3 Burglaries Here During Week End

Three break-ins and a case of vandalism were reported over the week end by law enforcement officers.

Taken from Steve Owens Auto Supply Tuesday night, April 9 was between $75 and $100 in money and a .22 automatic Mossberg rifle, Police Chief Donald Nunneley reported.

The money was taken from the candy and coke machines and two cash registers in the office, he said.

Entry was gained by breaking out a small window in the west side of the building, Chief Nunneley explained, and the burglars unlocked a door to leave.

"At least two people took part," he added.

Directors Re-Elected

Payment of Rebate Checks Is Held Up by Restraining Order

Payments of rebates to members of the Farmers Co-op Gin were held up at the annual meeting Saturday due to a restraining order that was served on the officers and directors at 11:15 a.m. April 11 only two hours and forty-five minutes before the meeting was scheduled to start.

The restraining order, the second served on the gin officials during the week, was filed in Wheeler county by Hardin and Hardin of Shamrock and listed Garland Abernathy as plaintiff and was issued by Judge Lewis Goodrich of the 31st Judicial District. Hearing Announcement was made at the annual meeting that all rebate checks had been written and that the exact amount of each check was known by the banks and other lending agencies. The banks of Wellington have agreed to loan the amount of the check, upon assignment of the check, to any member of the Co-op Gin who is in need of the money immediately.

on this second order and the application for a permanent injunction has been set for Thursday, April 16 in Wheeler.

The first restraining order was filed in Collingsworth county April 8 by the same attorneys and listed C. C. Killingsworth, Kenneth Killingsworth, J. E. Killingsworth, T. B. Killingsworth, Leonard Mills of Wheeler county and A. M. Saunders of Collingsworth county. At that time Judge Goodrich said he would be unable to hear the case until after April 11, but that he was agreeable to calling in another judge to hold the hearing.

The hearing was held in Panhandle April 9 before Judge Max Boyer of Perryton with the firm of Williams, Broughton and Forbis of Childress representing the Farmer Co-op Gin of Wellington. Judge Boyer dismissed the restraining order and officials went ahead with their plans for the annual meeting.

In each of the cases the plaintiffs claimed damage to planting seed that had been delisted at the Farmers Co-op Gin in Wellington. Damages claimed in the first suit totaled $41,374.97 and in the second case the damages claimed amounted to $5,766.25.

As the order of business after the opening prayer and reading of the minutes and the reading of the financial report at the meeting Saturday, Clyde Emmert asked John T. Forbis and C. C. Broughton to explain the legal proceedings that had involved the gin during the past week, which they did in detail as outlined above.

The financial report read by Jack Kopp showed that the gin processed 19,602 bales last season and earned a total profit of $287,622.95 and that $25,000.00 had been set aside as a reserve.

MacArthur in Defeat and Victory Recalled

"If I were selecting all the generals in the world to serve under, I would select General MacArthur," said a Wellington man who served under him during the early days of World War II.

John Coleman, then a captain in the Philippines, is the only local man, so far as is known, who has had direct contact with the famous old soldier who died recently.

Stationed at Nichols Field, outside Manila, Coleman was officer of the day when he first received orders from Douglas MacArthur, by telephone, about two weeks before the Japanese attack.

The general ordered all planes dispersed over the airfield and that the men were to wear their six-shooters and gas masks at all times.

"We knew something was up but we didn't know what," Coleman remembers.

No guns were to be worn in Manila, however, for the plans then were to declare it an open city.

Again General MacArthur appeared unannounced early one morning for inspection of personnel.

"It had been raining all the day before and the men were out in the field. Their caps were wet and on their heads every way. General MacArthur looked at them.

"Captain," look down that line at those caps. Have the sergeant take the names of those men and you write me what disciplinary action was taken," he said," Coleman recalls.

On Dec. 19, 1941, the order came to go back to Bataan.

All-Sports Banquet to Honor WHS Athletes

Wellington will pay honor to its young athletes Saturday night, April 18, at the second annual all-sports banquet, and this time the boys and girls honored will be, for the most part, proud bearers of district championship titles.

The banquet will be held in the community building beginning at 8 p.m. with the Skyrocket Booster Club as sponsor.

The guest speaker will be Berl Huffman, varsity baseball and freshman football coach at Texas Tech, and himself a three-sport letterman at college.

Sharing the spotlight with this dynamic speaker will be the various Rocket and Rockete teams.

This year, for the first time in Wellington athletic history, the school has made a clean sweep of the District 2-A championships in major sports, including football, both boys and girls basketball, and track.

The tennis team has yet to go into district play.

While the teams themselves will be recognized, individuals will be singled out for special awards. Those students chosen on all-district teams will receive certificates denoting this.

The fighting heart award, denoting just that, will go to a boy who is chosen by his team mates. Mr. and Miss Basketball will be selected, and there will be awards to Mr. All-Around Skyrocket, the Best Student Athlete, the Best All-Around Football Player, the Best All-Around Lineman, and the Most Valuable Track Man.

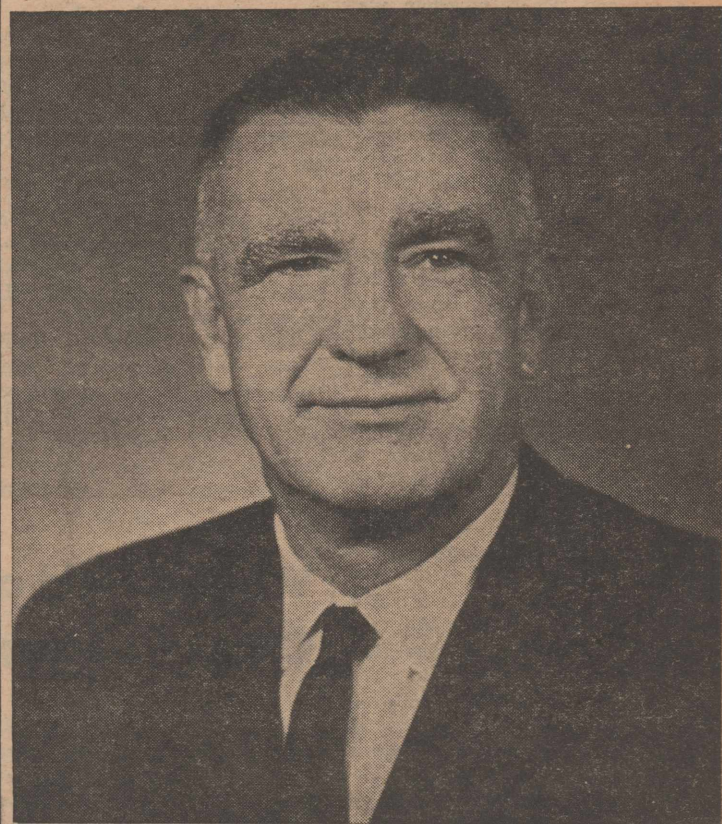

Huffman has been a familiar figure in Panhandle sports since he came to White Deer in 1928, after lettering in three sports at Trinity University, then located at Waxahachie. In 1931 he went to Lubbock high school and in 1935 to Tech, where he was football aide and basketball head coach until 1947, excepting four years in the Air Force.

After coaching at the University of New Mexico from 1947 until 1952, Huffman served as Albuquerque, N. M. Chamber of Commerce manager until becoming director of the State Economic Development Commission of New Mexico. Two years later he took a position as director of Alamogordo Industrial Development corporation, from which post he returned to Tech two years ago.

James Larson, high school band director, will be the master of ceremonies at Saturday night's banquet.

Building Fund Kickoff

Methodists to Hear Dr. Lovern at Loyalty Dinner April 21

With a loyalty dinner family night Tuesday, April 21, officials of First Methodist Church will launch the building fund drive for the first unit of the proposed new church building.

Coming as guest speaker is Dr. J. Chess Lovern, pastor of First Methodist Church, Lubbock, and one of the denomination's distinguished preachers of the southwest.

The dinner, a covered dish affair, will be held in the church dining room beginning at 7:30 p.m. and following this will be Dr. Lovern's talk of a challenging and inspirational nature, the pastor, the Rev. Davis Edens said.

No pledges will be received that night, the pastor added.

The church nursery will be open and there will be special activities for children while the program for the adults and young people is in progress.

Donald Nunneley is general chairman of the building fund, and Bill Hatch is program chairman for the Tuesday night dinner.

Dr. Lovern, a native of Georgia, attended Emory University, Oxford, Ga., and received bachelor of arts and divinity degrees from Southern Methodist University. Southwestern University conferred the honorary doctor of divinity degree in 1951.

Before coming to Lubbock in 1954, Dr. Lovern was pastor of Laurel Heights Methodist Church in San Antonio.

He serves on the board of trustees of Methodist Hospital, Lubbock, and McMurry College, Abilene, and also has served on various boards and committees of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the Methodist Church, with emphasis on those pertaining to missions.

The Church School of First Methodist Church, Lubbock, is the second largest in Methodism, and for three years that church was second in total money raised.

This week also, Donald Nunneley, general chairman of the building program, announced committees that will work with him. A number of chairmen will name additional members to work with them.

Dan Henard is in charge of solicitation, and under him, John Forbis is chairman of the memorial gifts committee, Jack Davis, Walter Franks and R. R. Crawley are members.

Dodson Co-op Slates Meeting and Auction

The Dodson Co-op Enterprises rounds out its biggest year with the annual two days of events this week end, Edwin Crowder, manager, has announced.

The stockholders meeting will be held Friday night at the high school. Preceding it will be a barbecue supper at the gym, starting at 7:30 p.m.

The business meeting will follow. On Saturday, the annual auction sale will be held on the Co-op Gin yard, beginning at 9:30 a.m. and running through the day.

To make up this biggest year for the co-op, 6,494 bales of cotton were ginned and more than 5,000,000 pounds of wheat and milo were handled in the elevator, Crowder said.

High point of the business meeting Friday night will be the distribution of rebate checks, totaling $43,843, or $6.75 per bale on the basis of an average bale.

Newell Burke of Floydada, auditor for the gin and a former Dodson resident, will report on the finances for the year and explain the various items of the audit.

Directors will be elected to close out the business meeting. Entertainment will be by Ted Parker and the music department of the school.

President of Dodson Co-op Enterprises is Pete Nipper, while Olan Farris is vice president and Louis Patterson is secretary. Directors are Bill Holder, P. E. Conaway, Kenneth Hudson and Hugh Painter.

The auction serves as a big annual community gathering. It is the policy of the co-op that no item will be sold for more than its regular price, and bidding will be stopped when it reaches that point.

The name of R. J. Holland, prominent Dodson stock farmer, was signed to both checks, which were for $10 each. The husbands of both women work for Mr. Holland, according to the sheriff.

Wellington FHA Observes National Week With Series of Activities

Wellington Future Homemakers are observing National FHA Week, April 5 through 11, with a series of events in which they honor their parents and teachers, work in community and school service projects, and have a little fun on the side.

The 50 girls who are members of the chapter this year opened their week with a pot-luck supper for their parents Monday evening, April 6.

Tuesday, there were "Apples for the Teacher"—big crisp apples tied with red and white ribbons, the FHA colors, presented to each teacher.

Wednesday was "No Litter Day," and posters were put up in the high school.

Friday no one will be able to miss these Future Homemakers. It's their "Red and White Day," when all FHA'ers will wear red and white.

Saturday, the girls will hold a bake sale at C&H Pharmacy from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

In a called meeting Monday, the girls voted to donate $10 to CARE and to buy an air conditioner for the Homemaking Department.

Sponsor of the Future Homemakers Chapter is Mrs. Dee Coleman, homemaking teacher. The girls carry out a full program of work, some of it based on the national program, part of it continuing from year to year, and other parts of their own planning for a particular season.

Officers of the chapter are Anna Kay Kelso, president; Linda Karnes, first vice president; Patricia Bouchelle, second vice president; Jan Lindsey, third vice president; Karen Childress, fourth vice president; Gail Henard, fifth vice president; Linda Richardson, secretary; Carolyn Christian, treasurer; Rose Montgomery, parliamentarian; Vickie Mayhugh, historian, and Karen Richardson, pianist.

The chapter meetings are each second Monday evenings, and at present the girls are engaged in selling cook books as a fund raising project.

Their talent is seen on the area as well as local level, for three members sing in the area chorus, Karen Childress, Connie Null and Patricia Wilson. Anna Kay Kelso won the area talent contest.

Two girls, Anna Kay and one other, will attend the state FHA convention, along with a mother, Mrs. Pat Bouchelle, and Mrs. Coleman. This will be held in Austin May 1 and 2. Each year the Wellington Future Homemakers entertain the incoming freshmen and work out each month's program around the national goals.

This year, the Wellington chapter has given a skit on early marriage, made up food baskets for needy families, presented a program on "Understanding Yourself and Your Values," and another program to spark interest in making their own recreation here.

They have made money for the chapter, to buy equipment for the home ec department and to send the delegates to the state meeting.

The Future Homemakers helped with the Red Cross drive; they sent cards to the State Hospital and sent stamps to help fight tuberculosis.

Baptist WMU Holds Luncheon

The Woman's Missionary Union of First Baptist Church met at noon Monday, April 6, for a luncheon in the church dining room.

Need More Time?

The housewife of the Young Married Set is involved with so many activities, she needs all the time she can lay her hands on. A Gold Medallion Home is the answer! It provides so many time-saving conveniences, it's just like adding more days to the ordinary 7-day week. For instance, the electric clothes dryer alone saves 3 hours weekly and even the electric dishwasher saves 7 hours a week...why, that's 10 hours already! Not to mention that the electric range is so automatic, it's like having a hired cook to do all the watching. And the electric water heater provides hot water instantly upon demand. Heating and cooling systems are automatic too... the thermostat is set at the start of the season and forgotten until the season changes.

This is just a smattering of the many ways the total electric Gold Medallion Home saves time for the Young Married Set. Oh yes, with a flameless total electric Gold Medallion Home, there's one less bill to pay each month.

Mites Invade Wheat Fields Over Area

By Cecil Regier

Many county wheat fields appear to be suffering from dry weather, but this is only partially true. Close examination will show the leaves of the wheat are covered with tiny brown mites.

This is an insect called the brown wheat mite. Damage by this mite occurs only during dry weather and is similar to drought damage. Wheat suffers from loss of plant juices withdrawn by the mites as food and heavily infested plants appear to be dried out.

The pest has a high reproductive capacity and can build up to surprising numbers in a short time. It takes eight to nine days for the mite to reach the adult stage and in one to two days begin to lay eggs, 70 to 90 of them in three weeks. The eggs hatch in 6 to 7 days.

Controlling this pest by chemicals is difficult. The best material tested is 1/4 pound of Parathion per acre. This does not harm the eggs and the field will soon be re-infested. Usually their injury will cease following a good hard shower.

Many of the fields also have light infestation of greenbugs. Parathion will do a good job of controlling them.

Why Business Fails

Businesses come and go in every line of endeavor and among the tens of thousands of failures in the United States each year, the great majority are small retail establishments.

In our 39 years of contact with the Wellington business fraternity, for example, almost every business location has had from one to a dozen tenants. Each and every operator started with enthusiasm, certain that there was opportunity. All too many have folded, wiser and poorer for the experience.

Our community has been no worse (or better) than most in this regard. What has happened here has been par for the business course throughout the United States. Most economists, quoting unhappy businessmen, blame lack of capital, inexperience, and over-extension of credit.

Yet Sidney Harris who writes a daily column in the Detroit Free Press, contends that it's because these businessmen are concentrating on selling commodities instead of themselves. He believes that small merchants watch their inventory and quality and pricing, yet forget almost completely about the atmosphere of their store. It is that intangible factor that, more than any other, determines whether a customer will return, writes Harris.

"If a restaurant hostess is obtuse and surly, if a cashier is unpleasant or unresponsive, the quality of the food or the price will not encourage a customer to come back.

"Today's consumer is a good deal more sophisticated than in the past. He knows that stores charging about the same prices offer about the same grade of merchandise. And his decision to patronize one rather than another rests mostly upon his feelings as a human being, not upon his calculation as an economic unit.

"A good hostess in a restaurant, for instance, is worth two or three times what she customarily makes—and if she isn't good, even the smallest salary is too large. Likewise, a sloppy waitress, a sullen sales clerk, can in a few minutes negate whatever glowing "policy" the proprietor has evolved over the years.

"Actually, a retail establishment itself is, in psychological terms, the basic 'commodity' the merchant is selling. It is the total atmosphere of a shop that the customer 'buys' more than the item in the inventory."

Retailers will do well to keep this observation in mind and strive for a store image that appeals. It isn't easy—but what is these days?

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where the Air Force says that RB66 plane crew made a bad mistake in navigation, which is how come they were out there over East German territory when the Reds shot them down.

And on account of this mistake these boys will have to face an evaluation board which may decide they won't be let to fly any more.

Which likely will make them sorry they joined the Air Force instead of the Bureaucrat Corps, where the pay is better and the bigger the mistakes you make, the faster you get promoted.

My party-faithful neighbor says his Party doesn't stand for the same things it did 50 years ago when he first took up with it, and he doesn't either.

Says it's been a tough fight, too, changing his personal political convictions fast enough to keep down with the Party, so he can vote a straight ticket without flinching.

But he's not going to switch because members of Party X also have had trouble downshifting their principles as fast as the party does; and the Young Republicans and Young Democrats just don't seem to want recruits like him, with high-mileage bodies and pre-washed brains.

I see where the recent revolution in Brazil, where President Goulart got thrown out on his ear, has been highly applauded in Washington.

And my revolutions expert neighbor says the reason this operation went off so smoothly is that the Brazilians used a purely home talent Coup Corps, without any U.S. advisors.

Says, of course, Ambassador Lodge's two-coup team in Vietnam just couldn't work Brazil into their schedule, and President Goulart ought to be glad, because their deposit methods deposited Vietnam's President Diem so permanently.

I see where an economics high priestess says because there are more moonlighters in the U.S. than there are unemployed people, maybe we need a law limiting jobs one to a customer.

Like if a school teacher is giving piccolo lessons on the side, the law ought to make him turn one of his jobs over to somebody else, such as some unemployed hula hoop maker.

But we won't get any law like this, because most of our February Savings Bond sales in Collingsworth county totaled $11,837. This announcement was made recently by John Forbis, chairman of the Collingsworth county savings bonds committee. Sales for the first two months of 1964 were $13,787, which represents 12.5% of the 1964 sales goal.

Bond sales in Texas for the first two months of 1964 were $28,293,907, and 18.8% of the 1964 sales goal of $150,000,000 has been achieved.

lawmakers are moonlighters themselves, holding down a regular job of public officialing while also working at the job of getting elected again.

Gov. John Connally's Committee on Education Beyond the High School agreed on need for expanded use of educational television and year-round use of existing campuses.

Tower Attacks Title VII of Civil Rights Bill

Senator John Tower today attacked Title VII of the administration's Civil Rights bill as a "meaningless declaration" in which Congress proposes to exercise power it does not possess.

Tower said he opposes Title VII, the Equal Employment Opportunity section of the bill, because it is "not a proper field for Federal legislation."

Tower also said the problem of racial and religious discrimination in employment "is a problem in morality, in which public awareness and understanding has brought more progress than all the laws we could enact."

Tower quoted from a speech delivered on the Senate floor in 1949 by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson in his opposition to a Fair Employment Practices bill. He quoted Johnson as calling the FEPC proposal "the least meritorious proposal in the whole Civil Rights program."

Excerpts from the Senator's speech, selected from some 70 pages of prepared comment, follow:

• This is not a proper field for Federal legislation. A matter such as discrimination in employment or in labor union membership is best handled at the state or local level, or through the force of public opinion. This legislation would involve the federal government in the most intimate detail of the operation of every business enterprise and every local labor union in the Nation, and in a matter in which the determinations to be made are extremely difficult.

• The problem of racial and religious discrimination in employment is a problem of morality, in which public awareness and understanding has brought more progress than all the laws we could enact.

• The proposed title states in Section 701: "The Congress hereby declares that the opportunity for employment without discrimination of the types described in Sections 704 and 705 is a right of all persons within the jurisdiction of the United States, and that it is the national policy to protect the right of the individual to be free from such discrimination."

That meaningless declaration is simply an attempt to have the Congress usurp an authority which it does not have and cannot possibly exercise. In the first place, Congress could not possibly make a "right of employment" a civil right unless that right could be enforced by making it the duty of someone to provide employment for "all the people." Therefore, unless the government takes over all the industry and trade, by public ownership or by dictatorial control, government cannot enforce this declared right. The promise to do so is pure pretense.

In the face of . . . clear and explicit provisions of the Constitution, H.R. 7152 proposes that Congress assume a power it does not possess and in fact a power which is expressly denied to the federal government.

• The attempted validation of the proposed Title VII as a regulation of commerce is based upon two fantastic assumptions. The first is that commerce is "obstructed" by discriminatory practices. For this there is absolutely no evidence. It is simply an assertion with no foundation.

The second assumption is that there will be "more buying power" and "less waste of manpower" when there is no "discrimination" in hiring employees. But what difference is there in total "buying power" or "manpower" when A is employed instead of B? If ten white applicants are rejected in favor of ten Negroes, there are still only ten men employed.

• I would like to note that in a recent manpower count of the President, it was stated that Negroes held 13.1% of the Federal jobs in the United States, although Negroes represent only 10.5% of the American population. And yet, the President tells us in his manpower report that the hiring of 13.1% of federal employees was accomplished "solely on the basis of merit without irrelevant considerations of race or ancestry."

Now if we are to accept the thesis in this case, we must therefore admit that the Negro race in the United States is more talented and, therefore, has more merit for employment in Federal jobs than does any other race. That must be so if we are to believe the statistics.

Now this is all ridiculous. And it only serves to point out how impossible it is for the government to legislate morality in this field.

• On March 9, 1949, Senator Lyndon Johnson, who is now our President, had this to say about the FEPC:

"One of the other civil rights measures deserves some passing attention. That is the bill for creation of a fair employment practices commission.

"This, to me, is the least meritorious proposal in the whole Civil Rights program. To my way of thinking it is simple: If the federal government can by law tell me whom I shall employ, it can likewise tell my prospective employees for whom they must work. If the law can compel me to employ a Negro, it can compel that Negro to work for me. It might even tell him how long and how hard he would have to work. As I see it, such a law would do nothing more than to enslave a minority. Such a law would necessitate a system of federal police officers such as we have never before seen. It would require the policing of every business institution, every transaction made between an employer and an employee, and, virtually, every hour of an employer's and employee's association while at work."

JIM LANGDON—A WINNER!

Railroad Commissioner Jim Langdon is a 49-year-old native Texan with a winning record in public office. When John Connally appointed him to the Railroad Commission, the Governor said:

"I have for several weeks been attempting to find a man I consider to have outstanding ability, integrity and honor . . . I am happy we have found that man — Judge Jim C. Langdon."

Jim Langdon has fully lived up to Governor Connally's expectations. He has conducted his office in the spirit of Governor Jim Hogg, who had the Commission set up in 1891 to look after the public interest in railroad and freight rates. It now regulates also truck and bus rates and the production of oil and gas. Judge Langdon will continue to keep transportation rates in line and see to it that our oil reserves are protected against waste and greed. This will help keep down Texas gasoline prices, already among the lowest in the nation.

Jim Langdon was elected District Judge twice and re-elected Chief Justice of the El Paso Court of Civil Appeals.

Mobile Feed Milling Studied

COLLEGE STATION.—With the growing demand for custom milling of feed grain in Texas, mobile feed mills are becoming popular. Custom milling, which involves grinding the farmer's own grain and mixing it with balanced concentrates, has greatly increased since 1939.

A new aspect was added to the custom milling of grain with the advent of the mobile

Winners Named in 4-H Favorite Food Contest

Winners in the Collingsworth County 4-H Club Favorite Food Show were named Saturday, April 11, when girls in two age groups prepared and served food of their own choosing. Mrs. Kathryn Barjenbruch announced.

In the senior division, Glenda Lancaster was winner in the fruit and vegetable group with a carrot cake, while Glenda Kiker won in the cereal group with plain cookies.

The alternate is LaJuanda Peters, who entered the meat group with a meat loaf.

Winners in the junior division were Beth Peters, who entered banana pudding in the milk group, and Barbara Wilbur, who entered tuna fish sandwiches in the meat group.

The alternates are Joye Hudspeth, with a fruit salad in the fruit and vegetable group, and Karen Waters, who entered plain muffins in the cereal group.

The senior winners will compete in the district favorite food contest at Canyon Saturday, April 25, and the winners will be eligible to participate in the state contest.

The junior group competes only to the district level.

Other girls entered in the junior division were Becky Burba, Lena Florence Hall, Deborah Peters, Susan Coffee and Margaret Reeves.

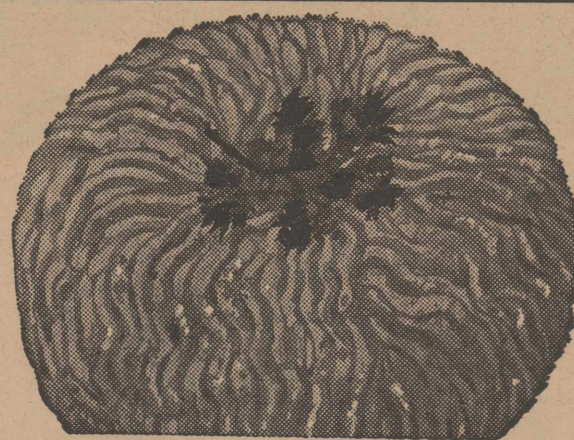

mill. With this complete processing unit mounted on a large truck, grain and roughage can be ground, feed concentrates mixed and molasses blended right on the farm.

The first mobile feed mill operation was established in Texas in 1955, according to MP-689, "An Analysis of Mobile Feed Milling Operations in Texas." The new publication of the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station says that by 1961 the number had jumped to 75. Even with this tremendous expansion, many farmers, feeders and agribusinessmen are not familiar with the mobile mill and the services it provides.

National Guard Goes to Camp on June 21

DALLAS.—Texas' 49th Armored Division is expected to be in good shape come June 26.

That is the date when "Miss 49th Armored Division" of 1964 will be selected and crowned while the National Guard division is in training at North Ft. Hood, June 27-July 5.

The 49th will crown its sweetheart after judging ceremonies are held at camp, and the winner will make her first public appearance the next day—Saturday, June 27—during the division's annual motorized review.

Selection of the 49th Division Sweetheart at camp is a change in past procedure, when she was chosen by photograph prior to field training.

"Miss 49th Armored Division" of 1964 will be selected in person from contestants representing each battalion and separate company—about 30 in all—by a panel of civilian judges at Ft. Hood.

Last year's "Miss 49th" was Sherry Faye Shull of Grand Prairie.

Each of the 105 units in the division are currently selecting their "company sweetheart," who in turn will vie for battalion honors.

Sprays Kill Fruit Pests

By Cecil Regier

Four sprays will control the insects and diseases on your peach or plum trees. The chemical to be used is malathion plus wettable sulfur. Use 3 tablespoons of 25% malathion and 9 tablespoons of wettable sulfur to 3 gallons of water.

Spray with this mixture four times.

First spray—when 75% of petals have fallen.

Second spray—10 days after the first spraying.

Third spray—10 to 14 days after the second spraying.

Fourth spray—14 to 21 days after the third spraying.

If this spray schedule is followed you should have healthy peaches and plums.

County Men to Spur Station

Clarence Wilbur, Jesse Coleman, Robert Barjenbruch and Cecil Regier, county agent, will go to Spur Friday, April 17. The highlight of their visit to the research station will be observing the drylot cow operation where cows are confined at all times and fed silage. The test on this has compared favorably with conventional cow operations and requires less land.

Any farmers interested in going should contact the county agent.

To Whom It May Concern:

On Saturday evening I attended the 37th annual meeting of the Farmers Co-op Society No. 1; and want to report I am a ginning customer for the past three years; and a seed delinting customer for several years. I feel the Coop Gin and its directors have done a wonderful service to farmers of this area.

In my estimation some discussion should have been made to the amount of customers who feel they have been damaged; but who are still depending on a decent settlement of their losses; not by court action, rather than trying to let stockholders believe that the people who were dissatisfied were mostly from distance points.

I had approximately 10,000 pounds of fuzzy seed delinted, of which I had planted 56 acres of fuzzy seeds, which came to a good stand but was washed out by rain in places enough to need replanting. After delinting I planted this place and 60 acres more, which did not germinate and after being examined by the manager of the Co-op Gin, and by his advice and my knowledge we did not plant any more of these seeds. Five Thousand pounds of these seeds are still in the warehouse of the Co-op Gin. I was assured by the manager, Dub Marchant, that they would do what was right, I didn't ask for damages, only planting seed; but now they are asking me to pay them for delinting these seed; in which they knew were good before delinting.

Now I wish to say the loss of $1200 worth of seed plus having to pay $.18 per pound for replacement seed, and paying for the delinting which ruined the seed is a little above the call of duty. I still do not want any damage for anything but planting seed. Anyone who wants to check what this cost me will find that it amounts to at least twice the amount of planting seed. This is no laughing matter, and anyone who knows the facts, and has been told by reliable men that they would do what is right should be disappointed to know that no consideration has been shown, and no checking to prove the right or wrong of each case.

Their lawyer said it would be two or three years before the claims would be paid if proven; this does not sound like justice or sound thinking for leading citizens to go by. I felt that there was an under-tone of laughter at the meeting Saturday of the seven men, that was trying to settle a claim by the only means that was left open to them. This I do not approve of. They have been at least customers of the Co-op Gin and should be considered, regardless of who they work for, or where they live.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

While everyone is confident that the rebate checks will be released before long, it is also obvious that the restraining order will have an adverse effect on retail business for the present. The payment of the rebate checks from the co-ops has added a spurt to our economy each spring with a noticeable increase in sales. Of course the payments will be made at Dodson as usual.

It is estimated that this money, which some people say is like finding it in the middle of the road, changes hands four times within two months after the checks have been issued. That means that a quarter of a million dollars in rebates is equivalent to a million dollars in gross sales.

Speaking of money, I performed a Boy Scout deed one day last week. I found a small leather purse right in front of The Leader office. In fact I stepped on it as I got out of the pickup. The purse contained $35 in ten and five dollar bills and that was all—no identification whatever and no change. I wrote out a Found on for the paper and put it on the hook, but the daughter of the owner came by looking for the purse in less than an hour. She said her mother was going to pay her house rent with the money.

The sandstorm that struck suddenly Sunday afternoon was a rough one and was unusual in that the first blast was the strongest gust of the entire storm. It smashed trailers on the gin yard, turned over heavy metal chairs on lawns, ripped shingles from the roofs of a few residences, and tore corrugated iron off of some barns. There was nothing tornadic about the storm. It was simply a straight wind from the north but there was violence in it.

Considering the severity of the storm it was remarkable to note how little damage was done to the plowed fields around here. The difference as compared to that of thirty years ago when sand actually piled up as high as the top of fence posts is due partly to improved methods of cultivation. Many acres in wheat and heavy grass contributed another safety check.

I presume the teenagers and the young couples in their twenties and early thirties get bored hearing about what happened thirty years ago; but it is interesting for some of the rest of us to remember. The most peculiar dust storm that ever fell on Wellington started out as a beautiful day, bright and crisp with not a detectable breeze stirring. Then about 10 a.m. almost on the minute if memory serves correctly, it began to get dark. Red dust as fine as face powder was falling straight down in the midst of silence and calm. Within a matter of minutes it was difficult to make out the outline of the courthouse and it was impossible to see across the square. In less than two hours a quarter of an inch of the powdery dust covered the streets and sidewalks and it continued to fall throughout the afternoon and into the night.

Meteorologists explained the queer storm in this fashion: Vast windstorms over Colorado, Kansas and northern New Mexico lifted the finer particles of dust thousands of feet into the air where it was carried by strong winds aloft with no surface winds blowing. As the winds above began to subside the dust began to settle and the red fallout began. Some of the storms that year covered all of Texas and dust settled on fishing boats far out in the Gulf of Mexico.

It is beginning to look like most of our fruit crop may have escaped the freeze, south of Salt Fork that is. Tom Cunningham says it may be a different story north of the river. There is still time for cold winds to sweep the plains; but we are not likely

A revised set of by-laws was adopted to conform to recent rulings of the Internal Revenue Service concerning cooperatives.

The next order of business was the election of officers.

While the ballots were being counted the meeting was thrown open for discussion. John C. Breeding stood up and said that the co-op was doing a fine job and he wanted to continue with them, but that there were two sides to this thing and that he thought there should be more discussion on the damaged seed.

Most of the talk was on the proposed new gin plant, J. C. Emmert said that nothing would be done about the new plant until they got the suits settled. It was explained that the new gin would be a single unit and would cost between $350,000 and $400,000 and would be capable of handling more cotton than the present plant.

All the old directors were returned to office. These are: J. C. Emmert, Fred Cox, Lewis Morris, Louis Allred, E. D. Crawley, David Baumgardner, and Carl Wischkaemper. Old officials reelected were: J. C. Emmert, president; Fred Cox, vice president; and Lewis Morris, secretary and treasurer.
