Please, mister, take me home

Twelve-year-old Leonard Couto of 2611 Golf Course Road pleads with a fireman to take him home instead of to the hospital after he suffered minor injuries when his bicycle collided with a car Sunday afternoon. The accident occurred in the 1000 block of Ward Street about 4:45 p.m.

Four die in balloon explosion

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Passengers in a hot-air balloon were about to "applaud a good landing" when the craft suddenly exploded in flames and shot skyward, and four people aboard plummeted to their deaths. Five others were injured.

"Jump, it's going to blow!" Thomas Speer, 43, said he shouted to his fellow passengers an instant before the blast Sunday during the 11th annual Albuquerque International Balloon Fiesta.

The five people injured included pilot Joe Gonzales of Albuquerque, who was hurled from the gondola when the fire caused one of the propane tanks aboard to erupt in sizzling flames.

Gonzales was bringing the balloon, called the El Globo Grande, gently to Earth at 9:30 a.m. when leaking propane vapors apparently ignited the wicker gondola.

The balloon, which was carrying nine people, exploded, and four passengers jumped out at or near ground level, witnesses said. The balloon, free of the weight, shot skyward, and four others jumped or fell to their deaths from heights of up to 200 feet.

"I turned around to applaud a good landing," said Speer, 43, of Lakewood, Colo. "When I did, I heard a hissing sound and saw vapors escaping very rapidly. I recognized what was going to happen ..."

Speer and two other survivors leaped from the gondola as it caught fire on the ground and Speer's wife, Ann, jumped into his arms as the suddenly lightened balloon shot into the air.

After Speer saw that his wife was safe, he looked skyward, where the blazing balloon already had climbed to more than 150 feet.

"At that point, a gentleman jumped," Speer said. "He just jumped. He wasn't on fire. He wasn't thrown from the gondola ... When I saw him land, I knew he wasn't alive. I could hear it when he hit. He hit and bounced."

The man was identified as Dick Wirth of London, a balloonist who wrote a book on his craft and was president of Thunder Balloons Ltd.

The El Globo Grande was one of 200 balloons launched as part of the nine-day festival that attracted 450 balloonists.

J.W. Nimmo of Albuquerque, part of the balloon's ground crew, said the fire spread too quickly for everyone to escape. "The whole basket around the propane tanks was engulfed in fire," he said.

As the balloon rose, one woman clung by one hand to its flaming gondola.

"You can't imagine what it was like to be running across that field and seeing that girl hanging from the gondola," Nimmo said. "We were screaming for her to jump before it was too late."

He estimated the balloon rose 50 feet before the woman lost her grip and fell. Immediately, one of the propane tanks exploded and tossed Gonzales over the side, he said.

The others who were killed were identified as Christina Robinson, also of London, and Nick Brainard and his wife, Pamela. Police said the Brainards were believed to have moved to Albuquerque recently. Ages of the dead were not available.

Mrs. Speer was hospitalized with a crushed vertebra and C. Vincent Short, no hometown available, was hospitalized with neck and back injuries. Their conditions were not available.

Deposits increase over year ago

Third quarter deposits up $200 million

By LESLIE HAINES
Oil and Business Writer

Midland's bank deposit totals grew $200 million for the third quarter of 1982 over the same time a year ago, with $1.942 billion posted for the period that ended Sept. 30. Deposits for the third quarter of 1981 totaled $1.747 billion.

The third quarter figure, however, fell by about $175 million from the second quarter totals of $2.117 billion.

The new figure, which covers the three months ending Sept. 30, 1982, also includes two new banks which joined the local financial fraternity, bringing to eight the number of banks in the city.

Initial deposit and loan activity recorded by both Midland American Bank and Security National Bank met or exceeded expectations for their first weeks in operation. Midland American President Russell Richardson and Security National President David Covey said they were "tickled pink" at the strong start their respective banks experienced.

Midland American opened for business July 26, and Security National began its banking about midway through the third quarter, on Aug. 16. Each bank saw slightly more than $2.3 million in total deposits and over $1.5 million in loans and discounts.

The total deposit figure for the eight Midland banks reached $1,942,516,495 for the July through September period, ahead of $1,747,535,357 reported in the same quarter a year ago, but down from $2,117,457,166 reported during the second quarter of 1982.

Banks are required by law to report total deposits and total loans and discounts at the end of each quarter.

Loans and discounts for the third quarter of 1982 rose, totaling $1,815,466,507 versus $1.4 billion for the same quarter in 1981, and compared to $1,690,498,057 recorded in the second quarter of 1982.

The First National Bank of Midland led the eight banks with deposits of $1,326,917,488, versus the 1981 figure of $1,225,952,775 for the same quarter. The third quarter figure is slightly less than the $1,479,708,000 in deposits for the previous quarter of this year, which extended from April to June.

Loans and discounts at FNB increased in the last three months, and are slightly more than the total deposit figure, with a total reported of $1,366,827,801, compared to last year's third quarter results of $1,012,961,944.

Midland National Bank reported total deposits for the quarter of $352,868,605, versus $327,304,951 for the same quarter a year ago, and compared to $383.25 million last quarter, a decrease of $30.4 million.

Total loans and discounts in the third quarter of 1982 were $281,796,605, down from $286.56 million in the second quarter of this year but ahead of the same quarter last year, when the bank posted loans adn discounts of $242,182,796.

Texas American Bank — Midland, which before Oct. 1, was known as Commercial Bank & Trust, reported total deposits of $144,571,064 and total loans and discounts of $93,119,674. These figures compare with $113,301,055 and $86,905,931, respectively, for the same quarter a year ago, and with $147,156,050 and $93,072,104 for the second quarter of this year.

Western State Bank recorded total deposits of $49,718,526 and total loans and discounts of $36,843,355 for the period ended Sept. 30. These figures

Task force has several leads

CHICAGO (AP) — A task force has two dozen suspects and several "very substantial" leads in its hunt for a "random murderer" who killed seven people by placing cyanide in Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules, authorities say.

The leads include the discovery of Tylenol bottles and capsules in a suburban motel parking lot on Tuesday, one day before the deaths began. The two Kane County sheriff's deputies who found the capsules strewn on the ground got sick the next day with symptoms that one specialist said could have been caused by cyanide.

Evidence from the parking lot was being tested.

Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner said at a news conference Sunday night that among the task force's suspects are "malcontents...and weirdos who don't act right or did something extremely out of the ordinary."

"We're trying to understand what kind of person could do these things," said Fahner, the chief of a local, state and federal task force with more than 100 investigators looking into the string of deaths. "It is an act of a random murderer who filled the capsules with cyanide and then placed them in the stores," he said.

THE ATTORNEY general declined to reveal any other leads.

All of the deaths occurred between Wednesday and Friday in Chicago or its suburbs among people who had taken Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules, the nation's best-selling pain reliever. Autopsies revealed the deaths were caused by cyanide poisoning.

The cyanide-spiked capsules probably were placed in the stores Tuesday, Fahner said, apparently on the front of the shelves to ensure they would sell quickly, he said.

Related Stories, Page 8A

Investigators already have interviewed and cleared many suspects and now believe someone acting alone obtained bottles of Extra-Strength Tylenol, filled the capsules with cyanide at home and then "salted" store shelves with the deadly poison, Fahner said.

The task force is receiving a steady flow of tips, he said, but, "there's no way of knowing if any of these tips or these leads could break the case."

Investigators were beginning to comb personnel files today of people who might have had access to the capsules, Fahner said. He did not elaborate.

It was disclosed Sunday that Kane County sheriff's deputies found 24 bottles of Tylenol in a motel parking lot about 15 miles north of Winfield, where Mary Reiner, one of the victims, purchased her cyanide-laced medication.

EXTRA-STRENGTH Tylenol was not linked to the cyanide deaths until Thursday, two days after the find, so the deputies had no reason to keep the capsules.

Gulf Oil refinery remains shut down

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — Four people are charged in a $15 million extortion plot against a Gulf Oil Chemicals Co. refinery and a reported deadline for payment expired without the threatened explosion, but the plant remains shut down.

"We wouldn't even consider that (resuming normal operations) until we feel it is safe to," Gulf spokesman Barry Smyth said Sunday, adding that the company was waiting for a go-ahead from the FBI.

The slow process of shutting down the Cedar Bayou plant 30 miles east of Houston was completed Thursday morning. Five bombs found at the plant were neutralized that day, including one that exploded harmlessly while being deactivated, officials said.

Authorities continued searching for more bombs Sunday, five days after receiving an extortion letter threatening to blow up the plant. The Baytown Sun has quoted a source as saying the letter said 10 bombs were hidden in the plant and would be detonated unless the money was turned over by midday Sunday.

ALL FOUR people charged in the extortion plot are from Durango, Colo.

Bond for John Marvin McBride, 46, and Jill Renee Bird, 36, was set at $1 million each. The pair was arrested Sunday in Durango on warrants charging them with violating the federal extortion statute, the FBI said.

U.S. Magistrate David West scheduled a preliminary hearing for the two at 3 p.m. Friday in Durango. McBride was free on $25,000 bond in connection with another extortion case in Riverside, Calif., La Plata County sheriff's officials said.

The other two — Theodore Duane McKinney, 45, and Michael Allen Worth, 34 — were arrested in Arizona Friday night and are being held on $1 million bond in Phoenix. A preliminary hearing is set for them for 3 p.m. Friday in Phoenix.

The owner of a Durango coin shop, Larry Rasmussen, said Worth has a partner named John McBride in a gun shop and private investigation business operated for the last three years one flight above Rasmussen's coin shop. Rasmussen said Worth is known as an excellent gunsmith. Durango police say McBride is a private investigator.

Sheriff's officers said McBride allegedly approached a Palm Springs, Calif., couple in an attempt to collect on a debt owed by their son to a Durango businessman. He is alleged to have represented himself as a Durango policeman and threatened to arrest the son unless the couple paid him $2,000.

MCBRIDE WAS arrested in Durango Aug. 13 in that case and returned to Riverside Aug. 27, where he was charged with grand theft, extortion and impersonating a police officer. He is scheduled to appear in Riverside Municipal Court Oct. 15 on those charges, officials said.

Cars strike three times

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Late Saturday a speeding car struck a telephone pole next to Stan and Laura Moore's duplex. A few hours later, a car smashed into a tree across the street. On Sunday night, a car plowed into their living room while they were watching television.

"Both accidents made a lot of screeching and banging," said Stan Moore, 25. "So when this one made a lot of screeching and banging, we didn't think much of it until we saw the car come through the wall. Then it was sheer panic."

The Moores were not hurt, but the unidentified driver was taken to the hospital with undetermined injuries.

Stan Moore said he and his wife had just finished dinner and were sitting on a couch. "We were pushed about 12 feet across the room," he said. "We were lucky. The dinner table was obliterated. If we had been sitting at it, I wouldn't be here right now."

Hijackers seek U.S. asylum

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Four hijackers seeking asylum in the United States left for an unspecified destination today aboard an Iranian military transport after freeing more than 70 hostages during a stop at the Persian Gulf port of Dubai.

The Gulf News Agency said the Hercules C-130 made a refuelling stop in the Sharjah airport in the United Arab Emirates in the early afternoon after leaving Dubai hours earlier.

The military aircraft was hijacked over the Persian Gulf Sunday night and landed in Dubai, also in the United Arab Emirates, after its pilot reported he was low on fuel.

Emirates Defense Minister Mohammed Bin Rashid and Sharjah Police Director Col. Abdallah Serry negotiated for three and a half hours with the hijackers at the Sharjah airport and reached an agreement to allow the plane to leave Sharjah "with all persons aboard," the agency said. It did not elaborate.

According to the agency, three men and one woman hijacked the plane and are seeking asylum in the United States. Earlier, police in Dubai had said there were only two hijackjers.

It was not immediately clear how many people were aboard.

The agency said 76 passengers on the military aircraft had been allowed to disembark at Dubai. Earlier reports from Dubai put the number of freed passengers at 79.

Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball, the 87-year-old "prophet, seer and revelator" of th 5 million-member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, waves to those gathered Sunday for the closing session of the group's 152nd Semiannual Conference. In the background in Kimball's personal secretary, D. Arthur Haycock, who read his address to the conferees.

Mormons change name of scripture

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon leaders have changed the title of their most cherished volume of scripture to emphasize that Jesus Christ is the true Christian.

Before concluding the 152nd Semiannual General Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on Sunday, church officials changed "The Book of Mormon," published in 1830, to "The Book of Mormon — Another Testament of Jesus Christ."

Throughout the church's 152-year history, some critics have claimed Mormons are not true Christians and that they worship church founder Joseph Smith.

"Please allow me to explain that we definitely are Christians — we do worship God the Father and his son Jesus Christ, and we do not worship any prophet or any saint, modern or of ancient times," said Elder Robert E. Wells of the First Quorum of the Seventy.

"We do not worship the prophet Joseph Smith. Although we love and honor him, we never pray to him," Wells said. "Can anyone doubt that we are Christians in the full sense of the word?"

The newly titled book, which Smith said he translated from gold plates given him by an angel named Moroni, describes an ancient civilization in the Americas visited by Jesus Christ. Mormons, who also consider the Bible to be scripture, believe American Indians are a remnant of that civilization.

Smith taught that Jesus Christ instructed him to restore his true gospel to an apostate world.

Although the conference had no stated theme, church leaders stressed to the world's 5.1 million Mormons the importance of being spiritually and economically self-reliant in anticipation of Christ's return.

Ezra Taft Benson, president of the Council of the Twelve Apostles and probable successor to 87-year-old church President Spencer W. Kimball, said traditional families are threatened as never before by such growing trends as divorce and mothers working outside the home.

"No society will long survive without mothers who care for their young and provide that nurturing care so essential to their normal development," said Benson, 83, who served as U.S. agriculture secretary in the administration of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"If we continue with present trends," Benson said, "we can expect to have more emotionally disturbed young people, more divorce, more depression and more suicide."

In families "based on principles and practices of the gospel of Jesus Christ, these problems do not as readily appear," Benson said.

Kimball, ailing and weakened since skull surgery and medical complications 13 months ago, watched some conference sessions from his hotel apartment. He attended the concluding session but did not deliver the president's traditional closing address.

Kimball's keynote address Saturday — for the second conference in a row — was read by his personal secretary.

In the conference's final address, Gordon B. Hinckley, one of Kimball's three counselors, decried the cyanide poisonings in Chicago as the work of "some depraved individual."

"It is an indication of the depths to which men may sink and the great need in this world to overcome evil with good. We ought to do better. We ought to become as leaven," Hinckley told those gathered in the Tabernacle on Temple Square.

Gemayal asks Wazzan to help him form Cabinet

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Amin Gemayel today picked caretaker Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan to continue in office and asked him to form a new Cabinet.

In Israel, meanwhile the Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet met to discuss the ambush east of Beirut Sunday in which six Israeli soldiers were killed and 22 wounded. Israeli radio said military commanders briefed the Cabinet on the attack, which raised Israel's death toll in the four-month-old Lebanese invasion to 357. The Cabinet issued no statement after the meeting.

Lebanese state radio quoted Wazzan as saying: "Once again I am given the honor of serving my country especially at such a critical stage." He was interviewed by state radio in the Presidential Palace where he met with Gemayel and Parliament Speaker Kamel Assad.

"His excellency President Amin Gemayel has given me the task of forming a new government and I have accepted with thanks this trust," said Wazzan.

Wazzan, a 57-year-old conservative politician, was appointed by former President Elias Sarkis in October 1980. He had been serving as caretaker since Gemayel took office on Sept. 23. Gemayel was elected president by Parliament after his brother, President-elect Bashir Gemayel, was assassinated Sept. 14.

Wazzan's appointment came after reports in the Lebanese press that Gemayel intended to name Brig. Gen. Ahmed el-Hajj, commander of the paramilitary internal security forces, as prime minister to form an interim law-and-order government.

Lebanese newspapers reported today that Gemayel's plan encountered bitter opposition from Sunni Moslem leaders who insisted on the formation of a traditional government to be headed by an experienced politician. Under Lebanon's power-sharing agreement, the president must be a Maronite Christian, the prime minister a Sunni Moslem and the speaker of Parliament a Shiite Moslem.

Meanwhile, Lebanese newspapers reported today that five people were killed and 15 others wounded in clashes between two private armies in the northern port of Tripoli.

They said members of the pro-Syrian Arab Democratic Party were fighting the Sunni Moslem Popular Resistance Front, which is fiercely opposed to the presence of Syrian troops in northern Lebanon. There was no indication of what prompted the clashes. Lebanon's state radio said the fighting persisted today.

East of the capital, Israeli troops combed the rugged Lebanese hills for the ambushers who sprayed automatic weapons and bazooka fire at a busload of Israeli soldier in Sunday's ambush.

The Israeli command in Tel Aviv said it believed Palestinian guerrillas were responsible for the ambush near the lines separating Israeli forces from Syrian troops and their Palestinian allies in eastern Lebanon. The command did not explain why it believed this.

Rhodes has his last say, quits Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Rhodes, who as House minority leader in 1974 had to tell then-President Richard M. Nixon he faced certain impeachment, is leaving a 30-year congressional career after breaking ranks with another Republican president.

It was a final vote of conscience for the longtime party loyalist: his vote against President Reagan's proposal for a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget.

The Arizonan was the most senior of 20 Republicans to vote against the president's proposal last Friday as Congress rushed to adjourn for the November elections.

But in helping to hand Reagan his biggest legislative defeat, the quiet, gentle lawmaker was able to close the book on an issue that had personally hounded him for years.

Rhodes' earlier opposition to a balanced budget amendment while still minority leader got him in hot water with rank-and-file Republicans.

Under pressure from colleagues, he reluctantly reversed himself in 1980 and agreed to support such an amendment.

And as recently as last week, Rhodes was one of the final signers of a discharge petition that yanked the proposal from a hostile committee in the Democratic-controlled House to provide Reagan with the floor showdown the president wanted.

But when Rhodes' name was called on the final roll, he put party pressures aside and responded with a firm "no."

Rhodes says he's still against deficit spending, but wants to see the budget balanced by Congress and not by tampering with the Constitution.

"I confidently expect a balanced budget sometime within the next five years," Rhodes said. "We've actually turned in that direction."

And now John J. Rhodes is ready to go home.

Scrapbooks are piling up on his desk — volumes which Rhodes says will "reach to the ceiling" by time he and his wife, Betty, finish with them. With the scrapbooks will go a few large green-and-white buttons that Rhodes has retained from his long but now impossible dream. They proclaim: "Rhodes for Speaker."

"After thirty years, I just thought that if I was ever going to do something else, I should get started doing it," Rhodes, 66, said in an interview.

Awaiting him is a professorship at Arizona State University. He also hopes to do some travelling, to serve as a consultant to a Washington law firm and do some serious writing,

"But, hopefully, not my memoirs," he joked.

Rhodes planned to quit in 1980, after seven years as minority leader. But when it became clear it was going to be a banner year for Republicans, he decided to stick it out for just one more term.

Had Republicans captured the majority, he would now be speaker. But it was not to be. So Rhodes gave up his Republican leadership post to serve out his final two years on the sidelines in relative peace as a party elder.

"Sure I'm disappointed" Republicans never regained the control of the House they had when he came to Washington in 1953, Rhodes said. "I never got so I liked being in the minority."

He is one of 40 House members who decided not to seek re-election this year — a year in which many senior members have decided to pack it in, including colleagues Richard Bolling, D-Mo., Robert McClory, R-Ill., and Henry Reuss, D-Wis.

Cowboy burned with gasoline in 'very critical' condition

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A Matagorda Island cowboy who was airlifted to a hospital here after the gasoline he was using to kill ticks on his skin exploded remains in "very critical" condition, a hospital spokesman said.

Scott Tanner, 22, is being treated at John Sealy Hospital for the second- and third-degree burns he received Saturday when the fuel exploded, hospital spokesman Irvin Power said Sunday.

Tanner, a native of Minneapolis, Minn., has burns over 90 percent of his body, Power said.

Tanner was in the bathroom with the door closed when the gasoline fumes apparently were ignited by the pilot light of a gas water heater, said a cattle ranch official in Rockport.

"They heard him screaming and had to bust the door down to get in," said Pearl Davis.

Tanner was flown by helicopter first to Corpus Christi in an oil company helicopter and then transported in a Coast Guard chopper to the burn unit in Galveston, officials said.

"He told us he was a cowboy at the Star Brand Cattle Company on Matagorda Island and somehow he got ticks on him," said Bill Aston, director of the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service.

"He said he was using gasoline to get the ticks off. He went into a bathroom and came in contact with the hot water heater and it exploded," said Aston, who was the first to treat Tanner.

Construction begins on Texas 191

Construction was scheduled to get under way today on a 6.9-mile stretch of Texas 191 in Midland and Ector Counties, the State Highway Department has announced.

The construction extends from 42nd Street and Loop 338 in Odessa to FM-1788, northwest of Midland Regional Airport. Cost of the project, the bid for which was awarded to the H.B. Zachary Co. of San Antonio, is $3.6 million.

The project will include construction of two frontage roads, each adjacent to the right-of-way lines and each two lanes wide. Crossovers will be constructed between the frontage roads only where future interchanges or grade separations are planned.

Completion of this section of the "Midland-Odessa North Route" will provide a continuous route between Midland and Odessa as an alternate to Interstate 20 and U.S. Highway 80, according to a spokesman with the State Highway Department.

Motorists are asked to obey all warning signs in the construction zone to prevent accidents. The project has been allotted 300 days for completion.

Questioning of Wood trial jury continues

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions today resumes his individual questioning of prospective jurors to screen out those who already have formed opinions about who murdered Judge John H. Wood Jr. in 1979.

Sessions had another 22 prospective jurors left over from last week and was to summon another 50 today to resume jury selection in the trial of three defendants in the case.

The complicated jury selection process was the longest and most elaborate ever conducted in federal court here in recent memory.

Charles V. Harrelson, 44, charged with shooting Wood in the back for a $250,000 fee; his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, who allegedly purchased the murder weapon; and Elizabeth Chagra, 28, wife of the man who allegedly arranged the "hit," are on trial.

Over four days last week, Sessions individually questioned 113 jurors to screen those who had formed opinions.

Governors give press high marks for coverage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's governors have filled out report cards on the reporters who cover their state governments, and they gave the press corps pretty high marks.

Of the 35 governors willing to give a letter grade to their local reporters, two gave out A grades, 19 gave Bs and 13 awarded C's. There was only one D, and nobody flunked.

Most of the governors answering a survey conducted by the National Governors' Association said their own primary source of news was newspapers, and a majority also said they believe newspapers are more effective in covering and influencing state government than broadcast media.

The survey was conducted by George Weeks, a former reporter himself and now chief of staff for Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken. The results are being published in the next issue of the Governors' Bulletin. Forty-eight governors responded to the 40-question survey although all governors did not answer all questions.

In another of the rating categories, 21 governors assessed the job done by the media in their capital city as good or very good. Thirteen rated the press corps covering them as fair, five said adequate and five poor.

When asked to give rating in specific categories ranging from reporting skills to fairness of coverage, most governors said "good" and a few "excellent."

Newspapers were named by 28 governors as providing the "best coverage" of state government. Five said newspapers, radio and television were about equal. Three named newspapers and television, two radio and two television.

Asked which branch of the media had the "most influence" on state government, seven said newspapers, eight said all three, four combined newspapers and television.

But when the question was which had most influence in the entire state, not just the capital, the broadcasters moved up. Ten said newspapers, seven newspapers and television, six television, three television and radio, and eleven said all three.

The survey also found that the size of statehouse press corps varies considerably from state to state. Twelve states reported 31 or more reporters covering state government. The lowest state reported six.

Supreme Court to study cases involving abortion, tax breaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is tackling some of the most sensitive issues it has faced in years as it opens its 1982-1983 term.

In the next nine months, the court has agreed to study cases involving abortion regulation, tax breaks for racially discriminatory private schools, and the balance of power between the executive branch and Congress.

The nine justices were to open the session today, immediately acting on nearly 1,000 cases. Of the 5,000 disputes they are expected to consider by July, 150 will be examined in detail.

About two-thirds of those special cases have already been selected; the remaining 50 or 60 cases to receive full review will be chosen after the term begins.

Most of the 5,000 cases will be denied review, leaving intact lower court rulings.

Although the Supreme Court legalized abortion in 1973, several lingering questions remain. Three of those questions before the court are:

—Can states or communities require that all abortions on women more than three months pregnant be performed in a hospital, not a less expensive abortion clinic?

—Can any unmarried girl under 15 be required to have the consent of a parent or a judge before obtaining an abortion?

—Must doctors inform patients seeking abortions about the risks and the condition of the fetus?

PACs contribute more than $42 million to candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political action committees have handed out more than $42 million to federal candidates so far in the 1982 elections, nearly four times as much as they contributed just two elections ago.

Incumbents are doing particularly well, according to figures from the study of PAC contributions for the 1981-82 election cycle prepared by the Federal Election Commission.

They cover only the period between Jan. 1, 1981 and June 30 of this year. The two-year total is expected to go considerably higher.

The commission said that during the 18-month period, PACs raised $137.2 million and spent $103.9 milon. Contributions to all federal candidates totaled $38 million, with $34 million of it going to active candidates and the rest to candidates retiring debts from past campaigns.

In addition, the commission said monthly reports received for the month of July add another $4.4 million to the PAC contribution total.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO candidates for the Senate, House or the presidency are less than total expenditures since PACs spend in other areas, particularly expensive fund-raising efforts.

PACs are political funds sponsored by corporations, labor unions, trade associations and various special interest groups. They raise voluntary contributions from members, employees or general solicitations and then dispense the funds to candidates or spend it independently.

In the first 18 months of the 1979-80 election cycle, PACs contributed about $25 million, most of which went to 1980 congressional campaigns.

In the 1977-78 cycle, covering the most recent comparable non-presidential campaign, PACs raised $54 million, spent $38.7 million and gave candidates $10.9 million during the first 18 months. For the two-year span, contributions were $35.2 million, $34.1 million of it to 1978 congressional candidates.

After 18 months of the 1979-80 cycle, PACs raised $85.3 million, spent $61.4 million and gave federal candidates $24.9. By the end of the cycle, they gave $60.2 million with $55.2 million of it going to House and Senate campaigns.

OVERALL, INCUMBENTS have received 81 percent of the PAC contributions in the 1982 campaign, the FEC figures show. Challengers got 10 percent and candidates in open races the remaining 9 percent. In the entire 1980 cycle, 61 percent went to incumbents, 26 percent to challengers and 13 percent to open races.

During the most recent 18-month reporting period, the top ten money raisers were the National Congressional Club, $7.7 million; National Conservative Political Action Committee, $7.2 million; Realtors Political Action Committee, $2.2 million; American Medical Political Action Committee, $2.2 million; Citizens for the Republic, $1.9 million; Fund for a Conservative Majority, $1.9 million; Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress $1.8 million; National Committee for an Effective Congress, $1.6 million; Committee for the Future of America Inc., $1.5 million; Committee for Thorough Agricultural Political Education of the Associated Milk Producers, $1.4 million.

TOP SPENDERS WERE National Congressional Club, $8.4 million; National Conservative Political Action Committee, $7.3 million; Fund for a Conservative Majority, $1.9 million; Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress, $1.8 million; National Committee for an Effective Congress, $1.7 million; Citizens for the Republic, $1.7 million; American Medical Political Action Committee, $1.3 million; Realtors Political Action Committee, $1.3 million; Committee for the Future of America Inc., $1.2 million; Fund for a Democratic Majority, $1.2 million.

Leading in gifts to federal candidates were American Medical Political Action Committee, $857,461; Realtors Political Action Committee, $614,110; UAW-V-CAP (United Auto Workers), $566,415; Machinists Non-Partisan Political League, $560,048; American Bankers Association BANKPAC, $471,515; National Education Association PAC, $411,933; Seafarers Political Activity Donation, $394,166.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Drugs are not always needed in treating asthma

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it always necessary to use drugs to treat children with asthma? I have no objection to using drugs if they are necessary, but I would like to avoid them if possible. — Joel, Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Joel: Drugs are not always necessary in the treatment of children with asthma. I have seen a number of children who could be helped simply by controlling environmental factors that could aggravate the condition. Something as simple as keeping pets out of the home might do the trick.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been drinking for about the past 20 years and now I'm paying for it with a lousy liver. I'm not complaining because, like they say on the street, "You do the crime, you do the time." But there are guys I know who drink enough to make me look like a member of AA. How do you figure this? — Arnie, Albuquerque, N.M.

Dear Arnie: Each person is different and each reacts differently to what may appear to be similar conditions. I would remind you that not everyone who smokes gets lung cancer, although many do. The point is that liver disease is not necessarily related to the amount of alcohol a person drinks.

Dr. Vlado Simko, of the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, studied more than 80 alcoholics, some with and some without liver disease. He found no significant difference in the amount of alcohol the two groups consumed, nor did the liver disease seem to be related to the degree of malnutrition.

If you are not already receiving treatment for your drinking, Alcoholics Anonymous may not be a bad place to start.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I prefer using a spermicide as a form of birth control. I am not looking for a 100 percent guarantee against becoming pregnant, because at this point I don't very much mind if I do become pregnant. What troubles me is what effect it would have on the baby. I may not know I'm pregnant for at least a couple of months. Could the use of the spermicide during the first few months of pregnancy be harmful to the baby? — Kay, Lincoln, Neb.

Dear Kay: Various studies have attempted to answer the question you raise. According to Dr. Godfrey P. Oakley Jr., of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, there does not appear to be any direct evidence that the use of a spermicide results in birth defects.

This finding, however, must be considered tentative since it is based on a relatively small number of cases. Nevertheless, if future studies reveal that there is a casual relationship between spermicide use and birth defects, it will probably be small when compared with the incidence of birth defects in the general population.

For Tom, Providence, R.I.: Blood stains found on the seat of underwear almost always indicate a hemorrhoid. Flecks of blood on the stool, however, are more suggestive of a polyp or possibly of cancer.

Proud printer forced to file bankruptcy

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Charles Hull was a success in the printing business for more than 25 years — until the economy caught up with him.

Because of business conditions that crimped his paying bills on time, he was forced to file this summer for financial reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy statutes.

Hull, a 50-year-old gritty New Englander, is determined to pay off his debts and stay in business. He says he spurned legal advice to file for bankruptcy and walk away.

Back in Meriden, Conn., Hull developed a family printing operation from an eight-man to a 35-man, $1 million-a-year business before selling his share in December 1978 and moving with his wife, Patricia, and two children to Tucson.

Two years later, after managing two printing concerns and getting the itch to be his own boss again, he bought a small printing firm — All Purpose Printing and Copying Inc., specializing in quick printing of letterheads, envelopes, business forms and the like. He put down $15,000 toward the $60,000 purchase price of the 2½-year-old Tucson company in December 1980.

The Hulls bought it just in time for the economy to go sour.

By June 1981, trouble blanketed their horizon:

—One good customer just stopped doing any printing.

—Other clients cut down on the size of their orders.

—Three customers skipped town with unpaid bills of almost $2,000.

Charles and Patricia Hull found themselves in a "struggle to pay our rent." Hull stopped bringing home any money; they began living off savings.

In August, Mrs. Hull invested the first of an eventual $14,000 of her own to help pay their single full-time employee and their debts.

In October, Hull voluntarily went to a cash-on-delivery basis with suppliers. "But the economy didn't catch up," Mrs. Hull says. The number of clients held steady but was not enough to cover expenses.

By last May, Mrs. Hull went to work at All-Purpose, without pay, replacing a part-timer. Three creditors were threatening lawsuits and, the Hulls say, refused attempts to negotiate monthly payments.

Hull says, "When I talked to my lawyer about this, he said, 'Charlie, why don't you just declare bankruptcy?'

"I've been in business too long... We pay our bills and the whole bit. We wanted to try to work something out," Hull says.

He says his attorney told him he would still have to pay his bills if he filed for Chapter 11 protection, "and I said, 'I was brought up in New England, and that's the way it is.'"

So the Hulls filed on July 30. They listed nearly $7,500 in debts to their three biggest creditors, and they also owe $45,000, the balance of the purchase price, over the next three years and four months.

Hull says he is confident he can survive. He says he felt a business upsurge in July and "it showed it in August," about 25 percent better than any month previously.

The Hulls say they are current on all bills except those in the Chapter 11 filing. They have chosen to pay cash for everything; they still live off savings. The business now pays the employee's salary and monthly bills.

The Bankruptcy Court will set up a three-year debt repayment schedule.

Although family trips prove highly rewarding now, business travel will not be worth its expense. A reconciliation is possible for those who have drifted away from their loved ones. Romance has its ups and downs but is generally rewarding. You find success right under your nose at place of employment. Clear up any potential problems before they get out of hand.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are now on the brink of a profitable breakthrough at work. Hiding your past may aid romance in the short run, but could destroy the relationship later on. Think things over.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You must now do something that is painful. Growth and eventual happiness will result. Avoid blaming others for your insecurities. Get rid of unused items that are cluttering your home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Honest communication solves a problem that has stood in the way of career progress. Let the boss know that you want to handle a project that someone else is about to undertake.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your imagination is a real help at work. Focus on solving a growing crisis. Romance begins to move in a different direction. You find yourself in new social circles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are scattering your forces now and getting nowhere. Reassess your goals. You profit from talking with someone older and more experienced. Get your feet on the ground!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Something that a member of the opposite sex does today makes him or her very appealing. Do not mix business with pleasure. Your hunches pay off handsomely at work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid unnecessary frustration. Do not invest your cash in get-rich-quick schemes. Although a social wingding is expensive, you could make some fascinating new contacts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A school reunion needs careful planning. A change in lifestyle could mean greater comfort. Take time out for a heart-to-heart talk with romantic partner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take the time to perform all work assignments to the best of your ability. A raise or promotion is in the offing. Loved one helps you find a mislaid letter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Loved one's change of heart fills you with joy. The two of you draw closer together. Emphasize mental pursuits. You may want to make plans to further your education.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A good day for reflection, meditation. Pause to consider the way in which you react to different situations. An important relationship may need rejuvenation. Take immediate steps.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): New responsibilities, money matters can be handled effectively. Do your best in anything you undertake.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.1 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q109643 ♡K72 ◇83 ♣75
The bidding has proceeded:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | 2 ♠ | Pass | 3 ♠ |
| Dble | Pass | ? | |

What action do you take?

A. — First of all, partner's double is for takeout, not penalties, so you must bid. Secondly, partner has doubled in the direct seat, so he is bidding from strength and is not just competing. Considering those facts, you have an excellent hand for him — a key honor in his suit and a reasonable six-card suit of your own. It would be craven to bid anything less than four spades.

Q.2 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 ♡4 ◇A8752 ♣AQ9432
The bidding has proceeded:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Pass | 1 NT | ? |

What action do you take?

A. — If partner has a fit for either of your minor suits, you can certainly compete for a partscore, and could even have a game. Bid two no trump. When common sense tells you that a no trump bid cannot have its natural meaning, it should be considered as "unusual" — i.e., a takeout for the lower unbid suits. If you had a hand strong enough to make two no trump, you would have doubled one no trump.

Q.3 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q9643 ♡AQ ◇Q432 ♣KQ
The bidding has proceeded:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Pass | 1 NT | Pass |
| ? | | | |

What action do you take?

A. — You have the maximum that the law allows for an opening bid of one of a suit and you could press on by showing your four-card diamond suit. But would that be wise? Even if partner has a maximum 10 points, game is extremely doubtful — you have no source of tricks. What you do have is a preponderance of strength in your short suits, which weighs in favor of a no trump contract, so we would pass and hope that partner can make one no trump.

Q.4 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ652 ♡7 ◇KJ92 ♣K63
The bidding has proceeded:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| 1 NT | Pass | ? | |

What do you bid now?

A. — You have an opening bid, and we have always preached that an opening bid facing an opener should produce game. That would suggest a jump to either three no trump or three diamonds. Here, however, partner has shown no great liking for your suit and you certainly don't fancy his, so it would be wise to proceed with caution. Our first choice is two diamonds, to try to elicit a spade preference. Next is two no trump. If partner passes either of those bids, we doubt that we will have missed a game.

Q.5 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q6 ♡7642 ◇63 ♣AK854
The bidding has proceeded:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | 1 ♠ | 2 ♡ | ? |

What action do you take?

A. — Partner must be short in hearts, but he didn't make a takeout double. Therefore, he may have no support for clubs or simply a limited overcall. But he is marked with a five-card or longer spade suit. In a competitive situation, we prefer raising partner's suit if we can, especially if his is a major and ours is a minor. On this auction, your holding of Q-x is adequate trump support. Bid two spades.

Q.6 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10763 ♡75 ◇986 ♣KQJ7
The bidding has proceeded:

| North | East | South |
|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Dble | ? |

What action do you take?

A. — Had East not interfered, we would have responded one spade. Now, however, we don't want to introduce such a weak suit freely. Instead, we would raise to two clubs. If nothing else, that should help partner to select a safe opening lead if the opponents buy the hand and he has to attack at the opening gun.

Watching for kids

This is the time of year when the safety of schoolchildren should be a subject on everyone's mind. Not so for some Midlanders we have observed racing through school crossing zones and failing to stop behind school buses displaying red flashing lights.

Wes Washam, director of transportation for Midland Independent School District, says for the most part drivers are safe around school buses, but there are isolated cases, particularly on Midland County roads, when drivers completely ignore the red flashing lights on a school bus stopped to pick up or let off children. That's an extremely dangerous situation, Washam noted.

Another major problem encountered almost every year is speeding through school crosswalks, even with crossing guards present at many locations around the city.

Lt. Herman Wicker, head of the Midland Police Department's traffic division, said the problem occurs every year. While most people are aware of the need to slow down in school crosswalks and on all streets around a school, "there are some that just don't care," he noted.

While there have been no more than a handful of accidents involving vehicles and shoolchildren in Midland in recent years, Lt. Wicker said, "the possibility is there for us to have those accidents. We've been lucky, I think."

State law indicates all motorists approaching a school bus displaying red flashing lights, must stop prior to reaching the bus. They must remain stopped until the bus disengages its lights or begins moving again, according to the Midland office of the Department of Public Safety. That law applies either inside or outside the city limits.

Speed limits are posted around all Midland schools with the times listed during the day when those limits are in effect. Lt. Wicker noted that motorists should be aware of the need to reduce speed around shcools and, particularly when driving through school crossing zones.

These laws are intended to protect the lives of schoolchildren in Midland. They should be obeyed at all times.

Competition for doctors

The Federal Trade Commission was created in 1914, during the trust-busting era, to maintain free and fair competition for big business. Should the FTC now regulate doctors?

The American Medical Association (AMA) is mounting a nearly $1 million lobbying campaign to pass special interest legislation, now pending in Congress, that would exempt the learned professions from the same free-competition rules that regulate big business.

AMA President William Rial, M.D., writes: "Congress should rein in the FTC and direct it to pursue the functions for which it was created — to prevent anti-competitive and deceptive practices by American business."

Wrong. American medicine is now a big business. Americans spent more than a quarter of a trillion dollars for health care last year — about 9.8 percent of the gross national product. Health care ranks with computers as an industry which must be monitored to preserve free competition.

Doctors are not regulating themselves: The price of health care, now largely uncompetitive, rose 15 percent last year, far higher than inflation. The more a medical procedure costs, the more the taxpayer pays for millions of Medicaid and Medicare patients. Limited federal and state revenues are causing services to be cut back.

The AMA argues that doctors and lawyers are professionals, their activities not comparable to business practices. Wrong again. Doctors and lawyers price their services and send out bills. Dentists, chiropractors and other health service providers advertise. Why shouldn't they meet standards of free and fair competition?

The only thing that will bring down the spiraling cost of health care and halt the shrinking of government-provided health services is for doctors, health maintenance institutions and hospitals to become competitive: to give the best care for the lowest price. Competition is the American way, not only of doing business, but of promoting excellence. Doctors excel in competition for quality of health care. There is no reason to doubt that they would excel in competition for price of health care.

Another View:
Hong Kong's future

Ever since the Hong Kong riots paralleling the upheavals of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution on the Chinese mainland during the late 1960s, the Western world has been wondering if Peking would exercise its option to reclaim the British crown colony when its 99-year lease expires in 1997. The other day, the Chinese, who always have claimed sovereignty and who could take over the defenseless territory in a matter of hours, reasserted their claim while agreeing to negotiations with the British over Hong Kong's future.

The occasion was an official visit by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who also agreed to negotiate but took pains to reassert Britain's "clear responsibility to the people of Hong Kong." She insisted a series of treaties signed with imperial China are still "valid under international law" — a point Peking has never conceded.

However these assertions may have been read elsewhere, the Hong Kong business community read them gloomily, and the Hong Kong stock market went into a steep decline. Most major real estate leases in this major commercial city run for 15 years, so business interests were only slightly pacified by conciliatory words from both sides about "the common aim of maintaining the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong." Like all businessmen, they would like a guarantee that the commercial base that has made Hong Kong will still be there 15 years hence.

There are important reasons why maintaining this status quo would be beneficial to China and to Britain, as well as to the mainly British business community that controls the colony's economy. Hong Kong not only is the world's third largest financial market, it is a major free port that handles much of China's foreign trade and earns huge sums in hard currencies for Peking controlled enterprises operating there.

In a broader sense, it is the city that, since the communist takeover of the mainland in 1949, has served as the principal listening post and point of contact between China and the outside world. Even with China's opening to the West of recent years, the colony performs an economic function that would be virtually impossible were it to be absorbed bodily into the People's Republic of China.

For these pragmatic reasons, a continuation of the colony's de facto status, albeit with formal Chinese sovereignty, would be a sensible solution. It also seems to be the most likely solution — so long, at least, as the Peking hierarchy continues to project a moderate face to the world outside. Both Thatcher and the Chinese leadership, in their different ways, can be obdurate. But in the end, a long transitional period guaranteeing Chinese sovereignty and British administration should persuade them that, with such enormous financial stakes, shaking hands with the devil is the next best thing to getting the better of him.

Blame for massacre is Begin's

I have written in this space many times about the atrocities committed by the Palestine Liberation Organization. I feel, therefore, compelled to comment on the massacre of Palestinians in Beirut.

Charley Reese

The deaths of those children and those women anger me as much as the deaths of Israeli women and children at the hands of the PLO.

But what Americans ought not to forget is that the massacre of unarmed Palestinians by Lebanese Christians will anger Israelis even more. It really is a remarkably righteous little nation and I am convinced that, ultimately, the government of Menachem Begin will fall as a result.

Not that the Israeli government committed the atrocities. It didn't. If it had known what was going to happen, it wouldn't have happened. But the Begin government has blundered and the Israeli people will hold it accountable.

It blundered by not realizing, when Bashir Gamayel was assassinated, that the game was up in terms of reuniting Lebanon and winning a peace treaty. It blundered by going into West Beirut where, despite its intentions, it is tarred by association with the killers of innocent people.

Israelis rightly consider that world opinion is mostly hypocritical. Ronald Reagan is acting hypocritically. I don't know why he's excited about the massacre of 1,500 people when we've ignored the deaths of over 100,000 in Lebanon since the beginning of the civil war.

But Israel's great strength during 34 years of strife has been its moral position. The average American has supported Israel because it's been in the right. If, in seeking immediate advantages in Lebanon, it loses it morality by associating and allying itself with people who are no different from the PLO, it will lose that moral position — and that support.

That is too high a price to pay for tactical advantages. The Israelis can't put Lebanon back together and neither can we. Reagan has blundered himself by sending U.S. Marines into Beirut.

In the first place, Lebanon is not our problem and whether it has peace or continued civil war is not our concern and is certainly not worth the life of a single Marine. The country has been gangsterized and probably ruined forever. It seems to me that Reagan and his advisors are letting the Arabs jerk us around. The Arabs are as clever as bankers in shifting their problems onto our shoulders.

I wouldn't spend one penny rebuilding Lebanon or dispatch one soldier to keep the peace there. We didn't tear it up and we didn't instigate its civil war. Besides, most of what's been torn up is owned by wealthy Arabs with healthier bank balances than the U.S. Treasury.

The Israelis for their own sake ought to get out and we, for our own sake, ought to get out and leave Lebanon to the Lebanese. If they wish to spend their time killing each other, that's their right.

Reagan sounded like a president out of Alice in Wonderland, talking about the Lebanese army and the Lebanese people as if they were different from the Lebanese militiamen who killed the Palestinians. The Lebanese army will be made up of the same people. The Lebanese people are the same Lebanese people in the 40 or more armed factions. All that's going to happen is that some of them will take off their militia hats and put on their Lebanese army hats but they will be the same people with the same grudges and long memories and quick trigger fingers.

And when they start killing we'll be in the same fix as the Begin government. We'll get the blame because we are there and it happened. Lebanese Christians have seven years of old scores to settle.

The Israelis will take the Begin government to task. We ought to take the Reagan government to task for injecting us into other people's private wars. And we ought to remember not to blame Israel, the nation, for the blunders of its prime minister anymore than we blame ourselves for the blunders of our politicians.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Arnett is 'the fox guarding the henhouse'

WASHINGTON — G. Ray Arnett is a towering hulk of a man, a rough-spoken Great White Hunter and sport fisherman of the Ernest Hemingway school of machismo. So, by the curious logic of the Reagan administration, he is now the assistant secretary of Interior for fish and wildlife — the man responsible for protecting endangered species.

Jack Anderson

A onetime oil-company geologist and life member of the National Rifle Association, Arnett was named head of the California Fish and Game Department by Gov. Ronald Reagan. In that capacity, he successfully kept the sea otter off the endangered-species list.

Now, as the federal arbiter of life and death for the animal kingdom, Arnett has allowed fellow bwanas to bring back their African leopard kills as trophies and has permitted manufacturers of jogging shoes to import Australian kangaroo hides. He also favors turning over the world's only winter refuge for whooping cranes to the tender mercies of the state of Texas, which wants to develop part of the rare birds' habitat for commercial purposes.

Arnett has turned his Interior job into a series of safaris. At government expense, he has gone fishing off New Zealand and in Virginia. He has been heard to boast of his on-the-job game expeditions.

Recently Arnett combined a lot of pleasure with a little business on a four-day junket to the Cayman Islands in the sunny Caribbean. The ostensible point of the trip was to see whether an import exemption might safely be granted for green sea turtles raised in captivity. The reptiles, now on the threatened-species list, are coveted for their meat and their shells.

Arnett's hosts were the Cayman Islands government and the proprietors of a green sea-turtle farm, and they set out to entertain the wildlife protector in grand style. Here's how the trip went:

Arnett and his party flew down on a Saturday and checked into a plush resort hotel. Sunday was spent scuba diving and fishing for marlin.

On Monday, the group went hunting. The quarry was supposed to be pigeons and doves. But upon their return, one member of the hunting party was heard to remark that he had "winged a couple of parrots." As it happens, the only such bird on the island is the Grand Cayman Amazon, which is on the endangered-species list.

On Tuesday, along with more scuba diving, Arnett finally squeezed in a tour of the turtle farm. The assistant secretary was reportedly impressed with the operation, though he had neglected to take a turtle expert along to make an appraisal.

The point at issue is whether the turtle farm is self-sufficient or still depends on wild turtles. The top scientist on the farm told my associate Peter Grant that, contrary to the turtle farmers' prediction five years ago, not a single turtle hatched from an egg laid in captivity has been able to produce offspring.

In short, there is a suspicion that if the turtle farmers were to be granted an exemption to the federal prohibition on importing turtle products, they would have to use wild turtles to satisfy their customers' demands. The Cayman Islands entrepreneurs obviously hoped for Arnett's support in their petition for an exemption.

The turtle question will be the subject of a hearing today before the House wildlife subcommittee, whose chairman, Rep. John Breaux, D-La., joined the Arnett expedition.

The rugged Arnett is expected to endorse the turtle farmers' exemption request, leaving the question: Where next for the peripatetic assistant Interior secretary? Labrador at baby-seal clubbing time?

Footnote: Arnett refuses to talk to reporters "as a matter of principle." His press spokesman did not respond to several inquiries.

A WRITER IN CHAINS: The name Adem Demaci means nothing to most Americans. But to Yugoslavia's 1.75 million Albanian minority, Demaci is a living legend. And to the communist government of Yugoslavia, he is so dangerously eloquent that he must be silenced behind prison walls.

Born 46 years ago in Kosovo, where most of the Albanian minority lives, Demaci gained recognition at 22 with his first novel, "The Serpents of Blood." A year later, however, the young Marxist intellectual was arrested and sentenced to three years in prison for his Albanian nationalist fervor.

Released in 1962, Demaci stubbornly continued his agitation for greater Albanian autonomy in Yugoslavia. Rearrested, he was sentenced to 15 years. He was released 10 years later, but was at liberty for a year or less before being arrested again. He drew another 15-year sentence, which still has eight years to run.

Demaci's chief crime has been to demand a referendum in the Albanian area of Yugoslavia to decide whether it should become part of Albania. Authorities in Belgrade don't want to risk a plebiscite. They claim that Demaci has done more than just write and speak out for Albanian rights; they say he has organized groups trying to overthrow the Yugoslav government.

Fellow prisoners have smuggled out reports that have enshrined Demaci in the hearts of his countrymen. Cut off from food packages, he politely refused offers to share the meager rations of his fellow inmates — but insisted on parceling out some fresh fruit that was finally allowed him.

When he heard that his wife and children were subject to harassment because of him, the poet-novelist insisted on a divorce.

Demaci's picture was carried in anti-government demonstrations in Kosovo recently. Clearly, he represents a threat to the Yugoslav government wherever he is. But apparently the authorities have decided he is less dangerous behind bars.

INSIDE REPORT:

Lehrman group says no to Reagan's help

WASHINGTON — Contrary to denials from the White House, the decision that President Reagan will not come to New York to boost Lewis Lehrman's Republican campaign for governor was made by the Lehrman high command.

Rowland Evans

The key topic of the post-primary Lehrman strategy session was how to combat efforts by Lt. Gov. Mario Cuomo, surprise winner of the Democratic primary over New York City Mayor Ed Koch, to tie Reaganomics to Lehrman. With unemployment rising and the president's popularity dropping in New York, it was decided that a flying visit by Reagan was not needed.

Robert Novak

The cover story was for both the White House and the Lehrman campaign to say the decision was made by the president's men. When White House chief of staff James Baker went to New York last week to raise funds for Lehrman (a personal friend of long standing), he declared Reagan would not be coming to New York to campaign in the governor's race because Lehrman can win without his help.

GLENN AND THE GAYS

The biggest Democrat who did not officially endorse the Sept. 29 fund-raising dinner for the homosexual movement at Manhattan's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel was Sen. John Glenn, adding more doubts about his ability to amass a coalition for the 1984 presidential nomination.

Glenn's principal rival for second place in the early running, former vice president Walter F. Mondale, was the gay rights dinner's keynote speaker. The front-runner, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, endorsed the dinner, as did Sen. Alan Cranston. The endorsers included such big-name non-presidential candidates as Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, Mayor Kevin White of Boston, Mayor Donald Fraser of Minneapolis and Mayor Andrew Young of Atlanta.

Glenn aide William White told us there was no record that the senator's endorsement had been requested, but suggested the answer might have been no. Although the homosexual movement now seems part of the Democratic coalition, White said Glenn was against lending his name to "single-issue" causes.

WHO'S GOP LEADER?

As the mid-term election campaign nears its climax, a peculiar struggle is being fought out over whether Richard Richards will be permitted to serve out his four-year term as Republican national chairman.

Senior White House staffers have decreed that whatever the outcome Nov. 2, Richards must go and be replaced by the more dynamic Secretary of Transportation Drew Lewis. But Richards is fighting hard for his job and may save it, as he did under similar White House assault last year. Unless President Reagan specifically asks Richards to leave, there is no sign he will quit.

Lewis says he has no desire for the national chairmanship but would accept it if asked by the president. Presidential chief of staff James Baker is believed to want Lewis' strong hand at the national committee whether or not Reagan seeks reelection. If Reagan does not run, Lewis as national chairman would be a prime choice to be running mate on a ticket headed by Vice President George Bush.

FEUDING GOP SENATORS

With the quiet blessing of the White House, Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana is challenging anti-Reagan Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon for the Senate Republican campaign chairmanship — a move hastened by Packwood's own tactics.

Lugar had been planning the race for some time but did not want to announce it until after his expected reelection to the Senate Nov. 2. So, when Packwood telephoned Lugar to ask his support for reelection to a third term as campaign committee chairman (as he had on his previous two terms), Lugar said he was not quite ready.

Accordingly, Lugar was not at all pleased when word came back from several fellow senators that Packwood was telling them that Lugar would not run. He immediately sent out a letter to all Republicans urging them to "withhold committing yourself to any candidate" until after Nov. 2. President Reagan's men at the White House could hardly constrain themselves from cheering.

Chicago policeman Albert Fringo of the 23rd District sorts through envelopes which contain Tylenol bottles turned into the police by area residents in an effort to remove all of the Tylenol from circulation in the Chicago area. Seven people have been killed by the pills contaminated with cyanide.

Cyanide killer described as compulsive

CHICAGO (AP) — A compulsive personality who enjoys killing and relishes the publicity he is receiving is responsible for the seven deaths from cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol, according to a psychiatrist who has worked with police in other murder cases.

"He's probably at home right now, enjoying the publicity, reading all the newspapers and watching the television accounts," said Dr. Robert Reifman, Director of the Cook County Psychiatric Institute. He added that the killer might be keeping a file of news clippings on the case.

Reifman has participated in more than 1,000 criminal cases over the past 17 years, including the trial of mass-murderer John Wayne Gacy.

"This person obviously gets a great deal of pleasure from killing," Reifman theorized Sunday. "Another motive, I suspect, is the fact that he's been able to terrorize us all.

"I suspect he is quite the loner, probably male, probably single and probably above-average intelligence because this required some planning," Reifman said.

Potassium cyanide readily available

CHICAGO (AP) — It's one of the most poisonous chemicals known, but it's readily accessible and simple enough that a bright undergraduate could make it in a college laboratory.

Known as potassium cyanide, the deadly compound has been found in Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules in the Chicago area and has claimed the lives of seven people. Potassium cyanide is only one of many compounds containing cyanide. Like another common cyanide compound, sodium cyanide, potassium cyanide is used as an insecticide and in the manufacture of pigments and metals.

Most cyanide compounds are deadly poisons.

An investigation has led authorities to believe that a single killer "went around the Chicago area salting the store shelves" with Tylenol capsules loaded with potassium cyanide, Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner said Sunday.

Experts say it may not be easy to find out where the killer got his supply of the poison.

Although potassium cyanide isn't available over the counter in any stores, officials say a killer could easily obtain potassium cyanide from a variety of sources because the compound is used extensively in many industries.

"It's widely used in the chemical manufacturing industry to make plastics and it has very wide uses in commerce," said chemistry professor Norman Nachtrieb of the University of Chicago. "Its availabilty is such that one could obtain it with relative ease."

Dr. John Spikes, chief toxicologist for the Illinois Public Health Department, said other industries that use potassium cyanide include photography, metal plating, galvanizing and metallurgy.

"If you work in one of those factories (that uses cyanide), you have tons of it available to you," Spikes said.

Nachtrieb said the compound, whose chemical symbol is KCN, is also used extensively in the steel industry for electroplating and a process known as case-hardening, which provides certain steel products with a durable coating.

Nachtrieb and a university colleague, professor Edward Anders, said the chemical usually is obtained for industrial and laboratory purposes from chemical supply houses. However, they added that those outlets usually deal with company or school purchasing departments and probably would become suspicious if an individual tried to purchase a quantity of the compound.

"It's a very common chemical," Anders said. "I have, at one time, used very small quantities of it in a freshman chemistry experiment."

Both chemists said the compound is rarely used on the undergraduate level although they acknowledged it is available in the chemistry department's storeroom and is accessible to the university's graduate students and faculty members.

"At the graduate level, it is accessible," Anders said. "In fact, a smart undergrad could start with chemicals that are freely available and he could make potassium cyanide."

The deadly compound, which is grayish in color and smells like almonds, also is essentially free of any form of government regulation, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Spokesman Bill Grigg said that because the chemical is neither a food nor a drug, the FDA has no jurisdiction over its use or shipment. He added that he was not aware of any other federal agency that regulates use of cyanide, except for certain cyanide-containing pesticides regulated by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Although Fahner, who is heading the investigation into the cyanide deaths, said potassium cyanide was available in high school chemistry laboratories, the two chemists disagreed.

"I doubt whether high school labs have potassium cyanide on hand," Anders said. "Even most undergraduate experiments have been redesigned to eliminate dangerous chemicals."

"It's a very poisonous chemical," Anders said. "And it's well known that it is a poison. Any responsible college keeps it under lock and key."

Tampered Tylenol found prior to deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — Deputies reported finding 24 bottles of Tylenol — two of them open — strewn across a suburban motel parking lot two days before the pain reliever was linked to a string of cyanide deaths.

The two officers on Tuesday found the bottles "spread all over" the pavement of a motel lot in Elgin, about 40 miles northwest of Chicago, Kane County Deputy Sheriff Martin Cole said in a telephone interview Sunday.

"It was evident they (the capsules) were tampered with," said Cole, who relayed questions and answers to one of the officers by telephone. "Some of the capsules were empty. They had no powder in them. They assumed from that there evidently was something going on with drugs."

Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner, heading a team of state, local and federal authorities investigating the seven cyanide deaths, said the incident is one of several "very substantial" leads being pursued in the case.

Both county officers handled the capsules, but left them in the parking lot, Cole said, and a short time later the two officers experienced dizziness, nausea and vomiting.

The officers did not notice if the capsules were Extra-Strength Tylenol or regular Tylenol, Cole said. Only capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol filled with cyanide have been implicated in the string of deaths.

One of the two officers became so violently ill that he was relieved from his shift, and the second officer also became ill and has not returned to work for five days, Cole said.

The samples were sent to the Illinois Department of Public Health for analysis, and officials expected the results of laboratory tests today to learn if the capsules the two officers found contained cyanide.

Neither officer could be directly reached Sunday for comment. One was out on patrol.

The symptoms reported by the officers are consistent with cyanide poisoning, said Dr. Barry Rumack of the Rocky Mountain Poison Control Center in Denver.

But other substances could have caused the illness, such as sodium nitrite and some morphine-based narcotics, such as heroin, he said.

Sheriff's deputies Al Swanson and Joseph Chavez happened on the boxes at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday, on their way to breakfast, Cole said.

They reported the incident to investigators after hearing the news of the cyanide poisonings on Thursday, he said.

Kitty Phelps, left, an anorexic, and her fiance, Steve Simon, who founded a self-help group, 'Help Anorexics.'

Anorexic's fiance starts 'Help Anorexics' groups

By CAROLYN COIL
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — The smallest bite of food never crosses Kitty Phelps' lips without first having been meticulously recorded — the time of day it is eaten and the number of calories it contains.

Even if she's just weighed herself, she can't pass a scale without stepping on it and checking her weight — to the ounce.

Kitty is on a perpetual diet. She never believes she is thin enough, although at 92 pounds she looks almost as if she recently escaped from a concentration camp. She suffers from anorexia nervosa, a complex eating disorder that is characterized by self-starvation.

Although it is a hot afternoon, Kitty, who is sitting on a bench in a park, shivers as she talks about her obsession with being thin. She tucks a wool blanket tightly around her legs and buttons her sweater up to her neck. Kitty is cold because her body has little fat to insulate her from the warm breeze that gently ruffles her blonde hair.

"I understand the problem completely," says Kitty, who reads every book and article on anorexia nervosa that she's able to find. "I love food, but I can't eat it. I might take a little, tiny bite, though."

THIS DAY, HOWEVER, she is angry with herself for having eaten more than her normal few hundred calories a day. "I ate a piece of chicken, macaroni and cheese and four cupcakes. It put two pounds on me."

But Kitty won't wait for the added weight to come off naturally through rigorous dieting; she'll resort to using diuretics and laxatives.

"If I eat, I take 20 to 40 laxative tablets," she says. To Kitty there is nothing abnormal about overusing laxatives as a means of weight control. It's just part of her diet routine.

But for Steve Simon, her fiance, it's difficult to live with. "It's hard to watch her take laxatives. I used to hit the wall with my fist to get my anger out."

His frustration led him to search for an educational and support group for families and friends of victims of anorexia nervosa. When he couldn't find one, he started Help Anorexics in April 1981 in nearby Culver City. Soon it was expanded to incude a self-help group for the victims themselves.

Although most anorexics are in their teens, Kitty has a 21-year-old son. According to Steve, a half-million Americans are anorexic. The mortality rate for the disorder, which is said to be epidemic among teen-age girls, is between 15 and 21 percent, he says.

"THERE'S MORE TO ANOREXIA than just self-starvation; it's a deep psychological problem, often precipitated by stress," he says, adding that while families, therapists and support groups can help the anorexic, they're not the solution.

"People have to help themselves. It (recovery) depends on how bad they want to overcome it," says Steve. "You can't force them to eat; you can only encourage them. The more you force them, the more they rebel."

He says that while some people will recover completely, others will lead a borderline existence and some will die.

Some anorexics are concerned that if they recover completely, they will lose the special attention they get, he says.

"They have a great way of being able to manipulate and to control people and situations," says Steve, who, as a recovered mental patient, had to learn to face up to reality himself.

"I was always wanting things but wasn't willing to work toward them. I would expect them to be handed to me. Then I realized that to obtain certain things in life, I'd have to work for them."

Steve became involved in ~~the~~ mental health field, first as a program director in a psychiatric board-and-care home and then as a lobbyist for private mental health. As a consultant, he helped families find appropriate care for mentally ill persons by guiding them through the system, he says. Today he is on the board of directors for the Mental Health Association of Los Angeles.

"MY GOAL NOW is to get the Los Angeles County group of Help Anorexia stabilized and self-sufficient," he says. Later he'll think about the possibility of either branching out or helping other people get similar groups started.

Steve says in many cases of anorexia one of the victim's parents often is overly concerned about eating patterns and may be overweight.

"I have a sister who is a compulsive overeater," says Kitty. "My whole family is very weight-conscious. My whole life I heard diet, diet, diet."

Kitty traces her anorexic behavior back to when she was 16 and crash dieted to fit into a borrowed dress to wear to a prom. Once she lost the 10 pounds needed to make the dress fit, however, her weight stayed at 100 pounds for several years.

Her first real anorexic episode began after she'd ended a bad romantic relationship and had failed at suicide.

"When I became anorexic, nobody knew it. I kept it concealed by wearing loose, baggy clothes. I got thin for myself," she says.

Later, she was married and ate normally for about three years, including while she was pregnant with her son. Then she was divorced and became anorexic again. Her latest episode began about two years ago, soon after she became engaged to Steve.

WHEN STEVE MET KITTY seven years ago, he never guessed she was anorexic. He says she weighed 127 pounds, was a nursing student and was very outgoing. Then a conflict developed between her and one of her instructors and she began to feel insecure about herself and her abilities.

"She expressed to me that if she could just lose weight and weigh 110 pounds, she would feel accepted again," says Steve. He agreed with her plans to diet, as long as she was under a doctor's care. So Kitty began her diet and the pounds slowly slipped off — two to three pounds a month.

But she became obsessed with dieting, says Steve. He watched helplessly as Kitty continued to lose more and more weight, always telling him that she would be thin enough when she lost just a few more pounds.

In September of 1981, when her weight dropped to 75 pounds, she was near death and had to be hospitalized, Steve says. She was fed intravenously, given protein drinks and had private duty nurses so she couldn't throw her food away or use laxatives.

Ounce by ounce, her weight crept up to 100 pounds and she was released from the hospital.

In April, Steve reported Kitty's progress in a newsletter. "She weighs 98 pounds and states that her goal weight is 95 pounds. Will she stop?"

The answer seems to be a definite "No."

KITTY DOENS'T BELIEVE she is thin enough yet, and although she can recognize that other anorexics are too thin, she can't see herself as others do. This distorted self-image is typical of anorexics, says Steve.

In July, Kitty said, "I don't really feel thin at 92, not until I get down to 86. It makes me feel so superior that with all the fat people in the world, I'm thin."

But three weeks later, Kitty's weight is just a little over 84 pounds. She claims it just came off, that she didn't try to lose, says Steve.

"I'm real good unless I stand up, then I feel as if I will faint," says Kitty cheerfully, adding, "My blood pressure is 86 over 44."

STEVE SAYS she tells him she doesn't feel hungry, a common statement among anorexics.

"When she gets like this, she's in other hands. She has trouble functioning, she sees black in front of her eyes, her heartbeat goes crazy, her whole system is heading toward the critical state. This is always how it goes when she's heading for hospitalization."

Woman, husband team form town's sanitation force

By GWYNETH C. JONES

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Mary Ann Brooks didn't like the job she had, so she joined her husband in his — the garbage route in this mountain resort community.

Now, she says, she's having a good time, meeting "lots of wonderful people," and becoming a bit of a celebrity since she may be the only woman sanitation worker in New Mexico.

She has been working for the village since the end of May, joining her husband, Tom, on the job.

"We are the sanitation department for Ruidoso Downs," they say.

Brooks had worked for the village about two months when his assistant quit, and he was left to do the garbage collection for the 1,000-plus residents.

His wife was working as a nurse's aide, and "I thought I just couldn't take that much longer," she said.

So one day she suggested Brooks "ask the mayor if I couldn't do the job." She was hired the same day.

Now she and her husband make the daily rounds, with Mrs. Brooks hanging onto the back of the truck and signaling him when to stop for trash pickups.

They both sling the heavy trash cans — some weighing 50 to 75 pounds — up to the back of the truck for emptying.

"If they're really heavy, he helps me," Mrs. Brooks says. "We work as a team."

Getting to work together and having their time off together is one of the many benefits Mrs. Brooks sees in the job.

And once on the job, "we're our own bosses," she said. "We know what we have to do and we do it."

Besides, she added, "It's good exercise. I like being out in the fresh air, and I've met so many nice people."

Brazil pushes campaign for breast-feeding

By BRYNA BRENNAN
AP Writer

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — The sign on the Health Ministry wall says that breast-feeding is "an act of love." The statistics in the books show that it could be a matter of survival.

Official figures put the infant mortality rate in the world's fifth largest country at 88 per 1,000, making it the highest in South America and nearly seven times more than in the United States. People inside Brazil's Health Ministry say the real number here is probably twice that amount.

A study released last year by the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics said 40 percent of the children who make up about half of the population of 125 million suffer from malnutrition.

One of the ways Brazil is attempting to tackle the staggering statistics is to encourage mothers to return to breast-feeding.

With the help of UNICEF, the country embarked on a massive advertising campaign a year and a half ago to inform people of the benefits of breast-feeding over milk substitutes. The 45-day campaign included television and radio messages, and advertisements on lottery tickets, utility bills and bank statements.

The results have not been officially tallied, but Gerson da Cunha of UNICEF says it has been "immensely successful."

"People all tell us it's working," says Yolanda Heloisa de Souza of the Health Ministry.

DEAR ABBY

Man wants children, second 'wife'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a married man, age 31. My wife, now 30, is totally disabled due to two heart attacks. Since age 25, she has been very sickly and cannot have children. Our sex life has been reduced to never. I am not complaining, Abby. I don't ask anything of her that she cannot do.

But Abby, I am the only grandson on my father's side of the family, and it is up to me to carry on the family name.

Under mutual agreement with my wife, I am looking for a permanent wife-mother and partner to be a member of this family — to have my kids for me. I don't mean anything kinky or weird, Abby. I mean I want a mother for my kids who will live in our home.

Where can I find a woman who would be interested in this kind of arrangement? What are the legal ramifications of me doing something like this? Kids mean so much to me, and I want some of my own before I get much older. — G. IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR G.: You could investigate the possibility of having a surrogate mother artificially impregnated with your sperm to bear your child (or children), but you cannot take a woman into your home to be a "wife-mother-partner" and raise your kids, assuming you could find one who is willing. A man is legally entitled to only one wife at a time, and you already have your quota.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend was a virgin when I met him. I wasn't, and now he's trying to make me feel guilty. We are both the same age (20), but I am much more mature than he is.

He keeps asking me questions about the guys I've been with before him. He wants to know who how many, how many times and all the details. If I don't tell him, he gets mad and calls me names. There really weren't all that many (only six), but according to him I was practically a prostitute.

He knows I love him. I really do, and it shouldn't matter to him how many guys I had because I didn't know him at the time.

Now he tells me he wants to even the score before he marries me. Should I stay engaged to him or tell him to buzz off? — THIRD DEGREE IN LAUDERDALE

DEAR THIRD: Tell him to buzz off. He has a lot of growing up to do.

DEAR ABBY: "Confused in Pasadena" asked, "What is the correct name for the heaviest meal of the day if it is served at noon? And what would you call the lightest meal of the day if it is served at night?"

You replied: "'Dinner' is the principal meal of the day. 'Lunch' is a light meal — usually eaten at noon. And 'supper' is the evening meal when dinner is taken at noon.

"If I'm in error, I'll eat my Webster's dictionary for 'supper,' because I've already had 'dinner.'"

Abby, where I grew up, we ate dinner at noon, supper at night, and lunch was what we carried to school or work in tin boxes. — SUPPER LOVER IN OMAHA

Energy saving advice given

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — To help families find relief from rising energy costs, resource management specialists with the Oklahoma State University Cooperative Extension Service, Dr. Bonnie Braun and Sue Williams, are directing an energy conservation information project in Oklahoma.

"Since many rural homes are poorly weatherized and insulated, utility bills are larger than necessary," says Mrs. Braun.

She notes that the problem is nationwide, since nearly half of America's 4 million substandard housing units are in rural areas.

The project is helping to increase home comfort while decreasing energy use. Computerized energy audits are used to help determine the most cost-effective ways for residents to save energy.

"Project aides teach families ways to save energy. They also encourage families to install inexpensive conservation devices and to change energy usage habits," says Mrs. Williams.

With the improved energy efficiency of houses, homeowners use 30 to 50 percent less energy, she says.

Program teaches how to protect against thieves

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

"A lot depends on the question-and-answer period and how much the people get involved," said sheriff's department investigator Terry Luck in outlining the department's revitalized Crime Prevention Program. "But it usually takes about two hours."

Bryan Cook

Luck, along with Sgt. Mike Love and Lt. Bryan Cook, head up the program and recently took it to Greenwood, where some 55 residents of that rural community learned how to shield themselves from the growing number of criminals who prey on county residents because rural areas afford less chance of detection and apprehension than do urban areas.

Through slides and films — with one film narrated by bad-guy character actor Jack Elam — that show the difference between urban and rural crime, the program teaches county residents and business people what they can do to protect themselves from burglaries and thefts.

Included in the list of protective measures are security locks, crime watch groups and the marking of personal property with identification numbers so it can be returned if it ever turns up on the state computer's file of recovered goods.

"Many of the recovered items we've got in the vault right now will have to be sold at public auction because they're not marked so ownership can be verified." said Luck.

In addition to the normal household loot taken by rural thieves, county residents also have things like farm equipment, gas pumps and tools to protect in outlying areas where — in the past, at least — people have felt more relaxed about leaving their doors unlocked and their machinery unsecured.

One slide presentation in the crime prevention program is entitled, "Identification of Machinery." It demonstrates the importance of recording serial numbers on equipment that can easily be taken across state lines and sold the day after it's stolen.

The program also teaches people what to do in case their homes are burglarized. "A lot of people will clean up the house before they call us so we won't see the mess left behind," said Sheriff's Capt. Pat Fuller. "All that does is destroy evidence.

"We work pretty much hand-in-glove with the police department's Crime Prevention Unit. And just as in the city, suspicious people or vehicles need to be reported. Even if it turns out to be nothing, we may have passed a potential burglar who might spot (our marked cars) and be a little more leery about operating in that area.

"The 'honest' citizen is the major market for stolen property. This perpetuates crime, keeps the cycle going and drives up insurance premiums.

"The only way burglars can make money is to sell the stolen items. Anytime people are offered something at cut-rate prices, they need to be suspicious. They might be buying stolen property."

With the rural business and residential population nearly doubling since 1978, county crime has shot up. For instance, there were 264 burglaries reported to the sheriff's department in 1979. During the first nine months of this year, however, there have been 652 burglary complaints.

Adding to the problem is the fact that county law enforcement manpower allotments haven't kept pace with the increased crime rate. In 1979, the sheriff's department had 32 officers. The current staff — excluding clerical help — numbers 45, and 17 of them work in the jail.

One way of combating the manpower shortage is to try and prevent as many thefts and burglaries as possible. And the best way of accomplishing that task is to alert people to the role they can play in crime prevention.

Two or three Crime Prevention Programs are tentatively scheduled for presentation this month. The dates and places will be announced later. The programs are free and can be set up for businesses as well.

A fringe benefit of the programs is that they bring people together and can serve as the start of a neighborhood crime watch group.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the sheriff's department at 682-9774.

Border businessmen reminded of Depression

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A downturn in business along the Texas-Mexico border, estimated at about 75 percent, is reminiscent of the Great Depression, merchants who have relied on the faltering peso say.

"No business has not been affected," said Conrado Cruz, executive vice president of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce. "Retail sales are off from 50 to 100 percent. Housing starts are at a standstill, and housing sales have dropped sharply."

Border businessmen said their revenues have already declined, despite an announcement by the Mexican government late Friday that it would relax currency controls.

Mexico devalued the peso in August for the second time and established currency controls Sept. 1 when it nationalized the banks. But it now wants to allow many border Mexican industries to have dollar accounts, which are forbidden in the rest of the country.

"The dependence on the Mexican economy really knocked the pants off a lot of folks here," said Laredo real estate agent Ed Richter. "A project with 50,000 square feet of planned space halted. A condominium project was going full boom in August with 48 of its 50 units sold on paper. When all this happened, the developer found himself with only four units sold.

"The 1930s depression didn't hit us this bad," Richter told The Dallas Morning News.

U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, has estimated that Texas border business is off 75 percent as a result of the troubled Mexican economy.

Richter predicts Mexicans account for 70 percent of the property sales in Laredo and South Padre Island developer Richard Franke estimated 50 percent of the condominium sales there over the last few years have been to Mexicans.

"With the peso devaluation in August, condo sales began hurting," said Maria Gonzalez, executive director of the South Padre Island Chamber of Commerce. "With the currency controls in September, Mexican nationals without U.S. bank accounts couldn't get their money out to make mortgage payments."

Michael Portman, a broker with A.G. Edwards and Sons in Laredo, said the currency restrictions are crippling the border area.

"We're seeing a lot of Mexican nationals simply walking away from their commitments," he said. "These are mainly promises on unbuilt properties and all kinds of creative financing on other property. The Mexicans simply can't get their funds out of Mexico to make payments."

Mexico has announced a plan to help Mexicans make payments on property outside Mexico, provided the the owners agree to sell the property and return the earnings to Mexico.

But observers on this side of the border are perplexed about the plan and how it can be enforced.

"Frankly, I don't see how this plan to require the sale of foreign-owned property will work, said Mrs. Gonzalez. "There's no way American banks can be forced to give out that kind of information."

Portman said the confusion from Mexico's efforts to stabilize its economy will only hurry the flight of pesos.

"What they've done is damage their credibiity. And that's all a currency really is," said Portman.

Draft resister willing to be jailed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Convicted draft resister Benjamin Sasway, up for sentencing today, says he's "ready and willing" to spend the next five years behind bars.

Sasway, 21, has been imprisoned since Aug. 26, when a jury found him guilty of failing to register for the draft. He could be sentenced to a five-year prison term and fined $10,000 if U.S. District Judge Gordon Thompson Jr. imposes the maximum penalty.

About 300 anti-draft protesters rallied in support of Sasway in a candlelight vigil Sunday night in front of the federal Metropolitan Correctional Center, where Sasway was being held.

Among those at the rally were Sasway's parents, Dolores and Joseph Sasway, and David Harris, whose stand against the draft during the Vietnam War resulted in his imprisonment during the 1960s.

A message tape-recorded by Sasway in his prison cell was played for the crowd.

"I have been in jail a month now and my spirits are high," Sasway, of Vista, said on the tape Sunday. "I'm optimistic about tommorrow's outcome. I still cannot in clear conscience register for the draft and I am ready and willing to spend the next five years here if that's what I have to do.

"Being locked up is not pleasant," he said. "But it is bearable, especially when I am doing something that must be done."

Sasway was the second man convicted of failure to register with the Selective Service System since the Vietnam War. Enten Eller was convicted Aug. 16 in Roanoke, Va. He was placed on three years' probation and given 90 days to register or face prison.

A federal probation officer's pre-sentence evaluation of Sasway described the political science and philsophy student as intelligent and sincere with high moral standards, but concluded he was politically naive.

The evaluation, which was forwarded to Thompson, contained several sentencing alternatives, including one in which Sasway would have served 120 days at a halfway house and then been placed on five years' probation.

In a telephone interview last week from the prison, Sasway said his stand against the draft was unshaken. "The more I read in the papers and see what's going on in the world, the more resolute I become," he said.

Sasway, who attended Humboldt State University in Northern California, has insisted all along he's not a pacifist. He said he opposed the draft because it was subject to the capricious whim of government.

"When they come into my home and tell me to start packing because I'm going to war whenever they think it's right, that's where I draw the line," Sasway has said.

Selective Service System officials estimate 8.6 million men born between 1960-64 have registered for the standby military draft since it was revived by former President Jimmy Carter in 1980. They say about 700,000 others have not registered.

When you decide to lose weight,
COMPARE!

There are hundreds of ways to lose weight. Diet Center suggests that before you start any reducing program, you compare. Consult your doctor. Talk to people who have been on the programs you are considering. Ask yourself if this is a plan you can live with, one that will enable you to keep weight off once you have lost it. If you will do this, we are confident that you will select Diet Center.
The following is a basic introduction to the Diet Center Program.

| we don't: | we do: |
|---|---|
| Use shots or drugs to stimulate weight loss. This would not conform to our totally natural approach. | Employ a 100% natural food supplement that stabilizes the blood sugar level and eliminates hunger. |
| Use prepackaged foods. We know that in order to maintain your weight loss, you must learn to plan your own meals. | Provide a comprehensive education in food selection and preparation techniques from natural sources. |
| Rely upon ketosis or any other unhealthful, physical state to promote weight loss. | Provide 100% of the daily nutrient requirements as outlined by the U.S. RDA and the 7 U.S. Dietary goals. |
| Make unrealistic claims as to the speed or effectiveness of our weight-loss program. | Achieve an average weight loss of 17 to 25 pounds in 6 weeks, a rate that can be sustained as needed. |
| Use computers or group therapy to overcome the uniquely personal problem of excess weight. | Meet daily, in private, with each dieter to determine and solve individual problems and chart progress. |
| Employ celebrities to present Diet Center in our advertising messages. | Publish unsolicited testimonials from real people who have overcome real weight problems at Diet Center. |
| Charge for any additional services beyond our basic reducing phase of the program. | Provide weekly classes in nutrition and behavior modification and a lifetime maintenance program, free of charge. |
| Require contracts or charge more than a fair price for the honest service that is rendered. | Encourage dieters to remain on the program only as long as they feel they are receiving their money's worth. |
| Employ high-pressure sales tactics to "sign you up" on our program. When you are ready, we are ready. | Offer a free, introductory consultation to supply you with the information needed to make your own decision. |

P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702

Is there any truth to the story that is going around that the "Joseph W. Barr" one dollar bills are valuable? If so, how valuable are they? Some say he stayed secretary of the treasury only a short while and only signed a few of these one dollar bills and that is why they are so valuable. — "Bo-10"

ANSWER: Lawrence L. Culver with Tejas Coin and Stamp Co. says that the Joseph W. Barr bills are not valuable and they are not scarce. Although Barr was secretary of the treasury only six or seven months, his signature was used on the notes several years.

Is there anyone (Boy Scouts — whatever) that picks up newspapers for recycling? I started saving them when a former employee wanted them for the youth of her church. Now I have a bunch with no way to take them anywhere. — L.M.

ATTENTION COLLECTORS OF NEWSPAPERS, ETC., FOR SALE AND RECYCLING: Answer Line has received many questions about a facility in the Midland area which will purchase newspapers for recycling. A check was made with Twig Enterprises, Inc., a company which is the only such facility now in the area which does this type of business. The company burned down several months ago, but, according to Wayne Grainger with Twig Enterprises, the company will be able to start accepting papers within the next couple of weeks. That address is 2781 Marcos St., telephone 362-4956, Odessa.

My first question is: Is the Civic Center on Wall Street, one block west of the Post Office, publicly owned and supported by tax money?

Question number two: Why is there a pyramid on the roof of that Civic Center Building? — E.D.

ANSWER: The Midland Center is owned and financed by the city of Midland. Expenses of the center are the responsibility of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, which in turn is reimbursed by the city.

That pyramid-looking structure on the top of the building is a different type of skylight, which is located above the stairway in the center.

What can be done about the water which is always standing on Wadley Street and also on North A Street? In addition to this being a waste of water, it is ruining the streets. When I lived in Denver, the persons who allowed water to run onto city streets were fined. It seems to be mostly apartment complexes on these streets which are the offenders. — O.F.

ANSWER: Christie Armentrout, public information officer with the city of Midland, reports that code enforcement officers of the city have visited with the managers of the apartment complexes you mentioned and they are aware of the problem and are making efforts to do something about it.

Ms. Armentrout says there is a definite relationship between the standing water and the chuckholes which result. The city can repair potholes, but the patch will not last if water runs onto the street shortly after the repair.

She also notes that the water which stands on Wadley comes from the apartments, not the city water system.

Apartment owners in the area have the problem of children stealing sprinkler heads and turning the water on. They are discussing plans to water complex lawns more often with less pressure in an attempt not to oversaturate the ground.

Amin Gemayel asks prime minister to stay

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Amin Gemayel today asked Shafik Wazzan, who served as prime minister under former President Elias Sarkis, to take up the same post and form a new government, state radio reported.

Wazzan said he would accept the offer.

"Once again I am given the honor of serving my country especially at such a critical stage," Wazzan said in an announcement at the Baabda presidential palace where he met with Gemayel and Parliament speaker Kamel Assad.

"His excellency President Amin Gemayel has given me the task of forming a new government and I have accepted with thanks this trust," he said.

Diplomacy, politics change in 24 years

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — In another era, another Republican president sent American Marines into troubled Lebanon — and their commanding officer announced that his combat units would have atomic weapons available. On the current mission to Lebanon, the Marines are carrying their automatic rifles unloaded, with ammunition clips ready to slam into the weapons if necessary.

An Analysis

That's the difference between Cold War brinksmanship and the cautious marching orders that go with American troops on such missions today.

Rules and attitudes have changed in the post-Vietnam era. The hard line of the 1980s is mild indeed compared to that of the 1950s. So much as a hint of atomic weaponry in such a situation would be intolerable now — as a matter of policy, politics and world diplomacy.

Dwight D. Eisenhower was president when the Marines were dispatched in 1958 to shore up a tottering Lebanese government faced with rebellion the administration said was fomented by Egypt and Syria, with Soviet encouragement. The Marines landed July 15, stayed 3½ months, patrolled Beirut and guarded the same international airport American forces patrol today. The American presence was built to 10,200 troops.

The commanding officer of U.S. forces said combat units had an atomic capability. That talk quickly was tempered with a Pentagon statement that the administration foresaw no circumstances that might require the use of such weapons.

Congressional support was virtually automatic, almost a matter of patriotism, in a time when presidents decided where American troops would go, and on what errands.

Then, as now, the question put to the president at the beginning was when the mission would end. Eisenhower, like President Reagan, said the troops would withdraw when the Lebanese government said it could get along without them.

Then, as now, the crisis in Lebanon stemmed from the broader, chronic crisis of the Middle East. Egypt and Syria, linked then in the United Arab Republic, were in a drive for Arab unity that toppled the government of Iraq, shook the leadership of Jordan, and fomented Moslem rebellion in Lebanon. The administration saw Soviet influence behind what Eisenhower described as "indirect aggression," and answered with Marines.

They were not sent into combat; they went to demonstrate American support for a shaken government.

Today's is a peacekeeping mission in a nation still torn by the same Christian-Moslem divisions that have kept Lebanon in violent turmoil

'Begin country' not concerned with agonizing over massacre

By LARRY THORSON

KIRYAT MALACHI, Israel (AP) — This town of factory workers from Morocco, Romania, Iran, Kurdistan and Soviet Georgia is not beating its breast in guilt over the Beirut massacre.

This is "Begin country." They hold pro-government rallies here, unlike the big cities where thousands of Israeli protesters have demanded the resignations of Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

In Israeli terms, Kiryat Malachi is a "development town," one like scores which foundered under the previous Labor Party governments.

Begin reaped protest votes in Kiryat Malachi in 1977 and 1981 as the "second Israel" — the more recent immigrants from Middle Eastern countries — endorsed his rightist, strongly nationalist, pro-religious views.

How does Kiryat Malachi feel now, as much of Israel is racked by moral anguish over the Israeli connection with the massacre of hundreds of Palestinian refugees in Beirut?

IT THINKS the Labor Party is hurting Israel and its army by criticizing the government. It supports the three-month-old war in Lebanon to rout Palestinian guerrillas. It does not blame Begin or Sharon for letting Lebanese Christian militiamen into the Chatilla and Sabra Palestinian refugee camps Sept. 16-18.

When Sharon came here last Wednesday, police had to keep hundreds of disappointed Kiryat Malachians out of a jammed public hall where he spoke.

"I'm sure we are not to blame, not Begin or Sharon or the army," said a Moroccan Jew in his 20s who gave only his first name, Moshe. He said the massacre in Beirut was "terrible, one of the most terrible things in the world. But it was the Arabs' doing, not ours."

Begin and Sharon are counting on this support to weather continuing Israeli outrage and coming troubles as a judicial inquiry — set up after massive pressure from the anti-Begin segment of the public and press — investigates the massacre.

Although the Israeli military helped organize the Christian militia assault on the camps, it says the objective was to root out Palestinian guerrillas, not kill innocents.

OPINION POLLS taken since the massacre show a weakening in Begin's political support, but not enough to oust him if elections were held.

Leader complex stew, says Nixon

Richard Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — A leader is a complex stew, and the ingredients include egotism, ruthlessness and knowing when you have overstayed your welcome, Richard Nixon notes in his new book, "Leaders."

According to excerpts published in the Oct. 11 issue of Newsweek magazine, the former president says a leader must be ruthless in order to perform such functions as firing a loyal aide either for incompetence or because someone better is available.

Nixon says he may have lacked some of the necessary ruthlessness. "In my own administration (Chief of Staff) Bob Haldeman got a reputation for ruthlessness," Nixon wrote. "One reason was that he performed for me a lot of the butcher's tasks that I could not bring myself to perform directly."

Nixon also said that "getting offstage at the right time can sometimes be as important as getting onstage at the right time..."

"Lyndon Johnson stunned the nation when he announced in 1968 that he would not run for re-election... Luck was with him in getting him off the stage at that time. He would have been savaged mercilessly if he had remained in office."

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Charles Colson says the time he spent in prison for Watergate-related crimes had made changes not only in his religious outlook but in his political affiliation.

Colson, once an aide to President Richard Nixon, said he not only became a "born-again Christian" during his seven years at Maxwell Air Force Base's prison in Montgomery, Ala., but also a Democrat.

"I couldn't stand the thought of a Republican in prison," he said jokingly in remarks before the Chamber of Commerce here Saturday.

Roberto Maksoud hired Short for the Club 150 in the Maksoud Plaza Hotel, even though he was unsure the 58-year-old musician, who specializes in Cole Porter songs, would go over in this samba-loving Latin American city.

But the club, with a capacity of 240, was virtually sold out during the booking, which ended Sunday.

Maksoud said he planned to sign Short to play here every fall. Short spends his winters playing at the Carlyle Hotel in New York City.

Saturday's gathering was prompted by plans to raze the 58-year-old Santa Monica Land and Water Co. building in this quiet, stylish section of Los Angeles to make room for the three-story mall.

Residents, already upset about weekend traffic, have created a group called Preserve Pacific Palisades Inc. and have gathered 8,000 signatures opposing the mall.

Actor Ted Knight, star of the TV comedy "Too Close for Comfort," told the rally, "This is a grass-roots gathering of people who don't want to see our village tranquility and traditional values overrun by zealous profit makers."

'Here's Johnny!' to continue with 'Tonight Show'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Within hours of celebrating his 20th anniversary as host of "The Tonight Show," Johnny Carson announced a new contract with NBC, silencing speculation that his association with the network would not reach the 21st year.

Carson made the announcement at a party Sunday night after a nostalgic television special marking his two decades with the late-night show.

The length of the new contract and its financial terms were not announced. Network officials said Carson signed the contract in September and it went into effect immediately, replacing a previous three-year contract that still had one year to run.

In announcing the new contract, he told his staff, "I talked with Grant Tinker two weeks ago and said, 'As long as we're doing the show as well as we are doing, I want to continue. Even though we still have another year to run (on the current contract) we will continue beyond that.'"

The staff broke into applause, and Carson added: "Besides, if I stay at home, Joanna (his wife) would kill me."

There had been speculation that Carson would not stay with NBC because of declining ratings for the show. Carson has dismissed the reports, saying that while his show may lose to the competition on a given night, his overall ratings are the highest for the time slot.

On the TV special, Carson, 56, marked his 20 years with a two-hour retrospective of favorite clips from past shows. The audience at NBC's Burbank studios gave Carson a standing ovation when he stepped on stage Sunday night.

"Twenty years ago in New York the audience stood up and I thought they were leaving," he said, smiling.

Carson took over the show from host Jack Paar on Oct. 1, 1962, after several years as host of the ABC game show "Who Do You Trust?"

Backstage, before the anniversary show began, announcer Ed McMahon said, "I figured at the most we'd go five years. But it's been 5,120 shows since then, counting Johnny and all of substitute hosts."

McMahon said, "Twenty years ago, I went to Carson and asked him what my role would be. Johnny said, 'I don't even know what my role is.'"

The signing of the new pact was in marked contrast to that of Carson's last contract on May 6, 1980. The agreement was preceded by a dispute between Carson and former NBC President Fred Silverman, who felt the show's ratings dropped when Carson was absent and wanted him to work more often.

It appeared almost certain Carson would quit the show until NBC agreed to cut the 90-minute show to one hour and his appearances to four a week. His annual salary was reportedly raised to substantially more than $5 million. At the time the show netted an estimated $30 million for the network.

Carson's relationship with Tinker, who is Silverman's successor and NBC board chairman, has been much quieter.

Tinker said in a statement released Sunday night, "Along with many millions of viewers, we're delighted that Johnny has agreed to continue doing 'The Tonight Show.'"

Oil wells biggest hazards at Lubbock golf courses

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Some golfers are content with just sinking a good putt every once in a while, but at two Lubbock golf courses, they're sinking oil wells.

And it's not the roughs or the water traps at the Lubbock and Hillcrest Country Clubs that are the problem. Oil hazards are the biggest worry in this Panhandle city.

"You hook or slice a ball on some holes and you've got yourself an unplayable lie behind an oil rig," said Hillcrest member Joe Hornaday.

"In Lubbock," quipped another member, "the country clubs loan money to the banks, not vice versa."

Hillcrest golf pro Richard Whittenburg quoted a popular television commercial in a suggestion that had more than a ring of truth to it:

"If you don't have an oil well, get one...that's what we did."

THE 1981 discoveries produced not only black gold and blacker humor, but more than a little friendly rivalry.

At the Lubbock Country Club, a story making the rounds goes like this:

The club's president is discovered glumly staring into his drink by a member at the bar.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"We drilled another water well," the president replied, "and struck oil again."

But Hillcrest leads five to four in wells and roughly two to one in revenue, a fact which some members of the old-line, socially conscious Lubbock CC don't find amusing.

Especially since their club struck oil first.

LUBBOCK COUNTRY Club hauls in oil at night and pumps it out during the day to conceal its smaller production, Hillcrest members insist.

"Hillcrest just copied us. They'd never have thought of it if it hadn't been for us," said Don Tusha, Lubbock CC's president.

"Only in Texas," said Robert Walker, a Lubbock CC member known widely and fondly as "Warbuck" because of his good humor and generous spirit.

Warbucks said the irony was that many members were opposed to drilling in the first place.

As member Harold Chapman so succinctly put it: "All the oil I'd ever seen was nasty, dirty, greasy and sloppy."

Owners of expensive homes around the lovely old course were hardly happy about the project.

"SOME THOUGHT we'd get more damage than profit," said insurance executive Bob Raines.

A test well was drilled despite some serious misgivings.

"We held our breath," recalled President Tusha. "If we messed up something, we'd have a new board out here overnight."

But all went well.

"They never did a penny's worth of damage," said Raines.

"I didn't know how neat you could drill an oil well," said lawyer Tom Milam. "My son from Hawaii came up here and took a picture of it.

"HE COULDN'T believe it."

The first two wells were hidden behind wooden structures to appease those members originally opposed to the drilling.

"By the time we drilled the third one, we were making a little cash and we were proud of the well," laughed Raines.

"We opened it up and let the world see it."

Members could hardly wait for the fourth well, although it was in the most sensitive location of all.

"It was right in front of the high-dollar houses around the golf course," Raines said.

INSTEAD OF complaining, one homeowner suggested that the next well be drilled in his backyard.

"It's funny," said Raines. "Once the money flowed in, the whole attitude changed. Suddenly the oil wells were beautiful."

At the high point, Lubbock Country Club reaped $20,000 monthly in royalties, said Tusha. It's about half that now.

"Financially, the club is in the best shape it's ever been in, and oil is partially responsible," Tusha said.

Both Lubbock and Hillcrest are using the money to upgrade golf and clubhouse facilities and the younger club has committed about a third of its oil revenue to reducing short-term debts.

"The oil money has allowed us to do a lot of things we couldn't do otherwise," said Whittenburg, the golf pro.

ALTHOUGH THE Hillcrest experience was marred by a salt-water blowout, its membership benefitted substantially more than its establishment rival.

"We got one well that will equal the output of their four," said Whittenburg with a touch of pride.

"But I think they have more royalty."

He said Hillcrest will earn an estimated $250,000 this year from its oil venture.

"The biggest boost came in the attitude of our members," he disclosed. "They're proud to say they're members out here.

"And now they all want to know how their oil wells are doing."

ENTERTAINMENT

'News Nightwatch' to give viewers 'breath of world'

NEW YORK (AP) — Starting today, insomniacs, night workers and news addicts who don't get cable television can exchange four hours for "a breath of the world" — several times around — in the "CBS News Nightwatch."

The Monday-through-Friday program began today at 3 a.m. CDT.

"Nightwatch" is the largest regularly scheduled block of network news ever. It also is the biggest chunk in the networks' growing news lineup competing with Ted Turner's Cable News Network and all-night and all-news radio.

And when ABC News' 12-1 a.m. program debuts Oct. 26, it will just about close the loop. A viewer could start with the local news, watch "Nightline," ABC's yet-unnamed hour show, break for a half hour with David Letterman, then move to "NBC News Overnight" before catching "Nightwatch."

That brings the early bird — or late bird — to 6 a.m. and the new dawn patrol news programs leading into "Today," "Good Morning America" and the "CBS Morning News." Over the past year, the networks have added nearly 40 hours of regularly scheduled news and information program a week.

"A whole culture lives at that time of the night," says Robert Ferrante, executive producer of "Nightwatch." "Nielsen says 5 million people watch TV from 2 to 6. They're not a strange audience, just another facet of society."

Among Ferrante's untapped target viewers are the people who move America's food and produce overnight, the entertainment world's "support group" and police and fire officials. "Some of these people haven't been available for any news," he says.

On some nights, as many as 6 million listeners tune to radio's "Larry King Show," a call-in, interview program. An average of 1.25 million homes watch "NBC News Overnight" from 1:30-2:30.

Ferrante says "Nightwatch" will be different from the slightly irreverent "NBC News Overnight." "Four hours is a lot of time," he says. "We'll be a service that rotates viewers for a breath of the world."

The plan is to begin each half hour with a summary of news events, "the status of your world," Ferrante calls it. At the end of each half hour, "Nightwatch" will cover sports with plenty of videotape.

In between, there will be developing stories and background reports. No feature will be repeated before 90 minutes.

In addition, "Nightwatch" will try to capitalize on King's call-in success. With 10 phone lines open to viewers, the program will tackle a key news subject. Calls will be screened and subject to a second-second delay.

Each of the program's four anchors — Harold Dow, Christopher Glenn, Felicia Jeter and Karen Stone — will have an hour as solo newscaster. While off the anchor desk, the other three can produce reporting pieces and do interviews.

Ferrante says the first 90 minutes of the show will have more news and features. From 3:30 to 5, the pace will be a little slower, and the program will repeat some reports. The last hour will focus more on business for an early-rising audience.

Governor adds politicking to football antics

DALLAS (AP) — To the annual ritual of pigskin and partying known in these parts as Texas-OU weekend, Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh is adding politicking.

Nigh, realizing that Dallas will soon be swamped by a sea of Oklahoma University fans who also happen to be voters when they go home, has plastered his name on five billboards around the city.

The signs — two of which are near the Cotton Bowl, where the Sooners will tangle with the Texas Longhorns Saturday — use giant black and white letters to proclaim simply, "NIGH."

John Reid, Nigh's press secretary, said the Democratic governor wanted to do a little politicing while he and thousands of other Oklahomans celebrated in Dallas.

Reid told The Dallas Morning News the billboards cost Nigh's campaign about $1,000.

Tom Daxon, Nigh's Republican opponent, would rather nix the Nigh signs, a spokesman said.

Small petroleum marketers want protection from 'elephant'

DALLAS (AP) — The nation's independent petroleum marketers must fight to secure legislation that would protect them from being crushed by the "elephant" of competition from major oil companies, an independent's group official says.

"Marketers are, in essence, in bed with an elephant," said National Oil Jobbers Council executive vice president Phillip R. Chisholm. "If the elephant becomes uncomfortable and decides to roll over, it doesn't matter if he does it intentionally or not or whether he's intelligent or stupid. The result is that the marketer is no longer there."

Chisholm has accused the big oil companies of scheming to drive smaller, independent marketers out of business through price cutting and other methods.

The practice has brought lower prices at the gasoline pump now, but the strategy is aimed at winning greater control of prices later when smaller competitors are crushed, he told delegates to the jobbers' convention here.

He said the NOJC wants federal legislation that would force the big oil companies to give up the gas stations they own and operate.

In a keynote address to the convention of motor fuel and heating oil marketers and distributors, former CBS foreign correspondent Robert M. Evans said that Americans could once again experience gas lines at stations if a political upheaval occurs.

"Now that we have an oil glut, people feel the gasoline shortages and other problems of the oil crisis will never plague us again, that we can forget about them," Evans told the opening session of the 6th annual petroleum marketing exposition.

"Our energy vulnerabilities have lessened, but they are still there and we as a nation have done so little, so very little, to prepare for it," added Evans, a former Moscow bureau chief for CBS News who has lived and worked in several dozen countries.

Evans, who lives in Atlanta, said the danger in continuing Mideast hostilities is that when a regime falls, there is the possibility it will be replaced by one not as friendly to the United States.

"At least six to 10 regions in the Middle East are considered precarious. The odds are heavy at their not being able to survive the decade to come," he said.

Any change could threaten America's access to energy and could result in production of oil by a country hostile to the United States, he added.

Evans said he agrees with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that the major threat to America's energy needs is not the troubles between Israel and the Arab states, but rather among the Arab states themselves.

Chisholm said the problem is that many major oil companies have in recent months altered their traditional relationships with their jobber and wholesale class of trade and have engaged in what jobbers believe to be pricing practices that discriminate against jobbers and other independent marketers.

He said refinery-owned outlets often sell gas at the retail level for less than the refiners' wholesale price to independents. At the same time, he said, some refiners have altered or taken away the traditional allowances granted to jobbers and wholesalers for their services.

The major companies have denied any fault, Chisholm said. He and other NOJC officials met with the companies' Washington representatives recently, and they denied any malice, he said.

The council is prohibited by antitrust laws from negotiating directly with the big oil companies, Chisholm said. "What we do must be in terms of pursuing congressional or legislative remedies, and the decision on the direction NOJC should pursue is up to you," he added.

He reviewed violence between Iran and Iraq, Syria and Iraq, in Lebanon between the Muslims and the Christians, Saudi Arabia and the South Yemens.

"What do we do if Khomeini were to turn to the north and invite Soviet Russia in? What is the result if the king of Saudi Arabia is gunned down and a small band of officers seek to take control? A single assassin's bullet could dramatically change the balance of power in the world," Evans added.

The lack of proper emergency energy preparedness "jeopardizes the freedom and future of us all. We have left our energy future to the slim whims of fate. What we have done in emergency energy preparation is simply not good enough. It is simply not good enough," he said.

The council's 42 state and regional member associations represent about 15,000 independent petroleum marketers. The exposition continues through Wednesday.

No more long lines for teasury bills

By Sally Koris
Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — The long lines of patient people waiting for a chance to buy a Treasury bill yielding 16 percent or 17 percent are no more.

That's because 16 and 17 percent T-bill interest rates are no more.

"T-bill rates have fallen because interest rates in general have fallen, partly as a response to lower inflation and partly in response to a falling off in business loan demand," said Jeffrey Speaks, an economist with Claremont Economics Institute.

In the Treasury's latest auction, yields on three-month Treasury bills fell 0.04 percent to 7.52 percent, yields for six-month bills fell 0.14 percent to 8.70 percent and yields for one-year bills were off 0.04 percent at 9.44 percent. The yields were the lowest since the summer of 1980, when they were 6 percent — and quite a bit off the 17 percent peak of December 1980. Yields are even low compared to July of this year, when they were in the 13 percent range.

"I think it's surprising they've fallen so sharply in the past few months," continued Speaks, "but the level of yields is about right, given the inflation rate."

Obviously, Treasury bills are not the only investment vehicle to suffer a decline in yield. Interest rates on all fixed income securities, such as certificates of deposit, have also declined recently. And Federal Reserve Bank spokesmen say there's been a corresponding decline in demand for Treasury bills.

"Demand has been off 20 to 25 percent since August, when rates started falling," said Jim O'Day of the Los Angeles branch of the Federal Reserve. "People are starting to shop around; a lot of people play the market and try to go after the best rate they can get. But while rates have declined some 50 percent recently, demand hasn't declined a corresponding amount. A lot of people stay with T- bills because they are one of the best rates you can get."

Several analysts noted that Treasury bills are still popular because of their quality and safety.

"Basically, there's a flight to quality investments," said David Shulman, a financial economist with the UCLA Graduate School of Management Economic Forecast unit. "Demand is there, especially for three-month Treasury bills, because there's no risk of default."

Shulman notes that the three-month bills seem to be more popular than the six-month bills. "The rates between three-month and six-month are the widest ever since the project began tracking — 2 points (0.02 percent) — because three-month bills are so much more in demand," said Shulman, noting that increased demand also lowers yield. "People seem to want the three-month bills because they're nervous about the economy and want to be able to reinvest if rates go back up.

As for the short-term direction of interest rates, analysts seem to agree that they'll decline.

Says Speaks: "Rates have fallen so sharply that it's hard to see them getting much lower over the next few months, but our forecast calls for lower inflation in 1983 and lower short-term interest rates.

Says Shulman: "Short-term rates will go lower through the winter because the economy is weak. Falling interest rates are a sign of weakness in the economy."

Farm management seminar to be held

BIG SPRING — A Farm Management Workshop for farmers and ranchers will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Howard College here in the Horace Greeley Building, Room 202.

Titled "Planning for Profit: The Key to Survival in the '80s," the seminar is being co-sponsored by Texas A&M University and New Mexico State University at Las Cruces, N.M.

The agenda includes: role and functions of management; marginal analysis and economic principles; cost concepts and economics; enterprise and partial budgeting; whole-farm planning and budgeting, and cash flow budgeting.

Fee is $80 and interested persons must pre-register by noon Monday. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Don Richardson, Howard County extension agent, at 915-267-6671.

Midland County to honor 4-H achievers

The annual Midland County 4-H Achievement Banquet, which will be keyed to the theme "4-H — Pathways to the Future," will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in St. Mark's United Methodist Church at 1701 N. Main St. in Midland.

Members of 4-H who have demonstrated excellence in their projects and other areas of 4-H will be recognized in the banquet.

Special recognition will be given to Charlie Green, the retired Midland County agricultural agent.

Highlight of the banquet will be the announcement of the 1982 Gold Star Awards recipients. Last year's winners of the award, which is the highest 4-H award given at the county level were Kim Watson, Kelin Jones and Karen Green.

National 4-H Week begins today

COLLEGE STATION — Encouraging 4-H members to become responsible, productive citizens is the purpose of "Pathways to the Future," which is theme of National 4-H Week, which begins today.

"During National 4-H Week, nearly five million 4-H members across the nation will rededicate their heads to clearer thinking, their hearts to greater loyalty, their hands to larger service and their health to better living," said Cindy Mann, Midland County extension agent.

In Texas, some 140,000 youths are members of this educational organization, which has about 19,000 junior, teen-age and adult volunteer leaders.

The most popular projects among Midland's 4-H'ers last year were food and nutrition, electricity, safety, clothing and horses.

"In the past five years, the top 10 projects have been about the same, though they frequently change positions," Ms. Mann said. "4-H members learn far more than specific skills with projects such as food-nutrition, animal science, forestry or gardening," she said. "They also learn to keep accurate records, make oral presentations and develop life-long management, consumer and communications skills."

Youths from age 9 to 19 may participate in 4-H through organized clubs, special interest groups, nutrition education programs, television series, short-term activities and camping.

Ranchers can learn how to use mesquite

LUBBOCK — Ranchers who want to rid their rangeland of mesquite and make money at the same time may learn how in a Mesquite Utilization Symposium at The Museum of Texas Tech University Oct. 29 and 30.

"This symposium culminates five years of Texas Tech research specifically on uses for mesquite," according to Dr. Robert C. Albin, associate dean of the Texas Tech College of Agricultural Sciences. "In no way do we advocate growing mesquite for beneficial use. Rather, the symposium will show ways to defray the costs of cleanup and control of mesquite.

Registration for the symposium will begin at 7:45 a.m. Oct. 29. Cost of participating in the symposium is $30 and includes meals.

Fruit growers to meet at College Station

COLLEGE STATION — Fruit growers, including the old-hands and the neophytes, may attend the 30th annual Texas Fruit Growers Conference Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at College Station.

The conference will include a special short course for new fruit growers a will deal with planning and developing a complete orchard management p gram. The next two days of the course will feature in-depth discussions growing apples, peaches, grapes and blackberries. ## U.S.S.R. must have U.S. grair America needs Soviet marke

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's increasing need to import m agricultural products and America's need to export more is creating an econo link between the two superpowers that could ease international tensions, a st released Friday said.

"The United States and the Soviet Union need each other," the Wo watch Institute, a private research organization, said in a study on U.S.-So agricultural relations.

The Kremlin needs America's food supply and Washington needs the So market, it said.

"The food connection between the two superpowers will not automatic usher in a new period of East-West cooperation and peace," the study a nowledged. "But if wisely used, it could become the cornerstone on which build a better relationship."

The centralized governmental system of the Soviet Union has turned a na that was once the principle source of wheat for all of Europe into a country now imports more grain than any other in history, the study said.

At the same time, the United States, which exports more grain than other nations combined, is facing year after year of record harvests that h sent farm prices plunging and filled storage facilities to the point of bu ing.

As a result, the Soviets must have the grain and the only major supplie the United States, said Lester Brown, author of the Worldwatch study.

"Massive imports may be economically draining as well as politically em rassing, but in practical terms the Soviet government has little choice," the st said.

The fact that America needs the Soviet Union almost as much, the st said, is "particularly true now, when the productive capacity of U.S. fa continues to climb while growth in grain markets outside the Soviet Un has slowed because of a sluggish economy worldwide."

Brown said the failure of Soviet agriculture to meet the food needs of nation "is too pervasive to blame on weather, as Soviet officials are incl to do.

"Just as production declines cut across almost every segment of Soviet agr ture, the shortcomings involve virtually every agricultural input and every pl of agricultural management," he said.

Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev's announcement in May of a major program that includes the infusion of new capital will probably do littl solve the Soviet food problems and could aggravate them by adding layers of bureacracy to the already overburdened system, he said.

Brown said the plan falls well short of the real structural changes ne to reduce Soviet food deficits, but he also pointed out that making t structural changes would likely threaten the traditional authority of the tral government and the Communist Party.

Soviet Union at last returns to market for U.S. grain, buys 750,000 metric ton

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of inactivity, the Soviet Union has finally re-entered the U.S. grain market, purchasing 750,000 metric tons of corn.

Agriculture Secretary John Block, in announcing the new Soviet grain purchase last week, also said that the U.S. will offer to sell the Kremlin at least 23 million metric tons of grain during the year that began Oct. 1.

The latest Soviet grain purchase is the first since mid-March and the first under the seventh year of the long-term grain trade agreement between the two super powers. Some officials have blamed the lack of Sovie purchase activity on the R administration's ban on sale of gas equipment to the Soviet Un construction of the natural gas p between Siberia and Western E

Block said the corn should l vered sometime before Decem said rapid movement throug ports would make room in c storage facilities for the new crop farmers are harvesting no

"We're pleased to see they're the market, and certainly hopin large purchases in the wee months ahead," Block said.

Candidates use forum for politics

WINNIE, Texas (AP) — Two candidates for Texas agricultural commissioner squared off briefly at a farmers' forum here Saturday and used the occasion for some political name-calling.

Before about 40 rice and soybean farmers in a South Texas farming area strapped by poor weather and a bad economy, Republican Fred Thornberry accused Democrat Jim Hightower of "radicalism" akin to land reforms advocated by Central American revolutionaries.

Hightower, for his part, labled Thornberry's charges "lies."

Thornberry, a College Station poultry expert, suggested Hightower's call for "agrarian reform" is really a move to expropriate privately held lands.

"Agrarian reform is a reform of policies" for the agriculture industry, Hightower said. "I'm an agrarian reformer in the Sam Rayburn tradition, the Jim Hogg tradition, the Jimmy Allred tradition."

Thornberry also accused Hightower of planning to turn the state agriculture department "into a training ground for political radicals."

Hightower said he might make "about 50 or 60 changes in a department with 600 people," but that "there's going to be no wholesale sweep through the department."

The two candidates faced each other only briefly at the forum because Hightower refused to appear with Thornberry.

The forum first was billed as a debate between the two candidates. But David Jenkins, a Winnie-Stowell area farmer and an organizer of the event, said the two candidates could not agree on time restrictions.

Without a debate, one of the candidates threatened to cancel his appearance rather than appear together with his competitor, Jenkins said.

About two dozen farmers and their families drove their tractors to the Capitol in Austin Saturday to dramatize economic conditions they say have reached a crisis level throughout Texas. The tractorcade ended on the Capitol steps with speeches by Democratic agriculture commissioner candidate Jim hightower, Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, labor union officials and consumer advocates.

Dryness leads to grazing decline, crop deterioration

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The dry weather pattern continued over Texas the past week, much to the chagrin of Texas farmers and ranchers.

Grazing conditions continued to deteriorate and late season crop prospects continued to decline due to the extended dry weather, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricqltural Extension Service of Texas A&M University Sysdem.

Ranchers have been culling herds heavily with the decline in grazing, sending old and open cows as well as young calves and lambs to market. Many have been providing supplemental feed for their herds for some time, causing an early drain on hay supplies.

Good hay crops were harvested over much of the state this year, but the dry weather has shortened crops in some areas, noted Carpenter.

Freshly planted small grains — wheat and oats — need moisture in many areas to germinate. Planting is nearing completion in the High Plains, and is increasing in central, eastern and southern areas. Stockmen rely heavily on small grains to provide late fall and winter grazing for livestock, Carpenter said.

THE PAST WEEK'S OPEN weather was a boon for harvest operations, which continued uninterrupted. Cotton harvesting was winding down over central areas but was increasing in north central and northeastern areas. Cotton bolls were popping open rapidly in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas (San Angelo area), where harvesting will start soon, Carpenter noted.

Corn harvesting remained in full swing in the High Plains, where early grain sorghum harvesting was getting underway. Grain sorghum also was being harvested in the Trans-Pecos area and in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas.

Early peanuts were being harvested in central areas, and some peanut harvesting continued in eastern and southwestern sections.

Sugar beet harvesting was about to start in the High Plains, and some early grapefruit were being picked in the Rio Grande alley, said Carpenter.

Reports from district extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Corn harvesting, both for grain and silage, remain active. Early grain sorghum and cotton are maturing. Baling of a good hay crop continues. Carrots are being harvested in Deaf Smith Conty, where the sugar beet harvest is about to start. A little wheat is still being seeded.

SOUTH PLAINS: Most crops continue to make good progress. Corn harvesting remains active and early grain sorghum, sunflowers and soybeans are being harvested. Sugar beet harvesting is about to start. Wheat seeding is almost complete, with stocker cattle moving into the area in anticipation of wheat grazing.

ROLLING PLAINS: Early cotton is opening rapidly. Grain sorghum harvesting continues in southern counties, with fair to good yields. Alfalfa is being irrigated for a fifth cutting in Fisher County. Farmers are seeding small grains following recent rains; however, more rain is needed to get the crops off to a good start.

NORTH CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is active and peanuts are about ready to be harvested. Most farmers are still waiting on rain before planting wheat and oats. Fall vegetables and pastures also need rain. Cattle feeding continues to increase due to poor grazing conditions.

NORTHEAST: The cotton harvest is under way, with only fair yield prospects. Wheat seeding is active, with about 25 percent of the acreage planted. Final hay cuttings are in progress. Sweet potato harvesting remains in full swing. Most cattle are in good condition but marketings are increasing as stockmen are culling herds.

FAR WEST: Farmers are harvesting grain sorghum and are getting ready for the cotton harvest. Many cattle and some lambs are being shipped to market dud to declining grazing conditions.

Brewers swill champagne in Baltimore

Harvey's Wallbangers finish with flourish

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers had heard enough of the raucous Baltimore fans for three days, and now it was their turn.

"B-R-E-W-E-R-S," the players chanted in the clubhouse, mocking the incessant Baltimore cheer, after Milwaukee had demolished the Orioles 10-2 Sunday to the win the American League East championship.

The Brewers, who open the league championship series against the AL West champion California Angels on Tuesday, also broke into a chorus of, "California Here We Come," as the champagne flowed.

The traditional victory beverage was ready last week in Boston, but Milwaukee lost the last game.

Then the Brewers came to Baltimore and the Orioles pulled even in the standings by taking the first three games of the series before winning it big Sunday.

THEY ARE callad "Harvey'sWallbangers" — in honor of Manager Harvey Kuenn — and they won it by pounding four home runs, a triple and two doubles among their 11 hits in the payoff contest.

Shortstop Robin Yount, a strong candidate for Most Valuable Player in the league, had two solo homers and a triple, and scored four runs.

Cecil Cooper drove in three runs with a solo homer, his 32nd, and a two-run double, and Ted Simmons slammed a two-run homer — his 23rd of the season and No. 216 for league-leading Milwaukee.

The three solo homers came off Jim Palmer, 15-5, whose wild pickoff throw also led to an unearned run.

DON SUTTON, acquired from Houston for the stretch drive by Milwaukee on Aug. 30, won his fourth straight since losing in his AL debut. He was relieved by Bob McClure in the ninth.

"I knew all along this club was going to win, with or without me," said Sutton. "It's the best collection of talent I've ever played with. I'm glad to be along for the ride."

After Yount homered in the first inning, Baltimore rookie Glen Gulliver was thrown out at the plate in the bottom of the inning when he ran through the stop sign of third base coach Cal Ripken Sr. on a two-out single by John Lowenstein.

The unearned run in the second and another Yount homer made it 3-0 before Baltimore scored in the third on Gulliver's first major league homer.

Cooper, then 7-for-47 against the Orioles without an RBI this season, hit his homer in the sixth before Palmer departed. Ben Oglivie's RBI single, following Yount's triple, made it 5-1 in the eighth, and the Brewers rubbed it in with five more in the ninth.

Sutton stranded three runners in the fifth when he retired the dangerous Eddie Murray, and two more in the eighth when Oglivie caught pinch hitter Joe Nolan's slicing fly as he slid across the left field foul line on his knees.

YOUNT FINISHED the regular season with 29 homers and 114 RBI, and with a .331 average lost the batting championship by one point to Kansas City's Willie Wilson, who sat out his team's final game. With a chance to wrest the crown away with a hit in his final at-bat, Yount was struck by a pitched ball.

Kuenn, who started his career as a shortstop and was AL batting champion in 1959 after switching to the outfield, called Yount the best all-around shortstop he has ever seen and said he should be the league's MVP.

Sutton, who said he was "in awe at things the man can do," said Yount not only is an MVP and an All-Star, but also "All-World."

"If it were up to me, I probably wouldn't have the award," Yount said. "I think the only award there should be is a team award."

YOUNT CONTENDED the Brewers never lost their composure after losing the first three games to Baltimore.

"We've been loose throughout this whole series," he said. "We approached every game with the same attitude — a positive feeling. The Orioles weren't going to give into us, but that didn't change our thoughts or attitude."

Earl Weaver, who ended his 14½-year stint as Baltimore manager after the game, said he thought the Orioles would win the final game to finish the series sweep.

"So much for momentum," he said.

Little Joe wins it for Atlanta

By NORM CLARKE

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Losing 5-1 and down to their last out, the Atlanta Braves knew they needed outside help to win their first National League West Division title since 1969.

Miraculously, they got it — 500 miles away in San Francisco — to survive one of baseball's wildest three-way races.

"This is the way this crazy season should end," said Braves' slugger Dale Murphy after Joe Morgan's three-run homer in the seventh inning gave the San Francisco Giants a 5-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday.

The Giants' victory prevented the Dodgers from tying the Braves and forcing a one-game playoff tonight in Los Angeles. For Atlanta, 5-1 losers to San Diego, it was enough to finish one game ahead of the Dodgers and Giants in the NL West.

But the champagne celebration was delayed 45 minutes until the Braves, watching on television as 100 newsmen waited outside, cheered the final out in San Francisco.

To Murphy, it seemed a fitting end to a nerve-wracking season.

"We won 13 in a row, then we lose 19 of 21, then right at the last minute we have to watch TV to find out our fate. It seems like that's the way it should be." said Murphy.

MORGAN instantly was toasted in three cities — San Francisco, San Diego and Atlanta.

"Whatever Joe Morgan wants, it's my treat," said Atlanta third baseman Bob Horner, who climbed a chair in the chaotic clubhouse to offer a toast to the Braves and the Giants.

"I guarantee he (Morgan) will get a telegram saying 'Thank You,'" said Braves' relief ace Steve Bedrosian, soaked from gushers of champagne and beer.

Manager Joe Torre had a final word for those who doubted the Braves' staying power.

"They talked about the Dodgers' experience. They talked about our inexperience. All I know is the cream came to the top and we're it," said Torre, who guided the Braves to the title after being fired by the New York Mets last year.

He rejected the notion that the Braves backed into the title.

"If winning five of the last seven games on the road is backing in, then that's fine," he said.

ATLANTA OWNER Ted Turner, whose broadcasting company labeled the Braves "America's Team" because of their coast-to-coast audience, called the triumph by baseball's youngest team "just the beginning."

"We stuck together through thick and thin," he said. "We finished last four years in a row — a record under divisional play — but we hung together."

"It's been seven rough years," agreed infielder Jerry Royster, recalling the hard times.

"We went through 101 loss in a season (1977) and a 17-game losing streak. It was total embarrassment. Now, finally, this," he said, breaking into a coast-to-coast grin.

Phil Niekro, the 43-year-old veteran of Atlanta's staff, says the Braves won't knuckle under in the best-of-five series against the St. Louis Cardinals, winners of the National League East.

"You go to spring training with the World Series as your goal — and that's our next step," said Niekro, 17-4, who will open against the Cardinals Wednesday.

The Braves, who finished last in the NL West from 1976-1979, are chasing their first World Series crown since 1957 when the club was in Milwaukee.

"We've just taken the longest and toughest step," said Murphy, who tied for the league runs batted in title with 109 and finished second in homers with 36.

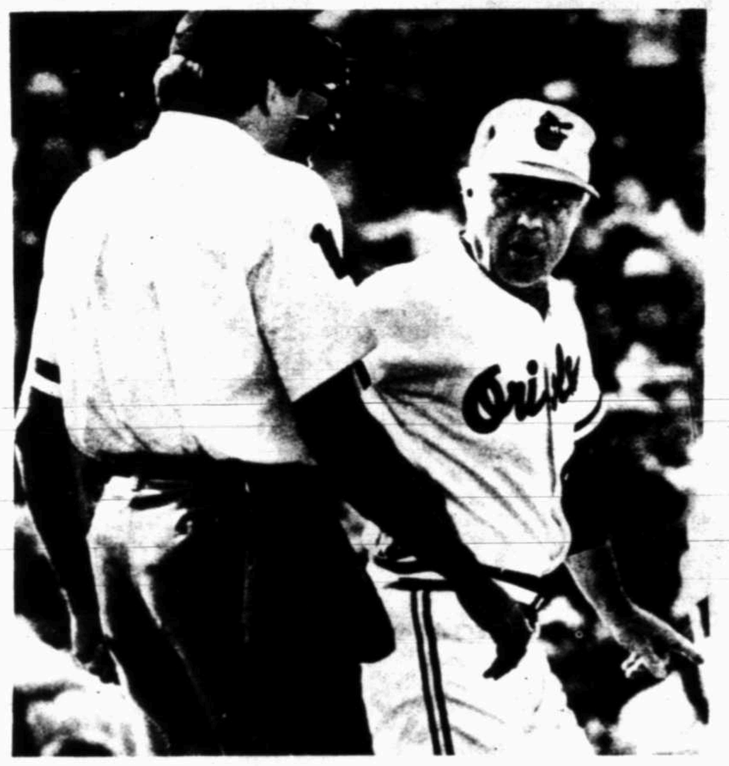
"We can beat anybody now," said Bedrosian.

Until Morgan's homer, it looked like a freak play might cost the Braves dearly.

SAN DIEGO was trailing 1-0 in the fifth when a sharply hit grounder struck second base umpire Bob Engel, helping ignite a five-run inning for the Padres.

Tony Gwynn opened the inning with a single off starter Rick Camp, 11-13, and Broderick Perkins followed with a hard-hit ball that glanced off Engel's leg, allowing Perkins to reach second.

Tim Flannery's single loaded the bases and a walk to pitcher Tim Lollar, 16-9, forced in the tying run.



Don Sutton, a late-season acquisition from Houston, hurls the pennant clincher against Baltimore, left, while Earl Weaver, Baltimore's retiring manager, known for his verbal jousts with umpires, gives Don Denkinger a parting shot.

It's Horns-Sooners week in Big D

By Associated Press

Aside from the annual Texas-Oklahoma Red River rivalry in the Cotton Bowl, the Southwest Conference gets down to some serious family fussin' this Saturday.

Rice and Texas Christian scrap for their first league victory in Fort Worth; unbeaten Southern Methodist risks its spotless bib against Baylor in Waco unless the game is switched for the benefit of television; Texas A&M tries to stay alive in the league race by meeting Houston in the Astrodome; and suddenly revived Texas Tech is at Arkansas.

Arkansas, SMU and Texas are tied atop the SWC standings withh 1-0 ledgers.

Arkansas blasted TCU 35-0, Texas took out Rice 34-7, SMU tripped North Texas 38-10, and Baylor and Houston battled to a 21-all tie in Waco.

Baylor blew a 21-0 lead over Houston and led 21-7 in the third quarter when Allen Rice of the Bears dove at the Cougar goal for what could have been a fourth touchdown. However, linesman Charles Caraway ruled Rice fumbled before he broke the plane of the goal. The ball was recovered by Houston and it was ruled a touchback.

"I can't say what I'm thinking," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "But you had eyes...you could see he scored."

BEARS FUME OVER

WACO — Baylor assistant Coach John O'Hara said Caraway admitted he missed the call that kept the Bears from scoring their fourth touchdown in the 21-21 tie "He said 'I blew it'," O'Hara told the media after the wild Cougar rally. However, Caraway told one writer "The runner lost control of the ball before he crossed the plane (of the goal)."

"I was definitely across," Rice said.

Teaff said it was a weird feeling after the game.

"We walked off the field feeling we had been beaten," Teaff said. "Houston ran off yelling and hollering. It was a heartbreaker ..."

The Bears may not have a game to look forward to next week.

Teaff said there is every indication that Saturday's game with SMU could be moved to Dec. 4 so it could be on either CBS, ABC, or WTBS, the Ted Turner Superstation network.

TEXAS DEPTH DUMPS OWLS

HOUSTON – The real competition in 15th ranked Texas' 34-7 victory in the mis-matchup with Rice might have been between the Longhorns' first and second offensive units.

The Robert Brewer-led first team and the Todd Dodge-led second team each produced two first half scoring drives for a 28-0 halftime lead.

"I've been waiting for the chance, and it feels good to get some playing time," Dodge said. "I told the team when we got out there we had to get the job done. They had given us our chance and we had to do it like we were the first team."

MOORE GETS HIS SWC VICTORY

COLLEGE STATION–Texas Tech, a two-touchdown underdog, surprised Texas A&M 24-15 to spoil new coach Jackie Sherrill's SWC debut, but give Red Raider Coach Jerry Moore his intial league victory in two years.

Quarterback Jim Hart, mixing running and passing, guided Tech to 197 yards total offense and three touchdowns in the third quarter after A&M had shut out the Red Raiders 8-0 in the first half, allowing only 77 yards offense.

Hart directed his team on scoring drives of 80, 60 and 57 yards, capping each offensive series with a short scoring pass — five yards to sub tight end Mike Ramey, 11 yards to starter Buzz Tatom and, on the final play of the quarter, three yards to split end Leonard Harris.

It's not all over yet!

Even 2 losses not fatal in 4-5A

Now that the District 4-5A football race has evolved into a family matter, what's for basketball?

Eh, what's that? Just because Odessa Permian and Odessa High are out in front with 2-0 records, you say there still are five weeks to play and the race for the two-playoff spots hasn't necessarily been decided.

Well, maybe you'll agree then that, if nothing else, Midland High and Abilene High, with 0-2 records, might just as well pack it in for the season? Huh, how does that fly? What's the matter. Cat got your tongue?

We wondered about that, two losses and you are out, and in the melodious words of Fats Waller, "It ain't necessarily so."

For example, did you know that last season in the 4-5A race, Odessa Permian, using all nine lives allotted to felines, went 7-0. Second place? Take your pick...Abilene 4-3, Midland Lee 4-3 and Abilene Cooper, just out of it, 3-3-1.

Just a freak finish? Well, not quite. Back in 1978, Permian was its usual 7-0, but locked in second place were Midland Lee, Abilene and Abilene Cooper, all at 5-2.

IN 1977, Permian won with 7-0, but Odessa, San Angelo and Cooper finished second at 4-3. In 1976, Midland Lee took the title with a 6-1 but tied for second were Odessa and Odessa Permian, both 4-3. In 1975, Permian was champ at 6-1 and Cooper second at 5-2, but the next three teams were Midland at 4-2-1, San Angelo at 4-3 and Lee at 3-3-1. In 1972, Permian was 9-0, but Lee and Midland were tied for second at 5-2 and Odessa and Cooper were right on their heels at 4-3.

If the present two-teams-to-the-playoffs had been in vogue before this year, penetrations, first downs and offensive yards gained would made the league a statistician's nightmare or a coin-flipper's delight.

This could be another one of those dog-eat-dog races.

Permian is 2-0 and unscored upon and looks like the legitimate favorite. The only question among the league's pessimists might be, "Is anybody gonna score on those guys?"

Odessa's 2-0 status should have everyone thankful that Borger isn't in this league. Odessa lost to Hobbs, N.M., 6-0, and then Borger spoiled Hobbs' unbeaten record with a sound 13-0 whipping.

THE BRONCHOS, however, bounced back from that predistrict loss and have the rest of the district wondering what Jerry Millsapps has wrought. The Red Hosses beat Lee 10-7 and then humiliated Cooper, 34-8. This was the same Cooper team that would have beaten San Angelo, if a wide receiver hadn't covered a tight end on the "game-winning" pass with 16 seconds to go, resulting in an eligible receiver penalty.

Shorty Lawson, Abilene Schools Athletic Director, said, "Ray (Coach Ray Overton) wouldn't even have gone for the two-points to break the tie. Cooper was ahead on penetrations, first downs, rushing and anything else that might have to be used to decide a tie game."

LEE, MEANWHILE, bounced back to beat San Angelo, 20-14, the state's No. 4 ranked team and still has Odessa and Permian up ahead, not to mention Cooper. And tied with Lee and Angelo are Big Spring and Abilene, all at 1-1.

Going into the third week of play, both Tall City elevens are looking for their first district win at home. Big Spring spoiled Midland's Memorial Stadium debut, 9-6, a game in which the Bulldogs chalked up three safeties, which had R-T Writer Bob Brundage wondering if it wasn't a state UIL record.

THE BULLDOGS host Abilene Cooper here this week, while Midland Lee is at Abilene.

San Angelo faces Permian and Odessa faces Big Spring in the other games.

When the Steers beat Midland, they broke an eight-game district losing streak. The last time Big Spring had won was in the final game of the 1980 season against San Angelo, 21-20. Before that, the Steers had gone 0-for-37 and hadn't won more than one district game any seasn since 1970, under Clovis Hale, when they were 4-3.

At the opposite extreme, Permian is unbeaten since losing a 14-3 decision to Abilene Cooper in 1979. The Panthers are 31-0-3 during that stretch, overall, and 19-0 in district. TED BATTLES

TED BATTLES
BATTLE SCENE

After watching UCLA-Michigan and Penn State-Nebraska on TV that afternoon, both spellbinders, a veteran writer snorted before the Texas Tech-Baylor game last week, "Who needs pro football? College football is better."

Wittenberg-Baldwin Wallace, however, wasn't what he had in mind. For most of the nation's worshippers at football's Sunday shrine, it probably wasn't the answer to their needs. Then, there were some of us who love small college football. The change of pace enables us to keep our perspective about the life-and-death implications of the other kind.

YOU REALIZE that all the blood, sweat and tears is being shed for the pure, undiluted fun of it. These kids aren't even on scholarship, so it's a labor of love.

Along about the first quarter, the shocking realization dawns. "Mon Dieu, these kids have to get up and go to class in the morning."

In fact, if it's anything like the situation at the nation's No. 1 NAIA football power, the head coach probably will be in the classroom as well, teaching his usual chemistry classes.

But small college football has its advantages and own special atmosphere, like the dog-on-the-field (When was the last time you saw a dog hold up a football game?), the homemade cookies being sold by the money raising fraternity or sorority, the enticing aroma of something good cooking in the concession stand and perhaps best of all in these times, the cost of a ticket. It's hard to believe you can get anything that reasonable any more.

Did you ever notice that small college stadiums all seem to be surrounded by pleasant residences rather than yawning expanses of hard-surfaced parking lots.

Parking isn't a problem and neither are traffic jams. As many walk to the games as drive, it seems.

WHILE THE small colleges don't have the athletic budgets of their more-publicized brethren, they aren't destitute. Most of them can afford grass and jersies that weren't purchased at a used rag sale.

As for Wittenberg-Baldwin Wallace, we admit to some disappointment. We'd rather have seen Wittenberg-Heidelberg or Wittenberg-Otterbein, they have a certain sound appeal, or even Wittenberg-Wooster. Back home we knew a preacher from Wooster. He coached baseball and taught at a high school and was mayor of the town. I never figured out how he got away with it.

In truth, we had been looking forward to watching Millsaps. Even had on the Millsaps shirt Clyde Anthony sent us after we apologized for making a disparaging remark about the Mighty Majors in a column last fall. After what Western Georgia did to them, I'm kinda glad it was Wittenberg and Baldwin-Wallace.

Clyde, isn't Western Georgia the school that just adopted football this fall? I mean, our Majors can't be losing to people like that. Are we going to fire the coach?

THE BIG difference between small college and major college teams, aside from the leaf-turning setting, is the players. They are so much bigger and faster at the big schools. I think the Wittenbergs lose some speed by carrying all those books between classes. It's kinda like a baseball catcher. They are never fast because they have to do all that squatting. It takes away whatever speed they had in the first place.

One of the announcers was noting that Baldwin Wallace was using a 6-2 defense, which is unusual in this day and age. But it was appropriate since Wittenberg was running single wing power off the tackle and wide. Only trouble, running it out of the T was costing them a step, since the quarterback was taking the handoff and pitching, instead of the tailback taking the direct snap while moving.

ANOTHER PLUS is that the games are much quicker. No TV timeouts. Which has its handicaps if there's a call to nature. But then, during a time out, instead of switching away to Maxipads, they can show the students with the live, squirming python in the stands. No, there was no panic riot. The slimey thing seemed to know everyone.

Small college football. It's wonderful, but, no, we're not giving up our Texas-OU pass.

NHL launches campaign tonight

By Associated Press

When last seen playing hockey in earnest, the New York Islanders were skating past the Vancouver Canucks in the Pacific Northwest Coliseum, clinching their third straight Stanley Cup. Tuesday night, the Islanders and Canucks resume their battling with slightly less at stake.

The National Hockey League title won't be on the line in Vancouver when last spring's Cup finalists open the league's 66th season Tuesday. That doesn't mean either team will take a lackadaisical approach to the game.

"We feel we have something to prove," said Vancouver right wing Stan Smyl. "A lot of people said our being in the finals was a fluke. Then the Islanders swept us. We want to show them it (reaching the finals) was for real.

"The best way to do that is to start winning from the start of the season."

After becoming the only United States-based team to win three straight championships, the Islanders are seriously looking at the NHL record of five straight Cups, set by Montreal from 1956-60. But first, there is the matter of securing No. 4, which Islanders defenseman Ken Morrow admits won't be an easy task.

"Last year, we learned a lesson," said Morrow, who joined the Islanders in 1980 after skating for the gold medal-winning U.S. Olympic hockey team at Lake Placid. He has collected three Stanley Cup rings since. "We saw how every team was getting up for us, wanting to knock us off, especially against Pittsburgh in the playoffs. We realize we can't have any letups."

The Islanders barely squeaked past the Penguins in the opening round of the playoffs, winning in overtime of the decisive fifth game.

"Maybe other teams will get the idea they can do the same thing, push us to the limit like Pittsburgh did. There won't be any easy nights."

In addition to the Islanders-Canucks matchup, Calgary is at Edmonton and Pittsburgh at New Jersey.

Jay Haas claims second tour victory

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Jay Haas has won two golf tournaments this season, in his last two starts, and has muscled his way into a starry group that includes Craig Stadler, Tom Watson, Ray Floyd, Lanny Wadkins, Bob Gilder and Calvin Peete as the game's multiple champions.

He won the Texas Open with an 18-under-par total and made only one bogey for the week.

He has won four times in the last two years. He was sixth in the U.S. Open and fifth in the PGA.

Is he bordering on greatness, ready to move among the top level of the game's great stars?

"I don't think so," Haas replied without a moment's hesitation Sunday after his 3-stroke triumph over longtime friend and former Wake Forest teammate Curtis Strange.

"I don't really know if I want it that bad. This is my best year ever," he said. "I think I have the talent to be a good player. I've improved every year I've been on the tour, and that's what I want to do, keep on improving.

"But to join the game'e elite, the players who have won 25 or 30 tournaments, well, there's a long, long way to go."

He paused for a moment and offered a sly little smile.

"I've won five and that's two more than I thought I'd have a month ago," said Haas, who won the Hall of Fame Classic in his last previous start.

"That made my season.

"I took a week off and came here thinking, 'I don't care if I don't make another cut this year'.

"That's what I mean: I don't have the confidence to be one of the great ones. Winning the last two I've played, it's just one of those streaks you get into."

Sheehan posts low score of PGA season

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Patty Sheehan finished the LPGA regular season by turning in the lowest 72-hole score on the tour this year.

"I guess I'm playing better than I ever have been," said Sheehan, 25, who finished with a 69 for a four-round total of 277 to win the $150,000 Inamori Classic Sunday by 3 strokes over Joyce Kazmierski.

It was the second straight tour victory for Sheehan, who won last week's Safeco Classic in Kent, Wash.

Sheehan's latest prize, $22,500, boosted her season's earnings to $223,022 to rank third behind JoAnne Carner's $308,759 and Sandra Hanie's $238,912.

"I think one reason why I've been winning is that I don't get nervous on the course anymore," said Sheehan, the tour's rookie of the year in 1981. "My confidence level is at an all-time high. Everything seems to be clicking."

Sheehan hit all 18 greens in regulation. She had four birdies for her final round with with the lone bogey coming on the par-4, 12th hole when she three-putted from 20 feet.

Sheehan, who was an All-America player at San Jose State University, will play in two LPGA events in Japan next month, including the Mazda Classic she won last year. Foreign tournaments are not included in the LPGA's official earnings.

"Patty made only one mistake all day and that's when she three-putted," said Kazmierski, playing in the same threesome. "But she came right back and birdied the next hole. She doesn't crack."

Kazmierski, 37, received $14,700 for her best finish on the tour since placing third in last year's Kemper Open.

Dale Eggeling was third at 282, followed by Sally Little and Jerilyn Britz, both a 284, and Myra Van Hoose and Kathy Whitworth at 285.

Juli Inkster, 22, three-time U.S. Women's Amateur champion, closed with a 74 and a 293 total to end in a tie for 38th.

About 200 people crowd a gymnasium on Pawnee Indian tribal grounds in Pawnee, Okla., to play "super bingo." The tiny, destitute tribe is using bingo as a means to provide economic opportunity for its members. Tom Knife Chief, a tribal official, calls out the coordinates during the regular bingo games from the gymnasium stage.

Pawnees gamble on bingo, industrial park

By GIL BROYLES

PAWNEE, Okla. (AP) — The tiny Pawnee Nation, wracked by poverty, unemployment and alcoholism, is taking steps it hopes will lead the tribe to economic recovery and away from dependence on dwindling federal dollars.

The Indians are placing their financial future on high-stakes bingo, discount cigarettes and development of a 20-acre industrial plot on the tribe's cramped, square-mile reserve near the banks of Black Beer Creek.

A Tulsa public relations agency has even been hired to enhance the Pawnee image to attract potential bingo players as well as industry.

About half of the nation's 2,300 Pawnees live in or near Pawnee County in north-central Oklahoma, an area known mostly for its winter wheat and beef cattle. But little of the area's prosperity rubs off on the reservation where unemployment is nearly 50 percent, said Richard Anderson, director of the tribe's business development office.

In 1981, the tribe received nearly $1 million from the federal government, but suffered this year because of the reduction in federal job training programs like the Comprehensive Employment Training Act, says Tom Knife Chief, business development specialist for the Pawnees.

ALCOHOLISM IS ANOTHER pervasive problem and the educational and poverty levels among the Pawnees are "world-champion bad," said Bill DeGeer, a Tulsa stockbroker who is vice chairman of the Pawnee Tribal Development Corp.

The five-member development group was formed a year ago by the tribe's elected, eight-member business council to pursue the Pawnees' economic independence.

"We're having to do some crawling before we do our walking," said De Geer, adding that the tribe is looking for assets it can turn into money.

First, there is bingo. Because it is on Indian land, the tribe operates outside the state law that limits bingo winnings to $100. Elsewhere, only non-profit, charitable organizations are granted bingo licenses.

On the tribal reserve, bingo jackpots can range up to $3,000 in a single game during special, Saturday afternoon sessions. The total payout on "super bingo" day is more than $10,000. Regular Monday and Thursday night sessions offer smaller jackpots.

The big jackpots draw bingo players from as far away as Wichita, Kan., Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Anderson said. A gymnasium, converted into a bingo hall with rows of tables and folding chairs, seats about 200 people.

ON BIG-JACKPOT DAYS, players buy packets of cards for about $50.

"The atmosphere on super bingo days is really charged," Anderson said.

The Creek and Ponca tribes operate similar bingo games on tribal land in Oklahoma. The Pawnees have offered big-time bingo since February. The Seminole tribe in Florida has made the game a multimillion-dollar enterprise.

Pawnee officials hope to emulate the Seminoles by building a bingo hall to seat up to 600 people. It will be the first tenant of the tribe's industrial tract. Anderson said it should be open before the end of the year and could produce revenue of $250,000 annually.

Another "excellent revenue producer" is the tribal "smoke shop," where tax-free cigarettes can be purchased for discounts of about 20 percent, DeGeer said.

Meanwhile, land is being prepared at the Pawnee Tribal Industrial Park for a variety of businesses, mostly small companies. The businesses, a handful of them being courted now, are expected to give employment preference to Pawnees, Anderson said. Funding for the site work is provided by the federal Economic Development Administration.

"THE FINANCIAL AND business community never saw fit to get in bed with the Indian tribes," said DeGeer. But he said incentives, such as low taxes and a concentrated labor supply, should convince industry the Pawnees "might be a pretty attractive business partner."

Michael Wallis, representative for Hood, Hope & Associates Inc., said the Pawnees are a unique client for the public relations firm.

"We're having to work very gently. It's not like a bank or an oil firm," Wallis said. "There is this tremendous pride."

Wallis said the tribe values its history of service to the United States cavalry as expert scouts and his company intends to retain the tribe's proud image.

"They don't want to go back to the old Pawnee Bill days," Wallis said, referring to the promoter who, around the turn of the century, ran a Wild West show that employed many Pawnees. "He was a white guy, kind of a scrawny version of Buffalo Bill, who really ripped them off."

Anderson said some of the proceeds from the tribe's activities will be used to convert the abandoned Indian school superintendent's home into a Pawnee museum. Other buildings on the tribal land will either be razed or renovated, he said.

The most important aim, however, is improving tribal social services such as burial assistance and scholarship assistance, Anderson said.

The tribe also hopes to be able to pay dividends to individual members, Anderson said, but most of the money will be plowed back into other money-making activities.

Chinese, Russians open exploratory talks

PEKING (AP) — After a break of almost three years, representatives of China and the Soviet Union today prepared to hold exploratory talks on improving strained relations between the two communist rivals.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid F. Ilyichev arrived Sunday with a small delegation for consultations that will begin Tuesday, foreign diplomatic sources said. The arrival was not announced in the state-run Chinese press.

Chinese, Soviet and foreign diplomatic sources have emphasized that the talks are the first step in resuming a dialogue between the two countries and are not expected to yield anything substantial.

They are neither normalization nor border talks, foreign sources say, but the Soviet side is expected to urge resumption of both.

It is the first high-level contact between China and the Soviet Union since normalization talks in Moscow in 1979, when Ilyichev headed the Soviet side. China broke off those talks after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in December 1979. Border talks last were held in Peking in June 1978.

"This is the most tentative first step and we expect nothing," said one West European diplomat. "They are talking about talking and testing the waters but relations can't get better until they talk about Afghanistan, Cambodia and Soviet troops on the Chinese border."

THE TALKS, EXPECTED TO last up to 10 days, will be held in strict secrecy and little news is expected. The Chinese Foreign Ministry has disclosed few details. In response to questions from foreign reporters, a spokesman said:

"According to the decision made by the Chinese and Soviet sides through consultations, Soviet Vice Foreign Minister Ilyichev has come to Beijing (Peking) for consultations with Chinese Vice Foreign Minister Qian Qichen on the question of Sino-Soviet relations."

The Soviets are guests of the Chinese government and are expected to be received at a significantly higher level than the Soviet Foreign Ministry's China specialist, Mikhail S. Kapitsa. He made three visits to China as the guest of the Soviet ambassador to urge China to resume official contacts.

The talks could be held at the Foreign Ministry, the Soviet Embassy or a foreign ministry guest house, diplomatic observers said.

The Soviet Union has been pressing for better relations because it wants to wean China away from the United States, Western diplomats say. Last month Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev said publicly he wished to improve ties with Peking.

RELATIONS BETWEEN CHINA and the Soviets were close in the years following the Chinese Communist civil- war victory in 1949, but they began to deteriorate in the late 1950s and early 1960s over ideological and territorial disputes. China accused the Kremlin of trying to dominate the world communist movement.

The Soviets abruptly withdrew all foreign aid in 1959 when China was already isolated by the West, embittering many Chinese leaders. Relations were further aggravated by border clashes along China-Soviet frontier.

China has repeatedly condemned the Soviets as the major threat to world peace, but now is less inhibited in publicizing efforts to improve relations with Moscow. Some observers attribute this change to China's declaration of an independent foreign policy course that attempts a balance between Soviet and U.S. interests.

Last August, China's top Kremlinologist Yu Hongliang visited Moscow for the first time since the normalization talks folded, and signaled to the Soviets that China was ready to seriously improve bilateral ties, diplomatic sources said.

No agenda and no preconditions have been set for the talks. China wants to reduce tensions with the Soviet Union, especially along the border, to create a better environment for its own modernization, foreign observers say.

Fundamental political relations cannot improve, China has said, until the Soviet Union withhdraws troops from Afghanistan, stops supporting Vietnam's invasion of Cambodia and removes troops from the Chinese border.

The two countries retain cool diplomatic relations, but no party-to-party relations and no prospects for closer Communist Party ties.

NATO to study Western security, Soviet trade

VAL DAVID, Quebec (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, unable to solve an internal dispute over the Soviet natural-gas pipeline, will study how to ensure that trade with Soviet-bloc nations does not weaken Western security.

After spending the weekend in informal discussions at a resort north of Montreal, foreign ministers from NATO nations decided Sunday to order a series of studies, Canadian Foreign Minister Allan J. MacEachen said.

"It is our intention to evaluate more deeply the economic implications of East-West relations," MacEachen said, speaking for colleagues at a news conference.

The talks were the first opportunity for Secretary of State George P. Shultz to meet all alliance counterparts, and the first time NATO foreign ministers have met privately, without agendas, delegations, or communiques.

The purpose of the studies — with form and timetable still undetermined — is to help establish "a comprehensive and global policy" on relations with the Soviet bloc, MacEachen said.

THE DISAGREEMENT BETWEEN the United States and key European allies over the Soviet natural-gas pipeline was mentioned, but did not dominate the discussions, the Canadian official said.

The Reagan administration, claiming the pipeline will make Western Europe too dependent on Soviet-supplied energy, has tried to block its construction by ordering Western European firms with U.S. licenses not to sell equipment for the project to the Soviets. Reagan also wants to stop the project to punish the Kremlin for what he calls its complicity in Poland's martial-law crackdown.

This has angered Britain, France, West Germany and Italy, which argue the pipeline will provide them crucial energy and jobs. Several European companies have defied Reagan's sanctions with their governments' approval.

It is the best-known example of disagreement within NATO on the need to let security concerns prevail over economic advantages to some alliance members.

"The pipeline was mentioned, and there certainly was a difference of opinion on that point," MacEachen said. "We didn't spend a lot of time sitting around the table talking about the pipeline."

The NATO studies will look at Western dependence on the East and the importance of Western financial credits to the Soviet Union and its allies, he said.

The first year's payment and buyer qualification will be calculated equivalent to a rate of 9¼% for 95% loan to value. Interest will be charged at a rate of 14¼% for the first 6 months of the loan. After the first 6 months interest will be charged at the most recent 6months Treasury Bill rate plus 4.25%. Payments on these mortgages are graduated so as to increase the principal and interest payments 7.50% each year for the next 4 years. At the end of the first 5 year period, the graduation in payments will cease. A new payment schedule will be computed using a variable rate mortgage to amortize the remaining balance over the remaining 25 years of the mortgage based upon the then current Treasury Bill rate plus 4.25%. The 7½% maximum increase can be more if the original loan principle exceeds 125%. At each 5 year anniversary date, the payment may be adjusted to allow the remaining payments to fully amortize the loan. ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE APPROXIMATELY 16¼%.
