Trustees make minor changes in SISD budget

After approving a hike in coaching supplements for two head coaches, Snyder public schools trustees managed to whittle $2,000 from the proposed $14 million 1992-93 budget Friday afternoon.

Trustees will seek to adopt the budget following a public hearing set for 12:30 p.m. Monday.

In addition to the $2,000 trimmed Friday, Business Manager Lee McNair said the district will not need as many overhead projectors and filing cabinets as originally requested. That, amount, plus a possible cut in the budgeted amount for periodicals, will be presented Monday.

The board also voted 3-2 to allow two students to be transferred from Northeast Elementary due to overcrowding in the first grade. Northeast Principal Lee Presswood explained that he has two classes of 23 students, and maximum ratio is 22 to 1 teacher.

Trustee Charles Anderson voiced concern that allowing the transfers "opens the door to others." Trustee Luann Burleson said that it should be made clear that these were transfers out of necessity, and not by request.

Burleson, Billy Bob McMullan and Ann Walton voted in favor of the transfers while Anderson and Geraldine Parker voted against. Parker was not against the transfers, but took the position that the situation comes under site-based management and is a campus matter rather than a board matter.

Trustees Glen Clarady and Terry Martin were absent Friday.

The board approved a request from Athletic Director David Baugh to increase the supplemental salaries of girls golf coach Matt Glenn and boys golf coach Bob O'Day to $5,000. The total increase amounted to $2,500 because O'Day is currently making $3,500 and Glenn is receiving $4,000. Glenn receives an additional $500 because he coaches three sports.

Baugh noted that head coaches in the school district are paid a $5,000 supplement and that both golf programs are now being held in the fall and spring semesters.

Following unanimous approval of the request, trustees went to work on the proposed 1992-93 budget.

"I'd like to show the taxpayers that we at least cut something," said Anderson. "We haven't done that yet."

Anderson was also concerned that the current projected revenue of $14,727,615 is only $3,000 to $6,000 above expected expenditures.

The board took $2,500 from administrative travel. It was also noted that $2,000 in tutorial funds will not be needed at the high school since tutoring is held during regular school hours on that campus this year. The coaching supplement hikes, subtracted from the cuts, left a total deduction from the budget of $2,000.

The board briefly discussed principals' salaries, noting that on a per-day basis, principals Jim Rosson and Thomas Fogleman make less than the highest paid teachers.

Hermleigh reconnect fees on commissioners' agenda

Scurry County commissioners will discuss proposed fee changes for Hermleigh Water Works and a request to lease the old terminal building at the county airport during their 10 a.m. meeting Monday.

The court will entertain a request to change reconnection fees for the Hermleigh water system from $10 to $25. A second request will be a change in the length of time for sending out second notices for disconnection. Second notices are currently sent out after 60 days. The request, if granted, would reduce the notice time to 45 days.

A request to use the old terminal building at the airport for a flying school to be instructed by Jarle Boe was presented to commissioners last week. The court tabled the request for further study and will consider it again Monday.

Other business for the court will include a request for approval of an updated indigent health care policy for the county from Marge Sealy of the county welfare department, and the appointment of board members to the county welfare and hospital boards.

Commissioners are to define which precinct each county facility is located in, and designate a contact person for each facility.

Also on the agenda is a request to advertise for bids for sealcoating rock to be used by all four county precincts.

Approval of bills and minutes from previous meetings are the only other items of business.

The show will feature over 80 vendors, displaying firearms, knifes, coins, gemstones, camouflage gear, gun cases, holsters and the like.

UBS blood drive planned Tuesday

United Blood Services will be in Snyder for a summer blood drive Tuesday, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Towle Park Barn.

All of the people who donated at the June blood drive will receive a "Don't Be A Chicken" T-shirt when they donate again Tuesday.

"This is United Blood Services' way of recognizing and thanking repeat donors, especially during the critical summer months when blood donations tend to decrease," said a UBS spokesman.

UBS also announced that two qualifications for donating blood have changed. A person who has had major or minor surgery can now begin donating blood as soon as they are released from their doctor and told to resume all normal activities, unless they received blood products, which will defer them from donating for 12 months. Also, if a donor has had dental work, including a cleaning, they must now only wait one day before donating blood.

Sign-up sheets for blood replacement will be available at this blood drive for L.E. "Doc" Griffin and Mrs. Cecil (Ruby) Boren.

"Doc" Griffin has recently been diagnosed as having refractory anemia, a medical condition that requires routine blood transfusions. To date, Griffin has used six units of blood, but anticipates a continuing need for additional units.

Prior to her recent death, Mrs. Boren's medical condition also required her to receive blood transfusions.

"It is for folks like Mr. Griffin and Mrs. Boren, and many other friends and neighbors who require blood transfusions, that we sponsor blood drives in Snyder," said a Scurry County Advisory Council representative. "Only volunteer blood donors can help assure that blood will be available when it is needed."

In appreciation for voluntary blood donations each participant will receive coupons for a DQ Sundae from Dairy Queen, a malt or milk shake from Sonic Drive In, a medium drink with purchase of any dessert from Whataburger, a small soft drink and order of potatoes ole' from Taco John's, a dessert of choice from McDonald's, a medium drink with any food purchase from Wal-Mart and medium drink with any meal purchase from Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppe.

Every fifth donor will receive a 6-pack of Sam's Cola and every other donor will receive a coupon for a regular order from Gill's Fried Chicken.

Seven $5 gift certificates each from Jaramillo's Restaurant and Spanish Inn will be distributed by random drawings. A Sunday buffet-for-two at Willow Park Inn will be awarded by a number drawing from the list of all donors.

There will be a choice from several small items as gifts from United Blood Services.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The study of history is an early-warning system."

Dalton Walton, my neighbor and ardent Texas Longhorn backer, believes that UT Coach John Mackovic will lead 'em to the promised land, or at least to the Cotton Bowl.

Walton is already wearing Burnt Orange, and talking National Championship. After last season, UT nudged former Texas Tech head coach David McWilliams out of the UT football job and made him some sort of assistant athletic director at his current salary of $275,000. The 'Horns then went to Illinois and hired Mackovic at an annual salary of $425,000.

Texas' commitment to return to national prominence on the girdiron has cleared one hurdle — money. The salaries for the Longhorn staff has exceeded the $1 million mark for the first time.

Mackovic and his nine assistant and recruiting coordinator will collectively receive $254,000 per year more than last year's coaching staff.

Mackovic's highest paid assistant is Leon Fuller, defensive coordinator, who earns $81,000. Next is offensive coordinator Gene Dahlquist who will make $72,000. Two coaches will make $68,000, another $64,000, two will earn $60,000, two more will make $59,000 and the lowest paid guy on the staff gets $53,000. Yep, and work uniforms are furnished.

AD DeLoss Dodds said that UT doesn't have the highest paid staff in the nation, but it likely is ranked in the top five. With that kind of money, we suspect the alums are expecting more than a Top 10 finish — more like a Top Five.

Even with Arkansas out of the SWC, the UT and A&M rivalry will continue to liven things up.

We once heard about an Aggie who married a gal who graduated from UT. They claimed they never argued about which school was the best — they just sat down and reasoned things out.

They admitted, however, that on one occasion that the reasoning got so loud it took two squad cars to quieten it.

Three charged by federal grand jury

SEATTLE (AP) — A federal grand jury has charged three men with organizing a group health insurance scheme that defrauded thousands of people and small businesses who paid more than $6 million in premiums for phantom coverage..

The indictment alleged the trio left unpaid some $8 million in claims made by insurance subscribers in several states, U.S. Attorney Mike McKay said Friday.

Small business and individual victims were located in Washington, Oregon, California, Montana and Texas, the indictment said.

Charged were Edward B. Gallup, 44, of Stanwood, Wash., accused in 44 counts; and Patrick W. Lyon, 52, of Renton and Thomas M. O'Brien, 39, formerly of Redmond, Wash., and now of Glendale, Calif., each accused in 43 counts.

The indictment describes an alleged conspiracy and scheme to defraud from May 1988 through October 1989.

The three men are charged with conspiracy, mail and wire fraud and money laundering, among other charges.

A man who answered the telephone Friday at Gallup's home identified himself as Gallup's son and said it was a "false accusation." He refused to give his name and said Gallup would have no comment. The other two defendants could not immediately be reached by telephone.

McKay said victims included people like Richard Flaherty of Sparks, Nev., who was an hour away from double-bypass heart surgery when his doctors told him his health insurance was no good.

"The patient got out of bed, dressed and went home," McKay said. "Although he had the surgery a week later and is now doing fine, he owes more than $120,000 in medical bills. This patient and thousands of others thought they had paid for group health insurance that in fact never was acquired."

The indictment alleges that Gallup, as president of Arizona Life Reinsurance Co. and a Bellevue, Wash., insurance consulting firm known as Labor Management Services Inc. made sales presentations to small business groups, underpricing competing group health plans. Instead of arranging for group health insurance plans backed by legitimate insurance companies, the defendants are accused of creating the appearance of legitimate coverage while directing large amounts of money to their personal use.

The three men diverted $1 million of the insurance money to themselves, each buying a Jaguar car, McKay alleged. The indictment alleges the three paid out only $3.2 million in claims and failed to set up a reserve account to pay future claims.

"This particular fraud ranks among the most vicious and despicable," said Julian De La Rosa, inspector general with the U.S. Department of Labor. His department worked with the U.S. attorney, Washington state insurance commissioner, U.S. Postal Inspection Service and Internal Revenue Service in the two-year investigation.

"The victims are working men and women who thought they were buying a necessity," De La Rosa said. "It's a tragedy to find yourself not only sick but to discover there is no insurance to pay for it."

In February 1989, the Washington state insurance commissioner's office revoked the licenses of Gallup and Labor Management Services, Inc., after nonpayment of claims for the Oil Heat Institute Association of Washington and Oregon.

Your Birthday

Aug. 22, 1992

Some lessons from the past may represent painful memories, but in the year ahead, you should begin to profit from these experiences. This will put you a few steps ahead of the group.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A new endeavor you're hopeful about might not look as good in reality as it does on paper. Study this matter further, before getting more deeply involved. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you do what needs doing without focusing attention on yourself, you'll encounter less opposition today. Aim high, but stay in the shade.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An old, trusted friend might tell you things today in confidence that this individual would never reveal to others. Be sure this person's faith is justified.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Falling short of your mark today could be the result of your methods and procedures. Working hard isn't the only solution; you must be smart, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though you'll know better, there is a possibility you might repeat an old mistake today — because your wishful thinking could lead you to believe there will be a different ending.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things you should be taking care of personally might be unwisely delegated to others today. And their performance could be well below your standards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're negotiating an important agreement today, be mindful of the small print; you might be held to very exacting terms. Know what you're getting into.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unless you plan ahead properly today, you may work very hard and have little to show for it. You wouldn't try to build a bridge without a blueprint, would you?

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might have an opportunity today to prove to someone you love that you are prepared to stand by this individual with your resources, as well as your words. Don't miss the boat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you lack prudence, this might not be one of your better days as either a buyer or a seller. Don't treat material involvements with indifference.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Regardless of how painful it might be to you or your companions, have the courage to be forthright today — if you hope to win the respect of your peers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you fail to think for yourself and usurp the ideas of associates, something is likely to be lost in the translation. What works for them may not work for you.

Your Birthday

Aug. 23, 1992

Your circle of friends and acquaintances will be substantially enhanced in the year ahead. Each new group of people you'll become involved with will serve as a contributor in some pleasant manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friendships will take on greater significance at this time, as pals begin to play more active roles in your affairs. Their input should be constructive. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Virgo's Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your probabilities for achieving your objectives are quite good, owing to your ambitious efforts, as well as those of others working on your behalf. It's a dynamic alignment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your ideas could be of considerable benefit to friends at this time. Don't be reluctant to offer suggestions, even if they're unsolicited.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Over the coming weeks, you could do quite well where joint ventures are concerned. You provide the leadership, and let your counterpart equal your contribution in other ways.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Alliances you enter into now have excellent chances for both success and endurance. Don't do alone what can be done better with a competent ally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you've been quietly developing should be brought out into the open at this time. You're at a point where you need the cooperation and support of others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Individuals you're presently involved with socially could prove to be the best ones to help you advance your ambitious yearnings. Go to them first.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Tasks you've been putting off because you felt they were too arduous won't be nearly as threatening as you anticipated — if you attempt them today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An improvement is indicated at this time where your social life is concerned. Momentum should begin to pick up as of today. Have fun and enjoy yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions that influence your financial well-being are taking a turn for the better at this time. This is because Lady Luck will be playing a more active hand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're in a good cycle for promoting situations that can advance your personal interests, be they esthetic or material. Try to operate in both areas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be rather fortunate financially at this time, without having to expend too much effort. However, this does not mean you should leave everything up to chance.

Sworn testimony ordered by judge

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for a man up for retrial in the 1977 death of a Tyler secretary will take sworn testimony from a Houston woman who reportedly threatened to kill the murder victim, a judge has ruled.

In a hearing in Tyler Friday, State District Judge Joe Tunnell said Luella Frances Finley must give a sworn deposition to lawyers representing Kerry Max Cook in his upcoming capital murder retrial.

Tunnell also granted defense motions to take depositions from Ms. Finley's parents, Elfreide and James Mayfield of Houston, and ordered Smith County prosecutor David Dobbs to turn over evidence to defense attorney Paul Nugent.

"If all we're looking for is the truth, we'll just go ahead and do it," the judge said.

Cook is charged with killing 21-year-old Linda Jo Edwards, whose sexually mutilated body was found in her apartment June 10, 1977.

Ms. Finley last fall told The Dallas Morning News she had threatened to kill Ms. Edwards because of an ongoing affair the secretary was having with Ms. Finley's father. Her deposition, scheduled for Sept. 21, will be her first under oath.

Assassination plots alleged against ex-Contras

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Human rights workers and former Contra commanders say radical groups backed by the Sandinista-run police force and army are assassinating Contra leaders to wipe out political opposition.

"The Sandinistas are simply cutting off the head of the resistance," said Mateo Guerrero, executive director of the Nicaraguan Association for Human Rights. "No one is being punished. The law does not exist."

Contra rebels, who fought a nine-year guerrilla war until the Marxist Sandinista government was voted out in 1990, reportedly have begun rearming out of fear.

Some have also taken up arms again out of frustration that land reform and other promises by President Violeta Chamorro remain unfulfilled.

They say the only way to stop the killings is to remove the military and police from Sandinista control, but concede this would be hard for Mrs. Chamorro to do.

The Sandinistas are still by far the biggest single political party and retain tremendous disruptive potential through their control of key labor unions as well as the armed forces.

Since Mrs. Chamorro defeated Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega in February 1990 presidential elections, about 120 former leaders of the U.S.-backed National Resistance, or Contras, have been killed.

Sandinista leaders deny involvement.

The most sensational assassination was last year's shooting of Enrique Bermudez, the Contras' top commander, in a hotel parking lot.

The most recent was that of Pablo Antonio Casco Urbina, found on Aug. 6, shot through each eye near the Honduran border.

Oscar Sabalvarro, a former Contra leader known as Commander Ruben, said the resistance's intelligence has found evidence of a hit list of former Contra leaders.

Sabalvarro said no plans exist for retaliation but that the killings make it difficult for former Contras to organize an effective political party for the 1996 presidential elections.

The Contra war against the Sandinistas was rife with claims of human rights abuses by both sides. The fighting is over and Mrs. Chamorro has tried to reunite the country, but bitterness remains.

Teacher pleads guilty to sexual misconduct with teenage boy

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 28-year-old middle school teacher accused of conducting a month-long sexual affair with a 14-year-old boy she tutored has pleaded guilty to sexual assault charges.

Elizabeth Sanchez on Friday pleaded guilty to having sex with a Pat Neff Middle School special education student last March 14.

As part of a plea agreement, prosecutors recommended that Ms. Sanchez be sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined $1,000. If she is given probation, they asked that she be required to obtain psychiatric counseling and perform 150 hours of community service.

District Judge Pat Priest delayed sentencing until he receives a report on Ms. Sanchez from the probation department.

The boy, now a 15-year-old freshman in the Northside School District, did not appear in court Friday, but his father and stepmother were there.

The boy's father said Ms. Sanchez, who is married, often visited the family's home last spring as a tutor.

"They would study in the kitchen and then stay in the car until one in the morning, when I would have to go out and get (the boy)," he said. "I first thought she was helping him. But she was helping herself."

According to the boy's sworn statement, he and Ms. Sanchez began a sexual relationship in mid-March and continued until April 19. He said they often had sex at the teacher's apartment.

The boy said he didn't tell anyone about the affair "because I was scared."

"(She) would tell me, if anyone would ever find out about her having sex with me, she would lose her job and everything she had ... (and), 'If I ever catch you with a girl, or messing around behind my back, I will kill you.' I was scared. I really thought she would do it," he said.

On May 12, the boy taped a telephone conversation with Sanchez "to let my dad know what was going on."

Ms. Sanchez was fired on May 15, two days after the boy's father took the tape to police, school officials said.

Indicted pathologist Erdmann gives up state medical license

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Pathologist Ralph Erdmann, indicted on state charges of tampering and theft, is finished practicing medicine in Texas, according to a top state health official.

Dr. Homer R. Goehrs, executive director of the State Board of Medical Examiners, said Erdmann on Thursday surrendered his Texas medical license "in lieu of further disciplinary action hearings by this board."

Erdmann had faced an investigation by the medical examiners board, which reviews questionable medical procedures performed by practicing physicians, including autopsies by forensic pathologists.

"His surrendering his license says we don't have to have a hearing and delay getting him out of the practice of medicine," Goehrs told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal in Saturday's editions.

The 65-year-old Erdmann, who had been licensed since 1959, could not be reached Friday by The Associated Press.

Erdmann is accused of tampering with a government record and committing theft in his October 1991 autopsy of 14-year-old Jesse Land of Spur.

In July, State District Judge John McFall ruled Erdmann may have violated several Texas laws in Lubbock County. He referred the case to a grand jury and appointed the Texas attorney general's office as special prosecutor.

Erdmann first was reviewed last year when a second autopsy of Terri Trosper found that she had died of asphyxiation from being smothered. Erdmann had ruled that she died of natural causes after choking on her own vomit.

In February, he was indicted in Hockley County on two counts relating to the Dec. 23 autopsy of Craig Newman, 41.

The next month, Erdmann invoked his Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination more than 200 times at an exhumation hearing surrounding his autopsy of murder victim Hilton R. Merriman.

Allen is concerned about his children

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Mia Farrow has kept Woody Allen from their children for weeks and he is afraid she has turned them against him, a spokeswoman for the actor-director said Friday.

"But he has continued to pay child support, as he feels any father should," said spokeswoman Leslee Dart.

Allen's younger sister, Letty Aronson, said one of her brother's two adopted children, 14-year-old Moses, refuses to speak to him.

Miss Farrow's alleged refusal to let Allen see the children follows news he is dating one of her adopted daughters, that he called her an unfit mother and sued for custody of his three children, and that he was accused of sexually molesting his adopted daughter, 7-year-old Dylan, an accusation he has denied.

Last week, Allen, 56, sued Miss Farrow, 47, for custody of Moses and Dylan, as well as his biological son, 41/2-year-old Satchel. A custody hearing is scheduled Tuesday.

Moses, accompanied by the family nanny, said Thursday outside Miss Farrow's estate at Bridgewater, Conn., that he doesn't want to live with Allen.

He said Allen has torn their family apart with his romance with his adoptive sister, Soon-Yi Previn, and by the alleged abuse of Dylan, an accusation that Moses said he believes is true.

Allen first disclosed that Miss Farrow accused him of abusing the girl.

Dr. Gott by Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a hiatal hernia as well as a heart problem. I get out of breath just bending over or during minimal exercise. My doctor has no good answer for this since, unfortunately, the extreme dyspnea doesn't occur when I am sitting in his office.

DEAR READER: Your breathlessness (dyspnea) could be due either to your heart condition or to your hiatal hernia. You should return to your doctor to discover the cause of your symptoms. In my opinion, you need a chest X-ray and a stress test, a cardiogram taken while you exercise.

If your dyspnea is caused by the heart problem, you'll flunk your stress test. If you pass, the doctor will have to search for another cause, such as a lung condition. Hiatal hernia can occasionally cause breathlessness if the stomach becomes over-filled with air and presses upward on the diaphragm, inhibiting respiration. This often can be helped by using anti-gas compounds, which are available without prescription.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hiatal Hernia." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from a dropped utérus, for which I have seen two physicians. The first wants to do simple surgery to repair it, the second wants to perform a hysterectomy. Since I'm 65 and sexually inactive, I'm unsure which physician to turn to.

DEAR READER: As a general rule in medicine, do the simplest thing first. In your case, this may mean absolutely nothing.

The uterus is normally suspended by tissue within the abdominal cavity. As a woman ages — especially if she has had children — the uterus may tend to fall (by gravity) lower into the pelvis. This can cause a sensation of pressure and "pulling." If the uterus "drops" (prolapses) far enough out of position, intercourse may be difficult, even painful. In advanced cases of mal-position, the uterus will actually protrude from the vagina.

Ordinarily, hysterectomy is preferred for moderate/severe cases of uterine prolapse; mild cases can be ignored, treated with a pessary (a plastic support inserted into the vagina) or simply repaired. To a large degree, treatment depends on the symptoms, which may be no more than urinary incontinence (because a prolapsed uterus interferes with bladder control).

If your prolapsed uterus doesn't bother you, ignore it. If you have symptoms, seek another opinion from a gynecologist. Remember, it's always best to avoid surgery if possible.

One splendid summer afternoon a few weeks ago, I was on my 10-speed bicycle about halfway through a 25-mile ride. For me, this distance is ideal; I can vary my speed to adjust the strenuousness of the work-out. This particular day, I felt great. I wasn't tired and I wheeled along in high gear over familiar roads.

Ahead of me, on a longish hill that is a standard part of my cycling course, I saw two figures on bicycles, slowly struggling up the incline.

I don't know about you other bikers, but when I'm riding and see company in front of me, I go a little nuts: I experience a primitive compulsion to pass these strangers. This bizarre desire has led to some amusing situations in the past, with which I won't bore you. Anyway, here were two bikers about a quarter mile up the hill, completely oblivious to the Middle-Aged Threat behind them.

I down-shifted, bent low over my handlebars and silently pursued.

I wondered why I was gaining on them so rapidly (I'm not THAT good), but as I got closer, I could see they were pretty heavily burdened with sleeping bags and other paraphernalia. I wore nothing but shorts, sneakers and a helmet. I was, I fancied, dressed for Speed.

Just before the crest of the hill, I passed them — as I had planned — quietly, without warning, pedaling about five gears higher than they. I really blew by them. They were surprised all right; we exchanged a couple of grunted greetings and I left them in the dust, before they reached the summit.

A couple of miles beyond, I had to detour to see a friend. After a brief visit, I continued my trip along a three- or four-mile flat stretch. I was surprised to see my weary colleagues ahead of me again. What fun, I thought, to pass them a second time, since they obviously assumed I'd be way ahead of them by now.

This time I altered my strategy: I'd sneak up and shadow the rear rider. This worked perfectly and, finally, on a slight rise in the road, I pulled out to pass him and shifted gears. The click, which was accentuated in the traffic-free sultry afternoon, made him jump and glance over his shoulder. I shot by both riders but stopped a hundred yards or so up the road to wait for them. Bikers are a curious, if not sociable, lot.

They were a man and a woman about my age. "Where are you guys from?" I asked. "Oh, we're from Colorado," the man replied with a smile, "We're biking cross-country."

I felt like a complete jerk, my balloon deflated. Here I was playing silly games with real bikers, who rode a minimum of 100 miles a day, camped out at night, ate out of cans, carried their belongings with them, braved the worst weather, would kill for a shower, and — quite understandably — felt no need to climb hills using anything more than the lowest gear.

There's a moral here about hubris that I won't belabor; also, the tortoise and the hare and a few other parallels come to mind, one of which relates to doctors' attitudes.

I believe that many physicians embrace a rather short-sighted view of medical economics: to pass everything on the road. The young specialist who charges $75 for a 10-minute office visit is not concerned about the long-term consequences of his greed. He wants the big bucks now, forget tomorrow. Other, more responsible physicians, however, have a more balanced perspective: They are more oriented to patients' needs, try to provide service to the community, regard themselves as part of a larger medical ecosystem (in which all of us interact to one degree or another), and are satisfied not making a financial killing. They don't feel they have to pass everyone on the hill. Guess which type of doctor is a credit to his profession? More attention to future consequences might have helped us avoid some of the responsibility for the mess we're in today from managed health care, fee-capping and unwelcomed government intervention.

Enough of these bicycling analogies. I'm glad I don't practice medicine the way I ride a bicycle. Nonetheless, I'm going to stop passing on hills; I'll respect the long-distance rider. I wonder if my behind is ready for a 100-mile ride.

Identity crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Bono, the lead singer of U2, says it doesn't bother him that the Irish band has an identity crisis.

"One of the hardest things about being in U2 was not belonging to a tradition," Bono, 31, says in the September issue of Details magazine. "In the past, we've gone looking for a tradition to fit into."

He said members of the group feel close to soul, rock 'n' roll and folk music.

"But ultimately, the U2 reference points have never made sense. Now, we don't try to fit anymore. We don't even consider ourselves to be a rock 'n' roll band at all," he said.

Firm which makes Yeltsin's limousines will go private

MOSCOW (AP) — Employees of the most prestigious automobile factory in the former Soviet Union decided Friday to privatize their plant, taking advantage of President Boris Yeltsin's national voucher program.

The workers' collective of the state-owned Likhachev Auto Works decided to turn the factory into a stockholders company, with the state to retain 49 percent of the stock and 51 percent to be sold to investors, possibly including foreigners.

Known by the Russian initials ZIL, the factory is one of the main car makers in the former Soviet Union and produces the huge, black limousines used by generations of Russian leaders, including Yeltsin and former Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

In a TV address on the first anniversary of the failed Communist coup, Yeltsin announced Wednesday that on Oct. 1 each Russian man, woman and child will receive a "privatization voucher" for 10,000 rubles, or about $62. They will be able to sell the vouchers, or use them to purchase stock in newly-private companies.

Financial Focus

More and more individuals are retiring earlier today through forced retirement or individual choice. When this occurs, the new retiree who has participated in a qualified retirement plan typically has the option to choose a guaranteed monthly income in the form of an annuity or a lump-sum distribution of the entire retirement account balance. What to do?

Because of the various tax consequences associated with retirement distributions, anyone facing retirement should consult a qualified tax professional before committing to either choice. Once a selection is made, it is generally irreversible.

Annuity distributions appeal to some retirees because of the guaranteed income. Lump-sum distributions, however, are probably the more popular option.

A lump-sum distribution is the payment of the entire balance of your retirement account in a single calendar year. Once you receive the distribution, you may either keep the money and do nothing (in which case taxes are due on the entire amount) or defer taxes by rolling part or all of the proceeds into an Individual Retirement Account (IRA). The rollover must take place within 60 days of the date the distribution is received.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1993, lump-sum distributions will be transferable directly to an IRA rather than the recipient having to take receipt of the distribution. In addition, employees who wish to take receipt of their lump sum as opposed to directly transferring it to another IRA qualified plan, must have at least five years of participation in the plan to do so. Finally, lump-sum distributions received after Jan. 1, 1993, will be assessed a 20 percent withholding tax if the distribution is paid directly to the individual. We will address these distribution changes in more detail after the first of the year.

Because taxes are eventually due on retirement funds as money is withdrawn, some retirees elect to pay the taxes all at once and be done with it. There is possible special tax treatment associated with this choice, but the distribution must satisfy several criteria. Before making any decision to pay all taxes up front, talk to a knowledgeable tax professional and understand the consequences and your options.

Rollovers generally offer the most options. The entire distribution does not have to be rolled over. Any portion received, however, is taxed as ordinary income plus any applicable penalties and is not eligible for any special tax treatment.

Any amount, except employees' after-tax contributions can be rolled over into an approved IRA. Rollovers are not subject to the $2,000 maximum annual deposit imposed on regular IRAs, and an individual of any age may roll lump-sum distributions into an IRA. Once deposited into an IRA, however, the funds become subject to its withdrawal guidelines.

Rollovers of lump-sum distributions into IRAs are simple but must be done carefully by someone who is familiar with IRS rollover regulations. In addition, given the changes that will go into effect in 1993, extra care should be taken. Penalties may be imposed for improper rollover of funds. Retirement funds receive tax-favored treatment as they build. The purpose of penalties is to ensure that these funds are protected to be used during retirement years.

If you are considering retirement within the near future, take time now to explore your qualified retirement plan distributon options. Don't let a hasty decision claim precious retirement dollars.

In first grid scrimmage...

Tigers outscore Ft. Stockton

STANTON — The Snyder Tigers scored twice while limiting Ft. Stockton to one TD in both teams' initial football scrimmage Friday night.

The Tigers hit paydirt on the fifth play of their first possession when senior tailback Ben Wilson burst through the Panther defense from 37 yards out.

Late in the scrimmage, Ft. Stockton QB Shawn Beeles found split end Shane Velasquez for an 18-yard score to knot the score at 1-all.

"It was disappointing that we gave up the touchdown on the slant route," said Tiger head coach David Baugh. "That shows that we may not be quite as quick afoot as we need to be. They executed it well and we didn't look too good right there.

"I think we've got a long way to go," said Baugh. "I saw some good things and some bad things. The main thing that bothered me was the amount of penalties we were getting. If we had been in a real ball game we'd have been in real long yardage situations a lot of the time. It would've been hard for us to overcome."

Unofficially, the Tigers were flagged nine times Friday, seven for holding.

Some of the good things Baugh saw included the running of starting backfield mates Wilson and fullback Wayland Harrison.

Besides Wilson's 37-yard scoring run, he had a 44-yarder in the Tigers opening 20-play possession.

Harrison, driving the ball up the middle, had several gains in the 5-8 yard range and had a 17-yard blast up the middle to set up Wilson's TD run, as well as a clutch 17-yard gain on third down that gave the Tigers a first down and positioned them for their final score.

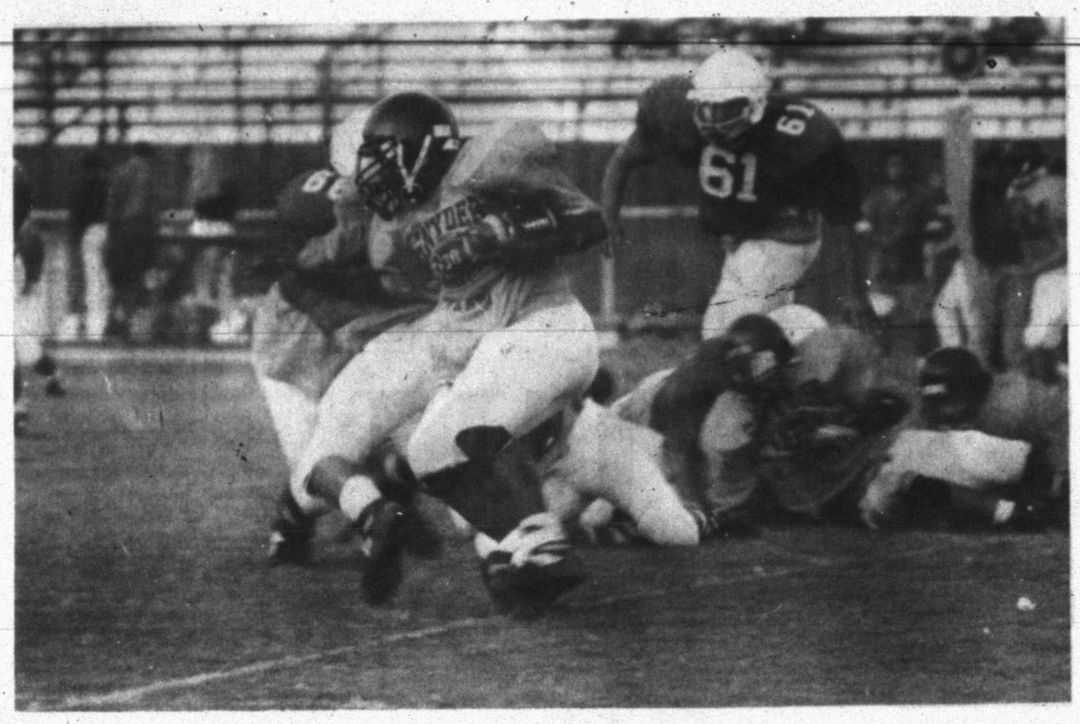

"We could have worked them more," Baugh said of his two top runners, "but they've got a long season ahead. We ran some other people, just ran a hodge-podge of stuff.

"We mainly wanted to look at some plays and some other stuff."

The Tigers' final score of the night came in the last offensive possession when quarterback Matt Cave found tight end Jason Greene in the end zone from 18 yards away.

In the JV scrimmage Friday, Snyder, led by defensive back Lee Idom's two interceptions, thumped Ft. Stockton, 4-0.

The Tigers will host Ballinger Friday in the preseason's final scrimmage before opening the season Sept. 4 against long-time rival Sweetwater in Tiger Stadium.

BIG GAIN — Snyder fullback Wayland Harrison breaks through the Ft. Stockton defense for a 17-yard gain in the Tigers' opening possession of Friday's controlled scrimmage in Stanton. Snyder outscored the Panthers 2-1, including TDs by tailback Ben Wilson and a scoring pass from Matt Cave to Jason Greene. (SDN Staff Photo)

'Dogs rip Hornets in practice contest

IRA — The Ira Bulldogs had a successful first outing, claiming a 5-2 scrimmage victory over Blackwell Friday in six-man football action.

Senior running back Toby Haynes scored first for the Bulldogs on a 70-yard pass from Mike Hughes.

Hughes also connected with end Ronal White for a 35-yard score. Hughes, a senior, also scored himself, diving over from three yards out.

Bryan Luna added a two-yard burst into the end zone and Philip Bridges caught a Cole Sterling toss for a 1-yard score.

Defensive standouts for Ira included Coy Henderson and Hughes, who each snagged an interception.

Senior center Wyatt Webster set up the short TDs with receptions of 60 and 50 yards.

The 'Dogs are idle next week and will begin the regular season Sept. 4 at Bulldog Stadium against Aspermont.

Permian is tabbed for Division II title

DALLAS (AP) — Almost every high school football coach is happy this time of year. Every snap is filled with hope and each player seems destined to be an NFL star.

Prognosticators look pretty good, too. They haven't missed a prediction in almost nine months.

So, following conversations with ever-hopeful coaches and hours spent peering into a crystal pigskin, here are the 1992 state champs:

Arlington Sam Houston in Class 5A's Division I, Odessa Permian in Class 5A's "small school" bracket, Austin LBJ in 4A, Lubbock Dunbar in 3A, Grapeland in 2A and Hico in A.

The Permian Panthers are unbeatable — again.

They will slide right through 5A's Division II despite an Average Daily Membership of almost 3,100 because district-rival San Angelo Central has about 145 more student bodies.

Because of the UIL's wacky rules, the school with the larger ADM from each district goes into Division I.

That's why we should again see a "small school" champ, Permian, with more students than predicted "big school" winner Arlington Sam Houston (ADM: 2,414).

Permian may not yet have a starting quarterback, but it's not like this team needs Joe Montana.

Practically anyone can hand the ball off to blossoming star John Williams, then let the Panthers' defense shut down opponents — which it will.

Mojo madness kicks in gear early, with Permian traveling to Temple in week two for a matchup of No. 1 and No. 3 teams in The Associated Press' preseason poll.

If Permian clears that hurdle, don't be surprised to see back-to-back no-loss seasons.

Sportscaster Jim Kaat set team records for pitching victories, 189, and losses, 152, with the Minnesota Twins.

Bono leads 49ers to 20-14 win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Steve Young doesn't make a whole lot of noise about being upstaged again by Steve Bono.

After all, it is the exhibition season, and Young is more concerned about the San Francisco 49ers' regular-season opener on the road against the New York Giants on Sept. 6.

"You kind of earn your stripes around here," Young said after Bono rallied the 49ers to a 20-14 win over the San Diego Chargers on Friday night. "You get your opportunities, then you're in the set. I feel as long as we're efficient and moving the ball, then we'll just get ready for the Giants."

Joe Montana's status is uncertain for the regular-season opener. Coach George Seifert said he doesn't feel pressure to name a starter immediately. Young is ahead of Bono on the depth chart, and played the first half against San Diego.

"I think we have a direction, but I'm not going to get into it now," Seifert said.

Seifert said Bono did a good job.

Riggins earns CB spot at Navy

Snyder High School graduate Michael Riggins appears to have earned a starting position on the Naval Academy football team after a successful spring training.

According to coaches' comments in the Navy Media Guide, Riggins "Appears to be the starter at right corner after a year of seeing limited playing time.

"Riggins has exceptional quickness and coaches consider him as having the best feet on the team. He is an excellent tackler and an excellent pass defender.

"(Riggins) displayed increasing confidence during the spring drills," the guide stated.

The 1989 SHS grad was credited with six tackles last season with the Midshipmen. He played in all 11 games and was one of only five Plebes to earn a varsity letter.

Riggins, 21, is the grandson of Leslie and Maxine Riggins of Snyder.

Lady Tigers make consolation semis

MONAHANS — The Snyder Lady Tigers split with Midland Lee, beat Pecos and fell to Alpine in the first day of competition Friday at the 19th Annual Monahans Volleyball Tournament.

The SHS crew beat Midland Lee 15-14 in the opener of their two-game pool-play match before the Lady Rebels bounced back for a 15-4 win in the second game.

Snyder then met District 3-4A power Pecos, and handed the Lady Eagles a pair of losses, 15-11 and 15-9.

Alpine scored 15-9 and 15-5 wins over the Lady Tigers in the nightcap Friday, sending Snyder into Saturday's consolation bracket tournament against Sweetwater.

The Snyder-Sweetwater contest winner was to have faced the Crane-Pecos victor in the consolation semifinals Saturday for a berth in the consolation championship.

Indians beat Texas, 8-6...

Ryan knocked out by Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Nolan Ryan, in his worst losing streak in four years, couldn't quite fathom why 35,101 people would stand to applaud his latest mediocre outing.

"You know, that's special, when the fans give you that kind of recognition, mainly after the performance I had," Ryan said Friday night after he lost his fourth consecutive decision as the Cleveland Indians beat the Texas Rangers 8-6.

Ryan (5-7) was knocked from the game by Cleveland's four-run fifth inning, the second straight contest in which he failed to make it through the fifth.

He's 0-4 with a 6.11 ERA in five August starts, his worst losing streak since he lost five straight decisions in 1988.

Still, Cleveland fans, suspecting this may have been the 45-year-old Ryan's last appearance in their city, wouldn't let him go to the showers until he stepped back onto the field and waved his cap.

"When Nolan came off the field in that inning, I felt like standing up and clapping with everybody else," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said. "He carries himself with class and he's a good man, besides having a lot of talent. It's kind of nice to hold your own and beat the best."

Ryan yielded seven runs, six of them earned, in 4 1-3 innings, striking out only Junior Ortiz. It was his lowest strikeout total in an appearance longer than two innings since 1985.

"I just didn't have very good command tonight," Ryan said. "My last two games, I haven't been throwing strikes. I've been behind hitters and haven't made good pitches, and I've had bad results."

Cleveland won its fourth straight while sending Texas to its sixth loss in seven games. Winner Dennis Cook (5-5) allowed four runs and five hits in six innings, and Steve Olin got four outs for his 22nd save.

Cook grew up in Texas and, like Hargrove, would have liked to join the ovation for Ryan.

"He's probably more popular in Texas than the governor," Cook said. "I'm sure he wasn't feeling good about his outing, and he still took the time to come out and tip his cap. That's just the kind of person he is, the perfect professional."

Ruben Sierra gave Ryan a 2-0 lead in the first with his 13th home run, but Albert Belle answered with a three-run homer in the bottom half, his 24th.

"It's never comfortable to be down two runs to Nolan Ryan," Hargrove said. "Yeah, that was a huge home run for us."

Astros 10-14 on road trip...

Houston dumps Phillies, 6-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — No matter what happens in the final two games of Houston's 28-day road trip, manager Art Howe is feeling very good about his team.

The Astros defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 Friday night behind the strong pitching of Brian Williams and are 10-14 on the 26-game journey necessitated by the Republican National Convention in the Astrodome.

"We've had our work cut out for us and I'm really happy to get in double figures," Howe said. "They keep going out there and playing very hard and that's all I can ask. I'm very proud of the way they've played."

The Phillies led 1-0 in the third inning on a sacrifice fly by John Kruk, but then Williams shut down the Phillies on three hits before leaving after the seventh inning. He matched his career high with seven strikeouts and walked three.

"I had a real good curve ball and I was keeping it down," said the rookie right-hander, who improved to 5-4.

"Sometimes you have it and sometimes you don't, but I felt real good tonight. Everything was clicking for me."

Phillies starter Andy Ashby had a no-hitter with two outs in the fifth before the Astros scored four runs. Craig Biggio had a two-run triple and Louis Gonzalez added a two-run single later in the inning.

Ashby was mad at himself for giving up the runs after there were two outs.

"What bothers me the most is that with two outs you have to find a way to get out of the inning and I didn't. I hung a curve ball to Biggio. It was my mistake and it came back to haunt me."

Houston added two more runs in the eighth off Cliff Brantley on a two-run single by Ed Taubensee.

Phillies manager Jim Fregosi was not happy with either Ashby or his team.

"Ashby looked like he ran out of gas," Fregosi said of the right-hander who was recently recalled after a rehab assignment resulting from a broken thumb.

"He's still not in shape yet and he didn't look too good," Fregosi said. "I don't think we played very well in any aspect of the game."

win, lose & DREW

Crampton takes lead at GTE

KENMORE, Wash. (AP) — Even with the lead at the GTE Northwest Classic, albeit a small one, Bruce Crampton isn't predicting anything positive.

And that's despite a birdie-birdie-eagle finish Friday which gave him a 6-under 66 and a one-stroke lead over Arnold Palmer, Miller Barber and Larry Laoretti.

"Golf is such a difficult way to make a living that you're never confident," said Crampton, who has won 19 tournaments on the PGA Senior Tour, including the GTE Northwest Classic in 1986 and 1988. "I've found it's better to let things happen."

And things certainly seem to happen for Crampton at this event. Besides the two victories, he was runner-up in 1990 and has finished in the top 10 in all six previous tournaments at the 6,455-yard Inglewood Country Club.

Palmer was at 67, helped by his 16th career hole-in-one, along with Barber and U.S. Senior Open champ Laoretti.

Tied at 68 were Don Bies, Ken Still, Rocky Thompson and John Joseph, who left his Millbrae, Calif., club job and qualified Monday for his first Senior Tour appearance.

Defending champion Mike Hill was in a 10-way tie at 69 with Bert Yancey, Dick Hendrickson, Al Geiberger, Butch Baird, J.C. Snead, Bruce Devlin, Simon Hobday, J.C. Goosie and Dick Goetz.

George Archer, winner of two of the last three tournaments on the Senior Tour and the GTE Northwest champion two years ago, was at 1-over 73.

Crampton began developing his lead with a birdie on the par-3 16th, where he hit a 2-iron with three feet of the cup. He sank a 20-foot putt to birdie the 17th.

On the 495-yard, par-5 18th hole, Crampton made a scrambling eagle.

After bouncing his drive off a cart path, he hit a 3-iron from between two trees to 10 feet of the hole and sank the putt. He birdied the second hole with an 18-foot putt and the third with an 11-footer.

Crampton's only bogey came on the par-5 fifth hole, where he three-putted after missing the green with his second shot.

He made birdie on the par-3 12th hole after hitting a 5-iron to three feet of the cup.

Palmer sank the 11th ace on the Senior Tour this year with a 3-iron on the 193-yard eighth hole. It came after Palmer made bogey on the seventh hole.

After another bogey on the 14th, Palmer birdied three of the last four holes.

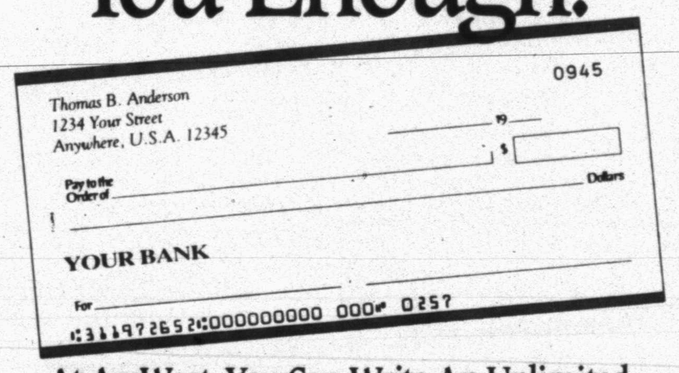

"I haven't won in four years and really haven't played very well," said Palmer, playing his first Senior Tour event in a month. "It's been the occasional good round."

Barber, 61, made birdies on four of the last five holes, narrowly missing two eagles. He hit to 18 inches on the 14th with a 6-iron and to 18 inches on the 17th with an 8-iron.

There will be no cut for the 78-man field. The final round will be played Sunday, with first place in the $450,000 event worth $60,000.

Federal court rules against new boundaries for general election

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal three-judge panel Friday rejected Texas officials' plan to use different state Senate district boundaries for the November general election than the March primaries.

It was a victory for Republicans, who have expected to gain new Senate strength under the court-ordered redistricting map used in March. Democratic leaders have supported using different boundaries, which were drawn by the Legislature.

"Shame on the Democrats for their attempt to pervert the democratic process and abuse their state offices for selfish, partisan purposes," said state GOP Chairman Fred Meyer.

But the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, which said Hispanics would gain representation under the Legislature's redistricting plan, reacted angrily to the ruling.

"Let's talk about disgusting partisan ploys! Let's talk about fairness to voters! Let's talk about the minority community once again being robbed of their right to vote because the white boys still don't have enough power!" MALDEF said in a statement.

State Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle said his party would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales and Secretary of State John Hannah, the state's chief elections officer, said they were disappointed in the ruling. Both are Democrats.

Morales said his office would meet with state leaders over the weekend and decide a course of action by Monday.

The three-judge panel called "unlawful" Hannah's order that the Legislature's Senate map be used in November.

The map used in Texas' primaries was drawn by U.S. District Judge James Nowlin of Austin, in a lawsuit pushed by Republicans. Nowlin has since stepped down from the redistricting case, after being reprimanded by federal judges who said he violated judicial rules by getting secret help from a Republican lawmaker.

Assistant Attorney General Renea Hicks has contended the court-ordered map is "tainted."

The federal panel said Hannah's order may not be implemented because his directive has not been cleared under the Voting Rights Act. The panel includes Judges Will Garwood, Walter Smith Jr. and Harry Hudspeth, who replaced Nowlin.

Hannah's order is unlawful because it conflicts with the previous court orders setting out district lines for 1992, the judges said.

Airlift plans in progress for Somalia

MOMBASA, Kenya (AP) — An American cargo plane loaded with split peas left Mombasa Saturday, pushing forward the U.S. airlift of tons of food to combat the deadly famine in Somalia.

A third flight, by a giant C-141 Starlifter, was planned for later in the day from the headquarters of "Operation Provide Relief" in Mombasa, an Indian Ocean port city in southern Kenya.

The second Hercules followed the path of Friday's initial C-130 flight to the northeastern Kenya town of Wajir with about 10 tons of split peas for refugees from Somalia and equally hard-hit Kenyans.

The Starlifter, one of the world's largest planes with almost twice the capacity of the Hercules, also was destined for Wajir, an administrative center for Kenya's eastern border region.

Regional drought has left more than 2 million people in imminent danger of starvation in Kenya and neighboring Somalia.

At 1:59 a.m., officers responded to a report of an assault in the 4400 block of Avenue U. Police arrested two men, ages 17 and 18, for public intoxication. Also submitted was an offense report for Class C assault.

Police had made an earlier arrest in the 4400 block of Avenue U on Friday. At 5 p.m., officers took a 19-year-old man into custody on a warrant for reckless conduct. At 6:03 p.m., they arrested a 20-year-old male at the Sheriff's Office on the same charges.

Friday's other arrests were both for public intoxication. Police arrested an 18-year-old man at 8:35 p.m. in the 4200 block of Avenue V and a 48-year-old man at 9:32 p.m. in the 4800 block of Houston Parkway.

At 10:18 a.m. Friday, Kathy Sherrod reported the theft of a shotgun and a watch from 2808 35th St. A report for Class A theft was filed.

Police took a complaint for Class B theft at 2:09 p.m. after city employee Bobby Kenner reported the theft of 15 traffic cones from 2800 42nd St.

At 8:19 a.m. Friday, Mary Ann Jalamos came to the police department to complain that someone had damaged the front windshield of her 1991 Nissan pickup. A report for Class A criminal mischief was filed.

Baghdad, Turkey nix current allied plans

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq's prime minister Saturday condemned allied plans to ban Iraqi aircraft from southern Iraq and said they were part of a plot to divide the country, the official Iraqi News Agency reported.

Turkey, too, condemned the Western plans and said it was committed to Iraq's territorial integrity. Iranian newspapers also voiced concern.

Iraqi Prime Minister Mohammed Hamza al-Zubaidi said Iraqis would defend their nation.

"Iraq firmly rejects any criminal act schemed by the United States, Britain and France," Zubaidi was quoted as saying at a special meeting of the Cabinet.

He said Western countries, "in coordination with the Iranian regime, are aiming at Iraq's national unity and want to bring back the English and American colonialists' domination on Iraq's wealth," according to the news agency, monitored in Nicosia.

The allies have proposed a "no-fly" zone to prevent Iraqi aircraft from attacking Shiite Muslims rebels in the southern marshlands. A similar zone was established in northern Iraq last year to protect Kurds, and fears have been expressed that the nation could effectively be partitioned into three.

INA said Baghdad newspapers Saturday described the allied plans as a Jewish plot to split the Arab world.

Budget

Both McMullan and Burleson voiced objections to raising the salaries. Trustees took no action, however, other than to ask Superintendent Dalton Moseley to study salaries and bring a recommendation to the board in the spring.

The proposed 1992-93 budget is based on a local tax rate of 43.3 cents per $100 valuation, and is below the effective rate of 50.591 cents. Taxable valuations for 1992-93 have been certified as $642,512,105. If the tax rate of 43.3 cents is approved, local taxes will make up $2,698,615 of the budget.

The first order of business Monday will be an executive session to discuss the assistant superintendent's salary.

Immediately following will be a public hearing on the budget, amendments to the 1991-92 budget, and adoption of the 1992-93 budget. Also on the agenda is a request to seek bids for two 71-passenger school buses.

Jury called for Monday

Navajos recall WWII code work

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — When Japan bombed Pearl Harbor, Harold Foster knew little of what lay beyond the desert sands and redrock country of the Navajo Reservation.

But he and hundreds of other Navajos answered the call to arms as Marine Corps "code-talkers," using an intricate code crafted from the Navajo tongue to baffle Japanese intelligence during World War II.

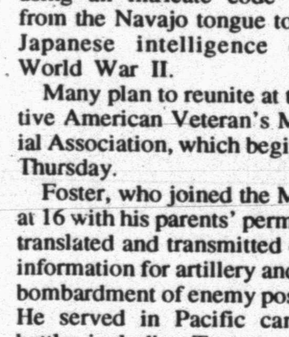

Many plan to reunite at the Native American Veteran's Memorial Association, which begins here Thursday.

Foster, who joined the Marines at 16 with his parents' permission, translated and transmitted critical information for artillery and aerial bombardment of enemy positions. He served in Pacific campaign battles including Tarawa and Iwo Jima.

The code was invented early in the war, after the Japanese had broken several other U.S. codes. Marine officials asked Navajo servicemen to invent a code based on their language.

There are no words in Navajo for modern armaments, so the code-talkers substituted words for plants and animals. They used the Navajo word for frog, "ch'al," for amphibious operations or equipment. Potatoes became grenades, eggs were bombs and America, "nihima" — literally, "our mother."

Last active-duty basic training class graduates

FORT DIX, N.J. (AP) — Veterans from as far back as World War I watched as the last class of active-duty soldiers graduated from basic training at Fort Dix, where more than 3 million soldiers have trained over 75 years.

"It's like they took a part of me with them," said retired drill Sgt. Joe Tamayo, 63, of Mount Holly, who trained here in 1964. "They're making a big mistake."

About 2,500 people, including veterans who trained at Fort Dix, attended the hour-long graduation exercise Friday. A place in history gave added significance to graduation for the recruits.

"It just motivated us more knowing we're the last ones," said Pfc. Orest Luciw, 22, of Norwood, Mass. "We wanted to be the best class."

The central New Jersey base goes on semi-active service Oct. 1 because of Pentagon budget cuts. Training at the sprawling 31,000-acre base will be limited to reserves and National Guard units.

Herman Blank, who trained at Fort Dix for World War I, said he hopes the end of training here means peace among all nations.

"I don't believe in war," said Blank, 96, of Little Egg Harbor. "We should have some way of settling our differences without killing each other."

Legislators accuse border authority of lacking progress

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Members of an interim legislative committee said New Mexico's Border Authority lacks long-term goals for developing the international border with Mexico.

And without more specific examples of the Border Authority's work, the Legislative Border Development Committee may have to replace members of the authority, Rep. G.X. McSherry said Friday.

"We have to have some progress," said McSherry, D-Deming. "If we don't deliver something concrete back to the Legislature, which is not that far away, we can just as well kiss this off."

Victor Contreras, the executive director of the authority, presented a report to the committee saying the authority needs more than $100,000.

"I'm not soliciting for more funds," Contreras said. "This is not a pitch. It's strictly for information."

But legislators responded with questions about where the authority is going and what it has accomplished. Contreras said he has been busy making contacts, but legislators said they want concrete information on actual projects the authority is undertaking.

Created in April 1991, the seven-member Border Authority board can issue bonds to help build roads, install sewer and water systems and develop the international border to attract industry.

But members of the Border Authority said the group has been paralyzed for much of last year without a director or a budget. There have been numerous resignations, members said.

In July, the board received $150,000, which the Legislature approved in January. The authority hired Contreras in June.

Many committee members criticized the board for not holding a meeting since Contreras took over.

Journey to Eternity (17)

THE LIFE OF JESUS

By Homer Anderson

"For today in the city of David there has been born for you a Savior, who is Christ the Lord" (Luke 2:11).

The birth and life of Jesus were prophesied all through the Old Testament. The one magnificent thought to which the Hebrew people clung through the centuries of subjugation, and sometimes captivity, was the promise of God to send the Messiah. We are shocked today to learn that He was not accepted as the Christ by the majority of His own people. Yet history shows us that, through the long centuries, the Hebrew people added their own speculations to the facts of God's revelation about the coming of the Christ. Because they added to the Bible with extensive writings of their own, which they came to regard equally with scripture, they expected something entirely different than God had promised. They expected a temporal ruler of David's capability, one who would throw off the Roman yoke and make Palestine a world power again. Obviously, this was not God's plan. Mistakenly, many are still looking for that today. Had they been satisfied to leave the Biblical record unchanged, their reception of Jesus might have been entirely different. Again, our religious world needs to learn to reverence God's word as our sole religious authority.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

1992 Universal Press Syndicate

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are second-time-arounders. I have never seen such stability and tranquility in a marriage.

There is only one problem: I am bored stiff! When we dated, he took me out to dinner and to movies, and we had a great time, but now all he thinks of is work.

I carry his dinner to his office so he can work straight through. He eats in five minutes, thanks me, and goes back to work. When he comes home it's bedtime, and he is too tired for anything but sleep.

He works all weekend. We never go out for dinner or to a movie anymore. He says it's too expensive, which is ridiculous because we can certainly afford it.

His health is fine. (He had the company doctor examine him; that way he didn't have to pay the bill.)

I am young and pretty and full of life, but I am lonely. He says if I want to see a movie I should go without him, but it's no fun going alone.

I can just see myself 10 years from now getting a divorce. Can you help me?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Fill in that communication gap with some straight talk. He's using his "work" as an excuse to isolate himself. Insist on counseling. And if he ducks that, you go alone. Your frustration could lead to something worse than boredom.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor of mine loves to sew, and she has made some lovely things. She made a beautiful dress and bonnet for my daughter's fourth birthday, so I took the child to a photography studio and had a picture taken of her in that outfit. Then I bought a frame for it and presented it to my neighbor to show my appreciation.

She seemed pleased and placed the picture on her piano. A few months later, I noticed that she had placed a picture of her dog in that frame, and my daughter's picture was nowhere to be seen. I finally told her that as long as she wasn't displaying my daughter's picture, I'd like to have it back. She said, "Certainly." Then she got my daughter's picture out of a drawer and handed it to me.

I said, "How about the frame?" She replied, "Oh, you can buy another one for 75 cents."

Abby, I was so hurt. That frame cost me $1.50. I didn't want to start an argument with her, so I just kept my mouth shut.

What would you have done?

HURT

DEAR HURT: I'd have kept my mouth shut.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FEBRUARY BRIDE": A good marriage isn't a matter of luck. It's the result of a conscious and constant effort. It's giving and forgiving, knowing when to talk and when to keep quiet. All marriages are beautiful. It's the living together afterward that's difficult.

This one's for everybody, from teens to seniors! Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.)

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a very embarrassing problem. I am a 20-year-old college junior at a large university. For a while I dated what seemed to be a nice guy I'll call Bill. He attends the same "U," and is an art major.

Bill took some harmless photographs of me on the beach in my two-piece bathing suit last summer. After that, I sort of broke off with Bill and started seeing another fellow.

I recently learned through friends that Bill is painting a nude portrait of me, using as a model the pictures he took of me in the bathing suit. Of course, he's using his imagination, but I don't like the idea. He's planning to use this "nude" portrait of me in an art exhibit. I do have a great body, but I don't want half the world seeing me naked, in addition to which I don't want people to think that I am the kind of girl who would pose for a picture like that. It could destroy my reputation.

Is there anything I can do to stop him?

NO NUDE MODEL

DEAR NO NUDE: Since it's your "great body" Bill wants to immortalize on canvas, ask him to please use somebody else's face. If he refuses, ask him to please leave the suit on, or you will see a lawyer about bringing another kind of "suit" into the picture.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Here is the situation: A man in his middle 60s and a woman in her early 60s have recently married. She was the town's most attractive widow for many years. The man's wife had been dead exactly seven months to the day he remarried.

I always thought that out of respect to the dear departed mate, it was customary to wait a full year before remarrying. I would appreciate your opinion.

KNOWS BOTH

DEAR KNOWS: How one treats his mate when he (or she) is living is the only meaningful way in which one can show "respect." And waiting one year (or 10) isn't going to make one bit of difference. Time is precious. And if two people feel they can find happiness together, who am I to count the days since their dear ones have departed? (And who are you?)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I know a man who took his wife and recently widowed sister-in-law to a baseball game. No sooner had the three of them sat down in their reserved seats when in came a gentleman and his young son, and sat right beside them. The man who had brought the two ladies happened to know the late entry, so he introduced him to the women.

The gentleman, who happened to be a widower, had the seat right next to the widowed sister-in-law. The two of them hit it off very well. Six months later they were making wedding plans!

Not until then did the widow learn that her brother-in-law had bought all five tickets, and seated her right next to his friend.

Wouldn't you say this was a lot better than trying to arrange a blind date?

IT HAPPENED IN HOUSTON

DEAR HAPPENED: Much! Had the brother-in-law asked his friend if he wanted to meet a nice widow, the friend would probably have said, "No thanks. I know enough widows."

And if he had asked his sister-in-law if she wanted to go out with a nice gentleman, she probably would have asked, "How tall is he?"

Fiesta Texas' Rattler has sent a few people to hospital

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — As many as 35 people have been injured on or near Fiesta Texas' massive wooden roller coaster, the Rattler, since the park opened last spring. But officials insist the ride is safe.

At least 30 people in the area of the marquee attraction have been sent by ambulance to hospitals, park officials have told the San Antonio Light.

The disclosure came after an attorney took out a newspaper advertisement seeking information about injuries that may have been suffered on the roller coaster.

Park officials say the Rattler — the tallest wooden roller coaster with the steepest slope, longest drop and fastest speed in the world — is safe.

Fiesta Texas spokesman David Scarlett said the number of reported injuries is very small considering more than 600,000 people have ridden the Rattler. Some people requiring medical transport from the Rattler area had injuries such as bee stings or stubbed toes, he said.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Have passport will travel. That just about sums up the past two years in the life of Snyder resident Hilma Botter.

This septuagenarian, who has lived here since 1985, has made two trips to the Cook Islands with a daughter who is the travel editor for the Denver Post. She said she has had so much fun and met so many interesting people, she wouldn't mind returning someday or taking a trip or cruise elsewhere. All she requires is a friend to share the journey with and she is ready to go.

In November of 1990, Hilma's daughter, Mary Ellen Botter, took her mother to Rarotonga, Cook Islands for a working vacation which turned out to the "one of the best eight days of my life," said Hilma.

After her father had died, Hilma said her daughter wanted to take her on a trip while they still could.

Hilma said her daughter's admonition before the first trip was, "don't lose your boarding pass or I'll strap you to a wing of the airplane."

Hilma managed the trip so well, including the 17½ hour flight, that two years later they returned to Rarotonga. This time Hilma made all of the arrangements herself.

"I think my daughter was testing me. She wanted to see if I could do it and I showed her that I could," Hilma said.

This past May, mother and daughter returned to Rarotonga and Hilma surprised her offspring with her boundless energy (she never suffers from jet lag) and fierce independence when it came to carrying her own luggage.

The second trip to the islands was extra special because they got to see some of the people they had met before, including a native girl named Mary Joel, a special favorite, who is one of 12 children.

They correspond and Hilma said she looks forward to receiving letters from the girl who was so taken with her (Hilma's) own daughter during that first visit that she wanted to come home with her.

Hilma was very impressed with the natives, whom she described as "wonderful, gentle people who never argue."

She said the Island people are very protective of their young women. This was evident during the 1990 trip when Hilma and her daughter attended the Miss South Pacific Beauty Pageant. All of the contestants had an older woman who accompanied them as a chaperone.

Everyone dressed casually on Rarotonga and the natives' clothes were very colorful. Everyone wore leis, including Hilma and her daughter. The islanders also referred to Hilma as "momma" because of her white hair, she said. "It was their way of showing respect," she added.

Hilma also observed that the natives were "very mannerly and did not expect anything from the tourists." As a matter of fact, she said, tipping was considered an insult.

She also said that the natives didn't seem to feed their dogs and cats — which always looked thin and hungry — but that tourists did. It's almost become a tradition for tourists to share their food and hearts with the island's animals.

BOOK OF MEMORIES — Hilma Botter of Snyder has a picture album filled with memories and momentoes of two trips to the Cook Islands which she took in 1990 and 1992 with one of her five daughters. She has nothing but warm regards for and warm memories of the natives who made her visits so enjoyable. Hilma, at 78, still enjoys traveling, sharing good times with family and friends and politics. (SDN Staff Photo)

Hilma and her daughter were no exception. Though neither own cats, they were adopted by several island pets, including a remarkable cat that knew how to get into their room. Since they kept some of their own food in the refrigerator in their room, they shared cream and other vittles with the cat and its companions.

During one visit, the cat made itself at home on Mary Ellen's chest while she was reading the newspaper. Hilma said she captured that moment on film so that her son-in-law could see it for himself.

Hilma said she and her daughter were treated especially well wherever they went. She made herself at home and enjoyed all the pampering and festivities which marked their stay.

The islanders all spoke English, having been taught by missionaries, she said. She enjoyed the peace and serenity of her visits to the island and the blue skies more than anything else.

Hotel officials arranged for guests to go spear fishing in the Pacific Atoll. "Actually, the boat's crew did the fishing, and afterwards we sailed to Aitutaki where the fish were barbecued and we all enjoyed a remarkable feast," she said.

Food was plentiful in Rarotonga. The hotel also sponsored island nights where long tables of food were set up smorgasbord style. Natives dancing in grass skirts followed the meal.

Hilma said the islanders she met while shopping were not the type to try and push you into buying anything. Stores also closed for the day at 4 p.m. and the restaurants began opening.

While in Rarotonga, they ate fresh baked bread, coffee and juice for breakfast, usually on the balcony of their hotel room.

Hilma said she felt "rich" because when she exchanged American money for island currency she seemed to have a lot. That's not exactly the way the rate of exchange worked, but she didn't let it spoil her fun.

If Hilma does return to Rarotonga some day, she said she wouldn't want to be there in early spring as that seems to be the greatest time for a hurricane threat. Though Rarotonga had been heavily hit by a cyclone prior to their arrival this year, Hilma said the islanders didn't let that stop them from showing all of the tourists a good time.

Hilma moved to Snyder from El Paso in 1985 in order to be with her sister, Elaine Bynum.

Hilma has five daughters, 11 grandsons, one granddaughter, 1 great-granddaughter, and three great-grandsons.

She has held a variety of jobs, including being a reporter for a Fort Worth newspaper. She said she became "quite a crusader" while there. Since her father had been the foreman of the newspaper's press, she decided she might like to work there.

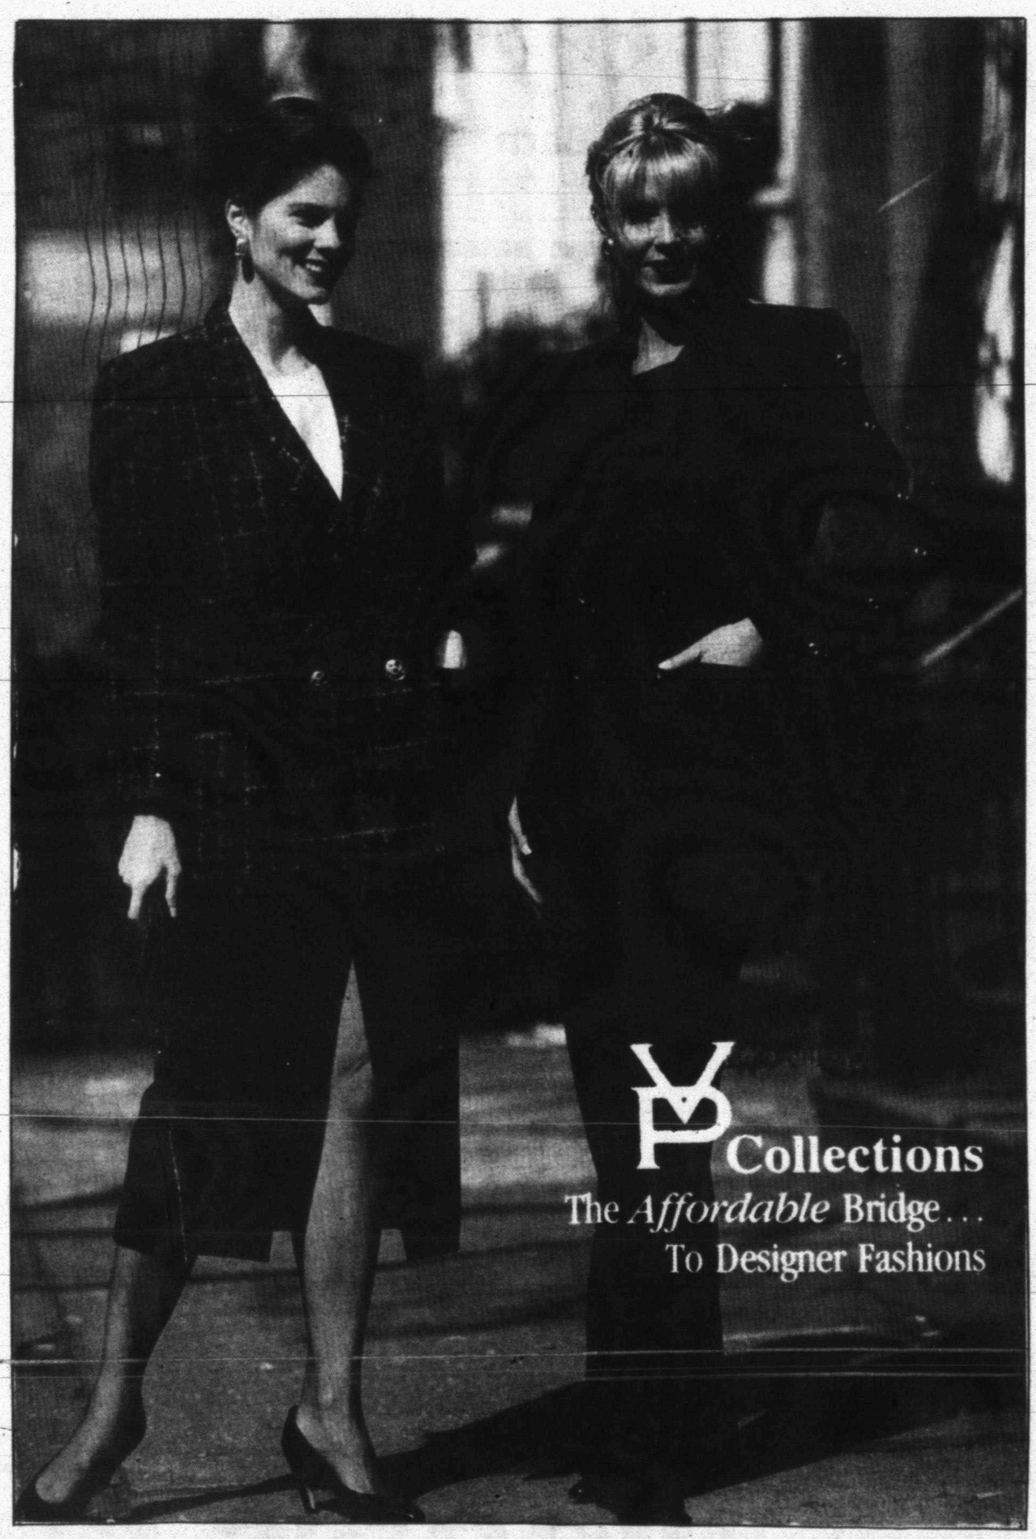

Hilma's dream was to be a nurse, but she didn't pursue that dream until she was 50 years old. She had married after attending Texas Christian University for a year and raised five daughters before she went to work as an aide at Southwest General Hospital in El Paso.

She later completed LVN train-

How high would he go?

By Phillip Alder

There was an amusing story in the June issue of New Zealand Bridge. North opened one heart. South immediately asked for aces and then bid seven no-trump. As he tabled his dummy, North said: "I'm sorry, partner. I think I've underbid my hand."

Today's deal was also in the magazine. After East opened with a weak no-trump and South made a penalty double, West's redouble announced a weak one-suited hand. Doubling two hearts would work well, probably netting 500, but North-South didn't have the methods to accomplish this.

Against three no-trump, West led the heart queen. When declarer ducked, West might have found the fatal club-nine switch, but he continued with his low heart to dummy's king. Declarer finessed the diamond queen and led the spade jack, trying to create a dummy entry, but East ducked. Now a spade went to the queen and ace.

Endplayed, East cashed the club ace, but South missed his chance. If South jettisons the king, East has to concede an entry to the dummy in either black suit. Declarer can pick up the diamond suit and collect nine tricks. But when South played the "automatic" club five, East exited with a low club to South's king. South could do no better than play the ace and another diamond — one down.

Miss Hall, Peterson united in San Angelo

SAN ANGELO — Allison Ann Hall became the bride of Chad Christopher Peterson in a double ring ceremony on Aug. 15 in the First Baptist Church in San Angelo. Paul Shero, minister of the Southgate Church of Chirst, officiated the 2 p.m. nuptial.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hall of San Angelo and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Peterson of Snyder.

Vows were exchanged before an arch and two seven-branch candelabra, decorated with greenery, yellow roses, daisies, white wisteria, German statice, caladiums and ferns. Two columns containing ferns flanked the altar area. Yellow and white bows, adorned with sprigs of ivy, marked the pews.

Soloist Jill Hopson accompanied herself as she performed "Savior Like A Shepherd Lead Us" and "I'll Walk By Your Side." Debbie Stahl was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white satin covered with reembroidered Alencon lace. Her bodice, heavily beaded and sequined, dropped to a full skirt and cathedral train. Her headpiece was a double strand of braided pearls which attached a fingertip length, two tiered veil.

She carried a bouquet of pale pink roses, interspersed with daisies and baby's breath, accented with English ivy and pearls.

Ashley Hall of San Angelo, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a garden floral dress featuring shades of yellow, pink and green and carried a bouquet of daisies and yellow roses. Her attendant, Stephen Gartman of San Angelo, wore a black tuxedo with his tie and cummerbund matching her dress.

Best man was Casey Peterson of Abilene, brother of the groom. Another brother, Clay Peterson of Abilene, was groomsman. Ushers were Joe Bartlett of George West, Tex, and Jon McDonald of Abilene, cousin of the groom.

Male attendants wore black tuxedos, yellow ties and cummerbunds. The groom wore a black tuxedo with a white tie and cummerbund.

Sister-in-law of the groom, Mrs. Clay (Janna) Peterson of Abilene, registered guests.

A reception was held in the church's parlor.

The bride's table featured the wedding cake on a large, round mirror surrounded with greenery and baby's breath. The bride's bouquet, candles and citrus punch completed the table covered with a white lace cloth.

MRS. CHAD PETERSON

The three tiered white cake, covered with the Queen Anne's lace pattern, was decorated with gumpaste spring flowers.

Michelle Cox of Stephenville and Tanya Hanneke of St. Louis, Mo., served at the bride's table.

The groom's round chocolate cake, also displayed on a mirror, was covered with fresh chocolate-dipped strawberries. Also served were mints of white chocolate-flavored yellow roses with green leaves. Serving at the table were Marci Menchaca of San Angelo.

Following the couple's honeymoon to Dallas and Arlington, Mr. and Mrs. Peterson are at home in San Angelo where the groom is employed by Executive Lawn and Landscaping Co. A 1984 graduate of Snyder High School, he graduated from Angelo State University with a bachelor of science degree in 1990.

Mrs. Peterson, a 1988 graduate of San Angelo Central High School is a candidate for graduation from ASU in 1993.

The peculiar banyan

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Banyan trees, which flourish in India, grow in a peculiar way.

Branches of the tree send roots down to the ground and these roots enlarge into trunks, which develop new branches. Often, a single banyan can resemble a small forest.

One banyan tree in India grew 350 large trunks and over 3,000 small ones. The tree gets its name from the Hindu word "Banian," which means trader.

Try vinegar mix on wood paneling

DEAR POLLY — A friend said you have a solution to wash wood paneling without destroying the finish. Could you pass that on to me? — MARIANNE

DEAR MARIANNE — This simple mixture will clean wood paneling and cabinets, leaving them with a clean soft glow. Mix together one tablespoon white vinegar, one tablespoon olive oil and one quart warm water. Dip a cloth in the warm solution, wring it out well, then use it to rub down the paneling or cabinets. Dry by wiping down with a soft, clean cloth.

If you want to apply extra protection to keep maintenance easier, apply a thin coat of paste wax to the clean, dry paneling and buff it well with a soft cloth.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Homemade Soaps and Cleaners," which also includes a heavy-duty wood wash when you need even more cleaning power, a homemade beeswax furniture polish, window cleaner, tub and sink stain remover, laundry prewashes and more. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I use paper towels in the microwave when I fix bacon. Depending on the brand of towel, sometimes the paper will stick to the bacon. To solve this problem, I spray the towel with a non-stick vegetable cooking spray. Now I can use any brand paper towel and the bacon never sticks. — JACKIE

DEAR POLLY — Someone asked about eating radish leaves. We dressed them with oil, salt and vinegar and a dash of pepper to eat as a salad. It was very good. — LAURIE

Polly will send you a Polly Dollar ($1) if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — I have cloudy well water. I find that if I boil a kettle full of water, then filter it through a coffee filter, I have the clearest water imaginable with no mineral settlement. I generally boil about two gallons of water per day and set it aside for cooking purposes. This boiled water is also excellent to use for canning liquid, when cloudy water and heavy mineral content can affect the appearance and flavor of the home-canned food. — PAULINE

DEAR POLLY — I use a very simple method to defat chicken and beef broth. Cool to lukewarm, then add enough ice cubes to cover the top of the broth surface. The fat in the broth will immediately cling to the ice cubes and then you can take out the ice and the fat to discard. This is very convenient when you wish to use the broth as soon as possible. — MRS. D.J.R.

DEAR POLLY — Do you have the information necessary to have junk mail stopped? — MRS. T.H.

DEAR MRS. T.H. — You can reduce your junk mail up to 75 percent by writing to the Mail Preference Service of the Direct Marketing Association. Request that your name be removed from the mailing lists sold from company to company.

The address is Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, 11 West 42nd St., P.O. Box 3861, New York, NY 10163-3861.

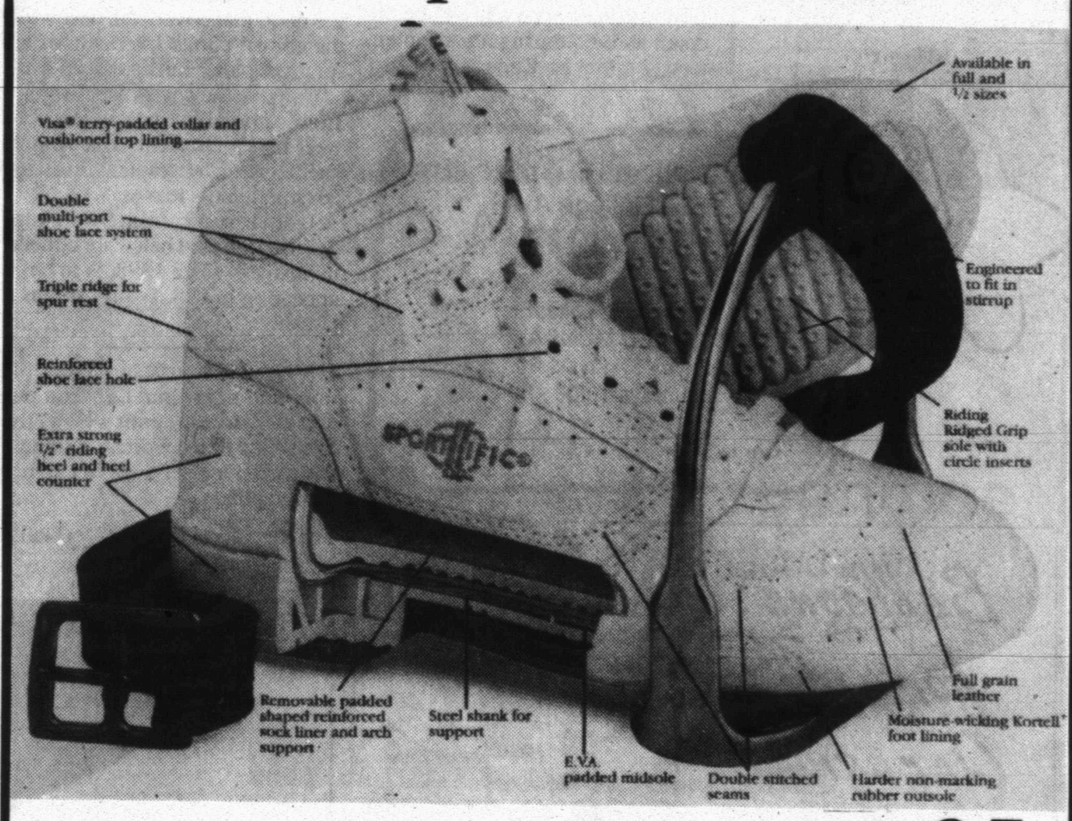

Don't forget that you can recycle a great deal of the junk mail you presently receive. Many recycling centers accept both white and colored paper for recycling along with envelopes that don't have plastic windows (you can remove the plastic yourself). Or reuse the envelopes yourself to mail things and use the blank backs of printed paper as scratch paper for lists, phone messages, kids' drawings, etc. Kids love to cut up catalogs to make scrapbooks, school projects or paper dolls.

With a little ingenuity, I'm sure you and our other readers can come up with more uses for junk mail, too! Reuse, recycle and save money! — POLLY

BE GENTLE WHEN DRYING YOUR HAIR

If possible let your hair air dry. If you need to blow dry, allow your hair to air dry as much as possible and then blow dry it. Minimize the heat damage by moving the dryer and use a lower heat setting. Never blow hair after it is dry, unless you like split ends and straw-like hair. Henna dye used since Cleopatra

NEW YORK (AP) — Henna, a reddish-brown dye extracted from the leaves of Lawsonia inermis, has been changing the color of fair maidens' hair at least since Cleopatra's time.

Now, for those who want more than red, Swarzkopf hair care products has introduced what it says is the first all-botanical, non-chemical hair colorings.

The powders mix with tap water to create semi-permanent hair tints in eight plant-based colors. Even the hood that covers the hair while the color "cooks" is made of natural tea paper rather than plastic.

Some of the colors are extracted from camomille, indigo, logwood tree bark, chestnut and walnut shells, skins of tropical fruit and lawson henna leaves.

Igora Botanic, from Swarzkopf, a German-based hair-care concern in business since 1898, is to begin appearing in U.S. beauty salons in October.

Miss McKay, Barnes wed in local church

Kathleen McKay of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Dallas Grand Barnes of Edmond, Okla., exchanged nuptial vows at 6:30 p.m. on June 27 at the First Christian Church. Dr. Tim Griffin, pastor, officiated the double ring ceremony.

Tom and Leatha Ritchie of Snyder are parents of the bride and Robert and Ann Barnes of Jamestown, N.Y., are parents of the groom.

White bows, votives and tapers decorated the pews and white roses and daisies, stefanotis and ivy adorned the altar.

Candlelighters were Laura and Emily Schulz of Kerrville, cousins of the bride.

Soloist and pianist was Floyd Garcia of Snyder and Lynn Bethel was organist. They performed "Till I Loved You" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride was escorted half way to the altar by Jerry McKay, her father, and the other half by Tom Ritchie, her stepfather. The bride wore a white satin gown. Her bodice, with a lace overlay, was embellished with pearls and sequins. It featured off-the-shoulder puffed sleeves, sweetheart neckline and V-waist. The full skirt and long train were hemmed in floral lace.

The bride's tulle veil was attached to a back piece of white sweetheart roses, leaves and sequins.

Maid of honor was Jennifer Wall of Fort Worth. Bridesmaids were Chryl Buschart of St. Louis, Mo., Renee Loria of Fort Worth, Susie Stapp of Bartlesville, Okla., and Ambur-Bell of Oklahoma City. They wore dresses of white watermark taffeta fashioned with small puff sleeves caressed with bows at the shoulder, V-waist, sweetheart neckline and the full skirt was tea length.

Attendants carried bouquets of daisies tied with tulle bows.

Best man was Keith Barnes of Arlington, the groom's brother.

Other male attendants were Richard McKay of Chicago, Ill., brother of the bride; Jimmy Romo of Arlington; Casey Rayburn of Fort Worth; and Steve Camber of Irving.

The groom wore a black tuxedo, white shirt, vest, and tie. Attendants wore black Seville coats with black pants, white shirts, and black ties.

Kate Odom of Snyder, the bride's cousin, registered guests.

Following the couple's nuptial, a reception was held at the Snyder Country Club. The bride's table was covered with a white cloth and centered with the bride's bouquet. It also featured an arrangement of white daisies and roses. Baskets of daisies flanked the table.

The white wedding cake was decorated with miniature candy pink, white and yellow roses, daisies, stefanotis and white candy ribbons. Serving were Mary Schulz of Kerrville and Anna Odom of Snyder, aunts of the bride.

The groom's table held a red velvet cake with white icing, decorated with his initials.

Following a honeymoon trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mex., the couple is at home in Edmond, Okla.

Mrs. Barnes, a graduate of Muskogee High School in Muskogee, earned her bachelor of science degree at Texas Christian University. She is manager of Pappagallo in Norman.

Barnes is a claims representative for Farmer's Insurance Group. He is a graduate of Trinity High School in Euless, Tex., and received his bachelor of business administration degree from the University of Texas at Arlington.

New tips for old job

AP Special Features

Some people are bothered by every speck of dust; others can ignore dust until it becomes a finger-drawing canvas for children.

However often you dust, here are some tips to make the job go faster:

— Your aim is to pick up dust, not move it around. Use wool or cotton fabrics such as old diapers, towels, undershirts or new cheesecloth. Avoid cloth that contains synthetic materials — such as old lingerie — which is less absorbent. You can also buy chemically treated cloth that attracts and holds dust.

— To make sure dust is picked up, spray dustcloths with silicone. Cheesecloth moistened with lemon oil also works well. If you use an oil- or wax-base polish, you can spray it onto your dustcloth. Use an oil-base polish for oiled furniture and a wax-base for waxed.

— Dustcloths should be clean. Otherwise, dirt particles may scratch furniture. Keep turning and folding the cloth so dust is trapped inside and you are always wiping with a clean surface.

— For light dusting, especially of small objects and hard-to-reach places, use a duster with a handle and a fluffy lambs wool head. This is better than a feather duster because wool attracts instead of just whisking it around.

— If you will be dusting for some time, coat your nostrils with petroleum jelly to prevent a scratchy throat.

— It's best to work from high places — tops of bookcases and frames — to lower ones — tables, chair rungs, baseboards. This prevents dust from settling on freshly cleaned surfaces.

— To dust corners, narrow spots behind radiators, louvers or under the refrigerator, dampen an old sock, slip it over one end of a yardstick, and secure it with a rubber band.

— Spray an old sock with silicone and wear it as a glove to dust tables and chairs.

— Use eyeglass-cleaning tissues to clean small picture frames.

— Don't bother dusting knick-knacks one by one. Soak them together in a dishpan with detergent. Then blow them dry with a hair dryer.

— Hard-to-dust things and places — pleated lampshades, carved furniture and crevices — are a snap if you blow the dust out with a hair dryer. An empty squeeze bottle used as an air pump also does the trick.

— Dust-mopping or vacuuming floors daily gets rid of the fine grit that grinds the shine off both waxed and no-wax floors. Dust mops pick up more dirt than brooms and are especially suited to the smooth, glossy finishes used on wood and no-wax floors. To make the work go faster, buy a commercial 18-inch dust mop at a janitorial supply store. An oiled dust mop, however, will ruin a waxed surface. Use only a dry dust mop or, if the room itself is very dry, one slightly dampened with water. (Just a few spritzes will do the trick.) If you can't shake the dustcloth or dust mop outdoors, shake it into a paper or plastic bag.

— Before washing a painted surface, dust it with a broom covered with a flannel cloth. Change the cloth when it gets dirty.

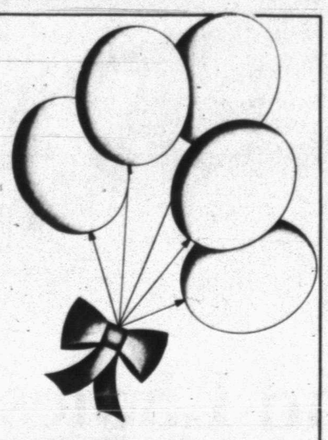

— When vacuuming trim, plasterwork or woodwork, protect the surface from scratches. Attach a "bumper" — a strip of foam rubber secured with a rubber band — to the head of the vacuum's crevice attachment.

— Cobwebs can be sticky and stain surfaces. Lift them away from the wall, rather than pushing them around the surface, by using a vacuum cleaner dusting attachment or a cloth-covered broom.

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

Barbecuing causes cancer. So? What doesn't?

I don't mean to be flip about this, but these environmental do-gooders really can be a pain, you know it?

They advocate saving everything from field mice to stray dogs to the rain forest and the universe. The ground water is polluted, the air is a mess and the red-crested, diamond-back housefly is almost extinct.

If they had their way, we'd all put out our cigarettes and turn off the ignitions to our cars, pickups and lawnmowers. We couldn't use pesticides, aerosals, plastic garbage bags, balloons, glass or plastic. We'd quit producing oil, automobiles and cigarettes.

Most of us would be broke and jobless of course, but some of us could find work putting diapers on cows. Cloth diapers, mind you. Not the throw-away kind.

What the environmentalists don't understand is the enivitable: man is destined to eat styrofoam and chase it with lighter fluid. And they're messing it up.

Look, would Mother Nature have invented AIDS, cancer and all these other horrible diseases if she didn't intend using them? Of course not.

People get certain diseases because that's the evolutionary process. It's simple. Millions of years ago, when man got tired of eating bat guano in caves, he ventured out to find some real food. Occassionally, man himself got eaten instead. It was all part of the evolutionary process.

It's true. Check your history books.

Trillions of years ago, man was about like...well, about like man is today. He was messing up the atmosphere, creating more and more exotic materials which in turn led to more and more exotic diseases. Gradually, man gave up vegetables and meat for flavored paper and synthetics. Eventually, his body evolved to where it could tolerate all kinds of chemicals.

At this point, man's characteristics took on an appearance very similar to the early dinosaurs. In fact, your ancestors very well may have been tyranosaurases. I myself, am positive I've met people who are from the lizard family.

Well, dinosaurs obviously couldn't make synthetics, what with those pitiful little hands they had. And even if they did, they couldn't get enough to fill those big bodies.

So they died. No mystery to it.

And now, here we come again, full circle. And once again, we've got environmentalists yelling and screaming and putting off the enivitable. And people throwing good money away on so-called cures for diseases.

Let's be honest. Doctors don't cure anybody. It doesn't take a brain surgeon to figure out that doctors can't make a living off of well people.

I don't want to sound like I'm forecasting doom. I just think we should let nature take it's course...naturally. Bring on the sludge, the industrial waste. Once mankind gets enough of it, cancer and AIDS will run in the opposite direction.

Let's be real men. With real goals. Let's go smoke a big, juicy brisket.

Anybody got any lighter fluid?

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

I thought I could ride a horse. Granted, I've never rodeoed or anything, but I've kept my seat for twenty years and thought I was doing all right. I was taught how to ride as a city-girl newlywed by Dick and Elizabeth Hart's daughter, Jody, on the sprawling countryside of the Fuller Brother's "E" Ranch. We'd wander dry creek beds, cramming wild plums in our mouths, and roam atop high bluffs overlooking the cattle. For a city slicker who'd never gotten over her love for horses, it was pure heaven.

Not that Kent didn't try to teach me, but I'd like to know any husband who's ever taught his wife anything and lived to tell about it. We went for rides together too, trailing dogs and jumping up clouds of dove and deer-watching. Once, we saw a bobcat burst from a ravine like a bullet, right in front of us.

But is was Jody who helped me put together all the little rules, (squeeze with your legs, keep your heels down, don't pull back on the reins, don't hunch over the saddle horn, etc.) by simply saying, "Just sit in the saddle like it's a rocking chair."

Kent was outraged that something so simple would work.

When we got a place and horses of our own, I set myself a goal: if I could ride our big black bareback at a fast trot, without my you-know-what bumping up and down and all over the place, then I'd know how to ride. And I did it.

Even after my muscles took sick some years ago, riding has still remained one of my supreme pleasures of country living. So when Kent asked a few evenings ago if I'd like to go with him to check on the cows, I said I'd love to. We've leased some new country, you see, that I'd never visited. It hulks like a dark forest about a mile west of the house, and whenever I'd ridden past, it always looked spooky and interesting inside.

It was interesting, all right. Thorny mesquites laced together overhead like a thick net, with spiny prickly pear, jump-back, and cholla cactus down below. Everywhere jutting limbs threatened to clothes-line or blind us. Rock outcroppings made slippery footing, and there was one ravine we had to cross that left my heart in my throat. Most of the time I hung onto that saddle horn like a raw rookie.

Kent was riding our nervous sorrel, Buck, who thought everything we passed was a booger out to get him. He kept bolting and jumping and throwing his head. I figured it would be my luck that my husband would wind up stuck in that wilderness with a broken leg and it would be my job to get him out. I just forgot how good he is with horses.

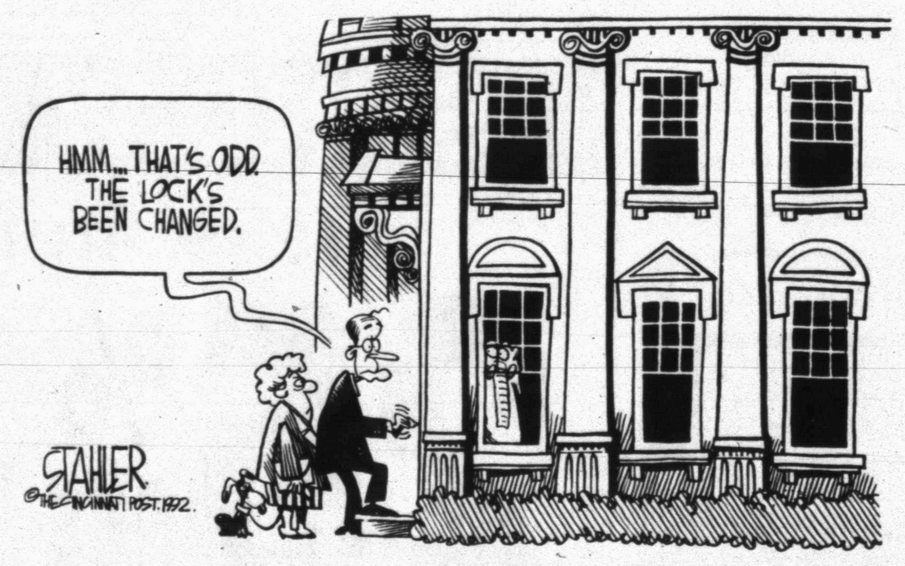

Actually, I did all right until we made a full circle around our property and rode through my beloved Chinaberry grove. The thing about a horse is, he can pick his way through a tangled maze of trees and brush — only he fails to take into consideration that he's carrying a passenger. So when my leg got hung on a tree trunk, and Sox kept going, and I hollered, "SOX! NO!," well, nothing happened, on account of a horse doesn't understand the word "no." Got to pull back on the reins, see.

By the time I had that figured out, my leg had practically been torn off. I didn't whine, though. (Pride.) When I got home, my daughter fussed and petted over my rather humongous bruise, but my son just-said, "Why the heck didn't you just kick out of the stirrup? It's what I do all the time!"

I just swallowed and stared at my first-born and replied, "Because. I was stupid."

That satisfied him.

So. The moral of this story is: Don't go to braggin' on how well you can sit a horse until you've done it in truly rough country. And managed to come back without your leg torn half off.

Editorial roundup

The Dallas Morning News on prison overcrowding:

Prison overcrowding is a serious problem in this state. But that hardly justifies the indiscriminate release by the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles of harden criminals, especially those who have been sentenced to life terms or put on death row.

Parole figures obtained by The Dallas Morning News show a disturbing policy that attempts to relieve overcrowding without proper regard to the type of inmate released. The figures show that the release of multiple murderer Kenneth McDuff, who was paroled in 1989, was not the exception, but more the rule.

Last year, 205 Texas inmates sentenced to life in prison were released. Of that group, 51 were murderers. Six of those had committed capital murder, and, like Mr. McDuff, were on death row. Of the 45 other murderers given early release, 13 were sent back to prison for committing violent crimes again.

The percentage of these lifers to the overall number of criminals paroled is small, but this is the highest-risk group, and just one of them on the street is too many. ...

The "revolving door" situation should be helped by a law that went into effect last year. That law would require a criminal convicted of a capital murder who is not given the death penalty to serve at least 35 years before being eligible for parole.

But clearly there must be reform of the parole system itself to make it tougher for the McDuffs to be released in the first place.

San Antonio Light on FDA drug plan:

A bipartisan coalition in Congress is quietly launching an effort to speed approval of new drugs by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The deal, with backers as diverse as Democratic Sen. Ted Kennedy and Republican Sen. Orrin Hatch, would charge U.S. drug makers a series of fees to pay for 600 new FDA employees. In return for this $75 million a year, the FDA promises to cut new drug review time in half.

If this works, sick people should benefit by having new drugs available more swiftly, the FDA will have more funds to do its job and drug companies would get their drugs to market more quickly.

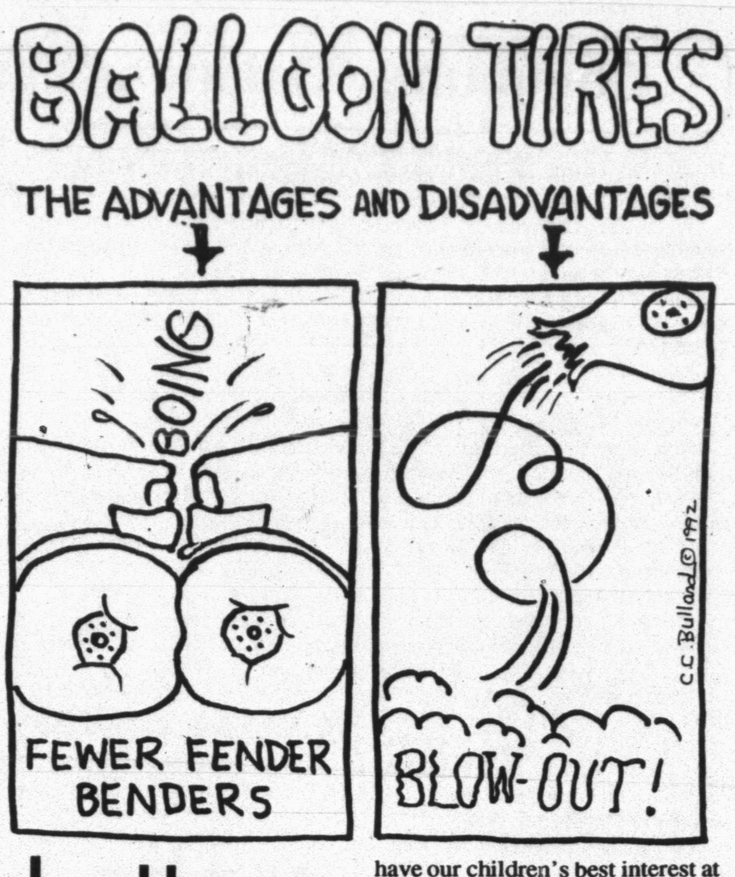

...Besides the advantage to people who need such new drugs, it is important to try less conventional approaches to government financing while the federal budget deficit remains so high. Success here could present a model for other federal regulatory agencies. It's certainly worth a try.

The Valley Morning Star on the FDA:

The federal Food and Drug Administration is working on an arrangement whereby drug companies that want their new drugs approved more quickly would be able to get action — for a price. If a private organization offered a similar deal, it could conceivably be called extortion. What is needed is not a way to funnel more private money into the FDA, but — for many reasons — a drastic overhaul of the agency that would trim its power to do mischief. ...

The FDA is an agency out of control. Rather than get extortion money for graciously reducing the time it holds drug applications hostage, it should have its power reduced.

More power and money will only feed its arrogance and arbitrariness.

Dear Editor,

I would like to urge each parent to get out their child's group class pictures from the past years and count the number of students in their child's class, then look at the number of students in their child's class this year.

Please compare these numbers as you read the quote in Tuesday's SDN. "The real test is whether we have cut down the number of kids in the classroom (student-teacher ratio) and that's been accomplished." The real test is speaking of the new reorganization plan.

Look again at your own numbers and you will see that by the board's own test that this reorganization plan is a failure. But then this plan was not really for the children — now was it. Our children are our most precious asset. Can we really afford to sit back and casually assume these people have our children's best interest at heart?

Dear Snyder, no matter what side you are on, please, please do not just sit back and do nothing.

Thank you for your time,

Diane Perkins

Dear Editor:

The Senate Finance Committee recently approved a broad tax bill contining provisions that would restore the full deductions for annual Individual Retirement Account (IRA) contributions, currently as much as $2,000, to 92 percent of Americans.

Support for this bill could be critical to the financial future of all American citizens who ever intend to retire. The reason is that Social Security and employer-sponsored retirement plans are simply not enough to maintain an individual's standard of living during retirement.

Specifically, it has been estimated that Social Security and employer-sponsored retirement plans provide 38 percent and 14 percent, respectively, of an individual's retirement income. A full 48 percent must come from personal savings!

And the outlook for the future doesn't look bright. As the population ages and life expectancies increase, more retirees are receiving Social Security benefits and fewer workers are contributing. In 1945, for example, the contributions of 42 workers supported every Social Security recipient. Today the ratio is 3.4 to 1, and by 2030, its expected to fall to 1.9 to 1.

Unfortunately, as the ratios have dwindled, retirement saving among individuals has not increased. The 1980s were the heyday of retirement saving as the tax deductibility of IRA contributions spurred contributions. From the introduction of IRAs in 1982, assets in these accounts grew from $52.4 billion to more than $333 billion, and were held by more than 40 million Americans. Contributions in 1986 alone totaled $40 billion.

However, IRAs fell out of favor with Americans after the Tax Reform Act of 1986, which eliminated the deductions for many Americans. In 1987, the proportion of individuals contributing to IRAs dropped by 50 percent. In 1990, only 6 percent of Americans made deductible contributions to IRAs.

The legislation that the Senate Finance Committee has approved would increase the compensation cap on IRAs so that about 92 percent of taxpayers would be eligible for a tax deducton. In addition, the new provisions would allow tax-free withdrawals from an IRA after five years instead of an up-front deduction. The bill would further allow penalty-free early withdrawals from any IRA for college tuition, major medical expenses, first homes and the expenses of long-term unemployment.

If you would like to see fully tax-deductible IRA contributions reinstated for 92 percent of taxpayers, please call or write to your legislator today! The U.S. Congressional Switchboard can be reached by dialing 202-224-3121 or you can write to your legislators at one of the addresses below:

—Representative Charles Stenholm, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington D.C. 20515.

—Senator Phil Gramm, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Saddam convenient target in election year

By Barry Schweid
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever else Saddam Hussein may be — Secretary of State James A. Baker III says he is a "ruthless madman" — President Bush sees him as a perfect target in an election year.

The Iraqi leader is accused of persecuting Kurds in the north, Shiites in the south and defying U.N. arms inspectors. His invasion of Kuwait two years ago alarmed Arab governments. His Scud missile attacks on Israel reinforced fears there.

When Bush went to war against Saddam there was little dissent. In practical terms, Americans wanted to be sure Persian Gulf oil was protected. But with claims that Saddam was another Hitler, White House publicists tugged on Americans' emotions as well.

Bush's standing soared in the polls.

Today, Bush is betting those same emotions will prevail as he carefully maneuvers to box Saddam in. If there is a conflict over Saddam's attacks on Shiite villages in the marshlands of southern Iraq, the onus will be on the Iraqi leader.

Next week, probably on Tuesday, the United States, Britain, France and possibly Russia will notify Iraq that if it flies any more planes below the 32nd parallel, they will be shot down. From that zone, allied reconnaissance planes will monitor Saddam's ground war against the Shiites.

AP analysis

This is the kind of humanitarian gesture Americans accept readily. But it also could provoke Saddam into striking a first blow.

A spokesman for the Iraqi leader on Thursday called the establishment of a safe haven for the Shiites an "imperialist conspiracy" to divide Iraq. He rejected any restriction on Iraqi airplanes.

"Those who plan these flagrant, aggressive measures ... should realize that Iraq's people and its militant leadership will never let the imperialist-Zionist scheme of dividing Iraq be passed," the spokesman warned. "They will resist it with all their means."

The rhetoric recalled Iraq's response to U.S. threats after the Kuwait invasion. They did not stop the Western onslaught, and they are unlikely to deter Bush now in testing Saddam.

"There is increasing evidence that he is pursuing genocidal policies in the south," Brent Scowcroft, Bush's national security adviser, said of Saddam Wednesday night. "What we're saying is that we're going to monitor and watch what he is doing there."

Bush's strategy is relatively low-keyed as well as humanitarian. Saddam did not challenge a similar "no-fly" zone established last year north of the 36th parallel to protect the Kurds. And U.S. officials are trying to signal him that the United States has no hidden agenda.

"We do not have as a goal the partition of Iraq," David Mack, a deputy assistant secretary of state, told reporters Monday. "We are committed on the record and in the strongest terms ... to the principle of Iraq's unity and territorial integrity."

No military operation is entirely risk-free, though, and Saddam is an unpredictable leader.

Panel urges close look at birth defects

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Investigators should take a closer look at the environment in searching out the cause of the high number of brain and spinal birth defects in South Texas, a scientific panel said Friday.

A state-federal study released last month left unanswered questions about the environment and its possible role in the proliferation of neural tube defects in Cameron County, panel members said.

"Our position is that we want to see action (in this area) in the future," said Dr. Edward McCabe, the chairman of the panel appointed to review the study conducted by the Centers for Disease Control and the Texas Department of Health.

Redford's film to premiere soon

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Robert Redford's film about life along a river in Montana will make its national premiere at a benefit here.

Proceeds are to help restore the polluted Blackfoot River, which is the setting for the movie.

The film, based on Norman Maclean's autobiography, tells the story of two brothers, their minister father and the river that shapes their lives.

Shoulder injured

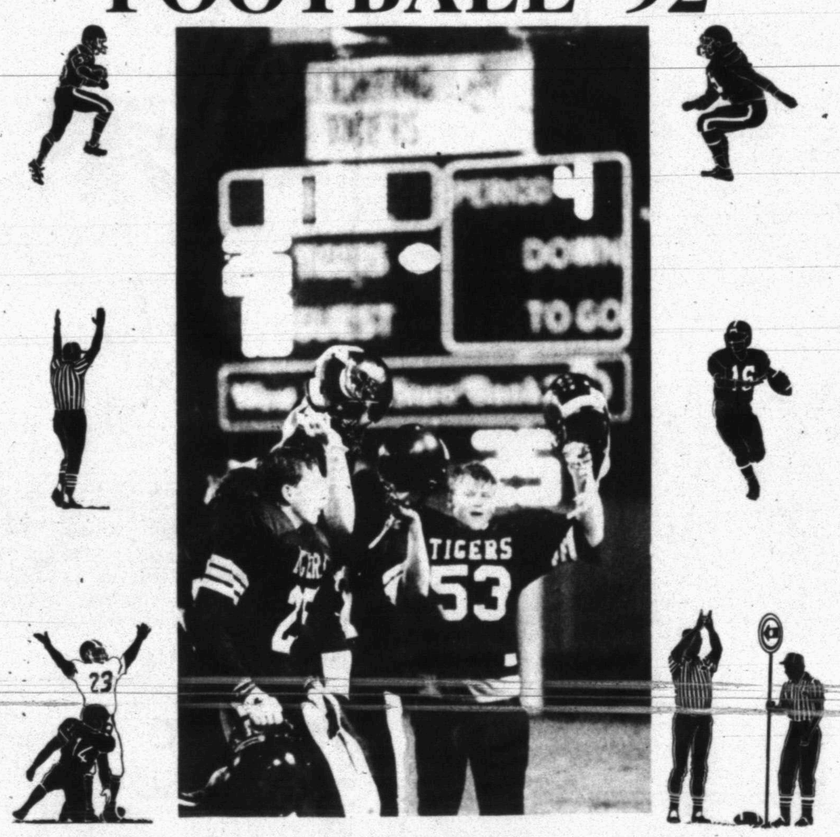

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — "Good Morning America" host Joan Lunden broke her left shoulder because of Desert Storm — the horse, not the war.

Lunden was thrown off a horse named Desert Storm on Thursday while attempting to clear a 31/2-foot barrier, publicist Stan Rosenfield said.

The injury required her to wear a sling Friday on the ABC program, Rosenfield said.

Courses available at WTC

The following courses will be available at Western Texas College during the fall semester. For more information, call 573-8511.

Weight Control

Weight control will be taught by Lee Burke on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 5:15-6:15 p.m. It is listed on the schedule as HPE 111-420.

The class is designed to help people with a weight problem or who would like to exercise on a regular basis. There will be a sharing of information between class members, lectures and exercises each day.

Sports Officiating

Sports officiating, designed to help students gain knowledge of the rules and skills needed to officiate flag football, basketball, volleyball and slow pitch softball will be taught by Mike Harrison.

The class will be from 2:15 to 3:30 p.m. on Wednesdays. This is a three hour course and lab times will be arranged. Students practice by officiating intramural games at the college.

This course is listed on the fall schedule as HPE 132.

Aerobics

Cathy Reed will offer two aerobics classes, one during the noon hour and a second in the evening. Both are listed as HPE 111 classes.

The noon class will be from 11:30 a.m. until 12:45 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. It is designed to work the cardio-vascular system, to tone and strengthen muscles. It is low impact, she said, with very little running or jumping. Arm movements are used to get the heart accelerated.

The evening class will meet from 6 until 7:15 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. This is a higher level class for those already engaged in aerobics and physically fit.

Aqua Aerobics

Three aqua aerobics classes are scheduled, all taught by Mike Harrison, WTC physical education instructor.

The three classes will stress physical exercise in the water, designed to improve the student's flexibility, strength and cardiovascular system.

"People with painful joints, shin splints or weak leg muscles will usually find it more comfortable to move in the water since the body weight is reduced by 90 percent," Harrison said.

Each class is listed as HPE 212 and is offered at a different time. They are Mondays and Wednesdays from 1-2:15 p.m., 4:15-5:30 p.m. and 5:20-6:35 p.m.

Leadership Development

A class emphasizing the development of leadership qualities is scheduled also.

Listed as Psychology 230, it counts as three hours of elective credit at the school and will transfer as an elective also. Class meeting time is Monday and Wednesday from 1-2:15 p.m.

The course, titled "Current Issues of Psychology," will be team-taught and will emphasize in-class activities rather than the more traditional lecture- test approach.

The class follows a nationwide program sponsored by Phi Theta Kapa, the national honorary sorority for two-year colleges. It was developed using a grant funded through the Kellogg Foundation.

"Using the concept of "training the trainer," the program is designed to instruct leaders for the future.

All class sessions relate to leadership skills with 12 basic units offered. Students are provided books at no charge.

WTC instructors scheduled to teach include Jim Palmer, Robert Adams, Joann Snider, Janet Halbert, Mary Hood, Bettie McQueen, Jerry Corkran, Jan McCather, Dan Osborn, Gil Fleer, Jack Price and Carolyn Osborn. Instructor load credit for the class will go towards the WTC Scholarship Foundation.

Basic Word Processing

A basic word processing course for those interested in computers is planned also. Two sections of the class, WP 137, Basic Computers/Information Processing, are offered. The instructor is Tammy Wesson.

The classes are offered Tuesday-Thursday from 1-2:15 p.m. and Tuesday evenings t 6:30 p.m.

The class serves as a prerequisite for two other word processing classes offered this fall also. These are WP 138 Word Processing Applications I, meeting at 11 a.m. MWF; and WP 239, Word Processing Applications II, meeting at 10 a.m. MWF. This class includes study in machine transcription.

Management Development Internship Classes

WTC's Management Development program will offer internship classes again this fall, meeting from 6:30-7:20 p.m. each Monday. Instructor is Jack Price, who heads the WTC management program.

The classes, coupled with at least 15 hours per week of employment, will earn three semester hour credits toward the associate or applied science degree in management.

In addition, the classes count as credit toward the 33-hour certificate program in management development recently approved for WTC by the Texas College Coordinating Board.

Other management development courses offered at the college this fall are Human Resources Management, meeting from 9-9:50 a.m. MWF; Principles of Management, meeting from 10-10:50 a.m. MWF; and Marketing, meeting from 11-11:50 a.m. MWF.

The Management Development Program is a two-year college-level course of study qualifying students for supervisory and management positions in manufacturing, service, retail and other business or public organizations.

Cosmetology

A new cycle of cosmetology instruction begins Sept. 1 and instructor Judy Border indicates five student slots from a class of 25 remain open.

Persons interested should contact her or pick up a copy of the cosmetology information packet available through Student Services located in the Learning Resource Center on campus.

Prospective students must be interviewed by Mrs. Border also.

The class meets from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday. It takes 12 months to complete and graduates must then pass the state examination in Austin.

Accounting

Two accounting classes, for the beginner and the second for the more advanced, are included in the fall schedule.

The beginning class is Business 235 (Business Accounting); and the second is Business 236 (Business Accounting II). Both are instructed by Joann Snider.

Business 235 is offered at noon MWF. Topics stressed are bookkeeping and accounting. It is the pre-requisite for a second class due in the spring teaching automated accounting, Business 137.

The second-level accounting class, Business 236, meets Tuesday-Thursday from 1-2:15 p.m. Those taking it must have had Business 235. Topics stressed are accounting procedures for receivables and payables; accurals and deferrals, inventory and assets.

Nail Technology

A nail technology class will be offered through WTC's cosmetology department beginning Sept. 14 and running through Oct. 8.

Interviews with prospective students will be Aug. 31 and those interested should complete a Nail Technology Packet prior to the interview. These packets may be obtained through the Student Services office located in the Learning Resource Center.

The class will involve 250 hours of instruction at an estimated cost of $400.

Students will learn the basic skills to be a manicurist in addition to completing nail extensions.

Basic Computer

A computer basics course will be offered through WTC's Continuing Education Division beginning Sept. 10.

The course will acquaint the beginning computer student with the workings of a personal computer and spreadsheet programs.

The class will meet Thursday and Monday evenings for six sessions from 6:20-9:20 p.m. Sept. 10-28.

Lesa Mayer will be the instructor.

Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, tolerated no telephone in his study.

Some auto theft rates go up

AUSTIN (AP) — Several mid-sized cities in Texas last year had dramatic increases in automobile theft, while the state's largest cities saw either slight decreases or increases, insurance and law officials say.

Between 1990 and 1991, auto theft increased 72 percent in Waco; 46 percent in Fort Worth; 24 percent in Corpus Christi; and 22 percent in Austin, the Texas Action Council on Theft reported Thursday.

Jerry Johns, a spokesman for the council, said that vehicle theft in Texas costs $800 million per year and amounts to nearly half of the property crime.

"That's a shocking figure," he said. "The message to every Texas driver is to protect your vehicle, be aware of your surroundings when parking a car, and support efforts to reduce vehicle theft in the state."

Meanwhile, auto theft dropped 2 percent in Houston; 2 percent in El Paso; and 1 percent in San Antonio. Auto theft in Dallas rose 2 percent, the council said.

Johns said that increased enforcement by police, and successful anti-theft programs in those cities have helped either lower or control auto theft.

The following list shows the change in auto theft by city between 1990 and 1991, according to the council, which said it used FBI statistics as its source:

— Abilene, down 10 percent.
— Amarillo, down 16 percent.
— Arlington, up 19 percent.
— Austin, up 22 percent.
— Beaumont, down 13 percent.
— Corpus Christi, up 24 percent.
— Dallas, up 2 percent.
— El Paso, down 2 percent.
— Fort Worth, up 46 percent.
— Garland, up 2 percent.
— Houston, down 2 percent.
— Irving, down 11 percent.
— Laredo, up 5 percent.
— Lubbock, down 16 percent.
— Mesquite, down 13 percent.
— Pasadena, up 11 percent.
— Plano, up 5 percent.
— San Antonio, down 1 percent.
— Waco, up 72 percent.

WTC pool and weight room has memberships

Western Texas College's weight room and swimming pool will reopen Wednesday and memberships are available.

The HPE facility opens at 6:30 a.m. weekdays and closes at 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and at 4 p.m. on Fridays. It is not open to the public on weekends.

Memberships are $50 per person, per semester, and include both the pool and the weight room. Family memberships are available for $150 per semester.

Anyone wishing to use the weight room or pool who does not desire to purchase a membership may do so by paying $2 per person per visit. For more information, call 573-8511, ext. 238.

Local college unveils plans for creative writing class

A call to writers — those who have completed works and those who would like to — is issued by the Western Texas College English Dept. as a new creative writing class is offered this fall.

The course, Eng. 230, meets Wednesdays from 6:30-9:20 p.m. and is taught by Bill McGlothing, assistant professor of English and a published poet.

"I know the writers are out there and I want them to join the class," he said.

McClothing is also a co-editor of the WTC literary magazine, "Aquifer," and he noted writing generated by the class will become submissions to its spring publication.

The class serves as a three-hour elective credit for English. Works covered will include poetry, short fiction, non-fiction or drama.

"The class is for anyone who writes or wants to write," McGlothing said. "If you have a box full of stuff at home that you've never shown anyone, here's your opportunity to get a reading."

The students will generate the text for the class by submitting works in progress for discussion and instructor's critique.

"All writers will get a careful reading with commentary and lively in-class discussion of works in progress," he said. "Students will learn to identify the qualities that make a poem or prose exceprt "good."

The course is planned again in the spring and the content will vary from semester to semester.

He stressed the atmosphere will be "comfortable as well as constructive."

McGlothing's latest published work is in the "Blue Mesa Review," published by the University of New Mexico Press.

He will be in Albuquerque, N.M. Aug. 28 for a poetry reading associated with that publication.

Ben Sum staging one-person art exhibit at WTC

New Western Texas College art instructor Ben Sum is staging a one-person exhibition currently in the gallery area of the Fine Arts Theatre on campus.

The works are comprised of oil paintings and will hang through Oct. 3.

Individuals interested in his work should visit the gallery from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Sum was born in Canton, China, but has lived in the United States since 1971. He became a U.S. citizen in 1981.

Plan to regulate aquifer pumping approved by feds

AUSTIN (AP) — An environmental group says it does not support a Texas Water Commission plan to limit pumping from the Edwards Aquifer and will continue its legal challenge to the agency's enforcement of a federal wildlife conservation act.

The Sierra Club's comments came Thursday in response to an endorsement of the plan by a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service official.

That support, however, included a question whether the proposal would result in the deaths of endangered species during severe drought.

Sierra Club officials said they have not backed off their trial charging the Water Commission of failing to enforce the Endangered Species Act. The trial is scheduled to begin Oct. 26 in U.S. District Court in Midland.

"We need the trial to be able to determine whether the Fish and Wildlife Service is taking adequate steps through the Water Commission's plan or anything else to protect the endangered species," said Ken Kramer of the Sierra Club.

The state has been urged to get an exemption from the federal act by Mike Spear, regional director of Fish and Wildlife from Albuquerque, N.M.

The exemption would prevent the state from getting hit with penalties for violating the act when the aquifer and springs fell to low levels during severe drought and endangered species died.

"We do not believe that we can save endangered species from all possible occurrences," said Spear, who recommended several modifications to the Water Commission plan.

Water Commission Chairman John Hall said that under the water-use plan, aquifer levels would have to drop to those that occurred during the drought of the 1950s before endangered species, like the fountain darter, would be threatened. The fountain darter is a fish.

But Kramer questioned data used by Hall to reach these conclusions. "Some of the Water Commission's assumptions are inappropriate in regard to reality," Kramer said.

The Edwards Aquifer is a vast underground water source that supplies water to more than 1.5 million people, including the city of San Antonio.

The Water Commission has proposed a pumping cap of 450,000 acre feet per year from the aquifer, and allocating water-pumping rights.

That would be about 90,000 acre feet less than the largest amount of water pumped out of the aquifer for a single year, Hall said. An acre foot of water is 325,851 gallons.

The plan would reduce pumping to 400,000 acre feet by 2007, but Fish and Wildlife says that reduction should be installed within 10 years.

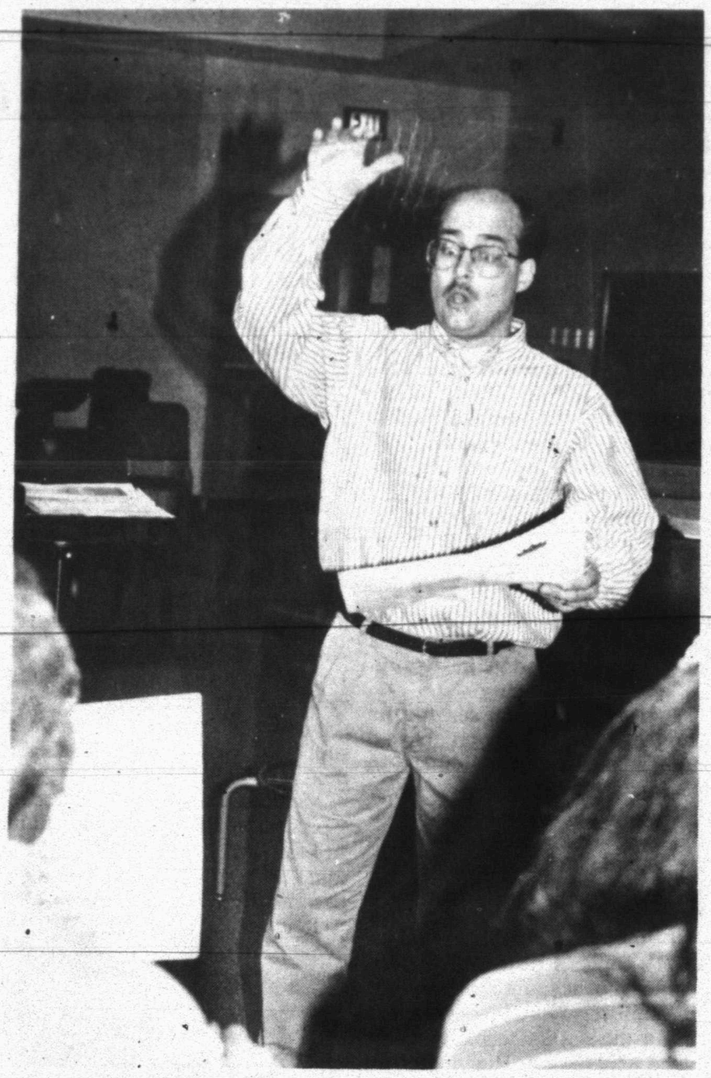

Under drought conditions, a pumping cap of 350,000 acre feet should be in place, according to Fish and Wildlife.

Spear also recommended a study on whether some aquifer users could withdraw water from downstream rivers to ensure there is enough water in the aquifer to preserve springs that are necessary for endangered species.

Hall said the commission could accept those provisions.

The Water Commission is expected to approve its plan for the Edwards Aquifer within the next few weeks, and then push the Legislature to enact the basic elements of the plan, Hall said.

He said implementation of the proposal would ensure the state would maintain control over the aquifer rather than having federal agencies in charge of water usage.

Africanized bees attacked man

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A bee attack that hospitalized a man was the worst stinging incident involving Africanized honeybees in Nueces County, a health department official says.

Preliminary tests conducted Thursday at the USDA-Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service lab in Harlingen showed the bees that attacked Juan J. Flores were the so-called "killer" bees.

Samples from the swarm were sent to a lab in Beltsville, Md. for final confirmation. Those tests will likely bear out the preliminary findings, said Dave Mayes, a spokesman for the Texas A&M Apiary Inspection Service.

Flores was stung about 150 times Wednesday morning while mowing his lawn. The bees, which descended on Flores from the eaves of his house, were apparently aggravated by the noise and vibrations from the mower.

Flores, 37, was treated at Humana Hospital. He was released Thursday afternoon, said hospital spokeswoman Mary David.

Oscar Ortiz, vector control director for the city-county Health Department, said there have been other stinging incidents since the bees arrived in Nueces County earlier this year.

But "this has been the most serious one we've had to date," he said.

College adds choir, class guitar courses

Western Texas College's Music Department will add classes in class guitar this fall as well as one-hour credit courses forming both a bell choir and a community choir.

Class guitar is a one-hour credit course and will meet Monday and Wednesday from 1-2:30 p.m. It is listed as Music 113.

Instructor will be Jon Palomaki, new music instructor, who notes the class is for beginners. Students will learn to play both chords and melodies.

The bell choir is listed as Music 111 and will meet Mondays from 7-9 p.m. Students will learn how to play hand bells in an ensemble setting. Gerald Garner, class instructor, notes no previous music experience is necessary to enroll.

For the community choir, listed as Music 117, a special scholarship will be available for the first 30 students who register for the ensemble. This class is open to the community as well as campus students and no auditions are required.

The class will meet Tuesdays from 7-9 p.m. and Palomaki will teach it.

He would like to see an enrollment of between 80-100 persons because future plans could include developing smaller groups within the choir who will peform pieces for concerts and sing classical and folk songs.

Palomaki said future plans may also include performing at the Ritz Theatre once the renovation and restoration work has been completed.

The community choir will be a mixed group and all ages — including retired persons — are welcome to join, he said.

The group will learn pieces such as Handel's "Messiah," John Rutter's "Requiem," and other selections by Schubert, Beethoven and Mozart.

The Comminity Choir will probably perform two concerts this fall, one in October and one in December.

Palomaki will also teach classes in music theory and, music appreciation and private instruction.

A mixed choir class will also be taught on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from noon to 12:50 p.m.

For more information, call Palomaki at 573-8511, ext. 232.

Texas says no to red fox relocation plans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Red foxes targeted by the state for extermination because they are said to pose a threat to endangered species in the Ballona Wetlands cannot be relocated to Texas, officials there said.

Animal rights activists, who announced last week that a home had been found in San Antonio, Texas, for the embattled foxes, vowed to continue their fight to protect the foxes.

"I am not going to ever stop this," said Mary Sheehy, president of the Wildlife Protection League.

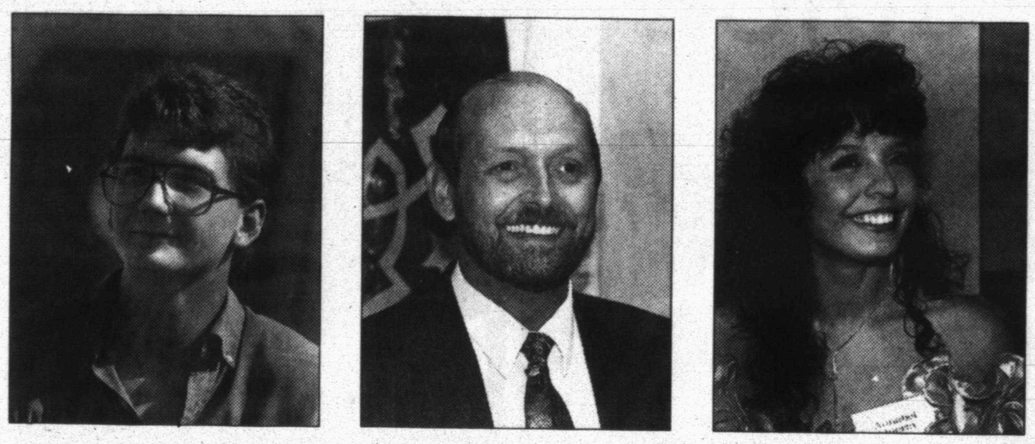

An environmentalist helping plan the restoration of the wetlands sharply criticized the animal activists for leading the public to think that a solution to the fox problem had been found.

"This is a cruel hoax which misleads the public and raises the hopes of the league's membership," said Ruth Lansford, a chairwoman of the Friends of the Ballona Wetlands, in a statement released Tuesday.

The league, which has joined other activists in a campaign to save the foxes, had said that the Wild Animal Orphanage of San Antonio would take 10 and possibly more of the creatures.

WTC events say 'Howdy' to freshmen

The college's Student Senate has adopted the theme "You Are the Driving Force Behind WTC in '93" for the coming school year.

In line with this, a busy round of "Howdy" activities for both freshmen and sophomores are planned in the weeks ahead as the fall term gets underway.

The dormitory will officially open for freshmen at 2 p.m. this Sunday. Sophomores will be moving in to the dorm beginning Monday morning and will register beginning at 1 p.m. that afternoon.

Registration for freshmen students will start at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday. Classes officially begin Wednesday.

Events during the first week of school are planned by the WTC Student Senate to acquaint incoming freshmen with the campus and to welcome back sophomores.

On Wednesday, an afternoon round of volleyball is scheduled just north of the Student Center.

On Thursday night, the year's first dance is slated, the traditional "Howdy Dance." It will be in the Student Center from 8:30 a.m. until midnight.

During September, Student Senate activities will focus on establishing student leaders for the coming year.

During this month, students will be encouraged to petition to run for the senate, joining the four-member slate of officers elected this past spring. Some 25 senators serve the student body on

WTC gains guard class expansion

Beginning this fall, WTC will expand its contract with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice to provide in-service training for prison guards employed at two of the state's newest prisons in addition to the Price Daniel Unit here.

Under the new contract, WTC will provide instruction for the French Robertson Unit near Abilene and the Preston Smith Unit in Lamesa also.

The agreement is expected to benefit both the college financially as well as the community of Snyder as an estimated 832 individuals will be on campus during a 46-week period which begins Sept. 1.

The in-service training will be taught in a newly renovated classroom area located in the southeast quadrant of the campus.

For an individual guard, the training will involve five days of classroom instruction totaling 40-hours.

The TDCJ has contracted to pay some $73,000 to the college for the training. The actual expense to offer the program is estimated at $56,000, so WTC is expecting to net some $17,000 for its general fund plus another $40,000 in state "contact hour" funding.

In addition, individuals traveling from Lamesa and Abilene are expected to be staying overnight in Snyder during their week's training time and this is projected to have an economic impact for the community.

The state has obligated almost $93,000 for motel and food service expenses for the training period.

The Great Western Motel of Snyder was awarded the motel contract to accomodate the visiting guards and American Food Service, which also serves the WTC dorms, was given the food service contract.

Year in review

Campus activities for 1991-92 at WTC ran the gamut from awards to activities. Those honored include (upper left) new WTC Rodeo Queen Julie Williams, taking a ride around the arena April 16 and (upper right) Mr. and Miss WTC, Ryan Teague and Lei Holcomb, reacting to their honor March 26. Campus activities include drama productions and the center left photo shows Kristi Mize and Amber Adams, who played the dual role of "Hedda Gabler" in WTC's production of that classic play. In a lighter vein, Buffy Giddens and Chad Landrom dressed as a couple for WTC's Halloween dance in October (lower left) and Dusty Green (lower right) goes up for the shot during intramural action last spring. (Texan Photos)

Instruction at prisons to expand

WTC is expecting to begin offering classroom instruction at the new Texas state prison now under construction in Abilene by this coming spring term.

This will be in addition to the continuation of classes offered the past three years at the Price Daniel Unit here.

By spring, three vocational classes and a full slate of academic courses are expected to be offered at the Texas Department of Criminal Justice's (TDCJ) French Robertson facility in Abilene.

This fall, an estimated 140 students are expected to enroll in WTC academic classes offered at the Price Daniel Unit. Early estimates are that as many as 170 might be counted on from French Robertson.

Assuming the French Robertson unit added this number, this would equate to a more than 14 percent increase in total enrollment for the college.

New college instructors are to be hired for the vocational classes and these are expected to be employed by December. Vocational classes to be offered are heating and air-conditioning, automotive and data processing.

Regarding academic classes, WTC officials expect to mirror those currently offered at the Price Daniel unit. These include study in history, psychology, fine arts, mass communications, geography, Spanish, business law, English and computer science.

Existing staff and part-time instructors are expected to be used for the academic classes.

Campus to begin 2nd year of W.W. II remembrances

This coming school year, a WTC committee will continue its "remembrance" of the events of World War II—an ongoing project slated to coincide with the 50-year anniversary of the war effort which will continue through 1995.

To date, the school has sponsored two panel discussions profiling the war years which have drawn a wide following of local and area veterans.

The first featured four survivors of the attack on Pearl Harbor—the "day that will live in infamy," Dec. 7, 1942. WTC's commemoration was held on that exact date 50 years later.

Panel members were:

—John Roddy of Snyder, who was onboard the U.S.S. Tennessee.

—Alton Barfoot of Hermleigh, who was stationed at nearby Bishop's Point.

—Guy Turner of Fluvanna, who was onboard the U.S.S. Tennessee.

—Charles Lebkowsky of Lake Thomas, who was onboard the U.S.S. Tucker.

The first session included also a special reading of the names of the more than 70 people from Scurry County killed during the war.

On April 9, the second panel discussion was held featuring individuals who fought with the U.S. Army Air Corp. during the war.

Panel members for that session were:

—Dr. Robert Clinton, the first president of WTC who now lives in Austin.

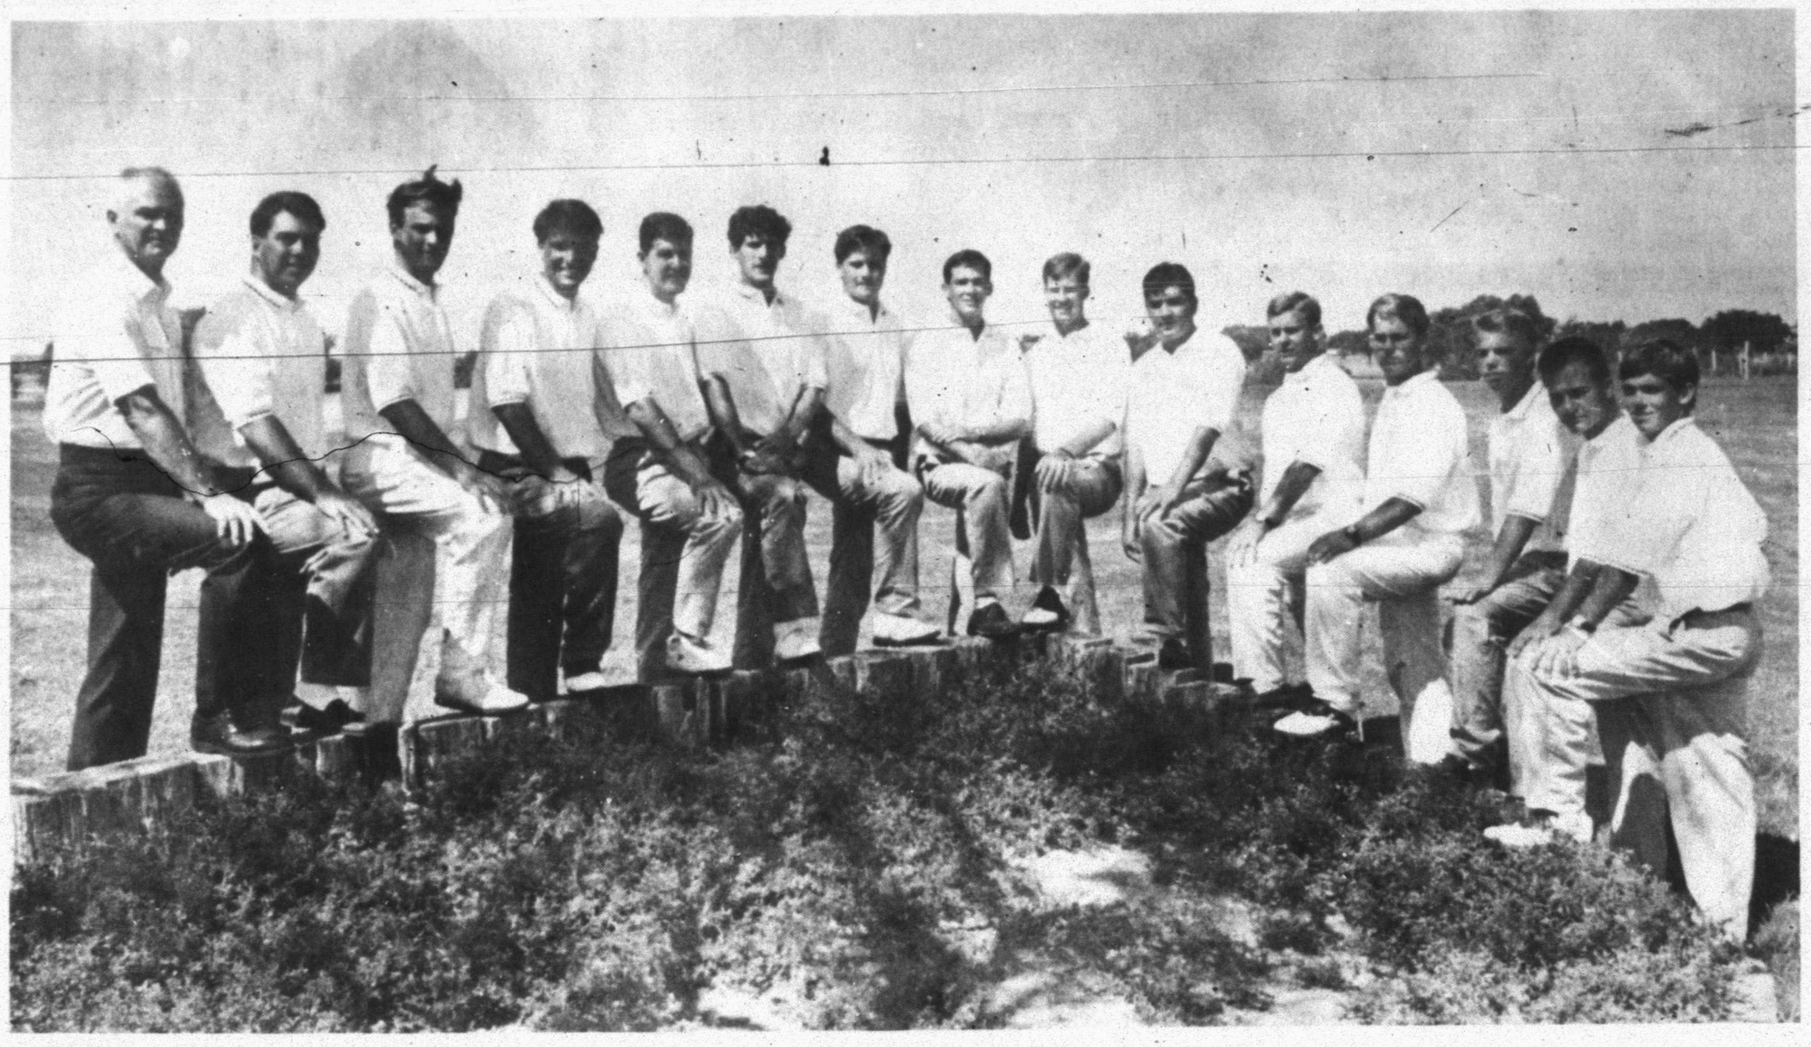

—Bill Wilson, a Snyder businessman and WTC trustee.

—Gene Dulaney, judge for the 132nd District here.

Approximately two seminars per year are planned. Iin addition, oral histories involving World War II veterans are being gathered by the committee which sponsored both events on campus, the World War II Commemorative Committee.

It is headed by Dr. Ed Barkowsky. Other committee members are Dr. Harry Krenek, college president, Dr. Franklin Pruitt, Marilyn Lancaster, John Gibson, Dick Lancaster, Dr. Jim Palmer, Shirley Leftwich and Donny Brown.

Golf Team

Golfers are 11th for U.S.

WTC's Men's Golf Team finished 11th in the nation for junior college teams and placed two of its members on the Community College All-American squad this past summer.

The team competed in the national finals in junior college golf June 5-12 in Phoenix. The event is sponsored by the National Junior College Athletic Association.

A five-man WTC team competed and golfers Mark Wood and Ryan Teague, both Pampa sophomores, tied with four-round scores of 220 to finish among the Top 20 golfers in the nation for the All-American honor.

Also representing the college were Mike Torres of Sweetwater, who will return this coming year, John Gatlin of Midland and Greg Slicker of Houston.

Twenty-six teams had advanced to the national event in Phoenix, a number winnowed down from 263 junior college golf teams in the nation.

Four of the 26 including WTC were from the Western Junior College Athletic Confererence, to include the nation's Number 1 team, Midland College. Others were Odessa College, fourth; and McClennan Community College in Waco, ninth.

Last spring, the WTC squad tied for third place at the regional golf event, the qualifying round for nationals. Placing first was Midland College, followed by Odessa College.

The appearance at nationals came at the end of Coach Milton Ham's first year of coaching at WTC. It was the fourth time a WTC team had traveled to nationals. WTC's highest finish has been fourth place.

Team breaks Top 10 at national rodeo

SPORTS

The WTC Men's Rodeo Team finished ninth in the nation this past summer at the competition staged annually in Bozeman, Mont.

It marked the 11th trip in the past 12 years for WTC at the National Finals Rodeo.

A six-man team qualified to compete at Bozeman June 15-21 and the WTC men were likely contenders for one of the top three places at nationals in the early rounds.

All local entrants failed to score in the third round—called the short-go—and the team received its ninth place ranking based on points scored solely during the first two rounds. In the words of rodeo coach Bob Doty, "things kinda' fell to pieces."

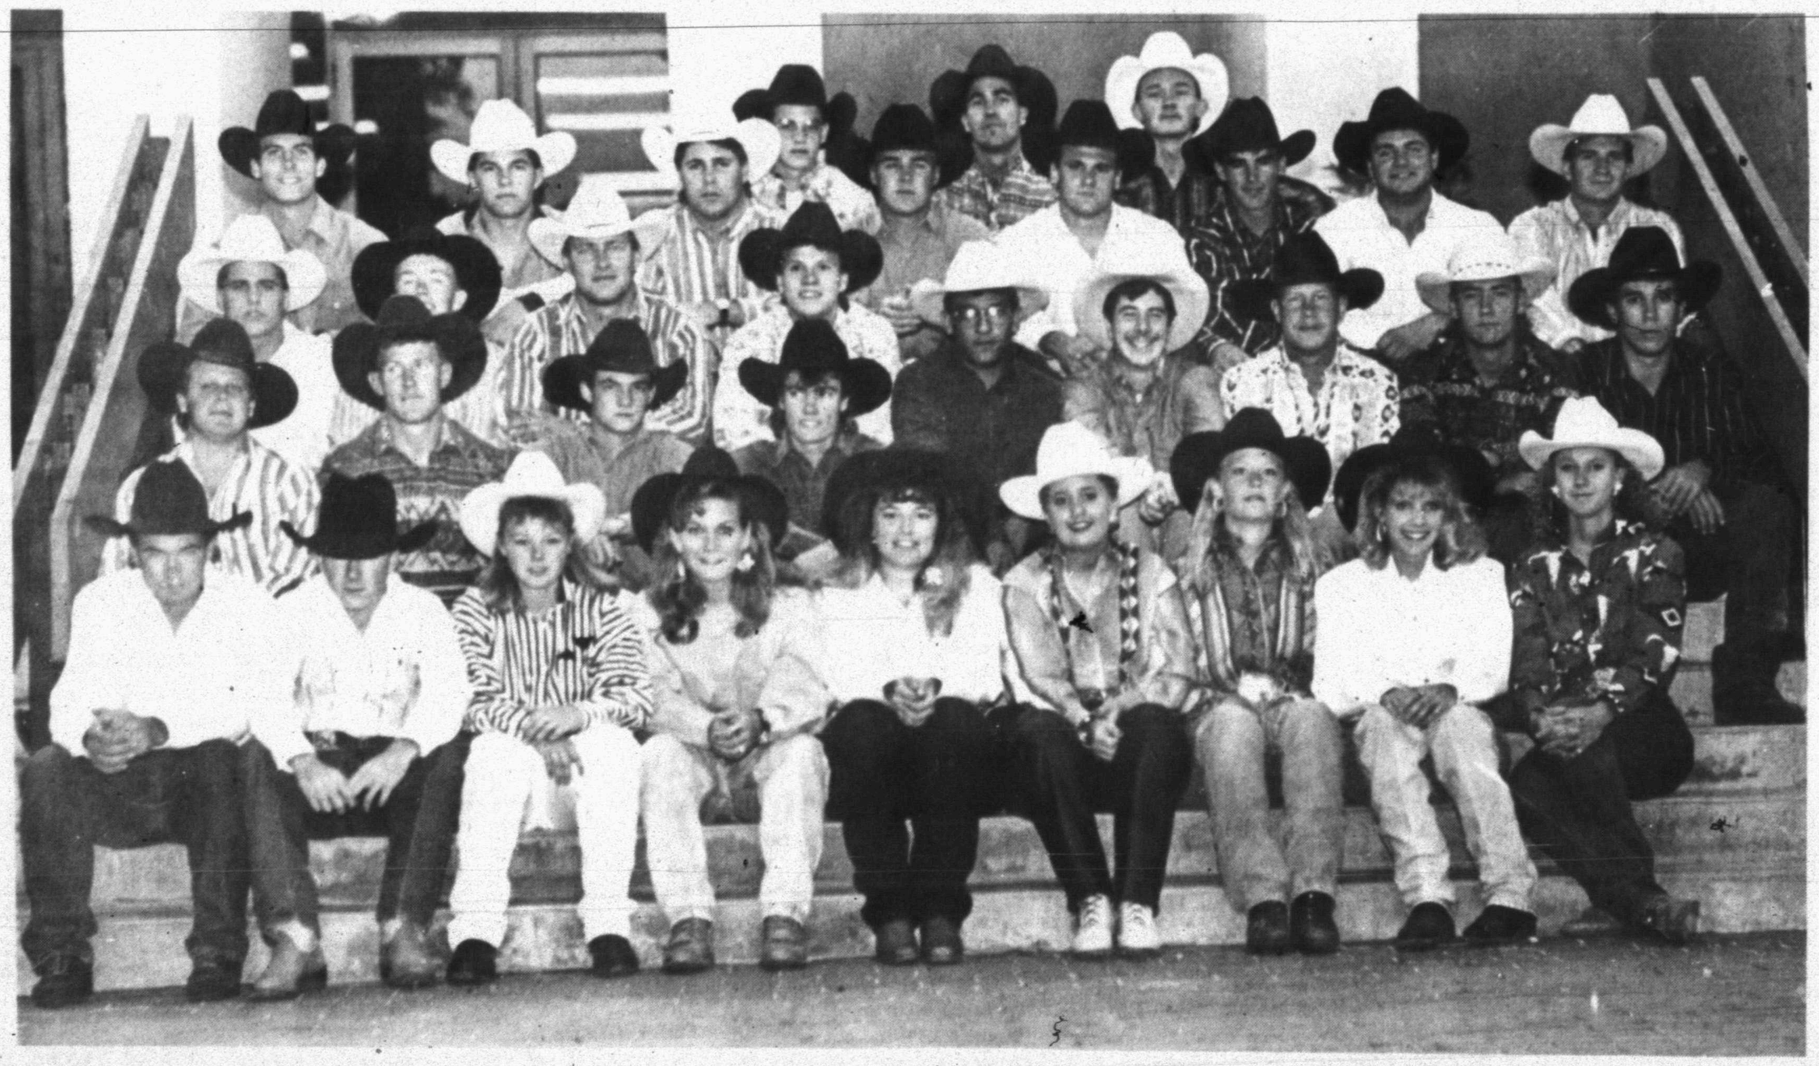

Making it to the short go at nationals were Travis Whiteside of Turner Valley, Canada in the bareback; Troy Cattoor of Nephi, Utah in the saddle bronc; and Scott Berger of Kearney, Neb. and Jim Phillips of Iraan in the team roping.

The WTC Men's Team earned the berth to nationals by finishing in second place behind Tarleton State at the end of the 1991-92 rodeo season. Only the Top 2 teams advance based upon total points earned in both the fall and spring rodeo schedule.

During the regular season, Whiteside placed second overall in the bareback event, and Berger, finished as the Number 1 steer wrestler. In addition, Benji Fontenot of Reeves, La. finished second in the Men's All-Around category.

Other members of the WTC team at Bozeman were Eric Mouton of Lafayette, La., competing in the bareback; and Thad Little of Hackberry, La., competing in the saddle bronc and steer wrestling events.

Sid Morris of Muleshoe accompanied the team as a partner in the team roping event.

Medalist honoree is local

WTC golfer Mark Wood won individual medalist honors this spring for the Western Junior College Athletic Conference.

Wood, a sophomore from Pampa, also paced his team to a third place finish in the conference, a third-place tie at the regional qualifying tournament and a berth to the national finals to be played June 5-12 in Phoenix.

Wood's medalist honors were finalized April 14 in the Salado Golf Tournament.

His rounds of 67-73 in Salado were the last two installments of the 584 total strokes that placed him ahead of all players in the conference, giving WTC its first individual medalist title in years.

Regarding regular season play, Midland College, ranked number one in the national polls, won the conference with a low of 2,356 points. New Mexico Junior College's total of 2,409 was just enough to edge the WTC total of 2,410 for second place.

At regional, the Westerners competed against teams such as Midland, NMJC, McLennan and Odessa for the three available berths in the national tournament in June.

Health-PE reinstated as full division here

WTC officials have reinstated the campus' Health and Physical Education (HPE) Department to division status, moving it out of the responsibility of the Fine Arts Division, where it was placed one year ago.

With the change, the staff status of two instructors has changed also. Lee Burke, associate professor of physical education, has again assumed the role of division chairman; and Mike Harrison, assistant professor of physical education, has been named building director for the HPE facility.

Burke will be in charge of all areas related to instruction, to include the supervision of faculty; and Harrison will have responsibility over all activities scheduled in the building.

Burke holds a bachelor of science degree and a master of education degree from Texas Tech University, earning his M.Ed. in 1974. He joined the WTC faculty in August of 1980.

Harrison holds a bachelor of science degree from Texas Tech and his master of science degree from West Texas State University in Canyon.

He joined the faculty in August of 1985.

The post was held by John Gibson, who has accepted the position of director for the college's Continuing Education Department.

Brunson was employed by WTC in 1988 as an assistant professor of art.

From 1983-1986, he was a teaching assistant at the School of Art and Architecture at Louisiana Tech University.

He has also operated a private operation for the creation of ceramic art pieces, Brunson Ceramics, and has worked as a production potter.

He received his master of fine arts from Louisiana Tech University in 1986, specializing in sculptural ceramics.

He received his bachelor of fine arts in painting from Louisiana Tech University in 1979.

He and his wife, Debbie, have a son, Austin, age 4, and are expecting their second child this summer.

In addition to his teaching, he has presented many one-man and two-man art exhibits.

Sum was born in Canton, China, but has lived in the United States since 1971. He became a U.S. citizen in 1981.

He earned the bachelor of arts degree from Texas Tech University in 1975, with an emphasize in advertising and art.

In May, 1992, Sum received his master of fine arts degree in painting with minors in drawing and art history from Texas Tech.

Oklahoma coach relocates here to lead Dusters

SPORTS

Ron Jones, head girls basketball coach at Guthrie High School in Guthrie, Okla., will be the new head of the WTC women's basketball program this fall.

Jones, 34, was selected from 30 prospective coaches by a special search committee, which was formed to find a replacement for departing coach Kelly Chadwick, who resigned in March after six years at the college. The WTC board officially approved Jones' hiring April 13.

Athletic Director Milton Ham, who served as head of the search committee, said that Jones was selected from five finalists after personal interviews on April 8, and was then recommended to the board the following Monday.

"I think he's the best person for the job," Ham said of Jones. "He's an impressive young coach with a very positive attitude."

But the final decision was not an easy one, according to Ham, who complimented all applicants and their credentials.

"We had an extremely difficult time picking the finalists," he said.

"There were some really tremendous applicants—I was very impressed.

"But out of them all, Coach Jones and one other were the two strongest."

The Western Junior College Athletic Conference is no stranger to Jones, who graduated from Midland College in 1978 where he was named to the Region V basketball team as both a freshman and a sophomore.

Prior to that, Jones attended Stillwater High School in Stillwater, Oklahoma, where he was top scorer in both 3A and 4A Oklahoma schools, All-District, and an All-State alternate.

Jones has been girls basketball coach at GHS for the past four years, racking up a 75-25 total record, and leading the team to its first state championship in 67 years.

He also led his team to three state tournaments, two area championship titles, and three regional and conference titles.

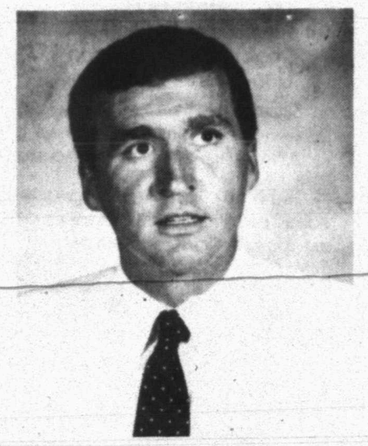

Because of these accomplishments, he was named conference coach of the year three times.

After attending Midland College, he went to Pan American University and then to Central State University in Edmond, Okla., where he received his bachelor's degree.

This past July, he earned his master's degree from the University of Central Oklahoma.

During the summer, he has been involved in the recruiting process after resigning his position at Guthrie at the end of the school year.

He and his family recently moved to Snyder.

Drama group earns recognition at El Paso festival

CAMPUS

The Western Texas College drama department was awarded Outstanding Ensemble Performance at the American College Theatre Festival in El Paso Nov. 4-9.

In addition, two cast members were singled out for honors for the play "Long Day's Journey Into Night."

Snyder's Amber Adams and Richard Lack were nominated to compete for the Irene Ryan Scholarship in February on the campus of Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Also at the El Paso festival, Snyder's Wade Freeman won the Critic's Workshop competition and advanced to the regional contest at Texas Tech in February, where he won an Award of Excellence from the Critics Institute Workshop.

Freeman competed with other Region 6 drama students from New Mexico, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma. A national finalist and alternate finalist were chosen and Freeman essentially placed third at the event.

At the El Paso competition, The University of Texas at El Paso's production of "Roosters" was nominated by the critic judge and the directors to advance. It was the only performance out of the festival that traveled to the regional festival in Lubbock.

Marley wrote of WTC's play, "This performance illuminated new meaning and excitement in a script I know very well."

During last school year, the drama department took on two theatre masterpieces, classics by Ibsen and O'Neil, and interspersed these two with a modern American comedy.

The first offering of the year was the ACTF entry, Eugene O'Neil's "Long Day's Journey Into Night." It ran from Oct. 31-Nov. 3 on campus.

Principal players in the WTC cast were Amber Adams as "Mary," the morphine-addicted mother; Richard Lack as "Tyrone," the drunken father; Brandon Neeley as "Jamie," the older brother; and Scott Clark as "Edmund," the younger brother patterned after O'Neil himself. Also in the cast was Sherri Cribbs as "Cathleen.

During the spring term, the drama group presented an experimental version of the classic drama "Hedda Gabler" by Henrik Isben.

This production featured two actresses playing the lead role and saw the Fine Arts Theatre re-arranged so that the stage area was "in the round." Performances were April 16-20.

The lead character, "Hedda," considered one of the first feminists in literature, was played by Kristi Mize and Amber Adams "to express the duality of the character."

Playing "George Tesman," Hedda's "husband of convenience," was Richard Lack; and Wade Freeman played "Judge Brack," the man who hopes to use Hedda for his own designs. In the role of "Juliana Tesman" was Kathy Johnson; Sherri Cribbs portrayed "Thea Elvsted;" and Greg Combs played "Gilbert Lovborg."

To open the spring term, the department offered "The Nerd," a comedy by Larry Shue. Its cast consisted of Brian Martinez, Jennifer Hatley, Wade Freeman, Scott Clark, Mary Ann Cooper and Greg Combs. All productions were directed by Jim Rambo.

New campus group forms...

'Non-traditional' student targeted

Non-traditional students—that is, students who are "older" than the average college student, those returning to school after some years or those with "unique" obligations—were recognized this past school year with the formation of a new campus organization.

A pilot meeting of the group was held March 31 and those present were asked to identify goals for the group, create a name and choose a form of leadership.

English instructors Janet Halbert and Marilyn Lancaster, aided by Dean of Instruction Bettie McQueen, spearheaded the group's formation.

Marilyn Lancaster welcomed the 16 attending in March and began by saying that she "went back to school" at the age of 26. "It is a difficult decision," she said, "and I endured a lot of criticism."

Janet Halbert also spoke to the group, explaining motives for initiating the group's start-up. "People that are in similiar situations can come together to support each other," she said. Out of this a sort of mentoring program may begin for newcomers.

When the formation of the group was initially proposed, Mrs. McQueen commented, "College should be a joyful experience, instead of an obstacle to overcome."

All three hope to create a core of "resource people" for non-traditional students, and so help the college experience for these students be more enjoyable.

Students provided guarantees to assure course transferability

Community college students concerned about transferring their college hours have state-mandated policy options whereby they may challenge a four-year school's refusal to accept the credit.

There is one small catch, however—students are allowed just 15 days from receipt of notification of transfer denial to challenge the decision.

Bettie McQueen, dean of instruction at Western Texas College, said any students who receive such notification should report to her office immediately to get the new official form to protest the action.

She added, however, that transferring credit is not a frequent problem for WTC students.

If it should happen, she said, students often don't question why the particular course would not transfer. "Don't hesitate to request help," said Mrs. McQueen.

The college has its own transfer plan "guarantee" also. Under it, WTC promises to offer tuition-free courses to make up for any that were not accepted at cooperating universities, assuming that the course was taken by the student upon the advice of a college counselor or advisor.

Students are encouraged to work closely with their faculty advisors or counselors on course selection. HD (Human Development) courses help students understand the options available and aid in planning courses that will transfer.

Students who change their majors may find some courses do not apply to their new major and will not count toward a different degree.

The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board adopted the guidelines and procedures for the resolution of disputes between public institutions of higher education involving the transfer of lower-division courses.

This was in response to a bill approved by the 71st Texas Legislature which charged the Commissioner of Higher Education, Dr. Kenneth Ashworth, to take steps to resolve transfer disputes.

Students who need to appeal denial of credit transfer are encouraged to check with Mrs. McQueen immediately to begin the process.

WTC support shown with logo on checks

Snyder financial institutions will print the WTC logo on personalized checks for a minimal fee or free of charge in an effort to show local support for the college.

The WTC Faculty Association's executive council first proposed the plan last year.

American State Bank of Snyder and West Texas State Bank will print checks with the WTC logo at no added charge. Because a different service is used, Snyder National Bank will add the logos for a fee ranging from $1 to $2.

The checks come in a variety of styles, including a design with WTC shadowed across the entire check and one with a small logo in the top left corner.

Lancaster is leader of TJCTA

Marilyn Lancaster
TJCTA president

Western Texas College English instructor Marilyn Lancaster will serve as president of the Texas Junior College Teachers Association (TJCTA) this school year.

Since winning the office in the spring of 1991, Mrs. Lancaster has served as president-elect of the association, which consists of 6,000 members state-wide. It was founded in 1948.

The organization represents the interests of junior college administration, faculty and students when pending legislation and other issues come before the Texas legislature.

Before being elected president, she had served as TJCTA secretary in 1989 and vice president in 1990.

When her presidency term is over in the spring of 1993, she has still another term to serve as immediate past president. She will assist the president-elect, Brian Dille, who takes over the new position in April, 1993.

As president, Lancaster has been meeting with the members of the executive council and to create an agenda for the coming year.

She has also made appointments to committees to include the professional development committee, which discusses educational issues; the legislative committee, which deals with legislative decisions; and the membership services committee, which serves the members.

In the fall, the association will make preliminary goals and decide how to achieve these at the close of the legislative session in 1993.

Mrs. Lancaster's agenda includes meetings with the committees "almost every weekend" in the fall to discuss plans for speakers at the annual convention held in February.

Another goal of the association, says Mrs. Lancaster, is to "sell the efficiency of junior colleges as a better place to get an education than a four year college."

"Four year schools only take the best, and it is clearly easier to teach the best, but junior colleges take everyone and do a much better job (of educating)," she said.

"As an organization," said Lancaster, "TJCTA represents all junior colleges, so I'll try to make sure everyone has their voice heard.

"We'll work the problems out," she said.

Literary magazine again set

The annual publication of WTC's literary magazine, "Aquifer," is scheduled for the spring term this year and the entry deadline for works of fiction, poetry or essays will be by the end of the fall term.

A creative writing class to be implemented by the English Department this fall is expected to serve as a springboard for many of this year's entries.

WTC student Anita Brown won two third place awards from the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association (TIPA) for an essay published in last year's "Aquifer."

"I Want It Now," Brown's essay, was entered in both the essay and opinion piece categories.

The "Aquifer" competed in TIPA's Division 2 consisting of university and junior colleges across the state with up to 6,000 enrollment.

Last year's 48-page "Aquifer" marked the second appearance of the revived publication. It included some 28 writer-contributors. In addition, campus artists illustrated the works with pen and ink drawings.

Faculty editors are Bill McGlothing, Janet Halbert, Dick Lancaster and Donny Brown.

Instructor honored for service

Phi Theta Kappa and the Western Texas College Student Senate honored Bob Doty during the annual Founder's Day Celebration Nov. 19.

Doty, latest recipient of the award that has been handed out since 1983, was chosen on the basis of "exceptional service" to students at WTC.

He was chosen by a vote of both PTK and student senate members.

Doty, employed by WTC for 13 years, is assistant professor of agriculture and the immediate past president of the WTC Faculty Association.

He was also National Faculty President of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association for 1989-90. He has been the faculty director for the Southwest Region of the NIRA for four years.

This June, Doty will take the WTC Rodeo Team to the College National Finals for the 11th time. His team won the national title in 1986. He also serves as the sponsor and advisor to the WTC Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

A Leuders-Avoca High School graduate, Doty received his bachelor of science degree from Abilene Christian University. He received his master of education degree from Sam Houston State University.

Gibson switches WTC roles

John Gibson, former art instructor and chairman of the Fine Arts Division, begins this year as the new director for the Continuing Education Department. As director, Gibson will work with Mike Thornton, dean of continuing education.

"We saw an increased demand for this position with the addition of the French Robertson unit," said Dean of Instruction Bettie McQueen. She noted Thornton's workload has increased as the correctional office training program has rapidly expanded.

Gibson will focus much of his time in the new position on extending and building extention units, said Mrs. McQueen. WTC currently has a total of 23 approved sites where academic and adult vocational classes may be offered.

This past summer, Gibson helped established new extension center classes at Stamford, nursing courses tied in with the hospital there.

He has also obtained a campus grant for the Mainstream program. This is designed to aid disadvantaged high school youth.

Gibson was employed by WTC in 1979 as an art instructor. He was named chairman of the Fine Arts Division here in 1988.

He served as an interim director for the Diamond M Museum in 1981.

He received his master of fine arts from the University of North Texas in 1979.

He majored in painting and drawing and minored in printmaking.

He received his bachelor of fine arts in painting from the University of Oklahoma in 1977.

Special Needs Coordinator hired for college

New staffer will assist 'special populations'

Carolyn Osborn has been named Special Populations Coordinator for WTC, a position she assumed effective Aug. 1.

Mrs. Osborn comes to WTC from Liberty Hill ISD in Georgetown where she has been employed for the last seven years as a coordinator for at-risk students.

Her responsibilities included working with academically disadvantaged students, monitoring drop-outs, counseling support groups with at-risk adolescents, coordinating the Student Assistance Program, managing the Drug Free Schools program, coordinating drug and alcohol education as well as planning field trips and programs for the prevention of substance abuse.

Also, she has counseled full-time academic and vocational students as well as parents and teachers. From 1973-78, she was employed as an elementary teacher for San Angelo ISD.

She received her master of education degree in counseling and guidance from the University of Texas at Austin this August.

Her bachelor of science degree was earned from Angelo State University in 1973 and she has also studied at Texas Tech Unviersity in Lubbock.

Mrs. Osborn is married and has one daughter. Her husband, Dan, is a counselor/instructor at WTC.

On campus, she will be filling a position made possible through a federal grant, the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technical Act.

She will provide career guidance and counseling services to "special populations" interested in or who are enrolled at WTC. These individuals include the handicapped, educationally and economically disadvantaged and individuals of limited proficiency. She will assist also in recruitment activities, vocational assessment, testing and the placement of special population individuals into appropriate occupational training programs.

Students invited to Baptist Center

WTC students are invited to visit the Baptist Student Center on campus.

It is located west of the Christian Student Center and just south of the dorm.

Open to any college student, the BSU offers pool, ping pong, foosball, games and television.

Britt Canada, associate professor of computer science, was the 1991-92 chairman of the BSU Advisory Committe.

The WTC squad, coached by ag instructor Jim Judah, won the division comprised of junior colleges, small four-year schools and technical institutes.

In addition, as a team the WTC group finished among the top three places in four major events—first in beef judging, second in pork judging, third in lamb judging and second in "questions."

The school was was among 32 teams from 16 states competing in the event's two divisions, which includes also large four-year schools.

In individual competition, WTC freshman Jimmy Kitchens placed third out of 175 entrants in the overall contest. He was seventh in beef judging, seventh in lamb judging and seventh in questions.

CAMPUS

Campus newspaper wins again

For the third year in a row, WTC's The Western Texan placed among the top three newspapers in the "best overall" category in state-wide competition sponsored by the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association (TIPA).

The Texan competes in Division 3, going against more than 30 two-year and four-year college newspapers serving a student enrollment of up to 3,000 students.

In 1990, the newspaper placed second in the "best overall" category and in 1989 it placed third. The contest is based on five complete issues of each entering newspaper.

In addition this year, the newspaper won two first place awards for students and two honorable mention prizes. All were announced at TIPA's annual convention April 9-11.

In individual awards, Chad Blake Garlington and Kerri Carter received first place honors in the newspaper advertising campaign category for their ads on several WTC drama productions.

Also winning first place honors in the newspaper sports news category was Paul Davidson for his spring, 1991 article on WTC trustee Bill Wilson and his opposition to the renewal of the college's basketball program.

An honorable mention award was also given to Sheri Hunter for last fall's newspaper sports feature story profiling Canadian cowboys Travis Whiteside and Dusty Beaton.

Keitha St. Clair's fall semester article on the dangers of date rape received an honorable mention in the newspaper editorial category.

Newspaper adviser is Donny Brown.

Local PTK earns chapter, individual honors

WTC's Phi Theta Kappa members won both individual and chapter honors for Psi Zeta at the annual PTK Regional Conference March 5-7 in Austin.

Two WTC students—Ryan Teague and Naomi Gutierrez—were among 20 named to the Texas Hall of Honor for 1991-92.

Membership into the Texas Hall of Honor is limited to those students whose length and quality of service has been deemed "extraordinary."

Also, Psi Zeta was selected as vice president for District I for 1992-93. Psi Zeta member Ryan Teague held the office for 1991-92.

In addition, Psi Zeta was again named among the Top Ten Distinguished Chapters. Along with this award, Psi Zeta received a scholarship to the Texas Honors Institute scheduled July 23-25 in San Antonio.

In another chapter honor, Psi Zeta was named a level five star chapter.

Attending the conference were Greg Combs, Dusty Green, Naomi Gutierrez, Norma Gutierrez, Susan Johnson, Brad Loesch, Ryan Teague and Mark Wood. Others who attended were PTK advisors Duane and Mary Hood.

New officers for PTK elected for the 1992-93 school year will be Anita Brown, Sharon Bigham, Greg Combs, Malli Galloway, Dusty Green, Norma Gutierrez, Emily Irons, Tommy Linsley and Diane Tolbert.

Membership is by invitation only and induction ceremonies are conducted both in the spring and fall terms.

Kappa Chi is Christian group

Kappa Chi is a club which offers Christian fellowship with membership open to all WTC students.

Kappa Chi offers retreats, leadership and service through regularly planned devotionals and small Bible study groups, notes Roy Rosson, director of the Christian Student Center where the club meets. The center is located across the parking lot from the dormitory, and east of the Baptist Student Center. Jim Judah, assistant professor of agriculture, and Rosson co-sponsor Kappa Chi.

Daily activities at the Christian Student Center—open from 10 a.m. until 4 or 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday—include pool, foosball, ping pong, air hockey, television, a library of Christian books and access to an Apple IIE professional system computer.

Admission policy noted

All high school graduates may be admitted to Western Texas College, but college officials remind that certain requirements must be met before students may register for classes.

Students must provide an official transcript or GED to WTC; submit their scores from the ACT or SAT admission exam or take the college's placement test; and complete the application for admission.

WTC offers also an early admission program for high school seniors. Those who have completed their junior year may enroll in classes to earn college credit.

Application forms for both regular and early admission are available in the Student Services office located in the front of the Learning Resource Center.

Transfer students from another college must make application and present a transcript of their entire college record before they may register.

Financial aid available here

A wide variety of financial aid is available to WTC students and those interested are urged to contact personnel with the financial aid office located in the south wing of the Learning Resource Center.

Dennis Carlton, financial aide officer, stresses that early application is the most important aspect of receiving aide.

Students who qualify for aid have this amount credited first against tuition and fees during registration. In order, funds are next applied against payment of campus housing and credit at the WTC bookstore for textbooks.

According to Carlton, students needing help in paying for the cost of an education should begin by picking up a 1991-92 Family Financial Statement (FFS) Packet from the financial aid office in the Learning Resource Center.

The form enables the student to apply for money from the federal government, state agencies, colleges and other programs.

Western Texas College scholarships are awarded in most departments on campus. A brochure listing the various grants and scholarships available at WTC can be found along with the FFS in Carlton's office.

College dorm will house 192

The WTC dormitory is comprised of four wings—two to house men students and two to house women—and has a total capacity for 192 residents.

Each floor accommodates 16 students and there is a large common area between the four wings to serve as a meeting place for occupants and their guests.

These furnished living areas include a color television and a telephone for local calls. Laundry facilities are offered plus vending machines and pay telephones. The dorm includes an "honors floor" for students with higher GPAs.

Residents are required to purchase meal tickets which entitle them to eat the 15 meals prepared each week in the college cafeteria located in the Student Activities Building.

The cost for room and board is $1,020 if it is paid at the start of each semester. A pay-out plan is available also. These plans consist of an initial payment of $545 at registration and two installment payments of $237.50 due Oct. 1 and Nov. 1

A $50 deposit must be sent to the WTC Housing Department before a student can be considered for dorm residency.

Televisions, stereos and small refrigerators are allowed in the resident's rooms. There is a $25 charge for cable per semester for a television and a $25 charge per semester for electricity if small refrigerators are used.

Microwaves are not allowed in the student rooms, but there is one available in the main lobby area.

A completed housing file is required before a student can move in. These forms consist of the $50 dorm deposit plus completion of a dorm contract, medical form, proof of insurance coverage and immunization records.

Apartments are option also

For students who meet specific criteria, WTC offers on-campus apartments rather than the traditional dormitory housing.

The apartments are available to all students, but preference is given to those enrolled in quarterly rather than per-semester programs; to foreign students; and to students living out-of-state or in-state students living a far distance from home.

Meal tickets are available but not required for apartment residents. Each apartment is fully furnished except for a television. Students provide linens and other personal items.

To rent an apartment, a deposit of $110 is required. The cost of the apartments is $495 per semester, which must be paid in full at registration.

An apartment file must be completed before the student may move in. This includes the deposit amount and filling out an apartment contract, medical form, proof of insurance coverage and immunization records.

LRC's facilities are varied

WTC's Learning Resource Center houses thousands of books, a computer lab and a reading center which is used for developmental reading students.

Also, the LRC houses a reference room complete with encyclopedias, research material, daily and weekly newspapers and periodicals.

The LRC contains also a microfilm area with magazine articles from past years stored and available. A copy machine is available to students and the library staff will make copies using the facility's microfilm copier. For both, the charge is 10 cents a copy.

The LRC also features an audio-visual department which will make copies of non-copyrighted cassette tapes for students at no cost. The students must provide a blank tape.

Cassette tape recorders are available from the circulation desk also with a three-day limit for use.

The LRC's operational schedule is: Monday-Thursday, 8 a.m. until 9 p.m.; Friday, 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.; Sunday, 2 until 5 p.m.
