BOND ELECTION CALLED FOR NEXT TUESDAY

Next Tuesday is the date set for the bond election, and it behooves every qualified voter to go to the polls and cast his vote for the betterment of our town. There are many reasons why the bonds should carry, perhaps the best one being that the saving in our insurance rates will offset to a great extent the small increase in taxation. The improvements proposed by the bond issue will add to the comfort and wealth of every one of our citizens. Our lives and property will be protected, our insurance rates will be reduced, it will safeguard health and make sanitation possible and in may ways make our town a better place in which to live, which will attract new citizens, more capital, more business, making a better, bigger and more prosperous community.

WILSON BROS. SIGN CONTRACT FOR YEAR'S ADV.

Frank P. and W. W. Wilson, who own and operate two of as good farms as can be found in this community, have signed a contract with The News for a year's advertising.

This is a forward step that is bound to be profitable to these gentlemen. While this is a pioneer step for farmers in this community, it is being practiced by business farmers in all successful farming communities. The time has passed when a man can farm just any old way and succeed; business methods must be applied to the farm as well as to the store and shop. We predict that Wilson Bros. ads will be read by many people who wish to keep informed as to what can be bought direct from the farm. Their ad his week is a timely one and it will pay you to look it up on another page of this paper.

STATE GAME WARDEN HERE

State Game and Fish Commissioner W. W. Boyd, together with State Deputies Garmon and Breedlove, visited in McLean Monday.

Mr. Boyd states that he is anxious to put some wild turkey, pheasants and deer in this country, if our people will co-operate with the state commission in protecting game. He also asked that those who want free fish to put in their application now for next spring shipments.

This is the first occasion that the State Warden has visited the Panhandle, and Mr. Boyd was impressed with our facilities for raising game. The gentleman wanted it understood that any community could secure game and fish for propagation if they would agree to protect it, but the state does not care to place game of any kind where it will not be protected.

Mr. Kibler has lived in towns several times the size of this, and says he knows of no country weekly that beats The News. This was one time when eavesdropping was a pleasant experience for the News man.

We were glad to get Mr. Kibler's opinion of The News, for he is an expert in pleasing the public, himself. Saturday was rather a pleasant day for The News. In line with the above compliment, we received more subscriptions than in any one day for some time past.

BOYS HAVE PECULIAR ACCIDENT

One day this week H. F Wingo and T. J. McCarty were pulling the pipe from a well with a car. Needing something from town, they told the boys to take the car and get it. The boys had forgotten about the car being tied to the well, and Gilbert Wingo started to drive off when the men saw him and called to him to stop. Gilbert looked around to hear what they were saying, and about that time the car reached the end of the rope, which brought them to a sudden stop. The McCarty boy was thrown through the windshield, cutting himself slightly about the face and head. A doctor was called to dress the wounds, and he is getting along nicely. The other boy was unhurt.

TO THE VOTERS OF WHEELER COUNTY

After making a very thorough canvass of the voters of Wheeler county, I have found that a great number of them are readers of the McLean News, so I take this method of expressing to them my appreciation of the interest they have shown in my behalf in my race for Tax Assessor. You have made me to know that your friendship is not for an hour, or a day, but for all time to come. If I am elected, I shall strive to merit the confidence you will have imposed in me. I shall certainly appreciate a fair and impartial consideration from every voter, and your support will be duly appreciated.

LIN W. GREER.

CHAUTAUQUA TO BE HERE JULY 27, 28, 29

The Radcliffe Chautauqua that has been arranged for by a number of our citizens will be in McLean for 3 days, July 27, 28 and 29. The Junior Worker will arrive two days before the Chautauqua opens to organize the children.

This will, perhaps, be the last guaranteed chautauqua shown in McLean, if we can judge by expressions from our citizenship. Towns all over the state, through their commercial bodies, are asking chautauquas to come to the town on a merit basis. People have come to feel that a chautauqua should stand on its own merits, the same as any other business.

The program for this year seems to be a good one, and we should help the local committee by buying season tickets as soon as put on sale, for the chautauqua people must have their pay the first day.

McLEAN MELON GROWERS PREPARE TO HANDLE CROP

By R. O. Dunkle

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock the McLean Melon Growers Ass'n. held a meeting to get in readiness to handle the melon crop. The crop this year is far above the average, and the McLean Association, alone, expects to ship over 300 car loads of melons. The Association also transacted other business of importance.

After the called meeting of the melon growers the Board of Directors met and discussed the election of a manager. The manager will be under the direction of the Board of Directors, and will be secretary-treasurer when qualified for the place, and practically all of the business of the Association will be transacted through him. Requisition will be made by the manager in plenty of time for the bookkeeping forms, paste for stem treatment, glue for labels, scale forms, loading receipts, inspector receipts, and in fact, all forms needed by the local Association.

A meeting of the Grain Sorghum Growers will meet in Amarillo on Friday and Saturday of this week. Arrangements are being made by the local committee to send a large delegation to this meeting. Among the best authorities on production, warehousing, financing, shipping, marketing, and other features of handling grain sorghums, will be present at the meeting. Bankers, growers, warehousemen, railroad traffic and agricultural men, Chamber of Commerce leaders, editors, county agents, extension service experts, feeders, elevators, millers, and other interested persons will be represented at the meeting.

The local Farm Bureau requests that all Farm Bureau members sign Grain Sorghum Contracts that were mailed to them some time ago, and return to the county agent. It is very imporant that each member, or any other farmer who intends to market grain sorghums, get one of these contracts and read it over. Grain sorghums are considered the chief crop of the Panhandle, ahd it is important that we market this product systematically and in an orderly manner if we ever intend to stabilize the price.

MARY MARIE

SYNOPSIS

PREFACE.—'Mary Marie" explains her apparent "double personality" and just why she is a "cross-current and a contradiction," she also tells her reasons for writing the diary—later to be a novel. The diary is commenced at Andersonville.

CHAPTER I.—Mary begins with Nurse Sarah's account of her (Mary's) birth, which seemingly interested her father, who is a famous astronomer, less than a new star which was discovered the same night. Her name is a compromise, her mother wanted to call her Viola and her father insisting on Abigail Jane. The child quickly learned that her home was in some way different from those of her small friends, and was puzzled thereat. Nurse Sarah tells her of her mother's arrival at Andersonville as a bride and how astonished they all were at the sight of the dainty eighteen-year old girl whom the sedate professor had chosen for a wife.

CHAPTER II.—Continuing her story, Nurse Sarah makes it plain why the household seemed a strange one to the child and howher father and mother drifted apart through misunderstanding, each too proud to in any way attempt to smooth over the situation.

CHAPTER III.—Mary tells of the time spent "out west" where the "perfectly all right and genteel and respectable" divorce was being arranged for, and her mother's (to her) unacountable behavior. By the court's decree the child is to spend six months of the year with her mother and six months with her father. Boston is Mother's home, and she and Mary leave Andersonville for that city to spend the first six months.

CHAPTER IV.—At Boston Mary becomes "Marie." She is delighted with her new home, so different from the gloomy house at Andersonville. The number of gentlemen who call on her mother leads her to speculate on the possibility of a new father. She classes the callers as "prospective suitors," finally deciding the choice is to be between "the violinist" and a Mr. Harlow. A conversation she overhears between her mother and Mr. Harlow convinces her that it will not be that gentleman, and "to violinist" seems to be the likely man. Mrs. Anderson receives a letter from "Aunt Abigail Anderson, her former husband's sister, whi is keeping house for him, reminding her that "Mary" is expected at Andersonville for the six months she is to spend with her father. Her mother is distressed, but has no alternative, and "Marie" departs for Andersonville.

The first beginning was a nice smile, and a "Glad to see ye home, Miss," from John, as he touched his hat, and the next was a "How do you do, Mary?" from Aunt Jane. And I knew right off that first minute that I wasn't going to like Aunt Jane—just the way she said that "Mary," and the way she looked me over from head to foot.

Aunt Jane is tall and thin, and wears black—not the pretty, stylish black, but the "I-don't-care" rusty black—and a stiff white collar. Her eyes are the kind that says, "I'm surprised at you!" all the time, and her mouth is the kind that never shows any teeth when it smiles, and doesn't smile much, anyway. Her hair is some gray, and doesn't kink or curl anywhere; and I knew right off the first minute she looked at me that she didn't like mine, 'cause it did curl.

I was pretty sure she didn't like my clothes, either. I've since found out she didn't—but more of that anon. (I just love that word "anon.") And I just knew she disapproved of my hat. But she didn't say anything—not in words—and after we'd attended to my trunk, we went along to the carriage and got in. My stars! I didn't suppose horses could go so slow. Why, we were ages just going a block. You see I'd forgotten; and without thinking I spoke right out.

"My! Horses are slow, aren't they?" I cried. "You see, Grandpa has an auto, and—"

"Mary!"—just like that she interrupted—Aunt Jane did. (Funny how old folks can do what they won't let you do. Now if I'd interrupted anybody like that!) "You may as well understand at once," went on Aunt Jane, "that we are not interested in your grandfather's auto, or his house, or anything that is his." (I felt as if I was hearing the catechism in church!) "And that the less reference you make to your life in Boston the better we shall be pleased. As I said before, we are not interested. Besides, while under your father's roof, it would seem to me very poor taste, indeed, for you to make constant reference to things you may have been doing while not under his roof. The situation is deplorable enough, however you take it, without making it positively unbearable. You will remember, Mary?"

Mary said, "Yes, Aunt Jane," very polite and proper; but I can tell you that inside of Mary, Marie was just boiling.

Unbearable, indeed!

We didn't say anything more all the way home. Naturally, I was not going to, after that speech; and Aunt Jane said nothing. So silence reigned supreme.

Then we got home. Things looked quite natural, only there was a new maid in the kitchen, and Nurse Sarah wasn't there. Father wasn't there, either. And, just as I suspected, 'twas a star that was to blame; only this time the star was the moon—an eclipse; and he'd gone somewhere out west so he could see it better.

He isn't coming back till next week; and when I think how he made me come on the first day, so as to get in the whole six months, when all the time he did not care enough about it to be here himself, I'm just mad—I mean, the righteously indignant kind of mad—for I can't help thinking how poor Mother would have loved those extra days with her.

Aunt Jane said I was to have my old room, and so, as soon as I got here, I went right up and took off my hat and coat, and pretty quick they brought up my trunk, and I unpacked it; and I didn't hurry about it, either. I wasn't a bit anxious to get downstairs again to Aunt Jane. Besides, I may as well own up, I was crying—a little. Mother's room was right across the hall, and it looked so lonesome, and I couldn't help remembering how different this homecoming was from the one in Boston, six months ago.

Well, at last I had to go down to dinner—I mean supper—and, by the way, I made another break on that. I called it dinner right out loud, and never thought—till I saw Aunt Jane's face.

"Supper will be ready directly," she said, with cold and icy emphasis. "And may I ask you to remember, Mary, please, that Andersonville has dinner at noon, not at six o'clock."

"Yes, Aunt Jane," said Mary, polite and proper again. (I shan't say what Marie said inside.)

We didn't do anything in the evening but read and go to bed at nine o'clock. I wanted to run over to Carrie Heywood's; but Aunt Jane said no, not till morning. (I wonder why young folks never can do things when they want to do them, but must always wait till morning or night or noon, or some other time!)

In the morning I went up to the schoolhouse. I planned it so as to get there at recess, and I saw all the girls except one that was sick, and one that was away. We had a perfectly lovely time, only everybody was talking all at once so that I don't know now what was said. But they seemed glad to see me. I know that. Maybe I'll go to school next week. Aunt Jane says she thinks I ought to, when it's only the first of May. She's going to speak to Father when he comes next week.

She was going to speak to him about my clothes; then she decided to attend to those herself, and not bother him. She doesn't like my dresses. She came into my room and asked to see my things. My! But didn't I hate to show them to her? Marie said she wouldn't; but Mary obediently trotted to the closet and brought them out one by one.

Aunt Jane turned them around with the tips of her fingers, all the time sighing and shaking her head. When I'd brought them all out, she shook her head again and said they would not do at all—not in Andersonville; that they were extravagant, and much too elaborate for a young girl; that she would see the dressmaker and arrange that I had some serviceable blue and brown serges at once.

Blue and brown serge, indeed! But, there, what's the use? I'm Mary now. I keep forgetting that; though I don't see how I can forget it—with Aunt Jane around.

But, listen. A funny thing happened this morning. Something came up about Boston, and Aunt Jane asked me a question. Then she asked another and another, and she kept me talking till I guess I talked 'most a whole half-hour about Grandpa Desmond, Aunt Hattie, Mother, and the house, and what we did, and, oh, a whole lot of things. And here, just two days ago, she was telling me that she wasn't interested in Grandpa Desmond, his home, or his daughter, or anything that was his!

There's something funny about Aunt Jane.

ONE WEEK LATER.

Father's come. He came yesterday. But I didn't know it, and I came running downstairs, ending with a little bounce for the last step. And there, right in front of me in the hall was—Father.

I guess he was as much surprised as I was. Anyhow, he acted so. He just stood stock-still and stared, his face turning all kinds of colors.

"You?" he gasped, just above his breath. Then suddenly he seemed to remember. "Why, yes, yes, to be sure. You are here, aren't you? How do you do, Mary?"

He came up then and held out his hand, and I thought that was all he was going to do. But, after a funny little hesitation, he stooped and kissed my forehead. Then he turned and went into the library with very quick steps, and I didn't see him again till at the supper-table.

At the supper-table he said again, "How do you do, Mary?" Then he seemed to forget all about me. At least he didn't say anything more to me; for three or four times, when I glanced up, I found him looking at me. But just as soon as I looked back at him he turned his eyes away and cleared his throat, and began to eat or to talk to Aunt Jane.

After dinner—I mean supper—he went out to the observatory, just as he always used to. Aunt Jane said her head ached and she was going to bed. I said I guessed I would step over to Carrie Heywood's; but Aunt Jane said, certainly not; that I was much too young to be running around nights in the dark. Nights! And it was only seven o'clock, and not dark at all! But of course I couldn't go.

Aunt Jane went upstairs, and I was left alone. I didn't feel a bit like reading; besides, there wasn't a book or a magazine anywhere asking you to read. They just shrieked, "Touch me not!" behind the glass doors in the library. I hate sewing. I mean Marie hates it. Aunt Jane says Mary's got to learn.

For a time I just walked around the different rooms downstairs, looking at the chairs and tables and rugs all just so, as if they'd been measured with a yardstick. Marie jerked up a shade and pushed a chair crooked and kicked a rug up at one corner; but Mary put them all back properly—so there wasn't any fun in that for long.

After a while I opened the parlor door and peeked in. They used to keep it open when Mother was here; but Aunt Jane doesn't use it. I knew where the electric push button was, though, and I turned on the light.

Before I got the light on, the chairs and sofas loomed up like ghosts in their linen covers. And when the light did come on, I saw that all the old shiver places were there. Not one was missing. Great Grandfather Anderson's coffin plate on black velvet, the wax cross and flowers that had been used at three Anderson funerals, the hair wreath made of all the hair of seventeen dead Andersons and five live ones—no, no, I don't mean all the hair, but hair from all seventeen and five. Nurse Sarah used to tell me about it.

Well, as I said, all the shiver places were there, and I shivered again as I looked at them; then I crossed over to Mother's old piano, opened it, and touched the keys. I love to play. There wasn't any music there, but I don't need music for lots of my pieces. I know them by heart—only they're all gay and lively, and twinkly-toe dancy. Marie music. I don't know a one that would be proper for Mary to play.

But I was just tingling to play something, and I remembered that Father was in the observatory, and Aunt Jane upstairs in the other part of the house where she couldn't possibly hear. So I began to play. I played the very slowest piece I had, and I played softly at first; but I know I forgot, and I know I hadn't played two pieces before I was having the best time ever, and making all the noise I wanted to.

I Was Having the Best Time Ever, and Making All the Noise I Wanted To.

Then all of a sudden I had a funny feeling as if somebody somewhere was watching me; but I just couldn't turn around. I stopped playing, though, at the end of that piece, and then I looked; but there wasn't anybody in sight. But the wax cross was there, and the coffin plate, and that awful hair wreath; and suddenly I felt as if the room was just full of folks with great staring eyes. I fairly shook with shivers, but I managed to shut the piano and get over to the door where the light was. Then, a minute later, out in the big silent hall, I crept on tiptoe toward the stairs. I knew then, all of a sudden, why I'd felt somebody was listening. There was. Across the hall in the library in the big chair before the fire sat—Father! And for 'most a whole half-hour I had been banging away at that piano on marches and dance music! My! But I held my breath and stopped short, I can tell you. But he didn't move nor turn, and a minute later I was safely by the door and halfway up the stairs.

I stayed in my room the rest of that evening; and for the second time since I've been here I cried myself to sleep.

IF ALL WHO HATE

If all who hate would love us,
And all our loves were true;
The stars that swing above us
Would brighten in the blue.
If cruel words were kisses
And every scowl a smile,
A better world than this is
Would hardly be worth while;
If purses would not tighten
To meet a brother's need,
The load we bear would lighen
Above the grave of greed.

If those who whine would whistle,
And those who languish laugh,
The rose would rout the thistle,
The grain outrun the chaff;
If hearts were only folly,
If grieving were forgot,
And tears of melancholy
Were things that now are not,
Then love would kneel to duty,
And all the world would seem
A bridal bower of beauty,
A dream within a dream.

If men would cease to worry,
And women cease to sigh,
And all be glad to bury
Whatever has to die;
If neighbor spake to neighbor
As love demands of all,
The rust would eat the saber,
The spear stay on the wall;
Then every day would glisten,
And every eye would shine,
And God would pause and listen,
And life would be divine

PAMPA WATER WORKS BONDS SOLD AT PREMIUM

At a meeting of the City Council at Mayor Reid's office Monday afternoon, bids for the water works and sewer bonds were opened and read. There were five bids submitted in all, but owing to some slight irregularities, two of these were temporarily disqualified. The three bids which were properly made out and accompanied by certified check as required, ranged from $2,950 below par, to $200 premium.

The bids were immediately rejected by the council and another bid from the Dallas Bond and Trust Co., was turned in by A. C. Rippy, acting as their agent. This bid was for par, accrued interest and a premium of $856, and was the highest one received. Another bid was received by wire from Kansas City, and offered a premium of $600 above par.

The Council considered the two best bids, and late in the afernoon, after communicating with the Dallas bidders by wire, accepted their bid, conditionally.

The successful bidders agreed to have their attorneys render an opinion upon the validity of the bonds within 20 days after receipt of the bond transcript and proceedings.

When this final approval is made, the bidders are to then turn over the cash and take the bonds.

The bond buyers who were present Monday stated that the $856 premium was an excellent bid, when the size of the town, taxable valuation, etc., were taken into consideration.

The bond market reached its peak some twenty or thirty days ago, but the council was at no time offered more than the price received Monday.

Engineer Doucette is now busily engaged preparing plans and specifications for the plant, and making preparations to let contracts for wells, and other work which may be started at an early date.

As soon as th specifications are completed the bid for general construction work will be let, and it is believed, barring any unnecessary delays, that the work can be completed before the holidays.

Among the matters coming up for consideration at the Council meeting was that of providing an office for the city to handle the business during the construction period, and thereafter to be used as an office for the water works and sewerage system. W. M. Craven and Joe M. Smith were appointed by Mayor Reid to investigate the proposition and report at a later date.—Pampa News.

The "smile" slogan may have been overworked the last few years, but it is wonderful what a smile will buy. The cheerful merchant is the man who gets the business. A smile will buy business and dealing with the man who does not favors of all kinds. We all enjoy mention anything disagreeable. Any man who depends on the good will of the public for a living, owes a cheerful disposition to his customers, else he will not hold custom long.

****

One of the best arguments for the proposed bond issue we have heard was advanced by one of its supporters in answer to the question if there were any towns as small as ours with improvements of the kind our bonds will buy; the answer was that there were none, for as soon as bonds were voted the population began to increase. We have reached our limit under present conditions, but with improvements such as the bonds will provide, there will be no limit to our growth. If we want our town to progress, we must vote for the bonds; to vote otherwise means retrogression.

We need obedience to law more than we do law enforcement. This means that faith in our form of government and loyalty to it should be so ingrained in our beings that we would have no desire to violate the law; no matter what our personal opinion of any particular law should be. A great many men who violate the Volstead law try to make it appear that this law is in a different class to other laws, but there is no difference, and a citizen owes the same duty to the expressed will of the people in this matter as in any other.

With the many things confronting us for immediate attention, we are likely to forget our next term of school until Sept. 1st. This will serve as a reminder that McLean needs a live Parent-Teachers Association. One of the last things Supt. Cain said when he left for the summer vacation was an endorsement of the Parent-Teachers Association. We suggest that this summer is a good time to organize and develop plans that can be put into effect as soon as school opens.

It has been said that if the only thing a man got from advertising was cash profits, there wouldn't be nearly so much advertisers. The satisfaction of having the good opinion of nearly all the worth-while people in the country means more to some people than a big run of business.—Quanah Tribune-Chief.

The Clara Smith Hammon picture was barred from the picture show at McLean, but was taken to the town of Alanreed and exhibited. Half the town of McLean followed it over to that place. The picture was shown in Canadian two nights and large crowds saw it. Amarillo barred the picture from that city. Despite the fact that the public condemned the picture, it is being shown the country over because the owners show a coarse desire to capitalize the homicide, and have no trait of refinement such as would prompt most people to close the incident as soon as possible. Whatever sympathy the public had for the Clara Smith Hammon woman at the trial has been dispelled by the shameless way in which she has paraded her past conduct before the public; the parading of the pictures shows that her temperament is naturally coarse and her standard of life built on a low level.—Canadian Record.

It is a healthful sign when producers, exhibitors and patrons alike, refuse to have anything to do with moving pictures that depict the life of criminals. Legitimate producers have banned all pictures of this kind; the only way they can be had is through wildcat fellows who depend upon morbid curiousity to sell their wares. Some argue that all pictures are bad, and that no distinction should be made, but if they would stop to think they would see that a confessed criminal should not be awarded by allowing him to show his life of crime on the screen. It is an admitted fact that the movies is one of the greatest forces we have today. If allowed to show evil pictures, then we may expect to reap an evil harvest, but on the other hand, if made educational, they can be used for good. And this matter rests with the public, for the producer and exhibitor alike try to give the public what it wants.—McLean News.

There is a great force behind the motion pictures, whether this force be for good or bad. The present tendency of motion pictures is for the betterment of same. Will Hays, the man who is now acting as national censurer for the motion picture industry, is bringing about a great change and placing the motion picture industry upon a higher moral plane. How about Fatty Arbuckle? Do you ever hear of Fatty any more? It was Mr. Hays that put the ban on Fatty's pictures. Fatty is just as capable of entertaining the American people today as he was before he got into trouble over his disreputable conduct, but the American people haven't the same regard for Fatty now as then. Public sentiment is a great force for good. Public sentiment must be the product of education, of moral and religious training. When public sentiment is thus trained, better conditions always result in every phase of life. Public sentiment is demanding cleaner pictures. Public sentiment is demanding that pictures be shown of a moral and educational uplift, and public sentiment will win. Will Hays is the instrument in the hands of public sentiment. Motion pictures can be a blessing to mankind or they can be a curse. The way they have been going the past half-dozen years in matter of picturing on the screen semi-nude women, society scenes where questionable conduct is brought prominently to view, crimes pictured, etc., was adding much to the wave of immorality that was sweeping over this country. We are truly glad that the motion picture industry is undergoing a change for the better.—Lockey Beacon.

TRIED TO PRINT THE TRUTH

A Kansas editor announced that he would try for one week to print the truth, and he is still in the hospital. He did not get by the first day. The following item appeared in Monday's issue and now the boys are getting out the paper. This is what he said:

"Married, Miss Sylvia Rhodes to James Cannaham, last Sunday evening at the Baptist church. The bride was an ordinary town girl who didn't know any more than a rabbit about cooking and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means, and has a gait like a duck. The groom is an up-to-date and has been a loafer, living off the folks all his life and don't amount to shucks. They will have a hard life while they live together.—Ex.

NO BUCKLE HARNESS

Why does buckle harness need patching so often and wear out so quickly?

Here are two reasons why NO BUCKLE harness wears longer:

1st. There is no friction on rings, or dees, which wears the strap in two.

2nd. Because there are no buckles to tear the straps.

Friction is destroying every old style harness in use.

STREET FAKIR GETS MONEY

A very smooth street fakir visited Claude Saturday afternoon and relieved several of the men and boys of some of their hard earned money. His first stunt after drawing the crowd with a fake butcher knife stuck through his wrist, was to give away cuff links. After this he propose to sell an imitation diamond stick pin. Several bit. Next he began selling $5 razors that cost him 22c, for $2. In some instances he gave them back their money, allowed them to keep the razor and gave them a dollar on the side for good measure. This made the "biting" take hold and in a short time some of them had two or three razors each. But they had been promised a present, and why not wait and get it? A double x the fakir made on the side of the razor box, with his gentle instructions, "Watch the man who ges this razor," made more suckers bite and bite hard. They received their present as promised, a brass ring that cost less than 1c a dozen. The fakir then cranked his jitney, thanked the suckers for their patronage and put it in high leaving town. It is very strange that men will bite at such street fakirs' spells, but they will do it when they need their money for something worth while. Some of the boys said it taught them a lesson. Will there be other suckers when a street faker comes to our town again?—Claude News.

NEW MOTTOES MADE BY THE MOTOR

Still motors run sweet.

Home is where the car is.

A soft tire turneth away cash.

While there's gas there's hope.

Fools pass on hills and curves.

A wise driver maketh a glad auto.

It is better to be slow than sorry.

Declines make the wheels go faster.

Dry springs squeak louder than "birds."

To speed is human; to get caught, a fine.

As the wheel is bent so the car will go.

Where there's a nail there's a puncture.

A body's as old as its paint; a motor's as old as it pulls.

Spin and the world spins with you; stall and you stall alone.

ABSENTEE VOTING LAW TO BE IN EFFECT THIS YEAR

Austin, June 30.—The new absentee voting law enacted by the 37th Legislature will be in operation for the first time at the coming State Democratic primary election on July 22. Two methods for voting by the absentee voter are provided. One of these permits a voter who is absent from his county on the day of the election to file his ballot with the County Clerk before leaving home, the filing to be made not more than ten days nor less than three days prior to the date of the primary election.

The other method is that an absentee voter may go before a notary public and make affidavit to be sent by the notary to the clerk of the voter's home county. A ballot is then sent by the clerk to the notary and the ballot, after being prepared by the voter, is returned by the notary to the County Clerk. The voter under the law must file his affidavit with the notary not more than twenty days nor less than ten days prior to the date of the primary. This law applies only to primary elections

ONE ON THE "DOC"

A worker had both his thumbs injured one day, and he applied at the medical department for treatment. As he was having his injured lunch-hooks dressed, he turned pleadingly to the doctor who was bandaging his hands, and said:

"Doctor, do you think I will be able to play the piano when I get well?"

"Certainly, you will be able to play the piano," said the doctor emphatically.

"That's funny," remarked the worker; "I never could play one before."

"Waiter, this coffee is nothing but mud!"

"Yes, sir; it was ground this morning."

THE OLD BLACK HEN

Said the little red rooster, "Gosh all hemlock, things are tough;
Seems that worms are getting scarcer, and I cannot find enough.
What's become of all those fat ones is a mystery to me;
There were thousands thru that rainy spell, but now where can they be?"
The old black hen who heard him didn't grumble or complain,
She had gone through lots of dry spells, she had lived through floods of rain,
So she flew up on the grindstone and gave her claws a whet,
As she said, "I've never seen the time when there were not worms to get."
She picked a new and undug spot; the earth was hard and firm;
The little rooster jeered "New ground, that's no place for a worm."
The old hen just spread her feet, she dug both fast and free,
"I must go to the worms," she said, "the worms won't come to me."
The rooster vainly spent the day, through habit, by the ways
Where fat round worms had passed in squads back in the rainy days.
When nightfall found him supperless, he growled in accents rough,
"I'm hungry as a fowl can be—conditions sure are tough."
He turned to the old black hen and said, "It's worse for you,
For you're not only hungry, but you must be tired, too.
I rested while I watched for worms, so I feel fairly perk,
But how are you, without worms, too, and after all that work?"
The old black hen hopped to her perch and dropped her eyes to sleep,
And murmured in a drowsy tone, "Young man, hear this and weep:
I'm full of worms and happy, for I've dined both long and well.
The worms are there as always—but I had to dig like hell."—Exchange.

EVENING

Life's little day is fading fast;
Upon the mountain's brow
The sinking sun is gleaming red;
The shadows lengthen now,
The twilight hush comes on apace,
And soon the evening star
Will light us to those chambers dim,
Where dreamless sleepers are.
And when the curfew bell is rung
That calls us all to rest,
And we have left all worldly things
At Azreal's own behest;
O, may some truthful mourner rise
And say of you or me:
"Gee whiz, I'm sorry that he's dead!
He was a honey bee!
Whate'er his joo, he did his best;
He put on all his steam!
In every stunt he had to do
He was a four-horse team;
He thought that he was placed on earth
To help his fellow-guys;
He never wore a frosty face,
And balked at weeping eyes;
The hard luck pilgrim always got
A handout at his door,
And any friend could help himself
To all he had in store;
He tried to make his humble home
The gayest sort of camp,
Till Death, the king of bogies came
And 'slugged him in the lamp.'
I don't believe a squarer guy
Existed in the land,
And Death was surely off his base
When this galoot was canned.—Walt Mason.

TIME HAD BROUGHT CHANGES

In the days when Uncle Joe and Aunt Jane were courting, they sat in the garden one night under a summer moon, silent and adoring.

"Joe, dear," suddenly said Aunt Jane at last, "I want to ask you something."

"Ask me anything, darling."

"Something is tickling my neck," she whispered. "If I let go one of your hands to drive it away would you mind very much?"

Their home is now noted for its extreme neatness, and Uncle Joe has been thoroughly trained to keep it neat; how thoroughly is shown by the fact that on a recent afternoon he went into the kitchen to get a drink. For a moment Uncle Joe stood before the sink, gazing at the shining faucets. "Guess you've just washed up the sink, ain't you?" he inquired at last.

"Yes, I have," she replied. "Why?"

"Well," exclaimed Uncle Joe with a slight sigh, "I did think I'd relish a drink of water, but I guess I can get along without it."—Los Angeles Times.
