Equalization, Economy Urged By West Texans In Plea To Tax Survey Body

GROUP SPLIT ON PURPOSES OF INQUIRY

ASK RETRENCHMENT

Joint Proposals Ask Cut in Cost of State Government

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—Proceedings of the legislative committee making a survey of the states system of taxation was nearly disrupted today when Senator W. A. Williamson of San Antonio threatened to withdraw as a member unless the committee adhered strictly to purposes for which it was formed.

Considerable discussion had been had concerning advisability of a tax on incomes when Williamson warned the committee it had been appointed to make a survey of the tax system and not to consider feasibility of a tax on incomes. If the committee had advocation of an income tax as its object, instead of an inquiry into the general subject of taxation, Williamson said he would leave the session.

Equalization Aim

The committee expressed a desire to make recommendations to the legislature that would equalize taxation rather than find new sources of revenue.

While the tax survey committee was wrestling with the taxation problem, a committee appointed to inject greater efficiency into government also was at work. Known as the efficiency committee, it was appointed to investigate the practicability of combining certain state governmental boards, commissions and bureaus and abolition of other agencies.

Proposals Offered

A compromise proposal embodying recommendations of 65 local committees in West Texas styled the West Texas Federation of Public expenditure and tax committees, was presented to the tax survey group by Houston Harte of San Angelo, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, D. A. Bandeen, manager, and Wilbur of Amarillo late today.

The recommendation stressed two main points: Balancing of the state budget by curtailment of expenditures, rather than by imposition of new taxes, and uniformity in valuing property for state revenue purposes.

Cuts Suggested

Recommendations also was made that the government embark on a program of retrenchment, and eliminate non-essential agencies; reorganize its board, commission and bureaus and introduce improved business methods into governmental affairs.

State costs are far beyond their proper level, beyond the increase in wealth and population of the

New Orleans Gambling Houses Must Close

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13. (AP)—Operators of gambling houses in Jefferson and St. Bernard parishes today philosophically received the edict of Atty. Gen. Percy Saint that their doors must be darkened and said they would close all open gambling.

The New Orleans States quoted night club and casino operators as saying the open halls of gambling would be closed in compliance with Saint's order placing the deadline at midnight tonight. Floor shows and other entertainment will go at the night clubs.

"It's all in the game," the operators were quoted as saying, recalling that before the last election Gov. Huey P. Long raided the big open houses of chance with the militia, burned the gambling paraphernalia and turned into the state treasury thousands of dollars confiscated in the raids.

Dry Chief to Probe Agent-Lawyer Scrap

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (US)—Friction between United States Attorney Sandall of Omaha and Prohibition Administrator W. M. Rowan of that city will be investigated by Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, when he reaches Omaha tomorrow, it was learned here today.

Difficulties between the legal and prohibition branches at Omaha become so serious that they were reported to Attorney General Mitchell.

Murray Angered by Series of Evictions

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 13. (INS)—Aroused by the eviction of 27 families from an apartment house here, Gov. W. H. Murray today declared that if necessary he would employ guards and permit the homeless to sleep in the state capitol.

The families were evicted as a result of a rent dispute between the owner and the lessees of the building.

PANAMA LANDSLIDES

PANAMA CITY, Nov. 13. (INS)—Traffic on the Panama railroad was tied up today by two landslides.

At Home With Probable Next House Speaker

Folks, meet the probable next speaker of congress as he appears at home. He is Representative John N. Garner of the 15th Texas district who is almost certain of the speakership of the house as the Democrats hold the balance of power in the forthcoming session. The white-haired veteran Democrat, swamped by letters of congratulation, is shown above dictating letters to his secretary, who also is Mrs. Garner. At the lower left you see him instructing a laborer in the art of repairing a plow at Garner's farm at Uvalde, Texas, just before departing for Washington. At the lower right he is shown assisting in gathering the pecan crop on the farm.

MRS. CARAWAY NEW SENATOR

Widow of Late Solon Given High Appointment

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 13. (AP)—Mrs. Hattie Caraway was appointed by Gov. Harvey Parnell today as temporary successor of her husband, the late Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, who died last week. She will become the second woman in history to sit as a member of the senate.

She will occupy the seat until a successor for the unexpired term is chosen at a special election Jan. 12. The governor said he also would seek her election for remainder of the term, which ends March, 1933.

Informed of her appointment at her home at Jonesboro, Mrs. Caraway, who is 54 years old, said she would make a statement later.

She will take her seat when congress convenes Dec. 7, and thus, even if she is not elected for the remainder of the term, she will serve more than a month. Her colleague is the senate Democratic leader, Senator Joe T. Robinson.

Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton of Georgia was the first woman senator but her appointment solely was complimentary. She merely took the oath and retired in favor of Senator Walter F. George. Therefore, Mrs. Caraway will be the first woman to actually serve in the senate.

Mrs. Caraway's appointment again created a tie between Democrats and Republicans at 47 each, and restored Democratic hopes for organizing the senate.

As the wife of a congressman for eight years and of a senator for 10 years, Mrs. Caraway acquired a wide knowledge of the workings

Ruth Bryan Owen Brings Plea For World Citizenship in Address Here

Florida Congresswoman's Skillful Speech Recalls Eloquence of Noted Father to Audience at Woman's Forum

Before almost 500 men and women at the Woman's Forum Friday night, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen amply justified in her lecture, "Open Doors," the enviable position which she holds as one of the most ominent American speakers today, and one of this country's greatest living women.

Matching her clear espousal of enlightened governmental policy with a regal platform presence and highly effective delivery, the speaker held complete command over her audience throughout the evening. Not only the consummate skill in public address, but the quality of her thought, convinced the many staunch Democrats present Friday night that Mrs. Owen is a worthy daughter and successor to the late William Jennings Bryan.

New Door Waits Citizen

One of the strongest attributes of Mrs. Owen's address was the world-wide range of observations summoned for use under the announced title, "Open Doors." Hers was not a limited subject, confined in one small simile, and retraced to the point of dilution. Nor was her discourse a rambling collection of interesting scenes and phrases made available by extensive travel. Instead, she brought from different sections of the United States, from Europe, from Asia, and from the realm of high idealism pertinent facts pointing international citizenship as the great door now beckoning to the individual. Her survey was wide, but always it returned to emphasize the privilege of responsibility as a citizen.

"The door through which we already have passed," Mrs. Owen said in the climax of her address, "is that which acquainted us with the position the citizen should occupy in the community. The new door which we now approach is that which will make us know the place that he should occupy in the nation, and therefore among the nations."

Woman's place is always in the home, the speaker declared early in her address; but added that "we have extended the limits of the home, and now any place that my family lives is home. It no longer can be confined to four walls. The automobile has made tremendous

RAIL CHIEFS TO MEET LABOR

Wages and Hours Parley Called Next Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (US)—High executives of the nation's principal railways, meeting here today, reached these two major decisions:

1. To attempt to modify the Interstate Commerce commission's suggested $125,000,000 freight rate pool, by granting loans, instead of "gifts" to the weaker lines.

2. To meet the railway brotherhoods in a national parley in this city next week, to discuss wages and working conditions.

The latter decision for a time threatened to rend asunder the railway executives' seeming unanimity. The Western and Southern groups wanted a national parley. The rich Eastern groups wanted any wage reduction matters to be settled regionally.

Daniel Willard, president of the B. & O. will head the executives' committee of nine who will meet the brotherhood officials. One of the first things that will come up, it is now understood, will be the workingmen's suggestion for a six-hour day to spur employment.

The invitation for this parley recently was extended by D. B. Robertson, as spokesman for the Railway Labor Executives association.

Just what powers were conferred upon the Willard committee were not disclosed, some observers having doubts that the committee actually has the power to negotiate a pact for any individual railway.

It was announced that the executives had "in principle" accepted the I. C. C.'s suggestion that the railways with bigger earnings, carry along the weaker ones. The important change was, that a corporation should be formed, to make loans to these weak lines, which later, in better times, may be repaid with interest.

The suggested interest charge it was understood will be that of the prevailing federal reserve rate, which at the moment is 3½ per cent here, and somewhat higher elsewhere. The corporation controlling the pool is to have regional directors, conforming to the railway picture, with representation for the "short lines," and also representatives-at-large.

The actual funds to be loaned are to come from the $125,000,000 expected to accrue annually from the recent freight rate rises sanctioned by the I. C. C. in special commodities.

One further change that is to be sought is that instead of a $3-per-car rise on coal, the rise be computed on actual tonnage. Some coal cars carry 50, some 70 tons.

SOVIET DENIES AIDING CHINA AGAINST JAPS

'Provocatory Lie' Says Moscow After Report of Hostile Invasion

CITY IS BESEIGED

Japanese Launch Big Push To Capture Tsitsihar

MOSCOW, Nov. 13. (UP)—The declaration by Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria, that Chinese forces have the aid and support of the third red (Siberian) army was characterized officially tonight as a "provocatory lie, from beginning to end, and totally unfounded."

Soviet officials declared the only explanation for such a statement was that it was "the invention of adventures who want to distract world opinion from their own activities."

The declaration was authorized by the government.

RUSSO-JAPAN BATTLE REPORTED

TIEINTSIN, China, Nov. 13. (AP)—An expeditionary force described as Communists from Siberia was reported in white Russian circles today to have descended on Japanese troops in the Nonni river sector and driven them back beyond the bridgehead.

A brigade, composed of Chinese Koreans and Buriats from the vicinity of Blagovaschensk on the Manchuria border, was said to have swept from the north into the highway near Tsitsihar and attacked the Japanese with machine gun fire, demoralizing them and forcing them to retreat. Several Japanese airplanes were said to have been captured.

Throne Rumors

At the same time, Henry Pu-Yi, China's former boy-emperor, was represented by Chinese sources to be on his way to Manchuria with the former empress to be installed by the Japanese as the ruler of the independent government which they set up several days ago after deposing Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang.

A Japanese official termed the report "premature" but intimated that plans were under foot to elevate the youth to a Manchurian throne sooner or later.

The story persisted, however, that he and his party had been hustled out of the Japanese concession, in which he has lived since 1924, late last night and placed aboard a steamer for Dairen. He was escorted to the waterfront by Japanese soldiers, it was said, and embarked on a launch, from which he later transferred.

Pact Reported

Reports of the Communist incursion partially were confirmed by the Daily News, a Japanese paper in Dairen, which said that Gen. Mah Chan-Shan had visited Blagovaschensk some time ago and returned with a pledge of help from the local Soviet and a guard of 600 Communist officers and men.

In return for this aid, the paper

Donley Extortion Case Reaches Jury

CLARENDON, Texas, Nov. 13. (AP)—The jury deliberating the case of J. J. Alexander, county judge of Donley county, charged with extortion, retired tonight without reaching a verdict. The case was given to the jury in district court shortly after completion of testimony at noon.

The charges arose from the alleged keeping of illegal court fees amounting to approximately $117.

Denying the accusations, Judge Alexander, a resident of this district for more than 30 years, defended himself on the stand today. He is now serving his second term as judge.

Several county officers testified against him under the prosecution of James Mahan, district attorney.

Three counts were returned against the judge in grand jury indictments.

Potato 'Eyes' Held as Mirror of Lusciousness

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 13. (AP)—Practical use for the eyes of a potato has been found for the cook at the Pennsylvania State college.

They are one index of showing how good a potato is likely to be after it is cooked. The fewer eyes, the more likely it is that the potato will be delicious.

This is one of the several tests established by experiments at Penn State to determine the baking, boiling and frying qualities. The research was conducted by J. S. Cobb, professor of agronomy.

Tennessee Calls Special Legislative Session

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 13. (AP)—Governor Henry Horton today summoned the Tennessee legislature to meet in extraordinary session Monday to relieve the state's financial stress that has resulted in the closing of numerous schools, suspension of payment on many state obligations and payless payday for hundreds of state employes.

Home-Loan Bank Plan Proposed By President To Relieve Mortgages

By CHARLES M. M'CANN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (UP)—President Hoover took his new, aggressive anti-depression program to another and important stage late today when he announced he would propose to congress a system of home-loan discount banks.

The banks, one for each federal reserve district, would have broadly the three-fold purpose of relieving pressure on home owners and the banks holding their mortgages; allaying unemployment by overcoming the semi-paralysis that has gripped the home building industry; and establishing a permanent mortgage rediscount system of such strength as to combat in future years the deadening effect of business depressions.

Follows Pool

President Hoover's new business recovery proposal comes but a few weeks after his credit pool plan, designed to loosen ordinary banking credits.

The proposal gets right down to the man in the suburban bungalow, and the man on the farm, who are worrying about their mortgages or wondering whether they dare to negotiate one; and to the banks which are worrying whether they can renew, or accept, mortgages on farms or homes.

Summarized as to its details, the president's proposal, which will be submitted to congress early at the December session, is:

1.—A system of 12 "home loan discount banks," if 12 are necessary, one for each federal reserve district, to be supervised by a "federal home loan board" with headquarters at Washington. In this and other respects the system follows that of the federal reserve plan.

Capital Set

2.—Each bank shall have an initial capital of from $5,000,000 to $30,000,000, depending on the need of its district.

3.—The banks will conduct no original business, but shall be restricted to rediscounting mortgages held by such institutions as building and loan associations, savings banks, deposit banks, and farm loan banks, the idea being to loosen credits.

4.—Mortgage loans eligible for rediscount shall not exceed $15,000 each. This feature is an important one, in that it shows the president's intention of helping the small owner.

5.—The maximum amount to be advanced against mortgage collateral shall not exceed 50 per cent of the unpaid balance in the case of short term loans, and 60 per cent on long term ones. No advance would be made on mortgages in default.

Federal Trade Commission Defends Legality of Oil Practices Code

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—Members of the federal trade commission denied today the allegation of Attorney General Allred of Texas that it acted unlawfully in approving trade practices for the oil industry.

Commissioner March asserted the commission was wholly within its legal rights approving the practice rules. Other members joined him in asserting there was nothing in the code that would justify unlawful practices by the oil companies. The attorney general's attack came in anti-trust complaints against 15 companies selling gasoline and oil in Texas.

Probe Hinted

At the same time there was a definite hint that the trade commission now is investigating certain practices of oil companies in relation to the leasing-license system of operating filling stations.

Members would not confirm this as they hold all information confidential until a complaint is issued.

Should this system, under which the oil companies acquire possession of a filling station and employ its occupant as their agent or licensee, be found by commission representatives to be infringent, hearings may be held by the trade group and the practice might be prohibited.

The commission pointed out that the petroleum rules attacked by the Texas official were revised during the past summer to avoid any possibility of their appearing to sanction violation of anti-trust laws.

ALLRED FLAYS BOARD POLICY

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—Atty. Gen. James V. Allred today took a pot shot at the federal trade commission and its approval of the "code of ethics," of the oil industry, claimed by Allred to be a blind behind which major oil companies in Texas conspired to throttle competition in the marketing end of the business.

Allred yesterday filed suit against 15 oil companies to oust them from the state. He charged violation of the anti-trust laws in that the companies were operating under an agreement that was in restraint of trade.

Dome Cited

E. B. Reeser, of Tulsa, retiring president of the institute, said yesterday the code had been "baptised and confirmed," by the trade commission.

Claiming the federal trade commission had no authority to approve or authorize any violations of the law, Allred declared it was "not the first time that bunch of Republicans in high federal office have approved of violations of the law," adding that "the looting of Teapot Dome was accomplished with the approval of federal authorities."

Move Awaited

"Mussolini or the king of England would have as much power to authorize the violations of laws in Texas as the federal trade commission would," Allred stated.

KELL CALLS BUSINESS TURN

Conditions Improving, Says Business Leader

Conditions are better in this section than at any time in the past 18 months, Frank Kell, Wichita Falls capitalist and railroad man, told members of the business council here Friday noon in predicting a return of business to normalcy.

He expressed the belief that the business pendulum had reached one extreme and is now swinging toward better times.

Basis for the prediction was the general improvement of practically all business lines here within the past six weeks, the increase in commodity prices and the lessening of unemployment.

"It is my opinion that we have turned the corner," he said, "and it is our duty as business men to be as active as conservative business will permit us to be."

Wheat Good Investment

Mr. Kell further predicted that those with the courage and ability to hold on to their present investments will presently emerge from current business conditions without serious loss.

In commenting on climbing prices of farm commodities the

Burglars Raid Two School Offices, Taking Money After Opening Safe

Two public schools here were entered Thursday night by burglars who knocked the knob of the office safe at one school to obtain about $5 in cash. Nothing of value was obtained at the other school.

Report that entrance had been made to the Reagan Junior High school, 1100 block Broad, and to the Austin school, 1300 block Thirteenth, was received from H. D. Fillers, superintendent of schools.

Entering the Reagan building through a window, intruders proceeded through the library to the office, where the safe was entered after the combination knob had been battered away. The small sum was secured. The window lock had been broken to allow the burglars to enter the building.

At the Austin school the burglars were less successful in obtaining valuables than at Reagan. A safe is not used at the Austin school, but a steel filing cabinet was battered open. Nothing here was taken.

Superintendent Fillers expressed the belief that the intruders were after money taken in by the cafeterias.

Chief of Police Dick Morris said nothing about the two entrances until questioned specifically concerning possible burglaries and knob knockings Thursday night.

The Reagan "job" now brings the total of knob knockings to 16 that have occurred here since early last month.

Evelyn Patton, 18, Dies On Way to Hospital In Electra

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 14.—Miss Evelyn Patton, 18, died here shortly after midnight Saturday morning as she was being rushed to a hospital after being crushed between two automobiles.

A companion, E. H. Holbrook, received a broken leg and was in a hospital here early this morning.

The accident occurred one mile south of Electra.

Roy H. Page, driver of the automobile that struck Miss Patton, was held for questioning at the city jail here. Constable O. E. Whisnand, who with Night Officer Roy Hart, investigated the crash, arrested Page.

Miss Patton and Holbrook were returning home after having taken a friend home in Newtown following a party. On the return trip and as they neared Electra, they encountered tire trouble.

The automobile, it was said, was pulled to the side of the road while Miss Patton stood directly behind the machine as Holbrook repaired a tire.

The officers said Page's car was traveling at a high rate of speed as it struck the Holbrook machine, crushing Miss Patton between the two. The fact that Holbrook was standing to the side of his car was attributed with saving his life.

The girl's body was mutilated, it was said. She lived only a few minutes after being struck, and died en route to the hospital.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Patton, who reside four miles northeast of here on a Texas company lease. They are prominent farmers of this section.

Funeral arrangements had not been made early Saturday morning.

Suspect in Valley Land Fraud Found Guilty

FORT SCOTT, Kan., Nov. 13. (AP)—T. W. McNear, Kansas City, was convicted in federal court today of using the mails to defraud in selling but failing to give title to fruit land in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas. Sentence was deferred until Saturday.

The government charged McNear received $7,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Duke Coulter, Greenwood county, Kansas, and $5,000 from Dr. William T. Groves, Eureka, Kan., in payment for land.

Escaped Tyler Prisoner Caught in Plea for Food

TYLER, Texas, Nov. 13. (AP)—Raymond Knight, one of ten prisoners who escaped from the Tyler jail last Saturday, was recaptured near Chandler today when hunger drove him to appear at a house and ask for food. He was being held on a charge of murder for the death of Manuel Meyer, Tyler groceryman, in a recent robbery. He was the fifth prisoner to be recaptured.

Beaten Victims of Vigilantes Tell Story

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 13. (UP)—Kidnaped and flogged by roving bands of vigilantes, at least six men, who said they were not Communists, but unemployed, returned to their homes here today, one of them in his bare feet.

Three of the victims, participants in recent unemployment demonstrations told police of the kidnapings and beatings. They could not identify their abductors.

Cactus Blossom Draws Sterling's Eyes From Work

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—The cares of state were cast aside today and the regular routine of the executive offices broken as Gov. R. S. Sterling took "time out" from his gubernatorial duties to inspect a botanical phenomenon in the form of a cactus plant bloom grown in the state greenhouse.

The leaves of the bloom formed a perfect star the symbol of Texas. The stem was attached to the back of the bloom with another perfect star while the center pieces formed three additional flowers.

Governor Sterling was so elated over the find, discovered by Mrs. Sterling and the state gardener, that he called newspaper men to his office for a special viewing of the bloom.

"It's the most wonderful thing I've ever seen," the governor stated. "It sure is beautiful. Nature is a wonderful thing. I think I'll send it out to the University of Texas so it may be preserved permanently."

ABILENE GETS CHURCH MEET

Baptists Condemn Denial of Citizenship

By R. W. BARRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WACO, Texas, Nov. 13.—The Baptist general convention of Texas repudiated today what it called "the pagan doctrine of the supremacy of the state over the Christian conscience."

In the final session of its annual meeting the convention emphatically protested a decision of United States supreme court denying citizenship to Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, Baptist minister and professor of the divinity school of Yale university, held ineligible, because he would not promise to bear arms unless he believed the cause to be "morally justified" should the United States engage in war.

Dissenters Praised

Resolutions condemning the tribunal's majority findings commended the four minority justices for their expressions on the principle of "freedom of conscience" as signed by Chief Justice Hughes. They laid down the rule that "in the form of conscience, duty to a moral power higher than the state has always been maintained."

"We repudiate the pagan doctrine of the supremacy of the state over the Christian conscience," the resolution stated. "We insist that when we must choose between the authority of men, even men administering human government, and the authority of Christ, we are bound to say 'we must obey God rather than men'."

Abilene Chosen

The convention selected Abilene for the next meeting, setting the date for Nov. 9, 10 and 11, 1932.

Dr. R. L. Powell of San Angelo was chosen to deliver the next convention sermon. Rev. H. J. Matthews of Marshall was chosen as alternate preacher.

Another resolution advocated submission of an amendment to the federal constitution which would prohibit the appropriation by the federal government, or any state, county or city government of any public funds to any sectarian institution other than remission of taxes.

Money Goal

The state executive board set as an objective for 1932 raising and expenditure of $750,000 for the convention's cooperative program, representing all general work of the denomination, both state and southwide. This amount is $250,000 in excess of endeavors of previous years. It reported that during the past year 48 per cent of all the receipts of the state board had gone into missionary work, 30 per cent to causes fostered by the Southern Baptist convention and $81,832 to Texas state mission work. Southwide causes were given $146,527. The report revealed that a previously incurred indebtedness of $1,000,000 had been reduced to $650,000.

Special mention in memorial services for leaders who died since the last convention was given Dr. J. M. Carroll, who founded the San Marcos Baptist academy and was regarded as the Texas church's foremost historian; Dr. I. E. Smith, who had been pastor at Grandview and a member of the executive board for many years; Dr. W. E. Sallee, formerly missionary to China and home secretary to the foreign missionary board at Raleigh, N. C.; and Dr. Forrest Smith, late pastor of the Broadway Baptist church at Fort Worth.

Reports of home and foreign missions showed great activity in those fields.

Dr. T. B. Ray of Richmond, Va., executive secretary of the foreign mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, and Dr. J. B. Lawrence at Atlanta, Ga., executive secretary of the home mission board, spoke tonight on the church's achievements in these fields.

CORN-PICKING RECORD SET

60,000 Watch as Youth Beats U. S. Mark

GRUNDY CENTER, Iowa, Nov. 13. (UP)—Orville Welch, a young Illinois farmer, strapped a husking hook on his bare right hand today and battled through mud and tangled cornstalks to the corn-picking championship of America.

Most corn shuckers wear heavy mittens to keep the brittle husks from tearing their hands, but Welch needed no such protection to husk slightly more than 31 bushels of corn in 80 minutes.

Crowd Watches

A festive crowd of 60,000 persons, comparable to a homecoming day football throng, crowded the cornfield as the 16 contestants from eight corn belt states kept the yellow ears of corn beating steadily against the bangboards of their wagons.

The farmer athletes wore overalls instead of athletic uniforms, but they had all the spirit of a college team. As a matter of fact, there was little else than spirit to explain their exhausting efforts. Welch received only $100 for winning the contest.

Work Made Sport

The winner is a 26-year-old married farmer who lives on his father's farm near Monticello, Ill. Ever since some one got the idea of making sport out of the ordinarily tedious work of corn husking, Welch has been interested.

Seven years ago he entered the first Illinois state contest and has entered annually since. Last year was his first national contest. He placed fifth. He is fast on his feet and his weight, 165 pounds, is about that of a good halfback.

Sgt. Leopold Tells How Betrayal To Communists Brought About Exile

Depths of Human Ingratitude Revealed to Canadian Operative in Countryman's Duplicity

This is the third and final installment of the dramatic story of Sergt. John Leopold of the Royal Canadian mounted police, who for seven years masqueraded as a Communist, became one of their most trusted leaders and gained access to the innermost councils of the Canadian organization.

Sergeant Leopold was the star-witness of the government in the trial in Toronto of nine Communists on a charge of seditious conspiracy. It is on the evidence that he gathered in the long years he posed as "Comrade Esselwein" that the government scored eight convictions.

By SGT. JOHN LEOPOLD
Of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13.—This is the story of my betrayal to the Communist organization, and my exile to the Yukon, the Canadian Siberia.

The duty of an officer in the Royal Canadian mounted police in the Yukon is one of the lonliest and most dangerous in the service.

A friend, a fellow-countryman, sent me to this desolate country whose population is hardly more than 3,000, including whites, Indians and Esquimaux children. Life there is one of continual hardships, fighting against blizzards and ice on unmarked trails with nothing but the urge to duty, the code of the mounted to carry a man through.

Four Years in Exile

The Yukon is reached by a single avenue, the White Horse pass, and this pass is heavily guarded by the mounted police. I passed through in 1927, buried myself in the north, and was not heard of again until ice began to break in May of this year and word came to proceed to headquarters in Ottawa in civilian clothes.

My betrayal revealed the depths of human ingratitude.

In the winter of 1926, my seventh year as "Comrade Esselwein," trusted Communist and secretary of the party for the Middle West, I was delegated to Toronto where I was ordered to continue my work.

One day I met a fellow-countryman, an Austrian. He described himself as an inventor. He had a device for clipping hair, another for making biscuits. He lived on hopes. Some one was sure to buy his inventions. Could I tide him over?

I took him in. His name matters little. Let us call him Otto. I took him with me to meetings of the Communist party.

Suspicions Aroused

Out of a blue sky one day Jack MacDonald, secretary of the party, began to question me. I learned afterwards that he had met a man in California who had claimed to know me when I was in the mounted police. The party was becoming suspicious. I was followed and spied upon. But they could learn nothing, prove nothing. Had I not been a trusted member for seven years? Had I not been arrested and fined in the service of the party? There must be some mistake.

And my "comrades" believed me.

All was well, until coming home one night, my footsteps softened by the hall carpet, I opened my room door and found, kneeling over my open trunk, Otto, my compatriot whom I had befriended. I had come to pack my bag to set out for Winnipeg where I had been ordered by the Communists to attend a labor convention. I dared not delay. I exacted a promise of secrecy from Otto. I appealed to him as a fellow countryman and left to catch my train.

I had no reason to doubt that my secret would be held. I trusted my friend.

Within a week Otto called at Communist headquarters at Toronto. He saw Jack MacDonald, and wanted a thousand dollars for his information. There was a quarrel. Otto threatened to go to Moscow to get the money. "The third internationale would pay for his story," he said.

Game Was Up

McDonald threatened him. Otto finally showed him my mounted police belt and revolver.

By this time I was away. I knew the game was up. I was expelled from the party. My picture was printed in Communist newspapers all over America. I had gained information during my seven years which was a continual threat hanging over their heads.

For three years I never came out from the White Horse pass. My orders to proceed to Ottawa in mufti foreshadowed raids on Communist headquarters and the arrest of the leaders. Last week I waited in the anteroom of the court where Communism was on trial. I heard my name called.

"Sergeant Leopold, take the stand."

I marched in to give the evidence I had collected for seven years as "Comrade Esselwein."

In front of me were my old comrades, Tim Buck, chief Communist organizer of Canada; Malcolm Bruce, whose house I had painted in those far off days; Tom Ewen, special organizer in industrial disputes; Amos Hill, John Boychuck, all facing a possible sentence of 20 years imprisonment for unlawful conspiracy and sedition.

I stood there in the box dressed in the scarlet and gold dress uniform of my service, my true colors as Sergeant Leopold, R. C. M. P.

Sentences Given Eight Communists In Toronto Court

TORONTO, Nov. 13. (AP)—Eight Communists convicted largely on the testimony of a Canadian mounted policeman who pretended to be one of them for seven years were sentenced today.

Seven were sentenced to five years imprisonment on the first two counts of the three-count indictment and to two years on the third count, the sentences to run concurrently. The eighth man was sentenced to one and two-year terms, also to run concurrently.

The court recommended deportation of the seven most severely punished at expiration of their sentences. It also authorized seizure of all property owned by the Communist party of Canada.

Sgt. John Leopold testified during the trial that he had gained evidence against the defendants by joining the Communist party and becoming secretary of a district organization of Communists.

Filipino Hanged After Series of Reprieves

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif., Nov. 13. (US)—Friday the 13th was indeed an unlucky day for Pedro Magsaysay, 43. After having been reprieved seven times this year, he was hanged today for the murder of a fellow ranch worker. Magsaysay had the dubious distinction of being the first Filipino to be executed in California.

The president of France receives more than double the salary of the president of the United States.

CROP PROGRAM PARLEY ENDS

Four States Ready to Put Measures in Effect

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 13. (AP)—The governors of four of the South's greatest agricultural states were back in their home capitals today working out details by which an agreement, reached at a conference here, to reduce acreage in cotton, tobacco, peanuts and potatoes may be fulfilled.

Each of the four states—Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia—is to be represented by three men on a joint committee which will survey crop conditions and recommend acreage quotas in each state for each crop in 1932.

The plan was set forth after the conference in a statement signed by the four governors—O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, who arranged the conference, John G. Pollard of Virginia, Ibra C. Blackwood of South Carolina and Richard B. Russell of Georgia.

Each governor will decide for himself the manner in which the plan is to be carried out in his state. South Carolina already has forbidden planting of cotton in 1932.

Escape From Death In Falls Revealed

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 13. (AP)—While Albert Perry, police chief at Chippawa, Ont., last night named Harry Bartley, 27, this city, as owner of the cabin cruiser which yesterday was swept over the horseshoe falls, and declared the craft had broken from its moorings with no one on board, Bartley told a different story today.

Bartley told newspapermen the boat was owned by Michael Nasca, 21, this city, and another man and that he and Nasca escaped from it Wednesday night after a thrilling experience as the boat was carried down through the upper Canadian rapids when it developed engine trouble. The craft caught on a rock and its journey to the cataract's crest was halted. In their swim to shore they carried a line attached to the boat and made the line fast on shore.

He and Nasca returned to the Canadian side yesterday afternoon intending to retrieve the craft but learned then for the first time it had been swept over the falls.

DINO GRANDI'S GUARD NAMED

Secret Police to Watch Over Italian Envoy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—The man who sweeps the hallway, cleans the windows or carelessly leans against a convenient wall when Dino Grandi arrives in the United States may do so with a very definite purpose in mind.

He may be one of the key men selected to protect the Italian foreign minister while on his visit to America. From the time the minister walks down the gangplank of the vessel landing him in New York next Monday until the time he boards a ship to go home, he is in the hands of the Washington government.

It is an international rule that the government acting as host and not the individual guest or his own government is charged with the responsibility of his protection.

When Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and, more recently, Premier Laval of France came to Washington for conversation with President Hoover, every possible precaution was taken to safeguard them without interference with their personal desires.

Similarly, the state department, through its division under the uncertain title of "special agents," will protect the Italian foreign minister from annoyance. Assisting the department's special agents will be the local police in each city visited.

Eldorado Ginnings Hit 5,470-Bale Mark

Special to The Record News.

ELDORADO, Okla., Nov. 13.—With a total of 5,470 bales of the 1931 cotton crop ginned to date it was estimated by Eldorado ginners Thursday morning that 80 per cent of the crop had been gathered. Between 6,500 and 7,000 bales is the estimate placed on this year's crop by local ginners.

At the present rate all the crop will be gathered and ginned within the next three weeks. Many farmers have been through picking from one to two weeks.

Cotton was bringing 5½ cents per pound and seed $12 per ton on the local market today.

Science finds new reasons for KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

MILLIONS have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe way to overcome common constipation. Now science shows this delicious cereal brings three benefits to the diet: "Bulk," Vitamin B. Iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce—only it is concentrated in a more convenient form to relieve constipation. It absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the wastes.

Vitamin B tones the intestines, and promotes regular habits. Iron builds blood, and aids health generally.

No wonder ALL-BRAN is considered far more natural than pills and drugs — so often habit-forming. Try two tablespoonfuls daily. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal or use in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Sugar should be judged by the amount of sweetening it does

Imperial is the largest-selling sugar in Texas because it is expertly refined, cleaner and sweeter. Less non-sweetening matter is left in Imperial. This is the reason why so many women find Imperial more economical and satisfactory to use. We invite you to try Imperial Sugar in this new recipe for

Texas Facts

By BILL EDWARDS

Texas has the longest river within one state in the United States. The Brazos, rising north of Lubbock and emptying into the Gulf of Mexico at Freeport, has a watershed of 41,700 square miles.

HELPING BUILD TEXAS

Celebration of the completion of the Leon county gap in U. S. 75, almost the last in the route from Red river on the north to tide-water at Galveston on the south, was held at Buffalo with representatives of dozens of towns attending. The route is now paved all the way from Denison to Galveston with the exception of the Ferris-Ennis section, and work on that is scheduled to start early next year. . . . Waxahachie, which last year celebrated the completion of highway No. 6 with graveled surface through the Red Oak district and concrete to the Hill county line, is planning soon to hold another celebration—paving of the improvement of main highways in the Texas Panhandle, site of many of the unpaved gaps on important highways, is going forward. Much of the construction has been of concrete, but with roads that are good except in unusual wet weather, a number of the gaps are being filled in with cheaper construction, a base of caliche, which is found in many areas of that section, with a penetration top being available at from $4,000 to $10,000 a mile as against $25,000 to $30,000 for more expensive and permanent types. . . . Construction of the new interstate bridge connecting Oklahoma No. 24 with Texas No. 28 is going ahead, with 65 of the 120 "bents" in the long span completed or practically so. . . . Tarrant county is almost finished with its $8,000,000 county-wide road program, McLennan county is building its laterals in anticipation of the completion of its main stems. Temple district, Bell county, is starting work on an ambitious road program, the Salado gap in state No. 2 is under construction and will be opened for traffic at an early date. The new route through McLennan, connecting with the Bell county system, will save several miles between North Texas points and the state capital, and straightening of the Austin-San Antonio route, surveys for which are now under way, will bring the Southwest Texas metropolis a good many miles closer to the northern and northeastern portions of the state.

Railroads Lose Fifth Of Cotton Traffic

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13. (UP)—Railroads have lost more than 20 per cent of their cotton hauling business so far this season to water and truck lines, figures on the port of New Orleans showed today.

Last year at this period, the railroads had hauled 76 per cent of the cotton into this port from interior points. This year barely 56 per cent of the interior movement has arrived here by rail.

The movement this season is barely half as heavy this time as it was at the same time last year, due to a late crop and a holding movement of farmers and interior concentrating points, but the reduction of the railroad cotton hauling business has moved in great strides.

When Resourc[illegible] End!

NOT quite like a mysterious fi[illegible]r writing a prophecy of doom on the palace wall, but rather ominous just the same, was a recent forecast in a middle western banking magazine that present reserves of high grade iron ore in the Lake Superior district will be entirely exhausted in less than 30 years if present rates of shipment prevail.

Of course, new deposits may be found in the rich Minnesota and Michigan ranges. If not, there are extensive low-grade reserves there which may, through some cheap new process, become commercially available. If not, there are still vast deposits elsewhere in America, and water transportation is still cheap. And yet—

The forecast, somehow, is discomforting. For it points to a fact that we like to forget; the fact that there is to be, some day, an inevitable end to the natural resources of the earth. Oil, iron, coal—some day, soon or late, mankind will have used up the last of them, and there will be no possibility of getting any more.

In former ages, perhaps, this would not have mattered quite so much. But the civilization that is being developed now is founded, in a peculiarly intimate way, on just those commodities. Skyscrapers, railroads, automobiles, all the great machines that do the work of the world—they come back to this triumvirate inescapably.

To be sure, a cheap synthetic gasoline will be devised some day. Water power may replace coal very nicely. But whoever heard of a synthetic steel? Can you imagine a papier-mache skyscraper, or a locomotive built of cornstalk fibers?

Yet this approaching end of the great age of steel is a certainty which we need to look at occasionally. We need to be reminded that we are not building for eternity any more than the Babylonians did. The proudest city sky line will some day vanish. The most imposing manufacturing district will lose its smoke-cloud. These things constitute, not an everlasting framework for human activities, but an insubstantial back-drop which will presently be removed.

A Changed Prison System

WE HAVE been reading little about prison escapes and of deficits in the operation of the Texas penitentiary system since Lee Simmons was made manager for the system about a year and a half ago.

Instead we are hearing that the prisoners are busily employed, that there is better discipline and morale among the prisoners and that the prison system is being placed upon a self-sustaining basis.

Mr. Simmons is not a penologist. He is just a business man, a farmer and a former chamber of commerce worker. He is applying common sense methods to the operation of the prison system and to the treatment of the prisoners and is meeting with a success that few thought possible for the system a few years ago.

Under his management fruits, vegetables, grains, livestock and poultry, for which the state formerly expended hundreds of thousands of dollars are being produced by prisoners on the prison farms. The convicts are manufacturing their own shoes and clothing and while work is required of every-able bodied convict, they are well fed and clothed and are kept too busy to plan escapes. The prisoners feel better, many of them are improving in health and morale and the whole atmosphere of the prisons and the prison farms has been changed.

All these changes may be attributed to common sense, business management and the banishment of politics, that is, politics in the sense of using the prison system to provide jobs as a reward for political favors, from its operation.

Texas might have spent many millions of dollars in the creation of a new prison system with less favorable results than it has by appointing a capable, common sense business man as manager and giving him as free a hand as possible and expecting results. The results have been beyond expectations.

Our Air Mail Incentive

DEVELOPMENT of the air mail system at government expense has probably done more than any other factor to promote the rise of commercial aviation lines in the United States. Yet the whole vast job has really cost the taxpayer comparatively little.

Charles L. Lawrence, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc., revealed the other day that in the last 14 years the federal government has spent just a little less than $67,000,000 on its air mail system. This includes everything, from operation costs to the establishment and maintenance of the great lighted airways.

Considering the service that the air mail has rendered, together with the extensive spread of privately owned commercial air lines, it is easy to see that Uncle Sam got full value for his money.

Agreement

My verses never change in theme or shape,
The sonnet form is all I seem to use;
It's like a prison I cannot escape—
My feeble tries are but a sorry ruse.

As for the theme, you doubtless know it well,
The fresh romance—the castles built in Spain,
New rapture casts a deep and glowing spell—
And then she leaves—and I give in to pain.

Some reference to meetings that are past,
A hint of heartbreak that will come my way,
And I am through—the verse is done at last,
My feeble muse proclaims a holiday.

What's that? You say you're sick of poignancy?
You're sick? Well, then, can you imagine me?
—DON WAHN.

Gag

Alf Friedman's gag is too amusing to keep out of the column, even though it is three days old.

One of those third-rate laundries, reports Alf, had a lazy and careless and sarcastic worker, who made another costly boner. He starched a bedsheet!

"You dope!" growled the proprietor, "what do you expect me to do with this starched bedsheet?"

"Aww," was the snapper, "why don'tchu send it to Gandhi? Maybe he can use it for a tuxedo!"

There, Now!

"Whatever became of that old joke about the restaurant owner who was out for lunch?"

"It's in a cartoon in the Nov. 7th issue of the Saturday Evepost on p. 126!"

Reiding the Riot Act!

Mr. Dudley Reid, editor of the Osceola (Iowa) Tribune, observes at this late date: "A newspaper columnist is one who receives pay for what he ought to be shot for!"

Mr. Reid, I agree with you. But if I had written that line I'd have been belittled for ending a sentence with a preposition. What I started out to say, however, was that you are thefting Miss Barrymore's stuff and she wishes you would quit stealing her bows.

Quiteso, Quiteso

The other morning we obserbed, by way of a simile—"as close together as 20 minutes to 8," and J. C. titters and yells: "Twenty-one minutes to 8 is closer, you dope!"

Oop!

"Dear Winchell," writes nearly everybody, "I agree with you that Charlie Butterworth pulls a funny gag in 'The Bargain' picture when he says he wears such large collars because he expects a goiter. But it was just as funny when Fred Allen pulled it in 'Three's a Crowd,' or was it 'The First Little Show'?"

By the way, whatever became of Fred Allen and all those funny contribs? I can remember all the way back when he was the Izzy Elinson of his time!

The Morning Mail

"Dear Walter," devotedly pencils Izzy Elinson, "I just bought that new prosperity song 'Cheer Up!' which is recorded on a durium cardboard. It certainly cheered me up, Walter. I cut the record in half—and it makes the swellest soles for worn-out shoes!"

O, Gen'l Pershing!

Your admirers urge me to tell you, sir, that you are being used by lads who employ non-kosher methods in their rackets. Recently, if you recall, at the Waldorf, you turned down a lad who wanted you to autograph a fine likeness he made of you. I understand—it gets to be a nuisance.

The same evening, however, an impressive and quick talker cornered you and begged you to autograph a set of your memwars—as a treasure, he told you, for his private collection.

Well, General, you obliged him—but that guy was a professional autograph dealer, and the books you signed are now being hawked.

The Curse of Hooch

He was one of the better known stars not long ago. But he skidded out of the Big Bulb Area owing to his enthusiasm for the wicked Grape. He met a producer the other day in Hollywood—a producer for whom he once worked.

After chatting a while, the former star told the producer he needed some money desperately. The producer told him to come around the next day and he would help him. They shook hands and were about to part when the actor said: "By the way—what's your name, again?"

The actor's initials are J. M.

Of course it isn't nice to say, and all that sorta thing, but Melvin Allen Miller of Roxbury, Mass., says it.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

MELTS COPPER BUT WON'T BURN PAPER—After a charge of paper-insulated copper wire is melted down in an electric arc furnace at a temperature of 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit, the charred paper has to be skimmed off the surface before the molten metal can be poured.

A perfect reducing atmosphere is maintained in the chamber in order to prevent oxidation of the copper and the lack of oxygen has the incidental effect of preventing the combustion of the carbon in the paper.

Answers To Questions

This bureau does not give advice, but it gives free information on any subject. Often, to be accurately informed is to be beyond the need of advice, and information is always valuable, whereas advice may not be. In using this service be sure to write clearly, state your inquiry briefly, and enclose two-cent stamp for reply postage. Address The Record News Information, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—What is the name of the whiskers of a cat?—W. K.

A.—They are setae.

Q.—Is the depression affecting the sale of cigars, cigarets and other forms of tobacco?—W. H.

Q.—What is a baldric?—P. L.

A.—It is a broad belt, often richly decorated, worn over one shoulder and across the breast, usually to support a bugle or sword.

Q.—Are packages of safety matches mailable?—F. McA.

A.—The Postoffice department says that safety matches are mailable only when contained in some kind of a metal box.

Q.—Were galleys always propelled by rowing?—L. S. S.

A.—They were propelled mainly by oars arranged in one or two banks, but were usually provided also with a mast and sail.

Q.—What is the name of the branch of science treating of reptiles, especially snakes?—A. H.

A.—The branch of zoology which deals with reptiles is called herpetology; the division relating especially to snakes is called ophiology.

Q.—What is the name of the professor who is Americanizing the Bible?—T. P. S.

A.—Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed and Dr. J. M. Powis Smith of the University of Chicago are attempting to dapt the Bible to typical American usage while retaining the original poetical value.

Q.—Please describe George Washington's coat-of-arms.—M. C.

A.—On a silver or white background are three red five-pointed stars with two red bars below. A black raven on top rises out of a coronet. A double S was used in spelling the name. The coat-of-arms had been used by his English ancestors for nearly 600 years.

Q.—What pictures are on the new bills for $100,000, $500,000 and $1,000,000?—R. C. L.

A.—The picture of Garrison appears on the $100,000 treasury bill; Crawford's picture on the $500,000; and Wolcott's on the $1,000,000 bill. These treasury bills are not currency but a form of public debt security.

Q.—How long did the Boer war last?—R. M. S.

A.—The South Africa Boer war commenced with the Boer invasion in 1899. This invasion ended with the relief of Ladysmith, Feb. 28, 1900. In October, 1900, the flight of President Kruger, terminated actual organized warfare but a guerrilla warfare was kept up until the actual signing of the peace treaty, May 31, 1902, at Pretoria.

Q.—How many civil service commissioners are there? Do they have the power to appoint people to positions under civil service?—J. A. P. G.

A.—There are three commissioners. Not more than two can be of the same political party. The civil service commission does not have the power of appointment or removal. This remains in the hands of the president and heads of departments. Upon the requisition of an appointing officer, the commission submits the names of eligibles secured as the result of competitive examination.

Q.—On the occasion of M. Laval's visit to Washington, ceremonial officers pointed out that he is erroneously called Premier of France but is officially president of the council of ministers of France. Will you state what is the proper title of Ramsay MacDonald, usually called Prime Minister of Great Britain?—W. G.

A.—Mr. MacDonald's official designation is first lord of the treasury in his majesty's government. The term prime minister or premier is merely a short title used to indicate the ranking cabinet minister. For example, the American secretary of state is the prime minister of our government.

Q.—Who built the first paper mill in this country?—B. C. B.

A.—The early printers of colonial America imported their paper from Europe, chiefly from the continent. The first paper mill was built in 1690 at Germantown, Pa., resulting from the combination of the needs of the Philadelphia printer, William Bradford, and the arrival of an ambitious German papermaker, William Rittenhouse.

Q.—How much is saved by the use of the smaller size of paper money?—G. M.

A.—The estimates show that there is a saving of one-third in the cost of production. One-third less of the highly expensive and distinctive paper is required and one-third less ink, and the shipping weight is reduced by a third. A 50 per cent saving is effected in the actual printing process. Notes are printed in large sheets and afterwards cut into single notes. The old size bills were printed eight to the sheet. The new size are made 12 to the sheet. What the lengthened life of the smaller notes will be, as the result of less folding, creasing and cracking, must be determined by experience, but it is expected a substantial saving will result.

Q.—Does boiled water freeze more quickly than unboiled water?—W. N.

A.—There is no difference between the freezing point of water that has been heated and that which has not been heated if the water is pure. In the case of tap water which is nearly pure but contains dissolved air, heating the water may drive out some of the air. This has no considerable effect on the freezing point, but may make a difference in the character of the ice produced. Hot water pipes are reported to burst from freezing more often than cold water pipes. This is not because of a difference of freezing point of the water, but is probably because the water in cold water pipes contains dissolved air which separates on freezing and forms slushy ice; while when water in a hot water pipe freezes, it is more apt to become under-cooled and then freeze rather suddenly, forming compact ice free from bubbles which is more apt to break a pipe.

The Record News Offers New Booklet, Care Of the Feet

George Ade once made the nation laugh with a comic stage character whose only answer to anything that was said to him was to moan and point to his shoes and say, "They bind right across here!" Why? Because everybody understands the misery of tight shoes and because everybody realizes that the person who wears tight shoes has only himself to blame and deserves to be laughed at. But after all, foot troubles are no laughing matter to those who have them. "Care of the Feet" tells how to avoid and to prevent them, as well as how to treat them.

DEATH SUSPECT APPEALS CASE

Memphis Man Fights Life Term Verdict

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Nov. 13.—Attorneys for Hess Tyler, convicted of the murder of Bryan Nall, Eli storekeeper, who was sentenced to life imprisonment in the district court at Clarendon last week, have given notice of appeal. Tyler was first tried here during the February term of court last year and given the death penalty. His case was appealed and a new trial granted.

The defense is seeking appeal of the case on the grounds that the court failed to instruct the jury that a material witness, an alleged accomplice, was used as a witness against the defendant; and alleged error of the court in admitting testimony on a former conviction and not limiting it in the charge to the jury.

Hearing is expected to be granted at Clarendon some time next week. If a new trial is granted it is probable that it will be at Childress.

Pinchot-Mellon Duel Stirs Capital Interest

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (UP)—The capital was smiling today over what it looked upon as a new duel between two of the country's most publicized figures—two distinguished men who have measured rapiers before.

For the mission of Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who came here to "borrow" a million dollars from Secretary of Treasury Andrew W. Mellon at 4 per cent for unemployment relief, is generally regarded by old-timers as having political implications.

Pinchot asked a personal, not a government loan from Mellon, his long-time political foe and reputed third richest man in the world. Mellon turned him down, so Pinchot announced, but promised "further consideration."

Bank Bandit Kidnaps Autoist and Escapes

BIRCH TREE, Mo., Nov. 13. (UP)—A bandit robbed the bank of Birch Tree of $1,000, kidnaped William Humphrey, 22, and escaped in an automobile today.

The robber forced Cashier E. F. Nelson and C. M. Duncan, a bank examiner, and two customers, into a vault. As he started to close the vault door it rubbed against an electric light cord, shocking him.

He accidentally discharged the gun he carried, causing an alarm to be spread. The bandit fled through the front door, jumped into Humphrey's automobile and forced the young man to drive him out of town.

Troubles of Cotton Belt Told in Rail Hearing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (INS)—The St. Louis Southwestern railroad, better known as the Cotton Belt railroad, must have financial assistance at once or it will be thrown into receivership, Ben C. The Cotton Belt, he said, now has $9,000,000 of bank loans which are overdue and between now and next June it will have $20,000,000 of other obligations which must be met.

Valley View School Marks Armistice

Special to The Record News.

VALLEY VIEW, Texas, Nov. 13.—A program was presented in the Valley View school auditorium at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, Nov. 11, commemorating Armistice day. Flags and martial music were featured in the numbers by the grade school students and the members of the local Boy Scout troop. The opening number was the "Star-Spangled Banner" by the school, followed by the invocation by Rev. C. C. Childress. Supt. J. B. Golden told why we observe Armistice day. Other numbers by the students were: Song, "Till We Meet Again," Lucille Dean; taps and the history of the flag, Boy Scouts; pledge to the flag, Harold Craft; war songs, Theola and Leona Rambeau, and Onita and Jonita Hillingas; the spirit of America, third grade, and salute to the flag, Venita Allen.

In the medley of patriotic songs by the Boys' and Girls' Choral clubs, evidence was shown of the rapid progress made by the clubs since their organization by Miss Jewel Thompson a few weeks ago. The concluding song by the clubs was "The Rose of No-Man's Land," featuring the Red Cross nurse holding a red rose against the American flag background.

Shilo Scrivenor to Seek Habeas Corpus Writ

HOUSTON, Nov. 13. (INS)—W. S. (Shilo) Scrivenor, bank robber charged with the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. (Keggy) Jones here on Aug. 31, will be given a habeas corpus hearing Saturday before Judge Whit Boyd.

Scrivenor is represented by L. M. Kenyon, Galveston lawyer.

Scrivenor was returned to Houston in October from Des Moines, Iowa, where he was arrested a few minutes after his partner, Del McCabe, also charged in the Jones slayings, was killed in a gun battle with a Des Moines detective in a hotel there.

"That's one they'll have to prove," Scrivenor has insisted when officers sought to question him about the Houston killings.

For a soapy, sudsy bath—use Mel'o

Like to have plenty of suds when you're bathing? Then don't bathe in hard water—city water as it comes from the faucet. Soap combines with the hard water, and forms a dirty ring around the edge of the tub. That's scum. And that's certainly not pleasant.

Hard water can be made soft. Just put Mel'o in the water and you have a very remarkable cleaner, with or without soap. Then watch the soap lather! Then watch the suds come! Then watch the scum go! Have you discovered how much more effective Mel'o makes soap? Get three cans today at your grocer's, for the kitchen, the laundry and the bathroom.

Eating Too Fast and Too Often

Meals used to be leisurely and sociable events. There is a tendency now for people to hurry through a meal as quickly as possible. At the drug store counters it is estimated that people can consume a meal in about seven minutes; many do it in less time. The use of the sandwich has greatly increased in the last decade, and I believe that this is because of the "hurry-up" style of eating. Luncheon is usually a "rush-order" meal for nearly everyone; breakfast and dinner are becoming so.

Few of us take time to eat comfortably and leisurely or delight in the flavor of our food. To eat at a high speed is not the best plan. Relaxation while eating is one of the surest steps to a good digestion. I am sure that eating too rapidy is one of the most common causes of the ever increasing cases of digestive and nervous disturbances among civilized people. When eating quickly we neglect to chew and do not have time to appreciate the finer flavors of foods. It is especially important that we chew starchy foods well for the first step in the digestion of starch occurs in the mouth by the action of the ptyalin in the saliva. If you take your bread, potatoes, etc. in chunks, the saliva does not do its work properly.

It is also a good plan to sip milk and mix it about in the mouth with the tongue, as, when milk is hastily swallowed, large curds are formed in the stomach and are more difficult to digest than small ones. A reasonable amount of chewing, especially of raw vegetables, strengthens the gums and keeps the teeth in good condition.

The time used for enjoying the flavor of food is well spent for nothing helps the digestion as much as a thorough enjoyment of a meal. When you begin your next meal, allow yourself sufficient time so that you do not rush through it as though it were a disagreeable task. Try to form the habit of taking time, eating slowly and peacefully. Get up early enough so that you can enjoy your breakfast without being afraid of being late for work. You may find it hard to take time to enjoy your meals at first for you will find yourself returning to the habit of eating as though the building were on fire, but when this happens, make a determined effort to slow down. There is no advantage in shortening your meal hours if you are thereby shortening your life.

Many people also make the bad mistake of eating too often. They eat three large meals a day and several small meals in between. This is not the best habit. Thre square meals a day should be more than ample. You will enjoy a better digestion if you do not eat between meals. More people would have better health if they only used two large meals a day.

It is interesting to read what Charles Gay, the owner of a famous lion farm, has to say about lions and their meal habits: "Unlike human beings, who thrive on three meals a day, the 'King of Beasts' can gorge himself only once a day. On Mondays he must fast. This is to give his stomach a rest." If a lion can only eat heartily once a day, human beings must think they have "cast-iron" stomachs to believe that they can gorge three or more times a day and get away with it. If you will learn to eat slowly and just often enough, you will have learned two very healthful habits.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Yerba Mate Similar to Tea

Queastion—Mr. Alvin O. writes: "I would appreciate your opinion of Yerba Mate, the South American herb beverage, as brewed according to the Argentine style in a small native gourd and sipped through a silver bombilla. I am led to believe that Yerba Mate is an anti-acid drink, a stomachic, diuretic, and has no pernicious effect on the nervous system or heart. From the data I have obtained I would judge Yerba Mate a vital addition to a health diet regimen, but I should highly value any remarks you have to make on the drink."

Answer—The chemical composition of the dry mate very closely resembles that of tea and coffee. It contains the same stimulating principle (caffein), but the proportions both of it and tannin are those of coffee rather than tea. The result is that the beverage, being made like tea, contains less caffein and tannin than either tea or coffee. The effect on the stomach and digestion is very similar to that of tea.

Ringworm

Question—Miss B. Jane B. writes: "Will you give me both diet and external treatment for ringworm in a case, not advanced, on the forearms of an adult patient."

Answer—Ringworm is caused by a small micro-organism which grows on the skin, making a circular path of inflammation as the infection heals in the center and spreads outwardly in a ring. As these marks appear on the body, they can be very easily cured by painting them with a solution of silver nitrate, iodine, or mercurochrome. The trouble is that as soon as one is cured, another ringworm is liable to appear in some other place. The reason for this is that the only soil in which ringworms can grow is a body suffering from acidosis. My advice is to overcome the acidosis by diet, and I would suggest that the patient follow a fast and diet treatment to cleanse the blood and increase its alkalinity.

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 13.—The Electra Lions club launched a membership drive at the regular weekly meeting of the club Thursday at the Armilda hotel. G. R. Davidson, chairman of the membership committee, gave slips to the club members which contained names of prospective members and former members of the club.

Sam Hill, chairman of the club committee, recently appointed to investigate the giving of donations to the needy at Thanksgiving, announced that after due study had been given the proposition, the committee decided the plan would not be feasible this year. T. C. U. HOPES HINGE ON CLASH WITH TEXAS HERD TODAY

POWER PLAYS DECIDE ISSUE

S. M. U.-Baylor, Aggie-Rice Contests Carded

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 13.—Inspired and eager for action but uneasy concerning the eventual outcome, the Texas Christian Frogs embarked for Austin today where tomorrow they battle the University of Texas Longhorns. This will be one of three Southwest conference combats tomorrow and the only one to which championship importance is attached.

In other games, Baylor plays Southern Methodist at Dallas and Texas A. & M. meets Rice at Houston. Arkansas remains idle.

Hornies Tied for Top

Undefeated in three conference games, tied for the conference pinnacle with Southern Methodist, Texas Christian must beat Texas tomorrow to retain an undefeated record and a chance to play Southern Methodist Nov. 28 for the conference crown. If Texas Christian wallops Texas, the Frogs will be favored to beat Baylor next week and go into the conference finals with Southern Methodist with an undefeated record. If they lose tomorrow, the best they can hope for is a tie. Texas is out of the race with two conference defeats. The Longhorns hit their stride last week with a 25-0 victory over Baylor.

The Texas Christian and Texas game will be a combat between two teams who rely on power for their offensive. Both backfields drive low and hard. Texas Christian's yardage gainers are Hinton, Green, Spearman and Brannon. The Elkins-Koy-Stafford combination at Texas is one of the most powerful in the conference when clicking.

Steers Have Injuries

Texas has several injured players but most of them can play if necessary. Ben Boswell, star tackle, is the only injured and out-of-the-lineup player on the Texas Christian team. A game of brilliant offensive drives is promised at Austin for the Frogs are sure to open with all they have in order to keep their record clear of defeats and Texas will be battling to finish as high in the conference as possible.

Thousands of Texas A. & M. cadets will swarm the streets of Houston tomorow, and in the afternoon will cheer their Aggies as they march against the Rice Owls. It will be the annual corps trip for A. & M. cadets. The Aggies and Owls are out of the conference championship race but are tied with Texas and Baylor for third place.

Both Lines Light

This game is a toss-up. It will be a clash between two light lines of near equal weight and two backfields employing a variety of offensive tricks. Both clubs have injuries. Capt. Carl Moulden will be out of the Aggies' lineup with a hurt knee. "Red" Dickey and Jack Frye may not play for Rice due to injuries received in the Texas Christian game last week.

The thrid conference game will be at Dallas between Southern Methodist and Baylor. Southern Methodist, victorious in seven consecutive games, four of them conference combats, is an overwhelming favorite. It will be the semifinal game in the conference for Southern Methodist. Coach Ray Morrison has indicated he will play first string reserves against Baylor as much as possible. Emmet Jordan, backfield star, will not be in Southern Methodist's lineup because of an injured knee.

BOTH CONTESTANTS EXPECT VICTORY

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—Victory hopes of two teams ran high tonight as the University of Texas and Texas Christian football gladiators girded for the premier clash of the Southwest conference tomorrow.

Kicked around from pillar to post in the conference race, Texas was prepared to make a determined stand to recoup some of its lost fortunes and knock the Frogs' chances for a chance at the title into a cocked hat. Texas has no chance to win the pennant and would gain little for winning except the supreme satisfaction of setting howling fans and sports writers on their ears and a little better percentage in the conference standing.

Although on paper T. C. U. has a decided edge over Texas, the Frogs will enter the game only slight favorites due chiefly to their sterling defense.

Texas was expected to pin all its hopes for victory on specially constructed plays and probably will not try to make much headway through the Frog line. Texas has had fair success in scoring from midfield, a majority of their tallies coming from runs of 50 yards or more.

Floydada Whirlwind Sinks Lockney, 83-0

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Nov. 13.—Coach L. T. Barksdale unleashed a rip-snorting Whirlwind eleven that gathered momentum in each succeeding quarter and roared up and down the field almost at will to smother the Lockney Longhorns under an 83 to 0 score here Wednesday afternoon before an enthusiastic Armistice day crowd. It was sweet revenge for the Green and White gridsters for a 26 to 6 victory by the Maroon and White last year. The win gives Floydada a clear title as winners of the northeast corner of district 2. Marion Heald, sturdy little halfback of the Whirlwinds scored the first touchdown early in the first quarter and throughout the game touchdowns came so fast that it was almost impossible to keep track of the score. Only once did the Maroon and White [illegible] threaten the goal of the Whirlwinds.

Ahoy There, Notre Dame! :-: :-: Rise Up in Harvard's Path

TSCHIRGI
CHUNG-HOON
BRYAN
PRAY

The Navy eleven that has traveled rough waters all along this fall will head into another storm today when they meet Notre Dame at Baltimore. And while Navy's chances of winning are slimmer than the proverbial Chinaman's, the young midshipmen shown above will put up the traditional Navy fight. Tschirgi and Chung-Hoon, the latter an Hawaiian, are members of Coach Rip Miller's first Navy backfield. Pray and Bryan, end and tackle, respectively, play side by side in the Navy forward wall.

If the Crimson of Harvard fades this fall, the abundance of Purple supplied by Holy Cross may have something to do with it. Harvard and the Holy Cross eleven meet at Cambridge today—and don't let anybody tell you the Purple is a setup. Holy Cross was beaten by Dartmouth and tied by Fordham, but overwhelming triumphs over Rutgers and Brown indicate they have something. Part of it is shown above in the persons of Tony Colucci, end, and E. J. Bergin (inset) center. Bergin is a 148-pounder, experienced, and plenty able to take of himself against the 200-pounders. Colucci is one-half of the Purple's "Grand Opera" ends. Cavaleri is the other end's name.

PONY REGULAR TEAM TO OPEN

S. M. U. Appears in Final Home Contest

DALLAS, Nov. 13. (AP)—Southern Methodist university's home-coming clash with Baylor tomorrow will mark the final appearance of the Mustangs in Dallas this season unless they later book a post-season engagement.

The Bears remained at home for their final workout today planning to arrive in Dallas about noon tomorrow. They appeared to be in tip-top shape and ready to marshal all of their strength for the Mustang game.

Coach Ray Morrison sent the Mustangs through light drills and dress rehearsals today. He had not decided definitely on his starting lineup but indicated he would open with his regulars, probably using Shaw and Walker in the backfield to replace Sprague and Jordan who are out with injuries.

Tommy Loughran Defeats Uzcudun

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Nov. 13. (UP)—Surmounting the handicap of an injured ankle which forced him to abandon his usual dancing tactics, Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, tonight turned in a brilliant victory over Paulino Uzcudun, Basque heavyweight. The victory was one of the finest of Loughran's long career and was especially impressive because of the manner in which the Philadelphia boxing artist stepped out and slugged on even terms with his reputedly more rugged rival.

Loughran, coasting along behind a big lead and piling up a huge margin on points, slipped to the canvas while backing away from a Paulino rush in the fifth round and turned his ankle.

When he rose, he was limping badly and it appeared for a moment that he would be unable to continue. However, Tommy Hopped about on one leg and used his skill and knowledge of infighting to tie up Paulino until the close of the round.

Kaufmann's Entry Takes The Walden Handicap

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 13. (AP)—On Post, carrying the silks of Mrs. Louis M. Kaufmann's Loma stable, today won the Walden handicap at $11,425 at Pimlico. Joe Edwards' Allenfern was a length behind in second place with Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Over Time third. Ten 2-year-olds started. On Post stepped the one and one-sixteenth miles in 1:45 2-5 and paid $9.20.

Dude Chick Wins Furious Raslin' Match From Whitey Grovo, Dallas

Dude Chick, of Toledo, Ohio, and Whitey Grovo, the Dallas idol, gave the fans at Bob Connor's wrestle show Friday a run for their money and Chick was returned the winner by taking the first and third falls of the match. Chick took the first fall with a merry-go-round and body slam in 20 minutes and 10 seconds. Grovo battled his way back to make short work of the second fall by winning in nine minutes and 58 seconds with a succession of flying headlocks and a body pin. Dude Chick, the Toledo Tornado, made even shorter work of the third fall by winning with a toe hold in six minutes and 20 seconds.

Chick displayed an unusual amount of roughness and brought down the wrath of the fans upon his shoulders, but this fact seemed to be his least worry. Time after time Grovo seemed to have the smaller fellow out, only to have Chick come back time after time to come out of the holds. It was a fast match which went over big with the nice sized crowd who gathered in the new arena at 607 Scott.

Steve Nenoff, the Wild Bull of Poland, lost again to plucky little Jack Gorman, the San Angelo Cyclone, and popular idol of Wichita Falls. The Pole captured the opening fall in 17 minutes and 28 seconds with a leg split. After five minutes of rough and tumble scrapping on the mat for the second fall, Jack Gorman broke a painful hold with a none to gentle kick to the face and the Pole tumbled from the ring. He was unable to return to the ring and forfeited the match.

Emmett Dishroon, a local grappler, stole the whole show of the "grunt and groan" card when he wrestled Jimmy Murphy in a 15-minute preliminary draw. Dishroon's uncanny ability to find the button gave the fans a great deal of action for their money. Alvie Anderson and Tommy Walton also wrestled 15 minutes to a draw in another fast cleancut match. There was also a three-round boxing exhibition between two youthful brothers.

Georgia and Tulane Hold National Spotlight in Big Contest Today

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

ATLANTA, Nov. 13.—Following the swift moving drama of one of football's most spectacular seasons, the spotlight of national attention tomorrow swings from the big towns to the red clay hills, where the powerful, undefeated teams of Georgia and Tulane stake their Southern and national championship aspirations in Dixie's big game of the year.

Not since Georgia's famous "dream and wonder team" of 1927 galloped unbeaten into Atlanta, only to go slithering down to defeat in the mud before Georgia Tech., has any all-Southern battle so keenly stirred the gridiron pulses of this sector as the affair at Athens, or, for that matter, involved such far-reaching importance.

Important Battles

This week's football slate nearly everywhere is back with engagements of sectional or traditional importance. Up in New England, the unbeaten records of Cornell and Harvard are jeopardized by threats of Dartmouth and Holy Cross. Notre Dame's juggernaut menaces the navy. The Army marches against Pittsburgh and Northwestern aims to keep up its fast pace against Indiana.

Here in the South, Tennessee's undefeated array, another contender for national honors, faces the challenge of Vanderbilt's strong outfit at Knoxville, but for the day, at least, the outcome of Tulane's charge against Georgia's scrappy array will be watched with keen interest from here to Pasadena.

Tulane Favorite

The battle of Athens happens to be vital enough to affect the program for the season's biggest post-season classic in Pasadena's Rose bowl, as well as the final award of any major honors for 1931. Tulane is the favorite, and Tulane, by winning, can just about clinch the much prized trip to the coast to play Southern California New Year's day, in addition to sewing up at least a share of the Southern Conference championship and acquiring a powerful rebuttal in any argument about claims to a mythical national championship.

Georgia, on the other hand, after swift maneuvers that upset Yale and New York university, can just as quickly overthrow Tulane's ambitions by merging on the long end of tomorrow's score. Georgia can attend strictly to this business, without contingencies to worry about. The Bulldogs already are scheduled to play Southern California Dec. 12, at Los Angeles, and have no post-season ambitions beyond that.

Irish Meet Navy

Like the South, the East also has three unbeaten combinations to keep its eyes on. In fact probably 150,000 pairs of eyes will observe the fortunes of Cornell's juggernaut against Dartmouth at Hanover, Harvard's defense against the drive of Holy Cross at Cambridge and Notre Dame's efforts to overpower the Navy at Baltimore. For super-heated rivalry, however, none will outdo the metropolitan duel between Fordham and New York university.

In the Big Ten Purdue figures to whip Iowa and Ohio State to beat Wisconsin.

There is a lull on the Pacific coast, so far as the leaders are concerned.

SOONERS MEET MISSOURI TEAM

Rains Drench Gridirons in The Big Six

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13. (UP)—A drizzling rain, falling throughout the day, tonight made even closer the Big Six conference's two featured football games tomorrow, the Kansas Aggies vs. Nebraska at Manhattan and Missouri vs. Oklahoma at Columbia.

A soggy gridiron will hamper both the Aggies' and Nebraska's offensives, relying largely on power as they do. Both lines, too, are heavy, and may find themselves mired in midfield throughout most of the game.

The Aggies' hopes were cheered late today with the announcement that the injured knee of Ralph Graham, 200-pound fullback, has responded to treatment and he will be available.

The weather failed to quench enthusiasm on the Missouri campus tonight, when students and alumni held a homecoming bonfire, to carry them through the Oklahoma game tomorrow.

The Missouri-Oklahoma game brings together two teams relying on tricks and deceptions for score. Missouri has a brilliant passing attack; Oklahoma has a shifty set of backs who use trick formations to get away.

Both teams are crippled. Capt. Guy Warren and Paul Young, center, of the Oklahomans, are out with injuries. Coach Gwinn Henry will not be able to direct the Missourians' play, recovering as he is from a sinus operation.

The other big six teams, Iowa State and Kansas, play non-conference opponents. Iowa State meets Drake at Des Moines, and Kansas opposes Washington at St. Louis.

HARVARD GIVES ANNOUNCER AIR

'Putrid' Phrase Brings Bar For Ted Husing

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 13. (AP)—Ted Husing, radio announcer, who termed the play of Barry Wood "putrid" in his broadcast of the Harvard-Dartmouth football game last Saturday, was barred by Harvard today from further broadcasts at the stadium.

Numerous complaints were received at Harvard regarding broadcast of the game. The complaints were that Husing had been too critical of the general play of the Harvard team and had been especially critical of the work of Jack Crickard and Wood. Today William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, announced the official action of the university.

Many Complaints

Bingham said Harvard authorities had been deluged with complaints from alumni and the general public over Husing's broadcast.

"No announcer," said Bingham, "can go into the Harvard stadium and refer to any player or any play made by any member of either a Harvard team or its opposing team as 'putrid.' Mr. Husing will not be admitted to the Harvard stadium in the capacity of a radio announcer again."

Wood has been considered all-American timber for two years because of his general quarterback play. With Crickard, the outstanding ball carrier for the Crimson this year, Wood generally was credited with pulling the army game out of the fire with a 14 to 13 victory after the West Point team had scored 13 points in the first quarter. Wood is considered one of the best forward passers in football today. He is a Phi Beta Kappa student and president of his class at Harvard.

Word Used Comparatively

Husing has admitted the use of the word "putrid," but said he used it comparatively when referring to Wood's play of last Saturday and to his work against Army at West Point. Although Wood threw a long pass for a touchdown with only four minutes to play and then kicked the point which gave the Crimson a 7-6 victory over Dartmouth his all around play, including his selection of plays, failed to meet with approval of the broadcaster.

The Columbia Broadcasting company, by which Husing is employed, expressed surprise at action of the Harvard authorities.

"It is as surprising for Harvard to take the announced action as it would be for Harvard to ban the representative of a newspaper or a press association because it disagreed with that representative's report of a sports event," the company statement said.

PUPS TO MEET MANGUM STARS

Independent Team Journeys To Oklahoma Sunday

By JOE DEAL

The Fighting Pups, an independent football team in Wichita Falls, will play the undefeated Mangum All Stars of Mangum, Okla., Sunday afternoon at 2:30 on the Mangum gridiron.

The All Stars of Mangum have met and defeated some of the best independent football teams in Oklahoma. The Pups are also undefeated with only a scoreless tie to mar their record, and their goal line has not been crossed this year. Both elevens will present powerful forward walls and backfield men capable of lugging the pigskin for long gains.

The Pups boast two triple-threat men in Rollin Dixon and "Spider" Corbin. Blondy Smith is one of the best products of the local high school and has not been stopped this year. Oliver Fudge is the other back that will start the skirmish. On the line the Pups will have Blacklock on center; Heinton and Stockton on guards; Stanfield and Fleming on tackles; Tipton and Robertson on ends. The Pups will have two other backfields at the game and if one fails to click another will get the call. It is hoped that the first string can run up a score early that will permit some experimenting with other combinations.

Olney's Cublets Beaten by Baby Steers, 12-7

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Nov. 13.—Graham High school's B squad battled valiantly here Friday afternoon to snatch a 12 to 7 victory from the Olney second-string eleven in a battle which kept a large crowd agog with excitement.

The baby Steers depended chiefly upon power plays, hammering the Olney line consistently to push over two touchdowns. On the other hand, Olney resorted constantly to an overhead attack, and was sufficiently adept to cross the local's goal line once by that avenue.

C. Parsley in the line, and Shaffer, Jack Wheeler and Kennedy in Graham's backfield were prominent in the locals' performance, while Morris and Perkins captured major honors for the visiting team.

Buckaroos Doped to Lose to Abilene Today

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Nov. 13.—Saturday afternoon the Breckenridge Buckaroos will enter the game with the Abilene Eagles the underdogs for the first time this season.

They have been previously heralded as being right along with Abilene leading the pack for the district championship, but their two games with Cisco and Eastland have looked anything but promising.

Coach Dewey Mayhew will bring both a line and a backfield that have proved themselves equal to any attack yet. Comparing their previous games the Eagles look three or four touchdowns better than the Bucks, but there are still hopes in Breckenridge that they will snap out of it.

The quarterback poistion has been giving Coach P. E. Shotwell most of his troubles.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—A slight opening advance in cotton today was followed by declines under some southern and local selling.

The New York selling became more active in the late trading owing to weakness in wheat and the stock market and January contracts, which had sold at 6.68 early, closed at 6.55. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 5 to 9 points.

The opening was steady 2 to 6 points higher in response to steadiness of Liverpool. The demand was soon supplied and the market worked gradually lower during the balance of the day. December declined to 6.45 and March to 6.71 and closing quotations were the lowest of the day.

Trade buying was apparently confined on scale down orders, but seemed to be in evidence on each point decline, and there was some buying here during the morning believed to be for far eastern account. The action of the wheat and stock markets evidently promoted reactionary sentiment and the failure of the declines to bring more aggressive support increased the disposition to liquidate long contracts or to sell for a further decline following recent advances.

There was some comment on reports of a slow demand for cotton goods at comparatively low prices notwithstanding the recent steadiness of the raw material, but reports received from Liverpool said that the recent advance in silver had stimulated demand for China and India in the British cloth markets. Today's decline in silver, however, was probably a contributing factor in the easier ruling of the local cotton market.

The relative steadiness of Liverpool before the local opening was attributed to Bombay buying and the decline in sterling. Exports today 38,576 making 2,216,995 so far this season. Port receipts 152,425. U. S. port stocks 4,609,337.

Futures closed barely steady, 5 to 9 points lower; spot steady; middling, 6.55.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13. (AP)—Trading in cotton today was decidedly moderate with narrow fluctuations and slight trend until near the close when cotton weakened along with stocks and wheat and prices dropped to new lows with net declines for the day of 8 to 11 points.

After a slight early gain due to better cables than due, prices eased off on hedge selling and week-end liquidation. Silver was also easier and stocks developed some weakness. Weekly statistics were disappointing as mill takings were less than the previous week. Prices gradually dropped to levels 6 to 7 points down from the early highs and 3 to 4 points under the previous close. The market improved slightly early in the afternoon, recovering 3 points, but weakened sharply in the late trading with declines in stocks and wheat and made new lows at the end 13 to 14 points down from the highs. The close was barely steady. Liverpool is due tomorrow on New Orleans 5 penny points down.

First trades here showed gains of 3 to 4 points.

Near the close prices dropped to 13 to 14 points under the highs with December at 6.42, January at 6.53 and March at 6.70. The close showed net declines of 9 to 11 points on those active months.

Port receipts 154,348; for week 429,041; for season 4,297,704; last season 5,209,472. Exports 36,467; for week 215,323; for season 2,167,593; last season 2,568,217; port stock 4,642,856; last year 3,989,315. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 160,627; last year 165,587. Spot sales at southern markets 57,322; last year 34,029.

Futures closed barely steady at net declines of 8 to 11 points:

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (US)—Decline in stock prices gathered momentum today after an irregular morning session. Railway issues again led the downward movement and their disturbing influence was accentuated by renewed decline in important commodities, especially the grains. The latter have now lost nearly half of their sharp and sudden upturn which inaugurated the recent improvement in securities and in business sentiment. Judged by fluctuations in stock price averages, the stock market is responding very directly to the grain market leadership.

Stocks, too, have receded almost 50 per cent from the peak of their advance dating back to the extreme lows of Oct. 5. Aside from the weakness in commodities, stocks seemed also to take their cue from the bond market, where unsettling losses were recorded in many railroad bonds and causing a generally nervous tone throughout the bond list. Weekly trade reviews were cheerful in noting some pick-up of seasonal character, and there was an item of promise in the news that scrap steel prices have been showing greater firmness of late.

Volume in stocks increased to 1,800,000 shares but no great outpouring of offerings developed in the market. Rather, the list seemed to reflect absence of a backlog of support except on relatively wide scale downward.

New York Central again displayed distinct weakness, selling down to the lowest price in several decades at 45⅜, the closing price, at which it was down 3¾ points net for the day. The market now is cognizant of the possibility, long ago pointed out here, that dividends will be further reduced or possibly entirely omitted unless a drastic and early improvement takes place in general business. Central has been borrowing heavily at the banks and today is anxious to do public financing to take care of these bank loans. The change in management has lessened the bearishness of certain banking interests toward the stock, but as yet only modest scale-down buying has developed.

With Central furnishing the leadership, the entire rail list slumped. The Central case is but typical of that of many railroads, faced with new capital requirements but unable to raise the funds from public offering of securities because of the unsatisfactory investment market conditions and, more especially, the lack of earnings for the industry itself. Many railroads, of course, are suffering from the large losses incurred through thoughtless purchase of other roads' securities during the merger craze. Reactions among rail shares were sizable. Atchison dropped 5¾ points, Southern Pacific 3⅛, Pennsylvania 1 point, Baltimore & Ohio 4¼, and similar recessions took place throughout the group.

Copper shares attempted a rally under influence of the growing belief that some sort of agreement will be reached by the producers now in conference. The extreme secrecy surrounding their gatherings has aroused disgust even from some of the outstanding copper people, who realize that false hopes are instilled by the lack of information to the public. There is no secret of the difficulties facing the copper producers upnless they can reach an amicable arrangement which will stabilize the price of the metal at a living level. Some of the copper companies are in dire need of capital, and have been kept going to date by lending from the banks. Refusal of certain copper producers to furnish monthly statistics for publication emphasizes how unfavorable is their situation.

Chief sufferers in today's setback were those issues which have been the prime favorites of recent pool activities. Allied Chemical dropped back 5½ points, giving confirmation to the statement here that the strongest kind of buying had been suspended recently because of the stock's substantial advance which lifted it more than 50 per cent from the year's low. Allied is bought by the best-informed interests only on a scale downward, but it frequently reflects aggressive pool operations. Auburn dropped 8¼ points and the U. S. Industrial Alcohol pool was forced to recede. Western Union dropped to a new low. Only Homestake Mining attained a new peak price.

All sections of the market joined in the downward movement.

Corn—No. 2 mixed 43½@44½c; No. 2 white 44@45c; No. 2 yellow 46½@47½c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 13. (AP)—In a sudden flurry of stop loss selling, wheat pitched downward today to 9 cents under its recent peak. The market closed at the bottommost point reach since setbacks began. Notice or an edict of the French government, establishing new methods of rigid control of breadstuff imports, and suggesting that a way had been opened to create import quotas according to countries, threw the trade into confusion.

Wheat closed nervous, 1⅝@2⅜ cents lower than yesterday's finish. Corn 1@1⅝c down, oats ⅝@¾c off, and provisions showing 2 to 10 cents decline.

Word that the French government had augmented the rigors under which the international grain trade has been handicapped came with almost bombshell effect just when wheat prices were rallying from early breaks, the transient upturn was due to gossip that Japan was in the market as a purchaser of wheat. Another temporary stimulating factor was that Canada reported no rain, with much colder temperatures forecast, indicating that the Canadian spring wheat country would go into winter the dryest in years.

Bulls made much of a report from Riga that insolvency of the Russian government had been admitted by Molotov, president of the council of people's commission and associate of the Soviet dictator, Joseph Stalin. Some trade authorities said this implied a collapse of Russia's grain dumping policy, despite continuance of spasmodic exports. However, bears quickly had the whip hand when Paris dispatches were circulated telling of a new government departure as to import restrictions, including a system of licenses. Other bearish developments were meager wheat report business from North America, enlarged estimates of 1931 Canadian wheat production, rain in Texas and Kansas, harvest operations in Australia and Argentina.

Corn and oats were dominated by action of wheat.

Provisions reflected downturns both of hog values and of grains.

RAIN BENEFITS GRAIN CROPS

Scattered Showers Fall Over Section

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Nov. 13.—Rain fell at intervals almost all day, until late Friday afternoon. The fall was quite heavy for a short time, and indications point to more during the night.

The rain will be of particular benefit to growing wheat and to seed recently planted. As the greater part of the cotton has been picked the damage there will be small if any.

Farmers are in much better spirits than for several months and are counting upon good crops the coming year. Wild grass is growing rapidly and will carry much livestock over the winter.

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Nov. 13.—Rain totaling three-quarters of an inch fell in Wellington Friday afternoon with prospects indicating continued and heavier precipitation. Ungathered crops will be damaged by moisture. All highways into Wellington were reported slippery Friday night.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Nov. 13.—Rain, accompanied by a sharp drop in temperature, fell here Friday.

CORSICANA, Texas, Nov. 13. (AP)—G. O. Toole, charged with an attempt to extort $30,000 from I. N. Cerf, Corsicana banker, was sentenced to not less than five nor more than seven years' imprisonment upon his plea of guilty today.

Toole waived his right to trial by jury and was tried before Judge Hawkins Scarborough.

Cerf testified to receiving the threat letter Sept. 3.

The letter and a "dummy" package later which led to the arrest of Toole and his wife in Dallas were introduced as evidence.

'Bottled in Bond' Maker Convicted in U. S. Trial

TEXARKANA, Ark., Nov. 13. (AP)—Shirley Crank, prominent Miller county farmer, was convicted in federal court today on charges of violating the revenue and prohibition laws and maintaining a public nuisance. Sentence was deferred until Wednesday.

Crank fled to Mexico after officers raided his residence near Garland City and confiscated an elaborate liquor manufacturing plant and 500 gallons of "bottled in bond" liquor. He later returned and surrendered.

CUT IN TAX BURDEN ASKED

West Texans Make Plea to Survey Committee

state and taxpayers are unable to pay the present cost of government. Private citizens and businesses have curtailed their expenditures and have set a precedent for the state to follow, the West Texas representatives argued.

It was claimed by the West Texas group that since 1912 the taxable wealth of the state had increased only 70 per cent while the revenue exacted by the state had increased 800 per cent.

Ranch Method Told

The committee cited several instances where farmers and ranchmen in West Texas have cut their operating costs to less than the taxes on their land as an illustration of the campaign of retrenchment that has been carried out in that area.

High governmental costs has proved a burden on private enterprise and has hiked production costs to beyond the selling price of commodities. "With retrenchment in farming, ranching, industry, mercantile enterprises and in county and city government and with the lack of income among our citizens to pay the cost of government, it is time for the state to halt and reduce public expenditures," a prepared statement presented to the committee stated.

In addition to recommending consolidation in state offices it was urged that steps be taken to abolish needless offices in city and county government.

'Intangible' Assets

"Rather than put the taxpayers in a greater plight, it would be better to go without some of our roads, to cut down a little on our education and go a little slower on our welfare and eleemosynary activities," the statement read.

In arguing for equality in making property valuations for state purposes, the committee pointed out that 12 counties, by holding their valuations low, had received $2,867,186 more from the state over a four year period for school purposes than was paid the state in taxes by these counties.

It was strongly recommended that constructive effort be made to find an effective method of taxing intangible assets to the end that burdens on real estate and visible property might be lightened.

Caraway's Widow Named Senator

of national politics and government, although she always kept herself in the background.

She was the close adviser of Senator Caraway on all important questions.

On her visits to her home in Jonesboro, she was in great demand as a speaker before women's clubs on political questions.

She has three sons.

The state Democratic central committee will meet Dec. 1 to nominate a candidate to succeed Senator Caraway for the unexpired term. The nomination is equivalent to election.

STERLING CALLS SPECIAL ELECTION

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—Gov. R. S. Sterling late today set Nov. 24 as the date to hold an election in the 14th Texas district to fill the vacancy in congress caused by the death of Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach of Sequin.

Wurzbach was the only Republican member of the Texas congressional delegation.

The election date was set early enough to permit the returns to be canvassed and the successful candidate seated by the time congress opened Dec. 7.

It was generally regarded as certain the 14th district would elect a Democrat to fill the vacancy.

With party strength in congress so evenly divided, election of a Democrat from the district virtually would assure Democratic organization of the house and election of Congressman John Garner of Texas as speaker.

Farm Board Chairman Won't Mind Investigation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—Chairman Stone is willing and ready for the senate agricultural committee to take the farm board apart and see what has made it go.

"We have no secrets here," he said today, "and we are not ashamed of what we have done."

The committee, under Chairman McNary, Republican of Oregon will meet Nov. 24 to consider the whole farm relief problem, including the board's activities, and to hear ideas for improvement.

VERNON, Texas, Nov. 13.—Membership gains in the face of financial stringency and privation were praised by Bishop Hiram A. Boaz as reflecting the heroism of pastors as the Northwest Texas conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, today heard reports on the church year just closed.

Rev. G. S. Slover, presiding elder from the Stamford district, reported that 12 of 22 preachers in his district received less than $400 each in salaries last year and could not have obtained food for their families if assistance had not been given.

Membership Gains

Tabulation of figures for the conference revealed a net membership gain between 2,000 and 2,500 although the Abilene and Stamford districts reported losses.

The salaries of preachers and presiding elders were reported to have been about 65 per cent paid. The average payments on benevolences approximated one-third.

Bishop Boaz said he had no criticism of the shortages because he understood conditions and knew the preachers and their parishoners had done the best they could.

Simpson Speaks

The conference board of Christian education was in charge of tonight's program. J. F. Simpson of the general board of Christian education at Nashville, Tenn., was the principal speaker.

Children from the Methodist orphanage at Waco will have charge of the program tomorrow afternoon. The board of temperance and social service at night will present a dramatized sermon, with Rev. Atticus Webb, superintendent of the Texas anti-Saloon league, in charge.

Bishop Boaz will ordain deacons tomorrow and the conference will choose a meeting place for next year. Abilene was the only city bidding for the 1932 conference.

Seven pastors admitted on trial today were: Marvin L. Boyd and Ray N. Johnson, Abilene district; Lester L. Hill, Amarillo district; Horace R. Bennett, Perryton district; Cecil M. Ellis, Stamford district; George C. Hardy, Sweetwater district, and N. Henderson, Vernon district.

said, the Chinese authorities agreed to acknowledge a Soviet policy in the Chinese eastern railway zone, deport, all white Russians in that area and recognize Communist organizations in Harbin.

JAPAN DRIVES AGAINST CITY

MUKDEN, Nov. 14. (Saturday)—(US)—The "big push" of the Japanese Manchurian army on Tsitsihar began today, with Gen. Ma Chan-Shan, Chinese leader, directing a counter-offensive to prevent the seizure of his capital.

Gen Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commandant here, announced that four Japanese soldiers had been killed and that Chinese had carried a wounded Japanese from the field, probably for questioning, when Chinese cavalry attacked and wiped out a Japanese sentry-post in the Anganchi region.

Forces Massed

Powerful Chinese cavalry forces are massing behind the Japanese right at Tahsing, north of the Nonni river, it was reported here. There are 2,000 Japanese troops at Tahsing, to be utilized as the spearhead of the Japanese drive. Two thousand more Japanese troops are stationed along the Taonan-Anganchi railroad between Ssupingkai and Tahsing.

It is officially reported here that Gen. Ma Chan-Shan has completed the massing of his forces, composed mostly of the Heilung-Kiang army, Mongol troops, some Russians and Chinese Eastern railway guards.

Parley Fails

Ma's forces, it is said here, total 20,000 men in cavalry, infantry and artillery arms. Anti-aircraft guns, field guns, trench mortars and machine guns have been secured by the Chinese. Chinese mounted raiding parties have been harassing the Japanese front line since early yesterday, it is reported.

Last-minute efforts to bring about conferences between the Japanese consul at Tsitsihar and General Ma failed, it was stated, after Ma had refused to evacuate Tsitsihar as demanded by General Honjo, with the result that hostilities were reopened.

Educator Studies Girls In Chicago Factory

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—To a woman, it seems, a job is "neither an evil nor a blessing, but just a way out."

The quotation marks belong to Arthur W. Kornhauser of Chicago university.

He made the observation, which he said was based on a study he conducted in a large Chicago factory, in a speech today before the personnel research federation, in session here.

"The women," he added, "went to work much as though they were going to school—only it was harder."

Cardona, Fort Worth, third vice president; Mrs. Ruth Carroll, Houston, fourth vice president; C. F. Browning, Houston, secretary; Mrs. M. Pierson, Austin, treasurer.

HOOVER MAPS HOME-AID PLAN

Rediscount Loan Bank System Proposed

The president said that advances would be made on sound appraisals of the property in question. He figured that, on this basis, the amount of the advance would be 25 per cent on long term ones.

6.—Initial capital for the banks would be found, as in the case of the federal reserve system, through an organization committee in each district. The committee would offer stock to institutions which would participate in the system. Any unsubscribed balance would be subscribed by the federal government. Institutions which made use of the system would be required to purchase a portion of the government held stock, so that this stock would pass gradually into private ownership.

Bond System

7—The banks, as their need required, would issue bonds or short term notes to investors up to an amount not exceeding 12 times the capital of the issuing bank. These bonds would be secured by the obligations of the borrowing institutions, the mortgages deposited as collateral and the capital of the discount banks themselves. This in the president's words would result in "a bond of high grade as to quality and security." They would be acceptable as security for government and postal deposits.

President Hoover explained that an initial total capital of $150,000,000 for the system should permit the 12 banks to finance more than $1,800,000,000 to borrowing institutions which now are holding home and farm mortgages. This amount could be expanded, he pointed out, if the capital were increased.

Inflation Denied

Anticipating possible criticism, the president said:

"There is no element of inflation in the plan but simply a better organization of credit for these purposes."

The president in announcing the plan also gave his own summary of its purposes as follows:

1.—For the present emergency purpose of relieving the financial strains upon sound building and loan associations, savings banks, deposit banks and farm loan banks that have been giving credit through the medium of small mortgage loans upon urban and farm properties used for homes. Thereby to relieve pressures upon home and farm owners.

Prevent Repetition

2.—To put the various types of institutions loaning on mortgages in a position to assist in the revival of home construction in many parts of the country and with its resultant increase in employment.

3.—To safeguard against the repetition of such experiences in the future.

4.—For the long view purpose of strengthening such institutions in the promotion of home ownership particularly through the financial strength thus made available to building and loans associations.

In sum, to provide a permanent, strong system that will help a poor man to build and keep his home and at the same time to relieve present unemployment.

The president pointed out the recent difficulties in the credit situation, which had resulted in stagnation of private building activities. This situation, he said, has reacted on lending organizations so that "they are not only not able to extend credit through new mortgages to home and farm owners, but are only too often unable to renew mortgages or give consideration to those in difficulty, with resultant great hardship to borrowers and a definite depreciation of real estate values in the areas where such pressures exist."

Music Department Gives Program at Assembly

The first musical program given this year by the members of the Wichita Falls High school music department for the assembly of the general student body was presented at the regular assembly period Friday morning under the direction of Hermione Stewart Vaughan.

The musical program was as follows:

"Rose Overture," high school orchestra.

Preceding the musical program, Mrs. Albert Owens made an announcement concerning the mother-son banquet on Nov. 24 at the Woman's Forum. She also urged every one to attend the play, "A Successful Calamity," at the Memorial auditorium on Nov. 20 for the benefit of the city P.-T. A. lunch fund for children who are unable to buy their own lunches at the schools.

STORM VICTIMS REACH HAVEN

Survivors of Shipwreck Arrive in Colon

COLON, Panama, Nov. 13. (AP)—Eleven haggard survivors of the schooner Baden-Baden, who were alternately drenched by rain and baked by the sun while their open lifeboat tossed on the stormy Caribbean for three days, arrived here tonight on the U. S. S. Swan.

Capt. Hewitt Walters of Mobile, Ala., who was injured by a falling timber as he sought to escape from the sinking schooner, was taken off the Swan on a stretcher and carried to Colon hospital.

His back was bruised from neck to waist, two ribs were broken and it was feared he might be suffering from internal injuries—but he smiled cheerfully through a five-day growth of beard.

Victims Wily

Chief Engineer Halder, whose knee was injured, was able to walk ashore.

The rest of the castaways, wearing uniforms of the United States navy, given to them by their rescuers, herded on the deck. Smoking sailors' cigarets and chatting among themselves.

They had learned the value of news from offers radioed to the ship and they refused to talk to reporters unless they were paid for it.

The castaways were picked up yesterday by the Swan. Their vessel foundered off the Colombian coast Monday.

Pounding waves which sent the old schooner Baden-Baden to the bottom drove the Swan off her course today.

Evades Storm

She lost her bearings temporarily and ran into a cove at Isla Grande, 50 miles north of Cristobal, this afternoon, and when the squall abated she put out again.

Hans J. Lau and Adolph Schoenek who owned the Baden-Baden, went down with the ship. Five other men in the crew took to a liferaft and nobody knows what happened to them. The Baden-Baden went down in 20 minutes during the storm and the castaways had no time to load food or water. They had drifted for three days when the Swan picked them up.

Business Here Getting Better

speaker declared he regarded wheat a good investment even at higher prices than the present level. He said that cotton at the present quotation is not a dangerous investment.

Mr. Kell attributed adverse business conditions of the past few years to the wave of speculation that held the nation in 1927 and 1928, and the disastrous downward plunge of markets that ensued.

"When the wave of speculation collapsed," he explained, "there was a reduction in all industrial activity; there was a general tightening of credit; railroad shipments and steel orders decreased, and employers in reorganizing their businesses were forced to cut wages and reduce their payrolls."

Normal conditions, it was said, cannot be expected to return overnight, when two and a half years were required to create "the festering sore that afflicted us."

However, marked improvement in business conditions is now noticeable, it was added. Mr. Kell pointed out the increase in steel orders, the return of numbers of railroad men to their jobs after periods of idleness.

Business will profit greatly, it was shown, through moves to stimulate commodity prices, as a large percentage of grain and cotton crops remain in the hands of the producer.

Control of Production

"Every effort to control prices of farm commodities and to create an artificial value by statutory regulation has failed in the past because there was no provision for regulating production," Mr. Kell declared. The speaker expressed the belief that recent moves to control production by legislation are steps in the direction of successful creation of artificial values for farm products.

The future for the Southwest is particularly bright, it was shown in Mr. Kell's comment on increased prices for wheat, cotton, oil and cattle. In Wichita Falls, he said, there has been a noticeably increased activity in real estate in recent weeks, particularly farm property.

Mr. Kell, despite his optimism for business conditions, expressed doubt that the United States and France are powerful enough to maintain the gold standard. Loss of trade is threatened in countries ordinarily good customers because of the present difference in monetary standards, it was explained. The question was said to be one that demanded the study of all business men and financiers.

Approximately 200 members of the business council and guests heard Mr. Kell's address.

C. H. Stewart, manager of the Publix theaters here, announced that the proceeds of three motion picture houses here Saturday, Nov. 21, would be donated to charity.

MORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 13. (AP)—Edwin H. B. Allen, young society man who shot to death Francis A. Donaldson, also socially well known today was ordered held by a coroner's jury on a charge of murder for action of the grand jury.

"There has been testimony," said Coroner George R. Huff, before the jury retired, "that Allen shot young Donaldson, and testimony that there was no justification."

The only witness of the killing, Albert Gallatin H. Lucas, friend and confidant of the slain man, was the central figure in the inquest and told of the shooting in the Allen apartment last Monday night.

The prisoner was not present. Nor was Rose E. W. Allen, his 18-year-old sister, present to hear Lucas say Donaldson had admitted to him he had been guilty of misconduct with her.

Woman's Place in Home First, She Says

changes; our home now is as large as the cruising range of the car."

Motion pictures are the greatest force for disseminating propaganda which the world has seen, Mrs. Owen said, and extolled its possibilities as an educational medium.

"The motion picture speaks with force, in terms which the child mind remembers," she said. "Consider the possibilities of motion picture study of geography, where the point of departure, the ocean voyage, the cargo-laden wharf may be seen—and remembered. It is fascinating to contemplate the historical value which our present-day news reels will hold for children two generations hence. They will see our war heroes honored on New York's Broadway; they will see the smoke rising over battle fields in France; our children's children will know just how Lindbergh smiles—because of these films."

Pension for Mothers

Mrs. Owen spoke briefly of a law which she has endeavored to have passed which would provide a governmental pension for widowed mothers, so that the children might be kept together as a family group.

"It would be far cheaper for the state to provide such pensions than to take those children into institutions," she declared. "It costs much less to support a child as a member of a family than it does when he is an inmate of an institution."

Commending the work done by women in this country, Mrs. Owen recalled that in the first woman's club meeting recorded in the United States, the subject for discussion was: "Is it better to be good than to be beautiful?" That meeting was held shortly before the Civil war.

"Women have learned not only to organize, but to sight high objectives worthy of their best efforts," she continued.

An understanding of government was stressed repeatedly by the speaker as one of the first elements in good citizenship. One of the most impressive portions of her address was the description of work which she does among the young people of the Florida district which she represents in congress. Annual elections are held within the schools to choose each community's best boy and girl citizens. This group is taken to Washington by Mrs. Owen, and is given a short but intensive course in the fact and theory of government. They are permitted to witness the opening of the supreme court, the activities of congress and are allowed to call upon the president.

Plea for Peace

After visiting the governmental departments in Washington, Mrs. Owen said, the youthful "best citizens" are told that they have seen the structure of government in that city. They are then told that "the cost of government is to be seen in Arlington cemetery," which is then visited.

"Young people have two outstanding qualities," Mrs. Owen continued, "idealism and energy. And this present young generation has something never possessed before—a new perspective. They cannot remember, as we do, when airplanes and radio were unknown. Many of the elements in today's life which use 'amazing' to us are commonplaces to them. They speak of merely 'hopping' to South America or Europe—and that is right. That is what we do. The result of all this is a wider horizon. The individual who is a good citizen today is a good citizen not only in his community, his nation, but in the world-neighborhood which he serves."

Mrs. Owen made a brief but strong plea for peace, deploring the fact that offenses between nations are the only ones for which humanity has not provided police, judges, courts and public support for their action.

"Building a social conscience is like building the cathedrals in the middle ages. One generation could build a foundation, but their children's children were the ones who finally saw the towers reaching into the sky.

"My dearest responsibility as an office-holder," the speaker said in conclusion, "is that which I share with you to the children, and under which I say to you: 'God speed you in your task to build with your service the republic which our fathers began in sacrifice many years ago.'"

Mrs. Owen, comparable with her illustrious father, depends upon a remarkably resourceful voice for effects in her speech. Throughout her entire address she hardly changed position. Gestures were almost entirely absent. Yet her delivery was marked by a wide variety of expression, by surprising shades of feeling, through the manipulation of an excellent voice of deep contralto quality. Her discourse was punctuated with humor which was never overt, but which never missed fire. The unmistakeable courage and fire of blue-gray eyes was tempered with obvious warmth in her nature.

Mrs. Owen was introduced by Mrs. Guy Rogers, program chairman, who paid brief tribute to the speaker's parents, and reviewed the activities of Mrs. Owen in her public career. Mrs. Rogers and Newton Maer met Mrs. Owen upon her arrival at 2:10 p. m. Friday and entertained the eminent congresswoman during her visit her.

COURT TO HEAR NEGRO'S PLEA

Motion for New Trial Set For Dec. 7

Judge Allan D. Montgomery of the 30th district court will hear argument on an amended motion for a new trial for Richard Brown, negro now under a death penalty for alleged robbery with firearms, during the week of Dec. 7, it was announced Friday.

Brown was convicted by a jury before Judge Montgomery at Graham Thursday and given the extreme penalty. The case grew out of the slaying of A. N. Nodurft, and the assault and robbery of his fiancee, in Wichita Falls on the night of Sept. 9.

Cedric Taylor, defense counsel appointed by the court, indicated Friday that he will plead again violation of the 14th constitutional amendment in the selection of the grand jury which indicted Brown. He also will ask for a new trial on the grounds that certain admitted testimony in the recent trial, and answers of the court to questions asked by the jury after its deliberations had begun, were prejudicial to the defendant.

Brown will not be brought to trial on indictments for murder and criminal assault unless the verdict returned at Graham is reversed or a new trial granted, according to members of the district attorney's staff.

Laden Pantries of Wichita Women Show County's Ability to Produce Food

100 in Delegation Touring Farm District; Thousands of Jars of Food Ready for Winter Use

About 100 business men and women of this city spent Friday afternoon in a tour of farm homes in this section for the inspection of canned food supplies put up during the past summer under the direction of Miss Ethel Luise Webb, county home demonstrator, and of the home demonstration clubs in the various communities.

Some of the pantries visited Friday revealed more than 1,000 containers each, representing a wide variety of foods locally grown and stored for use during the ensuing winter.

At the home of Mrs. A. F. Rathschuber, in the Westmoreland park district, the tourists made their first stop and found a store consisting of 650 containers. One of the features of that display was a shelf of food prepared specifically for the nourishment of an 18-months' old baby during the next few months.

Foods which prevent and cure pellagra were conspicuous as a special exhibit at the home of Mrs. Will Kell, where 1,037 containers of food were seen. This home is in the City View community.

Mrs. G. D. Bobo, in the Friberg district, exhibited 604 containers of varied products, the total cost of which, exclusive of labor, was $43. It was said that the containers throughout this area will average more than a quart each in volume.

Food which causes pellagra was arranged in a special exhibit at the home of Mrs. G. B. Campbell, also in the Friberg district. This display has been used in teaching members of the club there the dangers of an unbalanced diet, and methods of maintaining a proper balance, Miss Webb said. Mrs. Campbell's pantry was heavily stocked with 1,018 containers of food.

More than 40 varieties of food were included in a comparatively small stock of canned goods at the home of Mrs. A. F. Bunger, in Cameron gardens. A similar store was inspected at the home of Mrs. A. C. Winslow, near the Friberg school.

At the home of Mrs. R. W. Thomas, in the Bowie addition to this city, there were shown 1,098 containers. Unusual features of the stock displayed by Mrs. R. F. Henry, also of the Bowie addition, were canned butter and canned home-made peanut butter.

The tour was conducted by Miss Webb and G. C. McGown, county farm agent.
