Christmas relatively peaceful

Memories, leftovers and drying Christmas trees filled American homes at the end of the holiday weekend and left many a family waiting for the new year and the bills of Christmas past.

Many who had spent weeks battling department store crowds celebrated the end of the Christmas season by returning to the fray to look for post-holiday bargains. For those, there are only four more shopping days until 1977.

And for those who got the oversized sweater or just had a "reject," there was the customary wait in exchange lines.

The Christmas weekend was one in which most of the world was peaceful, if not at peace.

Pope Paul VI held the traditional midnight Mass, which was beamed live to a television audience of about one billion people in 32 nations. The Pope's Christmas message asked, "Let us honor man, whoever he may be — in whom the likeness of the divine image of Christ is reflected — and wherever there is greater need of comfort and of help."

The Irish Republican Army announced no cease-fire over the holidays, but IRA sources confirmed that the word had been passed to observe a holiday truce.

A prominent Palestinian leader and his fiancée were murdered, the only incident in an otherwise peaceful Lebanon.

Rocket and bazooka explosions along the Jordan river could be heard in Bethlehem, birthplace of Jesus, where an estimated 15,000 to 20,000 pilgrims gathered for a Christmas Eve celebration.

President Ford spent Christmas Day on the ski slopes at Vail, Colo., where a much needed snow fell Friday, and he joined millions of other Americans Sunday in watching the televised football games.

One of the gifts Ford received was a humorous present from daughter Susan. She gave him a black bath towel embroidered with the initials "MCP" — "Male Chauvinist Pig."

President-elect Carter's 9-year-old daughter, Amy, kept his Plains, Ga., household hopping. She awakened her family at 5 a.m. Saturday, but still was rewarded with a doll house and her own telephone.

The Christmas weekend was a white one over much of the Northeast and parts of the Midwest, providing a testing ground for new sleds and hazardous driving conditions in many places.

About 400 persons were killed in traffic accidents over the three-day holiday, the National Safety Council reported.

The council had estimated that 460 to 500 persons would be killed during the counting period that began at 6 p.m. Thursday and ended midnight Sunday, local time.

Some 397 persons died last year in traffic accidents when Christmas was observed as a four-day weekend.

Tragedy in the form of fire marked the holiday for some families across the nation. Twelve persons, including 10 children, died when a fire swept the Chicago apartment building where Jesus Garcia was celebrating his 11th birthday on Christmas Eve. And three young boys died and their widowed mother was injured in a Fairfield, Maine, fire that officials believe started in the family's Christmas tree.

Balky Burros big bother

By MARJ CARPENTER

COLORADO CITY — The purchase of 16 government burros at a Roswell auction back in February 1974 may not have been the last round-up, but it has almost turned into one for Jim Scott, who now operates the Truck Town Cafe in Colorado City.

Scott has been through an unbelievable two years of burro-tending. He has been involved with everybody from the Attorney General of the United States to the Roswell, N.M. sheriff.

He's been through official government burro autopsies and official government burro burials.

And he still has 13 burros. Eight of the original 16 have died, but five more were born.

Scott says the federal government owes him $9,060 for feeding this small band of wild burros.

"Well, they're not all wild now," Scott says. "My 14-year-old daughter, Debbie and her friend, Gaylene Garrison, also 14, of Roswell, broke two of the young burros. That was really a show. They got thrown off five times apiece before they rode them."

Gaylene and her mother are currently in charge of caring for the burros. Scott says he pays the Garrisons $100 a month to care for the burros and then has to pay for the feed. "The government gives me $2 a day per burro, but hay in Roswell is $3 a bale. I'm not upset about the current money as I am about the full 13 months I fed them with no help at all. And they won't let me sell them. They won't even let me give them away."

Scott used to be a Roswell livestock dealer and he says the U.S. Bureau of Land Management refuses to pay him the money they owe. Actually, Scott says he has been caught in the middle of a legal battle between the BLM and the New Mexico Livestock Board, arising from the 1974 roundup near Tularosa of 19 wild burros. He's left holding the burros.

He bought 16 of the 19 burros at an auction in Roswell in 1974 for $416. "I thought the burros were headed for the slaughter house to become dogfood and I knew I could sell them for donkey baseball games or for pets."

The livestock board had the burros rounded up originally because they were bothering cattle on the property of a ranch near Tularosa.

Scott says, "I already had six of them sold and had delivered them and the Attorney General contacted me and told me I couldn't sell them."

"Hearing from the Attorney General of the United States will get your attention. I went running back and got the three I had delivered and I gave everybody their money back. Then the hassle began."

"They told me that I should keep them in my corral until the matter was settled and that I would be reimbursed in full for feeding and caring for the burros in the meantime."

"Well, I've been paid since March 1975, but nothing for the first year. I've long since sold the corral and had to put them out in another corral."

UW conclave set Tuesday

Collections in the 1976 Howard County United Way campaign have inched upward to $115,200, which represents 82 per cent of the $134,000.

UW President Daryl Pittman met with UW division chairmen at 2 p.m., Tuesday in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Company building to see what can be done about getting the remainder of the money pledged.

Many cards have not yet been worked, Pittman said, and Big Spring can achieve its goal only if everyone gives his or her fair share.

The meeting of UW workers was to have taken place last week but was called off due to the nearness of Christmas.

Among firms which report 100 per cent collections are Bob Brock Ford and Piggly-Wiggly.

A breakdown on collections by divisions will be offered by Pittman and his staff at the meeting Tuesday.

Daley succession fight avoided by compromise?

CHICAGO (AP) — Factions in the fight to succeed Mayor Richard J. Daley have worked out another compromise designed to head off a threatened revolt by black Democrats.

Under the agreement, explained by aldermen from Daley's organization, Alderman Michael Bilandic of Daley's 11th Ward will be selected acting mayor when the City Council meets Tuesday and has agreed not to run in a special election which must be held within six months.

Alderman Wilson Frost, black president pro-tem of the council, who earlier had proclaimed himself acting mayor, will replace Bilandic as chairman of the Finance Committee, a coveted position.

The City Council also will create a position of vice-mayor, which immediately will be filled by one of the 13 Polish-American aldermen.

The proposed settlement came out of a series of meetings Sunday.

Thomas Donovan, Daley's patronage aide, was reported to have been instrumental in the compromise — the third which has been worked out since Daley's death a week ago.

Frost reportedly took part in the negotiations but was unavailable for comment.

Black supporters of Frost were angry when they heard of the apparent deal.

"If it's true, you couldn't even print my reaction," said independent state Rep. Jesse Madison, D-Chicago. "But I just don't believe it's true."

Alderman Roman Pucinski, possibly in line for the newly proposed post of vice-mayor, said the most recent compromise will avoid "a clash with serious racial overtones."

In an advertisement in today's Chicago newspapers the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, national president of Operation PUSH (People United To Save Humanity), said, "Wilson Frost should not be the interim mayor because he is black, nor any person because of his ethnic heritage."

The advertisement, signed by more than 100 community leaders, most of them black, criticized an earlier agreement under which two City Hall power brokers, Aldermen Edward R. Vrydolyak and Edward Burke, agreed to support Bilandic in return for increased importance in the council.

That agreement apparently was superseded by Sunday's developments, however.

Former Stanton patrolman quits

Bobby Papasand, a former state trooper at Stanton, later stationed in San Angelo, resigned suddenly from the highway patrol last week.

The San Angelo Department of Public Safety spokesman said no information concerning the resignation of Papasand would be released at this time.

County accepts bid to microfilm records

Howard County Commissioners today accepted a bid in the amount of $15,501 from Southern Microfilm Corp. of Houston, for the complete microfilming of county records.

All the commissioners agreed that the price was more reasonable than expected, especially since they could anticipate recovering a third of the expense through sales of copies to abstract companies.

The contract calls for the project to begin within 30 days. It will run for approximately four months.

The advantage of the microfilm lies in the fact that, in case of disaster, replacement of the records without the copies would cost approximately $4 million. The microfilm copies can be conveniently stored in a bank vault, and can be used to reproduce the older books as they become brittle, as well as provide a back-up copy.

Three other bids were presented to the court. One, although lower, was not up to specifications, so the court accepted the lowest comparable bid.

In other action, the court awarded a contract for delinquent tax attorney to Jack McCreary out of Austin. McCreary will replace the local firm of Miller, Brown, and Hamby, who were handling the contract. McCreary will handle all delinquent tax accounts for the county.

Harvey Hooser, who as county attorney-elect had first shot at the position, told the commissioners he was not interested in the job, saying with a grin, "I intend to be busy persecutin' people."

The commissioners also established the terms for the next year.

In their afternoon session, they are expected to discuss at length with Sheriff A.N. Standard the application for wage equalization made by two female deputies in the Howard County Sheriff's Department, Mrs. Rachel Shaffer and Mrs. Bernice Nail.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: No SWAT team

Q. Is there a S.W.A.T. team in Big Spring? The reason I ask is because I saw this policeman with a Doberman, an unmarked police car, and wearing civilian clothes.

P.S. This guy was wearing a badge.

A. Big Spring Police Capt. Sherril Farmer states that there is not a Special Weapons and Tactics Team in Big Spring. Our city isn't big enough to warrant one, according to Farmer. Local officers are, however, trained in the use of special weapons and emergency tactics, he said.

There are also no dogs owned by the department. According to Farmer, local police once used a dog, but it proved so unsatisfactory that it was sent back to its original owner and never replaced.

The Captain also claims that local police often work in plain clothes on special assignments, and sometimes wear badges during these assignments. Local detectives are always in plain clothes.

In reply to the question about the vehicle, Farmer asked, "If the car was unmarked, how did they know it was a police car?"

Calendar: UW meeting

TUESDAY

United Way division chairmen will meet in Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room, 2 p.m., for updated report on 1976 campaign.

Dedication of time capsule and BASIC scrapbook at the Heritage Museum, 12:30 p.m.

Offbeat: Ceremonies, anyone?

SEATTLE (AP) — If drama, pomp and circumstance are missing from your life, Roberta Arnett will help you find them — for $30 an hour.

Mrs. Arnett, the founder, president and sole employee of the Cosmis Androgyny Ceremony Design Service, thinks up ceremonies suitable for life's big occasions.

Not only will she plan weddings and funerals, Mrs. Arnett helps clients commemorate other important changes in their lives — new jobs, puberty and menopause.

"What a ceremony really does is gets you free to go on to the next event," says the 35-year-old former social worker. "It helps to define clearly what you are doing. A lot of times, if you don't define that, you can't go on. You get lost in the middle."

Mrs. Arnett's fascination with ceremonies began when she put together her own wedding a year ago.

Tops on TV: Wide variety

For football buffs, there's the Penn State-Notre Dame Gator Bowl game out of Jacksonville, Fla., starting at 8 p.m. Ralph Waite makes a rare appearance away from The Waltons when he stars in "The Secret Life of John Chapman" on CBS starting at 8:30 p.m. And the second portion of "Camelot," the famed musical starring Richard Harris, is down for 8 p.m., on NBC.

'Conscience of Senate' Philip Hart dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philip A. Hart, who influenced major civil rights and consumer protection legislation during three terms in the U.S. Senate, is dead at 64.

Hart, a Michigan Democrat, died at his Washington home Sunday, a victim of cancer.

Often called "the conscience of the Senate," Hart worked hard for passage of civil rights laws and for measures that would protect consumers from powerful big business interests. He sought unsuccessfully to win approval of legislation to dismantle the nation's largest businesses.

Hart was a leader of the Senate liberals and had announced in June of 1975 that he would not seek a fourth Senate term because he believed "that the guard should be changed with some regularity."

A month after his announcement, Hart discovered he had cancer.

A spokesman for Hart's office said he died of malignant melanoma.

President-elect Carter issued a statement from his office in Plains, Ga., praising Hart as "a man of unquestioned integrity" who "exemplified the highest of moral and ethical standards in public service. He was a friend of the American consumer and a tireless worker against injustice."

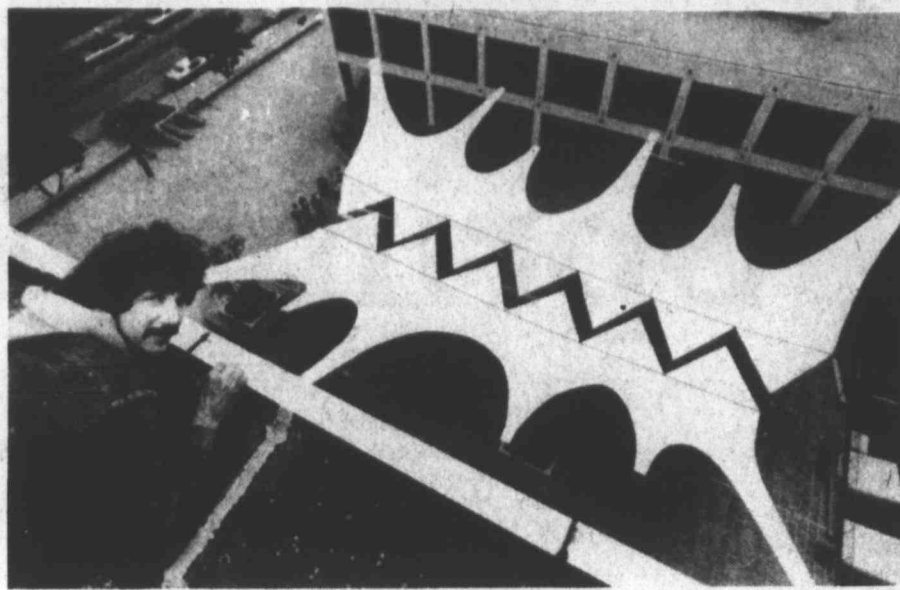

Carter called Hart's death "a tragic loss."

President Ford, vacationing in Vail, Colo., expressed "deep regret" over Hart's death.

Fellow Sen. Edward M.

Kennedy, D-Mass., called Hart "a giant in the Senate.... His voice never shook the rafters, but touched the conscience of every senator who worked with him."

According to a spokesman for Hart's office, funeral arrangements were planned by Hart and his wife. The spokesman said a public memorial Mass will be celebrated at St. Matthews Cathedral here Tuesday. Hart's body will be cremated and the remains taken to Mackinac Island, Mich., on Wednesday for private burial in St. Anne's Catholic cemetery, the spokesman said. The Harts have a home on the island.

THE BIG ZIPPER — Richard Brown, University of Texas art instructor, views his environmental sculpture, "zipper," suspended by cables between the Communications and Student Publications building at the Austin campus of the University. The work, made of canvas and trimmed with lightweight stainless steel, is shaped to resemble the teeth of an open zipper and is Brown's contribution to the annual Art Faculty Exhibition.

Police beat Burglars swipe $600 TV set

Someone, apparently dissatisfied with their own Christmas gifts, decided to relieve R.E. Hallman 210 Carey, of his.

According to reports, a burglar entered Hallman's residence through the back door, and leaving the same way, carried off a $600 color TV set, and a $40 clock-radio between noon and 9:00 p.m. Christmas day.

Someonebody, perhaps overzealous with his new B-B gun, shot out two windows of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 1803 Wasson.

According to reports, the windows were broken

Victim ready to go home

LAMESA — A stabbing victim in a Lamesa hospital is ready to leave the wild west and head back to Dallas.

Manuel Ramos of Dallas told City Police Chief Lee Bartlett that he came out of a Lubbock club and saw three men attempting to steal the wheel and tire off his car. In the fracas that followed, he ended up with a stabbing wound.

He drove to Lamesa and admitted himself to Medical Arts Hospital for treatment. A matter was routinely referred to city police.

mag wheels, two tires, a carburetor, a transmission, and an automobile hood; all worth around $600.

The Gregg Street Wash-O-Rama, 1703 Gregg, was ripped off of about $350 in small change by a burglar using an unknown tool to get into the machines.

According to reports, the burglary caused no damage to the washers and dryers.

A girl drove into Randy's Fina, 3101 W. Highway 80, and filled up her car with $12 worth of premium gas, and left without bothering to pay.

At about 10:30 Sunday morning.

Massingill is hospitalized

Bert Massingill of Luther was hospitalized at Malone-Hogan Hospital this morning after the pickup he was driving went out of control after hitting a pile of caliche in Borden County.

The driver of a pickup behind him took Massingill to the Massingill Store in Luther and the injured man's brother-in-law brought him to Big Spring for X rays and a checkup of possible fractured ribs.

State Troopers, when notified, went to the hospital to talk to Massingill and also to the scene of the accident on Highway 1584 north of Vealmoor.

Reuniting nation Ford's top deed

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford says his greatest contribution while in office was reuniting a divided country, while his greatest disappointments were his inability to turn the economy around as "effectively as I hoped" and failure to obtain a second strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union.

Ford also said President-elect Carter will soon find that promises he made in the heat of the presidential campaign are going to be hard to keep once he enters the Oval Office.

Concerning campaign promises of his own, Ford said he still intends to ask the new Congress, which meets Jan. 4, for a tax cut that will consist of "increasing personal exemptions and reducing corporate rates."

The President made his observations during an interview with ABC newswoman Barbara Walters. The text of the interview, taped with the President and Mrs. Ford in the White House before they left for a Vail, Colo., vacation, was released Sunday, ABC will air the discussion Sunday, Jan. 2.

Recalling August 9, 1974, when he took over the presidency from Richard M. Nixon, Ford said, "People were angry with one another, there was a divisiveness among our people, there was distrust of people for their government and Washington, as an institution, I think, was in great disrepute."

"So the last two and a half years, I feel, has changed the whole atmosphere very significantly."

The President also again defended his decision to pardon Nixon while admitting that the action had an "adverse impact" on his chances in the election.

They are being held under $20,000 bond.

The men were arrested Sunday in Sierra Blanco driving a stolen dump truck, which was filled with questionable goods.

Raymond Rodriguez Severillano, 18, and Armando Lara Garcia, 21, are accused of stealing the truck which belonged to Juan Arguello on Saturday night. When arrested Sunday, they were driving the truck which was filled with 12 8-track tapes, two stereo players, a Vagabond bicycle, an RCA TV, a rug with Gene Miller marked on it, a GE electric clock, and a battery charger. ## Holiday train derails DOWNINGTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The Broadway Limited Amtrak passenger train derailed near here Sunday night, sending 36 persons to hospitals for treatment of minor injuries, an Amtrak spokeswoman said.

Four of the injured on the Philadelphia-to-Chicago special holiday train were admitted to Chester County and Coatsville General hospitals, but their injuries were not believed to be serious, hospital officials said.

The others were treated for cuts and bruises and released from Chester County, Coatsville General and Paoli Memorial hospitals.

About 160 passengers from the five-car train were cared for in the Downingtown Senior High School gymnasium, the Amtrak spokeswoman said.

The spokeswoman said 95 of those taken to the gymnasium were bused to Harrisburg to continue their trip to Chicago, four were placed in a local motel, and the remainder returned to their local homes.

An earlier report from a fire dispatcher that as many as 60 passengers were injured was termed incorrect by officials.

Officials said 12 ambulances were dispatched to transport the injured from the scene of the derailment, about 25 miles west of Philadelphia, to the hospitals.

All five cars of the passenger train ran off the rails and came to rest in a leaning position, but none of the cars overturned, said Lois Morasco, a spokeswoman for Amtrak.

Scene of great joy

By WILFRID M. CALNAN
Director, Howard Co.
Family Service Center
Choose Life — Part I
"I have set before you life and death—choose life."
Deuteronomy 30:19.

The Place: San Pedro, in the Rio Grande Valley, Texas, St. Mary's Catholic Church Parish Hall.

Date: Thursday,
December 30, 1976, 10:00
p.m.

Keith Gates, correspondent for a nationally-known publication files his report.
Gates' report follows.

For me 1977 is here and a new vision of what life is and can be. I have come to a scene of exceeding joy.
Mariachi bands are playing.
People are talking, joking,
and dancing. Old people, middle-aged people, young married couples and their children, and youth. There are babies asleep, amidst all this noise and excitement.

The accents are Spanish, or Mexican.

Earlier in the day I had the opportunity to talk with the man who is responsible for all this: Moises Jose Alvarez. Senor Moises has fuzzy white hair and a swarthy, lined face and he is stooped. As you might expect. You see, this is his eightieth birthday. His brown eyes still flash, and the crows feet at either side of his eyes crinkle often as he smiles.

Senor Moises speaks a broken English. Father Mike, parish priest, who speaks Tex-Mex with an Irish brogue, sat with us and,
as necessary, acted as interpreter. Moises, a seemingly uneducated man, spoke with the wisdom that befits a father of his people.

Movingly, he narrated the long evolution of the
"Chicano" culture, as some of the younger generation call it now. As if he had been there, he related the 700 years of subjugation by the Moors his people had suffered in Spain. He told of witnessing like treatment of his people in Mexico and in Texas.

"Why, with all this," I asked, "are your people still intact and so happy?" He smiled and patted me on the knee. "Because, my Son," he answered, "We believe, we know that life is a special gift. We treasure it. We celebrate it every time we can. Tomorrow we may not be here. What we can do now will count."

If we are not here tomorrow, then God will give our work to someone else to complete. We choose life.
God chooses death."

The prophet went on to explain the sacredness of family life in his culture. Not only are mother and father respected by the children, but so are aunts and uncles, and godparents. All take responsibility for raising children. Cousins are important, too. "When we have trouble the family — the great big family — comes together. When we have a special joy to celebrate the big family and many other families come together."

I have just wired my wife:
"Martha, I'll be home for New Year's Eve. I want you and Theresa and Doug to choose life with me. I have a great story to tell."

Rites held for crash dead

BANGKOK, Thailand
(AP) — A Buddhist monk performed a memorial ceremony today at the wreckage of an Egyptian jetliner, as workers continued to recover bodies from the rubble of the Christmas Day crash.

Accident investigators searched the twisted steel girders and collapsed concrete of the textile factory hit by the plane, where shattered fragments of the Boeing 707 were scattered.

More than 70 persons died in the disaster — all 55 aboard the airplane and,
officials believe, 18 workers in the factory, one mile north of the Bangkok airport.

Twenty-one Japanese arrived early today from Tokyo to try to identify the remains of their relatives.
Nine Japanese were among the passengers, and one stewardess was Japanese.

The relatives presented offerings as the monk chanted. A banner read
"May the souls of the dead know peace and happiness."

The director of the Thai Civil Aviation Department told reporters that air traffic controllers in the airport tower had detected nothing wrong when the jet prepared to land in light fog about 3:40 a.m.

An eight-member Thai team and a special squad of Egyptian investigators are working together to find the cause of the crash.

The manifest of the Egyptian flight, which originated in Cairo and stopped in Bangkok, listed Egyptians, Thais, Malaysians, Japanese and other nationalities among the passengers.

One American was believed to have boarded the jet at Bombay, but identification was not released pending notification of kin.

Air bases were prioritized by ATC

Reading Lt. Gen. James Roberts' quote that he is not going to do any more recommending on which Air Training Command bases to close is most interesting.

PARTICULARLY since Gen. Roberts, commander of ATC, claimed that he did not say which two should be closed in the first place.

Gen. Roberts, in a story which ran in the Selma (Ala.) Times-Journal, was quoted following a talk to the Selma High Schools JROTC group.

"About a year ago," Gen. Roberts said, "I recommended that two bases in the command should be closed, but at time I did not say which two should be the ones."

That would mean that in November or December of 1975, ATC recommended to the Pentagon that two bases be closed.

But ATC did say which two, according to the Air Staff, and according to

M. GEN. JAMES ROBERTS

ATC officials who were in Big Spring for the public hearing.

At a meeting before the hearing, the Air Force gave Big Spring citizens a sheet of paper containing some information we had requested.

The paper listed five bases which ATC had said could be closed.

The Air Force officials said that in November 1975 the ATC had prioritized the bases in the order in which it recommended they should be closed. The prioritization, they said, was the same order that they were listed on the street of paper with the ones that should be closed listed first. The paper read:

"The Air Training Command input indicated that Craig, Webb, Vance, Columbus, and Laughlin could be closed with minimal impact on the command's mission. The relative order of least impact from the command perspective is as indicated."

So now we know that:

1) In November or early December 1975, Gen. Roberts recommended two ATC bases be closed.

2) November 1975, the ATC is said to have prioritized the bases in the order that they should be closed with Craig AFB listed as first to go, Webb AFB given the second spot.

3) In December 1975, a month after the above things had transpired, ATC made the decision to reduce Webb's mission from the heaviest load in the command to about the lowest, along with Craig.

WE IN Big Spring tried hard to accept the Air Force's statements on the 1976 Webb decision and drawn-down in good faith, but the more that is known about what took place, the more the story is full of holes.

And still no substantive reply has been made to our questions.

Somebody is not telling the truth about the decision to make Webb a candidate for closure and the decision to drawdown the mission.

These decisions greatly affect the present and future of our town, and we have a right to straight answers from the Air Force.

Why can't we get them?

— J. TOM GRAHAM

Rebuffing Mr. Meany

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The reason the usual seasonal smiles were not on the faces of top officials and staffers at AFL-CIO headquarters when they sat down to their annual Christmas luncheon Tuesday was expressed candidly by one leader: "He didn't give us anything, and we don't owe him anything."

"HE" IS President-elect Carter, and what he did not give the AFL-CIO was Dr. John Dunlop of Harvard as Secretary of Labor. Actually, the aggrieved union officials have no great preference for Dunlop over Carter's choice, Dr. Ray Marshall of the University of Texas. Rather, the President-elect's decision not to select Dunlop was such a chilling rebuff because it placed them far lower on the political influence ladder than they imagined themselves to be.

Rarely has an event so lacking in policy significance been so rich in political innuendo. Dunlop's rejection illustrated power realities within the Democratic coalition, the unwritten taboos prevailing there and the split inside organized labor. It also typifies occasional Carter clumsiness, this time making the worst of a difficult situation.

Immediately following the election, no cabinet post seemed easier to fill than Labor. President George Meany and the rest of the AFL-CIO hierarchy wanted Dunlop, who quit as President Ford's Secretary of Labor when he vetoed a union-backed picketing bill. Considering the unprecedented AFL-CIO campaign effort for Carter, labor chieftains in the Philip Murray Building on 16th Street felt a proprietary interest over this one cabinet post.

BY MID-NOVEMBER, however, word was being passed that "Dunlop is bad on blacks and women," followed by formal opposition from the Congressional Black Caucus and the National Women's Political Caucus. Like "Red" charges a generation ago, the accusation in itself convicted Dunlop: some Carter aides promptly began seeking an alternative.

Dunlop had broken what has become a Democratic party taboo: he had questioned details of "affirmative action," which boils down to mandatory hiring quotas of blacks and women for anybody doing business with the federal government.

Dunlop sealed his fate in testifying before a House subcommittee June 19, 1975, when he questioned "the efficacy of using the government procurement process as an equal employment enforcement mechanism." Dunlop's stated doubts about imposing the quota system on federal contractors, rather than failure to enforce the law as charged, is the source of his trouble.

In a straight power test of women-blacks against labor, labor might have won. But it was not that simple. Organized labor is no monolith, and left-of-center unions which this year formed the Labor Clearinghouse Coalition were low on Dunlop. Indeed, opposition from the county, state and municipal workers (APSCME), the machinists and other AFL-CIO unions in the Coalition was palpable.

Vitamin A won't help

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has a hearing problem caused by nerve deterioration. Recently we talked to someone who uses vitamin A for this and thinks it helps his problem. We would appreciate knowing more about it before my husband tries it. — Mrs. E. N.

I can't keep track of all the various vitamin claims. Many are exaggerated, many untrue.

Vitamin A won't help his hearing problem. A deficiency of vitamin A may cause eye problems, chiefly night blindness. From that I suppose it's a simple leap of illogic for some folks to assume it will help the ears, too.

Nerve deafness is more difficult to help than so-called conductive hearing loss. In the latter, some barrier prevents the passage of sound waves to the inner ear where they are detected. A problem as simple as accumulated ear wax can cause that kind of deafness.

In nerve-related loss the causes are more complicated. In these cases, sound waves may reach the detection apparatus, but because of nerve damage there is no way to use them properly — to hear.

Hearing aids may be effective in the simpler kind of deafness, and may help a bit in certain types of nerve-related loss. Your husband should investigate this.

As for the vitamin A, it is always wise to use such supplements only when the need has been established by investigation. This is one of the vitamins that should be used with caution because of possible adverse effects. A normal diet supplies our needs.

Artic explorers have reported episodes of drowsiness, headache, vomiting, and skin reactions after subsisting for a time on the liver of polar bear or seal. Liver is high in vitamin A because it is stored there. The dosage for such effects to occur would have to be quite high, more than you would get in an average commercial capsule.

Buy why should your husband spend good money for something that's not going to help?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that apple seeds are poisonous. I eat the whole apple and have for years with no known ill effects. Please tell me if there is any truth about the poison business? What would the symptoms be? — R. T.

Some seeds do contain a chemical akin to cyanide. Large fruit pits (peach, cherry, plum, for examples) contain a considerable amount in their centers. This has the odor of almonds. But poisoning is a matter of dosage. In large amounts cyanide is quick acting, but the amount from a few apple seeds would be small indeed and would not affect you. However, even small doses of cyanide can cause vomiting, diarrhea, dizziness, headache and mental confusion.

You have survived the apple seeds with no apparent ill effect, probably because they were passed more or less intact through your bowel. It would be worse if you chewed the seeds.

Some apple seeds are quite small and could possibly present problems if you had a bowel problem, such as diverticulosis. This refers to the presence of tiny pouches in the intestinal lining, it is possible for smaller seeds to lodge in these pouches. This problem increases with age. One reference estimates that about 30 per cent of persons over 45 have these pouches.

So for that reason, if for no other, I would advise you to stick to the pulp of your apples and forego the seeds.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please answer this for me in layman's terms. A box of cigars is riding on the answer. I say

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am concerned about a friend of mine who asked Christ into her heart but does not seem to love Christ. She does not witness to others and does not really live the Christian life. What has gone wrong? — G. L.

DEAR G. L.: The Christian life is always a combination of receiving and giving. It is always good to be on the receiving end but many people fail to appreciate their obligations to give as well. This may well be what has gone wrong in your friend's life. The weak Christian is usually the one who is willing to take from God forgiveness, cleansing, eternal life, love, peace and all the other blessings of the Christian life, without giving anything in return. Such an attitude denotes a complete misunderstanding of Christ's teaching.

Paul referred to himself as "a servant of Jesus Christ" (Romans 1:1). The title of servant was also accepted by James, Peter and even Mary, the mother of Jesus. Every Christian is called to serve Christ constantly. Jesus explained His own attitude toward servants in Luke 17:7-10, where He concludes by stating: "So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do."

There is a great need in all our churches for clear teaching on the cost of discipleship, the call for a life fully committed to Christ and what it means to be the servant of Jesus Christ. Christians grow to greater maturity if they are on the giving end of the Christian life as well as on the receiving end.

Loves ornamentation

Around the rim

James Werrell

Well, there are only 363 shopping days until Christmas. This year's Yule log is ashes in the fireplace, and the only relief from post Noel blues is the thought of a New Year's bacchanalia.

AT THIS point, I would like to sing praises to the much-maligned ideal that really makes up the spirit of Christmas; crass commercialism and every tacky, tasteless thing connected with it.

I love it when Christmas advertising begins the day after Thanksgiving. The sooner the better. Thanksgiving, except for the opportunity to bloat oneself, is sort of a dud holiday anyway.

Christmas is, without a doubt, the number one, most fantastic holiday of the year. And the chance to overspend in the spirit of giving is what makes it so great.

The ability to overspend is relative. Last year I was not so able to answer the siren call of shiftless salesmen as I was this year. But nonetheless, I managed to be just as foolish with what money I had.

The really important factor is that I spent more than I should have, and will continue to do so.

Another thing I love about Christmas is the gaudy ornamentation. Have you taken a close look at the snowman ornament at the corner of the Howard County Courthouse? Hideous!

But what other time of year could the city get away with this? Our own Christmas tree is decorated with homemade ornaments in the shape of Volkswagens, bloated fish, and antelopes.

THE APARTMENT is covered with a variety of glittery cards, candles, mistletoe, holly, metallic angels, and blinking lights. Other homes have been adorned with aluminum wreaths, blue-aluminum Christmas trees, and aluminum Santa figures.

I have seen houses with a life-size Saint Nick whipping eight life-size reindeers into shape on the roof.

If you don't think Christmas is gaudy, just look at the clothes Santa Claus wears. How would he look at a Rotary meeting at any other time of the year but Christmas?

Don't forget the songs: "Christmas Time's A'comin'" by Buck Owens, "Jingle Bells" by Alvin and the Chipmunks, "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" by Gene Autry, and "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus" by everybody.

The best way to appreciate this music is to listen to it over the loud-speaker systems in local supermarkets. I love it.

It is wise to regard the true spirit of Christmas through the innocently selfish eyes of a child. Just lie back and enjoy all that neat stuff under the tree, and savor the opportunity to do most everything to excess.

So here's hoping you had a very merry Christmas. And that you gave, gave, and received in equal measure, and, most important, that you didn't feel guilty about any of it.

Opposed probe

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — President-elect Jimmy Carter may be about to appoint a top energy official who allegedly tried to quash a grand jury investigation of oil price overcharges.

DOUGLAS ROBINSON is now a front-runner for a key energy post in the Carter administration. Yet in a letter stamped "personal and confidential," Rep. John Moss (D-Calif.) has alerted the Carter forces that Robinson in 1974 opposed the oil investigation.

Robinson was then deputy general counsel of the Federal Energy Administration in charge of compliance. But Moss, whose House Commerce Oversight subcommittee keeps a sharp eye on the FEA, questioned whether Robinson was interested in compliance or whitewash in the oil case.

Moss stressed in his letter that he has not "come to any conclusion on the exact nature of Mr. Robinson's role in this matter." Nevertheless, he sent the Carter forces a staff memo questioning Robinson's conduct.

On Feb. 16, 1975, we reported that evidence had been laid before federal grand juries of oil price fraud. Oil companies were taking advantage of the oil squeeze, we wrote, to jack up fuel oil prices. We noted that the FEA was trying "to confine the federal investigation to civil action."

The following May 30, we told of an attempt to squelch a criminal investigation of Ven-Fuel. This is a Florida company that allegedly raised oil prices illegally from $5.70 to more than $12 a barrel.

We never mentioned Robinson's name. But the staff memo portrays him as a ringleader in the effort to spare Ven-Fuel from criminal prosecution.

In a lengthy interview with our associates Marc Smolonsky and Larry Kraftowitz, Robinson explained that he didn't believe Ven-Fuel could be successfully prosecuted. Therefore, he recommended a civil investigation. But he said he agreed to postpone the civil proceedings, which could have damaged the criminal case, until others had determined whether indictments could be brought.

According to the staff memo, U.S. Attorney John Briggs in Jacksonville has now presented evidence of criminal violations to the Justice Department. This could lead to a multiple-count indictment; a federal grand jury may hear the evidence as early as next month, according to our sources.

The memo, summing up the case against Robinson, alleges that he took the following steps to discourage a criminal investigation:

—IN A closed-door meeting with Justice and Customs officials, he insisted there was "no violation of FEA regulations and very likely no violation of law." He declared, therefore, that he was "strongly opposed to the continuation of the grand jury investigation."

—In an October 3, 1974, memo to FEA chief John Sawhill, Robinson complained that the Justice Department investigation was "moving much too fast, especially considering the complexity of the legal issues and the sketchiness of the facts." He wanted Justice to "hold up the grand jury investigation" until the FEA had completed its own investigations.

—In a separate memo to Sawhill two days later, Robinson reported that the Justice Department would make "no indictments" in the Ven-Fuel case "until we have expressly authorized them." Rep. Moss' staff called this "a totally improper commitment for Justice to make or FEA to seek."

Want women to fill jobs

By RANDI ROSENBLUM
NEW YORK (AP) — She's bright, assertive, 30-ish and has an MBA from Harvard. She's new to the executive suite, but with federal anti-discrimination laws and the women's liberation movement behind her, she's there to stay.

More and more companies are beginning to look actively for women to fill top level jobs, say executive search firms, the headhunters that help companies find candidates for high-salaried positions. This is especially true, they say, in companies that make products aimed at the female market and are vulnerable to consumer pressure.

But in all areas of business, even such heretofore male-dominated ones as heavy industry, companies are beginning to say, "We want a woman." "I doubt that this would be happening without the feds," said the head of one search firm, referring to the anti-discrimination laws. But there are also more women in graduate schools of business, another search firm executive points out, adding that for the first time there is a supply of qualified young women entering the business world.

Until the mid-'60s very few women studied business in universities because there was generally no demand for a woman with a business background. "Get your teaching degree," was the paternal refrain that rang in the ears of girl undergraduates.

"Sixteen years ago I would never have looked for a woman to fill a man's job," says Paul Ray, president of his own search firm. "I was prejudiced. Today I don't think anything of it." He says only about one per cent of the people he placed in 1975 were women but expects this figure to climb to between five and eight per cent in the next five years.

Lynn Gilbert of Gilbert-Tweed Associates thinks about 15 per cent of their placements this year have been women — twice as many as in past years. "I don't think we could have been in business ourselves 10 years ago," said her partner, Jan Tweed, referring to their all-female search firm.

All three executive searchers say that most women in business still go into retailing, utilities, banks and public services and that companies are more likely to hire them in positions like planning, marketing research, advertising and occasionally sales management.

Most women in business learn a technical discipline and are given staff jobs, said Ray. He feels more women should be getting training to qualify for managerial positions. "It is time that women take their own future into their hands."

One of the most troublesome problems facing the emerging female executive is relocation, the executive searchers note. "Is a woman willing to pay the price — to go to the sticks for a job?" asks Ray. But, Ms. Gilbert points out, as more wives enter the job market, relocation has become a major problem for male executives, too.

"One out of every three male executives contacted says he can't move because it would interfere with his wife's career or studies," says Ms. Gilbert. Recognizing this, Ms. Tweed notes, some companies have employees whose only function is to court Mrs. Candidate.

Some couples try to overcome the obstacles of being a two-career family by submitting dual resumes.

"It's a terrific idea," says Ms. Gilbert, "but there are very few couples whose careers are in tandem." Ray said that some women asked their prospective employers to help their husbands relocate as a condition for taking the job, but so far companies have not been receptive to this approach.

Compare Income

How does your family income stack up against the rest of the country? Try a little bit of comparison shopping courtesy of the January Family Circle: 1.1 per cent of the population is generally categorized as "rich" (with $50,000 or more annual income); 10.4 per cent, as "affluent" ($25,000 to $50,000); 28.3 per cent, as "upper-middle" ($15,000 to $25,000); 24.3 per cent, as "middle" ($10,000 to $15,000); 22.7 per cent, as "lower-middle" ($5,000 to $10,000); and 13.1 per cent as "poor" ($5,000 and under).

Schuster, $8.95 gives menus and recipes for dinners for four to 16. The author, a former newspaper food editor, was fortunate enough to travel around the world with her university professor husband, with long stays in a number of countries. Her book reflects her interest in the dishes prepared in some of these regions. She says, "I found the foods of Belgium, the Mideast and India the most fascinating, but I have taken a recipe here, a serving idea or culinary technique there, and have re-created, adjusted and finally incorporated these in my own repertoire for dinner parties." Because she has a gift for organizing material well and writing directions succinctly but with helpful details, her book may be a lifesaver for would-be but insecure dinner party givers.

Books to spur entertaining

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

To spur entertaining or for gifts, here are some of the interesting new books.

"Entertaining with Wine" by Ruth Church Rand McNally, $16.95 is both handsome and practical. From its stunning jacket and durable grape-colored cover to its illustration and choice of topics, this book is designed for hosts and hostesses who want to enliven their parties with wine but need a helping hand in planning and executing. The author has had many years of experience as a newspaper food editor and cookbook author and writes a syndicated column, "Let's Learn about Wines."

Because about 15 years ago when she started her wine column, she herself had to find her way in the world of enology, she knows how to offer aid with ease and wit. Her preliminary chapters treat the keeping, serving and enjoyment of wine and go fully into matching food to beverage. Whether it's a matter of asking friends to come for an appetizer or to stay to lunch, of celebrating with champagne or giving informal or formal dinners, "Entertaining with Wine" offers pertinent information and many fine menus and appealing recipes.

Complains about wide rear view

DEAR ABBY: There ought to be a law prohibiting women who are under 5 feet 10 and weigh over 165 pounds from wearing tight pants.

From the rear they look like they're carrying around a couple of watermelons. It wouldn't be so bad if they stuck to dark colors, but these klutzes always wear shocking pink or bright orange. And the pants are usually made of a stretch material, which is stretched to the point of straining at the seams.

Please, Abby, use your influence to get some legislation going to outlaw such unsightly sights. They mar the beauty of our streets and shopping centers.

DISGUSTED IN BOSTON

DEAR DISGUSTED: The law you suggest would be as hard to pass as would another making it a misdemeanor to watch such "klutzes." Sorry, but there's no law that says you have to look.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl who loves both her parents tremendously. Every night I make my Dad a lunch for him to carry to work the next day. This evening I found a note in his lunch box that read: "Honey, meet me after work tonight. I love you. (Signed) Nora."

Abby, my Dad "worked" two hours late last night, so now I'm putting 2 and 2 together. I always thought my Mom and Dad had a good marriage, but I'm beginning to wonder. One thing I'm sure of: My Mom loves my Dad and trusts him.

Should I tell my Mom? I'm afraid she might leave him, and I don't want that. Please help me. I've got to tell somebody, and you're the only one I can trust.

THEIR OLDEST CHILD

DEAR CHILD: Don't tell your Mom. It's possible that someone played a joke on your father. (Or maybe someone was trying to get him into trouble.) Tell your Dad you found the note and give him a chance to explain.

DEAR ABBY: Once again you advised: "If you go, you owe." I write to disagree.

Forty years ago, an elderly man (whose age I am now) did a favor for me. When I promised to repay him, he said, "I GAVE that to you. If you repay me, that makes it a LOAN."

Since then, I've tried to live that creed. Now you tell my guests that I have merely "loaned" them my hospitality, and they must pay it back, thereby denying me the joy of giving. I protest.

LOU ROSEN: SANTA ROSA

DEAR LOW: Your protest is noted. But if someone accepted my hospitality repeatedly without reciprocating, I'd wonder why.

CONFIDENTIAL TO N.L. IN L.A.: No one said it better than Harry Emerson Fosdick: "Vital religion is like good music. It needs no defense, only rendition. A wrangling controversy in support of religion is as if the members of the orchestra should beat the folks over the head with their violins to prove that the music is beautiful."

Planning meals for singles

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The number of Americans under 35 who maintain households alone has doubled from 1970 to 1975 — from about 1 1/2 to 3 million — according to the U.S. Census.

Yet many singles eat "junk food" or eat out because they think they cannot shop and cook for one person, says Lib Underwood, chief home economist for RJR Foods, Inc., here. "But with planning and a little effort, these people can enjoy good food in their homes," she adds.

The supermarket is family-oriented, but Ms. Underwood says that the singles' freezer is the great equalizer. She suggests considering these tips:

Chicken livers get holiday treatment

Chicken livers are about to come out on the party circuit as holiday entertaining quickens. Time was when these good things were used only in gourmet dishes and for hors d'oeuvres. Now they're coming to meals with some regularity in interesting and new combinations. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), frozen chicken livers are in abundant supply right now.

The supply continues to build despite low market prices to poultry producers. Producer prices have dropped substantially in the past several months — almost as much as 40 per cent — and could be reflected in lower prices at the retail level say marketing specialists with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

—Get in the habit of freezing portions of homemade dishes. The single person can then buy quantities of food, cook once, and stockpile several dinners. Chow mein, casseroles, spaghetti and thick soups freeze well. Just take a serving out of the freezer in the morning and it's ready to reheat at night.

—Keep individual steaks, chops and meats in the freezer. Find a butcher who will cut and wrap meat in small quantities.

—Enjoy the variety of quality frozen dinners and vegetables. Everything from Chinese and Mexican dinners to baked stuffed potatoes is available at modest prices.

The single shopper is at a disadvantage when it comes to fresh produce and other food that cannot be frozen. Due to singles' less predictable life styles, food often spoils before it can be used, says Ms. Underwood.

She recommends the use of specialized plastic containers to store produce and other perishables. For example, a head of lettuce that would spoil in a week will keep for two or three weeks in a crisper.

The single person should avoid buying more than is needed just to take advantage of the cheaper prices that many stores offer for quantity purchases. It's better to pay more and use everything than to throw spoiled food away. Remember, meat should be frozen or used within two days, most produce begins to spoil after a week in the refrigerator and dairy products will begin to sour within a few days of the printed last-day-of purchase date.

One essential item for both the family cook and the single person is a full complement of spices and prepared sauces. Ms. Underwood says. Often a dash of soy sauce, hot pepper sauce or sweet and sour can save a mundane dish.

"Another must is a good cookbook designed with the single in mind," Ms. Underwood noted.

Other useful options for the person who lives alone are microwave ovens, which save cooking time; blenders for fresh fruit drinks for fast, healthful breakfasts, and broiler-ovens, which use less electricity than a full-size electric oven.

Position papers adopted

At the mid-year meeting of the board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, eight position papers were adopted in regard to needed legislation that should be considered by the 65th Texas Legislature.

Position papers have been issued in regard to: 1) Requirement for successful completion of a mandatory course on benefits and fundamentals of American Free Enterprise System for graduation from Texas high schools; 2) requirement for economic impact statement on all proposed rules of Texas agencies; 3) the need for including all persons, engaged in activities to influence legislation, under the Texas lobby laws; 4) the need for stringent requirements for zero-based budgeting for all state agencies; 5) urgent need for state legislation that requires all rules and regulations issued by state agencies be forwarded to appropriate house and senate committees for concurrence before they can go into effect; 6) need for "sunset" law concept for most Texas agencies and advisory committees; 7) need for state legislation to eliminate unnecessary state agency expenditures for self-serving public relations activities; and 8) oppose Senate ratification of appointment of State of Texas employees to any State Board of State Advisory Committee that sets or recommends policies that employ would work under.

W. H. Collins of Midland, WTCC president, commenting on needed Texas legislation, said "that requirements for the successful completion of a mandatory course on the benefits and fundamentals of American Free Enterprise System for graduation from Texas high schools is needed to protect the future of America; there is a need for a requirement for an economic impact statement on all proposed rules of Texas agencies has been clearly demonstrated."

Energy Tectonics symposium is set

The sixth annual Permian Basin Graduate Center symposium on "Global Tectonics and its Relationship to the Exploration for Oil and Gas," will be held in Midland, Jan. 9-14. The format is designed for the working petroleum geologist; meetings will be held at the Marion Blakemore Planetarium in the mornings and in the evenings after work to enable the busy explorationists to spend their afternoons in the office. On Sunday, Jan. 9, the first meeting has been rescheduled from 4:15 to 7:00 p.m. to remove the conflict with the Super Bowl Game. Daily scheduling Monday through Thursday will be 8:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. and 4:15 to 7:15 p.m. each day. The symposium will adjourn at 12:15 on Friday, January 14.

Deformation on the craton with emphasis on upthrust structures productive in West Texas and southeastern New Mexico will be the theme this year. Many geologists relate global tectonics only to plate movements, sea-floor spreading and continental drift, but we are now coming to realize that deformation within the continental interiors is also genetically related to the processes that cause plate movements. We have moved out of the sea onto land in a normal evolutionary manner, so to speak.

Dr. John F. Dewey of the State University of New York at Albany, the world's foremost expert on the global tectonics and the originator of many of our current concepts will again this year bring us up to date on the latest happenings in this dynamic discipline; and he will be ably assisted by Dr. Walter C. Pitman, III, of the Lamont-Doherty Observatory of Columbia University, one of the foremost geophysicists in this field. Dewey and Pitman have teamed up to offer their program at numerous locations throughout the world at a price half again as much as the P.B.G.C. is charging for the entire week. Not only will structural phenomena be discussed but the relationship between spreading rates and cyclic sedimentation will be covered. Understanding and predicting this relationship is extremely important for stratigraphic trap exploration and pinpointing the most probably producing zones throughout the world.

Especially for those Ritchie said AP&L spent $3 million on planning for the pipeline including money for lobbying in Washington and in state legislatures.

"The contribution aspect (by AP&L) is at a standstill," Ritchie said. "...We have reached a point that we said we will not put up any more money until we have seen some accomplishments."

Energy Transportation Systems is the company trying to build the pipeline. Its efforts have been hindered by water rights disputes in Wyoming, Nebraska, Kansas and South Dakota — states where water is scarce.

In addition, railroads have opposed the pipeline, saying it would take away needed business.

Coal slurry pipeline besieged by problems

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Congressional opposition, water rights disputes and antagonism from railroads may have turned the proposed Wyoming-to-Arkansas coal slurry pipeline into a pipe dream.

The 1,000-mile pipeline was envisioned during the energy crisis as a unique way of meeting part of the nation's fuel demands.

Legislation to give the pipeline's backers power to condemn land for right-of-way probably won't be introduced in Congress until next summer, says William Shafer, an aide to the House Interior Committee.

The committee voted 21-19 last July to kill a similar measure.

Mike Mansfield, outgoing Senate majority leader, wrote in an article published in his home state of Montana that:

"Congressional action to facilitate construction of coal slurry pipelines could be operating at cross purposes with Congressional efforts to improve rail systems throughout the nation."

A major potential slurry customer, Arkansas Power and Light Co. here, has quit funding the project. So has AP&L's sister company, Systems Fuel Inc. in New Orleans, La., which spent several million dollars researching the proposal. AP&L and Systems Fuel Inc. are subsidiaries of Middle South Utilities.

Reeves Ritchie of Little Rock, chairman of AP&L, says there's no need for the slurry as long as his company is limited to building two coal-fired electric power generating plants.

In 1973, AP&L asked the Arkansas Public Service Commission for permission to build four power plants at White Bluff, south of here. The commission said more than two plants could harm the environment.

If four plants were built, AP&L estimates it would have needed 25 million tons of coal a year, but will need just five million tons a year for two plants. Ritchie said that amount can be transported cheaper by railroad than by the pipeline.

The pipeline would carry a 50-50 mixture of pulverized low-sulfur coal and water. The 38-inch pipe would run from Gillette, Wyo., to White Bluff.

Friscobattles Dallas over water rights

FRISCO, Tex. (AP)—Friscobattles Dallas over water rights. Frisco is a North Texas town that is not afraid to hurl a few stones at Goliath in order to get what it needs, and what it needs is water.

A town of 3,000 would not usually be expected to fight a huge city like Dallas—12 miles to the south—but Frisco is taking on Dallas and also Denton to the north water over water rights.

Friscobattles Dallas and Denton for a water supply.

"Whether we're right or wrong, somebody has to take a stand," Scott said. "We've increased in size 70 per cent since 1970, but unless we furnish our residents with water we're going to stagnate."

Mayor H.P. Bacchus, a railroad worker, says that during the summer of 1974, Frisco ran out of water and he asked residents not to bathe.

Muniz jailed after deported from Mexico

LAREDO, Tex. (AP)—Former Texas gubernatorial candidate Ramsey Muniz is in Webb County jail at Laredo today, awaiting transfer to Corpus Christi some time next month to face marijuana charges.

Muniz, who in 1972 received nearly a quarter of a million votes for governor of Texas, was deported from Mexico and turned over to federal Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) authorities before dawn Christmas day.

He was taken to jail in Laredo, where he will stay until he is transferred to Corpus Christi some time after New Year's Day.

"I was notified as a DEA representative that he was being deported," said agent Leonard Williams, one of three officers who met Muniz and Mexican authorities at the Laredo International Bridge at 1 a.m. Saturday.

"It may seem strange that it was so early Christmas morning, but I guess that's the way they do things in Mexico. It's not our policy to comment on what they do over there."

Mexican authorities knew he was a fugitive. I guess they didn't want to wait around."

Muniz had been a fugitive since he failed to appear at a federal court arraignment in Corpus Christi Aug. 9.

Deputy Marshal George Bennett, who also was at the bridge, said Muniz looked "tired and unshaven" and put up little resistance when he was returned to Texas. A jailer said the 33-year-old Corpus Christi lawyer had no visitors over the holiday weekend.

Muniz was indicted July 30 by a federal grand jury in Corpus Christi. He also was indicted last month by a federal grand jury in San Antonio on charges that he had traveled to Mexico since the first indictment to arrange shipment of ruins searched for victims of holocaust

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (AP)—Police were to search the ruins of a nursing home again today for the bodies of more victims in a fire that killed at least 20 persons, including a 105-year-old woman and a 16-year-old boy.

Twenty bodies were recovered Sunday afternoon. A Royal Canadian Mounted Police spokesman said another search was scheduled for today, "just to be certain" there are no others.

Many of those killed were elderly women, some bedridden. The boy was among several young persons visiting relatives at the home.

After the fire broke out about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, Chafe's Rest Home was quickly engulfed in flames fanned by strong winds. Firemen, hampered by subzero weather, chopped through six inches of ice on a pond to get water to fight the blaze, officials said. There were no fire hydrants in the rural area about six miles south of St. John's, the provincial capital of Newfoundland.

Assistant Chief Leroy Soper of the St. John's Fire Department said all the elderly residents staying at the home at the time of the fire were killed. But Soper said he did not know how many of the 25 to 30 permanent residents were away visiting relatives for Christmas.

Best place to retire

with Marj Carpenter

The best place to retire in all of the world is Big Spring, Texas.

At least that's the opinion of Wayne Parish, who came back here to retire in 1971 after working for 48 years in Amarillo.

"Why would I want to stay in Amarillo when I had all these good friends — old friends — right here in Big Spring?" he asked.

He and his wife, the former Dorothy Fleeman, celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary on Dec. 22.

"We got married in the Fleeman home at 901 Lancaster and the Rev. W.G. Bailey, Methodist pastor, officiated," Wayne recalled. Dorothy was born in that house too, back in 1909. I moved to Big Spring when I was 12 years old in 1917," he recalled.

"Her folks came out here from south of Dallas and her father worked for the Texas and Pacific Railroad. Their home was pretty much of a landmark and was sold by the Fleeman girls to the funeral home. They later sold it to a family who moved it to the Silver Heels Addition and are restoring it," Parish stated.

Parish said that his parents were early farmers in the Center Point community. He farmed for a while when he grew up and then attended business college in Abilene.

He returned to work six years for Temp Currier at State National Bank. I was just in time for the Depression and the bank had to let four boys go when it hit. So I went to work for Ponca Sales Mercantile Co. and stayed there 48 years."

Parish recalled that they owned a home on Washington Place "and never gave it up. We bought it in the 30s and we always planned to retire here. So we have. And we're glad," he added emphatically.

He has one brother in Eastland and sisters in Slaton and Wilson. She has three sisters, including one married to a professor at Texas A&M and two sisters, who still live in this area — in Lamesa. They are Mrs. Winnie Faye Schaefer and Mrs. Effie Jewel Martin.

Parish can hark back to old Big Spring. He can recall the dirt streets and the board walks and the days in which it was really the high point of the day when the trains came into town.

He can recall the days of hauling water and the early businesses in Big Spring. "I remember when the Big Spring Herald was run by the Jordans down there in the older part of town," he added.

"But the people around here are just the best people anywhere. All those 48 years, we talked about coming home and when the time came, we came back."

"In another couple years, we'll be celebrating our Golden Anniversary and we'll be glad that we are celebrating it here — back among the old friends in the best part of the world."

That's the way I found the Parishes in the holiday season right after their anniversary — when I was, out ridin' fence.

LUCKLESS QUARTERBACK — Los Angeles Rams quarterback Pat Haden (11) is tackled by Minnesota Vikings defensive end Mark Mullaney while three other

ATKINSON SPOILS A PASS TO SWAN — The Raiders' George Atkinson reaches out to break up a pass from quarterback Terry Bradshaw of the Steelers to Lynn Swann in Sunday's AFC championship game in Oakland. The Raiders won 24-7 and will meet the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl.

Vikings, Raiders have super day

Oakland vs. Pittsburgh

Minnesota vs. Los Angeles

OAKLAND (AP) — For the Pittsburgh Steelers, the magic Super Bowl number ended at two — two championships won but not a third because of two stars who couldn't run.

And for the Oakland Raiders, the number two may be only the beginning. Sunday's American Conference championship, the final step before the National Football League extravaganza with the Roman numerals, was painfully one-sided, painfully decided by the pain Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier endured.

Between them, they had rolled up 2,164 rushing yards during the regular season, two massive reasons why the Steelers had averaged 212 yards per game on the ground, why quarterback Terry Bradshaw could be selective and successful in his passing, why the defense, so well rested between appearances, could do its job so frighteningly well.

But Harris, with bruised ribs, and Bleier, with a sprained toe, never set foot on the Oakland Coliseum field during Sunday's game. Without them, the Pittsburgh ground game went nowhere, Bradshaw had to pass much too often with limited success, the defense burned itself out — and the Raiders, with some solid running and passing of their own, won 24-7.

And so Oakland, which hasn't been to a Super Bowl since the number 11 (when it lost 33-14 to Green Bay) will be in number 11 on Jan. 9 in Pasadena, Calif., facing Minnesota. The Vikings are making their fourth Super Bowl appearance (and still looking for a winning one) following their 24-13 National Conference title victory over Los Angeles earlier Sunday.

Just how much the absence of Harris and Bleier hurt the Steelers depended on who was doing the talking.

Coach John Madden, whose Raiders are riding a 12-game winning streak, said it meant nothing. "Sure, Franco and Rocky didn't play," he acknowledged, "but that didn't make any difference. Hell, no! You put the men you have out there for 60 minutes. We've played the Steelers in games with people missing, too, you know."

But Chuck Noll, whose Steelers' winning streak ended at 10, said the handicap was enormous. "It's tough to come into the biggest game with your hands tied behind your back, with two of your big weapons out."

In each of the last two years it was the Steelers who beat the Raiders for the AFC title.

This time it was very clear very early that the Steelers weren't going to go out and take the title. If they were going to get it, Oakland was going to have to give it to them.

The Raiders never even came close to offering up a post-Christmas gift. Ken Stabler, who completed 10 of 16 passes for 88 yards and two touchdowns, never threw an interception. The Raiders never fumbled the ball away.

Pittsburgh, with reserve running back Reggie Harrison gaining 44 of the team's 72 yards rushing (three of them on a touchdown run in the second period), failed to get a first down for the first 19 minutes of play.

By then the Raiders led 10-0 on Errol Mann's 39-yard field goal and Clarence Davis' one-yard TD dive, the latter coming three plays after linebacker Willie Hall picked off a Bradshaw pass and returned it 24 yards to the Pittsburgh one.

Stabler's four-yard scoring pass to tight end Warren Bankston, a former Steeler, with 19 seconds to go in the half made it 17-7, then Stabler put the game away with a five-yard TD toss to Pete Banaszak in the third period.

The Steelers put Stabler away on that play. Linebacker Jack Ham leveled the Oakland passer just as he let go of the ball. "I got rapped in the head and hit in the ribs," Stabler said. "I could have played. I could have thrown short passes. But it would have been painful."

So he sat out the remaining 19 minutes or so of the game, and it didn't hurt a bit. The Raiders, with Mark van Eeghen finishing with 66 yards rushing, Davis adding 54 and Banaszak getting 46, controlled the ball for long stretches — and they controlled Pittsburgh when they didn't have it.

Bradshaw, throwing almost every time the ball was snapped as the game wore on, finished with completions on 14 of 35 attempts for 176 yards.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — "There's more than one way to win a football game," says Minnesota Coach Bud Grant.

Grant's Viking legion proved it again Sunday, turning several Los Angeles mistakes into points and a 24-13 victory in the National Football Conference title game.

The Vikings, who became the first team to qualify for a fourth Super Bowl appearance, met Oakland Jan. 9 at Pasadena, Calif., in Super Bowl XI.

"We've got the people who believe they can kick it, catch it, block it or whatever has to be done," said Grant. "They proved again that there's more than one or two ways to win these things."

Minnesota, buoyed by the brilliant play of its special teams and the offensive firepower of Chuck Foreman, raced to a 17-0 lead early in the third period before Los Angeles made a late charge.

The Vikings turned two Ram turnovers into a 10-0 halftime lead. Bobby Bryant sailed 90 yards with a blocked field goal attempt for a touchdown and Fred Cox kicked a 25-yard field goal after a blocked punt.

"They have a history of blocking kicks and punts, and they're very good at it," said Rams quarterback Pat Haden, who engineered the Los Angeles comeback. "We had some breakdowns and gave them too many easy points."

The Rams, who have lost three straight NFC championship games, drove to the Minnesota one midway through the opening period. After Haden failed to score on third down, the Rams decided to try for the field goal.

Nate Allen, acquired earlier in the season from San Francisco, came through untouched to block the field goal try and Bryant picked up the football in full stride on his scoring run to give Minnesota a 7-0 lead.

"We just tried to get a good jump on the ball and Nate does that very well," said Bryant, who also intercepted two Haden passes.

Los Angeles' Tom Dempsey, who had a potential game-winning field goal blocked by Allen in a 10-10 overtime tie with the Vikings in the regular season, said the timing was off a fraction of a second on the play.

Foreman, finishing the day with 118 yards rushing, raced 62 yards to the Los Angeles two on the second play of the third period. He blasted in from the one two plays later, and Minnesota pulled ahead 17-0. "They could have rolled over," said Grant, praising the Ram comeback. "They were every bit as good, maybe even better, than we thought they were going into the game."

Viking quarterback Fran Tarkenton, trying to hit rookie Sammy White in the end zone with a scoring pass that could have given Minnesota a 24-0 lead, was intercepted by Monte Jackson. The revived Rams swept 80 yards in six plays, Lawrence McCutcheon scoring on a 10-yard run.

Dempsey missed the point after, and Minnesota held a 17-6 lead with less than 20 minutes to go in the game. Two minutes later, Tarkenton fumbled at his own 22 and Jack Youngblood returned it to the Viking eight.

On third down, Haden lobbed a five-yard scoring pass to Harold Jackson and Dempsey added the extra point, shrinking the Minnesota advantage to 17-13. "There was no doubt in my mind at that point that we'd win," said Haden. "We just felt we'd score again."

The Rams drove into Minnesota territory twice in the fourth quarter, but their final effort stalled at the 39 when Bryant stepped in front of Ron Jessie for his second interception of the game.

Foreman finally wiped out the Rams' hopes, taking a short Tarkenton pass at the Viking 40, and racing to the Los Angeles' 12 before he was knocked out of bounds.

"Couldn't believe Pete Maravich"

Smoking 'Pistol' shoots Bullets

By the Associated Press

"I couldn't believe Pete Maravich tonight," said Dick Motta.

The coach of the Washington Bullets no doubt voiced the opinion of many who watched Maravich perform in New Orleans Sunday night.

The multi-faceted star of the New Orleans Jazz was in peak form, scoring 50 points to lead his team to a 109-100 National Basketball Association victory over the Bullets.

Maravich did not start out like a ball of fire. He only scored four points in the first quarter. But then he had 16 in the second period and 15 in each of the last two periods.

In other NBA games, the New York Knicks defeated the Atlanta Hawks 103-98; the Houston Rockets trimmed the Indiana Pacers 93-79; the Buffalo Braves turned back the Cleveland Cavaliers 103-96; the San Antonio Spurs beat the Kansas City Kings 110-105; the Boston Celtics nipped the Denver Nuggets 103-101; the Los Angeles Lakers whipped the Milwaukee Bucks 107-99; and the Seattle SuperSonics nudged the Portland Trail Blazers 89-87.

With Maravich having a cold first quarter, the Bullets held a 34-20 lead at the end of the first 12 minutes. But his output in the second and third periods pulled the Jazz into a 79-79 tie at the end of three.

Washington's Elvin Hayes had all of his 30 points in the first three periods to keep the Bullets in the contest, but Maravich's 15 in the fourth quarter helped New Orleans pull away.

Maravich, whose performance nearly equalled his career-high 51 earlier this season, got help from Freddie Boyd's 22 points. Washington got 25 from Phil Chenier.

Knicks 103, Hawks 98
Earl Monroe scored 28 points to lead New York over Atlanta. Tom Henderson's 25 points was tops for the Hawks, who have lost five straight games. The Knicks have won four of their last five games.

Rockets 93, Pacers 79
John Johnson scored 16 of his 20 points in the second half, leading a balanced Houston attack that carried the Rockets past Indiana.

Braves 103, Cavaliers 96
John Shumate converted a three-point play to derail a Cleveland comeback and help Buffalo beat the Cavaliers. Cleveland had cut the margin to 94-91 with 4:28 remaining, until the big center hit a shot and was fouled with 4:12 left.

Spurs 110, Kings 105
Larry Kenon and Allan Bristow combined for 33 points in the second half to lead San Antonio over Kansas City.

Celtics 103, Nuggets 101
Guards Charlie Scott and Jo Jo White combined for 55 points and Boston's aggressive defense held Denver scoreless during the final 3½ minutes, leading the Celtics over the Nuggets. Lakers 107, Bucks 99

Rookie Earl Tatum's 18-foot jump shot with 4½ minutes remaining began a 13-0 scoring blitz as Los Angeles came from behind to beat Milwaukee. The Lakers got a pro-high 16 points from Tatum.

Sonics 89, Trail Blazers 87
Rookie Dennis Johnson

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Be careful during the day-time of troubles with other persons which are not likely to be immediately evident on the surface, but which nevertheless are present. In the evening you are able to have a new look at whatever your long-range plans happen to be.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to come to a better understanding with partners by avoiding touchy subjects and get ahead faster. Tensions ease up by evening and you can be happy then. Show more affection for family.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You feel limited during the day and hardly know what should be done about it. But by evening you make up for lost time. Consult with an adviser that you trust. Make sure you pay important bills.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Forget that personal aim and concentrate on something of real importance to you now. Evening is best time to be with a good friend.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Tackle civic duties that are important to your welfare early. Try to improve credit, also. Evening can be a happy time within the circle of your own family.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Evening is best time to go after some appealing new interest when you can get together with bigwigs. Show them that you adhere to rules and are dependable. Take no risks with reputation.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle any responsibilities you have conscientiously and efficiently. Don't argue with a loved one and make this a happy evening together. Avoid one who wants to make trouble for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to cooperate more with associates and get better results in the future. A civic matter could be annoying but it works out satisfactorily by evening. Have more faith in your outlook on life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan more time for work ahead of you and get it done properly. Set about getting health matters improved. A fellow worker is not very cooperative. He or she is under pressure of some sort.

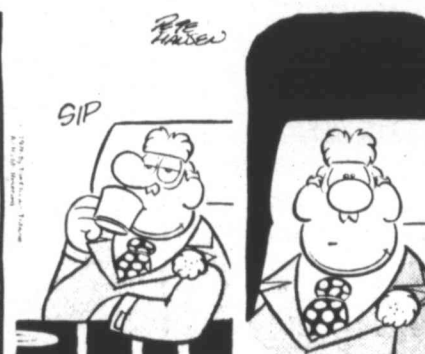

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into practical affairs during day and avoid expensive fun. Have fun this evening, but stay within your means.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take care you do nothing to cause arguments at home or to upset conditions there. Get rid of whatever is causing friction, but use tact in doing so. Pay bills and live more within your means.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are clever today, but are apt to make mistakes so be more poised. Evening is best time to make new plans with associates.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you follow the ideas of a bigwig you find you gain the goodwill of this person and are more successful. Use your own practical sense, too.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand how to solve problems wisely and should have the education slanted along lines of trouble-shooting for best results throughout the lifetime. Upon retiring, your progeny will get into philanthropic work that is helpful to the public at large.

1977 may be rated C-minus

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — For the typical working person, the average consumer or the ordinary American — by whatever name he or she is called — the year 1977 should be more satisfactory than was 1976.

This is a relative improvement though, and a good many Americans are likely to give the year only a passing grade. If the economy can be said to have flunked in 1974 and 1975, next year might be rated a C-minus.

That is the outlook of many of those economists whose job it is to try to know. They haven't always succeeded in that assignment, but they seem quite convinced that 1977 will be better than 1976.

There is the likelihood of a tax rebate or tax cut. President-elect Carter has not committed himself on this issue, but most forecasters are taking it for granted. That, plus a spending increase.

There is some fair news also for those seeking to buy houses. Mortgage rates, now in the 9 per cent area, might fall a quarter-point early in the year, some lenders say. But a slow rise later in the year also seems to be on the bill.

Consumer prices, which rose about 5.8 per cent this year, might rise "only" 5.5 per cent, even less, next year. But, again, some forecasters believe the increase will tend to accelerate before the end of 1977.

Nevertheless, the disposable personal income of Americans — after taxes and allowing for inflation — is expected to rise by 5 per cent or so, in the estimation of some economists.

While even Jimmy Carter believes the job of reducing unemployment will be a tough one, more than a few respected forecasters see a rather sizable decline in the rate.

Economists and other forecasters have good reason for suspicion. In the past year they kept insisting that business would open up on capital spending, but it didn't. And consumer spending has tended to lag behind forecasts.

Business reportedly hasn't had confidence in the future; and its spending plans in some instances were aborted by ecological considerations. The consumer, it was said, shared the fears and sometimes didn't have the cash anyway.

The hope is that a tax cut and strong leadership can overcome this reluctance to spend.

Bell endorsed by Roy Innis

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Innis, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, has endorsed President-elect Carter's choice of Griffin Bell for U.S. attorney general.

Innis said he decided to break with what he termed the "civil rights group bloc" after speaking by telephone with Carter and Bell.

FIRST STEP — L.A. (Red) Hiltbrunner and Ray Meek are pictured with one of the Alert Ambulance trucks. These trucks are the first step in the sequence of emergency medical care in Big Spring. The equipment and the truck are worth about as much as a small house.

Average of 150 emergency calls made here monthly

First of Series
By BOB BURTON

About 20 major accidents occur in Big Spring each month. Each major accident involves injury and probably a trip for the victim to one of the local hospitals, even if only to be treated and released.

If you make that trip, no matter how routine, you have put yourself in the hands of emergency medical service in Big Spring. It is a system which measures the difference between success and failure in seconds. The difference can be a human life.

"It used to be red," grins L.A. (Red) Hiltbrunner, pointing to his hair, "but it's white now."

Red owns and operates Alert Ambulance, a privately owned company which provides the only ambulance service in Howard County, as well as serving Glasscock, Martin, and Borden Counties.

He and his six other drivers handle 150 local calls per month, with what Red says is the lowest percentage of dead-on-arrivals (DOAs) in West Texas.

"The last time the state asked us to provide figures was in 1974," said Hiltbrunner. "We made 1,417 runs with five DOAs."

"The size of Big Spring certainly has an effect on those figures," he continued, "but in a three-month check on response time made by the police department, we averaged 11 minutes from call to hospital. We averaged a four or five minute response time to the scene. That's a factor, too."

Hiltbrunner said that only about two per cent of the runs they make are emergencies.

"We use lights and siren to get to an accident as quickly as possible. But once there the emergency becomes the status of the injured party. If we have his situation controlled; if he's breathing, if we can stop any bleeding he has, if his heart is good, if we have the situation controlled, it's no longer an emergency. We make the run without lights and siren and our first concern is making a smooth trip rather than a fast one."

All seven of the Alert Ambulance drivers are Emergency Medical Service certified. Most of them are working toward their Emergency Medical Technician certification.

They are qualified to perform cardiac massage, artificial respiration, band-aging, and splinting. They are qualified to use the equipment carried in each truck and they are qualified to obey a doctor's instruction while en route to the hospital.

"We administer no drugs while on a run," asserts Hiltbrunner. "We can't without a doctor's order. But we can try to stabilize the condition of the injured party."

"To do that, each driver or attendant (two are present on each run) can make use of oxygen, power suction, intravenous equipment, respirator, heart beeper, splints, and cold packs. The trucks cost from $28,000 to $40,000."

"We monitor police, highway patrol, and sheriff communication," said Hiltbrunner, "and usually we don't go out until we are called. Still, sometimes we have been at the scene of an accident before the phone rang down at our office."

"Each of our trucks has full state medical frequency capability," said Hiltbrunner.

His biggest complaint is that no Big Spring hospitals have an emergency radio answering capability.

"It is a frequency reserved strictly for hospitals and ambulances," he said. "If the hospitals here would spend the money on it, we could be in constant contact with a doctor, but so far they haven't."

Hiltbrunner defends his private ambulance service as "less expensive, more effective, and just as complete" as any publicly owned system.

Holidays tragic for family, three die in Christmas fire

FAIRFIELD, Maine (AP) — Holiday tragedy struck Dorothy Reynolds' family for the third straight year when a fire, apparently begun in a Christmas tree, killed her three youngest sons, and injured her and her seven other children.

"They'll never smile again," said a close friend who watched ambulances take the surviving family members to the hospital.

Last year, on Thanksgiving Day, Mrs. Reynolds' 36-year-old husband, William, died of a heart attack while recovering from a serious snowmobile accident.

Despite Scurry County crash

Holiday death toll below guess

By The Associated Press

The Department of Public Safety has credited hard work by law enforcement officers and the news media for a traffic death toll that was far below DPS estimates for the 78-hour Christmas holiday period.

"Barring anything unforeseen, we're going to be way under the estimate for traffic fatalities," DPS Director Wilson Speir said late Sunday. "The news media placed a focus on Christmas driving. I heard all over the state that disc jockeys and the print media played up careful driving. I feel this, along with hard-working law officers, played a major role in keeping the death toll way under the estimate."

Early today, the traffic death count stood at 31. DPS had estimated that 51 persons would die in traffic accidents in the state between 6 p.m. Thursday evening and midnight Sunday. Last year 42 died on Christmas Eve alone.

A DPS spokesman said the death rate during the holiday was barely above the average daily rate of traffic fatalities in the state, although the Christmas season is considered the most dangerous time to drive.

The Associated Press counted at least 46 persons killed in all forms of violence during the long weekend, including seven shooting deaths, three fatal stabbings and five fire deaths.

The worst single accident of the weekend was a grinding head-on crash about one mile south of the West Texas town of Ira that took the lives of Ronald Dean Langle, 33; his wife, Patricia, 28; and their four daughters, Robbie Dawn, 11, Pamela, 6, Rhonda, 6 months, and Renee Morgan, 7.

Jimmy Don Brown, 28, of Sundown died Sunday in a Lubbock hospital after being injured shortly before midnight Friday when his car ran off FM 303 seven miles west of Levelland.

Jorge Cordova, 22, of Memphis, Tex., was killed Sunday when a pickup truck overturned five miles east of Memphis in Collingsworth County on FM 1547.

Two men died early Sunday when their cars crashed head on near Alvarado on Interstate 35 in North Central Texas. The DPS identified the victims as Rubin White, 47, of Fort Worth and Richard Baker, 25, of Grandview.

Unrelated car-pedestrian accidents killed two men in Southeast Texas Saturday, the DPS reported. Richard Griggs, 54, of Houston was struck and killed as he walked along Interstate 45 near Kuykendahl. Johnny Lewis, 60, of Anahuac, was killed on Interstate 10 in Chambers County.

And Waco authorities said 105-year-old Louvenia Foster died Saturday morning when fire swept her home. Officers said the elderly woman was sitting at a table when her clothing caught fire from a stove or heater.

Two Cleveland youths, Donna Barnes, 16 and James Barnes, 13, were killed Saturday when the pickup in which they were riding crashed on a rain-slick curve east of Cleveland. A third child, nine-year-old Lonnie Barnes, was hospitalized in critical condition, the DPS said.
