off the country road, 200 yards south, and head up the lane towards the camp.

The shiny limousine stopped near me, and I noticed two things that were a little unusual in our part of the country. The car bore an Illinois license plate, and it was driven by a black chauffeur, prim and military like in a blue uniform.

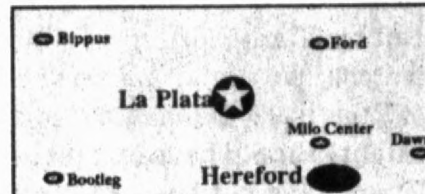

A back door in the limousine opened and a distinguished looking, well-dressed man who was advanced in years approached me. He introduced himself and asked if I could direct him to LaPlata.

I told him that all that was left of LaPlata was a few cement blocks, 200 yards north of the old LaPlata windmill which was about two miles west of my camp. Old LaPlata, first county seat of Deaf Smith County, had been moved in 1898 to the railroad and named Hereford.

The man seemed puzzled. He thought a moment, went to the limo and returned with a Texas road map. LaPlata was shown on his map as being the county seat of Deaf Smith County. I mentioned that I, too, had seen road maps showing LaPlata but that, indeed, it had been gone about 46 years.

Then the stranger asked me to direct him to the LaPlata cemetery. That one stopped me. I am a history buff and was interested in learning all I could about old LaPlata. I had seen photographs of the old courthouse and business houses. I was acquainted with some old timers who remembered the place well, but in all of my riding in the immediate area, I didn't know where the cemetery was located.

But I knew an elderly cowboy, reared in that country, who lived a few miles southwest and I felt he might help us. My visitor said he'd appreciate it if I would accompany him to the man I'd mentioned. As we settled down in the plush, blue upholstery--the most elegant I'd ever seen--and the liveried driver headed southwest, the man told me why he was there. I'll admit by that time, I was quite curious about the entire matter.

"In 1892," he began, "an older brother of mine left our family home in Chicago to go west and become a cowboy. My parents tried to talk him out of it, but it was no use. When my mother realized they couldn't stop him, she went into her study and, with black printer's ink, she printed his name and our home address on a piece of leather. She told him to keep that piece of leather with him at all times--in a boot, saddle bag, pocket or wherever.

"He wrote my mother a letter each year for the first two years he was gone. The first was from someplace in Oklahoma, and the last one (was from Tascosa, Texas. From Tascosa, he said he was well and that he'd been promised a job on a big ranch, but he didn't give the name of the ranch or an address. Mother wrote him in care of the postmaster at Tascosa, but there was no reply. She

GUESS WHAT'S COOL? COUNTRY, AGAIN

With people like Clint Black (pictured), Garth Brooks, Mary Chapin-Carpenter and the rest, country is taking the nation by storm. This time, there's no Urban Cowboy craze. Everyone's in it for the message.

"As soon as I admitted I liked country music, I was amazed at the number of people who said they liked it too," Marchell says.

Once anathema among baby boomers weaned on rock 'n' roll, country is becoming the music of choice for many members of the Woodstock generation.

Sales of country albums in the United States have more than doubled in the past four years, going from $425 million in 1988 to more than $979 million in 1991.

Although rock still dominates the music industry with just over 36 percent of total sales, the most significant growth over the last two years has been in country music, which has jumped to 12.5 percent of total sales.

Last year, Garth Brooks made music history when his "Ropin' The Wind" album sold 5 million copies within three months of its release. The album debuted in the Number One slot on Billboard's Top 200 Album Chart, a first for a country artist.

And so far this year, 46 country albums have gone gold, platinum and multiplatinum, each selling between 500,000 and 2 million copies or more. So why has country suddenly become hip, even in the staid Northeast, where country still evokes images of pickup trucks, Hee Haw and standin' by your man?

"The songs aren't about truck drivers anymore. They're not tear-in-your-beer songs. They're not cowboy songs. They're just songs about life," says Johnny Michaels, program director at WYNY-FM in New York, a station that switched from adult contemporary music to country in 1987 and now has an audience of more than 1 million in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey.

The phenomenal popularity of country music cannot be explained through record sales alone.

La Madre Mia helps United Way

Debbie Tardy, left, representing La Madre Mia Study Club, presents the club's donation to United Way of Deaf Smith County to Ron Rives, campaign chairman. All persons in Deaf Smith County should have received their United Way pledge cards. If you have not been contacted by the United Way, call the office at 364-5220. The campaign's goal is $150,000 to benefit 12 member agencies that serve thousands in Hereford.

United Way Profile

Don Cumpton, assistant superintendent for support services for the Hereford Independent School District, is a member of the board of the United Way of Deaf Smith County.

Cumpton was 1991 campaign chairman. He and his wife, Linda, have two sons: Brent, 22, and David 18.

"The United Way is attractive to me because the contributions stay in this community," Cumpton said. "I believe that is extremely important."

It's not too late to make your pledge to United Way. Your pledge will help 12 member agencies meet the needs of many persons in Deaf Smith County.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Growing Up Isn't Hard To Do If You Start Out As A Kid" was on the "new books" shelf at the Deaf Smith County Library. It's too bad that many of our youth aren't spending enough time being a kid, or perhaps we, as adults, aren't giving them that time.

Some time was given in this area through the HJH library with a Halloween bookmark contest. Students with winning designs were Julie Schlabs representing the seventh grade and eighth grade winners were Chiele Denton and Dana Brisendine.

Students of the Week were Courtney Crawford and Ty Boggeman. This is the same Courtney and Ty whose names were listed several times as winners in the recent Deaf Smith County 4-H Horse Show. They also competed in the sheep division at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas.

Mr. Garza's Texas history classes have been keeping a vote tally for the candidates in the Presidential election. Each class does this on Monday. A drastic change in the vote was seen after the debate, with a wide margin for Bush and a slight increase for Perot. Several students from each class watched the debates of the Presidential and the Vice-Presidential hopefuls. It will be interesting to see any changes after the next debate.

All HJH students will take part in voting for their candidate through the seventh and eighth grade history classes. The vote totals will be forwarded to Channel 1 and announced during the Channel 1 broadcast before the election date in November.

Sixteen of 86 essays on "If I Were President, Here's How I'd Help My School..." qualified to be entered in the national competition. Those students whose essays qualified are Renee Schulze, Jacque Bezner, Kris Friel, Dustin Whitaker, Jim Moudy, Heather Klos, Kendra Wright, Amanda Kriegshauser, Briar Baker, Brandon Tidmore, Ricky Machuca, Jamie Marquez, Andrew Del Toro, Andrew Carr, Ryan Manning, and Holly Weishaar.

Notification of winners will be in early November. When you come to HJH, go north past the office and take time to view the artwork on display on the cafeteria windows. Mrs. Goodin has her students involved in a variety of activities and shares this work with us quite often.

All parents and interested patrons are invited to the HJH Open House Thursday at 6:30 p.m. Students will stay home that night to take care of the household chores, babysit, do homework and hope that their parents make a good impression on the teachers, as the parents will be following their student's schedule during the Open House. Who knows? Some of those teachers may give a test that will be recorded in the gradebook for their child. Wouldn't it be great if we had at least one parent to represent each student? Shall we try for two?

HJH students and teachers have had two fire drills within the past couple of weeks. The one this past week was a record in vacating the building—one minute and thirty seconds. This beat the last drill by one full minute. Also, this last one was done in a much more orderly manner, which probably accounts for the better time. Students also had the opportunity to view a fire safety film during the usual Channel 1 time.

The current issue of "Woman's Day" listed some "Dos and Don'ts for Parents." One of the "old" ones was, "Don't believe everything your kids say about their teachers unless you want your teachers to believe everything the kids say about you." But, another that is so true is, "Don't ask, unless you really want to know, when the social studies project due tomorrow, (an in-depth history and cultural presentation about the Indians of North America, including primary sources), was assigned."

See you Thursday at Open House...

Local Roundup

Hospital board meets Tuesday

Deaf Smith County Hospital district directors will hold a regular monthly board meeting beginning at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the hospital board room. Items on the agenda include discussions on an indigent health care policy, a strategic plan for the district, renovation of the obstetric ward and a nurses' station, and an update on physician recruitment. The administrator will also report on the personnel manual, possible installation of a dialysis unit, and the DSGH Foundation.

HHS yearbooks on sale

The 1993 edition of the Hereford High School yearbook remains on sale this week.

Cost of the yearbook is $18; a name imprinted on the front is $2 more.

A deposit of $10 or more may be made now, with the balance due later in the school year.

City will meet Monday

Hereford city commissioners will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

The agenda includes a public hearing on condemnation of a building at the rear of 130 N. Main; the annual audit; discussion of use of the Campfire building; a request for development of a lot at Plains and Quince; and board appointments.

San Jose Outreach needs goods

San Jose Outreach in Hereford is asking for donations of clothes, dishes and other goods because the program is low on goods.

Persons wishing to make donations may call 364-6203 or 364-5053 for pickup at any time.

Four arrested Friday

Hereford police arrested four persons Friday: a man, 18, for driving while intoxicated; a man, 26, on contempt of court warrants; a man, 48, for public intoxication; and a man, 30, on assault warrants.

Reports included criminal trespass on West U.S. Highway 60; domestic disturbance in the 700 block of Stanton and 500 block of Blevins; criminal attempt in the 400 block of N. Main; burglary of a motor vehicle in the 100 block of W. Third; criminal trespass in the 400 block of N. 25 Mile Ave.; domestic violence assault in the 400 block of W. Second; burglary of a motor vehicle in the 300 block of Ranger; a student was assaulted by several other students at Hereford Junior High; terrorist threat in the 400 block of Sycamore; theft of $126 worth of goods in the 400 block of Ave. B; civil standby in the 500 block of Ave. G; and assault in the 400 block of Sycamore.

Police issued 11 tickets Friday and investigated three minor accidents.

Commodities here Thursday

Government surplus commodities will be distributed to eligible persons at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Bull Barn in Hereford.

Senior citizens may use the east door; others should use the west entrance. Goods will be given only to eligible persons.

South Texas getting new area codes

Final preparations are being made by Southwestern Bell Telephone to divide South Texas into two area codes on Nov. 1.

The current geographic area served by area code 512 is one of the largest in the country. It stretches from just north of Lampasas, south to the Rio Grande Valley, and follows the Mexican border on the west to Del Rio and includes San Antonio and the Texas Hill Country. It will be divided into two area codes, 210 and 512.

The new 210 code will serve San Antonio and the surrounding area north to Marble Falls, south to Laredo and the Rio Grande Valley. The 512 code will continue to serve the area just north of Austin, Austin proper and continue south to include Corpus Christi and Victoria.

"The 512 code has been serving Central and South Texas since 1947 and the growth in population and in telecommunications services has depleted the available telephone number supply," said Gary Stevens, area manager for Bell.

The announcement of the impending division of the 512 area code was made in November 1991. Notification letters, bill inserts and other communications have been distributed to customers, long distance companies, equipment vendors and the media.

Stevens said most national telecommunications companies have taken the necessary actions to be prepared for the change, but some business systems may need to be re-programmed to recognize the new code. Residential customers may need to re-program speed calling lists or automatic dialers if the those programmed numbers include the 512 area code.

The change will take place in two phases. For a six-month period, anyone who dials 512 to reach a number in the new 210 area code will have their calls automatically switched. For another six months, beginning May 3, 1993, customers dialing the incorrect area code in the divided area will reach a recording which tells the caller to re-dial, using the new area code.

Aikman teachers ready for open house

Aikman Primary School teachers Jan Reeve, Nan Coneway, Alice Villalobos and Karen White decorate for the school's fall open house on Oct. 27. All parents of Aikman students and other interested persons are urged to attend.

Beautification group to meet

A brainstorming session to share ideas and goals will be held Tuesday at 5 p.m. at the Community Center lounge.

Hereford Beautification Alliance members and others interested should attend. The alliance has targeted cleanup, recycling and beautification as its main priorities; however, the group is still drafting its mission and requests input.

HOME COMING PARADE

became very depressed and cried much of the time.

"Almost four years later, with no word from him, a letter came from an official of Deaf Smith County, Texas with a LaPlata postmark. The writer said my brother had recently been buried at LaPlata, but there was nothing about when or how he died. In the letter was a money order for a small amount from the sale of his saddle and other things. Immediately, Mother wrote the county official and offered a sizeable sum of money for any information about her son. No reply was ever received."

"After that, Mother failed rapidly--my father had died--and just before she passed away, she asked to promise her that if I was ever in Texas, I'd try to locate my brother's grave. When I told her I would, it seemed to give her great comfort. This is my first visit to Texas, and that's why I'm here."

The cowboy I knew told us where the cemetery was and we located it without any trouble. But it was a pitiful sight. Cattle and thistles had destroyed the fence around it, and wild grass and dried weeds were knee high. A few headstones had fallen or had been rubbed down by livestock.

The visitor walked among those silent reminders of lives that had been, stopping now and then to try to read the lettering on the stones. Finally he straightened up and looked all about him at the sweeping, lonesome country. He must have felt as out of place on that silent prairie as I would have in teeming Chicago.

"I thought," he said, "there might be an outside chance that someone took some of his money, if he had any, and had a little stone erected. But, really, there was no one who cared enough to do it. What's concerned us most over the years is what he was doing the four years we didn't hear from him. I've often wondered if that county official wasn't being considerate when he failed to mention more than he did. Perhaps he knew something we didn't need to know."

The man did not locate his brother's grave, but he did find where he was buried. But more important, he fulfilled his promise to his mother. He asked me for the names of some people who might recall something about his brother, and I told him.

But when I asked later if he'd called on them, they said he didn't. Maybe by that time he felt the less he knew, the better it would be.

NATIONAL CONSUMER'S WEEK

OCTOBER 25-31

Hereford State Bank will join hundreds of organizations nationwide in recognition of the importance of consumer choice and awareness as National Consumer's Week unfolds October 25th through October 31st.

This year's theme, "Operation Wise Buy", underscores the power and responsibility of consumers to make wise choices among marketplace alternatives. Wise choices improve the marketplace for all consumers and businesses.

As a participant in this process, we invite all interested parties to a tour of our bank. Each tour will be designed to offer a first-hand look at the day-to-day activities and procedures involved in the banking industry.

With this exchange, we believe our employees will become more aware of the role consumers play in a productive economy, and in addition will provide consumers with an understanding of their importance to our business.

Please make arrangements for your tour now by calling Charlene Sanders at 364-3456.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if you want to forget all your troubles--wear tight shoes.

If people profit from mistakes, the future looks great.

Gray hair looks great--just ask any bald-headed man.

The Presidential debates are topics for discussion around the community and, as I heard one viewer say, "they're better than some of the other stuff on TV!"

There are some entertaining exchanges, but most of them have to do with the "big lies" we hear from Washington and politicians. One of the big lies we hear is that the federal government is underinvesting in education, children's programs, infrastructure and other war-on-poverty programs.

"Government Waste Watch," a publication of the Commission Against Government Waste, reports the truth is that "since 1989 real spending has risen 8 percent for education, 11 percent for highways, 58 percent for Head Start, 46 percent for food stamps, and 18 percent for child nutrition." The accusation that Bush has neglected social welfare programs is patently false, reports GWW.

Another Washington lie is that President Bush is a victim of a Democratic-controlled Congress. There is no doubt that the 102nd Congress is a free spending one, says GWW, but the president must take some of the blame for our fiscal problems. After all, his budget for 1993 calls for spending increase of more than 10 percent for the Departments of Education, Housing and Urban Development, Justice, State, and the Treasury.

The other standard Washington lie, told primarily by the Democrats, is that large deficits are a result of President Reagan's defense buildup, and that tax cuts can no longer be asserted with any credibility.

GWW points out that defense spending as a share of Gross Domestic Product is now lower than it was before Reagan took office, and tax revenues as a share of GDP are now at their 1979 level of 19 percent.

The main topic of the debates should be federal spending. So far, the candidates espouse all the things they're going to do for us, but they don't say how we're going to pay for those benefits. When one of them uses the word "invest," you can substitute the word "tax."

The road to prosperity, reports GWW, is not found in more federal spending. This can only lead to higher taxes, an out-of-control national debt, and economic peril.

Thursday's issue of The Brand included an article concerning "Media Day" at Holly Sugar. The huge economic impact which the sugar industry has on this region was told to visiting television, radio and newspaper people. That impact includes $40 million a year paid to beet growers, $5 million in payroll, about $5 million paid for goods and services, and a big chunk paid in local property taxes.

But, as Paul Harvey would say, here's the rest of the story.

When Fidel Castro took over Cuba in the late 1950s, the U.S. stopped buying that country's No. 1 commodity--sugar. That meant the door was open for more U.S. domestic sugar production.

One man who saw the open door and did something about it was James W. Witherspoon, longtime Hereford attorney and a leading promoter of agriculture in this area. He was determined to bring sugar beet production and a modern processing plant to Hereford and the area.

Jimmy began working with area farmers who were ready for an alternative crop and a steady market for it. He made countless trips to Washington and did much of the behind-the-scenes work that paved the way for the birth of area sugar beet production and processing.

His persistence caught the eyes of Holly Sugar officials in Colorado Springs, and they chose to build their newest plant in Hereford. Ground-breaking was in 1963 and the first beets were processed in the fall of 1964. Holly and Imperial Sugar merged in 1988 to become Imperial Holly.

A number of Deaf Smith County farmers played a role in helping establish the sugar beet industry here, but all of them point to Jimmy Witherspoon when they talk of the success of the regional sugar industry.

Now, you know the rest of the story. Mr. Witherspoon is currently living at West Gate nursing home in Hereford. He recently had his 86th birthday. If you have a chance, drop him a card or go by and see him.

Texas Court races

The early voting period is underway for the November general election, and most voters probably have made up their minds on who they'll vote for in the presidential and other races. On down the ballot, however, voters sometimes have a problem in voting for candidates for the Texas Supreme Court, Texas Court of Criminal Appeals and the Court of Appeals. We usually try to study the qualifications and make recommendations on these races. This year we are passing along the recommendations of the Texas Bipartisan Justice Committee, an organization dedicated to evaluating and supporting qualified candidates who exercise restraint in civil matters and who appear to take the interest of the victim into account in criminal cases.

Texas Supreme Court, Place 1: Oscar Mauzy(D) vs. Craig Enoch(R) Craig Enoch is the Chief Justice of the Fifth District Court of Appeals in Dallas. In that position he has a consistent, proven record of good decisions based on existing law. Enoch is the type man we need on Texas' highest court. Mauzy, a former state senator, is the candidate of choice for the trial lawyers. He is a judicial activist who might use a position on the bench to create, not interpret, law.

Place 2: Rose Spector(D) vs. Eugene Cook(R) Incumbent Eugene Cook has served on the Supreme Court since 1988. He has refused to accept any campaign contribution from any lawyer that has a case before his court. Vote Cook. Again, Rose Spector is the trial lawyers' candidate. She has served 18 years as trial judge in San Antonio.

Place 3: Jack Hightower(D) vs. John Montgomery(R) Incumbent Jack Hightower has served well on the court. Unlike fellow Democratic members, Hightower has shown judicial restraint in his decisions. He served this area well as a congressman and will continue to serve us well as Justice. Montgomery is a respected district court judge from Houston. He believes that the Texas Constitution should be strictly interpreted, but he lacks the experience to serve on the Court.

Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 1: Charles Baird(D) vs. Joe Devany(R) Incumbent Charles Baird's record positions him as one of the most liberal criminal appellate judges in Texas. He tends to rule on technicalities of the law, not the facts of the case. Devany should be the choice. He is the former presiding judge of the Fifth Court of Appeals, where he earned a reputation as a conservative jurist.

Place 2: Morris Overstreet(D) vs. Sue Lagarde(R) With a long record of work as a prosecutor, a trial judge and an appellate judge, Sue Lagarde's election would help return the Court of Criminal Appeals to a more moderate position. Judge Overstreet's voting record makes it difficult to support him. Cases indicate he has a problem in ruling against drug dealers.

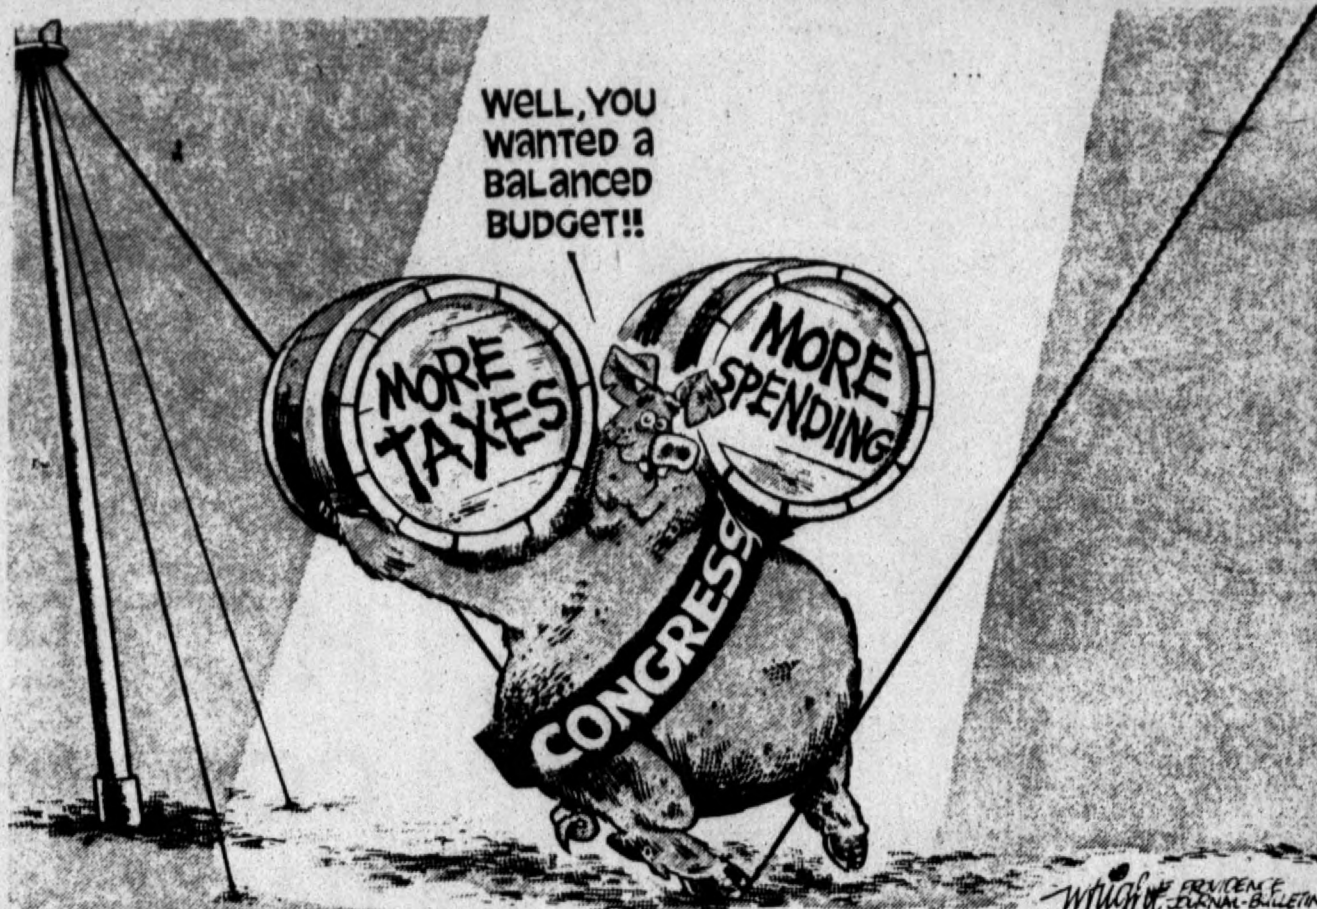

Place 3: Pete Benavides(D) vs. Lawrence Meyers(R) Judge Pete Benavides has only been on the Court of Appeals one year, but in that time he has a proven record of conservative decisions. He is the only judge on the court presently with both trial and appellate experience. Meyers currently serves on the Second Court of Appeals. Most of his legal experience has been as a defense lawyer.

Seventh Court of Appeals: Carlton B. Dodson(D) vs. Jairl Dowell(R) Judge Dodson has served well on the Court for many years. The Lubbock native has a record of solid decisions based on a wide knowledge of the law. Dowell is the unknown in this race. He is an attorney but has not actively campaigned for the seat on the Court of Appeals.

An AP News Analysis

Bush still faces comeback battle

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pull this one out and George Bush will have an upset ranking with the legendary comeback of the Democrat he used to invoke as a campaign role model, Harry Truman.

At this point, two weeks and two days from judgment, with Democrat Bill Clinton dominating the public opinion polls, Bush confronts the problems of catching up with few of the advantages that helped Truman do it in 1948.

A major difference between that campaign and this one: Truman campaigned relentlessly and consistently against the Republican establishment and the "do-nothing Congress." The Bush campaign has been one of shifting themes and tactics in the search for a message that will resell his administration to the voters.

He's campaigned to prove that he cares, he's run against "the gridlock Congress," crusaded for family values, denounced the tax-and-spend Democratic ticket, tried to make experience his issue, changed management, produced a belated, blue-bound agenda for a second term. Bush speeches now blend the pieces of those old themes, while concentrating on his latest - trust.

While the Republicans have experimented with the message, Clinton and the Democrats have been bearing down on the sagging economy, blaming GOP policies and saying the challenger will bring change for the better. At Clinton headquarters in Little Rock, the message was underlined in a sardonic wall poster: "The economy, stupid."

Bush picked up the Truman model last summer after he'd fallen far back in the poll ratings against Clinton, and promised a 1948-style campaign.

"I'm going to do what Harry Truman did, take that case to the American people," he said. But he didn't settle on any one case. Bush promised "the most stirring political comeback since Harry Truman gave 'em hell in 1948."

At about this point in his campaign against Republican Thomas Dewey, Truman was edging closer in the polls, although there wasn't an expert in the lot who thought he could win the election. He trailed Dewey by 6 points in a poll two weeks before the election.

The current polls put Bush 10 to 12 points behind Clinton. No candidate has overcome a margin that wide this late and won the White House.

Early in the campaign, Bush and Clinton waged an odd political custody battle over Truman, each claiming the heritage. And never mind that Bush not only voted for Dewey, he lost $10 betting against Truman.

Bush said Truman was decisive and Clinton equivocates. Clinton said Truman was for the average man and Bush cuts taxes for millionaires. But since Labor Day, there's been an unspoken Truman truce, and the name has dropped out of the campaign fare, although Sen. Al Gore brought it up again in the vice presidential debate.

"If you don't try to compare George Bush to Harry Truman, I won't compare you to John Kennedy," he told Vice President Dan Quayle.

Since Truman's comeback is the classic, the standard against which all the rest are measured, it comes up now in warnings against assuming the 1992 outcome because of the pollsters' odds.

But the Truman legend doesn't dwell on some of the things he had going for him against Dewey. The New York governor ran a campaign of leisurely platitudes and neither mentioned the Democratic president nor replied to his attacks on the GOP. The Clinton campaign has an instant response system; no charge or ad goes unanswered.

By the closing days of the 1948 campaign, as David McCullough recounts in his biography, "Truman," there were signs the president was gaining, although polls still showed Dewey comfortably ahead.

There were notable farm belt defections in Truman's favor and vast crowds were turning out to see him. Even so, every analyst agreed Truman was finished.

In this campaign, with the third and final TV debate between Bush, Clinton and independent Ross Perot coming Monday night, there have been no signals yet of a turnaround for Bush.

Arguing the experience and character issues against Clinton, Quayle said in his debate that there will inevitably be an international crisis for the next president. "We need a president who has the experience, who has been tested, who has the integrity and qualifications to handle the crisis," he said.

In Truman's time, the crisis wasn't hypothetical, it raged over Berlin during the campaign when the Soviet Union tried to cut Western access to the divided city. Truman's answer was the Berlin airlift, and by election time it was succeeding against the communist blockade.

Bush said last summer he had two copies of McCullough's Truman book, and that he'd started by reading about the upset victory, the happy ending. Now he's up against the deadline as he tries to write his own.

Notes on the Law

AVOIDING PROBATE?

One of today's favorite seminar topics is "Avoiding Probate." It is true that, through proper estate planning, you can eliminate the costs of probate. However, "there is no such thing as a free lunch." Many times the costs of "avoiding probate" will be as much or more than the costs of probate. Secondly, the costs of avoiding probate are not just monetary.

One of my favorite bumper stickers appears on the back of large motor homes and reads: "We are spending our children's inheritance." If you establish trusts to avoid probate, you may incur a non-monetary cost in the form of the loss of control over your assets. Many trusts allow you to only receive the interest income for the remainder of your life. The principal is left to be distributed amongst your children or other designated beneficiaries. In the event of some critical need, it could be difficult, if not impossible, to use the principal assets from the trust.

A second non-monetary cost of establishing a trust is the possibility of being temporarily disqualified from certain governmental benefits. When you establish a trust, you transfer assets to the trust. Some governmental programs, such as Medicaid, have a "transfer rule." Under this rule, the transferred assets may still be considered by Medicaid in the process of determining your eligibility. In other words, you may lose the use of the assets to meet a health care expense and not be eligible for Medicaid help. Thus, care must be taken in "avoiding probate."

As to monetary costs of avoiding probate, you must realize that equivalent costs may be incurred in property estate planning. Trusts are governed by complex laws and regulations. Many times the trustee is entitled to a fee for administering the trust. Also, it costs money to have the trust documents drafted.

With these costs, both monetary and non-monetary, the question arises of who needs to avoid probate. The answer is the usual lawyer's answer: "It depends."

If your concern is federal estate taxes, then you should be aware that there is no federal estate tax unless your estate exceeds $600,000.00. For a husband and wife, there is an unlimited marital deduction, which means that no estate tax is incurred upon the death of the first spouse. Also, the law allows you to give up to $10,000.00 each year to an individual without incurring gift taxes. Thus, if you have three children, you can give a total of $30,000.00 to them each year, which may reduce your estate below the level of federal estate taxes. If your concern is long-term health care, then you need to be sure to properly plan for any period of ineligibility for governmental assistance. Depending on your age, you may purchase life insurance or an annuity, which would help meet the costs of long-term health care and leave you with the control of your assets.

For those with progressive health problems, you may want to use a trust to insure your basic financial needs are met. As an alternative, you may want to use a power-of-attorney, giving a trusted family member or friend the power to manage your assets for your benefit.

There may be valid reasons to avoid probate. The monetary cost of probate is generally not a valid reason, unless you will be subject to federal estate taxes.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

To the citizens of Hereford, Texas...Recently I spent four days in the Deaf Smith General Hospital. I was extremely impressed by Dr. Robert Bidwell. He was caring, bright and very personable.

Then, I spent 12 days in my local Roswell hospital, which was twice as expensive on a daily accounting. Appreciate what you have there. I was impressed. Thanks--

Our teachers should not be expected to teach that you just don't have sex with anyone, and that you don't carry weapons to school. This teaching should be done by the parents.

Our children must take responsibility for their own actions, and we must teach them to handle it wisely.

Dear Editor:

I would like to voice my opinion on handing condoms out in school. I believe this issue should be put back in the home, not in the schools.

Instead of just teaching safe sex, our children should be taught some old-fashioned values--like respect for their bodies, and the beauty of sex in marriage.

This was and should be taught by the parents, not by the schools or the government. It seems the whole issue, as it is now, is teaching our children it's okay to have sex--just be safe.

What happened to the values our parents and grandparents taught us? This matter is out of control and it is up to the parents to do something to reinstate these values in our young society so they, in turn, can instill the same values in their children...and soon!

COUNTRY

Videos also have helped country move into the mainstream. The number of country videos has exploded to about 2,700, from a library of just 120 in 1983, when The Nashville Network and Country Music Television premiered on cable. Today, TNN has about 58 million subscribers, while CMT reaches about 17 million households.

Since 1980, the number of radio stations with country music formats has grown from about 1,500 to nearly 2,500 nationwide.

Country stations are Number One in cities as diverse as Seattle, Chicago, Dallas, Phoenix, Kansas City, Orlando, Fla., Buffalo, N.Y., and Bakersfield, Calif.

Another obvious sign of country's new popularity is the number of nightclubs that have quietly transformed themselves into country music dance halls. Here, would-be cowboys pull up in BMWs and Volvos to dance the Achy Breaky (Heart), the Tush Push or the Texas two-step.

"You get a lot of people coming in with their business suits one week and then the next week you'll see the same guy coming in, but he'll be wearing a cowboy hat and boots," says Todd Kunesh, who last November converted The Hop, a rock 'n' roll nostalgia club in Riverside, Calif., into the Riverside Cowboy.

The Riverside, one of an estimated 1,200 country music dance clubs in the nation, now draws nightly crowds of between 500 and 1,200 people, ranging in age from 21 to 81, Kunesh says.

The crowds are even bigger at Do Da's Country Dance Hall Saloon in Buffalo, N.Y., where 1,300 or more cram onto a 2,000-square-foot oak dance floor every night for free country and western dance lessons.

"It's really hot. They can't all fit on the dance floor so they're dancing in the aisles," says James DiBlas, who built the club for his daughter.

Many attribute country's resurgence to a new breed of young artists who have changed the image of country over the last five years.

Artists such as Clint Black, Vince Gill, Travis Tritt and others have drawn millions of young listeners by fusing rock and folk with traditional country for a sound that is often called "new country."

"Now the younger artists that are coming out are 20 or 25 years old, so a lot of people who are in that age group can relate to them. And they can certainly relate more to Clint Black than Michael Jackson," says John Saville, music director at Hartford radio station WWYZ-FM, the highest-rated station in its market for the age group 25-54.

If anyone epitomizes the crossover appeal of this new wave of country singers, it is Garth Brooks, an Oklahoman whose three albums have sold more than 20 million copies and sat at the top of the charts for most of the last three years.

Brooks' romping, guitar-smashing stage antics are reminiscent of The Who, one of rock's most enduring groups. But Brooks sings about problems of everyday life in songs that appeal to baby boomers grappling with mid-life and all its dreams and disappointments.

Behind Brooks is a long list of country singers who have managed to draw the MTV generation to country music.

Travis Tritt, 29, one of the most popular singers of this new breed, wears black leather instead of cowboy hats and sounds more like Bob Seger than George Jones.

"There used to be a joke that went, 'What do you get when you play a country music record backward?' and the answer was, 'You sober up and get your wife back,'" Tritt says.

"But now the bad stigma that was attached to country music - that it was crying-in-your-beer, hillbilly, backwoods music - is no longer there. It's not uncool to listen to country music now."

Little Texas, a six-member band with heavy-metal hairdos, is often compared to The Eagles, a '70s pop group.

Drummer Del Gray says Little Texas has found success with wholesome songs like "Some Guys Have All the Love" because many people have grown tired of the crudeness of rock and rap music.

"Raunchy has been taken to the raunchiest level and there's nowhere else to go," Gray says.

Mary-Chapin Carpenter, 34, a mainstay on the East Coast club circuit for years, has hit the top of the charts with songs like "Quittin' Time" and "Never Had It So Good." But her acoustic sound and sophisticated lyrics probably would have been labeled folk-rock up until a few years ago, when country opened its doors to new influences.

"It's not just let's just sit by the fire and play a banjo," Carpenter says. "The music is certainly more complex than I think it used to be. I think the key to it is good songs, songs that say something."

Some who have followed the country music industry for years say this latest surge is only one of many country has enjoyed over the last two decades.

"Before the Garth Brooks phenomenon, there was a big country music following out there. It didn't all happen last year," says Russ Barnard, editor and publisher of Westport-based Country Music magazine, "a 675,000-circulation magazine that has been covering country music for 20 years."

"The last few years have been very fruitful," Barnard says.

HOMEOWNER'S INSURANCE

Most people don't look closely at their homeowner's insurance policy until after a burglary, fire, earthquake or other disruption. There's nothing harder to decipher than pages of fine print detailing exceptions, exemptions, and exclusions. What many homeowners are not aware of is their total coverage. Most policies cover the dwelling, common household furnishings and the cost of temporary dwelling if the house is uninhabitable. Your homeowner's insurance usually protects you against certain types of personal liability. For example, if someone slips or falls on your steps or is hurt in the home itself. There are certain things that your insurance does not cover in the general policy unless a special endorsement or rider has been added. These things include precious jewelry, collections, antiques and other valuables. These items must be appraised and then added to the insurance policy. Maybe it's time you check your insurance policy for its coverage?

Hereford triumphs in Homecoming thriller

Here's your offense

Hereford quarterback Richard Sanderson (10) leads ballcarrier Petey Colvin (21). Colvin carried for 238 yards, and Sanderson carried for 128 and threw for 40--together accounting for 93 percent of Hereford's total offense in the Herd's 31-26 win over Randall. By the way, Colvin did not fumble on this play, although it looks like he's about to.

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford fans got their money's worth as Hereford came back to overcome a Randall comeback, then survived in the final seconds. Not until a Randall pass went 70 yards in the air and slipped through a Randall receiver's fingers at the goal line could Hereford claim a 31-26 Homecoming win.

It was a night for big plays--not just big as in "many yards," but big as in "game-turning." The last team to make one of those plays was Hereford: Jason Tatarevich hauled in a perfect 32-yard pass from Richard Sanderson to turn a long-shot of a comeback into reality. Two plays later, with 29 seconds left in the game, Petey Colvin scored the winning touchdown.

"I was stunned. I wanted to spike it," Tatarevich said of his catch. Hereford catches were a rarity in the game dominated by Colvin's and Sanderson's running. They had 238 yards and 128 yards respectively on the ground.

"It was just a fade route," Sanderson said. "He tries to get a step on the defender. He blew past him. It was a great route, a good catch. He used his speed to get past him."

"I broke outside and started to run," Tatarevich said. "By the time I looked up the ball was almost there."

Tatarevich was covered tightly on the play.

"I thought he did have a chance at it, but it came right to me--a perfect pass," he said.

"I can't believe that," Sanderson said of the whole game. "I was just hoping we'd get the ball back. I've never been through something like that, and I'm not planning on doing it again."

Colvin's four-yard run wasn't officially the winning touchdown until Brandon Barker had his shot. Barker, Randall's star quarterback, already had thrown for 279 yards and four touchdowns. He had 28 seconds left to go 67 yards.

He went deep on his first pass, but Cody Powell was there to break it up. Barker was hit by Steven Blea as he released his pass on second down, and it fell incomplete.

Travis Vasquez--perhaps Randall's best receiver--dropped passes on both third and fourth down. On third down, he was at midfield. On fourth down, he was inside the Hereford five-yard line. He had a couple steps on Hereford's defensive backs, and somehow Barker got it there. Had Vasquez caught the ball, he might have fallen as time expired, or he might have kept his balance into the end zone.

"I feel good, baby," Hereford coach Danny Haney said after the game made his team 2-0 in District 1-4A.

"The game wasn't won by individuals; it was won by the team," Haney said. "(It was different players) stepping up and making the play when the time came."

"I felt like the defense played well," he said. "We were playing a great athlete. It was the greatest quarterbacking exhibition I've seen in a long time."

"He's got a rocket," Powell said. "They go out on short routes, and before you could even break on the ball, it was there. And he's most deadly when he scrambles."

Barker hit on 16-of-27 passes, including six of more than 20 yards. Sometimes they were on Hereford mistakes, and sometimes they weren't.

"I think the defense is probably going to get a lot of questioning about our play tonight," safety Shawn Fogo said, "but overall we played well. We made some mistakes--there were a few obvious mistakes; they were bad--but as long as the team got one more win under its belt, that's all that matters."

The win is Hereford's fifth in a row after two losses to start the season. They're 2-0 in District 1-4A with another showdown Friday in Pampa. Randall drops to 1-1 in district and 5-2 overall under coach Alan Cornelius, a 1973 graduate of Hereford High.

Though Randall tried to run early, the game eventually became a battle between the run and the pass. Hereford had 383 yards on the ground--all but 27 by Colvin and Sanderson--but only 40 through the air, 32 of which came on Tatarevich's catch. Randall had 97 rushing yards to go with 279 passing yards, and 58 of the ground yards came on one run by Cox.

The kicking game was what ultimately decided the run-pass battle. Hereford's Greg Coplen hit all four extra points, plus a 28-yard field goal. Randall's Richard Morales hit two-of-four extra point attempts and missed a 28-yard field goal try. Those five points were the difference in the game.

The game started badly for Hereford as Randall's Tim Cox intercepted Sanderson on the first play from scrimmage. Herd receiver Richard Wilbanks broke behind the Raider defenders, but the ball was underthrown, tipped by Jason Caldwell and scooped up by Cox.

That was Randall's last break for some time, though. The Raiders moved inside the Hereford 20, but Gomez dropped Cox for a two-yard loss on first down, and Powell saved a touchdown and a first down with a tackle on a Barker scramble. Morales' 28-yard field goal try missed badly.

Hereford ran off three scoring drives with only seven yards coming through the air. Colvin accounted for 142 of these yards, including a 40-yarder to spark the first touchdown drive, which covered 80 yards. He ran the last yard for the score.

The Herd went 55 yards in nine plays on the next drive, with Sanderson keeping from five yards out for the score.

The third drive went 77 yards on 14 plays, ending with Coplen's field goal. That gave Hereford a 17-0 lead with 58 seconds left in the half.

A nice lead to take into halftime, right? Wrong. Barker heated up and hit three straight passes, the third a 15-yarder to a diving Jason Caldwell in the end zone.

The second pass went for 38 yards, and came on an unusual play. Hereford's linemen jumped, but not far enough to be offsides. Randall's center snapped immediately, thinking they were offsides, and none of the linemen on either side moved. Vasquez moved, though, right past Hereford's defensive backfield, as the Herd defensive backs apparently expected a whistle. Vasquez had an easy catch, then was caught from

Killeen upsets No. 1 Temple

DALLAS (AP) - The Killeen Kangaroos won last year's Class 5A Division I championship despite two regular-season losses. That point of reference, however, may not be enough to console Temple.

The No. 1 Wildcats were upset 14-7 by the defending champs Friday night, ending their hopes of an unbeaten season.

The state's other four top-ranked teams all won, including 3A's Southlake Carroll, which extended its state-record regular-season winning streak to 58 games.

For the Kangaroos (5-1), the victory may bring a chance to return to the rankings. It also served as revenge for last season's 40-21 Temple victory - one of two consecutive losses by Killeen before its title run.

Temple (6-1) entered the game riding high after victories over six returning playoff teams, including Odessa Permian, last year's 5A "small school" winner.

Wildcats quarterback Adrian Woodson began the demise late in the first quarter when his option pitch rolled into the end zone and was recovered in the end zone by Killeen's Jeremiah Johnson.

Killeen boosted its lead to 14-0 early in the second quarter when Mark Humble connected with Dion Marion for a 20-yard touchdown pass on fourth and 16.

Marion, a preseason AP Super Team member, had his second consecutive stellar performance, rushing for a game-high 147 yards.

Temple's Gerald Watson rushed for 116 yards on 17 carries. He scored the Wildcats' lone touchdown on a 2-yard run in the second quarter.

Both teams squandered other scoring opportunities. Killeen missed two field goals and Temple had a 5-yard third-quarter touchdown run by Woodson called back because of a holding penalty.

The race to replace Temple was to be waged Saturday night when No. 2 Jersey Village traveled to face Cypress Creek and No. 3 Dallas Kimball played host to Dallas North Dallas. Fourth-ranked Permian was idle.

Sophomore Demonce Suggs scored three touchdowns as No. 5 Spring Westfield defeated Klein Forest 28-14 and No. 7 Beaumont West Brook held off a last-minute rally by Deer Park for a 21-15 victory. All of Deer Park's points came in the last 1:04.

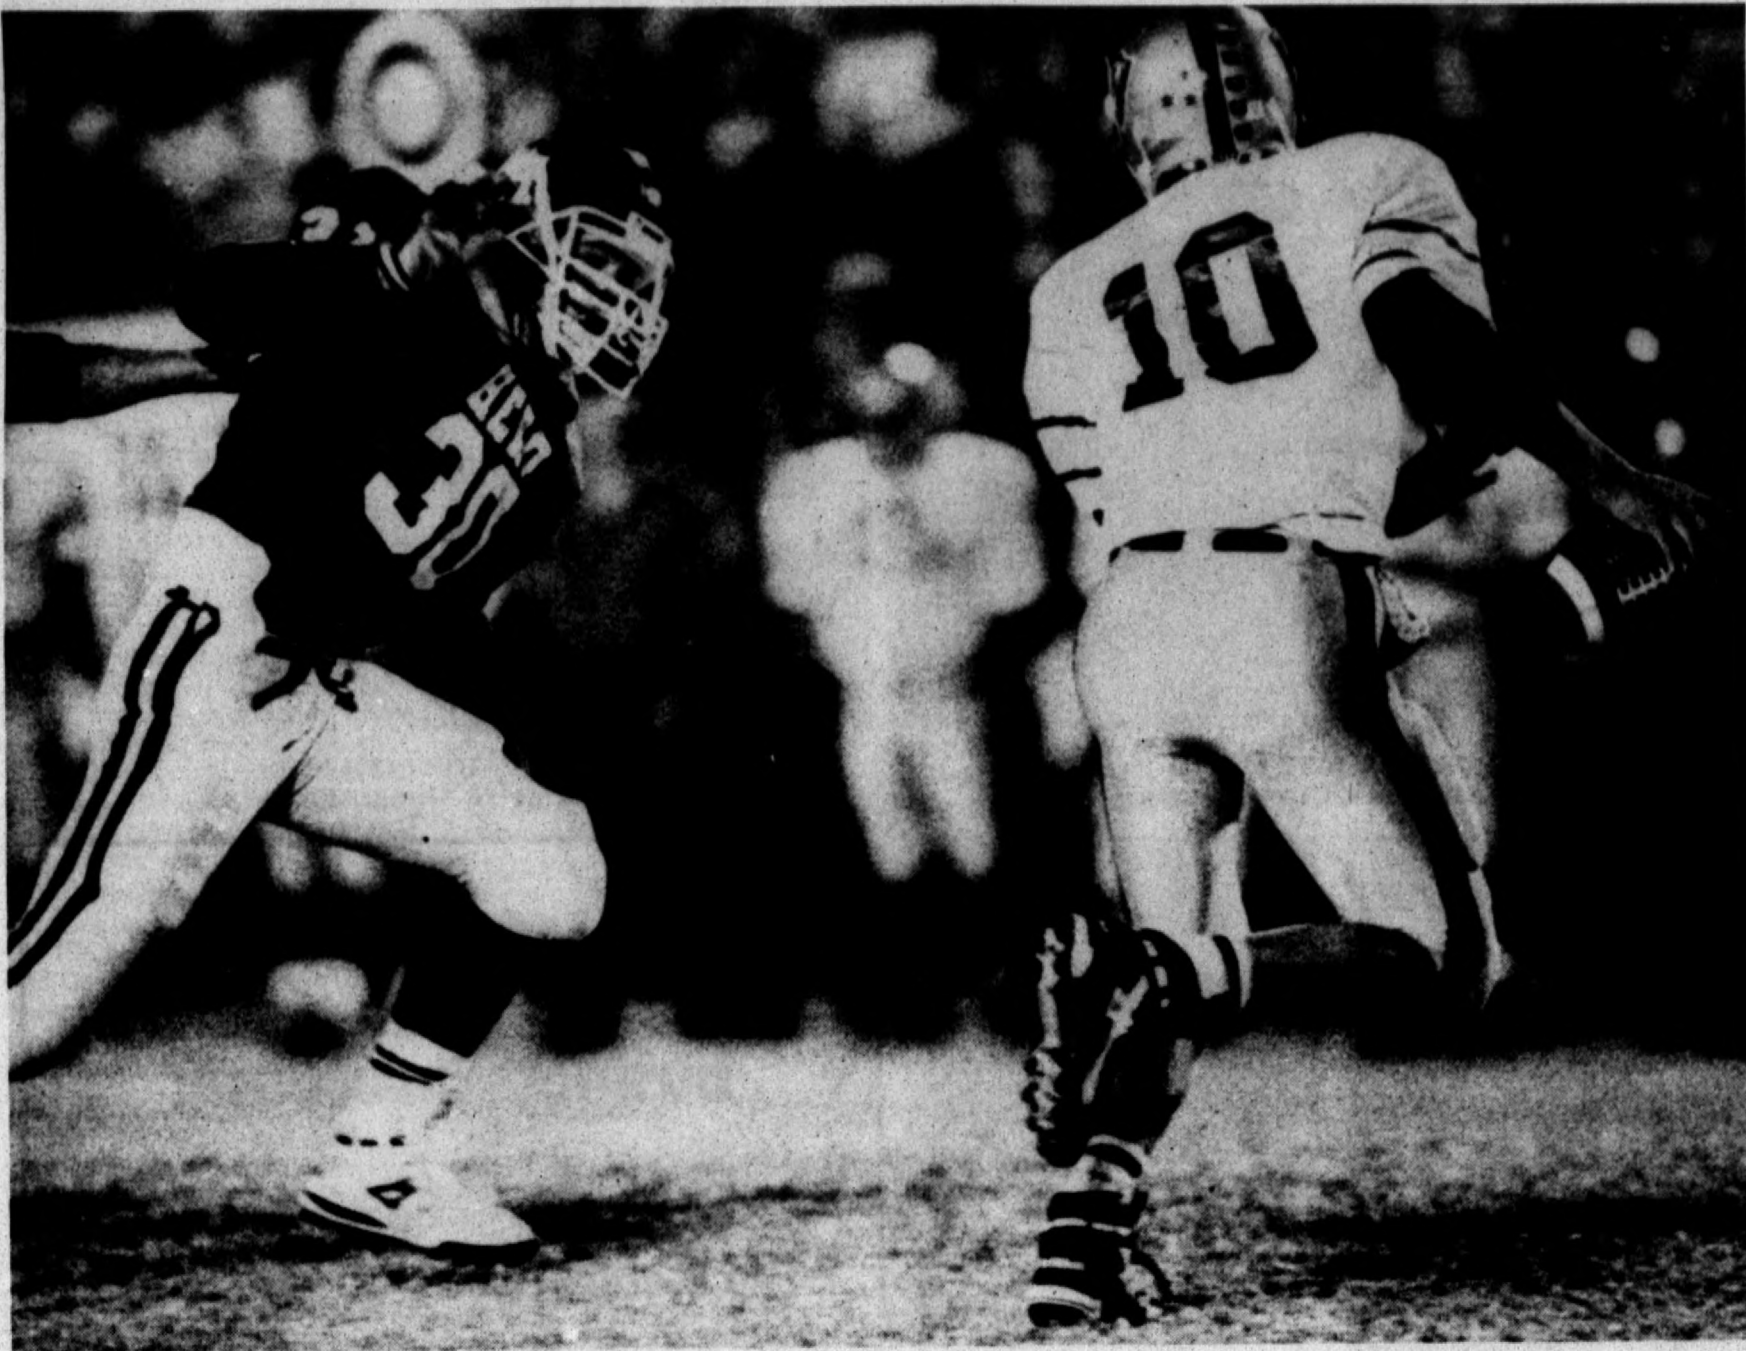

The three newest 5A poll members all cruised to victory, as No. 8 Beaumont Central smashed Vidor 34-0, No. 9 El Paso Irvin topped El Paso Bowie 51-27 and No. 10 Fort Worth Dunbar stuffed Fort Worth

There were no upsets or even any nail-biters in games featuring ranked 4A teams.

Top-ranked Carthage may have had the toughest time, defeating Hallsville 20-8 for its 19th consecutive regular-season victory. The Bulldogs led only 14-8 until scoring with 38 seconds left in the game.

Austin Westlake, ranked No. 2, handed Lockhart its first loss of the year 28-6 behind Brandon Benton's 137 yards rushing and two touchdowns. Lockhart's only score came in the game's final two minutes.

Third-ranked Waxahachie defeated Ennis 34-16. No. 4 A&M Consolidated handled Tomball 38-7. No. 5 Austin Reagan cruised past Austin McCallum 42-0 and No. 6 Bay City downed West Columbia 39-7.

Barker stayed hot most of the second half, when he had 200 of his yards. On the opening drive of the second half, he hit 4-of-5 for 72 yards, including a 25-yard touchdown to Vasquez. Morales missed and the score was 17-13.

Hereford responded with a long drive, but turned the ball over on downs when Travis Sims stopped Sanderson on fourth down and three. Randall gave it right back when Barker fumbled and Fogo recovered at the Raider 18. Three plays later, Sanderson scored from seven yards out. Coplen's kick made it 24-13 with 1:11 left in the third.

Austin LBJ and New Braunfels, making their debuts at No. 9 and No. 10, each won easily. LBJ downed Austin Travis 26-7 and New Braunfels stopped Smithson Valley 24-3.

In Class 3A, Lake Dallas made an early bid to end Southlake Carroll's monstrous winning streak, tying the Dragons at 7-7. But a 35-0 scoring run by Carroll put the game out of reach.

Second-ranked Vernon again was eagerly waiting for the Dragons to slide, trashing Henrietta 40-0. Third-ranked Bellville topped Hempstead 47-22 and No. 4 Waco Robinson took out Marlin 35-7.

Jefferson upset No. 8 Daingerfield 12-10 and defending state champion Groesbeck ruined No. 10 Mexia's first game in the poll with a 27-8 victory.

Class 2A's top team Freer continued to show its power, pounding Premont 75-0. The Buckaroos, who posted their fourth shutout of the year, have outscored opponents 237-3 in four games as the state's No. 1 team.

But that wasn't the biggest 2A blowout - No. 3 Van Alstyne demolished Community 77-0. Eighth-ranked Boyd also cruised to victory, embarrassing Paradise 70-7.

Preseason No. 1 Grapeland, ranked fifth, continued its fight to regain the top spot by knocking off No. 5 Grapeland 35-7.

Defending champion Schulenburg, ranked fourth, defeated Weimar 47-14. No. 6 Pilot Point throttled Howe 39-0 and No. 7 Tidehaven beat Boling 19-8.

and dropped him for consecutive three-yard losses. A holding penalty against Hereford contributed to a fourth-and-23 situation at midfield, and Hereford punted. Fogo's punted rolled to the Randall five with 3:43 left in the game.

Randall got one first down, but that was it, and they punted. Gomez made a fair catch at the Hereford 45, and four plays later, Sanderson and Tatarevich hooked up on the 32-yard pass.

"We just played hard, and we wanted it more than they did," Hereford lineman Steven Blea said. "And it was Homecoming."

JJ wants loud fans

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - There's no "dogpound." Fans don't paint their faces, wear indian feathers, and throw things.

Texas Stadium is no pit, yet.

But coach Jimmy Johnson and owner Jerry Jones and every other member of the Dallas Cowboys organization whose initials are or aren't "JJ" have all but gone door-to-door this week asking fans to disrupt the Kansas City Chiefs audibles on Sunday.

"Kansas City is good at calling audibles and picking a team apart," said Johnson. "For us to be successful, our defense will have to have the same crowd noise we had at the Washington game to open the season."

A noisy sellout crowd had the Redskins jumping offside, missing audibles and in a general state of offensive confusion when the Cowboys opened the season with a 23-10 victory over the defending Super Bowl champions.

Jones also was on the cheerleading bandwagon.

"We want the crowd involved," Jones said. "We would like to see them very vocal like at the Washington game. We'd like to see more of it."

The Dallas fans were dead at last Sunday's 27-0 rout of the Seattle Seahawks.

"I guess that happens when you win big," Jones said. "But we really need help against Kansas City. We have seats close to the field. Texas Stadium was built for football. I think the enthusiasm of our fans could be a key factor in the game."

Dallas has won nine consecutive games in Texas Stadium, it's best home winning streak since winning 18 in a row back in the early 1980s. The Cowboys haven't lost at home since the New York Giants beat them on Sept. 29, 1991.

"Teams sometimes complain about the shadows and sunlight in Texas Stadium and the crown of the field," Jones said. "I think the big difference we are winning at home now is the talent on the field and the fans in the stands."

The Cowboys, 4-1, are rated four-point favorites over the 4-2 Chiefs mainly because of the homefield edge. The Kansas City game was sold out in July.

"We're one of only nine NFL teams who have sold out all their home games," Jones said. "We know our fans can be vocal."

Dallas and Kansas City are infrequent opponents. The game marks only the fifth meeting between the two clubs. Each has won twice with the most recent victory coming when the Chiefs beat Dallas 36-28 at Arrowhead Stadium in 1989.

The Chiefs have lost their last two road games at Houston and Denver.

Have you seen this offense?

By JOHN MOSSMAN

DENVER (AP) - Coming to a supermarket near you: pictures of the Denver Broncos offense on the side of milk cartons.

When last seen, the Broncos produced all of 128 yards in a Monday night fiasco in Washington, leaving them ranked 27th in the 28-team NFL with a meager per-game output of 213.8 yards.

How can this missing-in-action team possibly have a 4-2 record? It's a question the Houston Oilers asked themselves as they prepared for Sunday's meeting with the Broncos in Mile High Stadium.

The Broncos are averaging just 3.2 yards per rush--the next-to-worst average in the league. They have been successful on a pitiful 26.6 percent of their third-down conversions. Bronco quarterbacks have been sacked 25 times, tying them with winless New England for the league high.

OILERS

As a result of the offensive ineptitude, even the respected Denver defense has faltered, largely because it has been forced to stay on the field an average of eight minutes longer per game than the opposition defense. No defense in the NFL has had more running plays (209) or total plays (381) run against it.

Denver's victories can be attributed to a pair of fourth-quarter comeback drives engineered by John Elway (over the Los Angeles Raiders and Kansas City) and the fact that it has played two of the league's weaker teams (San Diego and Cleveland). It hasn't hurt that the Broncos have played three of their games at home, where they're practically invincible.

The Oilers have personal knowledge of Elway's comeback ability. They jumped out to a 21-0 lead over the Broncos in the playoffs last year, but Elway engineered a 78-yard drive that included two fourth-down conversions to produce a winning field goal with 16 seconds left in a 26-24 victory.

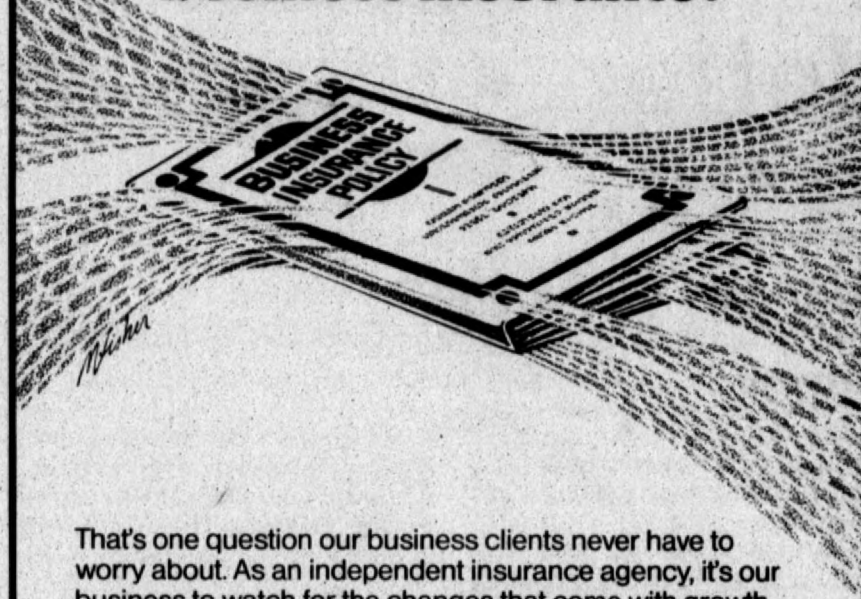

Including that improbable triumph, the Broncos have won 13 of their last 14 home games.

Last year's playoff result still sticks in the Oilers' craw.

"Last season's loss still hurts a lot," said Houston wide receiver Haywood Jeffries. "We had them down and we let it slip away. It will be nice to get back to Denver and release some of the hurt and pressure we felt from not advancing to the AFC championship game."

Hunters can train dogs to stay away from snakes

By LARRY MORGAN
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - The bird hunters gathered around the defanged rattlesnake coiled in the grass but kept their distance as if it were a hot campfire.

Each hunter knew better than to approach. But their bird dogs knew nothing more than to follow their noses.

Curiosity would cost these dogs a jolt from a shock collar. But in all probability it would save them, and perhaps a hunter, the agony of a rattlesnake bite in the field.

Call it what you will - de-snaking, snake-proofing - it's a procedure that keeps dogs from nosing within striking distance of a rattlesnake.

And in bird hunting, dogs are part of the equipment and snakes are a part of the hunt. Snake-proofing is a way to keep the two separate.

It works, well, too, although the shocking appears cruel to the dogs.

"It's better than a snake bite," said Dr. Richard Schafer, a Corpus Christi veterinarian. "I don't like shock collars for a lot of things. But it's better than the alternative. I'm sure there are other ways (to snake-proof a dog) but they take a lot more time and patience."

But Schafer warned that snake-proofing a dog by using a shock collar is for experts only. It is vital that the dog associates the shock with the snake. Doing otherwise can be damaging to the dog.

Luther Young is one of those, recognized among many local bird hunters for his knowledge of training bird dogs.

For anyone who hasn't seen a dog snake-proofed, it is a remarkably quick process. It's not really even a process.

Young uses a live rattlesnake, rendered harmless to the dog. The dog is led near the snake and when it goes to investigate the dog is briefly shocked.

"The first time, you bring the dog in from downwind of the snake," Young explained to a recent gathering of hunters. "You want the dog to see that snake. Smell that snake. Hear that snake."

Immediately when the dog receives the jolt, Young tells the hunters to "pull back on the lead until the dog comes to you. We want the dog to identify you with safety.

You'll pet it, stroke it; make the dog think it's the greatest thing in the world."

Richard Shockey led his English pointer, Prince, toward the coiled snake, its vibrating rattles sounding like a swarm of bees. Just as Prince stuck his nose down to investigate, Young pushed a button that would send a brief electric shock to the collar around Prince's neck.

Prince bolted backward and Shockey yanked on the rope lead to bring the dog to his side. Theoretically, the dog is taken upwind of the snake and the process repeated. But with Prince, and each other dog during this session, that is not necessary.

Shockey tried leading the dog past the snake but Prince shied away. Then Shockey moved opposite Prince, with the snake between them, and tried pulling Prince with the lead. Prince dug in and fought back.

"No, Richard, I don't think you're going to pour that dog over that snake," Young said. "That's what you want."

In the field, a dog's reaction could be a warning to the hunters.

"This isn't 100 percent, but it you're out hunting and all of a sudden you've got your dog under your feet you can be pretty sure there's a snake in the area," Young said.

Snake-proofing doesn't guarantee a dog won't be bitten by a rattlesnake. There always is the chance a dog will jump over something and land on one, or the dog may be upwind of the snake and simply not detect it until it's too late.

Schafer said 90 percent of the snake bites suffered by dogs are to the leg or face. Obviously, one bitten during a hunt will require immediate attention.

Many variables affect the severity of the injury: the size of the snake; whether it recently bit anything else and is short on venom; and whether the snake bite hit muscle or a vein or artery. But no matter how severe the bite, the hunter must act fast.

Schafer said the best procedure is "pack it in ice until you can get the dog to a vet or hospital. Packing it will decrease the blood circulation and slow down the metabolism of the foreign protein in the venom that is causing (blood vessels) to break down. If you can keep the dog quiet, that's the best thing."

It's also difficult. A bite is painful, which increases the heart rate, which raises circulation and spreads the venom.

"Certainly you don't want to run the dog back to the truck," Schafer said. "If you carry it or drive the truck back to the dog, that's better."

A bite that penetrates a blood vessel and lets venom reach the bloodstream is the most dangerous, Schafer said. Hematoxin in the venom not only destroys red blood cells but also the blood vessel and its linings.

"If the venom gets into a vessel the only chance to save the dog is with antivenom - and quickly," Schafer said. "If more than an hour passes there is not much chance of saving the dog."

Administering antivenom is no simple matter. Schafer said it must be given intravenously and costs $150 per dose. If a large snake made the bite, sometimes two or three doses are required.

If the bite is in muscle, there is more time and more chance to save them, Schafer said. The usual treatment is with cortisone, and hunters who are comfortable with treating a dog may be able to obtain a snake bite treatment kit from a veterinarian that would include cortisone.

He said two methods that are not recommended are electroshock (the so-called stun guns) and the cutting and suction method. The latest studies of electroshocking haven't shown any good results and the cutting and suction method usually does more damage than good because it gives the venom a chance to get into vessels.

Jefferson has good hog hunting

By BOB HOOD
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
JEFFERSON, Texas (AP) - At first light, a yearling whitetail deer moved from the dense cover of woods into a narrow opening. Within minutes, the small doe would be just the tattleale I had hoped she would be.

I was sitting in the confines of a box blind only 60 yards away, one of several hunting blinds on the Busy B Ranch six miles north of Jefferson.

The deer season hasn't opened here yet, but that didn't matter. What I was after this morning were feral hogs, wild animals that have long lost the domestic characteristics of their ancestors.

One thing you learn early about feral hogs is that, except for humans, they seem to have no enemies. They pretty much rule the woods, and all other animals do everything they can to stay out of the hogs' way.

The Busy B Ranch is a commercial hunting and fishing facility operated by J.D. Bonner and his son, Jason Bonner.

In addition to a big population of feral hogs, the ranch also has an abundance of whitetail deer, along with some great bass fishing on two lakes of about 10 acres each.

"We have some really good deer and hog hunting," J.D. Bonner had said earlier, "but that's just part of it. The fishing is great, too, but we have a lot of people who just come out here to get away from it all - to just sit back and relax or take a walk through the woods."

The Bonners also provide guiding services on several lakes in the area, including Caddo, Lake O' The Pines and Wright Patman.

The Bonners, like myself, consider the feral hog one of the best-tasting animals that can be hunted. And, because there is no closed season on feral hogs in Texas, there didn't seem to be a better time to hunt them than on this cool, crisp morning.

As I watched the little doe standing at the edge of the opening, the day's first light began to spread around us, gradually separating the tiny openings from the thick trees, brush, and vines.

Yesterday, I had watched this opening for several hours, but the only thing I saw was a four-point buck that walked to within 10 yards of the box blind, nibbled on a vine, then disappeared into the woods.

I had seen several hog tracks in the area, however, and decided to try my luck again at daybreak.

The little doe seemed calm at first, grazing slowly and looking up only every once in a while to check her surroundings.

After several minutes of grazing, however, she became nervous. Her head jerked up sharply, and she stared to her right. She started to lower her head again but suddenly jerked it back up and remained motionless for about 20 seconds. Then she flicked her tail a couple of times, turned back toward the woods and sprang out of sight with her flaglike tail waving behind her.

That was all the message I needed. There were no other hunters here, and my guess was that she had been spooked by feral hogs.

I waited for about a minute and then saw them - two feral hogs, one walking behind the other, out of an opening toward where the deer had been standing.

The hogs, one weighing 85 pounds and the other 80 pounds, were just what I was looking for - "good eaters," as J.D. Bonner called them. "If you get a chance to get two of them, do it," Bonner had said. "I need one for the freezer."

The distance was short - no more than 60 yards - and I knew dropping one of them with my .243 would be easy. Getting the second one, however, hinged on its reaction to the shot.

The first hog went down without even a squeal. The second bolted to the right, turned to look back and it, too, soon became a candidate for the Bonners' freezer.

Training Zebras
NEW YORK (AP) - The much-maligned "zebras" of the NFL also train for a new season.

Clinics for the NFL officials were held in two areas this summer. There was one in Los Angeles and another in Washington, D.C. Officials took rules tests, studied video tapes and participated in physical training drills getting ready for the season.

Did You Know You Are Paying 20% Less For Electricity Than You Did Nine Years Ago?

(94% of our customers didn't.)

Average SPS Residential Electricity Price

Actual Price
Price Adjusted for Inflation

In 1983, you could buy a cup of coffee for about 25 cents. Today, you pay around 75 cents. An automobile that carried a sticker price of $8,200 is now listed for $15,000.

Compare this to the average residential cost of electricity in the SPS service area.

In 1983, you paid 7.59 cents per kilowatt-hour. Today that rate has been reduced to 6.08 cents. That is 20% less! And, when you adjust for inflation, the real cost has been reduced 42%!

Our heating rate has been significantly reduced, too. Today, you pay only 2.92 cents per kilowatt-hour to heat your home electrically. That is much less than the national average for electric home heating.

And, because industrial and commercial rates, as well as residential ones, have come down, the area as a whole benefits. SPS' low rates can help attract new industry and encourage local companies to stay in our area.

Freshmen get to play in Southwest Conference

By DAVID McNABB
The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS (AP) - Whether buoyed with improved 1992 recruiting classes or affected by dwindling scholarships, Southwest Conference football coaches agree on the result: more freshmen are playing throughout the league.

Each of the eight SWC schools has played as many or more freshmen than it did last season. Midway through the season, 55 freshmen have played in games compared with 33 at this point last season.

These are not redshirt freshmen - players who sat out games their first college season but retained four years of eligibility - but freshmen who were playing high school football a year ago.

"There used to be a coaching axiom that for every sophomore you started, you could figure one loss," said Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum, who has played six freshmen. "Now, we're starting freshmen."

Only three freshmen have started, but nearly all of the 55 have played regularly. Most coaches won't waste a freshman's year of eligibility by having him participate in only a handful of plays.

Texas Tech, TCU and Baylor have combined to play 27 freshmen. League-wide, five freshmen have played at quarterback, one of the most difficult positions to learn quickly.

Texas has used freshmen receivers Mike Adams and Lovell Pinckney and running back Curtis Jackson to bolster its offense. Adams is the SWC's top punt returner. Baylor running back Brandell Jackson is third in kickoff returns.

Some of the freshmen have played because of injuries and a lack of depth at particular positions. Many of the freshmen have surpassed more experienced teammates because of superior athletic ability.

"Maybe it goes back to the time of when the league was having problems," Baylor coach Grant Teaff said. "We recruited better players this year than we did during some of those seasons, and they have leapfrogged some sophomore and junior classes."

Teaff was referring to a period from 1985-88 when five football teams received NCAA sanctions.

The NCAA also has reduced the number of scholarships from 95 to 92. The total number of scholarships available will be dropped to 88 in 1993 and 85 in 1994. Many coaches say the reductions will force them to play more freshmen.

Slocum said injuries also could force him to play two more freshmen, offensive lineman Calvin Collins and running back Leland McElroy.

Another factor in playing freshmen is the possibility of entering the NFL draft as underclassmen. A&M started defensive end Sam Adams as a freshman last year and rotated running back Rodney Thomas in regularly last season. Thomas is the SWC's sixth-leading rusher as a sophomore. Greg Hill, a third-year sophomore, is second in SWC rushing.

"If these players are as good as we think, we can't expect to keep them around here five years," Slocum said.

Tech and TCU have increased their recruiting emphasis on speed and have used those recruits to strengthen their defenses. TCU started linebacker Lenoy Jones before he turned 18 on Sept. 25.

"It doesn't matter whether they're a senior or freshman, we're going to play our best guys," TCU coach Pat Sullivan said. "It just so happens some of the freshmen have played better than some with more experience."

SMU has used eight freshmen but still may be able to redshirt quarterback Ramon Flanigan, who injured his thumb against North Texas on Sept. 12. NCAA rules allow players injured in the first two games to have a year of eligibility restored.

SMU actually has used a smaller percentage of its most recent recruiting classes because of a large senior class. SMU used eight freshmen of a 16-man class in 1991 and has used eight of a 15-man class this season.

The more freshmen who play, the more others will want to play.

"I saw (Houston's) Dedric Mathis and (TCU's) Lenoy Jones playing, and I wanted to play, too," Baylor backup freshman quarterback Adrian Robinson said. "If they can do it, so can I."

UT coach Mackovic getting results

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Here's a question for all the early John Mackovic attackers, those orangebloods who don't like his CEO, button-down tie, business suit approach to college football: How much fun did you have last Saturday in the Cotton Bowl?

It was a taste, just a wee flavor of what the multiple, pass-first, run-second Mackovic offense can really do when it starts cooking.

"John was hot, really hot," Texas assistant Gary Darnell was saying a day later. "Every time Oklahoma blitzed, John and (quarterback) Peter Gardere nailed 'em."

Texas rolled up 197 yards rushing and 274 yards passing in a 34-24 victory against one of the better defenses in the nation.

Mackovic said later he was "surprised" how well everything worked.

This should be sounded as a warning to the remaining Southwest Conference teams on the Texas schedule. Imagine how the Longhorns will look if they keep improving every week.

In fact, Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum, watching the game at home on television in the Aggies off-week, said the very same thing.

"Impressed? I was very impressed," Slocum said. "That was an eye opener for sure."

Mackovic is doing things his way and has taken heat from some alumni who use the words "cold" and "aloof" to describe him.

But Mackovic did all the right things to defeat Oklahoma in one of the biggest games of the year to Texas backers.

He even called the coach he replaced, David McWilliams, asking for some advice on how to handle the big game.

He even asked former Texas coach Darrell Royal to give the team a pep talk on Friday night prior to the game. Royal did. (Before the game, Royal said, "I hope what I said helped. It's hard to know how to talk to the younger generation. I wanted to tell 'em not to pass the ball. I liked to run it myself. But John does have a tremendous offense and knows how to exploit defenses.")

Mackovic didn't mind asking for help before the big Oklahoma game.

Does this sound like somebody who is cold and aloof and has a bunker mentality?

Mackovic does all the right things when it comes to school traditions. He gives it the "Hook 'Em Horns" and stays on the field when the school alma mater is played after games.

Does this look like somebody who is cold and aloof?

On his television show last Sunday night, Mackovic even chastised a few of the Oklahoma fans who poured beer on coach Gary Gibbs after the game.

"That was disappointing," Mackovic said.

Mackovic is still a recruiting class or two away from getting his program firing on all cylinders. He admitted much work needed to be done in an off-week to mend flaws he saw.

"It's back to hard work for us," he said. "You're either green and growing or you're ripe and rotting."

Even the harshest of Longhorn critics must admit the Texas football program is growing and blooming under Mackovic.

Book covers history of UT's stadium

By RICK CANTU
Austin American-Statesman
AUSTIN (AP) - A recently published book, "For Texas, I Will," by Richard Pennington, looks at the history of Memorial Stadium and covers options for the future - including most of the expansion possibilities that recently have been in the news.

The book takes its name from the slogan that was used during the 1924 Memorial Stadium fund-raising drive in which more than 10,000 students, alumni, and others pledged money to build the stadium. Excavation and construction cost $275,000 - which Pennington notes is about half of what a layer of artificial turf costs these days.

Pennington, a native of Dallas who graduated from UT in 1975 with what he describes as a "deep, but not obsessive" interest in Longhorn athletics, set out to tell the whole story - the rich history of the stadium, the people who built it, the athletes who have competed in it, the fans who call it home, and the historic events that have taken place there.

In his preface, Pennington writes: "I want to keep alive - or perhaps revive - the memory of some people who played major roles in the building of Memorial Stadium and its early years."

"Aside from a handful of UT historians, who today remembers H.J. Luther Stark, L. Theo Bellmont, William McGill, Max Fichtenbaum or Jake Bleymaier? Who has heard of Louis Jordan and the other Texans who fought and died in World War I? They provided the inspiration to construct the stadium, which was an urgent practical necessity in 1924."

Pennington conducted more than 200 interviews and did exhaustive research through letters, scrapbooks, old newspaper and magazines and official documents to piece together "For Texas, I Will."

The famous Percheron horses originally came from Leperche, France.

A sidesaddle riding exhibition was part of the 1992 Belmont Horse Fair.

Book review

New book records cattle feeding story

For the first time ever, cattle feeders and western historians have a comprehensive history of cattle feeding in the Southwest. Title The Finishing Touch, the new book is authored by Charles E. Ball, executive vice president emeritus of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

The book is a 192-page compilation of little-known facts, anecdotes and history of cattle feeding in the Southwest. While "modern" cattle feeding in the region is only a few decades old and there are still a few oldtimers around to tell about it, this history of the industry reaches 300 years into the pages of time.

As Ball researched the book, he found that much of the history of "cattle feeding country" wasn't readily available. "The libraries were full of cattle books on subjects like trail drives, famous ranches and breeds of cattle," he says. "But there was nothing on cattle feeding—the other half of the cattle business, and a very important half."

Unlike many written histories, this book brings a human touch to cattle feeding's past through the personal accounts of the men and women who made much of the history happen. With 243 photographs, The Finishing Touch fills a historical gap that long has been dormant.

The book takes a chronological look at cattle feeding, starting 300 years ago with feedyards and forefathers. Other chapters explore the early feedyards in the Southwest...the entry of big government...the boom...the major issues that shaped the industry...and the people and the feedyards that brought "cattle feeding country" to the forefront of the modern cattle business.

For Ball, writing the history was a labor of love. He retired in 1988 as TCFA executive vice president, a position he held for 16 years. For 20 years prior, he reported in Farm Journal magazine on the birth and early years of the cattle feeding industry.

The Finishing Touch sells for $29.95 ($35 with tax and postage) and is available from the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, 5501 W. I-40, Amarillo, TX. 79106.

The average car in America now gets about 20 miles per gallon.

CALM FRIDAY

youngsters, were told not to attend school or other school-related functions on Friday; they followed orders and didn't go to school.

During the game, Department of Public Safety Sgt. Marshall Henderson was on the sidelines, occasionally joined by other DPS troopers; other officers were positioned around and under the stands at the game. A few ruffians were escorted from the stadium, but no untoward incidents were reported.

The tab for the beefed-up patrol has yet to be figured, but will be several thousand dollars in taxpayer money to be paid by the city, Hereford public schools, Deaf Smith County sheriff's department and Department of Public Safety.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) - Mother Teresa has been named the second recipient of Notre Dame University's award for humanitarian service.

"She is one of those few precious human beings whom one hesitates to describe, because words truly cannot do her justice," university President Edward A. Malloy said Wednesday. The 82-year-old Roman Catholic nun has run a mission for the poor in Calcutta, India, for 43 years. She received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979.

President Jimmy Carter won the Notre Dame award last year.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Country singers Kathy Mattea and Mark Chesnutt will give an AIDS benefit concert Nov. 8.

The show will be the finale of a pledge walk to raise money for AIDS victims.

Organizers said Wednesday they hope to raise more than $100,000.

Pet Ott, a member of the Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers organization, is cooking up "goodies" for the Sweet Bee planned from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 21, in the ballroom of the Hereford Community Center. Tickets are priced at $5 per person. Those attending will be served salads, dessert, breads and dessert. They will also have the opportunity to sample a variety of sweets and will be given a cookbook of the recipes sampled.

Public invited to Sweet Bee Oct. 21

The Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers will host a Sweet Bee from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 21, in the ballroom of the Hereford Community Center. The public is invited to attend. Tickets are priced at $5 per person. Chef salads will be served during the meal and a variety of sweets will be available to sample. Each paying guest will receive a cookbook of the recipes sampled and a potpourri of other favorite recipes.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

Special thanks goes to everyone that helped the Hancy family after their fire.

A community CPR class will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the lounge of the Hereford Community Center.

A first aid class will meet at 6 p.m. at the Nazarene church. Those taking the class must have a current CPR class certificate and pre-register by calling the office at 364-3761.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

Three Capitals

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - The Confederate States of America, during its brief lifetime from 1861 through 1865, had three capitals.

The first, from February to May 1861, was Montgomery. The capital then moved to Richmond, Va., until the city's fall on April 3, 1865.

Reception planned today

Friends and family are invited to attend a 40th wedding anniversary reception for Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Bradley from 2-4 p.m. today, Sunday, at Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger Drive.

The couple requests that no gifts be brought.

Commissioner Precinct 1

Tony Castillo
(Democrat)

KIKA DE LA GARZA
15TH DISTRICT, TEXAS

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515
September 30, 1992

Dear Voters of Deaf Smith County:

It is with great pleasure that I endorse the candidacy of Antonio "Tony" Castillo as Commissioner for Deaf Smith County.

Tony Castillo understands the meaning of hard work. He is the son of migrant workers and in 1986, started his own business by purchasing a truck and hitting the road as an independent trucker.

Tony Castillo is devoted to his community and concerned about his community. He served in Vietnam. He is active in his church and his children's school. He has travelled to Austin to represent the cause of his fellow truckers on insurance rates and regulations.

Today, Tony Castillo wants to serve the people of Deaf Smith County. I believe he will be a fair and effective public servant for all county residents, including farmers and ranchers because he knows the importance of agriculture to the Texas Panhandle economy.

Tony is also dedicated to rural development and to the protection of our soil, water and energy resources. These are some of the reasons that I encourage you to vote for Tony Castillo, the Democratic nominee for Deaf Smith County Commissioner, Precinct 1, on November 3rd.

Sincerely,

Kika de la Garza

Diabetes Management seminar set Oct. 27

An estimated 800,000 Texans have diabetes, with one-half of this group unaware that they have the disease. The lucky ones are those that know they have the disease and are currently in a diabetes management program.

Deaf Smith General Hospital and the Family Living Committee of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service will cosponsor a Diabetes Management Workshop on Tuesday, October 27th. There will be two sessions and those desiring to attend should choose one of the sessions.

The first session will be held at 2:00 in the auditorium of the Senior Citizens Center and the second session will be held in the Lounge of the Community Center and will begin at 7:00 p.m.

Three segments will be presented with various speakers presenting the medical, dietary and exercise management of diabetes.

The public is urged to attend and the seminar will be free. While reservations are not required, a call to the County Extension office at 364-3573 would insure adequate hand outs available.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Regular eye exams important

Maintaining good vision may be a first step in reducing headaches caused by eye fatigue, the Better Vision Institute (BVI) says.

There are a variety of eye conditions that have subtle symptoms which can lead to eyestrain that can result in headaches.

Refractive errors such as farsightedness, nearsightedness, astigmatism and presbyopia (aging eyes) can cause eyestrain and headaches because a person must exert extra effort to maintain clear vision.

Some common signs of vision impairment include:

-Mistakes in routine work or domestic chores.

-Difficulty in performing new tasks or activities.

Nieman named director of DSC Spelling Bee

AMARILLO--O.G. Nieman, publisher of The Hereford Brand, has again been named Spelling Bee Director for Deaf Smith County.

The annual National Spelling Bee, co-sponsored in this region by The Amarillo Globe-News and West Texas State University, is open to any student who must not have passed beyond the eighth grade at the time of their individual school finals, and must not have reached their 16th birthday on or before the date of the national finals.

The director will select a date and site for the county event. All schools in the county are invited to participate.

There are two levels of competition: (1) The Junior Bee is open to any student in grades five and below; (2) the Senior Bee is open to any student in grades eight and below.

The county winner will compete on April 17 in the 45th regional competition in Canyon. The top speller will receive an all-expense paid trip (for two) to Washington, D.C. as the area's contestant in the 1993 National Spelling Bee. This event begins on May 30.

Additional information is available from Jeane Bartlett, spelling bee editor, Amarillo Globe-News.

Reception set for former 1950s HHS graduates Oct.24

All early 1950s graduates of Hereford High School are invited to attend a reception from 2-5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, at the E.B. Black House.

Those planning to attend are asked to bring photos of their families, grandchildren and other memorabilia. Refreshments will be served.

For further information, call Sue Andrews at 276-5604.

Students invited to participate in program

All 10th through 12th grade students in public, parochial and private schools are invited to participate in the Annual VFW Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program. This year's theme is "My Voice in America's Future."

According to Dr. Stan Fry, commander of VFW Post #4818, "Students win more than awards and scholarships when they participate in the scholarship program." Some of the fringe benefits are increased self-confidence and poise, experience in communicating with others and valuable training in self expression. For the state winners, there is also the broadening experience of a five-day tour of Washington, D.C. and the opportunity to make lasting friendships with the other state winners.

Marie Goheen serves as the local VFW Auxiliary Voice of Democracy chairman. She stresses that all students interested in participating must have their entries or the school winners' tape, script and entry form in the possession of the VFW Post chairman by Nov. 15, except where prior arrangements have been made between the school and the VFW Post.

Participants will submit a script of not less than three minutes or more than five minutes. Judging will be done by listening to the cassette tape submitted by the student. This program is not intended to be a speech competition and students are not required to give an oral-personal presentation. All entries will be judged on the quality of the tape-recorded message.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Hereford High School teachers: Mary Parker, Lana Hall or Joe Don Cummings. Tommy Goheen is the VFW Voice of Democracy chairman and Linda Maeder, VFW Auxiliary president.

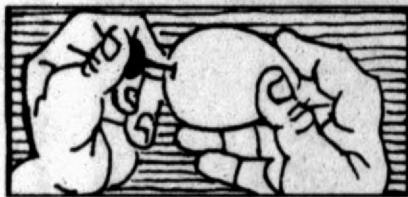

The Voice of Democracy Program began in 1946 and was originally sponsored by the National Association of Broadcasters with assistance from the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. Since its inception, more than 6,000,000 high school students have participated. From among the state winners, national winners are chosen to receive a total of over $78,500 in scholarships.

Currently, in the 1992-93 program year, the first place scholarship is $20,000; second place, $15,000; third place, $10,000 fourth place, $5,500; fifth place, $4,000; sixth place, $3,000; seventh place, $2,000; eighth place, $1,500; ninth place, $1,500; 10th place, $1,500; 11th place, $1,500; and 12th through 24th place, $1,000.

Wine Into Cognac

COGNAC, France (AP) - It is ironic that the wine of Cognac's vineyards is almost undrinkable in its original state.

According to the Cognac Information Bureau, the wines of local Ugni Blanc, Folle Blanche and Colombard grapes, which eventually become cognac brandy, are highly acidic and pungent to the taste.

Hard boiled eggs may be easier to peel if you pierce the large end with a thumbtack before cooking.

Women attend state meeting

The Texas Extension Homemakers state meeting held recently in Galveston was attended by several Hereford delegates. They included, sitting from left, Maudette Smith, Sherri Blackwell and Carol Odom. Also, present at the meeting were, standing from left, District I Director Johnnie Messer and Deaf Smith County Extension Agent Beverly Harder. At the meeting, Deaf Smith County captured first place in the membership poster contest competition.

Genealogy Society to meet Oct. 19 at Community Center

A two-part program will be presented by Sylvia Murray of Amarillo during the Deaf Smith County Genealogy Society meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the game room of the Hereford Community Center.

Murray will talk about filling out forms and searching church records. The society invites all genealogy researchers to come to the meeting whether they are beginners, intermediates or experts.

Also, during Monday's meeting,

If no candidate for president has a majority of electoral college votes, the House of Representative chooses a president from among the three highest candidates, with all representatives from each state combining to cast one vote for that state.

Deaf Smith County captures first place

Members of the Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council met Monday in Deaf Smith County Library for a luncheon and to hear reports from the state delegates, Sherri Blackwell, Maudette Smith and Carol Odom.

The women, who recently attended the state meeting in Galveston, were also accompanied by the District I Director Johnnie Messer and DSC Extension Agent Beverly Harder. At the meeting with 954 delegates in attendance, it was noted that District I was also represented by the youngest member, Paula Jones, 26, of Boys Ranch, and the oldest woman, who was 93.

Deaf Smith County captured first place at state in the membership poster contest competition and Edna Schulte won a second place ribbon in state for her porcelain doll entered in the cultural arts division.

The state delegates attended workshops on the six education committees in which club programs will be given from the committees.

Recognized as special guests at the council luncheon were Barbara Stern, Vernice Parsons, Ashley Hicks, Virgie Duncan and Clara Trowbridge.

It was announced that there will be a leaders training ("On the Road Again") presented by Maudette Smith at the November meeting.

Plans were finalized for the Sweet Bee luncheon to be held from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. Oct. 21 at the Hereford Community Center. For the admission price of $5 per person, a meal of salad, breads and desserts will be served and a cookbook will be available. A quilt will be the door prize.

There were eight clubs represented at the luncheon with six having 100 percent attendance.

MARY VARNER, TERRY ZIMMERMAN

Wedding date set

Mary Bell Varner and Terry Lee Zimmerman plan to marry Feb. 13, 1993, at Temple Baptist Church in Hereford.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Joyce Varner of Hereford and the late David Varner. The prospective bridegroom is the son of John and Cecilia Zimmerman of Gove, Kan. Miss Varner is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School and is currently employed by the Hereford Independent School District as a teacher's assistant at Aikman Elementary School.

Zimmerman is a 1985 graduate of Wheatland High School in Grainfield, Kan. and is a 1990 graduate of Fort Hays State University in Hays, Kan. He is also employed by Hereford I.S.D. as a technology education teacher at Hereford Junior High School.

Lightning can light up the world, but it can't warm up a stove.

Hints from Heloise

FAST FACTS

Other uses for vinyl placemats:

- Use to line shelves.
- Place under flower pots.
- Use under the dog's or cat's dish.
- Place under your hand before painting your fingernails.
- Place under the coffee maker on the kitchen counter.

HINT FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: The long narrow plastic bags that newspapers often come in make perfect dust protectors for men's neckties.

Simply slip the bag over the tie, make a small side opening and slip it on the tie rack. — Jack Eppolito

Dear Heloise: Cleaning out the fireplace can be a messy job, particularly removing ashes from the grate.

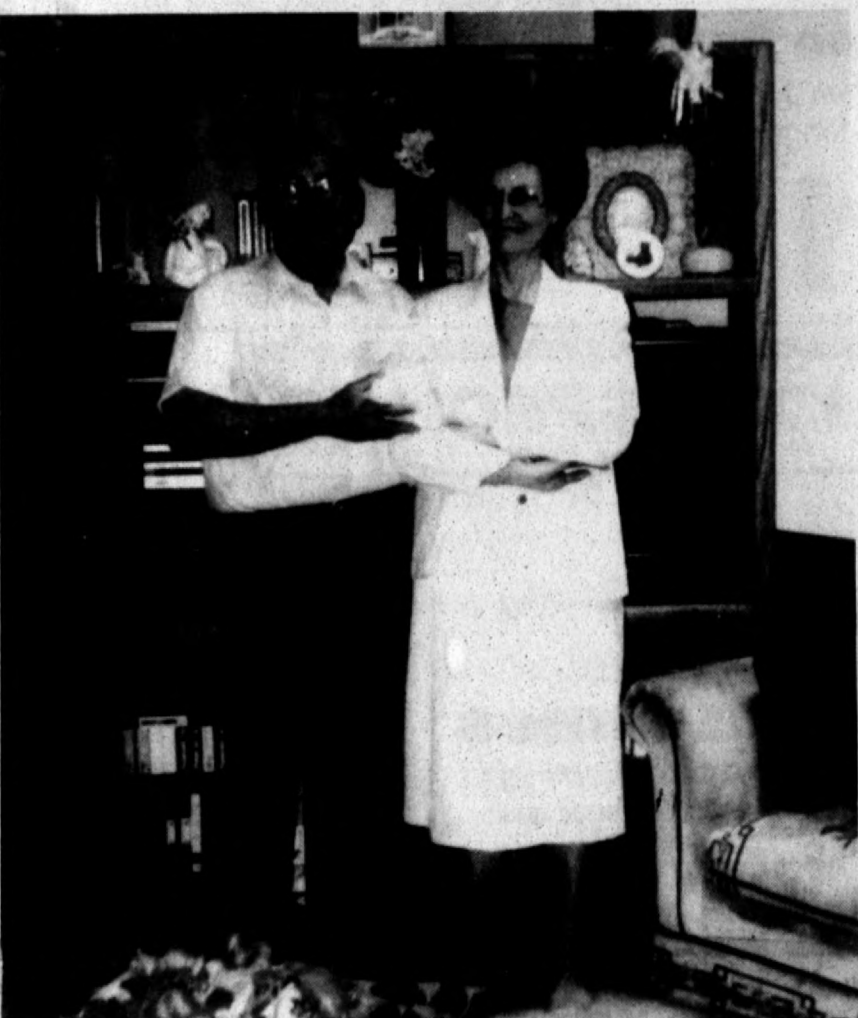

Here's a tip to make that messy job easier. Use a plant mister to dampen the ashes before sweeping them out. You'll keep them from flying all over the room. — Helen Whittaker, Cocoa, Fla.

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: My 4-year-old twins have the new toddler beds that the crib mattresses fit. My peeve is that the sheets that fit a crib mattress are babyish. The children's sheets all fit twin-size beds. — Amy Cashman, Park Forest, Ill.

MR. AND MRS. JOE BOWERS

McCracken to celebrate 90th birthday Tuesday

Long-time Hereford resident and community leader, John Clayton "J.C." McCracken, will be celebrating his 90th birthday Oct. 20. Friends and relatives are invited to send him birthday greetings at his address, 205 N. Texas St.

Mr. McCracken was born Oct. 20, 1902, in Iowa. He moved to Hereford from Lincoln, Neb. in 1929 and married Dessie Mae Steel May 30, 1931. The couple has a daughter, Sylvia McCullough of Wichita, Kan. Their son, Jack, died in 1980. They also have four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mr. McCracken and Bill Davis founded Davis-McCracken Implement in 1935. He has retired from the implement business as well as the farming and ranching business. He has served on numerous boards at First United Methodist Church and was president of the Rotary Club. He served three terms as city commissioner and was also on the school board. He helped establish King's Manor Methodist Retirement Home and was actively involved in FFA.

Couple to observe wedding anniversary

Joe and Clea Bowers of Hereford will be observing their 45th wedding anniversary today, Sunday.

Bowers and Clea Lovell were married in Fort Stockton in a small private ceremony followed by a reception in the groom's parents' home.

The couple finished high school in Fort Stockton where Joe was captain of the football team. Following graduation, he served in the United States Army and met his future wife when he came home from his tour of duty. He worked in his father's construction company for several years.

The Bowers moved to Hereford in August 1964 from Tucumcari, N.M. Mr. Bowers was employed by Ferguson Construction Co. which built Holly Sugar. After the construction was completed, he began working for Holly and was employed there for 27 years as the outside supervisor until his retirement Nov. 1, 1991.

The Bowers are actively involved in the Christian Assembly Church on N. Main St. where they teach the youth Sunday school class. Mrs. Bowers is an active member of the Flame Fellowship.

Since retiring, the couple has enjoyed numerous trips to East Texas, New Mexico and Colorado. Their hobbies include creating a variety of arts and craft items in their extensive wood working shop.

The Bowers' daughters and spouses are Pat and Albert Cupell of Amarillo and Lt. Col. Randy and Deb Kalkman of Colorado Springs, Colo. They also have five grandchildren.

One Tough Game

RUGBY, England. (AP) — "Rugger," the game of rugby football first played at Rugby school in 1823, is reputed to be more strenuous than American football, which was adapted from it. Rugby players wear no padding or helmets.

There are no "timeouts" unless a player is seriously injured. Teams cannot send in substitutes for injured players. And the fast-moving game is played without breaks in two 40-minute halves.

Both rugby and American football use an oval ball, but forward passing is banned in rugby, whose teams have either 13 or 15 players instead of 11.

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN M. JONES

Couple married in Canyon

Twyla Cherise Chesher and Brian McKenzie Jones, both of Hereford, were married Friday evening, Oct. 2, in Wesley Methodist Church in Canyon.

The marriage ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Jim Wingert of the center.

The bride is the daughter of Albert and Jan Chesher of Friona and the bridegroom is the son of Paul and Martha Jones of Hereford.

Following a honeymoon to Angel

Fire, N.M., the couple resides in Hereford.

The bride graduated from Friona High School and West Texas State University. She is a first grade teacher at Aikman Elementary School.

The bridegroom, a Hereford High School graduate, attended Amarillo College. He is currently engaged in farming with his father northwest of Hereford.

Marriage planned

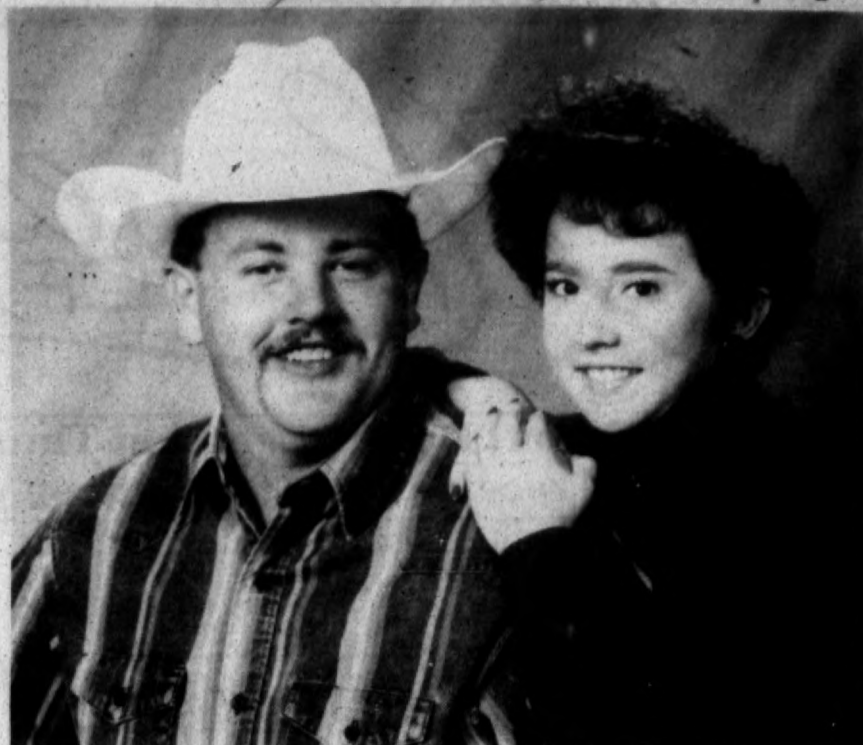

Brenda Jean Bell of Hereford and Randy Scott Davis of Summerfield plan to wed Nov. 21 in First Christian Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Ronnie and Rita Bell of 202 16th St. and the prospective bridegroom is the son of R.C. and Verna Davis of Farwell.

Miss Bell is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and attended

Clarendon Junior College and West Texas State University. She is currently employed by Barrett and Crofoot. She is a member of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division.

Davis, a 1987 graduate of Farwell High School, is also a graduate of Clarendon Junior College. He is employed by Barrett and Crofoot.

BRENDA BELL, RANDY DAVIS

Tickets now available for Distinguished Lecture Series

With the ever changing climate of the presidential election and with the election looming in the very near future, West Texas State University will host political analysts Rowland Evans, Jr. and Robert D. Novak as the 10th guests of the West Texas State University Distinguished Lecture Series just one week prior to the national election.

Tickets for the Oct. 27 lecture are available to the general public at the Credit Bureau of Amarillo and the Panhandle, 912 South Taylor, Amarillo. Tickets are limited to two per person while supply lasts and are free of charge.

The co-hosts of Cable News Network's weekly program, "Evans and Novak," the duo is a hard-hitting, fast-talking pair of political analysts who have crisscrossed the globe, reporting on everything from grassroots sentiments to world-leader dictates. The team first paired up in 1963 to write "Inside Report." The 30-year-old political column is still published four times a week and is syndicated to more than 100 newspapers nationwide. They also publish two biweekly newsletters, Evans-Novak Political Report and Evans-Novak Tax Report and have coauthored the books Lyndon B. Johnson: The Exercise of Power, Nixon in the White House: The Frustration of Power and The Reagan Revolution.

While popular as a team, each also enjoys solo success. Evans is an occasional guest on NBC's "Meet the Press" and ABC's "Nightline." Novak is the executive producer of CNN's political roundtable "Capital Gang" and a frequent co-host of "Crossfire." Both are frequent contributors to such periodicals as Harper's, The Saturday Evening Post, New Republic, Atlantic Monthly and Reader's Digest.

WTSU established the Distinguished Lecture Series as a complimentary service of West Texas State University and the Credit Bureau of Amarillo and the Panhandle.

Improper use of medicine can seriously harm children

Parents beware: More than 200 million prescriptions are dispensed for children each year - and nearly half of those prescriptions are being taken incorrectly.

Medication misuse is America's other drug crisis. Every year, medicine mistakes lead to hospitalization and even death for many children. So, besides discouraging illegal drug use, parents need to encourage proper use of legal drugs.

When children don't take enough of their medicine, or stop taking a medicine too soon, they may not control serious diseases such as cancer, kidney failure and epilepsy. When they take too much of a medicine, they may experience annoying or dangerous side effects - ranging from diarrhea or stomach upset to potentially fatal breathing problems or loss of consciousness.

How Can You Help?

How can you help children avoid medication misuse? October is "Talk About Prescriptions Month," and October 25-31, is "National Pharmacy Week," so this is a good time for parents to start communicating with their children and their neighborhood pharmacist about proper medicine use.

Parents should talk regularly to the doctors and pharmacists who care for their children's medication needs.

They should also get complete instructions on proper medication use and follow them to the letter, according to NARD, the national association representing the nation's 40,000 independent pharmacies.

At a minimum, parents should find out for each prescription:

-The name of the medicine and what it is supposed to do.

-How much of the medicine the child should take, when to take it and for how long.

-What foods, beverages, other medicines or activities the child should avoid while taking the medicine.

-Possible side effects, and what to do if they occur.

-If there is written information about the medicine available for you to take home.

When talking to children about medicine, parents should explain the difference between using illegal drugs and taking medicines in order to get well. It's important to get children involved in following the correct treatment.

Parents should also make sure that babysitters and relatives who take care of the children understand a child's particular medication routine.

Nature is visible thought.

Sun Fruit

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) - Raisins, or sun-dried grapes, come in four main varieties: Thompson seedless, muscats, sultanas and Corinthian.

It takes about 3 1/2 pounds of grapes to produce one pound of raisins.

Grapes become raisins after drying in the sun for about two weeks. Raisins contain 24 percent moisture and 71 percent carbohydrates. They have 10 minerals, including iron and copper, and are a source of vitamins A, B-1 and G.

Casual legwear hits stride

When American women "dress for success" these days, casual legwear is likely to be part of the look.

Studies show women are wearing more slacks, stirrup pants, short skirts, leggings and warm-up suits where dressier attire once was mandated-special occasions, work, church and entertaining.

Helping them step out in style are new casual legwear looks such as casual socks; slouch socks that bunch above and around the ankles for a laid-back look; trouser socks that keep legs covered when you sit and let your pants fall naturally when you stand; and terrific tights-including capri tights, which end below the calf, in a variety of colors and patterns.

NEW YORK (AP) - Paul Newman tucked a napkin under his chin and went to work - tasting and tasting and tasting again - until he'd sampled all seven entries in The Culinary Oscars.

Then the actor awarded the $50,000 first prize to Janet Sutherland of Escondido, Calif., whose lasagna primavera was made with Newman's Own Marinara Sauce with Mushrooms.

"Oh gosh, I knew he had good taste," Mrs. Sutherland said Wednesday.

All the prize money goes to charity.

Newman's Own food company donates all profits from its salad dressings, popcorn, spaghetti sauce, salsa and lemonade to charity.

Selling pancake tickets

The Golden K Kiwanis Club members are selling tickets for their annual fundraiser, an all-you-can-eat pancake supper planned for 5-8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. Tickets are priced at $3.50 per person and may also be purchased at the door. Mildred Garrison sells tickets to Mike Carr.

Yogurt's a good health food

Yogurt has long been considered a "health food" - and for good reason. Not only is yogurt a relatively low fat source of protein, but due to the action of the live, active cultures, the protein it contains is more easily digested than that in milk.

Yogurt also is an excellent source of calcium and supplies potassium, riboflavin and folic acid as well.

Yogurt's healthy image is due, in part, to the beneficial bacterial cultures it contains. Some manufacturers heat treat their yogurt after the cultures are established, destroying most of the cultures before they can be consumed. But some yogurt contains live, active cultures, so you can get all the possible health benefits from the yogurt you eat.

What are the benefits? In addition to the nutritional merits of yogurt, scientific studies have found that yogurt with live, active cultures has a definite role in improving lactose tolerance, fighting gastrointestinal infections, and boosting immunity.

Research has shown that many people who are lactose intolerant can eat yogurt without experiencing any of the discomfort they usually have with milk products. Why? It seems to be the action of live, active cultures.

Once consumed, the cultures seem to "pre-digest," or break down, the lactose in the intestine. So, those who once avoided dairy foods because of lactose intolerance can enjoy all the goodness and great taste of yogurt without experiencing symptoms.

It also is well documented that yogurt cultures (L. bulgaricus and S. thermophilus), as well as L. acidophilus, produce lactic acid during fermentation. This action may help inhibit the growth of a variety of harmful foodborne organisms like Salmonella. In addition, yogurt cultures produce bacteriocin (bacteria-produced antibiotics), which work in the same way to help restore the natural intestinal cultures.

And recently, scientific research has verified what many women have believed for years - that eating yogurt regularly can decrease the incidence of vaginal yeast infections.

Since 1920, the most successful third party candidate for U.S. President has been George Wallace, running on the American Independent Party in 1968, he racked up 9,906,000 popular votes out of a total of 73,212,000.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF CHANGES IN ELECTION PRECINCTS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, pursuant to Article 42.035, Texas Election Code, of changes in election precincts of Deaf Smith County, Texas. County election precincts were modified by action of the Commissioners Court of Deaf Smith County in compliance with duties imposed by the United States Constitution, Texas Constitution, Texas Election Code and Chapter 42 United States Code 1973c, otherwise known as the Voting Rights Act. The changes made accomplish numerical balance between the four Commissioners Court precincts, and insure opportunities for minority impact upon electoral offices within the county.

Maps of the modified election precincts are available for inspection in the Deaf Smith County Clerk's Office, Deaf Smith County Courthouse, Hereford, Texas, during business hours of 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday, county holidays excluded. The public is encouraged to review the adopted election line changes prior to any election utilizing said boundaries. Published once each week for three (3) consecutive weeks, beginning October 18th, 1992.

County Judge,
Deaf Smith County

AVISO PUBLICO DE CAMBIOS EN RECINTOS DE ELECCION

Aviso es dado, en acuerdo con artículo 42.035, código de elección de Tejas de cambios en recintos de elección en el condado de Deaf Smith.

Recintos de elección del condado fueron cambiados por acción de la corte de comisionados del condado de Deaf Smith conforme a impuestos para cumplir con la constitucion de los EEUU constitucion de Tejas, código de elección de Tejas y capítulo 42 código de los estados unidos 1973c, de otra forma conocido como el acto de derecho de votar. Los cambios hechos lograron balance numerico entre los cuatro recintos de la corte de comisionados y asegura oportunidades para impacto menor en oficinas electorales dentro el condado. Mapas de los recintos cambiados de elección son disponibles para inspeccion en la oficina del secretario del condado, casa de corte, condado de Deaf Smith, Hereford, Texas, dentro horas de negocio de las 8:00 A.M. alas 5:00 P.M. lunes a viernes, dias feriados excluidos. El publico es apollado a revisar los cambios de las lineas adoptadas antes de cualquier eleccion utilizando las lineas. Publicado una vez por semana por tres semanas consecutivas empesando October 18th, 1992.

Juez del Condado de Deaf Smith

MASTER BED ROOM ENJOYS PRIVATE SITTING AREA

Country Exterior Complete with Bona fide Front Porch

© BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

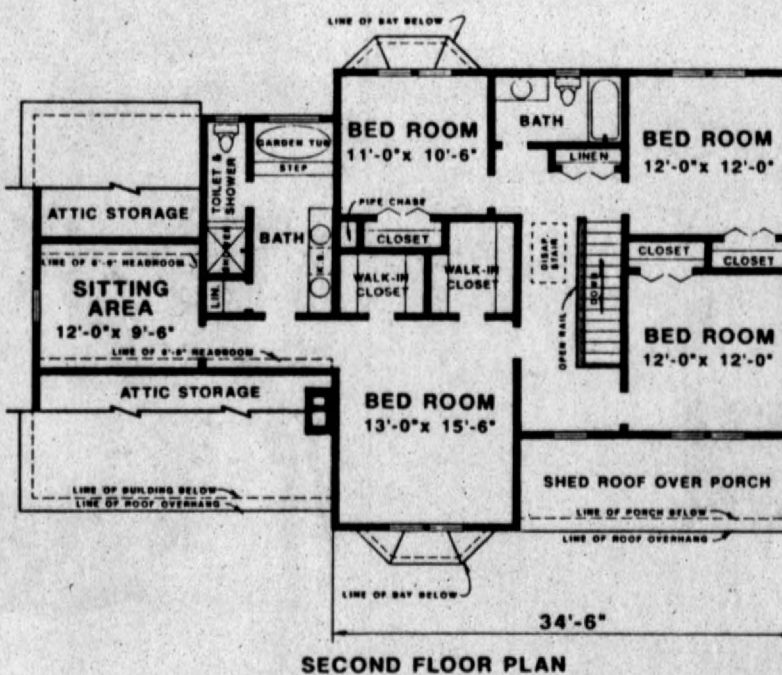

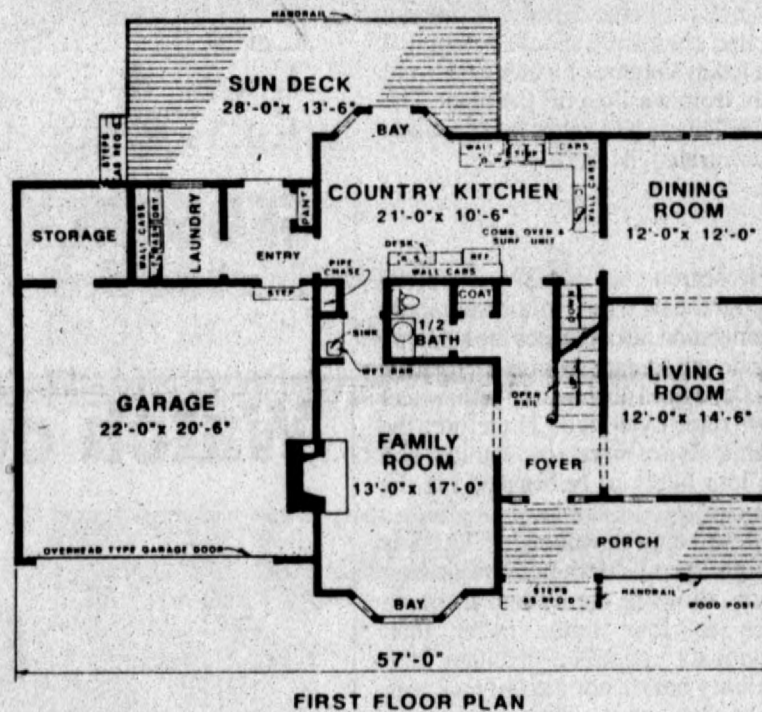

A bona fide country front porch directs you to the foyer that serves as a midpoint for access to all areas of the home plan. The family room, living & dining room, country kitchen and second floor are all immediately accessible.

The first floor also includes a central powder room, basement stair, laundry room and sun deck. The second floor features four bedrooms. The master bedroom is endowed with a private sitting area, luxury garden bath and two large walk in closets. The central hall is shown with an open rail encompassing the stairs and the three remaining bedrooms share a central full bath.

Horizontal wood siding, a bay window, wood rail porch and gable roof design complete the rustic exterior.

The plan is Number 2555. It is a computer generated plan. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn in compliance with FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Sugar, corn leaders ask NAFTA changes

American sugar farmers and processors can support a North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA)—but only if it is revised to prevent the Mexican industry from receiving an unfair advantage over the U.S. sweetener industry, according to Bill Cleavinger, president of Texas Sugar Beet Growers and vice chairman of the American Sugar Beet Growers Association.

The TSBGA sent proposed modifications in the plan to U.S. Ag Secretary Edward Madigan and to Carla Hills, U.S. trade representative. The sugar industry's opposition to NAFTA were recently presented at a House Agriculture Committee hearing in Washington by Cleavinger and other officials in the industry.

"If passed in its present form, the NAFTA could cause serious damage to the U.S. sugar industry," said Cleavinger.

Cleavinger points out that Mexico is virtually always a net importer of sugar and, as such, it should fall into NAFTA's category for phasing in its access to a large chunk of the U.S. market over 10 to 15 years. Under the proposal, Mexico could fall under the "surplus producer" calculation after only six years.

Cleavinger added that since Mexico's sugar market will change to include corn sweeteners, then they should be included in the consumption portion of the producer formula.

The NAFTA plan will encourage Mexico to expand its use of corn sweeteners in order to ship sugar to the U.S., said Cleavinger. He said this could undermine the 1990 Farm Bill. The minimum import quota in the bill is supposed to maintain refining capacity in the U.S., but this would be "effectively negated" if Mexico becomes a significant supplier of raw sugar to the U.S.

Urbanczyk preparing for judging season

Hereford native Greg Urbanczyk prepares for a season of competition as a member of the South Plains College livestock judging team. He and the other six team members participated in the Texas Beef Exposition livestock contest in Austin. Urbanczyk, son of Tony and Loretta Urbanczyk, is a sophomore at SPC.

LEPA of faith helping water

LUBBOCK -- A "leap of faith" in agriculture often refers to a gamble. Research at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) in Lubbock has reduced the uncertainty of irrigation in one "LEPA."

Developed in 1978, LEPA is the Low Energy Precision Application system that provided the capability needed to better manage irrigation, said Dr. William Lyle, a professor of agricultural engineering at TAES. Previous irrigation systems lacked that efficiency. Evaporation, non-uniform application and runoff plagued those systems. "We needed some way to eliminate the inefficiencies," Lyle said.

LEPA reduces the inefficiencies by applying water under low pressure precisely to the plant. Nozzles five to 12 inches from the ground target plants better, supplying each plant with the same amount of water. Dikes built in the furrows provide a storage area for the applied water, Lyle said.

Introduced commercially in 1983, LEPA has gained widespread acceptance by growers in Texas, with more than 600 systems in service on the High Plains. Its use has spread across Texas and into other states.

Now, high frequency deficit LEPA irrigation is being researched at TAES. This employs the idea of applying water more often while reducing the total amount of water dispersed. Depending on the crop, a yearly average of 20 to 50 percent less water is used when frequently applied, Lyle said.

Irrigating every other row can increase yields from five to 15 percent.

Combining higher frequency applications with alternate row irrigation increases yields by an additional 10 to 15 percent. "We are fine-tuning irrigation management," he said.

How often a field should be irrigated depends upon the crop. For example, the optimum irrigation frequency of cotton ranges between two and four days. The yield per unit of water within that range is higher than the yield per unit of water outside the range, Lyle said. Therefore, a limited water supply is better utilized if irrigation occurs within this range.

High frequency deficit LEPA irrigation amounts are determined by measured evapotranspiration (ET), he said. ET is the measure of a crop's water needs based on water evaporation from the soil and water transpiration through the crop. ET is determined by the evaporative demands of the environment. Crops will respond to a reduced percentage of the actual ET if applied consistently at a high frequency, Lyle said.

For example, the average dryland yield of South Plains cotton is one-half to two-thirds bale to the acre. If forty percent of the ET is applied consistently at a high frequency, the crop can produce one and a half bales to the acre. Thus, a limited water supply can be optimally used.

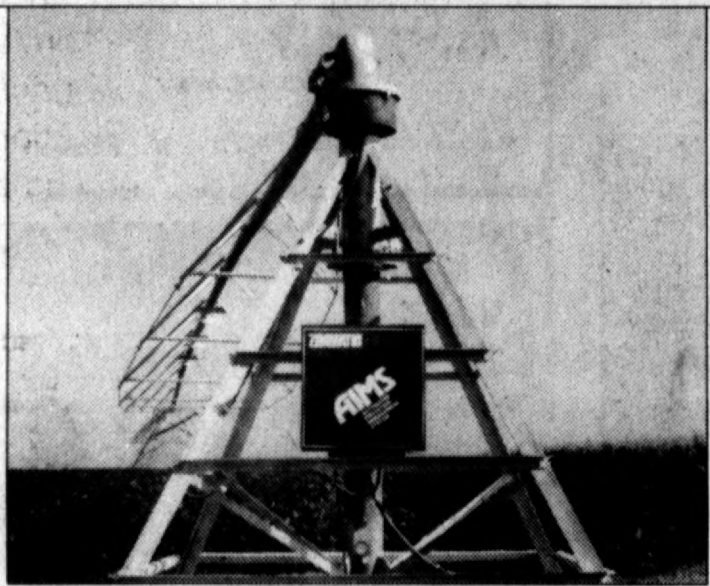

"As we continue to fine tune irrigation management, upgrading the use and multiple function capabilities of LEPA will continue also," Lyle said.

One of the additional functions of LEPA is chemigation, which adds to the value of the system. Most chemicals used for crop production can be dispensed through LEPA systems, although not all are labeled for chemigation. Nozzle location on LEPA allows the application of a mixture of water and chemicals to the underside of plant leaves. Commercial chemigation nozzles apply chemicals at the same flow rate as irrigation.

The same flow rate may or may not be desirable depending upon the chemicals being applied, Lyle said. Chemicals put in the soil require a high volume of water. However, foliage applied chemicals should be applied in a lower volume of water to prevent them from washing off the plant. The lower volume also keeps the chemicals concentrated, he said.

Research at TAES is being conducted on a low volume auxiliary chemigation nozzle. Since the auxiliary nozzle is separate from the irrigation nozzle, it does not have the same water flow rate, Lyle said. Therefore, the chemicals are more concentrated and are less likely to be washed off the plant.

Also being developed at TAES is a high speed continuously moving pivot, allowing the system to move three to four times faster than previously possible. Neither the auxiliary nozzle nor the faster system are available to the public at present, he said.

Improving The Ways You're Able To Grow

As a Zimmatic® dealer, we work hard to improve the ways you're able to grow your crops, your operation and your profits. One way is to provide new and innovative products. AIMS, Automated Irrigation Management System, is the most recent example of how we and Lindsay are helping growers get the most from their Zimmatic center pivot and corner pivot systems.

You can save countless hours in the field by programming the AIMS panel to:

- Change application rates to irrigate multiple crops more effectively.
- Speed up or slow down the system to cope with low spots, slopes and different soil types.
- Adjust system operation to take advantage of lower electric rates.
- Inject chemicals and fertilizers at the precise location.

And, you can count on us to install the AIMS control panel and make sure you're comfortable using it. In addition, our complete line of irrigation systems are available to help meet all your irrigation needs.

Call us to improve the ways you're able to grow.

Watch out for those power lines!

Modern farming requires the use of large, complex machinery. Each year a tragic number of accidents are caused by careless handling of farm equipment around electric power lines. Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative urges you to use caution at all times. Watch for overhead power lines and utility poles and avoid any contact with this potentially lethal power equipment.

Insist that family members and hired hands learn to survey their work areas carefully. Although you may not have power lines in your fields, you certainly have them present around equipment storage areas. Be sure there are safe routes from the equipment storage areas to the fields. Before extending the height of or transporting farm equipment, look up and check the clearance. Be extremely cautious when moving or raising portable grain augers, aluminum irrigation pipe, bailers, combines, front end loaders, cable or hydraulic dump trucks, cotton strippers, cotton module builders, and large tractors pulling "fold-up" plows with row markers. If you have a question about whether equipment will clear a power line, assume it won't and take action to avoid contact.

Watch for power lines on or near your property lines. They could possibly be hidden by trees or brush, so when turning your equipment at the end of your field there's a very good chance power lines and guy wires could be nearby.

If construction of new storage bins is in your future plans, take the placement of existing power lines into account. If you can't find adequate space for construction away from the power lines, contact DSEC for advice. Your complete safety and comfort are prime concerns of DSEC. We will be happy to assist you in developing a safer farm.

So, remember, when moving your equipment into your fields to tend your crops, think safety, and make your harvest as safe as it is rewarding.

Shredding stalks kills corn borers

The most effective method for controlling southwestern corn borer is the destruction of corn stubble to eliminate overwintering borers. The corn borer overwinters at the base of the stalk, insulated by the surrounding soil and protected by a silk plug that seals the borer's tunnel. The overwintering larvae is the weakest link in the borer's life cycle and can easily be broken by disking or shredding stalks.

Several growers will burn corn stubble soon after harvest. Burning is not an effective way of controlling borers. Stalks do not burn down low enough to the crown to expose the borer and the burn is rarely uniform across the field.

A single disking is effective in destroying corn borers. Borers are killed mechanically or later freeze when exposed in the crown. Close shredding opens the stubble and knocks out the silk plug that seals the tunnel. The borer is then exposed and is susceptible to freezing or disease. The shredder must be set to chop at the soil surface, enough to kick up some dust. Dull blades tend to do a better job in this situation because it shatters the stubble versus a sharp blade which leaves a clean cut and may not open up the crown.

Ears and stalks still remain for cattle to graze after shredding. Do not use grazing as an excuse not to destroy stubble; you only create a vicious cycle. If you don't destroy stubble this year, you and your neighbors will be grazing again next year out of necessity due to lodged corn.

Stalk destruction on your farm will reduce your borer infestations. However, to be most effective, everyone must cooperate. Contact your neighbors is absent landowners to make sure they cooperate.

If farmers in this area are not more cooperative in a volunteer corn stubble destruction program, a mandatory corn stubble destruction program should be implemented. Area-wide cultural control (volunteer) programs such as these can be less costly and more effective than individual field spraying. With the restrictions and costs of using crop protection chemicals, we need to depend more on proven cultural practices for effective pest control.

Reservoir being built

Jim Crowover and Arlen Redelsperger of the Soil Conservation Service are dwarfed by the size of an irrigation regulation reservoir under construction on the Ronnie Owens farm east of Hereford. Fifteen irrigation wells will discharge into the reservoir. Water will be used to supply a one-half mile wide center pivot sprinkler, and can provide a one-day supply if the wells break down. The reservoir's cost is being shared under the Annual Conservation Program administered by the ASCS.

Imported produce often has illegal chemical residue

WASHINGTON (AP) - Imported fruits and vegetables with illegal pesticide residues are being sold in grocery stores around the country because shippers know they can get away with violating the law, congressional investigators say.

The General Accounting Office says shippers still can earn a profit after paying Customs Service penalties for distributing contaminated fruits and vegetables, while they face little threat of criminal prosecution from the Justice Department.

As a result, adulterated produce continues to move into the market at the same time consumers are increasing their consumption of foreign fruits and vegetables, GAO said.

Food imports have tripled in the past 15 years and now, almost half of all fruits and vegetables consumed in the United States during the winter are imported.

About 4 percent of the imported food shipments tested by the Food and Drug Administration between 1988 and 1990 contained prohibited pesticides, GAO said. The adulterated shipments are supposed to be returned to the Customs Service and destroyed or exported.

But GAO said it found that one-third of tainted shipments were not returned to Customs in the four FDA districts it reviewed - Miami, Dallas, Philadelphia and San Francisco.

Distribution of adulterated shipments is possible because importers retain possession of the produce while FDA conducts tests for pesticide residues, said GAO, the congressional watchdog agency.

GAO said it warned of similar problems with pesticide-contaminated produce reaching consumers in 1979 and 1986. "Taken together, this information shows a long-term trend of importers' disregarding U.S. laws prohibiting the distribution of adulterated foods," GAO said.

FDA officials said the food supply is safe.

John Jones, program manager for pesticides and chemical contaminants at FDA, said Thursday the violations largely involve residues of pesticides approved for use on some crops in the United States being found on produce for which the chemical is not allowed.

"This is not a food safety issue. ... This is not an imminent health problem," Jones said.

But GAO said Congress may want to consider stiffer penalties. Currently, shippers who fail to surrender adulterated shipments are subject to Customs Service penalties as well as possible criminal prosecution.

But the Justice Department puts a low priority on prosecuting the cases. GAO suggested the possibility of adding civil fines, which are easier to obtain.

In one case cited by GAO, a shipper refused to export or destroy six shipments of snow peas that FDA had refused because of residues of EBDCs, fungicidal chemicals suspected of causing cancer.

Customs assessed damages of about $27,000. The local wholesale value, however, was about $75,000. In another case, the FDA found contaminated cabbages in Texas that the shipper went ahead and distributed.

Yosten re-elected to TBSWCD

Nick Yosten has been re-elected to the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors.

Yosten represents Zone 4 of the district.

Yosten is a member of the board at Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union and is an active member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The purpose of TBSWCD is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs on farm and ranch lands within the district and to serve as a voice for farmers and ranchers on conservation matters.

The board coordinates the efforts of various local, state and federal agencies and other organizations. It has authority to enter into working agreements with agencies and private concerns to carry out its purposes.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Sell Me Something

"Every business day, thousands of selling opportunities are missed. For a business, selling can improve volume, profits and cash flow. For a customer, the selling process can increase satisfaction, save time and trouble and provide lasting value. Let me give you a personal example.

Several years ago, some business associates and I decided to open a retail store in a building I owned. We opted to save a few dollars by doing the remodeling ourselves. We decided to sheet rock the interior walls, although not one of us had experience in hanging or finishing sheet rock.

At the local lumber yard, we purchased more than a hundred sheets of plasterboard, along with plaster and seam tape. The big sheets went up fast and by nightfall we had walls up. However, we soon discovered that our finishing technique was poor, at best. We worked many hours on one wall trying to get the seams smooth enough to cover with paint.

Finally, we returned to the lumber yard for advice. We described our efforts to the sales clerk who couldn't give us any pointers. He had never installed sheet rock and didn't know what to do.

Fortunately, a local contractor overheard our conversation and offered some advice. He suggested that we buy a long trowel and instructed us in its use. He also recommended a wire-faced sanding device with a four-foot handle.

Within an hour we were back at the store making smooth flat seams that required very little sanding. We used the new sander to finish the walls quickly.

Here's the point of this story: You can often improve sales and increase customer satisfaction by selling your customers what they need. In our case, the clerk missed a fine selling opportunity. Selling is a service

Today, we hear a lot about customer service. A knowledgeable salesperson can provide great customer service. In the above example, a good salesperson observing our sheet rock, plaster and tape purchases, should have suggested the proper tools.

In our case, the proper tools and guidance for their use, saved us many hours of hard labor. Our finished products - smooth walls - were of higher quality. The time saved more than paid for the tools and they retained their value for our next project.

Selling becomes a service when making a sale saves a customer time, an extra trip, future trouble or money. Last spring, an observant salesman suggested an additional screw driver bit when he noticed I was buying 5 lbs. of deck screws. I bought the extra bit. Sure enough, I broke the first one before I finished the job. The extra bit - a 79 cent purchase - saved me a trip back to the store and an hour's delay in completing the project.

Add on selling

A really sound business building strategy is to learn and practice add-on selling. McDonald's employees do it everyday. "Would you like a hot apple pie to go with that?" a smiling face will ask. That is add-on selling.

In men's clothing, a good sales clerk might suggest a shirt and tie add-on to a suit purchase. An automotive parts counter person might encourage a do-it-yourselfer to replace all belts, if one is broken. A hardware clerk might suggest a heavy-duty extension cord to a power tool buyer.

Selling is an opportunity to serve your customers more effectively. If you can help solve problems and anticipate needs, you can build your career or business through personal selling.

I wonder if there are any computer sales persons who read this column? I could really use some guidance on purchasing a notebook computer to do these columns on. Would anyone want to sell me something?

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: Remember the woman whose husband had grown a mustache which was creating a threat to their lovemaking? She wrote, "The mustache is so sharp and prickly, kissing him is downright hazardous." She signed her letter "Blotchy-Faced in Vestal, N.Y."

I told the woman that I had never gotten chummy with a man who had a mustache, but I imagined it would be like kissing a pincushion. I then asked for reader assistance.

This has been a hairy week, to say the least. The first person to come to the rescue was my sister, Dear Abby. Her husband has a beard. The solution, she said, is a good hair conditioner. "The bristles will turn soft and silky," she promised.

I am now being flooded with suggestions on how to help that troubled reader. Pull up a chair and look over my shoulder.

From Martinsburg, W.Va.: New mustaches tend to be stiff and bristly, but with time they become soft and sensuous. I used to get whisker burn from my clean-shaven previous lover. My current heartthrob has a wonderful mustache that gets softer as it grows longer. Sign me—Fu Manchu's Woman.

Prince George, Canada: The best cure for a stiff mustache is a little bit of a vinegar rinse when taking a shower.

Flint, Mich.: I grew a full beard 10 years ago for a play. My wife liked it, so I kept it. I have a suggestion for that man whose mustache scratches his wife. Don't trim it too often. Once every 10 days is enough.—Doug

Santa Fe: My wife gave me an ultimatum—shave off the mustache or no more lovemaking. A guy at work told me to put Vaseline on it before going to bed. I did it and it worked. No name or initials, Ann. My wife would kill me.—Mr. X

Hillsdale, Mich.: Tell "Blotchy Face" there's a simple solution to her problem. A little bit of hand cream on those still bristles will do the job. I got this hint from my grandmother. Gramp had a great big Teddy Roosevelt-type handlebar mustache and that's how she kept from getting stabbed while kissing.

Buffalo, N.Y.: A man's mustache grows about a half inch a month. It gets softer as it gets longer. If he wants it to get super soft, a cream rinse when he's in the shower will do the trick.—Randall

Richmond, Va.: I've been married for 23 years to a man who has not only a mustache but a full beard. Moustaches are sharp and prickly and can be kind of smothering. The solution? Just skip the kissing and get to the really good stuff.

Raleigh, N.C.: "Blochy Face" should tell her husband to shave his mustache off and start over. Then, with a small brush, he should brush it every day. When all the hairs grow in one direction, they won't scratch.—Tom Kalamazoo: Facial hair is really sexy. I love it, especially on a man who is bald. It's a way of showing real virility.

Appleton, Wis.: Any woman who complains about a man's mustache is not thinking ahead. It shouldn't be asking too much to go through a briar patch in order to get to the picnic.

Providence, R.I.: I hope my girlfriend reads this. My mustache doesn't bother her, but HERS sure as heck bothers me. I wish she'd bleach it or remove it altogether. It looks terrible but I don't have the nerve to tell her.—Anonymous

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine says you are a man. Will you please set her straight? It irritated me that she was so sure of herself.

I told "Patty" that about five years ago you went from one Chicago paper to another and the paper you left had a contest to replace you. They selected two winners, a man and a woman. Both are writing under their own names. Meanwhile, you continue to write under the name Ann Landers in your second Chicago base and in all the other papers around the world.

I got to thinking that Patty may not be the only person who has this mistaken idea. Maybe you ought to say something about it in your column. If you want to print my letter and name, it's fine with me.—Ruth Ann Wallace, Durham, N.C.

DEAR RUTH ANN WALLACE: Your friend Patty is mistaken. I am indeed the Ann Landers who has been writing for 37 years. What's more, I can promise you that no one else will ever write under that name. I own the copyright, and I wouldn't sell it for any amount of money.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife is a trained dentist, but she earned her degree in a foreign country. I believe the American Dental Association has put up too many roadblocks to prevent people like her from practicing their profession.

In order to practice in America, foreign dentists must learn college-level English and then attend a dental college for two or three years. It seems ridiculous that they must learn in English what they already know and have practiced in their native country.

Does it make sense to waste all that valuable talent and throw away the experience of these foreign-trained dentists by forcing them to work as taxi drivers and hotel maids until they are proficient in English? Surely there must be a way to prove oneself without having to start all over again in a profession that a person has spent years in.

My wife has offered her services to veterans, seniors, the homeless, AIDS victims, etc., but the laws in this country will not permit her to treat anybody. I have a physical disability, and next week, we will have to apply for food stamps.—Angry and Frustrated in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

DEAR FORT LAUDERDALE: I can understand why you and your wife feel frustrated, but perhaps you don't understand that dental techniques and procedures vary considerably from country to country.

We spoke with Dr. Geraldine Morrow, president of the American Dental Association, and she said the ADA has nothing to say about regulations concerning foreign-educated dentists. The licensing requirements are set by each state.

In order to practice in the United States, one must be a graduate of an accredited dental school or have equivalent training at a U.S. dental school. Check with your state Board of Dentistry on the requirements of your state. Candidates must also pass national and state exams. If foreign students can demonstrate that they are qualified, some schools will admit them as advanced placement students, which would enable them to get their degree more quickly. I suggest that your wife look into this.

For more information, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Dentistry in the United States, American Dental Association, 211 E. Chicago Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Infection Control Week proclaimed by governor

Gov. Ann Richards has proclaimed Oct. 18-24 as Infection Control week in Texas, sponsored by the Texas Society of Infection Control Practitioners. The theme for this year is, "Infection Protection Begins With You."

Texas joins the nation in celebrating Infection Control Week to focus attention on the importance of hand washing and other methods to control the spread of infectious diseases. Hand washing is a highly effective method for controlling the spread of Hepatitis

B, Hepatitis C, measles, colds, the flu and other illnesses.

"Evidence indicates that improved health practices, such as proper hand washing, can significantly reduce the spread of infections," the proclamation states. "As an affiliate of the Texas Hospital Association, TSICP encourages sharing of knowledge and networking among all infection control professionals."

The Texas Society of Infection Control Practitioners is an affiliated society of the Texas Hospital Association, an Austin-based trade association representing more than 80 percent of Texas hospitals. TSICP has 187 members who represent infection control practitioners throughout the state.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Peter Quaife, the bass player for the Kinks, has created a painting of a familiar sight: a backstage security guard restraining a fan.

He donated the work on Wednesday to the still-unbuilt Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum in Cleveland.

Quaife and other members of The Kinks — Ray Davies, Dave Davies and Mick Avory — were inducted into the rock hall in 1990. The band has produced more than 25 albums over three decades. Its hits include "You Really Got Me" and "Lola."

Hollabaugh honored by lodge

After giving the "Unwritten Work" recently, Ada Hollabaugh received a certificate of perfection during the Tuesday night meeting of the Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228.

Vice grand Jo Irlbeck presided at the regular business session with 20 members present. Twenty visits to the sick, 40 cheer cards, 10 dishes of food and one flower were reported.

A Halloween party is scheduled for the regular meeting Oct. 20.

Nelma Sowell served as hostess to Irlbeck, Susie Curtsinger, Irene Merritt, Sadie Shaw, Marie Harris, Ann Werner, Roberta Combs, Elmer Combs, Erma Loving, Jim Loving, Dora Lea Howell, Tony Irlbeck, Genevieve Lynn, Dorothy Collier, Gail Nelson, Ocie Bolton, Mary Lou Weatherford, Faye Brownlow and Ursalee Jacobsen.

Lodge members honored

Two members of Rebekah Lodge #228 were honored recently. Gail Nelson received her 50-year jewel and Ursalee Jacobsen, at right, was honored as a 64-year lodge member.

Centers treat spinal cord injuries

Imagine living life in a wheelchair, struggling to dress and feed yourself every morning, facing obstacles like stairs and narrow aisles and revolving doors everywhere you travel.

The three Spinal Cord Injury Rehabilitation Units at Shriners Hospitals in Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco teach young patients how to deal with these and other problems.

Spinal cord injuries occur as a result of a neck or back injury and can cause partial or complete paralysis of the arms and legs or both. The Shrine's spinal cord injury program was the first in the country designed to meet the special needs of children and teenagers. As in all Shriners Hospitals, care at the spinal cord injury units is provided free.

The units' rehabilitation programs are intense. Young patients spend several hours each day relearning basic skills like dressing, brushing their teeth and feeding themselves. They gain a sense of independence by learning to iron a shirt or cook a meal without help from anyone.

The children are also taught self care skills, because a spinal cord injury can affect nerves and muscles and cause bowel or bladder problems.

Water chlorination is one of the major public health advances in history, health experts agree. They note that U.S. life expectancy has increased by 50 percent since the introduction of chlorination.

Court candidates aim for history books

AUSTIN (AP) - Some candidates for the state's two highest courts also are pursuing a place in the history books.

Lower court judges Rose Spector and Sue Lagarde seek to be the first women elected to the Texas Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals, respectively, at a time when people on both sides of the abortion issue expect it to wind up in state court.

Judge Fortunato "Pete" Benavides, appointed to a partial term on the Court of Criminal Appeals by Gov. Ann Richards, aims to be the first Hispanic elected to a seat on that court.

And Republicans are trying to crack the Democrat-filled criminal appeals court, plus win a majority on the Texas Supreme Court for the first time in modern history. They now number four on the Supreme Court, which like the Court of Criminal Appeals court has nine members.

While court races may not get the attention of some other election fights, judicial candidates say voters should take notice.

Most also emphasize that race, gender or party affiliation shouldn't be the deciding factor in an election, despite their potential for making history.

Three six-year terms are up for election on the Texas Supreme Court, which handles civil matters, and three on the Court of Criminal Appeals, which rules on death penalty appeals and other criminal cases.

"We (Supreme Court justices) have more effect over the lives of the average, everyday Texan than does the United States Congress," said Justice Eugene Cook, a Republican incumbent targeted by the Democratic Ms. Spector, a state district judge from San Antonio.

For example, the court has thrown out state laws for funding public schools, demanding a constitutional and equitable system; it rules on business disputes and suits by injured people; and it has agreed to consider whether the state law against sodomy is constitutional.

The Court of Criminal Appeals "decides issues of life and liberty and sets the tone and tenor of what the criminal justice system is going to be about," said Judge Morris Overstreet, who in 1990 became the first black person elected to statewide office in Texas since Reconstruction by winning a seat on the court for a partial term.

His re-election bid is being challenged by Ms. Lagarde, a Dallas appeals court justice.

Benavides says he is proud of being the first Hispanic on the Court of Criminal Appeals, but it would be "demeaning" to other Hispanics to suggest they vote for him for that reason. He is being challenged by Republican Lawrence Meyers, a justice on the 2nd Court of Appeals in Fort Worth.

Meyers, who says he wishes both he and Benavides could get elected, said there should be some "political balance" on the criminal appeals court.

The remaining Court of Criminal Appeals race pits incumbent Justice Charles Baird against Republican Joe Devany, a Dallas lawyer and former Dallas appeals court justice.

Devany's campaign says he has "more than twice the appellate judicial experience as his opponent." Baird says he's worked hard since being elected in 1990 to fill an unexpired court term, writing more than 165 opinions.

For the Supreme Court, a hot battle has been waged between incumbent Democratic Justice Oscar Mauzy and his Republican opponent, Craig Enoch, now chief justice of the Dallas appeals court.

Enoch calls Mauzy a judicial activist backed by personal injury lawyers, and has said, "The people of this state want a judge, not a politician."

He says Mauzy is the last remaining Supreme Court justice who was included in a CBS-TV "60 Minutes" program that asked "Is Justice for Sale?" in Texas because of campaign contributions.

Mauzy calls the program reference a "distortion" and notes the Commission on Judicial Conduct has brought no complaints against him. In turn, he says Enoch is supported by insurance lawyers and political action committees, and as an appellate judge has wrongly joined in opinions overturning jury verdicts.

Each defends his own record and describes his support as broad-based.

Also a candidate for the seat held by Mauzy is Libertarian Alfred Adask of Lewisville, a construction worker who publishes a magazine dubbed "AntiShyster" concerning the American legal system. He's also a paralegal and is running to challenge the requirement that Supreme Court justices be lawyers, said Libertarian Party spokesman Gary Johnson.

Campaign contributions also have been raised as an issue by Cook, who calls Ms. Spector the "liberal captive of the inner circle of Texas trial lawyers."

Ms. Spector, who says she's had wide-ranging support, emphasizes her experience as a judge and says it's time for a woman to be elected to the Supreme Court. Women have served through appointment.

"Right now on that court there are nine men," Ms. Spector said. "Some of the issues, I think, need a different perspective."

Cook, who practiced law before joining the Supreme Court in 1988, cites his work on the court along with efforts to promote greater professionalism among Texas lawyers. And he emphasizes that the race shouldn't be based on gender.

"I have no problem with a woman being on the court, but clearly the question is qualifications," he said.

In the third Supreme Court race, Democratic incumbent Jack Hightower is facing Republican John Montgomery, a state district judge from Houston.

Montgomery calls Hightower a "career politician" who "makes decisions based on how best to remain in political office." Hightower, who has been a state lawmaker and congressman, says he's served responsibly as a judge and calls Montgomery's characterization of his court work "absurd."

The Texas Abortion Rights Action League has targeted three high court races - endorsing Mauzy, Overstreet and Ms. Spector. The anti-abortion Texans United for Life supports the three Republican Supreme Court candidates, but hasn't made endorsements in the Court of Criminal Appeals races.

Both sides say an abortion case is most likely to go to the Supreme Court.

An 1800s-era law making it a felony to perform an abortion still is on the books in Texas, and it's expected to be at issue if the U.S. Supreme Court throws out the Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion, both sides say. They also say it's possible that the Legislature down the road could pass laws regarding abortion, which could be contested in court.

New crop of country albums by women

DALLAS (AP) - In the midst of country music's celebration of its recent prosperity comes a most telling statistic: Only about 15 percent of the records on the Billboard country singles and albums charts are by female artists.

Though country has long been a male-dominated genre, that percentage is even low compared to country's post-"Urban Cowboy" depression a decade ago, when the likes of Barbara Mandrell, Crystal Gayle, Janie Fricke, Sylvia, Anne Murray and Juice Newton could be counted on for regular schmalzy smashes.

The conventional wisdom has long been that women make up three-quarters of country music buyers and are more likely to buy records by men, especially the ones who looked like they just stepped out of a cigarette commercial and into jeans that are four sizes too small.

But a recent Recording Industry Association of America survey indicates that only half of country records are bought by women. Females are buying the hunks, but then so are males.

Five new albums prove, however, that women are an undeniable creative force in Nashville. Lorrie Morgan, Kathy Mattea, Suzy Bogguss, Pam Tillis and Tanya Tucker have been among the "haves" on the charts, but they each should enlarge their audiences with wonderfully expressive new LPs. And they'll draw buyers into stores who might end up taking home CDs by such rising talents as Martina McBride, Kelly Willis and Allison Krause, as well.

Pam Tillis, racing up the charts with the single "Shake the Sugar Tree," thinks things are getting better for female artists in spite of what the charts may say. "I don't think women were previously respected in Nashville like they are now," says the daughter of Mel Tillis. "They were expected to stand there and look pretty and not make any waves. But then Loretta Lynn came out and sang 'The Pill' and Dolly Parton wrote some of her wonderful songs, and the attitude (toward women) started changing."

Ms. Tillis also credits Rosanne Cash for breaking ground for the latest slew of introspective country females. "Rosanne proved that the public was ready for personal, touching songs from the women's perspective," Ms. Tillis says.

Suzy Bogguss' recent Country Music Association Horizon Award as best new artist showed that the Nashville establishment is willing to expand its expectations of female artists. At the time of awards voting, Ms. Bogguss was zooming up the charts with "Letting Go," which is about a daughter leaving home to go to college - not your usual country theme. That Ms. Bogguss beat out more traditional artists, such as Brooks & Dunn and Ms. Tillis, proved that the normal "but it's real country?" authenticity check is a thing of the past. Ms. Bogguss, whose new album is "Voices in the Wind," is a folk-based pop singer who grew up listening to Linda Ronstadt and Joni Mitchell.

"The biggest change I've seen in Nashville during the seven years I've lived there is that the industry is more album-conscious than before. It used to be just singles, singles, singles - you had to get that precious airplay. But one of the things that's come out of the Garth Brooks phenomenon is that he was very conscious of making an entire album," Ms. Bogguss says.

And on her breakout LP, "Aces," Ms. Bogguss had more control than is usual in Nashville: She's listed as co-producer.

Like Ms. Bogguss, Ms. Tillis values her creative freedom and has input on every level of her career. Even for her first LP on Arista, the gold "Put Yourself in My Place," Ms. Tillis chose all her own songs. In the early '80s, she had a disastrous experience recording a pop album for Warner Bros. and didn't want the same thing happening back in her hometown.

'Danielle Steel's Jewels' proves no gem for NBC

Overwrought script mines clichés aplenty

By Steven Alan McGaw

Conventional wisdom says that since the World Series is assured a large and predominantly male audience, effective counter-programming must target women. That means, so network programmers believe, romance, glamour, exotic locales and high-dollar lifestyles.

This week, as the Series continues on CBS, NBC steps up to bat with Danielle Steel's 'Jewels', a five-hour work airing Sunday and Tuesday, Oct. 18 and 20, and even hardcore glitz-and-sin devotees may find it difficult to stick with this one.

In 1938, Sarah Thompson (Annette O'Toole) is a pretty, wealthy, young American, taken by her parents on a European tour in the wake of her divorce from an abusive husband. Though hesitant at first, Sarah is enchanted by the charming, self-deprecating William, Duke of Whitfield (Anthony Andrews), and they marry. Sarah busies herself with refurbishing their French chateau and soon learns she is pregnant. On the very day of their son Phillip's birth, England enters the war and William is called into service. Only months later, the chateau is taken over by the Nazis for use as a field hospital and Sarah is not allowed to leave with her son. By war's end, the Nazis leave and William returns, confined to a wheelchair by injuries suffered in a German prison camp.

Struck by the poverty of their French neighbors, William and Sarah start buying jewelry and reselling it in the city. As the business expands, stores are opened in London and Rome. All the while, Sarah must cope with the increasingly willful ways of her children (now numbering four) and William's failing health.

So what went wrong? Stories of wartime survival have been the base of many fine films, from Mrs. Miniver in 1942 to John Boorman's strangely celebratory Hope and Glory in 1987.

In Jewels, however, the war is seen only as another of Sarah's personal tragedies, one more installment in Lifestyles of the Rich & Beleaguered. Indeed, her chaste romance with a Nazi commandant (Jurgin Prochnow), however warm and sympathetic, may be more than many viewers can accept. Similarly, the unmistakable scent of profiteering is clearly present in the founding of William and Sarah's little "shop."

Most of all, the story just goes on too long. What do we learn in the last two hours, except that parenthood is fraught with disappointment and frustration, even when the children are grown? Not much of a revelation for a five-hour investment. The trials of Sarah's later life are nothing special, and certainly insufficient for the outsized canvas of this excessive work.

STEEL

Annette O'Toole delivers a dismal, unimaginative performance as Sarah, a far cry from her peppery portrayals in films like 48 Hours and Stand by Your Man. Anthony Andrews acquits himself admirably as William, though the script calls for little more than threadbare British mannerisms.

Among the actors playing William and Sarah's willful, repellent children and their associates, Christopher Villiers chews the scenery as Phillip, and Yvonne Scio may well provoke outright laughter as the bed-hopping goldigger who marries Phillip's little brother, then leaves him for Phillip (and remains a welcome member of the family!).

SOAP TALK

Hall's no-pain, no-gain 'pregnancy'

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I heard that Deidre Hall had a baby and I wondered how they covered it up on Days of Our Lives. She always seemed so fit and trim. —Thanks, Amanda, Waco, Texas.

Dear Reader: Hall did stay fit and trim through the entire pregnancy, because the baby was carried by a surrogate mother named Robin. Hall is unable to have children of her own, so she and husband Steve Sohmer went through the Center for Surrogate Parenting in Beverly Hills.

David Atticus Sohmer was born Aug. 23 and weighed in at eight pounds three ounces.

Also, there is big news about another Days star. Lynn Herring, who portrays Lianne Gardner, is leaving the show. Her last tape date is Oct. 30. A release from NBC states, "The decision was a mutual agreement between Herring, NBC and Corday Productions. Her character will not be replaced on the show."

Herring had signed a two-year contract, so this is an interesting turn of events. Herring's husband, Wayne Northrop (Roman), is remaining with the show for the time being.

Dear Candace: Please help me settle an argument with some friends of mine. They say that Amanda Bearnse on Married...With Children used to be on All My Children. I have watched AMC for years and I don't ever remember seeing her. I hope you can help me; there's a big favor riding on this one. —Thanks, K.L. and friends in Oklahoma.

Dear Reader: Bearnse portrayed Amanda Cousins on AMC from 1982 to 1984. Cousins was a friend of Liza (Marcy Walker). If you remember, Liza spent most of her time trying to keep Jenny (Kim Delaney) and Greg (Laurence Lau) apart, and Cousins helped Liza with her schemes.

Dear Candace: What happened to the actress who played Blake Thorpe on Guiding Light? The actress who took over the role is not very convincing. —L.M., Greenville, N.C.

Dear Reader: Sherry Stringfield (ex-Blake) decided to leave the show to pursue other interests, namely prime-time television and features. I wouldn't be surprised if she turned up on another soap sometime soon.

BITS AND PIECES

Savage behind wheel; Steinem behind scenes

Wonder Years star Fred Savage turned 16 in July... which means he was driving without a license in some of last season's shows.

"I had a permit when we were doing the shows," Savage explains. "A permit says that you can only drive with a licensed driver 25 years or older. So when I was driving the car with Paul or the buddies, what you didn't see was a Teamster crouched underneath the back seat." Executive producer Bob Brush adds, "He (the Teamster) was lying down, saying, 'Oh, my God. Oh, my God. Oh, my God.'"

These days, Savage can be seen driving (legally) his mom's old Toyota Celica convertible, which, he says, makes him "very happy."

Fred Savage

Gloria Steinem is executive producer of an upcoming Lifetime movie, Better Off Dead, set to air in January. Currently in production in Seattle, the drama stars Mare Winningham as a con woman who is convicted of murder and sentenced to death. As her execution date draws near, the case is reopened and new and unsettling evidence comes to light. Steinem is developing the film with production partner Rosilyn Heller, who was executive producer of Who's That Girl? and American Heart.

Warner Bros. scored big points for family values earlier this month with the opening of its 9,500-square-foot Children's Center, a day-care facility for the children of studio employees. Kids 3 months to 5 years old can enjoy a nursery, classrooms, indoor and outdoor play areas and hot meals in the lunchroom. Obviously hoping the show-biz bug will bite young, Warner has also provided a theater arts and storytelling room for the little ones. On hand for the ribbon-cutting were Candice Bergen and Bugs Bunny.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Alaskey feathers nest

with 'Plucky Duck'

By Chris Carpenter

With compatible companions at a premium these days, Joe Alaskey believes in keeping a few of them in his head just for safe measure. One feathered friend is Buster and Babs Bunny's sputtering sidekick, Plucky Duck, who was recently granted the Hollywood equivalent of a gold star — his own show.

Steven Spielberg Presents The Plucky Duck Show, a spin-off of Spielberg's Tiny Toons, is currently airing Saturday mornings on Fox.

Mouthing Plucky's egotistical and comically contemptuous opinions on what makes good entertainment is an amusing catharsis for Alaskey. Happy to have several years of experience on the stage and in television (Out of This World) and film (Lucky Stiff), Alaskey still feels his most fulfilling roles are ahead of him.

"I'm very happy to be nearing the final edit on what is not just a one-man (stage) show, and also a darn good play. These shows never go out of style," he says, adding that he hopes to hone the show to completion in early 1993.

But in the meantime, Alaskey terms himself "very lucky" to have landed The Plucky Duck Show, especially considering the latest trend in voice-over acting.

"Now it's a constant process of auditioning, and many of the roles are going to star performers, making the competition even tougher."

STAR NOTES

White's 50-year

career goes 'Golden'

By Suzanne Gill

Long before there was a ZIP code to put it on the map, Betty White was a graduate of Beverly Hills High School. Born in 1922, White became a radio actress (Blondie, The Great Gildersleeve) in the 1940s and ventured into local television in Los Angeles before most people had a set. Her sitcom Life With Elizabeth was syndicated in 1953 and earned White her first Emmy.

By the 1960s, White had married quizmaster Allen Ludden (College Bowl, Password) and become a regular TV host for the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade and Rose Bowl Parade. In 1973, she created the role of predatory cooking-show hostess Sue Ann Nivens on The Mary Tyler Moore Show, for which she won two Emmys as best supporting actress. Stints on Mama's Family and Ludden's Liar's Club followed, and White spent much of her off-camera time working for various Humane Societies and encouraging people to take care of their pets.

In 1985, another hit series, The Golden Girls, put her back in the limelight. This fall, she has stayed with the show during its metamorphosis and rebirth as The Golden Palace, a Friday-night series on CBS.

After a half-century in show business, how does White manage to rise and shine for work every morning?

"I have a poodle that's set for 6:15," she says.

LET'S TALK

Home fires burning for 'Homefront'; Duke ahoy

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My favorite show is ABC's wonderful drama Homefront, and one of the reasons for that is the superb acting of its cast, particularly Tammy Lauren (Ginger) and Jessica Steen (Linda). Could you please provide me with some professional and personal information on both actresses? At what address can I write them? —Jamie Molchan, Greenville, N.C.

A: I quite agree with your critical approval of Homefront. It's exceedingly rare to find a network program so charged with genuine drama and chemistry among the cast members. This production was obviously well-conceived from the beginning and hasn't let up since, and the show's producers deserve the growing attention they are beginning to receive.

Tammy Lauren was born the daughter of a preacher in Carrollton, Ga., and has appeared in guest roles on a number of television series, including Sister Kate, Family Ties, The Hogan Family and The Bronx Zoo. She has five brothers, teaches an acting class and lives with her teacup poodle, Chaplin, in Los Angeles.

Jessica Steen was born and raised in Toronto, and she also has appeared in a variety of guest roles on television, including spots on Wiseguy, Kay O'Brien and daytime's Loving. A true animal lover, Steen claims to spend her free time with her two enormous cats, Zack and Same. You may write Steen and Lauren in care of Homefront, ABC Television Network Group, 77 West 66th Street, New York, N.Y., 10023.

Q: My favorite movie is A Christmas Carol with Alastair Sim as Scrooge. I've never seen in the opening credits who plays whom. I would like to know who plays Alice and also who portrays Fan (Scrooge's sister). —William Cowley, Olathe, Co.

A: In the 1951 version of Charles Dickens' Christmas parable, Alice was played by Rona Anderson and Fan by Carol Marsh.

Q: I would like to know how to obtain tickets for The Oprah Winfrey Show. I am interested in getting four or five tickets in April for my mother's 80th birthday. —Ann Thompson, Big Spring, Texas.

A: Wisely, Ann, you will have given the Oprah people plenty of time to respond to your request and should have no trouble in confirming a date near that time. Rather than writing, Oprah's studio, Harpo Productions, suggests you call them directly at 312-591-9222.

Q: Years ago, I saw a movie with John Wayne that was filmed in the South Sea Islands. There was a terrible storm in it — either a hurricane, tornado or tidal wave. I think "Paradise" was somewhere in the title, but I'm not certain. Do you have a clue? —M. Patton, Kerrville, Texas.

A: After poring through volumes of information and browsing virtually every description of every Wayne movie, I finally happened upon Reap the Wild Wind, released in 1942. The film opens with a tropical storm, and, in its aftermath, shipwrecked sailing vessels spill floating debris into the water. Wayne and company make their living by scooping up said cargo from points far and wide through hurricane territory, off the southeastern coast of 19th-century North America. Some of the more ruthless types in this film also line their pocketbooks by steering unsuspecting vessels into dangerous reefs. Paulette Goddard, Raymond Massey and Ray Milland are among the supporting cast. Reap the Wild Wind won an Oscar for special effects.

ELVIS ALERT

Fox recently re-issued eleven Presley films. None are rated. All would be PG-13. A few are:

LOVE ME TENDER: (1956) Presley and Richard Egan, as his brother, tangle over politics and Debra Paget, whom Presley marries when Egan is away during the Civil War.

JAILHOUSE ROCK: (1957) In maybe the best of his films, Presley uses a prison stretch as a springboard to stardom. A tough plot and Presley's steamy performance lift the film above the fluff.

KING CREOLE: (1958) As a nightclub singer, Presley is smitten by the mistress (Carolyn Jones) of a New Orleans club owner (Walter Matthau).

FLAMING STAR: (1960) Presley is torn between his Kiowa mother and white father in a film that stops singing and settles down to the Indian war.

G.I. Blues: (1960) Fresh out of the Army himself, Elvis recalls the experience in the role of a singing soldier (Blue Suede Shoes, Shopping Around, Tonight Is So Right for Love). BLUE HAWAII: (1961) Dad (Roland Winters) grows pineapples, Mon (Angela Lansbury) is a powerhouse and Presley is a returning G.I. who works for a travel agency and sings songs like Can't Help Falling in Love.

WILD IN THE COUNTRY: (1961) Clifford Odets tries his hand at writing a Presley vehicle and comes up with a tale about a backwoods boy who thinks he can write.

VIVA LAS VEGAS: (1964) A hotel waiter when he's not a Grand Prix driver, Presley also romances Ann-Margaret, everybody's idea of a swimming instructor.

FOREIGN RELEASE

A new release that will be very hard to find, but certainly worth the effort: THE AMERICAN SOLDIER: (1970) New Yorker. German with English subtitles.

In Werner Fassbinder's highly stylized American-gangster tale, a hit man named Ricky returns to Germany from America to carry out a couple of contracts, and there meets his own downfall. The director's object is to explore every aspect of the gangster genre. Fassbinder's film is spontaneous, flamboyant and the genre is observed with the cold eye of a political cartoonist, as well as the cartoonist's eye for outrageous detail. No rating. Would be an R.

FROM THE ARCHIVES

The newly released School Ties (not reviewed in this column, but highly recommended) is about prep school bigotry. The classic movie about WASP anti-Semitism is ...

GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT: (1947/Black & White) Starring Gregory Peck is a sincere Best Picture Oscar winning adaptation of Laura S. Hobson's novel about a writer (Gregory Peck) pretending to be Jewish to debunk the notion that American anti-Semitism existed in the postwar era. He finds that he is wrong. Celeste Holm won Supporting Actress as a chic and lonely fashion Editor. Elia Kazan won the Best Director Oscar. Not rated. Would be a PG.

GREAT DIRECTORS' SERIES FROM AROUND THE WORLD

Try to find

HEART OF GLASS: (1976) German with English subtitles. In Werner Herzog's starkly symbolic film, a glass blower in a small German town dies, taking the secret of the glassmaking process with him and turning the town mad in an attempt to regain it. Not rated. Would be a PG-13.

ABC puts fans in stands, where they belong

By Michael Scogin

Hurry down to participating stores! Saturday, Oct. 31, is the last day to enter the 1992 Fan Fantasy Sweepstakes, sponsored by ABC Sports and Nutmeg Mills, makers of officially licensed products from the NFL, NBA, NHL and NCAA.

Entrants have the chance to win two tickets to one of the following sporting events televised by ABC Sports: the Kentucky Derby, the Indianapolis 500, the Rose Bowl, the U.S. Open Golf Championships, the Sugar Bowl, the NFL Hall of Fame Game or the college football or Monday Night Football game of their choice.

Winners also receive round-trip airfare and two nights' lodging.

According to spokesmen for ABC, promotion logistics are hampering the flow of entries, so chances of winning are unusually good — if fans can find a participating sportswear retailer offering the necessary entry form.

No purchase is necessary, and fans may enter as many times as they wish. Employees of ABC/Capital Cities, Nutmeg and companies involved in the advertising and public relations of the sweepstakes are ineligible to apply.

Winners will be announced about two weeks after the Oct. 31 deadline.

Stay-at-home fans can enjoy several televised events this week, including CBS' coverage of the World Series.

ESPN carries live coverage of NHL hockey beginning Friday, Oct. 23.

Happy Birthday, Annette

By Dan Rice

Favorite Mouseketeer Annette Funicello will see her birthday celebrated Thursday, Oct. 22, on The Disney Channel with an all-night marathon of her work. Featured are her appearances on the Zorro series and films including The Misadventures of Merlin Jones, The Monkey's Uncle and Lots of Luck. The tribute wraps up with a Mouseketeer Reunion special.

Tim Burton, the visionary director responsible for the heavily stylized films Beetlejuice, Edward Scissorhands and the Batman movies, began his career with a featurette titled Frankenweenie. The story concerns Sparky, the pit bullterrier of 10-year-old Victor Frankenstein. When the sweet-natured pup is run over by a car, his young master endeavors to revive him using a toaster and a microwave. The darkly comic short, starring Barrett Oliver, Shelley Duvall, Daniel Stern and Paul Bartel, makes its TV debut on The Disney Channel Sunday, Oct. 18.

Star-crossed lovers are caught in the violence of Northern Ireland in the romantic thriller The Railway Station Man, a TNT original movie debuting on Sunday. Donald Sutherland and Julie Christie (reunited on film for the first time since 1973's Don't Look Now) star, respectively, as a reclusive eccentric dedicated to restoring an abandoned railway station and the widowed artist with whom he becomes involved.

Duffy takes 'Step By Step' to play western

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Patrick Duffy is an actor who has his eye firmly focused on the past.

Duffy, best known for his role as Bobby Ewing on "Dallas," is currently starring in the ABC comedy series "Step By Step."

But Duffy says his dream role is to play in a Western, particularly in a film biography of colorful cowboy star Tom Mix.

"That's a dream I've always had," he says. "No one's ever done a good Tom Mix. Bruce Willis played him in 'Sunset' and James Garner was Wyatt Earp."

Although Duffy gives no specifics, Willis' role was hooted by critics and the movie was one step removed from being a bomb.

"I'd like to do a film version of Darryl Ponicsan's book 'Tom Mix Died For Your Sins,'" he says. "It's fiction, but it tells the history of his life fairly accurately. William S. Hart established the film tradition of the dusty, authentic Western. Tom Mix's Westerns were more mythical and he created the flashy Westerns. He was the first to wear satin shirts, piping and fringed gloves."

Tom Mix starred in scores of Western movies between 1910 and his death in 1940. Mix created a colorful background for himself. He reputedly was a rodeo rider, served in the Spanish-American War and the Philippine insurrection, broke horses for the British in the Boer War, was a deputy U.S. marshal and had his own Wild West show.

But before Duffy rides off into the sunset ...

He's now playing a divorced contractor who marries a widowed beautician played by Suzanne Somers in "Step By Step," now in its second season. They each bring three children to the marriage. The show is televised during ABC's Friday night block of family comedies.

The show sounds like "The Brady Bunch," a successful series of the 1970s that had several spinoff shows. A "Brady Bunch" film feature is in development.

"When I left 'Dallas' the first time in 1985 the first people who called me were Tom Miller and Bob Boyett," Duffy says. "They wanted to develop a show for me called 'Mixed Company,' which would be about a fire company that had just gotten women members. While we were still negotiating, Lorimar asked me to come back to 'Dallas.'"

"When 'Dallas' finally went off in 1991, Miller and Boyett called me immediately. The new show they wanted to talk about was 'Step By Step.' I was ready to do a half-hour. Suzanne Somers' name came up. I'd never worked with her, but my attitude was I could work with anybody. I met her for the first time at the table reading, and she became my best friend that day. After the first episode my wife said, 'You've finally found the perfect woman to work with.' She's become my new Larry Hagman."

Duffy's first series, "The Man From Atlantis," sank without a trace in 1978. He immediately went into "Dallas," which ran until a year ago.

"It's wonderful to be in a show that has legs, that the network wants to take care of," he says. "That's a gift. I never felt it was a mistake to leave 'Dallas,' although everyone tried to convince me to stay. The only person for it was my wife. My agent didn't think it was a good career move. I just wanted to see if I could parlay 'Dallas' into something better for me than being in an ensemble."

"When I came back they fulfilled every goal I had when I left. I became a co-lead. Before that it had been Larry Hagman and the rest of us. I got more money and five years of a wonderful working situation."

Few people remember, but David Jacobs created "Dallas" as a modern "Romeo and Juliet" starring Duffy and Victoria Principal. Their marriage would unite the warring Ewing and Barnes families. The

Hampton looks at emigres in Hollywood

By Steven Alan McGaw

Oscar winners Jeremy Irons and Alec Guinness head the cast of Christopher Hampton's Tales From Hollywood, the premiere presentation of American Playhouse's 12th season. Sinead Cusack, Charles Durning, Elizabeth McGovern and Jack Shepherd also star in the two-hour show airing Monday, Oct. 19, on most PBS affiliates.

In 1980, producers at Los Angeles' Mark Taper Forum approached Hampton (Dangerous Liaisons) about writing a play on some aspect of the city's history. He soon envisioned a piece about the many European writers and intellectuals who found refuge and employment in the film industry of the late '30s and early '40s.

Hampton was also familiar with the works of Odon Von Horvath, a Hungarian playwright who died on the eve of his move to America. Horvath, in fact, had just begun a novel when he died titled Adieu, Europa, the first line of which read, "Ein poet emigriert nach America" ("A poet emigrates to America"). Hampton decided to make Horvath the central character in his play and the audience's link (speaking directly to them) with a fascinating circle that included writers like Bertolt Brecht, Salka Viertel and brothers Heinrich and Thomas Mann. Through Horvath's monologues and asides — sometimes wide-eyed with innocence, often darkly comic — we understand the unusual plight of brilliant men and women who found themselves in a culture sharply different from their own, trying to make a living in a business that sought at once to exploit and suppress their talents.

Irons is fascinating as Horvath, aided by Hampton's razor-sharp dialogue. Guinness excels as elderly Heinrich Mann, his marriage to the unsophisticated Nelly (Cusack) a tragic mirror to the May-December romance in 1930's The Blue Angel, which was based on one of his novels. Shepherd is appropriately irritating and amusing as Bertolt Brecht and Durning's performance as a studio mogul is hilarious. Only McGovern is disappointingly bland as playwright Helen Schwartz.
