OSHA director tenders resignation

Robert A. Rowland

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert A. Rowland, accused of harassing dissidents at the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and failing to protect employees in the nation's 4.5 million workplaces, announced Friday that he is resigning.

Rowland's announced resignation, effective July 1, came on the same day the Office of Government Ethics cleared him in a review of $1 million in stockholdings he has in industries he regulated as a federal official.

"It was my intention on coming to Washington to do a job, not to get and hold onto one," Rowland said in his letter of resignation to President Reagan. "My purpose was to the best of my ability to try and change government policy to conform to your campaign platform."

In a separate statement, he said he was resigning because "this mission has been accomplished," with injuries and deaths in the nation's workplaces "at their lowest since this agency was formed."

A congressional agency said in a recent report that deaths and injuries declined because of the economic recession, not because of OSHA's efforts.

Organized labor, perhaps the most persistent critic of OSHA since Reagan took office in 1981, rejoiced in the resignation.

"For the health and safety of all American workers, we hope Rowland will be succeeded by an effective health professional," said AFL-CIO spokesman Rex Hardesty.

Rowland, a former Texas campaign fund-raiser for Reagan, was named assistant secretary of labor in charge of OSHA last July, but his recess appointment was never submitted for Senate confirmation because of opposition on Capitol Hill.

Before becoming OSHA director, Rowland was on the Occupational Safety and Helath Review Commission, a court of appeals for employers cited by OSHA, where Rowland said he slashed the staff by 40 percent, cut office space and reduced case backlog. An AFL-CIO critique of Rowland's work on the commission concluded he voted to overturn employer citations about 75 percent of the time.

Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, greeted Rowland's resignation by asking Labor Secretary William Brock to "undertake a thorough review of all decisions by Mr. Rowland."

Hawkins specifically mentioned the agency's refusal to adopt a short-term exposure limit for ethylene oxide, to which workers in hospital operating rooms are exposed, and failure to require toilet facilities and drinking water for half a million farmhands nationwide.

Bush acting like candidate for president

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

Bush

WASHINGTON — It's Grand Ole Opry time in Nashville and Vice President George Bush is on stage with television cameras whirring. The grand old man of country music, Roy Acuff, has a silver-colored jacket with Opry insignia on the back to give Bush, introduced as "a neighbor from Texas."

Bush is trying to be a good ol' boy, but can't quite pull it off. "I'm nervous with all this talent around," he confides to Acuff as he strips off the coat to his pin-stripped suit.

The vast audience is polite, applauding respectfully. The glittery singer Porter Waggoner receives a bigger hand.

The 61-year-old vice president — former Texas congressman, former ambassador to the United Nations, former head of the Republican National Committee, former envoy to China, former Central Intelligence Agency director — is running hard for president, 3½ years before election day.

He won't say he's a candidate, only that he is "firing the first pistol shot into the air" for 1988 by setting up a political action committee and asking for advice from friends around the country "in case I should decide to go for it." But he looks like and behaves like a candidate who knows the best way to win a promotion is to excel at the job he holds.

This weekend Bush is zooming across the South collecting new political IOU's.

He will be commencement speaker at the University of Mississippi; will be the main attraction at a reception for donors to a chair of medicine honoring the wife of Republican Rep. James H. Quillen at Johnson City, Tenn.; will dedicate a fountain honoring Arkansas Republican Rep. John Paul Hammersch-

IRS advises filing second return if refund later than 10 weeks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers who still have not received their federal income-tax refunds after waiting 16 weeks may speed things up by filing a duplicate return, the Internal Revenue Service said Friday.

The new computer system that has delayed processing of millions of returns this year also has refused to accept some returns, said IRS spokesman Rod Young. Such returns, he said, have been set aside for handling later in the year.

It is impossible to determine how many returns have been put aside, Young added, "but we're certainly not talking about millions."

The IRS always advises people to wait at least 10 weeks before inquiring about the status of their refunds. Such a call normally will indicate a date on which a refund can be expected. But if a refund has not been received after 16 weeks, Young said, a taxpayer probably would be advised to file a duplicate return.

The IRS will make every effort to expedite a refund from a duplicate return within four to six weeks, Young said. If the agency determines later that a return was properly filed by the April 15 deadline, it will pay interest from April 15 on late refunds.

On the other hand, the IRS can impose a penalty of 5 percent of the tax liability for each month or part of a month that a return is overdue. The penalty can be waived if a good reason for the delay is shown.

Every year the IRS finds many individual tax returns cannot be processed because they show a name different than the one in the agency's files, or a wrong Social

Telephone numbers listed to get information about late returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the telephone numbers for reaching the Internal Revenue Service computer that provides information on the status of income tax refunds.

If 10 weeks have passed since you filed and you still have not received your refund, you may call the number listed for your state. Long-distance tolls will be charged if you dial a number outside your local calling number. Several tries may be required to get through.

To get an answer, you must know your Social Security number, filing status (such as single or joint return) and — for privacy purposes — the exact amount of your refund.

The service is available Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. for taxpayers with push-button tone-signaling telephones and during regular IRS office hours for those with rotary-dial or pulse-dial phones.

Judge denies appeal of convicted Midlander

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

A Midland man convicted of attempted capital murder in 1984 after he kidnapped his prospective mother-in-law and stabbed her in the back had his appeal turned down this week by the Court of Appeals for the Eighth Supreme Judicial District in El Paso.

Albert Roy Sanchez, then 18, was convicted by a 142nd District Court jury in February 1984 for abducting Arlene Mullin, then 45, taking her to an isolated oil field in Greenwood and stabbing her in the back. Sanchez left her in the field, but later returned, and Ms. Mullin persuaded him to take her to a hospital by promising not to identify him as her assailant.

Midland spared worst of storm which hit area

Midland was figuratively sitting in the eye of a hurricane Friday evening, as thunderstorms brought rain, high winds, funnel clouds and golf-ball-sized hailstones to surrounding counties but dumped only a little rain on the Tall City.

A tornado warning was issued for Midland and Glasscock counties by the National Weather Service at 5:35 p.m. when radar detected a possible tornado about 20 miles southeast of the city, but the tornado was moving away to the southeast at 20 mph.

BUSH

midt at Harrison, Ark.; raise nearly a half million dollars at a dinner for Rep. Henson Moore in Baton Rouge, La., and kick off the special congressional election campaign of Republican candidate Edd Hargett in Marshall, Texas.

Over ham and grits at a Sunday morning breakfast in Nashville, Bush will meet with a dozen of the South's most influential Republicans who will fly in for a strategy session.

Tommy Thomas, a Panama City, Fla. Chevrolet dealer who was President Ronald Reagan's state campaign chairman in 1980 and 1984, says of Bush: "He's not a clone; nobody accuses him of that. But I'm impressed by his loyalty (to the president)." Like many other conservatives, Thomas confesses he was not "completely overjoyed" when Reagan chose Bush as his running mate in 1980. "But day by day I have become a stronger advocate."

Thomas, a co-founder of Bush's political action committee, Fund for America's Future, and a former Marine, said he has seen Reagan and Bush together. "It's a father-son relationship. They really love each other."

Bush knows that perhaps his biggest obstacle in the South is the belief shared by many conservatives that he is a closet moderate. And after more than 30 years in Texas, where he reared a family and built his business and political career, many Southerners still can't quite believe he is one of them.

Thomas dismisses the complainers: "There are only a few of them. Both parties have a few on the fringe."

Along on the Southern sweep, which is the second outing for Bush's revamped, more-olitical staff, are Craig L. Fuller, formerly Reagan's cabinet secretary, and Marlin Fitzwater, his new press secretary.

A couple of weeks ago they had directed a trek to Michigan and Texas trying out a new "high tech" theme. In those states, that could make or break a bid for the presidency, Bush claimed credit on behalf of the administration for economic achievements which he said permitted development of successful high-ech businesses.

Winging back to Washington, Bush said, "Given the quantum leap forward (by the Republican Party) in the South in 1984, I'd like to think realignment would continue."

At the East Texas rally for Hargett, he had encouraged "traditional, conservative Democrats" to move into the Republican Party where he said they would be more at home.

Even with massive realignment, Bush said, it may be a long while before Republicans are the majority party in the South. "A lot of congressional seats are held by respected Democrats who will be hard to beat," he said.

"Events and conditions control election — things like the economy," he said. "But outside of that, I see no great resurgence toward the Democrats."

Bush's travels are aimed more at helping his party and other Republican candidates than helping himself, said Deputy Press Secretary Shirley Green. In 1982, he made 257 appearances and next year, another congressional election year, he expects to make that many or more.

Some of Bush's staffers are in Europe this week, preparing the way for a trip late next month to the Netherlands, Belgium, Germany, France and England. There the president's chief cheerleader will attempt to explain and sell U.S. allies on the "strategic defense initiative," or "star wars."

OSHA

"The Occupational Safety and Health Administration's mandate is to protect workers from on-the-job hazards," said Hawkins. "Over the past four years the agency has been ineffective in setting standards and enforcing current regulations.

Rowland angered migrant workers and other groups April 12 when he rejected the proposed sanitation standards for fieldhands, despite 13 years of effort by legal services groups to get one issued. He said 13 states with the bulk of the nation's hired farmworkers already have field sanitation standards.

Rowland's stockholdings in the chemical, pharmaceutical, petroleum and other industries regulated by OSHA have been under review by the ethics office for the past three weeks for possible conflict of interest.

Rowland, who obtained a limited waiver to the conflict-of-interest statute from then-Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan last September, has denied that his decisions at OSHA were affected by his stockholdings.

His contention of innocence on the conflict of interest question was supported by the ethics office. But Rowland in recent months has faced a host of other problems.

In testimony before a congressional subcommittee two weeks ago, a union official representing Labor Department employees said seven OSHA officials, including three regional administrators, were punitively transferred, demoted or fired, usually because they favored tougher enforcement of regulations.

At the same congressional hearing two weeks ago, panel chairman U.S. Rep. Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn., said he was "concerned by what appears... to be an almost McCarthy-like crusade for political conformity within OSHA."

Rowland denied the accusations, saying the agency's 2,300 employees have been told "that there must be no strictures by OSHA managers on any expression of views by employees."

However, a temporary employee at OSHA testified that her contract with the agency was canceled abruptly in April, two weeks after she co-authored a letter protesting Rowland's plans to reject the proposed field sanitation requirements for fieldhands.

In another matter that angered labor unions, Rowland in January denied a request from a coalition of labor unions for an emergency standard to lower permissible worker exposure levels to formaldehyde.

In his statement Friday, Rowland called OSHA employees "true professionals" and said "job injuries and deaths are at their lowest since this agency was formed." He said the reason was abandonment of a long-time adversarial relationship with employers in favor of a policy of cooperation.

However, a congressional agency in a report five weeks ago attributed a decline in injury and fatality rates between 1979 and 1983 primarily to economic recession rather than OSHA's efforts.

The report by the Office of Technology Assessment said OSHA inspects fewer than 4 percent of the nation's workplaces annually and concluded the policy of cooperation "may have reduced an already-weak regulatory effort."

TAX

Security number, or if some other essential information is missing. Processing is delayed until other returns are handled.

But eventually, unless the taxpayer files a duplicate return, the IRS will write for the correct information that will allow it to process the document.

The problem was compounded this year because the new computer system at the 10 IRS regional service centers where returns are processed may not have been working properly when returns were received early in the year. If those returns could not be run through the computers, they were put aside for later processing.

"These returns are one file and we will eventually correspond with the taxpayers, asking them for a W-2 form, a signature or some other information," Young explained. "But that's a time-consuming process."

Meantime, the IRS will give processing priority to returns that produce a refund, especially those in which the refund is $1,500 or more. The agency is required by law to pay 13 percent interest on any refund from a return that was filed by the April 15 deadline unless the refund is dated before June 1.

In February, the IRS was off as much as 60 percent last year's pace in processing tax returns, chiefly because of the balky new computers. But at last report, through May 17, the agency was only 1.2 percent behind the 1984 processing level and 1.7 percent behind last year's pace of certifying refunds.

A taxpayer who has waited 10 weeks since filing may determine the status of a refund by calling the IRS' automated telephone system. The system has 27 numbers in 21 states and the District of Columbia, and a person may use only the number that serves his or her area.

STORM

Tornados were also detected 10 miles north of Crane and 8 miles north of Goldsmith, according to the Weather Service.

Tornado warnings were issued for Ector, Crane, Upton and Andrews counties, and severe thunderstorm warnings were issued for Andrews, Martin and Ector counties, but despite several funnel-cloud sightings, there were no confirmed tornado reports and no damage reported, according to National Weather Service weather specialist Jack Nunan. But a spokeswoman for the Ector County Sheriff's Department said there was some high-wind damage to some storage sheds to the northwest of town.

"We did have some wind damage around 42nd Street and FM 1936," she said. "Our funnels were reported out in that direction," but they apparently didn't touch down and cause the damage — "It was probably just high wind."

A Midland County Sheriff's deputy reported hail the size of peas in the extreme south of the county, but Midland was spared most of the weather which plagued neighboring counties. About half an inch of rain was recorded at Midland Regional Airport by the Weather Service, but less than that seemed to fall on the city itself. Still, with more thunderstorms possible this weekend, Midland may yet get its share of severe weather.

"It's a very unstable atmosphere and there's lots of moisture," said Nunan. "Any time you've got thunderstorms in the forecast you can have severe weather."

Today's chance of more thunderstorms is 20 percent, Nunan said. Skies will be partly cloudy, with a high in the low 90s and winds from the south at 5-15 mph. Tonight will be partly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low in the upper 60s, and Sunday will again be partly cloudy with a high in the mid 90s and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Friday's high of 88 was 14 degrees below the record high for the day of 102, set in 1964, while the overnight low of 58 was 8 degrees above the 1954 record low of 50.

APPEAL

At his trial, Sanchez admitted he stabbed Ms. Mullin, but said he "didn't mean to do it." He had been engaged to her daughter, who shortly before the Oct. 6, 1983 stabbing had left for California to be with her father. According to Sanchez' testimony, he lured Ms. Mullin out to the field to discuss some remarks she had made about her daughter, and he brought the knife because he felt "she wouldn't listen to me" unless he could intimidate her.

Court-appointed defense attorney William Bowden of Odessa appealed on the grounds that the lesser included offense of aggravated assault was not included in the charge; that 142nd District Judge Pat Baskin had improperly refused to pay for out-of-state defense witnesses to be brought to Midland; and that a confession was improperly admitted over defense objections.

"The court said no violation of the Code of Criminal Procedure was shown," said Wayne Frost of the Midland County District Attorney's Office on Friday. "He will serve out his sentence according to the law."

According to Frost, who prepared the prosecution brief for the appeal, the Court of Appeals ruled the defense didn't show the necessity of the out-of-state witnesses, and that the confession was admissible.

In upholding the conviction, the court also ruled the trial transcript provided no evidence that the jury should have been given the option of convicting Sanchez of a lesser-included charge of aggravated assault.

Sanchez was on probation for an earlier burglary conviction when convicted of attempted capital murder. Upon the second conviction, the burglary probation was revoked, and he was sent to the Texas Department of Corrections to begin a five-year sentence for burglary of a building, to run concurrently with his attempted-murder sentence.

Skiier does a first

ZERMATT, Switzerland (AP) — A 30-year-old Japanese man on Friday became the first person to ski down the 14,690-foot Matterhorn, a Swiss air rescue spokesman said.

Yoshimasa Waba took four hours to ski from the summit, said Air Zermatt spokesman Carlo Tobba.

Observers said two Japanese mountain climbers secured Waba with ropes along the most treacherous stretch of the run.

STATE

Grand jury to investigate Sen. Parker for third time

BEAUMONT (AP) — A grand jury will soon be investigating state Sen. Carl Parker for a third time, Jefferson County District Attorney James McGrath said Friday.

McGrath said he decided to hold a third investigation because of outcry from the public and from law enforcement agencies after the second set of felony indictments against Parker, D-Port Arthur, were thrown out last week.

McGrath said Attorney General Jim Mattox has offered to send one of his top investigators to help out this time around.

"There's been accusations made that I have a personal vendetta against Parker and I just wanted another agency here to make sure everything goes smoothly," McGrath said. "I don't hold any vendetta against him."

Last Tuesday, state District Judge Perry Pickett of Midland dismissed indictment charges against Parker and two other men after finding "there were unauthorized persons in the grand jury room."

Parker, along with Daniel Jacob Lee and David Earl Johnson, were indicted March 22 on charges of engaging in organized criminal activity and conspiracy to distribute cocaine. Parker was also charged with the wholesale promotion of obscene material.

In November, Pickett ruled the grand jury that indicted the senator two months earlier in 1984 was biased.

Two DAs differ on what to do about Blue Law

AUSTIN (AP) — While the Harris County district attorney said he will not sit idle if department stores in the area open on Sunday, the Travis County attorney said he won't prosecute violations of the blue law.

J.C. Penney and Foley's announced this week they will open Sunday even though Gov. Mark White hasn't signed a bill passed by the Legislature this week to repeal the 24-year-old blue law.

"Merchants like Foley's and Penney's are setting a poor example about what they are in the community," Harris County District Attorney Johnny B. Holmes said.

"By opening their stores on Sundays, they're choosing what law they want to abide by," Holmes said. "What if the citizens took the same attitude about choosing the laws they wanted to obey? It would be chaos."

But Travis County attorney Ken Oden said he would only prosecute if the stores forced employees to work on Sunday when they weren't willing to do so.

"Our position right now is that there is an obvious intent to change the law, and we are in a transitional period," Oden said. "It would have to be egregrious conduct by a merchant before I would consider prosecution under the present law."

Legislation repealing the Blue Law — which prohibits the sale of 42 items on consecutive weekend days — is awaiting the signature of Gov. Mark White. White said he intends to sign the measure. When it is signed, repeal would be effective Sept. 1.

Foley's vice president Dan Hagan said Thursday that Foley's stores plan to open this Sunday.

"If you asked me if I felt badly about violating the law, I'd like to point out that a lot of the companies not open this weekend were open Sundays in December," Hagan said.

Macy's and Bealls stores won't be open on Sunday despite rumors among employees saying they would open, store officials said.

"As a corporation, we're definitely not interested in breaking the law. Period," said Bealls regional operating manager Jim McDonald. "Until the governor signs the law, the corportation doesn't consider it legal for us to be open on Sunday."

Officials at Macy's New York City headquarters surmised the same thing.

"The 'go' happened with no authorization from top management," said Ruth Schwartz, a Macy's vice president. "It was people at another level who assumed since the whole thing had passed, we'd be open. It was erroneous, as we all know."

White signs bill taxing intrastate long distance calls

AUSTIN (AP) — Saying the new law would "preserve state revenues," Gov. Mark White on Friday signed a bill taxing intrastate long distance calls and enhanced phone services.

"This bill will do much to bring state law into the 20th century by recognizing the great advances that have been made in the telecommunications industry," White said.

The legislation signed by White does away with a 1907 law that requires communications companies to pay taxes on gross receipts. Those costs are passed on to consumers.

New long distance telephone companies have been exempt from paying the tax because they are not considered "telephone companies."

The exemption has resulted in several lawsuits including a suit filed by AT&T which has paid the tax under protest.

But under the new law, a sales tax will be imposed on users for intrastate telecommunications services. Basic telephone service will remain taxed under the gross receipts system.

The new taxing system will cause a rise in monthly phone service costs if they subscribe to a long-distance communication service or have special phone services such as call-forwarding.

Austin writers band together

Robot trivia? No problem. Check out "Robotica: the whole universe Catalogue of Robots," by Austinites Texe W. Marrs and Wanda J. Marrs, and find out about the woman robot who ran for president.

You want to know more about what happens when your physician does a medical test with that little gizmo and those murky substances? If you can't cut through the good doctor's medical jargon, get the scoop from Dr. Tom Ferguson in "The People's Book of Medical Tests," a consumer's guide that also fills you in on self-tests that can be done at home.

If you love a scary read, there's Carolyn Banks' "The Girls on the Row," which Ms. Banks describes as a "who's-gonna-do-it rather than a whodunit." The book is partly based on a "just hideous" actual murder in Trenton, N.J., Ms. Banks said, but she incorporated into it a "Rona Jaffe bunch of career girls living on the same block."

Austinites are writing about fnding jobs in high technology, the country's best diving and snorkeling sports, personal computers, comic book collecting, historical markers, French wines and the best country cafes in Texas.

The Austin Writers' League recently released its spring listing of league members' books that are to be published in the next few months. The books, which will be available direct from the publishers or from major distributors, reflect the diversity of the league's membership.

When author Texe Marrs first learned about the Austin Writer's League meetings, "I hesitated to go, because I'm not a bearded poet," he said "I thought these would be artsy people who are weird."

He discovered, instead, that the league's membership included "ex-UT football stars, technical writers at Lockheed or Motorola, doctors, lawyers, people who write computer books, novelists, scholarly types, a former head librarian who wrote a book about the dogs Christopher Columbus brought over on the ship..." and, he conceded, "a few bearded poets."

The league, was started by book agent-producer Ray Bard less than three years ago. It has grown grown 150 to 500 members in the past year, Marrs said. It meets the third Thursday of each month to hear speakers ranging from historical novelist James Michener to computer expert and newspaper columnist Jim Seymour, he said.

"We try to get exciting people everyone will be interested in," Marrs said. "This isn't one of those esoteric groups where Michener gets up and reads. It's where he says, 'Here's how I got started, and here's what you can do.' And with Seymour, he spoke because most writers are interested in writing with computers."

The league is a way for writers to swap information, "to find out who the bad and good guys are in publishing," Marrs said. "A lot of writers have told me they were writing a story for a magazine that was supposed to pay upon receipt and didn't for six months. There are some that are just notorious. You send them 50 letters, and they never pay you."

The group also offers a starting place for would-be writers who have never written anything more ambitious than a letter or diary. The league has support groups in which beginning writers of fiction, non-fiction and children's books meet in each other's homes, read each other's work and give constructive criticism, Marrs said.

One of the league's newest projects is the Writers' Resource Center, and information and referral phone line, that is funded primarily by the City of Austin.

Through that program, the league's writer's service coordinator and author Kate Kelley has given tips to callers on poetry readings, writng classes, Austin authors, filing for a copyright, and job opportunities.

"I've even gotten calls on real specific, picky English grammar things — like whether nouns of address should always be capitalized, even when they're informal — like, 'Hey, stud,' " Ms. Kelley said.

"If it's generic — if you say that to everybody — you don't capitalize it," she said. "But it there's just one guy, and everybody calls him 'Stud,' then that's capitalized."

City thrives on junk mail business

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa (AP) — Mailboxes crammed full of so-called junk mail may cause you to complain, but this small southeastern Iowa city has an 80,000-square-foot warehouse full of the stuff — and no one here is complaining.

Metromail Corp. is one of Mount Pleasant's largest employers, with 325 full-time workers. Every year, Metromail sends out 400 million pieces of mail, generating more than $20 million in revenue for the post office in this city of 7,320 population — about as much money as the post office makes in Las Vegas, Nev.

Every day three or four post office trailers, laden with up to 40,000 pounds of third-class mail, roll out of Metromail's plant en route to mailboxes across the nation.

80-year-old sheep shearer remembers

BIGELOW, Minn. (AP) — August Ruther rises with the sun and unpacks his wooden work box in the sheep shed, laying his soiled gloves and electric shearers on the hay, yellow with the morning's light. The sheep push to the back of the shed, in no hurry for haircuts.

Ruther is relaxed and talkative. He is happy to be out in the cool morning air and setting up to shear.

He hangs his shearing motor from a nail in the low wooden ceiling and then spreads out several boards, positioning them to collect the fleece. He plugs in the shears and revs the engine. He pours yellow-green motor oil on the vibrating shears and the rotating main gear, and the extra oil flies off in a falling circle as the machine spins.

Bigelow farmer David Benson grabs one of his sheep. He plops it down on its rear and Ruther grabs an ear to hold it in place. He runs the shaver back over the sheep's head, giving it a close-cropped crew-cut.

Ruther takes slow, smooth strokes with the shears, moving in concentric rhythms around the sheep's sides and back, down to the belly. The fleece falls away in a fat, matted pelt like a shallow wave of water, the outside old, turning over bright white on the inside. The fleece falls in a fold onto the floorboard, half-a-hand thick in tiny curls of fur.

"I'm not as fast as I used to be, but I did that one in about six minutes, I guess," Ruther says to Benson. Benson grabs another sheep as the sheared one darts back to the group, suddenly bare and skinny, seeking the warmth of the other animals.

"I think there is a psychological component. Like when a horse knows that you are scared, a sheep knows when you have sheared before and it will calm down," Ruther says.

Ruther will be 80 years old this year, and has sheared sheep for 50 years. His eyes are sky blue and his face is weatherbeaten and friendly. He holds up an old pair of shearing scissors, made in Sweden by Benson's great-uncle, a blacksmith. The scissors are black metal with a bent steel spring.

n 1955, he built his own shearing machine froma washing machine motor enmeshed with electrical cords and wooden boards, metal screws and wood screws. A drive-shaft drops down to a gearhousing connected to a flexible arm into which Ruther's Wyoming Special shear is plugged.

Ruther started shearing sheep to make money in 1934 with hand clippers. In 1939, he and a pal ordered a gas-driven double-outlet shear motor. In 1952, he traveled with a group of shearers through the Dakotas. From 1962 to 1980, he sheared in the Sioux Falls stockyards. Since 1980, he says he has slowed down, only shearing small herds for friends like David Benson.

Reagan calls reports of Pentagon overcharges 'propaganda'

By TERENCE HUNT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says reports about the Pentagon buying $400-plus hammers are nothing more than "propaganda" and "horror stories," "misconceptions" and "trash." Yet, he's having a hard time selling that argument to Congress.

In recent days, there has been an outburst of anger on Capitol Hill about revelations of the military buying expensive hammers, $7,000 coffee-makers and $640 toilet seats.

"I'm tired of having to go home and apologize about scandalous waste in the Defense Department," complained Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.

"I am just fed up with the very, very small percentage of our contractors who have stolen, cheated and lied," said Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

"As we all know from our mail," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., "the American people are angry."

The upshot was passage in the Senate this week of legislation to overhaul the Pentagon purchasing system. Among other things, it will require the military to use competitive bidding on more contracts.

It also will bar Pentagon employees from dealing with contractors who approach them about a job.

To hear Reagan tell it, though, there hasn't been any problem.

At a speech last week, the president put aside his prepared text and expressed frustration over reports of Pentagon waste. He said he wanted to "cure some great misconceptions that are the result of a drumbeat of ceaseless propaganda that's been prevalent in the land with regard to national defense.

"Just give you one line about it," said Reagan. "That $436 hammer — we never bought that.

An Analysis

"We're the ones that found out that that's what they'd been asking for it, and we didn't buy it," Reagan said. "And that's true of all those other horror stories.

"The truth is they're success stories. We're the ones who have been uncovering all that trash and doing something about it," Reagan said.

It is true that the military has uncovered some overcharges before it paid the bill, such as in the much ballyhooed case of the $9,609 Allen wrench turned up by the Air Force.

However, the hammer is another story.

The hammer was one of 421 items included in a contract signed between the Navy and Gould Inc. of Rolling Meadows, Ill., in 1982 for spare parts and tools for T-34 flight simulators.

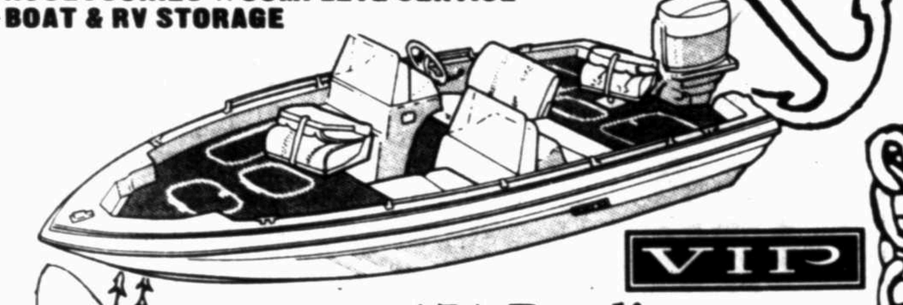

It was not until after the bill was paid that the Navy learned it had spent $436 for a hammer that could be purchased in any hardware store for $15 to $20. Navy Secretary John Lehman complained to Gould, and the company refunded $84,000 for the hammer and other overcharges.

"Yes, we paid $426 for a claw hammer but we bought only one at that price and then demanded and received reimbursement," Adm. James D. Watkins, chief of naval operations, told the Senate Armed Services Committee last February. "And yes, we did purchase two diodes for $104 apiece. However, we received a full refund for both and purchased 122,000 of the same diodes at 4 cents apiece."

While there were varying estimates on the cost of the hammer, Reagan seemed to be the only one who thought it had not been purchased. Had he misspoken when he said the Pentagon didn't buy it?

"The press seems to point out that he did," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes. "Perhaps he did."

As if that weren't enough trouble for the president, a new storm began building over the discovery that the Pentagon has received a windfall of billions of dollars because its inflation predictions were too high in recent years.

Alleged terrorist charged with weapons violations

NATION

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A balding doctor linked to radicals in the bloody $1.6 million Brink's robbery attempt in New York four years ago was ordered held without bail Friday after authorities described him as a terrorist bent on overthrowing the U.S. government.

Dr. Alan Berkman, 39, of Brooklyn, N.Y., wearing a curly brown woman's wig to avoid detection, was arrested Thursday night in suburban Warminster with Elizabeth Ann Duke, 44, of Austin, Texas, also ordered held without bail pending a hearing for the pair Tuesday.

"Both of them were armed with loaded automatic weapons on their laps, and she had her hand on her gun," said John Hogan, special agent in charge of the FBI's Philadelphia office.

Hogan said authorities spotted Miss Duke driving a rented van and followed her to a Philadelphia rental agency, where she picked up a compact car. Ten agents captured the two suspects while they apparently were headed for New York, he said.

"At a secure area on the highway, where we could take them without injury to anyone, the arrests were made," Hogan said.

Hogan said the two were members of the May 19th Communist Movement, which he called "an off-shoot of the once notorious Weather Underground, also linked to the Black Liberation ront and all part of the Marxist-Leninist revolutionary apparatus."

Hogan said agents searching the car found a 12-gauge shotgun, three automatic revolvers, "dum-dum" bullets and books by communist philosopher Karl Marx, Vietnamese revolutionary Ho Chi Minh and former Chinese leader Mao Tse-Tung. Papers for 10 false identities also were found, Hogan said.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Karl Lunkenheimer said the car "was packed to the gills with personal belongings as if they were moving from somewhere to somewhere else."

However, he said he did not know if the pair had been living in the Philadelphia area.

The two were charged with violation of federal weapons laws and carrying false identifications. Miss Duke also was accused of harboring a fugitive.

Berkman has been sought since early 1983 on a fugitive warrant charging him with being an accessory after the fact in the bungled Oct. 20, 1981, robbery of a Brink's truck in Nanuet, N.Y., where one guard was killed. Two police officers also were shot to death at a roadblock in Nyack, N.Y.

Authorities say Berkman traveled to the radicals' Mt. Vernon, N.Y., hideout and treated one of the radicals, Marilyn Jean Buck, who had shot herself accidentally during the confrontation with police.

Ms. Buck, along with a companion, was arrested in New York May 11.

Hogan, declining to give any details, said the investigation of the radical group members is continuing and that the van will be searched for any traces of explosives.

"We are still looking for other individuals who have been intereacting with these people," Hogan said. "And there are about 400 pounds of dynamite stolen in Texas two years ago which is still unaccounted for. Some of it was recovered last November in Cherry Hill, N.J., but we don't know what happened to the rest of it."

Hogan said Berkman also was wanted in an armed robbery of a Cromwell, Conn., supermarket. Miss Duke faces no other charges, Hogan said.

The hearing Friday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Powers was continued because the suspects' lawyer, Susan Tipograf, was representing Miss Buck in a New York courtroom.

The Tuesday hearing will focus on bail, the local charges and an extradiction motion for Berkman, Lunkenheimer said.

Lunkenheimer said Miss Buck, also wanted in a 1977 prison escape in West Virginia, "was a shooter in the Nyack robbery," which authorities say was carried out by a coalition of black militants and white radicals.

Five people already have been convicted on New York state charges in the Brink's case.

Dr. Alan Berkman, right in left photo, and Elizabeth Duke, right in right photo, are escorted at FBI offices in Philadelphia Friday after their Thursday night arrests. Officials say Berkman, 39, of Brooklyn, N.Y., treated a radical after the Brinks robbery four years ago, and Ms. Duke, 44, of Austin, Texas, allegedly violated weapons and false identification laws.

Teen uses mother's savings on spending spree

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A 14-year-old girl went on a two-week, $10,000 spending spree using her mother's life savings to buy marijuana and parcel out lavish tips and "hush money" to keep the windfall a secret, police said.

Authorities had recovered nearly $2,000 by Friday and were working to recover the rest of the nest egg the girl found hidden in the house, Detective Mumzell Pope-Dockery said.

The juvenile, whose name was not released, had about $700 left Thursday when police charged her with grand larceny, Ms. Pope-Dockery said. She was being held in the Chattanooga Juvenile Detention Unit.

"She stole it ($10,000) May 10th, and she's been splurging ever since."
—Detective Pope-Dockery

"She stole it May 10th, and she's been splurging ever since," the detective said.

The woman, a beautician, told authorities she had scrimped and even sold her car to save the money for her future. Most of the savings came from her Social Security supplement for the death of her husband.

"She's worked like a dog all her life," said Ms. Pope-Dockery. "She's just sick about it."

The mother went to police after she discovered the money missing. Police then began questioning the family, Ms. Pope-Dockery said.

The teen-ager confessed to taking the money after learning she might be fingerprinted and connected to a lie detector machine, Ms. Pope-Dockery said.

The girl's spree allegedly included a $500 tip to a person who gave her a ride to a shopping center and between $2,000 and $3,000 for drugs. Part of the loot went for new clothes, the detective said.

A significant portion apparently went to up to 13 other people who learned the girl had the money and demanded cuts to keep it a secret, Ms. Pope-Dockery said.

Police have found new videocassette recorders and television sets in some of the youths' homes, and one person used some of the money to make a down payment on a motorcycle.

The girl gave $2,500 to one man, $1,100 to a brother-sister and $630 to another person, police said.

Nearly $2,000 has been recovered, police said. Six juveniles and two adults were told they will be charged with grand larceny if the rest is not repaid within a few days.

Botha asks Angola to return soldier

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa asked Angola on Friday to return a South African soldier captured during what Angola claimed was a sabotage mission against an American-run oil complex.

Foreign Minister R.F. Botha also asked that Angola return the bodies of two soldiers reported killed in the operation, according to a Foreign Ministry statement.

Botha said the soldiers were gathering intelligence on South African guerrillas who train in Angola. He said the requests were based on reports by the official Angolan news agency, Angop, that that a soldier was killed and two were captured.

The Angolan Defense Ministry said Friday it would hold a news conference today to give details of the incident. Angola made no immediate response to South Africa's requests.

Botha said Angola had violated international law by harboring guerrillas and South Africa has the right to "take appropriate steps to protect its own security and territorial integrity."

Angop reported Wednesday night that Angolan troops killed two South African soldiers Tuesday and captured another in far northern Angola's Cabinda Province. It agency said the South Africans were carrying short-wave radios, walkie-talkies, silencer-equipped guns, 16 contact mines and two fire bombs.

Angola said the soldiers planned to sabotage an oil refinery in Cabinda run partly by the U.S.-based Gulf Oil Corp. The Cabinda oil fields supply 90 percent of the government's foreign earnings and are heavily guarded by Cuban troops.

The U.S. State Department, which helped mediate the troop withdrawal, criticized the unit's presence in Angola and said it wanted a full explanation.

Spokesman Edward Djerejian said, "The United States government is deeply concerned about the safety of U.S. citizens and property overseas. We would therefore view most seriously any effort from any source which would have the effect of placing in danger, in this case, Gulf Oil employees or property in Cabinda."

South African military officials at first denied the Angolan report, then acknowledged that intelligence units were operating in neighboring black countries and that contact with one such unit in Angola had been lost.

Botha claimed northern Angola was "the main base area" for training African National Congress guerrillas, who are fighting white-minority rule from exile.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar on Friday condemned the South African mission into Angola as a "gross violation of the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Angola."

Angola accuses South Africa of arming and supporting the Union for the Total Independence of Angola, which controls the southwestern corner of Angola. UNITA leader Jonas Savimbi has said recently his forces consider Cabinda a prime target in the campaign to overthrow the government.

Soviet crackdown on drinking starts early

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's crackdown on drinking has hit Moscow earlier than expected, cutting liquor store hours in half, drying out official parties and making the latest anti-alcohol campaign the talk of the town.

A week before the new regulations were supposed to take effect, stores, restaurants, official organizations and professional clubs are already enforcing what some Muscovites call "the semi-dry law."

They also are going beyond some provisions of the long-awaited decree on alcoholism, issued May 16 as part of Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev's effort to combat drunkenness and the resulting inefficiency of many workers.

Among other things, the drinking age was raised from 18 to 21, and penalties for drunken driving and public drunkenness were stiffened. Drinking was forbidden at official banquets and receptions, and liquor store hours were ordered cut.

Those measures were to have gone into effect June 1, but many are already in force in the Soviet capital.

Many liquor stores already are observing the new hours — from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m. Previously, liquor stores were open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Some Moscow residents say grocery liquor departments in their regions have been shut down completely or sell only wine and beer.

Along Moscow's Kozhukhovskaya Street, the new hours were posted on two shops where liquor is sold by the glass. In one, a vodka bottle stood on a shelf, but vodka was not listed on the price cards arranged along the sales counter.

Over a period of a few minutes, both shops were approached by men who looked surprised at not being able to buy a drink at noon.

Western diplomats in Moscow say liquor is no longer served at government receptions where liberal amounts of vodka used to flow.

Restaurants in clubs for writers, journalists and other professions don't serve alcohol during lunch or dinner, according to Soviets with access to such establishments.

At the House of Writers, one Soviet said, even the barroom contained only a few bottles of beer and an unhappy-looking barmaid.

Public restaurants won't serve any alcohol, even wine, until after 2 p.m.

The restaurant run by the Foreign Ministry for foreign correspondents and its own press department still serves alcohol. The new sales hours haven't affected shops where tourists and other foreigners can make purchases for hard currency.

The anti-drinking measures have become the focus of conversations all over town. Some Soviets are pleased that the rumored rationing did not take effect, others complain that it's getting harder to buy a bottle of vodka and many praise the campaign.

Sakharov friend arrives in West

Kristi

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A Soviet peace activist and friend of dissident Andrei Sakharov said Friday that Sakharov was cut off from communications, "buried alive" in the city of Gorky by Soviet authorities.

Irina Kristi, 47, her husband and child arrived in Vienna on Friday after unexpectedly being allowed to emigrate from the Soviet Union. Mrs. Kristi has been in contact with Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner, since the Nobel Peace Prize winner was exiled to Gorky in 1980.

She said Sakharov "is buried alive in Gorki without any contact" with the outside, but that Mrs. Bonner is allowed to send some letters and telegrams.

Mrs. Kristi showed reporters a photocopied message that she said was written by Mrs. Bonner, congratulating them on being allowed to emigrate.

"We are very happy for you," said the message, dated May 20. "We wish good luck to you, your husband and your son."

Mrs. Kristi said Sakharov had recently ended a new hunger strike and discounted rumors that he has resumed fasting.

On the basis of correspondence to friends from Mrs. Bonner, "we have real grounds to believe that on April 16, Sakharov was on hunger strike," she said. "He was taken to the hospital on the 21st and force-fed, and I have reasons to believe that he was on hunger strike at least until May 3 but I think at the moment he is not."

Mrs. Kristi was accompanied by her husband, Sergei, 51, and their 3-year-old son, Grigori. They arrived on a regular Aeroflot flight and she said they hoped to settle in the United States.

Sakharov, a leading dissident in the Soviet Union, won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1975 for his activities on behalf of human rights. Since being exiled to Gorky, he has been trying to get permission for Mrs. Bonner to be allowed to go to the West for medical treatment.

Mrs. Kristi said recent letters from Mrs. Bonner show an improvement in the couple's morale. But she said, "I have the impression that he is in despair and ready to do anything that a man in despair can do."

She spoke in Russian and her remarks were translated by Cronid Lubarsky, a family friend who lives in the West.

Mrs. Kristi visited Sakharov in Gorky a year ago, when he was on hunger strike. She said she was detained, escorted back to Moscow and put under four months house arrest along with her husband.

Asked why she and her family were allowed to leave the Soviet Union, she said, "I was the last person to see Sakharov and they wanted to get rid of me."

Reagan: U.S. could be refugee camp

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday that southern regions of the United States could become "virtual refugee camps" for millions of Latin Americans if the leftist government of Nicaragua is permitted to spread revolution throughout Central America.

"Nicaragua is another pawn in the Soviet grand strategy of expansion, a direct challenge to America just 700 miles from our territory," the president told the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Already, more than 250,000 Nicaraguans have fled, many flooding into Costa Rica and Honduras," he added. "If the Sandinistas, the Communists, are allowed to export their violence, the flood will grow and our southern states could become virtual refugee camps for hundreds of thousands — even millions — of the dispossessed."

The House last month killed the administration's request for $14 million in aid for the Contra rebels trying to oust the Sandinista government. However, the administration says the mood in Congress has changed and that some type of aid will be approved soon.

"Our administration firmly believes that the United States should provide aid to the Nicaraguan freedom fighters struggling for the democratic ideals that the Sandinista revolution has betrayed," Reagan said.

Confucius statue causes uproar

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Plans to build a statue of the sage Confucius that would be higher than the Statue of Liberty have been stymied by critics who say it would endanger air traffic and waste $2.5 million better spent on the city's garbage crisis.

The two Confucian societies that proposed it say the statue would attract tourists and would be a "cultural and spiritual fortress," a public reminder of the Confucian values that have profoundly influenced Oriental societies.

"Statues increase by numbers and sizes in Taiwan but a social atmosphere of corruption remains and the physical presence of any statue will not help the social atmosphere," says Huang Kuang-kuo, a professor at the Natinal Taiwan University and a newspaper columnist.

"If we don't take care of more urgent problems, like garbage collection, the garbage will someday probably pile up higher than the proposed statue," he added.

Taipei's population of 2.5 million generates about 3,200 tons of garbage daily. It is now deposited in dumps, but there have been proposals to burn it.

Critics claim the statue would be a hazard to aircraft, spoil what little natural beauty is left in Taipei and amount to deification of the philosopher.

Controversy over the statue has forced city officials to shelve the idea for further study.

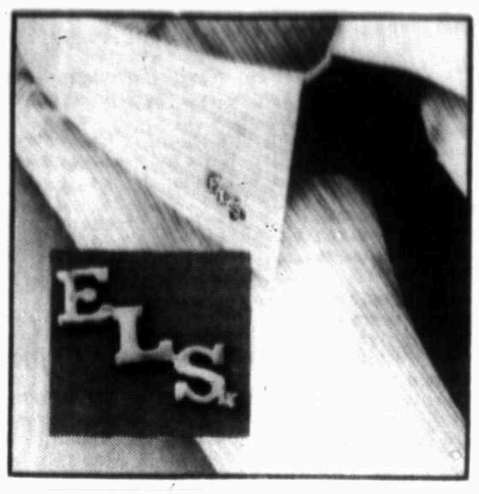

Confucius, born in the 6th centruy B.C. while China was divided into warring feudal states, held only minor government posts. But the principles of just government and filial piety he taught were espoused by centuries of Chinese rulers.

The Chinese Music and Ritual Society and the Confucius-Mencius Society, civil groups devoted to studying and preserving Confucianism, first proposed the statue.

It won the support of some city government officials but it now has been shelved for further study because of the controversy.

As proposed, the 220-ton copper monument would rise 157 feet from a 98-foot-high pedestal atop Elephant Hill, which itself rises 852 feet in eastern Taipei. The Statue of Liberty in New York measures just 151 feet from its base to its torch.

Train carrying chemicals, truck collide

EASTLAND (AP) — A train carrying hazardous chemicals collided with a truck Friday, injuring at least a dozen people, causing a fire that destroyed two homes and forcing an evacuation that included the county jail, authorities said.

Officials contained the fire about two hours after the 9:30 a.m. collision and brought in bulldozers to dam a nearby creek and prevent the acid from the train from reaching Lake Leon and contaminating the local water supply.

At least two homes were destroyed by fire. Residents within a mile of the explosion were evacuated, and 17 jail prisoners were held under guard in City Hall, officials said.

"I was sitting here on the phone and everything began to shake and rattle and then, 'Boom!' the whole sky turned orange," said LaVerne Maynard, who runs a store seven blocks from the downtown railroad crossing.

"I looked out and thought the whole town was afire," Maynard said. "The flames came plumb up to my house."

Ten train cars derailed, four of them carrying hydrochloric acid, hydrofluoric solution, sulfuric acid and propane gas, said Charlie Rose, state Department of Public Safety spokesman in Abilene.

"We don't know whether the train cars derailed and hit the truck or whether the truck crossed the tracks and caused the train to collide and derail," Rose said.

"There was an explosion. There was a fire. There was toxic chemical leakage," he said.

At least 12 people were treated at Eastland Hospital, said spokeswoman Janice Krantz.

The truck driver, Gaylon E. Nelms of Eastland, was transferred to an Abilene hospital, she said. Five people were admitted in undetermined condition in Eastland and six were treated and released, she said.

Gary Rose, an employee at the Wal-mart Discount Store about a mile from the accident, said he and his fellow workers initially thought the collision was a thunderstorm.

"It sounded like a deep rolling thunder," he said. "It shook our building and flickered our lights. There was a big boom first, then rolling thunder.

"We went outside and there were flames very, very high. We're about a mile away, but it looked like it was right next door," he said.

About three hours after the accident, authorities broadened the evacuation from a half-mile to one mile, and the Wal-mart was evacuated, Gary Rose said.

Eastland, a town of about 3,700 people, is 50 miles east of Abilene.

Pastor urges re-election of convention head

DALLAS (AP) — The Southern Baptist Convention meeting in Dallas this summer is shaping up as one of the most volatile in the denomination's history, with the latest salvo between moderates and fundamentalists fired by a prominent Dallas pastor.

The Rev. W.A. Criswell, pastor of First Baptist Church in Dallas, this week sent 26,000 letters urging Baptist ministers to re-elect the Rev. Charles Stanley as president of the convention.

Stanley is a fundamentalist and a key figure in the denomination's moderate-fundamentalist split.

Calling Stanley "God's prophet," Criswell urged pastors to vote for Stanley at the June 11-13 convention in Dallas. Criswell's Dallas church is the largest Baptist church in the nation.

Criswell, whose church has 25,000 members, in most cases has stayed behind the scenes during the moderate-fundamentalist fight.

STATE IN BRIEF

Bill would end tax credits for producers of gasohol

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate voted on Friday to pass a bill that would end tax credits for out-of-state producers of gasohol.

On a voice vote, the Senate approved the bill with the condition that it not be implemented until 1987. Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, said the two-year wait is necessary to decide if the measure is constitutional.

Sen. Ted Lyon Jr., D-Rockwall, said the Supreme Court has declared similar measures unconstitutional in several cases.

Producers of motor fuel and alcohol mixtures are currently given tax credits by the state. But the majority of the producers are from out of state. When the legislation is implemented, gasohol producers that use Texas-grown products to make the fuel will have priority in receiving the tax credits.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, expressed fear before the bill was passed that the measure may discourage the manufacture in Texas of the energy-saving product.

Six-engine train derails

DENTON (AP) — A train derailed Friday afternoon, causing minor injuries and blocking traffic along U.S. Highway 377 for several hours.

The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad train was northbound from Fort Worth to Denison when it derailed at about 3 p.m. in Argyle, a few miles south of Denton, authorities said.

A woman and her baby suffered minor injuries when a semitrailer riding one of the cars slid off and hit the vehicle the two people were waiting in, the Denton Record Chronicle reported. They were taken to a private doctor in another vehicle and their condition was not known.

Denton County Sheriff's Deputy Alan Williams said electricity was turned off in the area to prevent a fire.

The six-engine train was pulling 21 loaded train cars and 79 empty cars. One of the derailed cars carried non-hazardous low-grade oil, but no leaks were reported.

Senate requests flag loan

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate asked Mexico Friday to loan Texas a flag that flew over the Alamo in 1836 so Texas can use it next year to celebrate its independence from Mexico.

A resolution by Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, identified the flag as the banner of the New Orleans Greys, a detachment of soldiers from Louisiana.

Texas wants the flag on loan when it celebrates its sesquicentennial, or 150th anniversary of its independence from Mexico.

The resolution said the flag is the only one flown by the Alamo's defenders "to have been preserved to modern times (and) the loan would serve as a gesture of goodwill in testimony to the international friendship that has replaced the conflict of a century and a half ago."

It added that if the flag should be in "disrepair," Texas would offer to restore it at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon, "which is a leading center in this country for the refurbishing of rare historical artifacts."

Contractor charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas contractor has been charged with obstruction of justice in connection with a federal investigation into highway contract bid-ridding, the U.S. Justice Department said Friday.

Paul Haskell Motheral, president of Motheral Contractors Inc. of Weslaco, was named in a one-count felony information filed in Austin, the Justice Department said.

The department charges Motheral "corruptly influenced a grand jury witness who was a former officer of Motheral Contractors Inc. to withhold, alter or change his testimony so as not to incriminate the defendant" in 1981.

The maximum penalty for obstruction of justice is five years imprisonment and a fine of $5,000.

Boat employees bill OK'd

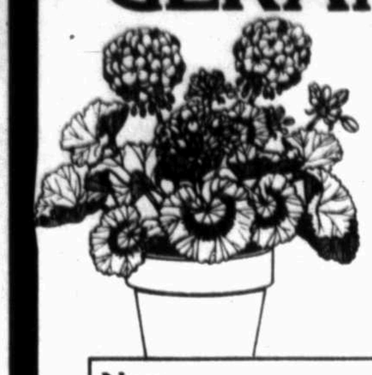

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would reach back 17 years and authorize retirement credits for 14 ferry boat employees inched closer to final passage Friday.

The bill, which has passed the House, was tentatively approved by the Senate on Friday.

Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said that in 1968, certain employees of the Nueces County Ferry Boat System were transferred to the state highway department when the department took over the Port Aransas Ferry System.

The employees were never granted retirement credit for the years they worked on the county ferry system, which started in the early 1960s. Truan's bill would give the employees one month retirement credit for every two months of service prior to 1968.

Mistrial may be declared if von Bulow's ex-mistress not found

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The judge in Claus von Bulow's attempted murder retrial Friday gave prosecutors four days to find his former mistress, and suggested she would consider a defense motion for a mistrial if they failed to produce her by then.

Superior Court Judge Corinne P. Grande said by Tuesday prosecutors must finish with witnesses, including Alexandra Isles, who bolstered the state's case at von Bulow's 1982 trial said she gave him a deadline for divorcing his wife. Mrs. Isles was last known to be in Europe and unwilling to testify again.

Ms. Grande deferred a defense motion that a mistrial be declared because Assistant Attorney General Marc DeSisto, in opening arguments, had referred to Mrs. Isles' 1982 testimony.

Ms. Grande has ruled the testimony could not be admitted at the retrial because the state had not used "due diligence" in trying to bring Mrs. Isles to Rhode Island. The judge said a mistrial could not be declared based on references to Mrs. Isles because the state has not yet rested its case and might be able to produce the witness.

Ms. Grande said when court resumes she will consider whatever motions need to be heard after the state completes its case. Attorneys expect her to reconsider the mistrial motion Tuesday, assuming Mrs. Isles does not appear.

The two state policemen who investigated the von Bulow case from the start were in Europe Friday searching for Mrs. Isles. The trial is to resume Tuesday.

The state alleges von Bulow tried to kill Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with insulin injections in 1979 and 1980 so he could be free to marry Mrs. Isles and inherit his $14 million share of his wife's $75 million fortune.

Mrs. von Bulow, 53, recovered from a 1979 coma but doctors say the coma she suffered a year later is irreversible.

She suffered from a chronic low blood-sugar condition the state alleges was plunged to near-fatal levels by insulin injections.

Von Bulow's defense alleges the Pittsburgh utilities heiress brought on her own medical condition by abusing drugs, alcohol and sweets.

Von Bulow faces up to 40 years in prison if convicted on the two charges of attempted murder. His 1982 convictions were overturned by the Rhode Island Supreme Court on state constitutional grounds.

In another possible blow to the state's attempt to show motive, defense attorney John F. Sheehan said the judge indicated Friday she will not allow prosecutors to discuss Mrs. von Bulow's estate.

The jury already has heard DeSisto outline what Chemical Bank officer G. Morris Gurley would say about how much von Bulow, 58, stood to gain from his wife's estate.

Defense attorney Thomas Puccio, using a videotape of DeSisto's April 25 opening statement, said the state's case the past five weeks "so severly prejudiced" von Bulow that it is impossible for him to receive a fair trial.

In the statement, DeSisto said Mrs. Isles would repeat her testimony at von Bulow's first trial that she had given him a six-month deadline for divorcing his wife and marrying her.

"That deadline ran out about the time of the first injection," DeSisto said in the statement.

Even before the trial began April 8, the defense had filed a motion requesting that the testimony of Mrs. Isles and Gurley be ruled inadmissible because it was not relevant.

Meanwhile, Assistant Attorney General Henry Gemma said hoped that if Mrs. Isles is found early enough in the presentation of the defense's case, the state still may be able to use her testimony.

"We can ask the court to reopen. It's up to the court's discretion," he said. "The timing would be significant. If it's two weeks into the defense's case, the judge probably wouldn't look too favorably on it.

"But it's all hypothetical of course. If we find her, if we can bring her back."

NATION in brief

Council: Weekend death toll may be 380-480

CHICAGO (AP) — Between 380 and 480 people could die on the nation's highways over the Memorial Day weekend, which traditionally starts the summer vacation season, the National Safety Council says.

This year's count was to begin at 6 p.m. local time Friday and end at midnight local time Monday. About 340 people could be expected to die during that period on a non-holiday weekend, council spokesman Sean S. Clancy said Friday.

Clancy said reduced gas prices may "make it easier for people to travel...may be a contributing influence" to increasing the traffic flow. Good weather likely would bring out more travelers, he said.

Hmong refugee dies

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A 15th Hmong refugee in the Twin Cities area has died unexpectedly in his sleep from a mysterious illness, authorities said.

Vue Lor, 29, of St. Paul, was found dead Wednesday by his wife, said James Essling, spokesman for the Ramsey County medical examiner's office.

Authorities have dubbed the malady the sudden unexplained nocturnal death syndrome. Since 1977, it has killed more than 80 refugees, most of them Hmong.

A 1984 study by Neil Holton, a physician at St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center, suggested the deaths may be stress-related.

June 1 declared 'dry day'

SCITUATE, Mass. (AP) — The school committee has decided to try to persuade adults to stop drinking alcohol for 24 hours to help set an example for children.

At the suggestion of a member whose mother died in an accident involving a drunk driver, the committee voted Thursday for a June 1 dry day.

On that day, adults in this town of 17,000 people will be asked to abstain, discuss alcohol with their families and participate in a public meeting on alcohol use among pupils and in an alcohol hotline, said Cathleen Everett, school committee chairwoman.

Girl's efforts fail to save grandfather

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) — A 4-year-old girl tried in vain to help with an innertube when her grandfather slipped underwater in his swimming pool, then frantically telephoned for help, but, she said afterward, "Nothing worked."

Donald Ramsay, 44, was trying to teach his granddaughter, Rachel, to swim when he drowned, officials said.

The two were home alone when the incident occurred Wednesday night. "He slipped into the water...He didn't move," the child said.

She said she put on an inner tube, paddled out to him but he couldn't hold on to her hand, and she began crying.

Rachel then tried to call neighbors for help, but their telephone line was busy, and so she called the operator, who broke into the neighbor's call and summoned help, according to the child's grandmother, Ninfa Ramsay.

Paisley Boyd, whose wife often babysits for Rachel, said he and his 17-year-old son Chris ran to Ramsay's home, but it was too late.

"He was on the bottom (of the pool) on his back," said Boyd. "He was already dead."

Paramedics were called but found no signs of life. An autopsy report Thursday listed drowing as the cause of death. No other signs or conditions, such as heart attack, were found.

Ramsay was not a practiced swimmer, but "he could take care of himself," said Mrs. Ramsay.

"He shouldn't have gone into the pool," Rachel said Thursday. "I didn't know he would go down and die...I tried everything (to help him), but nothing worked."

Rachel has taken the news of her grandfather's death well, said Mrs. Ramsay. But both she and Boyd felt Rachel is too young to understand it.

After the accident, Boyd said, "she said she hoped her grandaddy would be OK today."

Storms hit West, South parts of state

From Staff and Wire Reports

Heavy thunderstorms hit parts of West Texas and South Texas Friday afternoon, spawning a tornado near Odessa and dumping more than an inch of rain in San Antonio, where lightning set a house on fire and damaged a parking garage.

Storms dumped up to 1.3 inches of rain in the northwest part of San Antonio. Lightning struck a home in Castle Hills and set it on fire, but the blaze was extinguished, authorities said. There was no one inside the home and no injuries were reported.

Lightning also struck a parking garage at a San Antonio mall causing a section of roof to fall to the next level, authorities said.

A tornado was spotted near Odessa early Friday evening. The National Weather Service issued severe thunderstorm watches for parts of the Permian Basin, South Texas and the Hill Country until 10 p.m. Friday.

Odessa Country Sheriff's Deputy Mark Fluitt said the tornado was spotted west of Odessa, but there were no reports of injuries or damage.

A weak cold front and a minor upper air trough caused the showers and thunderstorms, the weather service said.

Heavy thunderstorms also were reported northwest of Corpus Christi and west and northwest of Midland. Most thunderstorm activity was moving southeast at about 20 mph.

The forecast called for a severe thunderstorm watch from the Coastal Bend through the Hill Country into the Permian Basin.

NATION

Severe thunderstorms marched across the Florida peninsula Friday, dropping pebble-sized hail and heavy rain on the Sunshine State. Scattered thunderstorms also hit central Texas, the Plains and the Mississippi Valley, and rain continued over portions of Appalachia.

Hail fell in Tarpon Springs, Fla., north of St. Petersburg, when a heavy thunderstorm moved ashore. Twin waterspouts were spotted in the Gulf of Mexico just offshore from Hudson, about 30 miles northnorthwest of Tampa.

The storms were the result of a slowly advancing cold front that extended from the Atlantic Ocean across northern Florida and into the Gulf of Mexico, the National Weather Service said. As they intensified during the afternoon, a tornado watch was posted for a large area of central Florida and adjacent coastal waters.

Angels' lightning strikes in 9th to tie series

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Chalk up a Midland 4-3 Texas League victory over Tulsa to reverse psychology. At least, that's a theory Angel manager Joe Maddon has when the first pitch his starter throws is knocked over the fence.

"Junior (California Angels minor league pitching coach Joe Coleman) and I have a theory. If the pitcher strikes out the first batter he faces, he could be in trouble. But, if the batter hits it hard, it's a sign of good things to come."

The situation came up against Tulsa Friday night at Angel Stadium when Jeff Moronko punched Doug McKenzie's first pitch over the left field fence for a 1-0 lead.

Maddon's theory then went into effect as McKenzie retired the side and settled down into the newly-found style of pitching at Angel Stadium, which is few hits and fewer runs in a park where football-type scores are more the norm.

MIDLAND COUNTERED the homer in the bottom of the second with an RBI single by Juan Cruz that scored Mark Bonner. Driller Bob Gergen answered when he scored after a double, wild pitch and an RBI ground out by Jeff Mace in the fifth. Moronko scored again in the eighth on a walk, a stolen base that turned into two bases when Midland catcher David Heath's throw went into center field and a single by Willie Darkis. Tulsa, 3-1.

Then came the dramatic final two innings that sparked the interest of the 938 previously quite fans in the stands. With nobody out, Heath made up for his error with a leadoff home run over the left-center fence, cutting the margin to 3-2.

One out later, Dan Murphy received a free pass to chase reliever Billy Taylor for bullpen ace Clyde Reichard. Devon White greeted Reichard with a single up the middle and both runners advanced when center fielder Ruben Sierra overran the ball for an error.

Tulsa then took the bat out of Reggie Montgomery's hands, giving the slugging left fielder an intentional walk to load the bases only to have Billie Merrifield tie the game with a sacrifice fly to right.

Reichard hit Mark Bonner with the next pitch to reload the bases but Tito Nanni ended the inning when he was called out swinging on an appeal to the third base umpire.

That call kept Maddon from seeing the end of the game as he went out to argue his point and was quickly ejected. It was the second confrontation of the night between Maddon and the umpires.

After Tulsa failed to take advantage of Barry Brunenkant's leadoff walk in the ninth, the Angels quickly jumped on Reichard. Cruz walked, went to second on a wild pitch and was moved to third on Heath's deep fly out to right field.

Kevin Davis followed with a walk and Dan Murphy an RBI single that went to the right and off the glove of Tulsa first baseman Doug Davis.

IT WAS the fourth straight night a Tulsa-Midland game went down to the wire, all four games decided by one run. A tough situation for any manager to watch.

"That's why I got kicked out," said Maddon. "I didn't want to see the end."

But seriously, "Both sets of players out there have been playing with intensity," said Maddon. "They've been making the routine plays the whole series. Nobody is giving up anything on routine plays. Moronko has been making good plays at shortstop for Tulsa and he's a third baseman."

After watching nine games against the Drillers, most of them low scoring and close, Maddon is slightly baffled by a claim Tulsa is making about a lack of strong starting pitching.

"I don't know why they claim their starting pitchers aren't that good. Everybody they've started against us have thrown well," said Maddon. "Our pitchers have responded equally as well. It's been whoever catches the breaks at the end of the game gets the win."

Both teams gave their relievers the opportunity to save or win the game Friday night and it was Angel newcomer Todd Ficher who responded best to the challenge, claiming the victory in his debut as an Angel, Midland or otherwise.

"This is the first time we've seen him," said Maddon of Ficher, who joined the team during the Shreveport road series. "Ficher has been a short reliever in the A's organization and in the Mexican League. This was his first appearance in an Angel uniform."

ANGEL NOTES: In tonight's final game of the five-game stand with Tulsa, a battle of lefties is on the docket. The Drillers have 0-0 Terry Johnson scheduled for the start while the Angels are countering with Bryan Price, 2-2...Heath's home run in the eighth inning was his fourth of the year...Moronko and Darkis were the only players in the game with more than one hit. Moronko was 2-for-3 with his homer and Darkis went 2-for-4 with a double...The Angels will open a five-game stand with Shreveport, starting Sunday at 2 p.m.

Verplank makes up 11 strokes

HAINES CITY, Fla. (AP) — Oklahoma State, led by All-American Scott Verplank, shot a third-round team score of 1-over-par 289 Friday to make up 11 strokes on defending champion Houston and set the stage for an exciting finish in the 88th annual NCAA golf tournament.

Houston, top-seeded and chasing its 16th national title, continued to hold the lead after 54 holes — clinging to a one-shot advantage over Oklahoma State — despite a round of 300 on the par-72, 7,100-yard west course at Grenelefe Golf and Tennis Resort.

The Cougars — favorites to become the first team to win back-to-back titles since Wake Forest did it 10 years ago — won the crown by one stroke over Oklahoma State in 1984.

Verplank, the reigning U.S. Amateur champion, was instrumental in Oklahoma State's surge. He carded a 2-under-par 70 and received help from E.J. Pfister and Kevin Whipple, who shot 70 and 72, respectively.

Houston, led by Steve Elkington's 73, finished the day with a 17-over-par total of 881. Oklahoma State, in seventh place and 12 shots back when the day began, closed at 882.

Mississippi and Texas trailed the leader by seven strokes at 888, followed by fifth-place Florida at 891.

Southern California's Sam Randolph continued to hold the individual lead, although he shot a 2-over par 74. His three-day total was 5-under-par 211.

Horns, Sooners clash in winners bracket

AUSTIN (AP) — David Denny and Doug Hodo each drove in two runs as No. 3 Texas scored six runs in the second inning and went on to down Houston 9-2 in the second round of the NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament Friday night.

Texas, 58-12, will meet Oklahoma, 55-12, at 4:30 p.m. Saturday in a winner's bracket contest. Houston will face Lamar at noon in the loser's bracket. The Texas-Oklahoma loser will meet the winner of the Lamar-Houston game at 7:30 p.m.

Oklahoma defeated Grambling 5-2 on Friday, and Lamar bested Louisiana State, 4-3.

Houston struck first with two runs in the top of the second off Bruce Ruffin when Pat Hewes grounded out to first scoring Benny Mota, and Mike Basso drove in Joe Simms with an infield single.

Texas answered in the bottom of the inning with six runs on four hits, an error and a sacrifice fly.

Dodd Johnson and Rusty Richards led off the second with walks off loser Ed Clark, 9-3. David Wrzesinski loaded the bases and Robbie Byers and Coby Kerlin drove in runs to knot the game at 2-2.

Mike Holik replaced Clark and proceeded to give up a run-scoring single to Dennis Cook, before the two big hits by Denny and Hodo.

Once Texas got the lead it was all Ruffin. The junior from El Paso retired the next 13 batters before allowing a Houston base runner in the seventh. Ruffin went the distance, giving up four hits and raising his record to 12-2.

NCAA Baseball

Johnson put any doubts to rest when he stroked a massive three-run homer over the left field fence in the sixth inning. That shot scored Cook and Hodo and gave the Horns an insurmountable lead.

Behind strong pitching by Keith Hamilton and Darrell Rodgers, Oklahoma defeated Grambling 5-2.

Grambling, which lost to Texas Thursday night in 12 innings, was eliminated from the double elimination tournament.

Hamilton, 6-0, got the win after giving up three hits in 5 and 2-3 innings. Rodgers held Grambling to one hit in 2 and 2-3 innings before being relieved by David Johnson.

Oklahoma jumped on Grambling starter and loser Martin Foley, 7-4, for two runs in the top of the first on a Rusty McGinnis single that scored Scott Ferguson and Kevin Pearson. The Sooners added one in the fifth and two in the sixth to take a commanding 5-0 lead.

Grambling didn't score until Eric Taylor came home in the sixth on one of Oklahoma's two errors. The final Grambling run came in the eighth, also unearned.

A throwing error by Louisiana State pitcher Clay Parker in the bottom of the ninth allowed Junior Lemons to score and gave Lamar, 33-23, their second round victory and eliminated LSU.

Lamar entered the bottom of the ninth trailing 3-2. David Cortez, 4-for-4 on the day, singled and scored on Lemons' double. John Frankie laid a bunt down the first-base line and Parker fielded the bunt but threw it by first baseman John Dixon, enabling Lemons to score.

"What can I say? You just can't predict this team," said Lamar coach Jim Gilligan. "Junior went to right field like we wanted, and Frankie did a great job, his hit made my year."

LSU struck for two in the fourth as Joey Belle singled in Tim Sossamon and Rob Leary, and then added one in the fifth on a sacrifice fly by Sossamon scoring Marty Lanoux.

Lamar, Southland Conference champions, began their comeback in the seventh when Eric Lastroppo scored on an LSU error. The Cardinals brought home another run in the eighth when Jerald Clark came home on another of LSU's four errors.

Lamar's Jimmie Terrill, 3-4, came on in relief of starter Dirk Tidwell in the fifth inning to pick up the win.

Tortoise Brunansky turns hare

Twin candidate for Triple Crown

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tom Brunansky, a notorious slow starter at the plate, has turned from tortoise to hare in what could be the early stages of a shot at the 1985 American League triple crown.

"Bruno's so much more patient this year," Minnesota Twins Manager Billy Gardner said of his slugging right fielder. "He knows what pitch he wants, he's waiting for it, and he's ripping it."

Brunansky is among the league leaders with a .345 batting average, 11 home runs and 32 runs batted in.

And the 24-year-old Californian is also among the top five in runs, hits, total bases, walks, on-base percentage, slugging percentage, game-winning RBI and extra-base hits.

How realistic are those numbers?

"Not realistic. Not even close," says Brunansky, who has improved defensively in the outfield, learning to play balls in the tricky confines of the Metrodome. "But if the guys in front of me keep getting on base, I'm going to have a whole mess of runs to drive in."

Gardner moved Brunansky into the cleanup spot in early April behind Kirby Puckett, Mickey Hatcher and Kent Hrbek, three proven hitters.

"The last couple of years I struggled early and was hitting anywhere from sixth to ninth," he says. "Hitting cleanup on this ballclub is a pleasure."

In what many regard as the best trade in club history, the Twins acquired Brunansky from the California Angels in 1982 for Doug Corbett and Rob Wilfong.

"I was sad that I was leaving my home and friends," he says, "but I knew I'd get a chance to play here."

Despite terrible starts in each of his first three seasons, he came on to average 27 homers and 71 RBI a year.

In 1984, he batted .254 with 32 homers and 85 RBI and expected to be financially compensated as one of the AL's best young sluggers by the Twins' new millionaire owner, Carl Pohlad.

"All through spring training I kept waiting, waiting, waiting," Brunansky says. "I told (Twins President) Howard Fox that I wanted to get something done before the season, but we weren't really close. Then Carl Pohlad came in while we were in San Diego for our last exhibition game and within that one day, we had the whole thing worked out. I gave in a little bit and Howard gave in a little bit."

And Pohlad gave a lot: Brunansky's six-year, $5.5 million contract was the longest and second-richest in team history.

Brunansky already is paying dividends, anchoring one of baseball's most potent offenses. Not coincidentally, the Twins are easily on the way to their best attendance ever.

Brunansky has always considered himself a power hitter.

"I was always the biggest kid around, so if I hit the ball hard, it would go," he says. "I'm a home run hitter. I'm a little puzzled about my high average. I swing with an uppercut."

He demonstrated his swing in the locker room. Brunansky eschews the compact Punch-and-Judy swing that has become popular for a king-sized, arms-extended rip.

"I don't want to hit ground balls," he says. "I'm not the fastest guy around, so I'll take my chances on hitting fly balls far enough to be productive."

Rangers' Hough blanks Red Sox

Cliff Johnson drives in game's lone run

ARLINGTON (AP) — Charlie Hough pitched a six-hit shutout and Cliff Johnson drove in the game's only run with a sacrifice fly in the fifth inning to lead the Texas Rangers to a 1-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox on Friday night.

Hough, 4-3, walked two and struck out seven as he outdueled Boston's Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 4-4. Boyd pitched a five-hitter, walking three and striking out three.

The Rangers got their run after Gary Ward led off the bottom of the fifth with a triple off the wall in straightaway center field. Johnson followed with a fly ball to left and Ward slid home just ahead of catcher Rich Gedman's sweeping tag after the throw from Jim Rice.

Until the ninth, the Red Sox' best scoring chance came in the seventh. Bill Buckner led off with a double but Hough struck out Tony Armas and Mike Easler. Gedman walked but Hough retired Marty Barrett on a grounder to third.

Singles by Buckner and Easler put Boston runners at first and third in the top of the ninth but Gedman hit into a game-ending double play as the Red Sox lost for the ninth time in their last 12 games.

Brewers 5, Twins 2

MILWAUKEE — Ted Simmons drove in two runs, Paul Molitor homered and former Midland Cub Ray Burris and two relievers combined on a six-hitter.

Burris, 2-4, who hadn't won a game since April 11, gave up one run on three hits, walked three and struck out four before leaving with two out and bases loaded in the seventh. Pete Ladd retired Mike Stenhouse on a fly ball to end the threat but surrendered Tom Brunansky's 12th homer in the ninth.

Randy Bush followed Brunansky's homer with a single and Rollie Fingers came on to record his fifth save.

The Brewers took a 2-1 lead in the fourth inning off Mike Smithson, 4-4. Robin Yount drew a leadoff walk, stole second and scored on Simmons' single. Ben Oglivie followed with a single past first baseman Kent Hrbek and Rick Manning singled Simmons home with the lead run.

Milwaukee added two more runs in the fifth after Charlie Moore walked and Cecil Cooper singled. Yount drove in Moore with a single off Smithson's glove and Simmons followed with a sacrifice fly to score Cooper. Molitor's homer, his second of the year, made it 5-1 in the seventh.

Blue Jays 7, Indians 6

CLEVELAND — Lloyd Moseby hit a two-run homer and Ernie Whitt belted a three-run shot in a five-run third inning and the Toronto Blue Jays held on to defeat Cleveland, extending their winning streak to five games.

Reliever Dennis Lamp, 4-0, a former Midland Cub, was the winner despite yielding three runs in two innings. Gary Lavelle got the final three outs for his third save after Bill Caudill walked the leadoff batter in the bottom of the ninth.

Toronto took a 1-0 lead in the second inning against Keith Creel, 0-2, a last-minute starter when Vern Ruhle experienced a muscle problem in his back before the game.Len Matuszek singled, Jesse Barfield walked and Tony Fernandez singled to score Matuszek.

Rance Mulliniks opened the Toronto third with a single and Moseby hit his fourth home run of the season. Willie Upshaw was safe on second baseman Tony Bernazard's fielding error and one out later Matuszek singled, chasing Creel.

Jeff Barkley made his first appearance since being recalled from the minors last Sunday and Whitt greeted him with his fourth homer that gave the Blue Jays a 6-0 lead.

Cleveland pulled within 6-3 on former Midland Cub Joe Carter's run-scoring single in the fourth inning and Pat Tabler's two-run single in the fifth which knocked out Toronto starter Doyle Alexander.

Royals 8, White Sox 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — George Brett drove in four runs and Dan Quisenberry earned his seventh save with three innings of one-hit relief.

Errors by second baseman Frank White, right fielder Darryl Motley and first baseman Steve Balboni kept Chicago in the game.

Hal McRae, making a rare start as Kansas City's designated hitter, ripped a double off loser Britt Burns, 5-4, leading off the third and the Royals loaded the bases on a pair of walks ahead of Brett's two-run single.

Lonnie Smih, who walked to load the bases for Brett, went to third on the hit and scored to make it 3-0 when Burns walked Balboni and White.

The White Sox got a run in the fifth when Greg Walker walked and eventually scored on White's throwing error. In the Kansas City fifth, Smith singled, stole second and scored on Brett's single. Brett took second on a grounder and scored on White's single for a 5-1 lead.

Luis Salazar doubled leading off the Chicago seventh and scored on a single by Tim Hulett, who went to third when Balboni mishandled Ozzie Guillen's grounder. Guillen went to second when Scott Fletcher singled to score Hulett and bring Quisenberry in to relieve starter Danny Jackson.

Guillen took third on a grounder scored on Harold Baines' grounder to bring the White Sox within 5-4.

But Willie Wilson singled in the Kansas City seventh, went to third on an errant pickoff throw by reliever Juan Agosto and scored on Brett's third single. After Balboni walked and White singled to load the bases, Motley drove in the seventh run with an infield hit.

The Royals got their final run in the eighth when Onix Concepcion singled, stole second and scored on a single by Balboni after Brett was walked intentionally.

The Royals, who have won three games in a row and nine of their last 12, moved past Chicago and Minnesota into second place in the American League West. The White Sox have lost four straight.

McGirt extends win streak

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten junior welterweight James "Buddy" McGirt of Brentwood, N.Y., extended his victory streak to 19 by scoring a unanimous 10-round decison Friday night over Allen Braswell of New York at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum.

McGirt, 144½, had won his previous 18 bouts by knockouts. He did not record any knockdowns in boosting his record to 19-0-1. Braswell, 143½, losing for the sixth time in his last seven bouts, dropped to 15-10-1.

Middleweight Iran "The Blade" Barkley, 161, of New York, scored a 10-round decision over Randy Smith, 161, of Chicago. Barkley improved his record to 12-3 while Smith dropped to 15-4.

Astros' Doran, Ryan team up to baffle Bruins, 6-2

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Doran knows what his job is and he worked it to perfection Friday in leading the Houston Astros and Nolan Ryan to a 6-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

"That's the best game I've had this season so far as getting on base is concerned," said Doran, who reached base on all five of his plate appearances with three hits and a walk and on an error.

"That's what I'm suppose to do as the leadoff man, get on base and have the other guys drive me in," said Doran, who is off to the best start of his career with a .290 batting average and a team high of 25 runs scored.

Doran's good start contrasts with his previous two seasons.

"I didn't pick up a bat during the winter and didn't create any bad habits," said Doran. "I've had a lot of luck and breaks this year. A cheap hit here and a broken bat single there. Last year it was the other way around."

While Doran was scoring three runs and driving in another, Ryan became the first pitcher this season to pitch a complete game against the Cubs. It was second complete game of the season and the 200th of his career as he hiked his career record against the Cubs to 12-3.

Ryan scattered seven hits and struck out seven, boosting his major league leading career total to 3,942.

"I can't say I enjoy pitching against them," said Ryan of his success against the Cubs. "I know when I was with the Mets I drew them a lot."

Ryan didn't allow the Cubs a hit until the fourth when Thad Bosley doubled home a run. By then Doran and the Astros had staked him to a 3-0 led.

Doran doubled and scored on a single by Denny Walling in the first. Phil Garner and Mark Bailey both singled in the third with Garner scoring Craig Reynolds' sacrifice fly.

Ryan bunted Bailey to second and Doran followed with a run-scoring single.

Ryne Sandberg hit his sixth homer of the year in the sixth inning. "I hung a breaking pitch to him and you can't do that in this ball park," Ryan said.

Doran got that run back in the seventh when he singled, stole second and scored on a single by Terry Puhl.

In the ninth, Doran reached on an error and scored on a triple by Terry Puhl who scored on a sacrifice fly by Walling.

Padres 1, Phillies 0

PHILADELPHIA — Steve Garvey's sacrifice fly in the top of the eighth scored Garry Templeton with the game's only run as the San Diego Padres, behind Dave Dravecky and Rich Gossage, defeated Philadelphia.

Dravecky, 4-2, gave up six hits, struck out seven and walked two over 7 1-3 innings as the Padres won their fifth straight game. Gossage gained his major league-leading 12th save.

John Denny, 1-5, who allowed only four hits, was the loser. The Padres got only two hits off Denny after the second inning, and at one point he retired 10 straight and 18 of 19.

Templeton opened the eighth inning with a single and moved to second when Dravecky walked. Tim Flannery sacrificed, and after Tony Gwynn was walked intentionally, Garvey flied out to deep right field for his game-winning RBI.

Dodgers 4, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Greg Brock and Mike Scioscia hit solo home runs in the sixth inning and undefeated Orel Hershiser won his fourth game as Dodgers defeated New York.

Hershiser, 4-0, who had no-decisions in his last four starts, scattered six hits over seven innings. He struck out six and walked one. Ken Howell and Tom Niedenfuer finished up, Niedenfuer pitching 1 2-3 innings for his third save.

Brock connected on the first pitch from Ed Lynch, 2-3, for his fourth homer to open the sixth inning and, one out later, Scioscia hit an 0-2 pitch for his second home run of the year.

The Dodgers scored two runs in the third, one unearned. R.J. Reynolds led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Hershiser. Mariano Duncan singled, scoring Reynolds, and went to second on the throw home. After advancing to third on a flyout, Duncan scored when right fielder Danny Heep dropped Ken Landreaux's fly ball.

Expos 2, Giants 0

MONTREAL — Tim Raines and Hubie Brooks hit leadoff homers in successive innings while Joe Hesketh and Jeff Reardon combined on a two-hitter.

Hesketh, 5-2, worked 7 1-3 innings, allowing a third-inning bloop single to Bill Laskey and an eighth-inning double to David Green before Reardon picked up his 10th save of the season, retiring all five batters he faced.

Hesketh struck out five and walked two.

Pirates 4, Braves 2

ATLANTA — Jim Winn, in his first major-league start, combined with John Candelaria on a three-hitter and Jason Thompson hit a three-run homer in the first inning to give Pittsburgh a victory over Atlanta.

Winn, 1-0, pitched seven innings before giving way to a pinch-hitter. He had appeared in 16 games as a reliever in the previous two seasons and was recalled by the Pirates from their Hawaii farm club on Tuesday.

Candelaria gained his seventh save.

Pittsburgh handed the Braves their fourth setback in a row. It was the third victory in four games for the Pirates.

Reds 7, Cardinals 6

CINCINNATI — Dave Van Gorder singled with one out in the bottom of the twelfth inning to score Eric Davis from second base with the winning run.

Van Gorder as a pinch-hitter keyed a four-run eighth inning with a two-run single. He delivered his game-winner after Davis had singled off reliever Ricky Horton, 0-1, and stolen second and after Nick Esasky was intentionally walked.

Scott to run in Jenner mile

From Wire Reports

TRACK— Steve Scott having recovered from his post-Olympic blues, seeks to become the first U.S. athlete to run 100 sub-four minute miles Saturday in the Bruce Jenner Classic at San Jose City College. Only one other runner — New Zealand's John Walker — has run more sub-four minute miles than Scott, and when he reached 100 Feb. 17 at Auckland, New Zealand, he chortled, "Eat your heart out, Steve Scott."...

GGOLF— Tu Ai-Yu fired a 4-under-par 68 in the rain Friday and took one-stroke lead after the first round of the $120,000 Chukyo TV-Bridgestone Ladies Open. Nathalie Jeanson of France was second at 69, followed by American Barb Thomas and Japan's Setsuko Masuda, each at 70. Defending champion Laurie Rinker of the U.S. carded a 72 and was tied with seven Japanese players...
Japan's Nobumitsu Yuhara, playing in rain and wind, shot a 69 for a nine-under-par 135 and surged into the lead after the second round of the Pepsi-Ube Tournament. Crum offers to take test

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louisville basketball Coach Denny Crum said Friday that he would take a polygraph test to prove that his school had nothing to do with encouraging Cedric Henderson to report to the NCAA statements regarding recruitment violations by the University of Georgia.

Crum challenged Georgia coaches to do the same in the wake of accusations by the Bulldogs staff that blamed Louisville indirectly for an NCAA investigation of the program.

"That's correct," Crum said when asked if he would take a polygraph. "They (Georgia) are obviously trying to cover their tracks."

Georgia claimed in its response to allegations of violations in its basketball program that an athletic representative of Louisville encouraged Henderson to report to the NCAA untrue statements regarding his recruitment by the Bulldogs.

Georgia released about 300 pages of documents Thursday dealing with the National Collegiate Athletic Association investigation into 32 alleged violations and the replies by Georgia.

The documents included charges that John Barrett, whom Georgia identified as an athletic representative for Louisville, fabricated charges in an effort to have Henderson released from his letter-of-intent to Georgia so that he could attend Louisville.

"Well, what else could they say when they got caught with their hand in the cookie jar," Crum told The Associated Press in Louisville.

Two teams share Stampede lead

Craig Adams and Steve Whiteside, a pair that might figure in the Men's West Texas next month, teamed up to take the lead in the Ranchland Hills Country Club Stampede Partnership tournament Friday but they had to share first with Bob Herrell and Steve Thompson.

The leaders showed best-ball 63s after the first 18 holes of the 54-hole tournament.

It was still anybody's race. Jamie Winkel-C.E. Boyd shot a 66 while Craig Winborn and Tim Peden carded 67. Also in the 60s of the 12-team championship flight were Dan Bailey-Mike Locker at 68 and Al Boudreau-Ted Collins at 69.

Jack Hunnicut and Guy Proctor led the first flight with a 68, but that was only one in front of Claude Mitchell and Ed Barfield. This was one of the closest of the 12 flights with no team over 75.

Irwin ups edge to four strokes

Memorial Golf

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) - Hale Irwin, a non-winner for more than a year, compiled another bogey-free, 4-under-par 68 and established a four-shot lead Friday in the second round of the $600,000 Memorial Tournament.

Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open champion and the 1983 winner of this event, completed two trips over Jack Nicklaus' Muirfield Village Golf Club course in 136, eight shots under par. He has played without a bogey, a course record.

"A quirk of fate that I was able to make the saving pars when I needed to," he said.

"It wasn't the spectacular shot-making you might expect in a bogey-free round," said Irwin, whose last victory came in the 1964 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

"I think I managed my misses very well. It was not as if I was knocking the pins down on every shot. But then, Muirfield Village is not the course on which you shoot at the pins every times. It suggests you play to the fat part of the green, away from the trouble spots. Generally, that's what I tried to do.

"But I was not always successful. I got in some trouble spots."

As an example, he pointed to the second hole, where he drove far to the right, under trees, played his second to the left rough, and then got up and down from 122 yards, hitting a 9-iron to 25 feet and dropping the putt.

"That kept the round from falling apart. That was the glue," he said.

An international trio — South African Nick Price, Canadian Dave Barr and American Bill Kratzert — were tied for second at 140.

Price, who played his first nine holes of the tournament in 40, got around the rolling hills of the Muirfield Village Golf Club course in 67, 5-under and the best round of the day. Kratzert, who signaled a turnaround in his career with a victory in Pensacola last winter, shot 71. Barr had a 72 despite bogeys on two of the last three holes.

Lon Hinkle and Jim Simons, who shared the first-round lead with 67, both dropped back. Hinkle had a 75 and led a large group at 142. Also at that figure was Gil Morgan, who had a wildly erratic round of 72 that included five birdies, an eagle, three bogeys and two double bogeys.

Simons went from a 67 to 77.

But he was not alone in his difficulties.

The tournament host, founder, course architect, defending titleholder and only two-time winner, Jack Nicklaus, shot 76, including 41 on the back, and had a 147 total, 3-over par. Tom Watson had the same 36-hole score after improving to a 72.

U.S. Open titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller failed to qualify for the final two rounds with 74-152. Ben Crenshaw, long noted as one of golf's most accomplished putters, four-putted the ninth hole on the way to a 78 and 151.

In addition to the 25-foot putt to save par on the second hole, Irwin had to make a 10-footer for par on the second.

He missed three other greens and saved par on all of them. And he made a seven-foot second putt on the ninth.

Turner widens lead with second-day 67

LPGA Corning

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Sherri Turner shot a 67 on Friday and widened her lead to two strokes at the halfway point of the $250,000 LPGA Corning Classic golf tournament, posting an 11-under-par 133 that broke the tournament's 36-hole record by five strokes.

Patty Sheehan missed the cut for the first time in 110 events, snapping the current Ladies Professional Golf Association streak, as 70 golfers blistered the Corning Country Club course with 36-hole totals of 146 or better.

The cut of 2-over-par 146 tied the lowest in the LPGA, set last year at the Freedom-Orlando Classic. Sheehan had rounds of 74 and 73 for 147.

Turner, who credited a sports psychologist with making her a more aggressive putter, held off a surging Beth Daniel, who shot a 66 for a two-round total of 135.

Muffin Spencer-Devlin was another stroke back at 136 with a second-round 67, followed at 137 by Patti Rizzo, No. 3 money-winner Pat Bradley, Julie Inkster and Lynn Crafter of Adelaide, Australia, whose 64 was one stroke off the course record.

Turner, of Greensboro, S.C., seeking her first victory in two years on the tour, carded six birdies and a single bogey on the par-72, 6,050-yard Corning Country Club course.

Players credited ideal weather and perfect greens for the assault on par. The previous low cut at Corning was 153 in 1982.

Daniel, No. 11 on the LPGA money list, had seven birdies and a single bogey, when she 3-putted on the 7th green. Her 31 on the par-36 back nine tied a record held by two past Corning champions, Donna Caponi in 1980 and Patty Sheehan in 1983.

JoAnne Carner, the defending champion at Corning, shot 71 Friday for a two-round total of 1-under-par 143.

Cathy Reynolds-Derouaux, who was just one stroke behind Turner after the first round, had five bogeys and a double-bogey on her way to a 78 that left her at 145.

Of the four players who had been knotted one stroke back at 68 after the first round, Jan Stephenson shot a 74, Alice Miller and Judy Clark had 73s, and Myra Blackwelder had an even 72 for a 4-under-par 140.

Jerilyn Britz and rookie Penny Hammel stood alone at 138, five strokes off the pace, while Amy Benz, Cathy Kratzert and Nancy White-Brewer were tied at 139.

Sheehan, the No. 2 money-winner on the tour this season, had the longest current streak of making cuts in the LPGA after Pat Bradley missed the cut earlier this season in the Uniden LPGA Invitational in Costa Mesa, Calif., ending her streak of 126.

Cubs first to okay player strike

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs on Friday became the first major league team to support a strike authorization by the union's executive board.

"It was 25-to-0," said Keith Moreland, the Cubs' player representative. "We discussed everything. The owners have offered nothing legitimate."

Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association, met with the Cubs before the vote was taken, launching a two-week tour of the 26 teams to assess sentiment about a walkout.

The Cubs' vote followed Thursday's executive board meeting here, at which unanimous authorization was given for what would be the second baseball strike in four years. A 1981 walkout shut down the game for 50 days.

Moreland said all the Cubs players had a chance to talk and ask questions about the eight-point contract proposal made by the owners on Monday which was highlighted by a modified salary cap.

"There's no way anybody could agree to that," he said. "It's the same as it always has been. If there's nothing negotiable and things aren't worked out, then there's no other way (but to strike)."

Mark Belanger, a former star with the Baltimore Orioles and currently an assistant to Fehr, said, "We asked the players to give us strike authority.

"They voted yes and we expected it. The executive board in the past has had success and it shows the players have confidence in the executive board."

The association's constitution gives the board full policy-making authority, including the right to call a strike and to agree to a contract settlement. The union's practice has been, though, to take a vote of its members on such issues.

The eight-points proposed by the owners, in addition to the salary cap or "payroll plan" as their negotiators call it, were improvements in retirement benefits for both active and retired players, a 50 percent increase in minimum salary to $60,000, abolishment of the free agent re-entry draft, elimination of professional players as compensation to teams losing high-ranking free agents and protection of players with respect to deferred compensation obligations.

The player representatives and Fehr were especially opposed to the payroll plan which would limit the amount teams could spend on free agents and players acquired in trades. Fehr said, "Their proposal would eliminate free agency."

The owners, who have maintained that the game is having severe economic problems, said the cap is needed to allow their revenues to catch up with their costs.

"We went through the proposals from beginning to end," said Fehr. "There were a lot of questions, the ones you would expect. We explained the proposals and if we have to go on strike, when."

Fehr said earlier no strike deadline had been set "because we want to get input from all the players."

Asked if a strike during the All-Star Game, the first attention-grabbing event of the season, would defeat the players' purpose since profits from the game go to the players' pension fund, Fehr said the players only get one-third of the money.

"We have to do something to wake these people up," he said. "They don't seem to be taking us seriously."

The possibility of a walkout during the playoffs or the World Series also has been raised.

Fehr also talked with Bob Knepper, the player representative of the Houston Astros, who played the Cubs Friday.

"There's nothing to poll," said Knepper. "We already have authorization. But I'm going to hold a meeting with the players tomorrow to discuss matters, basically to talk it over.

Vols want Gators' hide

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The University of Tennessee's athletics committee will try to strip the University of Florida of its 1984 Southeastern Conference football championship at next week's league meetings in Destin, a Jacksonville newspaper reported Friday.

UT officials said the Gators don't deserve the title because of NCAA action against them on rules violations, according to the Florida Times-Union.

"We're not putting the university (Tennessee) in a position that it's holier than thou, but there comes a time when you have to take a stand — and winning by the rules is what it's all about," Tennessee trustee R.B. Hailey of Gatlinburg said at the committee's annual meeting Thursday in Nashville.

Florida was initially accused of 107 violations and found guilty of 59. UF's 1984 championship was placed on hold after the school was slapped with a two-year NCAA probation for violations, but the title was officially awarded by the SEC executive committee on April 3.

The NCAA action also cost UF a shot at the national title.

"107 violations, that is flagrant. If we don't say anything, by our silence we are condoning cheating," Hailey said of the board of director's decision to put the title dispute before the SEC executive committee.

Dr. Edward Boling, president of UT, supported Hailey's stance.

"That's our position," Boling said. "Our athletic director will go to the meeting to say just that."

Steers track coach quits after 15 years

AUSTIN (AP) — Cleburne Price, for 15 years track coach at the University of Texas, will step down after next week's NCAA championships.

Price is resigning as a coach and will assume an administrative position with the athletic department.

Price has been in poor health for 2½ years, which caused him to miss numerous practices and several meets.

"Because of my health and my inability to get back on my feet, the past couple of years weren't as fun as it used to be, and it wasn't good for the school," Price said.

"We're here for the athletes, and if you can't do what's best for them, then it's time you find something else to do."

Price will remain as director of the Texas Relays, a job he has held along with his coaching duties. He also will become director of all UT athletic facilities as an assistant to DeLoss Dodds, the men's athletics director. Price will keep his current annual salary of $39,131.

Dodds said a committee that includes Price will be formed to find a replacement.

"I'd like to get it done as quickly as I can," he said.

Price's field events coach, Tim Hamilton, said he would apply for the job. Assistant Coach James Blackwood, who primarily works with distance runners, declined to say if he would apply.

Marty Davenport, a senior team captain, said the announcement was expected.

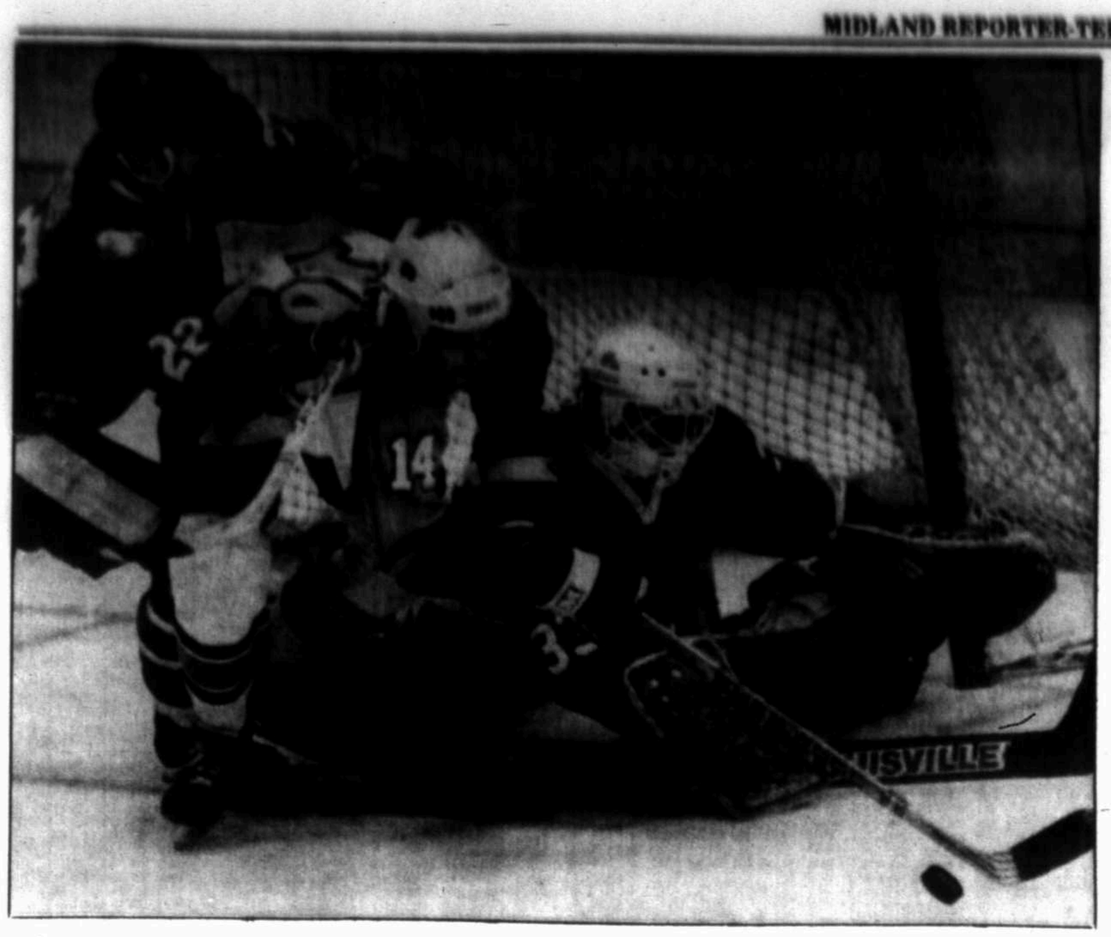

"It's sad, but something needed to be done," said Davenport, a shot put and discus thrower. "Coach Price wasn't able to do the job because he wasn't around that much. It was frustrating for a lot of the runners. I'm sorry it had to happen, but the main feeling on the team is one of relief, I think."

Oilers answer critics

Now seek to take charge

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — The Edmonton Oilers felt as if they were battling public opinion as well as the Philadelphia Flyers after losing the first game of the Stanley Cup finals. So they answered their critics.

"People were doubting us, questioning our heart," said Oilers' star Wayne Gretzky, who scored the 50th goal of his playoff career in helping Edmonton to a 3-1 victory that evened the best-of-seven championship seies at 1-1.

The next three games are in Edmonton, beginning Saturday night.

"We came out and played a fabulous hockey game. We said we just had to treat it like we won the first game and come out and play our game. That's what we did," Gretzky said.

Actually, the defending National Hockey League champions played more of a Flyers-type game, with intense forechecking. They limited Philadelphia to 18 shots, only four in the third period, and ended a nine-game winless streak against the Flyers.

"Coming into the series, we had lost something like eight in a row to them but it didn't bother me," said defenseman Paul Coffey. "Those were in the regular season, when you see them only once every few months.

"But the win was a real morale and confidence boost. If we had lost, especially when we played so well, it would have been in the back of our minds, 'Hey, we can't beat this team.' "

They proved they can, though, and that they can win in tight-checking situations where the Flyers usually thrive.

"The coaches changed our game plan," said defenseman Lee Fogolin, "and corrected the mistakes we made."

"It was the way we have to play in the playoffs," added Kevin McClelland, who along with fellow centers Mark Messier and Gretzky were the prime performers in the defensive masterpiece. "We knew we had to put pressure on their defense and get some shots on net. They put pressure on our defense and that is what works for a team in the playoffs."

The Oilers came home 1-1 last year against the New York Islanders and won the next three games to smash the Islanders' four-year hold on the Cup. Now they are in a similar position.

"We still have to play one game at a time and not look at it as having three straight at home," said McClelland. "They are as good on the road as any team and we can't ever take them lightly."

The Flyers also spoke about their strength on the road, pointing out they won road games in all three series prior to the finals.

"We've been successful on the road all year and we know what we have to do win there," said Ron Sutter. "We're confident we can go up there and play our game."

"We know what we have to do to be successful in the next three games," added defenseman Doug Crossman. "We'll regroup and come out ready to play Saturday."

One factor seemingly in Philadelphia's favor is that the Oilers have not been able to freewheel at all in this series.

"They will probably play a more offensive game when they get back home," said Coach Mike Keenan.

"Any time you play the defending champions, you have to be prepared to take it away from them," Crossman noted. "We're going to be there for the next three games. We know we have to bring either the Cup or a game back to Philly. Hopefully, it'll be the Cup."

Skidding LA Express hits rock bottom, shares cellar with Gunslingers

Associated Press

Three times this season, the Express has lost three in a row, including the current slide which has dropped them into part of crowded basement in the Western Conference.

They share it with Portland and San Antonio heading into Saturday night's game against Jacksonville. The Bulls, after losing five of their first seven games, have since won five of six to climb into playoff contention in the East.

Also Saturday night it's Memphis at Portland. On Sunday it's Arizona at Houston, New Jersey at Tampa Bay and San Antonio at Baltimore. Monday night's game is Orlando at Birmingham. Last Thursday night, Oakland defeated Denver 31-16 on Bobby Hebert's four touchdown passes.

"Don't be disillusioned by the Express' (3-10) record," Jacksonville Coach Lindy Infante said as the Bulls prepared for LA's visit. "They have plenty of talent. By no means is this game a gimme."

USFL

Brian Sipe is Jacksonville's starting quarterback once again. Sipe, who came to the Bulls from New Jersey after the Generals signed Doug Flutie, then was injured at the start of the season, started last weekend and rallied Jacksonville to a 20-17 upset over Houston.

"They pay me to put them into the win column," said Sipe.

The Express pays Steve Young to do that — but the LA quarterback, with a neck sprain, hasn't done much of it lately. He's listed a questionable for Saturday night's game, which was to have been played Sunday but was switched by the Bulls in hopes of boosting attendance.

Memphis and Portland are headed in opposite directions.

Do Lakers run too fast?

Celtics some show concern

By HOWARD ULMAN

BOSTON (AP) — Can Boston keep up with Los Angeles' running attack, which gave the Celtics trouble last year? Can they beat the Lakers without the luck many said they had in last season's championship series?

"I don't care how you win, as long as you win," Boston's forward said after the Celtics' practiced Friday. "Tell you what. In about 20 years, I'll look up there. It's going to say '84 Boston.' It sure isn't going to say '84 L.A.' "

STARTING Monday, the Celtics plan to work toward a banner that will say "85 Boston" as they try for their second consecutive National Basketball Association title in the opener of their best-of-seven final series rematch with the Lakers.

The series continues in Boston Thursday night, then shifts to Los Angeles for the next three games.

Boston won last year in seven games. The Lakers won the first and third games, while Boston rallied to win Games 2 and 4 in overtime after trailing both in the final minute of regulation.

Afterward, Boston's Larry Bird said the Lakers should have won in four consecutive games.

"We were lucky. It could be true," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said Friday. "But we got the (championship) ring."

NBA

"I'd like to win the exact same way this year," added McHale.

LOS Angeles Coach Pat Riley knows questions will be asked about the way his team's failures cost it the title. And he said his players must be ready to handle them.

"It's up to the players and how they respond to the queries," Riley said. "From the media standpoint and how they approach this series today instead of last year, well, it will be very important on our players' part to be able to deal with that."

For the Celtics, it will be very important to be able to deal with the Lakers' running game that breezed past Phoenix, Portland and Denver in the first three playoff rounds.

Boston scout Ed Badger, who saw all but one of the Lakers' playoff games, said, "You've got to be very patient with your offense. They live on the quick shot and taking off. I think you've got to get your defense back, which we've been doing a good job at.

"They like to make the game as wild as possible and that's to their advantage. I think you can run without being wild and that's what we have to do."

McHale said Los Angeles has some worries of its own.

"Their biggest concern is going to be, 'are we (the Lakers) going to get any offensive rebounds?' " he said.

"The Lakers' fastbreak is going to be there, no matter what we do," said Bird. "Last year, we rebounded very well against them and that's probably the reason we won the series because we got a lot of second shots."

Los Angeles comes into the finals on a tear. It is 11-2 in the playoffs and has won 42 of its last 48 games. It has averaged 131.2 points per postseason game.

"This could be the best team in Laker history," said Riley. "Starting with Phoenix, we carried on through. We plugged into practicing hard every day, playing hard, and re-establishing the discipline of not looking forward to anything."

LOS ANGELES guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson said there will be "a little extra incentive" in playing the Celtics because of last year's setback.

McHale agreed that the Lakers probably are keyed up about getting another shot at Boston, but said, "so is everybody else that comes into here. Everybody's excited to play us. We don't go out there (on the court) and lie down.

"We're going to play hard. They might be psyched up but we're ready to play, too."

Riley acknowledged that references to last year's series are inevitable, but preferred to dwell on the upcoming confrontation.

"Let's just get on with it," he said. "I'm not so sensitive as to say, 'We have to redeem ourselves,' because we don't have to. The precious present. That's what it is now."

Britons share Whyte-Mackay lead

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) - Britons Ken Brown and Tony Charnley and South African Gavin Levenson and Australian Gerry Taylor shot 70s Friday and tied for the lead in the opening round of the $230,000 Whyte and Mackay PGA Golf Championship over the West Course at Wentworth.

At 71 were Spaniard Jose-Maria Canizares and Britain's Sandy Lyle.

British Open golf champion Severiano Ballesteros dropped two strokes in the last three holes and shot a 1-over-par 73 in difficult, blustery conditions. He was in a tie for 16th.

The conditions hindered many of the players as defending champion Howard Clark of Britain shot an 8 at the 17th to finish with 74 and European Open titleholder Gordon Brand Jr., another Briton, scored a 10 at the 12th hole, winding up with a 75.

Levenson, the South African Open champion, entered the European tournaments after losing his card to play on the American circuit. He birdied two of the last three holes to join the leaders.

Taylor showed consistency in his round, having only one bogey with a penalty drop at the 10th and claiming three birdies.

Rick Hartman was the top American in a tie for seventh at 72.

Fastest Indy field ever revs up for Sunday

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The speed alone is frightening — 33 cars traveling well above 200 mph around a narrow, concrete-lined track built when airplanes flew half that fast.

Now imagine people in those cars, buffeted by violent, turbulent air.

Together, they create the potential for disaster.

That will be the case again Sunday, as it always is when they race the Indianapolis 500. And this time, the field will be the fastest in the history of auto racing.

What will it be like at 11 a.m. when the race begins amid the deafening roar of engines and the screams of 350,000 people?

"Say you put on a helmet," said three-time winner Johnny Rutherford. "I put one hand behind the helmet, the other under your chin. Then I shake. Imagine your head in a paint mixer."

"That's why every driver out there is going to have to use his head when they drop the green flag," said Mario Andretti, another of six former winners in the 69th edition of the world's richest and most important race.

This will be the first Indy race with all 33 starters having qualified at more than 200 mph. The field average of 208.138 mph was nearly 4¼ mph faster than the Indianapolis record set last year and more than 3 mph quicker than the previous racing record of 204.669 set last September at an Indy-car event at Michigan International Speedway.

Pole-winner Pancho Carter set a four-lap qualifying record of 212.583 and Scott Brayton, who will start between Carter and Bobby Rahal in the front row, established a one-lap mark of 214.199.

"These speeds are only too fast when you lose it (the car) or have a problem," said Rutherford, who will be starting his 21st Indy. "We're all professional drivers with varying amounts of experience. All of us can handle the speed."

DESPITE the speed, the only serious incident of the month came on May 10 when Herm Johnson suffered a broken arm and internal injuries in a crash during practice. He was released from the hospital after eight days.

Yet, drivers and design engineers generally agree that the speeds here have gone too high, with several cars running unofficial laps over 215 in practice.

With rules changes intended to slow down the cars expected to be announced any day, this is likely to be the last Indy 500 of unbridled speed — at least until the design engineers and engine builders can find new ways to generate it.

But raw speed is only one of the dangers. Another is the turbulence that is a product of the aerodynamic devices — wings, stabilizers and tunnels — that helped produce the speed records.

"I think turbulence is going to be more of a factor (this year) because the field is closer to each other (in speed)," said 1983 Indy winner Tom Sneva. "The horsepower in most of the cars is very similar and the speeds are very similar. The spread from the front to the back (1.6 seconds) is the closest it's ever been."

Among the problems caused by the turbulence is blurred vision — a very real problem when driving in traffic at more than 200 mph.

"That is happening, but it's happened for the past two to three years," Sneva explained. "It's not a whole lot different than it has been. It might be more noticeable this year to some drivers, but it's been like that in the past.

"The speeds are higher and we're depending on aerodynamics a lot more each year for stability. And when you're doing that, obviously, if you disturb the air around the vehicle, it's going to affect the way the car feels to you."

RUTHERFORD, who will be starting from the outside of the 10th row, said, "It's the worst (turbulence) I've ever experienced in race cars. The wind sometimes is so violent, it just wants to rip your helmet right off your head. When you take that physical part and couple it with that speed, you've really got your hands full out there."

"But we've had turbulence here from day one. And it's about the same as always — pretty scary for the new guys and the old guys know how to figure it out and what to do."

Above all, at Indianapolis the start is most worrisome. That is when the potential for disaster is highest, with all the cars bunched together, accelerating past the start-finish line and funneling into what is virtually a single lane through the first of four narrow left-hand turns.

"It's going to be a good, real steady start," said Carter, whose best previous start here was on the outside of the second row. "You want to come up through the gears and keep it steady, not get a whiplash effect.

"It isn't that important to me to lead the first lap. If I can lead, I will. I'll just run my race. It's the 200th lap I want to lead, not the first."

"I'm going to start the race, obviously, with safety in mind," said Brayton, a 26-year-old whose best previous starting position in three Indy races was 26th last May.

SNEVA, who has started 11 Indy 500s, was on the pole in 1984. This time, he's starting on the inside of the fifth row.

"Turbulence is certainly going to be a factor (at the start), but turbulence isn't going to bother me as much as somebody making a mistake around me, and trying to stay uninvolved in any situation that could come up," Sneva said. "We're going to have to be a lot more conservative in our start this year.

"I guess I am concerned because the cars are very close and, hopefully, everybody will be using their heads. There's a lot of electricity in the air and a lot of adrenalin flows at the start of any race, and especially at the start of Indianapolis."

Carter and Brayton are two of only three drivers in the field with cars not powered by the turbocharged Cosworth engines that have dominated Indy-car racing for more than a decade. Both their March races have experimental Buick V6 turbocharged engines, which have been given a 50-100 horsepower advantage by the rules at Indianapolis, which are set by the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club.

THE REST of the Indy-car circuit is sanctioned by the rival Championship Auto Racing Teams, which does not give the stock-block power plants the same advantage in manifold pressure.

The only other car in the field with a stock engine is a March-Chevrolet V6, driven by veteran George Snider. That car, on the inside of row 10, is one of three in the field co-owned by A.J. Foyt — Indy's only four-time winner — and Jim Gilmore.

Foyt, 50, will start his record 28th consecutive Indy from the outside of the seventh row, though for the first time in years he is not among the favorites.

The other former winners are three-time champion Al Unser, on the inside of the third row, and defending champion and two-time winner Rick Mears in the fourth row.

The field also includes six Indianapolis rookies — all of them veteran drivers in other series. They include Raul Boesel of Brazil, Arie Luyendyk of Holland, John Paul Jr., Ed Pimm, Jim Crawford of Scotland and Rich Vogler.

NFL to test transmitter grid helmets

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Hoosier Dome will be the venue Aug. 10 when radio helmets will be tested for the first time by an NFL team in a game between the Indianapolis Colts and the Seattle Seahawks.

The "voice amplification helmets" will be tested in five other preseason games held later.

Each team will get two transmitters for quarterbacks and eight receivers for the wide receivers, tight ends and running backs. The transmitters will be turned on just prior to each play by either an official or a neutral sideline observer appointed by the league office.

The league is trying to determine if the transmitters will permit offensive players to hear the quarterback at the scrimmage line when the crowd is extremely noisy.

Four of the six tests will be done in dome stadiums because the noise level is higher.

"If nothing else, it will spice up an exhibition game," said Colt general Manager Jim Irsay. "Maybe the fans will bring bullhorns with them."

All teams probably will use the helmets in the 1986 regular season if this year's experiment is successful.

Evelyn Edens, 54, known as a pioneer among Texas environmentalists, paddles across a pond near Fort Worth to check turtle traps she has set.

Edens champions the Eden of Texas

SANTO, Texas (AP) — Evelyn Edens dines on turtle-meat tacos, shuns groceries that use too much paper and says Americans flush toilets far too often.

A tireless defender of green spaces, she lives alone on an isolated farm. During winter, she subsists on jackrabbits, grows organic vegetables and makes and sells jelly made from cactuses. She supported herself last summer working as a grounds and maintenance worker at a national park in Maine.

In Texas environmental circles, Evelyn Edens is the dean, a pioneer who relies on persuasion to win her fights but is not beyond intimidation. She is known as an influential leader whose life is an example for others who seek to protect natural resources.

"She's a stickler for principles. She'd die over a damn dime," said longtime friend Ed Lyles, a retired federal official.

Her tenacity — some call it stubbornness — has helped prevent construction of a dam on the Brazos River and led to construction 19 years ago of a bike path in Forth Worth's Overton Park. City officials approved the bike trail after persistent petitioning by Edens and the Mockingbird Garden Club.

Ms. Edens' perserverance also kept a gas company from running a pipline across her 128-acre farm in Palo Pinto County, 60 miles west of Fort Worth.

Seated in her living room she gazed over a lush, green ravine. Five hundred feet away through the trees is a house her 28-year-old daughter built from scrap materials. Ms. Edens, 54, wore blue jeans and a torn T-shirt bearing the message, "Earth: Love it or Leave it."

"I once thought I might change my name to Eve and be the universal woman," she said with a laugh.

"I don't think of myself as being eccentric. I just think of myself as having different concerns. And it's sort of like I have kind of an obligation to interest other people in these concerns.

Admirers say she is so influential because she lives her beliefs.

Ms. Edens built her jelly factory with cinder-blocks she scavenged in Dallas. In winter, she heats with wood. There is no television, no radio and no air conditioning. She won't permit paper towels or paper napkins in her home.

"I have this conviction that saving the environment has to begin with me," Ms. Edens said. "When I started telling people not to build dams to produce electricity, I started to conserve energy on my own."

Part of her success in winning environmental fights stems from her personal touch, friends say. She considers both sides of an issue an avoids alienating those on the other side — a knack not shared by all prominent Texas environmentalists, they say.

The price of liberty

One of the most distinguished statesmen and orators of the Revolutionary War of America was Patrick Henry. It was in 1775 that he said, "Give me liberty or give me death."

Since that time many men and women have given their lives for the cause of freedom.

As Memorial Day comes upon us, let us remember those servicemen and women who made the great sacrifice. Through their bravery, we have been given the right to choose our own faith and destiny.

The Rt. Rev. Donis D. Patterson, Bishop of Dallas, has announced the appointment of the Rev. Richard Seaver Reynolds as vicar of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Waxahachie. Reynolds is currently serving as curate of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension in Dallas.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Reynolds of Midland. A graduate of Lee High School in Midland, he received a master of divinity from Texas Christian University, and did post-graduate work at the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest.

Reynolds has had extensive experience working with the terminally ill and the divorced.

He and his wife Victoria have two children.

Reynolds will begin his ministry at St. Paul's Episcopal Church on The Feast of Pentecost, this Sunday.

Pentecost celebrated

The churches of the Hispanic Ministerial Alliance will celebrate Pentecost together with dinner and a united worship service Saturday at Templo Jerusalem Assembley of God Church, 1113 S. Belmont.

Dinner will be served at 5 p.m. and a united worship service will follow at 7 p.m. During the service, the officers of the alliance will be installed by a representative of the Midland Ministerial Alliance.

Pentecost is the feast day when the Holy Spirit descended on the apostles and when the Church was born. All the hispanic congregations and ministries are invited to celebrate the birth of the Christian Church by participating in the service with special music and a banner on the theme of Pentecost.

Faith building Christian coffeehouse

RELIGION

By GIL BROYLES

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Sally Stokes said she sought a Christian alternative for youngsters who might otherwise find themselves "cruising and boozing and getting into trouble."

So she and 150 like-minded people got together in 1981 and prayed for a building in which to locate a Christian center.

Within the week, a leasing company had turned over the former Muskogee Public Library to the group she organized as the non-profit Ark of Faith Inc.

The columned, four-story structure had been abandoned for a dozen years in favor of a new library. Vandals had broken windows, stripped out fixtures and damaged two murals painted by well-known Indian artist Acee Blue Eagle.

Muskogee artist Joe Rector has sketched and photographed the wall-sized murals painted on the chipped plaster. He will restore them and they will be protected in the refurbished building, Mrs. Stokes said.

Since 1982, volunteers have labored on weekends to convert the imposing structure on the east edge of downtown to their needs. And after a summer of intense effort, Mrs. Stokes is confident a Christian coffee house will open on the main floor in October.

After that, there will be a chapel, shelter for those fleeing difficult home situations, counseling areas, rooms for study of the arts, a recording studio and more.

"We've got big plans," Mrs. Stokes said.

Already, Muskogee residents are calling it Mrs. Stokes' "Miracle on Broadway."

"Basically, I am a prayer person," the 50-year-old educator said. "Sometimes you need to put legs to your prayers."

The labor has been mostly volunteer and materials and supplies have been largely donated to the nondenominational effort. But Jim Miller, who is project coordinator for the renovation, estimates $185,000 is needed "to get it all completely done."

Mrs. Stokes does not doubt that the work will proceed.

Since 1981, when youngsters who call her their "spiritual momma" told her they had found "the perfect place" for the Ark of Faith work, she says she has heard "God telling us this is our building."

The brick structure already has an imposing array of 28 closely spaced windows on the south side and a skylight that will illuminate a two-story chapel, both part of the original structure.

A stage on the uppermost floor will be used to put on Christian dramas. A huge, high-ceilinged room on the main floor — complete with a fireplace — will become the coffee house.

"The whole idea of the building is that it is going to be a Christian fine arts center," Mrs. Stokes said. "It's an alternative to cruising and boozing and getting into trouble."

Mrs. Stokes, whose husband Sam died seven years ago, said she and her husband had for years seen a need for a place for "middle class kids falling through the cracks."

"A lot of times in our denominationalism, we tend to separate and divide rather than come together," she said.

A Pentecostal Presbyterian, Mrs. Stokes said she conceived of the Ark of Faith organization as engendering a "non-condemning climate of love, where we allow people to make mistakes."

For six years, Mrs. Stokes has been the moving force behind a religious program on Muskogee radio station KMUS. Her group also assisted with church services at Bacone College and developed a Christian coffee house there called "The Lamplighter."

"We flat outgrew the facilities. We didn't have enough parking," she said.

Work on the building is consistent with the goal of Ark of Faith to address the needs of young people and senior citizens. The ministry is active in local nursing homes and with area prison inmates.

"The penal system has not been working. We believe we have an alternative," Mrs. Stokes said. "Rehabilitation is man's way. Transformation is God's way."

A group called the Mobile Missionary Assistance Program sent a group of 20 skilled workers to Muskogee this month to work on refurbishing the building. Another group is due in June and still more are expected in the fall.

Gallup poll results to highlight conference

Results of a new and extensive poll of Episcopalians by the Gallup Organization will be a highlight of a national satellite televideo conference sponsored by the Prayer Book Society June 2.

It is anticipated that the conference will be attended by more than two thousand Prayer Book Society members at a dozen sites across the nation.

The Gallup study will be the third in a series by the noted public opinion organzation since 1979. Past studies have demonstrated that a majority of Episcopal laity support the Prayer Book Society on a array of issues, especially in their preference of Prayer Books, consistently favoring the 1928 version over that of 1979 by significant margins.

This year's research project is different from those of the past in several ways. First, it seeks to examine deeper religious feelings held by Episcopalians in the pews. Secondly, it probes real convictions of both clergy and laity.

Finally, this year's poll is far more extensive than the previous studies because it not only polls Episcopalians generally but also specifically polls bishops and deputies to the Church's Triennial General Convention regarding key issues facing that body in its September meeting.

"We want to be able to compare or contrast the actions of the General Convention with the real attitudes of most Episcopalians, both laity and clergy," says the Rev. James Law, who is heading the research project for the Prayer Book Society.

"We think it is important to determine how well the church's governing body represents the true feelings, attitudes and convictions of its membership. Certainly no one would logically suggest that it shouldn't" Law added.

The poll results will not be released until the conference, which not only provides live satellite coverage to various sites around the country, but will also allow live questions and answers. "This means we will get a really meaningful give and take on this and other features of the program" Law said.

Videocassettes of the two-hour-long broadcast will be distributed around the country after June 2. The program will also be shown at the PBS booth at the Triennial Convention in Anaheim this September.

"This is the most reliable sampling of Episcopal attitude available right now" Law said. "We would hope the church leadership would find great value in its results."

Seventh-Day Adventists aid victims of disasters, famine

Midland Seventh-Day Adventists joined others from across North America in replenishing funds for disaster and famine relief worldwide.

"Though our churches annually give more than a million dollars," says Jerry Oster, pastor of the local congregation, "The Adventist Development and Relief Agency International participated in projects valued at $24.4 million last year."

"That's possible because of many other generous people who believe in ADRA's work," the pastor said.

ADRA was involved during 1984 in 135 projects. The agency has a presence in 185 countries.

"It's hard to tell how many people we have helped," the pastor says, "but ADRA has programs to feed approximately 500,000 around the world. ADRA encourages food-for-work programs. What we do in many places is to teach people a skill that will improve their lives. They learn these skills in exchange for meals."

Oster says that, as an example, in one South American country where two villages were separated by a steep mountainous incline, 164 steps were constructed by ADRA to make the villages more accessible to each other.

In Ethiopia, besides feeding people, ADRA recently conducted a two-week home gardening seminar. The people trained obtained seeds and information that they will use in their villages.

In Africa's Sudan, ADRA is beginning a maternal child-care program for children, nursing mothers and pregnant women; providing food and health information to catch malnutrition during the critical years for the child — from his inception through age 5.

Midland receives new missionary from Church of Latter-day Saints

Midland has recently received a new missionary for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Brent L. Wimber, 19, joined Calvin K. Kunz, 20, who has already been serving in Midland for four months.

The two young men will spend approximately 70 hours per week helping people learn more about the gospel of Jesus Christ. "I'm looking forward to working here," Wimber said. "The people of Midland are very nice and friendly."

Like all missionaires for the LDS Church, Wimber receives no pay for his labors. He is instead supported entirely by savings previously accumulated and money donated by his family. He will serve a total of two years on the mission. Transfers to different cities are made every few months by mission headquarters in Dallas.

Wimber is originally from West Valley City, Utah, where his family still resides. He attended Granger High School and was employed by ZCMI before volunteering to become a missionary. When the term of service is over, he plans to further his education at the University of Utah.

The Newspaper BIBLE

ALL CREATION AWAITS THE GREAT EVENT

So, dear brothers, you have no obligations whatever to your old sinful nature to do what it begs you to do. For if you keep on following it you are lost and will perish, but if through the power of the Holy Spirit you crush it and its evil deeds, you shall live. For all who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God.

And so we should not be like cringing, fearful slaves, but we should behave like God's very own children, adopted into the bosom of His family, and calling to Him, "Father, Father." For His Holy Spirit speaks to us deep in our hearts, and tells us that we really are God's children. And since we are His children, we will share His treasures--for all God gives to His Son Jesus is now ours too. But if we are to share His glory, we must also share His suffering.

Yet what we suffer now is nothing compared to the glory He will give us later. For all creation is waiting patiently and hopefully for that future day when God will resurrect His children. For on that day thorns and thistles, sin, death, and decay--the things that overcame the world against its will at God's command--will all disappear, and the world around us will share in the glorious freedom from sin which God's children enjoy.

For we know that even the things of nature, like animals and plants, suffer in sickness and death as they await this great event. And even we Christians, although we have the Holy Spirit within us as a foretaste of future glory, also groan to be released from pain and suffering. We, too, wait anxiously for the day when God will give us our full rights as His children, including the new bodies He has promised us--bodies that will never be sick again and will never die.

John Holland Bannister and T.J. Ellis stand by a headstone in the old slave cemetery on Bannister's land. Bannister is the great-great-grandson of one of the first Anglo settlers in Texas, John Sweeney, who was given the land by Stephen F. Austin. Ellis' parents are buried in the cemetery.

Former oilman chooses land over money

By JOHN TOTH

OLD OCEAN, Texas (AP) — John Holland Bannister turned down an offer for an old slave cemetery, plantation house and some woods and ranch land that others would have found hard to refuse.

But to the man who spent 30 years in the oil business and gave up a big house in Houston to move to the country, choosing land over money came easily.

"Now what would I do with all that money? I don't want a big house. I had all that, and I gave it up. I want the land. You're never poor if you have land," said Bannister.

He is the great-great-grandson of one of the first Anglo settlers in Texas, John Sweeny, who was given the land in 1833 by Stephen F. Austin.

Austin gave Sweeny 50,000 acres which Sweeny split among his nine sons. John Sweeny Jr. received the bulk of the land, 15,000 acres, which he turned into a plantation.

Sweeny's descendants over the years have sold all but the acreage now owned by Bannister, his brother and a cousin. Bannister moved back to the old homestead in 1981, and this is where he says he's doing to die — jus' like John Sweeny Jr.

Part of the once-fertile land that for so many years produced cotton and sugar cane now accommodates a Phillips petrochemical complex.

In the mid-1970s Phillips approached Bannister about selling the remaining 1,000 acres for future plant expansion.

"The idea of selling the land just turns me off," says Bannister. "My ancestors settled here when all this was forest. They had to clear the trees out before they could farm the land. They didn't come to speculate but to start a new life."

Another man shares Bannister's attachment to this land. This is where the parents of Thomas Jefferson Ellis Jr. were laid to rest, and this is where Ellis, better known to friends as T.J., says he wants to be buried in the old slave cemetery.

The cemetery lies across the road from a massive maze of pipes, water coolers and storage tanks — a meeting of history and progress in this western Brazoria County community.

About 100 slaves are buried in unmarked graves on this green patch of land that has changed little since the first years ago. The descendants of the plantation slaves still bury their dead here.

"There is lot of history here," says Ellis, 78, who has been caretaker here for seven years. "I'm going to keep it going as long as I can."

Ellis is a retired farmer and Phillips employee. He grew up on a nearby farm and recalls playing ball as a child on the plantation.

He remembers the row of long, narrow slave houses that once stood where cattle now roam, the schoolhouse and the church, the pecan trees that once lined the dirt road to the plantation house.

Ellis, who has spent most of his life and reared five children here, says the physical reminders of an era when people were bought and sold do not bother him.

"That's history, and this is the present. We're all friends now," he says.

About 50 descendants of the plantation slaves still live in the area. The only requirement for burial in the cemetery, Ellis says, is to be one of those descendants.

No one knows exactly where the slave graves are located because none are marked, says Ellis. They were either never marked or the markers have been lost or deteriorated over the years.

The plantation that surrounds the cemetery was converted to a ranch in the 1940s, and most of it is now leased as pasture. Bannister reserves a small section for his own 30 head of cattle. This way, he reasons, "I can have a piece of steak anytime I want without going to the supermarket."

The original plantation house remains in good shape. Bannister leases the building to a family who maintains and repairs it in lieu of rent. The house has been expanded over the years, but has retained its original grandeur and most of the nails, wood and bricks slaves used to build it in 1837.

The two-story house is far too big for Bannister and his wife, Nancy. The couple live in a smaller house on Texas 35.

The shop is the only former slave house still in existence. Bannister's mother had it moved from the plantation in 1948 to serve as the town's first post office.

Volunteers dig into plantation's past

By MELANIE MARKLEY

A cluster of people stooping over their labors with trowels and shovels and wire-mesh screens sifted the moist dirt for items to drop into sacks that would be identified and set aside for later inspection.

The tiny pieces bore witness to an earlier age, an earlier century.

The archaeology buffs, their bodies scented with mosquito spray and suntan lotion, had already unearthed part of a brick foundation outlining a house on property now owned by Restwood Memorial Park off Dixie Drive.

Johnney T. Pollan Jr., a member of the Brazosport Archaeological Society, said the house apparently belonged to an overseer of the old Eagle Island Plantation.

Because of the dates and the wealth of artifacts, he speculated the house was devastated suddenly by the 1900 hurricane.

From 400 to 500 buttons have been found in the dirt where the house once stood, indicating that the residents were forced to flee suddenly and leave behind their clothes, he said.

"It's sort of a Pompeii of Brazoria County," Pollan said about the find. "In that respect, it's very important."

Since little was apparently removed from the house when it was destroyed, Pollan said it gives historians a chance to see what everyday life was like for residents just before the turn of the century.

Archaeology students and enthusiasts from Brazosport, Houston and even as far away as Columbus have been involved in the dig begun last year just south of the funeral chapel.

Raymond McCausland of Columbus, who bent over a wire screen sifting the dirt and salvaging bits of artifacts, said this is the third weekend he has spent at the Clute site.

"It's like Christmas, opening up presents," he said. "You never know what you're going to find."

Pollan said the volunteer archaeologists will continue digging at the site until the end of May, then begin cataloguing the items they found.

He said they also hope to do more historical research on who actually lived in the home.

Pollan speculates the house was built in the 1840s and served as the plantation's overseer house until after the Civil War.

Pieces of slate board and slate pencils, which Pollan said were probably used by the overseer as tally boards when he made his rounds on the plantation, have been found at the site.

The house was apparently sold in the early 1890s to a private concern who subdivided the land into small farms, he said. Later, the house probably served as a farm house until the hurricane of 1900.

The home, with a fireplace at either end, was built on a high foundation, which served to make it cooler and reduced the risk of floods, he said.

Pollan said they have unearthed a part of a medicine bottle that was made for a pharmacy in Angleton. A complete, unbroken medicine bottle also was found, but it bore no writing.

The archaeolgists have dug up pieces of liquor bottles, ceramics, white ironstone, porcelain, earthenware, handblown glass and pressed glass.

They have found bones from such domestic animals as pigs, cows and chickens and from alligators, deer, waterfowl, squirrels, raccoon and fish. They also have unearthed a few marbles and pieces of china dolls, which indicates there were children living there, Pollan said.

Although most of the items within the house date back to the 1880s and 1890s, Pollan said outside the house, they have founds artifacts from the 1840s and 1850s.

No artifacts dated after 1900 have been found, he said.

The archaeology society earlier located the Wharton family cemetery near the south bank of Eagle Lake. The cemetery, Pollan said, was used from the late 1830s to the late 1860s.

Changed image pleases Ann-Margret

Hearst News Service

Ann-Margret

Ann-Margret admits there are five movies in her career she's never seen, never wants to see and never talks about.

All she'll say about any of those films is, "Thank goodness, I still have my sense of humor. I did the best I could with the scripts that were there. I guess people wanted to see me in fluffy kinds of roles."

Fluffy is not exactly the image that the name Ann-Margret conjures up. Sexy, definitely — visions of a great mane of titian-colored hair tossed around like a whip. Of legs-up-to-there peeking out from Bob Mackie spangles, strutting their stuff on the stages of Las Vegas showrooms. Of movies with the names "Kitten With a Whip," "The Pleasure Seekers," "The Swinger."

She says she did the best she could at the time.

"I enjoyed doing 'The Pleasure Seekers.' I really did. In those early years, I enjoyed doing all of them. I learned from every single film what to do and what not to do."

She thought that her representatives knew what they were doing.

"I knew nothing about scripts and felt funny about some of the things I read. But I'd say, 'Why am I doing this?' and figured they knew something I didn't. I found out later, they didn't."

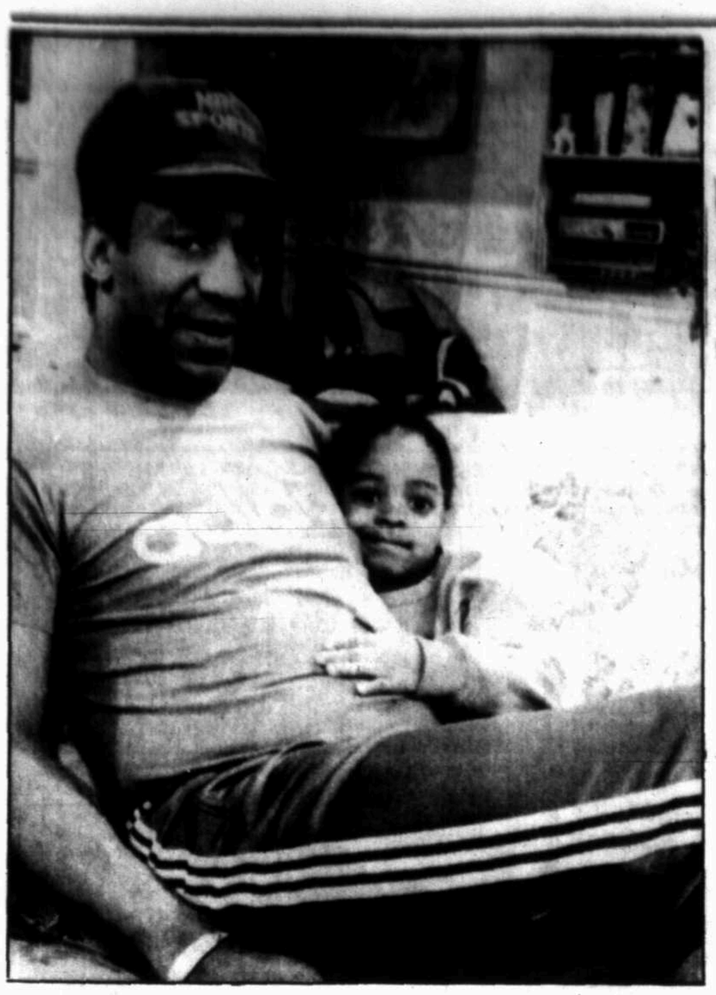

Naive, she admits. She also had no idea that she was going to be a movie star. Not in Sweden, where she was born 44 years ago, and not in the Chicago suburbs where she was raised. And not even in Las Vegas, where as a 19-year-old, she appeared with George Burns, billed as his "discovery." (To this day, she still calls him "Mr. Burns.")

"I thought I was going to be an entertainer. I was real surprised when I did the screen test at 20th Century Fox. They gave me a scene to do. I loved it. I was crazy about it, becoming another person."

But it wasn't until superagent Allan Carr and her husband, former actor Roger ("77 Sunset Strip") Smith took over managing her career that Ann-Margret broke out of the sex symbol stereotype into the superstar mold. Then came tales of the Ann-Margret/Roger Smith pairing. Of Ann-Margret being manipulated and overworked by Smith and Carr. It didn't matter that her public denials didn't mean a thing. Her life has always been played out in the press without her help.

Perhaps most publicized was the 22-foot fall at the Sahara Tahoe that almost killed her. But the fall turned Ann-Margret into a bona fide survivor.

Through the years, she's gained a reputation as a "Slugger," as her husband of nearly 20 years calls her. Her skills as a musical performer are nonpariel; but her reputation as an actress, well, sex kitten didn't bring her Oscar-winning roles until 1972, when she surprised Hollywood and the world at large when Mike Nichols cast her as the blowsy, overripe, Jack Nicholson-victimized Bobbie Templeton in "Carnal Knowledge." For the part, she gained about 20 pounds, one indication that she was indeed a "serious actress." The true measure of her skill was an Oscar nomination, the first of two. (The other was for "Tommy" in 1975.)

Season's top TV shows all offered originality

NEW YORK (AP) — A black obstetrician, an amateur sleuth, an angel with a tan and two snazzy cops on a fast soundtrack constituted the four new shows that became full-season television hits in 1984-85.

With the prime-time season complete, Bill Cosby, who had failed three times before on network TV, stands as king of the hill. His "Cosby Show" on NBC is the highest-rated new series since ABC's "Mork & Mindy" in 1978.

The other successes were Angela Lansbury's "Murder, She Wrote" on CBS, Michael Landon's "Highway to Heaven" on NBC, and NBC's "Miami Vice," starring Don Johnson and Philip Michael Thomas as two stylish undercover cops swinging to the tempo of Miami's hot action, music and temperature.

"The shows that were successful this season were all distinctive," said Harvey Shephard, CBS' senior vice president for programming. "None were familiar or copies of other hits."

CBS' "Crazy Like A Fox" was introduced at midseason and became the only replacement show to catch on with viewers.

The consensus pre-season picks by the major ad agencies had made these shows good bets: "Murder, She Wrote," ABC's "Paper Dolls" and "Finder of Lost Loves," NBC's "V," and, perhaps, "Hunter." The sages said "Cosby" stood a pretty good chance.

"Paper Dolls" turned into papier-mache fast. Producer Aaron Spelling, with seven series on ABC at the beginning of the season, lost out with "Finder of Lost Loves" and "Glitter." And do you remember ABC's "Hawaiian Heat," ABC's "People Do the Craziest Things" or CBS' "Dreams"?

Or the pairing of Loni Anderson and Lynda Carter in the forgettable "Partners in Crime?" They were too busy changing wardrobes to worry about plot. Another starring woman, Lindsay Wagner, playing a police psychiatrist in "Jessie," quickly returned to the couch.

...Do you remember ...the pairing of Loni Anderson and Lynda Carter in the forgettable "Partners in Crime?" They were too busy changing wardrobes to worry about plot. Another starring woman, Lindsay Wagner, playing a police psychiatrist in "Jessie," quickly returned to the couch.

The year of the female crime-solver was saved only by Miss Lansbury in "Murder, She Wrote," which gave CBS a powerful follow-up to "60 Minutes" and turned Sunday into a CBS stronghold.

"The Cosby Show," with nine No. 1 finishes since January, did the same thing for NBC on Thursday, breathing life into the follow-up "Family Ties," "Cheers" and "Night Court," proving that realistic, identifiable comedy was alive and well.

Few at NBC had expected "Cosby" would become this year's top show. Even fewer at NBC predicted bliss for "Highway to Heaven." NBC executives, who had thought they would let Landon get the show out of his system, now say that only Landon best understood his audience's need for heart-tugging drama.

Things quiet now that Boss is gone

Springsteen

LAKE OSWEGO, Ore. (AP) — Now that the Boss and his bride have taken off, Bruce Springsteen's in-laws say the pace of life has slowed, though calls from the rock star's fans have not.

"I've gotten more calls from people I don't know," said Anne Phillips, whose 25-year-old daughter, Julianne, married Springsteen, 35, on May 13 in a secret, midnight wedding. "They say, 'This is Ellen or this is Susan or this is Boston — I just wanted to say congratulations.'"

Before the wedding, Springsteen spent a lot of time in the guest room above the garage, while his fiancee stayed in another bedroom, Mrs. Phillips said. On their wedding night, the couple traveled to a family friend's house on Lake Oswego, where they stayed until flying to Los Angeles on May 16, she said.

The Phillipses regretted the secrecy of the wedding, but said Springsteen told the family he did not want to remember his wedding day "as where they were selling T-shirts," Mrs. Phillips said.

But, she said, the only person who approached Springsteen at Portland International Airport was a man who mistook him for Tony Bennett and requested a few bars of "I Left My Heart in San Fancisco."

LONDON (AP) — The High Court on Friday granted Lynne Frederick $1 million for her claim that "The Trail of the Pink Panther" insulted the memory of her late husband, Peter Sellers. But it refused to halt further showing of the film.

The movie used discarded clips from the five previous Pink Panther films, in which Sellers starred as the bumbling, self-important Inspector Clouseau. It was released in October 1982, two years after Sellers died.

Judge Sir John S. Hobhouse ruled that the filmmakers, for commercial gain, had "interfered with Sellers' contractual rights." The movie was made by United Artists, director Blake Edwards and Lakeline Productions, owned by Edwards' wife, singer Julie Andrews.

The court rejected defense arguments that Sellers' estate could not claim rights to his "name, voice and likeness" on film once he was dead.

Miss Frederick, who is Sellers' main beneficiary, was not in court for the judgment. The 29-year-old actress is now married to a Los Angeles surgeon.

LONDON (AP) — Actress Deborah Kerr was roundly panned for a London performance that earlier made headlines when she was reported to be flubbing her lines in a provincial preview.

As the schoolteacher Miss Moffat in a revival of Emlyn Williams' 1938 drama "The Corn Is Green," Miss Kerr, 63, remembered her lines at Wednesday's opening.

But critics wondered whether it had been worth the trouble.

"The valiant Miss Deborah Kerr did not forget her lines," wrote Jack Tinker in The Daily Mail. "True, she delivered them with the detachment and the mechanical precision of an autocue."

Michael Coveney in The Financial Times said: "Frith Banbury's production is entirely crippled by the presence of Deborah Kerr, who lends nothing resembling intellectual earnestness to the teacher and fails to illuminate the central teacher-pupil relationship."

Jose Holquin, 64, reaches toward a photo of Sgt. Henry Garcia during Garcia's funeral Friday in Whittier, Calif. The Air Force sergeant, a crewmate of Holquin's, died 42 years ago when their B-17 was shot down in the South Pacific.

Airman buried almost 45 years after his death

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — A World War II flier who died with eight other men when their bomber was shot down in the South Pacific was buried Friday, thanks to the only survivor, who has spent more than $12,000 tracing the remains of his dead buddies.

"We are brought up to have things that are real. It's difficult sometimes to have just a spirit," said 43-year-old John Henry Garcia, who was a year old when his father, Staff Sgt. Henry Garcia, was killed in 1943.

About 100 family members, friends and military men both old and young attended the ceremonies at Rose Hills Memorial Park in this Los Angeles suburb.

The burial included a 21-gun salute for the fallen soldier, who was 29 when he died.

Garcia's B-17 bomber, the "Naughty But Nice," was attacked by Japanese fighter planes on June 26, 1943, and crashed into the jungle on the island of New Britain.

Of 10 men aboard the plane, only one survived — Lt. Jose Holguin, who escaped by parachute, made his way to the burning wreckage and spotted the bodies of three dead crew members slumped inside.

Holguin said a prayer by the bodies, vowed to return someday, then ran into the jungle in an unsuccessful attempt to escape capture by Japanese troops. He was captured and spent 26 months as a prisoner of war.

Now 64 and a high school vice principal in Los Angeles, Holguin began in 1981 to to act on his vow to bring the dead men back to their families. He has spent more than $12,000 of his own money and made three trips to the South Pacific, to trace the remains of the fliers.

"Each of us was depending on the other for his survival," Holguin said Friday. "A bond grew between us that was a lot stronger than if we were even brothers."

Holguin found the wreckage of the Naughty But Nice in 1981, but the remains were gone. He then ferreted out records that took him to Honolulu, where the remains of five crewmen were taken after the war.

There, in graves marked "unknown," he found First Lt. Francis G. Peattie of Beacon, N.Y.; 2nd Lt. Herman H. Knott of Astoria, N.Y.; Staff Sgt. Robert E. Griebel of Riverton, Wyo.; Staff Sgt. Pace P. Payne of Texarkana, Texas, and Garcia.

The Army exhumed the bodies and conducted a six-month analysis of dental charts and bone structures to make positive identification. All the others have been buried: Garcia was the last.

The whereabouts of the remains of the other four crewmen is unknown, but Holguin said Friday he has not given up on them.

"I am going to do it, but I don't want to raise any hopes. I am going to search a wider area, and follow the trajectory of the plane," he said.

Permian Basin Fair, Exposition to host showdown

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The 1985 Permian Basin Fair and Exposition has been selected as the site for the Texas State Regional Finals in the Wrangle Country Showdown sponsored by Dodge.

The Permian Basin Fair and Exposition and Billy Bob's in Fort Worth will be the hosts this year for the competition, which will take place on Sept. 14th. Eric Vaughan, director of the fair, made the announcement at a press conference held at the Dallas Nights Club.

Dallas Nights was the site this week of the local Odessa and Midland finals sponsored by KNFM radio. The finalist, who will perform at the Texas State Regionals, Sam Zackary of Midland, was selected from 10 contestants who had advanced from local semi-finals. First runner up was Brandi Rivers of Odessa and second runner up was the Odessa band, Westwind.

In addition to the local winner, the regionals will see contestants from Amarillo, El Paso, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Abilene, Uvalde, Kenedy, San Angelo, Lubbock and Big Spring.

"This is the largest country music talent contest in the world," Vaughn said. "This is not just another talent contest, it is a once in a lifetime opportunity for someone to get that big break."

The Texas state regional winner that is selected at Odessa's fair will join 39 other winners in Nashville for the finals which are televised and held at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville.

The Texas state regional winner receives $1,000 and an all-expense paid trip to Nashville for the finals. That includes air travel, accommodations and all meals.

In Nashville, the Texas state regional winner will be competing for a one year recording and booking contract, $50,000 and a Dodge Mini Ram Van. The second prize is $15,000 and a Dodge Mini Ram Van and third prize is $10,000 and a Dodge Mini Ram Van.

Vaughan said, "The Permian Basin Fair and Expostiion is very impressed with the organization of the contest nationally and locally and very impressed with the local Odessa and Midland talent we are seeing.

"We will be offering a good show for fair patrons with real incentives for the performers. I've heard nothing but great feedback on the Wrangler Country Showdown sponsored by Dodge."

Tentatively scheduled as the back-up band for solo performers are The Debonaires, last years winners of the national finals. The Debonaires are from Taylor.

"We are very, very excited with the potential of this," Vaughan said "as this will add to our 10th year anniversary of the Permian Basin Fair and Exposition this September."

New Yorker pleads not guilty to making false statements

From Staff Reports

A 55-year-old New York man pleaded "not guilty" Friday afternoon in U.S. Magistrate's Court to making false statements to gain a $325,000 loan from Security National Bank of Midland in 1983.

The man, Eftim Pandeff, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Midland for allegedly making false statements and reports on July 1, 1983, to get the loan.

He was charged with representing that the loan would be secured by 13,000 shares of common stock in Monolithic Memories Inc., 6,200 shares in Rolm Corp. and 66,918 shares in Xebec Corp.

However, the government maintains that neither Pandeff nor Axa Capitol Corp., with which Pandeff was allegedly associated, owned stock in those corporations.

Pandeff was arrested in New York City in mid-April about 10 days after he was indicted here. His bond initially was set there.

The case was investigated by the FBI.

Judges issue stays of execution

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge Friday issued a stay to death row inmates G.W. Green and Johnny Frank Garrett, who both had been scheduled to die by lethal injection next week.

U.S. Federal Judge Norman Black granted Garrett a stay after his attorneys challenged the dismissal of three jurors who said in the selection process that they could never vote for a death sentence. Black set a June 14 hearing date.

Garrett, 21, is convicted of the 1981 raping and beating to death 76-year-old Sister Tadea Benz in Amarillo.

U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue, in a one-page decision, gave Green's attorneys 20 days to file documents supporting their objections to the death sentence.

From Staff Reports

A Midland man reported the theft of tires and wheels worth a total of $1,200 Friday from his 1976 Corvette, according to police.

Harland Joseph Valiquette said he left the car parked in front of a 2700 N. Midland Drive apartment at 1:30 a.m. When he returned to the car at 7:30 a.m he found the Corvette sitting on four cinder blocks with the wheels missing, reports said.

In other complaints Friday, Brian Herrman, Route 10, Box 13208, reported the burglary of $329 in car-stereo equipment from his 1966 Nova. The equipment was taken sometime between 8 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. Friday, reports said.

The Desert Inn Motel, 3101 Bankhead Highway, reported that two people who had lived in Room 312 for a year left sometime between midnight and 8:30 a.m. Friday, taking a $350 television and other items worth a total of $413 from the room, according to reports.

An El Camino valued at $1,000 was reported missing by an Odessa woman who had abandoned it on Highway 80 two miles west of Midland Thursday. Yvonne White, 1012 Placer, had left the pickup at the side of the road after having problems with one of the wheels. When she returned Friday morning, the pickup was missing, reports said.

Bill would extend permits for implement transport

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas House has passed a bill allowing dealers of "oversize implements of husbandry" to obtain permits good for one year to transport the large equipment over highways to other dealers and custom harvesters.

SB 1114, introduced by Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, passed the House without objection, and now goes to the governor's office for consideration.

The legislation allows dealers to secure the annual permits for $90. Under current law, dealers of oversize implements of husbandry must obtain permits for single trips costing $20, permits for 30 days costing $40, permits for 60 days costing $60, or permits for 90 days costing $80.

Sarpalius says these restrictions cause a great deal of inconvenience for the implement dealers and harvesters, since sometimes it is difficult for them to get those permits during working hours.

The bill passed the Senate on April 19, also without objection.

Senate OKs bill modifying insurance credit program

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Senate has passed a bill by Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, modifying the existing program for credits on homeowners insurance for anti-theft devices.

HB 1861 authorized the Commission on Law Enforcement Standards and Education, rather than the Texas Crime Prevention Institute, to set standards for inspections under the program.

The institute notified the State Board of Insurance last year it could no longer assist in implementing the act, which provides for a discount of 5 percent for installation of deadbolt locks and other security devices.

The bill passed the Texas House earlier this month.

House OKs bill repealing city annexation requirement

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas House has passed legislation by Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, which repeals a requirement that cities have a population of 12,000 or less before they can annex certain areas.

SB 967 was passed without objection on the local and consent calendar, and now goes to the governor's office for consideration.

Sims' legislation relates to cities annexing an area less than 500 feet wide that has to sides contiguous with the city's boundaries. The measure passed without debate in the Senate on April 3.

Bill amends law dealing with farm machinery width

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Senate has approved legislation by Rep. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, relating to the width allowed for farm tractors and equipment on public highways.

HB 880, which now goes to the governor's office for consideration, amends current law to exempt such machinery from width provisions.

The Federal Highway Administration has indicated states may provide such exemptions, and Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation officials say they already consider tractors exempted, but note the bill would clarify the situation.

The measure previously passed the Texas House.
