HUGH BUTLER NAMED IN MURDER WARRANT

Wichita Commissioners Vote 75-Cent Tax Rate, And Cut Expenses

COUNTY HEADS REFUSE TO RAISE LEVY

Bond Funds Increased By Reductions Made In General Rate

SCHEDULE REVISED

Barnett Submits Second Report for Final Vote On Tax

The county commissioners court Monday afternoon voted to hold the 1929 tax rate to 75 cents on the $100 valuation, the same figure in effect during the past year. The rate assures the county a $382,000 income on a $60,000,000 estimated valuation, according to computations in the auditor's office, based on an 85 per cent collection of assessments.

Schedule Revised

The commissioners stuck fast to the old rate in a persistent opposition to a 10-cent suggested increase and set the figures about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon upon the basis of a revised schedule prepared by Paul Barnett, county auditor. While the total rate remains unchanged, radical changes have been made in the apportionment of the available money among the various county funds in an effort to avoid an increase and at the same time to prepare for financial difficulties ahead.

The court had been warned in the original statement from Mr. Barnett that special road funds No. 1 and No. 2 would be facing a deficit in 1931 unless their apportionment was raised. By slicing into other funds, among them the general operating fund, the commissioners managed by the new schedule to put more money into the needy departments and yet avoid an increased rate.

It was M. A. Bundy, commissioner from precinct 1, which includes Wichita Falls, who made the motion that the revised schedule be accepted by the court Monday afternoon, the new plans embodying ideas already set forth by the commissioners. H. H. Haynes seconded him, and the motion carried without an opposing vote, ending a discussion which began several weeks ago when the first hint of the possible necessity of an increase was heard among county officials.

Bond Funds Provided

The plan adopted gives to special road fund No. 2 a 14 cent levy as compared with the present 8 cent rate. Figures compiled by T. W. McHam, county treasurer, show that the 14 cent figure will leave $49,830 in the fund after the annual 1931 principal and interest payments are made. A 3½ cent raise of the levy of road refunding bonds No. 1, bringing the total of 5 cents, is also voted and will result in a small surplus in that

Two Armored Car Bandits Linked in West Texas 'Jobs'

Woman Wanted in Lubbock and Tahoka Holdup Among Four Held in Birmingham for New Orleans Police

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 22. (AP)—The arrests of four persons in connection with last week's $42,000 armored car holdup in New Orleans and identification of two others with robberies in Texas and Georgia were affected today.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cascio, Shreveport, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Robertson, Hornersville, Mo., were arrested for New Orleans authorities.

Cascio was sleeping with a machine gun beneath his pillow when Superintendent M. E. McDuff and two detectives entered the hotel room he and his companions occupied.

Both denied connection with any robbery. A telegram from Monroe, La., police said Cascio is wanted there although the charge was not given.

Mrs. Delois Walker, who was arrested here June 29 on a vagrancy charge, while at the wheel of an expensive automobile, was identified as the woman who held up a Tahoka, Texas, bank and a jewelry store at Lubbock, in the same state. She defaulted the $20,000 bond deposited in the latter case, McDuff said. She waived extradition and Texas authorities were reported en route for her.

Ernest Smith, alias Bob Conway, was identified from records of the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., as the robber who held up a bank in Aragon, Ga., mill in which a murder was committed. He said he was from Decatur, Ala., and had never been in Aragon.

TAHOKA SHERIFF GOES TO BIRMINGHAM

LUBBOCK, Texas, July 22. (AP)—Sheriff Sam Sanford of Tahoka will leave for Birmingham, Ala., tomorrow to return Mrs. Delois Walker, wanted at Tahoka for a drug store robbery, to Texas.

Sheriff Sanford said that he did not know how much money was obtained in the robbery, but that it was a "tidy sum."

There is no record of a robbery of a jewelry store here. Dispatches from Birmingham said that police were holding someone wanted for such a robbery, but local authorities could not remember any such robbery.

TWO SLAIN IN DUAL SHOOTING

San Angelo Woman Kills Husband and Self

SAN ANGELO, Texas, July 22. (AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hourahan, Dallas, were killed in a shooting in a local hotel late today.

Police said Mrs. Hourahan shot her husband and turned the gun on herself. Hourahan was dead when bystanders reached him, and his wife died a few minutes later at a hospital.

The family came here from Dallas 10 days ago. He was employed in the construction of a building here.

Justice of the Peace B. W. Smith, after an investigation, announced that Mrs. Hourahan had shot her husband and then committed suicide. Letters found in the hotel room where the shooting took place indicated that she had been upbraiding her husband for "chasing around with other women."

Little is known of the couple here as they have had very little to say to other occupants of the hotel. A pass book from a Detroit, Mich., bank was among their things.

Property Owners on Ohio Avenue Seek Reduction in City Valuations

Declaring that the valuation of property on Ohio avenue had not been reduced for the last five years while income from the property had shown a marked decrease, J. L. Jackson, representing property owners on that avenue, presented an appeal to the city council at its meeting Monday night at the Memorial auditorium for reconsideration of the values placed on the lots by the board of equalization recently.

Mr. Jackson stated that the board of equalization had granted a 10 per cent reduction but that the property owners felt that a greater reduction was justified by the present conditions. The reduction made by the board applied to Ohio avenue between Sixth and Ninth streets, Mr. Jackson said, and formed a 10 per cent reduction on the 100 per cent value of the property. It was also stated that the ground value per lot on Ohio was about $15,000 while that per lot on Indiana was approximately twice as great, and in some cases three, four and five times as great.

It was pointed out by Thelbert Martin, city attorney, that the charter of the city specifies that the decision of the board of equalization shall be final, even though that board is appointed by the council. Following a lengthy discussion of the matter, the council

SOVIET BLOCKS FRENCH PLANS

Russia Declines Offer For Mediation

MOSCOW, July 22 (AP)—The Soviet government tonight announced it had declined an offer by France to mediate in the Manchurian conflict.

This action was said to be due to refusal of the Chinese authorities to restore the status quo on the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria as demanded in the Soviet note of July 13.

The Soviet note of July 13 to answer which China was given three days, demanded three things, one was that a conference be called immediately to regulate all phases of the dispute, another that the Chinese authorities immediately cancel "all arbitrary orders" regarding the railway, and lastly that all Soviet citizens arrested should be released immediately and Soviet citizens and institutions protected henceforth.

The Chinese answered just within the three days, with two demands calling for the release of all Chinese imprisoned in Russia and adequate protection for Chinese nationals.

Following delivery of this note, which was held to be unsatisfactory in Moscow, Russia broke off diplomatic relations with China and the latter took similar action on the following day.

CHINA AGAIN ASKS SETTLEMENT

(By The Associated Press)

The Russian-Chinese trouble over Manchuria seemed to have entered a quiescent phase with reports from Nanking that the Nationalist government had dispatched a new note to Moscow reiterating China's desire to settle dispute by peaceful negotiations. The Moscow government disclosed that France had offered to mediate but that it could not be accepted because the Chinese refused to restore the status quo on the Chinese Eastern railway as a preliminary to negotiations.

Neutral observers in Peking, who assembled a wide range of information on the Manchurian question, reached the conclusion that there had been no clashes between Chinese and Russian troops on the frontier.

COURT DROPS SUIT AGAINST C. E. GOODWIN

Archer County Sheriff Held Justified in Arrest Of Suspect

PLAINTIFF TO APPEAL

Martin Denies Man's Claim For $10,000 on Alleged False Arrest

In instructing a verdict for the defendant in W. S. Powell's damage suit against C. E. Goodwin, Archer county sheriff, Judge P. A. Martin Monday afternoon added his commendation of the law enforcement efforts of Wichita and Archer county officers to his ruling that the sheriff had a right to arrest Powell without a warrant in the circumstances described in the testimony.

Plaintiff to Appeal

Judge Martin brought the trial to an abrupt conclusion just as the testimony for the plaintiff was concluded. The instructed verdict, orally given came without a motion from either side. Bob Crain, attorney for Powell, immediately took exception to the action of the court and gave notice of appeal.

Powell was seeking $10,000 from the Archer county sheriff in connection with an alleged false arrest here last December. The plaintiff told the jury that he had been awakened from his bed, arrested without a warrant, and held in the Archer county jail without an opportunity to make bond. He testified that he had subsequently lost his job as an oil field worker and had been unable to obtain regular employment since the arrest.

Through cross-examination of plaintiff witnesses, the defense attempted to show that Sheriff Goodwin had reason to believe that a

Gilmore Too Busy to Think Of Governor's Race, He Says

Railroad Commission Chairman "Appreciates" Friends' Kindness, But Says Decision Must Come Later

Statewide rumors to the effect that Clarence E. Gilmore, chairman of the state railroad commission, will be candidate for the office of governor in the next state election, were neither confirmed nor denied Monday night by Mr. Gilmore, who is in the city in connection with hearings on oil and gas division cases in this territory.

Mr. Gilmore admitted that numerous friends in many sections of the state have "been kind enough to urge" him to consider making the gubernatorial race, but stated that he has given the matter no consideration whatever, owing to the fact that affairs of the commission which he heads demand his entire time and attention. He expressed appreciation, however, of the consideration implied by the requests made of him, and said that any decision relative to the matter "must wait until a later date."

Oil-Gas Hearings

Hearings being held at the chamber of commerce here are before Mr. Gilmore and R. D. Parker, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division. Numerous witnesses were called before the two officials Monday to give testimony relative to alleged use of excessive vacuum "pull" on wells in Young and Wichita counties, and unnecessary waste of natural gas in the Nocona field in Montague county. In the former two cases, Mr. Gilmore said, the hearing is an investigation, and no findings will be made at this time.

The Nocona field offers a peculiar problem, it was said, in that in certain portions the strata containing gas and oil lie so close together as to render exceedingly difficult the production of oil without the escape of much gas. The commission's purpose in this hearing, it was said, is to aid in devising some method for successfully shutting off the flow of gas in such wells. The investigation of the Nocona field will continue Tuesday morning.

Guest at Luncheon

Conservation of oil and gas in the Winkler county fields also will occupy the attention of the commissioners Tuesday morning, it was announced. Few witnesses are expected here in this case, as an adjourned hearing has been set for Fort Worth on Wednesday for the convenience of many prospective witnesses to whom that city is more accessible, Mr. Gilmore said.

Mr. Gilmore was entertained Monday noon at the Wichita club at luncheon with a group of friends and associates of earlier days, when he was owner of the Times in this city. Those present, besides Mr. Gilmore were W. M. McGregor, J. S. Bridwell, A. H. Britain, T. L. Coplin, Ed Howard, Judge J. T. Montgomery, and R. D. Parker.

General Calles Refuses to Answer All Questions While in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, July 22. (AP)—Bound for Europe and "in search of health," Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, passed through San Antonio today, declining to make any statement other than that he is taking a vacation at his doctor's orders.

Riding in the Mexico secretary of war's private car, the former president left for northeast Texas over the Missouri Pacific after a 20-minute stay in San Antonio.

General Calles answered all questions as to the purpose of his trip with:

"I am in search of health."

He said he would go as directly as possible to Paris, returning to Mexico when his doctors give their permission. A physician, Dr. Raseca Margo, accompanied General Calles.

During the short stay in San Antonio the general was greeted by the mayor and commissioners as well as leaders of loyal Mexican organizations and attaches to the general consular office. About 350 persons were in the station and after greeting the crowd from the rear platform of his car, General Calles alighted, shaking hands with "sons of Mexico" students.

Members of the general's party said the train would go directly to St. Louis without further stops, passing through Texarkana.

General Calles refused to discuss a murder indictment against him in Laredo, Texas, and would answer no question other than those pertaining to his trip. To all other queries he replied:

"I have absolutely nothing to say."

WICHITA MAN ESCAPES FROM DALLAS JAIL

Former Store Official Here Sought in Five Texas Cities

SAWS BARS OF CELL

Man Accused in Silver's Store Robbery Wins Way to Freedom

Warrant for the arrest of Hugh D. Butler, former acting assistant manager of Silver's store here, on a charge of murder has been received by the sheriff's department here from Limestone county, it was revealed Monday by Warren W. Belcher, deputy. Butler is at liberty under bonds of $2,000 here on theft and burglary indictments returned by the last grand jury in connection with the robbery of the store's safe of more than $700.

Case Reversed

The Wichita Falls man escaped from the Dallas county jail some time Sunday night, according to advices received here Monday morning, and is now being sought by Dallas officers for breaking jail and for questioning in connection with recent robberies in that city. While the warrant received here from Limestone county for Butler's arrest failed to give details of the charge against him, officers said they understood it was in connection with charges previously filed against him in connection with the deaths of two men at Groesbeck. Butler was tried for the slaying of one of the men and given 99 years in the penitentiary, according to dispatches to The Record News. The case was reversed and remanded on appeal, however, and on his second trial, at Hillsboro in Hill county, he was acquitted. The warrant received here is in connection with the death of the second man, it was understood.

Butler was arrested by officers at Breckenridge several weeks ago at the request of members of the city police department, the former store official being sought in connection with a fusillade of shots from a house on Taylor street which resulted in the wounding of a Wichita Falls woman who was visiting in an adjacent house. When taken into custody by Breckenridge officers, several money bags bearing the name of the Silver's store were found. Subsequently, the store reported that its safe had been robbed of more than $700 in cash.

Jury Indicts Two

Hub Stanley, arrested at Breckenridge with Butler in connection with the Taylor street shooting, was returned to Wichita Falls with Butler, and both were later indicted by the grand jury on charges of theft and burglary in connection with the Silver's robbery. No indictments were returned by the grand jury in connection with the shooting.

The warrant received by the sheriff's department here was signed by Sheriff George P. Simmons of Limestone county.

WORST PRISON RIOT QUELLED

Notorious Kraemers Lead 1,200 in Bloody Fight

DANNEMORA, N. Y., July 22. (US)—In a five-hour fight for freedom, more than 1,300 convicts in Clinton prison stormed the walls today, overcoming some of the guards and higher officials. The riot was not quelled until three of the rebels were shot and killed and almost a score wounded by machine gun and rifle fire.

The rebellion, which was asserted to be the most desperate in the history of the state, was fomented and directed by a group of convicts facing terms as long as to include the rest of their natural lives. The ring leaders were Jacob and Leon Kraemer, who were sentenced to 40 years as the masterminds of the notorious Whittemore gang of murderers and holdup men. Milton Goldberg, another member of the same mob, participated in the rebellion.

Under the direction of the Kraemers, who had boasted that they would shoot their way through the walls of any prison, a veritable regiment of the most calloused convicts in the country battled with the guards. Clinton is the receiving station for long-term felons of the most dangerous type from New York and other big cities. The operations of the Baumes law in the last year swelled the prison population to capacity and beyond the recognized limit of safety. The convicts captured in Cowboy Tessler's band were there and several of the Cry Baby bandits from the metropolis and many more as infamous.

The crisis in the conflict came when swarms of prisoners, shouting like maniacs, reached the foot of the exterior walls and sought to scale them by forming human pyramids in military fashion. Bullets and the butts of rifles in the hands of guards destroyed the rude formation. Again and again, in the heat and light of the blazing buildings back of them, the felons surged to the walls and struggled to reach the top. Again and again, they were driven back.

Then as abruptly as the outbreak began it subsided. Groups and gangs suddenly threw up their hands in signal of surrender. The base of the wall was cleared. The felons lined up and requested permission to return to their cells. Under the muzzles of rifles, the guards lined them up and led them back. The riot was over.

CARLSBAD CAVERN ROUTE DELEGATES HOLD MEETING IN ALTUS

HOW TO CROSS A CROSSING

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 22. (US)—Sunday drivers have also made Monday a day of rest.

On Monday they rest in hospitals.

We have been advising these bouncing puddle-jumpers and detouring maniacs that they are making America a land of broken hearts and busted fenders.

But no man is so blind as he who will not look. And no man so deaf as he who refuses to hear the other fellow's honk-honk.

Even under the most pleasant sunlight and the best sanitary conditions, a grade crossing is the unhealthiest veranda in the world.

That's where all the accidents seem to occur on Sundays. So before crossing the railroad tracks you should come to a full boulevard stop.

Get out of your car and see the general passenger agent, ask him when the westbound milk train is due.

He will tell you that they expect it Tuesday, will look for it Thursday and will not be surprised if it got there Friday.

That means the westbound track is clear for a couple of days unless the engineer finds some eggs and goes in for a little nogging.

Thank the general passenger agent as courteously as your education permits. Then request to be directed to the general baggage agent.

No matter what condition your trunk is in you will find that all baggage agents are very fine citizens. They imagine that the outline of history was written on a complaint blank.

But, outside of that, they are gentle and kind. And also have at least seven answers for one question.

Ask the impresario of luggage for the exact moment at which the eastbound express whizzes forth on its errand of mercy.

He will look at his schedule and inform you that the eastbound passenger train has become so popular that service has been discontinued until further notice.

Therefore, both the east and west bound tracks are clear for Sunday. Tip your hat in the general direction of the general baggage connoisseur and then go back to your motor car.

Wake up the wife and children and inform them that it is perfectly safe to cross the tracks today. Then climb into the driver's seat and grasp the wheel.

Twist the wheel around and go away from there. In other and older words, call your journey over and go back home.

What's the use of crossing railroad tracks unless there is a strong tincture of danger attached?

We want excitement with our crossing. There is nothing more exhilarating than to be sideswiped by a 10-car train and to wake up smiling and happy on a rock-ballasted bed.

There is one grade crossing on Long Island where so many cars are low-bridged by trains that the owner of a filling station advertises that he refuels tanks in mid-air.

GUIN PRAISES NEW HIGHWAY

Possibilities of New Road Are Explained

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., July 22.—The possibilities of making the Carlsbad Cavern highway a federal highway was the principal discussion in the business session of the fourth quarterly meeting of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway association here Monday afternoon.

Delegates were in attendance from various points along the highway from Oklahoma City to El Paso, Texas.

The new highway not only provides a shorter route between these points, but will bring tourists through a new part of Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico never before adequately served by an excellent thoroughfare.

Guin Praises Route

"It is my firm belief that the Carlsband Cavern highway will within a very few years become one of the most important highways in the United States," Carl S. Guin of Quanah, Texas, president of the association said in discussing the possibilities of the highway. Others of the many delegates here for the convention are equally optimistic over the outlook for the highway.

"The route is logical from the standpoint of climate, road types and without question the shortest route between Oklahoma City and El Paso," Guin continued.

"The traffic between Oklahoma and Texas is increasing rapidly due to the oil development in West Texas. Tulsa, being the oil center of the United States, is sending hundreds of people over this route as far south as Quanah now, where they continue south on highway No. 51 to the oil fields.

"The advertising of Carlsbad Cavern as a national resort is bringing people over this route that were never reached before," he explained.

The route is completely marked now. Many maps descriptive of route and with pictures of the cavern are being distributed, as well as hundreds of newspaper articles telling about the cavern and the highway.

The maps were distributed for the first time at the meeting here. The highway association was organized nine months ago and has accomplished in these months what an association usually takes years to accomplish.

Many Towns Represented

Towns represented at the meeting with from one to several men include Oklahoma City, Newcastle, Blanchard, Chickasha, Ninnekah, Cement, Cyril, Fletcher, Elgin, Fort Sill, Lawton, Indiahoma, Cache, Snyder, Hedrick, Altus, Olustee and ElDorado, Okla., Quanah, Lazore, Paducah, Roaring Springs, Matador, Dickens, Crosbyton, Ralls, Lorenza, Idalou, Lubbock, Rope, Meadows, Brownfield, Plains, Bronco, Tatum, Lovington, Pearl, Carlsbad, Carlsbad Cavern and El Paso.

The highway begins at Oklahoma City and extends through southwest Oklahoma. The plains of Texas and New Mexico is destined, authorities say, to be one of the most important highways of the Southwest. Leaving Oklahoma City, the capital city of the state, the highway passes through the valleys of the Canadian and Washata rivers to the national military reserve of Fort Sill, the largest artillery post as well as one of the large inland forts in America.

The most impressive collection of modern instruments of warfare in the nation, it is claimed, are maintained within the camps. The post is also one of the divisional assembly points for the U. S army. Nearby is the Wichita Forest reserve, one of the greatest of national parks and game preserves, where buffalo, elk, deer and other wild animals roam the Wichita mountains. The highway crosses Red river into Texas at Quanah named for the Comanche Indian chief, Quanah Parker. From there it continues through a rapidly developing agricultural section that only a few years ago composed a vast ranch district. New Mexico is entered at Plains, Texas, through the shallow-water belt of Lovington, and on to the city of Carlsbad. A few miles beyond Carlsbad is the cavern discovered by Jim White, a Texas cowboy. 'Mustang Jack' Garner Has Gathered Much Wealth and Over Million Friends

Texas' Scrappy Little Representative Has No Enemies But Is 'Full of Pep' and Natural Sense

By FRASER EDWARDS

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Few men ever started out in life with so little and wound up with so much as John Nance Garner, representative extraordinary from the 15th district of Texas and Democratic leader of the national house. But it must be remembered that the very name of Garner means to gather up.

"Mustang Jack," as his colleagues in the house call him, was just a po' boy from Red River county. He had nothing to start with but a hickory shirt and a pair of blue denim overalls. His only friend in the world was a yellar dog named "Sport," because he was always so powerful low in his mind.

Has Million Friends

And now the gentleman from Uvalde has a cutaway coat and a million dollars as material assets and more than a million friends as his most cherished possessions. In his chosen career of gathering up things, Jack annexed several banks and extensive land, not to speak of his herds of mohair goats. But chief occupation in life has been to garner unto himself a multitude of friends. If you find a man who does not like Jack Garner—well, he will bear watching.

One of the famous friendships in congress exists between this diamond in the rough from the plains of South Texas and the polished scion of Cincinnati society, Speaker Nick Longworth, who is a Republican, at that. In a political row, however, a pair of strange bulldogs could not be more ferocious.

Jack became a drawer of water and a hewer of wood, a tender of cattle and a herder of goats when most boys of that time were stumbling through McGuffie's first reader. He believes to this day that his growth was stunted by doing a man's work when he was just a child. But what he lacks in stature, he makes up in energy.

Possesses Natural Sense

Modestly enough, Jack says officially that he had a "limited education." Privately, he boasts that he drew his education from the soil. In fact, he has a great scorn for anyone who did not get his schooling from mother nature. And well he might, for Jack has more natural sense in a minute than most men have in a month.

Being a student of nature, Jack learned that happiness does not come singly. So he early adopted the slogan:

"When the other feller gets a ham, I'm going to do my best to get a hog for my folks."

Jack Garner is possessed of an imperturable good nature. The only way to get his "goat" is to speak of the tariff on mohair. For back in those dim days when Democrats were supposed to be free traders, Jack got a tariff on mohair for the folks in his district, which is the largest producer of mohair goats extant.

When the Underwood tariff bill was reported with a 10 per cent rate on mohair and none on wool, J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, who was then the poet laureate of the house, composed a delightful doggerel ditty entitled, "Garner's Goat of Texas." To which Jack replied in kind.

"Hampy Moore is a helava pote,
He don't know a sheep from a gote."

Jack's Full of Pep

But after all, General Hancock probably was right when he expounded his astounding theory that the tariff is a local issue.

Down in Texas, they call Jack "the little red chaparral cock." The chaparral cock is a long-tailed bird of the cuckoo family and is sometimes called a road runner. It is noted for its speed on foot. It can outrun a horse any day.

Jack Garner has outrun any man who ever came to congress from the erstwhile Republic of Texas, which went Republican again last fall. He has been in the house for 26 years. The nearest approach to that record was left by the late Charles Allen Culberson, who served 24 years in the senate. Charlie's father, Col. David Browning Culberson, served 22 years in the house.

Jack has two diversions—playing poker and fishing. Like Vice President Charlie Curtis, Jack is not afraid to look on a straight flush when it is red. So far as his fishing goes, he always comes back with great tales.

This scrappy little pepper pot—he probably got his pep from eating chile con carne and hot tamales down on the border—cannot only outrun but can outtalk and outlaugh anything in the house. In fact, he is the only man who was ever able to out-talk the late Col. Bill Sterret, famous Texas correspondent, who used to write his copy on a roll of butcher's paper at Shoomaker's.

still was being operated on the lease upon which Powell was employed. In his instructions to the jury in connection with the arrest proper, Judge Martin said:

Judge Reviews Case

"The evidence shows without contradiction that the sheriff had at least reasonable grounds to believe that a felony had been committed; that he had credible information that there was a still running somewhere near this place; that the owner of the oil strongly suspicioned that his oil and water were being used in the manufacture of liquor somewhere in the neighborhood.

"As I understand and construe the statute, gentlemen, the arrest was legal. The incarceration in jail was legal. I don't think that the arresting officer should be required to go in the dead hours of the night to awaken some magistrate in order to have a bond fixed. I think he had a right to detain him until reasonable business hours the next morning.

"Personally I commend the vigilance of all of the officers concerned, the officers of Archer county, and the officers of Wichita county, in trying to ferret out the ownership of a still and trying to get hold of the guilty man. It may be, that in doing this, an injustice has been done this man. I am not passing on his guilt of innocence; in any event, in enforcing the laws of this country, these officers, being human, like you and I, necessarily will make some mistakes; sometimes arresting the wrong man, and it may be that this is an innocent man; we are not passing upon that question; I gather, that is a question that will come up later in another jurisdiction, and not here; that is not for us to say; I simply hold as a matter of law that the facts and circumstances in this case warranted Sheriff Goodwin in making an arrest in this case, and in doing everything he did do in this case, and I am so instructing the jury to return a verdict for the defendant."

The abrupt ending of the trying made unnecessary a ruling on another question, involving the right of a citizen to sue on the official bond of a sheriff under the Texas law, raised by the defense Monday morning in the name of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, a co-defendant in the suit.

STAR FOLK

Up there on Mars
Life Oznibars
And Squimps and Jellimapes.

They haven't clothes
Or hands or toes—
They haven't even shapes.

They see behind
And hear in front
Their talk is like
A squealish grunt.

They seem to be,
And yet they're not;
They look just like
I don't know what.

They go at night
by candle-light
And visit all the stars.

But never fear,
They won't come here.
We're much too far from Mars.

We Women

In-Laws Are Relatives

The chief difference, as some one remarked, between a woman's own family and her in-laws is that she can fight with the former if she chooses while to the latter she must be studiedly and consistently polite.

Some one else has defined an in-law as one who demands the privileges of family without that compensating interest and devotion, which families usually show their members.

Both these are the reflections of a cynic. But they illustrate fairly accurately the general attitude of a country where congeniality among relatives by marriage is the exception rather than the rule.

If marriage is to be a happy estate for husband and wife they must either be friendly with each other's people or put the width of several states between themselves and their in-laws.

Congeniality, or at any rate the appearance of it, is especially to be desired where there are children. Just as each parent refrains from criticising the other to their children, so they both should guard their words concerning the relatives.

Too often "your father's people," uttered in a certain tone, forms one of baby's first conscious impressions. Too often father's complaint to do with "your mother's Aunt Lucy" intediards the childhood memories of Kay and Lewis.

Perhaps "your father's people" and "your mother's Aunt Lucy" are as dreadful as you think—but on the other hand, they may not be. In any event it is unfair and unwise to prejudice the children one way or the other.

Unfair, because disharmony in the home is a source of disturbance and mute anxiety to the child. He is incapable of mature distinctions. When you are very young a mole-hill of dissension looms as big as a mountain, and a tempest in a teapot may be just as frightening as one of larger proportions later on.

You are unwise to prejudice your children. Family pride and family loyalty are fine things. Properly directed, they make for poise, self-confidence and dignity. You will find it much easier to win respect from a child who has acquired the habit of deference to his elders.

And remember that in-laws, though they may be in-laws and nothing else to you, are relatives, own flesh and blood relations to your child.

If you have a domestic problem on which you wish help, send me a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, July 22. (US)—She is 10 years old and pretty. She was hungry and she was putting away rich brown waffles with unbelievable speed. Finally she paused in the process and her mother said: "Betty, do you want another waffle?"

"I want it," said Betty, "but I'm afraid I'll pop my safety valve."

Five British girls announce that they are coming to the United States to get husbands with brains.

Brides who still believe their husbands have them, should hang tight.

Thoroughly married folks, of many years dispute, might find in this a rare opportunity. If they have been married long enough their thorough training might make them appear to have brains.

A girl walks down the street in Rochester, N. Y., with a sleeveless dress, and a blue heart and a red arrow tatooed on her arm.

Well, anyway, she stopped traffic.

"Why," said the girl reporter to the Chinese princess, "do we see so many Chinese men and no Chinese women in this country?"

"Because Chinese women can't get along without a great many servants," answered the princess. "They couldn't afford them in this country, so they stay where they are. They won't work and wait on themselves."

Some American women will be all ready to be Chinese in their next incarnation.

A mother telling about her popular daughter and what a good time she has at dances these days, when the system is to "cut in" to get a partner.

"And there is Bessie Jones," said the mother. "It's perfectly terrible what a time she has at dances. The boys never dance with her if they can help it, because no one ever cuts in and takes her away. Bill Smith said the other night he got stuck with her for six dances."

"But," said the daughter, giggling, "I noticed after Bill got out the girl got tagged often. I think they were playing a joke on Bill."

The popularity of the men is never impugned. They do the picking.

It may break a few hearts but it keeps a girl on her toes. She has to keep step with the big parade or be unpopular, which seems to be the only curse in college society today.

Wolverhampton, England, announces the building of a rainbow factory.

The idea, and you can bet without knowing more about it that some woman thought it up, is to have none of this ugly black machinery, but all bright hued and gay. Very gay. The walls are to be rainbow colors, and the help will be dressed in rainbow colors. It's to see what the effect will be on the spirit of the workers.

They are supposed to manufacture paint and varnish but it would not surprise me a bit if they turned out saxophones and ballet slippers, under that influence. But that's what the experiment is for—to see what happens.

Love Should Be Sole Factor In Selecting Mate

Shall a Girl Marry for Love or Financial Security?—How to Treat the Boys—To Be Happy, Must a Wife Be Younger Than Husband?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl earning my own living. I have a hard time making both ends meet, but I feel that I could spend the balance of my life trying to make the ends meet if I could only have the man I love, but my father and mother insist that I should marry a rich man and let such things as love and companionship go by.

I have two suitors, one with an assured future who can give me anything I ask. The other man is the one I love. He makes an excellent salary for a young man, but life will be forever after living within the limits of a salary.

You may think it foolish for me to let my family influence me, but they nag me from morning until night, and if I defy them and marry the man I love and something terrible should happen their "I told you so" would be a bitter pill to swallow. I realize that position and safety mean something, but does it outweight love?—C. K.

Answer: No. No. A thousand times no. Love is the greatest thing in the world. It is the only thing that should influence you in selecting your mate, and when it is a choice between position and safety and love, choose love every time.

If you marry a man you do not love, and especially if you marry one man while you love another, nothing that your husband can give you, even though he was as rich as Henry Ford, would give you a moment's pleasure, because money would not buy the one thing your heart craved.

Suppose he could give you a palace to live in. It would be no home because there was no love in it. Suppose he took you to travel in far places. You could not go far enough away to leave your memory of another man's kisses. Suppose he lavished jewels and fine clothes upon you. How little you would care for them if they did not make you beautiful for the eyes of the man you loved. Suppose your husband bestowed tenderness and caresses upon you. You would only turn in repulsion from them.

But if you marry the man you love you can make happiness out of nothing. The simplest meal is a banquet if it is eaten by kissing lips. The humblest home becomes a paradise if it is inhabited by lovers. They need no other society, no other amusement if they can just be together, and living on a limited income and counting the pennies is not a hardship, it is a gay adventure.

The material things you can always get. Houses and clothes and automobiles will always be for sale over the counter, and 5, 10, 20 years from now you can buy them if you have the price, but love belongs to youth, and if you pass it by now it is gone from you forever.

A little money is necessary to finance marriage and make a success of it. Enough to provide a decent shelter and simple food and clothes, but that is all that any young couple needs to marry on. I would not advise a girl to marry a man who did not have a good job and who had not shown that he had energy and industry and the ability to get along, not only because a man should be able to provide for his family but because no woman can respect her husband if he is a lazy loafer or just shiftless and incompetent.

Nor do I like to advise a girl to defy her parents and marry the man of her choice instead of the husband they have picked out for her, but when they oppose her marrying a fine young man who has already proved his ability to make a living and urge her to marry a man just because he is rich, they are clearly in the wrong and she should not be the victim of their cupidity.

There is something very pathetic, as well as cruel, in the way fathers and mothers often badger girls into giving up the men they love in order to marry men who are better off. The parents are poor. They have had a hard life of struggle and self-denial. Their own romance has been dead so long that not a memory of it survives, and so they think they are doing their daughter a kindness when they try to make her marry a man who can give her ease and comfort. Love, they argue, lasts but for a little while anyway. Romance soon wears out, but comfort and luxury are things that endure.

But in this they are often mistaken. Time and again we have all seen some pretty, fresh, young girl nagged by her parents into giving up her poor young lover and handed over to some rich man twice her age, and then we have seen the rich man lose his money and the poor young man go on to fortune.

So parents' pick of a husband is not always a wise one, even from the finacial point of view, and in this country of opportunity a girl is safe in gambling her life on the future of the fine, clean, young chap she loves and who loves her, even if his salary isn't much more than a shoestring.

You, not your parents, have to live with the man you marry, C. K. So pick out your own husband and marry him and be happy, even if you do have to spend a few years trying to make the ends meet.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—When I am with some fellows and I pet and neck with them they call me a flop and don't date me again. Then I think maybe the boys like girls who do not pet and neck. So the next time I go out with a fellow I won't pet and neck, and they call me a flop, too. Now, just how should I act? I am crazy about a fellow and I want him to like me real well, but I am afraid to go out with him because I don't know what to do. I feel that if I kiss him he will think that I kiss all the boys, but if I don't kiss him he will think I am a flat tire and probably I will never see him again. What shall I do? —FLAPPER.

Answer: You will have to vary your technique and change it to suit the individual boy. Not every fish rises to the same sort of bait, you know, and if you desire to be a successful fisher of men you will have to find out what particular tidbit each craves.

Evidently there are a large number of boys of affectionte natures who like cuddly girls who are wholessale kissers and whose lips are free to every Tom, Dick and Harry. On the other hand, there are fastidious men who are disgusted by the methods of the petters and the neckers and who prefer dignified and reserved girls.

It is the difference between the mussy, pawed-over things in the bargain basement and the exclusive article put up in a box and wrapped in tissue paper that you get in a specialty shop. Which one a man prefers is a matter of taste.

But you never find any one line that makes a hit with all men, my dear, because every man has a different mind about what he considers attractive in a girl. Some men like chatterboxes. Other men like quiet girls. Some men like girls who are cut-ups. Other men flee from them. Some men like loud, boisterous girls. Other men loathe them. Some men like girls who haven't a grain of sense in their heads. Other men like highbrows.

And so it goes. And so the only tip I can give you is to study your man and adapt your line to him. But don't you think boys would respect you more if you didn't neck and pet but were just a nice, sweet, ladylike girl? —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—What chance for a happy married life should a woman in her 30s expect if she married a man eight years her junior? Would a woman so many years older be able to give the man the companionship he would need for proper development? The woman seems younger physically than her age and the man older mentally than his or, rather, he is of a very serious turn of mind.

—A READER.

Answer: No reason in the world why such a couple should not marry. The difference in calendar age is no bar to their union in this case because the woman is young for her age and the man old for his. Besides, an older woman is often a far more stimulating and helpful companion to a man than a younger one.

When we are very young age counts for a great deal, but when we are older it amounts to very little. A boy of 19 or 20, for instance, should not marry a woman eight years older than himself because he is unformed and does not know what he wants in a wife, but a man of 28 is mature, his tastes are settled and he is safe in marrying a woman eight years older than himself if he so desires.

Pleasant Surprise for Houston Lady

"My complexion used to show how bad I felt. Now it shows that I am free from those depressing headaches and nervous spells," says Mrs. Ollie Walker, who lives at 2424 Morse St., in Houston.

"I suffered from constipation. I might say all my life. I couldn't throw off the wastes and they gave me headaches and a very sallow complexion. Every since I started taking Nature's Remedy, all that is gone. I reckon the real reason is that NR Tablets are so pleasant to take that I continued taking them long enough to get results."

NR Tablets are so effective because they soothe, sweeten and stimulate the stomach and bowels. Then the starch and sugar wastes from the food you eat can't remain in your system to form the acids which sour your stomach, bind your bowels and rob the blood of the red corpuscles it must have plenty of to keep you from losing weight and strength, and from becoming bilious, headachy, dyspeptic and rheumatic. Get a 25c box of NR Tablets at any drug store.—Adv.

Thief Takes Pistol From Policeman's Desk

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 22. (UP)—Wallace Cameron, secretary to John L. Miles, chief of police, doesn't feel safe these days, even in his chief's office.

As a gentle reminder to visitors who might forget where they were, Cameron has long displayed his "tools" conspicuously and conveniently. A blackjack served as a paperweight on the desk. In a partly open drawer, one was aware of a shiny .45 automatic.

Someone, however, lacking the proper respect for the very source of law and order, stole the pistol. And now, like the barn door, the drawer is padlocked, protecting the former paperweight, Cameron's lone defense against this rising tide of lawlessness.

THINGS A COOK SHOULD KNOW

Let These Cookery Secrets Make Foods Taste Better

Sugar may be described as the partly understood food. Everyone knows that sweets are valuable energy foods, but sugar's supreme service to good cookery is as a flavorer.

Add a dash of sugar to cereal while it is being cooked and you will discover what seems to be an entirely new flavor. Flavors of cereal are very delicate. The dash of sugar develops them so that they can be tasted.

A little sugar brings out the natural flavors of fruits when stewed, making them delicious. A little sugar softens the fruit acids of the citrus fruits and of berries.

Sugar demonstrates its supreme condimental power when a dash of it is added to vegetables when they are cooking (preferably in little water). This use of sugar makes these essential foods delightful to the taste.

Small amounts of sugar added to chopped beef, pot-roasts, stews, ragouts and other inexpensive dishes makes the finished product richer in flavor and more appetizing in appearance.

A little sugar distinctly improves both the flavor and color of almost every sauce or gravy served with meat, especially if made from the juices of the meat.

Think of sugar as a flavorer. Use it to make the balanced meal enjoyable to eat. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

Herbert Kaufman's Daily Editorial

LINDBERGH STANDS ALONE

THE cheers have died down. Public curiosity no longer spies upon Lindbergh's private affairs, and the front page has quit scare-heading his casual movements.

The movies finally realize that there isn't enough money in Hollywood coffers to tempt him into a celluloid career, and cigar manufacturers have abandoned the hope of pasting his face in a five-center. He emerges from a two-year battle with the forces of notoriety, adulation and flattery as immaculate and untarnished as when he stuck a sandwich in his pocket, popped out of obscurity and flew to Paris—and immortality.

In all annals no man so quickly captured fame and admiration—and the fairest flower of chivalry never served honor and pride as this unknown squire from the ranks of aviation, who conquered where it's doughtiest captains continue to fail and fall.

He did what no human ever achieved and his feat still remains unparalleled.

The crack pilots of every nation—flying bigger, fleeter and higher-powered machines, abetted by the safety devices, stabilizers, fog penetrators and radio equipment that did not exist when he drove through the sleet and gale to Le Bourget—clutch in vain at his laurels. He rode alone then and he stands alone now—the undefeated champion of the skies, the only ace in the deck. He is the one living being who has trod the solid of the old and new world between two sunsets.

That unique distinction, is of course fated to pass. Thousands, then millions, will later ride the trial he blazed. Today, tomorrow—who knows—another plane will leap the vasts and prove again that anything which an Adamson may do is feasible for all the tribe.

SINGLY, in pairs and crews, and liners-full, folk will journey the Lindbergh lane as nonchalantly as they follow in the wake of the Santa Maria, Da Gamas' caravels and Drake's galleons.

But the glory of the first adventure into terra incognita abides with the pathfinder.

"Time cannot dim nor age destroy," the luster of priority. The poles are forever Peary's and Amundsen's. Gallileed's spyglass shall be remembered when the Lick telescope is unmentioned and Marconi will be a synonym for wireless until judgment day cracks the dawn.

Why all this excitement over pending duplications of a fait accompli? Don't marvel at the next successful transocean jump, but rather wonder why experts, with superior facilities and the advantage of Lindbergh's experience, haven't meanwhile followed through.

Eulogiums, citations, decorations and the handclasps of kings and presidents must not let us forget that this staid, dignified federal and corporation consultant, to whose judgment a government and an industry defer, is a lad wearing shoulder straps at cadet age.

There's his real importance. Impulse may have thrust him into a peerless opportunity but character and ability have since revealed that destiny wasn't picking her man at random to serve the boldest hour in history.

The Lindbergh beacon, flashing its guiding light 7,000 miles, will soon top the Palmolive building.

Which isn't nearly so incongruous as it seems, if one pauses to reflect that a landmark built by soap is quite a fitting pedestal for the mightiest memorial to clean and fearless youth.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who borrows should be as careful as the owner of that which he borrows."

It is a joy to loan to anyone who we are sure will take as good care of our possession as we do. But, no one wants to loan to one who lacks a sense of responsibility.

New York night clubs are said to be waning in popularity. What is needed is a raid or two to get a little publicity.

Golf is like marriage; it looks easy.

We Take the Easy Way

THINGS have to be spectacular to arouse our sympathies. We can't see hardship or distress unless they send up rockets for us. A few days ago a homeless middle aged New Yorker tried to kill himself by inhaling gas. He did not quite succeed; somebody found him and hurried him off to a hospital, and for hour after hour oxygen was pumped into his lungs to keep him alive. His case aroused great interest; strangers sent money and offered to help him in any way they could. For a short time it looked as if all of New York were chiefly interested in keeping one unknown derelict from dying.

Now that sort of thing is all very encouraging, to be sure. But it is very unfortunate that we don't get busy until it is almost too late. A man can walk the streets, hungry and penniless, for days without getting a helping hand. It is only when he tries to end his life and does something that plops him on to the front pages that we wake up and try to do something for him.

Yet the ounce of prevention is still worth more than the pound of cure, just as it always has been. The only trouble is that the pound of cure is easier to apply.

Several years ago a young reporter in a midwestern city stumbled onto a family that was on the verge of actual starvation. A mother and three small, ragged children were huddled around a stove in a barren house. Their last stick of wood was in the fire; there was not a bite to eat in the place. The husband and father, it developed, was a world war veteran. He had not been able to get steady work since being demobolized, had gone nearly frantic over his inability to provide for his family, and had finally snatched a purse on the street. Arrested, he was then in jail awaiting trial.

The reporter got a photographer, and the family's plight was broadcast to all the city. Things happened at once. A lawyer donated his services to help the veteran out of his difficulties with the law. Other people contributed money, food and fuel to the family. Half a dozen business firms offered the veteran a job. Everything was smoothed over, and the family was snatched from the brink of tragedy.

Now that was very encouraging and all that—just as New York's eagerness to bring back life to a would-be suicide has been encouraging. But why don't we dig below the surface of things and remove the causes of such tragedies.

Why don't we realize, for instance, that such tragedies as that of the war veteran are the inevitable aftermath of all wars? Why don't we realize that our present social and economic system will always toss stragglers by the wayside?

Why? Well, thinking is too much trouble. We might step on the toes of a few of our pet prejudices. The pound of cure is the easier thing to apply.

"Russia" and "China"

IT IS EASY to be misled by newspaper headlines, which often give a wrong impression even while sticking strictly to the facts. For instance, the papers lately have been saying that "Russia" demands that "China" give up the railway it has seized, and that "China" is adopting a threatening attitude, while "Russia" is ready to take stern measures—and so on.

Now that is all very true if you consider that a foreign office constitutes a nation. It is not at all true if you consider the nations in the mass. The average Chinese has never even heard of Russia; and the average Russian, if indeed he has heard of China at all, knows and cares no more about the seized railway than he does about the mountains of the moon.

Still, these ignorant peasants are the men who would have to go out and die if the two nations got to fighting.

A Vacation by Air

ANNOUNCEMENT that a sumptuous Sikorsky amphibian plane equipped with electric lights and running water recently left New York to take the family of a Chicago millionaire on a cross country pleasure flight may prove the forerunner of a thing that will become relatively common in the next few years.

A vacation by air, especially when the plane provides genuine luxuries for its occupants, is as attractive a recreation as one could imagine. Just now, of course, it is confined to the wealthy. The aerial flivver has not yet appeared. But when it comes—as it will, eventually—we are going to see an extension of this sort of thing that will be simply amazing.

The Chicago gentleman, sailing westward on a pleasure jaunt, is the advance guard of what some day will be a veritable swarm of aerial tourists.

Aviation's Real Service

WHILE endurance fliers circle over airports, transatlantic fliers spin off over the sea and other spectacular stunters go about their tasks, the rank and file of aviation continues with the ordinary, unexciting tasks that are making aviation valuable to the people as a whole.

Lost in the dispatches telling of more stirring events is a brief paragraph from Ottawa, Ontario, telling how Flight Lieutenant N. C. Forks has just finished an experiment in dusting trees in a northern Ontario forest from an airplane to exterminate the spruce bugworm.

This insect pest ruins many acres of trees annually. Lieutenant Forks has found that it can best be attacked with the airplane—and thus, unnoticed, proves himself a more valuable airman than a dozen of the more famous ones.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N, INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

"If she wants to do it I suppose it's her own business," Winnie answered.

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, whose nickname is Chatty, is a born gossip and busybody. She loses her job in Mrs. Mayberry's hat store because she talks too much, and leaves without even collecting her salary. However, she sends her young brother, Pud, for it, and he finds out why she was fired and "kids" her about it.

Mrs. Harriett Chatterton, Chatty's mother, does plain sewing for a living. Her old friend and customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, persuades her rich husband to give Chatty a position in the filing department of the Van Nuys company, which sells bonds. There Chatty meets a handsome red-headed salesman, Dave Jordan, whom she once saw buying flowers for a pretty girl in the flower shop across the street from Mrs. Mayberry's store.

Billie Langenau, the head of the filing department, tells Chatty that, while all of the girls in the office have fallen in love with Jordan at some time or other, the only one he ever notices is Agnes Herford, Mr. "Van's" secretary, a tall, plain, quiet girl.

But Jordan does notice Chatty—at least to the extent of telling her that he liked her looks the first day she came to the office minus powder, nail polish and a wave in her hair. And Chatty, who had begun to use a little make-up in imitation of Billie, tells Jordan that Billie makes up a great deal and looks very attractive. He advises her not to broadcast the fact that Billie does make up, for she may not want everyone to know it, particularly George Mayhew, one of the salesmen with whom she goes around a great deal. Chatty wishes she had not told him about it—and when he is gone she takes off her powder and the bright pink polish she had painted on her nails. She has begun to care a great deal about what he thinks of her.

That night Billie, who lives with her sister, comes to see an empty flat next door to the Chatterton's flat, and decides to take it. She tells Chatty they can have good times together.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER VI

"Oh, but I'm tired!" Billie sank into her chair with a little groan. "I've looked at so many flats that I'm just dizzy."

"Find one?"

Billie shook her head in its smart little gray felt hat. "Not a thing—and the rents are all so high—"

"If you could get along with four rooms I could tell you about one that's for rent," said Chatty. "The one that's just across the hall from where I live is vacant—and it's awfully nice and clean and sunny."

Billie straightened up in her chair.

"Four rooms are just what my sister and I want," she said hopefully. "I'll go home and get something to eat, and then I'll have George drive me out to where you like. . . . Can you get the key so it'll be there when I come?"

Chatty said she would, and that night she got the key from Mrs. Chatterton, and offered to "show" the flat for the landlord.

At eight o'clock Billie came, leaving her George to wait for her downstairs in his little car that was much newer looking than Dave Jordan's muddy open roadster.

"It's nice," Chatty said, unlocking the door of the little flat. "A fireplace in the living room, and the cutest little white-tiled bath."

"It is nice," Billie agreed, when she had looked it over. "And fifty dollars a month isn't bad for it. . . . I think I'll take it. When you're friends with some of the boys at the office we can have them up here for Sunday night suppers and things, can't we? We'll have lots of fun!"

Chatty, watching her drive away in George Mayhew's car, saw bright days and good times ahead of her.

"I wish I hadn't told Jordan about her making up her face," she thought. "I didn't mean to. It just slipped out."

The only real time that working girls have to themselves is Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

And so it was not until the next Saturday afternoon that Billie Langenau and her sister moved into the little flat just across the hall from the Chatterton's flat in Lipton street.

They came about four o'clock in George Mahew's small car. Just behind them came a truck piled high with their household goods.

"Here they are!" Chatty called to her mother, as the two machines stopped in the street below. "I wonder what their furniture is like."

True busy-body that she was, she had hidden herself behind the crisp white curtains in the "front room" an hour before, to watch for them. And her bright, sharp eyes were fixed on them now with the intentness of a theatergoer watching his favorite actors.

"They have a canary," she went on excitedly. "Billie's holding the cage in her lap, and the sister has a great big potted palm in her arms. I can't see her face. . . . George Mayhew's helping Billie out of his car, but he's letting the sister scramble out by herself—"

"I don't suppose he can be in two places at once," Mrs. Chatterton broke in gently. "Chatty, don't be so hard on people."

Chatty scarcely heard her. She was lost in the scene below. . . . The driver was lifting Billie's furniture out of the truck now, and Chatty wanted to see it all.

"What lovely stuff!" she sighed. "The darlingest red lacquer table and chest—and the sweetest little dressing table, all white enamel! Jiminy, but they have pretty things, mother! Just come here and take a peek! You don't know what you're missing!"

Her mother shook her head, with its top-knot of blonde hair that was still bright and wavy, and looked younger than her tired, pale face did, somehow or other.

"I don't do any peeping from behind curtains," she said firmly. "I never have spied on my neighbors, and I'm not going to start it now—and you shouldn't, either, Chatty. It's almost like peeping into their windows."

Chatty turned and gave her a quick, wondering look. "Mother, you're just not human!" she cried. "Haven't you any curiosity about people? Don't you like to know things about them?"

Her mother did not answer, and Chatty turned back to the window.

"Well, they must make wonderful salaries to have furniture like that—that's all I have to say!" she declared, her eyes fastened on the truck once more. "It's the kind of stuff that Mrs. Van has in her house—little Oriental rugs and the most wonderful yellow mirror in a silver frame that you ever saw in all your life! And, upon my soul, that man is taking a little bit of a baby grand piano out of the truck! He is! A baby grand piano! And a davenport covered with green satin brocade, if you please! Now, where on earth do you suppose two office girls got the money for gorgeous stuff like that! And not even stenographers, either! Just filing clerks—"

"You don't know what kind of work the sister does, do you?" Mrs. Chatterton interrupted once more. "She may have some very good position, where she makes a great deal of money, Chatty. . . . And if I were you I wouldn't make remarks like that about a girl who has been as kind as Billie Langenau has been to you! Really, I don't know where you got such a sharp tongue. Not from me, I'm sure."

Chatty turned away from the window. "Well, mother," she said, "if you'd only look at the stuff they're bringing in here you wouldn't scold me. . . . Why, there's never been such stuff on Lipton street before in all the years we've lived here. I'm going over and offer to help them get settled, and I'll just bet you anything that when I get a look at their forks and knives they'll be solid silver! I'll just bet you money on it!"

Billie's sister, Sara, was about 30. She was taller than Billie. But she had the same lovely dark eyes and hair, and she was beautifully dressed in tan and brown silk.

"Of course, we need help. We need lots of it," she said, when Chatty, covered by a bungalow apron, knocked on the door of the flat and was introduced to her.

"We're going to change our clothes and plunge right in," Billie added, on her knees beside a suitcase that lay on the floor. "George and the moving man can set the piano up and lay the rugs—and we girls can do the rest of it. Weren't you a dear, Chatty, to come over and lend a hand?"

By half past six the little place was in order. Even the pale yellow silk curtains were at the windows and the clean towels hung in straight rows in the white-tiled bathroom.

Chatty, washing and wiping her hands, saw that the initials embroidered upon the ends of every one of them were not Billie's initials. They were not Sara's, either.

She laid one down before her on the chest of drawers and studied the embroidered letters. It was hard to make them out, but she finally did: "W. L. B."

"Now, then, who's 'W. L. B.'?" she wondered.

But she did not waste much time in idle wondering. For that was not like Chatty . . . When she wanted to know a thing she went straight ahead and found out all she could about it at once.

She walked out into the dining room, with its shining mahogany furniture, its lace-edged tablecloth, its glittering coffee service and corner cupboard of Doulton china.

Sara was setting the table.

"We thought we'd have a pick-up supper just to celebrate," she said, cheerfully. "Just the four of us—we've worked hard, and some coffee and fried ham sandwiches with tomatoes won't be very much after such strenuous labor. But they're better than nothing, aren't they?"

Chatty did not answer her.

Her bright gray-green eyes were on the forks that Sara was laying carefully at each plate. They were heavy forks of sterling silver. And upon the handle of each of them was engraved an old English "B."

"What's 'B' for—for 'Billie'?" she asked, bluntly.

Sara looked up and shook her head. "Why, no, Billie's married name was Brewster," she said. "Didn't you know that?"

"No, I haven't known Billie very long—only since last Monday."

"O-ooh, I see—" And Sara, looking as if she wished she hadn't said as much as she had, went quickly out into the kitchen, mumbling something over her shoulder about her ham burning.

Chatty followed her. She was dying to ask her more questions. She wanted to know how long Billie had been married, and why she wasn't married now? . . . And was she divorced, or had her husband died? And why didn't she use the name "Brewster"?

But something about the set of Sara's chin and the firm way she kept her lips pressed tightly together while she turned the slices of frying ham, kept Chatty silent.

After a moment or two she left the kitchen and went into the pretty living room where Billie and George Mayhew were sorting books and putting them into a hand-carved bookcase.

"I wonder if he knows that Billie's been married," she said to herself. "If he doesn't, he certainly ought to."

But she made up her mind that she was not going to tell him if he did not know it. No, indeed, she was never going to talk about Billie. Billie had been sweet to her, and besides, she wanted Billie for a friend.

For hadn't Billie promised her that the two of them would sometimes have little Sunday night suppers here in the flat, and invite "some of the boys from the office" to them? "Some of the boys from the office" meant Dave Jordan to Chatty.

On Monday noon something happened that took Billie Langenau and her mysterious marriage completely out of Chatty's head—for the time being, at any rate.

She was in the girls' cloak room to get ready to go out for lunch when Agnes Herford came in.

She looked brighter and younger than usual. There was a little color in her cheeks and she had pinned a white muslin collar around the neck of the plain serge dress that was her regular working dress.

She seemed to be in a great hurry, and Chatty saw her smile to herself in the long mirror above the wash bowls as she put on her hat and pulled on her shabby brown kid gloves. Agnes was the kind of girl who never would think of wearing a string of indestructible pearls or a drop of perfume, but who never went out upon the street without gloves.

"Good-bye," she said to Chatty. "I'd ask you to have lunch with me—only I'm having it with — a man."

She fairly glowed as she spoke.

And as she was shutting the door it came to Chatty in a flash that sometimes, according to Billie, Dave Jordan took Agnes out to lunch.

"I'll bet he's taking her today!" she thought, and rushed to the door to see.

But before she reached it, it was flung open from the outside, and Winnie Talcott came rushing in.

"Hist!" she whispered, one over-manicured finger on her painted mouth. "Scandal!"

"Scandal?" Chatty repeated, trying to open the door once more.

"Sure! The big shot is taking Aggie out to lunch!" said Winnie. "Here, move over and let me look out, too!"

Side by side, heads close together, they peered out into the main office.

Agnes was standing by the door that led out into the corridor of the building, buttoning her gloves. She was still smiling to herself.

Presently the door of Mr. "Van's" office opened, and he came out. He looked very dapper, and there was a red carnation in his button-hole.

Together he and Agnes went out. The doors shut behind them.

"Well, what do you think of that?" Winnie wanted to know, her eyes as big as saucers. "It's never happened before down here . . . Mr. Van has never looked at any of us girls, and why he or anyone else should look at Aggie Herford, now or at any other time, is beyond me. Why, she hasn't any more charm or 'it' than an adding machine, has she?"

Chatty was always glad to hear anyone say cutting things about other people . . . Like all gossips, she loved to listen almost as much as she loved to talk.

"I think she's absolutely blah," she agreed.

"And she's always been so nicey-nice, too!" Winnie told her, drawing a Cupid's bow of lipstick upon her mouth. "She's the very last person I'd ever think would run around with a married man. Oh, well, if she wants to do it I suppose it's her own business."

Chatty raised her eyebrows.

"I suppose Mrs. Van Nuy's might think it was her business, too," she answered, dreamily. "That is, if she knew it. But, of course, she'll never find it out, will she?"

Winnie shook her wild-looking mop of curly hair.

"She never comes down here to see anything," she said. "And nobody'd ever be rotten enough to tell her."

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, July 22.—A friend of mine once asked Clemenceau to what he attributed his long life and his good health. So he invited this friend, who is a prominent man, to dinner to his house one night and about 9 o'clock, announced he going to retire. Before retiring he filled a combination hot water bag and a vacuum bottle with a mixture that was a sort of gruel and placed it in a handy position. He explained he was always awake at 3 o'clock, in the morning. He consumed the contents of the vessel at that hour so as to have something warm in his stomach, read, until seven, when he arose and devoted himself to his gardening. In other words he kept his own kitchenet by the bedside.

Calories En Route

So keen have travelers become in weight reduction and calories that some of the menus in the dinners now carry the amount of calories contained in each item so that the customers can add up and find out whether they are within their limit. A pencil and pad will be furnished on request to simplify the calculation for those who are slow at mental arithmetic.

Those Bankers

My experience as an humble observer of things has been that most prominent bankers go around with their heads in the air and their hands in their pockets. Usually, although one is introduced to them frequently, the bankers do not remember the ordinary citizen. Therefore, I have adopted this practice to make a banker remember me, if desirable. If the man's first name is Charles, for example, when introduced I always say to him:

"Hello, George," and he says,

"George isn't my name," and I say,

"I know it."

The other way is to owe him money. A banker never forgets the face of a borrower and the more he is owed, the better his memory.

Not Greeley Script

Percy Hammond, a well known dramatic critic who has a reputation of throwing a mean axe, a statement which will be supported by any actor who has felt said axe—and many have—is meticulous about his copy. He visited me recently and did a good deal of work in my apartment. He did it in longhand. Puzzled, because I knew that he operated a typewriter fluently, I asked him about it. His explanation, was, I think, of interest:

"If I write on the typewriter they give the copy to a bad compositor. When I write it in longhand, they give it to the best. It is more drudgery for me, but I get better results."

Watch Your Tip

One of those strange dramas occurred while I was waiting for a taxicab at the Grand Central terminal yesterday. A well-dressed man middle aged, and his wife, followed by two porters struggling with five heavy pieces of luggage, one of which had the dimensions and apparent weight of a small trunk, came out of the station. The couple got into the cab and the porters grunted laboriously as they loaded on the baggage. Then the man handed one of the porters a coin. I could not see its size, but apparently it was very unsatisfactory, for the porter took it with an expression that I could not overhear and if I could it probably would not be printable, hurled it on the sidewalk with a look of disgust and walked away. I watched to see whether the tipper got out of the cab to recover it, but apparently he was too much embarrassed.

What? No Silk Parachutes!

The United States bureau of standards has developed a cotton parachute, which it has found to be a reliable substitute for silk, it was announced today."—News item.

PHILLIPS

Extreme indignation was voiced by women fliers when shown the above dispatch today. A protest to Washington is expected. No woman can be expected to hop out of a plane in a cotton parachute when she knows there are silk ones on the market.

The next thing you know the government will be urging that airplane bodies be made of wicker, that wings be manufactured from compressed calico and that propellers be made out of discarded gingham aprons.

"I would like to see them hand me a cotton parachute," said Ima Dodo today. "I would hand it right back to them and demand decent material. Does the government think a real lady would want to be seen falling out of a plane in a parachute of cheap material like cotton?

"Silk parachutes have been used for years and so far as I have heard there have been no complaints. There is something comforting and satisfactory about coming down in a silk parachute. It gives a girl a feeling of refinement and class.

"But you can trust Uncle Sam to go meddling with matters. Just when all the girls have become used to jumping out of fuselages in silk 'chutes, he goes to work and substitutes cotton!

"Can you imagine a government being so cheap? When anybody, man or woman, steps out of a plane in the air it may be his or her last trip and you wouldn't think the country would begrudge 'em a high class parachute.

"It is up to the women fliers of America to rise in arms and notify Uncle Sam that they will do no cotton-parachute jumping for nobody. If real silk is too expensive we girls might compromise on celenese or rayon, but we will hop out of our airplanes without any parachutes whatsoever before we will consent to come down in five and ten-cent store ones."

At the end of 1928 the capital invested in motion pictures was estimated to exceed $1,500,000,000.

The New Ice Age

If ice were suddenly wiped off the face of the earth along with our system of refrigeration, all of the large cities, during the summer time, would find themselves without fresh meat, without fresh milk, or eggs. Butter would be served melted, and a mighty odor of spoiling fish and meat would smite the nostrils.

Photographers would have trouble in getting out gelatin plates, and the enormous mountains of ice cream cones which we consume each day would cease to be. Cheeses now shipped and ripened with the aid of ice would no longer have a uniform flavor and the distilleries would have difficulties in controlling their beer and hops.

The farmers would have to stop shipping long trains of perfectly kept fruits and vegetables from the gardens, from the farms to the city centers. The margarine manufacturers would have a hard time presenting the housewife with a butter substitute, and chocolate manufacturers would have to begin all over again, back at the time when it was impossible to accomplish some of the processes of chocolate making during the summer.

The silk worm eggs, accustomed to being retarded by cold until the mulberry leaves are ready for them, would hatch too soon, and this would have a disastrous effect on the silk stocking industry. No one in the city could "say it with flowers" when the blossoms could no longer be regulated as to blooming time, nor shipped or stored in lowered temperatures.

The dynamite manufacturers who keep their dangerous explosives at low temperatures while nitrating, and the blast furnaces would have their worries also. The artificial ice skating rinks, such as those in California and Florida which depend on man-made ice, would have to close their doors.

While these things are important, I believe that the greatest value of refrigeration to the world has been accomplished in handling our meat supply. Much of the trouble and danger which were formerly due to eating rotting or infected meat has been done away with by our modern method of handling meat in a frigid atmosphere. It is also beneficial to the flavor of meat if it is kept awhile, and it is well known that the taste of chicken improves after proper storing. Freezing meat does not impair its value in any way, but actually makes it more tender and more easily digestible.

America may well be termed to be entering upon a new ice age, not destructive like the famous age of millions of years ago, but this time beneficial to life.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Cigarets

Question: J. H. asks: "I wonder if you would give in your column your opinion of cigaret smoking?"

Answer—A modern amount of cigaret smoking is not necessarily harmful providing you do not inhale the smoke. It is not now believed that nicotine is taken into the system through smoking, but is burned and destroyed by the fire. However, if you inhale any tarry-like substance, it is deposited in the lungs, and this is decidedly harmful.

Gastritis

Question—Mrs. W. L. writes: "Please advise me what to do, and what causes my stomach to have a rough raw feeling that seems to extend up to my throat even to the nasal passages? My throat looks rough and red, with a burning sensation, and I have ulcers in my mouth. Am very nervous and cannot sleep after eating even light food, such as toast and milk. Have gas on my stomach and my heart beats hard and fast after eating."

Answer—Your trouble is, at least, gastritis, and you possibly have the start of stomach or duodenal ulcers. The cause is over-acidity of the stomach, which is created through dietetic indiscretions. Milk and toast are not particularly light foods, but an exclusive milk diet should prove helpful in your case. Try taking four ounces of certified milk every hour for a few days, and then double the quantity used each time so that you take eight ounces every hour from early in the morning until you go to bed. If this does not relieve you, consult a good diagnostician and have a careful examination made in which the X-ray is used to determine exactly your condition.

Ringing in Head

Question—A. P. M. asks: "What are the non-mucous-former foods which will cure ringing in the head?"

Answer—Head noises are usually caused by catarrh of the inner ear, and will disappear as soon as the excess catarrhal mucous is thoroughly drained out. The diet for such a condition should consist principally of small amounts of meat, fish, fowl, eggs, non-starchy vegetables cooked and raw, and fruits. It is best to avoid all starches and sugars, as well as milk products. These may be said to be mucous-forming if used in excess quantities, and the one who is trying to cure himself of catarrh should avoid the carbohydrates and hydrocarbons as much as possible until the cure is effected.

Par Value in Walters Gin Stock Is Cut

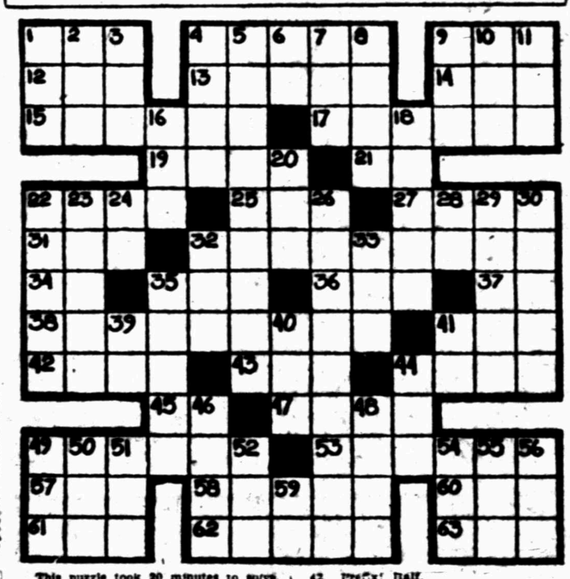

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., July 22.—Par value of the shares in the Farmers Union Co-operative Gin of Walters was cut from $100 to $25 at a meeting of more than 200 cotton raisers of this county here this week. The change was made in order that more farmers might be permitted to buy stock in the gin and have their ginning done there in the future. A provision in the new ginning law of the state requires co-operative gins to receive bottom only from their stockholders. The change in par value is a part of the campaign for an increased number of stockholders.

CROWELL CAR STOLEN

PAYNE CAPTURES SEASON'S 15TH AND SPUDDERS RETAIN LEAD

GEORGE BEATS INDIANS, 3 TO 2

Hermann, Benton, Bennett Hit to Trim Messenger

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANTONIO, July 22.—George Washington Payne and Subway Andy Messenger engaged in a great pitchers' battle today in the opener of the two-game series. Andy struck out 10, bringing his total for the season to 90; and each allowed six hits. But the Wichita Falls blows were at more timely occasions and the Spudders won 3 to 2.

The great chucking of G. Washington gave him 15 victories for the season with eight defeats. The triumph likewise enabled the Spudders to maintain first place in this mad race in the Texas league.

A two-base hit by Hermann in the second, a single by Benton in the fifth and a double by Bennett in the sixth drove home the Spudder tallies.

Sully Gets Two Hits

Dick Sullivan got two hits and Howard Fitzgerald maced a triple for the other Spudder blows. Ballew's two hits led the Indian attack.

Payne had superb control, pasing but two while Messenger walked three and hit one. George was particularly effective in the pinches.

The Indians tallied in the first inning. Tate doubled to center, went to third on Ballew's lift to Sullivan and scored on Casey's fly to Fitzgerald.

Spudders Count Three

Sullivan singled in the second and went to second on Riley's wild toss to first on the hit, and scored on Hermann's double to left.

Crouch was hit by a pitched ball in the fifth, advanced to second on Payne's sacrifice and scored on Benton's single to left.

Fitzgerald tripled to right and scored on Bennett's two-base smash to center in the sixth.

San Antonio also counted in the sixth. Ballew and Casey singled, Riley sacrificed and Ballew scored on Brozovitch's infield out.

Daily Dope

By LARRY DAILEY

THE POWERS of United States tennis probably don't read this colyum of wit and wisdom, and therefore I cannot take credit for the replacement of Francis Hunter by George Lott in the Davis cup challenge round against France. But I can, and do right here and now, point out that a few days ago I wrote that the selection of Tilden and Hunter to play singles against Germany was not a move looking toward the future, and that if those veterans were retained to compete against France it would mean inevitable defeat without gain.

Lott is a better singles player than Hunter, and George has his future ahead of him. Lott can't be expected to beat the French stars. But it will give the Chicago collegian training under fire of international tennis, just as Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn are receiving invaluable experience while competing in the doubles.

Tilden will be the only veteran competing this week in the challenge round and in view of Bill's play against Germany and the fact that three youngsters will share the difficult and near-impossible feat of regaining the trophy, it probably is as well that the lanky actor-author is on the team.

ALL TENNIS glory won by Texans last week was not captured exclusively by Allison and Berkeley Bell, who took the Colorado singles championship. A Wichita Falls youth won an important tournament when Cliff Haynes, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Haynes, 710 Fillmore, played superb tennis to cop the Northern Colorado singles crown last week at Denver.

Haynes defeated Greeley Timothy, who had been Northern Colorado champion four times, in a gruelling five-set final match. Cliff was a high school star here several years and ranked as one of the state's foremost scholastic netsters.

I HAVE a communication from a Knox City fan, asking me to give rulings on a couple of baseball plays.

The first has a runner on third base, and two out. The batter hits the ball to an infielder and is thrown out at first, and the query is, does the run count. It does NOT.

The second query is: when a runner is touched with the ball by a baseman, and the baseman drops the ball, is the runner out or safe? He is SAFE.

Glad to hear from you, Mr. Knox City Fan. Write again.

Mr. Grantland Rice falling out of a rainy night into press headquarters at Bar-le-Duc while the wires were humming with the strong proclamation, crying in horror: "Stop, men! It's the wrong proclamation! Some sap turned out a copy of an old German order!"

The late Sam Dreben, "the Fighting Jew," chief of scouts with Pershing's punitive expedition, playing blackjack with a doughboy from Capt. Martin Crimmin's outfit at Namaquipa, deep down in Chihuahua, and a friendly correspondent calling Sam aside and advising him that the sand-burner was "crimping" the cards, i. e., marking them with his fingernails.

The late Dreben laughing joyfully, and replying, "I know he is, and I'm crimping 'em on him, too."

Mr. Nicholas Dondolas, otherwise Nick the Greek, fingering his chips while considering a big bet made by a guy at him in a stud game, and the guy remarking nervously, "If you call me, I'll have a fit."

Mr. Dondolas finally calling the bet, and the guy, who turned out to be an epileptic, having the fit, as per promise.

Mr. Will Farnsworth, sporting editor of the Evening Journal, testifying at a trial with such astounding clarity and accuracy as to the state of the weather on a certain date some years previous, as to win him compliments on his memory.

Mr. Farnsworth later admitting that he had spent an entire afternoon prowling the dusty tomes in the newspaper file room to make certain of his weather.

Baking on a wharf at Locust Point in Baltimore for days and days waiting for the German merchant submarine Duetschland to sail, and bawling at Captain Koenig as the boat finally headed down the Patapsco outward bound, "Well, I hope you don't come back again."

Captain Koenig, bouncing out of the same Duetschland at New London, months afterwards and saying cheerfully, "Well, you see, I did come back again."

Mr. Ben Block, owner of the supposedly invincible Morvich, setting himself for the newspaper cameras while Morvich was galloping about the course at Saratoga for a stake with only Montfort Jones' Surf Rider as an added starter to prevent a walkover.

Surf Rider beating the brains out of Morvich, and Mr. Ben Block's look of embarrassment and chagrin.

Mr. Harry Tuthill, trainer of the Michigan football squad, calling the attention of the coach, Mr. Hurry-Up Yost, to a guy stretched out cold, and demanding that the guy be removed from the pastime.

Mr. Hurry-Up Yost peering at the stretched one, and considering Mr. Tuthill's demand in surprise, and saying: "Why, he's breathing, ain't he?"

Mr. Harry Tuthill, then trainer of the Giants, walking into one Sentell, of the Phillies, who was laying for John J. McGraw, and getting a mistaken-identity wop on the eye that closed the orb as tight as a Pullman window.

Mr. McGraw stepping briskly into the clubhouse a few minutes later saying, "I hear that guy Santell is talking of slugging me—he couldn't hurt a flea."

The good Doctor Kearns betting $1,000 with Mr. Tim Mara at 30 to 1 on a hawss called Glentilt at Saratoga in 1924, and begging Mr. Mara to let him off, after visiting the hawsses in the paddock and hearing a bloke mutter as Glentilt paraded past: "You quittin' so-and-so."

Glentilt popping down in front, and the good Doctor Kearns looking for a rope and a rafter.

Welter Crown at Stake In Detroit Battle

NEW YORK, July 22. (AP)—Three fistic champions go to the well this week but only one of them is taking his pitcher with him.

Joe Dundee whose welterweight championship crown has clung to the top of his head chiefly because the Baltimore Italian has deemed it inexpedient to place it in jeopardy, battles Jackie Fields, Pacific coast star, in a titular bout at Floyd Fitzsimmons' new arena in Detroit Thursday night.

The battle is set for 15 rounds, first at that distance in Michigan.

New York's fans will see both Andre Routis, featherweight champion, and Bushy Callahan, junior welterweight titleholder in action at Ebbets field Wednesday night but neither is risking his crown. Routis is to battle Al. Singer, in the main 10 rounder. Callahan will tackle Jack (Kid) Berg, of England, a lightweight, in the semi-final.

We'd rather not mention "spit"

. . . but spit-tipped cigars are a menace!

Do you remember the old, filthy shop where the man in the window rolled the leaves . . . with dirty fingers . . . and spit on the ends?

What a far cry this is from the modern certified Cremo Process of manufacture. From the moment the choice Cremo leaves arrive at the Cremo factory they are scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods. This purity is carefully safeguarded along every step of the way in the Cremo manufacturing process.

Cremo cigars are free from the danger of "spit-tipping" because they are made by amazing inventions that fill, wrap and dip the cigars in sunny, airy, spotlessly clean Cremo factories.

Distributed by:

Southwest Cigar Co., Dallas, Texas

Only the choicest, tenderest leaves are used in making Cremo. Rich and ripe, they are put through a slow, expensive mellowing method that develops the fullest measure of their goodness. Finally, they are finished off with a choice, imported Sumatra wrapper . . . absolutely free of even the tiniest worm-holes.

No scraps or floor sweepings in Cremo! Only long filler—only fresh, tender leaves. To safeguard the cleanliness of this wonderful quality, more than $7,000,000 was spent to perfect the Cremo Process of manufacture . . . a process that insures uniformly fine cigars . . . safe for your mouth! Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . sanitary . . . the kind of cigar that the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

LOTT REPLACES FRANK HUNTER

LaCoste Out of Davis Cup Play This Week

By ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, July 22. (AP)—Two significant developments today served to increase interest and prospects for a real battle when the United States plays France for the historic tennis trophy, the Davis cup, starting Friday at the Roland Garros stadium, Paris.

Following announcement here of the selection of George M. Lott Jr. 22-year-old Chicago star, to replace Francis T. Hunter of New York in the singles for the American team, definite elimination of the ailing French ace, Rene LaCoste, from the forthcoming competition was revealed in Paris.

Tilden Heads U. S. Team

The American team, as announced by the United States lawn tennis association on behalf of Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia, chairman of the Davis cup committee, will be composed of William T. Tilden, II, George M. Lott Jr., Wilmer Allison and John van Ryn. This is the 10th Davis cup campaign for Tilden but the trio of younger players named are all newcomers to challenge round competition.

The plans call for Tilden and Lott to play in the singles friday and Sunday, with the doubles on Saturday entrusted to Van Ryn and Allison, Wimbledon champions.

Defenders Named

The French team, as announced in Paris by M. Pierre Gillou, the captain, consists of Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus. Borotra, replacing LaCoste, will share the responsibility with Cochet, holder of the American and Wimbledon championships. They also are expected to pair in the doubles but this may depend on the outcome of the opening singles matches Friday. Brugnon may draw a doubles assignment.

The loss of LaCoste comes as a severe blow to the French. No change is possible in the lineups, under Davis Cup regulations, except as to the actual assignments given to the four players selected by each nation.

Ease and Results

"When men would you name," writes F. J. D., "who got the best results from the greatest outward show of ease in execution, who always seemed to have much in reserve even when hard pressed?"

Here is one list, whether or not it be the best one that could be named:

Golf—Bobby Jones.

Baseball, infielders—Napoleon Lajoie.

Baseball, outfielders—Tris Speaker.

Baseball, pitchers—Walter Johnson.

Tennis—Norman Brookes.

Track—Paavo Nurmi.

Football—Red Grange.

Boxing—Joe Gans.

Billards—Hoppe.

Each one of these seemed to get results with little extra effort. Many of them were under high tension and many of them looked effortless when they were giving all they had. But it rarely showed on the surface. One old complaint about Lajoie was that he seemed to loaf after ground balls. He did—but he was always in front of them. One oldtime Cleveland fan said one day that one of the reasons Lajoie could not be called a great infielder was that he never had a hard chance, being what you might call a lucky cove in this respect. The fan failed to realize that Lajoie had the knack of making chances look easy and simple.

Speaker always seemed to be ambling under fly balls, although two successive catches might be 100 feet apart. There are few memories of Lajoie and Speaker in desperate dives after a ball. They had the knack of being at the right spot at the right moment without breaking a leg to get there.

Some of the Others

At the recent open golf championship one spectator was commenting on the easy way Bobby Jones seemed to hit a long drive. He was watching what H. H. Ramsay called the "syrup-pouring" swing. Apparently there was no effort at all in a swing so smooth and well timed. But if he had happened to forget the swing and study Jones's face at the moment of impact he would have drawn a different idea. Jones had merely covered tremendous hitting effort with the cloak of form. His face alone showed the strain and the power.

Walter Johnson seemed to be tossing the ball across when he was using enough smoke to rival a burning oil well. His easy, smooth, almost effortless way of taking a ball back and then flicking it across helped to make his speed more effective.

Both Jones and Johnson have always, at their best, been masters of unhurried smoothness, with the ability to wait to the final flip for the full application of power.

Paavo Nurmi was about the first of the great runners to get under way from an erect standing start, discarding the crouch.

He ran as if that was his natural gait. He might be breaking a record, but there was no sign that he was ever overtrying or that he was extending himself. He ran as smoothly as the watch that ticked on his hand as now and then he took a look to see that he had covered so many yards in so many seconds.

There was no lurching or straining, although in the 1924 Olympics he put on one half-startled burst of speed at the finish as Willie Ritzola made a desperate effort to close the gap in one of the longer runs.

Nurmi looked easier on his feet than any athlete I ever saw, at any form of competition. After watching him run before he was burned out one could understand why he could travel 10,000 meters on a blazing hot day without any sign of wilting or weariness or strain.

The Cloak of Effort

Form might be called the cloak of effort. One of its main features is lack of waste motion, of over-effort or extra effort that shows itself.

It is the short cut to the simplest way. It is quite possible to apply terrific effort in line with form where the use of such effort, minus, form, would lead to nothing but trouble.

Babe Ruth can hit the ball with everything he has in his extended system because his swing is coordinated.

Bobby Jones can get amazing distance on a drive that shows no effort where there is plenty of effort, because his hands, body and feet are all working together, not against each other.

Any competitor who has the right method, the correct way of doing a thing, nearly always looks easy on the job.

Many known as fine golfers have blown up, not because they lacked courage, but because they were fighting defects in form that led to more tension than they could handle under fire. They were fighting against themselves more than against some opponent.

Form proves itself over the long route—Cobb leading the league in 12 out of 13 years, Nurmi starring through two sets of Olympic games, Jones running 1-2 in nine out of his last 10 open championships, Ruth as a home run hitter for 10 years, not one season.

There have been awkward looking champions, but most of the good ones have made their game look easy.

Property Owners Seek Low Values

agreed to meet with the board of equalization during the fall, or as soon as the full board could be brought together, for reconsideration of the Ohio avenue property valuations.

A petition for the construction of a filling station at the corner of Tenth street and Brook avenue was presented to the council by L. P. Hammond. The station would be constructed on the northeast corner lot, at present occupied by a conservatory of music.

A claim brought against the city for $100.60 growing out of damage alleged to have been done to a water heater in the Saint Paul hotel, in the 600 block on Scott avenue, as a result of cutting off the water in city mains during repair work was rejected by the council. A copy of the report of employes of the water department who carried on the repair work was ordered to be sent to the persons who made the claim.

Investigation of a petition for the erection of a fillign station at 110 Park street, made by Lawler Smith, was referred to George D. Fairtrace, city manager. Investigation of the complaint of C. O. Roark that the recent rains had created poor drainage conditions in the vicinity of Polk street and Avenue J was also referred to Mr. Fairtrace.

An ordinance creating an appropriation of $672.30 for the purchase of a light truck for the park department and for $540 as additional compensation for the dump keeper of the sanitary department was passed on final reading.

Investigation of the complaint of E. C. Glenn that the sprinkler operated by the city park department at the corner of Sixth and Van Buren streets and stoppage of a drain near his property in that vicinity had hurt his land was referred to Mr. Fairtrace.

The council failed to bring up a discussion of the problem of the city water system, which was brought to the attention of the public recently by the necessity of by-passing the water due to inadequacy of the filtration plant machinery. It had been expected that such a discussion would be held, it was said following the meeting, but no mention of it was made.

BIRTH RATE IN U. S. DECREASES

Infant Mortality Shows Big Increase

WASHINGTON, July 22. (US)—The birth rate in the United States decreased in 1928 while the death rate was increasing, and at the same time there appeared a sharp increase in infant mortality, according to vital statistics estimates for the year, made public today by the commerce department.

Total births last year, however, exceeded the total deaths by 761,387.

Figures from all states except Colorado, Georgia, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Massachusetts and Utah from which data was not complete gave:

Total births last year, 1,970,772.
Total deaths last year, 1,209,415.

Thus Uncle Sam's huge family showed a satisfactory increase even though the ratio according to population was slightly under that of 1927.

Jewelry Seized At Amarillo Brought Here

Several pieces of jewelry seized by Amarillo police when they arrested three men and two women on charges of possessing stolen property were brought to Wichita Falls Saturday by City Detective W. E. McDonald. It was believed that the articles were stolen from this city.

Officials of a local jewelry store have identified some of the articles as having been bought from their store but were unable to name the purchaser. The jewelry brought here consists of four ladies' wrist watches, one man's wrist watch, a small watch attached to a pin, a desk clock and an Eastern Star ring. No one has reported the loss of such articles to the Wichita police, it was said, and Officers Luke Hart and Pat Allen, who are investigating the case here, have been unable to find the owners.

All four arrests involved trucks operating on state highways without the necessary state licenses, Mr. Fitts explained. The fourth man, a resident of Wichita Falls, was driving a truck with an Oklahoma license, the officer said, although the vehicle is in constant use here.

Faced by Widow of Slain Doctor, Leahy Sits Unmoved During Trial

Four Jurors Selected to Decide Whether Condemned Texan Is of Sane or Insane Mind

GEORGETOWN, Texas, July 22. (UP)—Harry J. Leahy, under death sentence for the murder of Dr. J. A. Ramsey, Mathis, sat motionless and unmoved all afternoon as the court selected four of the jurors who will decide whether he is insane.

If Leahy is found sane, he will be electrocuted for Ramsey's death. The court battle today was the fourth Leahy has undergone. Twice he was convicted, and once he was granted a retrial.

The four jurymen selected today were A. P. Kaufman, 44, Georgetown farmer; O. W. Davis, 45, Leandor farmer; A. C. Delahon, 40, Andice farmer, and Oscar Holmstron, 33, Weir farmer.

The courtroom was jammed to capacity. Throughout the questioning Leahy maintained the same drawn expression, narrowed eyes and drooping jaw.

Just in front of Leahy, Mrs. J. A. Ramsey sat facing him. Mrs. Ramsey, widow of the man for whose death Leahy was convicted, greeted friends with smiles and cheerful words. She laughed loudly once when an attorney asked one of his veniremen "how big men grew in his country."

Leahy smiled when a newspaper was passed to him which had a headline referring to his sanity hearing.

The prisoner was taken to Austin tonight. He will be returned here in time for the reopening of the trial Tuesday morning.

Great Honor Paid Fastest Steamer Afloat at End of Record Journey

NEW YORK, July 22. (UB)—Germany's latest claim for steamship supremacy on the seas—the steamship Bremen—steamed into New York harbor this afternoon, piercing the gray, choppy waters with greyhound ease, after a record breaking journey from Cherbourg, France.

The trip was completed in slightly more than four days and 17 hours, easily beating the best previous record for the Cherbourg-New York crossing, which was established when the Cunarder Mauretania made the distance in 5 days, 2 hours and 34 minutes.

The giant German passenger liner was greeted with honors such as has not been paid to any ocean racer since the arrival here of the ill-fated Lusitania nearly 15 years ago. Police Commissioner Whalen resumed his old post as New York's official welcomer and went down the bay on the Macon with a group of distinguished passengers.

Near pandemonium prevailed along the river front as tugs gently nosed the Bremen into her berth.

The end of the fourth day's steaming at noon today revealed that for the third successive day the Bremen had bettered all former records for 24 hours' sailing.

From noon Sunday to noon today the Bremen traversed 713 nautical miles at an average speed of 29.53 knots an hour.

Jury Hears Suit Over False Teeth

Woman Asks $1,046 Damages of Dentist

A set of false teeth that didn't fit and a dentist who is accused of having attempted to make them fit in spite of the protests of the patient are involved in a damage suit on trial before Judge Allan D. Montgomery in the 78th district court. The suit was brought by a Wichita Falls woman, backed in the petition by her husband, and asks for $1,046.85 in damages.

The plaintiff told the jury Monday afternoon that while her gums were deadened by an opiate the dentist inflicted injuries which caused her days of suffering. She also complained of having been almost strangled by the hot material used in taking impressions for plates and claimed that her protests were ignored. Her suit also involved the defendant's alleged refusal to let her have the teeth on trial without a payment. Evidence for the plaintiff is expected to be completed early Tuesday.

Scotland Yard Head to Quit

Chief Constable Wensley To End Long Career

By F. A. WRAY
(Copy't, 1929, International News Service)

LONDON, July 22.—"Wensley of the yard"—officially Chief Constable Frederick Wensley, executive chief of the criminal investigation department of Scotland Yard—retires at the end of this month, and the criminals of Britain will undoubtedly unite in a special service of thanksgiving.

Not that the British criminals dislike Wensley. On the contrary, they respect hi mand reckon him a "good fellow." But they do not understand him. To them he is some mythical and uncanny power that wrecks the best laid schemes and always seems to come out on top.

When they have called him high, he has invariably outbid them and won.

Wensley has never made himself a public figure. At Scotland Yard one has gained access to him with the utmost difficulty. But the meeting has always been worth the trouble involved.

Visitors Welcome

The visitor is always received with the courtliness of an ambassador. He is conducted to a spacious armchair. Wensley sits on a hard seat behind a huge desk. Very few papers are seen on this desk; its main fixtures are vases filled with flowers grown by Wensley.

It looks like the desk of the head of a big business department. And so it is—it belongs to the head of the biggest business of its kind in the world.

Fred Wensley himself is a powerfully built man with graying hair and that slow speaking drawl that belongs exclusively to the western counties of England. On the few occasions when pride enters into his voice he says, "I come from Taunton in Somerset."

But it is seldom he talks. His utterances are more monosyllablic than those of ex-President Coolidge. It is the caller who does the talking; and before he has been talking two minutes he finds that he cannot take his eyes off Fred Wensley's face.

It's Wensley's Eyes

The reason is quickly apparent. It is Fred Wensley's eyes—a pair of the most remarkable eyes one could ever encounter. They remind one of an oculist's instrument at the first examination of a new patient. They are deeply but irregularly set and intensely blue. They are more than piercing; they just thrill, just crumple up any pre-arranged yarn. They unnerve a man and compel him to divulge.

Fred Wensley has none of the "third degree" attributes about him. He never threatens. He never cajoles. He just asks questions quietly, one after another, and never raises his voice. And he never moves those eyes from the face of the man he is questioning.

Wink's Chief Of Police Turns Out Escaped Convict

WINK, Texas, July 22. (UP)—Wink was looking for a new chief of police today.

Its head of the police department and respected citizen, Robert Williams, has become Joseph Reocket, escaped convict from the Oklahoma penitentiary.

Reocket escaped from the penitentiary in 1915. He came here. From a patrolman he rose to chief of police. The past had been forgotten until he arrested another escaped Oklahoma prisoner.

The prisoner escaped from the police chief. Officials not satisfied with the story Reocket told of the escape, began an investigation.

Reocket's past was revealed and Robert Williams of the police department of Wink has again become a number in the Oklahoma penitentiary.

WALTERS MAN TO FACE TRIAL

Bridge Owner Must Face Arson Charge

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., July 22.—M. L. Harris, president and principal owner of the Devol Toll Bridge corporation, must stand trial for arson, the charge being filed against him soon after the destruction of the Devoll toll bridge, spanning Red river, south of that city. A decision handed down this week by the criminal court of appeals ordered the lower court to proceed with the case.

Harris was charged with arson in a complaint filed by the county attorney of Cotton county soon after the destruction of the bridge, which was burned while the new free bridge was being constructed a few miles away. The structure was insured for $20,000. When arraigned in district court Judge E. L. Richardson sustained a motion to dismiss the case because of insufficient evidence. The county attorney appealed the case to the higher court and the trial has been ordered.

Central Alloy Steel corporation began business in 1916, the title being changed to its present form in 1926. From time to time it has acquired control of other companies in similar lines of business. It specializes in production of high grade steels and controls a large part of the alloy steel business of the country. The latest acquisition of the company was the metal furniture division of the Van Dorn Iron Works company, which was bought by a Central Alloy subsidiary for about $1,000,000.

The main products of the company are agathon alloy steels, toncan copper, molybdenum iron, enduro nirosta steels and agathon nitralloy. The corporation holds licenses under French and German patents for production of nitralloy and nirosta alloy steels. The subsidiaries of the main concern make metal furniture, metal ceilings, auto parts and other products. Plants of the company are at Canton and Massillon, Ohio. The Canton division has a 600-ton blast furnace and can turn out 520,000 tons of steel products a year in addition to 50,000 tons of electric steels. The Massillon plant has a capacity of 570,000 tons annually of various steel products.

Net earnings reached a new high record of $4,903,341 in 1928 as compared with $2,725,656 in 1927.

Funded debt totals $4,010,200 in 8 per cent bonds due in 1941. Capital stock outstanding includes $10,000,000 in 7 per cent cumulative preferred of $100 par value and 1,296,371 shares of no par common. The preferred has been in regular receipt of dividends at the required rate and the rate on the common is $2 annually.

As of Jan. 1, 1929, total current assets were $25,560,786. Current liabilities amounted to $5,702,805 and net working capital was $19,857,981. Book value applicable to the common stock amounted to $41.11 a share. The gain in profits in 1928 was due to operating economies.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 22. (AP)—Cotton developed a reactionary trend today. Weak Liverpool cables, favorable weather over the week-end, a weaker technical position and hedge selling combined to induce selling by recent buyers.

After declining 15 to 16 points in the early trading there was a rally of 8 to 9 points but that was soon followed by a further decline which carried prices in the late trading down to levels 28 points under the preceding close. October which closed at 19.22 Saturday declined to 18.94 down 28 points, and closed at 18.97 or 25 points net lower for the day. The general market closed 25 to 30 points down.

Liverpool came in 8 to 11 points worse than due. Prices eased in early trading on favorable weather in the belt until October dropped to 19.06 and December to 19.27 or 15 to 16 points under Saturday's close.

There was a moderate rally of 8 to 19 points at the end of the first hour but the market soon turned easier again owing to the forecast for continued good weather and hedge selling which eventually carried December to 19.14 or 28 points below Saturday's close. The close was a shade above the lows with October at 18.97 and December at 19.17 or 25 points net lower for the day.

Ouster Charge Laid Against Official

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 22. (UP)—S. E. Carrier, county commissioner of Garfield county, has committed removable offenses as county commissioner, Fred Hansen, assistant attorney general, today reported to Attorney General Dabney.

Hansen's report will be submitted to the Garfield county grand jury which convenes July 29, Dabney said. Dan Mitchell, county attorney of Garfield county, expects to disqualify himself from conducting the grand jury investigation, Hansen reported.

The removable offenses Hansen charges Carrier is guilty of are the sale of oils and greases to the county, by a company Carrier is alleged to be interested in.

De Priest Offers To Lead New Party

CHICAGO, July 22. (INS)—Oscar de Priest, only negro congressman, today had fired his second broadcast in his campaign for "enfranchisement of the negro."

Speaking before a vast gathering of negroes, De Priest urged that they form their own political party to elect members of their own race for public office.

"If you don't know how to organize, I'll come over and show you how," De Priest told the gathering.

In Washington De Priest said he would continue to nominate only negroes for the U. S. military and naval academies.

General Electric and Westinghouse Feature an Irregular Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 22. (US)—General Electric and Westinghouse featured another irregular session on the stock market today. Announcement of huge gain in earnings and further saving in operations caused continued buying that resulted in 8⅞ advance in the former and gain of 4⅜ in Westinghouse.

National Power and a few other Utilities soared ahead early in the session but felt the influence of continued liquidation in other parts of the list. Commercial Solvents dropped 9½, Johns Manville 5½, and Case Threshing 21 points, Steel dropped 3⅝ and other Standard Industrials lost from one to four points. General Motors with other automobile shares declined from one to two points. Railroads softened also with Central losing 3⅞ and others dropping lesser amounts. Oils and Coppers remined dull and slightly irregular. Call money held at seven per cent and appeared to be in good supply. Turnover dropped under the 4,000,000 share level.

The Chrysler statement for the half year, issued late today, reveals little reason for the widespread bearishness on the motor stocks. However, there is growing evidence that a strong group has taken a bearish position and as members thereof are identified with the motor industry there should be reason for their action. Chrysler's net of $4.06 for the half year was better than generally expected. General Motors, in its report, is expected to show around $4 for the half year ago. Both companies showed practically the same return in the second as they did in the first quarter. Worry about the third quarter and talk of differences among important leaders seems the main bearish influence in the automobile shares. Leaders of the industry are not worrying about third quarter earnings as they feel that new models coming out next month will pep up demand.

A new group is reported at work in Combustion and there is talk that officials are expecting further gain in earnings in coming months. Durant, it is claimed, is not in the play. He is said to be "resting" at Lake Placid. There was further talk of a split up by Allied Chemical. Holding a large amount of Steel common, however, it is felt that the Allied management will wait for the Steel corporation to take action first. Bethlehem Steel's earnings statement for the second quarter, to be issued Thursday afternoon, is expected to show $7 a share. This compares with $4 in the first quarter—is a new record—and warrants an extra dividend.

Utilities gave further evidence that they were only resting last week and that important interests are not through with plans for consolidations, etc. Bullish news along these lines are expected from several sources within the near future. Consolidated Gas earnings appear to warrant a higher payment. Western Union also could make larger return to stockholders. Holders of Electric Investors have reason to expect recapitalization as value of security holdings has shown tremendous increase in recent months. National Power and Electric Power get together is being worked out as is the grouping of Utilities Power & Light and Commonwealth Southern. New interests have taken a position in McLellan Stores which is expected on the big board within the next week. Sales in the first half of the year showed gain of nearly 50 per cent and further increase is indicated by plans to acquire additional stores.

All manner of bullish opinions are expressed due to belief that the farmers will be made more prosperous by reason of the outstanding advance of wheat and other grains. Those expressing such opinion think the advance in wheat has been due to help from the farm relief legislation. Active operators who have taken a bullish position, however, do not seem to be influenced by such factor. They expect a very short crop and that expectation is the only reason for the bullish activity. If they were to prove correct the farmers, in the aggregate, may not have as much money to spend as is gnerally expected.

Wheat and other grains scored further steady advance, registering new high prices for the recovery. Cotton was irregular throughout as further bearish weather advices were received. Sterling gained a little more in a generally quiet but steady foreign exchange market.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, July 22. (AP)—Ablazing into a new conflagration today, the wheat market went whirling upward again at a furious rate, and left $1.50-a-bushel prices far outdone. Speculative buying took on breakneck speed, and raced values up to 8c above Saturday's closing level. Meanwhile, spring wheat crop conditions were reported as fast becoming more and more wretched, with an authoritative estimate of yields in the Canadian prairie provinces putting the total at 219,000,000 bushels, showing last year's figures reduced already much in excess of one-half.

Wheat closed excited, 7 to 7⅝c higher than Saturday's finish. With rye showing 5⅜ to 5⅝c gain. Corn closed 2¼ to 3¼c up, oats 1¼c to 2c advance.

Surprise over sudden advances in price at Liverpool, where setbacks had been expected, did much today to set the wheat trade afire in Chicago.

Dispatches from Winnipeg interpreted the Canadian growers' pool reports as forecasting only 24,000,000 bushel yield this season in Manitoba, 133,000,000-bushel in Saskatchewan, and 62,000,000-bushel in Alberta. Faced by such a showing, huge profit taking sales here were rapidly absorbed.

Corn, oats and rye moved up with wheat. Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Kansas crop reports told of unusual backward conditions of corn growth.

Provisions sagged owing to a dip in hog values.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, July 22. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Livestock trade around the 11-market circuit was marked by a material expansion in the movement of western grass cattle. A weak to lower tone prevailed on practically all killing classes, except highly finished fed steers and yearlings. Feeders fleshy weight steers, $12.50@14.25. Heavy wintered Kansans, $14.60. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 82,000, an increase of 13,500 over a week ago and 15,000 heavier than the corresponding day last year. But packers were bearish and the close at most points was dull at weak to 25 cents lower values. The top of $12.40 was paid early at Chicago. Total offerings were around 119,900 as compared with 129,899 last Monday and 79,260 a year ago.

Although the sheep supply, numbering around 51,800 was 6,500 less than a week ago, and 8,500 short of a year ago, fat lamb prices broke 25@50c. Chicago reported a 25-cent decline on fat ewes, but at other markets no material change was registered on aged stock. A very few closely sorted native lambs in Chicago realized $15 and choice rangers made $14.75.

SCROGGINS IN ALTUS AGAIN

Accused Makes Bond In Clarendon Case

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., July 22.—S. B. Scroggins, Olustee farmer and former Jackson county deputy sheriff who was arrested July 5 on a murder charge in connection with the death of John Slaughter, Clarendon, Texas, night watchman, about two years ago returned to Jackson county today from Clarendon where he made an appearance bond of $7,500 Sunday.

Preliminary hearing of the case scheduled for today was waived by Scroggins, and bond was made to await action of the grand jury in October.

Scroggins waived extradition and went to Clarendon with W. M. Moseley, sheriff, and his assistant from Clarendon, July 14. He was held in jail until today. The return of Scroggins to Clarendon was made following the capture of Walter Scott, negro, who July 4 in Wichita Falls, Texas, told officials that he refused a $100 bribe from his white employer for the murder of Slaughter a few weeks before the fatal shooting. Scott also said that a few weeks later Slaughter appeared at the front door of a Clarendon place of business, while the white employer went out of the back door, shot gun in hand. A few minutes later the shot was fired, according to the statement of the negro. Scott declared that he and another negro had been called upon to help move the body and were given $50 and told to get out of town.

Scott sawed out of jail about two weeks ago but was later recaptured Scroggins continued to declare his innocence today and express his belief that the entire affair will be cleared and that he will be freed in October at Clarendon.

'MOTORS' MAY ENTER FRANCE

Giant U. S. Concern Seeks Peugot Agreement

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.

PARIS, July 22. (US)—The entrance of General Motors into the French market on a pretentious scale loomed this evening when it was authoritatively learned that the powerful American corporation is negotiating with the French Peugot company, seeking a mutually satisfactory agreement.

While the greatest secrecy surrounds the negotiations, the impression is that General Motors is prepared to enter some arrangement along the lines recently worked out in Germany with the famous Opel works.

If successful, it will mean motor competition such as has never been seen before in the French market. While the Opel-General Motors combination in Germany markets a small car at a price around $450, there is nothing approaching such a reasonable figure in France.

When the Opel deal was consummated some months ago, there was a real chill among the French manufacturers, who are accustomed to charging around $1,000 for their cheapest models. Ford and Citroen both cling to the $1,000 figure.

Peugot is one of the largest French manufacturers, but has been making little headway in the last three years. Their best output is a sleeve valve motor which has attained considerable popularity.

In the low priced field, however, the Peugots had difficulties which undoubtedly will receive special attention in case of an agreement with General Motors.

In 1804 New Jersey legislature abolished slavery.

TEXAS GUARDS AGAINST PEST

Inspectors to Watch for Citrus Fruit Fly

AUSTIN, July 22. (AP)—Inspectors of the state department of agriculture were ordered today to Galveston, Houston, Corpus Christi and Port Arthur to check incoming ocean vessels to determine if any Florida-grown citrus fruit is aboard the ships. Orders to destroy all fruit found were issued.

This action to prevent the spread into Texas of the Mediterranean fruit fly resulted in the discovery last week that a woman passenger arriving at Galveston from New York on the Algonquin had in her possession several oranges purchased in Florida, J. M. Del Curto, chief entomologist of the department of agriculture, said.

Del Curto said he did not believe any of the fruit which the 100 passengers on board the liner Algonquin had in their possession escaped destruction at the port.

MUSIC MARATHON

Oklahoma Organist Plays 80 Hours Without Moment's Rest

POTEAU, Okla., July 22. (UP)—The old theater pipe organ here was silenced today and Forrest Braun, 26-year-old holder of the world's pipe organ endurance record, was eating chicken after a fast of 80 hours while "beating the bellows."

Braun's performance first jeered by his townsmen, but later applauded, came abruptly to an end Saturday night after 80 hours of continuous playing. He was led from the organ exhausted. He surpassed the former organ endurance record held by B. C. Burt, Jamestown, N. Y., by 20 hours. His nourishment consisted of cold drinks and cigarets during the ordeal.

WITCH SLAYERS DENY CHARGE

Couple Held for Slaying Widow Arraigned

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 22. (INS)—Eugene Burgess and his wife, Pearl, confessed slayers of a 75-year-old widow whom they believed a witch, stood stolidly in court today and remained silent when Justice Carl Blankenburg demanded that they plead guilty or not guilty to charges of first degree murder.

In accordance with Michigan procedure, a plea of not guilty was entered for them, and they were remanded to jail pending appearance in circuit court next Monday. Stephen H. Wattles, their atorney, waived examination.

Eugene Burgess, 19-year-old daughter of the prisoners and the unwitting cause of the killing, was one of the first to appear in the magistrate's room, which was packed to capacity an hour before the arraignment.

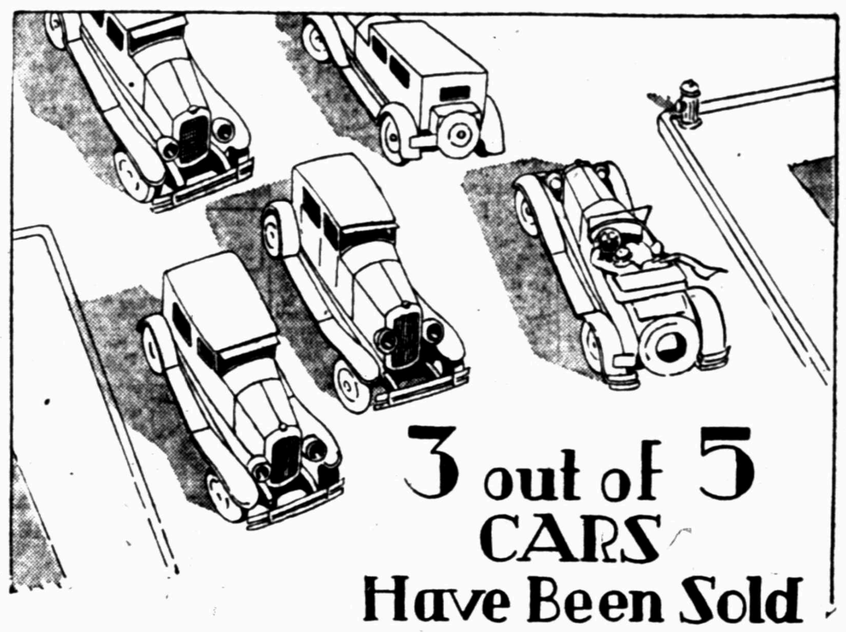

The girl sat with downcast eyes beneath the stares of townspeople. Her parents, however, looked everyone boldly in the eye, their demeanor reflecting their expressed opinion that they should be commended, rather than punished, for freeing the town of a "witch."

Mrs. Fairchild, the aged widow of a minister, possessed an "evil eye," they believed, with which she could and did bring sickness and death to persons subjected to its spell. When their daughter, Eugenie, became sick, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess attributed her illness to the "evil eye."

The pair admit that they invited Mrs. Fairchild to their home for dinner, beat her to death with a hammer and lead pipe and threw the body into a cistern. Burgess says he committed the actual murder, but his wife and son, Burnett, 27, have also been implicated, though no charge has been placed against the latter.

Funeral services for the victim, who was known in the town as a kindly, charitable old lady, were held today.

Wichita Mail Carrier Talks

J. A. Roe Says Improvement Has Been Wonderful—Gives Orgatone Credit

"Rivaling the tremendous sweep with which it spread over the entire United States, the fame of the celebrated medicine, Orgatone, is growing in West Texas by leaps and bounds since its introduction here a few months ago. Thousands of the best known and most highly respected citizens of this state are now taking Orgatone and testifying daily to the remarkable benefits they are obtaining from its use.

James A. Roe, U. S. mail carrier, residing at 305 Scott, made the following interesting statement regarding the great benefit he received from taking Orgatone:

"For almost 20 years I had been bothered with constipation and biliousness. If I would stoop over I would get so dizzy I would almost fall and had dull throbbing headaches which kept me awake for hours many a night. Nothing I ate agreed with me and I always felt tired, restless and worn out.

"I have now taken six bottles of Orgatone and my improvement has been wonderful. The habitual constipation gradually disappeared, my head cleared up and I don't have those awful headaches or dizzy spells like I did. I can eat anything I want without it hurting me in the least and digest it, too. My nerves are as steady as a clock and when I go to bed at night I rest well and get up in the morning feeling refreshed and ready for a hard day's work on my mail route. I am certainly satisfied over the results Orgatone has had in my case and you can count me among your many boosters, for this meritorious remedy."

Genuine Orgatone is manufactured by one of the world's largest laboratories and is not a so-called secret or patent remedy, but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by the Allison's Drug Store.—Adv.

City Workmen Labor 34 Feet Under Ground's Surface on Disposal Plant

Work on the re-cementing of the wells at the city disposal plant has just been completed, it was learned Monday from George D. Fairtrace, city manager. The work, which had to be carried on at night due to use of the wells during the day, was done by workmen 34 feet below the surface of the ground. Fresh air had to be forced down into the openings during the work because of the presence of dangerous gases, and compression pumps were operated the whole time.

The concrete was blown onto the walls of the wells by means of a compressed air gun, which formed a layer of cement several inches thick and from eight to 16 times as strong as ordinary concrete work. A pressure of 75 pounds was required to operate the cement gun. On several occasions some of the men were forced to come to the surface because of the effect of the gases in the wells and some were unable to work the next night after having breathed an excess of the gas, Mr. Fairtrace said.

The re-cementing work became necessary because of the effect of the gases and liquids on the former cement lining, which had in some places become eaten away to the depth of several inches, exposing the steel reinforcements.

Murder Charge Names Butler

murder at Groesbeck and for which he was awaiting trial next month. Two men were shot to death with a shotgun during a fight which began over a dime.

Given Sentence

Butler was tried on one of the charges, sentenced to serve 99 years in the penitentiary but the case was reversed and he was later tried at Hillsboro on a change of venue and found not guilty. The trial in the other case was to have come up next month. Butler was free on bond.

He was held in Dallas jail in connection with a series of knob knockings. He also was wanted in Wichita Falls for robbery and in Cleburne for highway robbery.

Working on signals and with his actions covered by noises of other prisoners, Butler sawed two bars from the front of his cell, worked his way to the ventilator shaft, sawed a heavy wire netting and broke out a skylight, escaping over the roof and down a fire escape and the side of the Dallas city hall in which the jail is located.

Mates Help Him

Upon the approach of the jailer while Butler was sawing the bars, other prisoners struck matches to signal him to stop. A commotion was faked when he broke out the skylight. The jail break was discovered early Sunday morning when the jailer discovered the bars gone from the cell.

Five men who had been in a cell adjoining Butler's earlier Saturday night were questioned for their part in assisting in the escape.

Butler was arrested last Thursday in a Fort Worth rooming house by Detective Sergeant Will Fritz and Detective Bob Jones.

County Commissioners Expected To Select Dairy Expert Today

The question of a dairy expert for Wichita county is expected to be finally answered Tuesday afternoon when members of the county commissioners court hold one last special meeting in conference with John L. Mizell, secretary of the Yoakum chamber of commerce and a favored applicant for the position.

Mr. Mizell has not yet personally addressed the court, but references and recommendations, including those of a special bankers and dairymen's committee within the county, have led most members of the body to favor his appointment. Definite action is expected after the conference.

One more applicant, C. L. Wilson of Benjamin, addressed the commissioners Monday afternoon. The court deferred action. The employment of the expert will involve the immediate launching of a three-year development program for the dairy industry within the county. The court has tentatively agreed that the salary involved will not exceed $3,600 or $4,000.

Other applicants for the position, who have not yet been officially eliminated are D. L. Putnam of Ardmore, Okla., and H. D. Sheflett of Yale, Okla.

Permit Issued for New Mack Thomas Building

The building will be rebuilt approximately on the same plan as before the fire, it was said, with some few changes in the interior plan. The structure is located at 812-14 Scott avenue.

REVENGE

Wichitan Rigs Auto Horn to Compete With Neighbor's Radio

Retaliation and revenge on the part of a man who had "stood about all he could from that d—n loudspeaker" in a store near his home on Holliday street resulted in investigation of the disturbance by Plainclothes Officer F. B. Fountain Monday morning. The above mentioned loudspeaker had disturbed his sleep and peace of mind to such an extent that the man rigged up an extremely loud automobile horn, pointed it at the loud speaker and ran it full blast for about an hour Monday morning. The horn succeeded in drowning out the speaker, but neighbors failed to appreciate the harmony and the officer was called to restore quiet to the community.

The order of the Golden Horseshoe was the first order established in the United States. It was organized in Virginia in 1724.

There are 35,000 John Smiths in the United States, it is said.

TAX RATE SET AT 75 CENTS

County Heads Refuse to Increase Levy

fund at the end of 1931, the treasurer said.

The principal other change involves a 1½ cent cut in the general fund and other operating cuts which bring the total to 3 cents, a reversal of the policy adopted during the past several years, when operating funds have been increased and interest and sinking fund levies reduced. Officials estimated that the general fund will lose around $9,000 by the cut, but explained that an existing surplus, along with certain economies, will carry the load. Other small cuts in several levies make up the 9¾ cent raise in the road fund rates.

Mr. Barnett submitted the program adopted without any recommendation, maintaining the position taken a week ago when he advised the court that a 10 cent raise is necessary to avoid trouble later on.

"These funds will have to have still more money next year," the auditor repeated. "I do not say that the total tax rate must necessarily be increased, but I am sure that these two special road funds will have to have increased levies. They can just slip by this time, but in a year or two the crisis will come and the raises will have to be bigger."

Wichitan's Leg Broken As Fan Falls From Window

Edwin Nelson, employe of local automobile company, sustained a broken leg early Monday evening when an electric fan hurtling through the air from a third-story window of the American hotel, Tenth and Indiana, struck him. Nelson, who lives at the hotel, was seated directly under the window.

An ambulance from the Albert's Funeral home took the injured man to the Hargrave-Walker hospital for treatment.

In Pasteurizing milk, the fluid is heated from 145 to 170 degrees Fahrenheit and then cooled rapidly. This treatment kills all pathogenic organisms.

The estimated population of China in 1923 was 330,000,000.
