Tripping the night fantastic, or, how U.N. went to movies

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Prime Minister Eric Gairy of Grenada opened the first U.N. debate on UFOs, then led the diplomats to the movies Monday night to see "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

"This is the fulfillment of my very high expectation ...The world is looking on," the leader of the 12-by 21-mile island in the Caribbean told the General Assembly's special political committee made up of delegates from all 149 U.N. members.

Gairy told a reporter of his own close encounter "2½ years ago, when I was driving home at 2 or 3 in the morning."

"It was a big object, a brilliant light, golden bright, moving at tremendous speed," he continued. "It was off at a distance. I couldn't tell how far. It lasted perhaps three minutes. I'm not the only one. Other people on Grenada have seen them."

His speech to the political committee was brief, and then he and his party went off to dinner and an evening with Hollywood's latest foray into the world of unidentified flying objects.

The film's distributors provided 300 free tickets for U.N. diplomats in advance of the debate. The tickets were distributed through the Grenada delegation. The Grenadans also handed out 300 free copies of a paperback book on UFOs.

The solidly built, bespectacled Gairy, who intersperses religious thoughts in his UFO speeches, began his campaign two years ago. In an address to the General Assembly then, he called for a U.N. investigation of psychic phenomena. Last year, in another assembly speech, he proposed that UFOs be studied also.

Gairy is not the only head of government to have reported a UFO sighting. President Carter says he saw one in Georgia in 1973. But Gairy is the only national leader who has made UFOs a key concern of his country's foreign policy.

Gairy has accused some nations — which he does not identify publicly — of stifling information they have collected about UFO sightings.

He has submitted a resolution to the assembly calling for creation of a U.N. agency to conduct UFO research and to coordinate the findings of individual nations. The United States, for one, opposes the idea, and Gairy says he is willing to settle for a temporary study committee.

Slow surgical recovery reason Johnson withdrawing nomination

Compiled from wire reports

WASHINGTON — United States District Judge Frank M. Johnson withdrew as President Carter's nominee for FBI director because of his slow recovery from surgery, Attorney General Griffin Bell announced today.

Bell said he will "let the dust settle" for two weeks before deciding how to go about choosing the administration's next nominee to succeed Clarence M. Kelley and become the third FBI director in the agency's history.

"I think it would be a wise course not to rush," Bell told a news conference. "My plan is to do nothing for two weeks to let the dust settle and rethink my selection process. Hopefully during that time, names will occur to me."

The attorney general indicated that he would ask Kelley to stay on past his scheduled retirement date of Jan. 1. But Bell said he would not announce what specific request he might make of Kelley until after talking with the director later today.

Kelley has said he is willing to remain in office through January but has other professional commitments after that time.

At the time of Johnson's selection, two front-runners had emerged from a list of candidates developed by a "search committee" named by President Carter. They were Los Angeles District Attorney John Van de Kamp and Neil J. Welch, a veteran FBI official now in charge of the bureau's Philadelphia field office.

Johnson is not "snapping back" from surgery as quickly as expected, his doctor, J. J. Kirschenfeld, said in an interview Monday. Kirschenfeld ruled out Johnson's coming to Washington in January, when already postponed confirmation hearings by the Senate Judiciary Committee were to be rescheduled.

Kirschenfeld said that it would be "several months" before Johnson, 58, regained his "pre-surgical state" of health, a level Kirschenfeld said was necessary for Johnson to assume the director's post.

Bell called Johnson's decision to withdraw "unfortunate for the president, the FBI and the nation. Judge Johnson would have made an ideal leader for the FBI."

Johnson will write to President Carter and ask that his nomination be withdrawn and Carter was expected to agree.

Johnson's medical setback is the latest in a series of disappointments that the administration has experienced in attempting to find a successor to Kelley.

The selection of Johnson, who had been Bell's first choice, appeared to solve the quandary the administration found itself in when a list of five candidates produced by a presidentially appointed "search committee" drew a lukewarm response in political and law enforcement circles.

Johnson, who originally had turned down the appointment as FBI director, then changed his mind and agreed to accept. Senate confirmation appeared assured for Johnson, a Republican who had been appointed to the bench by President Dwight D. Eisenhower and who had handed down far-reaching civil rights decisions.

Johnson underwent surgery in August to correct an abdominal aortic aneurysm, a ballooning of the body's main artery, which was discovered after President Carter selected him.

Confirmation hearings, set for October, were postponed when Johnson developed an inguinal hernia in his left groin. Kirschenfeld said at the time that he had done too much too soon by coming to Washington and making courtesy calls at the Senate.

Until about a month ago, Kirschenfeld said Monday, Johnson appeared to be recovering at the expected rate. Then he "plateaued," with fatigue setting in, the doctor continued, although he was working only a half-day schedule.

"He really is not up to the level where you would want him to tackle a very difficult assignment, to get into something that would require a lot of energy, a lot of work," Kirschenfeld said.

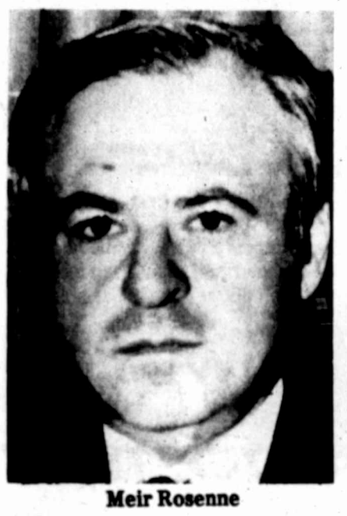

Aside from the problems that further delay would cause the FBI, Johnson is known to be concerned about the financial burden that could be caused by his taking the FBI job and possibly suffering a relapse.

Johnson, who is not a wealthy man, already had agreed to give up about half of the $54,500 annual retirement pay that he would draw if he remained as a judge for seven more years or retired on a disability.

Switching to a civil service retirement annuity with a much lower return also would require him to pay large sums to the annuity fund, a Justice Department official explained.

Johnson, through his secretary, declined to discuss his condition Mon-

Commissioners delay decision on loop road

Midland County commissioners Monday postponed until 2 p.m. today a decision on proposals for a north loop around Midland and a north route between Midland and Odessa.

Acceptance of a minute order compiled by the Texas Highway Department would obligate the county to buying right of way and curbs and gutters, at a cost estimated by the Highway Department to be $2.5 million.

The Midland and Odessa city councils and the Ector County Commissioners Court all have accepted the order, but, for it to become effective, the Midland County Commissioners Court must accept it by Wednesday.

"We're still talking to people," County Judge Barbara Culver said at the Monday commissioners meeting. "We're all working in the same vein, but there are a lot of details in that minute order that need careful examination," she said.

Judge Culver said Midland County has the smallest budget of the four local governmental agencies involved, "but the lion's share of the right of way."

Also at the Monday meeting, the commissioners agreed to continue funding indigent care at Midland Memorial Hospital for 1978, on the condition the county legally can do so.

The action came on the request of Midland Hopsital District President Frank Cowden Jr., who said the hospital district will not actually collect any taxes until the end of 1978 for 1977, its first tax year.

Judge Culver said the county will continue to fund indigent care on a case-by-case basis, as it has in the past.

Midland Memorial trustees Chairman Mickey Cappadonna said the hospital has been receiving between $80,000 and $90,000 a year for indigent care from the county.

In other business, the commissioners agreed to continue a contract with Main Lafrentz to do the county audit.

They also accepted a bid to allow Elmer Don Culp to purchase scrap metal at the county barn for $35 a ton. Also bidding was Don's Metals, with a bid of $30 a ton.

Indian diplomat stabbed

WASHINGTON — An Indian diplomat was stabbed and seriously wounded on Embassy Row here Monday night by an assailant wielding two knives in a bizarre attack that investigators believe may have political overtones.

The victim, Surri Koteswar, 35, staggered into the embassy supply mission on Massachusetts Avenue about 6:45 p.m. (EST) and reportedly

Sadat finding negative RSVPs more numerous

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat apparently is going to have a three-nation Cairo conference attended by Israel, Egypt and the United States.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim today accepted Egypt's invitation for United Nations participation at a meeting on Middle East problems at Cairo.

Israel formally agreed Monday to attend the meeting called by the Egyptian president to make preparations for an Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva. Officials in Washington said the United States also will participate.

Of the others invited, the Palestine Liberation Organization, Syria and Jordan said they would not attend, and the Soviet Union, Lebanon and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim have not responded. But the Russians and the Lebanese are expected to stay away because of Syria's stand.

Sadat had said the meeting could start as early as this Saturday. Other Egyptian officials said it probably would be delayed until next week.

Officials of the Carter administration said the United States would participate in the conference but was delaying an announcement. The officials said the administration detected signs that the opposition to the meeting by Sadat's militant Arab foes might wane and believed an announcement of U.S. participation would solidify the opposition. U.S. officials also said the level of U.S. representation had not been decided, but Secretary of State Cyrus Vance would not attend.

Israel also downgraded its delegation, naming as its representatives Eliahu Ben-Elissar, the director-general of Prime Minister Menahem Begin's office, and Meir Rosenne, legal adviser to the Foreign Ministry who helped draft Israel's disengagement agreements with Egypt and Syria after the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

Despite Washington's talk of waning opposition to Sadat, only one slight conciliatory note came from among his opponents.

Syrian President Hafez Assad told a news conference in Damascus "there can be no divorce" between Syria and Egypt, "there only are divergencies in methods and priorities and procedures." But he said he would attend

Hill gives nod to voters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas cannot change its method of appraising farm land for taxation without asking the voters first, Attorney General John Hill said today.

Hill issued his formal opinion today although he revealed his decision Monday in a Capitol news conference.

The legal question asked Hill was whether a 1977 statue that would allow farm land to be assessed according to productivity instead of market value could be legal without a companion constitutional amendment that was defeated in the 1977 Legislature.

"House Bill 22 . . . which would establish a new program of valuing agricultural land on a basis other than market value, cannot be placed in effect without approval of the companion constitutional amendment by a majority of Texas voters," Hill's opinion said.

Hill told a Capitol news conference Monday that Speaker Bill Clayton and Comptroller Bob Bullock were wrong in assuming that a House bill approved by the 1977 Legislature, which also defeated a constitution change, was enough to change the methods of appraising farm and ranch lands.

"I essentially ruled on this before," Hill said Monday. "I see no reason not to adhere to that decision that it requires a constitutional amendment."

Hill said he realized the legal opinion would have to involve politics "but my opinion is very clear in my mind...the people hired me to give out legal advice and that is what I am trying to do."

Clayton, with the support of farm groups, urged local tax assessor-collectors to appraise open space land on farms and ranches on its productivity, not on its value as real estate.

Bullock prepared manuals for tax authorities telling them how to use productivity instead of market value in assessing open space for taxation.

The tax appraisal issue arose after the failure in the 1977 Legislature of a constitutional amendment by two votes in the House that would have authorized using productivity as the basis for taxing open space land. However, a House bill, designed to become effective only if the constitutional change was adopted, was passed by both houses and became law. Clayton claimed in news releases that the approved House bill should be recognized by taxing authorities although the constitutional change did not pass.

Several lawmakers accused Clayton and Bullock of raising "false hopes" among farmers and ranchers for the tax break sought many years.

Hill said he was revealing his official decision first to the Texas Farm Bureau because "they are are in state convention and I can't think of any better group to disseminate the news."

Hill said he thought Gov. Dolph Briscoe, his main Democratic opponent for governor in 1978, had been "very weak and ineffective as far as this issue is concerned."

PUFF-ers blow smoke in anti-smoker's face

Remember that old "but you've just gotta have another cigarette" number that the crusty-voiced Phil Harris came out with about 25 or 30 years ago?

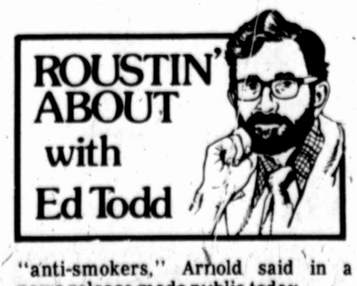

It went something like this: "Smoke, smoke, smoke that cigarette. Smoke, smoke, smoke it 'till you smoke yourself to death . . ." and so forth.

Well, the song didn't exactly put a curse on tobacco smoking. It might even have tended to make a joke out of nicotine addiction. The smoker possibly could laugh at himself while he inhaled and coughed.

Well, there's a husband-and-wife team up at Lubbock that is battling to kick out the modern-day cloud that has formed around the smoker.

The pro-puffing movement headed up by Lubbock restaurateurs Rick and Judie Arnold is called PUFF — People United to Fight Fanatics.

And on the top of the Arnolds' list of unreasonable advocates are the "anti-smokers," Arnold said in a news release made public today.

"A vocal minority is dictating our lives, from unenforceable anti-smoking laws to the 55 mile per hour speed limit," Arnold said.

"The anti-smokers want to force you to adopt what they demand is proper social behavior. The non-smoker, on the other hand, has made a personal decision and doesn't believe harassing his fellow man is

City gets slight rain, slight chance for more

Last night's surprise rainfall was just enough to wet the ground in most parts of the Midland area, and a slight chance of more showers was predicted by the weatherman this morning.

The rainfall, caused by an upper level disturbance moving across this area from the West last night, caught the weatherman off guard in that there was no indication of rain as late as Monday afternoon. However, the radar began to show some precipitation occurring in far West Texas a short time after dark Monday.

Rain was first reported at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal at 10:45 p.m. Monday and again between 3:20 and 4:10 this morning when .02 inch was recorded.

The weatherman said skies should be mostly fair tonight and Wednesday with the low temperature tonight in the lower 30s. Wednesday's temperatures are expected to be somewhat warmer with the high in the middle 60s.

Monday's high temperature was 64 degrees, and the overnight low temperature was 38 degrees, the weather service reported.

Rankin and Big Lake reported some rainfall this morning with cloudy skies and rather cold temperatures. In Big Spring, a fine mist was covering the town with cloudy skies overhead.

Andrews reported fairly cool temperatures this morning while skies were partly cloudy in Lamesa, and temperatures were cold in Stanton with reasonably clear skies there.

Very heavy thunderstorms were reported during the night in the Hill Country, near College Station, in the Waco area and another area of thunderstorms was noted along a line from Waco to Junction to San Angelo.

Blow crippling if true, black nationalists say

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Moderate black nationalists say the guerrilla armies fighting the white Rhodesian government suffered a crippling blow if the government's claim to have killed at least 1,200 guerrillas in Mozambique is correct.

The blacks inside Rhodesia, whose leaders are preparing to open talks with Prime Minister Ian Smith on a transition to black rule, appeared to put little or no credence in Mozambique's claim that about 80 persons were killed in the five-day Rhodesian air and ground attack deep inside Mozambique last week.

"It would be a lie to suggest we are happy with what happeneed over there," said an official of Bishop Abel Muzorewa's African National Council. "It is a tragedy that this continuing war has forced the government into action and that our people have died But it has taught us some lessons."

Intelligence sources say the raids by air and ground forces on two major guerrilla bases set the black war effort back by months.

Some blacks cited the apparent impotence of the 10,000-man Mozambique army, which began as a guerrilla force that fought Portuguese colonial troops for a decade. It put up no opposition to the invaders, the Rhodesian government said.

Both black and white politicians now believe the Rhodesian government's raciallymixed security forces must be retained to keep future black governments in power as well as guaranee the safeguards for the whites demanded by Smith. But spokesmen for Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, another moderate leader who will negotiate with Smith, say spcialist units that have been accused of harassing civilians will have to be disbanded.

An official report from Maputo, the capital of Mozambique, accused Rhodesia of a "slaughter' but said few guerrillas were slain. The Marxist government said most of the victims were women and children, families of the guerrillas.

It also reprted "five soldiers of the Rhodesian racist army were killed." The Rhodesian government reported one of its soldiers killed and eight wounded.

The Rhodesian military command said its ground and air forces began the five-day assault on two guerrilla bases last Wednesday "in the interests of self defense."

A commuique said the invaders struck the guerrillas' main base camp at Chimoio, 54 miles inside Mozambique, and a second camp 132 miles from the frontier in the northern province of Tete.

The report from Mozambique said reporters who visited the Chimoio camp saw boies of women and children slain by the attackers and a mass grave for schoolchildren killed during classes.

Western correspondnt were barred from the combat zone, preventing confirmation of the casualty claims.

It was the fourth major Rhodesian military operation inside Mozambique which the Rhodesians have admitted since August 1976.

SEC probing alleged shipment of $10,000

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating the suspected shipment of $10,000 in $100 bills from the Korean Embassy here to a retired U.S. Air Force general in Seoul, federal court records showed Monday.

The alleged cash disbursement, according to the records, is part of an SEC investigation into reports that some members of Congress and others received improper payments through two Los Angeles consultants.

The consultants, Howard P. Lee and Jong Ho Yoo, worked for a mysterious firm known as the Korean Research Institute.

An SEC subpoena filed here and in Los Angeles said former Air Force Gen. Robert N. Smith may have received $10,000 sent by Col. Kyoo-Hwan Lee, a military attache at the Korean embassy, who reportedly obtained the money from the research institute.

The subpoena served on Howard Lee did not disclose the reason for the alleged transfer of money to Smith or its ultimate disposition.

Smith is vice president for Far East operations for E-Systems Inc., a Dallas company that specializes in "electronics warfare" equipment. The firm has acknowledged it paid the Korean Research Institute $1.4 million in commissions on the sales of E-Systems' military field radios to the South Korean government.

Smith joined E-Systems in November, 1973, after retiring as chief of staff of the United Nations Command and U.S. Forces in Korea.

A spokesman for E-Systems declined comment Monday on the Smith allegations while the SEC case is pending.

Howard Lee told the SEC through his attorney, George H. Rhodes, that he had no personal knowledge of such a cash disbursement. However, he has begun to answer numerous questions from SEC lawyers under protection of a court-approved grant of immunity from prosecution.

According to the subpoena, the $10,000 shipment is among the more specific allegations the SEC is trying to pin down.

The agency said it also is seeking information from Howard Lee on any funds "obtained directly from Korean Research Institute bank accounts in the United States" and given to Col. Lee, his uncle.

Similarly, the SEC is trying to trace the alleged flow of money from Korean Research Institute bank accounts to Jung Uck Seo, an official of the South Korean Agency for Defense Development, the court records said.

The subpoena, the most sweeping document to be made public in the SEC's 18-month investigation, also asks Howard Lee for records of any contacts he has had since Jan. 1, 1972, with Korean businessman-lobbyist Tongsun Park and with Chung Soo Park, a special assistant to Korean President Park Chung-Hee.

Howard replied to the SEC that he ad had no contacts with Park, the

Godfrey joins congressional race

ABILENE — Fike Godfrey, who resigned last month as executive vice president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, officially launched his campaign for Congress today by pledging the use of "West Texas common sense" in trying to help solve the problems facing Washington.

Godfrey, a Kent County rancher and former automobile dealer in Spur, served the West Texas Chamber, which represents 132 counties, for seven years. In making his formal announcement for the congressional seat being vacated by U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson of Anson, Godfrey noted that he had worked with all members of the Texas congressional delegation and would not need "on-the-job training" to start representing the 17th District.

"Frankly, I am excited over the prospect of carrying on my efforts to bring industrial development to this district — with the resources of a congressional office to back me up," Godfrey told a gathering of supporters and news media representatives here this morning.

"I look forward to representing the views of the people of this district trying to bring some of their common sense to Washington decisions — in trying to help solve the many critical problems which are facing us," he declared.

"We must solve the energy problem, in such a way that people will not be bankrupted simply by using their cars and keeping their homes comfortable," said Godfrey. "We must solve the inflation problem, which is caused by unnecessary, wasteful government spending.

"We must create more jobs, put the Social Security system back on a sound basis, eliminate unnecessary and abusive government interference in the affairs of small business, and we must make it possible for farmers and ranchers to make a reasonable profit on their labor and investment.

"And, above all, we must maintain a strong defense for our nation — strong enough to deter aggression — or else we will find that solutions to all our other problems are meaningless," he declared.

Sinatra cites flight service in death suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Frank Sinatra has filed a wrongful-death suit in federal court in connection with the plane crash that killed his mother Natalie, last January.

Sinatra filed the suit jointly Monday as conservator of his late mother's estate, along with Hudson United Bank, the conservator of the estate of Anna Carbone of Cliffside Park, N.J., who also died in the Jan. 6 crash.

The suit claimed negligence and asked for unspecified damages, plus the two womens' funeral costs and $80,000 for jewelry and other property Sinatra claimed was not recovered from the wreckage.

Named in the suit were Marvin Krattner, who owned the Lear jet that slammed into the side of Mt. San Gorgonio after taking off from Palm Springs, and Jet Avia Ltd., operator of the charter service that leased the plane.

The jet, flying in a snowstorm, crashed into the mountain five minutes after taking off from Palm Springs en route to Las Vegas.

TRC chairman sets energy talk

ODESSA — The chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission will visit here Thursday to talk about deregulation and other aspects of the energy bill now in the U.S. Senate-House Conference Committee.

Commissioner Mack Wallace will address a noon meeting of the Downtown Lions Club in the ballroom of the Inn of the Golden West.

Wallace was appointed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe in September 1973 to replace Byron Tunnel. Subsequent to his appointment, Wallace was elected to serve the remainder of the term to which he was appointed.

Wallace presently is serving on the secondary recovery committee of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission and is Briscoe's representative to the Interstate Minning Compact Commission. He is also a member of of the governor's Energy Advisory Council.

Sadat getting negative RSVPs

the anti-Sadat Arab summit meeting Libya and Algeria have called in Tripoli Thursday.

King Hussein in a televised speech defended Sadat's trip to Israel. He said it resulted from his "reading of the disunity, uncertainty and indecision" in the Arab world and reflected "painful Arab realities."

Hussein pleaded with "Arab brethren for courageous joint action to reunite ranks and rebuild a unified position in order to face the future, whatever the difficulties." But the Jordanian government said it would not send representatives to either the Cairo or Tripoli meetings unless all "concerned countries" attended.

Man's condition 'satisfactory'

A Denver City man was in satisfactory condition today in Midland Memorial Hospital with a broken leg and cuts received in a two-car collision Monday 14 miles southeast of Midland on State Highway 158.

Christopher Byrd, 19, of Denver City was traveling east on 158 when his vehicle and one driven by Jimmy Bone collided.

Byrd was pinned in his vehicle until extricated by a Fire Department rescue unit.

Bone was uninjured.

UT president will step down

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — University of Texas President Lorene Rogers says she will step down at the end of the next academic year, the Daily Texan said today in a copyrighted story.

She told the Texan, daily student newspaper at UT-Austin, that she will reach the mandatory administrative retirement age of 65 in April 1978. She said she will not seek an extension of her presidential term from the Board of Regents.

"I have no intention of staying beyond next year," she said.

the right way to behave."

Both Arnold and his wife smoke. They are staunch believers in freedom of choice. And that is the essence of their five-month-old campaign. The pro-smoking PUFF is just the vehicle, he said.

"The past several years have seen the concentrated efforts of many small special interest groups begin to infringe upon the life styles of the American people," he said. "These groups, though small in number, have attained power and influence that has reached far beyond the point of social benefit."

And PUFF may be able to reverse the trend of discriminating against people who smoke "by replacing repressive governmental action with mutual respect for the comfort and well being of smokers and non-smokers," he said.

Today, about half of PUFF's 2,500 members are non-smokers, Arnold said.

Arnold cited several instances of the "over-regulation" of smoking:

Stannaus earns Legion of Merit

He was cited during the ceremony for his service as commander and deputy-commander of the now-defunct 78th training flying wing at Webb AFB.

Before retiring, Col. Stannaus made two awards to persons who had served with him at Webb. He presented Master Sergeant Samuel R. Earl with the Meritous Service award for his recent duties as senior enlisted man at Webb.

Stannaus presented the Purple Heart to Lt. Col. Arthur W. Burer for wounds received March 21, 1966, in Vietnam. This was the third Purple Heart for the former prisoner of war.

Pilot may fly again

By RICHARD CARELLI

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 58-year-old jet fighter test pilot, grounded in 1971 because of his age, says he hopes a Supreme Court decision voiding that action will return him to the cockpit.

"If they want me, I'm ready to fly," said Phillip Houghton after learning that the six-year interruption in his career may soon be over.

The Supreme Court on Monday refused to review a lower court ruling that Houghton's grounding was illegal because of age discrimination laws.

Houghton's former employer, the McDonnell-Douglas Corp., now must pay him six years back salary, estimated by Houghton at $200,000. And if a federal district judge finds that Houghton still can perform his test pilot's job, the company must give it to him.

"I'm elated," Houghton said from his St. Louis home in a telephone interview. "I'm not really sure what the future holds. That depends on the company's attitude. This has been a bitter court battle, but if they want me to be a pilot, I'm ready."

He said that the company might offer him early retirement, adding that he would consider "a reasonable retirement."

Houghton would have to pass a comprehensive physical examination for clearance to fly

Phillip Houghton

McDonnell-Douglas planes again, but he said he maintained the medical certificate required by the Federal Aviation Administration for his commercial pilot's license.

A company spokesman, noting that some decisions still must be made in the lower courts, said McDonnell-Douglas would have no immediate response to the Supreme Court action.

Officials won't collect damages

By MORTON MINTZ
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Surpeme Court Monday chilled efforts by public officials to collect damages from publications that allegedly libel them maliciously.

The court rejected pleas by a judge, an assessor and a legislator to review decisions that they hadn't proved malice on the part of an author, a magazine writer, a reporter and all of their publishers.

The justices acted four weeks after they had left standing an Idaho ruling that public officials can force newspapers and reporters to reveal confidential news sources simply by suing them for libel.

A week later, in another action that troubled press spokesmen, they left standing a $100,000 punitive damages award won by a Florida official against a newspaper and two staff members.

All five cases involved the court's decision in 1964, in New York Times vs. Sullivan, that a public official seeking damages for a defamatory falsehood must prove that the statement was made with "actual malice" — with knowledge that it was false, or with "reckless disregard or whether it was false or not."

In none of the five cases did the justices say why they declined to review decisions made by lower courts.

In Monday's cases one losing litigant was Dominic S. Rinaldi, a New York State Surpeme Court justice in Brooklyn who was acquitted in August, 1974, of charges of perjury and obstruction of justice.

The others were Thomas R. Fadell, assessor for Calumet Township (Gary), Ind., who, among other things, had assessed United States Steel Corp. plant improvements of $1.3 billion at $25 million, and Delores Glover, a member of the St. Louis Board of Aldermen.

Rinaldi had sought $5 million from Jack Newsfield and Holt, Rinehart & Winston, Inc., publisher of Newfield's 1974 book "Cruel and Unusual Punishment."

The book consisted mainly of articles in the weekly newspaper the Village Voice, of which Newfield was an editor, that termed Rinaldi "suspiciously lenient" in sentencing heroin deadlers and organized-crime figures. A footnote added to the book after Rinaldi was indicted, but before he was acquitted, described him as "probably corrupt."

A divided New York Court of Appeals upheld a summary judgment for Newfield and Holt, saying that Rinaldi had the burden of showing "that he is not 'probably corrupt' and that no sentences were unduly lenient ... there are no evidentiary facts which would support (Rinaldi's) claim that Newfield's accusations are false. Further, there is no triable issue as to actual malice."

Chief Judge Charles Breitel, while voting with the majority, said it is "virtually impossible to bear the burden of proving that one is not 'corrupt' or 'probably corrupt'."

One of the issues raised in the Supreme Court involved a report by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York that was favorable to Rinaldi.

In an affidavit Holt editor Marian Wood emphasized that the report came out after initial retail distribution of the book in the period "March" 16 to 18, 1974. The month was changed to "May" in the retyped version of the transcript included as an appendix to Rinaldi's brief.

Holt pointed out that the "y" in "May" was out of kilter with the rest of the line. Rinaldi Lawyer Irwin A. Wilpon said there was "plainly an error in transcription."

In the assessor case, Fadell sued writer George Crile, Harper's Magazine, and others for a November, 1972, article entitled, "A Tax Assessor Has Many Friends ..."

Federal Judge Allen Sharp threw out Fadell's complaint after examining a huge record — including 1,128 pages of Crile's notes and 418 pages of transcribed interviews — and concluding that all concerned with the article had shown great care. The record "reflects no malice whatsoever," he said. The Seventh U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed.

Crile wrote that Fadell "had used his office to solicit bribes, divert public monies for his political as well as personal use, destroy hundreds of volumes of public records and provide millions of dollars in tax reductions to certain corporations." Half of the taxable property in Gary is United States Steel's.

In the St. Louis case, a Globe-Democrat rewriteman inadvertently attributed to city legislator Glover a statement — actually made by a colleague — that she had had two abortions. Despite a retraction by the newspaper, Glover continued to get a large number of abusive and obscene phone calls.

The Missouri Supreme Court, reversing a $7,000 damage award, said that the newsman was unaware of the error in his story, and that Glover had failed to show actual malice.

Misspellings in Mormon will attributed to Hughes' health

By AL DELUGACH
The Los Angeles Times

LAS VEGAS — The chief attorney on behalf of the so-called Mormon will of Howard Hughes told a jury Monday that the recluse's drug-induced kidney trouble could have accounted for the misspellings in the three-page handwritten document.

On this note, Los Angeles lawyer Harold Rhoden launched the climactic trial on which hangs the disposition of hundreds of millions of dollars — one of the biggest fortunes in America.

Under Nevada law, a majority of six of the eight jurors is needed for a binding verdict on the challenged document.

As Rhoden told the jurors in his opening statement, they will hear some strange things. But, he said, there are explanations for them.

Rhoden used the first full day of the trial and likely will use the best part of a second to outline the evidence that he intends to present.

After that, attorneys for Hughes' surviving relatives — an aunt and a score or so of cousins — will present opening statements of their own.

Presentation of testimony by both sides will follow, Clark County District Court Judge Keith Hayes has told the five men and three women selected as the jury that the proceedings could last six or eight months.

Rhoden, attorney for Noah Dietrich — long-time overseer for Hughes' businesses, who was named executor in the purported will — told the jury he would present medical evidence accounting for much of the "bizarre" behavior of Hughes.

The root of much of it, he indicated, was uremic poisoning, a condition that he said resulted from damage to Hughes' kidneys caused by abuse of the drug thenacithin.

Rhoden asserted that uremic poisoning is known to have a number of effects on its sufferer's brain functions and personality.

Victims of the ailment, he said, often misspell words that they actually know how to spell.

He said this accounts for the spelling of children as "cildren" and of casinos as "casinoes" in the purported will.

Rhoden said uremic poisoning also affects the memory, adding that a person can find himself miles from home without knowing how he got there.

Other effects of the malady include appetite loss, reversal of sleeping hours and varying degrees of deafness — all true in Hughes' case, Rhoden said.

He noted that perhaps the most unusual factor in the contested case is the designation of Melvin Dummar as beneficiary of one-sixteenth of the Hughes estate.

Rhoden said Dummar contends he met Hughes in the desert under strange circumstances.

New contract could put strikers back to work

NEW YORK (AP) — Spokesmen for the 50,000 dock workers on strike in 34 Atlantic and Gulf ports from Maine to Texas said the longshoremen could be back at work tonight if they voted to accept new contract proposals.

The voting by the dock workers, members of the International Longshoremen's Association, on whether to end their nine-week strike against containerships was to begin at 7 a.m. today and was to last for eight hours.

Spokesmen here said the ballots wuld be counted immediately afterward and added that work could resume with the 7 p.m. shift.

The strike has held up shipment of Christmas goods and has been blamed by the Commerce Department for the nation's worst monthly trade deficit in history during October. The walkout reportedly has add $1.3 billion to the nation's trade deficit.

The proposed three-year pact provides a 32 percent total increase by the end of the third year, bringing hourly pay to $10.40 with an additional $3.75 hourly in other benefits. It also provides income guarantees for dock workers left jobless by automtion.

The strike was aimed only at ships that use the van-sized containers which are trucked to the docks and loaded and unloaded onto the ship by crane

TEXAS STATE FLORISTS ASSOCIATION

U.S. readies for Egypt meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter Administration, despite some misgivings, is preparing to take part in a preliminary Middle East conference this weekend in Egypt, U.S. officials say.

But the officials say that the level of U.S. representation has not been decided, although it was certain Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will not attend.

Among the names mentioned for the assignment are Phillip Habib, undersecretary of state for politial affairs, and Alfred Atherton, assistant secretary of state.

The conference was proposed on Saturday by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The idea is to lay the groundwork for a reconvened Geneva Conference at which a comprehensive Arab-Israeli settlement would be sought.

Sadat maintains that a Geneva conference held without adequate preparation most likely would end in failure.

An apparent reason for U.S. acceptance of Sadat's invitation is to avoid any weakening of Sadat's shaky political situation.

Administration officials recognize, however, there is no certainty that the Cairo meeting will enhance achievement of the long-range U.S. goal of reconvening the Geneva Conference.

Among the most skeptical about the conference are officials who see Arab unity as a precondition for achieving a comprehensive settlement.

Who's Who directory picks city students

Ten students from Midland recently were named to the 1977-78 directory of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

They were: John B. Kauffman, Kristi L. Koch, Kim E. Shinn, Marilyn A. Galbraith and Emily Frederick Armstrong, all attending Texas Tech University; Mary Stump and Mary Macina, both attending Southwestern University; Angela Dickson and Linda Synatschk, both going to Angelo State University, and Grant Standefer, who is attending Lubbock Christian College.

Selections were made on the basis of academic achievement, community service, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential. Students were chosen from 1,000 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states.

Midlander honored

BETHANY, Okla. — Marla Stover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Stover of 3220 Camarie Ave., recently was among those students named "Outstanding Freshman Student of '76-77" by Bethany Nazerene College.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Simple toys best for tots

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been looking around for something to give my nephew, age 2, on his birthday, and I'm struck by how complicated toys have become. And how un-toylike. There doesn't seem to be a thing left for the child to play with. Have you noticed this? Don't you think it is something of a problem—or am I just being old-fashioned?—Claudia T.

Dear Claudia: I agree with you wholeheartedly. A child ought to have toys that stimulate the imagination, things that he or she can do something with—building blocks, paint boxes, crayons, materials or tools to make dolls' clothes or toy furniture or other objects with. There have been tests showing that children with very lively minds much prefer this kind of plaything to the prefabricated, finished sort.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My little boy dropped an unopened bottle of soda pop the other day, and it exploded. One piece of flying glass cut his cheek; it barely missed his eye. It seems to me this is quite apt to happen with something like pop, and I wonder if people are aware of it. Shouldn't the companies make safer bottles?—A.F.

Dear A. F.: You are absolutely right about carbonated drinks in glass bottles being something of a hazard. They may go off like a bomb if they are dropped— or even if they are banged about. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, which knows all too well about them there were 33,000 hospital emergency cases in 1975 involving soda bottles. About half of the injuries occurred when the bottles were dropped.

A voluntary safety standard for the bottle industry is now under study. Meanwhile, however, get everyone in the family to handle pop bottles with care, and don't try to wrestle with a defective top.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My recent Florida vacation was ruined by a fire ant bite. I passed out. My husband was totally unsympathetic, and says I imagined it. He wants to retire to Florida next year, and I am worried.—B. G.

Dear B.G.: The fire ant has traveled from South America to some of our states, and one of them is Florida. You can be sure you are bitten by a fire ant if the sting produces a pustule, because of the fire ant is the only insect in the U.S. capable of this. Some people have an allergic reaction to these ants, and among these reactions are unconsciousness, difficulty in breathing, tightness of the chest, sweating and nausea.

Before you join your husband in his retirement, I advise a visit to the allergist, because each succeeding bite can bring a more severe reaction. You should be desensitized before you are permanently settled in a location where these ants live.

Unzoned Houston still growing in every direction

HOUSTON (AP)—From a few shanties on the muddy flats near mosquite-plagued Buffalo Bayou, the village of Houston has grown into the nation's fifth largest city, still with a frontier spirit that rejects all attempts to enact zoning ordinances.

While most of the nation's metropolitian areas set strict standards for the locations of businesses, industries, homes and apartments, Houston has spread across the flat coastal lands without these rules or regulations.

City officials admit Houston may not be the most scenic city in the United States, but are willing to compare it with any of those with zoning restrictions.

A factory worker told The Associated Press, "Sure my home is close to a noisy factory where I work, but I don't care. It is great to go home for lunch."

Bernard Siegan, of the University of San Diego and an attorney specializing in real estate and zoning laws, once said, "Zoning is a superfluous and chaotic governmental operation that does not warrant its high cost in community resources."

He pointed to Houston as the prime example of his theory.

Roscoe H. Jones, the Houston planning director, said in an interview, "The absence of zoning has permitted a great growth in this city. The free land market has led to our rapid growth and developed a city which has its own form of beauty."

Jones said, "Zoning has become complex, confusing and often unrelated to any betterment of the city. Houston has become a successful city without zoning.

"People are not overly concerned here about zoning. Face it, in the real world, zoning doesn't work to perfection and without zoning there is no disaster," he said.

Historically, Houston, the nation's biggest city without zoning ordinances, has relied on strict private deed restrictions, especially in new residential developments. And citizen attitudes go a long way toward keeping residential areas free of commercial intrusions.

Jones said on occasions a person may attempt to use his property in violation of the tough city deed restriction clause, "but in most cases, a simple telephone call to advise him of the violation has been sufficient to solve the problem. The people of Houston are really concerned about keeping it a beautiful city, a city without zoning."

Siegan, author of the book "Land Use Without Zoning," says, "Zoning laws give control over the use of land to a strange combination of politicians, planners, owners, courts, citizens, do-gooders, do-badders and the like."

As far as the citizens of Houston are concerned, there seldom is a whisper about the lack of zoning ordinances.

In the fast-growing southwest area of Houston, there are several apartment complexes with monthly rents in the $300-amonth range, and a large residential section with homes priced from $45,000 to $60,000. Within a few hundred yards is the regional headquarters for an airline company and a three-story office building under construction.

A spot check of homeowners and apartment renters revealed no concern for the office buildings. As one said, "The buildings are modern, really beautiful, and the lawns are green and they are planting trees. It is going to help the area, sure not hurt it."

Zoning wasn't always a placid issue in Houston.

Once it brought a fiery clash between two of the city's most influential and richest men— Hugh Roy Cullen, an oilman, and Jesse Jones, newspaper publisher, former secretary of commerce and wartime head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Jones never became involved personally, but his Houston Chronicle, in a 1948 special election, supported a zoning ordinance.

Cullen, who had then donated almost $200 million to various city projects, opposed the ordinance.

Cullen said, those 30 years ago, "It has been a pleasure to help build this city up to now, but Jesse Jones has been away from here most of the time for the last 25 or 30 years, and now comes back to Houston and decided, with the influence of the press here, and the assistance of a bunch of New York Jews, to run our city, so I am going to give our city to Jesse and his crowd."

The 1948 vote was 10,707 against zoning and 4,904 in favor.

Another vote was taken in 1962 and zoning lost 72,248 to 55,506.

Since then there has been no effort to enact zoning regulations.

A couple of years ago, the city council, by a 5-3 vote, rejected an application for a $100,000 federal grant for fear it would be the first step toward zoning. The federal funds would have covered the expenses of a project to predict the growth patterns and the services needed for the city.

The zoning issue arose again this year when the city council approved an ordinance that no X-rated movie nor adult book store could be located within 2,000 feet of a church or school.

Mayor Fred Hofheinz said at the time, "That's foolish. We are dealing with the question of the power of government to restrict the use of land in a city that doesn't have a zoning law and prides itself in the fact."

The antipornogrpahy ordinance was declared unconstitutional by a federal court.

Houston continues to grow, with a population of about 1.5 million, and an anticipated 2.2 million by 1980, and with no zoning restrictions.

City Planner Roscoe Jones sees it this way:

"While Houston has no zoning, it does have planning, strengthened by abundant resources, a strong economy, a cooperative government, and a can-do attitude of its people."

Most motorists ignore speed limit, study says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nearly three-fourths of Texas motorists are ignoring the 55 mph speed limit, according to a report released by the Department of Transportation.

A spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety said the quarterly report shows that of the 74 percent reported to be speeding, 39 percent are averaging more than 60 mph and 16 percent more than 65. And the problem on rural interstate highways is worse with 86 percent speeding.

Jim Robinson said those percentages are the highest reported so far, and have DPS officials concerned because of a subsequent rise in the number of traffic deaths.

"As of noon Friday, Nov. 19, our deaths were up 11 percent over the same period last year," he said. "And on the interstates, we have a 48 percent increase in deaths over last year."

Texas has 1,331 state troopers manning about 70,000 miles of highway. Robinson said part of the enforcement difficulty stems from day-to-day happenings such as court appearances and illness.

"Taking all that and averaging it out, it works out that we have one highway patrol unit every 120 miles across the state," he said. "It's a fact that we have to concentrate in urban areas, so they would be spread thinner in the rural areas."

Robinson said troopers are writing a million tickets a year and about 800,000 are for speeding.

The "double nickel" speed limit—so named by CB radio operators—went into effect in 1974.

Robinson said DPS statistics indicate Texas highways aren't as safe as they were right after the gas-saving law became effective.

As of Nov. 23, 1973, just before the 70 mph signs were mothballed, 3,208 Texans had died in traffic mishaps. The same period the next year showed a dramatic change—2,601 died. But the figures continued to climb except for a minor exception in 1976.

"The latest figures show 3,063," said Robinson. "If we keep going like we are, we're going to catch back up."

DPS Director Col. Wilson E. Speir said his troopers are appealing to motorists to slow down and efforts of troopers to remove dangerous drivers from the traffic stream are continuing.

But he said, "The ultimate solution to the problem of speed above the limits on Texas highways will come only when the majority of Texas drivers accept their responsibility under the law."

Truckers' head for farm strike

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The president of the Independent Truckers Association met with Texas Panhandle farmers in Amarillo Monday night to help them pull together a proposed national farm strike next month.

Mike Parkhurst, who organized truckers strikes in 1967 and 1973, told farmers if they don't organize the proposed Dec. 14 strike, opposing farm organizations and the federal government would undermine their campaign to gain parity for farm produce.

He said the federal government would encourage spokesmen from opposing organizations to say they represent farmers and do not support the strike, and he warned that government farm officials would make empty promises in an effort to cut support for the strike movement.

"They'll plant promises in the national press so that you'll think you've had an effect but those promises don't mean a thing until you have legislation guaranteeing parity," he said.

The strike is being organized to call attention to farm prices that are currently below the cost of production.

The American Agriculture movement, based in Springfield, Colo., has set Dec. 14 as the target date for participating farmers to stop production of goods.

3,109 die in wrecks

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A total of 3,109 persons have died in Texas traffic accidents this year, an increase of 297 or 11 percent over this time last year, the Department of Public Safety reported Monday.

The department said as of noon Friday there had been 2,728 fatal traffic accidents in Texas, an increase of 307 or 13 percent from this time last year.

Clements stresses organization in trying for governor's seat

William P. Clements expects to spend "something more than $2 million" running for governor.

The 60-year-old candidate, who announced his candidacy Nov. 16 for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, spoke Monday at a luncheon hosted by Midland businessman Stanley Moore.

Clements said for the past 15 years, Republican gubernatorial candidates consistently have received 45 to 47 percent of the vote, but have been under-financed.

"What I'm really talking about is, 'Can I get another five percent?' " he said.

Clements said he expects to receive financial support from a broad base, but only to put a "nominal amount" of his own money in the campaign.

He declined to say how much money he has collected thus far, but said the amount is "substantial."

Clements, a drilling contractor, said energy is the "number one question in this state today." The second most important issue, he said, is inflation, which he related to energy.

The candidate said he can get the kind of organization necessary to run a campaign, has the management skills necessary and can finance the kind of campaign it will take to win the election. He also said he is a "credible candidate."

He said his four years as deputy secretary of defense in Washington show his organizational skills and his ability to work with the federal system in Washington.

Champion pecans picked in show

Pecans shown by Wayne Arnold, Dr. John Foster and by Harold Semple were deemed champions Monday in Midland County's first countywide pecan show.

Eighty-two entries were in the contest, which was judged by El Paso horticulturist Dr. Michael Kirby and by Upton County Agricultural Agent Dub Day.

The show, held in the lobby of The Midland National Bank Tower, was sponsored by the Midland Pecan Growers Association and by the Midland County Agricultural Extension Service.

The champion shelling pecan was a Shawnee, which came out of the Semple Farms. Reserve champion in that category was a Western Schley shown by Cathy Kreger.

The champion native pecan was shown by Arnold.

The show was coordinated by Charlie Green, Midland County's agricultural agent.

Winning entries are to be entered in regional competition. From there, the champion pecans will go to the state finals.

Parade deadline nears

Entry deadline for the Seventh Annual Midland Christmas Parade is 5 p.m. Friday. Groups wanting to register should telephone the Midland Chamber of Commerce at 683-3381.

The parade will be Dec. 10.

Parade chairman Sam Blanck said the response to this year's parade has been very good and that the 1977 edition will be one of the best events ever held in Midland.

Christmas shoppers selecting electronic gadgets, clothing

By The Associated Press

Christmas shoppers are splitting their spending this year between electronic gadgets like video games and coldweather necessities like warm clothes, according to retailers who say they expect a good selling season.

Only one store manager contacted in an Associated Press spot check mentioned the selective strike by East and Gulf coast longshoremen and he said it had caused no serious problems. The buying generally started the day after Thanksgiving.

Herb Glaser, executive vice president of J.L. Hudson Co. department store in Detroit, said about 3,500 to 4,000 children went through the line to see Santa Claus on Friday. The number was 1,000 to 1,500 higher than the same day in 1976.

Glaser said the memory of last winter's cold, combined with snow on Friday and over the weekend, helped sales of heavy outer clothing. He reported a big rush for knit goods like scarves and gloves. For the home, the best early sellers were video games and food processing items, Glaser said.

Chuck Huskinson, operations manager at J.C. Penney's in Salt Lake City, said sales were "much better than last year, quite a bit better." The most popular items? Luxury goods like stereos, video games and cameras — "especially cameras."

In Schaumburg, a Chicago suburb, Sears store manager John P. Maloney said: "Sales are going very well for us. Crowds were much larger than we expected." He said customers alternated between luxury goods — "Video games are very big again this year" — and practical things — lightweight irons, women's boots and garage door openers.

For some shoppers, money apparently is no object. "It's amazing the number of gold rings, diamonds and watches we're selling. Cameras and stereos also are doing very well," said Bernie Gordon, general manager for four JAFCO department stores in the Seattle area.

A spokesman for Lazarus, Columbus' biggest department store, said expensive items like furs and video tape recording systems at around $1,000 each were going well.

This year's gimmick gift, according to the Lazarus spokesman, may be toilet tissue printed with crossword puzzles. "It seems like an item that could catch on," he said, but added, "There's no single (gimmick) item that stands out like the pet rock of a couple years ago."

Simple life philosophy helps harmony of household

By ELAINE SMYTH
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Gadgets and household appliance freaks probably will not appreciate the life-style of the Robert R. Goodell family.

In the kitchen of the small home, they would notice the absence of a microwave oven, automatic ice-crusher, trash compactor and large, green plastic bags destined for the garbage collector.

The couple, parents of 2-year-old Von and 2-month-old Kam, say they do own a washer and dryer but when the dryer goes, up will go an old-fashioned clothesline outdoors to dry clothing and bring some of that fresh air indoors.

In the simply furnished living room, there is the absence of a large-screen color TV, with remote control, placed altar-like in some obvious location.

And, at the front door, there's no door bell to announce visitors.

At the front entrance to the property — fenced and gated — wind chimes chased by the ocean breeze generally tell the Goodells when they have a caller.

The Goodell home and surrounding property represents one couple's attempt to pare down life-style 1977 to that of an earlier time when man lived in harmony with his surroundings.

Admittedly, the home will never make House Beautiful in its present, unfinished stage. But it does convey to visitors that Robert and Barbara do not clutter their lives — and their land — with much of the gadgetry of modern technology.

Robert, who teaches part-time at several schools and community colleges, says his philosophy toward life is "very much like Thoreau's — to live as harmoniously as possible with nature and my fellowman."

On their one-third acre, the Goodells have an avocado orchard they have converted into a producing grove in the four years they have lived there, an organic vegetable garden that provides them with most of their table food, chickens that deliver a daily supply of eggs, beehives on the garage they hope will produce honey by the end of the summer and an herb garden that helps season their largely — but not exclusively — vegetarian menus.

"We slaughtered a rooster once," Robert said. "We know the process

Barbara and Robert R. Goodell of Encinitas, Calif., who try to live as natural a life-style as possible, check on some small plants in the makeshift greenhouse he built at the back of the couple's property. (Copley News Service Photo)

but we're not inclined to do it again. It's not a pleasant task. Let's put it that way."

He said people challenge them over the economics of raising chickens for their eggs rather than buying them.

"It depends on what you mean by economics," he said.

The Goodells feel the chickens — who wander in their area and who, largely, replace the weekly garbage collector in the elimination of refuse — are "nutritionally a bargain in terms of good health mainly because of the soil and what we feed our chickens."

Their winter and summer gardens have a longer growing season through the use of a small greenhouse Goodell built on the back of the property. Here, seeds are planted to give the vegetables a head start on the season, he added.

The family also uses a water system which diverts water from household use from the sewer system. Instead, it is used to "feed" the garden and flowers.

Goodell says, again, the monthly monetary savings isn't all that great, but the family sees it more in terms of water conservation.

Beyond what they grow, the Goodells buy most foods at area natural food stores run on a cooperative basis to save additional food costs.

"We try to get as many of our foods as organically as possible without being faddists," he said. "When we go to my parents' house and they serve meat, we eat meat."

The family does have a TV, he said, but when they watch it, it's for the educational programs.

"I think the medium is fantastic, but how it is used today is becoming a tragedy."

For entertainment, the Goodells divide their time among the children, the yard and the beach.

When they entertain friends, Robert added, they do what they can to create their own entertainment.

The back of the property also includes the Goodell compost pile. "We recycle all of our own trash. All organic matter first goes to the chickens and if the chickens don't want it, it goes to the compost pile, along with the chicken manure."

The Goodells also have their own simplified form of solar heating. He knocked out some of the south wall and put in doors and windows to heat the home.

The only form of heat they use is the living room fireplace which, Goodell said, is not the most efficient heating device, but for the present, serves a purpose.

DEAR ABBY

Reader advises teen-age girl to be proud of her body

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 14-year-old girl who was so large for her age that she didn't care if she ever saw her 15th birthday reminded me of myself.

When I was 14, I stood 5 feet 10 and weighed 201. And as if that wasn't bad enough, I had bright red hair!

I was the butt of many cruel jokes, and I cried myself to sleep more nights than I could count. I didn't have one date in high school.

The summer after graduation I decided that God gave me my body, and it was up to me to make the best of it. I went on a diet, trimmed myself down, and took dancing lessons to develop grace and poise.

Today I'm 32, stand 5 feet 10, weigh 135 and am married to a wonderful man who's 6 feet 4. We have three beautiful daughters who will probably be Amazons, but we plan to teach them early to make the most of what they have.—QUEEN-SIZED AND HAPPY

DEAR HAPPY: Yours was one of many letters I received with essentially the same encouraging message. Read on for another inspiring beaut:

DEAR ABBY: May I add a few words to your advice to TOO TALL, because I was there many years ago.

TOO TALL is the stuff that models, outstanding athletes and many executives are made of. Being tall means you will never be lost in a crowd. Being too tall is difficult at 14, but if you play it smart, you can be a standout the rest of your life.

The secret? Train yourself to sit and stand erect. Practice a graceful walk. Study dancing. Read a lot and fill your mind with interesting and useful information. Develop any talents you have in crafts, music, drama, writing. Participate in athletics. Find a way to help others. Teach a Sunday school class, work in a summer recreation program, volunteer as a candy striper at a hospital, visit a nursing home regularly. Train your ears to listen, and your heart to understand.

Stop crawling to your plate for comfort. Hold your head high and quit trying to fold yourself up so you'll look smaller.

If you take my advice, you will soon find yourself surrounded by friends who appreciate your concern for others and admire your friendly outgoing attitude.

Then one day you'll realize that you're dancing with someone shorter than you, and you will both know that it doesn't really matter which one of you is taller.—TALL AND GROWING

DEAR ABBY: I know exactly how TOO TALL felt because I was also too tall in my girlhood. My problem was further complicated because I was also too thin. You may not believe this, but being too thin can be just as painful as being too fat!

At 15, I was 6 feet tall and weighed 125! I used to force myself to drink chocolate malteds until I was sick, hoping to gain a few pounds. My parents took me to one doctor after another trying to put some weight on me. They thought I had TB.

The worst part of being so tall and skinny was the cruel remarks I was subjected to.

Abby, please tell your readers that it's just as unkind to remind a person that he's tall and thin (or fat) as it is to remind a person that he's crippled or blind.

I wish I had a dollar for everyone who's ever asked me how the weather was "up there."

And you would not believe the number of people (strangers, too) who have asked, "Say, how tall are you?" What difference does it make if I'm 5 feet 11 ½ or 6 feet 2?

I hope you print this. It just might make someone stop and think before he hurts the feelings of someone who's hurting enough as it is.—TALL MAMA

Carter's problems are small compared to one's of friend

By ERMA BOMBECK

I'm always intrigued with those picture stories they do on the President of the United States that compare how he looked when he entered office and how, within a few short months, it has aged him.

There was one in the paper last week of President Carter. The article was quick to point out that within just 11 months in office, there were "new furrows in his brow, deeper creases in his cheeks, fresh lines around his eyes and more flesh beneath his chin, suggesting an aging process unrelated to time."

Big deal.

Beside Delores Finfrock who just taught her teenage son how to drive, he looks like Donnie Osmond at a Prune Festival. Delores was a beautiful girl . . . taut skin, smiled easily, with deepset eyes that looked right at you when you talked.

I dropped in on her yesterday. "Dorian Gray lives!" I shouted.

She shoved a stick of gum into her mouth without taking off the wrapper. "Don't kid around," she snapped.

"I'm not kidding, Delores. You look terrible. What happened to your hairline? It couldn't be receding."

"Of course it's not receding," she said irritably. "I may have pulled out a few strands when Roger pulled over and parked just to change the knobs on the car radio."

"What's the matter with that? Sounds like he used good judgement."

"On the median of the expressway?"

"You look like you could use a good night's sleep."

"I haven't slept since he parallel-parked. I put two garbage cans in front of the house and told him to park between them."

"What happened?"

"He sideswiped our mailbox, ran down a 200-year-old blue spruce, and sunk the rear wheels over the septic tank."

"You can't go on like this. You're looking more like Abraham Lincoln every day. President Carter looks better than you."

"Why shouldn't he?" she snarled. "All he's got is the energy program, Lance, the Panama Canal and Andrew Young."

We heard the wheels spin, the brakes screeched and a garbage can rolled into the street. "Wait'll Amy gets her temps. You'll never see those straight, white, smiling teeth again."

'Kick in the teeth'

Talk about telling it like it is, Jim C. Langdon, member of the Texas Railroad Commission and former West Texan, is a past master at this very thing, particularly when it has to do with the oil and gas business.

How is this for openers, by the commissioner:

"The energy crisis is overshadowed in Washington by constant displays of ignorance, incompetence and intemperance.

"At a time when the (petroleum) industry should be getting a pat on the back and encouragement to work harder than they now are, what do they get? A kick in the teeth from many of our so-called national leaders and a petty but slanderous attack upon the industry as a whole by President Carter for the failure of the petroleum industry to welcome and accept his poorly conceived, administratively unworkable national energy plan."

Langdon, whose resignation from the commission becomes effective at the end of the year, spoke out at the November meeting of the commission, which again set the December oil production allowable at 100 per cent capacity. But the fact that he is leaving the commission had nothing to do with his statement, which is just as right as can be. Langdon long has been recognized as one of Texas' most forceful spokesmen in energy matters, one who never has been known to mince words, particularly in criticism of Washington's handling of oil and gas affairs. It is hoped that he will continue to speak out for oil and gas in the future.

The commissioner, in his recent declarations, said that the nation today is no closer to a viable energy policy than it was four years ago when the Arab oil boycott dramatically pointed up the need for such a policy.

Langdon not only speaks out but he knows whereof he speaks, and this makes his statements all the more effective.

Those persons and companies engaged in the oil and gas business truly are deserving of something better than a kick in the teeth. They are doing an outstanding job as it is, and they could do an even better one with even a little bit of encouragement from Washington.

It is hoped that members of the Aminoil party will have a profitable, enjoyable time while in Midland and that they will return to the Tall City at every opportunity.

ART BUCHWALD

Close encounter with men from outer space

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — A group of us were jogging in Rock Creek Park the other morning when a flying saucer from outer space hovered over us and then made a perfect three-point landing. Out of it stepped a dozen little green people.

One of them, who wore four stars on his shoulders, seemed to be in charge.

"Take us to your leader," he said.

We all looked at each other perplexed.

"What did you say?" Sullivan asked.

"I said take us to your leader. Don't you understand English?"

"We don't really have a leader," my friend Guggenheim said. "But we have a President."

"Maybe," said Lindstrom, "we should take him to Sen. Robert Byrd. He has more clout than the President."

"I'm not sure," Redfern said. "Sen. Russell Long is the real power in this country. Nothing gets through without Long's approval."

"What about Tip O'Neill? He's really calling the shots on the Hill," I said.

The four-star green person was getting impatient.

"We don't have all day. Will you make up your minds? We heard Henry Kissinger was your leader."

"That was a year ago. Everything is changed now. Kissinger is only a professor at Georgetown University."

"Look, we came a long way," the green person said, "and we're tired. Are you going to take us to your leader or aren't you?"

"We'd like to," said Guggenheim apologetically, "but at the moment nobody is really in charge."

"How do you get things done if no one is in charge?" the green leader asked.

"We don't get much done," I told him. "We just seem to go along with everyone doing his own thing. The President says he wants to do one thing, Congress says it wants to do another, and finally a compromise is made which doesn't satisfy anyone. Would you like to meet Athur Burns?"

"Is he your leader?"

"No, but he's in charge of our money supply and he's giving President Carter fits."

The green person thought we were putting him on.

"Every country has to have a leader," he said, menacing us with what looked like a laser pistol.

"Please," begged Redfern, "we're trying to be helpful. But no one has ever asked us to take him to our leader before. Carter promised to be our leader but he's still trying to get the hang of it. It isn't easy to be a leader in the United States. If you had landed in the Soviet Union you would have been taken to the Kremlin right away."

The green person said something to the other green persons that we didn't understand. They all started chattering at the same time.

Then the green leader turned to us.

"Since you don't have one, they want to know if you would like me to be your leader."

"I wouldn't mind," Guggenheim said.

"Suits me," Redfern agreed.

"It's up for grabs if you want it," Lindstrom told him. "But as a matter of courtesy you ought to clear it with Fritz Mondale in the White House."

"Who's he?"

"He's in charge of all administration appointments for outer space."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Secret reason behind Sadat's visit

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Egypt's wily President Anwar Sadat had a secret reason, intelligence reports suggest, for visiting Israel. He sought to neutralize the Israeli threat on his eastern front so he would be free to confront his unruly neighbor to the west, Libya's enfant terrible Muammar Qaddafi.

The two Arab leaders have been at one another's throats for four years. At first, Qaddafi sought to unify the two countries under a common flag. But in early 1973, Sadat countermanded an order from the madcap Qaddafi to an Egyptian submarine to torpedo the Queen Elizabeth 2, which was carrying American and European Jews on a pilgrimage to Israel.

There was an exchange of insults, which grew more heated over the years. Qaddafi accused Sadat of betraying the Arab cause; Sadat said Qaddafi was a "madman." The words erupted into border clashes. Last July, the feuding leaders sent planes and tanks against one another for two days of bloody fighting.

The bad feelings between Sadat and Qaddafi are such that each is interested in eliminating the other," an intelligence source told us flatly.

The intelligence reports suggest that Sadat may also have hard economic reasons for pressing his quarrel with Qaddafi. Sadat has been fighting a losing battle against bankruptcy. He has already defaulted on a $10 billion loan from the Soviets. The Libyan oil fields, with their $8 billion annual income, must look tempting to him.

Already, the oil fields are operated by 30,000 Egyptian technicians. In fact, most of Libya's engineers, doctors, lawyers and civil servants are Egyptians. Perhaps one-fifth of Libya's population comes from Egypt.

Sources at the highest Washington levels say the United States would discourage war between Egypt and Libya. But they acknowledged cautiously that the United States would not grieve over the downfall of Qaddafi.

He has stirred up plots against his neighbors, supplied arms to terrorist groups and called for other wild measures against the West. He has a reputation for irrational and irresponsible behavior.

Qaddafi has shipped arms to the radical government of Ethiopia, the insurrectionists in Oman and the guerrillas in Ethiopia, not to mention Uganda's infamous dictator Idi Amin. During a confrontation several months ago with Britain's Lt. Gen. Sir Chandos Blair, Amin suddenly began shouting excitedly to his ministers: "Alert the army! Alert the air force! Call Libya and tell Libya to begin sending airplanes here!"

GOOD GUYS: The FBI agents who have made their way into this column have often been heavies in the drama of government. We have caught them spying on citizens who were guilty of nothing more sinister than exercising their constitutional guarantees of free speech, assembly and petition.

The few agents who engaged in bag jobs, break-ins and eavesdroppings have attracted more attention than the many hardworking FBI men, who have been plugging away at safeguarding the public from interstate criminals.

This is a glimpse at the other side of the FBI. It is the story of a routine FBI investigation that went virtually unnoticed last summer. The baby of Olga Gonzales was kidnapped from the Lincoln hospital in the Bronx on June 23. The mother was an improverished Puerto Rican, without political clout.

Yet two dozen FBI agents were assigned to find her baby. It looked like a hopeless case. They feared her infant had been sold on New York City's lucrative baby market. They also expected little cooperation from the people of the South Bronx, who are suspicious of lawmen.

The agents filtered into a neighborhood of abandoned and burned-out buildings reminiscent of London under aerial siege. The neighborhood is a battleground between two youth gangs, the Young Lords and Black Panthers. Crap games and narcotics pushing are conducted openly in the streets. The local police precinct, the embattled 41st, is called "Fort Apache" by the men on the beat.

It was into this atmosphere of simmering hostility that the agents appeared to ask questions about Olga Gonzales' missing baby. They interviewed about 1,500 people during New York City's worst heat wave in 100 years.

The agents determined that the baby had been last seen with a woman who called herself either Carmen or Rosa Rodriquez. The hospital records listed about 500 outpatients, using one of the two names. But the word spread through the South Bronx that the FBI was hot on the heels of the kidnappers.

On the Fourth of July, a man telephoned the New York City police at 2:30 a.m. to report in broken English that the kidnapped baby could be found in front of St. Paul's Catholic rectory in Brooklyn.

A squad car rushed to the rectory, and the baby was found next to a plastic garbage bag filled with baby clothes. Attached to the child was a note: "I am sorry for causing so much trouble. Please return this baby to her mother Olga Gonzales, Bronx, New York."

The happy mother told us in broken English that both the FBI agents and New York police "worked hard, so very hard. They worked when it was very hot. They left another big case to help find my baby. They were everywhere. I am sure that the way they were looking was the only reason she (the kidnapper) returned my baby. She was afraid they would find her."

Mark Russell says

It seems a miracle that the leaders of Egypt and Israel are attempting a thaw in their relationship. And just think — they're doing it with neither Kissinger nor Ping-Pong.

Everyone is wondering what prompted Anwar Sadat and Menahem Begin to act so cordially toward each other. I suppose it just seemed the Christian thing to do.

Sadat and Begin will exchange gifts commemorating their oldest landmarks. Sadat will give Begin a bronze replica of the Sphinx and Begin will give Sadat a statue of George Jessel.

If only this spirit of peace and friendship could spread. Dare we hope that one day we will see an end to hostilities between Norman Mailer and Gore Vidal?

Liberals have destroyed 'bottom rung of the ladder'

WASHINGTON — There is great fretting about youth these days. They commit criminal acts, can't find jobs, get pregnant at age 12 or 13. To cure all this, knee-jerkers shout for more federal programs to provide U.S.-approved child-care centers, contraceptive devices and abortion clinics. As usual, these are very likely not the answers.

There is no packaged solution, but some of the best thinking I've encountered on the youth quandary belongs to a senior citizen, the junior senator from California, S.I. Hayakawa.

He sees three key facts at work in these deliberations: Adolescents mature biologically much sooner today than 60 years ago; youth, especially boys, crave challenge but are denied it in our affluent, overprotective society; well-meaning liberal legislation is the prime cause of high unemployment among youth.

In a Senate speech delivered Oct. 7, Hayakawa quoted a black economist who pointed out that, one generation back, black youngsters had lower unemployment rates than whites in the same age brackets. Today, the liberal explanation for such high rates among black youths is "discrimination." Yet there was not only far more discrimination one generation ago, there were no expensive federal programs to "uplift" black youth.

So why were there proportionately no more black youth unemployed then than whites? The black economist explained that a lower and less comprehensive minimum wage provided more jobs for black youngsters in those days. Moreover, Prof. Andrew Drimmer, also black and a former governor of the Federal Reserve Board, testified that unemployed teen-agers would benefit more today from a lower minimum wage than from public works jobs.

From there, Hayakawa argues that the new minimum wage of $2.65 per hour will force small businessmen to lay off part and full-time workers and cut workweeks for employees they keep. A nurseryman he knows in California had long hired students as part-time workers for "part-time" wages. Confronted with higher minimum wage laws and child labor regulations, he moved much of his operation to Guatemala and Taiwan.

Trade unions make it virtually impossible for youths, particularly blacks, to get into apprenticeship programs which tend to be passed on to kinfolk of journeymen or master tradesmen.

And yet, Hayakawa points out, young people today are just bursting to meet challenges — but are stopped. "Liberal" laws stop youth. Those who are not "studiously inclined" are bored by education and their parent's well-subsidized insistence that they graduate from college. "We keep them in school," explained Hayakawa, "and we keep them in school, and we keep them in school until we drive them crazy."

The way Hayakawa sees it, where many youngsters only want to be race drivers, ballplayers, body and fender men, chefs, actresses and models society pushes them into academic preparation.

Bored with imprisonment and ready to live, many youth "are driven by inner necessity," Hayakawa says, to car theft, gang wars, drugs and, a few years ago, blowing up ROTC buildings. In the lower economic levels, teen-agers are an ignored and oppressed class.

The record rate of teen-age pregnancies, Hayakawa believes, means girls and boys are "asserting their budding maturity in a society that does not let them become mature."

He declared, "It is time educators, union officials and legislators get together on this problem. Too many young lives are being ruined every day." So far federal programs for youth have pretty much failed.

Hayakawa is unashamedly old-fashioned and points to the old days when poor immigrant Irish, Jewish or Chinese youngsters had to go to work. The work didn't hurt all of them, but exploitation hurt some of them. Most learned how to do something, eked out a living and got a start in life through the availability of the "bottom rung."

"We have destroyed the bottom rung of the ladder," Hayakawa said. "That is what is wrong."

"We have to restore some bottom rungs to the ladder so that the person who is willing to work, who is ambitious, who is determined to make his place, can find a place to start.

"Where else (but in ordinary jobs) do young people start out learning punctuality, cleanliness, politeness to customers, cooperation, coordinating one's efforts with the efforts of one's colleagues so, as they get along in time, they produce? This is all part of the history of working."

This little noticed Hayakawa speech makes a lot of sense. It's in action now in Philadelphia, where a black minister, Dr. Leon Sullivan, rounds up unemployed youth for nonnonsense training for jobs and careers. Many of these youngsters would have wound up in crime and then had their hands held by psychiatrists and counselors, telling them what difficult childhoods and environments they were burdened with. Sullivan just tells them to learn and to get to work. He is successful.

Unfortunately, so much of Hayakawa's speech is contrary to bourgeois liberal thinking in the Congress which automatically stonewalls such new ideas about old truths.

Stock market declines

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued lower today in moderate trading, extending its losses for a second consecutive session.

Market watchers said some profit-taking after modest advances last week was one depressing influence, and another was concern over the large October U.S. trade deficit announced Monday.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns also said in a New York speech today that he doubted the unemployment rate could be improved to an acceptable level within the next few years.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 5.28 at 834.29 by noon, after slipping 4.85 points Monday.

Among all issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, there were more than twice as many losers as gaining issues.

Motorola, off ⅝ to 37, led the NYSE noon active list followed by Exxon, down ¾ to 46⅜; and Dow Chemical, off ¼ to 27⅝.

The NYSE composite index declined .32 to 52.70. On the American Stock Exchange the market value index lost .16 to 123.32.

Volume on the Big Board came to 8.92 million shares in the first two hours, compared to 9.83 million Monday.

Among other NYSE issues, International Harvester gained ⅝ to 30⅜ after reporting sharply higher quarterly earnings. Kennecott Copper continued to slip, losing ⅜ to 20¾. Kennecott got tentative court approval Monday to pursue but not consummate a $66 per share offer to acquire Carborundum, pending a final decision on a stockholders' suit. Carborundum, an abrasives manufacturer, advanced ¾ to 62⅞ by midday.

'Hustler' still cash oriented

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The born-again publisher of Hustler magazine says the publication will still make money despite his new religious commitment.

"People who think I'm not going to make money with Hustler don't know how far off they are," said Larry Flynt, 41, who reportedly made $20 million profit last year from Hustler and Chic magazines and Leisure Time sex aids.

"With Hustler before, we turned a lot of people off," Flynt said. "What we want to do now is turn everbody on, rather than turn people off."

Flynt, who claims to have reached a restored faith with the aid of Ruth Carter Stapleton, President Carter's sister, said: "I'm a Christian, I'm not religious. It's between me and the man upstairs. I'm not going to join any organized religion."

Flynt said Hustler's sexually explicit contents are not going to be phased out immediately due to the three-month lead time required for publication of the magazine. But he refused to specify changes he has in mind, except that the cartoon character "Chester the Molester," featured monthly, may be changed to "Chester the Protector."

He said there is no decision yet on whether to ban nude women poses, but Hustler's philosophy is going to remain basically the same.

"We're going to be doing what we've been doing, but we'll do it better," he said. "Sex is beautiful and God-given. If they think it's obscene, they should complain to the manufacturer. Evil is in the eye of the beholder."

Carter nominee Mendelsohn back on U.S. payroll

By ELLEN HUME
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Robert H. Mendelsohn is back on the federal payroll, two weeks after his nomination as assistant Secretary of the Interior was upset by a California Fair Political Practices Commission lawsuit.

The former San Francisco supervisor began work Friday as a $168-a-day federal consultant, supervising the landscaping and sidewalk construction stretching about half a block in front of a National Gallery of Art extension, in downtown Washington, D.C.

At his new job for a rather obscure federal agency — the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corp. — Mendelsohn is earning just one dollar less per day than he did as a consultant at the Interior Department. He served at the department for six months while waiting for Senate approval of his embattled nomination as assistant secretary. That approval was held up pending the FPPC's findings.

Mendelsohn asked Nov. 11 that his nomination be withdrawn, several hours after the FPPC announced it would sue him for alleged negligence in connection with campaign financing irregularities during his unsuccessful 1974 race for state controller.

Mendelsohn, who said Nov. 11 that he would fight the FPPC suit "with every fiber of my being," told The Los Angeles Times he expects to win the lawsuit in January and be renominated for the $50,000 Interior Department post. In that job, the No. 5 post in the department, he would supervise policy, budget and administration.

Helping to oversee landscaping and sidewalk construction along Pennsylvania Avenue is the first of a half dozen assignments Mendelsohn will have during his 90-day contract with the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation, he said.

The corporation, which is involved in renewing the downtown Washington area between Capitol Hill and the White House, is "for all practical purposes just a small federal agency," according to its assistant director, Pete Meszoly.

The corporation is wholly owned by the federal government and has "tangential ties" to the Interior Department, according to Interior Department press secretary Chris Carlson. Secretary of Interior Cecil Andrus sits on the corporation's board of directors and its budget is a separate line item in the Interior Department's budget, Carlson said.

Officials probing fire in classroom

Police and fire officials are investigating the circumstances surrounding a fire which damaged a table in a classroom at Fannin Elementary School, 2400 Fannin Ave., sometime during the Thanksgiving holidays.

About $75 damage was reported from a fire that occurred between Wednesday afternoon and Saturday afternoon, according to reports.

A box of matches were found near the table, which was beneath a window in the classroom. There were no signs of forced entry, according to reports.

CAMERA, TV STOLEN

Debra Lewis of 1606 S. Baird Ave. reported the theft of a 12-inch television valued at $140 and a camera valued at $100 from her home Monday, according to police reports.

Former area man charged

MILES — A former Big Lake resident has been charged with felony bank robbery in the Monday armed robbery of the Miles Citizen State Bank.

Johnny Franklin Harris, 52, was charged Monday afternoon in the 12:15 p.m. robbery. Runnels County officials said the charge was based on a reported license number furnished by a citizen and the description by witnesses of the man who robbed the bank.

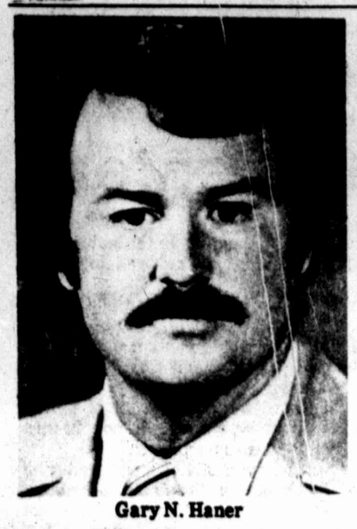

About $3,000 was taken from the bank. Officials were searching for Harris Monday night.

The man eluded police pursuit about 50 miles southeast of Miles in Concho County, sheriff's office reports said.

Supreme Court affirms ruling on helium gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let stand a lower court's ruling the government says exposes it and companies that buy natural gas containing helium "to hundreds of millions of dollars in potential liability."

The justices refused to hear the government's appeal of a decision reached last May by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals involving natural gas prices charged from fields in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

The lower court's ruling was a victory for one natural gas supplier, Ashland Oil, which had sued to get a "reasonable value" for helium intermixed with the natural gas it sold.

Helium, a non-combustible gas found mixed with natural gas, was customarily wasted before 1960 when natural gas was burned as fuel.

Sellers of helium-bearing natural gas customarily sought no separate price for the helium content because it was considered of little or no value.

All that changed in 1960 when Congress enacted a helium conservation program under which the government contracted with firms to have helium extracted from natural gas and stored for future use or sale by the government.

As part of those contracts, the government pledged to compensate the companies for any additional monies they might have to pay for obtaining the helium.

Natural gas suppliers then began legal attempts to get a separate price for the helium already earmarked for natural gas buyers under longterm contracts.

When Ashland sued Phillips Petroleum, one of its natural gas buyers, the federal government intervened on Phillips' side because it was one of the companies extracting helium for the government.

A federal trial court ruled that Ashland was entitled to be paid for the helium content, and set a market price at $11.76 to $16.98 per 1,000 cubic feet. As a result, Phillips was to pay Ashland more than $1.4 million.

The 10th Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the ruling, slarking the government's appeal to the Supreme Court.

Government attorneys asked the justices to review the appeals court's finding that the Helium Act Amendments of 1960 precluded a buyer of natural gas from arguing that the seller already was paid for the helium as part of the contract price for the entire gas stream.

The government also argued that even if such a defense is precluded, the appeals court applied incorrect legal principles in determining the value of the helium.

Students allowed to smoke in class as part of lung association study

By DAVID WYSOCKI

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Some New Hampshire high school pupils are being allowed to smoke in class this week — to show them the harm smoking inflicts on their bodies.

The New Hampshire Lung Association using federal funds, has been supplying high schools throughout New Hampshire this fall with equipment to monitor heart rate, skin temperature, carbon monoxide in the blood stream and nervousness. On Monday, the tests began at West High School in Manchester.

The pupils are monitored before and after smoking. Tests witnessed Monday showed the heart rate and carbon monoxide in the blood increased, while steadiness and skin temperature decreased.

"It makes you realize what smoking really does. It makes your arteries and veins smaller so the heart has to work harder," said Karen Klop, 15.

She said she smokes "one or two" cigarettes a day, but will quit "this week," because of the science class experiments.

James Hall, chairman of the high school's science department, said the program affects parents as well as students.

"I am quite pleased," he said. "We have had many parents and students quit smoking. Parents have called to say they have stopped smoking because the kids go home and torment them."

"For years," he added, "we lectured them and they were tired of that. Here they have visual evidence before and after they smoke. They understand it and can make decisions on their own."

Laurie Savoie, 15, said she has cut her smoking from a pack to a half pack a day because of the experiments.

"It scared me because I figured that all of that poison is going into my body," she said.

And non-smokers who sat near classmates who smoked were affected.

Non-smoker Paul Pepin, 15, watched a meter show that his carbon monoxide level increased after he sat with a smoker. He said he never had planned to smoke and added, "I'm sure now, after the tests."

Anti-smoking campaign renewed

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The American Heart Association is renewing its campaign against cigarettes with a new president who quit smoking a year ago and a retiring president who is still somewhat hooked.

"If I knew why I started, I would do far better in stopping," said Dr. Harriet P. Dustan of the University of Alabama Medical Center in Birmingham, who leaves the presidential office Friday. "We have to find out why we ever start. What is the basis for this addiction?"

She told a news conference at the association's annual meeting that she smokes "a little," less than half a pack a day.

Her successor as president, Dr. W. Gerald Austen, chief of surgical services at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, quit smoking in 1976 when he became president-elect.

Austen said one hazard of smoking is that it increases the risk of lung complications after surgery, and there can be "double the mortality among heavy smokers as against those persons who don't smoke at all."

Cigarette smoking is much more damaging to the heart than the lungs, numerous studies have found.

In a new "white pape " — its third in 15 years — the Heart Association called for "vigorous and effective action" by lawmakers and health professionals against cigarette smoking.

It said cigarettes are estimated to be responsible for the premature death of 325,000 Americans each year. Some 37 percent of such early deaths are from heart attack and 19 percent are due to lung cancer, its statement said.

I called, among other things, for an end to "seductive, misleading" advertising that might induce children and young adults to begin smoking; research into why people smoke; setting up more stop-smoking clinics, and urging the government to refrain from giving subsidies to promote the growth, manufacture and sale of tobacco.

Strange surroundings, diet part of research

DALLAS (AP) — Don Peacock may dine on squab, macadamia nuts, African game deer or bear meat while gazing around his aluminum room.

He's not an eccentric millionaire, though — he's a patient in a special ecological clinic ward at Brookhaven Medical Center.

Bizarre surroundings and diet are part of the treatment, even though doctors at the center don't always know what illness it is they're treating.

"I'm not sure whether I feel like a chocolate-covered cherry in a candy box or a sardine," Peacock said over the weekend as he watched his reflection bounce off the aluminum ceiling and walls of his room.

Patients like Peacock check into the center with diagnosed and undiagnosed illnesses seeking environmental causes for their various ailments. The culprit might be as exotic as a chemical reaction to strained beets or as simple as the hair on a neighbor's cat.

Once inside the protected environment, patients say goodbye to things like cigarettes, hair spray and perfume and hello to items like imported bottled water and exotic menus.

The precautions don't stop there. All clothing, mattresses and pillows are exclusively cotton. Reading material and telephones are enclosed in protective coverings.

While Peacock lives in an aluminum world, Judy Pettibone, 31, of San Jose, Calif., lives amid porcelain surroundings.

She said she was on the verge of a stroke before flying to Dallas three weeks ago.

"Doctors just couldn't pin my symptoms down," she said. "Sometimes they were severe enough to cause facial paralysis. I would have a crooked smile. Other times there would be a tingling."

In her case, docors decided that porcelain might help, since it does not emit any chemical gases or odors that could be a part of her problem.

The strange diet has produced a list of 16 foods Ms. Pettibone can eat without risking discomfort.

"They have turned the stroke symptoms on and off with various chemicals since I've been here," she said. "It was scary and very convincing...this is not a cure, really. It's a process. They educate you and then let you go out and do you own doctoring."

Brookhaven is not the only ecological clinic in the nation. Others are located at Zion, Ill., and Denver, Colo.

The clinics are not cheap. Ms. Pettibone said her three weeks of treatment will cost about $4,000, but she thinks it was worth it.

"After all, who would have suspected that carrots or something could cause such and such?"

Tower proposes overseas crop sales

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, R. Texas, says the solution to depressed farm prices is selling surpluses overseas.

"I have always contended it is the Department of Agriculture's responsibility to locate and develop these foreign markets for (our) over-supply," Tower told Texas farmers Monday.

Addressing a meeting of the Texas Farm Bureau, Tower criticized President Carter's handling of the recently approved U.S. farm bill.

"When the president signed this bill into law in late September, he proclaimed that it was the most far-reaching piece of legislature relating to Amerian agriculture in the last 40 years," Tower said.

"Although I find it difficult to argue with that contention, I must also point out that it could have been even more far-reaching had he not mobilized forces in an attempt to discourage the target price levels which were set fourth in the Senate version of this legislation."

Tower said the president constantly complained about the cost of the farm bill, yet he did not care to temper those remarks with the fact that roughly 60 percent of the cost was accounted for through food stamp and other food assistance programs.

At a news conference later, Tower said the farmers should continue to work toward a time when agriculture can operate on a market-regulated basis. He said this could not come about any time soon because of what he termed artificially imposed factors and much of it caused by government interference.

Tower also took exception to the regulation to deny farmers the right to graze lands they put into set-aside acreage.

"That is in direct opposition to practices. . .in wheat production in our state, particularly in the high plains," he said.

Carrol Chaloupka, Texas Farm Bureau president, said in an interview he doesn't think a majority of Texas farmers are for a proposed farmers' strike Dec. 14 to protest high productive costs and low crop prices.

"I've traveled back and fourth across this state attending county conventions and I was in most every area of the state," said Chaloupka, a Dalhart cattle and grain producer.

"Once I was off the High Plains, I never heard of it (the proposed strike). That's all I have to go on."

Late thought longer than timely thought

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's often safe to play a trick or two before you do any serious thinking, but this practice doesn't really save time. Sooner or later you must pause, and late thought is usually longer and more painful than timely thought.

South ruffed the third heart and led the king of spades to pass the time while he gathered up the energy: he refused the first trump trick.

Declarer continued by taking a club finesse. He returned a trump, and West took the ace and led a third trump. South won and repeated the club finesse, but now there was no way out of dummy.

South had to give up a diamond trick in addition to the trump and the two hearts. Down one.

START CLUBS

South should start clubs before touching trumps. He gets out of dummy with a trump to the ace, wins the trump return and takes a second club finesse. He gets to his hand with a third trump for a third club finesse. Then he can discard a diamond on the ace of clubs.

After his first false move, South should lead all of his trumps. West would be squeezed into unguarding one of his kings. But a declarer good enough for this play would be good enough to start the clubs before the trumps.

Sen. Long top hand at getting his way

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to the art of legislative give-and-take, Sen. Russell Long is envied by colleagues in Congress for his ability to end up taking a lot more than he gives.

One of those who admires the Louisiana Democrat's technique is Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., a member of the Senate-House conference committee working on the energy tax bill.

Long is chairman of the Senate conferees. Before it broke for a Thanksgiving week recess, the panel met six times, making little visible progress toward resolving the differences between the House and Senate tax bills.

While attending a Republican meeting in Orlando, Fla., Dole told reporters that he and other members of the committee couldn't predict what might emerge from the conference. All they could do, said the Kansas senator, was watch Long, wait for him to work out a back room compromise and then spring it on the other conferees.

"You're not saying you don't know what's going on in the conference committee?" asked one startled reporter.

Dole smiled, paused a moment, and then replied, "I think that's exactly what I was saying."

Let's hear it for Alf Landon.

Dole was one of several presidential hopefuls at the Southern Republican Conference. Former Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and John B. Connally of Texas and Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee also were there.

Dole was asked about the growing list of Republicans showing an interest in challenging President Carter in 1980.

"Alf Landon is looking at it and there may be others," he said.

Landon, who recently turned 90, is the former Kansas governor who was the Republican candidate for president in 1936. He carried Maine and Vermont.

The Shah of Iran got some sage advice from the chairman of the House International Relations Committee when the two got together during the shah's recent visit to Washington.

The occasion was a tea party the committee threw for the shah at the Capitol. It was closed to the public, but photographers were allowed inside long enough to get some pictures.

At one point, Chairman Ilement Zablocki, D-Wis., turned to the Iranian leader and warned:

"If you talk while they're taking your picture, they sometimes get you with your mouth open."

For weeks, the energy conferences have been the only show on Capitol Hill. While many lawmakers were pursuing congressional business in the far corners of the earth, the conferees sought vainly to resolve differences between House and Senate versions of energy legislation.

As if their task wasn't frustrating enough, Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., complained one day that he was unable to find a parking space in the vicinity of the Rayburn House Office Building.

"Those representing the administration had all their black limousines out there with chauffeurs," said Ford. "Those of us driving our own cars had no place to park."

Shirley takes new hubby, keeps name

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., has become Shirley Hardwick in her second marriage. But she says she will still call herself Rep. Chisholm.

On Saturday, at a suburban hotel, the 52-year-old congresswoman married Arthur Hardwick Jr., 61, a former state assemblyman who runs a liquor store here.

Her legal name became Mrs. Hardwick, but she said that when she represents her district — and runs for re-election in 1980 — it will still be as Shirley Chisholm.

She described the brief ceremony as "something I have waited for a long, long time." She and Hardwick met in Albany, N.Y., after both were elected to the New York Assembly for the 1965-66 term.

The first black woman to be elected to Congress, she was divorced from her husband of 26 years, Conrad Chisholm, in the Dominican Republic on Feb. 4. Hardwick's first wife died.

The couple plans to live in Brooklyn, according to the marriage license application.

Japan's trade response due 'in about a week'

By SAM JAMESON
The Los Angeles Times

TOKYO — Japan's response to U.S. requests for action to stem the burgeoning American deficit in trade with Japan will be ready "in about a week," the new economic affairs ministers in Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda's cabinet said Monday.

But the new ministers, in a series of separate news conferences, indicated that more debate will be needed within Japan before the government will commit itself on how far it should go to stimulate domestic demand in order to promote imports, and on what kind of target to set for reducing Japan's international trade surpluses.

"Rather than wishing you congratulations (on being appointed), I should thank you in advance for the hardships you will have to endure," Fukuda told his new ministers at their cabinet meeting in the afternoon.

The 72-year-old premier said Japan is facing its "most severe postwar test" in trying to overcome economic recession and stabilize employment, while harmonizing Japan's economic relations with foreign countries.

"If present conditions continue, there is a danger that international politics will fall into chaos. The weight of the role that our country must play in the world in increasing," he said.

Fukuda instructed the new Cabinet, sworn in Monday, to begin work immediately on a second pump-priming supplementary budget to cover the last three months (January through March) of fiscal 1977. But he gave no indication of how much red ink the government would be willing to add to the 30 percent deficit financing of the budget as it now stands.

His new finance minister, Tatsuo Murayama, 62, declared himself prepared to go beyond the 30 percent mark in deficit financing for the supplementary budget, but said the fiscal 1978 budget, to go into effect from April 1, was "a separate issue." Fukuda himself had insisted until Saturday, when he announced that he would prepare the second supplementary budget, that deficit financing should be kept to within 30 percent of the general budget.

Shintaro Abe, 53, appointed as chief Cabinet secretary, said the government hopes to prepare responses to the United States by the end of this week. But Toshio Komoto, 66, named to head the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, said a response probably would not be ready until sometime next week.

Earlier, before Fukuda decided to appoint a new Cabinet, the government had told the United States that the response would be ready by the end of the month (Wednesday).

Nobuhiko Ushiba, 68, a surprise appointee as minister without portfolio in charge of external economic affairs, told newsmen that "the United States wants Japan to take some dramatic measure" to curb a U.S.-Japan trade imbalance that appears to be heading toward $8 billion this year. But Ushiba, an ex-diplomat who was serving as ambassador to the United States at the time of the 1971 "Nixon shock" — when then-President nixon imposed a surtax on imports and ended the convertibility of the dollar to gold — said "dramatic measures would be impossible."

"The only solution is piling up one improvement on top of another," he said.

Ushiba, a close personal advisor to Fukuda, was the only appointee in the 20-man Cabinet who does not hold a seat in parliament.

Sunao Sonoda, 63, the new foreign minister, said Japan hopes to reach a solution of its trade friction with the United States by the end of December. The statement indicated that he expects negotiations with Washington officials to continue even after Japan gives its initial response next week to American requests for concessions.

Sonoda described Ushiba's unprecedented job in the Cabinet as "captain of a mobile unit" to deal with overseas economic problems whenever and wherever they popped up. But what Ushiba, lacking the backing of a government agency, would be able to achieve remained in question.

Ushiba himself said he could do nothing "until the government fixes its economic policy."

The highly regarded Kiichi Miyazawa, 58, appointed as director of the Economic Planning Agency, said Fukuda had asked him to act as coordinator of domestic and foreign economic policy.

Sonoda's appointment as foreign minister, which was unexpected, was viewed as potentially significant in terms of Japan's relations with China and the Soviet Union. He is one of Fukuda's closest personal supporters and had served as chief Cabinet secretary during the first 11 months of the Fukuda Cabinet. He has advocated that Japan sign a treaty of peace and friendhsip with China, a move that has been opposed by the Soviet Union.

In an interview Monday, Sonoda said he expected the premier to "make some kind of decision" on the China treaty next month.

Carter pushes inspection of risky private dams

By GAYLORD SHAW
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGON — President Carter instructed federal officials Monday to start inspecting thousands of high-hazard private dams and to encourage states to assume eventual responsibility for ensuring the safety of private dams within their borders.

The orders, disclosed by several officials who met with the president, came three weeks after a long-neglected, privately owned dam in Carter's home state of Georgia collapsed, killing 39 persons and heavily damaging a college campus below.

The officials told the Los Angeles Times that Carter planned to announce at a news conference Wednesday that:

—The Corps of Engineers will quickly begin on-site examination of private dams that pose the highest hazards to population centers downstream.

—His administration will press efforts to encourage the eight states without dam safety laws to implement inspection programs, and to convince other states with inadequate programs to bolster their policing of private dams.

The actions would amount to full implementation of the National Dam Safety Program enacted by Congress five years ago but stalled because the executive branch refused to seek funds.

Earlier this year, after a Times investigation found that thousands of inadequate dams posed the potential for disaster across the country, Congress took the initiative and voted $15 million to start federal inspection of private dams.

But the funds remained bottled up in the bureaucracy until the Nov. 6 collapse of the never-inspected dam near Toccoa, Ga. — a disaster that prompted Carter to pledge that federal dam inspections "will not be postponed any further."

After Monday's Cabinet Room meeting, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell declined to give details of the discussion. He said the president had asked administration officials to "report back on steps the federal government can take in this area" and added: "We will have an announcement in the next few days."

But several other officials who attended the meeting said Carter instructed Corps of Engineers representatives to gear up for quick inspections of the most dangerous of the estimated 9,000 dams that are situated so that they pose a high probability of loss of life should they collapse.

Corps officials told Carter the inspections could cost up to $7,500 per dam, meaning that about 2,000 dams could be checked with the $15 million congressional appropriation. The President then indicated he was committed to a multi-year program so that all high-hazard dams could be inspected within the next four years, one source said.

Carter also said he believes the states have a "shared responsibility" for the safety of private dams and that his administration will seek to encourage states to assume a larger role, said one official, who added that the White House may come up with a "carrot-and-stick approach."

Americans' median income up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The median income of American families was $14,094 in 1975, more than $4,000 higher than five years earlier, new government figures show.

The extensive new Census Bureau report, released Monday, gives income and poverty statistics for all 50 states and the District of Columbia for the first time since the 1970 census.

It shows that Alaska had the highest median family income in the nation, $22,432.

It was followed by Hawaii with median family income of $17,770; Maryland, $17,556; New Jersey, $16,432, Connecticut, $16,244, and Illinois, $16,062.

Mississippi had the lowest median family income of $9,999, the report shows.

Comparative figures show that the median family income in 1970 was $9,876, the census bureau said.

"Median family income" means that half of all families in the state or nation earn more than that and half earn less.

The new report, titled Household Money Income in 1975, is based on a new one-time poll commissioned by Congress.

Texas was listed as having 1,870,070 persons living in poverty, which is 15.2 percent of the state's population. Texas' median income was $12,672 and Texas ranked 35th in this category.

Faltering offense kills Chaps, 82-81

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

Somebody didn't perform their yearly ritual duty on Thanksgiving because some left over cold turkey legs wandered into the Midland College gym Monday night.

At least that seemed to be the case as the struggling MC Chaparrals dropped their fourth straight cage encounter of the year when what appeared to be a geared up offense went kaput in the final 14 minutes of play to lose a heart breaking 82-81 decision to Frank Phillips College. And it happened at the worst of times since it was the Western Junior College Athletic Conference opener for the Chaps, who fell to 5-5 on the season.

IN THE final and fatal 14 minutes of play, the Chaps managed to blow a 19-point lead. In fact, a 60-41 lead with 14:36 left in the game went by the boards when Frank Phillips took a 64-63 margin with 6:41 left. The Chaps were outscored 23-3 during that period when FPC reeled off 13 straight points during one quick stretch.

Not only was it a tough loss to swallow, but the Chaps now face the chore of facing New Mexico Military Institute Thursday on foreign hardwood. NMMI already owns a victory over defending WJCAC champion Western Texas this year.

Still, the Chaps, who hit only 14 of 41 shots in the second half, could have won it at the end as they managed to stay close, but FPC's Richard Edwards, who had only five points all night, hit a pair of charity tosses with 14 seconds left to ice the decision despite a last second goal by Ricky Hudgins. Hudgins led the Chaps with 18 points.

FPC'S PAUL Brantley scored 16 of his 27 points in the second half to lead the visitor's rally. Michael Warren was the only other visitor to hit in double digits with 12.

The Chaps also started slow. They scored only 14 points in the first 10 minutes of play, and were on the short end of a 19-14 score. But then came the big spurt by the Chaps as 6-foot-7 freshman Luis Alvarado of El Paso came off the bench to score 11 of his 17 points in the first half. The Chaps managed a 42-32 halftime margin. Alvarado, however, fouled out in the second half and was not around when he was needed the most. Nobody else was able to take up the slack.

THE CHAPS then came out smoking to open the second half when they rode to a 19-point cushion. Hudgins carried the attack at that point with three field goals and Cullen Mayfield, who had 10 points, hit six straight free throws. Unfortunately, those left over turkey legs made their appearance after that.

CHAP CHIRPS: MC's Ron Jones, the sophomore from Stillwater, Okla., had a good night with 14 points. It came on his birthday, but the loss marred his happiness. Jones did have a steal and a slam dunk early in the game to excite the crowd, but he also missed a free throw with 25 seconds left that could have put the game into overtime. Jones had hit four straight free throws in the final 10 minutes of play. . .Sixteen girls from the YMCA gymnastics team put on an entertaining halftime show.

FRANK PHILLIPS COLLEGE (82): Paul Brantley 10-6-2-26; Michael Warren 5-2-4-12; James Jones 1-0-1-2; Elson Darby 4-0-1-8; Richard Edwards 1-3-0-5; Tim Giddings 4-1-4-9; Scott Richerson 0-1-4-1; Winston Sauls 2-2-0-6; Elwood Matthews 2-3-1-7; Keith Johnson 1-0-1-2; William Smith 2-0-1-4. Totals: 32-18-19-82.

MIDLAND COLLEGE (81): Cullen Mayfield 2-6-1-10; Henry White 4-3-2-11; Alvin Mayes 3-1-4-7; Ron Jones 5-4-4-14; Mike Denny 1-0-0-2; Ricky Hudgins 9-0-4-14; Luis Alvarado 7-3-5-17; Ricky Murdock 1-0-0-2; Clifford Taylor 0-0-5-0. Totals: 32-17-25-81.

Halftime: MC 42, FPC 32.

No room at the inn for top-ranked Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas celebrated its final regular season No.1 ranking in The Associated Press poll Monday by eating Texas Aggie cake while Coach Fred Akers fumed over a Dallas motel bumping the unbeaten Longhorns a notch below their Jan. 2 opponent— Notre Dame's Fighting Irish.

The Longhorns garnered 49 first-place votes. Second-place Oklahoma, which was beaten 13-6 by Texas, received five first-place ballots.

Notre Dame was fifth and received one first-place vote along with Alabama and Kentucky.

Texas, the only unbeaten team in major college football with an 11-0 record, ripped A&M, 57-28, Saturday to win the Southwest Conference title and a spot in the bowl against Notre Dame Jan. 2, but were turned away at the Marriott Motel on Stemmons Freeway.

Akers said Texas had arranged to stay at the Marriott before Notre Dame accepted a Cotton Bowl bid, but the motel notified Texas on Monday that Notre Dame was staying there, leaving no room for Texas.

"I'm upset," Akers said. "That's the last time they will see us."

Asked if arrangements had been made to stay elsewhere, Akers indicated no, and added, "Maybe this time we can find a nice one."

To make amends, the Marriott offered Texas free rooms if it would stay at the Marriott Inn on LBJ Freeway.

"It was all a misunderstanding because the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association sent out a letter Dec. 6 to nine hotels in Dallas asking them to hold rooms," said the spokesman. "Notre Dame came in last Wednesday and toured all hotel properties and said on Friday they had picked the Marriott on Stemmons. No reservations had been made by Texas but we called them to notify them as good customers what Notre Dame had done. The free offer for rooms still stands."

Akers, finishing his first year at Texas after moving from Wyoming, said nine Texas players — in addition to running back Earl Campbell and defensive tackle Brad Shearer — should be considered for all-SWC honors.

Campbell has run 267 times this year to lead the nation's rushers with 1,744 yards. He also has scored 19 touchdowns to make him the national scoring leader with 114 points.

MHS girls win; Lee is beaten

The Midland girls basketball team swept three games from Andrews Monday night while Robert E. Lee lost a pair of games to powerful Slaton.

Midland won the varsity game, 56-21 with Terry Dean, Beth Thomason and Karen Cook paving the way with 21, 16 and 12 points.

The MHS JVs won, 51-19 with Martha Maroney flipping in 17 points and the MHS sophs stormed to a 56-9 win over the Andrews Sophs.

Midland will play in the Cleburne Tourney starting Thursday and faces Arlington in the opening round at 4 p.m.

Slaton bombed Lee, 82-35 with Sara McAllister hitting 14 and Debbe Poole 11.

The Lee JVs lost in triple overtime, 63-62 with Eartha Fennell and Sandra Holloway scoring 15 and 11.

Lee faces Cleburne in the 5:30 game in Cleburne Thursday.

Oakland walks over hapless Bills, 34-13

OAKLAND (AP) — Thanks to Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, there was more drama than anyone could expect from a late-season game between the Super Bowl champion Raiders and lowly Buffalo Bills.

"He's a tough guy," Coach John Madden said in a terse appraisal of the left-hander who operated on one sore knee but didn't show it, passing for three touchdowns in Monday night's 34-13 Oakland victory.

"The knee hurt the whole game, but I expected that. It was like a headache, if just throbbed all the time," said Stabler.

It wasn't certain until just before gametime that Stabler, injured eight days earlier in a 12-7 loss to the San Diego Chargers, would be starting.

"It was up in the air all week," said Madden, who watched Stabler closely in pregame warmups before settling on him as the starter.

At the same time last season, when the Raiders already had clinched a division title, Stabler no doubt would have taken a night off. But they're running second to Denver in the AFC West now and, despite making their record 9-2 Monday night, it's very likely the Raiders will be going into the playoffs as the most respected wild card team in National Football League history.

When Stabler trotted onto the field for the first time, the Oakland fans greeted him with the kind of cheer George Blanda used to hear when he was coming on to win games a few years back.

A few minutes later, Stabler was on his back. He took a punishing, head-on shot from Bills defensive tackle Mike Kadish an instant after releasing the ball on a 38-yard completion to running back Clarence Davis.

"There was a mixup in the blocking on that play. It didn't happen again," said Raiders offensive tackle Art Shell.

"We didn't have to pass too often in the game. That helped," said guard George Buehler.

"The Raiders beat us with the big play," said defensive end Sherman White, who worked across from Shell and guard Gene Upshaw and said, "they both played great games."

Stabler completed seven of 12 passes for 166 yards, with his touchdown passes going 28 and 12 yards to Cliff Branch and 44 to Fred Biletnikoff. Mark van Eeghen's 143 yards rushing, giving him 1,011 for the season, led the ground attack, which rolled up 307 yerds, and Pete Banaszak punched into the end zone for his 50th and 51st career touchdowns.

The Bills, who have lost O.J. Simpson to a knee injury and nine of their 11 games this year, stayed in the game for a while with a one-dimensional offense. Quarterback Joe Ferguson threw 43 passes, completing 18 including a 29-yard, second period touchdown toss to John Kimbrough, but gained only 65 yards rushing.

Dobler's play to be checked

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League officials were busy Monday gattering and reviewing film of St. Louis guard Conrad Dobler's play during the Cardinals' Thanksgiving Day game against the Miami Dolphins.

Dobler was ejected from the game after being involved in a fight on the field. Miami players later accused him of deliberately attempting to injure them during the Cardinals' 5514 loss.

Henderson doing too much thinking

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, who already have clinched at least a wild card spot in the National Conference playoffs, have told speedy linebacker Thomas Henderson to quit thinking less and attacking more.

"Coach (Tom) Landry told me that he knew I had been thinking a lot and to just go after them," said Henderson Monday in the wake of Dallas' 14-7 victory over Washington.

Henderson, starting at weakside linebacker for the first year in the complex Cowboy defense, said, "I was trying to do too much reading and just sitting there thinking can slow you down. I'll keep improving with experience."

Dallas also inserted Henderson back into the specialty team lineup against Washington.

"Washington has always double-teamed me but I hadn't played on the specialty teams for two weeks and I think it kind of surprised them," said Henderson.

Henderson said for the Cowboys to have lost three games in a row "would have been unbearable."

He said Dallas shouldn't have any trouble preparing for Sunday's game against Philadelphia with the NFC East division title and the home spot in the first round playoffs on the line.

"Philadelphia is our most physical opponent," said Henderson. "They never win but they always beat you to death. They are the roughest team we play."

Henderson said, "If there's a game to get up for this should be the one this week. We need to clinch the title and the home field advantage then we can have some ego games against San Francisco and Denver."

He said Dallas definitely needs to improve before the playoffs despite its 9-2 record.

Wednesday is deadline

Wednesday is the final deadline for entering the Midland Junior Tennis Tournament which will be held at the Lee High School tennis courts this weekend.

The tourney will include competition in boys and girls singles events and is open to anyone 15 years of age or younger.

Those interested in participating may enter by calling Celia Rhodes at 683-6806 or Yvonne Garton at 683-1529 by Wednesday.

Balls and trophies will be supplied from the proceeds of the Mixed Doubles Benefit Tournament which was sponsored by the Midland National Bank in September.

Tall City teams at home tonight

The Robert E. Lee Rebels and Midland Bulldogs are in basketball action tonight and both Tall City teams own sparkling records after the first week of action.

Lee entertains the Class AAA Pecos Eagles in the Lee gynmasium while at the same time, Midland will also take on a Class AAA outfit in the Snyder Tigers in the MHS gym.

Coach Paul Stueckler's Rebels sport a 4-1 record and that lone loss was to a good San Antonio Jefferson outfit in the finals of last week's Tall City Basketball Tourney in the Lee Gym.

Midland, meanwhile, is 5-1 and it too lost to San Antonio Jefferson, 90-74, in the semifinals of the Tall City meet.

Coach Don Humphrey's Purple Pack owns wins over El Paso Riverside, El Paso High, Pecos, El Paso Parkland and El Paso Burges.

Slumping Rockets drop 6th straight

NEW YORK (AP) — What's wrong with the Houston Rockets?

The Rockets, who finished atop the National Basketball Association's Central Division with a 49-33 record last year, lost their sixth game in a row Monday night, 104-86, to the New York Knicks. They're now dead last in their division with a 6-12 mark, having lost all eight of their road games this season.

"We were atrocious," said veteran Rockets guard Mike Newlin, accurately summing up his team's play, particularly in the second half.

After leading 55-54 at intermission, Houston shot a woeful 28 percent from the field in the second half, including one stretch of 7:41 without a basket, and managed just 11 points in the fourth quarter. The 86 points were the fewest allowed by the Knicks this season.

The Rockets will have a chance for quick revenge tonight when the two teams meet again, this time at Houston. Monday night's game at Madison Square Garden was the only one on the NBA calendar.

The Rockets have Basically the same personnel they had last year, when strong rebounding and aggressive play offset a lack of team speed. but it hasn't happened so far this season.

"I can't explain it," a frustrated Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke said. "We've got to find some chemistry."

The Knicks' chemistry was right no matter what combination Coach Willis Reed had on the floor. No Knick played more than 28 minutes, but 10 players had at least 18 minutes.

Reserve forward Lonnie Shelton provided the spark, scoring 19 points and grabbing a team-high 12 rebounds as the Knicks surprisingly outrebounded the Rockets 52-42.

It was a slam-dunk by Shelton, a 6-foot-8, 245-pound second-year man, in the third quarter which put the Knicks ahead to stay at 68-67. "He's so explosive when he dunks the ball," savored Reed. "He does it with so much vigor, it excites the crowd and it also gets the club going."

Shelton's dunk came shortly after a free throw by captain Earl Monroe had started the Knicks on a 13-0 burst in the third period. Shelton and McAdoo had five points each in the surge and, after Earl Monroe sank two free throws, the Knicks were ahead 78-67 with 3:07 to play in the third quarter.

They clinched the victory with another 13-0 burst as Shelton scored the final basket of the third quarter and the Knicks reeled off the first 11 points of the final period for a 93-75 advantage.

Shelton led the NBA in personal fouls last season, and staying out of foul trouble has been his major goal.

"I'm trying to play under control and not trying to do too many things," said Shelton. "When you're a rookie, you don't really know what to expect. But I'm trying to use my experience from last year to play smarter ball, not make mistakes and stay out of foul trouble."

Stomach problems force coach to quit

DETROIT (AP) — University of Detroit basketball Coach Dick Vitale, whose whirlwind perfectionism drove the team to national prominence, has resigned because of a stomach ailment but will stay on as athletic director, Detroit newspapers reported today.

Radio station WJR quoted Vitale as saying he had no comment but would hold a news conference today. A spokesman for the university said he knew nothing about a news conference. Vitale's telephone was constantly busy Monday night and early today.

Vitale, 37, suffered his first bleeding in the stomach nearly 10 years ago as a high school coach in New Jersey.

O. J. shrugs problems, spends time with child

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

If O.J. Simpson never runs another yard on a pro football field, then his last step there may well have been his greatest. It came last Oct. 30 in Seattle after Simpson had suffered through one of his worst individual days as a pro and after he and the Buffalo Bills had been humiliated 56-17 by the young Seahawks.

O.J. put aside his own thoughts, which included the possibility that he might never again play football, and spent some time with 14-year-old Jimmy Gallegos from Yakima, Wash., slowly being ravaged by cancer.

Jimmy, who lives and breathes football "and may not be around to see the Super Bowl next January" dreamed of meeting Simpson. And O.J., who turns down most invitations and might well have begged off, complied, forgetting for the moment his own fears of knee surgery and the pain under which he was playing. Simpson, fearing that his selflessness might be interpreted as a publicity stunt, refuses to talk about it. Jimmy, too, would rather keep to himself those moments he spent with one of the game's greatest runners and certainly one of its most gracious players.

"It's almost certainly the best thing that ever happened to Jimmy," said his mother, Kathy. "I know it must have been hard on O.J. after what he had just been through. I don't know if he knows just how much he really did."

What Jimmy is going through is far worse than anything O.J. could imagine. Yet, until only recently, the 5-foot-6, 120-pound youngster was playing football, a defensive back for Washington Jr. High School. Even now he is playing basketball.

"The doctors didn't expect him to last this long," said his mother. "We believe his involvement in athletics certainly has something to do with it, keeping his body in top physical condition.

"Jimmy has looked for a purpose, for a reason for what has happened to him. He believes by playing football he is helping to eliminate other children's prejudices against the handicap, to show that they can also belong."

And by shrugging his shoulders at his own relatively unimportant adversity, O.J. Simpson has shown that he belongs in a very special class of people.

Bird flies high over Purdue

By The Associated Press

Purdue Coach Fred Schaus thinks Larry Bird should have joined the professional ranks last summer. But Larry Bird still plays for Indiana State.

"Larry Bird is a fantastic player," Schaus said after Bird tallied 26 points — 18 in the second half — to pace the Indiana State Sycamores to a 91-63 victory over the 11th-ranked Purdue Boilermakers Monday night.

"He can play with any team in the country — pro or college," Schaus said of Bird.

A 6-foot-9 junior, Bird, the nation's third-leading scorer last season, missed 10 straight shots in one stretch in the first half. But the balanced Sycamore attack picked up the slack and Bird found the range after intermission. He also pulled down 16 rebounds and handed out eight assists.

Leroy Stalen, a junior college transfer, added 22 points for Indiana State while Purdue was paced by forward Walter Jordan with 16 points.

Purdue wasn't the only member of The Associated Press' Top Twenty to fall Monday. Dayton shot 75 percent in the first half and went on to upset 12th-ranked Syracuse 76-67.

Ron Brewer scored 24 points and Marvin Delph added 20 as No. 7 Arkansas crushed Mississippi State 94-61. Brewer hit 12 of 15 shots from the field and stole the ball six times as the Razorbacks shot 72 percent in the first half.

Two free throws by freshman Greg Manning in the closing minute gave No. 14 Maryland a 91-87 victory over Georgetown. Bill Bryant ended up with 26 points to pace Maryland while freshman Albert King added 22.

In other games, Illinois outlasted Arizona 113-107, Minnesota nipped Eastern Kentucky 61-59, Furman bombed Wofford 121-60, Davidson crushed Erskine 125-62, VMI clobbered Liberty Baptist 105-68 and Texas Tech creamed Oklahoma Baptist 103-59.

Conventional 100's Give Way To Merit Taste Science.

'Enriched Flavor'™ technology achieves taste level of higher tar 100mm cigarettes.

For years, smokers of longer length cigarettes were limited to brands that needed high tar to deliver full flavor.

But no longer.

The MERIT taste science that brought full flavor to low tar smoking has now been applied to a longer length cigarette. The result: a 100mm cigarette that delivers taste way out of proportion to tar.

Low tar MERIT 100's. Only 12 mg tar. Yet packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco for extra flavor—the kind of flavor smokers of longer length cigarettes want, but could never get before at such a low tar level. Taste tests proved it.

Test Data Conclusive

12 mg tar MERIT 100's were taste-tested against a number of major 100mm brands ranging from 17 mg to 19 mg tar.

Thousands of smokers were tested. The results: overall, they liked the taste of MERIT 100's as much as the higher tar 100mm brands tested.

MERIT and MERIT Menthol. King Size and 100's.

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.
