

Community Project Is Key To Playhouse Seating

Colorado City Playhouse members are in a community-wide campaign to finance purchase of 160 cushioned chairs for their theater.

The campaign was finalized at a recent meeting of the membership right where they are busy with the task of renovating the city's old opera house building into a modern home for their stage productions.

They expect to have it all completed, chairs and all,

before next fall's theater season.

It takes $30 for a chair -- a total of $4,800 for the full seating capacity.

"We are earnestly asking for interested individuals to be patrons, for one or more chairs," said Bob Reilly, a Playhouse official.

"We are suggesting families buy two chairs, of course, but that is up to the individuals themselves."

Patrons or donors -- individuals or businesses -- for the chairs can have memorials or honorariums placed on the arm of their respective chairs if they so desire, Reilly emphasized.

Playhouse already has ordered the seating to assure delivery by late spring so that installation can be accomplished in ample time for opening of the new theater.

The chairs are armed and cushioned, upholstered and with a glider mechanism which allows the seats to be moved backward to convenience of traffic between rows off the aisle.

Spacing in the theater's two sections also will be extra between seats for comfortable leg room.

"We are placing one of the chairs on display in City National Bank so the public can inspect the quality," Reilly said.

Prospective donors can contact George Womack or Mrs. Don Delaney at City National Bank or Reilly. And, for those who desire, a monthly draft plan can be arranged so that a patron's chair payments can be spaced over a period of months.

The chair campaign comes as Playhouse members have completed the "gutting" of the old opera house building on Walnut behind Post Office and are advancing into the "rebuilding" phase.

Principal construction project now is the stage, a labor of love being directed by Porter Richardson and Tandy Curlee, Playhouse members in charge of the entire building project.

Work time will continue for the volunteers just as it has progressed for months every Monday and Thursday, starting at 6:30 p.m.

"We invite and welcome the public to join us with the work project," Reilly said.

The playhouse, when completed, will have its own original design, planned to capture the atmosphere of the community's earlier entertainment days.

Playbills found in walls of the building will be displayed in the lobby area. And some of these date back to the 1910 era.

Outside cottage units on the building's north side -- formerly used as motel and small apartments -- will be renovated for playhouse work rooms, dressing rooms and refreshment area.

All the project, except for the chair campaign and special donations, has been shouldered by Colorado City Playhouse members, who are also doing the work.

Emphasis is being placed on comfortable, convenient seating and stage curtains for the benefit of theater goers.

The seating, with one center aisle, will have eight rows of 10 seats on each side and will be tiered for good viewing. An orchestra pit is also being built to enhance stage productions.

For Local Break-Ins

3 New Teen Suspects

Three more juveniles are to appear before County Judge Elmer Martin as a result of the recent upsurge of break-ins and thefts in Colorado City area.

A trial of 13-year-olds were before the judge a week ago following a burglary of Western Auto Store, where a sizeable part of the loot was returned in a second break-in.

One of these youths, a 12-year-old, West Texas Boys Ranch, and his future with juvenile authorities may depend upon his record there.

Police, however, have three other teenagers -- this time from ages 15 to 16 -- who are suspects in a recent break-in at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Merritt.

Juvenile hearing for the second trial, though, had not been held Wednesday.

Burglaries and thefts continued to be reported, however, in and out of town. Most of these were relatively minor.

One of the most serious losses was reportedly Homer Wainett, who told sheriff's officers that a thief carried away a pile of fishing rods and reels, a fishing tackle box and clothes from his Colorado City residence at 1141 Chestnut.

A latch was broken off a frame door to gain entrance to the house.

Some paintings and other articles were taken from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Bryant, 831 East 11th St., police were told.

On Snyder Highway north of the city, Harold Hamer reported theft of a go-cart at his residence. At 625 Oak a storm door was broken off.

All these were reported to officers at the weekend.

These latest reports increase the number of break-ins during the last two weeks to more than a dozen.

New Market Protection Asked For Cotton Plan

Texas Association of Cotton Producers Organizations (TACPO), made up of the six chartered organizations in the State, including Stamford-based Rollins Plains Cotton Growers Inc., testified Tuesday in Washington before the Cotton Subcommittee, House Committee on Agriculture.

The subcommittee, chaired by Representative Thomas Abernethy (D-Miss.), held hearings November 18, 19 and 20 and December 2 and 3 to hear industry views on cotton legislation to succeed the Agriculture Act of 1965, which expires with the 1970 crop.

Texas Association recommended that major features of the present cotton program, with some modifications, be retained. But the Texas statement further asked that the subcommittee consider supplementing basic legislation with a new approach to cotton's problems "as a competitor in a multi-fiber world."

The statement, presented by TACPO Chairman Joe B. Pate, Jr., of Lubbock, and Don Anderson of Crosbyton, hit hard on six points "which we feel are important in the development of cotton legislation to cope with problems of the immediate future."

Included were (1) need for maintaining producer income, (2) adequate production for both export and domestic markets, (3) the level of non-recourse loans, (4) payment limitations, (5) Federal production research and (6) making new legislation permanent, or continuing.

Pre-hearing talk in USDA circles has indicated that the Administration might be considering doing away with the parity concept in new legislation. But TACPO said "...the loan and price support payments for cotton should be tied to an index related to the general level of prices within our economy, such as the parity system used in the past."

It was pointed out that cotton production involves substantial capital expenditures which must be amortized over a long period of time, and that "unless cotton producers have assurance their returns from cotton will remain at a reasonable level for several years, many will be unable to secure necessary financing."

The statement noted that it costs just as much to produce cotton for export as it does for domestic use.

The Nixon Administration has said to some that a program

Wolves Even It Up

S'water Win Offsets Odessa Loss

A couple of experienced hands -- Robert Bender and Willie Hopkins -- led Colorado High Wolves to their season's first basketball victory Tuesday night.

They accounted for more than half of their teams' points as the Wolves outscored another District 3-AAA team, Sweetwater, 64-61.

Foundation for the granite memorial with metal dedicatory and name plaques has been installed in the new cement walk at the Courthouse.

The memorial will honor all servicemen who died while in uniform during the periods of the four conflicts and is not limited to those killed in actual battle.

"Honoring all who served from Mitchell County and dedicated to the everlasting memory of those who sacrificed their lives for the cause of freedom," the inscription will state.

son opener Monday night to AAAA Odessa, 45-79.

They were outscored in every quarter by Odessa in that initial test, falling behind 10 to 29 in the first and never recovering.

Ricky Moon, who sank 12 out of 13 free throws, led the Odessa victory parade with 26 points.

Bender was No. 2 in scoring with 19 points, seven of 'em by field goals, and Hopkins got 13. But Willie and David Matthews, in his first starting varsity assignment with Rickie Sorenson and Stan Bracy, each were whistled down for five fouls.

Contributing to C-City's downfall to Odessa in the Wolves' gym was their failure at the free throw line, where they hit only 11 out of 30.

Tuesday night, the Wolves started slow again, trailing 12 to 17 at end of opening period. They caught fire in the second, though, scoring 22 points while limited the AAA Ponies to half that amount.

Bender hit for four field goals, Hopkins contributed 2 field goals and 2 free throws, Bracy did the same and Matthews hit a two-pointer. That made it 34 to 29.

With Hopkins sinking three field goals to keep the warm pace, C-City lengthened the advantage in the third to 51-40.

Perry Thompson and Ronnie Williams, dividing 13 points between 'em, whittled away at the lead in the fourth, but it wasn't enough.

Tuesday's encounter was a turn-around for the Wolves' from their Monday night free throw performance. They made only one-third against Odessa.

Brother Team Expands

New 3,200-Ft. Building For Brownes

A couple of young brothers who like Colorado City for their home, are expanding into a small industrial development all their own at the west edge of the city.

They are James Brownie, 28, and Don Brownie, 25, who rolled up their sleeves and went into the welding trade six years ago.

Today they are at the same location, but proudly in a new 3,200 square foot sheet metal, clear span building with equipment that has broadened their business into fabricating and custom equipment manufacturing.

In between, they've reamed the breadth of Texas, from Grover in the Panhandle to Louisiana, constructing metal works ranging from feed mill for giant cattle feeding lots to municipal water towers.

Now, their business here has developed in a manner that they are devoting all their skills and resources to Brownie Brothers Welding of Colorado City, located on U. S. 80 Business Route West.

They are doing their welding and fabricating business as a partnership with this West Texas area agricultural industry.

They are custom manufacturing implements which will accomplish dual jobs -- thus reduce labor requirements for farmers and ranchers already hard pressed keeping adequate work hands.

They started production of a 4-row cultivator, hinged especially for terraced land, that allows one man to plant and sweep rows.

"We are going into production this year with a 6-row cultivator," Don Brownie said, because there has been a demand for that implement.

The Brownies build a chisel plow, too, which can chisel deep or shallow and list with same tractor operator.

That's not to mention the various plows and other custom equipment.

84 On War Memorial List

County Checks For Any Omissions

Commissioners Court has a tentative list of 83 names which will be inscribed on the County Memorial to be erected soon on Courthouse lawn.

The list includes the names of Mitchell County citizens who died while in military service during World War I, World War II, Korean War and Vietnam Conflict.

County Judge Elmer Martin emphasized that the list, compiled with assistance of Veterans of Foreign Wars, is tentative and not final.

"If any citizen knows of a qualified name that has been omitted," he said, "now is the time to notify us so that proper identification can be made and the name included on the original plaques."

Twelve names are listed for World War I, 63 for World War II, one for Korea and seven for Vietnam.

In the World War I list are John H. Brown, Arnette Daniels, John Estes, R. S. (Tim) Garland, Oren C. Hooker, Junius Merritt, J. S. Peters, Conner Posey, Jesse J. Uzzle, Bill M. Williams, Sid Wimberly and Andy Wright.

CONVERSATION CORNER

IN THIS the American age of protests there is absolutely no reason whatsoever for anybody to have to get along without a protest or two or maybe more.

There may not be enough money to go around always, enough prizes for everybody or even enough fun.

There are enough protests—big, little and middlesized—for every man, woman and child in this country. They're available all over.

All you have to do is pick one to think about or to talk about with other protesters or fellow sufferers.

If you don't feel like wrestling with the major woes of the world, you can concentrate on the many minor irritations which do what our grandmothers used to call "rub you the wrong way."

GIVEN TIME to make a list of all the petty annoyances that come along to complicate an already complicated existence how would your list read?

No matter how many threats to the contrary, have never yet had the time to picket, march in protest, or even write frequent letters of strong objection.

Doubt if there's time to so much as make a complete list.

But would start by listing a protest against American Broadcasting Company's replacing Joey Bishop with Dick Cavett.

Cavett's summer "talk shows" were delightful enough—except for that terrible time he had Adam Clayton Powell and Joe Namath on the same night when the language and innuendos got completely out of hand, in spite of Cavett's best efforts.

Joey Bishop just happened to be the personal favorite of the late show variety, that's all.

WHILE we're on the subject of late shows, would list a protest against Johnny Carson's admiration for the effeminate little author named Truman Capote who lisps in high soprano and models red lynx fur coats—even if he did write things like "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and "In Cold Blood."

He may give way-out parties for the jet set, but would not want him around the grandchildren unless he left his Carson show vocabulary at home, should he come calling in his fur coat.

YOU LEARN, after a while, that no matter how strongly you may feel about the inequities of the draft, you could not have changed it single-handed. It took a little help from Washington, D. C. Admit it.

One little voice "crying in the wilderness" against the death sentence has to be joined by millions of other voices before it counts.

All the big causes are settled with or without the little voices, which is not to say that millions of little voices fail to make a lot of noise, and so are finally, finally heard at last.

DO NOT expect to accomplish overnight a respite from the petty annoyances common to humanity, either.

Just the same, shall continue to yell.

Yell every time a new magazine has more coupons between its covers than reading matter.

Yell when even the newer mystery novels grow vulgar.

Yell when eggs for breakfast turn into a family luxury.

Yell when all the new clothes are designed for gals under 20, and weighing less than 100 pounds.

And yell over the exit—for now—of gentle little Joey Bishop of the subtle wit. Only time he was ever found wanting was that night he tried to talk rodeo (calling it ro-day-o) with a champion cowboy. He was out of his depth. But then, so was the cowboy.

SEEN LATELYS included Viola (Mrs. Curtis Sr.) Erwin of the LTNS (long time no see) department. Viola was saying that nephew George Lay Powell and his bride will live in their new home being built on the Buford Highway (208) when the house is finished.

Viola was also saying that son Curtis Jr., now of Midland, his wife Mary Louise (Logan) and their son David celebrated Thanksgiving along with their wedding anniversary and David's birthday in a New Mexico resort.

SAW Wilma (Mrs. Dave) Womack at her refreshment break. . . Ditto pretty Shirley Ballard, wife of Drew, and her small pre-school son.

Looked up to see Opal Coles, wife of Ewell, here from Iraan, visiting with her sister-in-law Mrs. Homer Hart of Loraine.

The Don Wallaces were on the shopping scene together. . . So were Ree Webb, wife of Brice. . . and Evelyn Rose.

Buster Baker was on Second St. that first bright and sunny morning after nearly a week of rainy dark days. . . Bernice Hilliard was getting beautified. . . Truman Bodine was making his rounds.

Chatted a brief minute with Mary Anne (Kelley) McCloud, wife of Judge Austin McCloud, and mother of two beautiful daughters named Melinda and Sharon. . . Ada Womack (Mrs. E. S.) was grocery gathering.

FAMILIAR FACES, here and there places, belonged to Johnnie Tartt (Mrs. B. W.) who was planning to address Christmas cards while her husband and twin sons, Larry and Gary Holder, went hunting to celebrate Thanksgiving. . . To County Judge Elmer Martin and Commissioner Marcus Vest sharing a lunch hour table. . . R. B. Baker. . . Virginia and Raymond Fuller.

Mrs. J. D. Gibson of Payne Community was hamburgering while awaiting the Saturday drawing for cash prizes, sponsored by C-City merchants during the holiday season. The Gibsons spent Thanksgiving dining with her sister in Snyder, she was saying.

Saw Ellison and Guy Burson together at church. . . Mrs. Chester Hart in a stylish fall hat. . . Dale Morris, home from Texas Tech. Dale is first son of Arlene (postmaster) Morris and his wife Katherine (DeLaney) who were in a coffee foursome with Frank and Carol Prewitt.

ALL AROUND the town—saw that nice little Callaway family, Leon, his wife Annette (Lee) and their four children sitting in a row at church, as is their Sunday custom.

J. A. Sadler, Jr., city manager, who has grown plumb distinguished looking, was headed for City Hall.

Jimmy and Addie V. Payne were at the Down Town. . . Ditto "First"—or is it "Furst"—Moore—of Sun Oil Co. . . J. D. and Mary Jo Hill. . . Clem and Frances Myers who were hosts to two of their three grandchildren recently, the son of daughter Nancy and little daughter of daughter Janice, while first grandson Rob was having his tonsils removed.

Charles and Emmabeth Thompson (in her Christmas red coat) were headed for First Methodist services. . . Cute Terri Pawkett was spied at First Baptist.

HEAR TELL our Frank Conard, Jr., spent Wednesday through Sunday as guest of his "buddy" S/S Dennis Savage, in the home of his parents Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Savage at Norfolk, Va.

Both lads wear the Green Beret.

Hear, too, that Ruth Dozier, Mitchell County Library librarian, is very proud of the library's new moon globe, just arrived.

Art exhibit by Brush & Palette club in the Hesperian Room was beautiful again. Discovered work by local artist new to this viewer, Thelma Howell.

Hear that the Bodines - Ed, Jeannine (Stubblefield) and children - Gary, Randy and Jena - here from Abilene for holiday weekend.

And that Dr. Ivan Barber Jr., his wife, Alice, and four children had Thanksgiving dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Barber Sr. The family was en route to Midland.

MAIL CALL brought a note from Jack Caffey, LBMG (local boy makes good) of "Jack Caffey Interior Design" at Arlington.

Jack, regular column reader, was suggesting lunch at "The Little Mushroom," corner of HyLine at Oak Lawn, in Decorator Center, Dallas.

Sounds intriguing. Brings out the gypsy in me.

Mail Call also brought the first Christmas card of the season, the day after Thanksgiving. How's that for looking forward?

By the time you read this, there are still 18 shopping days until Christmas so let's not go off deep end just yet.

OFF THE CUFF—tuned in on Frank Prewitt's Sunday morning KVMC radio program of religious music.

This time, Frank paid verbal tribute to youth and that was good to hear. Records played were both varied and beautiful. . . in the Sunday before Sunday School and church devotional mood.

Chapter Has Yule Bazaar

Home of Mrs. Austin McCloud Monday evening was setting for a Christmas bazaar for Beta Epsilon Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. McCloud, Mrs. Lynn Halbert, Mrs. A. L. Geer and Mrs. Jeanette Brooks.

The bazaar, chief money-making project of the year, featured a variety of handmade items including Christmas gifts, decorating accents and foods.

Refreshments of spiced tea and coffee, assorted party sandwiches and cookies were served to chapter members and guests.

Serving table was centered with a Christmas tree decorated with angels. White tablecloth was fashioned with pastel angel and tree appliques.

As It Looks From Here

Cong. Burleson Reports

On November 18 several members of Congress addressed the following letter to the President of the United States:

"Dear Mr. President;

"Your current negotiations concerning Okinawa with Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan are of great concern to many of our constituents.

"We are mindful of the tragic cost of Okinawa, including the memory of over 12,500 Americans killed, 49,000 casualties, loss of over 750 aircraft and 35 ships.

"Notwithstanding the demonstrations by the radical 'students' in Japan, it is the opinion of the undersigned, in the interest of national security, the United States must retain control of Okinawa.

"The Soviets flatly rejected Japan's claim to four Kurile-chain islands seized by the Russians during World War II, and a similar posture by the United States as it relates to Okinawa is certainly reasonable.

"Accordingly, Mr. President,

we urge you to indefinitely postpone further negotiations relative to Okinawa, and retain the control granted by virtue of Article 3 of the Treaty of Peace with Japan, effective April 28, 1952.

Respectfully,
Omar Burleson"

As is now known, the President did not adopt the views which we urged.

An understanding reached by President Nixon and Prime Minister Sato will relinquish Okinawa to the control of Japan in 1972, including some jurisdiction over the Ryukyu Islands stretching between Japan and Okinawa. As a part of the agreement nuclear weapons are to be removed from Okinawa.

Some of us who were there when Okinawa was wrested from the Japanese feel strongly that the price paid in taking this Island was high enough to assure its remaining as our first line of defense in the Pacific.

The Soviet Union, which simply seized the equally strategic Kurile and Sakhalin Islands immediately after World War II, continues to occupy them and even refuses to discuss their return with Japan. They did not fight for this land chain, which stretches North of Japan in a very strategic position, but simply came in after the kill and took possession.

Since World War II, the United States has brought Japan into a modern economic world. Of the 50 bases we developed on and around Japan since the return of Okinawa and other bases formerly under Japanese sovereignty but not a word is heard from these leftist elements demanding a return of the equally strategic islands held by the Soviet Union.

Under present circumstances and in the foreseeable future, Okinawa is the keystone in our perimeter defense. If that defense is restricted, Japan will be forced to increase its military forces dramatically. It we are forced to move nuclear weapons from the area, Japan herself would need to develop her own weapons system to be safe from Communist China who has nuclear weapons and will doubtless be able to deliver them to Japan in the near future.

It seems unwise to give up Okinawa under prevailing conditions.

TASTY REMINDER

One of our community's fine organizations has a project coming up Friday evening you should make a reminder for.

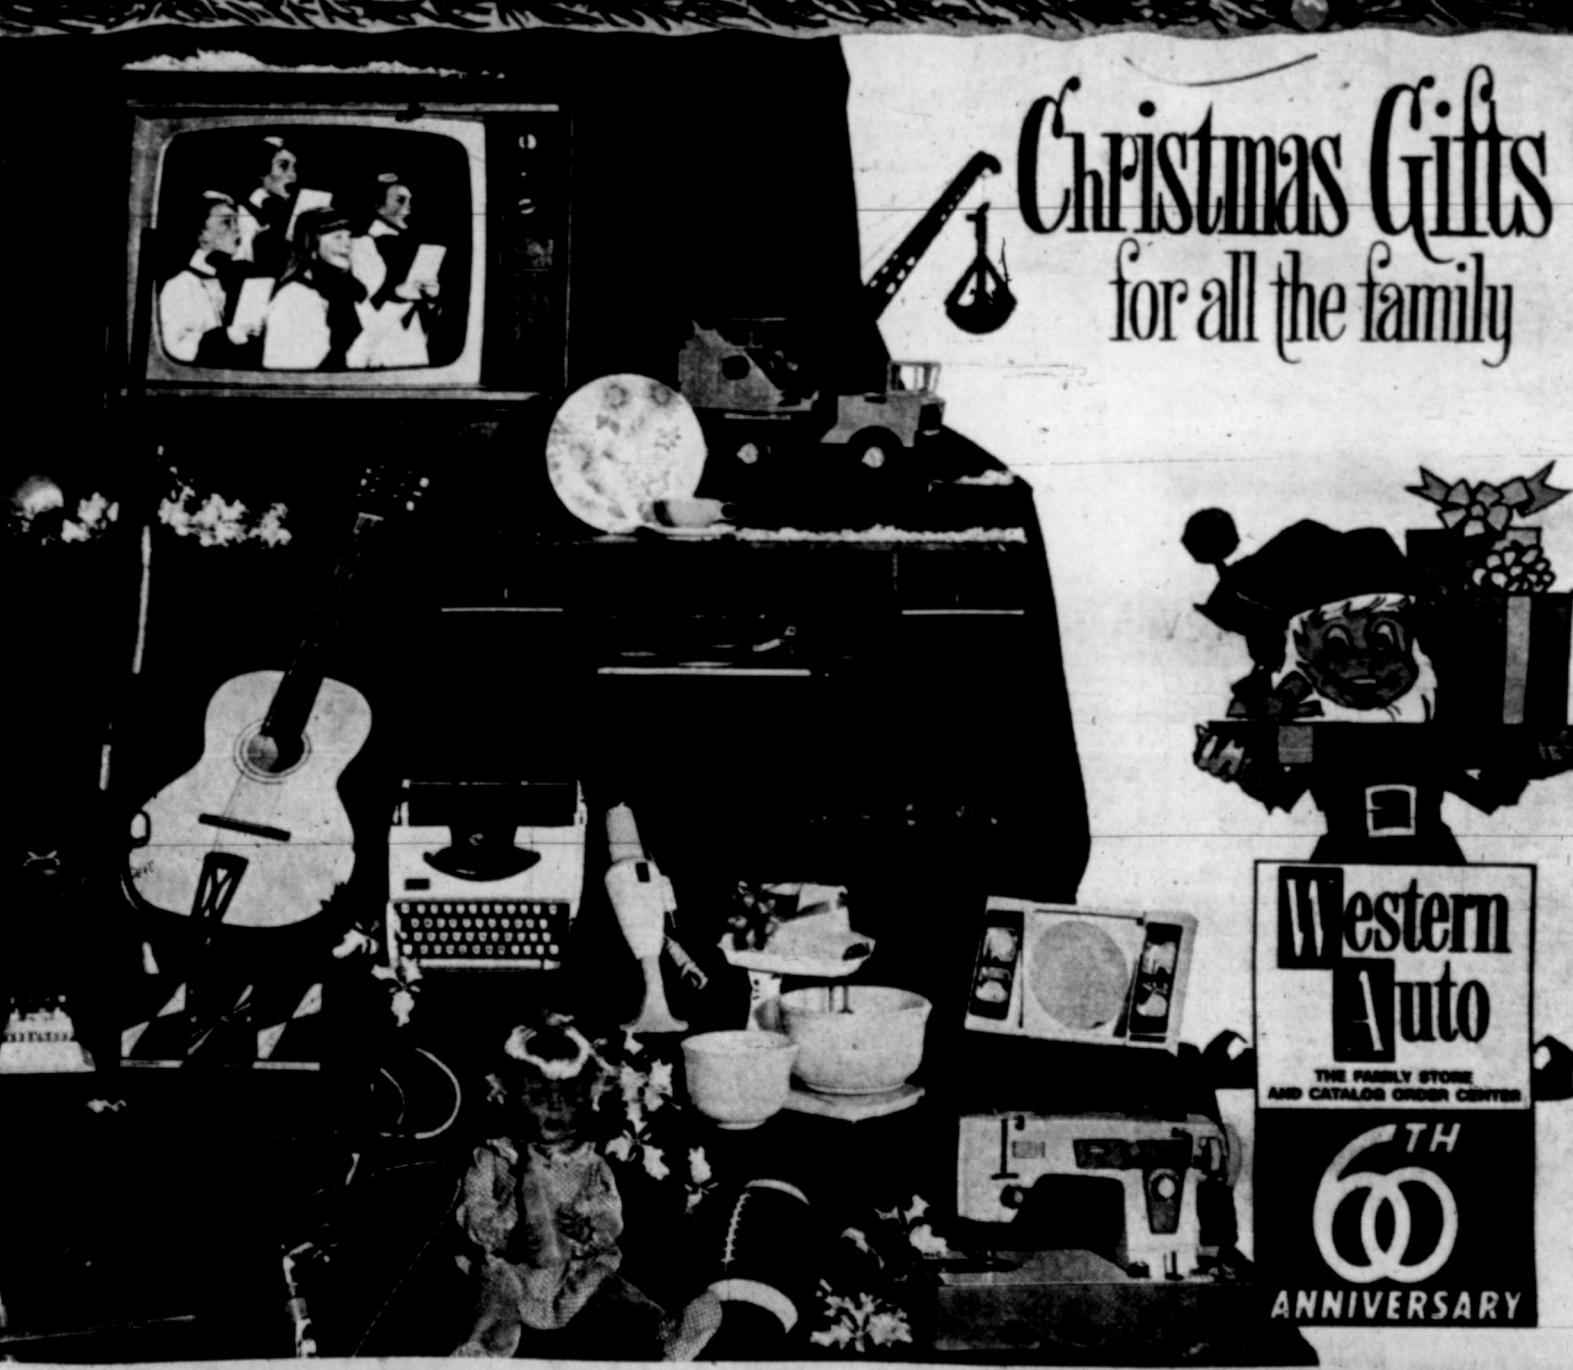

Ladies of Colorado City Chapter No. 58, Order of Eastern Star, are sponsoring a Mexican dinner in Civic House.

This is another in a series of their projects to pay for a new piano in the new Masonic Hall here.

You can be sure your $1.50 for a plate Friday will be a helping hand for an organization rich in the tradition of helping others. In addition to treating your tastebuds to zesty homemade menu.

How About These, Fishermen?

Record Catches Listed For You To Challenge

Somewhere, hanging on a wall or pressed between the pages of a scrapbook album, may be the documentary evidence which could bring Texas-size recognition to any number of fishermen.

It would be the proof needed to place a name on the record books for catching the largest fish of its kind on Texas' lakes or Gulf waters any time during recorded history.

After almost a year of seeking out such information, the Texas Outdoor Writers Association has published a list of known state fish records. But the search goes on for proof of record-breakers, whether they were caught years ago or just last week.

The state's outdoor writers have probed the past, but some legitimate angling achievements may have been overlooked. They continue to accept photos and vouchers of outsize fishes as they are caught week by week, but most of the contenders either fail to match the existing accepted records or are not sizeable enough to meet minimum standards set by TOWA. Cooperating in the program are personnel of the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department who are often contacted when outstanding fish are submitted.

Several records for species of freshwater fishes are still open to consideration. For more numerous are the gaps in the saltwater records, simply because specimens verified in recent years have not met minimum weight requirements.

All fish must be weighed on an inspected scales and an affidavit of weight must be signed by two witnesses, one of them a disinterested person. A photograph is requested.

Others who know of exceptional catches in the past may also submit names, dates and data for approval by the TOWA committee.

mittee in the same manner. Newspaper clippings are important for authenticity, TOWA reports.

No state records have been listed for numerous other saltwater species, as none so far have met minimum weight standards.

Entries for saltwater fish records may be submitted to TOWA Chairman Roy Swann, outdoor editor of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Information on freshwater species should be sent to chairman Dan Klepper, outdoor editor of the San Antonio Express-News. Or, anglers may contact local sports writers or personnel of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

As 1969 nears an end, the following records have been listed by TOWA as the biggest of their kind known to be caught in Texas:

FRESHWATER RECORDS

GASSTOP - 9 pounds, caught by Fabian Koroczok, Port Lavaca, 1965.

Final Winners In Football Contest

Winners in the Record's final two football guessing contests were headed by Don Ammons of Post and Edwin Dickson of Coahoma.

Dickson won the season final, and $10 with 5 misses. Mrs. Sam Oden of Westbrook won $8 and R. B. Bruce of Loraine won $5.

First in the next-to-last week was Ammons with $10 on only one miss, followed by Randy Griffith, 903 Rusk, $8 and Kenneth Dockrey, Rt. 2, $5.

FLOUNDER - 8 pounds 4 ounces, caught by A. D. Skiller, Port Lavaca, 1965.

No state records have been listed for numerous other saltwater species, as none so far have met minimum weight standards.

tom fabricating which the brothers perfect for their customers.

Their list includes trailer frames, combination grain and stock trailers, racks for pickups and trucks, custom hitches for the same vehicles.

They built one big chisel plow weighing 2,150 pounds. Now most of their chisels are 1,380 pounds.

"What we are trying to do is put out work that not only is built good but looks good," Don said.

"We are trying to perfect our implements so they will save our customers time and cost in their operations.

visions for unlimited plantings, would provide the necessary supplies for both domestic and export customers. TACPO, citing production costs, experience with the domestic allotment system since 1965
and "our own first hand knowledge of farming operations in Texas where four of the seven lowest cost production areas are located," said such a that foreign markets for U. S.

cotton will be lost permanently.The level of the loan, TACPO told the subcommittee, should be high enough to provide the market stability essential to production financing and to reduce the need for high government payments to bridge the gap between market value and the producer income objective.The Texas statement also cautioned against setting the loan so high as to preclude competitive pricing.On the subject of imports, TACPO said "We recognize that textile imports are a serious threat to American mills and to our domestic cotton market. We recommend that steps be taken to alleviate the problem."The TACPO group repeated its long-held position opposing a payments limitation saying
"limitations are incompatible with the American economic system, would disrupt most phases of agriculture, would deny many farmers a just return on labor and investments and would reduce or destroy the effectiveness of farm programs."In 1964 Congress authorized a $10 million research program to reduce the cost of producing cotton. But the program has never been fully funded, and TACPO asked that the program be funded and implemented as rapidly as possible.The TACPO statement said,
"we feel these features of a government program are vital to the survival of the cotton industry in the years immediately ahead" but stated
these are not enough."They are like a survival kit in the jungle -- they will keep us alive for a time, but they will not lead us out of the forest," Pate said.TACPO pointed out that cot-ton's major problem is one of merchandising and asked that subcommittee members consider a method whereby cotton producers could compete with man-made fiber manufacturers on more nearly an equal basis.Citing the fact that there are some 350,000 widely scattered cotton producers and less than a dozen major corporations producing man-made fibers, TACPO suggested the possibility of creating a "Cotton Industry Board" with the necessary financing and powers granted by legislation to "make decisions for cotton in much the same manner as a corporate board makes decisions for competing fibers."TACPO praised the current dollar-a-bale program of Cotton Producers Institute, but said, "it appears obvious to some of us this program, with only about $10 million to work with each year and with other restrictions on its activities, is insufficient to bridge the enormous merchandising gap that exists between cotton producers and synthetic fiber makers.""We visualize a Board with the financing, the authority and the obligation for in-depth studies and recommendations for the improvement of the entire cotton merchandising system, including net-weight trading, packaging, product development, brand-name promotion, pricing structure and other factors," Texas statement continued."The Board should be responsible to, and responsive to, cotton producers. Of necessity it would be required to operate within certain boundaries prescribed by law, but would need sufficient latitude in its operation to meet cotton's problems squarely and recommend sound, businesslike solutions regardless of pressures that might be brought to bear."Financing for the Board, TACPO suggested, might be included in the payments
"stipulated by Congress in new legislation as a cost of production adjustment, just as corporations include the cost of marketing and related activities when they fix the price of their product.""It is our thought that the entire payment might be made to the Board and the Board could then distribute payments to producers," Anderson said.As TACPO recognizes, this would be a drastic departure from anything heretofore proposed. But when it is considered that the payments authorized by Congress are not a subsidization of individuals, but a subsidization of an industry in the national interest, the procedure sounds logical.WOLVES
