'Close vote' anticipated on Contra aid

By TIM AHERN

WASHINGTON (AP) — With congressional votes looming on President Reagan's proposal to give $100 million to guerrillas fighting Nicaragua's leftist government, each side insists that it will win a close vote.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Tuesday, "We believe we will win," and added that he expected no changes in Reagan's package, despite opponents' predictions that the White House will have to compromise.

The president himself declined to predict Tuesday night what the outcome would be, telling reporters at a state dinner for Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, "In all my years as a sportscaster, I never predicted the end of a game."

At about the same time, Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., the chief Democratic vote counter, told reporters, "We win. It's conclusive, not overwhelming, but conclusive."

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., apparently agreed with Foley. He said Reagan was picking up votes, but added, "I think they're a bit short" in the House.

The Democratic-controlled House was scheduled today to begin 10 hours of debate on Reagan's plan, and a vote has been tentatively scheduled for early Thursday afternoon.

Because of the way the current law is written, the House vote must be a simple "yes" or "no" on Reagan's proposal, with no substitutes or compromises permitted.

Reagan has been lobbying hard to win his program, which includes $30 million in non-lethal aid, such as medicine and clothing, and $70 million that could be used for military aid, including U.S. trainers.

The current package of $27 million in non-lethal aid expires March 31.

After the House decides, the fight moves to the Republican-controlled Senate, where both sides also have predicted victory. A vote there is scheduled for next week.

In the Senate, unlike the House, compromise proposals will be allowed, and some opponents of Reagan's plan have said the chamber might approve a compromise plan, which then would have to go back to the House for another vote.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he thought Reagan was gaining ground, but added that "it's a horse race to the finish line as to whether people cross over."

Reagan met Tuesday with 20 more members of Congress, trying to pick up votes. Speakes admitted that some legislators have talked about trading their votes for administration help on other projects.

Mel Hume is riding a horse cross country to raise money for the Statue of Liberty restoration project. He passed through Midland Tuesday.

Rider carries torch for Lady Liberty

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

The American public is being left out of fund-raising efforts for the Statue of Liberty, according to a man riding a horse through Midland Tuesday on his way to Ellis Island.

"A lot of people think corporations are putting the Statue of Liberty together...I feel the American public is being left out of this," said Mel Hume.

Hume is raising money for the statue's restoration while riding a horse from Santa Barbara, Calif. to New York City with one small business and individuals as sponsors.

"It's not like they went to the average person and said we need you," he said.

"One million matches," not a few corporations, will make Lady Liberty's torch bright, Hume said.

Hume, who has raise $3,600 of a $36,000 goal, has traveled about 1,600 miles of a 4,000-mile trip to New York City. The 37-year-old former sign painter and Vietnam veteran left his hometown of Lompoc, near Santa Barbara, on Dec. 31 and hopes to reach the statue by July 4.

The trip sprung out of his 7-year-old son's desire to see the statue and his dream of traveling across country on a horse.

His son, Brandon, rode with him on the first two days of the trip and will rejoin his father in Washington, D.C., to accompany him on the last days of the ride.

Mustang, a mustang Hume bought and tamed, and Paint are transporting him across the continent. If he completes his trip, Mustang will be the first wild horse to cross the continent, Hume claims.

Once he completes the trip, Hume says he plans to write a book to guide other horse enthusiasts across the nation or on long trips.

"There's probably not a dozen of us who can tell you what it's like," he said.

Those planning long trips on horseback need to know many things, Hume said.

For instance, horses are considered vehicles and you can't drink beer on a horse just like you can't in a car, said Hume, who drinks two beers every morning as a high calorie source.

"You need all the calories you can get," he said.

Knowledge of the states' different gun laws also is useful, says Hume, who carries a gun for protection. He's only used the gun once: In Arizona he shot a rabid wild dog that attacked his horses.

It's a trip of a lifetime, but Hume says the days of traveling 3 mph can be mundane.

"If you think it's all glory, it's not. You don't know America until you walk it or go on a horse.

"A lot of days you have to be concerned about finding water and feeding the horses.

"You don't sleep where it's convenient for you. You sleep where it's convenient for the horses."

However, Hume admits he is fulfilling a dream many people never get a chance at.

"Not many people are going to do it, but America is made up of dreamers."

Crime prevention task force proposed by candidates

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland city council candidate Kelly Fish and Odessa mayoral candidate Vern Foreman today called for the development of a task force which would join together the Midland-Odessa law enforcement and crime prevention agencies.

The purpose of the task force, said Fish, during a joint press conference, would be to "build a criminal intelligence and law enforcement network which will make it very difficult for the criminal element to find a safe haven in either of our communities."

OPEC asks other producers to join in oil production cuts

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC today asked five independent oil producers to join the cartel in cutting oil production in order to drive up prices, delegation officials said. They said no firm commitments were given.

The meeting with representatives of Mexico, Oman, Malaysia, Egypt and Angola followed three days of inconclusive OPEC talks on ways to stabilize oil prices.

Fernando Pegado, a member of the Angolan delegation, said OPEC did not request specific production cuts. He said his country was willing to help the cartel try to reverse the price slide.

"We are just talking in terms of cooperation, and we (in Angola) feel that we can cooperate," he said.

The talks broke off after about two hours. Pegado said they would resume later in the day.

Gholamreza Aghazadeh, Iran's oil minister, told reporters after the morning session that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had asked non-OPEC countries to join it in cutting production.

"We have told them ... we are in the same boat," Aghazadeh said, speaking through an interpreter. "We told them we have to manage production. The more we cut the more we can increase the prices."

The most important independent producers — the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and Norway — are not taking part in the talks with OPEC, thus diminishing the likely impact of any production cut on the oil market.

During a break in the talks, Javier Espinosa Teran, the Ecuadoran oil minister, confirmed there was a "general consensus" within OPEC that it must substantially reduce its own oil production to halt the price slide.

On Tuesday, Kuwait's oil minister said most OPEC officials were ready to abandon their failing strategy of trying to win a bigger share of the market. But he said they disagreed on how to cut production.

Some countries, including Iran and Algeria, wanted steep reductions, to an overall level of 12 million barrels a day. That compares with estimated current production of about 17 million.

Most of the others said the limit ought to be higher. The officials also disagreed over how to share the cuts and ways of ensuring against cheating, according to officials from several delegations.

This approach — restraining production to dry up the oil glut and stop the price decline — was pursued by OPEC for nearly four years starting in 1982. But it unraveled under the financial strains that prompted many member countries to exceed their agreed output limits.

Last December, the cartel declared it no longer would tolerate the erosion of its market share, and would fight non-OPEC countries for oil sales.

The strategy appears to have backfired, succeeding only in driving down prices to levels untolerable to OPEC. It did not increase OPEC's market share.

Eye surgeon, patients help toddler get sight

DALLAS (AP) — An eye doctor and two of his patients combined to donate thousands of dollars toward surgery for a 2-year-old Mexican girl who suffered from impaired vision.

The opthalmologist donated all his time to perform the last in a series of surgical procedures that cured Gabriela Guadarrama.

The girl's parents said their first and only child had been born in their Mexican hometown of Piedras Negras with eyes so clouded with cataracts that local physicians had performed one operation, then given up trying to treat her.

"Go to the United States," Anna Guadarrama said the doctors told her. "Maybe someone there can help."

The benefactors, who asked not to be identified, contributed money for the last surgery.

"It is a miracle," Carmen Gonzales of Dallas, Anna's aunt, told the newspaper. "Thank God for this doctor. Thank the Lord that Gaby's OK."

Growth rate 'sluggish' in last quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy slumped to a sluggish growth rate of 0.7 percent from October through December, the weakest performance in a year, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department revised its estimate of fourth-quarter growth in the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, downward for the third time, emphasizing just how weakly the economy performed last year.

The latest revision put growth for the entire year at 2.2 percent, the slowest pace since a 2.5 percent decline during the recession year of 1982.

Despite the weakness in the final three months of 1985, many analysts are predicting a substantial rebound in growth this year.

The administration is calling for growth this year of 4 percent. Many private economists have revised their forecasts in recent months to come close to that projection.

The new-found optimism stems from the belief that the economy will receive a substantial boost from the sharp decline in oil prices. Falling oil prices are expected to boost spending on other items as well as helping to hold down inflation.

The government said today that inflation, as measured by an index tied to the GNP, rose at an annual rate of 3.9 percent from October through December, up considerably from the 2.7 percent rate of the third quarter.

For the entire year, however, this price index, which measures a fixed set of goods, rose just 3.6 percent, the best performance since 1972.

The weakness for the year was confirmed in a companion report that showed corporate profits fell 2.2 percent last year, the first decline since 1982, when after-tax profits plunged 22.2 percent during the recession.

For the final three months of 1985, after-tax profits rose 6 percent. Analysts say this is a good signal that American companies will enjoy a better year in 1986.

Chancellor presents free enterprise award

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The recipient of the Texas Commerce Bank's 11th annual Silver Bar award is Tommy Salmon, who came to Ector County with his parents from Graham nearly 50 years ago.

In presenting the award to Salmon, who owns G.Q. Salmon & Son Inc., an oilfield service firm, TCB president Ron Fancher observed he served two terms on the Odessa City Council, is a member of the parks board, active in the Boys Club of Odessa and has long been concerned for the youth of Ector County. Salmon's company has sponsored many young men through little league, pony league and farm league baseball and that he has provided many students with lunch money and clothing to attend state competitions.

On hand for the presentation were Salmon's wife, Doris Ann, and their three children.

University of Texas Chancellor Dr. Hans Mark, addressing the luncheon gathering at the Holiday Inn Centre, said, "I think the reason for giving this award today is particularly appropriate in view of the problems we face."

Noting that the award recognized contributions to the free enterprise system, Dr. Mark broke the phrase down, observing free means having the freedom to choose, while enterprise means it is not enough to sit and do nothing. "It meansyou've got to make choices and then go do something about them," he said.

Dr. Mark spoke of the importance of plowing back into the area some of the revenue generated by oil production. He related this to UT regents approval of establishment of the Center for Energy, Technology and Economic Diversification and the role it is expected to play in the future.

Kirby thinks taxes might have to be raised to fund schools

AUSTIN (AP) — The 1987 Legislature might have to consider raising taxes to fund public schools, says Education Commissioner William Kirby.

In a Tuesday speech to the Texas PTA, Kirby said he fears lawmakers struggling to balance the state budget might look to cut education funds.

"I don't believe the budgets of this state can be cut enough to balance the budget without cutting public school education. That's why I'm so concerned," he said.

But the schools can't afford cuts, Kirby added, saying, "I think it's extremely important that everyone consider that unless there are some kind of revenue enhancements this next time, we simply cannot keep from cutting back on public school education."

According to recent forecasts, the 1987 Legislature could come to town facing a $1.3 billion shortfall. It will take $400 million more a year to pay for the growth of public school enrollment, according to Kirby.

"Now is not the time for retrenchment. Now is not the time to begin looking at balancing the budget on the back of public school education," he said in a speech at the Capitol.

Many Texans consider higher school taxes a good investment, Kirby said.

"They don't mind paying taxes if they can be assured they are getting something for the money they are paying. I think that's what happened with House Bill 72. I think they didn't mind giving teachers raises, they didn't mind spending a lot of money on equity if they could be sure that academic achievement is being provided.

"I think the same thing will be true in the next session of the Legislature," he said.

He urged the PTA members to let their legislators know "whether or not you're willing to support extra taxes for quality education."

Gov. Mark White told reporters Tuesday, "I've been the one to stand against the cuts."

But he had no comment when asked if "revenue enhancements" might be needed for education.

In his speech to the PTA members, the governor said he is concerned about how some school districts are spending state money.

"I have been distressed when I see funds being sent to districts today — funds that were brought about because I asked the people of Texas for additional revenues — that are not being used to enhance teacher salaries and are not being used to provide additional classrooms in this state," White said.

Teachers who didn't finish test can retake it

AUSTIN (AP) — State education officials have promised teachers who did not get enough time to finish the recent competency test that they will be allowed to retake the exam at a later date.

Of the 205,000 educators who were registered to take the test March 10, only 5,969 did not report to their assigned exam sites.

Nine hundred of the absentees had notified the Texas Education Agency they were either retiring from the education profession at the end of the school year or were out of the country on the day of the test.

"We paid a heavy price to give that test," State Education Commissioner William Kirby told the PTA on Tuesday. "That price is paid in terms of lowered teacher morale and a feeling on the part of the teachers that no one really respects them. They feel that their credibility has been severely attacked because of giving the test."

Kirby said in a statement that the "few problems" with the test "dealt primarily with time delays and with some test sites that shut down before a few teachers had enough time to finish the exam. We are looking at all these complaints individually and will make sure everyone is treated fairly."

No date has been set for the retest, but educators who registered to take the exam March 10 but were unable to do so because of illness or other emergencies are scheduled to take the test Saturday.

Another 1,325 teachers and administrators whose registrations were not received in time for the first test also will be tested Saturday.

"I don't think anyone who did not take the test can fully appreciate the kinds of stress and anxiety that teachers experienced," Kirby said.

Saturday's test will be given at 71 test sites, with an eight-hour time limit.

Education reform legislation enacted by the Legislature in 1984 requires all certified educators to pass the competency test prior to June 30 to be eligible for employment in public schools for the 1986-87 school year.

"Teacher morale is at an all-time low," Kirby told the PTA. "I don't think it has to stay there now that this test is over with if we get behind our teachers and be supportive of them and let them know we appreciate the work they're doing, let them know we know the trauma they went through."

"If morale is not turned around, if morale is not improved, if teachers do not feel that the public in general supports them, we're not going to have any teachers," he said.

Colonel calls Young's memos 'cheap shot'

Griffin

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — An Air Force colonel, saying he was responding for people "not in a position to strike back" against a national hero, branded chief astronaut John Young's memos criticizing NASA management as "irresponsible, undisciplined and unprofessional."

Memos in which Young accused National Aeronautics and Space Administration management of sacrificing crew safety in the face of pressures to meet a space shuttle launch schedule were published March 8, after the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger.

Col. Richard L. "Larry" Griffin, head of the Air Force's 2nd Space Wing at Falcon Air Force Station, Colo., told Young in a letter that the astronaut's memos were a "cheap shot" and that he was responding because he could not "remain silent in good conscience."

"When I think of your part in this whole affair, the words that come to mind are: irresponsible, undisciplined, and unprofessional," Griffin wrote.

The Air Force officer said he was reluctant to write the letter because "it is indeed difficult to take on a titular national hero in print, even when he is dead wrong," but felt that he was a "somewhat neutral" in the shuttle managment system and had "perhaps more freedom to respond."

Copies of Griffin's March 12 letter were sent to Young and to key NASA officials, and the letter was widely copied Tuesday at the Johnson Space Center management offices.

Young, as a retired Navy captain, is a civilian and NASA is a civilian agency.

Griffin, twin of former Johnson Space Center Director Gerald D. Griffin, worked at the center as an Air Force respresentative from 1981 to 1983 and has worked on NASA liaison in Washington. His present unit is part of the Air Force's Space Command, which controls military shuttle missions.

Young was not available for comment.

Griffin said Young's letters "make it sound as if you have a total corner on concern for flight safety. That's just patently absurd. I resent your impugning the integrity and human sensitivity of a totally dedicated group of super-talented government and contractor people."

"You seem to be saying the astronauts are not listened to enough, while my personal experience in working with the astronaut office is that nearly everyone there is absolutely afraid to voice any opinion that does not agree with yours," the letter said. "You criticizing anyone for 'pressure' is ludicrous when the primary axiom in the astronaut office is, 'Don't cross John if you ever want to fly.' That's pressure!"

The colonel said he was "truly sorry" that he felt compelled to write the letter and wished that everyone had kept quiet until the investigation into the Challenger accident had been completed.

Griffin concluded: "If it is destined to be a 'street fight,' I think we should at least try to keep it fair. Some of the people you have maligned are not in apposition to strike back themselves."

STATE IN BRIEF

Future of technology-based businesses to be surveyed

AUSTIN (AP) — A statewide survey is under way to determine the future of technology-based business in Texas, the Texas Economic Development Commission said Tuesday.

Questionnaires have been mailed to more than 2,000 firms throughout the state, according to Dan Petty, TEDC chairman.

"While we know from statistics released by the National Science Foundation that Texas leads the South in company funding of research and development," said Petty, "there is need to examine the state of the state in technology to plan the future development of technology-based business in Texas.

"The response of the technology-oriented business community to this survey is critical to the success of our efforts. We need to assess our present direction so we may sharpen our technological competitive edge for tomorrow," Petty said.

Failure rate up in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — School officials say they will trim their budgets to accommodate a record number of summer school students expected because of high failing rates.

More than half of Dallas middle and high school pupils are failing at least one class. The 55.2 percent failure rate among Dallas middle and high school students for the last grading period declined from 57.1 for the previous six-week period, school officials say.

Fifty to 70 percent of middle school students must attend school this summer or repeat their grades, officials said.

The failure rate is the percentage of students who flunked at least one class in the last six weeks. Educational reforms enacted in 1984 by the Texas Legislature raised the minimum passing grade to 70 for each class.

Officials said 57.2 percent of the 51,577 middle school students — grades 6, 7 and 8 — failed at least one class, and 54 percent of high school students failed at least one class.

Insurance program OK'd

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance has approved a program to help Texas businesses find liability insurance coverage.

The Market Assistance Program approved Tuesday is also aimed at helping political subdivisions find needed coverage.

An insurance crunch caused by a number of factors has made some forms of policies almost impossible to get, forcing businesses to fold and leaving some cities without coverage.

Gov. Mark White said the new program would be a "centralized clearing house for assisting commercial insurance buyers who have had great difficulty getting the kind of liability coverages they need at prices they can afford."

Crash victims hospitalized

AMARILLO (AP) — The two survivors of a head-on car collision that killed seven people on Interstate 40 in this Panhandle city remained hospitalized.

Wayne Scott, 38, of Fritch, was still in critical condition at Northwest Texas Hospital late Tuesday night and Noriaili Mohamed-Yunus, 21, of Malaysia, was listed as serious.

Seven others died after two cars, including one carrying seven Malaysian college students from North Texas State University, collided Monday night.

The university identified the dead students as Mastura Sharif, 21, a senior computer science major; Roseuzana Othman, 22, a senior English major; Maizarah Abu Bakar, 21, a junior in the accounting masters program; Hartini Ismail, 21, a senior finance major; Marina Taha, 21, a biochemistry senior; and Saimiah Mohamed Ismail, 21, a senior English major.

Scott's wife, Linda, 38, was pronounced dead at the scene, police said.

Ancient skeletons found

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas archaeological researchers have uncovered three human skeletons that could be more than 3,000 years old.

An official of the UT Archaeological Research Laboratory said the skeletons were found at a construction site in Pflugerville, near Austin, last week.

Solveig Turpin, associate director of the laboratory, said the bones found "are anywhere from 500 to 3,500 years old. One skeleton is an adult male, the other two are remains of skeletons that have not yet been identified."

Victim's family blames killing on parole board

DALLAS (AP) — The killing didn't attract much attention — it was 350th in a year of 380 homicides in Dallas.

But the family of the victim, Thomas Christopher Glynn, is outraged because the killer committed the crime 11 months after he was paroled on a life sentence for an earlier murder.

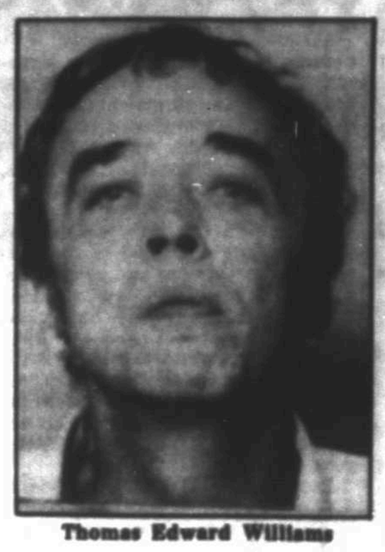
Glynn's family blames the shooting not only on convicted murderer Thomas Edward Williams, but on the system that set him free.

"I'd not say Thomas Williams is responsible for the murder," said one of Glynn's friends, who met Glynn when both were members of a conservative Republican club.

"I'd hold the parole board responsible for letting this man out again," he told the Dallas Times Herald.

But the parole board, faced with overcrowded prisons, has little choice but to release convicts who they think have reformed, prison officials said.

Williams — a middle-aged man who had earned a college degree in prison — fit that description, said a member of the parole board that released the convicted killer.



Thomas Edward Williams

He was paroled 10 years into the life sentence.

Williams' first life sentence was for the 1974 murder of 27-year-old Kenneth Minor at a Fort Worth barber school where Williams taught. The dispute was over $20 missing from a cash register.

"I got drunk one night...so I just flat out wasted him," Williams said.

The severity of Williams' sentence for Minor's murder reflected the fact that he was tried as a habitual offender, officials said. He had served two previous two-year terms for larceny, burglary and arson.

Another parole panel had turned Williams down five months before because of the "nature and seriousness of the crime" and the fact that he was a multiple offender.

The killer and his victim lived in the same diverse Dallas neighborhood, but they had little else in common.

Williams, 47, was a high school dropout and a convicted arsonist, burglar and murderer. He moved to Dallas when he was paroled after serving 10 years of his life sentence.

Glynn, 36, attended Harvard and Syracuse universities, where he majored in art history and learned five languages, family members said. He moved to Dallas from New York a few years ago when his employer transferred him to Dallas.

Only Williams knows how the two crossed paths.

At 2 a.m. on Nov. 14, Glynn walked up to Williams' apartment door. Less than five minutes later, Williams shot Glynn point-blank in the back with a .38-caliber pistol, according to police.

A jury convicted Williams last month of murdering Glynn and sentenced him to life imprisonment.

Randy Manasco, the assistant district attorney who prosecuted Williams, said he hopes the new life sentence will keep Williams "where he belongs."

"You would think and hope it (the life sentence) is enough," Manasco said. "But who knows what the parole board will think?"

Official: Mexico not helping fight smugglers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Casting aside diplomatic niceties, the Reagan administration says corrupt Mexican officials have made the Southwestern United States "a modern-day horror story" of drug smuggling.

U.S. Commissioner of Customs William von Raab testified Tuesday that "with the kind of corruption we have (in Mexico), we would need to put men ... every three feet" along the 2,000-mile U.S.-Mexican border to stop the drug traffic.

Much of the trafficking is by air, von Raab said, with smuggler planes making air drops or "touch and go" landings and turning right back to Mexico.

Mexico has refused U.S. requests to place Mexican agents on U.S. planes, which would allow American aircraft to enter Mexican airspace and pursue the smugglers to their Mexican landing strips, the commissioner told the House Select Committee on Narcotics.

Panel chairman Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., told von Raab the State Department "has assured me we're receiving top cooperation" from Mexico.

"The Customs Service is not receiving cooperation from Mexico," von Raab replied.

At another point, von Raab told the committee, "The corruption and ineptitude of law enforcement in Mexico is not a laughing matter. If we ever hope to combat this threat to our nation, there must be a significant change in attitude from our southern neighbors."

Leonardo French, press spokesman for the Embassy of Mexico, said, "This kind of corruption exists unluckily on both sides of our border."

French said his nation "has done its best" to reduce drug trafficking and "is firmly determined to continue to do so."

Asked about corruption, he responded, "I wouldn't say it is a massive problem, but the problem unluckily exists. As a consequence ... several government officials, law enforcement agents, and even private businessmen have been arrested, prosecuted and submitted to trials according to law. This is not a problem that can be solved overnight."

In his testimony, von Raab presented a bleak picture of drug smuggling on the Southwest border.

Philippine official says he distrusts Marcos documents

By TIM AHERN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Philippine official said today he did not give much credence to a document brought to the United States by former Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos indicating contributions of $50,000 were made to the 1980 presidential campaigns of Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter.

"I did not give it much credence because it does not bear any signature or any initial," Jovito Salonga, head of a Philippine commission investigating Marcos' finances, told the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Asian and Pacific Affairs, which is probing Marcos' U.S. holdings.

Spokesmen for both campaigns said they knew nothing of the purported contributions and congressional sources also said it was not clear if the money actually had been given.

Salonga provided the panel with copies of Marcos' tax returns from 1960 through 1982, before Marcos became president. They showed his net income averaged less than $40,000 a year, he said.

Reports said other U.S. candidates also were listed as receiving contributions, including Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes questioned the authenticity of the document, which he described as an unsigned computer printout dated in 1982, well after the election. He added the document does not say to whom, when or how the purported contributions were made.

Acknowledging that any such gifts to Reagan's presidential campaign would have been illegal, Speakes said, "We believe we had adequate safeguards to prevent this."

Cranston said today he did not know anything about "any $10,000 contribution. I don't recall anything like that and I doubt they sneaked something in. Besides, it doesn't make any sense Marcos would do that because I've been one of his strongest critics."

The document, described Tuesday by congressional sources on condition of anonymity and by Salonga, does not make clear whether the contributions were actually made, the sources said.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the House subcommittee, reiterated that point as his subcommittee today met with Salonga.

"The notion that Alan Cranston would have, in any way, violated federal election laws by accepting foreign campaign contributions is, on the face of it, ludicrous," Solarz said.

It is illegal for foreign citizens to contribute money to U.S. federal campaigns.

The list of contributions has been referred to the Justice Department's criminal division for further investigation, the sources said.

The paper was among 2,300 pages of documents detailing what Salonga called Marcos' "unbelievable plunder" of the Philippine treasury that were handed over Tuesday to Salonga by the U.S. government.

Solarz told the subcommittee that the papers "appear to indicate an extensive commingling of public and private funds by President Marcos and pervasive use of public office for private gain."

Salonga is chairman of the Commission on Good Government named by Marcos' successor, Corazon Aquino.

Both Solarz and Salonga have refused to publicly release the documents, although promising to make many of the papers public later.

Solarz today noted "the intense public interest" in the papers and promised to try to release as many of them as soon as possible, perhaps later today or tomorrow.

But he said that before any papers are released, he and the subcommittee staff will confer with the Justice Department because "we don't want to jeopardize the two grand jury proceedings" now going on.

Salonga, interviewed Tuesday night on ABC-TV's "Nightline," said the document showing political contributions bore "no signature or initial. ... It's merely a typewritten list of contributions made by a certain corporation called Mabuhay Corporation in the Philippines."

But h added, "If that document is properly authenticated, it would be a very damaging document."

Salonga said he knew nothing about Mabuhay, which he said meant "long life."

Officials said one document was a computer printout listing campaign contributions of $500 to $50,000 with the names of 10 to 20 American candidates, The New York Times said in today's editions.

"Nightline" said Cranston and Leo McCarthy, the California lieutenant governor, were among those mentioned in the documents.

Tim Smith, who was general counsel for Carter's 1980 campaign, told The Washington Post that if the contribution "came in, I didn't know about it."

The Post also quoted John C. White, who was the Democratic national chairman in 1980, as saying, "I never heard of it. I have absolutely no inkling of it. If it were anything that big, I would remember it."

In California, McCarthy said: "It's idiotic. I have never received any contributions that I'm aware of from Ferdinand Marcos.... I never met Ferdinand Marcos. To the best of my knowledge, I've never met anyone close to Ferdinand Marcos."

Salonga said the documents include receipts, accounting records and "summaries of commissions and kickbacks" he said were paid by foreign companies to Marcos' associates.

Salonga said some of the companies were American and Japanese. When questioned on "Nightline," he said one of the companies listed "apparently" was Westinghouse Corp.

Rep. Robert G. Torricelli, D-N.J., was quoted in today's editions of The Washington Post as saying one document showed $8 million paid to Swiss and American bank accounts over several years by Westinghouse Corp.

Westinghouse is under a federal grand jury investigation for paying commissions to a Marcos associate who helped the company win the contract, U.S. government sources have said.

Westinghouse spokesman Ron Hart told the Post that previous allegations of improper payments had been investigated without any criminal charges being filed. "If there's any new information coming to light, we're going to cooperate fully with the authorities," he said.

"We are really talking here about kickbacks and bribes," Salonga said of the list.

When the child was 5 months old, Mrs. Guadarrama, 19, and her 27-year-old husband Rogelio first learned that she was disabled. A doctor noticed during a physical examination at a Piedras Negras hospital noticed she did not react properly to noises.

She was deaf in one ear, subsequent tests revealed. Physicians, three months later, found the lenses in her eyes had begun to turn opaque with cataracts. They ordered surgery and part of the lenses were extracted.

But, within months, the remainder of the right eye's lens capsule had started to cloud again.

"She would just sit there and hold her hand up to her face and move it around," Ms. Gonzalez said. "She was just seeing blurs of light and dark. She couldn't really make out anything."

The couple faced mounting medical bills. Guadarrama, an automobile mechanic who ran a repair shop, said it was difficult to make the hospital payments.

The Guadarramas moved to Dallas where Anna's aunt, Ms. Gonzalez, and about 20 other family members had already taken up residence.

Gaby's first operation to excise her cloudy right eye lens was paid for by the Texas Commission for the Blind. Guadarrama, who found a job as a mechanic, struggled to make payments for hearing aids and special schooling for his child.

But the Dallas ophthalmologist noticed that the repaired right eye had suffered congenital scarring of the retina.

"Because of that, I knew her right eye would never see very well at all," the physician told the newspaper.

About two months ago, the couple complained their daughter was refusing to wear her glasses and had begun squinting with her left eye, said the physician.

But the state commission rejected an aid request because Guadarrama's salary was too high to meet eligibility requirements.

"I knew they had a lot of bills because of her deafness — hearing aids and all," said the ophthalmologist. "I decided to call a friend or two."

The eye doctor donated his time for the surgery March 11. And the two longtime patients donated more than $1,300 for the hospital room and other essentials.

The child on Tuesday was waiting at the University of Texas Health Science Center for her first post-surgical checkup.

"There are a thousand Gabys out there that fall through the cracks of our social programs," said the ophthalmologist. "Someone has got to help them every once and a while."

OPEC

Now the ministers are hoping to rededicate themselves to a system of production restraints. They hope it can be strengthened by the cooperation of non-OPEC nations also interested in pushing oil prices back to the $20 level.

The five independent producers attending today's meeting have a combined oil output of about 4.5 million barrels a day, led by Mexico's 2.6 million.

None of them has much room to cut production. Mexico and Egypt are in dire financial trouble and the three others do not produce enough to make a difference in the global balance between supply and demand.

Mexico, Egypt and Malaysia have sent officials to previous OPEC meetings as observers. But none has participated in official negotiations.

Britain and Norway, which have managed to take away much of OPEC's business the last five years by offering flexible prices, produce about 3.6 million barrels daily. That is more than any other OPEC member except Saudi Arabia.

Neither Britain nor Norway has said it will begin cooperating with OPEC.

Despite the obstacles, some oil analysts believe OPEC could reach an agreement in Geneva — or later this spring — that would push world oil prices back toward $20 a barrel.

"It's still within reach for them to achieve a production agreement that would firm prices at a higher level," said analyst Bryan Jacoboski of Paine Webber Inc., in Geneva to observe the OPEC meeting.

"If they can restrain production, prices could just as easily be back up in the mid-$20-per-barrel range from the mid-teens range where they are now," Jacoboski said.

As recently as December, prices were near $30 a barrel.

CONTRA

"Some have and some haven't," Speakes said. "Sometimes other issues are raised and generally the president promises to look into their concerns on an issue."

While both sides predicted victory, they also said reaction to Reagan's televised appeal for support on Sunday night had bolstered each of their respective camps.

Speakes said the White House polled 50 offices of members of Congress he declined to name and "found that they were getting a substantial reaction to the president's speech."

He said there was an even heavier reaction in the legislators' district offices and said, "We were finding that in these offices, some were reporting three-to-two, three-to-one favorable reaction to the president's speech; others reporting 50-50."

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., disagreed.

Lawmakers said "their calls and wires are about 2-1 against Reagan, except in the South," where he said the margin was 5-4, O'Neill said.

In other developments:

—Elliot Abrams, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, acknowledged that the Reagan administration has received reports of Contra involvement in cocaine dealing. But Abrams told a House appropriations subcommittee that the government had only received such information about the Costa-Rica-based ARDE rebel faction, not the main Nicaraguan Democratic Force that most U.S. aid has gone to.

—Administration sources said the Sandinistas were expected to receive Czech-made L-39 jets and four other types of aircraft, possibly before the end of the summer. The sources said this would threaten the air superiority neighboring Honduras currently enjoys over Nicaragua.

—The credibility of Jose Alvaro Baldizon, a former Sandinista who has become a bitter opponent of the Nicaraguan government, was challenged by Americas Watch, a New York-based human rights organization.

FORCE

The pair added that the program had three main objectives. Among them are improving lines of communication between law enforcement agencies, intensifying patrol of major corridors at both cities entry points, and secret rotation of undercover vise and drug enforcement officers.

Foreman said the joint task force — to be comprised of law enforcement officers — is a"common sense solution" to a growing crime problem.

"We are calling for regular meetings of officials from both Odessa police department and Midland police department to share information which can help solve cases in both cities. Simply by meeting together, we believe relations between the departments will be stronger and the citizens of our communities will benefit."

Foreman added that better patrol of entry points to the cities would "aid" in arresting and apprehending criminals before they can hide. The proposed undercover exchange program would serve to "protect the real identity" of narcotics officers, the city councilman said.

Fish said police chiefs from both departments had indicated their support for the proposals. The two departments already have at least some form of communication with each other at the present time, he added.

AWARD

The UT chancellor observed that one-third of all manufacturing jobs today depend on technology that did not exist 30 years ago. An example of this he said, is the laser, which was developed only 25 years ago, that has produced the need for a whole new group of people to use, maintain and manufacture them.

Mark noted the Bureau of Economic Geology is preparing to do a survey to determine exactly how much oil and gas reserves remain in the ground and the bureau may use the research center to do the work, that a contract is being negotiated now.

Referring to a specific type of generator being manufactured in the area, he said such units have national defense as well as other applications that are being explored. This could give birth to a new industry not related to the energy industry.

Referring to the effort during the last legislative session to do away with UTPB, Mark said he expects there will be other such efforts, but his goal is to provide a home for an institution that will generate enough new ideas that in the next session of the legislature questions about the future of UTPB will not even be raised.

GNP

The 0.7 percent rate for GNP growth was the slowest performance since a 0.6 percent pace in the final three months of 1984.

In both quarters, the economy was held back by a big surge in imports.

The 0.7 percent rate represented a drop of 2.5 percentage points from the original estimate of growth made in December of 3.2 percent.

That estimate was revised downward to 2.4 percent in January and slashed further to 1.2 percent last month.

The revisions have forced the government to push total growth for the year down as well. The government started with a growth estimate of 2.4 percent for the year, a figure now reduced to 2.2 percent.

The latest revision represented a $4 billion decline in last month's estimate of fourth quarter growth. The revision came entirely from weaker trade figures.

In the final three months of the year, imports surged at an annual rate of 24.5 percent, up sharply from a growth of 12.8 percent in the third quarter.

Exports were also up, but at a much smaller rate of 6.6 percent.

Economists believe that the falling value of the dollar will eventually reverse the country's plummeting foreign trade deficit but they say the improvement may not begin to show up until the final half of this year.

Personal consumption spending, which has been a powerful force in the current recovery, was also weak during the final three months of 1985, growing at a miniscule annual rate of 0.1 percent.

Signs of strength in the final quarter came from business capital investment, which was rising at an annual rate of 11.3 percent, up sharply from a 2.4 percent gain.

NASA expected to 'nail' disaster's cause

Thompson

NATION

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A top space agency official says "there is room for improvement" in the rocket booster joint suspected in the Challenger explosion, but that investigators don't want to jump to conclusions about the cause of the tragedy.

"We don't want to come up with one thing and overlook something else," J.R. Thompson Jr. told reporters Tuesday. "We want to be sure to come up with the right answer. We must be cautious."

Thompson is vice chairman of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration task force aiding the presidential commission's investigation of the Jan. 28 accident that killed seven astronauts.

He expressed confidence investigators will be able to find the precise cause before a tentative April 18 deadline set by the commission.

"We will find out what happened and fix the deficiency," said Thompson. "The exact sequence of events, I'm reasonably optimistic that we'll nail it. I believe we will identify with high confidence the problem area; we will redesign the problem area."

Some officials have said a definite cause could not be established without finding debris from the right rocket booster containing the suspect joint. Asked if he agreed with this, Thompson replied:

"Obviously, we'd very much like to get that....But with the photo material we've got, all the analytical work, looking back at the specifics of the design...I feel confident we can arrive at the right conclusion even if we don't have that."

The Navy announced Tuesday that one of its salvage ships had recovered a chunk of debris that might include the sought-after joint. Officials said they would not know for sure if it were part of the left or right booster until it could be examined on shore.

Commenting on commission member Richard Feynman's claim that the joint design was not good, Thompson said, "We've all taken a relook at that....There certainly is room for improvement in building more margin into that area, and I think NASA will implement that."

While the task force may be confident it has found the cause, he said, it will be up to the commission to state what it is. "That doesn't mean the commission won't conclude there are several causes and will want to address those," he said.

The commission has until June 3 to report to President Reagan, but chairman William P. Rogers is known to want to finish early.

He emphasized that the commission is conducting the only investigation and that the task force was working at its direction.

Asked about a claim by Kennedy Space Center director Richard Smith that many key NASA officials were ready to quit because of the criticism the agency has received as a result of the accident, Thompson replied:

"No. I think NASA is at its best when things get tough. We all want to see this accident solved and get back to the flight program."

Thompson said the six outside specialists the commission assigned to the task force will "provide an independent check and balance. I personally welcome it. We've hired outside help ourselves."

He said that recovery teams have retrieved an estimated 4 percent to 5 percent of the debris.

Chicago mayor charges opponents 'stole' election

AP Laserphoto

Chicago Mayor Harold Washington wipes his brow, waiting for election results, where victories would give him control in the City Council.

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Harold Washington, apparently falling short in his bid to gain control of the City Council, accused opponents of trying to steal the court-ordered, federally supervised aldermanic elections aimed at increasing minority representation.

Meanwhile, Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson coasted through the first primary of 1986 in hopes of avenging his bitter 1982 loss to Republican Gov. James R. Thompson, who was unopposed in his bid for an unprecedented fourth term.

With 11,275 of 11,715 precincts reporting, or 96 percent, Stevenson had 695,509, or 88 percent, to 52,191 votes, or 7 percent, for Larry Burgess, and 42,781, or 5 percent, for Peter Bowen, according to unofficial returns.

U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon won the Democratic renomination by fending off a minor challenge. State Rep. Judy Koehler, a Republican, claimed victory in her race with Chicago businessman George Ranney to oppose Dixon in November.

In Chicago, the special aldermanic elections were ordered by a federal judge in seven of the 50 wards to increase minority representation in the council. Four of the redistricted wards are predominantly Hispanic, three predominantly black.

Washington needed four victories to gain a 25-25 deadlock in the council, giving him the tie-breaking vote.

With well over half the precincts counted, his supporters were ahead in two wards. Four opposition candidates led, and the seventh race appeared headed for an April 29 run-off, required when no candidate wins a majority.

Washington's election-stealing charge came late Tuesday after a judge, noting that some polls had stayed open beyond the scheduled closing, ordered late ballots impounded in three of the seven redistricted wards.

Attorneys representing Washington had asked Circuit Judge Joseph Schneider to allow 19 polls in the three wards to remain open past the 7 p.m. closing time to make up for late starts.

Later Tuesday, attorneys representing Washington's political arch-foe, Alderman Edward Vrdolyak, asked Schneider for similar extensions for five more polling places in one of the three wards.

The judge granted both requests, but because of concerns raised by both parties, Schneider then ordered the late ballots set aside at the Chicago Board of Elections Commissioners and placed under the jurisdiction of the court.

His decision didn't reach most of the affected polls until 8 p.m.

"Every citizen walking the street knows what's wrong and that is that the Democratic Party of Cook County has connived and used the Board of Elections Commissioners year after year to steal elections," said Washington, elected the city's first black mayor in 1983.

Vrdolyak, whose 29-member council majority has thwarted the mayor's appointments and programs in battles dubbed "Council Wars," also heads the Cook County Regular Democratic Organization that slated candidates against Washington supporters.

Investigators probe Morton Thiokol O-ring tests

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — The second group of investigators in two days was scheduled to visit Morton Thiokol's plant to probe tests on the rocket part that some officials believe responsible for the Challenger disaster.

The group of independent rocket experts will study testing procedures on solid-fuel rocket booster O-ring seals at the company's Wasatch Division, the sole supplier of the boosters to the space shuttle program.

The panel was appointed last week by the presidential commission investigating the Jan. 28 space shuttle explosion in which seven astronauts died.

Members of the presidential panel's working group on development and production left Tuesday after examining test data and discussing the design history of the boosters with company officials.

Col. Robert Stewart, an astronaut assisting that subcommittee, told a news conference before the panel left that preliminary tests of seals like those in the rocket boosters of Challenger showed cold weather may have caused them to leak, letting hot gases escape and touching off the explosion.

The tests indicated that putty surrounding the seal may have deteriorated because of heat and stress during takeoff, he said. But Stewart said more testing was needed before final conclusions could be reached.

In addition to the panel of rocket experts, a subcommittee of the presidential investigation panel was also expected at Morton Thiokol today.

The group is headed by Air Force Maj. Gen. Donald J. Kutyna and includes former astronaut Neil Armstrong; retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Chuck Yeager; Prof. Eugene E. Covert, Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor of aeronautics, and Prof. Richard P. Feynman, physicist at California Institute of Technology.

Stewart, a veteran of two shuttle flights and the first astronaut to visit the Wasatch Division since the explosion, said, "The tests show that at cold temperatures, the seals are not able to follow the expansion of the joints."

He said Morton Thiokol's tests were performed at temperatures comparable to those at the launch site the morning Challenger blew up.

"We're all looking at it not to lay blame or as a witch hunt, but how are we going to fix our rocket so we can fly again?" he said. "We all know this is too complex to suddenly one day say, 'Aha! We've found the problem.' "

He said he believed the astronaut corps should be informed of potential problems with the spacecraft.

Journalism-In-Space semifinalists to be notified

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The 100 journalists left in the running to be the first to report from space will be asked to sign a form saying they're still interested in a program with an uncertain future.

Applicants selected as semifinalists in the Journalism-In-Space Project should begin receiving notification letters this week, organizers said Tuesday.

The semifinalists will be announced in late April, after the journalists return the agreement form, said Jack Bass, a spokesman for the project.

The agreement form was not part of the original selection process, but was caused by the delay in the selection process.

NASA officals are uncertain when shuttle flights will resume. A presidential commission is investigating the Jan. 28 explosion of the space shuttle Challenger, which killed the crew, including schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe.

"What the agreement forms are really for is to find out whether applicants are still interested given the indeterminate timetable," Bass said. "Someone may be involved in a job change or transfer, or may have become pregnant, or their wife may have become pregnant. And there is the obvious possibility that some people may not wish to be considered (because of the shuttle explosion), though we have had no indication of that."

Canada demands action on acid rain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever it is the United States is going to do for Canada about acid rain, it is "substantial action," according to Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

Mulroney, other Canadian officials and their U.S. counterparts were cagey all day Tuesday after a senior U.S. official, briefing reporters at the White House on condition of anonymity, said the prime minister and President Reagan had reached "agreement" on combating acid rain.

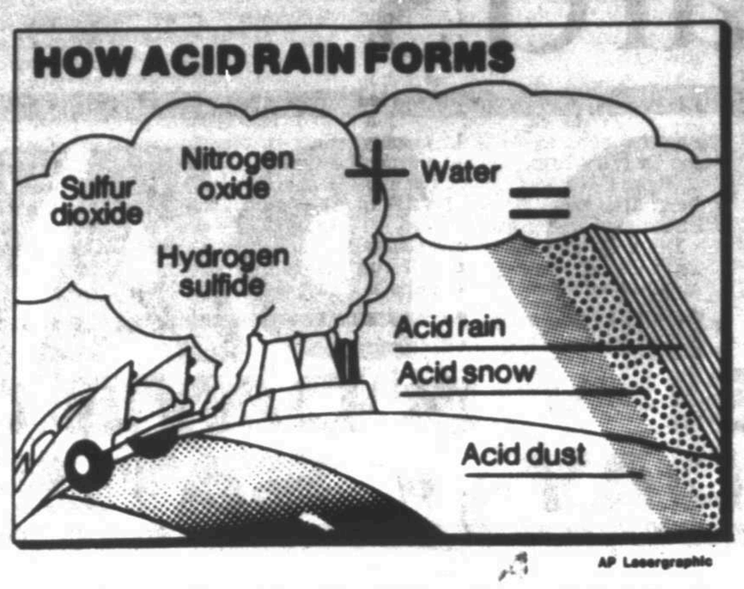
In their own briefings on the same condition of anonymity, Canadian officials said there was no "agreement," and that the United States had used the word "ambitiously."

They said the two leaders would make separate statements on acid rain after a private lunch today, the windup of Mulroney's two-day official visit.

Mulroney, one said, had not seen Reagan's statement. But asked if the prime minister knew what was in it, this official would say only, "I guess he has some impression."

The prime minister, interviewed on ABC television, said details would have to wait until today. Noting that Canada had been trying to get the United States to act for five years, "All of a sudden there is action, substantial action," he said.

Acid rain is formed from pollutants — sulfur dioxide and oxides of nitrogen — emitted by the burning of fossil fuel, notably coal in utility boilers.



Special envoys appointed by Reagan and Mulroney a year ago recommended that the United States commit $500 million a year, to be matched by industry over five years, to put "clean coal" technologies to use.

It was this report Canada wanted Reagan to endorse, including the $5 billion plan, and that Reagan planned to endorse in principle at a lesser amount.

The Energy Department already is soliciting proposals for a smaller demonstration program totaling $800 million over three years, half from industry.

Acid rain, falling as much as 600 miles from the source pollution, has been blamed by environmentalists for decimating fish populations in vulnerable lakes in upstate New York.

Canada says it has thousands of lakes at risk and cannot save them through its own efforts, even though it has launched measures aimed at reducing emissions by 1994 to half the 1980 levels. Half of Canada's acid rain originates in smokestacks south of the border.

New U.S. utility plants already are subject to strict emission controls, which do not apply to old plants. The Reagan administration up to now has resisted all efforts to extend controls on the grounds that not enough was known about the effects of acid rain.

Though acid rain topped Mulroney's agenda, he also visited Capitol Hill to sell his plan for negotiations with the United States aimed at free trade between the two countries.

A visit to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, attended by some non-committee members, produced "not even a whiff" from any senator of proposals to require "entry fee" agreements on some trade issues before the broad talks could take place, Canadian officials said.

Mulroney and Reagan also dealt with other business. According to the senior U.S. official, they agreed:

— To extend the North American Air Defense agreement without changes for five years, with a signing of the pact set for today.

Crew of mystery ship marooned without pay

NEW YORK (AP) — The captain and crew of the Court Carrier have been marooned since mid-December on a ship that can barely move, stuck with a cargo they can't unload while they wait for help from an owner they can't find.

"We're sick and tired of being here," said crewman Ursino Cervantes, a 37-year-old Colombian. "The owner is treating us like animals."

But who is the owner? The captain doesn't know. The Panamanian consulate doesn't know. The Seamen's Church Institute, which is helping care for the crew, doesn't know.

The nine crewmen only know they haven't seen a paycheck since November.

"I suppose the owner has some financial troubles too," said the captain, Hernando Serrano.

The fruitless search for the owner, who is hidden behind a succession of paper companies, has led from Panama and Washington to Miami and Aruba, said Albert Fiore of the Panamanian consulate.

Dummy corporations aren't unusual in the shipping business, Fiore said, but the plight of the Court Carrier is.

"We have 11,000 vessels in the registry, and this is the only problem we've had in a couple of years," he said.

Worldwide, there are too many ships chasing too little cargo, and the choice for some seamen is to work cheap or not at all.

"It's a sorry situation, but it's a microcosm of the entire industry," said Philip J. Loree, chairman of the Federation of American Controlled Shipping, a New York-based association of shippers operating under foreign flags. "There have been a number of cases involving crews that have literally been left in ports on ships owned by companies that go belly-up."

The Court Carrier crewmen, who come from Colombia, Peru and Chile, have debated for weeks about the institute's offer to file a lien, which would permit the ship to be sold to pay off debts, including their salaries.

They were about to go to court earlier this month, when two Greek seamen turned up. The crew told the Institute that the Greeks represented a buyer for the ship. According to the consulate, which has had no contact with the Greeks, they represent the owner.

House approves compensation for U.S. hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly in favor of a $4.4 billion bill that would provide cash payments to U.S. employees and their families taken hostage overseas and beef up security at U.S. embassies and consulates.

On a 389-7 vote Tuesday night, the lawmakers approved and sent to the Senate a bill aimed at making U.S. personnel more difficult targets for international terrorism, primarily by making the buildings in which they work overseas less vulnerable to attack over the next five years.

The legislation also addresses terrorist attacks linked to narcotics trafficking and, in the aftermath of the seizure of the cruise ship Achille Lauro, aims at improving security arrangements at international and U.S. ports.

The bill was approved after the House acted to exempt it from compliance with the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction act.

The hostage compensation section of the bill embraces all U.S. employees and their relatives, including military personnel, taken captive since 1979.

Those seized at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979 are included.

They and future hostages would be eligible for payments of $66 a day. That would make those held longest in Iran — 444 days — eligible for payments of $29,304 each.

A federal commission had recommended payments of $12.50 a day for the Iran hostages.

The House, by voice vote, rejected an amendment by Rep. John McCain, R-Ariz., which would have set hostage compensation at $20 a day.

McCain contended that figure was "more than generous" and that the payments should remain "largely symbolic."

"This is not like a windfall," replied Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo. "I cannot think of anyone who would like to be a hostage for $66 a day. They just wouldn't."

She said that the $66 figure was selected because it is the same as the per diem rate for federal officials, and added: "We decided this was fair. We decided this was the way to go."

The overall legislation provides funds to replace highly vulnerable U.S. diplomatic buildings at high-risk posts and to enhance the security of others.

Other major provisions of the legislation would:

— Create a new diplomatic security service inside the State Department.

— Authorize $10 million for rewards for information on international terrorists and drug traffickers and set up a most-wanted list of international terrorists.

Studies of 1945 bombing lead to nuclear safety concerns

By SALLY SOLO

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. and Japanese experts have concluded that the devastation from the 1945 atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki was caused by less radiation than previously estimated, meaning that stricter nuclear safety standards may be needed.

Dr. Roswell K. Boutwell, chief of research at the Radiation Effects Research Foundation in Hiroshima, said Tuesday that the binational group concluded that within 1.25 miles of the Hiroshima explosion, neutron rays were one-tenth as strong as had been previously assumed, while calculations for gamma rays "didn't change very much."

"The task that we at the RERF will address in the next several months will be to recalculate all the biological responses that we have observed," such as the incidence of cancer and other diseases in the survivors of the bombs, he said in a telephone interview.

Boutwell, who took a leave two years ago from his post as a cancer researcher at the University of Wisconsin, said, "It is likely the response will be somewhat greater for the same dose, but it will not be a great difference."

RERF Chairman Dr. Itsuso Shigematsu said in an earlier interview with The Associated Press that according to the new conclusions on the radiation dosage, stricter nuclear safety standards may be called for, taking into account that physical damage was caused with fewer neutron rays.

The U.S.-Japan Joint Workshop for Reassessment of Atomic Bomb Radiation Dosimetry in Hiroshima and Nagasaki announced Monday that after three years of research, the method has been revised for measuring the dosages of radiation released in the world's first nuclear attacks.

The group's three-day workshop was the fourth of its kind. It was led by Dr. Frederick Seitz, president emeritus of Rockefeller University, and Dr. Eiso Tajima, vice chairman of Japan's Nuclear Safety Commission, and held at the RERF in Hiroshima.

The U.S.-Japan RERF was reorganized in 1975 from the U.S.-run Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, which began conducting physical studies on A-bomb victims, called "hibakusha," in 1947. The foundation had based its studies of the medical effects of exposure to the atomic bombs on 1965 dosage estimates.

"This new computational system takes into account all the processes through which radiation released from the atomic bombs could reach human organs," said a statement by the group, made available to the AP today.

"Scientists throughout the world concerned with the effects of radiation on man have been looking forward to the early release of the reassessment of atomic bomb radiation dosimetry and to the re-evaluation of the effects of atomic bomb radiation on man based on the new dosimetry," the statement said.

Boutwell said the workshop also concluded that the power of the uranium-based Hiroshima bomb was underestimated by about 20 percent and actually had a yield equal to 15 kilotons of TNT. He said the plutonium-based Nagasaki bomb's yield was 21 kilotons, as had been thought.

The first bomb struck Hiroshima on Aug. 6, 1945.

French premiership in question

By GREG MacARTHUR

PARIS (AP) — Conservative Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac kept France in suspense today over whether he would become the first premier in the Fifth Republic's history to serve with an ideologically hostile president.

Chirac huddled late into Tuesday night with his political allies following a 2½-hour meeting with Socialist President Francois Mitterrand.

French press and television commentators said it was a virtual certainty that Mitterrand offered the 53-year-old Chirac the premiership during the meeting. What was uncertain were the conditions attached to the offer.

The traditional French right, of which Chirac's Rally for the Republic party is the largest component, scraped together a narrow parliamentary majority in Sunday's National Assembly elections, ending five years of undisputed Socialist rule.

A government must be formed from the conservative ranks before the new Parliament convenes April 2.

Chirac, who served as premier from 1974 to 1976 in a conservative government, said Tuesday night he would announce his intentions within 48 hours.

Socialist Premier Laurent Fabius has already told Mitterrand his government is ready to step aside whenever the president wants.

Monday night on national television, Mitterrand said that the following day he would "call the person whom I have chosen to form a government."

The only one who can form a government is the premier, and the only opposition figure summoned by Mitterrand on Tuesday was Chirac.

WORLD

AP Laserphoto

Official sources at the presidential Elysee Palace said the "ball is now in Chirac's camp" and described the talks with Mitterrand as a "general examination" of basic positions rather than a specific discussion of possible Cabinet posts.

Mitterrand's term does not end until 1988. He plans to serve out his mandate and use his presidential powers and influence to keep the right from dismantling all that the left had built since coming to power in 1981. It is also assumed that the 69-year-old president wants to maintain his role on the international stage.

No French president in the 28-year-history of the Fifth Republic has ever had to try to get along with an ideologically hostile Parliament and premier, and no parliamentary majority in its history has been as slim as that won by the conservatives on Sunday.

Take a hard look

Granted there are some uncertainties, but two truths can be said of the United Nations: It depends heavily on generous American financial support, and it is a center of communist-bloc espionage. Small wonder the Reagan administration is reassessing the U.S.-U.N.-Soviet relationship.

Recently, the United States ordered the Soviet Union to reduce its U.N. staff by 38 percent during the next two years. Such action is long overdue. Moscow's mission, which includes the Soviet republics of Byelorussia and the Ukraine, has a ridiculously large 275-member staff, which is more than the combined staffs of the next two largest missions.

Washington flatly charges, and with good and sufficient reason, that this unwarranted number of employees poses "a threat to U.S. national security." The Senate Intelligence Committee reports that at least one-fourth of Soviet U.N. personnel are engaged in intelligence gathering. And former U.N. Undersecretary-General Arkady Shevchenko, a high Soviet official who defected to the West in 1978, asserts that approximately one-third of the Soviet-bloc citizens at the United Nations are spies.

The problem of too many Soviet staffers, some of whom draw salaries from the United Nations, is related to another timely issue: An administration reappraisal of the U.S. monetary contribution to the U.N.

The United States currently provides a disproportionate 25 percent of the entire U.N. budget. Voices from the White House and Capitol Hill are asking why the U.N. appropriation should be exempted from the cuts faced by other federal budget items.

Good question, particularly considering the trouble looming at the U.N. Few Americans realize the United Nations has no spending limit. This means the United States must automatically pay 25 percent of an annual budget arbitrarily designed by a Third World majority that is hostile to this country and Western interests.

Clearly the time has come to put a cap on the Soviet's swollen U.N. delegation and the unbridled U.N. spending of U.S. tax dollars, too many of which pay the salaries of Soviet espionage agents.

Elliott is chess champ

Ludicrous? This is when a group of men place themselves above the very laws that govern them.

We here at Chess Pro are very sorry that we did not ask permission from the Midland Chess Club to hold a chess tournament. However, we do not recognize the M.C.C. as the governing body of chess events here in the U.S.

We operate under the exact same authorization as the M.C.C. does — the United States Chess Federation. Our tournaments are held under the same rules and by our own U.S.C.F. licensed tournament directors.

We here at Chess Pro wonder if the M.C.C. recognizes Gary Kasparov as world champion. After all, they were not there either.

Midland chess champion Eagle Elliott did not anoint himself anything. He did indeed compete in an open U.S.C.F. event and played good chess against all who had the courage to compete. I am more than sure he will continue to do just that. Eagle Elliott is a true competitor. He has offered to compete against any M.C.C. player who qualifies for the title, even though he doesn't have to defend it until 1989. Because of his love of chess and fair play, he has offered his open challenge to any Midland player who qualifies.

Any and all questions as to our club or qualifications will be answered promptly. Send requests to Chess Pro, Rt. 13, Box 440, No. 34, Midland, 79703.

We will be more than happy to put the Midland Chess Club on our mailing list if they will send us a request for our newsletter and the $3 fee.

MISD fights for rights

I'm glad Midland school board members are fighting for my right to actively and regularly participate in school trustee elections. In the past, each registered voter has had the opportunity to vote in trustee elections every year and, over a three-year period, to cast ballots in races for all seven trustee positions.

Now, the court has reduced my input (and everybody else's) by 85%. Now, each of us will vote only once every three years and then in only one race. I feel disenfranchised — as if my rights have been reduced without reason. I'm behind trustees in their efforts to ensure each citizen has a maximum opportunity to participate in the governance of our fine public schools.

Joyce Phillips
Midland

More trustees is better

I don't want one trustee representing me on the Midland school board as Judge Bunton has offered. I want seven. And, if not seven, I'd settle for the compromise offered by MISD of four single-member districts and three at-large positions. Then, at least, I could vote for four trustees (three at-large and my single member district).

I hope the MISD board prevails in its appeal of the single-member district case.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On March 19, 1920, the U.S. Senate for the second time rejected the Treaty of Versailles, setting the stage for a decade of American isolationism.

On this date:

In 1687, the French explorer La Salle was murdered by mutineers in what is now Texas.

In 1859, the opera "Faust" by Charles Gounod premiered in Paris.

In 1918, Congress approved Daylight Saving Time.

In 1931, Nevada legalized gambling.

In 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered that men between the ages of 45 and 64 register for non-military duty.

In 1945, about 800 people were killed as Kamikaze planes attacked the USS Franklin off Japan. The ship, however, was saved.

In 1951, Herman Wouk's war novel "The Caine Mutiny" was first published.

Reagan realizes what presidency costs

WASHINGTON — "What do the simple folk do/ To help them escape when they're blue? ... Oh, what do simple folk do (that) we do not?"

Jack Anderson

Ronald Reagan, the easygoing charmer who gets along effortlessly with kings and commoners, barons and blue collars, would be the last man imaginable to sing the "Camelot" version of King Arthur. Unlike the Lerner-Loewe ruler, Reagan knows what he's missing.

In a recent conversation with Dale Van Atta in the Oval Office, Reagan sounded almost wistful as he reflected on the "simple pleasures" that are denied him as president. "Yes," he said, "you miss the simple thing of — you stand upstairs there and you look out the window and see the people walking by and you say, 'Hey, you know, I can't do that anymore.'

"I can't go down there and say I'm going to walk down to the drugstore and buy a magazine, or drop in some place for a cup of coffee. And you do miss it."

The president added that there is another simple pleasure he misses — one that probably only someone who grew up in small-town or rural America would appreciate: "The only driving I get to do is with the Jeep at the ranch — within the borders of the ranch."

This led Reagan to an interesting observation about the cocoonlike existence of a modern American president:

"I have to tell you, there is something that I'm very much aware of. I didn't get to be so much aware of it until about the time we were leaving Sacramento, but now it is true here in Washington.

"Now, I've been here in Washington in years past when we'd rent a car and we'd go wherever we wanted to go: out to dinner and that sort of thing. You'd be surprised, sitting in the back seat with someone else driving, how quickly you lose any sense of where things are. I found out as the years went on in Sacramento that, by golly, if they turn me loose in the front seat of the car, I couldn't find my way even back and forth to work.

"And the same is true here. Now we go to the places where they take us, like banquets and so forth at the hotels, and I remember back when I used to drive to those places on my own. Now I have to say, you get me outside these gates, I couldn't find my way any place."

At this point, White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan chipped in: "I doubt that the president recognizes the front door or the entryway of any major hotel."

The president laughed in agreement. For security reasons, he is usually taken in and out the side or rear entrance to a hotel or auditorium.

"What was it," the president said, "that Kitty in 'Kitty Foyle' — what was the line that they used about what I now see in hotels? She was using it to describe coming into Chicago on the train, and she said it's like seeing civilization with its pants down."

The president's reference was to a 1940 tear-jerker, for which Ginger Rogers won an Academy Award in the title role. (Ironically for a conservative president, the screenplay — and presumably the line Reagan remembered — was written by the late Dalton Trumbo, one of the Hollywood Ten, who went to prison for refusing to answer congressional questions about their allegedly pro-communist sympathies.)

AIDS & SWINE FEVER: Dr. John Beldekas of Boston University reports in the British medical journal Lancet that he has detected what may be African swine fever virus in blood samples of 921 victims of AIDS. This could mean that other factors are involved in the deadly AIDS virus than have previously been reported. It could also mean that — despite vehement government denials — the African swine fever virus is present in the United States. This could be disastrous for the U.S. pork industry. As we reported earlier, Beldekas claims the government has tried to block his research, but he expects the study to continue.

TICKETING THE NAVY: The Florida Department of Environmental Regulation recently issued its first citation against the U.S. Navy — for improper handling of hazardous wastes at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station, one of the largest airfields in the country. According to state environmental inspectors, the Navy left dangerous chemicals in containers without lids, resulting in spills. Dangerous wastes were also being stored in areas where they shouldn't have been, and were being handled by workers who hadn't been trained in proper disposal methods. The Navy is correcting the problems.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Government auditors have disclosed that the Defense Department has accumulated roughly $40 billion over the past five years that Congress never meant it to have. The money was budgeted to cover the anticipated costs of an inflation rate that never materialized. The General Accounting Office calls the money an "inflation dividend," which sounds to us like something the brass hats earned by wise investment. We prefer the term "inflation windfall," and see no reason why the Pentagon shouldn't have the amount lopped off its budget forthwith. Welfare recipients have to pass a means test; why shouldn't the military?

JAMES RESTON

It's time to define 'the national interest'

WASHINGTON — You might think, listening to all the tumult here about Nicaragua, that it is a partisan issue between President Reagan and the Democrats, which in a way it is. But Nicaragua is merely a symbol of a much deeper confusion over the true interests of our nation.

James Reston

It has to do with the conduct or misconduct of our affairs at home and abroad, not merely with the news of the day but with the history of the Republic — its values and priorities, and the future of our children.

What is going on here is not primarily a debate about military strategy, or the invasion of Communist power and ideology into the geography of the Western Hemisphere — though that's the way the Reagan administration sees it — but a question of philosophy and where the danger lies.

That's the underlying question bothering thoughtful people in both parties and from many different aspects of American life. For example, Barry Goldwater, Republican of Arizona, and Sam Nunn, Democrat of Georgia — probably the two most careful students of our military affairs in the Congress — agree that the procurement, supervision and direction of the power of the Pentagon under the present Joint Chiefs of Staff has to be questioned and reformed.

Another view of the national interest comes from Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, liberated from the United Nations and back at Georgetown University, meditating on her experience and concluding that we don't really know what a foreign policy is for, and haven't realized the limits of our resources.

"Strange assumptions," she says, "are made concerning our power, our vulnerability and our resources. Often discussion sounds as though we were omnipotent, invulnerable ... when we are in fact, none of these.

"We are vulnerable, capable of being destroyed in minutes. Our resources are limited. We, like all other nations, need a foreign policy that gives priority to our national security."

The babble over Nicaragua has also distracted us from other sensible voices addressing our real national interest. For example, Donald Kennedy, the president of Stanford University, was in here the other day talking about the present college generation.

It was true, he said, if you could believe the polls, that young people in the universities today were more concerned about their personal security than about the public interest or the welfare of the poor, the old and the sick in their communities.

We should not be surprised, Kennedy said. These young people won't have it as easy as their parents did: they won't be able to afford to move their young families into a house, won't be sure they can educate their children because of rising education costs.

You couldn't blame them, he said, if they were told by the government to look after themselves and not worry about the folks who were left behind. That government in Washington was not an aid to folks in trouble, but a source of the trouble.

Kennedy said he wasn't buying this criticism of the young college undergraduates of his experience. They were looking for purpose and even service in their lives. They responded now, as then, to John Gardner's challenge to them some time ago:

"You can make a difference," he said. "Freedom and responsibility ... liberty and duty ... that's the deal."

And these young folks are responding to this challenge at Stanford and elsewhere, Kennedy said. More of them were going into the Peace Corps, which is celebrating its 25th year. But "Grambo," as they call the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings legislation, is protecting the old and forgetting the young, and this worried Kennedy, for he thought there was not only a need but a longing for public service, and that this was an issue on which both political parties could agree.

Actually, despite all the noise about Nicaragua, in this country we agree more about fundamental things than we admit, though the things that divide us get the most attention.

Ambassador Kirkpatrick is not usually regarded as a healing force in Washington, but she agrees with George Kennan, for example, that pending the reformation of human nature, the U.S. national interest should be the centerpiece of our foreign policy. She thinks the difficulties of agreeing on what the national interest is have been greatly exaggerated.

But watching the president make Nicaragua the centerpiece of our foreign policy recently, you have to wonder. A debate on what constitutes "the national interest" is long overdue.

Soviets safe from Grammovich-Rudinsky!

The American order directing the Soviets to reduce their U.N. mission from 250 to 170 citizens has caused a furor in Moscow. The Kremlin has accused the United States of directly damaging Soviet-U.S. relations.

Art Buchwald

What the Russians don't know is that the State Department could not go back on its directive even if it wanted to. This is why.

It is no secret that Soviet U.N. diplomats spend a minimal amount of time on United Nations business and the majority of their time spying for the KGB. It is also no secret that the FBI keeps tabs on the Soviet diplomats 24 hours a day.

Everyone was happy with the arrangement until the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill was passed dictating severe cuts in the government budget. Even the FBI was hit hard and told to cut down on its services.

Bill Webster, the chief of the Bureau, went over to the Office of Management and Budget and protested he would not be responsible for the security of the nation if he lost his funds. He cited FBI surveillance of Soviet U.N. personnel as a typical example of the type of work that could not be performed if the cuts went into effect.

The OMB chief suggested that in order to balance the budget the FBI follow the Russians only 60 percent of the time. But Webster said it wouldn't work. Once they were aware of the cutbacks the KGB would use 40 percent of the time they weren't followed to do their dirty work, and 60 percent to lead the FBI on a wild goose chase.

The OMB then suggested that since they were Soviet U.N. spies, the surveillance money might come out of the State Department budget. George Shultz had apoplexy when Webster called, and said he didn't have enough money to make a call to the Soviet mission much less tap a Russian telephone line. Shultz told Webster that because of Gramm-Rudman the State Department is so broke it is seriously considering closing the United States Embassy in London and having whatever U.S. business we do with Great Britain conducted by our American ambassador in Portugal.

Rejected by State, the CIA was a natural place for Webster to go next and ask for funds to cover the Soviet U.N. scoundrels. But Bill Casey wasn't buying. He told Webster, "Any money we can get our hands on goes to lobby Congress for covert funds for Nicaragua."

Webster went back to his office and wrestled with his problem. The thought occurred to him that as an economy he might assign one FBI agent to follow two Russians. But it was pointed out to him that the plan could fall apart if one KGB man took a bus to the Bronx and the other boarded the ferry for Staten Island.

The FBI director was doodling in disgust when the big idea came to him. What would happen if the United States tossed out 100 U.N. Soviet spooks? Then his agents would only have to follow half as many spies.

Webster called up Shultz and asked him if it was legal. The Secretary said Webster could throw out as many Russians as he needed to meet his Gramm-Rudman budget quota. When asked what the reaction of the Soviets might be, Shultz said in his opinion there would be no objection as long as Webster laid off the same number of FBI agents as Russian employees kicked out of the U.S.

Thus legally cleared, the announcement was made last week and the Soviet U.N. personnel were told bluntly to go home.

Well, the Soviets screamed bloody murder — but here is the part nobody knows about. There was joy in KGB headquarters in Moscow when the U.N. mission cut was announced.

It appears that the Soviet Union has the equivalent of a Gramm-Rudman bill of its own, and the KGB had been ordered, for budget reasons, to cut back on its spies in the U.S. They were just about to do it when the U.S. moved first and ordered the 100 Russian agents to leave New York. So now the KGB has the best of both worlds. It can blame the U.S. for the forced removal of their spies and meet their Grammovich-Rudinsky budget cuts at the same time.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Kidnappers free man

Longoria

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP) — A Mexican industrialist, kidnapped by masked men and released after a ransom was paid, said following the ordeal that he warned his abductors not to hurt him.

"I told them I could get sick because I suffer from asthma," Eduardo "Wayo" Longoria Theriot Jr. said at his house Tuesday.

The 72-year-old Longoria was kidnapped by three masked men when he arrived for work on Monday, but was released unharmed later in the day after a $200,000 ransom was paid, the Laredo News quoted an unnamed source as saying.

The industrialist and four brothers own several businesses — including food establishments, industries, real estate, banking assets and agricultural land.

Nuevo Laredo is a sister city to Laredo, Texas.

Guru heads for Senegal

Rajneesh

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh headed for Senegal on Tuesday after being denied entry into Spain after a flight from Ireland, a private aviation company employee said.

The guru's final destination was Montevideo, Uruguay, via Recife, Brazil, said the employee of Universal Private Aviation. The employee spoke on condition of anonymity.

The employee said the jet carrying the guru and about 10 other passengers arrived at Madrid's Barajas airport Tuesday night after a flight from Shannon Airport in Ireland.

Paramilitary civil guards at the airport said they had orders not to let the guru off his jet.

The aviation employee said an official from the Senegalese Embassy in Madrid went aboard the jet to stamp visas into the passports those aboard. Plans called for the guru and his party to spend the night in Dakar, Senegal, before proceeding to Recife, Brazil for a refueling stop on their way to Uruguay.

Pakistani house collapses

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Four people were killed when their stone and mud house collapsed, burying them alive, Pakistan's semi-official national news agency reported today.

The Associated Press of Pakistan said a man and three women were killed Tuesday in the collapse at Khajula near Islamabad. The agency did not say what caused the house to collapse.

Neighbors dug the four victims out of the collapsed house, but they were dead, the agency reported.

Antibiotic doses blamed

PEKING (AP) — Hundreds of Chinese children have become deaf and mute after receiving excessive doses of antibiotics, the English-language China Daily reported today.

The paper quoted a health journal as saying the victims, mostly under the age of 3, were treated for bronchitis or flu by rural medical workers ignorant of proper dosages.

One child became deaf and suffered nerve damage after receiving injections of the antibiotic streptomycin for 28 days, the paper said.

It said 948 out of 1,168 students in Shanghai's School for the Deaf and Mute had received improper medical treatment as children, including excessive doses of antibiotics.

Hotel rubble probed

SINGAPORE (AP) — Earth-moving equipment today scraped at the pile of rubble where the Hotel New World once stood, uncovering dusty holes through which workers with electronic devices listened for signs of life five days after the six-story hotel collapsed.

"The chances to find people alive are very, very poor," civil defense specialist Col. B. Doron told reporters. "But till the last moment, we must try to save people.... We lift and search."

Seventeen people have been pulled alive from the debris since the hotel's collapse Saturday and officials estimate another 45 may be buried. Twelve bodies have been recovered.

Tunneling for the last of those known to be trapped stopped late Tuesday when Ms. Chua Kim Choo, 45, was pulled from the debris.

Today, bulldozers, power shovels, front-end loaders, four heavy cranes and other equipment were digging at the top of the debris, and the wreckage was being hauled away by trucks.

Power plant opposed

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Plans to build a second nuclear power plant in this energy-starved country have set off a groundswell of protest from people who feel it is too dangerous and too expensive.

So far, the Communist government has shown no signs of backing down on its program, although it has allowed some bitter criticism to be aired on state-run television and in the press.

There was no public opposition to Yugoslavia's first nuclear power plant, built by Westinghouse of the United States at Krsko on the border between Slovenia and Croatia. It opened in 1981.

Now, bidders from France, Italy, Japan, the United States, Argentina, the Soviet Union, West Germany and Canada are competing to build a new 1,000-megawatt plant valued at $2.5 billion, according to the official news agency, Tanjug.

Quake's effects linger

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The devastating earthquakes here last September opened a Pandora's box of psychological effects whose effects still linger, psychologists say.

Six months has not been enough for healing among the people who lost loved ones and homes, helped rescue those trapped, saw buildings crumble or simply lived through the disaster in the world's largest metropolitan area of 18 million.

"The cracks occurred not only in the buildings, but in the psyches of the people, in their lives," Carmen Blanco, who headed a National University program of psychological brigades after the earthquakes, said.

Esperanza Garcia, a volunteer in the university program, said the earthquakes were a catalyst for suppressed personal and social problems and conflicts stemming from the economic crisis that has put jobs at a premium and strangled workers' paychecks.

"The earthquake came and it was like lifting the veil from your eyes, something that forces you to face things head-on and face also your impotence in a catastrophe," she said.

Teacher sent to prison

TOKYO (AP) — A high school teacher was sentenced Tuesday to three years in prison for causing the death of a student by beating him, a court official said.

The teacher said during his trial that he used physical force to discipline 16-year-old Toshinao Takahashi because the boy broke a school regulation by using a hair dryer during a school trip last May, the court official said.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the teacher, 37-year-old Kazunori Amamori, was sentenced by Presiding Judge Toyosaburo Enomoto in northeastern Japan's Mito District Court.

The Japananese Education Ministry bans corporal punishment in schools.

Italian plane crashes

RIMINI, Italy (AP) — An F-104 Italian military plane crashed into an auto repair shop Tuesday, setting it afire and killing two people inside, the Italian news agency, ANSA, reported. Two other people were reported seriously burned.

ANSA said the pilot, Maj. Alberto Biagetti, 33, of Naples, parachuted out of the plane, which crashed shortly after taking off from Rimini's airport.

ANSA said the pilot tried to land in a field near the house when he realized there was an electrical malfunction.

Talks on South African issues continue

By NESHA STARCEVIC

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — South Africa's Foreign Minister Roelof Botha and U.S. envoy Frank Wisner met today as part of the "continuing negotiations" over southern African issues, the U.S. Embassy said.

The West German government had announced Tuesday that the two men would discuss an independence plan for South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

In a prepared statement read to The Associated Press, U.S. Embassy spokesman Robert Heath said: "The meeting in Frankfurt is part of a continuing series of negotiations with key players in southern Africa."

He declined to say when the meeting began, but said it could last "until late this afternoon." He did not specify the meeting site, although West German sources said it was a hotel near Frankfurt airport.

Heath said that Wisner had arrived from Lisbon, Portugal, this morning.

In a statement issued through the South African consulate in Frankfurt on Tuesday, Botha said the meeting was "in continuation of the established pattern of discussions between these two governments on southern Africa."

West German government spokesman Hanns-Heinrich Schumaher in Bonn said Botha arrived in Frankfurt on Tuesday.

South-West Africa is controlled by South Africa, which has ruled the territory under a League of Nations mandate that was revoked by the United Nations in 1966.

South Africa has proposed to begin implementing a U.N. independence plan for South-West Africa on Aug. 1, if Angola agrees to send home an estimated 30,000 Cuban troops stationed backing Angola's Marxist government.

Angola says the Cubans cannot withdraw because South Africa and the United States are backing rebel guerrillas.

South African consulate spokesman Stefan Jones said Botha and Wisner "were in constant telephone contact" throughout Tuesday.

The statement said Botha held an "information conference" Tuesday in Frankfurt with South Africa's ambassadors to 10 Western countries, including the United States.

Wisner, the deputy assistant secretary of state for African affairs, arrived in Lisbon Tuesday after nine days of talks in South Africa and four of its black-ruled neighbors — Mozambique, Botswana, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

In Lisbon, Wisner said that in his talks he had found awareness of "a change and an opportunity for easing tensions."

Wisner met with Botha last week in Cape Town, South Africa.

The South African Press Association said the earlier Botha-Wisner meeting stemmed from President P.W. Botha's offer to start the process of South-West African independence. The South African news agency said the offer brought responses from neighboring governments which made further talks between Wisner and the South Africans necessary.

The meeting in Frankfurt was arranged after the Portuguese government refused Botha permission to hold the talks in Lisbon, according to the Portuguese news agency Noticias de Portugal which quoted unidentified Western diplomats in Lisbon.

The agency said it was the second time in 18 months that Portugal had refused to allow Botha to travel to Lisbon on a diplomatic mission.

Palme suspect's hearing at police headquarters

By TOMMY GRANDELL

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Authorities say they fear for the safety of a man suspected in the assassination of Prime Minister Olof Palme and will therefore hold a hearing on the case at the police headquarters where he's being held.

District Judge Mikael af Geijerstam, who will preside over Thursday's hearing, said his office had received "some strange calls" about the case. He did not elaborate.

Swedish newspapers today said the anonymous calls were threats against the 32-year-old Swede.

National Police spokesman Leif Hallberg told The Associated Press late Tuesday that the court will meet at the police building to hear a prosecutor's request that the suspect, who has not been charged, be kept in custody pending further investigation.

The suspect was arrested last Wednesday, a week and a half after Palme's Feb. 28 killing. He cannot be held under Swedish law more than the initial five days without court approval.

The suspect was a member of a small anti-communist group known as the European Labor Party, which had bitterly campaigned against Palme, 59, a Social Democrat who was shot to death on a Stockholm street as he walked with his wife, Lisbeth, 55, unguarded from a movie premiere.

European Labor Party spokesman Michael Ericson identified the suspect Tuesday as Viktor Gunnarsson. He said the party cut all ties with the man "after noticing some unbalanced features" in him.

Because of Swedish libel laws, the man's name has not been widely published or broadcast in Sweden.

Police have not specified whether they thought the man in custody might actually have shot Palme or if he was suspected instead of helping the gunman in some way.

Meanwhile, the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet reported today that police had found what it called "a new piece of aggravating circumstantial evidence."

According to the daily, the man changed his appearance a week before the assassination of Palme by shaving off his mustache which acquaintances were quoted as saying he customarily wore. Police declined to comment on the report.

The newspaper Expressen reported today that West German experts investigating the suspect's clothes for gun powder stains have found "weapon traces," but no gunpowder traces, on the clothes he wore the night of Palme's assassination.

Expressen said traces such as grease, which may have been picked up by the man while handling weapons when he worked as a private security guard, would not necessarily tie the suspect to the slaying.

The tests are being conducted by the Federal Criminal Police in Wiesbaden, West Germany, Europe's leading forensic laboratory. The office said today the results of the tests were not yet available.

Swedish police spokesman Kenneth Karlsson told the AP today he could not comment on the report, saying results will be published "only when the whole analysis is ready," probably on Thursday.

He also would not comment on newspaper and television reports that traces of ammunition have been found on the man's jacket.

Expressen reported Tuesday that Mrs. Palme failed to identify the man in custody when looking at a line-up through a one-way mirror. Police would not comment.

The detained man's lawyers described him as a fervent anti-communist who was near the spot where Palme was killed and who gave investigators conflicting accounts of his activities on the night of the attack. He hails from a religious family and have no criminal record, they said.

High in 60s due in Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Sunny skies and mild temperatures are in the picture for Thursday with a high predicted to be in the middle 60s, according to the forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Tonight, under fair skies, area residents can expect a low in the lower 30s with easterly winds at five to 10 mph. Thursday winds will shift to the south at five to 10 mph.

Tuesday's high of 65 was 21 degrees cooler than the record high set in 1978. This morning's low of 38 was 15 degrees warmer than the record low set in 1965.

STATE

Cool Canadian air moved into northern sections of the Lone Star State this morning, lowering temperatures into the 30s in the High Plains and far West Texas, and forecasters expected precipitation later.

The National Weather Service said readings in the 40s cooled much of North Texas in the last full day of winter, while temperatures were mainly in the 50s and 60s elsewhere under a high-pressure ridge.

Skies were mostly fair statewide but some high cloudiness covered many sections of Texas. Otherwise, a few scattered showers dotted the northwestern Edwards Plateau while low cloudiness moved into the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Winds were brisk and northerly from five to 15 mph in most regions and gusty in excess of 20 mph along the upper coast. Extreme temperatures at 5 a.m. ranged from 30 degrees at Amarillo to 71 degrees at Brownsville.

The weather service said it should be partly to mostly cloudy with widely scattered showers over south and southeastern sections of West Texas, the lower Gulf coast and southeast.

Other temperatures at 5 a.m. were 40 degrees at Abilene, El Paso and San Angelo; 39 at Midland; 44 at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport; 42 at Waco; and 38 at Wichita Falls.

Also, Waco had 42; Stephenville, 43; Austin, 49; Corpus Christi, 60; San Antonio, 1; and Lubbock, 32.

NATION

Rain stretched from the South to the Ohio Valley and across broad sections of the West today while winter storm warnings were in effect in the upper Midwest.

The winter storm warnings were posted for northwest Michigan and extreme north central Wisconsin, along with snow-prompted travelers' advisories, and gale warnings were issued for lakes Superior, Michigan and Erie.

Midland Lee second baseman Chad Jordan (7) puts the tag on Odessa Permian's Terry Baxter and turned to make the throw to complete the double play in a 5-3 District 4-5A loss to the Panthers Tuesday.

Permian holds off Lee, 5-3

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Even when Midland Lee plays a good game it isn't enough. Odessa Permian just played better and the result was a 5-3 District 4-5A victory at Lee Field.

Despite giving up a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning, the Rebels were never really out of the game. In fact, they had two opportunites to score runs in the fourth and sixth innings that would have at least tied the game.

Trailing 4-1 in the bottom of the fourth, the Rebels came up with a one-out double by Jason Logi and followed with singles by Joe Eldridge and David Barrow to load the bases.

Chad Jordan looked at four pitches to walk in Logi and keep the bases loaded. One out later, the Rebels lost a scoring opportunity when Permian center fielder Nolan Watson came charging in on Tuey Rankin's hit and made a diving catch to end the inning.

TWO FRAMES and a run later, the Rebels were again threatening. With Barrow already home after a Barrow double and RBI single by Jordan, Lee found out why a baseball term is known as "Suicide Squeeze."

Dooley regrets UGA past

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Vince Dooley, looking back on the controversies that have plagued Georgia's sports programs in recent months, wishes he had required higher academic standards for athletes at the university.

The veteran coach and AD expressed concern about his reputation in the aftermath of a federal trial that raised questions about the relationship between academics and athletics at the University of Georgia.

Dooley, whose statewide popularity was so high he considered running for political office last fall, said revelations about preferential academic treatment given to athletes have tarnished his image, but that he feels his integrity is intact.

"I can still feel good about myself despite the fact that the perception is not as good as I would like it to be," he said at his Athens office.

Georgia and the private corporation which runs its sports programs have been the focus of national criticism following the trial this year of a lawsuit filed by former Georgia teacher Jan Kemp.

The lawsuit against two university officials alleged that Kemp was wrongly dismissed for protesting preferential academic treatment shown to athletes in the school's remedial studies program.

She was awarded $2.57 million, following testimony that some athletes enrolled in the university were illiterate and others with substandard admissions credentials were admitted.

The trial led to a state audit of the remedial studies program throughout the university system, beginning with Georgia.

And last week, after the state Board of Regents withheld renewal of his contract pending the outcome of that audit, University of Georgia President Fred Davison resigned after 19 years in the post, calling the board's actions an insult.

Shortly before Davison's resignation, the Georgia Athletic Association Inc. announced it would open its financial records, an action not legally required because of its status as a private corporation.

Although the association is fighting a court challenge from the Macon Telegraph and News over disclosure of how it spent the $13.7 million it took in last year, Dooley told The AP that he agreed with opening the records and added he believes they should remain open.

During the trial of Kemp's lawsuit, Dooley testified that it would have amounted to "unilateral disarmament" for Georgia to have raised academic standards for athletes without competing schools doing the same.

But he changed that stance Tuesday.

"As I look back on it ... I would try to have done a better job of being more selective than what we were," Dooley said, referring to Georgia's practice of recruiting some athletes with poor academic records.

"Obviously, anybody that would say after what we've been through, that I would do the same thing all over, would be foolish," Dooley said. "I mean, it's like my people asking me would I run the same play again after it was unsuccessful. I'm not that dumb."

Dooley said that University Vice President for Academic Affairs Virginia Trotter, one of two defendants in Kemp's suit and the second-highest ranking administrator at Georgia, sometimes balked at his requests that she enroll some athletes with substandard academic credentials, but she never overruled his recommendations.

De La Garza keys 12-0 Midland win

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

ODESSA—The message rang out loud and clear Tuesday afternoon, and the rest of District 4-5A should take note: Kenny De La Garza is back!

De La Garza lashed a three-run homer and pitched a four-hit shutout Tuesday as Midland High romped over Odessa High, 12-0 to up its district mark to 2-1 and evened its overall mark to 6-6.

The Bulldogs burst out of their hitting slump with a 13-hit, 12-run attack in the five inning game and pulled within one game of co-leaders Abilene Cooper and Odessa Permian.

De La Garza, a .438 hitter as a junior but mired in a season-long slump this season, recaptured his missing stroke with a 2-for-3 performance at the plate, highlighted by a 400-foot-plus shot to center field in the fourth inning.

"I'm just glad to be back and helping the team," De La Garza said after surpassing his RBI total for the season with one swing of the bat. "I wasn't sure where to run once I hit it."

BY THE time De La Garza connected, however, the outcome was nearly sealed. Nine runs in the first three innings and De La Garza's shutout pitching had taken care of that.

"That's what happens when you put it in play," Bulldog coach Tim Whalen said. "'Cause once you hit it, they've got to catch it, throw it, then catch it again. That's three ways you can goof up. That's what I've been trying to tell these guys."

In the first inning, the 'Dogs showed that they'd been listening.

Tommy Yorkman led off the inning with an infield single but was promptly cut down trying to steal.

Jim Werner tapped out another hit, and one out later, Jaime Salazar reached on an error, scoring Werner with the first run. Anthony Deande brought in the second run with sharp single to right for a 2-0 lead.

MAKING HIS second start of the season against OHS, the first resulting in embarrassing 14-6 fashion, De La Garza had a score to settle with the Bronchos, 0-3, 2-8.

"I'll bet they couldn't wait to hit once they saw me out there," De La Garza said.

Cards' Ellison reminds UNC's Smith of Sam Perkins

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Dean Smith didn't have to search very hard to find an apt description of Pervis Ellison, Louisville's freshman center. It was in his recent memory.

"Ellison is built a lot like Sam Perkins," said Smith, whose eighth-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels play Ellison and his teammates in the West Regional of the NCAA basketball tournament on Friday in Houston. "He shoots a little like Sam, and (in attitude) he seems a little like Sam — 'What, this is an NCAA tournament? So what.'"

Perkins, of course, was the center on Smith's only national champion, in 1982.

Smith is just as impressed by the rest of the Cardinals, who have won 13 straight games.

"They're a confident team, but I have said momentum is built during the course of the tournament, not going into a tournament," Smith said. "But we really have to play better than we're playing."

Smith knows he will need a big game from Brad Daugherty, his 6-11¾ center, and from Kenny Smith, Steve Hale and Jeff Lebo, the guards who must handle the Louisville press and the Cardinals' star guard, Milt Wagner.

NCAA

The Tar Heels slumped at the end of the year as injuries to Hale and backup center Warren Martin proved costly as North Carolina split their last 10 games and lost three of four entering the NCAA. But North Carolina apparently got back in the groove with NCAA victories over Utah and Alabama-Birmingham.

In the Southeast, No. 6 Georgia Tech plays Louisiana State and No. 3 Kentucky takes on Alabama.

Louisiana State won two squeekers on its homecourt last weekend to advance to Atlanta. Now, the Tigers must play at the Omni, which Georgia Tech has used for some of its games.

"I would hope that it gives us a slight advantage, but you never know. I certainly hope it doesn't hurt us," Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said recalling that heavily favored Syracuse lost last Sunday to Navy 97-85 in the Carrier Dome.

Cremins didn't think LSU would be intimidated, especially the way the SEC team has been performing in the postseason.

"LSU is playing smart," Cremins said. "They have a lot of character, are on an emotional high and I just think people are overlooking them."

Nobody is overlooking Kentucky, which is ranked third in the nation and is the top seed in the Southeast. The Wildcats had little trouble with Davidson and Western Kentucky in their first two tournament games.

Now the SEC champs must beat Alabama for the fourth time in as many meetings this season. Kentucky won 76-62 at home and 73-71 at Tuscaloosa, Ala., during the regular season and 83-72 in the SEC tournament final at Rupp Arena.

Does that give Kentucky a mental edge over the Crimson Tide?

"I can't answer that," Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton said. "I'll tell you after Thursday's game.

"We beat them here when we played one of our two or three best games of the season, in Tuscaloosa when they didn't shoot free throws very well, and in the SEC tournament when they got into early foul trouble.

"Alabama and Kentucky are very evenly matched in makeup. The chemstry is good on both clubs."

Sutton said the Wildcats are approaching the regional in good shape, particularly with the emergence of 6-foot-9 reserve center Cedric Jenkins.

Don't ask Todd about UNJ

Questions?....don't they ever run out of them?.... The recent column on Ed Todd's futile search for the University of New Jersey created a many-headed monster, a totally unanticipated product of an attempt to be informative and challenge the reader's resourcefulness...

UNJ t-shirts? No, just because I have one, I don't sell University of New Jersey t-shirts.

Like everyone else, readers can purchase them from the UNJ student book store on campus.....

Mine? I got it at Stadium Sports, but Jesse Hatfield says he just can't keep 'em in stock....Something about demand...

Aside to blabbermouth...Todd, since the disclodure, went back to the MRT's "Sears" Encylopedia and became an expert. He'll tell you more about the state of New Jersey's institutions of Higher Learning than any Texan really cares to know....

From a reader, "You mentioned someone named Walter Dammrosch in a column the other day, something about where was he when we needed him? Usually you include an explanation, if you look hard enough, but not this time. From his name, I'd guess he was one of the Seven Blocks of Granite...am I right.?

Answer: You must be very young or you'd remember the last Music Appreciation hour of every Friday while you were in grade school. I am not familiar with Walter's athletic career, but in later years he waved a mean baton for the New York Philharmonic.

The NCAA tournament? Most overrated conference this year, Big East, with the Big 10 a disappointing second. Most underrated conference, the Southeast Conference...

Biggest disappointment? It won't happen, Now that Arkansas-Little Rock has been eliminated, the natural for all underdog lovers would be Navy vs. Cleveland State in the NCAA finals. But, alas, they meet this weekend. The NCAA deserves a wrist-slap a lack of foresighted bracketing.

Worst NCAA shot to date? Maryland's Len Bilas, that breakaway, spin around, over the head backward dunk to climax a 14-0 run against UNLV to start the second half. It looked like the rout was on... Bilas' showboat shot, however, was like blood to Tark's Sharks....

The NJCAA tournament? It's amazing how many Top 20 teams didn't make it, but did you notice that one of those there was Trinidad, Colo., a 32-point loser to Midland College back in November, one of only three they lost?

San Jacinto's first opponent? Some 18-12 team from Wisconsin, a team that may think it is acquainted with defeat, but learned they had no inkling of the nature of the beast after SJ got through with them Tuesday night....

Guest speaker at UNJ's almuni meeting tonight? Ed Todd, who else?

Trailing 4-1 in the bottom of the fourth, the Rebels came up with a one-out double by Jason Logi and followed with singles by Joe Eldridge and David Barrow to load the bases.

Chad Jordan looked at four pitches to walk in Logi and keep the bases loaded. One out later, the Rebels lost a scoring opportunity when Permian center fielder Nolan Watson came charging in on Tuey Rankin's hit and made a diving catch to end the inning.

TWO FRAMES and a run later, the Rebels were again threatening. With Barrow already home after a Barrow double and RBI single by Jordan, Lee found out why a baseball term is known as "Suicide Squeeze."

Dooley regrets UGA past

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Vince Dooley, looking back on the controversies that have plagued Georgia's sports programs in recent months, wishes he had required higher academic standards for athletes at the university.

The veteran coach and AD expressed concern about his reputation in the aftermath of a federal trial that raised questions about the relationship between academics and athletics at the University of Georgia.

Dooley, whose statewide popularity was so high he considered running for political office last fall, said revelations about preferential academic treatment given to athletes have tarnished his image, but that he feels his integrity is intact.

"I can still feel good about myself despite the fact that the perception is not as good as I would like it to be," he said at his Athens office.

Georgia and the private corporation which runs its sports programs have been the focus of national criticism following the trial this year of a lawsuit filed by former Georgia teacher Jan Kemp.

The lawsuit against two university officials alleged that Kemp was wrongly dismissed for protesting preferential academic treatment shown to athletes in the school's remedial studies program.

She was awarded $2.57 million, following testimony that some athletes enrolled in the university were illiterate and others with substandard admissions credentials were admitted.

The trial led to a state audit of the remedial studies program throughout the university system, beginning with Georgia.

And last week, after the state Board of Regents withheld renewal of his contract pending the outcome of that audit, University of Georgia President Fred Davison resigned after 19 years in the post, calling the board's actions an insult.

Shortly before Davison's resignation, the Georgia Athletic Association Inc. announced it would open its financial records, an action not legally required because of its status as a private corporation.

Although the association is fighting a court challenge from the Macon Telegraph and News over disclosure of how it spent the $13.7 million it took in last year, Dooley told The AP that he agreed with opening the records and added he believes they should remain open.

During the trial of Kemp's lawsuit, Dooley testified that it would have amounted to "unilateral disarmament" for Georgia to have raised academic standards for athletes without competing schools doing the same.

But he changed that stance Tuesday.

"As I look back on it ... I would try to have done a better job of being more selective than what we were," Dooley said, referring to Georgia's practice of recruiting some athletes with poor academic records.

"Obviously, anybody that would say after what we've been through, that I would do the same thing all over, would be foolish," Dooley said. "I mean, it's like my people asking me would I run the same play again after it was unsuccessful. I'm not that dumb."

Dooley said that University Vice President for Academic Affairs Virginia Trotter, one of two defendants in Kemp's suit and the second-highest ranking administrator at Georgia, sometimes balked at his requests that she enroll some athletes with substandard academic credentials, but she never overruled his recommendations.

De La Garza keys 12-0 Midland win

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

ODESSA—The message rang out loud and clear Tuesday afternoon, and the rest of District 4-5A should take note: Kenny De La Garza is back!

De La Garza lashed a three-run homer and pitched a four-hit shutout Tuesday as Midland High romped over Odessa High, 12-0 to up its district mark to 2-1 and evened its overall mark to 6-6.

The Bulldogs burst out of their hitting slump with a 13-hit, 12-run attack in the five inning game and pulled within one game of co-leaders Abilene Cooper and Odessa Permian.

De La Garza, a .438 hitter as a junior but mired in a season-long slump this season, recaptured his missing stroke with a 2-for-2 performance at the plate, highlighted by a 400-foot-plus shot to center field in the fourth inning.

"I'm just glad to be back and helping the team," De La Garza said after surpassing his RBI total for the season with one swing of the bat. "I wasn't sure where to run once I hit it."

BY THE time De La Garza connected, however, the outcome was nearly sealed. Nine runs in the first three innings and De La Garza's shutout pitching had taken care of that.

"That's what happens when you put it in play," Bulldog coach Tim Whalen said. "'Cause once you hit it, they've got to catch it, throw it, then catch it again. That's three ways you can goof up. That's what I've been trying to tell these guys."

In the first inning, the 'Dogs showed that they'd been listening.

Tommy Yorkman led off the inning with an infield single but was promptly cut down trying to steal.

Jim Werner tapped out another hit, and one out later, Jaime Salazar reached on an error, scoring Werner with the first run. Anthony Deande brought in the second run with sharp single to right for a 2-0 lead.

MAKING HIS second start of the season against OHS, the first resulting in embarrassing 14-6 fashion, De La Garza had a score to settle with the Bronchos, 0-3, 2-8.

"I'll bet they couldn't wait to hit once they saw me out there," De La Garza said.

Cards' Ellison reminds UNC's Smith of Sam Perkins

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Dean Smith didn't have to search very hard to find an apt description of Pervis Ellison, Louisville's freshman center. It was in his recent memory.

"Ellison is built a lot like Sam Perkins," said Smith, whose eighth-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels play Ellison and his teammates in the West Regional of the NCAA basketball tournament on Friday in Houston. "He shoots a little like Sam, and (in attitude) he seems a little like Sam — 'What, this is an NCAA tournament? So what.'"

Perkins, of course, was the center on Smith's only national champion, in 1982.

Smith is just as impressed by the rest of the Cardinals, who have won 13 straight games.

"They're a confident team, but I have said momentum is built during the course of the tournament, not going into a tournament," Smith said. "But we really have to play better than we're playing."

Smith knows he will need a big game from Brad Daugherty, his 6-11¾ center, and from Kenny Smith, Steve Hale and Jeff Lebo, the guards who must handle the Louisville press and the Cardinals' star guard, Milt Wagner.

NCAA

The Tar Heels slumped at the end of the year as injuries to Hale and backup center Warren Martin proved costly as North Carolina split their last 10 games and lost three of four entering the NCAA. But North Carolina apparently got back in the groove with NCAA victories over Utah and Alabama-Birmingham.

In the Southeast, No. 6 Georgia Tech plays Louisiana State and No. 3 Kentucky takes on Alabama.

Louisiana State won two squeekers on its homecourt last weekend to advance to Atlanta. Now, the Tigers must play at the Omni, which Georgia Tech has used for some of its games.

"I would hope that it gives us a slight advantage, but you never know. I certainly hope it doesn't hurt us," Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said recalling that heavily favored Syracuse lost last Sunday to Navy 97-85 in the Carrier Dome.

Cremins didn't think LSU would be intimidated, especially the way the SEC team has been performing in the postseason.

"LSU is playing smart," Cremins said. "They have a lot of character, are on an emotional high and I just think people are overlooking them."

Nobody is overlooking Kentucky, which is ranked third in the nation and is the top seed in the Southeast. The Wildcats had little trouble with Davidson and Western Kentucky in their first two tournament games.

Now the SEC champs must beat Alabama for the fourth time in as many meetings this season. Kentucky won 78-62 at home and 73-71 at Tuscaloosa, Ala., during the regular season and 83-72 in the SEC tournament final at Rupp Arena.

Does that give Kentucky a mental edge over the Crimson Tide?

"I can't answer that," Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton said. "I'll tell you after Thursday's game.

"We beat them here when we played one of our two or three best games of the season, in Tuscaloosa when they didn't shoot free throws very well, and in the SEC tournament when they got into early foul trouble.

"Alabama and Kentucky are very evenly matched in makeup. The chemistry is good on both clubs."

Sutton said the Wildcats are approaching the regional in good shape, particularly with the emergence of 6-foot-9 reserve center Cedric Jenkins.

Don't ask Todd about UNJ

Questions?...don't they ever run out of them?....

The recent column on Ed Todd's futile search for the University of New Jersey created a many-headed monster, a totally unanticipated product of an attempt to be informative and challenge the reader's resourcefulness...

UNJ t-shirts? No, just because I have one, I don't sell University of New Jersey t-shirts.

Like everyone else, readers can purchase them from the UNJ student book store on campus....

Mine? I got it at Stadium Sports, but Jesse Hatfield says he just can't keep 'em in stock....Something about demand...

A favor? Alums are holding a meeting of UNJ exes tonight at 7:30 p.m. Officers will be elected for the coming year and the football prospects for 1986 will be discussed.

Ed Todd, still looking for location of the UNJ? No, he knows. Some graduate of Rutgers called up and told Ed where UNJ was located.

Aside to blabbermouth...Todd, since the disclosure, went back to the MRT's "Sears" Encylopedia and became an expert. He'll tell you more about the state of New Jersey's institutions of Higher Learning than any Texan really cares to know....

From a reader, "You mentioned someone named Walter Dammrosch in a column the other day, something about where was he when we needed him? Usually you include an explanation, if you look hard enough, but not this time. From his name, I'd guess he was one of the Seven Blocks of Granite...am I right?

Answer: You must be very young or you'd remember the last Music Appreciation hour of every Friday while you were in grade school. I am not familiar with Walter's athletic career, but in later years he waved a mean baton for the New York Philharmonic.

The NCAA tournament? Most overrated conference this year, Big East, with the Big 10 a disappointing second. Most underrated conference, the Southeast Conference...

Biggest disappointment? It won't happen, Now that Arkansas-Little Rock has been eliminated, the natural for all underdog lovers would be Navy vs. Cleveland State in the NCAA finals. But, alas, they meet this weekend. The NCAA deserves a wrist-slap a lack of foresighted bracketing.

Worst NCAA shot to date? Maryland's Len Bilas, that breakaway, spin around, over the head backward dunk to climax a 14-0 run against UNLV to start the second half. It looked like the rout was on... Bilas' showboat shot, however, was like blood to Tark's Sharks....

The NJCAA tournament? It's amazing how many Top 20 teams didn't make it, but did you notice that one of those there was Trinidad, Colo., a 22-point loser to Midland College back in November, one of only three they lost?

San Jacinto's first opponent? Some 18-12 team from Wisconsin, a team that may think it is acquainted with defeat, but learned they had no inkling of the nature of the beast after SJ got through with them Tuesday night....

Guest speaker at UNJ's almuni meeting tonight? Ed Todd, who else?

Howe to sign...

TAMPA, Fla. — Steve Howe is expected to sign a contract with the Class A Salt Lake club later this week. Howe, 28, the 1980 AL rookie of the year, began last season with Los Angeles but was 1-3 with a 4.85 record two months before the Dodgers released him in June after developmental problems developed.

Howe could win 20 games in Class A and not be assured of a spot with the Dodgers next season.

San Jacinto captures NJCAA opener, 88-53

JC Basketball

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Undefeated San Jacinto, Texas; perennial power Vincennes, Ind.; Wabash Valley, Ill.; Pensacola, Fla.; Southern Idaho, and Moberly, Mo., advanced in first-round play at the men's National Junior College Association basketball tournament Tuesday.

San Jacinto rolled to its 34th straight victory with an 88-53 romp past Madison, Wis.; Vincennes defeated Trinidad, Col., 78-61; Wabash nipped Brunswick, Ga., 85-83, with a shot at the buzzer; Pensacola clipped Gloucester, N.H. 106-83; Southern Idaho topped Copiah, Miss. 99-89, and Moberly trimmed Erie, N.Y. 95-78.

Hutchinson met Westart, Ark., and Alleghany, Md., played Ellsworth, Iowa Wednesday to conclude first-round play.

Ledell Eackles scored 30 points and 11 rebounds in San Jacinto's romp past Madison. The winners built a 41-22 halftime lead enroute to their 34th straight victory.

Scott Foster led Madison, 21-13, with 21 points.

Perry Smith and Cal Foster each scored 24 points for Vincennes, now 31-4. Mel Irvin led Trinidad, 33-3, with 19 points.

Freshman Arthur Goodwin's 25-foot jump shot at the buzzer lifted Wabash to its victory.

Kelvin Ardister's 26 points led a parade of six players in double figures that powered Pensacola's victory.

Chris Blocker and Joey Johnson combined for 63 points to spark Southern Idaho's victory. Blocker netted 37 points and Johnson added 26 for the winners, now 34-1.

Moberly, 33-2, capitalized on its brilliant free throw shooting, hitting 14 straight free throws in the final 1:23.

David Knight netted 21 points and Mitch Richmond 19 for Moberly, which outscored Erie 18-5 in the final 3:05 of the game.

1985 champs lose

In other second-round action, Gail Williams and Tracy Shorts combined for 45 points Tuesday to lead undefeated Sinclair, Ohio, to a 91-66 victory over Delaware Technical and Deborah Richardson score 34 points to lead Kilgore, Texas to an 85-77 win over Barton County, Kan.

Honest, guys, I'm very serious

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Charlie Kerfeld kept getting the feeling last season and into the off-season that no one was taking him seriously, including new Manager Hal Lanier.

Could it have been Kerfeld's weight that ballooned to 280 pounds during the season, his affinity for "slam-dancing," which includes partners banging their heads together or his reputation as a happy-go-lucky locker room prankster?

Could it have been his punk rock hair cut or his tell-it-like-it-is approach to interviews?

"You might hurt people's feelings by what you say in the papers or on television but I say that's just a bad break," Kerfeld said. "I wasn't put here to be everyone's friend."

IT WAS likely all of the above.

"I think at first, Mr. Lanier didn't understand me at all," Kerfeld said. "When he first came here I guess he didn't think I was very serious about what I was doing."

Lanier thinks he got his point across.

"You can have a happy-go-lucky attitude but you've got to know your business and go out there with the idea of working hard in spring training," Lanier said.

There were times last season when it was difficult to take the 6-7 rookie from Carson City, Nev. seriously.

After a brief appearance with the Astros in spring training last season, Kerfeld was sent to the minors where he almost ate his way out of a chance to play in the major leagues.

KERFELD was called up to the Astros in July and made a comical debut against the New York Mets.

He belly-flopped trying to field a bunt by the first batter and eventually gave up six runs, five hits and eight walks in three innings.

Kerfeld was sent back to the minors where he continued putting away more cheeseburgers than batters. His record fell to 10-11, lowest of his career.

When Kerfeld returned to the Astros again in September, his girth had reached 280 pounds and he quickly became the focal point for locker room pranks.

After a late-season performance against Atlanta, Kerfeld discovered a line of chicken fried steak patties on the floor, leading from the team's buffet to his locker.

DESPITE his weight, Kerfeld managed to finish the season with a 4-2 record and a string of 14 scoreless innings.

"The thing I like about him is he's competitive," Astros pitcher Nolan Ryan said. "He may need some work on his mechanics, but he's very competitive."

But the chicken fried steak prank and pointed directions from Astros management convinced Kerfeld to discover broiled chicken instead of chicken fried steak with gravy.

"When I went home after the season, my Mom said 'What do you want to do, work construction for a living or play baseball?" Kerfeld said.

Kerfeld decided against construction and went to a "fat farm" in Tucson, Ariz. at the direction of Astros management. He lost 45 pounds.

"I think my chances are good this year," Kerfeld said. "Last year, I didn't think I had much chance of making it and I didn't. This year, I've done everything they've asked of me.

"This year I expect to make it and if I don't, I don't know what will happen because I'll be thoroughly discouraged. I think I earned a spot the way I pitched last year," he said.

But Lanier isn't giving Kerfeld a lock on the fourth starting position behind Ryan, Bob Knepper and Mike Scott.

"I DON'T think you can come to spring training whether you're Charlie Kerfeld or any of the young pitchers and think you've got the club made," Lanier said. "But I'm not insinuating that Charlie has that attitude.

"He's worked very hard in the off season and you've got to really give him credit for that."

Kerfeld is trying to improve his pitching mechanics and change-up pitch this spring.

"There aren't any two-pitch pitchers in the majors so I'll go with three and see what happens," he said.

While Kerfeld has changed his approach to eating and training, he says he'll continue being "just Charlie."

"I think everyone here has accepted me for what I am," Kerfeld said. "I don't try to play the role model, that's for some other guys. I do my own thing, wear my hair the way I want it and hope people will just say 'That's Charlie.'"

Wayland loses in NAIA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Jeannette Alston scored 23 points and keyed a second-half rally that carried top-seeded Francis Marion, S.C., to a 75-65 victory over Wayland Baptist, Texas in the championship game Tuesday of the NAIA women's basketball tournament.

Kim Slawson, Francis Marion's senior point guard, added 22 points to match her career high as the Lady Patriots, 36-2, captured their first NAIA crown.

The Lady Patriots trailed 57-56 when Alston converted a three-point play with 5:53 left in the game. She then stole the ball and drove the length of the court for a layup to start Francis Marion on a 12-3 spurt that gave the Lady Patriots a 68-59 lead with 2:17 left.

The Lady Patriots had led by five, 47-42, with 14:27 left, but Wayland Baptist, the tourney's third seed, scrambled back into the lead.

The Flying Queens had their first lead of the game, 23-21, when Carmen Wynn scored with 7:50 left in the first half. Wayland Baptist, 31-5, built a 29-24 lead with 4:28 left in the half on a basket by Pamela Walker, who had 10 points in the half. That was the biggest lead for the Flying Queens in the game.

Moreno out to halt skid

Exhibitions

Associated Press

Omar Moreno had his best years playing for the Pittsburgh Pirates under Manager Chuck Tanner.

He led the National League with 71 stolen bases in 1978 and 77 in 1979 and led NL outfielders in total chances with 514 in 1979 and 499 in 1980.

He also hit a career-high .282 in 1979 and then hit .333 as the Pirates won the World Series.

It has been mostly downhill since then in unproductive stints with Houston, the New York Yankees and Kansas City and the 32-year-old Moreno is a nonroster player — he signed a minor-league contract Feb. 28 — trying to catch on with the Atlanta Braves, whose new manager is none other than Chuck Tanner.

Moreno continued his strong spring peformance Tuesday — he's hitting .313 —with a three-run double and a two-run single, leading the Braves to a 7-1 victory over St. Louis.

Mets 7, Tigers 5

Detroit roughed up the usually unhittable Dwight Gooden for three runs and six hits in four innings but the Mets won when Tim Corcoran, Terry Blocker and Howard Johnson all singled and scored in the 11th inning. Detroit ace Jack Morris also was ineffective, yielding four runs and eight hits in five innings.

Orioles 4, Phillies 1

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt, who had been suffering from a bad back, made his first appearance of the spring and went 0-for-3 as the designated hitter. Baltimore's Mike Flanagan allowed three hits in seven innings — including Juan Samuel's seventh-inning homer — and Fred Lynn hit a three-run homer.

White Sox 6, Yankees 4

Carlton Fisk, Chicago's catcher-turned-left fielder, collected three hits, including a home run, and upped his team-leading spring batting average to .458, including three homers and six RBIs.

Angels 8, Giants 2

Bob Boone doubled home the tying and lead runs with the first of six consecutive California hits in a five-run seventh inning.

Expos 1, Royals 0

Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 2

Rance Mulliniks hit a pair of solo homers and Ernie Whitt added a two-run shot for Toronto while Dave Stieb, making his third preseason start, blanked Mulliniks hit his homers off Al Nipper and Whitt connected off Rob Woodward.

Reds 5, Pirates 4

Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly scored Paul O'Neill from third base in the top of the 11th inning with the winning run.

Brewers 6, Padres 5

After San Diego took a 5-3 lead in the top of the 12th, the Brewers rallied for three runs, capped by rookie Glenn Braggs' two-run triple.

Rangers 12, Dodgers 9

Oddibe McDowell's grand-slam home run and Bobby Jones' three-run shot highlighted Texas' seven-run fifth inning. Jones' homer came off Orel Hershiser and McDowell's off Jerry Reuss. Ken Landreaux, Bill Madlock, Reggie Williams and Greg Brock homered for Los Angeles. Williams, challenging Landreaux for the starting center field job, had four hits and four RBIs.

Indians 6, Cubs 4

Former Midland Cub Dan Rohn singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning and Junior Noboa doubled home an insurance run. In the fourth, the Cubs put together six straight hits off Keith Creel, scoring four times for a 4-3 lead. The Indians tied the game in the fifth on Joe Carter's RBI triple.

Twins 2, Astros 1

Mike Hart homered off Frank DiPino in the bottom of the 10th inning to win the game.

JIM MURRAY

'I like arrival of ball season'

I like songs like "Girl of My Dreams." I like books by Charles Dickens.

I like country roads and moonlight, homemade fudge and ocean sunsets.

I like Christmas carols and Easter parades, jelly beans and black-eyed peas.

I like pumpkins on Halloween, turkey on Thanksgiving, and church on Sundays.

I like old photographs and paper planes, potato salad on picnics and umbrellas on the beach.

I like trolley cars and old trains, cowboy movies and college musicals.

I like Fourth of July fireworks, campaign speeches and cotton candy, Ferris wheels and merry-go-rounds.

I like kids on Christmas morning, boys fishing and puppies in the yard.

I like political conventions, not primaries. I like pictures you can understand hanging on the wall – landscapes, not pipe-fittings; museums, not junkyards; the Mona Lisa, not graffiti.

I like love stories and happy endings, Norman Rockwell and grand opera. I like diamond rings and high heels, men who smoke cigars and wear hats. I don't like lawsuits, lockouts, liars and loopholes.

So, I'm glad baseball is opening again.

YOU SEE, I also like home runs and double steals, strikeouts and tight infields. I like hot dogs and seventh-inning stretches, pennant races and magic numbers, doubleheaders and double plays.

I like Fenway Park and office pools, Casey Stengel stories –and even pitching changes.

I like the home team, the "crucial" series, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," bugle calls and bobblehead dolls, bedsheet banners and squeeze bunts.

I like, "Three strikes, yer out!" I like, "Four balls, yer on!" I like sacrifice flies and the hit-and-run, nine innings a game and the game's never over till the final out.

I like Johnny Bench and Joe Morgan. Pete Rose going head-first into third. I liked Casey Stengel and Bill Veeck, the Sporting News and Walter O'Malley. Our crowd.

I like seventh-inning stretches, Bat Night, the national anthem, organ music, Ty Cobb's spikes, Babe Ruth's bat, Cooperstown, 3-and-2 counts, even exploding scoreboards.

I LIKE Vin Scully, Harry Caray, Joe Garagiola and that Shakespearean announcer in Yankee Stadium. I like George Steinbrenner, Peter O'Malley and Peter Ueberroth. I like every coach who ever hit a fungo. I like fungoes.

I like Stan the Man and Leo the Lip, the Big Train and Ol' Diz. I like the Iron Horse, any Lefty, the Babe, and Old Teddy Ballgame, the Thumper.

I like players like Country Slaughter and Junior Gilliam, Maury Wills and Bad Henry. The wonderful Willie, Double-X, and Jackie R.

I like to read "The Boys of Summer" or other things by Roger Angell or even play-by-plays. I like the minor leagues and the sports pages and postgame interviews. I like umpires. I like leather-lunged fans because they care. I even like boos because booing is a form of caring.

I like to look down on a field of green and white, a summertime land of Oz, a place to dream. I've never been unhappy in a ballpark.

I like to look down and see the same geometry my grandfather saw. I hate change.

I like one o'cat in the sandlots, bubblegum cards in the schoolyard, batting practice and trade rumors. I even like artificial grass.

I like baseball. Because it's always 1910. I like 1910. It was a better time.

I may grow up some day.

I hope not.

Ring death revives ban controversy

LONDON (AP) — A long-running political and medical debate over whether the boxing should be banned in Britain was revived by the death of Scottish welterweight Steve Watt.

Boxing's opponents say Watts' death reinforced arguments for a ban, or at least a radical review of safety standards. But supporters of boxing countered that tight controls were already in force. A ban, they said, would only drive fights underground and make the sport even more dangerous.

Watts died Monday night, three days after he lapsed into a coma in the ring. He was the first British boxer to die after a fight in 5½ years.

In the 10th and last round of his fight against favored Rocky Kelly last Friday at the West London hotel, 28-year-old Watt was stopped after taking several head punches at the end of a savage contest.

He was carried from the ring on a stretcher and rushed to the hospital where he died without regaining consciousness.

As newspaper headlines reported Watt's death Tuesday — the 12th British boxing fatality since World War II and the 340th worldwide — the British Boxing Board of Control prepared to hold an inquiry into the fight next week.

"This is yet another indication of the serious damage caused by boxing," said Renee Short, a member of Parliament from the main opposition Labor party.

"It needs to be regulated much more strictly. Boxers should not be allowed to rain blows on their opponents' head.

USOC urges banning of professionals

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Professional athletes should be barred from competing in any Olympic event in which they have been paid to perform, the United States Olympic Committee said Tuesday.

The USOC also said, however, that professionals should be allowed to enter other Olympic sports in which they are not considered professionals.

Each international federation should define which athletes are "professional" in a sport, the USOC said in the statement issued Tuesday, adding that it recognizes that different sports have divergent views on this issue.

"The Olympic Games should remain a goal for all athletes and not degenerate into simply another forum for professional athletes," said USOC President Robert H. Helmick. "Millions of Americans support amateur sports and the U.S. Olympic Committee with their efforts and hard-earned dollars because they believe in the Olympic dream and amateur sport."

The USOC position jibes with the Soviet Union's opposition to professionals competing in the Olympics.

The announcement comes as the International Olympic Committee, as well as international federations in the various Olympic sports, prepare to set their eligibility standards for the 1988 games.

The IOC's 91st Congress is scheduled Oct. 8-18 in Lausanne, Switzerland. The matter also is on the agenda at the USOC's House of Delegates meetings in Los Angeles April 12-13.

The U.S. Tennis Association has endorsed professionals in the Olympics, and so have some members of the USOC Athletes Advisory Council.

In the 1984 Olympic Winter Games in Sarajevo, a precedent was set when professional hockey players competed for the Canadian ice hockey team. Protests were lodged by the USOC and the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States, the sport's national governing body.

U.S. professional soccer players replaced amateurs on the U.S. Olympic Team just two weeks before the 1984 Summer Games in Los Angeles.

BYU 'defense' stops Anteaters

PROVO, Utah (AP) — In a game where 173 total points are scored it may seem odd for Brigham Young University Coach Ladell Andersen to credit his Cougars' defense for a NIT victory over UC-Irvine.

But Andersen said that in beating the Anteaters 93-80 on Tuesday night the Cougars showed they know how to frustrate the opposition's offense.

"The score may not indicate it, but at times during this game we played some defense," he said, adding that BYU's overall effort against UC-Irvine was "as good as this team can possibly play."

The victory sent Brigham Young, 18-13, into the NIT quarterfinals against Ohio State, 16-14, on Friday night in Columbus, Ohio.

The WAC representative, playing at home before 11,436 fans, led by as much as 37-20 in the first half. BYU took the lead for good with 15 minutes left in the midst of a 19-2 scoring binge that made it 23-10. The Anteaters, of the PCAA, closed the margin to 41-32 at halftime.

UC-Irvine, which had beaten UCLA 80-74 in their NIT opener Thursday, could not manage to crack a tight BYU zone, which created problems inside for the team's top scorers, center Tod Murphy and forward Johnny Rogers, who finished with 11 and 18 points, respectively.

Joining Chatman in double figures for BYU were center Tom Gneiting with 19 points and 13 rebounds, Richie Webb with 17 points, Bob Capener with 12 and Alan Pollard with 10.

NIT

For UC-Irvine finished its season at 17-13.

Thursday's NIT Games:

Wyoming Coach Jim Brandenburg, looking ahead to the Cowboys' meeting with Clemson in quarterfinal action on Thursday, said the Tigers are "out of the ACC and played good competition all year, and they're obviously playing very well.

"They've got height, strength, inside quickness on the perimeter. They beat Maryland this year. They're an excellent team and we'll have a tough time," Brandenburg said of Clemson, which invaded Georgia and rode 24 points apiece from Horace Grant and Glenn Corbit to a 77-65 victory over the Bulldogs.

Rick Pitino of Providence said the Friars "are pleased because it's a good draw" against Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs. "We're happy with it. Athletically speaking, we know something about them. You're talking about one of the better opponents in the NIT."

Florida Coach Norm Sloan says his Gators are peaking at just the right time as they prepare for a visit from Southwest Missouri State on Thursday.

The semifinals are set for March 24 and the final March 26 at Madison Square Garden.

Houston conducts own probe into 'violations'

HOUSTON (AP) — The chancellor of the University of Houston confirmed the school will conduct its own internal investigation as well as hire an outside firm to look into allegations of athletes receiving cash payments from coaches and academic ineligibility.

The independent firm to investigation the allegations, which surfaced in weekend copyright stories by The Houston Post, was not named, said Trish Healy, a UH spokeswoman.

Chancellor Richard Van Horn said Tuesday the school's internal investigation will be conducted by a committee made up faculty and academic officers.

"The University of Houston remains committed to placing priorities on good education and high quality academic programs. The university will take whatever steps necessary to assure the quality remains high," a statement released by Van Horn said.

Head football coach Bill Yeoman forbade his players Monday from talking to the news media about the claims of under-the-table cash that former wide receivers Lonell Phea and David Roberson told The Houston Post they and others received from Yeoman and other coaches in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

"It's the decision of the university that any comments will come from the athletic director's office. That's what I've been told to tell them (his players). You can talk to them about football if you want," Yeoman said.

Phea, who played from 1978 to 1981 said he received at least $18,000 in cash from UH coaches, including Yeoman, and Roberson said he got at least $8,000. The Post said six other former players also have said there were cash payments, while three have denied any knowledge of it.

Skins may shed Theismann, Riggo

By MICHAEL JANOFSKY
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — The Washington Redskins are in the midst of saying goodbye to two of the most productive players in the franchise's history, the quarterback Joe Theismann and the running back John Riggins.

Theismann, now healthy after a broken leg ended his 1985 season last November, has been given permission to find another team. The combination of his age, 36, his high salary for the 1986 season, and the rapid development of the quarterback who replaced him, Jay Schroeder, made him too much of a luxury for the Redskins.

So far, he has discussed employment with the Los Angeles Rams and the Atlanta Falcons; but his salary, more than $1 million, has been a deterrent. If he finds no takers, the Redskins expect to have him back in camp this summer to compete with Schroeder. But all signs point to Schroeder, who was impressive in Thiesmann's absence, as holding on to his job.

Riggins's effectiveness diminished last season because of back and leg injuries. Joe Gibbs, the Redskins' coach, said at the owners meetings last week that he intended to talk to the 36-year-old fullback soon, possibly this week.

"With an older player, you want to sit down and discuss his future and see how he feels," Gibbs said. "The question is, does he even want to play another season. I want to hear what he has to say and then reach a decision together."

Which is all well and good. But another source in the organization said last week that the decision has been made: The club does not intend to have Riggins back for 1986.

THE DECISION by the league to let the Dallas Cowboys and Chicago Bears play an exhibition game in London in August angered the Rams, whose owner, Georgia Frontiere, had spent considerable time helping the league plan for such a game, figuring that her team would be one of the participants.

"What upsets us the most is that she worked so hard to make it happen," said John Robinson, the Rams' coach. "She was virtually a committee of one, planning to have the teams go there three, four, maybe five days before the game so the players could visit U.S. military bases. She was making it like a bowl game. Then for two other teams to go, it was awfully disappointing."

Robinson said the Rams have been assured that they will be invited to play in London in 1987.

ROAMING the corridors during one of the meetings last week, Art Rooney, the patriarch of the Pittsburgh Steelers, was remembering players of another era.

"Getting drunk and getting arrested," he said, were the worst things that could happen to a player way back when.

"One time, New York was playing us in Pittsburgh," he said, "and I got a call from the No. 1 police station. They told me six Giants had been arrested, and I thought about it a moment and said to myself: 'I can't believe they're Giants ballplayers because why would I have gotten the call? I'll bet they ours.'

"Sure enough, they were. A couple of our guys had gotten drunk, and they gave the Giants' names as theirs."

NFL Notes

A SOURCE close to Bill Bidwill, the owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, said that it was "highly unlikely" Bidwill would move the team for the 1986 season.

Nevertheless, many NFL executives say privately that they would like to see the Cardinals move to Phoenix, one of the cities Bidwill has mentioned as a possible site, because of the weather.

"Phoenix is just a much better city than St. Louis," one general manager said.

THE LOS Angeles Raiders report that their 38-year-old quarterback, Jim Plunkett, has fully recovered from a dislocated left shoulder and expects to be in mini-camp to compete for a job with Marc Wilson, Rusty Hilger and Russ Jensen, a rookie who spent 1985 on the injured list.

COACH JOE Walton of the Jets on the development of Ken O'Brien, who will begin his fourth season in September: "He's ahead of schedule. He also has more potential that I thought he did."

THE BEARS who had the best defense in the league last season, are thinking about using more 3-4 alignments, rather than rely so much on their "46" scheme, with eight men near the line of scrimmage.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Opening the lines of communication with your mate brings unexpected, positive results that will help you all year long. Any important business decisions should be made prior to the summer months. Travel inspires romance and rejuvenates your spirit, putting you in a positive mood to return to your job. Work at increasing your own self-confidence; others will take note and support your ideas and wishes. Try to keep your mind on the matters at hand; success will be the result.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Actors Hal Linden and Carl Reiner, former Boston Bruin Bobby Orr, author/playwright Henrik Ibsen, psychologist B.F. Skinner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Apologize to someone you may have recently offended. Beware of flattery for unknown reasons. Trust your intuition. Spend some time with old friends. They may give you ideas which prove profitable.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Make a game plan for yourself and stick to it. Risks at work enjoy favorable influences. Be more prudent when it comes to spending. Look to make new friends who are your intellectual equal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Enrollment in high-tech classes could mean the difference between success and failure. This is a good period for forming new partnerships and alliances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Read the fine print before signing any contracts today. Be creative when looking for solutions to a variety of problems. Community service is exhilarating. You are dazzled by a member of the opposite sex.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Hard work is the key to reversing a spell of bad luck. Continuing adult education programs are worth the investment of time and money.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Surround yourself with individuals who have positive attitudes and share a common goal. Travel could provide you with the answers to a worrisome financial problem. Visit with old friends this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Demonstrating your talents to their best advantage brings recognition from the new management. Someone whom you have long admired seeks you out today. Use the subtle approach with a new romantic partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unnecessary spending destroys your well balanced budget. Observing people with similar problems provides you with a better understanding of your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Leave the announcement of policy changes to those who originally made them. A friend may ask you to deliver a personal message. Decline. A blind date proves to be enjoyable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): As your cash flow increases the atmosphere at home improves greatly. Listen carefully to a child's arguments before making a final decision. Paying attention to details saves you time, money and effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Treat new neighbors and employees in a friendly and helpful manner. Your intuition serves you well in business and romance. Act on new ideas before someone else does. Old loyalties will be tested.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Superiors trying to cut costs will not appreciate unnecessary spending for business entertainment. By seeing what really makes a new acquaintance tick, you could set the stage for a new relationship.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

Some bridge hyper-modernists believe you should do everything in your power to obstruct the enemy. That sounds well and good. However, just bidding for the sake of making your presence heard at the table can prove costly. On this deal from a team tournament in Europe, West's interference drew South a blueprint of the road to success.

Six spades is certainly the right contract. At the other table, North-South got to that spot without any attempt by the opposition to get into the bidding. After the lead of the jack of clubs, declarer adopted a reasonable line.

He won the club in hand, cashed the ace of trumps, crossed to the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart. South reentered dummy with the nine of trumps and ruffed a heart high, hoping to drop the king. When the monarch failed to oblige, declarer drew the last trump with dummy's jack and tried a diamond to the queen. West won the king and continued with the jack, and in due course declarer had to concede another diamond for down one.

Where West felt obliged to put in his two cents worth, declarer was warned that he could not expect to make his contract by leading toward the queen of diamonds. He won the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart, crossed to the nine of spades and ruffed another heart. The jack of spades provided the entry to ruff the last heart, and declarer drew the last trump. Next he cashed his three club tricks, ending in his hand.

With the groundwork laid, declarer led a diamond toward the ace-nine. When West produced the ten, declarer allowed him to hold the trick. West was then forced to lead away from his king of diamonds into declarer's combined tenace, and the slam was home.

Bachelor days over for Prince Andrew

LONDON (AP) — Buckingham Palace announced today that Prince Andrew, second son of Queen Elizabeth II, will marry Sarah Ferguson, a red-haired commoner with close family ties to the monarchy.

Andrew's engagement to Miss Ferguson was announced in an official statement handed to reporters reporters outside the palace.

"It is with the greatest pleasure that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh announce the betrothal of their beloved son, Prince Andrew, to Miss Sarah Ferguson, daughter of Major Ronald Ferguson and Mrs. Hector Barrantes," the announcement said.

It ended months of speculation that the dashing Royal Navy lieutenant and helicopter pilot would marry Miss Ferguson, a sales executive at a London art publishing firm and the daughter of Prince Charles' polo manager.

The palace did not announce a date of the royal wedding, the first since Charles, heir to the throne, and then-Lady Diana Spencer were married at St. Paul's Cathedral on July 29, 1981.

Miss Ferguson first appeared in public with Andrew at the Ascot races last June. Talk of her becoming a member of the royal family started in earnest in early February when she showed up twice in one week at the side of her close friend, the Princess of Wales — on a visit to Andrew's ship, and on a Swiss ski trip.

The British Broadcasting Corp., which broke into its scheduled programming to bulletin the news to an eager public early today, said Miss Ferguson was driven to Buckingham Palace.

Miss Ferguson's family has long and close links with royalty. She is descended from King Charles II, but is not a claimant to the throne because the 17th-century monarch had no legitimate offspring. Her maternal grandmother was a Montagu-Douglas-Scott, from the family of the Duke of Buccleuch, Scotland's largest private landowner.

Nicknamed "Fergie," Britain's newest princess-to-be has been dogged by reporters for weeks in scenes reminiscent of 1981, when Diana was thrust into the limelight from the sheltered obscurity of the landed aristocracy. Throughout it all, she smiled and parried reporters' questions.

Her father, in a television interview today, smiled broadly and recalled that his daughter and Andrew would first have seen each other as small children in polo meetings near Windsor Castle.

"At that age, they would not have known any significance to each other at all," said Ferguson. "They would have seen each other — that is all."

Malamud

NEW YORK (AP) — Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist Bernard Malamud, who won acclaim for writing about anti-Semitism in "The Fixer" and heroism in "The Natural," has died. He was 71.

Malamud, who grew up in Brooklyn and drew upon the Russian-immigrant experience of his parents for many of his early works, died Tuesday at his Manhattan apartment of natural causes, said Sgt. Raymond O'Donnell, a police spokesman.

Malamud won the Pulitzer and the National Book Award for fiction in 1967 for "The Fixer," which was made into a movie starring Alan Bates. Set in the waning days of czarist Russia, "The Fixer" reveals the courage of a Jewish handyman falsely accused of ritual murder because of anti-Semitism.

Because of works like "The Fixer," and "The Assistant," Malamud was regarded as a "Jewish writer," along with Saul Bellow and Philip Roth.

But Malamud was happy when "The Natural" was made into a movie in 1984 because it enabled him "to be recognized once more as an American writer — and that is a kind of triumph," he told The New York Times in February 1985.

"The Natural," written in 1952, was not typical of Malamud's work because of its absence of Jewish themes and characters.

The upbeat ending of the movie, starring Robert Redford as an aging baseball player aided by magic, was different from the novel, Malamud's first, in which the the protagonist is disgraced.

Mandrell

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Barbara Mandrell is selling her palatial lakefront estate and has bought a 100-acre property on which she plans to build a log cabin dream house.

"She's always wanted a log cabin and she preaches to me about them all the time," said Miss Mandrell's mother, Mary Mandrell.

But Miss Mandrell, who is asking $1.25 million for her estate outside Nashville, is not the only family member trying to sell a lakefront home, family spokeswoman Jeannie Ghent said Tuesday.

Her sister, country singer Louise Mandrell, is trying to sell hers and reportedly is asking $975,000.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — New York Times columnist Tom Wicker will be this year's recipient of the Milwaukee Press Club's Sacred Cat Award.

Wicker, whose "In the Nation" column started in 1966, will receive the award at the press club's Gridiron Dinner on May 3.

Dollar rises

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose firmly against the major European currencies in early trading today. Gold prices were lower.

Foreign exchange dealers said the dollar was boosted by rumors that the Bank of Japan had intervened to support the American currency in New York Tuesday, when the dollar sagged to record lows against the Japanese yen.

In London, the state-run Bank of England reduced its dealing rates for the money market by one percentage point from 12.5 percent to 11.5 percent in the wake of financial markets' satisfaction with Tuesday's national budget statement by Chancellor of the Exchequer Nigel Lawson.

The first major bank to react was Barclays, which cuts its base rate by the same amount to 11.5 percent. National Westminster Bank then followed suit.

It remained to be seen whether the pound would benefit during the day. Lower interest rates would not make the British currency so attractive to speculators and investors, although it would make it easier for industry to borrow money to finance investment and new jobs.

In early trading, the pound slipped to $1.4725 from Tuesday's $1.47825.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $349.20 a troy ounce, against $350.00 late Tuesday. At mid-morning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $349.25.

In Zurich, gold was trading at $349.00 bid, up from the opening $348.80 but down from Tuesday's late $351.00.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold closed at $348.47 bid, down from $349.37.

In New York Tuesday, gold was quoted late at $349.00, down from $349.50.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $5.70 dollars a troy ounce, down from Tuesday's $5.77.

Midlanders find flying from here to there costs less

DEANNA J. NEAL
Business/Oil Writer

Midland air travelers are now finding getting from here to there a lot cheaper, as a result of recent no-frills air fares and service offered by Frontier Airlines.

Recently acquired by People's Express, the airline which offers flights daily from Midland to Denver and connections from there to almost anyplace in the U.S., now resembles its new parent in both fare and frills.

Want coffee, lunch, pop and peanuts? You can still get them, but they are no longer free. In a statement issued this week, Frontier announced the following frill price list: coffee, .50 cents; juice and pop, .50¢; cocktails, $2.00; breakfast and lunch snackpacks, $3.00; peanuts or sweetrolls, .50¢; carry-on luggage, $3.00 per piece. Customers can also pay for advance seat assignment and multi-course gourmet meals.

What kind of fare savings can customers expect from these cost cutting measures? A person can fly from Midland to Denver for $39; from Midland to Newark, New Jersey for $79; and from Midland to Boston for $89.

"We have three board directors in Denver," said the President of an independent oil company in Midland, "and all three of them flew down last week for what it used to cost just one to fly."

Travel is normally one of the first expense items to be cut in times of a downturn but a number of firms indicated they have not considered a reduction in corporate travel, because of current low costs.

Midland customers flying the Denver-based airline are continuing to receive the lowest ticket prices in the industry, according to a Frontier spokesman. Said Marilyn Mishkin, Frontier communications representative: "To offer low fares consistently, we have to reduce our costs. We realize that customers care more about low fares than they do about a meal, a drink or a piece of checked luggage."

"People are looking for choices and they only want to pay for services that they choose," she added. "For example, a business customer on a short-haul usually has no luggage, and rarely cares about eating a meal when he is on his way to a business luncheon or dinner. Why should that customer have to pay for a "bundle" of services when he has no desire to use those services?"

Mishkin says Frontier is receiving good response from its new bid to cut costs and company officials are excited about the opportunity for improved profitability.

She said Frontier had seen its bookings and the number of flights double as a result of its no-frills policy. Mishkin said: "Most passengers don't want all the frills. The ultimate frill is a low fare."

Frontier Airlines, part of the People Express company, has released its "frills list," charging for amenities such as coffee, soft drinks and peanuts to help the company offer lower air fares.

Volcker may be losing seven-year influence on U.S. monetary policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker may be losing his seven-year grip on U.S. monetary policy after being defeated by the board's Reagan majority on a critical interest-rate vote, analysts say.

With all four appointees of President Reagan joining forces against Volcker, the board voted 4-3 last month to lower a key interest rate from 7.5 percent to 7 percent, according to participants and other government officials.

Asked to comment on the vote, Martha Seeger, one of the Reagan appointees, said the Fed "is not supposed to be a one-person show."

Volcker was able to persuade the board to delay the action for several weeks so the rate cut could be coordinated with other industrialized nations, officials said.

The final action in reducing the discount rate, the fee the Fed charges banks and financial institutions for short-term loans, was announced March 7 after West Germany and Japan had taken similar steps.

At the time, the Fed said the decision had the unanimous approval of the board. Reports of the earlier, split vote first surfaced about a week ago and were confirmed by Fed and administration officials Tuesday. The officials spoke only on condition of anonymity.

The February vote was the first time Volcker has been overruled on monetary policy in his seven years as Fed chairman — a fact that economists said could undermine his future effectiveness.

A spokesman for Volcker, Joseph Coyne, denied rumors that raced through Wall Street on Tuesday that Volcker was on the verge of resigning. "He is not about to resign," Coyne said.

Seeger, speaking with reporters after a speech on Tuesday to a credit union association, said she did not know whether Volcker would serve until his term expires in August 1987.

She also said she did not know whether the four Reagan appointees would continue to vote in a bloc, while noting that the 4-3 vote "has signified some independence" of the group. "I intend to vote my conscience," she added.

The last time a Fed chairman was on the losing end of a money-policy vote was in 1978 when William Miller was chairman. When news reports of his defeat surfaced, financial markets plummeted — something that did not happen this time.

Index tops 1,800 briefly

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial average jumped briefly above the 1,800 level for the first time on Tuesday.

The average crossed 1,800 late in the afternoon, but slipped back to end the day at 1,789.87, up 13.05 points from Monday's close and just below its record high of 1,792.74, set Friday.

Stocks had taken a sharp dip Monday in a slide attributed largely to profit-taking and speculation that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries might agree to cut production as a way to firm up oil prices.

But analysts said many investors did not expect any significant change soon in low interest rates and oil prices, the fundamental factors that have been supporting the stock market rally.

Exxon, Enserch announce job cutbacks

Staff and Wire Reports

Economic conditions in the oil and gas industry has caused the layoff of 400 workers at Enserch and major overseas restructuring at Exxon.

Exxon Corp., the world's biggest company, says it will restructure oil and gas operations outside North America and eliminate some central offices because of what the petroleum giant calls competitive pressures and declining energy prices.

The Tuesday announcement came less than a week after Exxon said it would cut 1986 capital and exploration spending by 26 percent compared with last year's level, from $10.8 billion to $8 billion, because of declining petroleum prices.

The statement did not specify how many people would be affected or how much money would be saved, but said the changes would be completed by this fall.

The statement said a new international organization based in New Jersey would be established to coordinate Exxon's worldwide oil and gas operations and interests outside the United States and Canada.

The new unit, not identified by name, will combine some of the activities of Esso Europe Inc. (London); Esso Inter-America Inc. (Coral Gables, Fla.); Esso Eastern Inc. (Houston); Esso Middle East (New York); Exxon International Co. (New Jersey); and Esso Exploration Inc. (Houston), the statement said.

The parent company's worldwide oil and gas activities will be handled by three units: Exxon Co. U.S.A., the new international organization and Imperial Oil Ltd., a majority-owned affiliate in Canada, the statement said.

Exxon also will establish a new coal and minerals unit in Houston to manage all the company's worldwide coal and minerals activities outside Canada.

In Dallas, layoffs by Enserch Corp. of more than 400 employees reduced the workforce in one subsidiary, Lone Star Gas Co., by about 6 percent, officials said.

"This is an action we very deeply regret, but with the current environment in the energy industry, we really have no choice," said Lone Star Gas spokesman Howard Matson.

He said officials at Lone Star Gas, one of two energy-related subsidiaries of Enserch affected, notified 260 middle-management, administrative and clerical employees on Tuesday that their jobs were terminated.

Officials said 170 Lone Star positions were canceled in Dallas, 40 employees in Fort Worth lost their jobs and the rest of the layoffs came in other Lone Star offices in Texas and Oklahoma.

Another 150 jobs at Enserch Exploration and 20 positions at main Enserch offices in Dallas were eliminated, officials said. Enserch Exploration had employed about 1,000 people.

Six Texas banks placed on creditwatch

DALLAS (AP) — In the face of a drop in oil prices, Standard & Poor's Corp. Tuesday announced it has placed six major Texas bank holding companies on creditwatch.

Allied Bancshares, Interfirst Corp., MCORP, Republicbank Corp., Texas American Bancshares and Texas Commerce Bancshares face potential changes in bond ratings after the 180-member debt-rating service's decision.

"It implies that we know that the oil price drop is going to have an effect on their loan quality," said Bob Grossman, assistant vice president of S&P. "In order to react appropriately and not overreact, we put the companies on creditwatch, which indicates we are concerned about the oil price drop upon their credit quality."

The 90 days preceding an upcoming rating decision "gives us time to meet with the companies and do our own analyses to see what kinds of adjustments are necessary," said Grossman.

Affected are credit ratings on about $1.4 billion in long-term debt and preferred stock, as well as issues backed by letters of credit.

Jay Crager, chief executive officer of Allied Bancshares, declined to comment on the effects of S&P's review. But, like the other bank executives, he said the development was "very expected."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

U.S. becomes debtor for first time since 1914

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deficit in the country's broadest measure of foreign trade hit a record $117.7 billion last year, confirming that the United States became a net debtor for the first time in 71 years, the government says.

The Commerce Department said Tuesday the deficit in the country's current account, which includes trade in merchandise and in services, surged 9.6 percent above the previous record deficit of $107.4 billion in 1984.

Foreigners now own more U.S. investments than Americans own in foreign investments, something that had not occurred since 1914.

Treasury changing dollar to thwart copiers

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the first major currency changes in more than 50 years, the Treasury Department says it is adding a tiny plastic thread and microscopic printing to U.S. money in an effort to thwart counterfeiters.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said Tuesday the changes were undertaken to protect American money against a growing threat from a new generation of sophisticated copying machines.

The main difference will be the addition of a clear polyester thread on the left side of the portrait that will be invisible until the money is held up to the light.

Texas Commerce loses $44 million in loans

DALLAS (AP) — An official with Texas Commerce Bancshares said the bank wrote off $44 million in loans made to members of its own board.

Marshall Tyndall, executive vice president of the holding company, Tuesday blamed the loss on shaky energy and real estate markets.

Representatives of the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency charged last year that the bank had made "sweetheart" loans to directors. But the holding company said the comptroller's investigation concluded Texas Commerce did not violate the law.

RepublicBank Corp. elects new president

DALLAS (AP) — Joseph R. Musolino was elected president and chief operating officer of RepublicBank Corp., officials announced Tuesday.

Musolino, whose appointment is effective July 1, will replace as president Gerald W. Fronterhouse, who will become chairman of the board and chief executive officer to replace retiring chairman James D. Berry.

Vista Savings opens branch in Midland

By MELLA McEWEN

There's a new kid on the savings and loan block.

VISTA SAVINGS, of Odessa, has opened a new branch in Midland, in the North Park shopping center at Loop 250 and Midkiff. The office opened Monday, and will have a grand opening on March 24.

According to Branch Manager Ben Weibel, the new branch will offer all financial services, including checking, and will have a Pulse automated teller at the site.

"Our area of concern as far as loans go will be mortgage, home improvement and consumer lending," Weibel said.

Vista has four branches in Odessa and two in Dallas.

Midlanders will soon have a new restaurant to try, and Dellwood Mall a new tenant when the husband and wife team of Robert and Gloria Pizana open their CANDILEJAS restaurant around the first of April.

Robert Pizana promises that the new establishment, located next to Skate and Sticks, "won't be the run of the mill fare." He has recruited chefs Maria Elena and Julieta, of El Paso. According to Pizana, Maria Elena has worked in most of the major cities in Mexico, acquiring 30 to 40 years of experience.

The restaurant will offer 30 to 40 items ranging from tacos al carbon to flautas, as well as non-traditional fare like seafood and lots of pastas. Prices range from $2.95 to $6.95, and the restaurant will be open from lunch through dinner seven days a week. Depending on demand, breakfast may be added to the menu, Pizana said. Candilejas is in the process of getting a beer license to serve beer and wine, and hope to have it by the first of May.

WAL-MART is doing its part to help keep Midland beautiful, with its adopt a tree program.

The store will give away 2,000 seedlings to the first 2,000 customers on Saturday. "This is aimed at the kids, so they can plant a tree and watch it grow. We'll give adoption certificates giving the type of tree and how tall it'll grow," according to Ryan Richardson, store manager. He added that no purchase is necessary, but the offer is limited to one per family.

The Midland store continues to lead the way in innovation for the company, being the first to try this program.

An expanding business is ROBBIE CASEY'S, which carries fine apparel for women.

The store left its location in La Villita shopping center and opened Monday at Courtyard at Midland Park, taking over the space previously occupied by Ssor Diener Furs. The move has allowed owner Robbie Casey to add a full service fur department, including sales, service and storage.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Field producer flows 550 barrels

From Staff Reports

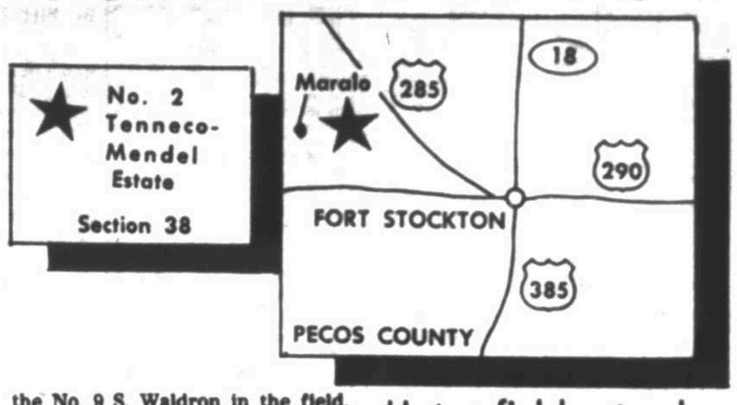
Development continues in the Maralo field of Pecos County, with MARALO, INC. completing a very strong high gravity Wolfcamp producer in the field.

The No. 2 Tenneco-Mendel Estate "38" potentialed to flow 550 barrels of 53.2 gravity crude, 1.8 Mmcfd and no water on a 16/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,975 psi. Production is from perforations 10,843 to 10,938 ft., which had been acidized with 2,500 gallons of NeFe acid. Gas-oil ratio is 3,285:1.

Drilled to 11,200 ft., the well was plugged back to 11,141 ft. Five inch casing was set at 9,870 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,944 ft., include the Rustler at 1,458 ft., Cherry Canyon at 5,681, Brushy Canyon at 6,894, Bone Springs at 7,565, and the Wolfcamp at 9,900 ft. Pay was topped at 10,670 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from north and 1,680 ft. from west lines of Section 38, Block 48, T-9-S, 20 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.



Exxon Corp. finals 326 barrel producer

The Moore field of Howard County gained a new Deep Fusselman producer as EXXON CORP. completed the No. 9 S. Waldron in the field.

On potential test, the well flowed 326 barrels of 50 gravity crude and 142 Mcfd on a 7/64 inch choke. Production is from perforations 9,993 to 10,110 ft., which had been acidized with 1,250 gallons of 15 percent HCL acid. Gas-oil ratio is 436:1.

The well was drilled to 10,735 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 10,375 ft.

On ground elevation of 2,533 ft., formation tops include the Dean at 7,243 ft., Wolfcamp at 7,398, Strawn at 9,317, Mississippian Lime at 9,566, Woodford at 9,772, Silurian at 9,848, Fusselman at 9,962, Sylvan at 10,116, Montoya at 10,140, and the Ellenburger at 10,320 ft. Pay was topped at 9,993 ft.

Location is 1,860 ft. from north and east lines of Section 13, Block 34, T-1-S, T&P survey, 7.5 miles southwest of Big Spring.

Upton field extender flows 204 barrels oil

GRUSS PETROLEUM MANAGEMENT, INC., Midland, added a third Bend producer to the Pegasus South field of Upton County, extending the field approximately a mile north-northeast.

The No. 1 Powell "10" tested to flow 204 barrels of 45 gravity crude and 35 barrels of water on a 32/64 inch choke. Production is from perforations 10,522 to 10,547 ft., which had been acidized with 3,000 gallons of acid. Gas-oil ratio is 3,333:1.

The well was originally scheduled as a 13,500 ft. wildcat, and will be completed as a dual well, producing from both the Bend and Devonian zones.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,852.5 ft., include the Dean at 8,959 ft., Wolfcamp at 9,136, Bend at 10,519, Mississippian at 11,506, and the Devonian at 11,962 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from south and east lines of section 10, Block 41, T-5-S, T&P survey, 16 miles northeast of Crane.

Clearfork discovery tested for 8 barrels

ROSEWOOD RESOURCES, INC. has completed a Clearfork discovery in the Chaney field of Howard County.

The No. 621 Alexander was finaled to pump eight barrels of 39.4 gravity crude and 100 barrels of water from open hole 5,611 to 5,651 ft., no treatment reported.

Scheduled as a 5,700 ft. wildcat, the well reached a total depth of 5,651 ft.

The well topped the Clearfork at 4,424 ft. and the Leonard D at 5,577 ft. on ground elevation of 2,556.4 ft. Pay was topped at 5,556 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from east and 990 ft. from south lines of Section 21, Block A, Bauer & Cockrell survey, eight miles northwest of Big Spring.

OIL & GAS DIGEST

Amoco increases proved reserves in 1985

NEW ORLEANS — Amoco Corp. replaced more than 130 percent of its U.S. production with new reserves in 1985, a company executive recently reported to petroleum investment analysts.

John W. Elias, executive vice president for the company's exploration and production subsidiary, said that 1985 was the fifth consecutive year that Amoco has increased its proved reserves of crude oil and natural gas.

Of last year's total, Elias said that well over 100 percent resulted from exploration and exploitation efforts, with the remainder derived from acquisitions. The company had said earlier that spending for acquisitions totaled $740 million in 1985.

Shamrock completes Ochiltree discovery

DALLAS — Diamond Shamrock Exploration Co. has completed a natural gas field discovery in Ochiltree County, Texas.

The discovery well, designated the Morrison "F" No. 3, is currently producing 6.0 million cubic feet of gas and 60 barrels of condensate per day on a 11/64 inch choke with 3,100 pounds of flowing tubing pressure. Drilled to 10,950 feet, the well has a calculated absolute open flow potential of 13.3 million cubic feet of gas per day.

ARCO begins injection project in Wasson Field

ARCO Oil & Gas Co., Midland, has begun injecting carbon dioxide into the Willard (San Andres) Unit of the Wasson Field near Denver City, according to vice president of the Arco's Central District, E. Marvin Pringle.

The carbon dioxide will come from ARCO's Sheep Mountain Field in Colorado, Shell's McElmo Dome in Colorado and Amoco's Bravo Dome in New Mexico.

The injection project will cover some 12.5 sections in the southern portion of the field and will have 235 injectors and 284 production wells. Initial injection pressure will be around 1,650 psi.

ARCO said the project will extend past the year 2000 and is expected to yield an additional 58 million barrels of oil or 13 percent of the original oil in place in the unit.

The company said Willard Unit reserves were estimated at 450 million barrels of oil at the time of discovery in 1936. Since then about 20 percent of the oil has been recovered by primary production and 19 percent by secondary water flooding.

The carbon dioxide will be reclaimed by a gas plant which will begin construction later this year with completion anticipated in mid-1987. When completed, the plant will have a 75 million cubic feet per day capacity.

Bayou reports increased reserves

HOUSTON (SWN) Bayou Resources, Inc. announced that estimates of its proved reserves at December 31, 1985 by an independent petroleum engineering firm were greatly increased.

The significant increases in oil and gas reserves were accomplished primarily by the acquisition in June, 1985 of an 89 percent operating working interest in the State Lease

EMPLOYEE LEASING
An idea whose time has come....
* to save money by reducing cost
* to increase cash flow
* to improve employee morale
* to reduce manpower requirements
* to give you time to concentrate on producing more business.

Employee Leasing--building on the advantages of specialization, economies of size, & favorable tax legislation--has become a solution for many business problems. Employee leasing arrangements offer many advantages to both the employer and the employee.

But, will it work for you? Employee leasing does not necessarily work for every company.

The first step is to compare its cost with the cost of the traditional employee/employer relationship. Rononco International, Inc., a human resources management company, assists you in making the cost analysis to help you know how much you are now spending on employment. Then, YOU can determine if employee leasing fits your company.

To find out and to arrange an appointment for a FREE labor cost analysis by one of our professional consultants, call (915) 699-2175. All information is held in strict confidence.

VOLCKER

"Things were different then," said Lawrence Chimerine, president of Chase Econometrics, a financial forecasting service based in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "We were in an inflationary spiral, markets were worried about any changes in monetary policy."

Today's bull market, he said, doesn't seem to be bothered by bad news.

Volcker generally had argued that a drop in discount rates while the dollar was sliding rapidly could drive down the value of the dollar further and rekindle inflation, according to sources who asked not to be named.

The dollar has declined against the Japanese yen by 28 percent since September to its lowest levels since World War II.

"The dispute was really one of timing rather than over whether the discount rate should be reduced," said a high-level Fed source, who declined to be identified by name.

But Chimerine agreed with other analysts that Volcker's defeat on the discount-rate vote, if not completely undermining his power, would at least "raise the potential for more conflict on the Fed than they've had in years."

Other economists viewed the development as even more decisive.

"Volcker's lost, that's the end of his power base," said Mike Evans, president of a Washington-based forecasting firm. "Once you've lost on a power fight like that, you've lost."

"It's going to make things more difficult for him," said David Wyss, chief economist for Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass. "And if he believes he has lost control over monetary policy, he may decide to leave."

"This is basically a political development more than an economical one," Wyss added.

The discount rate is a bellwether rate. Changes in it traditionally pave the way for changes in other short-term rates. Thus, banks around the country lowered their prime rates from 9.5 percent to 9 percent shortly after the Fed action.

The four Reagan appointees on the board are Seeger, Fed Vice Chairman Preston Martin, Wayne Angell and Manuel Johnson. Angell and Johnson were sworn in just last month. With their appointments, the Reagan administration gained a majority on the seven-member board for the first time.

Analysts generally said that, at the very least, they now anticipate a further decline in the discount rate — to 6.5 percent — by late spring or early summer because of the power struggle.

Congressman sees problems with pipeline safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Kentucky congressman, calling for stepped-up scrutiny of natural gas pipelines, said Tuesday a series of pipeline accidents in his state may indicate serious safety problems nationwide.

"The pipeline safety problem is far from unique to Kentucky," Rep. Harold Rogers, R-Ky., told the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on fossil and synthetic fuels. "I fear it may be illustrative of other problems in other systems."

Under an arrangement with the Department of Transportation, Kentucky is responsible for inspecting pipelines in the state and ensuring that federal safety standards are being met.

Rogers said that the department's pipeline safety office "remains accountable for enforcing these standards and ensuring that the state is doing its job. ... I am not totally convinced DOT has been doing all it can in reaction to serious failures."

He said pipeline operators are not being required to cooperate with state and federal regulators

Operators fined $26,000 for plugging violations

AUSTIN (AP) — Nine oil and gas operators have been fined a total of $26,000 by the Texas Railroad Commission for well plugging and pollution violations.

River City Energy Inc. of Houston was fined $8,000 Monday for four unplugged wells on its Martin Lou Camp Haslett lease in Bexar County.

B.J.H. Energy Inc. of Katy was fined $5,000 for two unplugged wells on its Shirley Doyal lease in McCulloch County.

In another pollution case, Southwin Exploration Inc. of Abilene was fined $1,500 for saltwater leaks from a well and a tank on its Alexander lease in Runnels County.

Celebrate Easter in Style

Although Easter bonnets aren't what they used to be, at least one tradition remains as important today as ever. Easter dinner and the ham that heads the menu are still as cherished as the first sign of spring.

It's little wonder that for centuries ham has remained the favorite choice for Easter dinner. It is easy to prepare, impressive to serve and oh, so delicious to eat. To keep the tradition flourishing, this year select an economical smoked half ham and top it with a spicy rum glaze. While Rum Glazed Baked Ham offers old-fashioned flavor and goodness, it is especially easy to prepare. Most hams on the market today are already fully-cooked and need only be heated to serving temperature. No pre-cooking preparation, no watching and no basting are required.

Regal Rice and Asparagus will complement the ham in royal fashion. It's a simple-to-make casserole featuring asparagus spears and hot, fluffy rice in a sour cream and Cheddar cheese sauce. Preparation, which begins with cooked rice, can be done well in advance so that the casserole needs only to be heated through just prior to serving. Over 99 percent of the rice sold in the United States is grown here. Rice is almost as American as apple pie — the dessert for this holiday meal.

To bring the Easter meal to a joyful conclusion, delight diners with Golden Glazed Apple Pie. Delicately flavored Golden Delicious apples from Washington state are an excellent choice for the filling since they hold their shape extremely well when cooked and resist darkening better than most apple varieties. The single-crust pie is topped off in style with an orange marmalade glaze and eye-catching meringue kisses.

The enjoyment of the Easter ham needn't end with the holiday meal for the leftovers can be the start of a variety of delicious and economical main dishes. Ham 'n Apple Fried Rice is a bonus entree so tasty that no one will suspect it's a budget stretcher. Pieces of cooked ham and thin wedges of Golden Delicious apple team up in a rice and egg mixture that's uniquely flavored with apple juice and summer savory.

Rum Glazed Baked Ham

5 to 7-pound smoked half ham
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1-1/2 teaspoons imitation rum extract
1/8 teaspoon ground allspice

Place ham, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part. Be careful that bulb does not rest in fat or on bone. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F.) until the meat thermometer registers 130°F. to 140°F. for "fully-cooked" half ham (18 to 24 minutes per pound); 160°F. for a "cook-before-eating" half ham (22 to 25 minutes per pound). Combine corn syrup, rum extract and allspice in a small saucepan and cook slowly 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Brush ham with warm glaze 20 minutes before end of cooking time.

Regal Rice and Asparagus

2 pounds fresh asparagus, trimmed*
4 cups cooked rice, cooled
1 teaspoon salt
1 to 2 dashes ground red pepper
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 cup milk
1-1/2 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese, divided

Cook asparagus only until tender-crisp; drain. Combine rice, salt, pepper, sour cream, milk, and 3/4 cup cheese. Spoon half of the mixture into a buttered shallow 2-1/2 quart baking dish. Reserve 4 asparagus spears for garnish, arrange remaining asparagus on mixture. Spread remaining rice mixture over asparagus. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 20 minutes. Garnish with reserved asparagus and continue baking 10 minutes or until hot and bubbly. 6 servings.

*2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen asparagus spears (blanched) or 2 cans (14-1/2 ounces each) asparagus spears (drained) may be substituted.

Golden Glazed Apple Pie

6 or 7 Golden Delicious apples, pared if desired
2 teaspoons lime or lemon juice
1/4 cup flour
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon grated lime peel
Dash salt
1 (9-inch) unbaked pastry shell
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1/3 cup orange marmalade, melted
Meringue Kisses*

Core and thinly slice apples to equal 7 cups; toss with lime or lemon juice. Combine flour, cinnamon, lime peel and salt; add to apples, tossing lightly. Arrange apples in pastry shell; drizzle butter evenly over top. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 35 minutes or until apples are tender and juice is bubbly around the edge. Spoon marmalade over hot apples. Cool completely. Garnish with Meringue Kisses just before serving. Extra Meringue Kisses may be passed. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

*Meringue Kisses: Beat together 2 egg whites, 1/2 teaspoon almond extract and 1/4 teaspoon each salt and cream of tartar until soft peaks form. Gradually add 1/2 cup sugar; beat until stiff peaks form and sugar is dissolved. Drop meringue by spoonfuls or pipe with pastry tube on baking sheet lined with heavy paper. Bake at 250°F. 1 hour; turn off heat and allow to dry in oven, with door closed, 1 hour. Remove from oven and cool thoroughly on rack. Makes about 12.

Note: Meringue Kisses may be prepared ahead of time; store in an airtight container.

Ham 'n Apple Fried Rice

1 pound cooked ham, cut into 1/4-inch slices
1 cup uncooked rice
1 medium onion, chopped
1/2 cup chopped celery
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon summer savory
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup apple juice
1 cup water
2 eggs
1 tablespoon water
1 large Golden Delicious apple, cored and cut into 1/4-inch thick wedges
2 tablespoons snipped parsley

Brown rice, onion and celery in butter in large frying-pan. Sprinkle savory and salt over rice mixture; stir in apple juice and 1 cup water. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Meanwhile, cut ham slices into 1-inch pieces, fold into cooked rice. Beat together eggs and 1 tablespoon water. Make a well in center of ham and rice mixture. Pour eggs into well and cook quickly, stirring constantly, until partially set. Stir in ham and rice; fold in apples. Cover tightly and cook slowly 5 minutes. Fold in parsley. 6 servings.

Brunch At Its Best!

Fast becoming a tradition in many homes is a festive brunch which serves as a showcase for a variety of special foods. Friends and family enjoy the relaxed atmosphere of a brunch while the host and hostess favor the ease with which it can be prepared and served.

Ideal for a brunch are Company Pork Kabobs. Flavorsome pork tenderloin slices, wrapped with bacon, are alternated on skewers with fresh pork sausage links. The kabobs are broiled with a spicy maple glaze, then just before serving they are tipped with wedges of crisp, naturally sweet Red Delicious apple.

Rice is always nice as an accompaniment, especially when dressed up as in Calypso Rice. Curry powder lends exotic accents to the rice that cooks to fluffy tenderness in apple juice. Adding flavor and texture interest to this easy yet elegant dish are raisins, cashew nuts and flavorful chunks of Golden Delicious apple.

Company Pork Kabobs

2 pork tenderloins (approximately 2 pounds)
12 slices bacon
12 fresh pork sausage links (approximately 12 ounces)
1/2 cup maple-flavored table syrup
1 tablespoon lime juice
1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon ground cloves
1 large Red Delicious apple, cored, cut into 6 wedges

Cut each pork tenderloin across grain into 6 slices, 1-1/2-inches thick. Partially cook bacon 1 minute (bacon must be pliable); remove to absorbent paper. Cool slightly. Wrap 1 slice bacon around each tenderloin slice. On each of six 8-inch skewers, thread 2 tenderloin slices, cut surface up, securing bacon at the same time. Place on rack in broiler pan so surface of pork is 6 inches from heat and broil 10 minutes, turning after 5 minutes. Meanwhile, combine syrup, lime juice, nutmeg and cloves in a small saucepan and cook slowly 2 to 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Thread 2 pork sausage links on each skewer and continue broiling 10 minutes, turning after 5 minutes. Brush pork kabobs with glaze and continue broiling 5 minutes, turning and brushing with glaze occasionally. Remove from broiler. Thread 1 apple wedge on end of each skewer. Brush kabobs, including apple wedge, with glaze before serving. 6 servings.

Calypso Rice

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 to 2 teaspoons curry powder
1 Golden Delicious apple, cored, coarsely chopped
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup sliced celery
1 cup uncooked rice
1/3 cup raisins
2 cups apple juice
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup dry roasted cashew nuts, halved

Melt butter or margarine in large frying-pan. Stir in curry powder; add chopped apple and cook slowly 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove apple and set aside. Add onions and celery to frying-pan and cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Add rice, raisins, apple juice and salt. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Gently stir in apple and nuts. 6 servings.

TEXAS ★ CELEBRITY ★ RECIPE

(By RUSSELL M. GARDNER and CHRIS FARKAS)

"So often in the course of history, we forget the significance of the fact that people had to eat, no matter what else happened. Whether men were fighting wars or settling the frontier, it was the women who cooked for them (along with hundreds of other chores). Their food oiled the machine of wars and settlements." — Ann W. Richards, State Treasurer

LEMON YOGURT CAKE

1 cup butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
6 eggs, separated
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
⅛ teaspoon lemon extract
3 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup yogurt

Beat yogurt and 1⅛ cups of the sugar with electric mixer until creamy. Add egg yolks, lemon peel, lemon extract and beat until thick and pale yellow. Sift the flour, measure, and sift again with the soda and salt. Into the creamed butter mixture alternately mix the flour and the yogurt. Beat the egg whites until soft peaks form; then gradually add the remaining ⅛ cup sugar, beating until glossy. Fold batter into beaten egg whites and pour into a greased 10-inch tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until done. Cool 15 minutes in pan, then turn out on a rack. Makes 12-15 servings.

Carrots play big role in American kitchen lore

By KIT SNEDAKER
Hearst News Service

Carrots have always played a big role in American dining rooms, but during the Depression and World War II years they were cooked with unusual imagination — and everything else in the cupboard. Here are carrot recipes from years past that look even more interesting now.

CARROT PANCAKES

"This is an old time recipe that my mother used over 50 years ago," writes Laura A. Neely of Portland, Ore. "I can remember how delicious they were when I was but 5 (and I am now 56) and we children would call for more. I have made these several times for evening parties and no one could ever guess what they were made of."

⅛ cup cornmeal
⅛ cup whole wheat flour
⅛ cup white flour
1 even teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 eggs
⅞ cup grated carrots (2 or 3 large carrots)
1⅛ cup milk

Into a large mixing bowl sift the cornmeal, whole wheat and white flour, salt, baking powder and sugar. Make a deep hole in the center of this, and drop in the eggs and grated carrots. Add the milk and stir until well blended. If it's too thick, add more milk. Then bake on a hot greased griddle and serve hot with butter and syrup as part of a vegetable platter or meat accompaniment.

CARROT LOAF

"This dish so nearly resembles a real meat loaf that it is often mistaken for one," writes Mrs. C. A. Magaw, Calexico, Calif. "It is excellent to serve on a meatless day and it is prepared as follows."

1 cup cooked carrots, chopped fine
1 cup walnut meats, chopped fine
1 cup bread crumbs, chopped fine
1 medium onion, grated
⅛ stalk celery, chopped
1 tablespoon melted butter
Salt and pepper to taste
2 eggs, well-beaten

Mix all ingredients well, put into a greased loaf pan and bake in a 350 F. oven for 25 to 30 minutes. About 5 minutes before removing from oven, cover with tomato sauce as follows:

Tomato Sauce:
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup tomatoes
1 bay leaf
1 clove
Salt and pepper to taste

Melt the butter, add flour and stir until smooth. Add the tomatoes gradually, then the other ingredients and cook gently for a few minutes. Then press through a sieve. Pour the sauce over the carrot loaf about 5 minutes before removing from oven.

CARROT CHOWDER

"I am sending a copy of a recipe long used by my family," writes Mrs. Katherine L. Conway of Wilmington, Del. "To my knowledge, it has never appeared in print. Here is the way it is made and I hope you like it."

2 cups sliced raw onions
2 cups sliced raw carrots
1 quart boiling water
2 cups diced raw potatoes
2 cups milk
Salt and pepper
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Put the onions and carrots in 1 quart boiling water in a covered soup kettle. Boil 15 minutes or until tender. Add the potatoes, boil gently for 20 minutes, then add the milk, salt and pepper and simmer 5 minutes. Melt the butter, add the flour, heat until smooth and stir into the chowder. Cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly, remove it from the fire and add chopped parsley if desired.

CARROT PUFFS

"I'm sure that everyone who tries my carrot puffs will like them as well as I do," writes Mrs. Walter Peterson, St. Paul, Minn. "It's a tasty, different way of cooking carrots, which are so plentiful and so inexpensive now."

2 cups carrots, freshly cooked, drained and mashed
Salt and pepper to taste
⅛ teaspoon sugar
4 tablespoons melted butter
1 tablespoon milk
1 egg
Dry corn cereal

Combine the carrots, salt and pepper, sugar, melted butter and milk and shape into patties. Dip them in the beaten egg and roll them in the dry corn cereal. Brown on both sides in fat and serve good and hot.

ZUCCHINI CARROTS

2 medium-large zucchini (1 pound)
2 large carrots (⅛ pound total)
⅛ cup water
⅛ of a ¼-pound stick butter, cut into 4 equal pats
Salt to taste

Scrub zucchini in cold water and cut off and discard ends; coarsely grate zucchini — there should be 4 cups not packed down. Pare carrots and coarsely grate — there should be 2⅛ cups not packed down. Into a 10-inch skillet turn carrots and water; simmer, covered, until tender-crisp and water evaporates — 5 to 10 minutes. Add zucchini, butter and salt; mix well. Cook rapidly, uncovered and stirring often, just until zucchini is tender-crisp (it may not look transparent) and extremely hot — about 5 minutes; keep heat high so zucchini does not exude water. Makes 4 servings.

BRUNCH FARE
Zucchini Pancakes & Sausage
Fresh Fruit & Yogurt

ZUCCHINI PANCAKES

2 medium (1 scant pound total) zucchini, trimmed
⅓ cup all-purpose flour, spooned and leveled
¼ teaspoon baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup wheat germ
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 large eggs

In a food processor shred unpared zucchini medium fine; add flour, baking powder, salt, wheat germ, Parmesan and eggs. Pulse just until dry ingredients are moistened. Meanwhile heat griddle to 350-degrees; drop batter onto griddle by ¼ cupfuls, spreading to flatten slightly. Bake until golden brown — about 3 to 4 minutes on each side.

Makes ten 4-inch pancakes. Good served with sour cream or maple syrup.

DEAR ABBY

Daughter must be freed from bullying boyfriend

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I read with horror the letter from "Worried Mom," whose 17-year-old daughter suffered repeated beatings by her boyfriend. A few years ago I, too, was a worried mom with the same problem. I pleaded with my beautiful, blond-haired Laura to break up with her boyfriend, who had hit her with his fists and knocked out her front teeth. Once he rolled up her arm in a car window and drove off, dragging her down the street!

I also learned that he went to her dorm at college and terrified her when he held her over three flights, threatening to drop her. This kind of abuse continued for two years. I begged her to quit seeing him, but she "loved" him.

On May 31, 1984, my precious daughter was found dead in a field. She was killed by repeated blows to her head. The crime is still "unsolved" (insufficient evidence).

"Worried Mom," my daughter did not have the emotional strength to free herself from this monster. And neither does your daughter. You must help to free her by whatever means it takes — and do it immediately. Take legal action against her boyfriend and do not let him near her!

I pray that God will give you the strength to do whatever it takes, so you will not have to write such as I am writing, and will never have to sign your name: PARENT OF A MURDERED CHILD, MURFREESBORO, TENN.

DEAR PARENT: Thank you for writing. I would like to repeat some advice to all women who have tolerated, first, repeated verbal abuse from a lover, then a few punches, slaps, shoves, and finally a full-scale beating: If you think you can change him, forget it. First charge him with assault, then run as though your life depended upon it, because it does.

DEAR ABBY: I have a trivia question for you. Why is it that the abbreviation for "number" is no. and not nu. or nr.?

This question stirred everyone up in the office and no one can come up with the answer, so we decided to ask you. — CURIOUS FROM SAN MIGUEL

DEAR CURIOUS: According to Webster's New International Unabridged Dictionary, Second Edition: The abbreviation for "number" is no. — from the Latin "numero." I don't know why it's not nu. or nr. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: A good friend of mine in Farmington Hills, Mich., recently sent me some of your columns from the Detroit News. The subject: "Where do the people of Scotland, Great Britain and Wales get their strange eating habits?"

I think the question should be, "Where did you Americans acquire yours?" Although I am a Welshman, I believe I know the answer.

Much of the early eating in the States was done on the trail. Since it was probably more comfortable to eat in the saddle than to sit on the ground, the cowpoke remained mounted, feeding himself with his right hand while using his left hand to prevent his falling off his horse. This undoubtedly accounts for the predominant use of the right hand in the United States.

Further on the subject of insularity, while on a flight from Chicago to Akron, Ohio, I was engaged in a conversation with a matronly woman. After some time she asked, "What is your mother tongue, young man?" She looked at me with astonishment when I replied, "It's English."

After she had recovered her composure, she drawled grudgingly, "Well, I guess they can speak it over there, too."

WHAT'S COOKING

Recipes swapped, handed down

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Jerry Hennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Nancy White

Preparing and serving meals for the six couples who are members of American Association of University Women's Evening Gourmet group is not difficult for member Nancy White. For years, Mrs. White has swapped recipes with the best cooks in her own and her husband's families. Many of these family treasures originated with her mother-in-law, who came from a Kansas farm family.

"Some of the recipes have been coming down (to family members) for generations," Mrs. White said.

Other favorite recipes have been given to her by friends or restaurants. One recipe for Chicken Helene was served in the White House by Jackie Kennedy. "It's a very basic recipe," Mrs. White said. "It has few items, but it is very good."

The White family enjoys Greek food and Cajun food, but one of the most unusual recipes Mrs. White said she had ever tasted was Armadillo Eggs — and the credit for this dish goes to Ann Murphy, she added.

Many of Mrs. White's other recipes are from "Centennial 1985 Cook Book," compiled by volunteers for the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children.

ARMADILLO EGGS

2 cans mild jalapeno peppers, deveined, seeded and rinsed
1 pound sausage
1 package coating mix for pork
1½ cups buttermilk baking mix
2 eggs
1 pound finely grated Cheddar cheese

Wash peppers and stuff with cheese. Leave stems on. Combine baking mix, sausage and rest of cheese. Make same number of patties as peppers. Mold patties around peppers. Dip each into slightly beaten eggs and roll in coating mix. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes.

CHICKEN HELENE

1 chicken (2½-3 pounds) cup up
6 tablespoons butter
¾ cup chicken broth
¼ cup thinly sliced green onions including tops
½ cup sliced fresh mushrooms, sauteed in butter
1 package (9 ounces) frozen artichoke hearts, cooked and drained
Flour seasoned with salt and pepper
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup dry white wine

Dust chicken with seasoned flour. Melt 4 tablespoons butter in shallow baking pan. Place chicken in pan, skin side down; bake uncovered in preheated 350° oven 45 minutes or until almost tender. Meanwhile, melt remaining butter in saucepan. Stir in flour. Add broth and wine; cook stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Remove chicken from oven. Turn pieces over, sprinkle with raw green onions, mushrooms and artichokes. Pour sauce over top. Cook at 325° for 25-30 minutes.

CAJUN MEATBALLS

3 pounds ground meat
1 cup cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
6 drops Tabasco sauce
3 tablespoons cumin
3 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 clove garlic, pressed
1 onion, grated
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 small can tomato sauce
1 small can spaghetti sauce

Combine all but last two ingredients and form into small cocktail balls. Brown in oil and place in large baking pan. Combine last two ingredients and pour over meatballs. Bake at 350°, uncovered, for about 1 hour or until almost dry.

LOUISIANA GUMBO

½ cup oil
1 cup flour
Tabasco sauce
Garlic salt
Black pepper
1 medium onion, chopped
Smoked sausage
1 package frozen okra, cut
Salt
1 cup bell pepper
Worcestershire sauce
1 cup celery
1 bundle green onions
Parsley flakes
4 bay leaves
Chicken
1 can (16 ounces) whole tomatoes
File' (thickener)

To make roux: Mix shortening and flour of equal amounts in heavy skillet and brown over medium heat, about 30 minutes (dark brown). Take off heat and mix with onions and saute.

Dice onions, bell peppers and celery. When roux is brown, mix in celery and bell pepper and put on fire. Saute. Add 4 cups water. Boil and stir until brown consistency. Add meats, seasonings and simmer two hours at low heat. Add okra half-hour before serving. Serve over rice.

GRILLADES

2½ to 3 pounds veal rounds, sliced or slivered (sirloin tip or round steak may be used)
5 tablespoons bacon drippings
3 tablespoons flour
3 medium onions, chopped
6 green onions, chopped
2 medium bell peppers, chopped
2 cloves garlic, chopped
½ bunch celery with leaves, chopped
½ bunch parsley, chopped
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 cups beef or veal stock (broth)
1 tablespoon or more Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons Kitchen Bouquet (optional)
1 small bay leaf
⅛ teaspoon thyme, crushed
Salt and pepper to taste
Burgundy (optional)

Brown meat in bacon drippings. Remove to a platter. Add flour to drippings and stir until rich brown. Add vegetables (except tomatoes) and saute until transparent. Add meat and all remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer for three hours, adding water as necessary (burgundy may be added instead of water). Remove bay leaf before serving. Serve over hot grits, garlic grits, rice or potatoes. Serves 10 to 12.

ROULADEN MIT SCHINKEN

4 thin slices each round steak and ham, about 4x6-inches
Salt and pepper to taste
Mustard
1 onion, chopped
1 large sour pickle, quartered lengthwise
1 can beef bouillon
½ cup water
4 peeled and seeded tomatoes
1 large green pepper, coarsely chopped
Heavy thread or skewers
Cooking oil

Pound steak. Season with salt and pepper and rub mustard into both sides. Top each piece of steak with ham slice and sprinkle with onion. Lay pickle stick across meat. Picking up narrowest end, roll steak together and tie with thread or fasten with skewers. Coat rouladen with flour and brown evenly in small amount of oil. Add bouillon, tomatoes and green pepper and simmer 45-60 minutes or until tender. Makes four servings.

STIFADO
(Greek stew)

2 pounds stew beef
1 can tomatoes
3 tablespoons butter
2 pounds small boiling onions
½ cup red wine
½ can (6 ounces) tomato paste
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Brown meat. Remove; add onions and brown. Remove onions. Return meat to pan and add all but onions. Simmer 1½ hours. Add onions and cook for 30 minutes.

'Meatout' marked

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

The first day of spring, tomorrow, will be no time to own a butcher shop or hot-dog stand. These are likely to be some of the business people made miserable as the Farm Animal Reform Movement sponsors the Great American Meatout.

The group is calling on consumers throughout the United States to boycott meat for the day in protest of the financial, health and environmental problems it claims are created by the livestock and poultry industries.

The short-lived rejection is part of what the Washington-based organization hopes will be the first step toward a major evolution in the American diet. The group plans on achieving its goal partially through harsh criticism of the meat industry in newsletters and at public forums.

For instance, the movement's literature states that a vegetarian diet is a "less violent life style" than one that incorporates meat. Eliminating the likes of beef, pork, lamb and poultry is also likely to spare consumers from "the crippling and premature death brought on by heart disease, stroke, cancer and other chronic disorders associated with excessive consumption of animal fat and meat."

The Farm Animal Reform Movement also states that the active cooperation of the federal government is principally responsible for the high per-capita consumption of meat in the United States and what it claims are the related health problems.

Seeking to change this situation, Alex Hershaft, representative for the organization, testified recently before the U.S. Senate health subcommittee. During the presentation, Hershaft called for an end to all federal assistance for programs that promote meat consumption, urged that warning labels be placed on all meat packaging alerting of possible health hazards and proposed that funding be provided for programs that advocate a meatless diet.

Those unenthusiastic carnivores who find themselves inclined to participate in the Great American Meatout but who still lack the necessary motivation might find a recent story in Vegetarian Times to be of help. The magazine recently published a list of "100 reasons to be a vegetarian."

The collection is not likely to cause significant changes in eating habits, but a few are worth repeating:

- Vegetarians smell better.
- Gorillas are vegetarians.
- Vegetarians do not have to buy steak knives.
- In one lifetime, the average American meat-eater will consume eight cattle, 36 sheep, 36 pigs, 550 poultry and one-half ton of fish.
- "Mister Rogers" is a vegetarian.

Safflower oil cuts calories

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

For those of who are fighting a weight problem, but who love cake, safflower oil may be one answer.

According to a recent study made by North Dakota State University, fat and calories can be reduced in baked desserts when vegetable shortening is replaced by safflower.

This is an ancient herb which looks like a thistle and sports large bright red or orange flowers. Originally from the East Indies, safflower is now cultivated in southern Europe and also in Egypt.

The white seeds contained in this plant remain after the blossoms fade. These seeds produce an edible oil that is light-bodied, without flavor and is colorless.

It does not solidify under refrigeration, as many oils do. Hence, it is well suited for salad dressings and marinades. It is also good for frying, and works in recipes in which oil is an ingredient.

The state university experiments showed that by substituting safflower oil, one could produce baked desserts that reduce calories by about 16 percent.

Safflower oil is a highly polyunsaturated fat. It also helps lower cholesterol when replacing vegetable shortening, a more saturated fat that can raise cholesterol. This is because considerably less safflower oil than solid shortening can be used to produce the same results.

In the following recipe for apple butter cupcakes, the ⅓ cup shortening totaling 640 calories usually recommended was replaced by 2 tablespoons safflower oil, which comes to only 240 calories.

APPLE BUTTER CUPCAKES

1 package (18½ ounces) yellow cake mix
1 cup water
2 tablespoons safflower oil
4 egg whites
⅓ cup apple butter

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Line 24 (2½ inch) cupcake cups with paper liners and set aside. In large bowl, place cake mix, water, oil and egg whites. Beat at low speed until moistened. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes. Fill each cup half full of batter. Spoon 1 teaspoon apple butter into each cup. Cover with remaining batter, filling cups 2-3rds full. Bake until cake tester inserted in center of a cup emerges clean — about 20 minutes. Remove cakes from cups; cool on wire rack. Store in tightly covered container. Yield: 24 cupcakes. Each cupcake: 116 calories.

Group gives 'Food Porn' awards

New York Times News Service

Each month the Center for Science in the Public Interest deems a newly introduced food product to be so offensive that it awards the item its "Food Porn" designation. The most recent selection was a toss-up.

The judges found themselves undecided between two chewing gum items manufactured by Amurol Products Co., a company that has received more Food Porn awards than any other company since the program's inception.

The winner was finally announced in the group's Nutrition Action Newsletter as Rambo Black Flak Bubble Gum. These artificially flavored black raspberry nuggets are meant to resemble machine-gun shell casings.

Native grapes 'foxy'

NEW YORK (AP) — The pungent flavor of native American grapes is often called "foxy." New York State Concord wines are "foxy," reminding one of jam. Foxy New York state wines are also called "very fruity," reminiscent of fresh fruits.

Mailbag brings 'meaty' questions

By MERLE ELLIS

Today we dip into the mailbag and try to answer some of your meaty questions

Q. One reader writes; "I would like to know the names of the primal cuts of beef and the various cuts that are derived from the primal cuts. I have been trying to make some sense out of meat names, and I am totally bewildered. I find it very difficult to comparison shop meat just because I can't make much sense out of the labeling."

A. Learning the primal cuts is easy, there are only nine:

CHUCK: The shoulder of the beef animal with the neck, brisket and foreshank removed. About 24 percent of the carcass. Generally considered less tender and usually used for pot roast, stew or ground beef.

RIB: The rib section of the beef extending from the chuck to the short loin. Contains seven of the animal's 13 ribs (five ribs remain in the chuck and one is left on the short loin). Muscles of the rib are second only to those of the loin in tenderness and usually are cut for oven roasts or steaks.

SHORT LOIN: The most naturally tender section of the carcass lies between the rib and the sirloin and contains the tender top loin and tenderloin muscles. When cut with the bone left in, the short loin yields the traditional porterhouse, T-bone and club steaks. When the bone is removed, things get confusing. You get New York steaks in Kansas City and Kansas City steaks in Seattle, etc.

SIRLOIN: A 20- to 25-pound section of the hindquarter between the short loin and the round. As with the short loin, terminology is simple when the bone is left in — flat bone sirloin, round bone sirloin, etc. When the sirloin is boned out, confusion abounds — top sirloin, bottom sirloin, culotte, Chateaubriand, tri-tip; the list goes on and on.

ROUND: The hind leg of the beef animal, makes up about 20 percent of the carcass. It contains four individual muscles that usually are sold separately. Top round, bottom round, eye-of-round, and tip (usually called sirloin tip). These are called by a variety of terms depending on how they are cut, and the imagination of the butcher — thick-cut London broil, thin-cut sandwich steaks or breakfast steaks — they could be called anything.

The other four primal cuts of beef (brisket, shank, plate and flank) add little to the confusion in the meat case. Most of the meat from these sections is ground and sold as ground beef or is labeled with the name of the primal cut from which it came, i.e. flank steak, brisket (often used for corned beef), shank meat, etc.

Understanding the relationship of one primal cut to another and which retail cuts come from where is a giant step toward making some sense out of meat labels and can save you lots of money. Space does not permit a more detailed discussion here, but anyone interested may send a self-addressed, stamped, legal-sized envelope for a free dictionary of over 250 beef cuts to: "Beef Cuts," P.O. Box 907, Tiburon, CA 94920. It won't answer everything, but it is a good start.

Q. Another reader writes; "I've read your recent article on roast beef with Yorkshire pudding and I have a question. Other than rib roast, is there another cut or cuts that will do the job? I used a rolled sirloin tip roast and hardly got any drippings. My family would eat Yorkshire pudding seven days a week. Any help would be appreciated."

A. You can make Yorkshire to accompany any cut of beef roast, or any cut of meat for that matter. It doesn't matter what cut you use so long as there are enough fat drippings left in the pan to make the pudding. If you are roasting a lean cut of beef, ask the butcher to tie a slice or two of clod fat to the outside of the roast. Or ask him for a piece of beef suet (the fat from around the kidney) to place in the roasting pan with the meat as it roasts. You will render out enough drippings from a small ½- to ¾-pound piece of suet to make six or eight beautiful Yorkshire puddings.

Q. Another question, one of several regarding a recent column; "A while back you talked about dry aging beef in your refrigerator. I would like to try this but wonder whether once the beef has been aged for the suggested three weeks (see note) is it possible to cut the loin into steaks and freeze them?"

A. Yes! Of course, that's the idea. Buy a large piece, even a whole top loin (10 to 12 pounds), age it to perfection (see note) then cut the piece into steaks and freeze them for use as desired.

NOTE: The recommended time for "aged to perfection" in a home refrigerator was not three weeks but one week. Three weeks is what we used to do back in the old days in the cooler at the market, but I think that would be a bit long for aging in a home refrigerator. Start with one week and from there use your own judgment.

If any of you missed the column on aging beef at home and would like to try the process, I'll be happy to send you a copy. Send a self-addressed, stamped, legal-sized envelope to: "Aged Beef," P.O. Box 907, Tiburon, CA 94920.

Drought affects consumers' coffee-buying habits

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

The drought that has severely affected the Brazilian coffee industry touched off a round of hoarding by American consumers during the first few weeks of this year. Hoping to avoid sharp price increases, the average supermarket shopper purchased 142 percent more coffee during the third week of January than for the same period in 1985, according to MRCA Information Services.

The pattern emerged as part of the Stamford, Conn.-based research companies' National Consumer Panel, which charts sales of packaged goods. The heightened activity resulted in more than 50 million pounds of coffee sold during the period versus 22 million pounds during the same week in 1985.

The hoarding actually began during the second week of January when coffee purchases increased 47 percent over the previous year's total, hit a peak during the following week and then subsided during the month's final seven days when sales were up 42 percent, the company recently reported.

Activity has returned to normal levels because the expected price increases have materialized, the MRCA data shows.

Those crisis-minded shoppers who did stock up on java several weeks ago were preceptive consumers indeed. The weather problems in Brazil have cut that nation's coffee bean production in half.

Restaurant shares recipe for fried cheese

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Valentino restaurant in Santa Monica, Calif., serves an appetizer of fried cheese with tomato sauce. Owner Piero Selvaggio shared chef Antonio Orlando's recipe for it:

VALENTINO'S MOZZARELLA MARINARA

12 (2-by-2-by-½-inch) slices smoked mozzarella cheese
Flour
3 eggs, beaten
Bread crumbs
1 quart oil
Marinara Sauce (recipe follows)

Coat slices of mozzarella with flour on both sides. Dip mozzarella slices in beaten egg, a few pieces at a time. Roll in bread crumbs until coated on all sides.

Heat oil in large skillet until hot. Add 3 or 4 slices breaded mozzarella at a time, and cook until browned on both sides, turning once. Arrange on serving platter. Top with Marinara Sauce.

Marinara Sauce:
⅓ cup olive oil
2 large onions, coarsely chopped
3 large cloves garlic, minced
2 small carrots, peeled and coarsely chopped
3 anchovy fillets
2 (1-pound 12-ounce) cans Italian plum tomatoes
Salt, pepper
8 basil leaves, sliced julienne

Heat olive oil in 4-quart saucepan. Add onions, garlic, carrots and anchovies. Saute over medium heat until onions are golden, 15-20 minutes. Coarsely chop tomatoes and add to carrot mix. Season lightly with salt and pepper. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Strain sauce, returning liquid to saucepan.

Place vegetables in food processor or blender, and puree until smooth. Transfer to saucepan. Add liquid and basil and blend well. Cook over low heat 20 minutes. Season to taste.

Swizzle sticks cause a stir

By RON ALEXANDER
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — The venerable swizzle stick, exact date of birth unknown, is stirring things up on the current social scene. In the 1920s Cartier introduced personalized silver-plated swizzle sticks, the purpose of which was to eliminate the bubbles in champagne. The stick was apparently an item of status to the society swells of the day. Noel Coward, Gertrude Lawrence and George Gershwin were among those who toted their own silver-plated sticks around town. (Cartier sells them still at $50 — $85 if topped with a black onyx ball — plus an additional $8 for the de rigueur monogram.)

The status swizzlers that are making waves in the drinks of the moment are rather less elegant than Cartier's, composed as they are of carnival-colored paper, transparent plastic or flexible tubes that glow in the dark. If the silver-plated originals are the "Rhapsody in Blue" of swizzle sticks, the current crop is right out of MTV.

"Dining out in New York has replaced going to the theater as an event," according to Donald F. Smith, an entrepreneur and man about town. "The drinks are now the overture to the show itself, which is dinner," he says, "so it isn't surprising that swizzle sticks took on an air of hoopla and theatricality."

Also playing an important part is the current year-round craze, especially among younger diners, for frozen slushy drinks such as margaritas, daiquiris, pina coladas and dozens of other tropical concoctions once considered strictly warm-weather fare. These now-trendy drinks, which turn up in more shades than you can wave a swizzle stick at, have brought a resurgence of colorful and inedible garnishments.

Since swizzle sticks are never used with wine, they aren't found accompanying a chic nouvelle cuisine dinner, but the more unusually attired New Yorkers who line up at places with names like Bandito, Hawaii 5-0, Rick's Lounge and Sugar Reef seem to take almost as much delight in what dresses up their drink as in the drink itself. At Bandito, a Mexican restaurant in the East Village, and at its offshoot, Bandito Ditto in the West Village, patrons eagerly wait to see whether the bartender has topped the margarita with a mermaid, camel, monkey or koala bear in green, red, blue, smoke gray or amethyst. (Amethyst camels are the most sought-after, according to Ed Frantz, a graphic artist and swizzle-stick aficionado.)

At Sugar Reef, a popular East Village restaurant serving Caribbean food, the atmosphere is festive and funky, the bar is atop 21 hand-painted steel drums, and the house drink (as well as the most requested) is the $6 Surf Sider. It consists of pineapple juice, light rum and blue curacao topped with paper beach balls on a stick, and it comes in a ceramic glass with a bas-relief figure of a bikini-clad woman. Customers may keep the glass. They may also elect to pay only $4 and not keep the glass, and their drink is served without the beach balls. But that is an almost unheard of request, according to Zeet Peabody, the manager of Sugar Reef, where the Rhumba Punch is served with a paper-fan swizzle stick and the Mango Cooler gets a Japanese lantern. "There's a certain tackiness — in all the good connotations of the word — to these decorations," says Peabody, who compares the restaurant to "the kind of makeshift Caribbean bar you remember with pleasure."

But even elegant restaurants aren't always exempt from swizzle-stick mania. The Quilted Giraffe serves its mixed drinks with a clear orange stirrer in the shape of — what else? — a giraffe.

The newest swizzle sticks, known as Swizzle-Lites, give off a green, purple-blue, pink, red or orange neonlike glow when the tube is bent. But exotic drink enthusiasts and swizzle-stick collectors such as Lorraine Hollander content themselves with their bowlfuls of plastic mermaids and paper beach balls. As Hollander, a hairstylist, puts it: "They're always there to remind you of good times."

Fruit makes great low-calorie sweet-tooth pacifier for dieters

By BETTY WILSON
Hearst News Service

Fresh fruit is a favorite sweet-tooth pacifier for the calorie-conscious.

The best way to keep the calories low is to serve fruit without benefit of added sugar. Count 70 calories for an apple when there are three to the pound. A banana that weighs 6 ounces contains 100 calories. A grapefruit weighing 1 pound contains about 100 calories. Count 60 calories for an orange when there are three in a pound.

Fruits supply quick energy with fiber, vitamins and minerals. They help perk up early morning appetites. Use them in main dish salads, to enhance meat, in vegetable salads and with cooked vegetables. Apples and bananas are particularly popular when baked in breads and desserts.

Apples, bananas, grapefruit and oranges all keep well. If you like your bananas without flecks, give them plenty of air and store them in a moderately cool area.

APPLE COTTAGE CHEESE DIP

1 cup finely chopped apples with red skins
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup cottage cheese
½ teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon onion salt
½ teaspoon curry powder

Mix the apples and lemon juice. Add the remaining ingredients and mix lightly. Serve with carrot and celery sticks or crackers. Makes 1½ cups.

PANNED APPLE WEDGES

2 tablespoons margarine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
5 cups pared apple wedges
¼ cup sugar

Melt the margarine in a large skillet over moderately low heat. Mix the lemon juice with the apples and pour into a pan. Sprinkle with sugar.

Brown the apples lightly on both sides, turning once. Serve with pork, ham or poultry.

BANANA-TUNA SALAD

1 can (6½-ounce) tuna, drained
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 bananas, sliced
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 cup cottage cheese, blended smooth
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
⅛ teaspoon Tabasco
Salad greens

Combine the bananas and lemon juice in a bowl. Flake the tuna and add it with the green pepper. Stir to combine.

In a small bowl, combine the cottage cheese, vinegar, curry, parsley and Tabasco. Stir to mix.

ASIAN GARDEN SALAD

2 cups torn spinach
1 cup bean sprouts
1 orange, peeled and sectioned
½ cup sliced celery
1 banana, sliced
1 tablespoon oil
1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 teaspoons toasted sesame seeds
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Toss the first four ingredients together. Just before serving add the bananas and toss with the dressing. To make the dressing, combine the remaining ingredients. Serves 3.

CARROT-APPLE SALAD

1 large carrot, shredded
3 cups diced apples
¼ cup raisins
¼ cup low-calorie dressing
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Serves 6.

APPLE COFFEECAKE

½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons margarine
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sugar
¼ cup shortening
1 egg
½ cup milk
1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups thinly sliced apples

Cut together the first four ingredients. In another bowl, combine the sugar, shortening and egg. Beat well. Stir in the milk. Combine the dry ingredients and stir into the egg mixture just until smooth.

Spread half the batter in a greased 9-inch square pan. Cover with half the apples. Top with half the brown sugar mixture. Repeat. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 45 to 50 minutes or until the cake is set. Serves 9.

Biology professor preserves heirloom apples for posterity

Associated Press

Elwood Fisher collects old apples the way some people collect antiques.

The half-acre orchard in Fisher's Virginia backyard is one of the most remarkable spots in American horticulture, according to an article in the March issue of Connoisseur. It is a living museum of edible fruits preserved from possible extinction.

Fisher, a professor of biology at James Madison University, for the past 15 years has been searching out and preserving for posterity the heirloom varieties of fruits Americans raised in colonial times and in the early days of the Republic.

He has two kinds of medlar and three jujubes; four mulberries; nine currants and nine raspberries; 15 peaches; 18 grapes; 40 plums, most from Europe, some Asian, some native North American; 47 apricots; and 57 cherries, both sweet and sour.

Above all, he has apples — 862 varieties, with names such as Cannon Pearmain and Catshead, Albemarle and Newton Pippin, Ben Davis and Bentley's Sweet. George Washington's favorite apple may be growing in Fisher's backyard, and the Catshead may have been grown in Thomas Jefferson's orchard at Monticello.

Fisher traces his love of apples to his childhood on a farm outside Elkins, W.Va. One of his grandfathers grew more than 80 different kinds of apples. That's a far cry from the short list of apples that dominate in today's supermarkets — Red Delicious, Grimes Golden, McIntosh, Stayman, Winesap and a few others.

Fisher's home base is in Harrisonburg in the Virginia apple country, and from there for the past 15 years he has gone out into the countryside, visiting the smallest hamlets and ancestral farms in the hills and hollows.

Today private individuals, institutions and government agencies recognize the urgency of maintaining genetic diversity in our major food crops by preserving the varieties our great-grandparents grew, but it wasn't like that when Fisher began collecting.

He would ask around for old-timers who might know and be able to identify old apple trees of the kind commercial orchards don't grow any more.

"More than most people," Fisher said, "I'm fighting with time. Some of these old fruit trees may live on for many a year, but the number of people who can identify them from memory grows vanishingly smaller with every passing year."

When Fisher finds a variety of apple he wants, he gathers scions to graft onto the special dwarfing understock in his backyard orchard.

Even with dwarfing, 862 apple trees — not to mention all the others — would not fit on half an acre.

Technically, Fisher has what biologists call "germ plasm," the basic genetic stuff of living organisms. In 30 neat rows, he has 2,000 fruit trees, 700 of them apple.

With further grafting, Allen Lacy wrote in Connoisseur, the germ plasm can always be turned into a genuine tree.

Chef prepares pear, apple crisp

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Kevin Hook, the pastry chef of New York City's new restaurants, Lola', is talented at concocting delicious, home-style American desserts. When we tasted his Fresh Pear and Apple Crisp and asked him how it was made, he presented us with the homey recipe.

KEVIN HOOK'S FRESH PEAR AND APPLE CRISP

12 slices (12 ounces) whole wheat bread
1½ pounds Granny Smith apples
1½ pounds ripe Bosc pears
½ cup lemon juice
1½ cups granulated sugar
1½ cups firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 tablespoon plus 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
¾ teaspoon plus ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Two ¼-pound sticks butter, each cut into 8 equal pats
½ cup all-purpose flour (scooped and leveled)
Whipped cream, if desired

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Tear or cut bread into 2-inch pieces. Arrange in a single layer on a large cookie sheet. Bake in oven until lightly toasted — about 10 minutes. In a food processor, using metal blade, process bread until it forms coarse crumbs — makes about 4 cups. Reserve on wax paper. Turn oven control to 400 degrees.

Pare and core apples and pears. In the processor, thinly slice apples and pears. There should be 4 cups of each. Turn apples and pears into a large bowl; toss with lemon juice. Sprinkle with 1 cup of the granulated sugar, 1 cup of the brown sugar, 1 tablespoon of the cinnamon and ¾ teaspoon of the nutmeg. Toss well to mix. Turn into a buttered shallow 3-quart baking dish (13½ by 8¾ by 1¾ inches). Cut 2 pats of the butter into small pieces and dot over fruit mixture.

In the food processor, using metal blade, process together the reserved bread crumbs, flour, remaining ½ cup granulated sugar, remaining ½ cup brown sugar, remaining 2 teaspoons cinnamon, remaining ½ teaspoon nutmeg and remaining pats of butter until mixture resembles cornmeal. Spoon over fruit mixture. Bake in the 400-degree oven until bubbling hot and topping is browned — about 20 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream. Makes 10 servings.

Fruit, Cake & Beverage

MARBLE CAKE

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 large egg whites
1½ cups sugar
¼-pound stick butter, cut in 8 pats
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup milk
3 ounces unsweetened chocolate, melted
3 tablespoons hot tap water

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks; gradually beat in ¼ cup of the sugar until they hold stiff peaks. Without washing beater, cream butter, 1 cup sugar and vanilla; beat in flour mixture in 4 additions, alternately with milk, just until smooth each time; fold in egg whites. Divide batter in half. Add remaining ¼ cup sugar to chocolate with water and stir well; gently beat into half of batter. Turn half the white batter into a greased and floured 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan; add chocolate batter; top with remaining white batter. Run a knife through batter a few times to marble. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 1 hour. Loosen edges and turn out on a wire rack; cool completely. Store in an airtight container.

Inmates testify defendant brags about killing

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Defense testimony began this morning in the murder and robbery trial of Elroy McKee, who sat with head bowed Tuesday while former Midland County jail prisoners testified they heard him brag about the killing.

McKee, 25, is accused of the June 9, 1982 murder of Wylie Randolph Wilson, a 45-year-old furniture salesman whose body was found in a pasture near County Road 160 in rural Midland County.

McKee and his fraternal twin brother Leroy were arrested in August after the Midland County Sheriff's Office re-opened the long-unsolved case. Leroy McKee is to be tried separately.

The prosecution rested unexpectedly Tuesday afternoon without trying to introduce a statement Elroy McKee had given investigators after his arrest. Defense attorney Jeffrey Hinkley had been expected to challenge the statement on the grounds that McKee was not mentally competent enough to waive his right against self-incrimination.

McKee, who seemed to be paying little attention to the proceedings, has been held in county jail in lieu of a $100,000 bond since his arrest. Several men who had shared cell space with McKee testified Tuesday he had talked about the killing and how he might avoid a conviction.

"He said, 'Yes, I'm going to beat this rap by pleading mental incompetence,'" testified Russell Turner, who is currently incarcerated in the Midland County Restitution Center.

"He told me that him and his brother had gotten rid of all the evidence," said Michael Goodwin, who is serving a sentence in state prison. "He said he had hit him over the head with a tire tool" and dumped the body "on some dirt road."

Hinkley wondered why the former inmates hadn't come forward on their own with the information, and asked them if they hadn't made a deal with the prosecution to lighten their sentences.

The former jail prisoners all denied having made such a deal.

The murder weapon has never been found, according to First Assistant District Attorney David Rosado.

Earlier Tuesday, McKee's sister-in-law had testified that the defendant, his brother and two other men had come into her apartment the night of June 9 with blood on them. She identified some pieces of jewelry as those which Elroy tried to sell her that night.

Patricia McKee is now separated from Leroy McKee. She said she had nothing against her husband, but admitted to not liking Elroy McKee.

Hinkley asked her why she hadn't come forward in 1982.

"Four people came into your house covered with blood, talking about a murder, and you didn't go to police?"

"I didn't know what they did," Ms. McKee said. "I didn't know what happened."

Hinkley asked if she'd ever tried to kill her husband. She denied it.

"I maybe stabbed Leroy one time," she said. "He give me a reason to do what I did."

The case is being presented to an eight-woman, four-man jury in 238th District Court, with Judge Vann Culp presiding. Rosado and Midland District Attorney Al Schorre are handling the prosecution in the case, which began Monday.

If convicted, McKee faces a penalty range of five to 99 years or life in prison on the murder charge, and two to 20 years in prison on the enhanced robbery charge. Prosecutors chose to press separate charges rather than try McKee for capital murder.

Area PBS station to begin broadcasting

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

The first local public TV station for the Permian Basin should begin broadcasting programs by Thursday, says station manager John McCarroll.

"We're just very pleased that we're this close to being on the air. It has taken four years since the idea was first presented," McCarroll said.

KOCV-TV, Channel 36 based on the Odessa College campus, began broadcast tests on Tuesday and should have its first full day of programming by Monday, McCarroll said.

The UHF channel will be the only public television station located between Dallas and El Paso and Lubbock and Austin, McCarroll said. The station will reach 137,000 non-cable homes in addition to audiences of cable companies who choose to pick up the station.

Times Mirror Cable Televsion which serves Midland will probably drop its present Dallas public TV station in favor of the local one by April or May, says Doug Smith, director of operations.

The cable service does not have a receiver and modulator in place to pick up the station yet, Smith said.

The station's staff of nine full-time and four part-time employees will probably grow, McCarroll said. The smallest public television stations have about 20 employees, he said.

The station's broadcast area will extend from 70 to 100 miles in Ector and Midland counties and the southern part of Andrews county.

About $535,000 in grants were used to buy equipment for the station that will be operated on a $418,000 yearly budget.

The Basin's other new station, KPEJ-TV, Channel 24 is still scheduled to go on the air June 1, said station manager Alan Barrows.

The Odessa-based station will provide family-oriented programming to a 13-county area in the Permian Basin. The $2.7 million station has 30 full-time employees and an yearly operating budget of $1.2 million, Barrows said.

Commission on Education Finance member defends HB 72

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

All along the campaign trail, state officials on both sides of the political fence have come to praise House Bill 72 calling it the most sweeping education reform package in Texas history. Others want to bury it.

Joe Yawn, a member of the Governor's Commission on Education Finance, quickly came to the defense of the 1984 Texas Legislature on Tuesday calling House Bill 72 and its sidekick, House Bill 246, the "most complete, forward-moving pieces of legislation in the country."

He made the remarks here during an annual banquet of the Midland and Lee High School Home Economics Cooperative Education program.

The 1984 public school reform — responsible for such controversial elements as no-pass, no-play, career ladder, and the basic literacy test for school teachers and administrators — is being looked upon by other states with pride, said Yawn.

He said the reforms are the result of a "successful marriage" between equity and excellence.

"The members of the legislature came into that session with ideas of their own," said Yawn. "What resulted was that $2.8 million went to the public school children of Texas that would not have gone to them otherwise."

Yawn asked the audience to examine areas of the reform package, that he termed beneficial to all Texans associated with public schools.

He pointed specifically to the law mandating a maximum 22 students per classroom in kindergarten through second grade.

"As long as there is an average there's going to be someone over the average, but as long as there is a maximum it means what it says," he noted.

Yawn also praised portions of the bill that mandated teacher salary increases, higher student standards, testing provisions, pre-kindergarten classes, pre-school summer school, and alternative certification and drop-out reduction programs.

Yawn asked the audience to look into the 21st century and to the importance of a strong education system in Texas.

"Stop and think for a minute about what is going to happen in the next 14 years," he said. "The children who are in our public schools right now are the ones who will lead us into the 21st century."

Yawn said the foundation is there and the road has been paved and it is his hope that "it will be one of our children who will find a cure for cancer with the new technology developed in this state.

"In this state, we are going to develop the next generation of computers and we will develop vast arid land into an area rich in agriculture.

"In this state, we will build an education program that will be second to none in this nation," he said.

Mother of paralyzed 10-year-old testifies he is 'very happy'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The mother of a 10-year-old Odessa boy who was rendered partially paralyzed when he was struck by a bullet accidentally fired from a pistol handled by his uncle testified that her son is "very happy" despite his affliction.

"He never complains," the mother, Koria Anderegg, 31, said of her youngest son, Eric Scott Hogan, who was 7 years old when the accident occurred.

"He's a happy, happy child for the way it is," she testified Tuesday in federal court in the second day of a civil trial in which she seeks $22 million in actual and exemplary money from the manufacturer and distributor of the .22-caliber High Standard pistol, which she claims is defective. "He can't go as many places as he used to. He falls."

The boy, a quadriplegic who has limited motion, was shot in the left side of the face in the bedroom of his Odessa home on Feb. 26, 1983, as his uncle, Clare Anderegg, was lowering the hammer of the nine-cylinder pistol. Anderegg said the hammer slipped from his thumb, and the firearm discharged.

"I do not know why the gun went off," the uncle, now about 25, testified. "But I was lowering the hammer safely, or seemingly safely. I would cock it and then lower the hammer."

Anderegg, a carpenter, said he was showing the pistol to Eric and to Eric's older brother, Alan, now 11, when the pistol discharged. Alan was leaving the room for the kitchen when the gun fired.

"WE HAD PLANNED to go to the range and shoot, but it was raining," Anderegg said. He said he had bought the gun for "personal protection" and for target practice from Big State Pawn Shop in Odessa. He said he paid $100 for the pistol. Anderegg said he had three other handguns, including a .357-magnum Colt Python and two .22-caliber pistols, and that he was familiar with the safe-handling of firearms.

Anderegg said after the gun discharged his nephew was bleeding profusely from the wound. Anderegg said he and his brother, Dennis, applied pressure to stop the bleeding and worked to keep Eric alive.

Eric's mother said she was preparing lunch in the kitchen when the gun discharged.

"I knew that he (Clare Anderegg) was messing with the gun," she testified. "We had planned to go to the caliche pit and shoot guns."

Mrs. Anderegg said that Clare Anderegg, her brother-in-law, was safety conscious even though he had loaded the pistol in the house. "You can still be safe with a loaded gun," she said. "You don't put your finger on the trigger; you don't cock it."

Clare Anderegg admitted doing both of those movements in the house.

"I screamed and went to see what had happened (after the pistol fired)," Mrs. Anderegg said. "I thought he was dead. He wasn't moving...He was lifeless."

Ector County Restitution Center 'last stop before prison'

ODESSA (AP) — There are no bars on the windows or locks on the doors, but the Ector County Restitution Center is the closest thing to prison, its operators claim.

For the 31 inmates who live at 406 N. Texas Ave., the center is the last stop before prison, a last chance to abide by the rules or live behind bars, said Mike Neely, Ector County's chief probation officer.

Thieves, forgers, burglars and other "low-risk" offenders who have violated probation agreements make up the center's population, he said.

They are under 24-hour supervision, leaving the center only to see a doctor, perform volunteer duties or go to work. Their paychecks are turned over the center for distribution to their families and victims and to cover court costs and legal expenses, Neely said.

They sleep three to a room, check in and out with staffers and can receive visitors. But they cannot return home to see their families, he said.

Drug and alcohol abusers are not accepted because the inmate's use of either could prompt further criminal behavior, Neely siad.

Five inmates have been sent to prison, one for stealing a truck after entering the center, Neely said. The others violated house rules and the rules of their probation, such as leaving without checking out, Neely said.

"Little bitty things like that are serious to us," he said. "I live in the community. I believe in the community, and I'm not a bleeding heart."

But the focus of the program is to get the inmates to pay their debt to society — in cash, he said.

Last year, the first year the center was open, the imates earned about $154,000.

About $15,000 was returned to crime victims, another $100,000 went for room and board, and the remainder paid inmate's fines, family support and court and attorney fees, Neely said.

This year's payments to victims could double, he said.

"The principal purpose of this place is to give victims their money," he said. "This year's going much better as far as restitution's concerned."

The average annual salary for the inmates, many who work as construction workers, electricians, janitors and oil field workers, is about $20,000 a year.

In addition to money, the inmates contributed more than 3,000 hours in community service for Ector County and non-profit organizations during the last year, Neely said.

Judge Gene Ater, who presides over Ector County's 70th District Court, said that he helped bring the restitution center to Odessa, and he considers it a success.

"I have had some that failed and gone on to the penitentiary," Ater said. "A majority of the cases I have placed there have done well."

Although victim compensation is an important part of the center's purpose, teaching responsibility to inmates and keeping them from ending up in prison are the center's major focus, Ater said.

"I think we're trying to give these people an opportunity to make changes and stay in society," he said.

"If I send a kid to the penitentiary — a 17- or 18-year-old — I've got a hardened criminal," Ater said. "I've got another place to put them."

Money to support the center, which had a $216,000 budget for its partial first fiscal year, Feb. 12 to Sept. 1, 1985 — comes from the state, Neely said.

Inmates are required to live at the center at least six monts, and they can stay up to a year, Neely said.

During that time, they must work, earn a high school degree if they don't already have one and submit to urine testing for drug use, Neely said.

A reward system, which grants inmates rooms with private bathrooms or sharing a room with fewer roommates, helps motivate residents, Neely said. But the fear of prison keeps most in line, he said.

As residents are released from the center, they are placed under intensive supervision for two months, he said. They also are required to check weekly with a probation officer and receive a weekly visit from the officer, he said.

"There's a ton of people at TDC — that maybe a third of the population could be handled at a level like this," he said.

AP Laserphoto

A staff member at the Ector County Restitution Center makes sure residents check in when returning. Inmates are under 24-hour supervision and leave only for doctor appointments, to go to work and to perform volunteer duties. Thieves, forgers, burglars and other "low-risk" offenders who have violated probation agreements make up the center's population, according to probation officer Mike Neeley.

DEATHS

Helen Jackson

Helen Logan Jackson, 80, of Midland, died Monday at a local hospital.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Homer T. Goodwin officiating. Graveside services will be at 11 a.m. Friday in Restland Cemetery in Dallas under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Jackson was born July 7, 1905, in Fort Worth, moving to Dallas in her youth. She met and married Max Logan of Dallas in 1919. The continued to make their home there until they moved to Long Beach, Calif. Logan preceded her in death in 1971. She returned to Texas, living in Temple and Fort Worth. While living in Fort Worth she met Tom Jackson. They were married Sept. 21, 1981. They moved to Midland in 1982. She was a member of the First Assembly of God Church.

Graveside services will be at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in Resthaven Memorial Park with Mr. Colquitt Nash, pastor of Tennessee and 'A' Church of Christ, officiating. Arrangements are being handled by Ellis Funeral Home.

Stephens was born July 21, 1911, in Gorman, where he was reared. He moved to San Antonio and lived in the West Texas and New Mexico areas for several years, before moving to Hart in 1960. He was a farmer there. After his retirement from farming in 1978, he moved to Gorman for three years and then to San Antonio. He married the former Betty Golliday in 1939. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include one daughter, Elizabeth Stephens of Shreveport, La.; one grandson, Stephen Clayton Stancil of Shreveport, La.; and one granddaughter, Mary Blanche Lea of Lorado.

Raymond Schubert

Raymond D. Schubert of Lago Vista died Tuesday at a Breckenridge hospital.

Services are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

H.D. Murray

H.D. (Dean) Murray died Sunday after a lengthy illness.

Memorial services will be at 3 p.m. Saturday at the St. Barnabus Church in Arlington.

Murray was born in Deport in 1907. He moved to Midland in 1945. A petroleum engineer, he worked for Texas Company, the Hanley Company, and then the Permian Corporation (until his retirement in 1976). He and his wife moved to Arlington where they lived until his death.

Survivors include his wife, Dolly; one son, Jim Murray of Big Lake; three daughters, Ruth Gee of Auburn, Calif., Janna Alexander of Arlington, and Wanda McMurray of Austin; two sisters, Madeline Johnston of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Mable Benshoff of Charlottesville, Va.; eight grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

The family suggests that memorials be directed to one's favorite charity.

ECISD trustees name information director

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Ector County school district trustees Tuesday night named a Lubbock man information director and voted to continue allowing some 60 Midland County students to attend Ector schools tuition free.

Charles G. "Chuck" Hornung, a marketing, public relations, personnel consultant with Aardvark Enterprises in Lubbock, said he expects to assume the post which has been vacant since the resignation of Lorraine Bonner after spring break. Ms. Bonner, who resigned to open a public relations firm, is now an Odessa mayoral candidate.

Hornung, who has degrees in social science and mass communications-marketing, has extensive experience with the Boy Scouts of America, serving as administrative executive for Texas and New Mexico from 1967 to 1985. He is married and has two sons.

ECISD trustees voted unanimously to continue the policy of allowing out-of-district students to attend district schools without paying tuition.

While the policy was initiated about three years ago to allow children living in the Ridgewood area, east of Odessa Country Club between Bankhead Highway and U.S. Highway 80 in Midland County, to attend ECISD schools, the policy also covers other out-of-district students.

About three years ago, a group of Ridgewood parents mounted an effort to have the ECISD-MISD boundaries changed so their children, then totalling about 85, could attend Ector County schools because the schools were closer to their homes and most of the parents worked in Ector County. The question is now before the Texas Supreme Court.

Board members went into executive session to consider matters relating to property acquisition, pending litigation and personnel matters after disposing of regular agenda items.

The board has yet to name a successor to Superintendent Bill Holm, who is retiring. About 25 persons, including several ECISD administrators, have submitted applications. There is speculation board members may name Holm's successor prior to the election of several new members April 5.

Akins says he supports new energy legislation

From Staff Reports

Republican candidate for the 21st congressional District seat, Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins, said in a news release Tuesday afternoon he is in agreement with energy legislation introduced Tuesday by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Congressman Bill Archer of Texas.

Akins said he has continually urged the so-called Windfall Profits Tax and the Fuel Use Act to be repealed. This would eliminate unnecessary and expensive administrative regulations as well as opening up more markets for natural gas. He said the regulation of natural gas prices also is needed as part of the proposed legislation.

Gramm's bill includes a provision to eliminate what Akins called the adverse treatment of intangible drilling costs and depletion allowance as outlined in House Bill 3838.

"With the severe drop in oil prices and continued softening in gas prices, a widespread crisis is developing in the oil and gas industry and the banking and local governments that are dependent upon the health of domestic energy," Akins said. "It is critical that Congress act quickly to not only eliminate the onerous acts and proposed bills, but to provide incentives such as additional tax credits and expanded IDCs to include other pre-drilling costs."

Oil and gas producers are finding themselves in serious financial situations and Gramm's bill suggests a modification of federal banking regulations to allow more flexibility in the amortization of energy loans, according to Akins.

"Without this legislation, we will see the abandonment of thousands of wells and hundreds of bankruptcies of large and small energy related firms," he said. "Congress must be convinced that this kind of decline in domestic energy industry will have serious effects upon our state and nation."

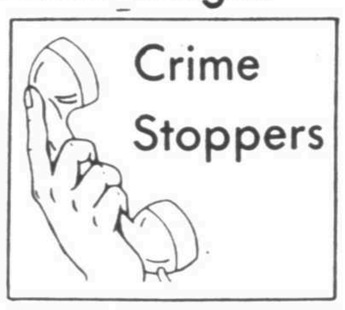
Arson information sought

This week, Crime Stoppers is seeking information on the arson of a Wendy's fast-food restaurant on North Big Spring.

On Feb. 26, the Wendy's building was destroyed by a fire which broke out in the office shortly before 4 a.m. The combination dial and handle of the office safe had been broken off in an attempt to open it. Police believe the fire was set intentionally to cover up evidence of a burglary.

Earlier that morning, a witness saw what he believed were Wendy's employees in the restaurant.

Crime Stoppers will pay a $1,000 cash reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for this arson. Call 694-TIPS in Midland or 333-TIPS in Odessa, and remember callers need not reveal their identities.



Man reports air compressor theft

From Staff Reports

A $600 air compressor was reported stolen Tuesday in one of several complaints to local law-enforcement agencies.

Brian Page of Odessa reported the air compressor stolen from Oakwood Mobile Homes, 8407 E. Highway 80 in west Midland County. The item was taken Tuesday, according to Sheriff's Office reports.

Toys 'n More, 2310 W. Michigan, reported an act of vandalism in which a glass door was broken. Damage was estimated at about $250. Sarah Williams reported the door was broken sometime between Sunday night and Monday morning, according to Midland Police Department reports.

The Midland County Young Democrats will hold their monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the second floor conference room of RepublicBank First National Midland, 303 W. Wall.

The Young Democrats will sponsor a forum for the candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for the 21st Congressional District. The candidates are: Pete Smelson and Terry Lowry, both of Midland, and David Hunsicker and Joe Sullivan, both of San Antonio.

All four candidates, or representative from each campaign, will attend the meeting. The candidates will be given the opportunity to make a presentation and will be available for questions and answers.

The public is invited to attend.

Home-based business seminar slated

From Staff Reports

A four-week seminar on how to operate a home-based business is being offered at Casa de Amigos, starting April 9. It is co-sponsored by Midland College, Casa de Amigos, the Eastside Economic Development Task Force, and the Small Business Administration. The seminar meets from 6 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays through April 30 at Casa de Amigos, 1101 E. Garden Lane. Fee for the seminar is $18.

The seminar, entitled "Home-Based Business: The Basics of Doing Business From Your Home," is designed to assist people who are operating a business from their home or who are planning to do so. Participants will be assisted in determining the degree of success they can expect in such enterprises, marketing plans, management structures, and business records. Insurance needs, location requirements, and start-up financial plans also will be covered.

For information or to register, contact the Midland College Continuing Education Department or Casa de Amigos.

Reba McEntire will be returning to Chaparral Center as the opening act for Ronnie Milsap Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Ms. McEntire received the 1984 Country Music Association's Female Vocalist of the Year award, the 1985 Academy of Country Music Female Vocalist of the Year award and the 1985 Music City News female vocalist of the year award. Tickets are available at Endless Horizons and Chaps Center.

Herman to perform in Odessa

From Staff Reports

Woody Herman, said to be a "living legend of the entertainment world," has begun his 50th anniversary tour that includes a stop at Odessa's Holiday Centre ball room the evening of March 26. The affair is a major fund-raiser for the Odessa Chamber of Commerce and will feature the New Thundering Herd playing for dancing from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m., with a cocktail hour scheduled from 7-8 p.m.

"The New Thundering Herd features 16 fabulous musicians with exceptional talent that allows each one to perform solos during the performance," said a spokesman of the event. "The Herd's outstanding dance date a the 1985 Dallas Opera Ball has been hailed as one of the year's outstanding entertainment affairs."

Woody Herman's big band made its debut in Nov. 1936, at the Roseland ballroom in New York and by the late 30s had played all the big time showplaces that included Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook, the Glen Island Casino, the Hotel New Yorker, the Sherman in Chicago, and more.

Tickets will be sold to the public at the door beginning at 6:30 p.m. on March 26. The cost is $16 each. Tickets will be sold in advance at the Odessa Chamber of Commerce and Holiday Inns in Midland and Odessa.

Burglar shoots officer's wife

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The 22-year-old wife of an Odessa police officer was critically wounded early today during a struggle with an apparent burglar.

Police spokesman John McAhon said Vicki L. Moad, 3727 Andrews Highway, called police about 2:23 a.m. today and told a dispatcher she had been shot during a struggle with unknown man who had entered the apartment through a south window.

McAhon said Mrs. Moad told investigating officers she and the intruder, who she described as possibly black, tall, wearing dark clothing, a ski mask and gloves, struggled over a handgun she had picked up when she realized someone was in the apartment.

The gun discharged during the struggle and a single bullet struck Mrs. Moad in the abdomen. She was taken to Medical Center Hospital where she underwent emergency surgery. McAhon said late this morning that Mrs. Moad was in critical condition in the intensive care unit following surgery.

Mrs. Moad's husband, Charles, was working at the time of the incident.

McAhon said the suspect is being sought on a charge of attempted capital murder.

BOY

After Eric's hospitalization and then treatment at Texas Rehabilitation Center in Houston, Mrs. Anderegg said her son's life was renewed.

"HE COULDN'T understand why he couldn't get up and walk anymore. He couldn't understand why he had to wear diapers." The injury, which damaged his spinal cord, left him without control of his bladder and bowels.

Through help from the Texas Rehabilitation Center, Eric has gained enthusiasm despite his frustration, the mother said. Though the mother must still dress the boy, exercise him, bathe him and take care of his personal needs, Eric is able to walk with the aid of a walker and "scooter" but still uses a wheelchair. He occasionally falls and expresses frustration: "'I wish I was dead. Who care for me? I can't do nothing. I'm no good.'" The mother said her son attends public school, where he is an "excellent student" and regularly makes the principal's honor roll. He is a third-grader.

Eric "can't move" his left arm at all, Mrs. Anderegg said, but has "some movement" of his legs and right hand. He can feed himself and do school work.

"I had to learn how to be hard and tough," the mother said. "He was not the same little boy he was before. When he cries and gets upset, it tears me up."

She said she has to be "concerned" and "low-keyed" for Eric and then "vivacious" and out-going" for her older son, Alan.

AMONG THE the 10 witnesses who testified in person or via printed or video-taped deposition was Dr. Everett Dillman, an El Paso economic and financial consultant.

Dillman testified that the boy's financial damages due to the wound would total $8.87 million over his lifetime. He calculated $885,000 for impaired earnings, $139,000 for past medical expenses, $1.136 million for future medical expenses, $6.5 million for home care and $154,000 for household care.

A physician who treats the boy testified about Eric's breathing problems, spinal problems, bladder and other problems.

"He's a very well motivated youngster," he said.

The defense in the trial was to begin its case today.

Defendants are High Standard Inc., a firearms manufacturer which went out of business in 1984, and Outdoor Sports Headquarters, the alleged distributor of the High Standard pistol.

Swallows returning?

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — Hundreds of people gathered at Mission San Juan Capistrano today to catch a glimpse of swallows returning from their winter migration, but sightings of the famed birds were few.

"There's one, there's one, see him flying around?" said Rose Michalec, pointing skyward above the ruins of an old adobe church.

Mrs. Michalec, from nearby San Clemente, said she had visited the mission often over the past 25 years and noted a steady decline in the number of tiny cliff swallows returning each spring to nest and raise their young.

Artist remembers 'virgin beauty,' 'gentle people' of Kenya

Betsy Ray, of Gardendale, sits with her collection of African utensils and a painting she has done since returning to the United States. Ms. Ray visited Kenya in 1976, and her memories of the trip are still the subjects of her artwork.

By JUDY OLT

ODESSA (AP) — In Kenya, an East African country the size of Texas, "the tiredest and dirtiest people" can be found in bushes watching a world of color and exotic animals, an Odessa College counselor remembers.

Betsy Ray of Gardendale, who visited the country in 1976 on a safari with the National Audubon Society, has never forgotten "the virgin beauty" and the "gentle people" who guided her through thousands of miles of bush country.

Ms. Ray, a watercolor artist who said she likes to paint pictures of primitive people and animals, still paints Kenyan scenes from photographs she took while traveling in a safari van.

"We were the dirtiest and tiredest people in the hotel. We watched and identified 480 birds a week while everyone else was sipping on a martini, saying they saw a zebra and went home," Ms. Ray said.

Ms. Ray, who has painted almost 60 scenes of Africa since her trip, said her paintings are sold in Africa for about 10 thousand shillings, or about $500 U.S. dollars. She contributes the income to the Kenya Wildlife Club, founded by archaeologist Richard Leakey.

Although Ms. Ray said Texans have responded well to her African paintings, she isn't necessarily looking for a market here. "I don't normally paint for Texans — they don't want to pay the price. Many of the paintings have been painted on location."

Ms. Ray described Kenya as a fragile country in every way — politically, socially, environmentally.

"But it still has its virgin beauty," she said.

"I went to Kenya to see the color and the animals. I'm not much of a spectator. We were in the bush every day, or out in the car looking at the animals," she said.

Ms. Ray said at night she could hear the roar of the lions or the call of elephants.

In the morning, outside her hotel window, elephants fed at a nearby water hole.

Later in the day, on safari, shy giraffes would step over the group's vehicle in passing. Lions would crawl on the top of the hoods of vehicles to sun, and baboons sometimes would reach into the van and grab at the occupants, she recalled.

During one particular day, at different times, Ms. Ray said she saw a lion, a cheetah, and a leopard killing its prey.

"It was too much. I was speechless. It's not a film — you're really there."

Since it is against the law to get out of a car while riding on a safari, Ms. Ray said most of her photographs were taken from the roof of a van.

Kenya, a country of 48 million people, has been an independent nation only 24 years. Most of the children in cities know very little about their native animals, she said.

In an effort to teach children respect for the wild, the late actor William Holden built the Children's Research Center in Kenya.

Veterans of Baylor-Playboy brouhaha run small-town paper

By DAVID SEDENO

BUDA, Texas (AP) — When Jeff Barton, Cyndy Slovak and Barry Kolar won the top positions on the Baylor University student newspaper, The Lariat, they promised to "provide a more provocative editorial page."

They delivered. Within three months, they were embroiled in a battle between busts and Baptists that pitted principles against the publisher, university President Abner McCall.

When Playboy magazine announced it would visit the campus of the Baptist college in Waco in the spring of 1980, looking for female students to pose nude for its "Girls of the Southwest Conference" issue, McCall forbade Baylor students to pose. The Lariat said the decision should be up to the women.

In the end, the three editors were fired. Two journalism professors and some newspaper staffers quit. Scholarships for several students were not renewed. Metropolitan newspapers covered the dispute, which the student editors portrayed as an attack on freedom on the press.

Six years later, the three editors are still together — running the Onion Creek Free Press, a weekly newspaper in this town of 1,000 people south of Austin. Also working with them is Sheri Sellmeyer, who lost her scholarship in the flap.

"What Abner McCall did was take away our paper and made a big point of saying, 'Well, I'm the publisher. If you want to run your own paper go buy your own press.' And, in effect, that's what we did. We went and got our own paper," said Barton, who is co-publisher with his wife, Ms. Slovak.

McCall, now president-emeritus at Baylor, said the students' behavior got out of hand. Six years ago, he said the incident was "like a wart on my big toe." He makes the same assessment today.

"This was just a passing irritant," he said.

As for the journalists, they say the Playboy flap helped them.

"The education was invaluable, in terms of understanding where you are and knowing where your breaking point is," Barton said. "I think all of us feel like there's not much we'd do different."

AP Laserphoto

Jeff Barton, Cyndy Slovak, Sheri Sellmeyer and Barry Kolar stand on the porch of the Onion Creek Free Press in Buda, Texas. Barton, Ms. Slovak and Kolar were fired as editors of the Baylor University newspaper in March 1980 because of disagreements with the administration involving Playboy magazine.

"The education was invaluable, in terms of understanding where you are and knowing where your breaking point is. I think all of us feel like there's not much we'd do different."

— Jeff Barton, former editor-in-chief of Baylor University Lariat

The former students say they've stood up for each other countless times since the Playboy episode.

"If we ever get in a libel suit or if somebody ever tries to buy us out or if we really are in cutthroat competition, I don't ever have to worry that Barry's going to take the money and run and that Barry's going to cave in and cut a deal with those guys, because we've already been through that," Barton said. "There were plenty of times to cave in before."

Barton, 26, grew up working at a family-run paper. Ms. Slovak, 26, and Kolar, 27, worked at hometown weeklies. Ms. Sellmeyer, 26, is the daughter of a journalism professor.

Barton and Ms. Slovak, then juniors at Baylor, and senior Kolar persuaded the university's Publications Board to allow them to direct The Lariat for the spring of 1980 — Barton as editor-in-chief, Ms. Slovak as news editor and Kolar as city editor.

After McCall's order on Jan. 31, 1980, that any female student who posed nude in Playboy while representing Baylor would face disciplinary action, The Lariat quickly championed the students' freedom of choice.

McCall replied that the paper could criticize him, but not advocate disobeying his policies.

Four days later, a paragraph in an editorial criticizing McCall was removed by publications director Ralph Strother. Barton, Kolar and Ms. Slovak threatened to quit and were told to quit or be fired.

Associate professor Donald Williams, who had resigned over the matter, was told March 3 to leave immediately. The three editors were fired by the Board of Publications, and some staff members quit. Another journalism professor also resigned.

Reporters from across the country flocked to the Baptist institution. Some newspapers criticized the students; others blamed the administration.

"I think a lot of people thought we were naive," Barton said. "Some people thought we were stupid. Some people and some newspapers thought we were grandstanding and made that clear."

"They tried to make an issue of freedom of the press out of it," McCall said. "I kept telling them, 'Freedom of the press?' It's freedom of the publisher, not freedom of the editor or the reporter."

Four Baylor women eventually posed for Playboy, one of whom was consequently prevented from graduating. Two others had quit school and the fourth had graduated by the time the issue containing their photographs hit newstands.

Barton and Ms. Slovak transferred to the University of Texas. Then, after graduation, travel and other jobs, the four found their way in 1983 to The Onion Creek Free Press.

The four journalists once wanted to work for large dailies, but have accepted their work on a weekly of 3,000 circulation. They also know they will probably never be able to escape the notoriety of the tangle over Playboy.

The Korean Tiger insignia, right, that was created for the 1988 Olympic Games in South Korea is causing fur to fly at the Kellogg Company in Michigan. Kellogg says the striped feline bears too much resemblance to their own Tony the Tiger, left.

Kellogg snarls at Olympic tiger logo

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — A smiling feline created for the 1988 Olympic games in South Korea has raised some growls at Kellogg Co., the home of Tony the Tiger, which doesn't think the new cat is so g-r-r-r-r-eat.

A spokesman on Tuesday said the Battle Creek-based cereal maker has contacted the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee about Kellogg's concerns.

"We are discussing with them our concern that the tiger logo of the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee looks confusingly similar to certain registered trademarks of the Kellogg Co., namely Tony the Tiger and Tony Jr.," said spokesman Richard Lovell.

"We've been having discussions with them and we expect to reach a resolution in the near future," he said. "Our concern is with the tiger logo, the fact it is a tiger logo and that it is similar to our registered trademarks."

Lovell wouldn't say what sort of resolution the company hopes to achieve. He declined further comment on the matter.

The Olympic Committee's tiger is a cub that wears a five-ringed Olympic badge around his neck and wears a hat with streamers.

Kellogg's Tony the Tiger and Tony Jr. are depicted on cereal boxes and are shown frequently on animated television commercials.

Artie Solomon, a U.S. spokesman for the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee with the New York public relations firm of Burson-Marsteller, said he was unaware of a dispute with Kellogg.

"Nobody here knows anything about it," he said. "(The tiger) is just a symbol of an animal that's associated with the country."

In April 1984, the Olympic mascot officially was given the name "Hodori" from a list of 2,000 names submitted by members of the South Korean public, he said.

"Ho" is South Korean for tiger, he said, and "dori" is a common masculine diminutive in the language.

One-two-three, hop to PolkAerobics

AP Laserphoto

MONROEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Move over Jazzercise, Tappercise and other variations of the dance fitness craze. Roll out the barrel for PolkAerobics, a workout in which participants pant and puff to the three-step polka.

"People hop and sweat to the polka at weddings and beer halls. I figured why not package it as a way to get in shape," said Andy LoRusso, 37, a former nightclub entertainer.

"It's a combination of dance and exercise and getting people to dance together again. It's a rigorous dance that gets the heartbeat up. The program uses all the major muscle groups of the body," LoRusso said.

After 30 minutes of warmups and stretches, common in other aerobics classes, LoRusso cranks up the brassy, bouncy music that has lyrics such as: "I don't want her, you can have her, she's too fat for me."

Hand-clapping participants whoop and spin, twisting their trunks and kicking their legs to snappy tunes played at ethnic weddings.

In PolkAerobics class, however, there's nary a babushka in sight. Color-coordinated leg warmers, head bands, warmup suits and jogging shoes are de rigueur.

During a recent workout in a school gym, LoRusso exhorted his students to keep smiling and keep moving to a routine that included the three-step polka, side steps, lunges and chorus-line style knee kicks.

"Pasta, pierogi and other delights — we put it on, and we polka it off," he said. "It's just like a wedding. We'll eat the cake later."

Young and old participants sweated to keep up, then cooled down to a waltz.

"That was great. Now I'm going home to die. But really, it makes you feel good. You're not straining anything," said Bill Hajek, 54.

"I feel a lot better. It helps work off some of the stress from the job," said Robert Kocur, toweling off after a session.

LoRusso, wearing chic high-top red Reebok aerobic shoes, a hot pink PolkAerobics sweatshirt and electric blue workout pants, said he picked the polka because he wanted something exciting and innovative.

"Everybody was doing disco for exercise," he said. "The polka is lively. It has lots of energy."

LoRusso got the idea three years ago in Los Angeles, where he had a fitness show on cable television. Then he moved to Pittsburgh, which has a large population with eastern European roots. In the past year, about 80 people have enrolled in his 10-week sessions, which cost $24 to $35.

Participants get a casette tape with a medley of "The Beer Barrel Polka" and "The Pennsylvania Polka," along with an exercise chart. This spring, LoRusso hopes to market a 45-minute video.

Florida police closing in on 'pillowcase rapist'

MIAMI (AP) — His face has been seen by only one of his 45 known victims in five years — a woman who convinced him she couldn't see his face without her glasses and who studied him during the rape, a knife at her throat.

From the description given by the 36-year-old victim, a police artist created a drawing that was circulated throughout Coconut Grove, South Miami and Hollywood, the areas where south Florida's "Pillowcase Rapist" has been active since 1981.

Authorities say half a million fliers have been printed by volunteers and distributed. They are shooting for a total of 3 million of the posters to saturate the rapist's stalking grounds.

Recently, too, police commissioned sculptor Tony Lopez to fashion a detailed clay bust of the most hunted man in south Florida history.

"Maybe now that he's been stripped of his disguises, he will realize that it won't be long before we're able to put a name with the face," said Metro-Dade Police Sgt. David Simmons.

Since the first reported attack on a 24-year-old secretary in May 1981, the rapist has attacked young career women, usually entering houses or apartments through unlocked doors or windows and using a knife to terrify them into submission.

In each case the attacker has sought to dominate his victims, tying them up, and sometimes using a pillowcase to blindfold them.

Police have no doubt it's the same man. Using a series of blood and semen tests, officials early on were able to identify the rapist as having type O blood with subgroupings common only to 1 percent of the population.

When he struck Friday for the 45th time, the rapist changed his usual pattern and attacked a frail, half-blind 82-year-old widow after breaking into her home. She awoke about 5:30 a.m. Friday to see the rapist standing next to her bed, a pillowcase wrapped around his head with only his eyes showing.

Following the rape, the outraged woman chased him out of the house.

"She literally tore a dish towel rack from the wall of her kitchen," Simmons said. "She chased him out the back door, swinging the metal fixture at him and shouting at him to get out of her house."

The rapist took the woman's wedding band in the attack and left a bizarre set of clues — a pair of women's red, bikini-style underwear, a pair of little girl's ruffled red nylon panties, a cream-colored women's sleeveless undershirt, a navy blue leather purse with two crumpled department store bags inside, and an unidentified item of men's clothing.

"It's speculative as to what this all means," said Simmons, who has been in charge of the case since its start. He said it is rare for a rapist to change his style so drastically.

"This case simply exposed another dimension of his personality," Simmons said.

FBI behavioral scientists say the rapist has profound doubts about his sexual adequacy and that he has lived at least part of his life with a dominant, repressive woman, perhaps a wife but more probably his mother.

Guittar named head of Hearst Newspapers

NEW YORK (Hearst) — Lee J. Guittar has been named Group Executive for the Hearst Newspapers effective April 1, 1986.

The announcement was made jointly by Frank A. Bennack, Jr., president and chief executive officer of the Hearst Corporation and Robert J. Danzig, vice president and general manager of Hearst Newspapers.

Guittar, 54, president of USA Today since 1984, began his newspaper career with the Miami Herald. He was president of the Detroit Free Press, publisher of the Dallas Times Herald, and was appointed chairman of that newspaper while also serving as publisher of the Denver Post.

Both Guittar and J. Roger Grier, Group Executive since 1980, will report to Danzig and oversee the Company's various newspaper operations. Grier will supervise the Hearst Newspapers in Albany, New York (Times-Union and Knickerbocker News); Baltimore (News American); four Texas newspapers in Beaumont (Enterprise), Plainview (Daily Herald), Midland (Reporter-Telegram) and Laredo (Morning Times); two Michigan dailies in Midland (Daily News) and Huron (Daily Tribune); and newspapers in Edwardsville, Illinois (Intelligencer); and Clearwater, Florida (Sun). Guittar will oversee newspaper operations in Los Angeles (Herald Examiner); San Francisco (Examiner); Seattle (Post-Intelligencer); and San Antonio (Light).

In making the announcement, Danzig said, "We are delighted to have Lee Guittar join the senior management of our newspaper group. His background as president of USA Today and as publisher in major competitive newpaper markets brings an important dimension to our corporate newspaper management."

Zappa defends rock

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Rock musician Frank Zappa on Tuesday told a Senate committee considering a bill to ban the sale of obscene records and tapes to minors that rock lyrics don't lead youths to suicide or murder.

There was no scientific evidence that rock lyrics cause anti-social behavior, said the 45-year-old Baltimore native.

"You can't point to statistics showing people doing strange things in the vicinity of rock music," he said. "Look at all the normal kids who live with it every day and are not committing suicide and don't commit murder, and in some cases, grow up to be legislators."

Zappa fans packed the hearing room of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee to get a chance to hear the rock musician, who is known for his offbeat and sometimes obscene lyrics. Many stopped for autographs and applauded his testimony.

He came to Maryland at the invitation of lobbyist Bruce Bereano, who is representing the Recording Association of America, which is opposed to the bill that passed the House of Delegates last month.

Drug test refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official of a presidential commission that is recommending drug tests for government employees refused to submit to such a test when unexpectedly asked to do so at a congressional hearing.

Rodney Smith, a member of the President's Commission on Organized Crime, cried "cheap shot" Tuesday when the chairman of a House subcommittee asked for the urine test before Smith defended the commission's drug-testing position.

"I thank you for very eloquently proving the point that we have set out to prove," Rep. Gary L. Ackerman, D-N.Y., told Smith after he declined to take the test.

Ackerman caught Smith by surprise at the start of the hearing when he held up a small plastic jar, declared "I think a specimen is worth 1,000 oaths" and asked the deputy director of the crime commission to go to the men's room with a committee staffer and produce a sample.

Smith responded by facing a group of television cameras recording the exchange and denouncing Ackerman's request as "a performance for the media."

Mail plan disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Reagan administration plan to stop subsidizing mailings by churches, charities and other non-profit groups will enrage general mailers who could end up paying for the change, Postmaster General Albert V. Casey says.

"What do you think the general public's going to say? What do you think the third class mailers are going to say? They're going to scream," Casey said in an interview after testifying before congressional subcommittees Tuesday.

An $833 million subsidy from Congress this year allows the Postal Service to offer discounts of about a third for church newsletters, charity fund-raising letters, books, classroom materials and newspapers mailed within the county of publication.
