Party's on ropes

Yeltsin strikes hard, fast at Communism

N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — The Communist Party, for decades the bulwark of the Soviet state, was put to a humiliating rout Friday, as party bosses and organizations across the country either defected or were locked out of their offices in mass retribution for the party's complicity in the coup attempt this week.

In Moscow on Friday, Russian republic President Boris N. Yeltsin ordered a halt to the publication of Pravda and other party newspapers, sealed the headquarters of the Central Committee and suspended the activities of the Russian republic's party branch while an investigation takes place into party support for the coup.

The city of Moscow had already moved to close the city party committee Thursday, and Friday district party offices were locked and empty. In some cases, their outside signs had been stripped off. The city party chief, Yuri Prokofiev, was detained and taken to the prosecutor's office.

The Russian Information Agency on Friday night reported that a group of Muscovites who had ringed the Central Committee building intercepted an attempt to carry documents out of the building. The documents, the information agency said, concerned the Communist Party's foreign business dealings.

Covered in disgrace and on the run, the Soviet Communist Party is on the verge of extinction, Aleksandr Rutskoy, vice president of the Russian republic and a Communist who had tried to reform the party from within, said in an interview with the alternative newspaper Kuranti.

"It can no longer call itself the people's party," he said. "Its place is where the

Yeltsin, backers grab moment of reform

MOSCOW — Boris N. Yeltsin and his minions were riding high on their victory Friday, grilling a humbled Mikhail S. Gorbachev, shaping the compositions of the next government, shutting down hostile newspapers and suspending the Russian Communist Party.

But even as they savored the spoils of a decisive victory over a system that had resisted them so long, it was far from clear that their ascendance would translate into the radical transformation of Soviet society that has been their goal.

The lesson of anti-Communist revolutions past was that the sweet taste of victory was inevitably followed by the bitter reassertion of hard realities.

The fall of the Berlin Wall was followed by the bankrupcy of eastern Germany. Czechoslovakia faced dismemberment, Romania remained chaotic.

And this country, whether under the restored Russian tricolor or the hammer and sickle, was still a beggared land with only a marginal experience of democra-

Judge resentences Bakker to 18 years

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (NYT) — A federal judge Friday sentenced the fallen evangelist Jim Bakker to an 18-year prison sentence, far less than the 45-year term thrown out by an appeals court but far more than he and his followers had hoped for.

The sentence, which came after a subdued Bakker apologized for his stewardship of his PTL Ministry and described prison as "the land of the living dead," means Bakker will most likely serve at least four more years in prison.

Officers work overtime in search for missing girl

Midland police continue to follow up "every possible lead" in their search for Elizabeth Henry, the Lee High School student who disappeared Monday from her northwest Midland home, authorities said Friday.

"We've got a number of leads, and it seems like we've already followed up a thousand," said Lt. Earl Luckey of the Midland Police Department Crimes Against Persons division.

Elizabeth, a trainer for her high school football team and editor of the yearbook, was first discovered missing about 4 p.m. Monday. She had missed a school meeting and afternoon football practice that day — behavior her parents say was not typical of their daughter.

Almost two hours earlier, Elizabeth had been mysterious-

Crime bill sets payments to counties

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland County would get an estimated $521,700 and Ector County $360,500 over the next two years for keeping state inmates in county jails as part of a massive criminal justice bill the House approved Friday.

The bill now goes to the Senate, which is expected to take it up Sunday.

Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, who co-sponsored the legislation with Rep. Allen Hightower, D-Houston, predicted the Senate would have the bill back without any serious changes so legislators can avoid a conference comittee and give it final approval Monday.

After a 140-day regular session and a 30-day special session, lawmakers are trying to complete their work after only a week in the second special session and adjourn early next week.

The prison bill provides $188 million to help clear a backlog of about 10,000 felons held in county jails.

The prison bill provides $188 million to help clear a backlog of about 10,000 felons held in county jails. It is part of a settlement agreement with 13 counties that sued the state to get payment for keeping the inmates when state prisons are full.

Because of prison overcrowding, Texas is under court order not to fill its units to more than 95 percent of capacity. As a result, many counties have been unable to transfer state inmates to prisons. The state has not been compensating counties for holding the prisoners.

Midland and Ector counties were among 53 counties on a list that report the number of state prisoners being held as of April 1. The rest of the state's counties that are holding prisoners will split $32.69 million during the 1992-93 biennium.

The estimate for Midland County includes almost $120,000 in "performance rewards" that will go to counties with innovative programs to divert offenders from prisons. Ector County would get a minimum of $100,000 under the incentive progam.

Counties must apply for the money, and the amount received will depend upon how many prisoners it avoids sending to state units because of such innovations as work release and adult probation programs, electronic monitoring and

Piece of Americana

MIAMI — A billboard showing the Coppertone symbol of a bare-bottomed little girl and her playful dog has been a fixture of downtown Miami for more than three decades, and a battle is brewing over a proposal to tear it down. "That's everybody's favorite sign in this town," said Jerry Bengis, whose family put up the billboard and has maintained it for 33 years. "Whenever there's any negative press on signs and billboards, they always say — 'except for the kitschy little Coppertone girl downtown.' " Preservationists don't usually fight for billboards, but say the image of the dog pulling on the pigtailed girl's bathing suit is a piece of Americana worth saving./6A

Kennedy's 'A- plus'

NEW YORK — In his courtroom debut, prosecutor John F. Kennedy Jr. won praise from the crime victim, who found him well-prepared and handsome. Kennedy, 30, a Manhattan assistant district attorney, began his first trial Thursday in state Supreme Court. The case involved an apartment burglary in which a man allegedly swiped a schoolteacher's cash and jewelry and then fell asleep on the victim's bed. Teacher Sonia Schwartz said she would give Kennedy an A-plus for his performance, and she wouldn't mind having dinner with him either if he wins the case.

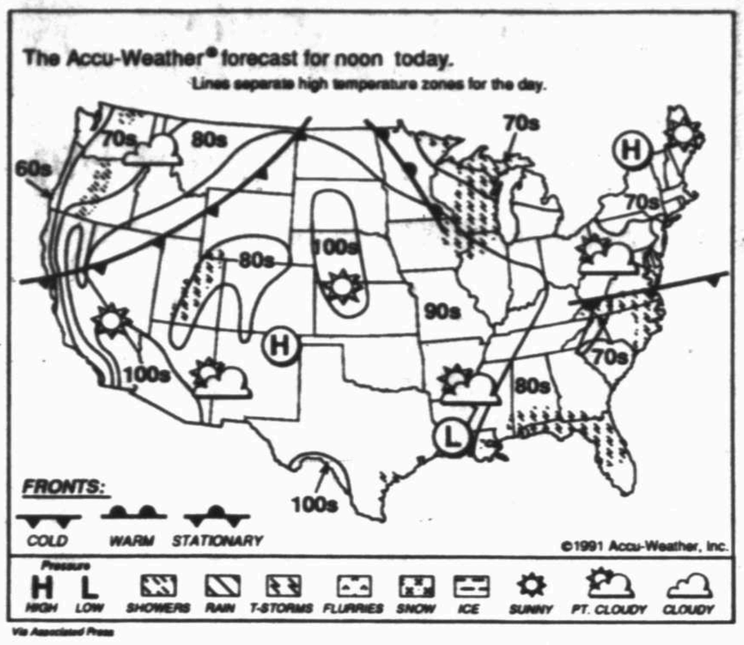
WEATHER SUMMARY



Via Associated Press

Look for mostly sunny, 90s

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the low 90s, and southeast winds at five to 10 miles per hour, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight should be fair with low temperatures in the mid-60s. Sunday is predicted to be mostly sunny with an expected high of 90 degrees.

After an overnight low of 67 degrees, Friday's high was 90, compared with the record high for the date of 106 degrees, set in 1977, and the record low of 57, set in 1966.

STATE

Most of Texas was partly cloudy Friday with scattered thunderstorms ranging from West Central and South Central Texas to the Gulf Coast and Lower Rio Grande Valley. West Texas was mostly sunny.

The shower activity in northern sections developed in response to several outflow boundaries of cooler air from earlier thunderstorms. The coastal activity was due mainly to a combination of the seabreeze and the warm and humid air across the region.

Humidities were high and temperatures warmed into the 90s, although Abilene reported just 77 degrees at 3 p.m.

Winds were variable but generally from the east at 5 to 15 miles an hour.

The weekend forecast was for mostly sunny skies with occasional afternoon thunderstorms. South Texas was expected to remain cloudy. Temperatures were expected to remain high, with highs in the 90s and readings near 100 in the Big Bend. Overnight lows in the 60s and 70s were expected.

NATION

Rain and stormy weather were scattered around the Midwest, the Plains across the South on Friday.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms extended over the Upper Ohio Valley and across southern and western Wisconsin and southeastern Minnesota.

Rain and thunderstorms also were scattered over southern Iowa, northwestern Missouri and Kansas.

Wet weather also hit central and southeastern Texas, southeastern Louisiana, Florida, the Georgia coast and eastern North Carolina.

In the Northwest, rain and thunderstorms were reported over western Montana, the Idaho Panhandle and northeastern Washington.

Heaviest rainfall during the six hours up to 1 p.m. CDT was 2.38 inches at Spring Lake Park, Minn., and 1.57 inches at Roseville, Minn.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Area forecast

West Texas: Isolated thunderstorms this afternoon parts of the Panhandle, South Plains and Permian Basin and from the Edwards Plateau west into the mountains. Evening thunderstorms mainly in the mountains. Generally fair skies through Sunday except patchy fog this morning across the south plains. Morning lows in the 60s, lower 70s Big Bend river valleys. Highs in the upper 80s to mid-90s, except mid-80s mountains to around 101 along the Big Bend.

BAKKER: Judge resentences fallen evangelist irons, will be eligible for parole after serving about six years. He has already served almost two years at a federal prison in Rochester, Minn. The federal District Court judge who imposed the sentence, Graham Mullen, declined to order a fine or restitution for Bakker, who was convicted of fraud in October 1989.

"I'm understandably very sad today," said Bakker's wife, Tammy Faye. "I was hoping Jim would be able to come home sooner."

Mrs. Bakker offered words of comfort to her 15-year-old son, Jamie, thanked the PTL faithful and said: "There's a prayer I will be saying for the next six years. God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, to change the things I can and the wisdom to know the difference."

Bakker's downfall from his evangelical television ministry has played out like a soap opera ever since revelations about his involvement with a former church secretary, Jessica Hahn, and the use of PTL funds to buy her silence about it forced him to resign in March 1987. At its peak, his religious enterprises were bringing in $100 million a year.

But the theatrics ended long ago. Instead, the 51-year-old Bakker's forlorn remarks in court summed up his shattered life. Speaking softly, Bakker apologized for his misdeeds and pleaded for mercy from the court.

"Your honor, I am deeply and seriously remorseful for my moral failures and for the hurt I have caused so many people," he said as his wife and daughter, Tammy Sue Chapman, as well as his father, Raleigh, looked on.

"I failed so many people that trusted me, my own church congregation, this community, my partners, the church world as a whole, myself and my God and my dear family I love so very, very much."

Bakker spoke briefly of his prison existence, saying he recently saw the words, "This is a sad world," written on a prison wall.

"Prison is a sad world," Bakker said. "It's the land of the living dead for me. It's not just strip searches. It's the separation from family and loved ones."

Bakker was convicted of 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy in connection with the sale of $158 million in vacation packages at his Heritage USA Christian theme park in Fort Mill, S.C.

The ministry offered more vacations than it could provide at the theme park and part of the money was diverted to other uses, the prosecution showed.

In February, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit in Richmond overturned the 45-year prison sentence handed down by Judge Robert Potter, saying the judge improperly injected religious views into his sentence.

Bakker, who left the court after his conviction proclaiming his innocence, did not say that he was guilty of the crimes for which he was convicted. But he spoke repeatedly of the people he had hurt and his grief over the pain and financial loss caused by the fall of his ministry.

He concluded by saying: "I ask all that I have hurt to pray for me. I have begged God for heavenly forgiveness, and I beg this court for human mercy."

One of Bakker's lawyers, Harold Bender of Charlotte, concluded the legal defense of Mr. Bakker with a rambling statement that in some ways typified Bakker's often conflicting legal support.

Bender urged the judge to consider what he admitted was a "fox in the henhouse" approach by allowing Bakker to make restitution to his followers by returning to PTL at a minimal salary. He said that was Bakker's wish.

On Thursday Alan Dershowitz, the Harvard law professor who also worked on Bakker's defense, told Judge Mullen that he could impose any probation requirements he wanted.

boot camps.

In addition, after Oct. 1, the state will contract with county jails that have available space to take some of the backlog of prisoners from Harris County. Those counties will share an estimated $56.46 million, based on the number of prisoners they accept.

A major innovation in the bill is a proposal by Stiles to create prison units for 12,000 inmates for alcohol and drug abuse rehabilitation. Texas currently has no such treatment units.

The bill also would:

- Provide prison construction for 25,000 inmates — including the 12,000 rehabilitation units — at a cost of $672 million. However, voters must approve a constitutional amendment Nov. 7 that would allow the state to issue $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds to build the prisons.
- Raise the maximum number of prisoners that can be held in some privately operated prisons from 500 to 1,000.
- Create a "special-needs" parole for inmates who are elderly, disabled, terminally ill or mentally ill or retarded, if their release would not constitute a threat to the public.
- Establish a commission to study the effects of criminal punishments on the justice system and report to the Legislature by its 1993 regular session.

Stiles and Hightower emphasized that costs will continue to rise in the future. For example, Hightower said, it takes one-third of the cost of building a new prison to operate that prison each year.

Stiles said the bill will not solve the crime problem, and that it will be as long as two years before the additional prisons are built.

"We are trying to address the problem, but it took us a long time to get here, and people would be much wiser spending their (tax) money in public education right now and these low socio-economic areas," Stiles said.

"If (voters) want to do something about criminal justice, they had better quit letting (legislators) demagogue about how we are going to be tough on crime, and no taxes, and not worry about educating kids," he said. "You just can't do it."

GAO report predicts FDIC bankruptcy by year's end

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fund that insures bank accounts up to $100,000 "will likely be insolvent" by year's end, congressional investigators said Friday.

Soon after the report's release, the chairman of the House Banking Committee, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, said Congress may need to act within 60 days to replenish the Bank Insurance Fund, which he described as "perilously close" to insolvency.

An omnibus bill to reform the banking system would provide the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. fund with $70 billion in new taxpayer-backed borrowing authority — and a separate measure introduced by Gonzalez would do the same.

Gonzalez said he's willing to move on the separate legislation without waiting for the comprehensive bill.

The report suggested that "having new borrowing authority in place by the end of 1991 would help ensure that the fund has resources available to resolve problem banks."

The date the fund could become insolvent depends on the rate at which insolvent banks are identified and losses recognized, according to the GAO, Congress' investigative agency.

While the fund "will likely be insolvent by the end of 1991," the GAO said, it "should have sufficient cash resources and borrowing authority available to cover its cash needs through Dec. 31, 1991."

Gonzalez said in a statement, "While the GAO suggests that some cash will be on hand by the end of the calendar year, it is becoming increasingly clear that a delay in refunding" the bank insurance fund "is a big gamble that will further erode the public's confidence in the financial and regulatory system."

The GAO also reported that the fund's balance on Dec. 31, 1990, previously reported as $8.2 billion by the FDIC, was overstated by at least $4.2 billion. The report said that the FDIC agrees this adjustment represents needed additional reserves for losses for insolvent banks.

An additional 34 large banks are "more likely than not" to fail this year without capital infusion, the GAO said. An additional 64 large institutions could fail over the next one to three years and a number of small institutions also are in trouble, the report said.

In addition to the insurance fund's problems, the GAO said the Resolution Trust Corp., which is handling the cleanup of failed institutions, could use up nearly all of the $80 billion provided to it by Sept. 30.

By year's end, the costs will exceed funds now available by $8 billion, the report said. The RTC is seeking an additional $80 billion.

New aid would have to be in place at the RTC by Sept. 30 "to avoid additional costs resulting from delays in closing troubled thrifts," the GAO said.

FDIC spokeswoman Caryl Austrian said the agency had no immediate comment because it had not seen the GAO report.

Richard III fans take umbrage at dwarfism diagnosis

LONDON (AP) — King Richard III was a dwarf, according to a medical diagnosis that has outraged defenders of the monarch.

"The combination of slow growth and short stature, preceded by a difficult breech birth ... and intimations of physical weakness and sexual impotence ... suggest idiopathic pituitary dwarfism," Dr. Jacob Van der Werff ten Bosch said in an editorial published Friday in the weekly medical journal Lancet.

Balderdash, say Richard's partisans.

"Everyone knows Shakespeare's Richard III, but not everyone knows the historical evidence," said Jack Leslau, a biographer of the king. "There are various medical theories that all work on the assumption that he was some sort of monster with a physical deformity."

Caroline Hammond, librarian of the Richard III Society in London, was appalled by the allegations of weakness and impotency.

"I think this is just another of Shakespeare's descriptions, not real history," she said. "The feeling of the society is that Richard III had a raw deal."

Pituitary dwarfism is caused by a defect in the gland that controls many hormones, including growth hormone. When there is no tumor the condition is called "idiopathic" — no known cause.

However, she added, "We're not saying he was a saint."

The Lancet editorial was timed for the 506th anniversary of Richard's death in battle on Aug. 22 at Bosworth Field — where, as Shakespeare had it, the desperate monarch offered "my kingdom for a horse!"

Van der Werff ten Bosch, former professor of medicine at the University of Rotterdam and the University of Leiden in Holland, says there is no reason for umbrage at his diagnosis.

"As a doctor I would not think it's ridiculing a king to call him a dwarf, by no means at all. It's simply a medical diagnosis," he said in a telephone interview.

The diagnosis is not based solely on Shakespeare's "Richard III" but also on references by the king's contemporaries to his short stature, said Van der Werff ten Bosch.

"I am interested in history in general, fond of Shakespeare, and by pure coincidence discovered the facts of Richard III's birth defects and his mode of birth. And knowing that a large number of pituitary dwarfs are born in a breech position I looked further to find evidence of his growth defect," said the doctor, an endocrinologist who has studied dwarfism for 30 years.

He deduced sexual impotency from Shakespeare's assertion that Richard "cannot prove a lover."

Dwarfism is defined as the shortest three percent of a given population.

Pituitary dwarfism is caused by a defect in the gland that controls many hormones, including growth hormone. When there is no tumor the condition is called "idiopathic" — no known cause. Many dwarfs fail to go through puberty normally.

Richard's height is unknown, and no one now knows where his body is.

The brother of Edward IV, Richard was crowned in 1483.

Her 1987 Ford Bronco II was later discovered abandoned at Midland International Airport.

While police are still working overtime to sort out the facts, Elizabeth's face has been appearing all over town this week. Her family and friends instigated a citywide publicity effort, pasting up signs asking anyone with information about the girl to call authorities.

"(The publicity) sure has generated a lot of calls," Luckey said. "And we hope they continue to call. You just never know when you might hit on the right one."

He said many of the calls he receives about the case involve possible leads, most of which are checked out as soon as possible.

"Mainly people are saying, 'I heard something,' and that never hurts," Luckey said. "Something someone might have heard could lead us to the answer."

Police, the FBI and Texas Rangers are working on the case, and agencies throughout the state have been notified, Luckey said.

"We'll keep going until we find out something or just run out of leads," he said.

In Moscow, crowds that had watched as a monument to Feliks Dzerzhinsky was removed from the square in front of KGB headquarters Thursday moved on Friday to dismantle a statue of Yakov M. Sverdlov, a Bolshevik leader, across the square from the Bolshoi Theater.

The flight of the Communists happened so fast that party members were caught off guard. Answering the telephone at the Central Committee headquarters on Staraya Ploshchad, someone said, "No one is here."

In the city of Kaliningrad, 60 miles from the capital, the city party secretary put down the telephone and then turned to a visitor to say that the phone call had been from Moscow, telling him to pack and leave.

In Vilnius, party leaders fled their headquarters in four Soviet army personnel carriers, to be followed minutes later by Lithuanian national guardsman, armed with an arrest warrant, who found coffee still warm in the cups.

In some regions, reaction to the coup provided cover for actions, in some cases vendettas, by democratic forces caught in long-standing struggles against the Kremlin.

In Latvia, the parliament voted an outright ban on the Communist Party and ordered criminal proceedings against its leaders. In the southern republic of Moldavia, the nationalist government arrested Communist leaders in Gagauz, a territory trying to break away from Moldovia, as "adherents of dictatorship" because they had sent a telegram of greetings to the coup leaders.

The Lithuanian police Friday night seized the headquarters of the Communist Party in Vilnius, and regained control of all major public buildings occupied by Soviet troops during the violence in January that left 13 people dead.

In the Russian republic, under Yeltsin's order, party cells, which had been used as the leash to exert central control over once-powerful state agencies, were dissolved at the KGB, at the official press agency Tass and at the national radio station Mayak. There, the acting party secretary resigned from the party altogether, and according to a report from the independent news agency Interfax, no one came forward to take his place.

From the once-loyal republic of Kirghizia in Central Asia, to the breakaway republics on the Baltic coast, the party was accused from within and without of "cowardly and unscrupulous" behavior during the coup.

With these words, the party leader in Uzbekistan announced he was leaving the Politburo, while Vladimir Zyukin, the head of Komsomol, the Communist youth organization, said he had withdrawn from the Central Committee "in connection with the full disassociation of the Komsomol from the line taken by the Communist Party leadership, its criminal position and its betrayal of all honest Communists."

Except from Communists themselves, there were no protests against some of the peremptory moves taken against the party. Nor did those party leaders who quit their seats on its leading councils explain why they had not as individuals spoken out against the coup. To some observers, the lack of debate was a troublesome sign that all criticism of the prevailing political line would be considered suspect.

At a press conference Friday, a deputy editor of Pravda accused Yeltsin of using "the same unconstitutional methods as the so-called state emergency committee." The editor, Gennadi Seleznev, said there was no legal basis for the suspension of Pravda, a newspaper of 3 million.

Speaking before the Russian Parliament on Friday, Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who is not only Soviet president but also general secretary of the Communist Party, warned against "anti-Communist hysteria."

"We should separate out those who participated in the first stage, and who afterward supported" the coup, he said.

REFORM: Yeltsin, supporters wring concessions from Gorbachev

(From 1A)

cy, a widely divided populace and an economy in tatters.

There were new dangers, too: Gorbachev was still capable of applying brakes to radical reform. A newly ascendant Russian leadership stood to touch off a wave of seperatism.

The window of opportunity opened by the aborted coup could rapidly close when the hangover set in.

Yeltsin himself was setting questionable precedents by decreeing the closing of newspapers and suspending the Russian Communist Party, and the anti-Communist fervor underscored the weakness of the fledgling democratic institutions.

Yeltsin's following had been united largely in opposition to the Communists, and it could yet splinter under the pressure of hard decisions.

For now, in the immediate aftermath of the ignominious collapse of the old commissars' coup, there seemed no limit to the possibilities before the victorious collection of reformers, nationalists, intellectuals and democrats ranged behind the burly back of Yeltsin.

The KGB was under siege, the military was docile, the police were under a Yeltsinite, the Communist Party no longer had the werewithal to resist the long-gathering fury of the nation and President Gorbachev was isolated.

But even as the victors celebrated, the challenges were evident.

There was Gorbachev. Brought before the Russian Parliament in what was meant as a show of gratitude and solidarity for his deliverance by the Russian leaders, he soon came to appear less a president than a co-conspirator in the dock of a political tribunal.

Though he repeatedly said "we reformers" and spoke of the need to maintain unity "in the ranks of democrats," he made clear he was not prepared to cast his lot unequivocally with the radical reformers.

He talked of continuing with his government's weak economic program, he maneuvered to keep his own people in government, he defended the "peasants, workers and intelligentsia" of the Communist Party and he sought to depict the coup as aimed against him personally — and not as an onslaught by the system with which he had been allied organized by those he had appointed..

Soon heckling spread through the hall, and Yeltsin, openly asserting his power over an old rival, repeatedly prompted and corrected Gorbachev, even ordering him in prosecutorial tones to read out notes from a closed meeting of the Council of Ministers at which minister after minister was revealed to have embraced the state of emergency or condoned it.

The sparring suggested that even if the balance of forces had dramatically tilted toward Yeltsin, a new relationship had yet to take shape between the old rivals and Gorbachev was not yet ready to assume a ceremonial role.

And for all of Yeltsin's new authority, Gorbachev still commanded considerable powers as federal president, capable at least of impeding the passage of that with which he disagreed.

That possibility alarmed advocates of radical reform who believed that the moment had to be seized immediately if it was not to be lost.

"People who stood three nights in the rain to protect Yeltsin are ready now to accept sacrifice," argued Sergei A. Zverev, a member of the economic think-tank led by the radical economist Grigory A. Yavlinsky, with whom Yeltsin had held vigil in the threatened Russian Parliament during the coup.

"But the window will not be open forever."

The heckling of Gorbachev, and the shouts of "resign, resign" as he drove away from the parliament testified to the mood of disappointed expectations.

It began Wednesday night, when on his return from the Crimea, Gorbachev failed to come directly to the Russian Parliament where the resistance to the coup had centered. And it turned more sour when a full day passed before he came.

"If he had come that night, we would have carried him on our shoulders," Zverev said. "Instead he started saying that he is still a Communist. He missed a great opportunity."

Gorbachev's performance, was also seen as a failure to appreciate the real significance of the coup.

"What Mikhail Sergeyevich failed to understand is that all his power and the power of the bureaucracy is supported by four whales — the military industrial complex, the KGB, the army and the bureaucracy," said Dr. Vyacheslav Fyodorov, a prominent eye surgeon and a Russian deputy.

"Until he destroys them, not without our help, his power is ephemeral. Any moment, as soon as he stops serving them, they will wipe him out. He is lucky that he survived. But instead of eliminating the chance of a repetition, he is dreaming of some strange reformation."

Mexico's ruling party captures 290 seats

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Governing party officials say their candidates have won 290 of 300 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and all but one Senate post, the Excelsior news agency reported.

The announcement by the Institutional Revolutionary Party late Thursday came as the Federal Electoral Institute missed yet another deadline for producing complete returns from Sunday's national election.

The ruling party, known as PRI, lost only 10 of the 300 directly elected seats in the lower house of Congress and one of 32 Senate seats on Sunday, Cesar Augusto Santiago, chief of the party's campaign department, was quoted as saying by Excelsior.

All 10 of the non-PRI seats in the lower chamber and the lone opposition Senate seat went to the conservative National Action Party, Santiago was quoted as saying.

If true, that would be a stunning setback to the leftist movement, which in 1988 won 31 percent of the presidential vote, according to an official count widely considered suspiciously low.

The party's public relations office said Thursday night it could not confirm the tally. But scattered results from official state election boards indicated a PRI victory of the scale Santiago described.

With the PRI's vote share running at about 63 percent, it could recapture the two-thirds majority needed to modify the constitution without aid from any other party.

The party earlier claimed victory in all six gubernatorial campaigns — including two still disputed by the opposition.

The Electoral Institute, meanwhile, said Thursday night it had finished counting the results in 254 of the 300 districts. But it failed to announce immediately the results in most districts, or even to provide a summary.

The institute originally had promised to have the official results counted by Wednesday. It also promised to give unofficial results of the elections on the night of the vote — a count it has still not provided.

Institute Director General Emilio Chuayffet told a news conference that the law sets no time limit for counting votes. But he said they should be finished by Sunday.

He blamed the slow pace of the counting on "scrupulous compliance with a process that follows the framework of the law," and on protests by opposition parties that forced time-consuming recounts of ballots.

Members of Mexico's largest left-wing party, the Democratic Revolutionary Party, said they planned to lodge protests. National Action officials also promised to present evidence of irregularities in 158 of the districts.

DEATHS

Carolyn Dyrdahl

Services for Carolyn A. Dyrdahl of Midland are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Dyrdahl died Friday at a local nursing home.

She was born Dec. 23, 1907, in Chicago, Ill., and spent her early years in Chicago and Indiana. In 1925, she married Cyrus W. Cleaver and they had five children. She moved to Malta, Mont., in 1952 and later married Orvil Dyrdahl. They lived in Billings, Mont., for many years. Mrs. Dyrdahl moved to Midland after her husband's death in 1987. She was a member of the Christian Church of Midland.

Mrs. Dyrdahl was preceded in death by a son, Johnny Cleaver.

Survivors include two sons, Joseph Cleaver of Newark, Calif., and Jerry Cleaver of Midland; two daughters, Lois Stipp of Plymouth, Neb., and Helen Spaulding of Poughkeepsie, N.Y.; and 12 grandchildren.

Patsy Yeager

Services for Patsy Goss Yeager, 90, are set for 10:30 a.m. today at Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity with the Rev. Allen Whitman officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Yeager died Wednesday at her Midland home.

Survivors include two sons, Wilbur Arthur Yeager Jr., and George Goss Yeager, both of Midland; one daughter, Patsy Yeager Hinchey of Denver, Colo.; one sister, Laura Goss Thompson of Casper, Wyo.; 10 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; four nieces and three nephews.

Memorials should be directed to the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, Hospice or a favorite charity.

Durward Swails

Services for Durward Swails of Midland were Friday at the Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Curtis Hollis officiating. Burial followed at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

He died Wednesday at a local hospital.

Pallbearers were Wes Washam, Kenneth Floyd, Alvin Moore, Jesse Aguilar and Donald Grazier.

Memorials should be directed to the Allison Cancer Center.

W.O. Pigman Jr.

Memorial services for W.O. "Bill" Pigman Jr., will be at 3 p.m. Monday at the Reeves County Civic Center in Pecos with the Rev. Clark Ford of Memorial Christian Church in Midland and the Rev. Alan Abraham of First Christian Church in Pecos officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home in Midland and the Pecos Funeral Home.

He died Friday at a local hospital.

WEST TEXAS IN BRIEF

Church group meets

Staff Report

The Midland District Meeting of the Churches of God in Christ convenes Monday through Sept. 1 at the Powerhouse Cogic, 711 Cherry St., Big Spring.

Guest speaker Wednesday will be Mother Victorine Mackey, state supervisor of Women Texas Northwest. Guest speaker Thursday will be Bishop W.H. Watson, state bishop of the Churches of God in Christ.

Host pastor is the Rev. Frank Nelson. Services begin at 8 p.m. daily with the exception of Aug. 31 which starts at 6 p.m. The children ages 2 to 19 years old will begin the 6 p.m. program.

Friday is Women's Day with Missionary L. Smith presiding. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Lemuel Thuston of Lubbock.

Theme of the meeting is "Faith in the Midst of Distress." Background Scripture is II Timothy 1:12.

Concert tonight

Music will fill the air tonight as the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale performs its annual free outdoor pops concert at Midland College.

"The pops concerts are the symphony's thank you to the community," said Philip West, the organization's new general manager. "We're looking forward to families coming out with picnics and enjoying an evening with the MOSC."

The dual concerts will feature a variety of light classical music and soloist Jennifer Leshnouer of Odessa on violin. Miss Leshnouer is a recent graduate of Peabody Conservatory.

Show time is 8 p.m. today at Midland College and 8 p.m. Sunday at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, Odessa.

Both outdoor concerts are free.

Soviet tour

Midland native Johnnie C. Godwin, an official of the Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville, Tenn., is among a group leaving today for the Soviet Union to help distribute 4 million New Testaments.

The trip, the Godwins fourth, was temporarily on hold early in the week, but was given a green light once the hardline-Communist coup failed, according to Godwin's mother, Mrs. John Godwin of Midland.

Godwin is also taking thousands of copies of the Russian translation of his book "What It Means to be Born Again" along to the biannual Moscow International Book Fair.

Church program

The Unitarian-Universalist Church of Midland, Midkiff at Neely, will present a program on "The Church as a Community" at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Participants will be invited to explore the meaning and value of community in a church.

Child care will be provided.

The public is invited to attend.

Benefit set

A Help-Fill-The-Love-Tree benefit for Guy Hammer, proprietor of Last Chance Saloon & Restaurant, will be held from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. today at the Last Chance at 106 S. "A" St. in Midland.

Hammer, 53, suffered a heart attack on June 28 in Longview while he was visiting his family, said Linda Collins, who is helping coordinate the benefit.

Hammer, who is hospitalized in Midland's Physicians & Surgeons Hospital, is comatose, said a hospital spokesman.

The benefit will include music, dancing, food and "all the trimmings," said Ms. Collins.

The benefit is to help defray Hammer's medical expenses.

Judge dismisses charges in Kemp insurance scam

EL PASO (AP) — A state district judge dismissed criminal charges Friday against defendants who had been accused of bilking investors of millions in an insurance scheme.

But prosecutors say they plan to refile similar charges.

State District Judge Lupe Rivera-Eggemeyer dismissed the charges saying an amended indictment filed by the El Paso County District Attorney's office contained charges that were not included in the original indictment the grand jury handed up June 4.

"To proceed with this amended indictment would be improper," Rivera-Eggemeyer said. "It is the duty of a trial judge to apply the law. I didn't make the law."

The original indictment stemmed from an investigation of the financial empire of El Paso financier and car salesman Maury Kemp.

The 11 individuals listed as defendants in the case are all well-known in El Paso.

■ Gainesville prosecutors go to grand jury

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — A year after five university students were killed in a series of mutilation slayings, prosecutors are taking their two best cases to a grand jury, officials said Friday.

A Hillsborough County grand jury will convene Nov. 4 to consider charges against Danny Rolling, of Shreveport, La., and Edward Humphrey, of Indialantic, Fla., said John Joyce, a spokesman for the state Department of Law Enforcement. "We're going to present it to the grand jury and let them make their own assessment," State Attorney Len Register said.

The horrific slayings focused national attention on this normally quiet community during the first week of classes last year and sparked intense fear among students and residents.

Four victims attended the University of Florida. The fifth was a student at Santa Fe Community College. Investigators said some of the murder scenes were set like a stage. In one slaying, a victim's severed head was set on a shelf.

Humphrey, 19, is due for release from a state mental hospital next month and is to serve 14 months of probation for beating his grandmother a few days after the last bodies were found in Gainesville.

■ Northeast seeks hurricane federal relief

BOSTON — Maine and Massachusetts asked President Bush on Friday to declare storm-damaged sections disaster areas, saying they need federal money to clean up roads, bridges and buildings lashed by Hurricane Bob.

The hurricane hit the coast Monday with 115 mph winds and left at least 16 people dead from the Carolinas to Maine.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo has asked the federal government for relief for the Long Island area, where farm officials estimate crop damage from Monday's hurricane could reach $120 million.

In Massachusetts, private property damage was estimated at $900 million, public property at $69 million and crop damage at $10 million, Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci wrote in a letter to the White House.

Maine Gov. John R. McKernan wrote to Bush the hurricane was so bad that state and local governments could not handle clean-up efforts without help. He asked that eight counties be declared disaster areas. Damage was estimated at $6 million.

About 77,000 utility customers in Massachusetts, most in the Cape Cod area, remained without power Friday. About 20,000 were in the dark on Long Island, 9,000 in Maine, 6,900 in Rhode Island, and about 400 in Connecticut.

In Rhode Island, preliminary damage estimates to uninsured state and city property were placed at $9 million. Gov. Bruce G. Sundlun's had previously asked Bush to declare a disaster in the state.

■ Hundreds of rodents find freedom at airport

LANSING, Mich. — About 250 gerbils and hamsters being shipped from Mississippi chewed their way out of boxes Friday and scattered at an airport.

"We've found them clear in the other end of the airport," said Barbara McWilliams of Capital Region Airport Authority.

"A lot of people have been taking them home as pets," she said.

Officials of Capital City Airport captured about half the rodents, but the rest were believed to be sleeping or in storage areas, McWilliams said.

The boxes were sitting in an airline's baggage area behind its ticket counter when the gerbils and hamsters chewed their way to freedom, she said.

"The ticket agents who were working our first flight in had them running in and out of the ticket booths and around their feet," McWilliams said.

"It got to be quite a scene," she said. "We hate to have the passengers think there are mice running around."

Battle brews to save favorite billboard

MIAMI (AP) — A billboard showing the Coppertone symbol of a bare-bottomed little girl and her playful dog has been a fixture of downtown Miami for more than three decades, and a battle is brewing over a proposal to tear it down.

"That's everybody's favorite sign in this town," said Jerry Bengis, whose family put up the billboard and has maintained it for 33 years. "Whenever there's any negative press on signs and billboards, they always say — 'except for the kitschy little Coppertone girl downtown.'"

Preservationists don't usually fight for billboards, but say the image of the dog pulling on the pigtailed girl's bathing suit is a piece of Americana worth saving.

"It brings back so many wonderful memories that are part of what we've all grown up here with," said Louise Yarbrough, executive director of the Dade Heritage Trust. "It's part of this city. We feel strongly it should stay here."

She wrote to Coppertone's owner, Schering-Plough Health Care Products of Liberty Corner, N.J., when she found out it was considering tearing down the familiar neon sign, which covers the side of a 13-story building on Biscayne Boulevard.

Company officials say the billboard's themes of "Don't be a paleface" and "TAN don't burn" are outdated in these health-conscious times.

"Neither statement is in vogue with current thinking" about damage from sun overexposure, said company spokesman Doug Petkus.

"We appreciate the fact people recognize our logo as part of the landscape," he said, but added there were financial considerations.

No timetable has been set for reaching a decision, he said. There's a similar billboard near the airport and four others around Florida.

Ms. Yarbrough said it would be a mistake for the company to do away with such an enduring image recognized around the world.

"As Coca-Cola found out a few years ago, NEW is not always better," Ms. Yarbrough wrote to Schering-Plough President David Collins earlier this month.

She said that while the battle to keep the Coppertone kid may appear frivolous, part of Miami's heritage is at stake.

Coppertone was developed by Miami Beach pharmacist Benjamin Green in the early 1940s.

The Coopertone billboard in downtown Miami has been a fixture for over three decades, but a battle is brewing over a proposal to tear it down.

Publicity surprises woman pregnant with grandchildren

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — Arlette Schweitzer prepared for seven years to carry her grandchildren in her womb. It became such a part of her life that she never expected the world would consider her either an oddity or a miracle worker.

Mrs. Schweitzer, 42, is the first American woman to serve as a surrogate mother for her daughter. She expects to give birth to twins this fall. Her daughter, Christa Uchytil, was born without a uterus.

"We just never, never dreamt this would get this much interest around the world," Mrs. Schweitzer said.

She compares herself to parents who donate kidneys to their children.

"I don't know a mother or father in the world who doesn't do what they can for their children," said Mrs. Schweitzer, who already has four grandchildren.

She spoke publicly about her role three weeks ago in hopes of helping others with fertility problems. She since has been inundated with phone calls and letters.

To prove her point, the telephone rings again in the house she shares with her husband, Dan, and their spaniel. Mrs. Schweitzer, nearly seven months pregnant, lets the answering machine do the work.

The twins she carries, the biological children of her 22-year-old daughter and son-in-law, Kevin Uchytil of Sioux City, Iowa, are due in late October or early November.

Eggs were taken from Mrs. Uchytil's ovaries, fertilized in a laboratory dish with her husband's sperm and implanted in her mother's uterus.

After the discovery of her daughter's condition about seven years ago, Mrs. Schweitzer says she quickly decided she would serve as a surrogate someday.

The family never thought much about making medical history. "We were just thinking of what we could do to help Christa have babies," she said.

H & R BLOCK OFFERS INCOME TAX COURSE IN MIDLAND

Thousands of people learn how to prepare income tax returns from H&R Block and then earn money as income tax preparers. H&R Block, the world's largest income tax preparation service, offers its Income Tax Course starting Sept. 9th. Morning, and evening, classes are available.

Transplant patient making recovery

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A man who was given the wrong heart in a transplant operation last week and had to undergo a second transplant with a compatible heart is already up and out of bed, just days after the surgery.

The man was allowed out of bed Thursday. He was in serious condition but was "progressing as any normal transplant patient," said Marcia Williams, spokeswoman for Oregon Health Sciences University.

The patient underwent his second transplant Sunday. Williams said doctors removed the last of the drainage and monitoring tubes Wednesday.

"His big thing today was getting out of bed, walking all the way around the nurses' station and then getting back into bed," Williams said.

The patient, whose name is being withheld at his family's request, may be released at the end of next week.

Prison officials report progress on third day of siege

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Prison officials reported some progress Friday in talks with Cuban inmates, two days after the prisoners seized control of a high-security unit and took 10 hostages on the eve of being deported.

Prescription medication was delivered Thursday night for two hostages and two prisoners through a grille covering an entry in the high-security unit at Talladega Federal Correctional Institution.

Prison Warden Roger Scott said the medication was for "non-life-threatening" conditions. It was the first direct contact with the inmates.

"We felt we made some progress," Dan Dove of the Federal Bureau of Prisons said of the talks, but he declined to elaborate.

"The hostages continue to tell us the inmates haven't threatened them," Dove said. "We do not believe it is the intent of the inmates to harm the hostages."

Seven men and three women who work at the prison were taken hostage Wednesday when guards were overpowered. There were 121 Cuban detainees and 18 American inmates in the unit, along with the 10 employees, when the uprising occurred.

Prison officials say they don't know how many of the Cubans are taking part in the hostage-holding or what role non-Cuban inmates are playing.

The rebellion occurred one day before 32 Cuban detainees were to be flown back to Cuba from Birmingham. The Cuban inmates were among 125,000 who fled Cuba in the 1980 Mariel boatlift. They were ordered deported after committing crimes in the United States.

Thirty-one of the Cuban inmates were involved in rioting at federal prisons in Georgia and Louisiana in 1987, Dove said.

Those riots broke out after the State Department said Cuba had agreed to take back more than 2,500 of the 3,800 Mariel refugees imprisoned nationwide. At the height of that crisis, more than 100 prison workers were held hostage.

Dove wouldn't disclose what the inmates are demanding.

"If there were demands, they would not be released," he said. "That could potentially harm efforts to return the hostages safely to their families."

Dove added: "Indications are that everything appears to be calm."

He said electricity and water continued to be provided to the unit, but he wouldn't say whether outgoing telephones are available to the inmates.

The Cubans apparently stocked their lockers with non-perishable food, such as potato chips and cookies, in addition to fruit, before the takeover began, Dove said. Officials believe they are sharing the food with the hostages.

"We figure they have plenty of food," Dove said.

On Wednesday, the prisoners requested food, but it wasn't delivered because the inmates broke off negotiations for awhile.

Freedom apparently is the goal of the Cubans housed at Talladega, about 50 miles east of Birmingham.

One detainee, Jesus De Armas, was quoted as saying in a call to the Spanish-language edition of The Miami Herald that they were "willing to kill everyone to not go to Cuba. The thing here is limited to two words: freedom or death."

Prison officials said contact Thursday came after a woman hostage asked for food, medical supplies and telephones, reportedly over a police-type radio.

During the delivery of medication, Bureau of Prisons medical staff looked over the two hostages and the two inmates and concluded they were in good health, Scott said.

Wichita weary of national spotlight

WICHITA, Kan. (NYT) — This heartland city of 300,000 people has grown weary, its normally sturdy shoulders and spirit beginning to sag under the weight of an unwelcome and unaccustomed national spotlight that accompanied the disruptive anti-abortion demonstrations that began six weeks ago.

This sort of turmoil seems out of place in Wichita, a city of churches, minor league baseball and friendly people.

While it has many of the problems of large cities, it is a good place to raise children, everyone from the hotel bellmen to the mayor say.

And until July, it was best known for being the hub of light-aircraft manufacturing. In Detroit they make cars. In Wichita they make planes, the big three being Boeing Co., Cessna Aircraft Co. and Beech Aircraft Corp.

It is also the birthplace of Pizza Hut and the White Castle hamburger, although the tiny White Castle sandwiches are not available here. The company left town years ago, said F. Tim Witsman, the president of Wichita's Chamber of Commerce.

But it has been the protests, led by the militant anti-abortion group Operation Rescue, that has put Wichita on the map. The group was drawn to Wichita in part by the fact that it is one of the only cities in which women can obtain abortions in the final three months of pregnancy.

"Nobody knew we were here before," the chamber's spokesman, Roger N. Wilson, said.

And Friday the protesters continued to defy a federal judge by blocking the gates of one of the city's three abortion clinics. About 60 were arrested, pushing the total number of arrests to more than 2,550.

The judge's order was upheld Friday by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 10th Circuit, in Denver. But the appellate court said it would hear arguments by the anti-abortion group against the judge's requirement that protesters post a $100,000 bond against property damage and his jailing of three of the protest leaders for failure to do so.

Residents here say they can not recall a time of such discontent on their streets, a time of divided families and congregations, of splintered friendships and shaken love.

Some here worry that the city's reputation has been badly injured at a time when it is struggling to polish its image and revive its dying downtown.

But abortion opponents say it gives prominence to their cause.

Mayor tries to head off march

NEW YORK (NYT) — A huge police presence in the racially troubled Crown Heights section of Brooklyn appeared to have brought a measure of calm Friday as Mayor David N. Dinkins appealed for a moratorium on all demonstrations this weekend.

He made the appeal in an effort to head off a planned march into the neighborhood Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath, led by the Rev. Al Sharpton.

Friday night, at 8 p.m., the mayor and his top aides were meeting with Sharpton and the civil rights lawyer Alton H. Maddox Jr. at the Bedford-Stuyvesant Restoration Corp. in Brooklyn.

Going into the meeting, Sharpton said he had not yet decided whether to call off the march planned for Saturday. He said he was concerned about the large number of arrests of black youths.

Less than an hour earlier, after talking with Dinkins at a wake in Bedford-Stuyvesant for the mother of Rep. Edolphus Towns, Sharpton told reporters:

"I asked to speak to the mayor. I am very concerned about Crown Heights. He's demonstrated his concern. We will not be in the streets of Crown Heights tonight. Tonight, we will talk."

Serb, Croat cease-fire nears collapse

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (NYT) — The Yugoslav federal presidency's commission for monitoring an all-but-disintegrated cease-fire in the war between rebel Serbs and Croatian government forces neared complete breakdown on Friday as the warring sides prepared for an escalation in the fighting.

"More crisis points have arisen since the cease-fire decision than there were before it," said the commission's spokesman, Irfan Ajanovic. "In the 20-day cease-fire, there have been about 200 violations, more than 70 people have perished, and communications and bridges have been destroyed."

Serbia's government contends that it is not a principal in the conflict and thus not a proper negotiating partner in its resolution. But Serbia, Yugoslavia's largest republic, leads a bloc of four members of the eight-man presidency which blocks every vote not in the interests of the Serbian minority fighting to break away from the Croatian republic.

"The presidency members must spell out who the conflicting sides are and the competent representatives of the Serb people," Ajanovic said. "If they don't do that, the commission will be unable to work."

At an afternoon news conference, Ajanovic criticized both the rebel Serb and Croatian forces for breaking the cease-fire and marshaling forces for new clashes. He said he and other commission members may resign.

Local Croatian and Serb-rebel leaders in eastern Croatia on Friday ordered a general mobilization of all Croat and Serb men over 18. Fearing an all-out intervention by the national army on behalf of the Serb rebels, Croatian forces have rigged bridges with dynamite and built concrete bunkers.

The fighting on Friday, though reportedly less intense than in the last two days, broke out near Petrinja, Osijek, Vukovar, Pakrac, and a half-dozen other Croatian towns. Accurate casualty reports were unavailable.

The commission spokesman hinted that some elements of the Serb-dominated Yugoslav army have aided the Serb rebels. "While we went by the village, a Yugoslav army armored vehicle drove in front of us," Ajanovic said. "I asked myself: how is it possible that a Yugoslav army armored vehicle can end up in the hands of the Serb forces? It can only have been stolen, taken, lent, or given as a gift."

"I'm not going to say whether the Yugoslav army is involved, but a real cease-fire would be much more easily attained if the army covered both of the conflicting sides," he said.

"Croatian representatives proposed several times that the Yugoslav army be deployed equally on each side of the line," he said.

The army has claimed that it is only acting as a buffer between the rebel Serbs and Croatian forces. But the army's gun emplacements invariably point toward Croatian lines.

Croatia's government, which has declared its independence from the Yugoslav federation, accuses the army of siding with the Serbs. The Serb rebels have repeatedly won control of territory after Yugoslav army tanks have moved in to break up firefights.

On Thursday, Croatia's president, Franjo Tudjman, warned that the republic would consider itself effectively at war with Yugoslavia if the Belgrade government did not take steps to restore Croatia's legal authority by Aug. 31.

U.N. shows photos of Iran's supergun

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. officials on Friday released the first photos of Iraq's 170-foot-long "supergun" and said experts would draw up plans for its demolition.

Iraq, which earlier denied building "superguns," admitted in July that it was developing the modified artillery with extra-long barrels so that it would be capable of firing chemical, biological or nuclear weapons up to 1,000 miles — striking targets in Tel Aviv, Tehran or Cairo.

Under terms of the Gulf War cease-fire, Iraq was required to disclose all its chemical, biological and nuclear weapons, as well as its Scud-type and other ballistic missiles.

Iraq admitted to U.N. inspectors that it had a 170-foot-long gun with a 14-inch diameter barrel at a site 110 miles north of Baghdad. It said the gun had been tested.

It also admitted having other massive steel tubes, including one intended to be used as part of a separate 39-inch diameter gun. If that were assembled, it would be the largest artillery piece in the world.

Only the 14-inch diameter gun has been assembled.

Iran struggles to free hostages, Shiites say

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran is pushing to free Western hostages in a prisoner swap for Shiite Muslims held by Israel, even as the world's attention focuses on the Soviet Union, Shiite Muslim sources said Friday.

"The Soviet events eclipsed news about the hostages, but the efforts toward pulling off the deal continued unabated in Tehran," an informed Shiite source said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

He said Iran was "keen on facilitating" a U.N.-sponsored package deal to free 375 Lebanese and Palestinians held by Israel, in return for the hostages and information on seven Israeli servicemen missing in Lebanon.

At the United Nations, Iran's ambassador accused Israel of blocking the deal.

Also Friday, Lebanon's interior minister said he expected the hostages would be free by the end of the year, and a weekly with an uneven track record on hostage issues predicted a Sept. 1 release.

Ambassador Kamal Kharrazi, who has been a key intermediary with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in trying to arrange a release, said the Israeli linkage was causing delays.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted him as saying, "The freedom of Lebanese and Palestinian Muslims from the prisons of the Zionist regime (Israel) could have led to the continuation of the process concerning the release of the hostages."

Kharrazi also brought up the case of four Iranians missing in Lebanon since 1982, an issue the Tehran government has at times linked to hostage releases.

The four were widely believed killed by Christian militiamen.

"Their fate must certainly be clarified in the course of the release of the hostages," Kharrazi told IRNA.

Vietnam pledges open MIA inquiry

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The leaders of Vietnam and Cambodia have pledged an "open inquiry" to rapidly resolve the fates of Americans who did not return from war in those Southeast Asian nations, a U.S. senator said Friday.

John Kerry, D-Mass., said the two communist countries promised to allow U.S. helicopters to take part in the MIA search. They also pledged to welcome U.S. citizens to make their own on-the-spot inquiries and give unprecedented access to a newly formed Senate committee on the MIA-POW issue, he said.

"I think it is very significant that they are willing to have that kind of intrusion, that kind of open inquiry," Kerry told a news conference. "It seems to me at first blush that they are extraordinarily committed to make that happen."

Kerry, a highly decorated Vietnam War veteran, returned from a weeklong trip to Hanoi and Ho Chi Minh City in Vietnam and Phnom Penh in Cambodia. He met with Do Muoi, head of Vietnam's Communist Party, Cambodian Premier Hun Sen and a number of other officials in both countries.

Kerry's comments echoed those of U.S. officials who say that Vietnam, Cambodia as well as Laos have significantly stepped up cooperation on the issue of 2,273 missing Americans.

Kerry said he made the trip to lay the groundwork for an effective effort by the 12-member Senate committee he heads.

Kerry indicated a small number of Americans may have stayed behind in Vietnam of their own free will, but declined to give details.

Gorbachev yields to Yeltsin on power sharing, decrees

MOSCOW (NYT) — A political shock wave swept through the Soviet Union on Friday in the aftermath of the failed coup as the Communist Party reeled in retreat across the nation and President Mikhail S. Gorbachev yielded to the ascendancy of Russian republic President Boris N. Yeltsin.

Gorbachev, struggling to regain his leadership role after three days as a hostage to the coup plotted by hard-line Communists, spoke before the Russian republic's Parliament.

During his appearance, broadcast on national television, he found himself facing an openly skeptical, at times abusive audience. He was scorned by lawmakers for remaining loyal to the party after the harrowing national ordeal of the last five days.

Yeltsin, who at times seemed to mock Gorbachev, spent a dynamic day prodding the Soviet leader for more power-sharing and initialing fresh writs to shut down the Communist Party's newspapers and limit its activities on Russian soil. Yeltsin and other leaders of the Russian republic forced Gorbachev to replace his whole Cabinet and name many replacements loyal to Yeltsin.

The Russian president's move against the party was reflected across the Soviet Union, as a wave of indignation and demands for change swept from the Baltic republics to central Asia.

The common theme was that, in the wake of the coup, the initiative had shifted to those prepared to confront and erase virtually all the practices and institutions that have dominated the governing of this troubled nation under the communist system.

The mood of rising anger against the Communist Party and the KGB injected an entirely new energy and uncertainty into the Soviet political crisis. While Gorbachev warned against a "witch hunt," many officials rushed to join the wave of insurgency and said a full reckoning with the party and the state police was long overdue.

The party's newspapers and offices were being put under lock and key and its political perquisites removed across the land, from Moscow to Kirghizia. Party cells were banned in some hamlets while communism's traditional mass propaganda outlets were handed over to presumed reformers. Publication of Pravda, the once-dominant party newspaper, was suspended because of its cooperation with the coup leaders.

Though the anti-party drive appeared to be gaining momentum without arousing any discernible opposition, the general uncertainty over the nation's future was if anything heightened by the still-unsettled shape of future power-sharing between the Kremlin and republics. It was dramatically reflected in the changing relationship between Yeltsin and Gorbachev.

The shift of executive power toward Yeltsin was palpable throughout the day as he moved to end what he described as "the malignant influence of ideological demons."

The husky Russian leader headed off an angry crowd of several hundred demonstrators outside the KGB headquarters by announcing changes in Gorbachev's Cabinet as a sign of resolve to finally begin reforming the infamous organization.

Gorbachev, who argued that it was unfair to blame all Communists for the coup attempt, found himself on rapidly shifting political ground as crowds, backed up by the local authorities, brought down Lenin statues in the provinces.

Local governments in several regions took action to close down party offices, nowhere more prominently than in Moscow, where the party's Central Committee building, once the repository of total Soviet power, was closed to prevent officials from destroying documents. Groups were formed to protect the building from being overrun by mobs.

Seeking a unity theme, Gorbachev called on the nation to pursue a power-sharing compact with the republics that Yeltsin already was executing de facto, acting on the strength of a personal popularity that only grew in his defeat of the Kremlin junta that had held Gorbachev.

Russian parliamentarians made no secret to the watching nation of how clearly they sensed the Soviet leader's dwindling powers. They interrupted Gorbachev's address with heckling and demands that he accede to the rising public clamor to move against the Communist Party's privileged position and explain why he made himself so vulnerable to Communist hard-liners in the Cabinet who fought his promises of reform and plotted his ouster.

Yeltsin hits back with media ban

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Yeltsin lashed back at his Communist Party opponents Friday by shutting their newspapers temporarily and seizing their presses in Russia, swiping one of the party's biggest sources of power and money.

Pravda, the Communist Party's official newspaper founded by Vladimir Lenin, would not be published Saturday, an editor said.

The tallest pillar in the Soviet fourth estate — the government-run national broadcasting monopoly — joined in by barring partisan activity at work.

The government daily Izvestia made a weighty format change: it removed the Marxist-Leninist symbols from its masthead.

The moves will chip away even more at the influence of the party, which had begun focusing more in recent years on publishing, as fewer and fewer people read its mostly conservative newspapers.

Yeltsin's temporary ban will silence six national party newspapers, including Pravda. It will give the Russian president a respite from criticism as he tries to solidify his political gains after the short-lived coup.

But the moves opened Yeltsin to criticism that he employed the same restrictive methods that hard-liners used this week when they tried to oust President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and briefly squelched the reformist media.

"It would be a catastrophe if once again all the newspapers, as it was before 1985, would speak with one voice," Pravda deputy editor Grigory Selezneva told reporters, adding he was sending a protest note to Yeltsin.

The pre-glasnost press could always be expected to present staid, uniform news reports that never deviated very far from the government line.

Gorbachev fires foreign minister

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh, fired Friday in the purge following the coup against President Mikhail Gorbachev, denied his loyalty had wavered and said he had "categorially rejected" offers to join the coup.

Bessmertnykh, 57, told the state news agency Tass that Gorbachev had accused him of displaying "passivity" during the coup. He said he received Gorbachev's decision "with bitterness."

A replacement for Bessmertnykh was not immediately announced.

The diplomat said he had warned the eight-member emergency committee that tried to oust Gorbachev that its actions would lead the Soviet Union to isolation and provoke international sanctions.

Bessmertnykh was among the major figures dismissed in Gorbachev's post-coup housecleaning of disloyal Kremlin officials and Communist Party leaders. Others include Defense Minister Dmitri Yazov and KGB chairman Vladimir Kryuchkov, confirmed leaders of the coup.

Gorbachev told the Russian legislature he had "information that at the least (Bessmertnykh) was trying to maneuver or worse" during the failed coup.

"I have now relieved him of his duties," Gorbachev said. His announcement came after the Foreign Ministry announced Bessmertnykh's resignation.

When the coup began this week, Bessmertnykh was on vacation in Byelorussia. He disappeared from public view and didn't re-emerge until the coup leadership began to collapse. He said illness kept him from speaking out against the putsch.

The dismissal of Bessmertnykh removes from power a diplomat with wide experience and knowledge of the United States.

Rose questioned

BOYNTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Pete Rose's connection to a Virginia developer whose company pleaded guilty in a gambling case was under scrutiny Friday by his probation officer.

Rose

Rose, banned from baseball two years ago, has moved to nearby Boca Raton and has discussed the possibility of opening a steakhouse at Lighthouse Square Marina, a proposed waterfront project owned by Edward S. Garcia Sr.

U.S. Probation Officer John Cole in Cincinnati, who is handling Rose's case, said he routinely investigates allegations against clients to determine whether they violate terms of their probation.

Baseball's all-time hit leader was released from prison Jan. 7 after serving five months for filing false income tax returns after he was accused of failing to report $25,133 in gambling winnings in 1985 and 1987.

Under conditions of his one-year probation, he is not allowed to "associate with any person convicted of a felony unless granted permission to do so by the probation officer."

Petty to race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NASCAR driver Kyle Petty received medical clearance to return to racing Friday, nearly three months after he suffered a compound fracture of his left leg.

Petty, son of NASCAR veteran Richard Petty, will rejoin the Sabco Racing Team at the Southern 500 at Darlington International Raceway next weekend.

Diablos steal close one

■ Midland's hold on first place withers away even more as El Paso drops the Angels 2-1.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

It's first-and-10 for the Midland Angels. Time to wake up the offense.

El Paso's Dean Freeland continued his mastery over Midland, holding the Angels to five hits in 8⅓ innings Friday night as the Diablos eked out a 2-1 victory at Angels Stadium.

Midland clung to its first-place lead in the Texas League West, but that lead narrowed and so did the schedule.

Ten games remain in the regular season, and thanks to Wichita's 4-3 win Friday over San Antonio, the Angels' lead is just one game over the Wranglers and two over the Diablos.

El Paso, the Western Division winners in the first half, came to Midland trailing the first-place Angels by five games in the second half. But the Diablos took 4-of-5 here to stay very much in the second-half hunt.

"We really want to win this half and

Bullet Bob gets life back on track

■ Former Dallas Cowboy Bob Hayes spends his retirement years warning others about the dangers of substance abuse.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

Twenty years ago, he would run down a football field so swiftly that it was hard to make out the No. 22 on the back of his uniform.

Earlier this week, Bob Hayes sat still long enough to talk about what he's been up to since his life became a shambles in 1977. The former Dallas Cowboy end spoke to a group at Angels Stadium Wednesday in conjunction with Drug Awareness Day.

Hayes, once known as the fastest man alive, says nowadays he "can outrun any 48 year old around."

Three years after his retirement from professional football and the Dallas Cowboys, Hayes was arrested on a drug charge and spent 10 months in the state penitentiary. It wasn't the confinement itself that was hardest for Hayes, but what happened because of it.

"I lost everything," he said of his prison term in the late '70s. "I lost my family, I lost my wife, I lost a lot of money."

And the jail time might very well have cost Hayes two other distinctions: A spot in the NFL Hall of Fame and a place in the Cowboys' Ring of Honor.

Hayes is still the leading receiver in terms of scoring the Cowboys have ever had. Through 10 seasons (1965-74), Hayes caught 71 passes for TDs and ran back three more punt returns. Against the Houston Oilers on Dec. 20, 1970, Hayes caught four TD passes.

A glance through the Cowboy record book, his name sprinkled across numerous categories, and it is not

Piniella wants day in court with umps

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Cincinnati Reds manager Lou Piniella wants to take on umpire Gary Darling one on one in court or, if need be, on the field.

"Hey, listen, if I have to go out to the field to argue against this particular crew, I will do it," Piniella said Friday at a news conference at his lawyer's office.

Darling, who overruled crewmate Dutch Rennert's call and took a home run away from Cincinnati, is a plaintiff in a $5 million defamation suit against Piniella because the manager called him biased against the Reds. The umpire was assigned to this weekend's series between the Reds and Mets, which began Friday night at Shea Stadium.

Piniella, who contends he "overreacted" in his postgame comments on Darling's call in a 7-3 loss to the Giants, said he has not seen the umpire since. He also said he made no special requests during a meeting Aug. 7 with NL president Bill White.

"Not one time since I've been a manager have I called a league president to say I don't want this particular umpire or I don't want this particular umpiring crew," Piniella said. "All I want is a good ballgame called."

While Piniella insists now that he does not believe the 33-year-old Darling is biased, he won't back down from his criticism of the call itself.

"No, I don't think that any umpire has a bias against any club," Piniella said. "But a guy (Rennert) 150 feet farther down the line got his call reversed by the home plate umpire.

Piniella

"In this case, he reversed a right call."

Darling, seeking $2 million individually, could not be reached for comment prior to working first base Friday night. Umpires union lawyer Richie Phillips was in court and did not return calls made to his office.

Piniella's lawyers filed a motion Friday in Philadelphia seeking exclusion of the umpires union, which was seeking $3 million. The motion also asked that Darling's suit be moved from federal court in Pennsylvania to New York or Ohio while seeking.

Willis FG helps Dallas slip by Atlanta in OT

■ Dallas ends its preseason with a 2-2 mark, but not before losing a 17-point lead to Jerry Glanville's Atlanta Falcons.

Associated Press

IRVING — Ken Willis kicked a 38-yard field goal with 2:35 elapsed in overtime Friday night to give the Dallas Cowboys, who had blown a 17-point lead, a 20-17 NFL exhibition victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

Odie Harris recovered Steve Broussard's fumble on the Atlanta 22 after Dallas had failed to move on the first possession of overtime. Leon Lett's hit caused the bobble.

Dallas ran two plays to position Willis for the game-winner.

The Falcons got back into the game in the second half with touchdown drives of 79 and 84 yards and an 18-yard field goal by Rich Karlis that tied it at 17.

Karlis missed a 34-yard field goal attempt that would have won the game for the Falcons with five seconds left. He missed a 21-yarder in the first half.

Broussard scored on a two-yard run and Keith Jones scored from four-yards out to trim the Dallas lead to 17-14. Karlis capped a 61-yard drive with his field goal with less than four minutes left.

Dallas jumped ahead 17-0 with Issiac Holt converting a blocked punt into a touchdown, getting the Cowboys off to a quick first quarter start.

Holt slipped through to block Scott Fulhage's punt and recover it for a touchdown on the Falcons first possession.

ANGELS: All-time attendance mark set

we're going all out to do it," said Freeland, who was 6-0 versus Midland in 1990 while just 4-8 against the rest of the league.

"Midland is a good hitting club, and it just seems that I buckle down and my stuff is sharper when I face them," he said.

Not so sharp was pinch runner Ramon Sambo, who represented the tying run at second base with two outs in the bottom of the ninth. With Marcus Lawton facing relief specialist Mark Champman, El Paso catcher Craig Faulkner gunned down Rambo as he leaned too far toward third, and that ended the game.

The Angels managed their run in the first inning when Kevin Flora drew one of Freeland's two walks in the game and eventually scored on Don Barbara's ground ball to first base.

El Paso tied the game on Ruben Escalera's RBI double to left-center field in the third, and then John Byington's sacrifice fly in the sixth produced the final margin.

Freeland's had control of his fastball and slider most of the night, keeping the Angels off balance and off base and helping spoil solid performances by three Midland pitchers.

Don Pawlowski fell to 1-3 despite allowing just two runs on six hits in 5⅔ innings, and Doug Robertson hurled a scoreless ninth.

In between, Mike Butcher was superb.

After El Paso grabbed the lead, Butcher came on to snuff the rally. He did it by striking out Faulkner with the bases loaded to end the sixth.

Butcher faced just six batters over the next two frames, fanning the meat of the dangerous Diablo lineup in order in the eighth.

Barbara's one out single off Freeland in the ninth brought Chapman out of the El Paso bullpen, and Sambo entered the game to pinch run. Sambo reached second on Tim Salmon's tapper in front of the plate only to be picked off the bag.

HAYES: Former Cowboy tries to clear name

(From 1B)

hard to see that if statistics were the only guideline used, Hayes would be in both the Hall and the Ring of Honor.

Slowly but surely, Hayes has picked up the pieces and now claims to have evidence that would prove he was not part of the drug transaction that took place in the car he was a passenger in 14 years ago.

He wants to clear his name. That, along with spreading the word about the dangers of drugs and alcohol is what keeps Bullet Bob going these days.

Hayes says he does not focus on kids when talking about drugs.

"It's worse with grown ups than with kids," he said, "because we can target the kids before it gets to that age."

Describing himself as a former social drinker, Hayes went through rehabilitation six years ago and has been dry ever since. Hayes said he is grateful to the program.

"I got myself straight," he said.

Hayes is working with two corporations, trying to negotiate business deals that would again allow him to live comfortably. He said the companies are interested in making him their ambassador.

Hayes said clearing his name will be harder for him than for someone like Dallas Maverick guard Derek Harper. Harper, himself an anti-drug spokesman, was arrested for marijuana possession only to have the charges dropped later by the Louisiana officials who made the arrest.

"My situation is worse," Hayes said of the difficulty of clearing his name. "He's still active. I've been out of the public eye."

Even though he's not in the Ring of Honor, Hayes said he is still a fan of football and of the Cowboys, regardless of who runs the team.

"Once a Cowboy, always a Cowboy," he said.

Rangers get some pitching against KC

Associated Press

AL Roundup

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Brian Bohanan pitched a five-hitter for his first career complete game and the Royals took advantage of three errors to beat the Royals.

Bohanon (3-0), who started the season on the disabled list after having shoulder surgery, pitched the sixth complete game for Texas this season and the first since Jose Guzman on June 30. Bohanon struck out five, walked one and retired 11 straight batters in the middle innings.

The Rangers got three of their runs in the first off Kevin Appier (10-9) with the help of two errors.

Texas added three more in the eighth when right fielder Danny Tartabull and second baseman Terry Shumpert collided on a bloop fly by Juan Gonzalez. Tartabull had the ball in his glove, but it was knocked loose by Shumpert and rolled to the wall, allowing Gonzalez and two runners to score. The play was scored as an error on Shumpert.

Indians 4, White Sox 3

CLEVELAND — Willie Blair won despite giving up 12 hits in eight-plus innings and the Indians beat the White Sox, ending a five-game losing streak.

Chicago, struggling to keep itself in the AL West race, has lost four straight and nine of its last 11 games. The White Sox scored twice in the ninth inning before their rally fell short.

Blair (1-1) struck out four and walked two. He was trying for his first career complete game, but left after a pair of leadoff hits in the ninth.

Shawn Hillegas allowed Ozzie Guillen's run-scoring double and Robin Ventura's RBI grounder before finishing for his sixth save.

Orioles 5, Twins 4

BALTIMORE — David Segui singled home the winning run with two outs in the ninth inning as the Orioles cooled off the streaking Twins.

Dwight Evans hit a three-run homer for the Orioles, who have won three straight. Minnesota had won six of seven and eight of 11.

Chris Hoiles opened the ninth by drawing a walk from Carl Willis (7-3). Terry Leach relieved, and Bill Ripken sacrificed. After Mike Devereaux fanned, Segui lined a single to center to easily score pinch runner Juan Bell. It was only the second RBI for Segui since the All-Star break.

Blue Jays 6, Yankees 5

TORONTO — Roberto Alomar blooped a two-run single in the ninth inning, rallying the slumping Blue Jays past the Yankees and ending their three-game losing streak.

Toronto, which had lost 10 of its last 14, began the day leading the AL East by one game over Detroit.

Tigers 8, Mariners 6

DETROIT — Mickey Tettleton's 25th homer started a seven-run fifth inning, leading Bill Gullickson and the Tigers over the Mariners.

Dodgers' lead down to one game

NL Roundup

ST. LOUIS — Jose Oquendo's eighth-inning sacrifice fly gave the Cardinals a victory over the Dodgers, cutting Los Angeles' lead in the NL West to one game.

Milt Thompson led off the eighth with a double against Tim Crews (2-3) and went to third on a groundout before scoring on Oquendo's drive to left off left-hander John Candelaria.

The Cardinals entered the game coming off consecutive shutout losses to the Mets, and ended the Dodgers' three-game winning streak despite getting only four hits, and only two after the first inning. The Braves beat the Phillies 4-2 to pull to within a game in the West and the second-place Cardinals stayed six games behind the Pirates, who beat the Giants 8-0, in the NL East.

Cris Carpenter (9-3), the fourth St. Louis pitcher, got the last out in the eighth for the victory and Lee Smith worked the ninth for his league-leading 34th save, ending the game with a double play.

Braves 4, Phillies 2

ATLANTA — Dave Justice and Brian Hunter hit consecutive home runs in the sixth inning and Tom Glavine became the National League's first 16-game winner, leading the Braves past the Phillies.

Atlanta, the hottest team in the NL since the All-Star break at 28-14, have won four straight in their battle to overtake first-place Los Angeles in the NL West.

Glavine (16-8) gave up three hits in six innings, striking out seven and walking five in continuing his dominance of Philadelphia. The left-hander is 8-1 lifetime and 3-0 in 1991 against the Phillies.

Mike Stanton pitched two-plus innings and rookie Mark Wohlers got the last three outs for his second save, giving up a sacrifice fly to Ricky Jordan in the ninth.

Cubs 5, Padres 4

CHICAGO — Mark Grace capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning with a two-out double, giving the Cubs a victory over the Padres.

Grace's double into the right field corner on a 2-0 pitch off Craig Lefferts (0-5) sent San Diego to its fourth consecutive defeat.

Bruce Hurst, looking for his eighth victory in nine starts, took a 4-2 lead into the ninth. He was hoping to become the NL's third 15-game winner after the Braves' Tom Glavine and the Dodgers' Ramon Martinez, but Chicago's comeback foiled that bid.

Shawon Dunston started the rally with a one-out single, his third hit of the game. Pinch-hitter Hector Villanueva tripled to score Dunston.

Astros 9, Expos 2

HOUSTON — Jeff Bagwell had three hits and drove in three runs, including a two-run homer, as the Astros beat the Expos and Dennis Martinez in a matchup of last-place teams.

Rookie Ryan Bowen (3-2) pitched eight innings an gave up one run on five hits for the victory. Curt Schilling finished.

Martinez (12-8) allowed five earned runs and six hits in six innings.

Reds 6, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Frank Viola was pounded again, allowing hits to 11 of 21 batters as the Reds beat the Mets and sent the left-hander to his sixth loss in seven starts.

Viola (12-11) failed to pitch past the fourth inning for the second straight time, allowing five runs in 3 2-3 innings. He has given up 19 runs and 28 hits in his last three starts, a span of 13 1-3 innings.

Tom Browning (12-8) won for the first time in six starts since July 24.

Pirates 8, Giants 0

PITTSBURGH — Doug Drabek continued his turnaround with his second shutout of the season and the Pirates ended a three-game slide with their ninth victory in 13 games.

Rebounding from three consecutive last-inning losses in Philadelphia, the Pirates chased starter John Burkett in a four-run third inning keyed by Andy Van Slyke's RBI single and Bobby Bonilla's sacrifice fly.

NFL: Young steps to the fore again to lead San Francisco

(From 1B)

The Falcons drove all the way to the Dallas one-yard line on their next possession but couldn't score.

Dallas drove 80-yard in 14 plays to build its lead to 14-0.

Emmitt Smith ran 8 and 19 yards before scoring from the Atlanta one-yard line on third down. A 19-yard field by Willis made it 17-0 early in the third.

Smith aggravated a sprained ankle on the play and sat out the rest of the game. He had eight carries for 42 yards.

Dallas starting quarterback Troy Aikman played only the first quarter, hitting two of four passes for 33 yards. Aikman completed passes of 19 and 14 yards to tight end Jay Novacek on the Cowboys first touchdown drive.

Steelers 16, Lions 3

PONTIAC, Mich. — Barry Foster scored the game's only touchdown and Gary Anderson kicked three field goals as the Steelers ended a two-game exhibition losing streak with a victory over the mistake-prone Lions.

Bubby Brister started at quarterback for the Steelers and played through Pittsburgh's first two possessions of the third quarter before Neil O'Donnell took over. Brister completed 11 of 16 attempts for 139 yards with one interception. O'Donnell was 4 of 7 for 25.

Erik Kramer, who spent last season on the injured reserve list, made his first NFL start for the Lions. He completed 9 of 20 for 139 yards and was intercepted three times. Andre Ware was 5-for-14 for 41 yards with one interception in the second half.

The Lions' first three possessions ended in interceptions.

After an interception by Hardy Nickerson, the Steelers went 60 yards in eight plays, Foster carrying Detroit's George Jamison over the goal line for the touchdown with 4:01 left in the second quarter. It was Pittsburgh's first TD with Brister on the field this year.

On the next series, Kramer guided the Lions to the Steelers 11 yard line, but his first-down pass for Mike Farr was picked off by David Johnson in the end zone.

Eagles 23, Colts 21

PHILADELPHIA — Backup quarterback Jim McMahon directed two scoring drives and the Eagles held off a fourth quarter rally by the Colts to post a victory over Indianapolis in NFL exhibition action.

McMahon, who relieved Randall Cunningham early in the second quarter and played into the fourth, led the Eagles on a nine-play, 80-yard drive that broke a 7-7 tie in the third quarter. Thomas Sanders covered the last 16 yards on a run around the left side.

The Eagles (4-1) made it 17-7 just over a minute later when Mike Flores recovered a fumble by running back Ken Clark and the Eagles converted it into a 21-yard field goal by Roger Ruzek. Flores was in the lineup in place of holdout Clyde Simmons.

Early in the fourth quarter, McMahon marched the team 63 yards in nine plays to make it 23-7 with 11:10 left. McMahon hit on passes of 22 and 11 yards in the drive, ended by Heath Sherman's 3-yard run.

Bucs 20, Chiefs 7

TAMPA, Fla. — Vinny Testaverde capped an impressive preseason by directing three second-quarter scoring drives that helped the Buccaneers over the Chiefs.

Testaverde, entering his fifth NFL season hoping to silence critics who doubt he'll ever develop into a consistent quarterback, threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Bruce Hill and set up two field goals by Steve Christie that staked the Bucs to a 13-7 halftime lead.

The 1986 Heisman Trophy winner played a half and completed 11 of 19 passes for 197 yards. The Bucs scored on 9 of 18 possessions with him in the lineup during the preseason, but the TD pass he threw to Hill was only the second touchdown produced by the first unit.

The Bucs played without starting running back Gary Anderson, whose 9-month-old daughter died after suffering respirator distress about two hours before the game.

Vikings 31, Browns 7

MINNEAPOLIS — Wade Wilson completed 14 of 16 passes for 139 yards and two touchdowns before the Browns had either a completion or a first down.

Both teams were 2-2 in exhibitions, but Minnesota's starters outplayed opponents' first units all preseason while the Browns got two late wins from their reserves. The Vikings' starters and frontline substitutes manhandled Cleveland, which rested quarterback Bernie Kosar and several other regulars.

By the time Wilson left the game 4:54 into the second quarter, Minnesota led 14-0 on the scoreboard, 170-11 in total yards, 12-0 in first downs and 16:19 to 3:35 in possession time.

The Vikings went 80 yards in 7:09 to score on their first possession. Wilson was 6-for-7 for 67 yards and Herschel Walker, operating out of the new one-back set, rushed for 13 yards and caught two screen passes for 21 more. The drive was capped by Wilson's 6-yard TD pass to Steve Jordan.

49ers 28, Seahawks 16

SEATTLE — Steve Young directed the 49ers to three first-half touchdowns and Spencer Tillman ran 91 yards for the clinching score as San Francisco its exhibition season unbeaten with a victory over the Seahawks.

San Francisco (5-0) completed its first undefeated exhibition season since 1954, when the franchise went 7-0.

With Joe Montana on the sidelines for the third game in a row because of tendinitis in his right elbow, Young used a perfect mix of passes and runs to drive the 49ers to TDs on their first three possessions for a 21-3 lead.

Young, who left after the third series, was 10 for 11 for 165 yards and one touchdown.

Tillman, competing with Dexter Carter for a starting running back spot, had nine carries for 140 yards. Carter, who is listed as the starter after the loss of Roger Craig to Plan B free agency, gave San Francisco a 7-0 lead just 3:12 into the game with a 58-yard run.

BO: Fans flock to Florida for Jackson's return

here."

Jackson, a running back for the Los Angeles Raiders, injured his left hip in a playoff game against the Bengals last January. The Kansas City Royals released him after determining he might not be able to play baseball again, but Chicago is banking on Jackson's vow to return to the big leagues this season.

"One thing the Kansas City Royals did ... they messed up big-time," said Sarasota manager Rick Patterson. "If you look at his history, every time they tell him he can't do something he proves them wrong."

Patterson said he hasn't been given any special instructions for handling Jackson this weekend. He'll let Jackson determine how much he plays.

"I'm going to talk to him and I'm sure they'll (Chicago) talk to him, too," Patterson said. "If he doesn't feel comfortable, then he's going to be out of the game."

Sarasota players are looking forward to having Jackson on the team, if only for a weekend. One who has already had a close-up look at the two-sport star is Pete Rose, Jr.

"What I remember about Bo Jackson is that me and my dad used to watch him take batting practice in spring training. Awesome," said Rose.

"I'm honored to have him on my team," Rose added. "But we'll treat him like a regular teammate. I'm sure he's going to act like a normal guy."

Team officials are expecting a near capacity crowd of 7,500 for both games in Sarasota's Ed Smith Stadium. Browne said about 5,500 tickets for Saturday and 3,000 for Sunday were sold Thursday — the first day they were available.

"We've had calls from New York, New Jersey, Ohio and Texas," Browne said. "People are actually going to fly in and see the game ... It amazes me the impact that one guy has and that so many people want to see him."

Ticket lines were also long in Birmingham, where a crowd of up to 13,000 is anticipated for Monday night. The game will be played just a few miles from Jackson's hometown of Bessemer.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9938.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numberical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key(*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key(*). Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices bounced upward today after the government reported the biggest gain in monthly durable goods orders in 21 years, a new indication of the economy's recovery.

Powered by heavy stock futures trading, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 35.78 points to 3,043.16 with two hours left before the closing bell.

If the gain is sustained, the Dow conceivably could break its all-time record on June 3, when it closed up 3,035.33.

Brooks leads despite Love's opening

Associated Press

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Mark Brooks opened the second round of the World Series of Golf by going birdie-eagle — 3-3.

That meant he only lost one shot to Davis Love III.

Love birdied the first hole at Firestone on Friday, then ripped a 6-iron shot 180 yards and into the cup for a rare double eagle — only the fifth on the PGA Tour this season, the first in the history of this tournament and the first of Love's six-year pro career.

"You have to get lucky to have a shot from 180 yards out fly in the hole," Love said.

He went on to a 66, but that wasn't enough to keep pace with Brooks' faster finish — a late string of four consecutive birdies that gave him the lead at the tournament's halfway point.

PGA World Series

"I took advantage of most of the opportunities I had, but two stupid mistakes makes it not a real great round," Brooks said after a 6-under-par 64 brought him from six shots back into a one-stroke lead at 136.

Dillard Pruitt, one of 19 players making their first appearances in this winners-only event, birdied three of his last four holes for a 66 and was alone in second at 137 after 36 holes.

Love, also six off the pace after one round, utilized his 3-2 start to move within two shots of the lead at 138. He was tied with Joey Sindelar and Mike Reid, who shot 68s.

Larry Mize, at 139 after a 71, was the only other player in the 48-man field under par after two rounds.

Corey Pavin, the season's leading money-winner, was in the group at par 140 after a 68 and Jodie Mudd was at 141 after yet another unhappy adventure off a back-nine tee.

In the first round, an angry Mudd said he was "bitter" about being halted in his backswing on the 16th tee by a marshal's warning. Mudd eventually made double bogey-7 on the hole.

In the second round, he ran into trouble happened one hole earlier. Again among the leaders, Mudd was distracted on the 15th tee, backed away, then slashed a shot far to the right and under a bush on the par-3 hole. He eventually wound up with a triple bogey-6 and stumbled home with a 2-over 72.

Mickelson ousted from Amateur Championship

Associated Press

OOLTEWAH, Tenn. — Rick Southwick rallied for a 1-up victory over Phil Mickelson on Friday, ending the defending champion's hopes of becoming only the ninth player to win consecutive U.S. Amateur Championships.

Southwick was three holes down after Mickelson carded a birdie-3 at the 10th hole but won the next four holes with three birdies and a par. He went 1 up by rolling in a birdie putt at the par-3 14th.

Mickelson, winner of the PGA Tour's Northern Telecom Open earlier this year, pulled even on the par-3 16th hole when he made par and Southwick bogeyed. But Southwick took the lead for good on the par-5 17th hole when he put a shot from a sand trap 32 yards away within 3 feet and tapped in for a birdie to go 1 up.

Scranton sets course mark at LPGA

Associated Press

OAK BROOK, Ill. — Nancy Scranton matched the one-day-old Oak Park Golf Club course record with a bogey-free 6-under-par 66 Friday to take the second-round lead in the inaugural LPGA Shootout.

Scranton's round tied the course record set Thursday by first-round leader Laurel Kean and put her at 7-under 137, one shot ahead of Liselotte Neumann, who also matched the record with a 66 for 138. Four players were two shots back at 139.

Stiff winds whipped the par-72, 6,231-yard Oak Brook course, in contrast to Thursday's sunny and calm conditions. The winds caused problems for many players, who had trouble with club selection in the gusty conditions.

Scranton, who grew up in downstate Centralia, Ill., helped herself by making several difficult putts, including a 30-footer at the par-3, 167-yard seventh hole and a 20-footer at the 310-yard, par-4 17th.

"I've been working real hard on my putter this year," Scranton said. "I think it's finally starting to get in. I rolled it really well yesterday, so today wasn't a surprise. The greens aren't real quick."

Kean started the day at 6-under, but made three bogeys on her first nine holes. Birdies on her 11th and 13th holes of the day got her back to 5-under, but a final-hole bogey dropped her into a group of eight players tied at 140.

Hiskey, Bies tied atop Senior board

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Babe Hiskey and Don Bies fired 8-under-par 64s Friday to lead a sub-par assault on an obliging Four Hills Country Club course in the opening round of the Sunwest Bank Senior Golf Classic.

Thirty eight of the 78 pros in the field broke par on the short-playing, 6,722-yard, par-72 course.

The par-busters praised the condition of the undulating but small greens, and many of the players consistently hit long irons off the tee.

"How can you get in trouble when you're teeing it up with a four iron," said Lee Trevino, who along with Gibby Gilbert shot 66.

"I wouldn't be surprised if someone shoots 62 before the end of the week," Trevino said.

Hiskey, whose last win came in 1970 at the Sahara Invitational on the regular PGA Tour, had a round that included 10 birdies.

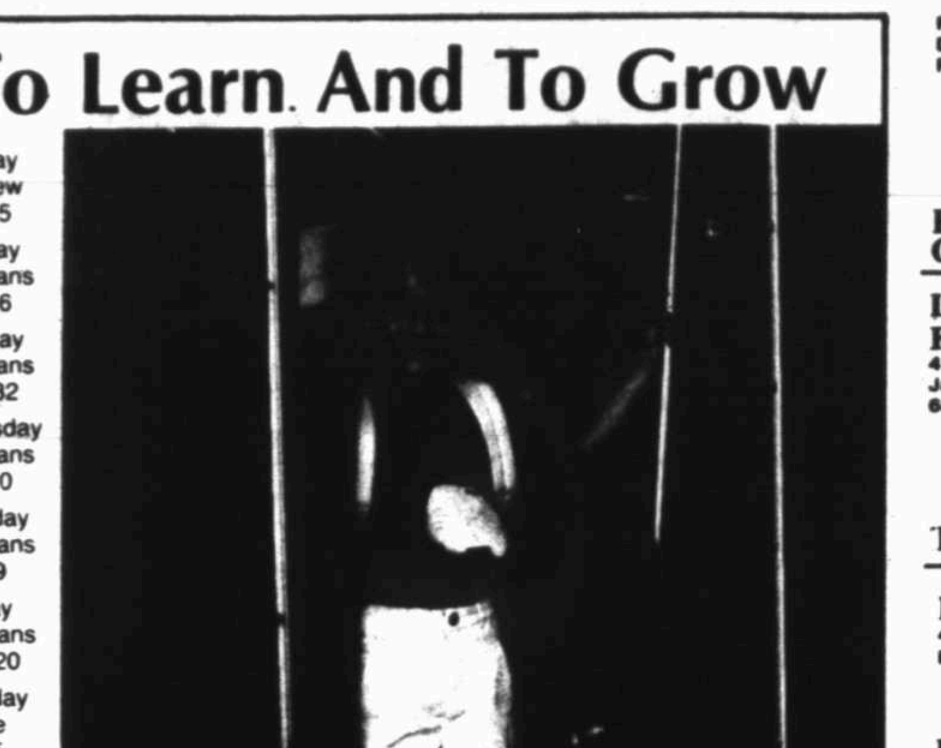
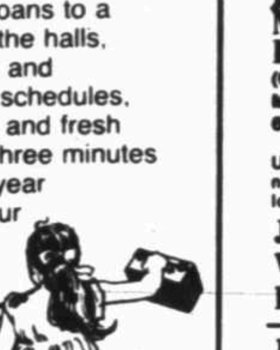
To Learn And To Grow

Sunday Matthew 18:1-5
Monday Ephesians 4:1-16
Tuesday Ephesians 4:17-32
Wednesday Ephesians 5:1-20
Thursday Ephesians 6:1-9
Friday Ephesians 6:10-20
Saturday Jude 1-25



Packed with passengers bursting with anticipation, the parade of yellow school buses lumbers along, then screeches and groans to a halt. Excited youngsters disembark to scurry up and down the halls, chattering like squirrels as they search for their classrooms and scrounge through their backpacks for locker combinations, schedules, and book receipts. Scents of chalk dust, lunch preparation, and fresh paint mingle in the air. The bell rings. Lockers slam shut. Three minutes pass and all is quiet. Another school year has begun . . . a year dedicated to guiding young minds . . . to molding them for our next generation.

The ability to learn is a gift from God. As our muscles develop with exercise, so our mind becomes more keen if we continually seek to learn and to grow. Proverbs 18:15 observes, "The heart of the discerning acquires knowledge; the ears of the wise seek it out."



May we exercise our minds and our spirits as we worship God each Sabbath, seeking wisdom for our lives and increasing in knowledge of the "Wonderful Counselor," our greatest teacher.

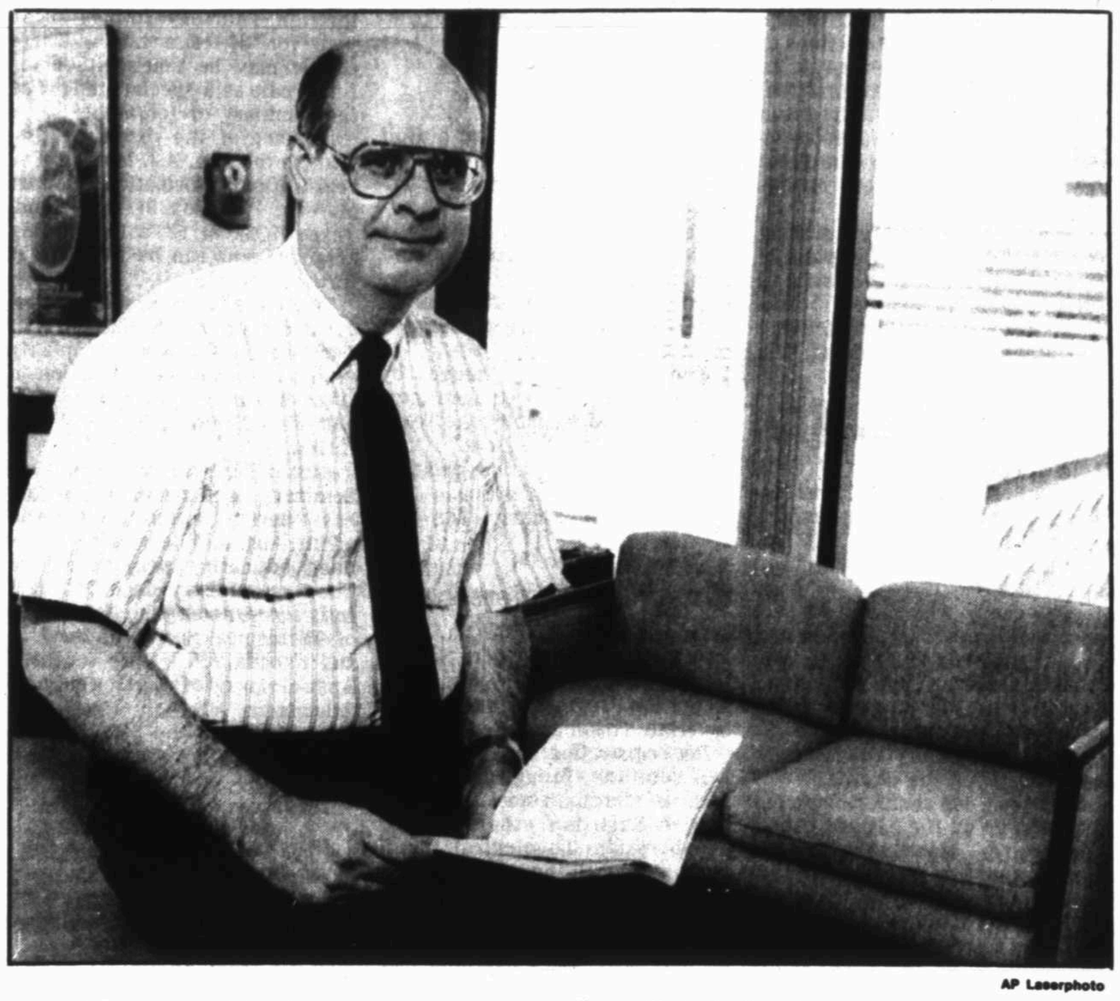
Court ruling blocks government spying in churches



AP Laserphoto

Phoenix attorney Peter Baird, holding a copy of court transcripts, talks about a landmark ruling that blocks government spying in churches. Baird, who pressed the case, said the ruling is "tremendously important" because it applies to all churches, synagogues and mosques.

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion writer

Unknown to church members, their worship services, Bible study classes, meetings and discussions had been infiltrated by undercover government spies.

But such snooping is not supposed to happen again in the United States under a court ruling that now stands as a landmark precedent.

"It's the first established decision in the history of the country that curbs the government from going into churches in a clandestine way and spying on them," said attorney Peter Baird of Phoenix, who pressed the case.

"It's tremendously important," Baird said in a telephone interview. "The precedent applies to all churches, all synagogues and mosques."

The decision, won in a lawsuit by four Presbyterian and Lutheran congregations in Arizona and their national denominations, became a solid precedent last week when the U.S. Justice Department decided not to appeal it.

Previously, "government agents have been able to go into any church at any time to monitor its activities secretly with electronic or other gear," Baird said. "This is no longer true."

The Rev. James E. Andrews, chief executive of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), said the decision doesn't exempt churches from law enforcement, but says the government is "not exempt from required just and lawful practices."

Andrews of Louisville, Ky., added, "The government doesn't go into your house or my house without a warrant, and now it can't go into God's house without a warrant."

Such intrusions aren't new. Some U.S. churches claimed government spying in the civil rights struggles and over Vietnam War protests. Even in biblical times, the missionary-apostle Paul speaks of "false brethren ... slipped in to spy out our freedom," and the book of Luke tells of foes of Jesus who "sent spies who pretended to be sincere" to inform on him.

The current case dates back to the "sanctuary movement" in the mid-1980s when various churches around the country provided sanctuary to refugees from war-ridden El Salvador.

Through testimony of paid informants planted by the Immigration and Naturalization Service in several Arizona churches, the government won probationary sentences against eight clergymen and lay church workers in 1986.

In a separate action afterward, four churches and their denominations, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, sued the government, charging that the spying violated religious rights.

Evidence was presented that on learning of the surveillance, church members became fearful of taking part or of talking openly, even in counseling sessions or telephone calls that might be recorded, and some dropped out.

The government won the first round, gaining a district court ruling that First Amendment guarantees of religious rights applied only to individuals, not to church organizations, and therefore they had no grounds to sue.

But the churches won a reversal from the U.S. Court of Appeals, which held that ministry is damaged when members "are chilled from participating" and "fear the government is spying on them and taping their every utterance."

With the churches' standing thus established, the case was returned to the U.S. District Court in Phoenix where Judge Roger G. Strand concluded last Dec. 10 that members had "suffered distrust, withdrawal and fear arising from the infiltration of their churches," and he ruled:

"The government is constitutionally precluded from unbridled and inappropriate covert activity which has as its purpose or objective the abridgement of the First Amendment freedoms of those involved."

Baird said that henceforth in order for the government to pry into church activities, it must either have a search warrant, or know in advance of some compelling situation or planned crime that demands immediate intervention.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Church's fair continues today

San Juan's Catholic Church, 1000 W. New Jersey St., will have its annual Family Fair Friday through Sept. 1 on the church grounds.

A 10 a.m. parade will kick off the festivities Saturday. The parade will begin at the intersection of Highway 80 and Fairgrounds Road.

Food, games and continuious entertainment are part of the event.

■ Conway to lead revival

The Rev. Leland L. Conway will be the evangelist for revival services Wednesday through Sunday at the First Free Methodist Church, 4712 Shadyland.

Conway

Conway, an evangelist and missionary, served 14 years as a minister in the United Methodist Church. He them became involved in missions, using his skills as a carpenter and minister.

He is now an ordained evangelist and serves as an independent missionary to the Tohano O'odam Indians, Sells, Ariz. He is the administrator of the Living Word Academy and serves as guest evangelist to different churches across the United States, as well as on the reservation.

Services are set for 7 p.m. Wednesday through Aug. 31 and 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sept. 1. A youth "Get Together" is planned following the Wednesday service and a fellowship dinner will follow the Sept. 1 morning service.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Murphy to address church

The Rev. Jerry Ray Murphy is the special speaker at Victory Center, 4001 W. Illinois Ave., at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Murphy, a native Midlander, says he used to be leader of a motorcycle gang.

"Brother Murphy has a special calling to minister to those who are still running on the wild side of life," said the Rev. Allen Thompson, pastor of Victory Center Church. "His testimony is one of the strongest witness stories you will ever hear."

The public is invited to hear Murphy speak. For more information, call 694-3034 or 697-7765.

■ Media exec set to speak

Cooper

Al Cooper of Roswell, N.M., is the guest speaker for today's Full Gospel Business Men's meeting at Midland Center.

Dinner, priced at $8, will be served at 6:30 p.m. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Those who wish to attend the meeting only are invited to do so.

Cooper spent four years in the U.S. Navy where he was taught electronics. In the fall of 1982, armed with a camera, a video recorded, a satellite dish and a VISA charge card, the Coopers started Prime Time Video as an alternative to Christian Entertainment Television.

Today, Prime Time Christian Broadcasting, Inc., owns and operates nine television broadcast facilities, including KRPV-TV 27, a 874,000 watt station in Roswell, and KMLK-TV 42, a 1,200,000 watt station in Midland-Odessa. Prime Time is an affiliate of the Trinity Broadcasting Network.

■ LDS Primary turns 113

Sunday is the 113 birthday of the Primary Association of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS).

The association was founded by Aurelia S. Rogers Aug. 25, 1878, in Farmington, Utah, because of her concern for the behavior of the young people. The first meeting was attended by 115 boys and girls, who were taught, said a release from the church, "Everything good and how to behave."

The Primary Association of LDS is an organized program of religious instruction and activity for children ages 18 months to 12 years; also, it handles Cub Scouting and Boy Scouting for 11-year-old boys in the United States, Canada and other countries.

Children meet on Sunday for weekly religious instruction. There are more than 1.2 million children worldwide in LDS' Primary Association.

Locally, the Primary of the Midland Ward I is hosting a birthday party where participants will play games the manner of which is similar to those of the first Primiary.

■ Parenting seminar slated

The Family Ministry of Golf Course Road Church of Christ will offer a Parenting Adolescents Seminar from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 5.

The seminar, which is free to the public, will be conducted by Gary Grady, family minister for the church. Grady holds degrees in counseling and psychology, and he has numerous years of experience in the field of family relationships.

A follow-up support group will be held monthly beginning Sept. 8 from 6 to 7 p.m. so that parents may share their concerns with those in the same circumstances.

Both meeting are open to the public. No offering will be taken. Child care is available through concurrent classes.

■ Fellowship begins search

The Cooperative Baptist Fellowship formed in May in Atlanta has begun its search for its first executive director.

The search committee is chaired by James Slatton, pastor of River Road Baptist Church, Richmond, Va. Other members include Kirby Godsey, president of Mercer University, Macon, Ga.; Carolyn Cole Bucy, minister to youth at Lake Shore Baptist Church, Waco; Lavonn Brown, pastor of First Baptist Church, Norman, Okla.; Daniel Vestal, pastor of Dunwoody Baptist Church, Atlanta, Ga., and former pastor of First Baptist Church, Midland; Dorothy Sample of Flint, Mich., former national president of Woman's Missionary Union, SBC; Walter Shurden, professor of Christianity at Mercer University; Martha Smith, piano teacher from Gastonia, NC; and John Hewett, pastor of First Baptist Church, Asheville, NC and moderator of the fellowship.

"We are now at the place where we need professional staff to support and implement the actions of the fellowship," said Hewett in naming the search committee. "We are looking for a free and faithful Baptist, who shares our vision for the future and can direct the day-to-day operations of this new organization."

Persons interested in making recommendations for the position of executive director are asked to submit them to Slatton's office, River Road Baptist Church, Ridge and River Road, Richmond, Va. 23229.

■ 'Camp Opportunity' ends

The Youth Ministry of Golf Course Road Church of Christ, directed by Robert Parham, has concluded two sessions of Camp Opportunity at Camp Butman near Merkel.

"The camp, which is in its second year of operation, is designed to give minority children of Midland an opportunity to participate in camping programs that would normally not be available to them," said Emory Mansour, a spokesman for the church.

This year, 146 campers were selected to go on the basis of "need and desire," Mansour said, and were taught by the teens and adult volunteers of the church.

More than 120 families were invloved in this effort. Plans are under way to make next year's camp even more of an outreach to the community of Midland, Mansour said.

■ 'Dinner on Grounds' today

Fannin Terrace Baptist Church will have "Dinner on the Grounds" at 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

The event begins with organized games at 4:30 p.m. and concludes with a musical celebration at 6:30 p.m. The event is the church's back-to-school celebration and replaces the usual Sunday evening worship service.

In addition, Fannin Terrace Baptist Church is hosting its annual State Missions Banquet Aug. 28.

Speaker for the 6 p.m. banquet will be Jim Denison, pastor of First Baptist Church. David Kirby of Alamo Heights Baptist Church will present some special music.

Reservations are necessary to attend the banquet.

■ Signing course is free

The Ministry to the Deaf of Golf Course Road Church of Christ will again offer classes in deaf sign language beginning Sept. 9.

The classes will meet for 12 weeks at 7 p.m. Monday and Thursday. Those interested in becoming proficient in communication with the deaf are encouraged to attend.

The classes will be taught by Darrell Rhea, certified instructor in deaf sign language by the Texas Commission for the Deaf.

For more information, call 694-4528 or the church office.

There is no charge for this service.

■ Seminary offers class

"Introduction to Christian Ethics" is being offered here Sept. 8 through Dec. 15 by the West Texas Extention Program of Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

Pre-registration has started and will continue through Sept. 3.

Ismael Garcia, associate professor of Christian ethics, Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, will teach the course. Garcia is a graduate of the University of Puerto Rico and the University of Chicago. He lives in Austin with his wife, Ann, and a daughter and son.

Garcia has taught Christian ethics at McCormick Seminary, Chicago, directed traveling seminars to Central America and served as assistant durector to the Hispanic Ministries Program at McCormick Seminary.

The classes will meet at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., from 3 to 5 p.m. Sundays beginning Sept. 8.

Also being offered here is "Ministry of Education in a Particular Church." This course runs Aug. 11-22.

The Rev. Dr. Ellis Nelson, research professor at APTS, will teach the course. Nelson is a graduate of Austin College, APTS, the University of Texas, Austin and Columbia University.

The classes will meet at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Sunday through Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. for 30 class hours. These course may be taken either for full credit as a special student of the seminary or for audit.

Director of the extension program is the Rev. A.J. Moreau. For registration information, contact Moreau, P.O. Box 5111, Midland, Texas 79704, or 682-2514. Housing arrangements can be worked out forthose needing it.

The West Texas Extension Program began in the summer of 1989 to meet the need for quality graduate theological education in West Texas. Additional courses will be offered in the fall and spring.

Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary is a seminary of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A., located in Austin. The seminary has been educating people for the Christian ministry since 1902. It is fully accredited by the Association of Theological School of the U.S. and Canada and by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Restoration of Ben Ezra nears an end

OLD CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Ben Ezra synagogue, Egypt's oldest, was a dying legacy of the long, rich history of Jews in Egypt until the Camp David peace accords set a reclamation project in motion.

As work nears its end, the renovation is a testament to determination.

The two-story building, a blend of early Christian, Moorish and Islamic underlying the Jewish, is surrounded by scaffolding. Echoing through the sanctuary and around its yellow walls are the sounds of 140 workers chasing an Aug. 31 deadline.

Experts see no return of religious repression in post-coup U.S.S.R.

NEW YORK (AP) — Amid the swift currents of change in the Soviet Union this week, experts said they were confident that gains in religious freedom made during the leadership of Mikhail Gorbachev would not be easily lost.

Communist atheism no longer holds the Soviet people's trust and thus can't be pushed on them to take the place of religion, said Rabbi Arthur Schneier, president of the interfaith Appeal of Conscience Foundation.

"That void has been filled by many people returning to their respective faith communities," said Schneier, of New York. "There's no way of going back to the old wave of anti-religious campaigns."

Gorbachev was deposed in a military coup on Monday, but thousands of Russian citizens rallied in defiance of the takeover leaders. Within two days the retreat to old-style, hardline Soviet communism was crumbling.

While the coup lasted, another specialist on Soviet religious affairs predicted that any attempt to take back religious rights would fail.

"They'd be very foolish to try that. Things have gone too far for them to try to return to the Brezhnev era (of 1977-82)," said the Rev. Bruce Rigdon of Grosse Pointe, Mich., head of the U.S.-Soviet relations office of the National Council of Churches.

Rigdon, who has led numerous Christian delegations to the Soviet Union over the last decade and is thoroughly acquainted with religious leaders there, said it would take "very repressive" measures to reverse religious rights.

Evangelist Billy Graham led a five-day training school for 4,900 Soviet pastors last month. Noting the powerful new religious currents in Soviet life, he said then, "This is harvest time."

That upsurge, including newly allowed religious classes for the young, religious volunteers serving in hospitals and social services and opening of many new churches, has swelled steadily in recent years.

So has the emigration of Jews to Israel, the U.S., and elsewhere under newly relaxed emigration policies.

> 'This is harvest time.'
> — Evangelist Billy Graham

Schneier, who since 1965 repeatedly has been in the Soviet Union as head of the Protestant-Roman Catholic-Jewish foundation working for religious rights, said there has been "an explosion" of new religious activity there.

Last March he met in Moscow with Soviet officials, including then-Vice President Gennady Yanayev, who led this week's takeover attempt.

Schneier said that in their conversation, Yanayev expressed support for the new legislation on religious rights, freedom of conscience and for new emigration laws providing rights to leave the country.

Schneier said that prior to the recent "collapse of the ideology" of communism, many people had been committed to Marxist-Leninist atheism "as a semi-religion."

But "it's no longer the creed," he said.

Lawmakers are anxious for Monday wrap-up

The State

AUSTIN (AP) — Leaders of the Texas Legislature, meeting for the 175th day of the year Friday, said they are anxious to wrap up work and get out of town.

"If all goes according to plan we'll be out of here Monday, early," House Speaker Gib Lewis said.

"Monday — hopefully that is the last day. Period," said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock.

Lawmakers have been working almost without letup since January.

The Legislature met for 140 days in its regular, every-other-year session that ended May 27. But they failed to write and fund a two-year budget.

Gov. Ann Richards called a 30-day special session July 15 to do that job, and a budget and $2.7 billion tax hike were approved on the last day, Aug. 13.

But lawmakers failed in that first overtime period to draw new congressional and State Board of Education election district boundaries, and they failed to resolve problems with state inmates crowding county jails.

Richards called a second special session that began Monday, and by Friday the leaders were crossing their fingers that work could be completed quickly.

Bills to resolve both the redistricting and prison issues still were pending.

In addition, lawmakers were considering measures to provide more loans to college students, clear up problems with the state's workers' compensation system, continue the state government's purchasing agency, revamp operations of the Texas Department of Commerce, regulate fish farming in the water-short Edwards Aquifer region of central Texas, and suspend licenses of drunken drivers.

Despite that workload, Bullock said he and Lewis had worked out a schedule for debate that would wrap up work by Monday.

But there's a catch.

Bullock said the deal hinges on no filibusters by senators, no controversial amendments being approved by either chamber, and nothing else being added to the session's agenda by Richards.

Since Monday, the governor has added nearly a dozen items to the agenda, which she controls.

"It depends upon her not opening it up to a lot of other things. Every time I turn around there's a little blooper in here, you know?" Bullock said.

House approves bonds for aircraft plant

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House Friday tentatively approved selling revenue bonds to try and lure McDonnell Douglas Corp. to build its proposed jet manufacturing facility in Texas.

The measure, adopted on a non-record vote, requires one more vote before going to Gov. Ann Richards for consideration.

Several lawmakers members opposed the proposal, saying it would bailout McDonnell Douglas from its economic problems, and put the state's financial standing at risk if the bonds could not be repaid by the company.

"This is a little gravy train," Rep. Paul Moreno, D-El Paso, said.

Moreno said the company has recently laid off hundreds of workers, and been involved in labor disputes, and cost overruns.

Rep. Al Price, D-Beaumont, said, "If this is such a sure-fire deal, this company ought to be able to do this in the open market."

McDonnell Douglas, which employs 32,500 people at its base in St. Louis, has been hard hit by defense cuts the past two years. The company is trying to expand into the commercial jet market to offset declining defense spending.

McDonnell Douglas is the nation's largest defense contractor and the second largest maker of commercial aircraft in the world.

McDonnell Douglas is the nation's largest defense contractor and the second largest maker of commercial aircraft in the world.

But supporters of the bill said the bonds are needed because of the stiff competition from seven other states for the plant that will manufacture McDonnell Douglas' new generation of civilian aircraft.

In Texas, the proposed sites are Alliance Airport in northern Tarrant County, and Ellington Field in Houston.

Rep. Al Carter, R-Richland Hills, one of the sponsors of the bill authored by House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said the project would produce 12,000 jobs.

Under the bill, proceeds of the revenue bonds would be used to purchase land, equipment and buildings that would be leased to McDonnell Douglas for the plant. McDonnell Douglas would then repay the bonds.

All of the bonds would be required to state on their face that the state of Texas would not be obligated to repay the bonds.

The bonds would be issued by a new board appointed by the Texas Department of Commerce.

Up to now, the company has built its two commercial jets — the MD-11 widebody and the MD-80 narrow-body — in Long Beach, Calif. But production and labor problems at the 37,000-employee California plant led many analysts to believe the company would start looking elsewhere to build the MD-12X.

The MD-12X project is estimated to cost $3 billion. The new jet carries 375 passengers. It wouldn't fit in available McDonnell Douglas hangers because it is 35 feet longer with a wingspan 40 feet wider than the MD-11.

Man dies of heart attack during robbery

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An armed robber died of an apparent heart attack as he took money from the safe of a barbecue restaurant, authorities said. His two accomplices fled.

Rudolfo Naranjo, 49, of San Antonio was dead on arrival Thursday night at Baptist Medical Center. Officials said he died of a heart attack during a robbery at a Bill Miller Bar-B-Q restaurant near downtown.

The man was holding a handgun in one hand and reaching into the floor safe when he collapsed, witnesses said.

The Bexar County medical examiner's office said an autopsy was scheduled for Friday, but indications were that Naranjo suffered a heart attack.

Naranjo and two other men walked into the restaurant shortly after 9 p.m., police said.

One walked to the front of the restaurant, the man identified as Naranjo forced the manager at gunpoint into the restaurant's office and the third kept a watch on counter employees, officers said.

Restaurant manager Alfred Martinez said the man with the gun "started tearing the office apart asking for money." Then he noticed the floor safe, the manager said.

Martinez said the gunman ordered him to open the safe, then knelt down and stuck his arm inside.

"All of the sudden he stopped," Martinez said.

Martinez said he had already pressed a silent alarm button to alert police.

The other two bandits entered the office and told their companion to "hurry up," police said.

"They went over to him and noticed he was out," Detective Sissy Kokal said. "They dragged him as far as the back door, then grabbed his gun and told the employees to call (for an ambulance)."

SATURDAY, AUGUST 24, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Although the coming months will bring new challenges, you have the energy and know-how to turn them into triumphs! The financial outlook shows marked improvement by late October. Secrecy will be difficult but absolutely essential to advancing your business plans in December. Favorable influences save you from making costly mistakes next March. Romance is sometimes overwhelming but always rewarding. Refuse to be rushed into making a permanent commitment.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Steve Guttenberg, shortstop Cal Ripken Jr., pianist Louis Teicher, boxer Gerry Cooney.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Music plays a key role in making this a fun day. Loved ones come up with some valuable suggestions. A romantic partner may be painting you into a corner. Stay alert.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You cannot resolve a financial situation today, so try to relax and put it out of your mind. Getting together with special friends gives you an entirely new perspective. Your confidence returns.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A good day for projects requiring teamwork. Certain previously shelved plans can now be put into action. Count on sharing expenses if going out with friends or relatives. Be a good sport!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You will find plenty to interest and entertain you this weekend. Set your sights on what you want and then go after it! A need for money lights a fire under a teen-ager.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get an early start today. Family members may be somewhat restless. Lay down the rules to boisterous offspring. If unattached, your romantic hopes are about to be fulfilled! Socialize more.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Extra money comes your way, thanks to a close friend or relative. Take your time when making an important decision and seek the advice of trusted comrades. A trip may prove disappointing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Tend to those odd jobs or errands you have been putting off. Problems involving people at a distance seem easier to handle now. Accept a last-minute invitation with enthusiasm. Group activities are favored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Happily, you can achieve a long-sought goal with the help of your friends or family. Be appreciative. A member of the opposite sex begins to notice you. Set new priorities for yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some of you are thinking about joining the military. Trust your instincts. Avoid socializing with someone who drinks too much. A difficult financial situation will improve when you buckle down to work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not act impulsively if considering a new career. Conduct some research and consult experts. Your mate could feel neglected if you spend too much time out of the house. Be attentive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If money is difficult, consult experts. Revise a budget only after talking with family members. Read the fine print before signing documents. A teen-ager needs more of your time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Young children could play a major role in your domestic affairs. Keep in touch with people who have helped you in the past. They may be willing to do so again!

TODAY'S CHILDREN give freely of their time and energy but keep their emotions under tight control. Highly selective about making friends, these Virgos tend to keep their pals for life. A tendency to get mired down in details sometimes prevents these children from seeing the overall effect of their actions. Wise parents will encourage them to look at the larger picture. Talented and persistent, these Virgos will enjoy considerable success in their chosen field.

CLEVELAND — The star of the rap music group Run-DMC was indicted Friday on charges of raping a woman in a hotel room two weeks ago, an official said.

Prosecutors issued a warrant for the arrest of Joseph Simmons, 25, of New York, according to a Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court clerk who wouldn't give her name.

Simmons, known in the group as Run, faces three counts of rape and one count each of kidnapping and gross sexual imposition, the clerk said.

Assistant County Prosecutor Don Rolla, who took the case to the county grand jury, didn't immediately return telephone messages to his office and home Friday afternoon.

Tracy Miller, a spokeswoman for Profile Records, the group's recording label, also didn't immediately return a message.

Simmons, of New York, is accused of attacking a 22-year-old Cleveland woman after an Aug. 9 concert.

The woman told police Simmons raped her in his hotel room after members of Run-DMC's entourage approached her as she sat in the front row during the show, according to a police report.

The woman, who said she went to Simmons' room to get his autograph, said she and Simmons smoked marijuana, police said. She alleged he then overpowered her, raped her and forced her to perform oral sex, police said.

Run-DMC, a trio based in New York, includes Simmons, Darryl McDaniels, known as DMC, and Jason Mizell, known as Jam Master Jay.

No residential telephone number could be located for Simmons.

LOS ANGELES — Actor Edward Albert Jr. says Soviet tanks provided frightening and unwanted props during Moscow filming of his forthcoming movie.

"Ice Runner," about a U.S. spy trapped in the Soviet Union, was on location during the failed coup this week against Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The crew was "shooting a chase scene in Red Square in front of the Kremlin, where I was being chased by two KGB Volgas (Russian cars), while tanks were warming up their engines on the outskirts of town," Albert told reporters Thursday at Los Angeles International Airport.

"It was scary because we didn't known what was going on. We saw a lot of tanks, a lot of soldiers, (heard) a lot of rumors," including one that Gorbachev had been killed, he said.

NEW YORK — Jack F. Matlock Jr., until recently U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, is writing two books about his diplomatic career that will include an examination of this week's failed coup, his publisher said.

Matlock

The first book, due to be published in the fall by Random House, will be in the form of an open letter to Soviet leaders on the future of their country, said Harold Evans, president and publisher of Random House Adult Trade Books.

The second work, projected for 1993 release, will examine the changes in U.S.-Soviet policy in the 1980s.

Matlock's appointment as ambassador in March 1987 was his fourth stint in Moscow. His replacement is Robert Strauss, who was sworn in Tuesday.

BRANSON, Mo. — Andy Williams is building an $8 million theater where he can be the star attraction part of the year. He's so impressed with this southern Missouri-town, in fact, that he plan to build a home, too.

Williams

"It's been a dream of mine for years to have a theater," Williams, 60, said Thursday in breaking ground for the Moon River Theatre.

The entertainer's brother, Don, manages country and comedy star Ray Stevens, who opened his own Branson theater here in June. Andy Williams came to town to see Branson's show.

"I knew right away I wanted to come here," he said. "I put my New York apartment up for sale and within the year I want to find a place to build a house here."

Once a joker, now Iceland's prime minister

By Karin Davies
Associated Press writer

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — David Oddsson used to make fun of the government. Now he's the prime minister.

"I read ... that a radio joker has taken over the post of prime minister," he said in an interview. "That was 20 years ago, so I am not joking anymore. I know the seriousness of the job."

In law school, Oddsson collaborated with two friends on such radio comedies as "I Shall Enrich My Country," a spoof of greedy politicians. On his own, he wrote "Dirty White Collar," about politics, corruption and the press.

Humor remains part of the Oddsson style, but the former mayor of Reykjavik also is a determined politician learning to operate in a coalition.

"The mayor is running the show completely," Oddsson, 43, said of his former position. "This job is different, completely different, because you have the ministers here and they are all kings in their own fields."

Ingibjorg Solrun Gisladottir, an opposition City Council member, said Oddsson might have difficulty making deals.

"This is his weakness, because he is used to being aggressive he has no experience in finding a compromise," she said, but added that his humor could be an asset.

Oddsson expressed his agreement this way: "I once heard somebody say that another politician had no sense of humor, so it was impossible to take him seriously."

After nine years as mayor, Oddsson challenged and defeated the leader of the conservative Independence Party in March and led it in the April national election, winning 26 of 63 seats in the Althing, the world's oldest parliament.

His program includes deregulation and market-oriented policies for fishing and agriculture to boost the moribund economy.

The previous government, led by the centrist Progressive Party, imposed austerity that kept wages and prices down and produced a trade surplus last year, but the gross national product and private consumption declined.

About 254,000 people live in this volcanic land, which brushes the Arctic Circle in the strategic North Atlantic.

Its citizens are among the world's most affluent, life expectancy is long and infant mortality almost nil, but the economy is based on a single commodity: fish.

Oddsson said his greatest challenge is diversify. Exploitation of hydrothermal and geothermal power are at the top of his list, including a proposal to export electricity to Britain through a 590-mile underwater cable.

There is also talk of building a huge aluminum smelter.

He is in a hurry, Oddsson explained, because "prime ministers don't tend to sit very long in office in Iceland. I could be a very young ex-prime minister."

As a boy in rural Selfoss, Oddsson wanted to be a doctor like his father and grandfather. Then, in his teens, he worked as an usher in a movie theater, developing a passion for words that led him to become a playwright, journalist and book editor.

Of his literary talent, the prime minister said: "I know that I'm a part-time, amateur writer. I like to do it like other people like to go golf. ... I am not a writer to be taken seriously."

His latest drama is a childhood reminiscence that includes a dream about God dropping chewing gum from the sky instead of rain. It has been produced for television by Hrafn Gunnlaugsson, one of Oddsson's old radio partners.

"He is special because he is an artist," Gunnlaugsson said of the man he has known 30 years. "He has the fantasy and the spontaneity to see things in a way that an ordinary journalist wouldn't."

At 19, when he was elected a student leader, Oddsson seemed an unlikely conservative, Gunnlaugsson said: "He was a leftist anarchist; he made a lot of protests in the school; he had a lot of hair, even more hair than Bob Dylan. They thought of him as terrorist."

In 1974, two years before finishing law school, he won a seat on the Reykjavik City Council.

When he challenged Thorsteinn Palsson for the leadership of the Independence Party, both men called it a contest of styles.

Palsson, who takes a managerial approach, said at the time the choice was "between a party with a tough or a milder image."

Oddsson now sits in the converted prison that serves as Government House, a plain building with no security in a nation with little crime.

Joking about the isolation of his job, Oddsson said: "They had 70 prisoners here. Now they have only one."

Diamond discovery lends credence to 'killer' meteorite

NEW YORK (AP) — A cache of tiny diamonds is the latest evidence that a meteorite smashed into Earth about 65 million years ago, an event some scientists say led to extinction of the dinosaurs.

Such diamonds, smaller than some viruses, appear in some meteorites. Researchers now say they found some in sediment formed at the time it's thought that the meteorite hit.

That suggests the diamonds were in the debris that was blown far from the impact and then settled back to Earth.

No diamonds appeared in sediment that formed just before or after the believed impact, David Birez Carlisle and Dennis Braman report in Thursday's issue of the journal Nature.

Carlisle is from the agency Environment Canada in Ottawa and Braman works at the Royal Tyrrell Museum of Paleontology in Drumheller, Alberta.

MOONLIGHTING!

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?

Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!

How long does it take?

The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!

PART-TIME INSERTERS NEEDED

The Midland Reporter-Telegram is taking applications for part-time inserters. Evening/night shifts vary from 6 pm - 1 pm, and 1 am - 3 am. Every Friday from 11am - 6 pm and occasional Tuesdays. Must be able to work all shifts. You will work between 20 to 25 hours per week.

Apply at:

Midland Reporter-Telegram
201 E. Illinois Avenue

WEEKLY & MONTHLY INCOME

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on one of its few "special allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday, in additionto the regular monthly route profits. The route is in the Washington Park area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for your self) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for housewives/ mothers, senior citizens, college students, or any other adult wanting to "moonlight".

First, National cars are backed by the industry's first "Buy Back Guarantee". If for any reason you are not completely satisfied with a car you buy from us, bring it back within 30 days or 1000 miles and we'll exchange it or buy it back.
Second, we sell only late model cars, and because we display the price on the window of each car, there's none of the usual haggling over the price.
Third, we have a wide variety of cars to choose from. National currently has cars available to sell that were manufactured by General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Nissan, Honda & Toyota.
Additionally as an added convenience National accepts trade-ins and can arrange financing.
