thawes@mrt.com

The U.S. hit 800 oil rigs this week, more than half of which were in the Permian Basin.

All 434 rigs in the Permian were searching for oil, according to Baker Hughes. The nation's most active basin lost one rig this week.

Reeves County in the Delaware Basin fell by one rig to 66. Midland County in the Midland Basin also shed a rig, falling to 48.

The following counties also had double-digit rig counts: Lea, New Mexico (48); Eddy, New Mexico (37); Loving (30); Howard (27); Martin (26); Glasscock (22); Culberson (19); Reagan (16); Ward (16); Pecos (15); Winkler (14); Andrews (12); and Upton (11).

Railroad Commission District 8 moved back in to the 300-rig range after an additional pair of rigs put its count at 301. For other areas with activity in the Permian, District 7B was unchanged at one, District 7C fell by two rigs to 30, District 8A dropped by one to 16 and New Mexico held at 86.

The Permian had 308 rigs a year ago.

Beauchamp, Terry Johnson and Stephen M. Robertson are facing off for the Republican nomination for county judge in the March 6 primary election. Early voting ended Friday.

For Monday's deadline, Beauchamp reported $37,002 in total political contributions. Johnson had $17,925 in contributions, and Robertson raised $10,775.

Notable contributors for the candidates include:

- Beauchamp: Tim and Terri Dunn, businessman and wife; attorney Tevis Herd; and businessman Brent Hilliard.
- Johnson: Terri Dunn; Edwin Magruder Jr., former Midland mayor; and businessman Don Sparks.
- Robertson: Robert R. Donnelly, county commissioner for Precinct 2; John Kennedy, member of the Midland ISD board of trustees; businessman Travis Stice; and philanthropists Paula and James Henry.

In terms of total political expenditures, Robertson outspent his competitors at $32,418.36. His spending was related to advertising, consulting, printing and solicitation/fundraising, according to his campaign finance report. The total principal amount of all outstanding loans was $6,596.57.

Johnson reported spending $25,179.20 in the categories of advertising, consulting, credit card payment, event expense, fees, fundraising and printing. The total principal amount of all outstanding loans was $10,000, according to his report.

Beauchamp has an expenditure total of $10,941.83 for advertising, printing and fees — including spending related to banking and credit card processing. His campaign finance report reveals no outstanding loans.

The winner of the Republican nomination will face Democratic candidate Steven Schafersman in November. The candidates are seeking the position of Mike Bradford, who isn't running for a fourth term as county judge.

Worst of bad US flu season finally over as illnesses decline

By Mike Stobbe
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The worst of the nation's nasty flu season is finally over.

The season apparently peaked in early February and has been fading since, health officials said Friday. The number of people going to the doctor with symptoms of the flu has continued to decline. Deaths from the flu or pneumonia are going down, too.

While the peak may have passed, the season isn't finished yet. Reports of flu remained widespread in 45 states, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported.

"The season's not over but we're definitely on the downward trend right now," said Dr. Anne Schuchat, the CDC's acting director.

Flu usually takes off after Christmas and peaks around February. This season started early and was widespread in many states by December. In early January, it hit what seemed like peak levels — but then continued to surge.

It had been driven by a kind of flu that tends to put more people in the hospital and cause more deaths, and officials lately are seeing less of that. But another kind that hits children hard has picked up steam. So far this season, health officials say 114 children have died from the flu.

Making a bad year worse, this year's flu vaccine didn't work very well and health officials are trying to figure out why it did so poorly.

Flu is a contagious respiratory illness, spread by a virus. It can cause a miserable but relatively mild illness in many people, but a more severe illness in others. In a bad season, there are as many as 56,000 deaths connected to the flu.

In Friday's report, the CDC said one key measure showed doctor visits last week for fever, cough and other symptoms of the flu dropped again, down to 1 in 20 visits. The number of states reporting heavy patient flu traffic last week dropped to 32.

Amber Smith, a recruiter for a furniture store chain in Charlotte, North Carolina, thought she didn't have to worry about the flu after a wave of illnesses that hit her company's warehouse in January and February seemed to fade. But she started to feel sick Monday and found out she had the flu. She hadn't gotten a flu shot; her boyfriend did and he hasn't been sick.

Martha Belle Holland Conine

Martha Belle Holland Conine died peacefully on February 20, 2018 in Austin, Texas. Marty was born July 17, 1932 to Lan Morgan Holland and Minnie O'Dell Holland and grew up in McAllen with her sister and brothers. After their mother died unexpectedly when Marty was just two years old, she spent many summers with her Aunt Willie and Uncle Dewey in Rotan, Texas and later with her sister Doris and brother-in-law Bill in Monahans. She graduated from Baylor in 1953 and taught school in Galveston before moving to Midland in 1955. Marty loved Midland and lived there until last November.

Known for her sweet and elegant demeanor, Marty was generous and kind to all. She also had a wonderful sense of humor. When her oldest niece would visit during the summer, Marty would buy an old-fashioned pinwheel, hold it out the window of the car and drive down the street singing Moon River at the top of her lungs, much to the delight of her niece. Marty took her nieces and their friends to see The Music Man many years ago and marched up and down the aisle of the movie theater during Seventy-Six Trombones, playing an imaginary trombone. She made every activity fun.

Marty was a fiercely loyal friend and defender of her family. She was overjoyed when she became a mother to Nancy Lynn and was heartbroken when Nancy passed away in 2001. Marty taught English and speech before Nancy was born and again from 1997 until 2003. Ever the teacher, she felt compelled to correct blatant errors in grammar right up until she died. Marty was a member of First United Methodist Church in Midland and was active in the Junior League and Midland Community Theatre. Marty excelled at play readings and acting. Among her roles were the ghost Elvira in Blithe Spirit, and in 1963 she starred in Midland's very own movie production of High Noon. Marty loved her monthly Chocoholics gatherings and frequent lunches with her treasured Midland friends. The highlight of every summer was the visit from her beloved granddaughters. She adored them and was so thankful to have living reminders of Nancy.

Marty was preceded in death by her parents, her daughter Nancy Conine Hester, her sister Doris Holland Parker and her brothers O'Dell Holland, John A Holland, and Nick Holland. She is survived by her granddaughters Jordyn and Jodi Hester of Superior, Colorado; sisters-in-law Clo Holland of El Paso and Joy Holland of Houston; nieces Marty Parker of Austin, Mary Parker of Austin, Cathy Holland of Coppell, Jenny Holland Miller (Clay) of Mandeville, Louisiana; and nephews Johnny Holland (Kathryn) of El Paso and Keith Holland of Georgetown. She also loved and was loved by her nieces' and nephew's 12 children and grandchildren. A celebration of Marty's life will be held at 2:00 pm Saturday, March 3, 2018 at Glass Chapel, First United Methodist Church in Midland. For those who wish, memorial donations to the charity of your choice will be greatly appreciated by Marty's family.

Zach is preceded in death by his grandparents, J.C. and Margaret Denny, L.V. and Wilma Hill, as well as two uncles, Pat Denny and Mike Denny.

He is survived by his son, Keaton Hill of Forsan, Texas, Jorge Briones of Midland, Texas, parents, James and Marsha Hill of Kermit, Texas; his little sister, Callie Hill of Midland; cousins, Jeana, Kristina, and Mia Espinoza and Clay and wife Megan Denny of Rockledge, Florida; and several loving aunts, uncles, and cousins.

Marian Elizabeth Huggins

(Service Time Updated)

"There on the mountains, as you get near the real high places, the air is fresh and invigorating. It strengthens the whole body and there are streams with wonderful healing properties, so that those who bathe in them find all their blemishes and disfigurements washed away". - Hannah Hurnard "Hinds Feet on High Places"

The Lord God maketh my feet like hinds' feet, and setteth me upon mine High Places. - Psalm 18:33 and Habakkuk 3:19

Marian Elizabeth Huggins finds herself in the High Places with her Lord and Savior. Marian and her family walked the long journey of Alzheimer's together.

Marian Elizabeth Huggins passed away in Jacksonville, Texas on Sunday, February 25, 2018.

Marian was born on July 9, 1942 to Marion Ralph Haddox and Ruby Elizabeth Haddox in Garfield, New Mexico and was the second of five children. Her early years were spent in the Hatch Valley of New Mexico. She was a 1960 graduate of Yuma Union High School in Yuma, Arizona. Her mother and grandmother shared the gift of sewing and needlework with Marian as a child.

During high school, Marian worked for the Singer Sewing Machine Company, giving sewing lessons to students, and for her service, she was awarded her first sewing machine. That sewing machine changed her life. She was a brilliant seamstress, who throughout her life, had a great love of fabric, lace, needles, and thread. Her father relied upon her good sense and her mother considered her to be her assistant and thus the nickname "Gabby," because she always had the last word.

She met and fell in love with Jim Daugherty in Yuma, Arizona and they married on December 30, 1959. As a young Air Force wife, she made her home with two small children, James and Lisa, in several places including two foreign countries, but ultimately Midland, Texas became her home.

Providence brought Marian to Midland in 1972. She settled in with her two young children and began her life in Midland. On September 5, 1976, Marian married Bob Huggins, and they began a journey spanning almost four decades together. With love and patience, they blended a family that was formed out of their union of 40 years. Marian and Bob were members of Midland Christian Fellowship, Cornerstone Fellowship, and First Baptist Church of Midland.

During her years in Midland, Marian raised a family and worked as a Bookkeeper, but in her private time, she was a Bible teacher. She loved reaching out to women by hosting weekly Bible studies and prayer groups. Her love of the scriptures, combined with her love of fabric and needles, were displayed in the beautiful tapestry that she stitched into the lives of those she taught, counseled and prayed over.

Marian is rejoicing with those who have gone before her into Heaven!

Among many dear friends and loved ones, she has been reunited with her parents Ralph and Ruby, three sisters, Patty, Jane and Shirley, and her beloved husband, Bob Huggins.

Marian is survived by her children, James Daugherty and wife Karen of Midland; and Lisa Zachry and husband Jimmy of Midland; and Shawn Axworthy and husband Bob, of Bullard and Darren Huggins and wife Paula Vachon of Copper Canyon. Marian is also survived by her brother Wayne Haddox of Camarillo, California. She was blessed with six grandchildren, Zachary Huggins, Molly Axworthy, Libby Axworthy, Derek Daugherty, Casey Zachry, and Robyn Zachry Wendel, and by seven great-grandchildren. The birth of her eighth great grandchild is expected in May of this year.

A memorial service honoring Marian will be held on Saturday, March 17, 2018 at 11:00 a.m. at Ellis Funeral Home in Midland.

A gentle heart has stopped beating
Loving hands that now lay still
The Good Shepherd brought her home
According to his will
New heavenly eyes are open
And oh the glory she must see
Praise you Lord that in your presence
She soars like an Eagle now set free
Her long journey here on earth is through
Oh the joy that she is now with you
Her feet are set upon the high places
And she's welcomed by familiar faces
Reunited when we are all made new
That bright morning covered in Heaven's dew
Until that blessed reunion
We will continue to seek your will
And at the end to embrace Jesus
God's love and grace fulfilled

- Lisa Zachry

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Make an effort to communicate what is on your mind. You often feel as if you can't verbalize your feelings as clearly as you need to or want to. Stop being so hard on yourself. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You have the power to get past a problem easily. You are forthcoming and willing to discuss what doesn't work for you. Curb a tendency to get too upset when you start sharing your thoughts. Do not lose your energy for healing the differences. Tonight: Time to indulge a bit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ You might feel somewhat distant, and as if you want to have some personal time. You will be quite pleased if you can accomplish this. Listen to your inner voice, and follow through on a long-term desire or goal. Tonight: Make a call to a friend if you decide to cancel your plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Reach out to a friend at a distance. You might not be sure why you feel undermined by a series of an events. You could benefit from a change of scenery. Evaluate your reaction at a different time. Be with someone who understands you. Tonight: Where you can be entertained.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You might be involved in a personal matter that easily could get out of hand. Refuse to let anyone's negativity affect a nearly perfect day you have planned. Your expectation from others could be off. A loved one comes through for you. Tonight: Go where you want to be.

Two ECISD campuses receive shooting threats

By Paul Wedding
Odessa American

Ector County Independent School District investigated two school shooting threats Thursday, leading to one arrest, and another student was charged with carrying brass knuckles on campus.

ECISD Police charged 18-year-old Kevin Nunez, a student at New Tech Odessa High School, with threatening to shoot up the school Thursday, an ECISD press release said.

Another student had reported overhearing Nunez tell another student he would use explosives and smoke bombs while he was shooting up the school, the release stated, and said "when you hear two fire alarms go off you will know."

Police charged Nunez with making a terroristic threat, a class B misdemeanor, and he was taken to the Ector County Law Enforcement Center Thursday.

At Odessa High School, a 15-year-old student was charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon in a prohibited place, a third-degree felony, after he dropped a pair of brass knuckles while in class, the release said. After the teacher took the brass knuckles, ECISD police was contacted and the student was taken to the Ector County Youth Center.

Later that evening, ECISD police received information of a rumor there would be a shooting at Crockett Middle School on Friday, the release stated. The police department's threat management team worked throughout the night to investigate the rumor and found it was not substantiated.

ECISD Chief of Staff Brian Moersch said additional ECISD police officers had been assigned to Crockett Middle School and the Odessa Police Department has increased their patrols in the area as well.

These incidents happened just more than two weeks after the shooting at Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Fla., which led to the death of 17 people, and the Friday shooting at Central Michigan University where two people were killed.

Moersch said ECISD has had an increased number of threats reported since the Florida shooting.

"I think the natural assumption to make is that it's due to the incident in Florida," he said.

Moersch added that the Florida shooting hasn't changed their approach to handling these threats, because he said safety of students and staff is the district's first priority.

"We investigate every allegation or concern regarding safety," he said.

Judge grants stays in Oklahoma earthquake lawsuits

Associated Press

STILLWATER, Okla. — Oklahoma residents who are suing oil and gas producers for earthquake damage to their homes and businesses must now wait for a federal judge's decision in another case.

Judge Phillip Corley granted a stay with a provision for monitoring until Sept. 6 in the cases involving White Star Petroleum LLC, New Dominion LLC and plaintiffs from Payne and Logan counties, the Stillwater News Press reported .

Attorneys from both companies requested stays until a decision is made about certifying those who are suing in a federal class action case. The attorneys say their clients are spending large amounts of money to make appearances in multiple courts and hope to avoid inconsistent rulings.

Sheriff's office creates team to address safety issues

Associated Press

CARLSBAD, N.M. — A sheriff's office in southeastern New Mexico is hiring more deputies to create a team to target traffic safety issues on a major highway and to work animal cruelty cases.

The Carlsbad Current-Argus reports the Eddy County Sheriff's Office is forming a special team of five deputies and a sergeant to address issues like wrecks on U.S. Highway 285.

A section of the major thoroughfare southeast of Carlsbad has been the site of more than five deaths since October.

Sheriff Mark Cage says the highways deaths concerned residents who then requested more deputies.

County commissioners last month approved the measure, allowing the sheriff's office to fill positions on the special team.

Ex-South Texas priest sentenced to 60 years for 2011 rape

Associated Press

BEEVILLE — A former Roman Catholic priest has been sentenced to 60 years in prison after being convicted in Texas of raping a teenager in 2011.

Jurors on Thursday convicted 61-year-old Stephen Tarleton Dougherty of aggravated sexual assault. He was then sentenced. Another jury in 2017 deadlocked on the charge.

Prosecutors say the victim was 13 when Dougherty raped her at a ranch near Beeville where she lived with relatives. Investigators say the attack happened in December 2011.

Dougherty was indicted in 2016, after the victim reported the attack while undergoing counseling.

Dougherty was ordained in 2003. The Diocese of Corpus Christi says he has been on leave and out of the ministry since late 2011, after officials received a different complaint alleging sexual misconduct in the 1980s.

US Interior boss defers contested oil and gas lease sale

By Susan Montoya Bryan
Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — U.S. Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke is putting the brakes on an upcoming oil and gas lease sale after hearing concerns from American Indian tribal leaders and others about potential effects on numerous cultural sites that dot the northwestern corner of New Mexico.

The surprise move was welcomed Friday by environmental groups and others who had organized around a campaign to flood the Bureau of Land Management with an unprecedented number of protests against the sale.

Zinke told the Albuquerque Journal in an interview Thursday in Washington that the agency would halt the sale of 25 parcels, citing the concerns about cultural impact.

He provided more details Friday, saying he wants the agency to complete an ongoing analysis of nearly 5,500 culture sites in the proposed leasing area.

"I've always said there are places where it is appropriate to develop and where it's not. This area certainly deserves more study," Zinke said in a statement.

The planned lease sale marked the latest flare-up in a long-running dispute over management of vast expanses of land surrounding Chaco park.

In 2014, similar concerns boiled over, resulting in the agency considering nearly 120 appeals.

Efforts in recent years to petition the federal government to set aside large parts of the Chaco region as an area of critical environmental concern have been unsuccessful.

More recently, tribal leaders and other critics have asked for a moratorium on drilling, saying increased development has the potential to destroy parts of the landscape that could provide a better understanding of the ancient civilization that once inhabited the area.

The All Pueblo Council of Governors, which represents 20 Native American communities, submitted its protest in early January.

The group accused federal officials of violating preservation laws by not identifying the pueblos' historic and cultural properties that could potentially be located within the areas up for lease.

The Navajo Nation and Democratic members of New Mexico's congressional delegation also have raised concerns, with some elected officials calling for the federal agency to use discretion when deciding which parcels are leased.

"Deferring these parcels was the right and indeed only legally defensible decision," Kyle Tisdel with the Western Environmental Law Center said in a statement. "Necessary safeguards, analysis and tribal consultation must take place before we consider any further leasing and development of greater Chaco's treasured landscapes."

The Bureau of Land Management in recent years has deferred the leasing of parcels within a 10-mile (16-kilometer) buffer around Chaco. Planning in partnership with the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs also is ongoing to update the resource management plan that guides energy development and recreation on federal lands throughout the region.

Zinke acknowledged that not everyone is happy about next week's sale being deferred.

The New Mexico Oil and Gas Association said Friday the deferred sale will mean deferred revenues for New Mexico and its public schools, which rely in part on money generated by oil and gas development.

Revenue from the sale of federal leases and a percentage of royalties collected from resulting production is shared between the federal government and the states.

"We look forward to a rescheduled lease sale so that producers can continue to grow the economy and provide jobs to the San Juan community," said Robert McEntyre, a spokesman for the industry group.

Bureau of Land Management officials in New Mexico could not say when the review of the cultural sites will be finished.

Flirtatious co-worker dials back after his ex returns

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I have a crush on a guy I work with. I'm 19, and he's 26.

He has a kid, which actually doesn't bother me. I love kids and have taken care of them most of my life.

My problem is he has this ex who wants to get back together with him. They broke up because she was staying out all night and cheating.

He used to flirt with me and text me all the time and offer me his hoodie. Now she's sort of back in the picture and he ignores me and doesn't return my texts.

But when we see each other he starts flirting again, and we just click. We make sense.

I guess my question is, should I tell him how I feel before it's too late or just keep it to myself? Should I risk everything and go for it? — UNCERTAIN IN NEW YORK

DEAR UNCERTAIN: Announce your feelings for the guy if you wish, but do not expect him to drop everything and rush to you.

If he were interested in more than a workplace flirtation, he would be paying the same kind of attention to you that he did before.

Because he isn't, you need to understand that he and his ex obviously have some unfinished business together, regardless of her history of infidelity. Set your sights on someone else.

DEAR ABBY: All my mom does is talk about work. If we are having a conversation, she links every topic to her work and her co-workers.

It is alienating my sister and me. When we tell her things about our kids — her grandkids — she still relates it to work.

Another thing: She's constantly on her tablet for work or on Facebook. I live seven hours away from her.

When we make the drive down, I don't want to watch her on her tablet. If we try to confront her on anything, all she does is cry.

Mom and I had a good relationship before she took that job.

Now, she's so negative that it's difficult to want to talk to her. Where do I even start? — MISSING HER WHILE SHE'S HERE

DEAR MISSING: Rather than "confront" your mother, ask her what may have changed in her life since she took that job. Her focus may have shifted because that's the center of her activity.

Conversations are two-way, and this may be all she feels she has to contribute on her end. As to her "hiding" behind Facebook rather than carry on a conversation with you, like many people, she may have become addicted to it and unable to tear herself away.

However, you will never know unless you ask her calmly.

DEAR ABBY: I've gone to licensed mental health professionals on and off since I was 7.

Talk therapy has been ineffective. What do you do when talking to a licensed therapist doesn't work? — WANTS TO KNOW IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR WANTS: Sometimes a combination of talk therapy and medication can be more helpful than talk therapy alone. Because the many years of talk therapy alone haven't been effective, consult a psychologist who works with a psychiatrist, who can prescribe medications that may help you.

Police: Parents gunned down by their son on college campus

By Ed White and Mike Householder
Associated Press

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. — More than 100 police officers, some heavily armed in camouflage uniforms, searched neighborhoods near Central Michigan University on Friday for a 19-year-old student suspected of killing his parents at a dormitory and then running from campus.

The shooting at Campbell Hall happened on a day when parents were arriving to pick up students for the beginning of a week-long spring break.

Police released a photo of James Eric Davis Jr., urging the public to call 911 if they see him but also warning that he shouldn't be confronted.

Hours after a campus lockdown, police started a "slow, methodical removal" of staff and students who were ordered to take shelter in campus buildings, Lt. Larry Klaus said.

"He should be considered armed and dangerous," Klaus said of Davis.

The university identified the two dead as his mother Diva Davis and father James Davis Sr., a part-time police officer in the Chicago suburb of Bellwood. The shooting occurred around 8:30 a.m. at a residence hall at Central Michigan, which is about 70 miles (112.6 kilometers) north of Lansing.

Klaus said video at the dorm suggests Davis fled on foot after the shooting. He was wearing a hoodie but had been shedding certain clothes while on the run.

"This has been a tragic day. ... The hurting will go on for a while," said university President George Ross.

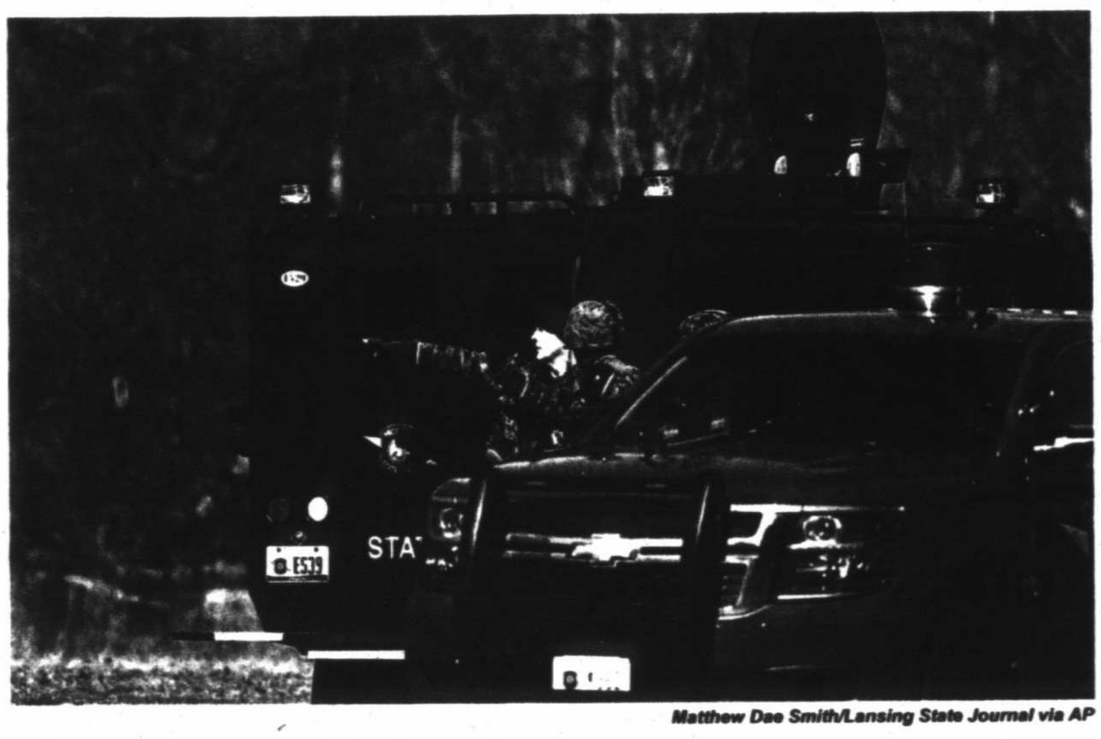

The search was focused on Mount Pleasant neighborhoods near campus. Officers in camouflage knocked on doors and checked possible hiding places, such as yards and porches. In the surrounding community, students and staff in the Mount Pleasant school district were told not to leave nine buildings.

Klaus said Davis was taken to a hospital Thursday night by campus police because of a drug-related health problem, possibly an overdose.

The Davis family is from Plainfield, Illinois, about 38 miles (61 kilometers) southwest of Chicago. Davis Jr. graduated from Central High School in 2016, said Tom Hernandez, a spokesman for Plainfield School District 202.

The shooting occurred on the last day of classes before a weeklong break. Parents who were trying to pick up students were told instead to go to a local hotel where staff would assist them while the manhunt was ongoing.

A student, Tyler Whipple, was driving through campus when his route was blocked by police cars at the scene of the killings. He had to catch a flight to Florida.

Matthew Dae Smith/Lansing State Journal via AP

Law enforcement officers search a wooded area for a suspect involved in a shooting at a Central Michigan University residence hall on Friday in Mt. Pleasant, Mich. Two people who weren't students were fatally shot as campus police believe the shooting "started from a domestic situation," the university said in a statement. No other injuries were immediately reported.

"These roads are kind of spooky right now," Whipple said.

The school posted an alert Friday morning on social media about shots being fired at Campbell Hall. An automated phone message was sent to students.

Halie Byron, 20, said she locked herself in her off-campus house, about a 10-minute walk from the dorm. She had planned to run errands before traveling home to southeastern Michigan.

"It's scary thinking about how easy a shooter can come into a college campus anywhere — a classroom, a library. There's so much easy access," Byron said.

Report: Deputies told to form perimeter at school shooting

Associated Press

PARKLAND, Fla. — A sheriff's office captain told deputies to form a perimeter instead of rushing into the Florida high school where 17 people were killed in a mass shooting, according to documents obtained by the Miami Herald.

The newspaper reported late Thursday that it had obtained a partial Broward Sheriff's Office dispatch log, which showed that Capt. Jan Jordan gave the order for deputies to establish a perimeter.

An earlier report on the call logs published by Fox News showed that the shooting at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School would have been over by the time Jordan gave her order.

However, the log may raise fresh questions about the department's handling of the mass shooting on Feb. 14, including whether police could have gone in sooner to help the wounded.

"If detectives had answers to all of the questions, then there would be no need for an investigation," sheriff's office spokeswoman Veda Coleman-Wright wrote in an email to the Herald late Thursday.

Sheriff Scott Israel has said his office's training and nationwide active-shooter procedure call for armed law enforcement officers to confront shooters immediately rather than secure a scene. He has blasted Deputy Scot Peterson, the school's resource officer, for not entering the school building while 19-year-old former student Nikolas Cruz was shooting.

Israel told CNN that Coral Springs Police were the first law enforcement officers to enter the building, about four minutes after Cruz left the school.

Peterson resigned and has defended his actions.

The sheriff's office has not responded to requests for the logs from The Associated Press. The agency and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement are investigating the actions of officers responding to the shooting.

Sheriff: Guns taken from Georgia teacher after car set afire

By Jeff Martin
Associated Press

ATLANTA — A Georgia teacher accused of firing a handgun in his classroom had three rifles taken away after setting the family car ablaze at his home two years ago, according to a sheriff's report obtained Friday by The Associated Press.

But authorities responsible for protecting his workplace — Dalton High School — say they didn't learn about the disturbing episode until this week.

Deputies in Dade County, where social studies teacher Jesse Randal Davidson lives, took him to a hospital for a mental evaluation and seized the rifles for safe-keeping after he torched the Mitsubishi Outlander on Aug. 13, 2016.

This sheriff's report and two others from Dalton Police in Whitfield County show Davidson has been hospitalized at least three times in recent years as people worried about his state of mind.

Davidson didn't hit anyone when he allegedly fired a handgun out his classroom window at Dalton High School on Wednesday, but it caused chaos and immediate calls to abandon the idea of arming teachers as a solution to school shootings. President Donald Trump and other Republicans have endorsed arming teachers following the killings of 17 people at a Florida high school two weeks ago.

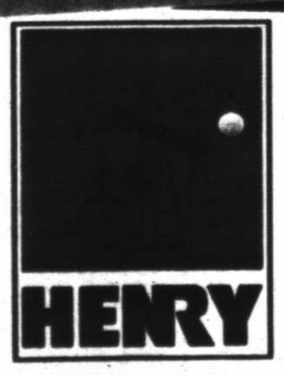

Davidson faces six charges including aggravated assault; terroristic threats and acts; and having a weapon on school property. His lawyer hasn't returned phone and email messages from the AP.

The additional details about Davidson's past run-ins with law enforcement emerged as the school reopened Friday.

A deputy saw heavy smoke and flames pouring from the Mitsubishi as he pulled up to Davidson's home in the small community of Rising Fawn, Georgia, the sheriff's report said. The deputy told Davidson's wife Lisa and their daughter Megan to seek safety in his patrol car.

Davidson's adult son, Johnny, told the deputy that his father "was not acting like himself and was sitting down with a rifle in the back yard watching the vehicle on fire."

Trump leaves lawmakers hanging on gun priorities

By Catherine Lucey
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In his quest to tackle gun violence, President Donald Trump has ricocheted between calling for tougher laws and declaring his fealty to the Second Amendment's right to bear arms, leaving a trail of befuddled lawmakers and advocates in his wake.

One thing he still has not done: clearly outline his legislative priorities.

Washington's week closed Friday without further explanation from the president, the White House indicating that for now, at least, he is backing an incremental proposal on background checks and a bill that would provide new federal dollars to stem school violence.

Just what Trump would like to see in the "beautiful" and "comprehensive" bill he called for earlier in the week remained unclear. That comment came at a bipartisan meeting with lawmakers Wednesday, which was quickly followed by a private session with the National Rifle Association on Thursday.

"Good (Great) meeting in the Oval Office tonight with the NRA!" Trump tweeted Thursday night.

He had outlined some of his preferences via Twitter earlier Thursday, saying that both good and bad ideas had come out of the bipartisan meeting. He said: "Background Checks a big part of conversation. Gun free zones are proven targets of killers. After many years, a Bill should emerge. Respect 2nd Amendment!"

Amid the confusion, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell has shelved the gun debate for now, saying the Senate will turn next week to other measures.

Disagreement continues among legislators over the appropriate response after the Florida school shooting that left 17 dead. Republicans have largely backed away from stricter gun limits, while Democrats emboldened by Trump's rhetoric are pushing for ambitious action, including expanded background checks and even a politically risky ban on assault weapons.

As is often the case, the president has been an unreliable negotiator.

Sen. Chris Murphy, a Connecticut Democrat who is a leading advocate of tougher gun laws, predicted on Twitter: "The White House is going to bob and weave on guns. Accept it."

Still, he added, "Trump's instinct on this issue is not wrong — if his party doesn't get behind background checks soon, they're cooked in 2018 and 2020." And he argued that Trump's "willingness to buck the gun lobby in public, rule out the NRA agenda and talk up background checks, has changed this debate nationally."

White House spokeswoman Sarah Huckabee Sanders said Friday that Trump supports a limited proposal from Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas, and Murphy that would boost participation in the existing federal background check program, as well as a bill that would provide new federal grant funding to stem school violence.

Sanders said Trump had not signed on to a more sweeping background check bill that would require the review of firearm purchases online and at gun shows. The measure, from Sens. Pat Toomey, R-Pa., and Joe Manchin, D-W.Va., has found new momentum since it was first introduced after the 2012 shooting at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Connecticut that left 20 children dead.

Sanders sought to clarify Trump's comments earlier in the week expressing support for tougher background checks and interest in raising the minimum age to buy certain weapons. She said he was interested in improving background checks, but "not necessarily universal background checks." And she said that while Trump "conceptually" supports higher age requirements to purchase certain weapons, "he also knows there's not a lot of broad support for that."

The president also wants to use an executive order to bar the use of bump-stock devices that enable guns to fire like automatic weapons.

After Republican anxiety about Trump's comments seeming to express openness to tougher gun controls, the executive director of the NRA, Chris Cox, was positive about their Thursday night meeting. He tweeted that Trump and Vice President Mike Pence "support the Second Amendment, support strong due process and don't want gun control."

As part of Trump's efforts to consider various responses to gun violence, next week he plans to host members of the video game industry. He has repeatedly referenced the violence in movies and video games during conversations about guns and school safety since the Florida shooting.

Sanders said invitations started going out Thursday, and event details were being finalized. The Entertainment Software Association, a trade group that represents the video game industry, said Friday the group and its members had not been invited.

Nicole Hockley, who lost a child at Sandy Hook, has attended two White House meetings with Trump and said she remained optimistic.

"By listening to President Trump's words I do feel he is committed to finding a way forward and he is committed to putting a plan together," she said. "I don't know what the content will be."

Graham funeral: Evangelist's children carry on crusade

By Tom Foreman Jr. and Jonathan Drew
Associated Press

Chuck Burton/Associated Press

Pallbearers carry the casket of the Rev. Billy Graham as it returns to the Billy Graham Library on Thursday in Charlotte, N.C. His funeral was Friday.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The Rev. Billy Graham's children remembered "America's Pastor" on Friday as a man devoted to spreading the Gospel, living his life at home as he preached it in stadiums, with a personable humility and an unwavering focus on the Bible. As his oldest son told the funeral congregation, "There weren't two Billy Grahams."

His adult children — all speakers or preachers in their own right — recalled being taught by their parents how to read Scripture aloud and deliver sermons, but also taking quiet walks with their father and feeling his embrace even when they made mistakes.

Franklin Graham, who delivered the main funeral message, said all of those qualities were part of the whole.

"The Billy Graham that the world saw on television, the Billy Graham that the world saw in the big stadiums, was the same Billy Graham that we saw at home. There weren't two Billy Grahams," he said. "He loved his family. He stood by us. He comforted us."

Franklin Graham's funeral message, which included a Gospel call to repentance and salvation, followed shorter remarks by his siblings in a service that lasted just over an hour before an invitation-only crowd of approximately 2,000.

"I believe, from Heaven's perspective, that my father's death is as significant as his life. And his life was very significant. But I think when he died, that was something very strategic from Heaven's point of view," said his daughter Anne Graham Lotz, later adding: "I believe God is saying: 'Wake up church! Wake up world!'"

The congregation included President Donald Trump, Vice President Mike Pence and their wives. Neither Pence nor Trump spoke during the service that was streamed live online, but they met privately with the family beforehand.

The funeral planning began a decade ago with Billy Graham himself. It also reflected his family's desire to capture the feeling of the crusades that made him the world's best-known Protestant preacher of his era. Graham, who died last week at age 99, brought a message of salvation to millions during visits and live broadcasts to scores of countries.

The funeral served as a Billy Graham crusade told through his children. Lotz read Scripture, inserting her name into the passages to make her relationship with God more personal and breaking it down intellectually, like her father. Youngest daughter Ruth told about how she sinned and didn't listen to her father with a hasty marriage, but he was waiting for her with open arms when she realized her mistake.

And oldest son Franklin, now CEO of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, wrapped up with his father's central theme: that the only path to salvation is to accept Jesus Christ.

While Franklin Graham steered clear of politics during his message, the Trumps and Pences were the first guests he welcomed as he began.

And his invitation to be saved by Jesus contained this barb: "The world, with all of its political correctness, would want you to believe that there are many roads to God. It's just not true."

Like Graham's famous crusades, the funeral featured singers who had shared his stage in years past: Linda McCrary-Fisher, Michael W. Smith and the Gaither Vocal Band.

The lineup of clergy and singers from as near as North Carolina and as far away as Asia, was racially diverse — moreso than the mostly white audience.

Other notable guests included television host Kathie Lee Gifford, musician Ricky Skaggs, evangelist Rick Warren and politician Rudy Giuliani. North Carolina Gov. Roy Cooper attended, as did his predecessor Pat McCrory.

The funeral came at the end of more than a week of mourning that included crowds lining the road for a procession from Graham's home in the mountains to Charlotte, where Graham grew up.

Budget watchdog sees $2 trillion deficits within 10 years

By Paul Krawzak
CQ-Roll Call

WASHINGTON — The federal deficit could hit $1.1 trillion next year and $1.7 trillion in fiscal 2028, piling on debt that exceeds the size of the economy by the end of the decade, according to a Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget report released Friday.

If Congress extends individual tax cuts beyond their scheduled expiration and continues to raise discretionary spending levels above statutory caps, the debt will grow even faster, reaching $33 trillion or 113 percent of gross domestic product by fiscal 2028, the CRFB analysis said. Under that scenario, annual deficits would top $2 trillion within 10 years.

The CRFB said in Friday's paper that last year's tax cut and the newly enacted budget deal among other legislation have "turned a dismal fiscal situation into a dire one."

Acknowledging that the Congressional Budget Office projection due April 9 will be based on a much more sophisticated analysis, the committee said it employed CBO methods in its estimate in an effort to "seek to inform the conversation until CBO has a chance to release its full report."

The CRFB has long been urging Congress to tackle the rising debt, which is growing faster than the economy, through spending cuts, tax increases or a combination. But in the latest report, the organization warns that the magnitude of the danger has increased.

Blanscett follows father's legacy as Bulldog hurler

By Will Korn
wkorn@mrt.com

Randy Blanscett will never forget it.

When the Midland High senior took the mound to face Houston Westchester in the 1973 Class 4A state final, everything seemed perfect. Behind him, the Bulldogs' defense had been clean and crisp nearly all season long, MHS had mastered the game-by-game mentality and Blanscett knew he just needed to deliver the ball to the mitt.

And in the final start of his MHS career, Blanscett helped the Bulldogs capture their first-ever state championship with a 3-1 win over Westchester.

Forty-five years later Randy is getting to watch his son, Randall, a hard-throwing junior right-hander, take the mound for a Bulldogs squad that has won nine of its first 11 games this season.

On Friday, Randall tossed 6 2/3 strong innings, allowing three earned runs on five hits while striking out 10 batters in MHS' 6-5 extra-inning home win over El Paso Montwood in the Tournament of Champions.

Many Bulldog faithful claim the father and son are nearly indistinguishable on the mound apart from their age.

"He had the long hair flowing and I kind of look like him, I guess," Randall joked. "People have told me I look like him on the mound but I don't really know what that means."

Said Randy, who went on to pitch at Ranger Junior College from 1974-75: "I caught him up until last year and have always worked with him with the basic mechanics. What you see with him is what I did with just about the same look – a lot of people say that. He loves baseball and he loves being on this team."

Whereas Randall – called "Randy" by his teammates – is mostly pitcher for the Bulldogs, Randy didn't take to the mound until his senior season at MHS. First a catcher and fielder, Randy's goal was to help his team win and so he made an adjustment. Randall, who transferred to MHS from Midland Christian, has the same objective, but as a singularly focused hurler.

MHS' Smith impresses at Tall City Invite

By Christopher Hadorn
chadorn@mrt.com

Midland High senior Sametria Smith was eager to leap into the sand pit at Memorial Stadium Friday.

Smith had yet to compete in the girls long jump at a high school meet this season after field events were called off at the Kangaroo Relays in Weatherford and the Bulldog Relays in Burkburnett were canceled, both due to weather.

"It was very tough," Smith said. "I was sad a lot of the times. Gosh, I need to get on that track."

Smith put on a show in her season debut as she won the long jump at the Rogers Ford Tall City Track Invitational with a high school personal record of 20 feet, 1 inch, the fourth-best mark in the country this season according to athletic.net.

Later in the meet, Smith dominated in the 100-meter hurdles with a winning time of 14.97 seconds, over a second faster than runner-up Bailey Barnett of Del Rio (16.22).

Smith, a two-time state meet qualifier, was especially pleased with her long jump debut as she hopes to medal for the first time at the state meet in her final try this season.

"I am very excited," Smith said. "It means I am going to have a really good season ahead of me."

Smith realizes the road to the podium in Austin won't be easy.

The Lady Bulldog track athlete finished fourth in the long jump at the 2016 state meet and came in sixth in 2017.

Even though she currently holds the fourth-best long jump mark in the nation, three of the top distances are from the Lone Star State, as Mansfield Lake Ridge junior Jasmine Moore has posted a 20-5 and Alvin's Class 6A defending state champion Kynnedy Flannel has already recorded a 20-4 1/2.

Smith, though, has a personal record of 20-6 1/4 so she is not intimidated by the stiff competition.

"It motivates me to want to be the first in the state, first in the nation, so I have to work hard to get there," Smith said.

Smith has certainly left an impression on MHS first-year girls track coach Laura Taylor with her dedication and commitment to track. She is known for training

League races for player of the year down to final weekend

By Aaron Beard
Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — With most of college basketball's top leagues wrapping up regular-season play, the top players have a few days left to make their case to be their league's player of the year.

Four of the five power conferences — the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Big 12, the Pac-12 and the Southeastern Conference — finish schedules this weekend along with the Big East, while the Big Ten has already sprinted through a tight schedule to hold an early tournament this week at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Here's a look at the players in the running for top honors in their leagues:

Big Ten

The Big Ten has already handed out its hardware. Ohio State's Keita Bates-Diop was named player of the year by The Associated Press , coaches and a league media panel after averaging 19.2 points and 8.9 rebounds for the 13th-ranked Buckeyes.

NFL teams finally get to see QB hopefuls at combine

By Arnie Stapleton
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — This year's deep class of quarterbacks features as many as a half dozen first-round NFL prospects full of hope, hype and hazard.

There's Oklahoma's Baker Mayfield and questions about the Heisman winner's size and stature. A lot of teams would love UCLA's Josh Rosen for his skills and strength but wonder if he's a good fit in the locker room and their organization.

Wyoming's Josh Allen has enviable size but faces questions about his regression last season. USC's Sam Darnold has to answer queries about his ball security and why he's not throwing at the NFL combine this weekend like the other prospects.

Louisville's Lamar Jackson , the 2016 Heisman winner, needs to prove he's a better pro prospect throwing the ball than catching it. And teams wonder if Oklahoma State's Mason Rudolph can transition to the pro offense after operating exclusively out of the shotgun.

Will these guys be the next Carson Wentz, who ignited the Philadelphia Eagles' Super Bowl run in just his second season before getting hurt and rooting on Nick Foles from the sideline?

Or will they be the next Paxton Lynch, the 2016 first-round flop whose inability to grasp the complexities of the pro game has Broncos GM John Elway once again searching for answers at quarterback?

Elway has found it difficult to land a franchise quarterback from the college ranks like he did in free agency with Peyton Manning six years ago.

Last year, the Broncos cycled through his draft picks Brock Osweiler, Trevor Siemian and Lynch during the team's worst season in decades.

"Believe me, I'm not done swinging and missing," said Elway, who owns the fifth pick in this year's draft. "Misses don't bother me. We just have to figure out a way to get it right."

Elway could go after a veteran again in free agency such as Kirk Cousins.

Midland High's Joseph Reyes is safe at the plate, after colliding with the El Paso Montwood catcher, Gabino Cortez, Friday during a game in the Tournament of Champions at Zachery Field.

year, Randall has allowed four earned runs on 11 hits and has struck out a team-high 18 batters to the tune of a 2.10 earned run average.

"He always liked to pitch and I was always a fielder and a catcher – that's mainly what I did at Midland High," Randy said. "I ended up pitching my senior year. He loves pitching and he feels like he's got the edge there. Me, I went out there to do it for a reason: I wanted to help us win district. It's a different feel. He's got a lot going his way and he loves pitching. I've seen him grow and do just fine."

Randall, who credited his teammates for easing the transition from private school, has emerged as one of the Bulldogs' top arms. He has left an impression on pitching coach Danny Neighbors, especially after Friday's performance.

"He pitched a great game," Neighbors said. "He was dominant. He had a tremendous fastball (Friday). His curveball was good at times but he was pumping it past those guys and he was gassing it up there. He has gotten better and better each outing. I'm extremely proud of him."

Randall admitted that he sometimes feels the pressure of trying to live up to his father's reputation within the MHS program. But he gets a jolt every time he walks by the Bulldogs' hitting barn and sees the 1973 and 2001 state championship inscriptions, as well as 20 straight years in the postseason.

"It fires me up a lot," Blanscett said. "It gives us motivation to hang another (state title on the board)."

Randy said seeing his son in a Bulldog uniform gives the feeling of a homecoming, but he doesn't want his son to be anybody other than his own man.

"He just tells me to focus on the mitt and throw strikes," Randall said.

Added Randy: "(I tell him) Just go have fun and remember what we did when he was a kid. We worked on getting out front, get everything out front. I tell him 'If you just go be Randall, go back to basics, handle a little trouble, you'll be fine.'"

REBELS DROP TWO

After a strong performance in Thursday's 8-3 win over Lubbock High to open the TOC, the No. 8-ranked Rebels fell to El Paso Americas 7-3 at Ernie Johnson Field and then 6-0 against Weatherford at Christensen Stadium Friday.

Lee (6-3) produced just three hits in the two losses.

Against Americas, which is 4-0 in tournament play, the Rebels fell behind 5-0 after three innings before answering with three runs over the fourth and fifth frames. But Americas pulled away with two more runs in the seventh.

Junior Alvarez, Colby Standard and Logan Acosta drove in one run each for Lee in the defeat. Junior right-hander Noah Harrison took the loss, despite surrendering just two earned runs on three hits over six innings.

In the nightcap against Weatherford, the Rebel bats were stymied by Weatherford starting pitcher Mason Hilton, who yielded one hit and fanned 10 in a complete game shutout.

The Kangaroos (3-5) plated four runs in the top of the first off Lee starter Tyler Madrid and then added a pair in the seventh.

Alvarez broke up Hilton's no-hit bid with a single in the bottom of the fifth.

Lee, which is now 1-1 in tournament play, wraps up its TOC slate today by hosting El Paso Eastwood at 1 p.m. and then Lubbock Cooper a 4 p.m., both at Ernie Johnson Field.

CROWDED AT THE TOP

Entering today's final day of tournament play, five of the field's 16 teams remain undefeated with the TOC title in sight.

Frenship (3-0), Midland High (3-0), Odessa High (3-0), Odessa Permian (3-0) and El Paso Americas (4-0) will be looking to wrap up their tournament schedule unscathed.

In perhaps the game of the day, MHS hosts Americas at 1 p.m. at Zachery Field. The Bulldogs will then take on Andrews at 7 p.m. at Christensen Stadium.

Texas A&M guard Danni Williams (12) drives against LSU guard Chloe Jackson (0) in the first half on Friday in Nashville, Tenn.

Carter scores 27, A&M women top LSU 75-69 in SEC quarters

Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Chennedy Carter scored 27 points, a Texas A&M record in a Southeastern Conference Tournament game, Khaalia Hillsman had a double-double and the No. 15 Aggies edged No. 24 LSU 75-69 on Friday in the quarterfinals.

The fifth-seeded Aggies (24-8) secured their fourth straight win with Carter going 6 for 6 from the foul line in the last minute, while the fourth-seeded Tigers (19-9) missed three shots before a late basket. Texas A&M meets league champion and second-ranked Mississippi State in the first semifinal on Saturday.

There were 12 ties and 25 lead changes. The last lead for the Tigers came with 3:55 to play on two free throws by Chloe Jackson after Danni Williams was called for a deliberate foul. The Aggies took the lead for good on a 3-point play by Hillsman at 3:14.

Carter hit a jumper at 1:40 and Ayana Mitchell countered with a tipin for the Tigers at 1:13 to make it 69-67 heading into the final minute.

Hillsman had 17 points and 10 rebounds and Williams scored 15 for the Aggies.

Mitchell had 17 points and 11 rebounds, Raigyne Williams scored 17 and Jackson added 16 points for the Tigers.

PLAYER

This one looks pretty settled on Duke freshman Marvin Bagley III.

The 6-11, 234-pound forward has met all the expectations as a one-and-done prospect and possible No. 1 overall NBA draft pick. He ranks second in the ACC in scoring (20.7) and first in rebounding (11.1) for the fifth-ranked Blue Devils, and posted the first 30/20 game — 32 points, 21 rebounds against Florida State — in Hall of Fame coach Mike Krzyzewski's 38 seasons at Duke.

"He can take it out on the wing and drive it, he can get in the post and he's so explosive off the ground," North Carolina senior Theo Pinson said. "You have to make contact first or else he's going to dunk on your head."

The closest competition might be Luke Maye for No. 9 UNC. The 6-8 junior ranks among the ACC leaders in scoring (17.9 points) and is second to Bagley in rebounding (10.2) while shooting nearly 52 percent from the field and 46 percent on 3s.

Big 12

Oklahoma freshman Trae Young has been one of the season's biggest stories . The only problem has been the Sooners' recent nosedive.

The 6-2 guard leads the country in both scoring (28.0) and assists (9.0) entering Friday's game against Iowa State. He had 48 points against Oklahoma State in January and tied an NCAA Division I single-game record with 22 assists against Northwestern State.

Yet the Sooners have sunk from reaching No. 4 in the AP Top 25 in January to losing seven of eight in February, and that could open the door for Devonte' Graham of No. 6 Kansas (the Big 12 leader yet again) or Keenan Evans for No. 12 Texas Tech.

Graham is second to Young in the league for scoring (17.7) and assists (7.2). Evans is third in scoring (17.2), though, in a sign of his value, Texas Tech has lost four straight games since he was hobbled by a toe injury against Baylor — including Tuesday's loss at No. 20 West Virginia with Evans sitting out.

Big East

Villanova's Jalen Brunson is a top candidate to be national player of the year.

The 6-3 junior is averaging a team-high 19.1 points and 4.8 assists while shooting nearly 53 percent for the No. 4 Wildcats, who have spent eight weeks at No. 1. He also ranks in the top 20 nationally in assist-to-turnover ratio with play so steady that Xavier coach Chris Mack compared him to a cyborg.

"You peel his face off, you'll probably have wires coming out of it," Mack said after that 24-point loss in January. "I think they're led by the best point guard in college basketball."

Trevon Bluiett of No. 3 Xavier is the top alternative. The 6-6 senior is averaging 19.3 points and 5.6 rebounds for the Musketeers, who can clinch the Big East title outright by beating DePaul on Saturday.

PAC-12

Arizona freshman Deandre Ayton has made himself a possible No. 1 overall draft pick if he chooses to make college a one-year stop.

The 7-1 big man was averaging league bests of 19.9 points and 11.2 rebounds to go with 19 double-doubles entering the No. 19 Wildcats' game against Stanford on Thursday. The two-time Pac-12 player of the week is a force around the rim with plenty of power and athleticism, and he's shooting 61 percent overall, 75 percent from the foul line and has even hit 10 3s to keep defenders honest.

UCLA's Aaron Holiday (19.6 points, 5.8 assists), Stanford's Reid Travis (19.3 points, 7.9 rebounds) and Arizona State's Tra Holder (18.8 points) are other candidates, though the Sun Devils' slide from No. 3 in the AP Top 25 to a 7-9 league mark entering Thursday's game against California could hurt Holder's chances.

SEC

Welcome to the most uncertain race.

If it's stats you want, then maybe Georgia forward Yante Maten is your guy. The 6-8 senior is averaging a league-best 19.4 points and 8.8 rebounds, though the Bulldogs are just 7-10 in league play.

How about Alabama freshman Collin Sexton? He's averaging 18.1 points and went for 40 in a November loss to Minnesota, though the Crimson Tide must win at Texas A&M to finish at .500 in league play and stop a four-game skid.

2nd-half surge lifts Falcons past MSU, 82-68

By Nick Eatman
Lone Star Conference

DENTON – Entering the tournament with two straight losses, UT Permian Basin had a slow start Friday before the defending champions of the Lone Star Conference Men's Basketball Championship clicked into high gear.

Thanks to a 24-4 run midway through the second half, the second-seeded Falcons turned a six-point deficit into a comfortable lead and were able to get past a No. 7-seeded MSU squad, 82-68, at Kitty Magee Arena in Denton.

Trailing 48-42 with 15:28 left, UTPB (23-5) turned things around thanks to a pair of dunks by two-time All-LSC Player of the Year Daeshon Francis and then two straight 3-pointers from James McPherson, who had struggled beyond the arc before drilling consecutive shots.

The Falcons kept pouring it on, led by Francis, who finished with a game-high 26 points, to go along with 15 rebounds. McPherson ended up with four 3-pointers for 14 points. Sammy Allen, plagued by fouls most the game, had eight points, seven rebounds and four assists in just 18 minutes. Andres Villa and Zeldric King both came off the bench to score nine points each, mostly from the paint.

The Falcons were able to win the rebounding edge 46-35 and outscored the Mustangs in the paint, 46-26, as the Mustangs entered the game rather undersized.

The season ends for MSU at 11-18.

The Falcons not only advance to Saturday's semifinal game back in Frisco, but continue their quest to defend the tournament crown. Also, UTPB has a shot to move up to No. 1 in the regional rankings and potentially host the tournament in Odessa.

MAGIC 115
PISTONS 106 OT

ORLANDO, Fla. — Aaron Gordon had 27 points and 13 rebounds to help the Orlando Magic stop a seven-game losing streak with a 115-106 victory against the Detroit Pistons in overtime Friday night.

Nikola Vucevic added 22 points and 12 rebounds, and D.J. Augustin had 20 points and nine assists for the Magic. Evan Fournier scored 17, including seven in the extra period.

James Ennis and Reggie Bullock led Detroit with 21 points apiece. Blake Griffin, Dwight Buycks and Anthony Tolliver had 12 each for the slumping Pistons, who have lost seven of nine.

Fournier scored the first six points in overtime, giving Orlando a 110-104 lead going into the final two minutes.

Detroit, which had only one field goal in the final 5:57 of regulation, missed all eight shots from the field and its first three free throws in overtime. Tolliver's two free throws with 32 seconds left were the only points the Pistons scored in the extra period.

RAPTORS 102
WIZARDS 95

WASHINGTON — DeMar DeRozan scored 23 points, reserve CJ Miles added 20 and the Toronto Raptors beat the Washington Wizards 102-95 on Friday night.

The Raptors have won 10 of their last 11 games, including a season-high four straight on the road.

Miles scored 11 points in the second half and was 6 of 9 from 3-point range in the game as the Raptors' bench outscored the Wizards' reserves 50-15.

Jonas Valenciunas and Fred VanFleet added 12 points apiece for Toronto.

Otto Porter Jr. led Washington with 24 points on 9-of-12 shooting and Bradley Beal rebounded from an eight-point effort Wednesday against Golden State to finish with 23.

Eighteen Washington turnovers led to 27 Toronto points.

Neither team led by more than four points in the fourth quarter until Miles' 3-pointer from the corner made it 94-88 with 3:06 left.

76ERS 110
HORNETS 99

PHILADELPHIA — Joel Embiid had 23 points and 14 rebounds to help the Philadelphia 76ers pull away from the Charlotte Hornets down the stretch in a 110-99 victory on Friday night.

The Sixers won their 13th straight game at the Wells Fargo Center and looked strong in the fourth quarter on the second night of a back-to-back. JJ Redick and newly signed Ersan Ilyasova scored clutch buckets in the final minutes to continue the Sixers' late charge up the East standings.

The Sixers were coming off an impressive 108-97 win over the Cleveland Cavaliers on Thursday night that ended an 11-game losing streak against the Eastern Conference champions. Coach Brett Brown said playing the second of a back-to-back at home against a Hornets team badly in need of victories would be a nice test for the Sixers as they inch closer to their first playoff berth since 2012.

"We're closer than we've ever been to achieving a pretty significant goal. We don't feel like we're there at all, and I don't see complacency creeping in there," he said. "We're playing a team in desperation mode."

Led by Kemba Walker and Frank Kaminsky, the determined Hornets charged to a 14-point lead and seemed poised to snatch a needed road win.

WARRIORS 114
HAWKS 109

ATLANTA — Stephen Curry scored 28 points, including 15 in the final seven minutes of the first half after returning from an ankle injury, and the Golden State Warriors beat the Atlanta Hawks 114-109 on Friday night for their fifth straight victory.

Curry turned his right ankle and left the game in the first quarter. He returned for his high-scoring second period before returning to the locker room for good in the third. The Warriors said a "tweaked right ankle" was the reason Curry would not return.

Kevin Durant also had 28 points for the Warriors, who are unbeaten since the All-Star break.

Atlanta's Dennis Schroder, who had 27 points, sank three free throws with 19 seconds remaining to cut Golden State's lead to 111-109. Durant made only one of two free throws to push the lead to three points, but Andre Iguodala's steal from Kent Bazemore and layup clinched the win.

Bazemore led the Hawks with 29 points.

Curry hurt his ankle when he stepped on teammate Zaza Pachulia's foot with about 1:30 remaining in the first period. Curry went to the locker room after the quarter, walking without assistance. He returned to the game with 7:18 remaining in the first half and showed no sign of the injury, scoring the Warriors' next 11 points — including two 3-pointers and a three-point play.

BULLS 108
MAVERICKS 100

CHICAGO — Bobby Portis scored 22 points and made three straight shots during the decisive run late in the fourth quarter to help the Chicago Bulls roar back and beat the Dallas Mavericks 108-100 on Friday night.

Portis had 15 in the second half and Chicago used a 16-4 run in the final five minutes to end a five-game losing streak.

Kris Dunn finished with 18 points and rookie Lauri Markkanen had 17 points and 12 rebounds as Chicago won for just the third time in 16 games.

Harrison Barnes scored 28 points and rookie Dennis Smith Jr. had 25 as Dallas lost for the 13th time in 16 games. The Mavericks have dropped six straight on the road.

Portis made a layup with 4:09 left to tie it at 96, then hit a turnaround jumper with 3:44 remaining to give Chicago its first lead. Portis followed up with a layup to make it 100-96.

Then 3-point shots by Dunn and Markkanen and a jumper by Zach LaVine, who had 16 points, sent the Bulls to the win.

NUGGETS 108
GRIZZLIES 102

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Gary Harris scored 26 points, hitting a key basket with just under a minute left, and the Denver Nuggets weathered a fourth-quarter rally to beat the Memphis Grizzlies 108-102 on Friday night.

Harris was 11 of 18 from the field to help the Nuggets snap a two-game skid. Will Barton added 24 points, and Paul Millsap added 15 as Denver sent the Grizzlies to their 12th straight loss.

Marc Gasol led Memphis with 22 points and nine rebounds, Jarell Martin had 16 points, and Dillon Brooks 13 points.

Denver held onto the eighth spot in the Western Conference playoff. The Nuggets entered the night a half-game ahead of the Los Angeles Clippers for the final postseason spot.

Memphis trailed by 13 early in the fourth, but clicked off a 16-6 run to significantly cut into the Denver lead. Eventually, Memphis would get ton 104-102 with a pair of free throws from Gasol with 1:38 left.

But Harris nailed a jumper with just under a minute left as the Nuggets scored the game's final four points.

PACERS 103
BUCKS 99

MILWAUKEE — Victor Oladipo had 21 points, and the Indiana Pacers nearly blew a 17-point lead in the middle of a mistake-laden fourth quarter before holding off the Milwaukee Bucks for a 103-99 win Friday night.

With his team trailing by five, Milwaukee's Khris Middleton missed a corner 3-pointer off an inbounds play with 8.9 seconds left. Bojan Bogdanovic hit two foul shots at the other end to seal it and hand the Bucks their fourth straight loss.

The Bucks nearly stormed back from a 93-76 deficit with 6:34 left. Indiana committed four turnovers during a 12-0 Milwaukee run that tightened what looked to be a blowout.

But the Pacers held on for a key road victory against a fellow Eastern Conference playoff hopeful, erasing the bitter taste of back-to-back losses to 40-loss teams Atlanta and Dallas during the first two stops of a four-game road trip.

Oladipo hit a runner in the lane with 1:13 left for a 98-92 lead to slow Milwaukee's momentum. He also scored six straight Indiana points during a 14-1 spurt in the third that helped the Pacers build a double-digit edge in the fourth.

Lance Stephenson added 16 points for Indiana, and Bogdanovic had 14 after going 12 of 13 from the foul line.

THUNDER 124
SUNS 116

PHOENIX — Russell Westbrook had 43 points, including the go-ahead 3-pointer with 56 seconds to play, and the Oklahoma City Thunder scored the final 10 points of the game to escape with a 124-116 victory over the Phoenix Suns on Friday night.

Westbrook also had 14 rebounds and eight assists for the Thunder, who had lost three straight to Phoenix. Paul George scored 20 points.

Devin Booker had 39 points for the Suns and — at 21 years, 123 days — became the third-youngest player in NBA history to reach 4,000 career points. Only LeBron James and Kevin Durant were younger.

Josh Jackson and T.J. Warren scored 19 apiece for the Suns, who broke their 10-game losing streak at Memphis on Wednesday night. Elfrid Payton had 18 points, 10 rebounds and eight assists.

Booker's baseline 12-footer at the shot-clock buzzer put Phoenix up 115-114 with 2:37 to play and Alex Len made one of two free throws to make it 116-114 with 1:40 to go.

Westbrook tied it on a driving layup with 1:32 left and made just his second 3 of the night to put the Thunder ahead for good, 119-116.

The Suns shot 56 percent and the Thunder 49 percent in an up-and-down first half that ended with Phoenix up 67-60.

Booker had 21 points, eight assists and four rebounds in the half. Westbrook countered with 19 points, seven rebounds and four assists. Jackson had 15 points in 10 minutes off the bench.

Play4Kay games had special meaning for veteran official

By Doug Feinberg
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Wearing a pink whistle while officiating games during the annual Play4Kay week has held a special meaning for Rachelle Jones over the past few years.

The veteran women's basketball referee has had two bouts with breast cancer — the most recent one occurring this year. That's the same illness that afflicted Kay Yow, the longtime N.C. State coach who died in 2009.

"It reminds me of the fight," Jones said in a phone interview with The Associated Press. "I'm tickled (to be a part of it) because if people only knew what I've been through. I hope people understand the significance of wearing those pink whistles, those pink uniforms and shoes. Cancer is a horrible disease and we need to continue to fight to find a cure."

Jones, who had her first bout with cancer in 2012, doesn't consider herself a survivor. She calls herself a cancer "overcomer."

She has been one of the top officials for the past few years and was rewarded with her first Final Four appearance last spring.

"It was so special, unbelievable," she recalled of her trip to Dallas. "The Final Four atmosphere is just amazing. They put a lot into that tournament. The way they treat the officials is just great. I wish everyone could experience it."

Being part of a Final Four officiating crew is the pinnacle of the sport for a referee. Officials' coordinator Deb Williamson was thrilled that Jones finally got the chance.

"I cried like a baby when I got the call she was in," Williamson said. "For her to get the opportunity is a crowning moment."

Jones served as an alternate official in Dallas and handled off-court duties, such as assisting with instant replay reviews. She hoped to make it back this year before the cancer returned just before the regular season started. Just like in 2012 when she first was diagnosed with cancer, Jones trusted her strong faith would get her through.

The cancer went into remission and she was back officiating after Christmas. She worked for about a month before deciding to take the rest of this season off to fully recover because of the heavy grind officiating can take with a few games each week in different cities.

The time away from the court gave Jones a chance to further develop WEFO — Women Empowering Female Officials.

"Our goal with WEFO is to continue to help recruit, train and unify women," Jones said. "We want to see more women out on the floor. What's nice is the group of women we have all come from different backgrounds."

The idea for WEFO came during a camp in Pennsylvania last summer. A few women at the camp came up to Jones asking for help. She had mentored a few younger officials over the years, but saw the opportunity to help referees on a larger scale.

Jones quickly approached veteran officials Carla Fountain, Denise Brooks, Dee Kantner and Angie Lewis to see if they would be on board with starting WEFO. They all thought it was a great idea. The group then went to Atlanta in the fall and talked to about 30 female referees from all different levels ranging from high school to Division I.

The questions from the referees included how to work a full-time job while officiating and how to balance refereeing with motherhood. Jones has a son and daughter. Her daughter is just getting started officiating in Maryland.

"It was great, we sat and talked and answered questions," Jones said. "Then we had dinner. It was a great atmosphere and we had so much fun."

Word got out about the success of the program and now WEFO is in demand in other cities.

"People are saying I want you to come to Chicago, New York," Jones added. "This year we're probably going to end up in the Maryland-New York area. We'll figure out a location and open it up to more women to come."

While she won't be officiating this year's Final Four in Columbus, Jones still plans on being in Ohio. She'll be conducting a one-day WEFO clinic in conjunction with a pro hoops combine at the event.

WEFO plans to donate some of the money raised from the clinic to the Kay Yow Fund.

"The Play4Kay is an important cause, an important organization and we need to support it," Jones said.

She understands firsthand how important it is.

Midland High's Sametria Smith is congratulated by MISD Executive Director of Athletics Randy Rowe after winning the 100 meter hurdles during the Tall City Invitational track meet on Friday, at Memorial Stadium.

SMITH

by herself at Memorial Stadium while the football team practices on chilly autumn days.

"She will be the first one out here raking the pit if he needs to be raked," Taylor said. "She will be the last one out here raking the pit if it needs to be raked. She will be the first one helping out the freshmen. That's just the type of athlete that she is. She's obviously very successful and she knows what she needs to do, but she's also just a type of athlete that goes above and beyond and decides that even when nobody is here.

"She will be here Sunday night. She will be here Wednesday morning. As long as I've known her, that's just how she's been."

Smith is also a contender to medal at state in the 100 hurdles after she finished sixth with a time of 14.17 at the 2017 UIL meet. She was the top performing non-senior in the meet.

Smith's personal best mark in the 100 hurdles is 14.00, faster than the top time of 14.07 posted so far in Texas this season.

"I feel like I have what it takes," Smith said. "It just motivates me more to go out there and work out even harder."

TALL CITY TRACK NOTEBOOK

MHS' Palmer wins long jump and triple jump

By Christopher Hadorn
chadorn@mrt.com

A little less than a year ago, Midland High's Sam Palmer was competing on the junior varsity track team as a first-year track athlete at the West Texas Relays in Odessa.

Despite starting from humble beginnings, Palmer ended the 2017 season with a fifth-place finish in the boys triple jump at the Region I-6A meet with a leap of 45 feet, 2 inches.

In Friday's 2018 season debut, Palmer continued his meteoric rise in track and field as the senior won the long jump with a mark of 21-6 1/2 and claimed the triple jump title with a distance of 43-6 during the Rogers Ford Tall City Track Invitational at Memorial Stadium.

Palmer said afterwards that he was pleased with his long jump performance, but felt he wasn't pushed enough in the triple jump to bring about his best showing.

"I'm glad, two first places is fun," Palmer said. "I think I do better when there's competition. I probably would have gotten a higher jump if there were higher jumpers."

Palmer said his unexpected rise to regionals last season could be simply attributed to him not wanting to get beat.

"It's just other people jumping," Palmer said. "It's just competition definitely, I am a competitive person. If there's someone jumping further than me, then I will try to jump further than them."

Lee boys, Permian girls win meet

Lee won the boys team title with 129 points at the Tall City Invitational, holding off runner-up Del Rio with 118 points.

Meanwhile, Odessa Permian, under the direction of former MHS coach Hilberto Ochoa, won the girls team title with 146 points.

Lee's Maguire claims pole vault

Lee sophomore Rory Maguire claimed the boys pole vault title with a height of 13-6, tying his personal best mark.

After two faults at 13 feet, Maguire cleared the bar on his final try and then sailed over 13-6 on his second attempt.

"I'm never really happy with my performance," Maguire said. "There's always that next bar that I want to get and just do things technically better. I guess for today, especially with a crosswind, this was a pretty good finish."

Maguire said his goals this season are to use longer poles to pursue new heights and to build up his strength.

In 2017 as only a freshman, Maguire competed at the Region I-6A meet in Arlington, finishing 13th.

"It really shows you that there's a lot of good people out there," Maguire said of regionals. "A lot of people that want it bad and you just got to work for it as hard as everybody does if you really want to make it to the next level."

Galindo ends Lee distance dry spell

Lee girls track coach Frank Maldonado said earlier this week that he didn't want to talk about his distance runners until they started scoring points.

That changed Friday when sophomore Nayeli Galindo placed second in the girls 3,200 meters with a time of 12 minutes, 41.41 seconds.

"We all improved a lot," Galindo said. "From the last meet seeing how bad we did, we needed to do better. We came out here and we just killed it. That was what our goal was for today."

Lee's Porras gets big win

Lee junior Lilly Porras picked up her first win of the season in resounding fashion, edging Midland High standout Sametria Smith, 48.83 to 48.90, to take the girls 300-meter hurdles.

MHS' Mitchell, McCracken improve to 2-0

Midland High sophomore Jacob McCracken won the 110-meter hurdles (15.93), improving his season mark to 2-0 in the event.

MHS junior Jenia Mitchell captured first in the 800 meters (2:26.64) for the second time in two tries this year. Mitchell also won the 1,600 meters (5:28.69) Friday.

India's Shubhankar Sharma squats down at the 7th hole during the second round of the Mexico Championship at the Chapultepec Golf Club on Friday in Mexico City.

Sharma soars into the lead in Mexico

MEXICO CITY — Success has come quickly for Shubhankar Sharma, and the Mexico Championship is no exception.

Sharma hit a 3-wood that landed on the green and settled 2 feet away for an eagle on the opening hole at Chapultepec Golf Club. He finished with three straight birdies for a 5-under 66. And in his first World Golf Championship, he takes a two-shot lead into the weekend.

"I worked all my life to come and play at a high stage like this," said Sharma, who turned pro when he was 16. "You have to expect great things from yourself if you want to play at a high stage. I just try and not think of anything before I start. I just try and concentrate on the success, and just let things go."

Sharma overcame a pair of three-putt bogeys early in his round and was at 11-under 131.

Masters champion Sergio Garcia had a 65 and was two shots behind, along with Xander Schauffele (66) and Rafa Cabrera Bello (67).

Sharma's greatest asset is stable mind, and he has not shown any moments of being overwhelmed.

Even so, there has been a few surreal moments, such as warming up the range before the second round.

Jordan Spieth, the British Open champion and former No. 1 in the world, was hitting balls behind him. And then when Spieth left, world No. 1 Dustin Johnson took his place. It was hard for Sharma not to glance at over his shoulder.

"I couldn't ask for anything better," he said.

And then it got better.

Sharma had such control over his game that he putted for birdie on every hole except the par-4 eighth, where he escaped from the trees into a bunker, blasted out to 12 feet and saved par. He shot 31 on the back, finishing with a gap wedge he hammered to 10 feet for a final birdie, and he walked off the green to a big ovation.

Russell Knox is the only other player to win a World Golf Championship in his debut, at the 2015 HSBC Champions in Shanghai.

So much more is at stake.

Sharma, the only two-time winner on the European Tour this season who leads the Race to Dubai, is No. 75 in the world. Still in his sights is a chance to move into the top 64 after next week to get into the Dell Match Play in Texas, and he has an outside chance of getting into the Masters.

And to think that just three months ago, he had yet to win anywhere in the world. Then, he shot 61 in the second round on his way to winning the Joburg Open. Last month, he closed with a 62 to win the Malaysian Open.

Now he's 36 holes away from a World Golf Championship.

"Everything has happened so fast for me," Sharma said. "In the past four months, my life has totally change. Obviously, the final destination for me is the PGA Tour. That's always been my dream. Just playing well here this week will get my closer to my dream."

And yet he still has a long way to go.

Schauffele, a two-time winner as a rookie last year on the PGA Tour, has managed to go bogey-free at Chapultepec over two rounds, remarkable because the poa greens following a week of rain have been bouncing more than rolling, especially in the afternoon.

Woods adds Valspar tourney near Tampa to his road to Masters

By Doug Ferguson

MEXICO CITY — Tiger Woods is adding another tournament to his schedule on his road to the Masters.

Woods decided Friday to play in the Valspar Championship next week at Innisbrook, along with the Arnold Palmer Invitational at Bay Hill the following week. It was another strong signal about the health of his surgically fused lower back, giving him four tournaments in five weeks.

Woods tweeted that he committed to play both tournaments after a "good recovery week."

He has never played the Valspar Championship in Palm Harbor, Florida, though Woods has played Innisbrook. Three months after he turned pro in 1996, Woods paired with Kelli Kuehne in the now-defunct JC Penney Mixed-Team Classic. They finished third.

Innisbrook became part of the PGA Tour schedule in 2000. The Copperhead course is regarded by some players as one of the best tournament layouts in Florida because of the hilly terrain, tree-lined fairways and water that comes into play only on seven of the 18 holes. It is the only PGA Tour stop in Florida that does not feature water on the 18th hole.

From the time Woods returned — first at his unofficial Hero World Challenge in the Bahamas last December and then when he resumed a PGA Tour schedule — he has said he was trying to ready his game for Augusta National.

Woods has missed the Masters three of the last four years because of four back operations, the most recent a fusion surgery last April. His latest return as been promising with a tie for 23rd at Torrey Pines (seven shots behind) and 12th place at the Honda Classic (eight shots behind). He missed the cut at Riviera, where he never won even at his best.

"I need to keep playing tournaments," Woods said after the Honda Classic. "But I need to keep building on it, keep building my body, keep building toward April. That was the goal when I first came back — try and get everything situated for April. And I feel like I'm right on track for that."

Woods is an eight-time winner at Bay Hill, where he has not played since he won in 2013.

The Valspar Championship often gets overlooked in the Florida swing because it competes for players against the Honda Classic and Arnold Palmer Invitational, and previously a World Golf Championship at Doral.

Now it has its most appealing collection of players. Along with Woods, players who also have entered include Rory McIlroy for the first time, Jordan Spieth, Justin Rose, Sergio Garcia and Henrik Stenson.

COMBINE

From 1B

But the Broncos staff coached Mayfield and Allen at the Senior Bowl and this week and they plan to bring in several of the other top prospects for visits leading up to the draft on April 26.

"There is a possibility of some really good quarterbacks coming out of this draft," Elway said.

Maybe not like his own class in 1983, which produced three Hall of Famers in himself, Dan Marino and Jim Kelly, but this year's crop of quarterbacks is filled with intrigue and promise.

And plenty of questions.

Among them:

Tall order

Is Mayfield too short? He measured in just over 6 feet tall with a hand size of 9¼ inches, under the standard targets of 6-2 and 9½ inches.

Elway, for one, isn't concerned, about Mayfield's measurements.

"I think that (stigma) has been broken," Elway said. "You've got Drew Brees — they've proven that you can do it. He's obviously very much a competitor. He's had a great college career and won the Heisman Trophy. He's proved he can play."

Nor is Elway turned off by Mayfield's crossing the line at times.

He was arrested last year and charged with disorderly conduct, public intoxication and resisting arrest. After the Kansas Jayhawks wouldn't shake his hand, he was caught on camera grabbing his crotch and swearing at the Kansas sideline.

"A lot of times you get tied up in the emotions of the situation and where he is. I like to see a guy with that kind of passion," Elway said.

Hot water

Rosen's time in Westwood was defined as much by his proclivity for creating headlines away from the field.

A viral photo showed a hot tub he brought into his dorm room. Another photo showed Rosen playing golf and wearing a headband that disparaged then-presidential candidate Donald Trump. When UCLA announced its 15-year, $280-million deal with Under Armour, Rosen used the big contract to mock the NCAA's nonprofit status on social media.

Questions have arisen about how well Rosen will get along with his new teammates in the NFL, but two of his Bruins teammates also at the combine quickly dismissed those concerns.

"Josh came in No. 1 high school guy, a little cocky, of course you hear off-campus stuff about him, but as the years went on he really matured," tackle Kolton Miller said. "He's really well-rounded, he doesn't try to be more than what he has to be, a really good leader. I don't really have anything negative to say about him."

Neither does center Scott Quessenberry, who said the negative rap of Rosen is unfair "because of the type of guy that he is and the type of stand-up human being that he is and the type of pro that he's going to be."

"He's a great dude, I love hanging around him and being with him, and whoever gets him is extremely lucky. They're getting a once in a millennium talent, in my opinion."

Catch and throw

Some teams want to see the dual-threat Jackson working out the wide receivers this week and not just slinging it around with the quarterbacks. But Jackson never caught a single pass at Louisville, where he threw for 9,043 yards and 69 touchdowns and ran for 4,132 yards and 50 TDs in 38 games.

"Is there a quarterback that's gone and been a wide receiver successfully?" Elway asked.

Not many. Bert Emanuel, Kordell Stewart, Antwaan Randle El, Terrelle Pryor.

"I think if he's going to make it," Elway said, "he's making it as a quarterback in the right situation. He's explosive."

Olympic star Raisman files suit against USOC, USA Gymnastics

By Will Graves
Associated Press

Aly Raisman spent months urging the U.S. Olympic Committee and USA Gymnastics to get serious about taking a long hard look into how Larry Nassar's abusive conduct was allowed to run unchecked for so long.

Frustrated by what she considers a lack of progress, the six-time Olympic medalist is hoping she can get some answers in court.

Raisman has filed a lawsuit against both organizations, claiming they "knew or should have known" about abusive patterns Nassar, a disgraced former national team doctor now in prison for sexually abusing young athletes.

Raisman filed the lawsuit in California on Wednesday. The filing alleges negligence by the USOC and USA Gymnastics for failing to make sure appropriate protocols were followed in regards to monitoring Larry Nassar. Nassar, who is named as a co-defendant in the lawsuit, is serving decades in prison for molesting some of the sport's top athletes and others as well as child pornography crimes.

The 23-year-old Raisman, captain for both the gold-medal winning 2012 and 2016 U.S. women's Olympic gymnastics teams, says she was abused by Nassar in multiple locations beginning in 2010, including at the U.S. national team training facility at the Karolyi Ranch training center in Texas and the 2012 Games in London. Raisman said she initially felt she was receiving medically necessary treatment by Nassar before realizing it was abuse. She battled shame, guilt and depression in the aftermath, Raisman said.

Nassar spent nearly three decades at USA Gymnastics before being fired in 2015 after complaints about his behavior. He continued to work at Michigan State University through the fall of 2016 before being hit with federal charges. Raisman said the USOC and USA Gymnastics allowed Nassar to continue abusing athletes by not telling the university about the conduct that led them to fire him.

USA Gymnastics and the USOC broke their stated mandates to protect children in their programs by not revealing Nassar's past misconduct to athletes and their parents or guardians, the lawsuit said.

Raisman joins a list of more than 100 civil actions filed against Nassar and USA Gymnastics. McKayla Maroney, an Olympic teammate of Raisman's in 2012, named the USOC as a co-defendant in a lawsuit she filed last December.

Raisman filed her lawsuit the same day that roughly 115 additional plaintiffs, including a current University of Michigan male gymnast, joined a federal suit against Michigan State University, USA Gymnastics and others. Jacob Moore, a freshman, said he was treated by Nassar multiple times and described a 2016 incident in which Nassar administered acupuncture in and around Moore's genitalia after pulling down Moore's pants in front of a female gymnast who was a minor. The suit in Michigan now has more than 250 plaintiffs.

USA Gymnastics said in a statement Friday it is doing "doing everything we can to prevent this from happening again by making bold decisions and holding ourselves to the highest standards of care." The USOC did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Raisman, who has become a vocal critic of both organizations after initially revealing the abuse in her autobiography released last fall, did not plan to go to court but says she felt compelled to press forward because she believes USA Gymnastics and the USOC are not making a sincere effort to "properly address the problem."

Busch brothers marvel at Vegas' sports growth beyond NASCAR

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Not too many years ago, NASCAR was the biggest show on the Strip during its annual week in Las Vegas.

This week, the fast cars are competing for Sin City's sports fans with the NHL's first-place Vegas Golden Knights, the UFC 222 show and a major international rugby tournament. That's all leading into next week, when several college basketball tournaments invade town. Later in the year, soccer's Las Vegas Lights FC and the WNBA's Las Vegas Aces will take center stage — and it's all prelude to the Raiders' likely arrival in 2020. This onetime sports desert has become a mecca, but the drivers who grew up in Vegas don't mind the competition. In fact, they're thrilled.

"It's definitely grown," Kyle Busch said Friday before qualifying. "When I was a kid here, I always kind of wondered why we didn't have a professional team of any kind, whether it would be hockey or basketball or baseball or football."

But Las Vegas didn't have a major pro sports team while the Busch brothers grew up here in the 1980s and 1990s. Sure, Jerry Tarkanian's UNLV Runnin' Rebels were beloved, but it wasn't the same as the world's best athletes rolling into the town where many top entertainers already made their home.

"It really kind of blows my mind," said Xfinity Series driver Spencer Gallagher, a Palo Verde High School grad who raced in the Legends series at Las Vegas Motor Speedway before moving into stock cars. "You grow up in this town for 20 years hoping and wishing for any kind of sports team, and the floodgates just opened. We went from going our whole lives having to pick other (cities') sports teams to cheer for, and now we've got a bevy of options to choose from."

Several sports pursuits are currently converging for what Vegas is calling the Ultimate Sports Weekend. Representatives from NASCAR, the UFC, the Golden Knights and the 2018 USA Sevens rugby tourney met for a pep rally earlier this week outside T-Mobile Arena, which will host the Pac-12 Tournament starting Wednesday.

"It's incredible," said Kurt Busch, a Durango High School graduate just like his younger brother.

"The sports dominance that we're experiencing here in Vegas is similar to the different trends we've seen with the hotels," Kurt Busch added. "It was a family atmosphere back in the '90s, and then it seemed like it turned into the nightclub atmosphere, and then it was the chefs from around the world who created a residency and they had their type of marquee restaurant introduced to the hotels and casinos. Now we're going through a sports phase, and I think it's huge."

The NASCAR season is still young, but the Busch brothers would love to get a win on their hometown track. Kurt has never won here, while Kyle has one Sprint Cup win in 2009 and an Xfinity Series win in 2016.

Kurt Busch is fairly certain he has a car capable of doing it after Stewart-Haas Racing got off to a stellar start to the season in its Ford Fusions. Teammate Kevin Harvick won at Atlanta last week, and Clint Bowyer finished third with Kurt Busch in seventh.

Kyle Busch is giving himself even more chances at checkered flags by running in all three races this weekend. Busch said he doesn't compete in the lesser races to pad his stats, but instead to improve the performance of the team that he owns.

Alaska's famed Iditarod is set to begin amid turbulent year

By Rachel D'oro
Associated Press

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The 46th running of Alaska's famed Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race kicks off Saturday amid the most turbulent year ever for the annual long-distance contest that spans mountain ranges, the frozen Yukon River and dangerous sea ice along the Bering Sea coast.

Among the multiple problems: a champion's dog doping scandal, the loss of major sponsor Wells Fargo, discontent among mushers and escalating pressure from animal rights activists, who say the dogs are run to death or left with serious injuries. The Iditarod has had its ups and downs over the decades, but the current storm of troubles is raising questions about the future of the 1,000-mile (1,600-kilometer) race that for many symbolizes the contest between mortals and Alaska's unforgiving nature.

Leo Rasmussen, one of the race's founders, predicted the Iditarod is heading for extinction within the next few years, given an "extreme lack of organization" from its leadership.

"You can only burn so many stumps, you know, and you're done," he says.

Iditarod CEO Stan Hooley acknowledged organizers have weathered a dark time but disagreed the race faces an uncertain future.

"There's always going to be an Iditarod," he said. "I consider this more of a growing process than anything else."

The Iditarod's governing board disclosed in October that four dogs belonging to four-time winner Dallas Seavey tested positive for a banned substance, the opioid painkiller tramadol, after his second-place finish last March behind his father, Mitch Seavey. It faced criticism for not releasing the information sooner.

The Iditarod said it couldn't prove Dallas Seavey administered the drugs to his dogs, and didn't punish him. Since then, the rules have been changed to hold mushers liable for any positive drug test unless they can show something beyond their control happened.

The younger Seavey, who denied administering tramadol to his dogs, also came under scrutiny when the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, a longtime race critic, complained about a kennel operated by the musher based on allegations of sick, injured or dead dogs. Local investigators said they found no evidence of animal cruelty in the matter.

Dallas Seavey is sitting out this year's race in protest over the handling of the doping investigation. Instead, he is in Norway to participate in another sled dog race, the Finnmarkslopet, which begins March 9.

The deaths of five dogs connected to last year's race also played a role in increasing pressure from animal rights activists. Three of the deaths occurred during the race, and two dogs died after being dropped from the competition. One got loose from a handler and was hit by a car, and another died as it was flown to Anchorage, likely from hyperthermia. The race went without dog deaths in several recent years.

PETA says that for the first time, about a dozen of its members will protest the race in person at the ceremonial and competitive starts and at the finish line, in the remote coastal town of Nome. They plan to bring five headstones with the names of the dogs that died in 2017.

By PETA's count, the dog deaths bring the total to more than 150 over the Iditarod's history. Race officials dispute those numbers but have not provided their own despite numerous requests from The Associated Press.

"If the human participants want to race to Nome, have at it," PETA spokeswoman Colleen O'Brien said. "But don't force these dogs to run until their paws are bloody and they die on the trail."

Race officials blame activists for using manipulative information to pressure corporate sponsors like Wells Fargo, a longtime backer that severed ties to the Iditarod last spring.

Mitch Seavey, who is seeking a fourth Iditarod championship, said his son is the happiest he's seen him in months, and is reveling in heavy snow in Norway. The elder Seavey said he himself is not going to be distracted by "all the noise," but is focusing on his dogs and the race ahead.

"There's been a lot of craziness, but it's the people who are insane," he said. "The dogs aren't crazy."

There's one bright spot for organizers: Optimal trail conditions. A warming climate in recent years has caused significant disruptions, including the rerouting of the 2017 and 2015 races hundreds of miles to the north because of dangerous conditions. As always, the race will begin with the customary ceremonial start in Anchorage, but the competitive portion beginning Sunday north of Anchorage will follow a southern route for the first time since 2013. Traditionally, southern and northern routes are alternated every year.

The late timing of the Iditarod Trail Committee's disclosure of the doping matter prompted the race's major sponsors to commission an independent consultant late last year. The consultant's report said the committee took months to release the information, causing concerns among many about a lack of transparency.

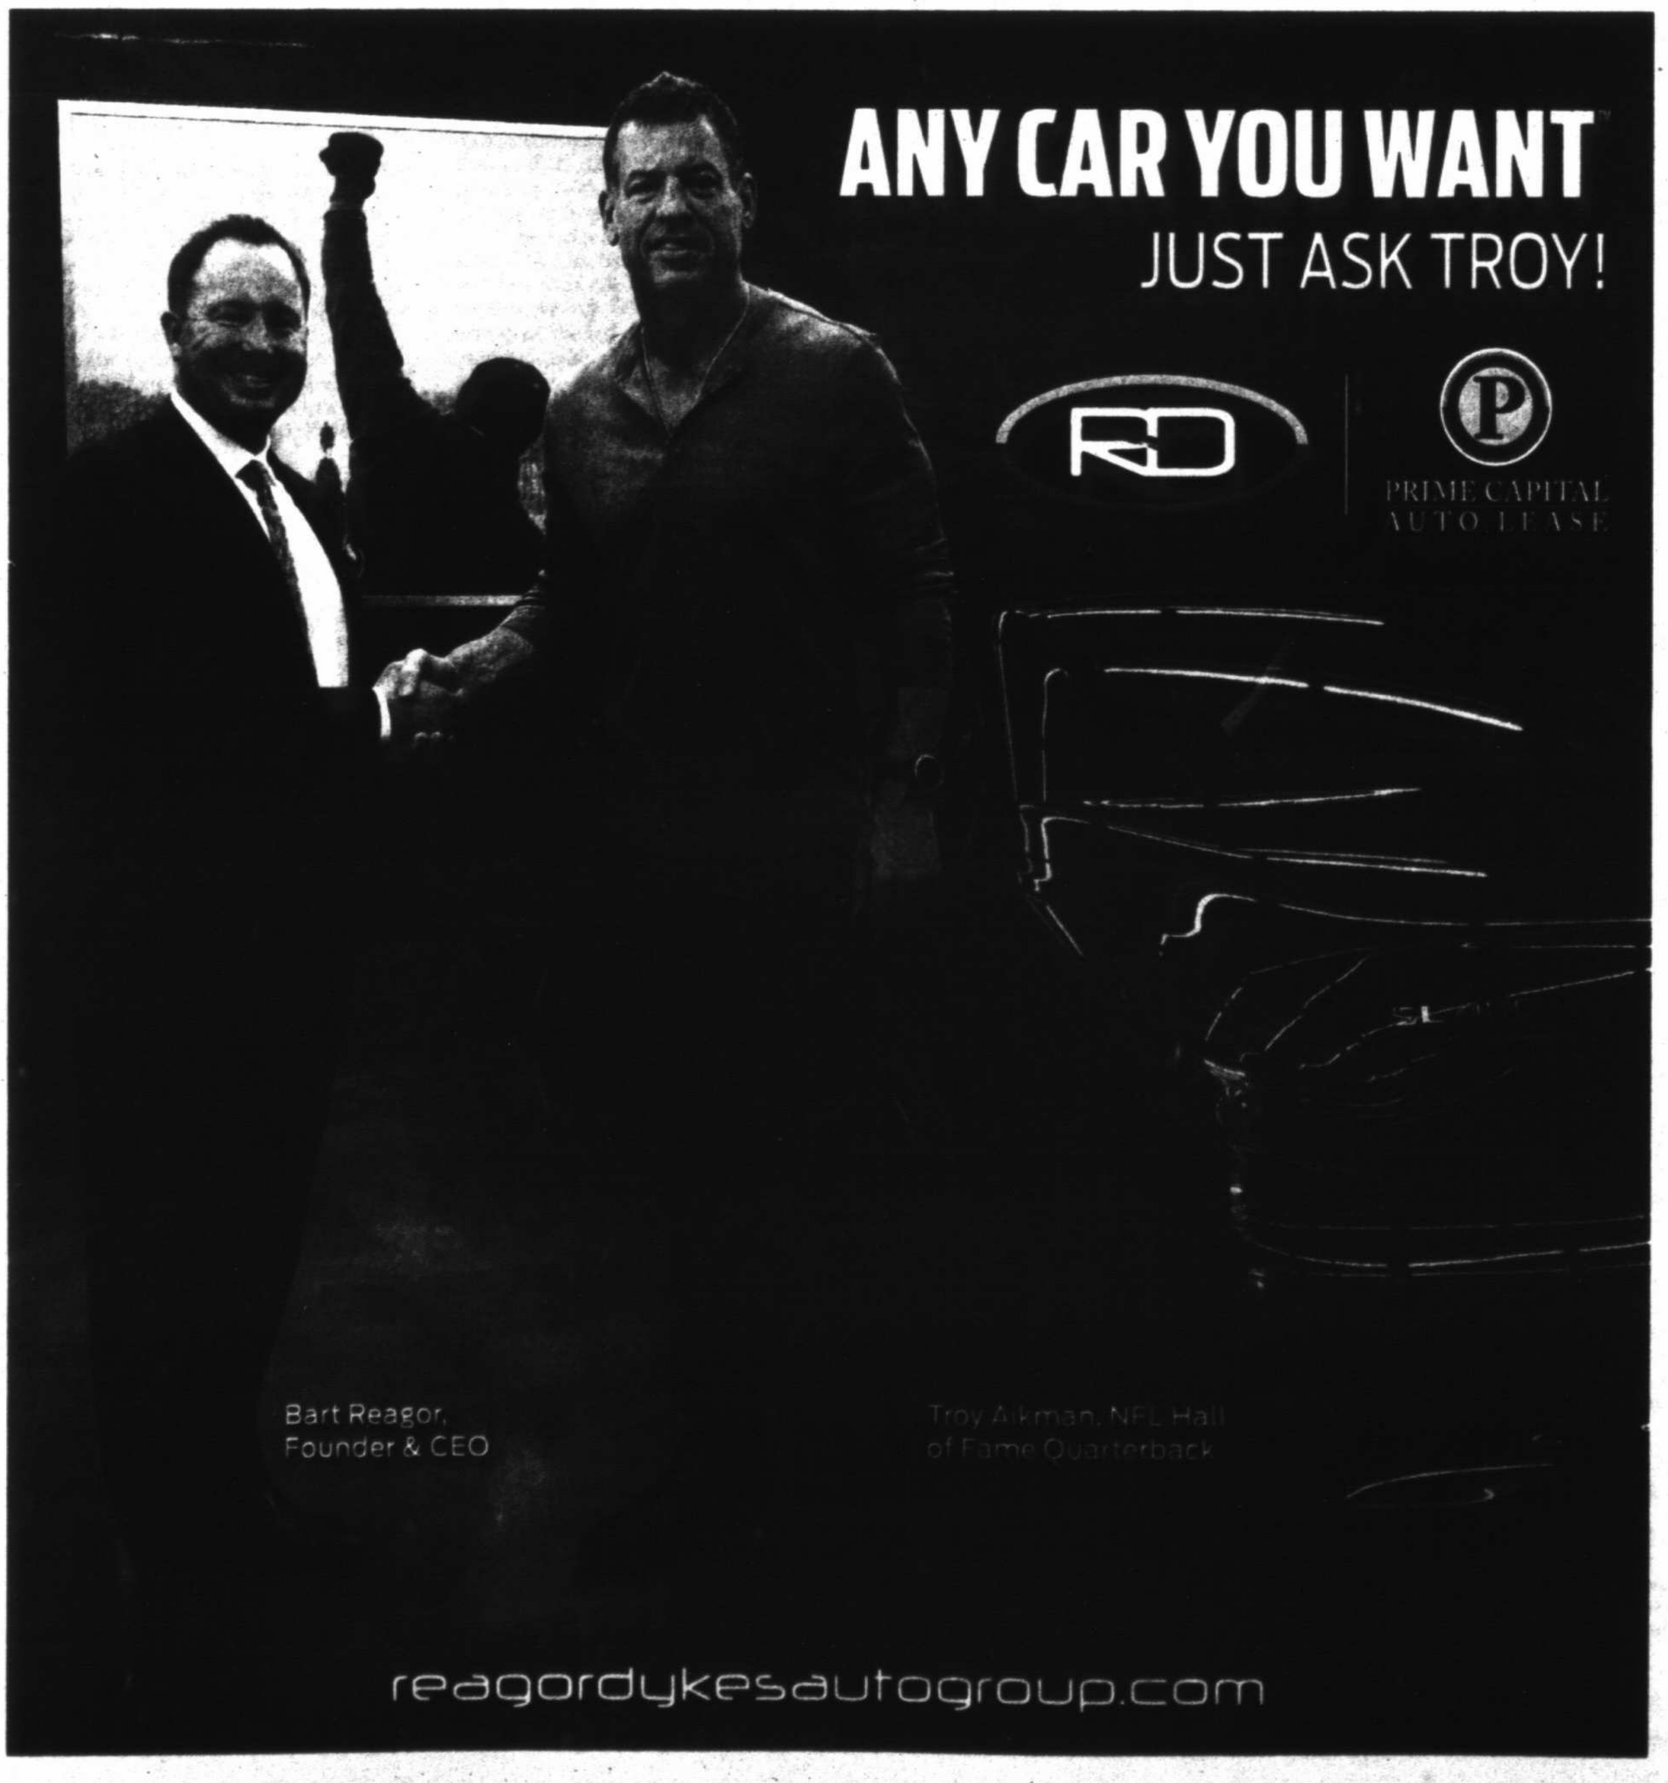

The consultant called on organizers to develop a plan to rebuild trust with mushers and sponsors.

"Both of these partner groups are on the verge of withdrawing their support for this race as a result of their distrust in this board," the report states.

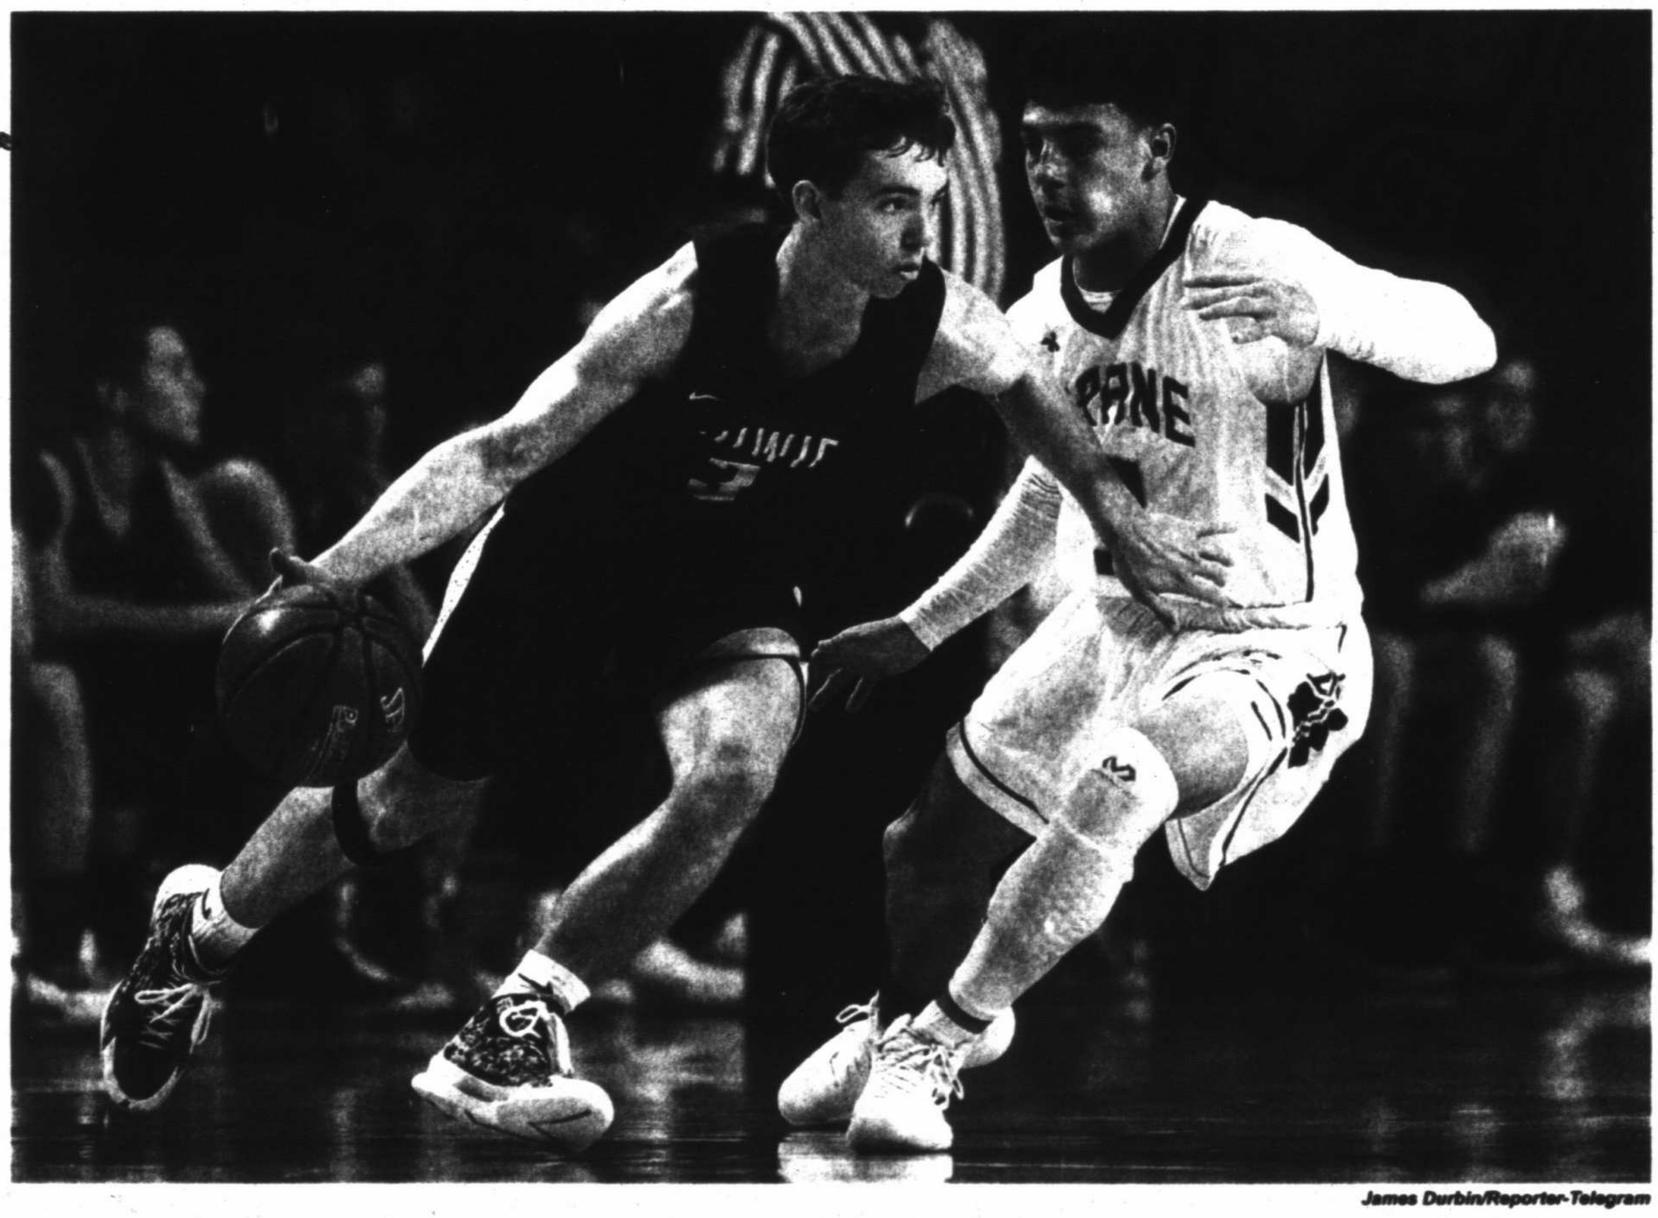

More recently, a group of mushers named the Iditarod Official Finishers Club has called for the resignation of the Iditarod board president and other board leaders it says have conflicts. It also has criticized the board in its handling of the doping scandal. Hooley, the race CEO, said conversations are underway to replace some members.

Four-time winner Jeff King said he sees room for improvements after the doping controversy caught organizers "flat-footed," and he is ready for a significant change in the board leadership. But he doesn't believe the Iditarod is nearing the end of its lifespan, and laughs when asked about it.

"You can count on from me, and many mushers that I would bet my life on, that we will continue to do the best we can for our dogs and the event," he said.

Bowie ends Crane's run with semifinal win

By Oscar LeRoy

Crane boys basketball coach Chris Suttle said he scheduled Class 6A Midland High before the Christmas break for his team to get a taste of the kind of athleticism it would face in the playoffs.

Crane did a great job of making a run to it first regional tournament appearance since 1984 but Brock's overall athleticism and balance was too much for the Golden Cranes to overcome and the No. 10-ranked Jackrabbits rolled to a 64-39 victory in a Region I-3A semifinal on Friday night at Chaparral Center.

With the victory, Bowie (29-7) moves on to face Brock, a 41-39 winner over Shallowater, in today's 1 p.m. final for the right to go to the state tournament.

Crane ends its season at 25-5.

"We're super proud to be here," Suttle said. "The kids had a tremendous season and they were able to put Crane basketball back on the map with what we've been able to do the last two years. We have good kids who work their tails off. It's a tough pill to swallow but I told them not to hold their heads down."

Bowie established its strength early behind brothers, the 6-foot-2 senior Gary Mosley, and the 6-5 junior Daniel Mosley, as they combined for 12 of the team's 14 points in the first quarter. The Jackrabbits also used an 8-0 run to take a 14-7 lead after the first period.

"Both Mosley boys are good players," Suttle said. "They're athletic, they jump well, they rebound well and you can tell with them being brothers they have a good chemistry. What they're able to do together gives everybody fits. We knew that we had to try to keep them off the glass. Whatever we did didn't matter because they were going to get what they're going to get because they're so big."

Another 12-0 run in the second quarter helped Bowie take a commanding 36-19 lead at the half.

Once again, Crane looked to Carlos Montes to lead them and the senior guard delivered with a game-high 25 points but he had to take a ton of shots to get that total. He and senior post Ivan Esparza also had to battle foul trouble in the second half before they fouled out in the fourth quarter.

"We were going to try to deny (Montes)

Brock rides defense to rally past Shallowater

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Brock coach Zach Boxell said along with his team's postseason experience, defense has been a major key to the Eagles' latest postseason run.

On Friday night, the Eagles' defense was once again a deciding factor as No. 2-ranked Brock overcame a halftime deficit by holding No. 18 Shallowater to 21 points in the second half and also got a key last-second blocked shot in a nail-biting 41-39 victory in a Region I-3A Tournament semifinal game at Chaparral Center.

With the victory, Brock (36-3) will get a chance to defend its regional title when it faces No. 10 Bowie at 1 p.m. today. Bowie knocked off Crane, 64-39, earlier in the evening.

The game also features father against son as Bowie coach Doug Boxell is Zach's dad.

Shallowater ends its season at 32-3.

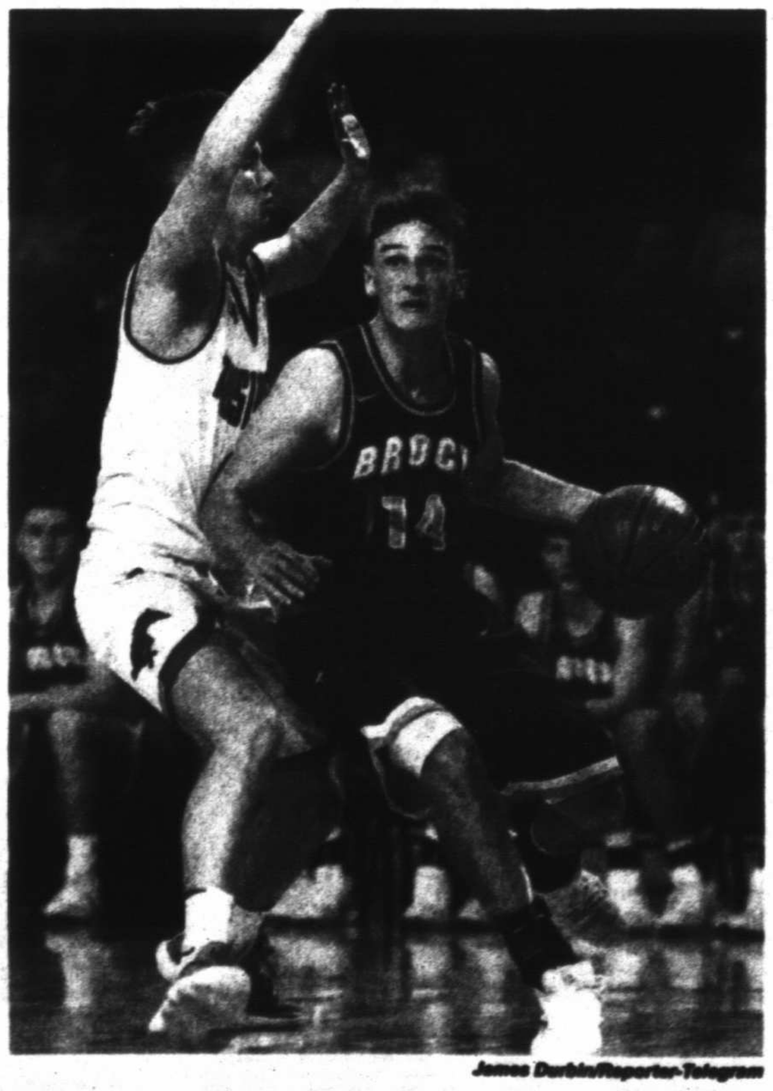

It was a defensive struggle in the first half as shots weren't falling for either team. But the Mustangs took an 18-13 advantage at the half and seemed to have all the momentum.

But once again, the Eagles knew that if they wanted to turn the momentum in their favor, they had to do it on the defensive end.

"In the locker room we talked about having to play our (game)," Boxell said. "We had to come out and play confident and give it everything we had offensively and defensively. We didn't want to go home, so (the Eagles) had to get it done on the defensive end and the offense would finally come around."

And of course, the Eagles hit enough shots in the second half to capitalize on the solid work they were doing on the defensive end. A 17-9 run in the third quarter gave Brock a 30-27 advantage heading into final period.

MCA rolls by Denton Calvary, advances to state title game again

From staff reports

ROBINSON — The No. 3-ranked Midland Classical girls basketball team used a game-high 30 points and five assists from guard Leia Beattie and a tenacious defense to roll past Denton Calvary, 58-38 in the TAPPS 3A state semifinal game, Friday at Robinson High School.

With the win, MCA (22-8) advanced to the TAPPS 3A state final for the second consecutive season and will face No. 1 Beaumont Legacy Christian – 58-50 winners over No. 2 Temple Central Texas Christian in Friday's other semifinal — at 6 p.m. today at Robinson High School. Today's TAPPS 3A state final is a rematch of the 2017 championship game, which Legacy won 64-49.

Though MCA led 28-15 at halftime, the Lady Knights shot just 30 percent from the floor for the game. Still head coach Carla Cunneen said her team's hustle and consistency was more than enough to make up for that deficiency.

Post Lizabelle Russell added 13 points and a team-high 14 rebounds, while forward Jenny Coco was also a force on the boards with 13. Makenna Beattie registered six steals to go along with her four points and seven rebounds, playing with her trademark grit.

"I was really happy with our defense and hustle," Cunneen said. "You're not going to win many games shooting 30 percent but our defense picked us up. I was really happy with our rebounding. We played aggressively and with confidence and we played consistent defense all night."

MCA broke the game open by outscoring

BROCK

"I just thought we had some moments where we couldn't get a bucket," Shallowater coach Jay Lusk said. "Both teams were playing such good defense that there were just lulls on offense. I think we gave up some offensive rebounds in the third quarter that really cost us and then we allowed (Brock's Amery Hughes) to get some wide-open 3s in the third quarter. That was probably the difference.

"We told (the Mustangs) at halftime that we had to keep grinding and we couldn't have lulls. We knew (the Eagles) were going to hit some shots and they did. We battled back at the end and gave ourselves a chance."

The game was knotted at 39-all with 2:35 left in the game after a 3-pointer by Shallowater's Jonah Nelson before the Eagles were able to get to the free-throw line. They only made 2 of 5 but with the way the defense was playing that would be just enough.

Shallowater had one last shot to win it but Brock's Cooper Allen blocked a 3-point attempt as time expired.

"It was two dang good teams going at it," Lusk said. "I know a lot of people thought we were such an underdog, but we knew what we had. We knew it was going to be a battle. The kids did exactly what we asked them to do. We just came up a little short."

Scott Thomas led Brock with 11 points and Hughes added nine.

Jett Johnston, Josh Servantez, Nelson and Collin Stephenson each had eight points for Shallowater.

Now Brock has a chance to face Bowie with just more than family pride on the line.

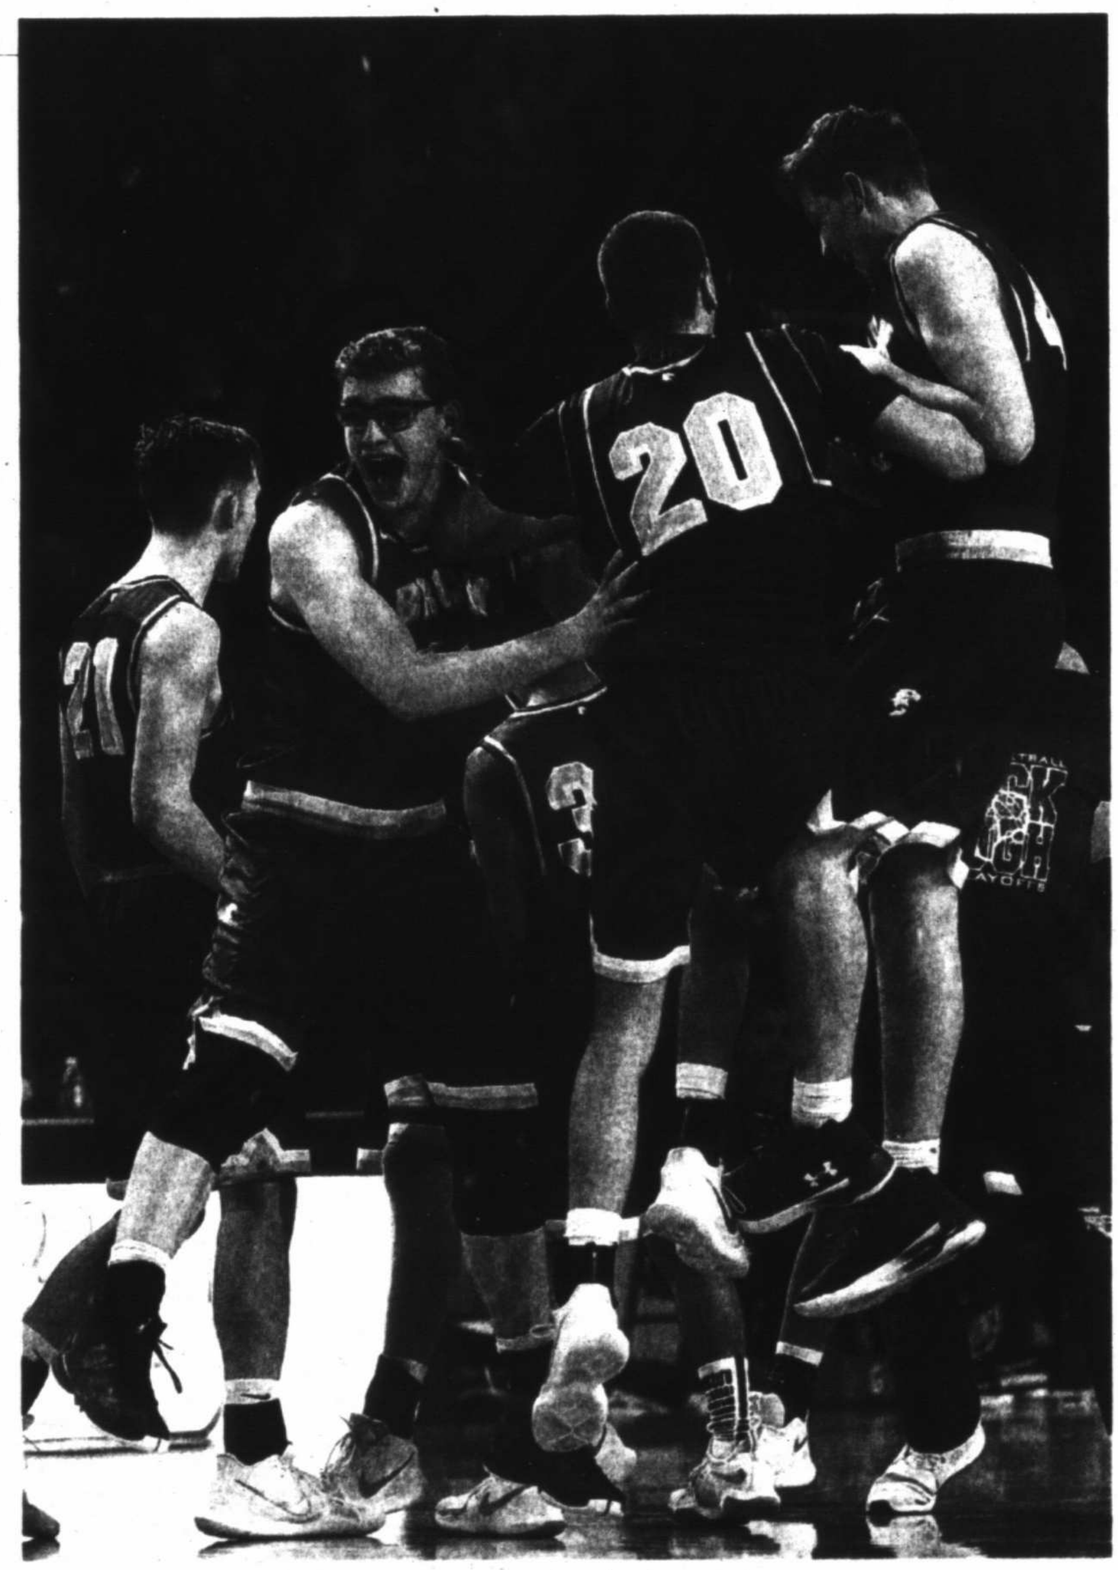

"We knew it would be a possibility and (Bowie has) a great team," Boxell said. "They did real good today against Crane and we've got to get back to the hotel and start game planning for Bowie."

Forsan falls to Stratford in regional semifinal

From staff reports

LEVELLAND – No. 20-ranked Forsan wasn't able to overcome a slow offensive start as the Buffaloes fell, 59-44 to Stratford in the Region I-2A semifinal, Friday at the Texan Dome.

Forsan, which was playing in its first regional tournament since 2009, ends its season with an overall record of 28-5.

Kobe Richardson scored 17 points and also recorded five rebounds and three steals for Forsan. But his team fell behind 18-7 after the first quarter, as Stratford pounded the ball inside to forward Noah Harris.

Harris finished with a game-high 20 points and 15 rebounds for the Elks, who advanced to face Stinnett West Texas – 67-45 winners over McCamey in Friday's other semifinal, in today's 1 p.m. region final at Texan Dome.

"We had a tough time scoring and (Harris) killed us on the boards," said Forsan head coach Cory Richardson. "They are a good offensive team and we had to focus on our assignments, that wore us down and it carried over to the offensive end."

The Buffaloes trailed, 29-20 at half and cut the deficit to eight early in the third quarter. But the Elks were able to maintain separation with a trio of 3-pointers and outscored Forsan 14-8 in the frame.

Richardson said his player left everything on the court in the loss.

"I'm proud of the way they played and they never gave up," Richardson said. "All those clichés are 100 percent true with this group."

Garrett Evans added 10 points for Forsan, while Bryce Hergert had eight, Nathan Vidal had five and Zane Riffe scored four.

NO. 20 STRATFORD 59, NO. 10 FORSAN 44

the ball and we face-guarded him a bit," Brock coach Doug Boxell said. "He's really good and he can get a shot just about any time he wants to."

Added Suttle about Bowie's defense on Montes: "They pressured up on him and tried to make things tough on him. We forced some shots early and that allowed it to kind of get away from us. When those shots aren't falling, it's tough on you. The few games that we have lost, that's been the case."

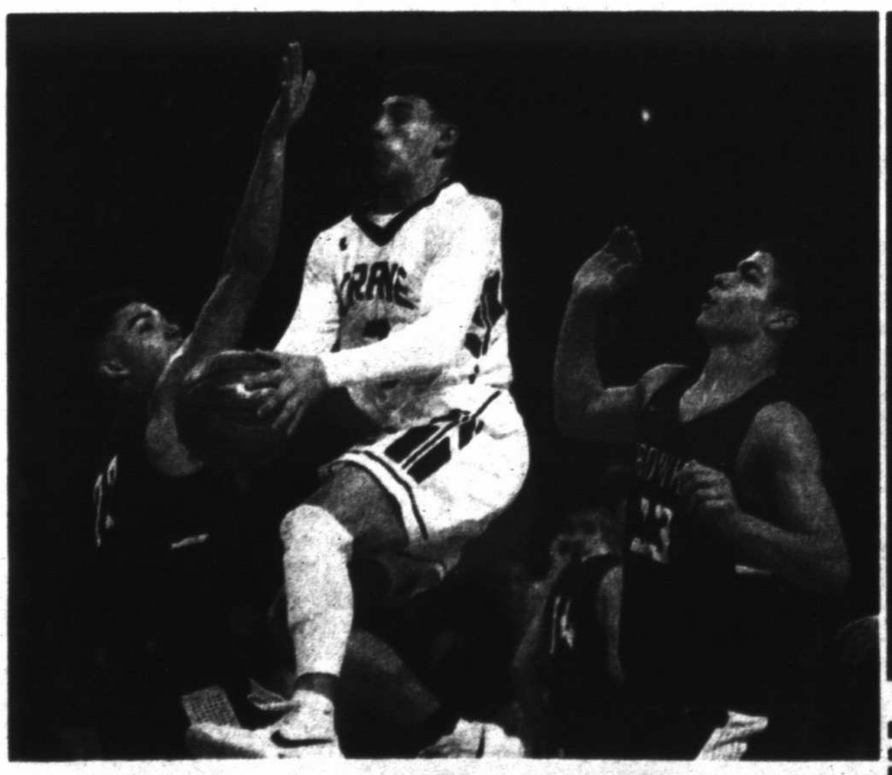

Gary Mosely finished with 20 points for Bowie.

Boxell now has a rematch against Brock and his son, Zach, who's the head coach of the Eagles.

Last year, Brock knocked out Bowie in the regional quarterfinal.

"We're excited about having the opportunity to play to play (today)," Boxell said. "(Brock is) very good. They've been doing it over and over the last few years. They play here all the time. If you want to go, you have to beat them. We have to worry about what we do and not about what they do."
