

On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Sr.

The Mitchell County News become of age with this issue, it being Volume 21, Number 1. The News was established in May 1931 at the height of the depression, and owned by the present editor and publisher since November of 1931.

After the first few years when the depression began to recede, The News has prospered and grown year after year until today it is the largest weekly newspaper published in a town the size of Loraine in this section of Texas, it being an eight page, eight column paper. Size of most weeklies published in towns comparable to Loraine range from 5 columns 8 pages to 7 columns 8 pages.

The reason for that, of course, is that Loraine is the best town in this section of Texas.

Loraine could be made a better town than it is if all hands would take hold of the wheel of progress and help push. But Loraine, like all other towns, has a few citizens who are entirely satisfied with their own progress and that of their town. It is our ambition to some day be able to publish a better paper than the present News. The only way we can do it is for every merchant in town to patronize it with advertising and job printing, and every citizen in the area subscribe for it.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Willford and children spent last week in the home of her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Mathis, and with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Burk, at Roscoe. OPS Orders New Beef Price Control Plan Calling for 10 Cent Rollback

BEF PRICE CONTROLS—In one sweeping order that will touch nearly every family in the home towns of America as well as 300,000 meat retailers and 25,000 packers, slaughterers and other meat wholesalers, the OPS put into force a new beef price control program calling for almost a dime-a-pound roll-back at the butcher shop by October 1.

The order is expected to save the American housewife $700 million in the butcher shops. Housewives cannot expect retail prices of beef to drop immediately, however, because the program provides for progressively reducing ceiling over a period of time that will allow livestock producers to unload their high cost animals.

Livestock men have balked at controls over cattle prices and warned they would result in less meat production. Michael V. DiSalle, OPS director, will likely be severely criticized by the industry.

These are the steps in the new beef program:

1. A 10 per cent cut in prices which slaughterers may pay the farmer for cattle. This goes into effect for accounting periods beginning on or after May 20.

2. Dollar and cents ceilings are fixed for wholesaler and retailers for the first time. The wholesaler ceilings go into effect May 9, the retail ceilings on May 14. Butcher shops must post retail ceiling price charts, by grade and cut, by June 4.

3. Prices slaughterers may pay for cattle are to be reduced an additional four and one-half per cent on August 1 and by same amount on October 1.

4. On the same August 1 and October 1 dates, retail beef prices cuts of from four to five cents a pound will go into effect.

MORE CONTROLS—Main Street may feel a greater degree of the control pinch if President Truman's proposed legislation gets through congress. He has called for re-enactment, with some stiffening, of virtually everything in the defense production act of 1950. In view of Mr. Truman's recent troubles, it is doubtful if his suggestions will be accepted without considerable criticism.

He proposed:

1. Fixing the parity price for each farm commodity as of the beginning of its marketing season for price control to cover the entire season.
2. Establishing effective retail controls for both residential and commercial properties "wherever needed to stabilize the cost of living and the cost of doing business."
3. Strengthening machinery for the enforcement of price control regulations.
4. Authorizing the government "to build and operate defense plants, to produce essential materials and equipment."
5. Providing for controls over credit in the sale of existing housing.
6. Regulating speculative trading on commodity exchanges.

THINGS TO COME—If the man on Main Street thinks the Truman-MacArthur controversy is going to die, he is badly mistaken. The battle is just about to begin.

This was indicated in a long and extemporaneous speech by Sen. Robert Taft in which he attacked the U.S. joint chiefs of staff and demanded that the U.S. go "all-out" in Korea.

The senator said that he was willing to follow the MacArthur proposals for bombing military objectives in Communist China and for giving logistical support, meaning transport and cover, to Nationalist attack on China proper.

The senator's speech made it clear that the Republican plan to use the forthcoming investigations of the MacArthur dismissal to force an overturning of present far east policy.

A WARNING TO AMERICA—Robert A. Vogeler, shaky, pale and nervous was released from a Hungarian prison after 17 months imprisonment. He had a message for the Main Street of America.

"I want to warn every individual American that what happened to me can happen to them if we don't band together to destroy these enemies of individual freedom," he told newsmen after his release.

"I have a message for America—an important one. America must be made aware of what can happen to human rights—right of a person to go where he wants and say what he wants . . . or the right to be able to go to bed and not be afraid of being taken away from his family to prison in the middle of the night."

RETURN OF LABOR—With the return of organized labor to all defense-mobilization agencies, the man on Main Street can expect the unions to exert a greater influence over the administration's future defense proposals.

It was evident by labor's return to the defense agencies that the administration had surrendered on many points of conflict and is now willing to listen to the united labor policy committee.

Union leaders made known immediately their first campaign. As one expressed it, "We will now turn the heat on congress by undertaking a new campaign for tighter price-control laws and other legislation to insure equality of sacrifice in the defense effort."

Chinese Attack South of Parallel

A U.S. tank battalion lingers into a defense position north of Seoul, prepared to take a heavy toll of advancing Chinese Communist forces.

SPRING IN KOREA—It is spring in Korea. But there is no peace and tranquility in the warm sun. The song birds can not be heard for the constant roar of artillery. The tender sprigs of grass and shrubs are trampled beneath the boots of invading Chinese and defending United Nations troops. It is time for war in Korea.

But the great Communist spring offensive is not doing so well. And the people in the home towns of America who are thinking of their sons and brothers and husbands have gained confidence from reports of allied victories.

The Reds approached Seoul, but came to a dead stop after allied naval, air and artillery bombardments. On other fronts the fighting had died down for the time being.

But as long as it is spring in Korea, the Communists will attack. This time, however, they are running into a meat grinder of fire power.

A SLIGHT DECLINE

Food Prices Down .3 of a Per Cent

The bureau of labor statistics reported that a survey of eight cities revealed that retail food prices declined slightly during the latter part of March.

It was the second time since the wage-price freeze of January 25 that there was a falling off in the retail food-price index kept by the bureau. The decline, however, was only .3 of a per cent.

At the first of April the index was about 11 per cent above that of last June, before the Korean fighting began, and 14 per cent above a year ago.

The decline was due largely to a small drop in prices of fresh fruit and vegetables. Cabbage led the decline with a 19 per cent drop. Carrots were down 18 per cent and fresh tomatoes down 11.

U.S. Home Owners Are Urged To Prepare for Atomic Attack

(The second of two articles.)

Because of public apathy toward a possible atomic attack on this nation, civilian defense officials have renewed their appeal to home owners throughout the nation to be prepared.

If you live in a private home that is well built, the cellar is the safest place to be in case of an atomic attack.

Preparation for atomic attack . . . keep an assortment of canned goods in atomic shelter.

The lower you get, the more barriers there are likely to be against blast, heat and radioactivity.

Select the basement wall nearest the probable target area of your city. If the house is blown over, it will most likely fall away from this wall. If you have a work bench or strong table, big enough to get under, move it into your shelter area, near a wall or strong supporting column. If the time comes when you actually have to take shelter, lie under the table.

If you live in a home that has no basement, choose a shelter area without windows, on the ground floor. An interior hallway is probably best. In time of emergency, the shelter area should be cleared of mirrors and other objects that might cause injury.

If you live in an apartment house, rules for taking shelter will be posted in your building. Learn them!

IT IS HOPED—but it's not at all certain—that news of the attack will come through in sufficient time to enable air raid stations to warn the citizens. The alert will be a warbling siren blast lasting three minutes.

Immediately close all your Venetian blinds to keep radioactivity as much as possible out of the house. Go to your shelter.

Your shelter should be supplied well in advance with the following items:

1. First aid kit.
2. Fire extinguisher.
3. Axe and crowbar; a shovel.
4. Battery operated radio to listen for instructions or all-clear signal.
5. At least one flashlight.
6. An emergency supply of canned food and bottled water in the event that an attack continues for several hours.

Household preparedness plus many important facts concerning the actual strength and effects of atom bombs are part of the new film authorized by the federal office of civil defense, "Survival Under Atomic Attack". Dr. Richard Gerstell, consultant to the federal office of civil defense, and technical advisor on the film, urges every American to see the picture and follow its advice.

Says Dr. Gerstell: "It can happen here—it can happen anywhere!"

The film is available to church groups, Y club, or private home owners at Castle Films, 448 Park Avenue, New York City.

Ed Herlihy recently signed on the dotted line once more; after 15½ years with NBC he is set for another year at the old stand. He is currently on "The Big Show", "Kraft Television Theatre", "The Children's Hour" and "Date in Manhattan".

Guy Lombardo also wrote his name on a contract; he will replace Jack Benny on CBS, Sundays, for 14 weeks starting June 10. All of his shows will be taped from U.S. armed services camps. A special feature of each program with the presentation of "Your Lucky Girl", a big name vocalist chosen by the men at the camp from which the week's broadcast emanates.

Arlene McQuade, "Rosalee" on "The Goldbergs", has a June date with New York City's big Williamsburg Neighborhood Youth Council; she'll tell fellow teen agers how it feels to be "Rosalee" each week on the popular TV show.

Alan Ladd was on the set of Paramount's "Rage of the Vulture" when he received word that he'd been swamped by Boxer puppies; "Rage" had just had 11, and "Scarlet" had contributed 12—all arriving on the same day.

Senator Byrd Tries To Save Nation Nine Billion

By Wright A. Patterson

SENATOR BYRD, Democrat of Virginia, says, and knows, that there can be a cut from the President's budget, that calls for taxes of better than 71 billions of dollars in order to pay as we go for our war preparations. Of these more than 71 billions, Senator Byrd proposes to cut more than nine billion, without hampering the defense preparations to the extent of a single dollar. He would take out of that budget only those items that call for expenditures on strictly home projects, either those proposed to start, such as the St. Lawrence waterway, or those for continuing work on projects started in previous years, or those new or continuing projects, in this country or abroad, that have no possible connection with our American defense.

In the United States there are approximately 30 million families. That immediately unnecessary nine billion of taxes, means a burden of some $300 as an average for each of those 30 million families. That is a sizable item in the budget of the average American family. In adding such an amount to the family expenditures, adjustments must be made to provide for the unneeded tax item. A family of my acquaintance had a family discussion as to what expense they could cut out in order to provide for that additional new tax item.

THE FICTION CORNER

FIXATION ON FATHER

By Richard H. Wilkinson

MR. Harlow sat bolt upright in his chair. The psychology lecturer was saying: "And in the normal family, when the daughter reaches the age of 12 or 13 it is quite likely that her fixation will shift from her mother to her father. They will become great friends. Often this fixation on father will remain until the daughter transfers her affections to a mate. However, if father does not respond to daughter's fixation, the child will, unconsciously, shift back to mother, who, in many cases has resented the original transfer."

My daughter the long aisle, paying no heed to the annoyed glances of other listeners, gained the outside lobby and paused there, dabbing at a moist brow with his handkerchief.

So that was it! he told himself. So that was the cause of his wife's indignation and wrath and resentment. In his mind's eye the pieces of the puzzle that had troubled him for the past month fell into place. He understood now what had happened; he could see it taking place, step by step. Virginia, his only child had attained the age of 13. She was nearing maturity. Gradually, unconsciously, her fixation had transferred from mother to father. The two had become great friends. Mr. Harlow had been tremendously proud and happy.

Not so Mrs. Harlow, Mrs. Harlow was annoyed. She hadn't understood and presently her annoyance changed to resentment against her husband.

... Mr. Harlow returned late that night. It was not his habit to return home late, but tonight there was a definite purpose. Mrs. Harlow had retired, and 10 minutes after he entered the house his daughter Virginia came in. Virginia had been to a party.

Seeing a light in the living room, Virginia came to the door. At sight of her father sitting there alone she uttered a little cry of delight and bounced upon his knee, with the full intention of providing him with details concerning her evening's activities. Something about the expression on her parent's face, however, restrained her.

MR. Harlow smiled at her in a manner that bespoke faint embarrassment. He attempted to brush something from his coat but failed. Thus having had her attention attracted to the something, Virginia investigated and found it to be a dab of powder. She looked at it and frowned. Looking further she discovered a long strand of blond hair.

Horror filled her eyes, a hurt look, an expression of awe and wonder and incredulity, gradually giving way to something bordering on accusation and scorn.

"Why, Daddy! Whatever—"

"—?" Mr. Harlow interrupted, gesturing airily, saying something about an apology, presently lapsing into a lengthy but rather stupid discourse and ending by stating that it would not be wise or necessary to mention the matter to her mother.

Virginia stared. Abruptly she flung her arms about her father's neck and promised him that no matter what happened she would keep his secret. It would be her secret. Poor mother. She must never know. But he must promise—

Yes, yes. Of course he'd promise it was all very silly anyway. Just one of those regretful things that would never be repeated.

After awhile Virginia rose and left him. Her attitude brought a lump into Mr. Harlow's throat. But when she had gone he sighed in vast relief. Beginning tomorrow, he knew, his daughter's fixation would be transferred back to her mother. Mrs. Harlow would cease to be irritable and resentful. Harmony would reign once more in the household. And sometime, Mr. Harlow told himself, when Virginia was safely married and away, he would explain it all—and hope that she would understand.

Tell congress the kind of legislation you want enacted.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Unusual Slip Cover Designs Will Add Color to Rooms

By Erta Haley

WHETHER YOU'RE an experienced seamstress who can touch any material and turn it into a lovely creation or a beginner with ideas and the desire to learn, you can make slipcovers of unusual beauty and design. A perfectly ordinary room can change its appearance as a woman with a new hat, and you can have a different room twice a year or with every season.

Slipcovers made or purchased from professionals are expensive and thus limit many homes to one set. Made by the woman of the home, there are several sets available because the expense is so small. Dull rooms can come to life again with brand new, well-designed covers for chairs and sofas, and the cost is limited to material alone. Fortunately there's a wide selection of this available, and many of the materials can be picked up at sales for such reasonable prices that it's plain laziness not to take advantage of the price they can add to your home.

Even one chair, if it's important to the room can lift the furnishings to a new plane. Then, as time goes by you can gradually remake the room by adding other slipcovers in keeping with the first one, as long as the tempo has been well set.

Fitting is the important thing in making the cover, but this is easily solved. The sewing really doesn't amount to a great deal, and as most corner and skirt finishes can change a traditional cover into something at home in Victorian modern or traditional rooms. Shaped skirts are good in all types of rooms, as long as the shaping harmonizes with the room. Take the scalloped skirt, for instance. The simple round or oval scallops are best in informal settings.

Feminine Suit

This little feminine suit of navy crepe, moderately priced, is designed in New York for all purpose wear. The collarless jacket is scalloped up in front and buttoned into green-piped buttonholes. It's a perfect companion for warm weather when combined with a tailored but lacy hat and a white boutonniere pinned just below the shoulder.

Inverted pleating at the corners of a chair make the piece at home in modern or tailored settings. In traditional rooms you might like to hide ponderous or portruding legs with draped corners on the slipcover.

Should the room be less formal, and you still want to hide or disguise faulty chair legs, use flounced corners. This treatment is especially good for informal rooms, and for those ugly cabriolet legs.

Another corner treatment for covers that is good for chairs upholstered all the way to the floor are the corded or lace trimmings. Very Sofa Styles To Add Interest overstuffed sofa which for many years has had a floral covering can become a brand new and interesting piece if you will use a lovely shade of plain material. If the draperies are floral, you might cut out flowers from them and apply them to the plain material, on back or arms, depending upon the size of the spray or blossom.

It's surprising what effect you can give an old sofa or studio couch just with smart slipcovering. An ally good for informal rooms, and for those ugly cabriolet legs.

A layer of cotton between the plain material and the applique will help the applique stand out for good effect.

Panelled sofa covers are excellent if your home is modern. The puffed effect can be achieved by quilting over thick cotton lining. This treatment may be used on the back as well as the sides, with seat covers and front left plain.

Tailored sofas can be given a sectional look, too, if you will do them in two kinds of material. Use a plain material on sides and center panel, with floral, striped or geometric material on the two end seats.

Use Part-Time Covers To Keep Them Fresh

Upholstered furniture can be kept bright and attractive looking, as well as decorative if you want to make part-time slipcovers, or just covers for those parts like head and arms which soil most easily.

Think of how easy they are to make, and how quickly they can be whisked in and out of the laundry back to chairs and sofas! You can also save wear and tear on furniture and their own covers if you have these miniature slipcovers.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

You Can't Beat Code of Morals

"CAN'T YOU DO something about scandalous tongues, and the disgusting way women have of suspecting the worst of each other?" writes one Hartney George of Billings. "My wife and I were happily married for nine years," his letter goes on, "and we had two sons, now 5 and 7. Jean died three months ago in a motor accident. At that time her sister Constance had been living with us for more than a year, their parents both being dead. We three were extremely congenial, and Jean was grateful to have Sunny, as we call Con, for a companion and helper. Con is now 25, seven years younger than Jean, and has always been a sort of pet.

"Since Jean's death Connie has gone on caring for the boys and keeping the household going. The death of my wife was a terrible shock to me; I am not likely to put anyone in her place for a long, long time. Connie, too, was devoted to her sister, and finds her greatest happiness in caring for Jean's boys. Just yesterday my wife's friends have been talking with our affairs, and she is a mystery. But they have, to an extent that makes us both extremely resentful.

Causing Scandal

"Two elderly women, friends of Connie's mother, have called to say that the matter is causing scandal, and yesterday our minister, who has always been a close friend of the family, came in to talk frankly to us both, and to say that we must try to get a 'kind, elderly woman' in to make things right.

"Even if we could find the kind elderly woman we couldn't afford her. Connie has no help except a man for cleaning once a week, and help I give her now that Jean is gone. On Sundays we clean house, and for the rest we try, the boys and I, to spare her. My salary of $5,000 a year does not run to pay of a kind elderly woman who would expect at least $1,200 of it. Everyone in this neighborhood reads your weekly articles, and a good strong reproof to these evil-minded folk might do some good. Is there no such thing as a safe and honorable relationship between man and woman, especially in circumstances like these? Connie is cut to the heart and I am plain mad over this sort of thing. I would like to punch somebody in the nose."

You are punishing somebody in the nose, my dear Hartney. I am taking especial care to disguise your location and your name because you are flouting that very important old lady Mrs. Grundy, and conventional speaking you haven't a leg to stand on. From the standpoint of that code of morals and character and self-control and social responsibility that we are all desperately trying to uphold in these difficult days, you and Connie are proposing to do something that simply can't be done.

As a reproofing man of 34 and a charming unmarried girl some years younger do not keep house together, unless an older person is somewhere in the picture. Outsiders not only suspect something irregular but more often than not their suspicions are quite justified. Unless a man and a girl under such circumstances actually dislike each other and are burning with resentment and intolerance, they are growing steadily nearer and nearer the moment when propinquity gets in its deadly work.

A plaid chair and sofa for example can have a cover to slip over the back. Make this in plain fabric and use large scallops for finishing it.

Arm and head rest covers for your favorite easy chair will keep it neat and clean. Make these with straight edges, tailored, if it's a plain large chair. These should fit over back, several inches down from the top, and come two or three inches over the arms on each side as well as at the front.

If your chair seats take lots of wear, plan to make covers that tie under the seat with tapes to keep them properly anchored.

Partial covers for ottomans can be made to slip over the top and come down on the sides for two or three inches. Make them snug enough so they don't slip off.

Dress Up Plain Chairs With Colorful Covers

Chairs for bed and dressing rooms can be ruffled and very decorative, but the fabrics for them are usually expensive. Old curtains and draperies as well as sheets, tablecloths and dressing table skirts can frequently yield enough material for the chairs if there is enough durable material remaining in them to be worth the sewing.

Floor length skirts for bedroom chairs can cover the legs or rungs of an old dining room or straight-backed living room. The back and seat of the chair can be covered with a plain boxed pattern and the skirt with knife pleated material or flounce.

SCRIPTURE: II Kings 18-20; II Chronicles 20-30; Isaiah 31.

Dangers of Wartime

Lesson for May 20, 1951

NOT all the dangers of wartime are to life and limb. More serious dangers threaten the minds, the attitudes, the characters, the souls of those who make war. Some of our readers will find no war a good war; others will draw a line between wars that are justified and wars that are not. But no matter how well-justified a war may be, its danger goes to mind and heart as just as real as if it were not justified at all.

Dr. Foreman

"To Decide Who Is Left" ONE danger which war-making brings is that it gets everyone thinking that might makes right. Now might does not really make right and never did; otherwise the champion heavy-weight would always be the best man, morally, in all the world, and the most helpless invalid would be the most wicked.

Along with this "might-is-right" idea is another one close to it: that the best way to persuade others to our way of thinking or to our way of living is to beat them over the head. That has never succeeded yet. You know yourself that you were never persuaded that way. Fists and guns and armies can make people change their tune, but never change their minds.

The way to change people is through their minds and consciences and hearts. One act of international goodwill, justice or generosity is more potent than tons of high explosives. The sending of food, services, skilled help such as doctors and teachers, does more to win friends than any number of armed alliances. The Christian way is always the way of love.

Topsy-Turvy Land THE waging of war creates illusions. Besides the one just mentioned, of confusing might with right, there is this one too: a nation at war lives in a kind of topsy-turvy land. What is of greatest value is rated low, and things of little value are made much of.

The longer a war goes on, the more of a habit this crooked scale of values becomes. For instance: normally we value life above all things. Violent death is something to make the headlines, and causing death to others is something from which we all shrink. But in wartime we are all used, so to speak, to the business of killing.

Whatever genius such a nation may have, whatever productive power, goes mainly to building up the military "potential," devising more and better ways of inflicting sudden death.

Dr. Charles Leber tells of remembering, when a boy, how his father and mother read in the paper about the sinking of the steamship Titanic, which went down with the loss of over 1,500 lives. It was breakfast time when they read the paper; but neither father nor mother could finish the meal. That was before World War I. But now, forty years later, how many people would lose their appetite at reading of the death of a mere 1,500 persons? We are so used to slaughter that as Dr. Leber puts it, we have become brutalized, we have "lost our sense of compassionate shame."

The Illusion of Violence TWO last illusions pursue the warring nation. One is that war is normal. In reality, however necessary war may ever be, it is never normal; but let it run too long or come too often, and people take it for granted.

The other illusion is that it is possible by war to end wars, that by one more war, one more victory, peace will be secured once and for all. It never works.

"The one thing you cannot do with bayonets is to sit upon them," Arnold J. Toynbee has warned us (see his "War and Civilization") that "the ultimate failure of all attempts to win salvation by the sword" is demonstrated in history.

He might have taken his text from Isaiah 31, or the history of Israel and Judah, for Isaiah was saying much the same thing to both Hezekiah and Sennacherib. But neither one understood him; and so their nations died. For whenever any nation puts its supreme faith in force, and neglects the character of its citizens, or the justice of its institutions, then it has forgotten God.

Bismarck Fray Is Described

INDIRECTLY, Herman Goering was responsible for the destruction of the German battleship, Bismarck, it has been revealed.

Rear Admiral D. V. Gallery, U.S.N., recently cited the reluctance—or refusal—of the Luftwaffe to come to the aid of the German battleship as one of the factors that led to her sinking by the British on May 21, 1941.

At the same time, Admiral Gallery, who interrogated survivors of the ill-fated dreadnaught, points out that the entire battle was virtually a comedy of errors on both sides, with luck and British misdeeds favoring the Nazis. The latter pulled several boners themselves, Gallery states.

"The Nazis committed a fatal blunder at the beginning. Concern with the fuel supplies completely dominated the plans of the admirals on both sides. Nevertheless, the Bismarck sailed from Norway 2,000 tons short of her full capacity of fuel."

A serio-comic touch was lent to the entire "Battle of Blunders," the Admiral states, when the Germans, without radar of their own, kept accurate track of the British ships stalking the Bismarck by means of excellent listening devices. The British employed radar for the same purpose. As a result of the tracking, each navy jumped to the conclusion that the other had stolen its technical secrets.

Admiral Gallery reveals that the British might have sent a boarding party aboard the floundering Bismarck but failed to do so. "She was a pushover to board, there was little to lose in trying, and there was a glorious page in naval history to gain, if the attempt succeeded." Had the Bismarck been towed to port, it would have given the greatest boost of the war to British morale.

3 Reasons Why HADACOL IS PRAISED BY THOUSANDS

HADACOL brings relief to folks troubled with Stomach Distress, Weak, Run-Down Conditions and Nervousness when due to deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

Norman Christopher, 2344 Cumberland, Houston, Texas: "After I got out of the Army I was underweight, nervous, couldn't sleep and had a terrible time getting food to agree with me. When I would wake up in the morning I would always be sick at my stomach — I could never eat breakfast—imagine having to wait until noon before eating the first meal of the day. Even then just a few mouthfuls of food would fill me up. At night I couldn't sleep—I would just roll and toss all night. After the third bottle of HADACOL I could tell a difference in my eating and sleeping habits. Now after a year's time of taking HADACOL, I have gained almost 20 pounds. I sleep well—and the most wonderful thing—I can enjoy three full meals a day."

Mrs. John A. Feight, Jr., Rt. 1, Bedford, Pennsylvania: "Anything I ate made my stomach ache and churn all night. . . . My food never seemed to get digested and therefore I would wake frequently in the night with pains. I would be nervous and think over the day's nerve-racking experiences. Every little thing irritated me. I couldn't stand children around me. They made me nervous. I would holler at my two-year-old daughter, Vickie, for nothing at all. Since taking HADACOL all my nausea and nervousness have passed away. All I can say for HADACOL is that it's made me see that this is a beautiful world after all. I'm 20 years old and am a housewife. I really do feel as great as I look on the photograph."

Mrs. Maurice Bellard, P. O. Box 226, Church Point, Louisiana, says about her son, Archie Bellard: "Some friends of mine have been taking HADACOL and found that it had done them a lot of good, and they suggested that I start giving HADACOL to my 16-year-old son Archie Bellard. He has been taking HADACOL for about two months, and since taking it he feels much better. Before he started taking HADACOL he felt weak, and was run-down, and he didn't feel like playing or working. Since he is taking HADACOL he has more energy, and he has a good appetite. I owe the friends, who suggested HADACOL to me, many thanks, but I owe HADACOL many more thanks, and since it has done Archie so much good, I will never be without it again."

HADACOL CAN HELP YOU!

Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc
Creator of Today's Great HADACOL

If your system is lacking in Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, HADACOL can help you as it has helped thousands of other fine folks who had deficiencies of these important elements, which HADACOL contains.

HADACOL brings blessed relief to folks troubled with aches and pains, stomach disturbances (indigestion, gas, heartburn, "sour risings" after meals, bloating), a weak, run-down condition, poor appetite and nervousness when these troubles are due to a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron.

Don't go through life plagued with conditions caused by such deficiencies when relief may be as close as hand as the nearest drugstore for folks with these deficiencies. Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle, only $1.25. Large family economy size, $3.50. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL. Refuse substitutes. Sold on a strict money-back guarantee—you'll feel great after the first few bottles you take or your money will be refunded. If your dealer does not sell HADACOL order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana.

ONCE OVER Wee Willis Waxes Anti-Korean

By H. I. Phillips

"DON'T tell me these generals are fighting for a better world," groaned Willis the White-wing as he took off weight cleaning the streets after the great parade for General MacArthur. "The better life for small people, my eye! Freedom! Balance! This confetti and ticker tape will tie me down like I ain't been tied down since Lindbergh came home. Whaddaya mean, 'stopping aggressors everywhere'? How about those people who threw all this litter down on me!"

Willis, never a parade lover, was plenty sore this time. "This job finishes me with Truman and the Democrats. They have been talkin' about makin' life easier for the common man for years, and look at these streets! They promise me they'll make it easier for me and what do they do? Call home our greatest national hero and bring on the biggest parade in years. If I ain't ever the same again it will be due to miracle drugs and a switch to the Republicans."

"The streets certainly took a beating," he observed. "The blizzard of '88 couldn't be topped it," said Willis the White-wing. "See that pile of confetti over there? I bet I'll find a half-dozen buttons under it still tryin' to blow horns. Other parades had just one-handed ticker tape and confetti throwers. This one used only people who threw with both hands. I always said it was a mistake gettin' into Korea anyhow. We should get out."

"Immediately," we asked. "No. That would mean another parade and I wanna get a little rest after I get this one cleaned up," he replied. "But what have we got out of the Korean war? Brooms with longer bristles and shorter handles! Smaller shovels! Longer lines of marches!"

"Didn't you get a kick out of MacArthur's homecoming?" We asked.

"He's a great guy. I like him. But strictly before a parade, not after. With me he's extendin' the struggle, not limitin' it. I expect to be strugglin' in this rubbish another ten hours. I hear the army is keepin' the Chinese off balance. Anyhow, that's where they're keepin' me."

"You don't favor a holding operation, do you?"

"The way I ache now I would even cheer for a stalemate," snapped Willis.

"Don't you realize the world is in a state of crisis and that we must all do our part in any given situation?"

"So a broom and shovel stops Russia!" shrugged Willis. "So we show the Kremlin we are ahead in confetti! So we prove to Joe Stalin that we lead the world in ticker tape tossin'! I'll bet Malik would pay big money for a picture of me knee-deep in this litter."

Old 'Speed' Pitchers Were Best

By GRANTLAND RICE

WHEN a new baseball season opens or a new racing season begins there is usually one important argument you can wade into without much trouble.

This is the matter of the important factor known as speed—speed of the faster race horses or speed of the faster pitchers. You might be surprised to know how many wordy debates this subject can develop.

Who is the greatest pitcher or the fastest pitcher? From long talks with ballplayers, managers and umpires at various times, I would establish this order: No. 1, Walter Johnson; No. 2, Bob Feller; No. 3, Robert Moses Grove; No. 4, Rube Waddell; No. 5, Dizzy Dean; No. 6, Dazzy Vance; No. 7, Joe Wood.

I would say that Rube Waddell and Dazzy Vance had the fastest-breaking curve ball of the lot. But for sheer speed there was no one quite up to the Big Train. His strike-out record speaks for itself. And Johnson did this with a fast ball, unaided by a curve.

Waddell and Feller set their remarkable strike-out marks with speed plus a fast-breaking curve ball. When Feller first broke in, he depended almost entirely on blinding speed that almost equalled Johnson's flame ball.

But the Big Train was the only pitcher I recall who forced a sick roll call on the day he was nominated to work. Good hitters usually like speed. In the case of Johnson they knew that only speed was coming up and that it was also well controlled. But they wanted no part of it. They were not too keen to hit against Feller and Grove, for that matter.

Amos Rusie with his small hands had blazing speed, and so did Dizzy Dean when he cared to use it. His "fog ball" was close to the Johnson rating.

There have been a lot of fast-ball pitchers who had plenty, too many to mention them all. Addie Joss, who pitched a large number of one-hit games, had fine speed, but he also had a great curve ball and unusual control.

Rex Barney has enough speed if Rex only had a vague idea of where his fast ball would wind up. There is no one pitching today who can match Johnson, Feller and Grove at their best.

Speed Horses

You can slip into just as many arguments over speed horses as you can over speed pitchers. Who are they? Certainly Man o'War, Citation and Coaltown belong in this group.

"How are you going to beat Johnstown on the day he is right?" Harry Grayson asked one day at a Derby party. I don't see how you can. He won the 1939 Derby, beating Chaldon, by eight lengths.

But Johnstown had head trouble and he disliked a muddy track. Yet according to accurate clockers he had more than one mile workout below 1.34. One report had a certain workout at 1.33 2/5.

Johnstown's speed was terrific. Citation is credited with the world mark of 1.33 3/5, made at Golden Gate, and Coaltown is marked up with two or three records. These marks, however, were all set on lightning-fast tracks.

Both Man o'War and John P. Grier turned on killing speed in their famous meeting in New York around 30 years ago.

Count Fleet was another who could burn up a track when he had to move. Count Fleet is close to the top although I still believe Johnstown in his earlier days as a three-year-old was as fast as any thoroughbred I ever saw run.

I haven't seen any horse around today that had Johnstown's or Count Fleet's capacity to handle a fast mile. Or to run with Citation and Coaltown.

Noor had fine speed, plus the ability to go a route. But it is difficult to judge horses who made their time on California tracks where it is not uncommon for horses to run six furlongs in 1.08 2/5 or 1.09.

The track has more to do with speed than the horse on many occasions.

Freak Sizes in Sport.

One wrought-up correspondent writes in to say that basketball's main trouble came when the game went out for freak sizes—usually somewhere between six-foot-six and seven-foot tall players.

"Did you ever hear of another game that centered on giants, or human cranes?" he asked.

We can't see that a man's height has anything to do with his ability. But it does in basketball.

For example, football is a good deal rougher game than basketball ever was. Yet such stars as Frank Hinkley, Albie Booth, Cotton Warburton, Frank Frisch and many others of less than average height weighing from 140 to 150 could never have made a modern basketball team.

Learn How To Relax

By Lawrence Gould

Can you teach yourself to relax?

Answer: Probably, unless you suffer from more than your share of "nervous tension." Try to forget your emotional problems and concentrate on your body. I have found it useful to "go down one side and up the other," relaxing one set of muscles at a time—and don't forget that the muscles of your face may be the last to stay tense. It is also a good idea to "lie (or sit) heavy," emphasizing the idea that your whole weight is being supported and that you do not have to hold any part of yourself up. Like anything else, relaxation requires practice.

May a guilty conscience make delinquents?

Answer: Yes, says Alice R. McCabe of the Community Service Society of New York. Social workers should learn to distinguish between the child who commits acts of delinquency from lack of moral training and the one who does so in order to be caught and punished. The former may make a great show of repentance but repeat his acts at the first opportunity, while the latter shows no regret because he feels he deserves what's coming to him. You may recognize neurotic delinquents (or criminals) by their poorly executed plans which always leave a trail leading to the discovery of their behavior.

Is thumb-sucking a neurotic symptom?

Answer: That depends on whether the child does it in order to satisfy a natural desire or to console himself for something else that is making him unhappy. A baby who sucks his thumb is generally gratifying an entirely normal impulse, but when thumb-sucking persists or is reverted to after babyhood is over, it is likely to reflect an emotional disturbance. Don't try to break a child of the habit by scolding or ridicule—find out what is making him unhappy and correct it so that he no longer will need consolation.

LOOKING AT RELIGION

MODERN SCHOLARS AGREE THAT MT. HERMON WAS THE PLACE OF THE TRANSFIGURATION SINCE CHRIST WAS THEN IN THAT NEIGHBORHOOD. "AND AFTER SIX DAYS JESUS TAKETH PETER, JAMES AND JOHN HIS BROTHER AND BRINGETH THEM UP INTO AN HIGH MOUNTAIN APART, AND WAS TRANSFIGURED BEFORE THEM," Matt 17:1

KEEPING HEALTHY Allergy, Infected Tonsils, Adenoids

By Dr. James W. Barton

PARENTS ARE sometimes greatly disappointed when removal of their child's enlarged tonsils has not brought about the disappearance of the symptoms for which the operation was performed. That allergy (sensitiveness to various substances such as foods, feathers, fur, pollen) may be causing the symptoms and not the enlarged tonsils is stated in California Medicine by Dr. Ben F. Feingold (Children's Hospital, Los Angeles).

"Swelling is the chief factor in enlargement of tonsils in allergic children. A large, pale, boggy and juicy-looking tonsil results, which, when coupled with symptoms of allergy (itching of nose, sneezing, running nose, drip from back of nose into throat and cough) give a picture of symptoms often mistaken for infection of nose and throat."

Because this syndrome or group of symptoms is really caused by the effects of allergy on lymphoid tissue (tonsils and adenoids), surgical removal of these tonsils and adenoids, with no infection present, will not relieve the symptoms. On the contrary it may aggravate the symptoms.

"The general rule should be that if no infection (or obstruction) is present, the removal of the tonsils and adenoids should not take place. When tonsils or adenoids produce symptoms of obstruction, removal is justified only when the allergic condition is adequately managed before and after the operation."

It is known that with infection the allergic disease is aggravated. As the infection gradually subsides, the allergic disease improves. Thus where either infected tonsils or adenoids, or both, are present in allergic individuals, attacks of these infections occur more frequently. In conditions like this it is important that infected tonsils and adenoids should be removed surgically.

"An allergic child who, after complete management of allergic disease for a reasonable time, still has the infections of nose and throat, which infections involve tonsils and adenoids, should have tonsils or adenoids or both removed," Dr. Feingold writes.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Use Easy-Mix Recipe for Perfect Pastry (See Recipes Below)

Perfect Pastries

YOU MAY HAVE to be a magician to pull rabbits out of a hat, but amateurs and experienced cooks can make perfect pastry if they have the right directions!

There was a time when you had to have that certain touch to make light, fluffy, tender, melt-in-your-mouth pie crust, but all the guess-work has been taken out of pie making with recent developments. The only requirements needed are exact measurements and the ability to read directions. All fuss, muss and extra utensils are eliminated.

New type pastry is made with liquid shortening and an ordinary kitchen fork. The pastry is rolled between two pieces of waxed paper, thus eliminating the need for extra flour which in the past has often toughened perfectly good pastry.

Easy-Mix Pastry

(Makes 2 8 or 9-inch crusts)

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup salad oil
1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon ice water

Sift together flour and salt. Combine in a measuring cup, the salad oil and ice water. Beat with a fork until thick and creamy. To avoid separation, immediately pour (all at once) over entire surface of the flour mixture. Toss and mix with fork. The dough will be moist. Form into a ball with the fork.

Divide dough in half. Before rolling, shape each half with the hands into a flat round, making top and edges smooth. Roll dough between two squares of waxed paper. Remove top sheet, invert dough over pan; peel off paper. Fit pastry into pan. Roll out top crust. Cut gashes for escape of steam. Fill pastry-lined pan with desired filling. Place top crust over filling, and trim 1/2-inch beyond the rim of the pan. Seal edge by folding top under bottom crust. Flute edge. Bake at temperature required for filling used.

PIE FOR LUNCHEON can be an easy matter with this new type crust because it's so simple to make, so successful always. Why not try this pie, plain, or with the addition of weiners or fish if you like it meaty?

Provencal Potato Pie (Serves 6)

6 medium potatoes
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 large onion, chopped
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
1 recipe easy-mix pastry
2 tablespoons butter
Few grains pepper
1 cup light cream or top milk

Peel potatoes; cut in very thin slices and place in bowl. Add salt, onion and chopped parsley and mix all together. Cover and let stand while preparing pastry. Line an oblong baking dish (10x6x2 inches) using 1/2 of the pastry rolled 1/4 inch thick. Drain onion-potato mixture. Fill pastry-lined dish. Dot with butter and season lightly with pepper. Roll out remaining pastry for top crust. Cover potatoes. Seal and flute edges. Make several slits in top to permit escape of steam. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven about 1 1/4 hours or until potatoes are tender. Remove from oven. Turn off oven. Slowly pour cream over potatoes through slits. Return pie to oven for 10 minutes longer. Potatoes will absorb most of the cream. If desired, pie may be prepared several hours in advance and held in refrigerator until ready to bake. Serve with meat, cut into squares or wedges.

VARIATION: Follow above recipe. Add 4 (1/2 pound) frankfurters, or 1 1/2 cups (one 7-ounce can) drained, flaked salmon or tuna fish, to drained potato mixture.

Cheese Straws

(Makes 40 straws)

1/2 recipe easy-mix pastry
1/2 cup grated American cheese (sharp cheddar or processed)

Prepare easy-mix pastry as directed. Roll out dough in rectangle, 1/4-inch thick. Sprinkle with one-half of the grated cheese; fold and sprinkle with remaining cheese and fold again. Roll to desired thickness. Lift dough and place on cookie sheet. Cut in strips 5 inches long, 1/4 inch wide. Twist, if desired. Bake in a hot (425°F.) oven 8 to 10 minutes or until light brown. Serve as a soup or salad accompaniment.

*Coconut Cream Pie

1/2 cup cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk, scalded
2 slightly beaten egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup moist, shredded coconut
1 9-inch baked pastry shell

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt. Gradually add milk. Cook in double boiler until thick, about 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Slowly add small amount of hot mixture to egg yolks; stir into remaining hot mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Cool. Add butter and vanilla. Stir in coconut. Pour into cooled pie shell and spread with meringue: Combine 2 egg whites, unbeaten, with 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons water in double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly blended. Cook 1 minute over boiling water, beating constantly. Remove from hot water; beat 2 minutes longer or until mixture stands in peaks. Pipe lightly on pie and sprinkle lightly with toasted coconut. To toast coconut, spread on cookie sheet and brown lightly in a hot (400°F.) oven. Watch it carefully as it should brown only until golden.

Baked Bean Rarebit? Yes, it's a hearty supper dish made by melting sharp American cheese, grated, and then mixing in canned baked beans and pork. Serve on toast.

Any green vegetable will be the better if served with Maitre d'hôtel butter which is made with sweet butter, lemon juice and minced parsley. Serve very hot.

For a most vegetable plus protein luncheon, you'll like a spinach ring in the center of which are served creamed eggs and mushrooms. It's pretty enough for guests, too!

Chocolate Shutters

Chocolate brown is most effective when used as an exterior trim color on a house. Brown shutters are attractive with white, pale yellow or pale green.

Tee for Two

Add a mother-in-law story. Niblick, a man inordinately proud of his golf scores, took his mother-in-law with him to the course one day. After depositing her on a bench, he and a caddy started for the first tee. There Niblick announced, "I want to make a good, long drive now. My mother-in-law is watching from the bench outside the clubhouse."

"Why, that's almost 300 yards!" his caddy cried. "You couldn't possibly hit her from here."

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE

—NOT GOOD FOOD

Have the secret millions of folks have discovered about reen-A-Mint, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why reen-A-Mint's action is so wonderfully different!

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle reen-A-Mint, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use reen-A-Mint and feel your "peppy," energetic self! Get reen-A-Mint! No increase in price—still 25¢, 50¢ or only 10¢.

"I do general farming on 600 acres and have a herd of 100 registered Guernsey cattle. I have used Firestone tires for 15 years and have them on all 3 of my tractors today. I'll stick to the Firestone Traction-Center tires until somebody else shows me that another tire will do a better job."

EARL R. THOMPSON

LIKE Richard Pappe and Earl Thompson, you probably have a definite preference for either an Open-Center or a Traction-Center Tire. That's because you know the soil conditions on your farm better than anyone else.

If your judgment and experience tell you that an Open-Center Tire is better, take a good look at the Firestone Champion Open-Center.

It is the only Open-Center Tire with Power-Arc traction bars, tapered and curved to take a deep, full-traction bite. The bars are curved and flared to cup the soil for a better grip and positive cleaning.

If your judgment tells you that a Traction-Center Tire will do a better job, then there's just one tire for you—the patented Firestone Champion Traction-Center. It's the only Traction-Center Tire on the market. It is the stand-by of a million farmers today.

Richer of these tires will do a great job for you. They're both Champions.

FARM PROGRAM NEWS

The county PMA office is open all day, 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday and is open each Saturday until noon.

Subsoiling to permit better penetration of water is the only approved practice in which there is considerable activity at this time. This is not a tillage practice. If you hold an approval for subsoiling and cannot qualify for payment, please let the office know.

Those holding approvals and have qualified should report the measured acreage when the work is completed. A sketch locating the plots and measurements of each should be turned in with the report. If the approval is for 8 inches the depth subsoiled must be 8 inches or more.

Summary of 190 ACP Program
Ridge type terraces 822 miles on 204 farms; diversion terraces about 15 miles on 33 farms; wells for livestock water 15 wells on 13 ranches; tanks for livestock water, 49 tanks on 40 farms and ranches; erosion control dams, 8 structures on 6 ranches; phosphate, 174,575 pounds on 21 farms; summer legumes (cowpeas) 1,300 pounds on 6 farms; winter legumes for cover crop, vetch and winter peas, 7,900 lbs seed on 25 farms; dyer for winter cover crop, 606 acres on 16 farms. There Is a Church You Should Know

1. WHAT NAME SHOULD THE CHURCH WEAR:
A. Jesus said "I Will Build My Church" (Matt. 16:18)
It was to be His church it is to bear His name, notice the ark was spoken of as Noah's ark, even though God directed its building; the same was true of Solomon's Temple; and many other examples found in the word of God.
B. "Church of God"—1 Cor. 1:2.
C. "Churches of Christ"—Rom. 16:16. Paul here is speaking of all the Churches of Christ, and so used the term in the plural, because he was speaking of more than one Church of Christ.
D. "The Body of Christ"—Eph. 4:12.
E. "The Church of the Living God."—1 Tim. 3:15—This indicates ownership.
F. "Church of the First Born."—Heb. 12:23—John 3:5. Jesus died to purchase the Church which is his body Acts 20:28; Eph. 5:25. Therefore, men should respect Christ, and his sacrifice to the extent that they are willing to wear his name, the only name in which there is salvation. Acts 4:12; Acts 11:26.
G. The Church is the Bride of Christ and should wear his name. 2 Cor. 11:2. What husband would respect his bride if she absolutely refused to wear his name. Yet many do that very same thing, as the supposed brides of Christ.
H. The Church is God's family, and should wear His name 1 Tim. 3:15; Eph. 3:14,15.
