ROOSEVELT EXHIBIT TO WACO COTTON PALACE

W. B. OLDHAM LEFT MONDAY FOR WACO TO PREPARE COTTON PALACE BOOTH

One of the largest and best exhibits of farm and garden truck ever sent out of Roosevelt county left this city Monday for the Cotton Palace at Waco. In the opinion of men who know what they are talking about, this exhibit will create nothing short of a sensation among the thousands of sightseers at the big show.

The Roosevelt county exhibit was taken to Waco by W. B. Oldham, and it was under Oldham's supervision and due to his untiring efforts that such an exhibit was gathered. He is paying as much out of his own pocket as the next one, and in addition is giving his time to the work.

One of the features of the Roosevelt county booth at the fair will be a large painting, approximately twenty-five feet ong by three feet wide. This is a scene of a farmstead in a peaceful valley, everything neat, and with a small but neat residence, rather large barn and outhouses, and the property divided by well built fences. In the background, in letters that throw their golden beams into the forefront of the picture, are the words, "The Golden West is Calling you."

On the right hand side of the picture are there words: "Portales, Sweet Potato Town, Roosevelt County, New Mexico, U. S. A. Roosevelt County is the Egg Basket and Butter Tub of New Mexico. Good Town, Fine Schools and Good People from Every State in the Union." On the right end: "New Mexico offers More Land, Better Climate, Better Health and Opportunity for easy Money than Anywhere Else in the United States. Come and See. Roosevelt County is traversed by Five National Highways and the Great Santa Fe Rail-booth will also be ornamentt two of the largest heads of ize that were ever seen at They were grown for this —and the men who manu- them will swear to that. roducts taken to Waco are finest samples ever selected, men who helped select and prepare them, and if they fail to attract new residents to Roosevelt County it will be because the fair does not open and there are no visitors on the ground.

REVEREND RICHARDS TO PREACH HERE SUNDAY

Rev. James J. Richards for three years pastor of the Portales Methodist church, will be in the city and will preach at the church Sunday morning and evening, was the announcement made Wednesday.

Reverend Richards, who has been pastor at Gallup for some time, has been transferred to West Texas, and is on his way to attend the conference for that district. He is one of the most popular and best liked ministers who ever held a charge in this city and members of his congregation as well as those of other churches, will welcome the opportunity to meet him again and hear him preach.

THE NEWS EDITOR EATS SOME MISSOURI PEARS

The Portales Valley News editor feasted on two large and luscious Missouri pears last week, the gift of S. A. Stone, a reader of the News, who ives at Chillicothe, Mo. The fruit was sent to the News man by Roy W. Ballow of this city who is attending college in Chillicothe.

It's a shame that a man who can grow such fruit as Mr. Stone grows, does not decide to live in the Portales Valley. Some of those pears would easily have found a place in the Roosevelt county exhibit at the Waco Cotton Palace.

STATE HIGHWAY ENGINEER DIES SUDDENLY IN AUTO

State Highway Engineer James A. French died at the steering wheel of his automobile near Encino late last Wednesday evening. Apoplexy or heart failure is given as the cause of death.

Mr. French has served as state highway engineer since 1912.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sweetland and two children of Clovis came down Sunday for a visit to the A. H. Sweetland home. They returned to their home Monday.

Mrs. J. J. Spires and daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Richardson were in Clovis Tuesday.

Stars at Study

Miss Vivyan Donner has been called by Cooper Union officials one of the most successful art graduates of New York's great free school. Since 1859 Cooper Union has educated some 200.000 young people without charge.

"Cow, Sow and Hen" Suit Him

The "cow, sow and hen" idea has taken a firm hold in the mind of Add Hobbs, former Floyds merchant and owner of a big farm in that part of the county, who today is also a partner in the Seigner confectionery store in Portales.

"I have jersey cows, quite a flock of chickens and some hogs," said Mr. Hobbs, "and my cows are bringing me in from thirteen to fifteen dollars a week. Many of them are dry at this time but within the next few weeks I will have a milking herd of twenty-two to twenty-five Jerseys.

"Have a renter on my place now but he is to give it up soon and my brother in law and sister are to take it over. We are going to go into the chicken, hog and milking business on a larger scale. I am taking no one's word for it, but know from my own experience that with a herd of milk cows, some hogs and chickens a person can have a regular weekly income, sure and steady, every week in the year."

The Portales Valley News is preaching that doctrine. This newspaper has not and never will tell the farmer how to farm. It will, though, tell him to go to his county agent who is qualified on the subject, and get correct information and instructions. The county agent is here for that purpose and is glad to meet the farmers and talk over their problems with them.

Mr. Will, Roosevelt county farm agent, spends most of his time with the farmers, studying their crops and methods. He knows his okra, and tests out new theories on the farms of the county.

ELECTION PROCLAMATION PUBLISHED THIS WEEK

Voters should study this proclamation for it contains all information necessary to acquaint the voter with the men to be voted for and the two proposed constitutional amendments. The names of every candidate on three tickets are stated in the notice.

This sale marks the close of the first year's business for this store, and Dave Isenberg, the proprietor, points out that if the second year shows as great a growth in the vonme of business, he is going to have to spread out considerably before the date of his scond anniversary sale rolls arocnd.

"Have no complaint at all to make, for I am building up a business here that I am proud of. I expect to do a much larger volume during the next twelve months, and the first anniversary sale is my way of showing the people of Portales and Roosevelt county that their patronage has been appreciated."

On Friday there will be a "hunk" of birthday cake for all who attend the sale. There will be souvenirs for the kiddies.

"Slim Jim" is Coming, Kids

The best news that the Portales Valley News has ever had for the kiddies of Portales and Roosevelt county is the statement that "Slim Jim," funniest of all funny paper characters, is coming to Portales and, beginning with the issue of October 28, will appear every week as a supplement of the Portales Valley News.

The comic supplement which the News has secured, will be printed in all the gaudy colors, just as they appear in the big Sunday newspapers.

The addition of the comics is another step in the march of progress which the Portales Valley News is making. It is the opinion of this newspaper that the comics will be appreciattd by its readers, and will create a wider and deeper interest in the paper, which will result in a greater influence for the advertisers in its columns.

B. J. Roquemore Severely Burned

B. J. Roquemore, manager of the Portales gin, was severely burned about the upper part of the body early Wednesday morning when a torch on a gasoline engine exploded.

Mr. Roquemore was caught by the blast which blew the flames over his chest and shoulders, setting fire to his clothing. He fought his way out of the engine room where employes rushed to his assistance, wrapping bagging about him to smother the fire. This aid reached him in time to save him from probable fatal injury, it was stated, and the result was that while he was painfully burned about the chest and arms, his face was not badly burned.

He was reported resting easily at his home this morning.

NEWS WILL SPONSOR COUNTY SPELLING BEE

PRELIMINARIES TO BE HELD OVER COUNTY—FINALS IN PORTALES

A county-wide spelling bee is in prospect for the school children of Roosevelt county, providing the Portales Valley News, sponsoring the movement, can secure the proper cooperation from the teachers of the county. The matter is now being taken up with the teachers and at an early date a definite conclusion on the feasibility of the movement can be arrived at.

If the contest can be arranged there will be prizes offered for the winners of the finals to be held in Portales.

The News is sponsoring this spelling bee in order to secure a closer relationship between pupils, patrons and teachers, also between the citizens of the city and the rural districts. It is intended to be an educational feature and one that will provide a worthwhile entertainment for everyone.

The contests, if they can be arranged, will attract intense attention throughout the county and it is anticipated the various schools where the contests will be held, will be packed at the preliminaries and for the finals the attendance will be, no doubt, the largest gathering of parents, pupils and teachers ever seen in Portales.

Mrs. C. M. Compton returned Sunday from Carlsbad where she attended the State Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Compton reports a wonderful trip through the Cavern and a very interesting club meeting.

Roosevelt Boys and Girls Score Man Victories in Club Contests

Misses Anna and Eva Ward, Roosevelt county millinery demonstration team, won the grand Champion award in food and clothing demonstrations and were designated as the team to represent New Mexico at the Denver Stock Show.

The Misses Ward won first place in the millinery demonstration contest; Orville Harris and Bruce Lacky won first on seed selection in the crop demonstration contest; and also won third place in the grand champion class on crops, garden, poultry and miscellaneous; in the cooking and baking demonstration Misses Thelma Wooten and Warren Wooten won first place with their muffins.

The Roosevelt county team fell down in the live stock judging contests, not one of them placing in this department.

Roosevelt county boys and girls club members carried off more than twice as many prizes from the State Club Contests held at New Mexico A. & M. college last week as their nearest competitor, and more than twice the number won by second and third place counties.

Two hundred boys and girls with their local leaders and chaperons were on the campus.

The girls' exhibits were bright and colorful, and showed some splendid work done by these young cooks and seamstresses. The canned goods were more uniform and of better quality than last year; the home furnishing and millinery clubs made a good showing; and the first, second, third and fourth year clothing exhibits covered one whole end of the hall, with another section left over.

The third and fourth year clothing exhibits were especially large, showing that many of the girls are keeping up the work thru the entire four years. The fourth year work showed made-over and dyed clothing, and was quite an attractive display.

The crops exhibits this year was especially good. The onion display was the best ever shown at the college, and the uniformity in the onions was better even than was found in some of the county fairs. alencia onions dominated, altho one exhibit was of red onions.

Yellow corn was much better matured and a far better exhibit than has ever been brought. The white corn had a higher average than usual.

The cauliflower, cabbage and lettuce from San Migue county was the best ever on exhibit at the contest. The cabbage from Otero County was very good, and there was an even larger and very excellent head from McKinley. The beets and tomatoes were the best tver shown at the contest.

Grain sorghums exhibits were much more uniform than ever before and showed the result of planting pure seeds of one variety in thest counties. The selection showed that the boys not only grow good kafir, but also are able to select uniform, mature and desirable exhibits. The milo exhibits were much better than previously, the only defects being a little weather damage as a result of the heavy rains had in these sections recently. The milo was all from pure seeds put out by the county agents in pure seed centers. All the exhibits of hegari were outstanding in type and well matured, but a majority of the samples carried too much moisture.

There was one very good exhibit of sumac and two good ones of broomcorn.

THREE DAY CELEBRATION TO BE HELD—FIREWORKS DISPLAY ON 11TH

Less than a month now remains before the big Armistice celebration which the Carl McDermott post of the Amtrican Legion is planning to hold in Portales, November 1y-121 13, and the different committees are getting down to real hard work in making preparations for the big-fun-feast.

Perhaps the chiefest event of the three days will be the big parade on the forenoon of November 11. Two substantial prizes are offered for the winners in this event, and many have signified their intention of entering decorated floats in the pocession with the idea of pulling down the first or second honors. In addition to the decorated floats there will be a large number of cars decorated and undecorated, as most everybody who has a car will join in the line.

On November 11, also will be the main speaking program. On this day the crowds will be addressed by Carl Magee, editor of the New Mexico State Tribune, one of the best known newspaper men in the United States. The other speaker is Col. J. D. Atwood, a former commander of the state department, American Legion, and one of the southwest's greatest orators. Col. Atwood is prominent in legion affairs and just "one of the boys."

Two fine bands have been secured to furnish music for the three days and there will be a fifteen piece clown band.

On the night of November 11 there is to be one of the greatest displays of fireworks ever shot in this part of the state.

The entire program is in the hands of the legion boys and they promise amusement and entertainment for all who come.

While in Clovis Sunday, Fred Luper, chairman of the entertainment committee, made arrangements with Robert H. Gray, a personal friend of his, and considered one of the most trustworthy and spectacular fliers in the country, to bring his four passenger plane here for the three days celebration.

Mr. Gray has an enviable war record and owns one of the best makes of airplanes in the southwest. He will fly here for the entertainment of the visitors.

It Pays to Select Sweet Potato Seed In the Field for Next Year

By RALPH R. WILL
Roosevelt County Agent

Does it pay to select sweet potato seed in the field for bedding out the following spring?

This question has been decidedly answered in the affirmative in a trial conductel on the farm of Carl Mueller this year.

In the fall of 1925 a number of hill selections were made. The seed was selected in the field at digging time so that the very best hills could be found. Hills having from four to six smoooth, good sized potatoes were selected. All the potatoes from these hills were put into crates and marked so that those from each hill were kept separate. They were bedded out separately, a small space being left around the seed of each hill so that the slips could easily be distinguished. The slips from each lot of seed were set in separate rows in the field.

By this method, all the potatoes in each row were from one hill selected in 1925.

Those potatoes have just been dug. There was much variation in the yield of each row but all yielded high. Two rows yielded at the rate of 585 bushels eating potatoes and 130 bushel of seed. Three rows yielded each at the rate of 520 bushels of eating potatoes and 130 bushels of seed.

Of course these yields are far above the average, and it proved that field selection of seed at digging time pays. Even though a man is busy at the time his potatoes are dug, a small amount of time spent in carefully selecting the seed to be used the following year is time well spent.

Mr. Mueller has again made selections from his high yielding rows of potatoes and will use them next year. In a short time he will be able to have certified seed slips on the market each spring.

Bring your good samples in not later than Friday for Waco Cotton Palace---Give to W. B. Oldham or County Agent Wills

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT TEACHERS' MEET

MOST SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION HELD FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

One hundred and forty Roosevelt county teachers attended the annual meeting of the Roosevelt Co. Educational association, held at the Portales high school Friday and Saturday of last week. The opening session was called to order at 9:45 o'clock Friday morning and the meetings continued through Saturday forenoon.

The attendance at this meeting was larger than had been anticipated by County Superintendent Williamson and the convention was one of the best in the history of the association. S. A .Jackson, president, and Miss Josephine Goode, secretary, presided.

The convention was opened with the invocation by Reverend Gunstream, after which Miss Cloe Stacher rendered a beautiful piano solo.

The principal address of the opening session was that of O. T. Doran, professor of education at the Teachers' College Silver City, who spoke upon "Rural Education". Professor Doran said in part:

"There are twenty-two million school children in the United States and eleven million of them are found in the rural schools. Therefore, the problem of rural education takes in one-half of the children of the United States. We are well aware that the equipment, supervision, building, playgrounds, etc., of the rural school compares favorably with those of the city schools.

"In 1923 the statistics showed that the average sum expended for the education of the city child was $43 as against $24 for the rural child. At the outset, the city child has almost twice the advantage of the rural child.

"The school term is of great importance in the problem of rural education. The average term in the rural school runs about thirty-eight days shorter than the city term, which means, in the long run that the city child goes to school eight years of 130 days each, while the rural pupil goes six years. It is not to be expected that the country child can accomplish as much as the city child. The rural child misses twenty-eight per cent of seven months; the city child twenty-one per cent of nine months.

"Examination of the census of the United States board of education shows illiteracy to be twice as prevalent in the country as in the city, while child labor is three times as prevalent. The laws which regulate the child labor problem in the city do not reach, or are ineffective, to control the rural problems.

"The rural pupil has one-sixth the chance of the city pupil to receive a high school education.

"There are 300-000 rural teachers in America: 150,000 do not have a high school education; ten per cent have only an eighth grade education, which means that the rural child goes to one out of ten teachers who have gone no further than the eighth grade. Two per cent of the rural teachers have finished a two year normal course; five per cent have gone no further than the sixth grade. The latter are mostly negro teachers. In 1923 there were negro teachers in the south who could neither read nor write, but taught only by rote or memory. They were teaching by special permission of the county superintendents.

"The trainig of rural teachers requires more attention than it has received in the past. Twelve states provide professional, well-trained supervision for rural schools.

"One factor of great significance in the problem of rural education is the fact that in twenty-nine states of the union, the office of county superintendent is elective and of such short duration that the official does not dare make many changes. If he does attempt to make radical or unpopular changes off comes his head, politically. Such a condition of affairs is a product of the political regime.

"Many county superintendents are themselves untrained and lacking in knowledge. Not the most capable but the most able politically holds the job the longest. It is known that one candidate for the office of state superintenient was promised a number of votes in exchange for granting a special certificate to a certain teacher. Again, he was promised votes if he would endeavor to have certain school laws changed.

"So long as these things exist American education is retrograding on account of them. We know what ought to be done, but so long as the paramount issue is for the superintendent to keep his job, progress is almost impossible. We need a group of people willing to make the term of office long enough and safe enough to enable the superintendent to make changes beneficial to the school system.

"There are two schools of philosophy in regard to rural education. The first holds that the curriculum and organization should be such as to train the young only for rural work. Therefore, the child is forced to stay on the farm, He does not possess enough knowledge to enable him to go out into the world. Such philosophy belongs to the middle ages.

"The second group is more liberal. This group is willing to teach everything. They wish to bring the rural children to the city. Instead of teaching children to become better farmers, the tendency is to draw them away from the farm.

"We must endeavor to give the rural child enough education to make him part of our democracy. He must be given the chance to choose his own life. Many advocate dividing the rural school into primary, elementary, junior high and senior high. Such a division is not likely to prove satisfactory as many never reach Junior high.

"There are three main divisions in the purpose of the rural school.

MELVIN J. PRENTICE DIES IN FORT WORTH

Melvin J. Prentice, known to many Portales people as the husband of Miss Nole Keene, formerly of this city, died at the family home in Fort Worth, last Saturday, the result of wounds received in battle during the world war.

Prentice held an exceptional war record and at the time of his death held rank of lieutenant in the organized reserves. He was a member of Bothwell Kane post, American Legion at Fort Worth, of the Masonic blue lodge and Elks at Brownwood. He was a graduate of Daniel Baker college, Brownwood, and during his college career was active as an athlete.

After his discharge from the army he entered George Washington law school, receiving his L. L. B. degree and after spending one year in Columbia University on his L. L. M. was interrupted by illness. He was confined to his bed most of the time during the last year.

Funeral services were held in Fort Worth Sunday afternoon with members of the legion post as active pall bearers. The Masons had charge of the services at the grave.

Many Portales baseball fans were in Clovis Saturday and Sunday to see the world series games played on an electric score board.

Mrs. T. K. Knight returned Thursday from Douglas, Arizona where she had been for some time visiting her son, P. T. Knight and family.

64 PIEMELONS GROW ON ONE LONE VINE

One of the features of the agricultural exhibits which Roosevelt county will send to the Waco Cotton Palace, is a piemelon weighing thirty-six pounds. It is not such a large melon, is it. After you see it you will conclude that it is no prize taker for looks. But there is something about that melon that is unusual, in fact, folks, that melon is a humdinger.

Here is why:

Said melon was grown by F. T. Burke, living a short distance west of Portales. It is one of sixty-four melons grown on the same vine, the total weight of the sixty-four melons being approximately one ton.

MORROW ADDRESSES LARGE CROWD HERE

CLAIMS OF DEMOCRATS TO CLEAN ADMINISTRATION UPHELD BY SPEAKERS

On last Thursday night at the court house, Congressman John Morrow and a number of prominent democrats addressed a good sized audience.

The speakers were introduced by County Chairman J. A. Fairly.

The first speaker of the evening was State Treasurer, Warren Graham. Mr. Graham gave a review of the work of his office during the time he has been state treasurer, and showed where the funds of the state were properly safeguarded. Mr. Graham is an advocate of free text books for the schools of New Meyico and at the last session of the legislature had a bill providing for free text books introduced but the bill was killed in the senate.

The next speaker was Bias Sanches of Morro. Mr. Sanches is a real orator and gave his audience facts straight from the shoulder.

Sabino Olivers candidate for state auditor, made a short talk pledging himself to give the office his undivided attention should he be honored with this office on the second day of November.

The speaker of the day was the Hon. John Morrow, member of Congress from New Mexico.

Mr. Morrow stated that his hobby was trees and that he would like to see every montain sdie covered with trees, and that there were threes which thrived on the plains, and that by planting these trees the climate would be changed within twenty-five years. That every tree takes moisture from the ground and distributes it through the air. That with proper conservation New Mexico would soon be the grandest state in the United States.

Mr. Morrow then took up the national and state issues.

He is one of the best informed men in the national capital, and has proven himselt to be an able representative of New Mexico.

The high standing of Congressman John Morrow was fittingly expressed by Senator Sam G. Bratton in his recent speech at Santa Fe, when he said:"No man entertains a deeper sympathy for the welfare of New Mexico or entertains a more abiding desire to serve the people of this state, and no western state has a voice in the Halls of Congress more effective and who serves with greater measure of benefit to his state than does John Morrow of Colfax County. The people of New Mexico can poorly afford to lose his ripe experience, the value of his acquaintanceship and friendship among other representatives and the seniority he enjoys by being a member of the most important committees in the House of Representatives."

BOB CROSBY RETURNS HOME FOR FEW DAYS

Bob Crosby, Portales cowboy and rodeo king champion roper of the world, returned home the first of the week from a score or more of victories at different rodeos throughout the country during the past summer for a few days rest at the ranch near Kenna.

Crosby participated in the rodeo contests at Roswell this week and will leave soon for the east where he is booked for appearance in several rodeo performances. He is known as one of the cleanest rodeo performers, both morally and physically, and his ability is known throughout the world wherever rodeo performances have been held.

Roosevelt County Farmers

W. A. Barnhill, who lives down on the Elida highway seven miles from Portales, is a strong rooter for the hen and why should he not be, Old Biddy has been good to him and during the past year he has sold $1245 worth of eggs. Cockadoodledoo!

J. F. Morgan, living eight miles west of Portales, is adding his mite to the fame of Roosevelt county as the "Egg Basket and Butter Tub of New Mexico." Mr. Morgan, with able assistance of his cows and hens, has sold $1200 worth of cream and $500 worth of eggs during the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Herbert were in from their farm in the Kentucky Valley district, Monday. Mrs. Herbert having business with the dentist and C. E. Swapping yarns with his many friends in Portales Mr. Herbert says that more feeding should be done in the county, and that he believes that it would be profitable to feed lambs for at the pesent price of grain, that way of marketing it would return a good profit.

J. B. Foster, who lives on the old Kimball farm in the Hawkeye Valley eight miles north-west of Elida, while practically a new-comer to this country, has made an excellent record of farming this year. Sunday Mr. Foster stated that he had ninety acres in cotton from which he would gather thirty-five bales, and that he also had a good feed crop. From two Jersey cows and five and one-half dozens hens he has sold $214 in cream and eggs besides supplying the table for his family of four He was originally from Tarrant county, Texas, and says that the farm he is now on will produce more than the high priced lands of Tarrent county. He is well pleased with Roosevelt county and is doing his part to bring more of his friends out this way.

J. D. McDade, who came to this county from Tarrent county, Texas, a year ago, and who has been renting just out of Elida, has a splendid crop this year, and has bought a farm elbht miles south of Elida, known as the old Coleman place. This year Mr. McDade has fifty acres in cotton fom which he is picking half a bale to the acre, and his feed crop is the finest he has ever seen. He acted wisely in coming and renting a year to test out the country, and now that he has become convinced, he has purchased a home is the best county in the west. He says that for successfull farming one should keep a herd of dairy cows, a flock of chickens and feed his surplus grain.

J. B. Crow had exhibited at his tin shop Tuesday, three potatoes weighing 10 1-2 pounds, all of which came off of one vine. There were a number of small potatoes on the vine. Mr. Crow says that his potato crop averaged from 250 to 300 bushels per acre. He says that before another potato crop is ready to harvest that he will build a private curing plant. His peanuts also turned out well, and he is threshing them this week.

Bob Dillard, another Roosevelt county progressive, is showing the world what a few dairy cattle will do toward supplying the farm table with luxuries and also adding to the food of the nation. From seven cows, three of them heifers, he is selling over two dollars worth of cream a day.

ADDITION TO BROOMCORN GROWERS WAREHOUSE HERE

Construction was started the first of the week on a 25 by 140 foot addition to the Producers' Warehouse property of the broomcorn growers association here. The present building is 70 by 140 feet with storage capacity of approximately forty-five cars and the addition will give room for about fifteen cars more.

WINANS WELL HAS 900 FEET OIL; 1600 FEET

Artesia, Oct. 14.—Nine hundred feet of oil is standing in the Rehn Et Al No. 1 Winans well, in section 15-18-26, following a shot in the 1,600 foot sand. Tubing has been set and the well will be put on the pump as it appears to be good for 20 barrels.

This well is located about a quarter of a mile north of the old Brown well that started oil activity in the Pecos river valley 20 years ago.

SOME INTERESTING SWEET TATER FACTS

Some idea of why Portales is entitled to the slogan, or rather the nickname, "Sweet potato Town, U. S. A." can be realized from the following Sweet potato Facts. It is impossible at this time to obtain anything like official statistics on the sweet potato production in the county, so a composite estimate, obtained from figures of several authorities on the subject, is used here:

Roosevelt county will produce this year approximately 700 car loads of sweet potatoes.

Storage capacity in Portales is estimated at between 400 and 500 car loads. Today this is rapidly filling, while hundreds of bushels are being shipped.

This is one crop for which there is, with but few exceptions, a steady market and at good prices.

The flavor of the Portales Valley Sweet Potato cannot be equalled. The quality is the best in the land and the quantity—Oh, Boy!

ROOSEVELT'S EXHIBITS WIN AT WICHITA FAIR

TAKES SIXTEEN PRIZES IN COMPETITION WITH MANY COUNTIES

The Roosevelt county agricultural and garden truck exhibit at the Texas-Oklahoma fair at Wichita Falls last week, brought home a total of sixteen prizes—every entry in the exhibit winning either a first or second prize.

The county's broomcorn display swept the platter clean, winning first, second and third prizes over all entries. John Fairly's white corn took first and second prize over all comers; Edgar Foreman took first on his yellow corn; the tomato exhibit took first; Sweet Potatoes took first, second prize going to the DeBaca county entry in this department; Roosevelt county took first on sorghum, water melons and peanuts; the DeBaca apple display took three firsts and one second over all.

That the Roosevelt county exhibit created something more than local interest was shown by the fact that the secreary of teh Waco Cotton Palace was on hand and made arrangements to take over the non-perishable articles and ship them directly to Waco for exhibition there. To these will be added the other things which are being gathered by W. B. Oldham and which he will take to the fair the first of the week. A good collection is being gathered at Mr. Oldham's office here but there are others which are wanted and anyone who has anything that will add to the value of the Roosevelt county exhibit is urged to bring it to either Mr. Oldham, Coe Howard or to County Agent Wills. This must be done Thursday or Friday of this week.

The scope if the fame of this county as an agricultural district, is shown in the interest taken in the exhibit by one of the managers of the Louisiana State Fair, which will be held at Shreveport beginning October 28. The Louisiana representative was an interested visitor at the Roosevelt county booth and made a very liberal proposition to Carl Turner, in charge of the exhibit, to take it to Shreveport. It has not been decided at this time whether this can be done or not. If it could be financed it would be one of the very best advertisements ever given the county.

"I have been going to the different fairs with Roooscvelt county exhibits for several years," said Coe Howard, "and can notice a great difference in the interest shown in this country then and today. At fist most of the questions were why, that is a droughty country, isn't it? Do you raise crops like this every year? and similar remarks. At the fair this year I was surprised at the questions asked—What about the Fall case? What about Carl Magee " and stuff like that. The people seemed to be interested in learning the inside facts of the late but unlamented political scandals which have given New Mexico a black eye throughout the country. We informed them all that today New Mexico was enjoying prosperity and peace, that there were no such thing as political scandals and the state has cleansed itself of the stigma of Falism and his ilk."

Today the visitors at the Roosevelt county booth are anxions to know the land values here the rainfall, facts concerning irrigation, the cotton, broomcorn and other crops and ask many questions about the Roosevelt county diversified farming methods.

When told that there were no one crop farmers in this county, many of the visitors at the booth became intensely interested and sought more information. They were told that farmers here were setting the pace in this part of the world in crop diversification that they had a money crop always ready for the market and a crop failure in one thing did not hit them very hard; that here the cow, the sow and the hen were partners with the farmers in their efforts to succeed.

Much of the credit for the great showing made by the Roosevelt county exhibit at the Wichita fair goes to Carl Turner, who was one of the leaders in arranging the exhibit and who arranged the display at the fair. Mr. Turner has for years been one of the leaders in this work and that he is succeeding in his attempt to interest others in the county's possibilities is shown by the favorabe comment heard at the fairs. The Roosevelt county booth was one of the most artistic in the building and was always the center of an interested group of people.

Power Over Sin

If we sin we are Thine, knowing Thy power; but we will not sin, knowing that we are counted Thine. For to know Thee is perfect righteousness; yea, to know Thy powr is the root of immortality.—Wisdom of Solomon xv: 2-3.

Oh, empty us of self, the world and sin,
And then in all Thy fullness enter in;
Take full possession, Lord, and let each thought
Into obedience unto Thee be brought;
Thine is the power, and Thine the will, that we Be wholly sanctified, O Lord, to Thee.

—C. E. J.

Take steadly some one sin, which seems to stand out before thee, to root it out, by God's grace, and every fiber of it. Purpose strongly, by the grace and strength of God, wholly to sacrifice this sin or sinful inclination to the love of God, to spare it not, until thou leave of it none remaining, neither root nor branch.

Fix, by God's help, not only to root out this sin, but to set they self to pain, by that same help, the opposite grace. If thou art tempted to be angry, try hard, by God's grace, to be very meek; if to be proud, seek to be very humble.—E. B. Pusey.

The democrats will carry twenty one of the thirty-one counties in the state at the November election. Governor Hannett predicted in a recent interview. Two years ago the democrats carried sixteen counties.

Another half million tax reduction for the current year has been announced by the democratic state tax commission in New Mexico. Let the G. O. P. spellbinders explain the graft in that bit of good news—if they can.

Less than one month remains before the people of New Mexico go to the polls to vote, and yet the republicans of this state have not advanced a single sensible and tangible reason why the G. O. P. should be returned to power.

Will the republicans kindly take time out in their campaign in New Mexico, to point to a single instance in any state where the G. O. P. has hung up an efficiency record of administration of state affairs to equal the record made by the democrats in this state during the past three years?

Regardless of the fact that cotton is barely hanging to the ten cent price mark, the country is a long way from the rocks. Time was just before the war when it was under the seven cent mark, yet there was a lot of it raised and sold. The man who gives his whole farm to a cotton crop, or to a crop of any thing else, is in a hard way this year and every other year. The farmer who has a number of crops planted, a few old hens, some pigs and a few dairy cows; a patch of maize, corn, wheat, cotton, broomcorn, peanuts and a fair sized garden with the usual variety of truck gowing, is not the farmer you will hear standing on the street bemoaning the fact that cotton prices have tumbled.

The Election Code

The hullaballo being raised by the republicans of New Mexico over the elecetion code, is nothing less than an attempt to construct a formidable ogensive on a shifting foundation. There is no foundation for the charges that Hannett is attemping to disfranchise voters of New Mexico.

Article 7 of Section 3, Constitution of the state of New Mexico, prodives: "The righ of any citizen of the state to vote, hold office, or sit upon juries shall never be restricted, abridged or impoired on account of race, religion, language or color of inability to speak, read or write the English or Spanish language."

That is what the Constitution says. It has never been changed and there sems to be no likelihood

MRS. AURORA LUCIRO WHITE
Democratic Nominee for State School Superintendent

of any changes. No one, so far as it is known wants it changed.

When the Republican majority in the senate approved a new election code. Two of the republican members of the committee appointed by Governor Hannett, said to the Governor: "Governor, they are not acting in good faith. They do not intend to permit a decent election law to be passed in this state.

Cotton Nonesense

About the silliest twaddle ever heard concerning ways of combatting the tobogganing cotton prices is that certain Texas authorities that the cotton farmer refuse to pick cotton until prices go up.

Where is there any common sense in that advise? What is there to be gained by such radical measures?

If cotton is selling at a price less than the cost to produce, why not just hold it a while? If the grower is not financially able to hold it, why not pick it and dispose of it for what he can get out of it. If a man who owns a cotton patch and owes a debt, cannot sell that cotton for enough to pay that debt, would'nt it be better to sell that cotton for whatever amout he can get out of it and apply that sum on the debt, than to refuse to pick the cotton, let it rot in the field just because the price is loy consequently have the entire debt hanging over his head, drawing interest perhaps.

Of course ten or eleven cents is not enough for cotton. It is not enough by sixty per cent at the very skimpiest of reckoning, but why throw away a dime just because you cannot get someone to give you fifteen cents more so you will possess a quarter.

By all means pick your cotton. Hold it if you can, for a higher price, but if you have to sacrifice if for ten cents, that will be at least better than throwing your work on the crop away completely.

Some cotton authorities just lack common sense.

Special Edition

Celebrating the acquisition of a new name plate, in which the Randal County News gives way to the Canyon News, C. W. Warwick came out with a thirty-two page edition last week that would have been a credit to any newspaper plant in the United States. Typographically the edition is about as near perfect as one could expect a hurridly gotten out special edition of a busy newspaper to be, and it shows the wonderful resources of the News print shop and the world of up to date equipment and type in the office.

Editorially, the Canyon News is worthy a place in he reference libraries of every home and place of business in Randall county. It contains a wealth of material that will be more valuable in years to come, perhaps, than it is today. Nothing in the county has been slighted, but is touched upon in such a snappy, clearly written manner as to be of much interest not only to the "home folks" but to strangers into whose hands a copy of the paper may fall.

Another special edition is that of the Roswell Daily Record, also containing thirty-two pages. The Record put out a splendid edition advertising the Cotton Carnival, well filled with advertising matter and current and historical data which is of interest to all of Southeastern New Mexico.

The Record is an exceptionally good newspaper for a daily published in a city of approximately ten thousand population and is deserving of much better support than it receives at the hands of the business men of that city. Not many cities of Roswell's size can enjoy a home published daily newspaper carrying a full leased wire report.

The special edition of the Record, if it has been given the proper distribution, will draw many visitors to the city of Roswel, not only for the Cotton Carnival, but for many months to come.

In the recent speech of the Hon. Francis Wilson, he stated that without the protection of the tariff the sheep industry would be blowed up. This reminds the editor of an incident which happened in Colorado when Woodrow Wilson was elected president the first term. A prominent republican of Saguache county, a large flockmaster, made the statement that the finish of the sheep industry was in sight and that it would be impossible to sell the wool clip. A good democrat asked him if he would be willing to contract the years clip delivered to the railroad, at 10c a pound. He contracted it, and the writer saw the clip hauled in on a number of four mule wagons, and owing to the depression caused by the democratic administration, the party who contracted to buy the wool only received 18 cents a pound. Each year it went up until it reached around 50 cens a pound. It was an awful calamity for the sheep men as the banks were so filled with money that they had to build rail pens to stack their spare change in.

Farmers and their famalies are always welcome at the News office. To many the making of a newspaper is an interesting sight, and the management is always glad to show them over the plant and explain the workings of the different departments.

Dr. J. E. Camp left Tuesday morning for Tulsa, Oklahoma, on business.

Frank J. Eberle, piano man from Hereford, was transacting business in the city last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Adams and children were in Clovis last Sunday visiting their daughter and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luper visited friends at Slaton, Texas last Sunday. Fred says he 'pulled' lots of mud on the trip. The cotton crop in that section is about a complete loss, he stated.
!!!!!n

Now is the time for the voters of Roosevelt county to begin active work in getting out a full vote in the November election. Roosevelt county always piles up a handsome democratic majority, and this year should be no exception to the rule.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(Special to Portales Valley News)

Washington, October 13.—Exigencies of politics is bringing the country's political leaders into the midst of the voters. The great, the near-great, and the small fry among the politicians are stumping the country in the interests of their respective parties as the election approaches. As a consequence official Washington has been temporarily depopulated. Even the members of the President's official family are on the high road as orators. Political strategy is bringing them from their offices as administrators of great government departments and into the field of special pleaders for party supremacy. The Democrats are likewise training their big guns on the voting public.

While it is generally recognized that few, if any, of the present Cabinet are noted for their oratorical ability, campaign managers know full well that their mere presence on a mass meeting or rally program could be counted upon as a drawing card for the voters. Their visits in various Congressional districts which are closely contested by the two parties gives the hardpressed candidates for office an excuse to tie up their individual campaign with the fortunes of the administration. These holders of portfolios usually follow a set line of argument approved by the National empaign managers and extol the virtues of prosperity and trace its political connections.

For instance, Mr. Hoover and Mr. Work, the Secretaries of Commerce and Interior, respectively, are specializing in the reclamation subjects in the West where the issue has broken party lines. Mr. Hoover is endeavoring to have Congress appropriate $100,000,000 annually over a period of from ten to twelve years for the organized reclamation program. He claims this will cover 27 major projects and bring great prosperity to the West. According to the versions of various western groups, it is now costing the Government $65,000,000 a year for so-called "pork barrel" appropriations made with an eye to political effect rather than economic returns. Mr. Hoover also talks about Government aids to business as part of the administration's program. The Postmaster General cites the achievements of the postal service and connects it with the country's prosperity. On the other hand, the Democrats have been presenting plausible arguments which give the voter someling to consider.

Washington is now house-cleaning in earnest, preparing for the advant of the social season. The visit of Queen Marie of Roumania with the incidental official entertainments, will advance he social season here by several weeks. The State Department Officials handling these affairs where precedents and international society prevails are very busy arranging for dinners and other fitting affairs, all conducted according to the latest rules of etiquette.

As a relief from political affairs, we find that the Government today is greatly interested in problems of instalment buying. Inasmuch as this affects a considerable portion of the population, it is of intense interest to the country. It has been noticed that there has not been much expansion in instalment buying during the past year or two. With a better understanding of the whole situation, it has been declared, instalment buying would have a decidedly definite place in trade and industry. The view is that there should be developed a better credit plan so that there would be a safeguard set up for both the seller and the responsible buyer. The fact remains, however, that, relatively, losses through credit under instalment buying have not been large. It has been clearly observed that instalment buying has increased turnover. It makes it possible for people to be possessed earlier with things they want then would be the case otherwise.

With prosperity as one of the principal campaign issues it is important to note the opinion which prevails in Washington regarding the prices of foods and other commodities. Opinions as expressed privately by high Government officials who underook the study, show that price cuts are not expected because it would mean a cut in wages, lower consumption and retarded production. The only thing officials think would bring about lower prices under existing circumstances would be a general process of economics through increasing the efficient production and distribution.

Combinations especially in retail lines, it has been stated, have developed an efficiency and chain stores, as an instance, have pushed some of the small independent stores out of business by degrees. The cash and carry man was declared to be getting the benefit of lower prices for material which he carried home. At the same time, those who want this service performed for them are willing to pay for it, so that there is less a field for that class of business which gives this service and necessarily must charge for it. The belief is that the situation will settle down and become stabilized with the small business man continuing to operate where he does fit into the picture but being compelled to make his exit where he does not do so.

Regadless of whether you use a radio or not you may expect to read this winter a lot about the problems of the radio and broadcasting. It is currently predicted that Congress must act on this problem. It is said that chaotic conditions already prevail in the middle west with the broadcasting stations jumping up their power and getting off of the assigned wave lengths. There are 600 applications for new stations pending before the Department of Commerce with about 10 per cent of these possible under conditions. The Government is constantly saying that the problem of the larger broadcasting stations becoming monopolies and controlling the program to the extriment of radioi set owners. Legislation covering these subjects is expected at the December session of Congress.

Roosevelt County Potash Beds May Be Next Big Development

The greatest discovery of the age!

Potash.

Potash in such paying quantities and over such a vast area that much of the world's great need can be supplied from there.

These are declarations of officials of the Kingsland oil and Potash company of Amarillo recently chartered to develop 17,420 acres in Terrell county, which they say contains the highest percestage of potash at the highest depth yet uncovered in the world.

This acreage lies on the Brownfield land, 12 miles from Brownfield and 48 miles southeast of Lubbock. Officers of the company are W. L. Kingsland, president; Martin Jarett and J. Levy, vice-presidents; Sam Huggins, secretary and Dr. H. S. Gerson, director.

The lease lies in Block A-1 and contains seven lakes and a lost river.

The potash is found in both liquid and solid forms. Samples have been sent to chemists at Washington, Texas Tech at Lubbock and W. T. T. C at Canyon, and thereports received show it to test 9, 19 per cent, it was said.

The samples were obtained from depths ranging from 8 to 39 feet. It being stated that while the chemical is known to exist even deeper, a bed this depth alone is no less than wonderful.

When this find is compared with the beds of Germany and France, which have so long been supplying the potash of the world it was said to test 4 per cent higher than the German beds and 2 per cent higher than those of France.

Many Offers Made

Messrs. Jarrett and Levy said that for seven years a British Syndicate held the lease in question, paying annually $7,500, but released it during the war period.

"We have had offers of various kinds since we took up the proposition they added. These offers have ranged from those of developing the property to purchasing our interest outright. Sums as high as half a million dollars have been named. But we intend to develop it both for potash and for oil," they said.

Letters exhibited from interested parties at Washington were seeking more samples like those presented and included that a representative would be sent at once to further investigate, if the local company wished.

Dr. Gerson, it was said will leave within a few days for New York, to comply with the above requests.

The above, taken from the Amarillo Daily News, has more of a potential meaning to Roosevelt county than the unthinking reader of the article realizes. In the southwestern portion of Roosevelt county, on the state line, lies what is probably one of the greatest deposits of potash in the southwest. It is not known just the extent of these beds, but they have been examined and studied by government geologists and their analysis is now in government records.

It is pretty well founded rumor that at the time the armistice was signed ending the world war, the government had plans on foot to build an immense plant for the development of these deposits of potash.

With the work starting in the neighboring counties it is reasonable to believe that the development will before long spread west-

MANY FARMERS DECIDE TO SOW WHEAT THIS FALL

From present indications there will be near a record acreage of wheat sown in Roosevelt county this fall. Many farmers have been heard to express a determination to sow a few acres, while others have already sown their crop.

There is no reason why Roosevelt county should not be as great a wheat producing county as Curry county, adjoining it on the north, and chances now are that wheat will soon be added to the crops that Roosevelt county can produce better than any other.

So far the American Legion has sent no message of condolence to Mr. Dempsey.

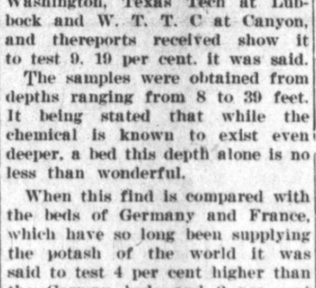

"The truth will make you free," sometimes but oftener it would send folks to jail.

WORK STARTED ON THE BLEDSOE SCHOOL HOUSE

Work on a temporary school building was started at Bledsoe last week. The building is to be built on the bcngalow style, according to the Cochran County News, and will be suitable for a residence after it serves its purpose as a school.

Another teacher is to be added to the faculty of the school, the News say.

RECORD ATTFNDANCE AT TEACHER'S MEET

First: The purpose of the rural school as related to the child himself. Second: The purpose of the rural school as related to the adult. Third: The purpose of the rural school as related to other organizations in the community.

"One school of educators believes that the child should be trained to remain on the farm. He should be prepared only for agriculture. He would, of necessity, be forced to remain on the farm because of ignorance and lack of outside experience or training.

"A second group holds that the rural school must provide preparation in vocational training; that the program must be changed; that cultural subjects must be thrown out. They would use only vocational subjects—manual training that teaches the construction and use of farm tools; domestic science, which deals only with preserving, canning, and those things found only in the life of the farm woman. They would ignore the cultural side of education, and be concerned only with producing more efficient farmers and farmers' wives.

"There is a third group of educators whose aim is to prepare the child for a full, satisfying life. These would allow to be taught a type of music, art and cultural subjects. They would teach the boy and girl to be more satisfied with community life. The young people would become more efficient because of better advantages and greater interest at home.

"Others would prepare the child for general efficiency using agriculture as a tool for teaching and using the information the child has to give him the right outlook on life. Still other educators believe this method to be wrong and that we should bring from the outside the things the child doesn't know.

"Both the latter beliefs seem to be wrong. It is well to teach outside information, culture, etc. It is equally as well to use outside knowledge to connect information already existing in the child's consciousness.

"The teacher's problem is not solved when he has finished with the child. Usually the teacher is the best informed person in the community. It is a natural assumption that the teacher should take charge of many things, but the teacher is prohibited by common consent from taking a leading part in anything of a political nature, Who ought to be in politics more than teachers? We are building twenty years in the future, why not know enough to make helpful suggestions?

"The problem of education in the country is to keep, not only the child but the adult on the farm. It is usually the best educated adult who leave, the best leaders looking for better training, life, amusements, culture.

"In order to keep rural life from degrading, the adult must be made to recognize his place is in the community. When he goes away he takes the best from the community. Should he not, then, go back and help others, instead of seeking his own advancement? How can the rural community advance when the people who go from them take but little interest in helping thm?

"The great aim of the rural teacher should be to keep the child in the country and help the adult to be satisfied. Rural education should first provide rural training, club work and vocational training. Second: It should develop broad, rural citizenship. There exists between the city and farm an attitude of hostility instead of the friendly cooperaion which would be of such benefit to both. The average farmer is conservative. He is individualistic in thought because his thinking is done when he is alone, and he develops his own trend of reasoning. He must be made to feel that he is part of both city and country, a part not only of country, but of the nation. The rural teacher's problem is to make the farmer recognize a broad democracy and citizenship throughout the nation.

"The rural teacher owes it to the community to work along social economic and religious lines. Most rural communities have slight 'Feuds'. The teacher might strat with the development of local community citizenship. She must remember that she is to serve, not only the local community and child, but socially as a whole.

"Our attitude in America must be standardized. The ignorant, illiterate, vicious type traverses great distance and becomes outlaws and gunmen—a menace to any community. Chicago's problem is really her own people, but those drawn from the whole nation. The whole nation is interested in the education of children in every community.

"We must prepare our boys and girls for citizenship in the United States, not merely in Roosevelt county. They will become citizens, perhaps officials, of other communities. They must understand the general attitude toward problems of politics, religion, etc. The teacher must work toward world or national citizenship, not merely community citizenship.

"To sum up, there are two general attitudes toward rural education. First: Train the country child for country life. Keep from it the knowledge of city life, education, training, amusement etc. Second: Move the country child to the city. Make it less a farmer; give it training such as tends to remove it from the farm to the city.

"If rural education is carried on properly, there ought to be a halfway mark, a place where the rural girl and boy can learn about the city and at the same time develop enough inspiration in rural life to keep them on the farm. If we take the country child to the city, we must also take the city to the farm. We can do this through good will information, ideals and perhaps awaken a desire to continue in rural life.

"But if the rural child's outlook is different then prepare it for a different, fuller, more satisfying life. There is a certain amount of satisfaction in complying with the wishes of our fellow man. There is, for most of us, a satisfaction in cooperation, a desire to be part of a social group. Our activities must lead to a better situation instead of a worse one. We must, if we can, develop an attitude of mind which will cause the country child to fit into its rural life and make progress. We must develop the type of education which allows it to know something of the outside. Give it an opportunity to go forward. Give it habits, ideals, education, to fit into its place and make for itself a full and satisfying life."

At the close of Professor Doram's address, County Superintendent Williamson called the attendtion of the association to the following facts:

First: The Bureau of Child Welfare would like suggestions concerning the child labor law. At present it is not workable, owing to the difficulty of enforcing the law in the country while it is much easier to enforce in the city.

Second: The chairman of the county board of Union county is sending out letters requesting replies to the suggestion that the office of county superintendent be made appointive. At one time the legislature made this an appointive office, but the attorney general ruled it unconstitutional and the office was never filled by appointment.

At the close of the program Friday afternoon, refreshments were served in the domestic science room of the high school and several of the teachers accepted the invitation of the Roosevelt County Herald to a watermelon feel at the office of that newspaper.

The Friday night session was cut short because of the hard rain which started about six o'clock, and after convening and hearing a part of the program, the session adjourned.

After the brief program at the high school Friday evening those of the teachers who braved the rain storm of the evening, about seventy in number, were the guests of the Portales Valley News at the Portola Theatre. The News received several mighty flattering compliments for this courtesy and several of those who were unable to attend the show expressed their regret at being forced to miss it.

Watch for Williamson

One of the features of the convention was the presentation to County Superintendent Williamson, of a gold watch and chain, as an expression of the esteem in which he is held by the teachers of the county.

Saturday Morning

The meeting was called to order and Miss Olive Greer entertained the teachers with a reading, "Mrs. Boggs' Musical." Miss Matilda Cheeseman of Elida, spoke on, The Value of Music. Professor Kent then took up his address he had cut short the evening before. He held the teachers' interest and gave them some good ideas about teaching. The line of thought was along the subject, "Thinking Things Through."

Donald McKay of the Normal University, gave a talk on extension work. Miss Eva and Ara Ward, who are county champions in clothing demonstrations and belong to the Arch millinery club, gave a practical demonstration in millinery. They had on display five hats which they had made. Their subject was "Renovating Millinery Supplies." And they demonstrated retinting of flowoers, steaming and panneing and brocading velvet.

Hope is a great thing. Without it life is so hopeless.

The little girl who used to play with Jacks has grown up now and plays with Johns and Henrys as well.

Modern young people might think more of their future life if you could play jazz on a harp.

FLOYD SCHOOL NOTES

The attendance at the Floyd school is considerably larger than at this time last year. The rains have made the roads bad for the trucks but they have done remarkably well in getting the children to school.

The pupils enjoyed a vacation Friday whie the teachers attended the county convention. The teachers all report a good institute.

The Bacon and Mount families have the sympathy of the school because of the death of Grandfather Bacon, which occured suddenly the first of last week.

The work on the farm-shop, by the agricultural cass, has been suspended for a few days in order to build the new garage. Both the farm shop and garage are built on the same plan as the school building. Superintendent Lang thinks both buildings will be completed soon.

Several improvements have been made in the home economics room recently. The new desk ani tables make things more convenient, as well as improve the appearanve of the room. It is also planned to replace the benches with chairs, using the benches in other rooms. Mr. Lang and Mr. Hatcher spent most of the summer seeing that the building was put in first class shape for the opening of school, but were unable to get to this part of the building.

The first number of the Lyceum course was given at the school Monday afternoon. All school children attended the performance and many of the patrons of the school were also there, despite the fact that they were all busy with harvest. Everyone who attended got much enjoyment out of the program, especially at the antics of the fat man. The Apollo Duo rendered some spendid music, as well ots of fun. Everyone is looking forward to the next number, on October 27, which will be a play, "To the Ladies."

BRACKEN SAY'S

It is a mighty good idea to have you battery overhauled, or looked after before winter sets in.

A battery in a run down condition cannot hold up under cold weather.

By having your battery examined NOW, at Bracken's Battery Shop, you may be saved many dollars later, as well as troubles and delays caused by battery failure.

A good battery is well worth taking care of, but if neglected, will be headed rapidly to the junk pile.

Compulsory School Law

We find that the compulsory school laws this year are much more strict than last year. Also the child labor law is being more rigidly enforced.

The following are some of the laws which are being stressed:

1. All children between the ages of six and sixteen years, both inclusive, are required to attend the public schools, for as long as the schools in the district in which they reside are in session. Only those who are mentally or physically unfit or incompetent or those living more than three miles from school for which there is no free public conveyance provided are exempt from the provisions of this act.

2. Children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years may be excused from full time public school attendance by the city or county school Superintendent within whose district said pupils reside or are employed provided pupils will soon be employed in some gainful occupation or trade.

3. Any firm, person or corporation employing a child between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years contrary to the provisions of this act shall be subject, if convicted, to a fine or not less than five or more than fifty dollars for each separate offense.

4. Parents, guardians and persons having control of children subject to provisions of this act are hereby made responsible for the school atttndance of such children. Any parent, guardian or person responsible for children subject to this act who shall violate the provisions hereof shall be fined not less than five nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not less than five nor more than ninety days.

Child Labor Law

1. No child under 6 years shall be employed in any gainful occupation or trade during school hours. Neither shall he be employed when school is not in session unless he has a permit certificate issued by the Supt. of schools.

2. No child under 16 shall work more than 4 hours a week nor more than 8 hours a day. Whoever employes or whoever having under his control a child, permits such child to be employed in violation of this act shall be fined not less than $25 nor more than $300 or may be sentenced to county jail for not less than 5 nor more than 15 days. For second offense he shall be sentenced to county jail for not less than 30 days. For 3rd offense he shall be imprisoned in state from 1 to 2 years.

The following are pupils granted permit certificates by Mr. Krattli on the 5th, 6th and 7th days of October.

Grade Schools

The Sixth graders played a football game with Junior High Wednesday, being defeated 20 to 0. Another game is to be played soon and the graders expect to walk away with the contest.

Mrs. Wood was absent a day and half last week on account of the sickness of her little daughter, Annabel.

There are a number of pupils out of school on acount of work who should be in school and stodying hard as the six weeks examinations come the last of this week.

Murl Powell entered school Thursday. He is in the A-5 Grade.

Mrs. Krattli, Mrs. McCoy, and Mrs. Raymond were visitors at the grade school last Thursday.

Three Spanish-American children entered the grades this year.

A pencil vending machine has been installed in both the high and grade buildings and parents are urged to patronize the schools by having the children buy their pencils of these machines.

Several teachers have begun decorating their rooms for Halloween. We're wondering how many witches and spooks will visit the schools.

Mr. Brown expects to harvest his cop of potatoes Saturday.

Art Exhibit

The Art Exhibit was held at the Portales High school, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. This was set for a later date but as the pictures arrived early it was necessary to hold it now in order to release the pictures to the next school.

The purpose of the exhibit is to show the school children and adults reproductions of the masterpieces of the world renowned artists and to secue funds with which to purchase pictures for the school. The Portales schools have several reproductions of great painting but they need many more. Some of the rooms have no pictures and every room should have at least one picture.

These pictures will be on exhibition during the three days mentioned, at the gymnasium, the price of admission being only ten cents. There are nearly 200 of them. Following are a few of the pictures shown:

The Great Sphinx; The Parthenion; The Forum, Rome; Notre Dame Cathedral, Paris; The Mattehorn—This is the peak of the Alps which is 14,705 feet above sea evel. It was first scaled in 1865 when four of the party were killed, only three reaching the top.

The Appeal to the Great Spirit, is a picture of the Redman's attitude towards the conquerors from Europe. It represents the surender, not to the whites, but to a higher power—God.

Tell's statue, by Kissling; Moses, by Michael Angelo; Sistine Madonna, Raphael; Aurora, bf Reni; The Syndics, by Rembrant; Joan of Arc, by Bastein-Lepage; Dignity and Impudence, by Landseer; Her Tribute, by Kline; Concorn Bridge.

Hold That Line

In the game played at Portales on Thursday, between the Portales and Clovis second team, Portales was defeated by a small score. Our boys put up a good fight as shown by Clovis low score. Portales has a first class first team and when the Clovis first team is matched against ours they will surely have to fight.

The county teachers institute met at Portales on October 8. Porales schools were dismissed for the week on Thursday giving the students a holiday. The teachers had to attend the meeting and that is one time the students had the best of it. Not wishing the faculty any hard luck but we do wish teachers institute was held oftener and we certainly thank them for the holding it on school days.

The Portales boys played Littlefield at Littlefield Friday. This being the first game away from home and their having to go so far were probably the main cause of their defeat.

The Seniors are having their pictures made this week.

Those "Good Old Days" Were Strenuous Old Days

The writer came to New Mexico nineteen years ago and settled on a homestead at that time just over the county line in Chaves County Being used to milk to make bread, the madam sent him out to the neighbors to find milk and butter, after driving nine miles he found a farm house where a cow was kept and persuaded the farmer's wife to part with a pound of butter and a half gallon of milk. That was the day when the prairie were covered with cattle, and the farmer was looked upon with disfavor by the banker and merchant alike. Splendid crops were grown that year by accident, on the homestead as the "farmer" had very little exprince in that line.

The crop was harversted and placed in the stack lot. That night hundreds of range cattle broke down the fence and cleaned up the year's work. The land was still there, but funds were scarce and through the period of homesteading he with others, was compelled to go off to work for a grub stake.

This condition prevailed for the next five years.

More people came in and bet the government three years of their life they could prove up before they starved to death.

Rabbits were plentiful, and to many of the nestors provided meat ration to go with the red and speckled beans.

By that time a number of farmers began to bring in the Jersey cows, and cream stations were established About 80 per cent of the settlers lost their bet with Uncle Sam and left. The other 20 percent stuck it out and by going the cow, sow and hen route established comfertable homes for themselves and famalies.

Others came in and the country was changed from a cow pasture, where the white faced cattle ranged by the thousands, to dairy farms.

Chicken ranches sprang up all over the country.

Cream and eggs found a ready market every day in the year.

The despised "nestor" began to gain recognition from the merchant and banker until today the wealth of the country is measured by the contents of cream cans and egg crates which are marketed daily.

But the pioneers did not stop at that. They started out to conquer the soil, and they have succeeded. Lands which were declared wothless and to be deserts were made to blossom and produce in crops even beyond the dreams of the most optimistic. Lands which were sold eighteen years ago for $1.25 per acre are now producting in crops from $25 to $100 per acre all over Roosevelt County.

Prosperous farm homes are found in every section of the county.

Eighteen years ago there were scattered schoolhouses where indifferent schools were maintiained three months out of the year, and the teachers were often compelled to wait a year or more for their check of $35.00 per month Those were the "Good old Times" that you hear so much about. Those were the times when the state was a territory under the great republican administration.

These conditions are not overdrawn. There are many citizens in the county today who are familiar with them, and who will vouch for the accuracy of the statement.

Today Roosevelt County is the Egg basket and Butter tub of New Mexico. The Broom corn center of the southwest and the graden spot of the state.

The cream can and egg basket saved the life and fortune of hundreds of pioneers. They are the mortgage lifters and home builders today.

"To The Ladies," the delightful comedy written by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, which is to be presented here on the evening of Oct. 27, at High school is a story of beauty and brains battling big business.

It is much more than that, however. It is a fragrant bouquet for the American housewife. It is a play that photographs your neighbors and turns the spot-light on yourself. It is a play that shows the American housewife in the dual role of wife and counsellor to her husband. It pokes a lot of innocent fun at the so-called efficienty, of modern business organizations. It portrays with a delightful touch of irony the annual boost banfuet of the business concern of today. It is a play that bears out its alluring title—"To the Ladies."

"To the Ladies" is a play of infinite charm, because of its marvelous portrayal of our own immediate social and business friends. For that reason, you will like it tremendously, and you will be sorry if you miss it when it is presented here by a fine cast of Chicago actors.

CHAPTER XI.—Moira O'Donnell comes to accept Robert and Peter as friends. Murray leaves O'Donnell, Moira, Robert and Peter to bury his half of the treasure on the Dead Man's Chest (Treasure island) while he sails on a five-day voyage. Thus the pirates are ignorant of the whereabouts of part of the treasure, the gold being hidden when Murray returns.

CHAPTER XII.—Flint is indignant over the division of the spoils, made in his absence, but after a conference with John Silver agrees to take his portion and accept the situation.

CHAPTER XIII.—Fearing treachery from Flint, Robert and Peter swim to the Walrus and learn of a plot to seize the Royal James. They return with the news. Flint attempts a surprise, is beaten off, and Murray puts to sea, pursued by the Walrus. A running fight begins. O'Donnell is killed during the battle. Both vessels encounter a violent hurricane. The Royal James reaches the Dead Man's Chest, a wreck, and is beached.

"But there's only as much aboard the James as we ha' here," objected one of the first speakers.

"True for you, Tom Allardyce," said Flint. "But the rest's safe enough, ain't it?"

"There's only them few knows o' it," returned the man. "They said on the James there was but the three men and the girl was landed to bury it."

Flint's answering laugh was horrible.

"And d'ye think that out o' four people, not countin' Murray—and one o' the four a girl—we can't make one talk? I tell ye' Tom, the stuff is as good as divided."

"Ye ha' first to catch Murray," retorted Allardyce.

"And why won't we?" demanded Silver. "Didn't we take what he was ready to give us and thank him for it like blessed lambs? And if he doesn't suspect, what good'll it do him? On a night like this he'll never know where we are until we're on him. Two good broadsides, and then we'll sweep the decks."

Nobody spoke for a time.

"When does the ebb make?" asked Flint with a stretch and a yawn.

"Another two glasses yet," said Bones.

"——, I must ha' a bit of sleep," growled the pirate captain. "Come to a vote, lads, and be done wi' it. Will ye go or won't ye? We all know what mercy Murray'll give ye, if he ever hears o' this council—and there's them as would like to blab, to be sure o' that."

Silver pulled himself erect, cuddling his crutch under his arm.

"Quartermaster speaks for the crew," he said. "And my view is as how the crew is for fightin' for their just rights. The Walrus has played second fiddle long enough, and here's a chance as ain't likely to come again."

There was a second brief interval of silence.

"Nobody contrary," announced the one-legged man cheerfully. "Council's over! Keep quiet, mates. No drinkin', no fightin'. There'll be plenty o' both later."

The squatting ranks broke up into groups, and a number of men strolled for'ard toward my hiding place. But I did not await them. From the shelter of the chase-gun I hunched myself back behind a water-cask, and so regained the bows, slipped overside and slid down the anchor-cable to the water.

A huge white shape floated up to me.

"Is dot you, Bob?"

"Yes. They're for attacking the James when the tide turns."

He headed down-stream without a word. We were half-way to the James before he spoke.

"Dot Murray, he is a lucky feller. Always gets what he wants."

"What does he want?" I panted.

"Now he gets rid of Flint andt der Walrus crew, ja."

"But he'll lose their half of the treasure if—"

"Maybe; maybe he don't. Andt after dot he gets rid of der James."

"You're crazy, Peter," I said indignantly, trying my best to keep pace with him. "He'd be stranded here."

"Oh, he don't do dot here—maybe he don't do dot at all; maybe der tdefil stops helping him, ja. But if he gets der chance, you watch him, Bob. He gets rid of der James, and maybe he gets rid of us, ja."

"Well, why do we help him, then?" I snapped, recalling my great-uncle's parting jibe.

"Dot's where he is smart, Bob. He makes it so we got to help him to safe our own skins, ja. Andt der little gal, too. For him and der Irisher dot drinks like a Lenape squaw I ain't got no use. But you andt der little gal—dot's different."

"Do you mean he intends to sacrifice all of us? And carry away the whole treasure for himself?"

"I don't know, Bob. Murray, he is a funny feller. Very funny! He likes der little gal. Maybe he likes me—I don't know. Andt he is honest about dot oldt king dot lifs in Rome. But if any of us come in his way, he would push us aside. Dot's him now!"

The stern of the Royal James rose before us, and in one of the open windows my uncle's fine white head showed like a faded picture in a frame seen across a darkened room.

"Once before he planned too big," Peter whispered on. "Maybe this time Gott speaks loud to der tdefil andt stops him."

My great-uncle's voice floated down, quietly distinct.

"They are gone overlong. Gadzooks, chevalier, if they do not shortly return I'll ship my cable and take advantage of what remains of the flood to come at the Walrus and finish matters off-hand."

O'Donnell's reply was simply a querulous echo from the interior of the cabin.

"That sounds as though he had some use for us," I murmured to Peter, noiselessly treading water beside me.

"Ja. Use he has for us. Maybe he needs us when he gets rid of der James, eh? If der tdefil fails him, he can have use for honest men, Bob."

"We'll soon know," I retorted, and twitched the rope which dangled by the rudder-post.

"Who is there?" challenged my great-uncle, instantly alert.

"Robert," I whispered back, and commenced to climb.

Both Murray and O'Donnell—the latter for the time being stirred out of his habitual gloom—assisted me over the window-sill, and it affected me oddly to note my great-uncle's unconcern for the water I dripped on his silken coat.

"You ha' suffered no hurt?" he asked eagerly.

"No, no," I answered. "Make haste to help Peter up. They are coming against us with the making of the ebb."

He was betwixt me and the window, and I could see the faint smile of satisfaction on his face.

"'Tis what was to be expected of them," he remarked. "We must improve our watch. 'Tis no compliment to our people that they failed to suspect aught of you going and coming."

Peter squattered into the cabin like an enormous toad.

"Oof!" he squeaked. "I haf bubbles under my skin. We haf a fight tonight, Murray, ja?"

"Thanks to you and Robert, Friend Peter, 'twill be rather in the nature of a chastisement than a fight," he answered urbanely. "If you will pardon me, gentlemen, I will go and complete the necessary arrangements."

A tinkle of glasses told me that O'Donnell was refilling his goblet.

"What's a fight to the likes o' him?" muttered the Irishman, dole-

"Robert," I Whispered Back and Commenced to Climb.

fully. "Treachery and scheming and murdering, aye it's a fine night for such! Oh, blessed saints, where'll we be this time the morrow?"

"Safe, beyond question," I sought to encourage him as I drew on my breeches. "'Tis never the Walrus' scaly crew will overcome us."

"Be not too sure, Master Ormerod," he retorted with unusual vehemence. "I am thinking there is the curse of high Heaven on this venture and all connected with it."

Nevertheless he buckled on his sword and accompanied us to the deck when he was dressed. Men were scurrying silently to and fro, and from an open hatch came the whine of tackle as a piece was shifted on the gundeck. Aloft, squads of topmen were unfurling shreds of canvas to give the James steerage way at need. On the poop my great-uncle was issuing his final orders to Martin, Saunders and Coupeau.

"You, Saunders," he said, "will stand by the anchor-cable with a broad-ax and upon my giving the word hew it asunder. Your position, Martin, will be in the waist. Keep men on the fore and main yards, ready to make sail when the cable is cut. Coupeau, of you I expect an initial broadside of crushing effect and a second fire if circumstances permit. Now to your stations, and above all things, instruct your men to preserve silence. The man who makes a noise I will blow from a gun forthwith, and let that be my declaration to Flint!"

The officers gave their acknowledgments and flitted away. Simultaneously Peter pointed up the inlet.

"See!" he exclaimed.

The Walrus' riding-lights winked out. An interval of minutes, and one of the waist-lights followed it. Another interval, and she disappeared completely in the black maw of the night.

My great-uncle sneezed delicately.

"In the dark one is clumsy," he observed. "I fear I have abused my nose with an overheavy dose of Rip-Rap. Well, well! Perhaps there is a parable in the incident for such clever fellows as Captain Flint.

"I must ask you not to move about, gentlemen. We have the better part of a glass to wait for the ebb, but caution is our watchword!"

We heard the Walrus before we had sight of her—the slatting of a headsail, a rattling block, a vague creak of cordage. Then an impression of a mighty shadow, a towering spiderweb of spars and lacy rigging, stealing ghostlike from the enshrouding dark.

She floated nearer. Nearer still. And nearer. It seemed that the two vessels must collide, and the suspense became unbearable. I wondered at my great-uncle's restraint. Would he never— I gasped with relief as his cool, even tones clove the silence.

"Touch off, Coupeau."

Crash! The deck leaped underfoot; the anchored hull surged forward. A red sheet of flame girdled the James' side, and in the instant's glare the Walrus was revealed in stark detail against a setting of glittering black water and low, forested shores. I saw a man in her foretop, aimlessly balancing a grenade. I saw men staring curiously from the gunports as our broadside smashed into them. I had a glimpse of the brutal face of Bones, peering over the bulwarks, a cutlass in his teeth.

The darkness returned, and a multitude of echoes dinned back and forth across the inlet. There was a rending and cracking of timbers, with such screams as I never hope to hear again, the screams of wicked men who face an unexpected death, oath and blasphemy and piteous appeals, all blended into one terrible, heart-searching whole.

My great-uncle's level voice dominated the confusion as easily as it had the silence.

"Cut your cables, Saunders!"

Flint's bellow answered from the Walrus.

"Give it to 'em, ye cowardly swabs! Stand to your guns!"

The red tongues of the Walrus' guns licked out at us; the staggering roar of their discharging smote the night. The fabric of the Royal James quivered and shook as the iron hail lashed into her. A moaning and screeching rose from waist, fo'csle and gundeck:

"Oh, God!"

"My leg! My leg!"

"They're out! My guts are a-runnin' out!"

"Where's my arm? Oh, God, where's my arm?"

But a third time my great-uncle mastered the uproar.

"Make sail, Martin!"

Coupeau had reloaded his guns, and the James fired a second broadside with the same crushing unanimity as before. The Walrus receded as if our fire had had the effect of physically repelling her from us. Clouds of smoke came between the ships, and I perceived that we were benefiting from the severing of the anchor-cable. The ebb tide was already sweeping us down the anchorage toward the open sea.

The Walrus shot off another ragged broadside, which for the most part splashed water or scattered mud, and then settled to a pegging chase, the Long Toms on her fo'csle barking fitfully as they tossed the twelve-pound shot athwart our decks. Our guns were silent. Our gundeck spewed forth men, whom Martin hustled to the yards to shake out every sail to catch the errant wind that veered gustily from southeast to southwest.

Colonel O'Donnell waved his fist at my great-uncle.

"What madness will have taken ye now, Murray?" he cried. "There was the grand chance we had to finish the rascals once and for all. Are ye feared of them that ye turn tail—you that ha' struck first blow, aye, and second, too?"

"Not at all, sir," returned my great-uncle. "Having struck first blow and second blow, as you so aptly phrase it, I am of a mind to strike also the coup de grace. And this with as trifling damage to my own vessel as is possible."

"Man, you'll never have another such chance as that ye just cast away," moaned the Irishman.

"For a soldier, chevalier, you reveal astonishing lack of judgment," returned my great-uncle. "Had I remained to finish conclusions with Captain Flint in the narrow space of anchorage I might conceivably have gained the victory, but it must have been by means of subordinating brains to brawn, and with loss in proportion thereto. I prefer to force him to sea, where, by maneuvering and proper strategy, I can secure the same object at a half or a third of the cost."

"'Tis all the same," retorted O'Donnell. "If ye sink him, ye lose his treasure."

"Quite true," assented Murray. "But what would you say to driving him ashore, eh?"

What O'Donnell would have answered to this I know not; for there was a sudden drumming of feet on the deck, and Moira cast herself into his arms.

"Oh, padre," she cried tearfully, "and are ye safe from the cannon? I waked in my bed with their roaring, and it came over me we were on the Santissima Trinidad once more, and poor Senor Nunez, the apothecary, groaning from his death-wound—and him that was looking forward to the quiet end of his days in the little house by Alcantara!

"And then I was thinkin' 'twas all a horrid dream. But the cannon blatted again, and the ship trembled, and there was a shriek at my very door, so out I ran in my shift, and Dimonede, the blackamoor, was lying in his blood on the cabin floor, and Ben Gunn beside him a-praying. And with that I put on me enough clothing for decency's sake, and come to find ye, for my poor bones are chattering with fear, and that's Heaven's truth!"

O'Donnell drew her close.

"There, there, acushla," he said with a tenderness he had only for her. "The worst will be over. There's naught for you to fear."

She reached up and stroked his face.

"Troth, and I was thinking that same if I could but come at you, padre," says she. "But 'tis terrible fearsome to be sleeping by your lone self, and awaken in the midst of a sea-fight."

Her father swore under his breath.

"Ah, 'tis I was the weak, foolish fellow to drag you to such a venture! There'll come a day I must answer—"

She stopped his mouth with her hand.

"As if I'd be anywhere else than just here!"

I turned my head, not wishing to be prying into their affairs, and a quarter-mile astern I saw a jet of flame and heard the smacking report of one of the Walrus' chase-guns.

Moira said something more that I did not hear, and he interrupted her.

"Get ye below, my maid, until we—"

There was a harsh, whistling sound in the air, and the hairs on my head rose up, and on the heels of this came the thud of a shot as it struck timber.

"Close, egad!" commented my great-uncle.

O'Donnell swayed strangely and dropped over his daughter's shoulder.

"Padre!" The dazed grief in her voice was tragical. "Why won't ye stand? Are ye hit? Oh, blessed Virgin, there's no sense left in him! Bob, Master Peter, help me! He's so—so—heavy."

Peter and I jumped to aid her, and Murray was not far behind us. We lowered O'Donnell's tall body to the deck, and I ran for a lanthorn. When I returned with it my great-uncle assumed control of the situation.

"We can feel no blood or broken bones," he said. "Hold your light here by his head, if you please, Robert."

The yellow glow played over the Irishman's long face. His lips were drawn back in what had been a smile; his eyes were fixed and glassy; no pulse beat in his corded throat. Moira crouched beside him, chafing his limp hands and crooning a medley of endearments in English, Irish and Spanish. Murray, opposite her, thrust exploring fingers into the bosom of her father's shirt. A startled look appeared in my great-uncle's lambent eyes, but his features preserved their immobility.

"'Tis useless to cry to him, lass," he said gently. "He doth not answer, you see.'

"But he will!" she protested. 'Sure, ye must soon be finding what is wrong with him, sir. It may be a sup of brandy would bring him round."

"My great-uncle reached across and plucked from her grasp the hand she had been rubbing.

"Come," he said, rising, "we will ask Peter to carry him to his berth, shall we?"

"But—but—we must bring him to!"

"We cannot bring him to," he answered kindly.

She stood up bewildered.

"Not—bring—him—to? But why?"

"Because his heart no longer beats," said my great-uncle. "Quick! Catch her, Robert."

She lay like a tired child in my arms.

"Dead!" she murmured faintly.

"He cannot be dead!" I exclaimed. "There's not a wound on him."

"Neen," said Peter.

He picked up the lanthorn from where I had dropped it on the deck and directed the light upon the upper part of Colonel O'Donnell's head. A blue bruise like a scar was spread across the Irishman's left temple.

"A graze-shot," pronounced Peter. "Der cannonball come dot close. Ja!"

"But the skin is not even broken," I objected.

"Ja, but dot don't matter."

Murray bent over and fingered the bruise.

"Peter is right," he said. "'Twas the concussion affected the brain. I have heard of such a freak shot, but never saw it happen before."

Moira clung to my arm.

"And he is really dead? The padre is really dead? And he unshriven, without a comfort of the Church! Oh, holy saints, be his advocates! Sure, was there ever a crueler end?"

She collapsed in a passion of weeping.

"Conduct her below, Robert," said my great-uncle. "We will follow you."

She suffered me to lead her from the poop without objection, more like a child than ever, sobbing and protesting and repeating the same things over and over again, in an abandonment of grief which only the Irish can attain.

"'Tis you are the kind friend," she stammered when we had reached her stateroom. "And oh, Bob, I have the sore need of you, I that am an orphan in a pirate ship, Troth, I haven't a friend in the wide world unless it be you and Master Coriaer. But I am the bad, selfish girl to be thinking of my own plight, and the father that loved me this moment gone up to Peter's gate, and him without the holy wafer to his lips or so much as a prayer said over him. Ah, what ill deed did we ever do, either one of us, that he should be taken from me so, without a word of parting? The sisters were after saying we must reconcile ourselves to God's mercy, but 'tis little mercy has been shown to me."

I quieted her at last, brought her a swallow of brandy and induced her to lie down.

"I mustn't be crying the way I will have done," she apologized, gulping her sobs. "Himself will be needing all the prayers I can say, and a boiling of candles, too. Do you go on, Bob—only promise you'll not leave me by my lone if there's more fighting. I could never stand to hear the thundering of the cannon after—after—that—and no one by to bid me take heart o' grace."

The gray dawnlight was seeping through the stern windows when I rejoined my great-uncle and Peter in the main cabin. Peter was as placid as ever, puffing industriously at a long clay pipe; but my relative displayed more concern than I remembered to have observed in him at any time in the past.

"I trust you were able to calm the poor lass?" he greeted me. "Stap me, what a sorry business! I'd never have chosen O'Donnell for a traveling companion, but without him I know not what to do. The whole venture—"

He shook his head and stared out the window beside him, clicking the lid of his snuffbox open and shut.

"But we have first to attend to the Walrus," he added presently. "I shall do so with the less reluctance after that last shot. The cursed luck of it! A beaten enemy's blow in the dark, blindfolded, by gad! And to think it must strike down of all the men the one most essential to my schemes. I could— Well, well, no matter! We must triumph over the unexpected. 'Tis the chasm all great leaders must cross to win the final victory."

I found myself somewhat instinctively hostile to his attitude.

"What have you done with Colonel O'Donnell?" I asked coldly.

"Peter carried him to his stateroom. We will give him decent burial when we return to the island. And perhaps some day we can come for him in state with a squadron of king's ships and bear him home to a grave in the land he was exiled from."

My great-uncle's spirits brightened noticeably as he contemplated the picture his words presented.

"Yes, yes," he murmured half to himself. "What O'Donnell could have done surely I can do. Our friends in Avignon will help. And, Robert!"

He turned to me.

"Ah, my boy, this unfortunate incident is my best justification for pressing you in my cause. What should I do without you and Peter? 'Twill be for you two, with Mistress Moira, to establish our connections with the king's agents in France."

"You seem to forget I am no Jacobite," I answered unpleasantly.

"Tut, tut, you shall be as stout a Jacobite as Prince Charles himself."

"Not I."

He smiled.

"We'll leave that to Mistress Moira."

"Maybe you forget der Walrus," interposed Peter.

"Not so, Peter. I shall dispose of the Walrus within the next few hours."

"Andt Gott," added Peter as if Murray had not spoken.

My great-uncle laughed merrily.

"My dear Peter, men of judgment will inform you that there is no God—or, if we concede a God, there is every reason to assign a superior degree of power to the invisible devil representing the opposing virtues of godliness. Indeed, did I incline to bow down before any superhuman authority I should elect Satan by preference. But a ripe experience has inclined me to the view that the devil is as much a figment of men's imagination as God. Since the beginning of recorded time a priestly caste— But here we are drifting into a philosophical discussion; and as you very properly reminded me, the Walrus awaits our attention. Let us go on deck."

"Der wise man don't know efery'ting," answered Peter. "Neen!"

Essentially true," agreed my great-uncle. "I must confess myself ignorant of such staple points as why we are here, the excuse for human existence, the relative significance of this world of ours, the utility of the differing qualities of goodness and evil. But any serious consideration, friend Peter, must convince as profound a thinker as yourself that the very existence of men and women is of itself prima-facie evidence that there can be no Divine Author of omnipotent or sentient powers."

"We better go on deck," said Peter.

"After you," protested my relative, as he rose. "'Tis a pleasure to debate with you, Peter. Take care, pray! Gunn has not removed all of the evidence of Dimonede's passing. Strange, is it not, how a black fellow like Dimonede and a man who hath been the confidant of princes, like O'Donnell, should both be abolished by a simple organic disruption? That alone, Peter, should suffice to disprove the humbug of an all-wise Providence. An all-wise Providence, forsooth! Here am I arranging to reconstruct for the better a most unhappy trio of kingdoms, with consequences bound to improve the well-being of the entire world, and my plan is suffered to be placed in jeopardy by an ignorant sailor's blind shot in the dark! What could be more absurd?"

WOLF CHILDREN

In the pioneer days of the Puget Sound district in Washington, two children seven and ten years of age, walking through a heavily timbered district on their way home from a country school were startled by a cougar hopping out of the brush beside the road and picking the seven year old boy up by the collar of his jacket and walking along, carrying him like a cat carrying her kittens. The other boy, badly frightened but trying to resue his brother, ran along side of the cougar, caught him by the hair of the neck, and hammered him over the head with his tin lunch bucket. After a little of this treatment the cougar dropped the boy in the road and with a spring sideways disappeared in the brush.

In regard to animals stealing andrearing children. Sir William B. Fuller, British scientist, in his book, "The Science of Ourselves," makes the statement that in India children are frequently carried off by wolves but not killed. During eighty years at least nine of these children have been rescued from their wolf fostr-parents. He states that he saw two of the children who were rescued from the wolves when they grew too large to enter the burrows. Neither of them showed any trace of human manners. They ran on all fours. They had no articulate speech. And they preferred the society of dogs to that of men. Even long subsequent association with human beings effected no change he said.

A wolf-child rescued in the Agra district of India was kept in the Secundra Missionary Asylum from 1907 to 1895. He was discovered sitting in company of a wolf at the entrance to a burrow. During his 28 years stay in the asylum he never attained a completely erect position. He never learned to speak and his sole accomplishment was that he came to use his fingers in eating instead of wolfing his food. —By H. S. Van Trump, in Adventure Magazine.

F. H. PEARCE FATALLY HURT IN GIN ACCIDENT

The following account of the injury and death of F. A. Pearce, formerly of this city, is taken from a Ralls, Texas, paper:

One of the saddest accidents in the history of this country was enacted last Saturday about 12:30 o'clock at the Dodgen Gin near the Caprock south of Ralls when T. H. Pearce was injured in the packer, from which injuries he died at 7:30 Sunday evening.

It is an automatic packer and had gotten stopped up in some manner where the cotton sides into the press and quit functioning. Mr. Pearce was up leaning over the edge of the box and in some manner must have thrown the trip. The packer came down, catching his shoulders and his breast between the packer and the press box. It mashed his body into a space approximately 2 or 3 inches wide and it was indeed remarkable that death was not instantaneous.

Ben A. Dodgen was up on the second floor assisting in operating the gin stands. He says he apparently had a presentment that something was wrong and walked toward the front of the gin; he saw the packer coming down and Mr. Pearce's predicament—but too late to avoid the accident. Mr. Dodgen ran for the engine room, cut off the steam and then back up to extricate Mr. Pearce. He had no idea but that he was dead, but after being pulled out in a few minutes he grasped and began breathing. He was brought to his home in Ralls by Dr. Haney and W. D. Watkins who went out to the gin immediately upon receipt of the accident of the news and lived until Sunday evening.

Funeral services were held at the residence Monday afternoon, Rev. M. S. Leveridge officiating, interment occuring in the Ralls cemetery. The deceased is survived by the wife and three daughters, besides numerous other relatives. Out of town relatives here to attend the funeral were: J. H. McKown, Crowell, Texas; Mrs. Clint White, Crowell; T. R. Pearce, and son, Keith of Plainview; Mrs. Charlie Hunter, Crowell.

Mr. Pearce was forty-eight years of age and had resided, with his estimable family, in Ralls the past two or three years. He was an honest, upright, hard-working man, attended strictly to his own affairs and had many friends who appreciated his friendship. The Banner joins the many friends of the family in extending sincere sympath in their great bereavement.—Ralls, Texas.

IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Means Hostess to Christian Ladies Aid.

The Christian Ladies' Aid was entertained Thursday afternoon, October 7, by Mrs. Means, who also had charge of the program which was very interesting.

After the Lord's prayer, repeated in unison, the ladies read the 103rd Psalm. Portions of scripture, previously arranged, were then read and commented upon, and each lady told her favorite Bible story.

At the business session it was decided to hold a bazaar during the American Legion Armistice carnival. The plans of this are to be announced later. The hostess served a plate lunch to ten members and guests.

Friday Afternoon Bridge Club.

The Friday afternoon Bridge Club met Friday afternoon from 2:30 until 5 with Mrs. Fred Luper. The members enjoyed Bridge at two tables.

Mrs. H. H. Buchanan held high score at the close of the game and received a hand embroidered apron, as a prize. Mrs. Luper in her own unassuming yet attractive manner served a dainty plate lunch before the going away hour.

Mrs. Mears Entertains.

Mrs. T. E. Mears was hostess on Thursday at one o'clock to a few friends. The affair was given in honor of Mrs. Myers of Richmond, Va. who was a house guest of Mrs. C. V. Harris. Mrs. Mears served four courses of appetizing food.

Those present were: Mrs. G. W. Carr, Mrs. John V. Mauk, Mrs. Fred Luper, Mrs. N. F. Wollard, Mrs. C. V. Harris, Mrs. H. F. Jones, Mrs. Arthur Jones, and Mrs. Myers.

Mrs. Myers left Saturday for her home in Virginia. She had stopped over a few days in Portaes on her way home from Los Angeles, where she had attended a Y. W. C. A. meeting.

An Interesting Visitor.

Miss Sue J. Reed of Chicago, is the house guest of Miss Helen Lindsey. Miss Reed was Miss Helen's god-mother, named her and held her while she was christened. She was a close friend of the late Mrs. Dean Lindsey, and she and Mrs. Lindsey taught school together in Chicago before Mrs. Lindsey's marriage.

Miss Reed is quite an interesting person. She taught for thirty years in Junior High school in Chicago and is now on the pension list, drawing $1000 a year from the funds of the Chicago schools. She has just returned from a tour of the world, spending a year and six months on the trip.

Miss Reed is a very interesting talker, for she knows so many interesting subjects. She will leave the last of the week for a visit with Miss Myrtle Plant at Albuquerque.

Mr. Sager, of Sager's Variety stores here and at Clovis has been with the Portales store for the past week.

Miss Thelma Pearce entertained Thursday evening with three tables of bridge. Mrs. Bessie Murray won high score for the ladies and Ray Bonner for the men. After the games a dainty one course luncheon was served to: Misses Clovis Garrett, Betty Thrailkill, Marjorie Pearce, Ilene Norris, Allie Warnica, Stella Pruitt, Mrs. Chesterr Richardson, Mrs. Holderman, Mrs. Bessie Murray and Messrs Ray Bonner, Howard Fletcher, Leonard Westerman and Eugene Fields.

C. W. NORWOOD OPENS A TAILOR SHOP HERE

Overdoing?

Hurry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

They Say---

"If the government really wan to do something for the farmer the cotton farmer—it can do not ing better than to spend severa million dollars for cotton than take it out and dump it in the middle of the ocean," thinks J. H. Lee, Portales cotton man.

"I guess I spent more time answering questions concerning Carl Magee, Fall and Judge Lehay than I did about anything else," said Coe Howard upon his return from the Texas-Oklahoma fair at Wichita Falls the first of the week. "People from all parts of the country showed a great interest in and a much greater ignorance of New Mexico affairs than I thought existed," is the way the Portales man summed up the situation.

Colonel Priddy believes that the farmers of Roosevelt county would find it profitable to engage in feeding lambs. The grain crop, which is bringing such ridiculously low price this fall, could thus be diverted and would bring a good return, saving the farmer much labor and expense. Lambs always bring a good price and in the larger cities of the east the demand for lamb chops and other cuts, is great. Thousands of dollars each year would be brought into the county through this industry, both for the dry land and irriyated farmers.

CATTLE DIPPING

I will have charge of the Sanitary Board dipping vat located on the Conley Ranch, 28 miles southeast of Portales; 5 miles northwest of Causey, after October 26, 1926. Bring your cattle. There is room to keep them over night.

The dipping prices are 40 cents for two dippings. I am not trying to make money out of the dipping but if we are to move our cattle we are forced to dip them. I have letters from the governor of New Mexico and from the chief inspector of Texas, and I am no longer fighting the Sanitary Board.

This dipping is up to you and I think we farmers who want to sell a few cattle should dip them while we have the chance to sell them. For further information see,

Faulty Elimination

Should Be Corrected—Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health

If you would be well, see to your elimination. Faulty kidney action permits toxic material to remain in the blood and upset the whole system. Then, one is apt to have a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, a toxic backache or headache, and often some irregularity of secretions, such as scanty or burning passages. More and more people are acclaiming the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. For more than forty years Doan's have been winning favor the country over. Ask your neighbor!

FLOYD SCHOOL NOTES

School will close Tuesday, November 2, for the rest of the week in order that the teachers may attend the State Teachers' Association meeting at Santa Fe, and the pupils will be busy in the harvest work.

Olen Terrell is reported building himself a new chicken house. Olen is getting in line with the other boy farmers of Floyd and learning to make a living early in life.

Miss Bertie Foster, who was a member of the Floyd faculty last year, left this week for Canyon, Texas, where she will attend West Texas Teachers' college to complete study for her A. B. degree.

Sixty new volumes of fiction were added to the Floyd school library this week.

The truck service at Floyd this year is something of an experiment. We have no regular mechanics but the student drivers are getting along very well under the instructions given by Mr. Lang and some help from Mr. Hatcher. The trucks were all overhauled before school opened, seven were equiped with new motors and all were equipped with new casings. Five of the trucks were neither absent nor tardy during the past month.

A high school orchestra was organized the first of this week under the direction of Miss Belle, the new home economics teacher from state college. Mabel Morrison was elected president and Raleigh Depuy, secretary. It was an enthusiastic bunch that reported for orchestra work.

We do not want anyone to miss seeing the play, "To the Ladies," October 27. It will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, so the school children will have a chance to see it. The admission will be forty cents for adults, and special rates are made for season tickets.

Sophomore News

The sophomores are busy studying this week as Thursday and Friday exams will be the end of the first six weeks of school. We hope it will be the beginning of good grades for all of us.

If you see a sophomore who wants a real good place to go to school, send him to Floyd, because our class has been somewhat interrupted by recent marriages. However, we think the rest will live to be old maids and bachelors.

BRACKEN SAY'S

It is a mighty good idea to have you battery overhauled, or looked after before winter sets in.

A battery in a run down condition cannot hold up under cold weather.

By having your battery examined NOW, at Bracken's Battery Shop, you may be saved many dollars later, as well as troubles and delays caused by battery failure.

A good battery is well worth taking care of, but if neglected, will be headed rapidly to the junk pile.

PORTALES LOSES HARD FOUGHT GAME

The Portales High Rams met a big suprise in the Texico-Farwell foot-ball team. The game was called at two-thirty and Texico kicked off to Portales. Portales made two first downs before the T. and F. boys held them for four downs and Bostick's punt was blocked. The Texico boys marched to the three yard line where Portales made a great stand and held Texico for four downs. Bostick punted from behind his own goal line to the Texico safety who returnel ten yards. In four plays Texico went across for a touch down. Texico's other scores were made via a place kick in the third quarter and a touch down in the fourth period. The game ended Texico 17 and Portales 0.

They will need all their courage to go through this night for they will be forced to go through many ordeals.

Grandad Tollett's barn is beginning to look like a new improvement by this time.

A large number of folks were disappointed last Sunday morning when no preacher came. The roads must have been too bad for Bro. Rutledge. Those who gathered for service held a short song service in practicing for Sunday school and church.

Miss Aline Morrison, clerk at the Inez Mercantile company, was in Lubbock recently to have new glasses fitted.

The Roller Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. committees are making a collection of one hen from each home which they expect to sell and use the proceeds for the purchase of a good organ.

Mr. and Mrs. Buret Fitzgerad and itte son, of Anderson county, Texas, were guests at the R. M. Harding home Sunday. Mrs. Fitzgerad is Mrs. Harding's niece.

The farmers around here are very busy (between showers) harvesting their crops. If the weather will stay nice for a couple of weeks now it will please us all very much.

B. J. Gates has purchased a new truck which he decares can see better than he can. As he was bringing it home it quit the road and into the bank. He said he didn't see a thing in the road for it to get scared at.

Ollie Blakeley Buell and Inez Harding visited Mr. and Mrs. Man Clark Sunday.

CHEVROLET COUP WON BY BABE RUTH CLOUT

Babe Ruth not only won everlasting base ball renown with his trio of home run swats in the fourth game of the World Series played in St. Louis, but he also won a Chevrolet.

One of the circuit clouts crashed through the plate glass window of an automobile salesroom near the Cardinal park and bounded off the side of a Chevrolet coupe on display inside. In acknowledgement of his feat the Bambino was presented with the coupe. The picture shows him beside the car, holding the home run base ball.

"Times have changed," said Ruth with a broad grin. "Some years ago it would have been a serious offense for any of us to break a window with a base ball. Now it brings a new automobile."

BARNES CIRCUS

The announcement of Al. G. Barnes 4 Ring Circus appears in this issue. The coming of this organization is welcome news, as the Al. G. Barnes Circus is one that always presents a clean, wholesome and entertaining program.

This year, according to announcements, the circus has been greatly enlarged, and in addition to the all new spectacle of Pocahontas at the Court of Queen Anne with the enormous cast, selected from the 1080 employees, other new features are: 180 horses in one big act. The Fez-Ton Tribe of Arabs from the Sahara Desert, their first visit to America. The Canton Troupe of Chinese Circus Artists. The Imperial Midget Family from Bavaria, Joe Martin (himself), The Giant Gorilla Man, Lotus, the only performing hippopotamus in the world, and the Famous Exclusive Al. G. Barnes Feature; 40 Dancing Horses and 40 Dancing Girls, and Al. G. Barnes appears in person at each performance.

Owing to the enormous size of the circus this year, the management announces that no street parade will be given in any city visited, however, in place of the omitted procession, a mammoth Open Air Free Exhibition will take place on the show grounds at 1:00 and 7:00 p. m., immediately preceding the opening of the doors to the circus, and the largest traveling managerie in the world, comprising over 400 rare animals from all quarters of the earth.

The circus performance starts promptly at 2:00 and 8:00 p. m. Ample parking space for autos is reserved on the show grounds.

KENNA NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Murrell attended the cotton carnival at Roswell last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Clubb, accompanitd by Miss Ethel Matkin, motored to Roswell and Dexter last week where they visited relatives. They returned to Kenna Monday.

Mrs. Florence Denton and Daughter, Miss Alden Lee, were visitors in Portales Sunday.

Mrs. W. L. Sears and children, and Misses Theola Ila and Grace Farmer, motored to Roswell Saturday for the carnival.

Mrs. J. H. Crouch and little daughter, Helen, accompanied by Miss Velma Walker of Elida, spent Friday and part of Saturday in Roswell.

Kenna folks are rejoicing ofer the few days of sunshine and hoping it may continue for a while.

A number of school children are being kept out of school to help with the harvesting of the crops. This is a bad idea, as the children get behind with their school work, and those in their classes who stay in school push ahead, which causes thosoe who have been out to lose much interest in the class work and their studies. It is unfair to the child to kef it out of school.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Fry are planning on moving to Roswell in the near future. Mr. Fry has purchased property there.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Case of Portales, stopped here a short while Monday, enroute to Roswell.

IN SOCIETY

Friday Bridge Club.

Mrs. T. A. Martin was hostess to the Friday afternoon Bridge Club at her home on State Street, Friday afternoon from 2:30 to 4.

The ladies enjoyed the game of Bridge at two tables until 4, when Mrs. Martin served a delectable, hot plate lunch. Mrs. Edwin Neer won high score and was presented with a beautiful lace doilie as the prize.

Mrs. Krattli Entertains.

Mrs. W. Krattli was hostess to a number of friends on Monday afternoon from 2 to 4 honoring her brothers wife, Mrs. F. A. McCoy, who has spent the summer here. Those present were close friends of Mrs. McCoy.

The time was pleasantly spent in conversation and before the going away hour, Mrs. Krattli and Mrs. McCoy served delicious ice cream and wafers.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. White entertained with a seven o'clock dinner last Wednesday evening, the occasion being Mrs. White's birthday. Everything that could be wished for a birthday dinner was served to Miss Sue Reed, Chicago; Miss Helen Lindsey and Mr. Lacy Armstrong. During the dinner Miss Reed entertained with accounts of her recent trip to various foreign countries.

Choir Party at Methodist Church.

Tuesday evening at the Methodist church the members of the choir surprised their past pianist, Mrs. A. W. Freeman and their present one Miss Irma Belle Smith with a little party.

At the conclusion of the practice hour, Mrs. Krattli, the director introduced Rev. Thurston, who made a talk for the choir, expressed their appreciation of the work of the former pianist, Mrs. Freeman. Mrs. Freeman resigns on account of her mothers health, at whose side she must remain constantly. Mrs. Freeman was presented with a sheet of music.

Rev. Thurston also expressed appreciation of the choir to Miss Irma Belle Smith the present pianist, who is so effecient and faithful.

After the talk cocoa, sandwiches and cake was served and the crowd enjoyed a social hour.

Rev. and Mrs. Thurston, Entertain the Board of Stewards.

Rev. and Mrs. Thurston were host and hostess on Monday evening at a beautifully appointed 6 o'clock dinner at which the members of the Board of Stewads of the Methodist church were the guests. The fuests were seated at one long table, in the center of which was a lovely bouquet of yelloy and white flowers. The menu was :Turkey and all the extra that make it irresistable, cooked as only Mrs. Thurston knows how, to say it was delicious is putting it mildly.

Miss Mary Alice Waltom and Miss Floy Thurston served and did it credibly.

Those present were: G. W. Carr, E. N. Smith, E. N: Wheeler, F: R. Meador, W. Krattil, Mr. and Mrs. J: W: King, J: G: Greaves, Mrs. W. E. Daniels, Mrs: J: G. Cox, J. F. Holder, A. W. Freeman, and H. E. Taylor. After dinner poard held their business meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Spires Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Spires entertained a number of their friends at their beautiful home on Monday evening with a six o'clock dinner. The house was a bower of autumn flowers in yellow and white and the same colors were carried out in the table decorations and menu. The nut cups were yellow roses, and the favors for the ladies yellow pumpkins, and for the men, automobiles.

The menu was turkey and all that goes with it. The evening was spent in playing 42 and at the conclusion of the game the high scores were, for the ladies, Mrs. Hughs. She was presented with a beautiful lemon fork. Mr. A. C. Browne won high score for the men and was presented with a bottle of hair restorer. This was not very appropriate for Mr. Browne, as he has only been married only a few months, however the hostess in presenting the prize told him she believed in preparedness. It was thought that either Mr. Spires or Mr. Carr would win this prize and it had been purchased with that idea in view. It was a merry evening and all the guests hopes to return soon.

Those invited were: Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Means, Mr. and Mrs. Ike Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Forrest, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luper, Mr. and Mrs. James Christoe, Mrs. Bishop who was guest of honor and D. D. Tucker.
