TEXAS AREAS ARE 'WET' TUESDAY

PROHIBITION ENDS AS GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS ELECTION RESULTS

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Sept. 10—Texas, dry under constitutional prohibition for 16 years, was spotted with subdivisions today where it was legal to buy and sell liquor.

Prohibition repeal became effective late yesterday when Governor Allred issued a proclamation declaring official results of the August 24 election.

The official vote was: for repeal, 297,597; against, 250,948.

Removes Ban

The proclamation immediately removed 12 counties and one or more political subdivisions in 50 additional counties from the ban on liquor sales and under a ruling from Attorney General McCraw transactions may be made without restraint, regulation or taxation. These counties and subdivisions were wet under local option prior to statewide prohibition.

11 COUNTIES WET

AUSTIN, Sept. 10 (AP)—A comptroller's department survey disclosed today that sale of hard liquors was legal in all portions of 11 counties and in parts of 38 others.

Totally wet—Austin, Bexar, Comal, Duval, El Paso, Hidalgo, Kendall, Maverick, Menard, Terrell, Val Verde, Washington, Webb and Zapata.

Partially wet — Blanco, Brewster, Burleson (only one precinct dry), Cameron, Colorado (only Rock Island school district dry), DeWitt, Fayette (only two school districts dry), Fort Bend (only one precinct dry), Galveston (largest portion wet), Gillespie (only one justice precinct and one school district dry), Goliad, Grimes, Guadalupe (only one precinct dry), Harris, Kerr, (one wet), Lavaca, Lee (only one precinct dry), Live Oak, Llano, Medina (six precincts wet, two dry), Presidio (only city of Marfa precinct dry), Refugio, San Patricio (only one precinct wet), Travis (Austin precinct dry, two, possibly some outlying precincts wet), Victoria (only precincts five and six dry), Waller, Wharton and Wilson.

Dry under local option will continue under the Dean law, old prohibition enforcement statute, that makes sale of liquor a felony, punishable by one to five years imprisonment.

Special Session Called

A special session of the legislature has been called for September 18 to enact laws to regulate liquor sales.

The compilation did not include returns from Briscoe, Kimble, Marion, Randall, McMullen, Parmer, San Augustine and Stonewall counties. They were unreported when the canvass was completed.

Governor Allred also proclaimed the results on six other proposed constitutional amendments. They were:

Authorizing payment of old age pensions; for 444,539; against 108,-985.

Authorizing temporary commitment of insane; for 294,287; against 199,959.

Empowering district judges to put convicts on probation: for, 293,285; against 216,549.

Abolishing fee system; for 274,-337; against 188,642.

Free text books for denominational and private schools: for 257,-813; against 230,019.

Authorizing submission of constitutional amendments at special

BAR ON JEWS IN GERMAN SCHOOLS

BERLIN, Sept. 10. (AP)—Bernhard Rust, Prussian commissioner for culture and education, decreed today that Jewish school children from 6 to 14 years must get out of all German schools by Easter, 1936.

Special public schools, restricted to Jews, will be opened, however.

Rust stated the decree was "carrying out an old national socialistic (Nazi) demand."

The decree said all lower schools (Volks Schulen) would be free of non-aryans after Easter, at which time public schools will be started for the Jewish children to supplement the private schools already existing.

However, a community must have at least 30 Jewish children before a special school is created.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 10—Emperor Haile Selassie today refused the Italian legation permission to bring colonial Italian troops into Ethiopia.

It was known that the Italian legation had picked up, ready to leave the moment Premier Mussolini gave the signal.

British Complete Plans

The British had completed plans for the concentration of their nationals in places of safety in the event of hostilities.

Following the example of the Germans and the British, other legations—but not the American—were building bomb-proof shelters. Official employes of the radio station on the outskirts of Addis Ababa also were completing subterranean shelters. The state department had not yet allotted funds for such protection of Americans here, interested persons said.

Minister Protests

Italian Minister Luigi Vinci-Gligiucci protested to the government that Ethiopian authorities in areas where the Italians were closing their consulates had declined to allow the Italians to take along their Italian-

SHOWDOWN ON WPA IS SET

ICKES AND PRESIDENT TO CONFER ON WORK RELIEF PROGRAM

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Secretary Ickes will appeal tomorrow to President Roosevelt in an attempt to have a final showdown with Harry L. Hopkins on conduct of the $4,-000,000,000 Work Relief program.

He said at his press conference today that he would go to Hyde Park tomorrow morning with Charles West, under-secretary of the interior.

Meeting Postponed

Ickes said the scheduled meeting of the Work Relief allotment committee would not be held today and that he did not know when another meeting would be held.

Reminded that a deadline fixed by the president calls for the last meeting of the committee a week from today, Ickes said "I'll know more about that when I get back from Hyde Park."

Making no attempt to conceal his opposition to Hopkins, Ickes disputed the Works Progress administrator's recent statement that projects by WPA would not reach the allotment committee.

"There is nothing," Ickes said grimly, "in the executive order of the president setting up the tripartite administration of the program which gives anybody the right to veto anybody's projects. The intention was simply to supply certain information, and any member of the allotment committee can bring up any project at any time."

The governor was undecided on tax recommendations to meet the pension appropriation. He was studying a survey completed yesterday by Orville S. Carpenter, state auditor, and R. B. Anderson, tax commissioner.

He planned to leave tomorrow afternoon for Oklahoma City to attend a conference of oil state representatives called under the oil production and conservation compact. He will name Texas' representative to the compact board before leaving.

SHIP OF STATE RUDDERLESS MINUS HUEY

THE KING IS DEAD BUT THERE WAS NO KING LEFT TO LONG LIVE

BY RALPH WHEATLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10—The death of Senator Huey P. Long at the hands of an assassin has left his powerful political machine rudderless. Politically, Louisiana was in a whirlpool today, it has no direction.

The king is dead but there was no king left to long live. When Huey Long passed from the political stage he left a half dozen political leaders of about the same stripe. None overshadowed the other. If one tried to step ahead of the other there was danger of internecine warfare.

Leaned Heavily On Long

Normally the high man would be Governor O. K. Allen but during his entire political career he has leaned heavily on Huey Long, who was a friend from the barefoot boy stage in Winn parish. Today Governor Allen was so broken up over his friend's death that he was unapproachable.

Before Long's death, but after it was known that he would die, his political lieutenants held conferences on what steps to take. In them were Governor Allen, Seymour Weiss, Long political treasurer; Abe Shushan, director of the Orleans Levee board; Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe. Allen Vellender, speaker of the house; George Wallace, Long's legislative adviser and others.

On one of these six the chances

ADOPTED AS JOKE

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10 (AP)—The sobriquet "Kingfish" slipped up on Huey Long.

He adopted it as a joke from a radio program and immediately his friends seized upon it and labelled him "Kingfish Long."

Long never did like the title and at one time was heard to remark:

"Kingfish, hell. I'm no fish. I'm gonna get me a title with something like lion and tiger in it."

But he never succeeded in escaping the title "Kingfish."

BILLS WITHOUT GUIDING HAND

LOUISIANA SOLONS ARE TO ACT TODAY ON MEASURES

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10 (AP)—The senate finance committee, acting with quiet precision, gave speedy approval today to the bills approved by Senator Huey P. Long before his assassination.

(By The Associated Press)

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10.—Senator Huey Long's death today left the Louisiana legislature without its guiding hand.

Long, shot down by an assassin, had directed six special sessions of the law makers since last August and was in the midst of a seventh when he was wounded Sunday night.

Took Particular Joy

The Louisiana "dictator" and self-styled Kingfish took particular joy in engineering his legislation into law and was at his best in appearances before committee sessions.

"Now this here bill," Long would say, smiling, "is just a mere formality."

"Move favorable report," the committee chairman would chime in. "Without objection the bill is reported favorable."

And so the routine went.

Ushered Through House

Long ushered his bills through the house ways and means committee Sunday morning. The 39 measures approved by Long before he was wounded moved through the assembly with just as much ease as if Long was personally directing them.

Several bills make a fresh attack on President Roosevelt's administration, others give financial aid to

ASSASSIN'S BULLET FINALLY CLAIMS LIFE OF COLORFUL LOUISIANA SENATOR AFTER LONG BATTE AGAINST DEATH BY PHYSICIANS

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press)

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10—United States Senator Huey P. Long, known the world over as the dictator of his native Louisiana, died today of a wound inflicted by an assassin. The senator was 42 years old.

Physicians battled for 31 hours to save the political chieftain's life. They performed one operation, five blood transfusions and administered artificial oxygen to no avail. Death came at 4:06 a. m., central standard time.

Widow At Bedside

The widow was led dry-eyed from Our Lady of the Lake hospital. She had been at the bedside in constant vigil since Sunday night.

A "gunshot wound in the abdomen" was officially given as the cause of the senator's death by Dr. E. L. Sanderson, who said there were "not necessarily" any complications.

The gunshot wound was inflicted by Dr. Carl A. Weiss, jr., kinsman of a Long political enemy, in the corridor of the Louisiana state capital at 9:20 p. m., Sunday night.

Just Stepped From Chamber

The senator had just stepped from the house chamber after pushing toward completion a number of special session acts aimed at the federal administration, and toward consolidating his already almost unbelievable personal control of the state's affairs.

Dr. Weiss, a 30-year-old eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, pressed a gun into the senator's stomach and fired. His arm was deflected before he could fire a second shot and Long's body guardsmen, state highway policemen, killed him on the spot with a fusillade of nearly sixty bullets. Dr. Weiss was buried yesterday.

Lieutenants Stunned

The lieutenants of the Louisiana dictator were stunned momentarily and grief-stricken by Long's death, but were believed ready to attempt to carry on the powerful regime he established.

On the other hand, Long's political opponents were expected to make a strong fight against this effort and to try to gain control themselves.

Delirious At Midnight

Senator Long became delirious at midnight last night, and soon lost consciousness. Early J. Christenberry, his secretary, said he exclaimed:

"Where are my children?"

His children, Rose, Russell and Palmer Reid were rushed to his side, but too late for the senator to recognize them.

The secretary said there were last wishes expressed by the senator. He would not divulge them because he said they concerned the family

LONG'S DEATH PUZZLE TO POLITICS

PROBABILITY OF PROBE OF SHOOTING IS BROACHED TODAY

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Shock, sorrow and wonder about the political effect mingled in varying degrees today as the capital awoke to read that the assassin's bullet had cost Senator Huey P. Long his life.

The extraordinary nature of the man was illustrated. The customary expressions of grief at the passing of a public figure were deferred, as high and low first gave voice to their horror that gunfire had removed a national political figure.

Broaches Probability

Representative Fenerty (R-Pa) broached the probability of a congressional inquiry into the slaying. From Atlantic City he telephoned his office here before the death to say the house committee which already had planned investigation of the Long dictatorship in his state "might also look into who it was who instigated the attempted murder."

On all sides there was tremendous interest in the barest details. Differences over Long himself, and these were many and deep, went unmentioned amidst recollections of his whimsical and boyish side.

None To Take His Place

Within the administration and the Republican organization especially, attempts to gauge the political effect were made.

The consensus appeared to be that no politician was in sight who could take the place made by the Louisianan for himself.

Although New Deal leaders had publicly not given much weight to Long's plans to attempt to wrest the presidential nomination from Roosevelt next June, and to run independently if failing, Republicans had welcomed his intentions on the theory that it might split the Democratic vote in November.

Sees Movement Collapse

Senator Smith, South Carolina Democrat, believed the "share-our-wealth" movement — as built by Long — would collapse without him. In 27 years as a senator, he said, "I've seen nobody there comparable with Long—and I don't mean solely in exhibitionism and buffoonery. He was a genius. He had a mind extraordinary in both power and quickness."

His intentions were not limited to the presidency. The Louisianan also had spoken of striking at members of the house and senate whose re-election next year is considered im-

WALMSLEY "SORRY"

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10 (AP)—James Walmsley, New Orleans, titular head of the opposition to Senator Huey P. Long, assassinated political "dictator" of Louisiana, and one of Long's bitterest foes, said in a statement today:

"I'm sorry the senator has died."

FUNERAL NOT ARRANGED

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10 (AP)—Funeral arrangements for Senator Huey P. Long had not been completed today. Friends urged his family to permit the construction of an elaborate mausoleum on the grounds of the state capitol to hold his body. They argued that the tall state house, erected during the governorship of Long, would serve as a fitting monument to his memory.

Others sought to have him buried at the scene of his boyhood in Winn parish, while still others thought he should be laid to rest in New Orleans, the state's largest city.

But wherever Huey Long is buried there will be monuments galore to his memory. Several buildings and structures, fisheries, and other public institutions bear the name, cut in granite, Huey P. Long.

The best complexion advice you can give—the best you can follow yourself—is get the Lifebuoy habit! Its rich, penetrating lather deep-cleanses clogged pores, brings new radiance. Yet tests made on the skins of hundreds of women show Lifebuoy is more than 20 per cent milder than many so-called "beauty soaps." Millions say, "It agrees with my skin."

Don't be caught napping!

Chicago Rocketing To Top In National

CUBS ARE ONE GAME BEHIND CARDS; DETROIT WINS

BY ANDY CLARKE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cubs have lit the fuse and who knows but that they will rocket right out through the roof, right into the blue heaven of the World Series?

Most of the baseball seers who forgot Charley Grimm and his boys in their early season calculations, are making ready to take to the storm cellars. In fourth place, nine games behind the Giants, on July 6, the Cubs today are two games ahead of the balloon that busted and only one game behind the leading Cardinals.

Defeat Braves

The Cubs ran their current winning streak to six straight games yesterday, defeating the Boston Braves 5-1 and 2-1 as the world champions were dropping one to the Phillies.

Tex Carleton allowed only four hits in the first game and Larry French came back to take a decision from Fred Frankhouse in a mound duel in the nightcap.

Manager Frankie Frisch had a hitless birthday and he probably would have swapped all the candles on his cake for a reversal of that 4-3 defeat the Phillies hung on his team.

Philadelphia hopped on Phil Collins for three runs in the fifth inning and scored the deciding tally off Ed Heusser in the eighth. Curt Davis pitched seven-hit ball.

Frisch Gets Flowers

Before the game the gas house gang went a little sissy, presenting Frisch with a bouquet of flowers and then singing a birthday song as Dizzy Dean tossed aside the bat for the baton.

The Detroit Tigers retained their 8 1-2 game lead in the American league, coming from behind to down the Washington Senators 8-4. Rain and darkness limited the game to seven innings.

The Yankees defeated Cleveland 6-3, Jack Saltzgaver connected with four hits for a perfect day at bat. He drove in three runs, one with a double and two with a homer.

The St. Louis Browns, fresh from the cellar themselves, had no compassion for the team that replaced them there. The Athletics went down 5-1 before the pitching of Earl Caldwell, righthander from San Antonio in the Texas League.

GRANT WINS OVER BUDGE IN SINGLES

(By The Associated Press)

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Bitsy Grant was back in character today in the role he customed role of the "giant killer" of American tennis today.

For weeks the sports pages carried columns about the Wimbledon achievements of Donald Budge of California. Budge's victories over Bunny Austin and Baron Gottfried Von Cramm earned him a rating among the five leading players of the world.

Rain Halts Match

Bitsy read the papers—that's one of his chief diversions when he isn't wielding a racquet. To him, Budge was just another tennis player though a sort of special one because he took a trimming from him last year when Grant was the favorite.

They squared off across the net yesterday in a quarter-final match of the 54th men's national singles championship. This time Budge was the red-hot favorite. He was the one American player conceded a chance to dethrone Fred Perry of England.

Budge came back from England with the sobriquet, "the new darling of Wimbledon." Against Grant he was a darling in distress saved only by a drenching downpour of rain which interrupted the contest at the time Grant was leading 6-4, 6-4, 2-1.

Kirkland Decisions Ryan In Ralls Bout

RALLS, Sept. 10 (Special)—Jack Kirkland, Waco middleweight, was awarded a ten-round decision over Speedy Ryan of Melrose, N. M., in the main event of the Ralls' Athletic club's boxing show here last night. There were no knock-downs during the fast bout.

In a semi-final, eight-round bout, Bob Kirkland, younger brother of the Waco boxer, won a decision over Kid Smyer of Lorenzo. Kid Buchanan of Ralls decisioned Jack Barnett of Crosbyton in a preliminary, and John Buck of Crosbyton won the nod over Red McDuff of Ralls in another. Two battle royals preceded the duels.

"Big Time" automobile racing was revived at the Oakland, Calif., speedway in a 100-mile event on September 8.

WRIGHT IS AMONG SIX NEW COACHES IN ROCKIES LOOP

DENVER, Sept. 10. (AP)—Turnover in football and basketball coaches in the Rocky Mountain conference is the heaviest this season in many years.

Colorado university, Colorado State and Western State have hired six new coaches altogether. Five of them will be "head men."

Grid Inventor

Oakes, a recognized authority on line play and the inventor of considerable football equipment, resigned his position as head coach at the University of Montana to take the C. U. job.

Cox comes from the University of Kansas to coach the Colorado cage team, a task which Earl (Dutch) Clark had last winter. Clark has returned to the backfield of the Detroit professional football team with which he was all-American quarterback last season.

Colorado State is using two of its recent undergraduate stars. Campbell, who will succeed Leonard T. Saalwaechter, ended his career at Aggies last spring after meritorious service on the football, basketball and track teams.

Formerly At Slaton

Western State, at Gunnison, also called on a former player. Wright, who has been high school coach at Slaton, Texas, for several years, played on Western State's first football team.

Romney, who will pilot the Mountaineer basketball outfit, was a thousand-point forward at Brigham Young university and has played on the Denver Athletic Club team for several seasons.

Both Wright and Mooney succeed Telfer L. Mead, who resigned.

Small Boy's Sling Broke Glass In Bus

GALVESTON, Sept 10 (AP)—Police Officer John Hime, who investigated the report Beaumont baseball players had been shot at while in a bus en route from Moody stadium to a local hotel Sunday night, said that the glass apparently was broken by a missle from a small boy's sling shot or "nigger shooter," rather than by a bullet.

"The glass was broken and scattered, indicating that it was not a bullet that hit the bus," he said. "The upholstering was not torn or marked and no bullet was found."

There had been no earlier complaints to the local baseball club or police about fans throwing chunks of concrete and rotten eggs at players, as charged from Beaumont.

Tulane's football master minds face the problem of finding a replacement in the quarterbacking department, which was manned last season by Johnny McDaniel and Bradley (Ace) Brownson, two of the Green Wave's greatest signal-callers.

LITTLE MEETS BILL LAIN TODAY

CHAMPION IS ALMOST MADE A 'CORPSE' BY TEXAS KID

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, Sept. 10 (AP)—Bill Lain of Chicago, an undertaker in white, today undertook the big job of burying the National Amateur golf championship hopes of Lawson Little—a task that 24 other men in England and America have failed to accomplish during the last two years.

One of Chicago's leading amateurs, Lain, a tall blonde with a flair for white toggery, challenged the march of the human siege gun from San Francisco in the second round, but his hope of success in his venture was rather gloomy.

Defeats Texan

Little was believed to have been shot down and buried in his first 18-hole start over the soggy clay turf terrain of the Cleveland Country club yesterday, but he proved to be a lively "corpse" that could rise again and still win.

Three down through five holes against Rufus King, 19-year-old trapshooter from Wichita Falls, Tex., Little conclusively proved his class and became a greater favorite than ever over his field by coming back to crush his youthful opponent, 3 and 1.

It was the hardest fight he has had to wage since he started out on his great march—a march that has won the British Amateur title twice in succession and the American Amateur once—but he had the fight and the weapons to repel the attack of the "kid," who dazzled him by scoring four birdies in succession over the first five holes.

King Over-Putts

Little, down only once before in 23 matches and that time only one hole behind, was probably more amazed yesterday than was the black-haired "kid," who won his first renown five years ago by winning the Grand American handicap trapshooting blue ribbon title event.

Putting like a wizard and banging dead niblicks against the pin, he halved the first two holes with par and a birdie, and then shot 3-3-3, three straight birdies, to win as many holes. It took a 30-foot putt for Little to stop him on the sixth, but he stopped his "kid" challenger so completely that he squared the match on the ninth hole, went ahead with a bold iron shot and a beautiful explosion on the 389-yard 12th and never was headed thereafter, although King tossed away chances to win holes by over-putting the fast drying greens.

HEARTENING news comes from Gwynn "Mule" Dowell, the ex-Tech halfback turned pro, now trying out with the Chicago Cardinals.

"They have cut the squad down to about 35 men," writes the Mule, "and I have been shifted to fullback. Red White, the boy I was afraid of, has been sent to St. Louis and Bushby of Kansas State (well remembered in Lubbock) was released. I still don't know exactly how I stand, but I'm gonna have to bump a little hell backing up the line.

"We had an exhibition game Sunday and I got loose, luckily, for several nice runs. There are only two of us out for fullback now so I may have a chance. He's using me on most of the spin plays it seems."

They'll miss the old Mule out at College Avenue this fall. If ever a lad from the "sticks" deserved All-American recognition, it was the big boy from Royse City. Even if he hadn't played but one game in the three varsity years, and that had been the Tech-University of Arizona game, he still would merit national attention. A never-to-be-forgotten exhibition, that of Dowell when, time after time, he faded back as if to pass, five, ten, a dozen yards, only to see his would-be receivers stretched on the ground, then, bowing his neck and lowering his head like an enraged bull, he dashed straight ahead, 20 or 30 yards to gain 10 or 20, and once stretching it into a touchdown.

They're still wondering, over at Tucson, if that was a planned play or if Dowell did it because there was nothing else to do. What do you think?

THE DEPARTMENT acknowledges receipt of a gift copy of Intercollegiate Football Pictorial, a nicely planned, well printed magazine published for the first time by the Intercollegiate Football association. Its contents are the same as the 1935 supplement to Intercollegiate Football, the large and handsome volume treating with football from 1869 to the present day. We have also received the supplement, which was laid down at the desk for something over a dollar. The Pictorial retails at news stands for two bits. So who was the goat in that transaction?

While the Supplement, or Intercollegiate Football Pictorial, contains much helpful information, including a review of the 1934 season, illustrated with nifty cuts, etc., and the 1935 schedules for the more important colleges, from a purely local standpoint, the magazine does not stack up with the Illustrated Football Annual, a rival publication which sells for the same price. The Annual, which made its appearance a few years ago, contains more and better pictures, better reviews, and includes Texas Tech. Intercollegiate Football, in its big volume as well as its supplement, deals mostly with the "big league" and grossly neglects up and coming institutions like Texas Tech. The supplement does contain the Tech schedule, but nothing else.

The Illustrated Annual, published by Fiction House, Inc., New York, contains elaborate art layouts, including six pictures of Texas Tech players, a column or two of description (written by George White of the Dallas News) and the schedule and 1934 record.

Both books are passing up a good "story" when they neglect the Texas Tech coaching school. Were it an ordinary school, editors might be justified in construing any remarks pertaining to it as publicity or advertising, but a coaching school so large and with such a national appeal is news in anybody's publication.

THE Supplement, or Pictorial, contains several articles of interest, among them a yarn by Bernie Bierman, Minnesota mentor and one of the head men for two years at the Tech coaching school. Name of the article is "Publicity vs. The Player." We should like to reproduce this, in whole or in part, with the permission of the copyright owners.

There are other quips and quaint passages, such as:

"Noble Kizer, Purdue coach, experienced some difficulty in disciplining his five-year-old son after Purdue's defeat by Indiana last fall. One day Noble attempted to correct his young offspring. The lad retorted: "I'm glad Indiana beat Purdue all to pieces."

And another one: "At the beginning of last year, someone asked Francis Schmidt, Ohio State coach, if he feared the Michigan Wolverines. 'What the hell, those Michigan guys put on their pants one leg at a time, like everybody else!'"

Another one, which would have been good to tell Fritz Crisler the other day during the coaching school. Fritz took plenty of the old rub-in about that Princeton-Yale game last fall.

"Kelly, talkative Yale end, was watching a Princeton backfield substitute enter the game with the Tigers. As the substitute reported the umpire didn't catch the name, and asked over, when Kelly piped up: 'He's probably reporting for me. I've been playing in the Princeton backfield all afternoon.'"

LOUISIANA'S FOOTBALL PROSPECTS SAID TO DEPEND UPON ABE MICKAL

BY QUINCY EWING
Associated Press Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10 (AP)—Ask anybody you meet around the Louisiana State university football practice field how good the team's going to be this fall and he'll probably say, "well, it depends on how good Abe Mickal will be."

If Mickal, after being plagued by physical mishaps, is able to turn in the brilliant passing, booting and running he has the past two years, Louisiana State ought to be one of the greatest teams in the nation.

Mickal is just that important in the scheme of things. He and Bernie Moore, L. S. U. head coach and successor to Capt. L. M. (Biff) Jones, now at Oklahoma, are the key men in the Tiger grid situation.

Start With Rice

The likely "A" team lineups look like Barrett and Tinsley, ends; Rukas and Baldwin, tackles; Brown and Helveston, guards; Stewart, center; Mickal, Fatherree, Lawrie and Reed, backs.

The schedule:

Sept. 28, Rice; Oct. 5, Texas; Oct 12, Manhattan College at New York; Oct. 19, Arkansas at Shreveport, La.; Oct. 26, Vanderbilt at Nashville; Nov. 2, Auburn; Nov. 9, Mississippi State; Nov. 16, Georgia at Athens; Nov. 23, Southwestern (Louisiana); Nov. 30, Tulane at New Orleans.

GENTS TRAVEL FAR

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 10 (AP)—Centenary College's Gentlemen will travel approximately 4,350 miles to play five road games of their 11-game schedule this fall. The trips are to Pineville, La., Austin, Tex., New Orleans, Jackson, Miss., and Cincinnati.

Among the 47 candidates invited by Coach Wallace Wade to report for football at Duke University, Durham, N. C., are only five full-time regulars from last season. Wade has 26 promising sophomores, 14 lettered veterans and seven non-lettered reserves.

RAIDERS ROAR THROUGH DRILLS

HEAVY WORKOUT MAY BE ON CARD FOR THIS AFTERNOON

A half hundred football candidates flowed from under the Matador Field stands and out on the field in a red stream this morning as the Red Raiders went through the first practice session of the season.

The bare slopes of the stands echoed to their high cries. The athletes lathered through setting up exercises, flinging their hands wildly to the sky. Then there was silence, and the team crouched on the grass, listening to the clipped, rolling voice of Head Coach P. W. Cawthon.

Then the boys broke ranks for a general workout, and there's another, even tougher, scheduled for this afternoon.

TECH-COWBOY TILT TICKETS SENT HERE

ABILENE, Sept. 10. (Special) — Six hundred reserved seat tickets for the Hardin-Simmons-Texas Tech football game here have been forwarded to "Bo" Williams, manager of Tech athletics.

Two thousand reserved ducats for the Sept. 20 clash went on sale here at the same time. Expecting one of the largest crowds ever to attend an Abilene football game, Hardin-Simmons officials are making plans for the erection of temporary bleachers at the north and south ends of the stadium which will seat more than 5000 fans.

The tickets sent to Lubbock are among the best to be sold and call for seats between the 30-yard lines.

Head Coach Frank Kimbrough and his assistant, T. W. Harrison, will issue the first call for grid practice for the Cowhands Tuesday at which time about 50 huskies will report.

Place of sale of the Lubbock tickets will be announced by Williams. Tech students will also be able to purchase their tickets there.

POGI AND LA RUE TO TAKE MAT IN SEMI-FINAL BOUT

Flamingo-legged John La Rue and Gorilla Pogi, the gargling grappler from Argentina, should provide comedy relief in the wrestling program at the Arena Wednesday night.

They're on the supporting end of a card which sees two of the district's most popular ear-twisters set to in a main event that easily may be classed as one of the most potentially eloquent scraps of the outdoor season. Buck Weaver of Indiana is one, the Masked Marvel the other.

They're "Wanted"

The Marvel and the Weaver have been wanted here for several weeks by a wrestling fandom that knows its wrestling onions. Promoter Allen was put to extraordinary trouble and considerable extra expense in bringing this match about, and for that reason is heisting his general admission price for women and children from a dime to a quarter. All other prices remain the same. Tickets are on sale now at Hotel Drug store, at Lubbock hotel.

In the curtain raiser tomorrow night, Don Kent, the Tennessee lad who failed to show up last week, is booked with Bob Cummings, clever Alabaman, for 20 minutes or less.

Two Denver sandlot baseball teams cracked 36 hits between them and made six errors, but the final score was 2 to 1.

AIR IS FILLED WITH FOOTBALLS AS S. M. U. MUSTANGS START PRACTICE

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Staff Writer

DALLAS, Sept. 10.—The big tent went up today and Southern Methodist's aerial circus—bigger and better than ever, they say—took its opening workout under a brand new ringmaster.

Madison (Matty) Bell, starting on the first of a three-year term with the daring young men of the flying footballs, can't get excited about reports he is "on the spot." He points to a sparkling squad of 42 men, 22 of them veteran lettermen, and laughs it off.

Aerial Antics Again

The aerial antics Ray Morrison created at Southern Methodist will live on, despite the fact he has switched to Vanderbilt university. Bell had a personal hand in the sky tricks last year while handling the linemen. He knows passing and will serve it up aplenty this fall.

Slyly he admits "we could slip under the wire in the Southwest conference race." For his "slipping" act he has very near the ideal squad—16 seniors, nine juniors and 17 sophomores, including eight ends, seven tackles, seven guards, three centers and 17 backs.

Wilson Is Back

Perhaps the greatest backfield in years will twinkle this season. Little Robert Wilson, two years the leading scorer of the conference, will be out to make it a grand slam. Harry Shuford, All-Stouthwest conference fullback and 190 pounds of defensive genius, will play his last season. Shelley Burt, a pounding ball carrier and big Johnny Sprague, of "the football Spragues," complete the first string.

The reserve material is near perfect. J. C. (Cotton) Meyers, J. R. (Jackrabbit) Smith, big Bob Finley, Charles (Jakie) Gore, James Russell, Bob Turner are tried veterans. Two sophomores, Laddie Labruzzo and Henry Guynes, add to the wealth of reserve backfield material.

His line, Coach Bell thinks now, will stand up this way: Maco Stewart and Bill Tipton, ends; Maurice Orr and Truman Spain, tackles; J. C. (Iron Man) Wetsel and Billy Stamps, guards; Arthur Johnson, center.

Three Captains

Eleven lettermen could start any game, with eleven more ready on the bench.

The coaching staff presents an entirely new set-up. Besides Bell, elevated to head coach from his line duties of last season, are Vic Hurt and Charlie Trigg.

Three captains will lead the Mustangs—Stewart, Shuford and Wetsel.

Matty thinks his Mustangs should rank with Rice, Texas Christian and Texas as one of the four leaders in the conference race, with any one of these teams having "an outside chance of winning the title."

Southern Methodist finished in [illegible] three victories, one tie and two defeats — the latter at the hands of Rice and the lowly Baylor Bears.

Game Wardens To Aid In Enforcing U. S. Dove Laws

Although they won't arrest violaters of federal game laws, such as the law in regard to shooting mourning doves before the season opens Sept. 21, state game wardens will assist in enforcing the laws, B. V. Bollinger, chief clerk in the state game, fish, and oyster commission office at Austin, has informed Ed Allen, Lubbock county clerk.

The federal season opens at 7 a. m. Sept. 21 and shooting is permissible from that hour until sunset January 5, 1936.

Mr. Allen wrote asking information concerning the conflict of state and federal shooting laws, the state season having begun on Sept. 1.

The National league pro football season opens Friday night, September 13, with the Pittsburgh Pirates, piloted by the new coach, Joe Bach, meeting the Philadelphia Eagles at Temple stadium.

Here's Madison Bell who sends his aerial tricksters of Southern Methodist university today through their initial training session of the football season.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Sept. 10. (AP)—Manager Jackie Reid said "we have high hopes of winning the series" as he nominated James "Red" Lynn to hurl for Jacksonville against the Pine Bluff judges here in the second game of the Little Dixie series tonight.

Allred To Require Water Agreement

AUSTIN, Sept. 10. (AP)—Governor Allred has indicated he would require an agreement among Texas [illegible] according on a proposed Pecos river water division compact with New Mexico.

"Those people ought to get together before they ask me to pass on it," he said.

The governor said his decision would await additional protesting data from J. E. Starley, counsel for the Red Bluff dam project in Pecos county. Lee Bilberry of Barstow, representing the Ward county water district, had urged acceptance.

The governor said Starley took two positions. First, he contended the agreement was unenforcible because of vagueness. The attorney general held otherwise. Secondly, the governor said Starley argued the agreement would give to New Mexico waters to which Texas was entitled.

BOY, oh, boy. Is The Plainsman stuck up today. Oh, boy! He has joined up with that 99 9 percent of our male citizenship of 26 years or over who has been suggested as a possible candidate for the senate. (You gotta be 26 before you can run.)

Yes, sir. A fellow asked The Plainsman why he didn't run for the senate in the forthcoming special election on Saturday, September 28.

Doubtless by tomorrow morning, when your humble servant sneaks out on the front porch in his pajamas to get the paper, there will be a great throng of people there in the yard, beating drums and carrying signs reading "We MUST have The Plainsman"!

Yep. Whenever anybody is suggested as a possible candidate for public office—whether he's suggested by himself or by someone just trying to make conversation—he immediately hears the call of the peepul.

Here's the one and only reason why The Plainsman isn't going to capitulate to the suggestion that he don political armor and rush to Austin to make West Texas safe for the present and future generations:

He'd rather guess what people think about him than find out when the votes are counted!

VIC LAMB, editor of the Abernathy Review, looked at The Plainsman's notorious 7-months old bulldog, 'Deadline', sometimes known as 'public enemy No. 1', and remarked:

"Why don't you put a motragage on him? He looks like he could carry one!"

To which we blushingly admit he's the only thing we have without a mortgage on it!

Perhaps you didn't notice it but scores of people, upon hearing of the attack made upon the life of Huey Long, shrugged their shoulders and said:

"I'm not surprised. I've been looking for something like that for a long time."

IT is between 4 and 5 a. m. any day in Lubbock. The air is fresher and cooler than at any other time around the clock. There is no noise except for an occasional passing car, but one is surprised there are so many out so early. Are they just coming in, or are they going out?

There is no hint of daybreak but there are lights in the Conley building, where cleaner-uppers are doing their chores. One or two rooms in the Hilton and Lubbock hotels bespeak of early risers there. Traveling men with long drives ahead of them, maybe, or tourists getting an early start for another day's trek.

Delivery trucks are lined up before the bakeries, being loaded for trips into the territory.

A belated truck rolls into town on Avenue H, probably having come from Ft. Worth or Dallas since night fell.

The city's white ways shine bravely and here and there a dim light shows from a residence where maybe a colicky baby has asserted himself.

Most drivers do not stop at stop signs but they are wary at intersections because each figures some fellow will figure there is no one near and will roar through an intersection or make a wide corner swing.

The all night cafes have a few stragglers and weary waiters and waitresses shovel out "ham 'an" with a slug of tomato juice before.

Down at Wylie-Jarrett's drug and food emporium the sage of the counter, E. Omar Griffin, is putting his slack time to good use by running long loaves of bread through a mechanical slicer in preparation for the breakfast business.

He works 13 hours a day, 365 days in the year, and is combination pharmacist, cook and what-have-you from about 2 a. m. on. He knows a lot of things he won't tell, because he sees plenty. But he has crisp general comments on the affairs of the day if you get him strung out.

IT'S a lot of fun looking Lubbock over, in a leisurely fashion, in the larger of the wee sma' hours, with the whirr of the city street sweeper in your ears.

But it's not much fun getting up early enough to do it—or staying up all night in preparation for an extra on Huey Long's activities as a moving target.

Ask The Plainsman. He knows.

Joan Crawford's Eyes Have Been Fixed On Fame Goal Since Childhood; Toiled As Waitress To Pay For Her Education

A long, rough trail is the road to screen stardom and fascinating are the life stories of actors and actresses who have won their way to the top. In a series of 12 stories, of which this is the first, a dozen of the greatest celluloid stars tell of their struggles toward fame, writing the stories of their careers in their own words.

BY

Joan Crawford

At the moment, I feel very much like the girl in the film, "Biography of a Bachelor Girl."

Remember? She was asked to write the story of her life and didn't know how to begin. "You were born, weren't you?" the editor said sternly. "Begin with that!"

So, also having been asked to write the story of my life, I shall begin with that.

I was born, then, in San Antonio, in the two-fisted state of Texas. You needn't know what year, although my birthday is March 23. I was promptly nicknamed "Billie," heaven knows why. My name was, until the screen changed it, Lucille Le Sueur.

I remember nothing about San Antonio, because we moved to Lawton, Okla., when I was 6 months old. I was reared there, in a rambling brown house on a tree-shaded street. My father was a theater operator and it was in his theater that I first determined to become a dancer.

Tomboy In Oklahoma

While still in pigtails, I was considered a tomboy in Lawton because I prefered playing with boys. They were more imaginative and more enthusiastic about the "actor-shows" we staged in a big barn behind the house.

The outstanding memory of my childhood is painful. I was hurrying to play one day when I cut my foot, deep, on a piece of jagged glass. We all went barefoot in Lawton. I barely escaped lockjaw and for a time it seemed that I might never walk correctly again, let alone dance.

About a year later we moved to Kansas City. I was placed in a convent. I hated it at first, then came to like it. I had been there a year when my mother and father separated.

It was arranged that I should remain in the convent, earning my way by helping in the kitchen and serving at the table. I think this sort of social blow is harder for a child than for an adult.

Works For Education

When I left the convent about a year later, I continued this means of "getting educated" at a private school, then late at Stevens College at Columbia, Mo. I liked the college, I had become accustomed to the work, and carrying trays made me appreciate the occasional dance permitted the girls. Intent on dancing professionally (I had won several school cups by this time), I left college and found a full-time job in a Kansas City department store.

Living with my mother, saving every penny possible, I managed to accumulate a small wardrobe. I rehearsed ballroom dancing whenever I could. I was determined to go on the stage. Finally, a theatrical producer booked me for a show in the middlewest.

It must have looked pretty tawdry to a dance-wise audience, but it was a new life for me. We straggled on, in the way theatrical troupes have, with a new hope for every disappointment and somehow a new engagement for every "resting" period.

In time I found myself in Detroit (always nearer New York, you see), dancing in the chorus of a rather good cafe.

Gets New York Chance

Fortunately a Broadway producer, in town to try out "Innocent Eyes," a new show, was a patron one night. When "Innocent Eyes" opened in New York, I was with it, an anonymous "pony" in the back line.

Soon I was in the front line, then earning extra money by "doubling" in a night club after the show.

I was lonely, though, and about to visit my mother in Kansas City again, when Harry Rapf, an M-G-M executive, offered me a screen test. The result was a contract; not, of course, as an important player, but as a girl capable of dancing and playing bits.

The rest is a long story, chronologically; a saga of hard work, excitement, more hard work, and more elation. It closes with the picture finished just the other day, titled "I Live My Life," directed by W. S. Van Dyke and with Brian Aherne gracing what we call the "male lead."

Grateful for Success

Between pauses in these paragraphs I've decided it's a good idea to put one's life on paper. I realize again I have a good deal to be grateful for, and I am grateful.

Report or rumor notwithstanding, I genuinely like the motion picture business. It is my whole life. I hope it continues to be for a long while.

MR. FISH AND HIS DALLAS VISIT

Hamilton Fish, jr., Republican congressman from President Roosevelt's home district, will address the Dallas Young Republicans' forum in the East Texas city's municipal auditorium Thursday night. Mr. Fish, who has been in congress continuously since 1919, comes to Dallas fresh from a debate with Socialist Upton Sinclair, in California, and doubtless the famous "red baiter" will draw a crowd of several times as many persons as there are Young Republicans in Texas.

Mr. Fish is not "just happening to visit Texas" to speak to Young Republicans, although publicity concerning his appearance is to that effect. What he is doing in Texas is what he has been doing in other states—checking up on the political situation and doing what he can to aid his one-man drive for the GOP Presidential nomination.

Mr. Fish wants to run for President fully as much as his fellow New Yorker, Ogden Reid, and has fully as much chance—which is none at all—to get the nomination. The best he can hope for is second place on the ticket, and, if he's thinking straight, has not much hope for that.

The Journal hopes Mr. Fish will catch the real tempo of the average Texan, from a political angle, while he is in Dallas—if it is possible to catch it in a city which cannot, under any stretch of imagination, be considered typically Texan.

But if he does he'll go back home and tell the silk-stockinged New York GOP that all the stuff they've been putting out about Texas being "off" Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic party is just plain hokum and hooey.

Dutchers' News And Views OF WASHINGTON

Dutcher

(Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—No one will ever know how much of the agonized shriek here following the first cotton loan announcement was due to concern for the cotton growers and how much of it was inspired by the grief of speculators.

But Roosevelt and the AAA chiefs had their suspicions, and rumors have reached epidemic proportions.

There's no law requiring politicians to reveal the extent to which they're in the cotton market or in any other market. And it's considered poor form to ask.

Nor are the close associations between some senators and cotton manufacturers and brokers as matter of public record, though it would be a darned interesting record if they were—especially now.

But it's known that a lot of folks had to dig up margin money in a hurry when the market broke 83 points the morning after it was learned the loan rate was to be 9 cents instead of 12.

Whether or not any senators were in that position, some friends of senators certainly were long on cotton, having believed senatorial assurances that the loan rate would stay at 12. Many cotton mill men had been here lobbying for the 12-cent loan—which meant a pegged price—and either had unhedged stocks and inventories or were long on futures.

Southern senators and lobbyists yelled murder, predicting "blow to the farmer" and dire political consequences and held up Congress until the White House granted a "compromise." But the AAA, knowing that very few farmers held any cotton at this time and having promised to subsidie growers up to a guaranteed return of 12 cents a pound couldn't see how the farmer would be hurt.

The "compromise," providing a 10-cent loan and a more equitable subsidy method as between growers, is still expected to achieve the AAA objective of a free cotton market and the unloading of some 1,500,000 more bales of surplus cotton on the world market than could have been done under the 12-cent loan policy.

Strangely enough, it left the speculators still holding the bag.

Still In A Fog

Most of the explanations you've read of the Soviet note incident are true. Roosevelt decided to protest after cabled reports seemed to give Mr. Hearst and the Republicans a chance to assert that F. D. had been endorsed by a prominent delegate at the Communist International. (The real gist of Dimitroff's remarks at Moscow was that Roosevelt's conservative enemies were more likely to create an American Fascism than was Roosevelt.)

International affairs experts here are doing a lot of hair-splitting as they discuss the facts of the quarrel, but once again, to insiders at least, there stands out the fact that Litvinov and Roosevelt have boken all records for misunderstandings subsequent to a secret diplomatic conference.

Neither government has ever publicly admitted these disagreements as to what was actually promised in the sub rosa negotiations leading up to Russian recognition but they exist:

1. Russia says we promised a loan and we say we didn't.
2. We say Russia promised to settle her debts and she says she merely promised to discuss them.
3. We say Litvinov promised to curb Third International activities in the United States and the Russians say he didn't.

Our diplomats tell you behind the door that a favorite Russian expression is "yes-yes," used in a way that doesn't mean anything. On the other hand, there's frequent complaint that one of Mr. Roosevelt's favorite expressions is "yes-yes," which similarly means merely that he is paying attention.

Once there was a president who said something about "open covenants openly arrived at." But nobody ever took him up on it.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN, finishing her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo hunts a job and secures part time work in a marine supply store. There she meets wealthy, handsome DOUGLAS MARSH who offers her the job of hostess at his inn at Crest Lake. Jo accepts. This causes a quarrel with BRET PAUL to whom she is engaged and Jo breaks the engagement.

She goes to Crest Lake. Her duties are pleasant but Marsh's eccentric mother takes a dislike to the girl. BABS MONTGOMERY, a school acquaintance who is jealous of Jo's popularity, comes to the inn. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, and his wife are also guests.

FRAGONET takes Jo out in a sailboat. There is an accident and she narrowly escapes drowning. Next day Fragonet comes to see her. He tells Jo he loves her, takes her in his arms. MRS. FRAGONET and MRS. MARSH witness this scene and accuse Jo of encouraging Fragonet's attentions.

Fragonet goes to Hollywood, promising to return soon. Jo discovers that Bret Paul is the new life guard at Crest Lake. She and Bret have a talk, but the rift between them remains.

Jo, on her way to the inn, encounters Marsh.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Well," smiled Marsh, "it's nice to see you able to be about, Jo—and you're looking remarkably fit, too."

Jo held out her hand. "You've no idea how nice it is," she laughed. "I'm afraid I've been a great deal more trouble than you bargained for."

"Nonsense! These things will happen sometimes."

"I don't mean . . . just the accident out on the lake," Jo said, her voice serious now.

He met her eyes squarely for a moment. "Look here, Jo, let's have a little talk about things, shall me?" He rubbed his chin uncomfortably. "I want to rid myself of this hunting beard, and you'll want to change, no doubt. Suppose we meet down by the garage in half an hour or so?"

Jo nodded, relieved that she was to know where Marsh stood. And perhaps he could help her, too, with Fragonet. If she stayed on at Crest Lake until the actor returned there might be further awkward situations, Jo well knew.

When she reached her rooms she telephoned Tubby that the tennis game was off. "The boss wants a conference with me," she told Tubby lightly, "so I'll postpone my challenge until tomorrow—if I'm still here."

"That's all right with me," Tubby said. "And don't worry. You'll be here, all right."

Marsh was running his car from the garage just as Jo appeared, having changed her swim suit for a gay cotton print that revealed her lovely tanned shoulders and not a little of her enviable back.

"Sure you won't need a wrap?" Marsh asked. "It gets rather cool along these forest roads, and I thought we might have dinner at the Lone Tree Tavern. It'll be a welcome change for you, after being cooped up in your room for so long."

"Well . . . " Jo hesitated, thinking of the thin cotton frock.

"I'll drive by the steps of the Inn and have Tom bring you something. I've a leather jacket that'll be just the thing."

A toot from Marsh's horn brought the smiling Oriental who was quickly dispatched for the leather jacket and half a minute later the little green roadster was climbing valiantly toward the knoll above the Inn.

Marsh drove in silence, and Jo wondered how to begin the questions which were tossing around in her head. Finally, to her immense relief, Marsh himself asked a question which opened the subject that was worrying her most.

"Did Pete Fragonet bother you while I was gone?" he asked.

Jo shook her head. "No . . . he wrote me a note just before he left for Hollywood."

Marsh chuckled reminiscently. "He promised me he wouldn't try to see you. But I had to promise, too!" He turned to her, smiling. "He seems really to be in love with you, Jo."

"He imagines that he is," she replied, "and for the time being that makes it just as difficult as if he were."

"Then you don't love him?" Marsh asked.

"No . . ."

DEATH CLAIMS HUEY LONG

LOUISIANA SENATOR'S CAREER ENDED BY YOUNG ASSASSIN

and were private.

Mrs. Jack Ducournau, a niece, gave another version of the senator's last act before he lost consciousness. He sent for Mrs. Long, who had left the room, she said, and as she walked in, he exclaimed:

"Here comes my sweetheart. Where are all the children? I love all of you."

Governor O. K. Allen, who was tearful as he emerged from the death chamber, said the senator wondered "what will happen to my poor university boys." The senator made himself the particular patron of the football team of the University of Louisiana.

"I Want To Live"

Fighting determinedly, Long also told Seymour Weiss, a close friend and treasurer of the Long organization, at the bedside.

"I want to live."

The body was sent to a funeral home.

Christenberry said the body of the senator would lie in state in the five-million-dollar capitol which was erected when he was governor and in which he was shot. Other arrangements awaited a conference in the office of Governor Allen.

Relatives At Bedside

At the bedside besides Mrs. Long and the children, Governor Allen and Christenberry, were the senator's sisters, Mrs. W. M. Knott and Mrs. Stewart Hunt, and their husbands; his brothers, Dr. G. S. Long, Julius and Earl and the latter's wife; his father, Dr. Roy Long, and several cousins.

The fifth blood transfusion which the physicians attempted to administer to Senator Long never was completed. At 3 a. m. Dr. Sanderson announced there there no longer was any hope.

"He is dying," he said.

The end was only little more than an hour away then and the physicians had abandoned their battle against death.

Allen Makes Announcement

Governor Allen made the official death announcement. His voice was husky and barely audible.

"This marks with the death of Huey P. Long the passing of the greatest builder of economics in the history of Louisiana in 225 years," he said. "It also marks with the death of Huey P. Long the passing of the greatest hero for the common right of all the people of America."

Troops Guard Hospital

While Long and his physicians fought for his life, the roads around the hospital were barred by troops and police who swarmed over all Baton Rouge, a multiplication of the guard which failed to save him in the statehouse.

The legislature met yesterday and ground out the senator's bills. One of them gerrymandered the political bailiwick of District Judge B. H. Pavy, the assassin Weiss' father-in-law. Guards searched all for weapons. The senate met briefly last night and sent the bills to its finance after a minister implored a diety "too wise to err" to save the senator.

Inquest Postponed

The parish coroner started an inquest into the death of Dr. Weiss, but postponed it because only two witnesses testified. He said he might have to close the inquest because he was powerless to make the senator's guards, slayers of the assassin, appear.

During the night, after hope for his life had been abandoned, the senator's political lieutenants held conferences on the future of his vast political organization.

The conferees included Governor Allen, Seymour Weiss, Abe Shushan, director of the levee board; Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe, Speaker Allen Vellender of the house of representatives and George Wallace, Long's legislative aid.

Allen Is First

At the top in the order of succession is Governor Allen.

But "O. K." has never cared much for politics. He "trucked" along with Long because Long wanted him to; they'd been friends since boyhood. The sum substance of Allen's regime as governor approximated this: Long had to have a titular head of the state government so he made Allen governor. Allen last night said he would retire after the current term.

It was a tense night vigil about the hospital as Long's strength ebbed. Traffic was diverted. Unless visitors had special permits they had no chance to get through the heavy guard and to the hospital. The doctors, for the most part, were closemouthed about the struggle.

Now and then an attendant or a nurse dropped a word to indicate how things were going. The first real alarm among the watchers came at 7 p. m., when a serious sinking spell was reported unofficially. Up to that time not even the necessity for a second blood transfusion at noon yesterday could dim the hope that the senator's enormous vitality would pull him through.

An hour and a half after the sinking spell was reported one of the doctors said: "The senator is holding his own."

But shortly later the alarmed physicians ordered blood tests for another transfusion. An oxygen tank was rushed in and it was learned an oxygen tent had been taken in earlier. The transfusion was completed at midnight.

A little while later the senator became delirious and then intermittently unconscious. He was sinking fast.

Word came out of the sick room that there was no longer any hope. Then the physicians gave up.

They sat back and awaited, what they knew was inevitable.

DAILY MARKETS

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, 5 to 10 higher in response to steadier Liverpool cables and on trade buying. Oct. 10.49; Dec. 10.50; Jan. 10.55; March 10.58; May 10.64; July 10.66.

Liverpool was reported a fairly good buyer during early trading and while the volume of business tapered off later offerings were light and prices held generally steady. At mid-day Oct. was selling around 10.51 and May 10.66, or about 9 to 13 points net higher.

There appeared to be comparatively few selling orders from the south at the start, and the market held steady after the call on continued buying from the trade, coupled with a scattering demand from foreign and local sources.

Reports of rains in the south likely further to delay the movement probably contributed to the steadiness of the market which was up to 10.51 for Oct and 10.66 for May shortly after the opening, or about 8 to 10 points net higher.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10. (AP)—Cotton opened higher today, gaining from 3 to 7 ponits at the first call and then running up a few points in early dealings.

Better cables and a feeling abroad that the government crop report issued Monday was more bullish than the interpretation given it in local markets brought light buying into the market.

Oct. opened at 10.39, then ran up to 10.44, Dec. sold at 10.42 at the first call and shortly after reached 10.46, while May sold at 10.58 in early dealings.

Another factor that aided the upturn at the start of trading and held during the morning was unwanted rains in practically every section of the belt.

At one time during the morning gains ranged to around half a dollar a bale, but profit-taking set in and prices eased from their highs.

Oct. held around 10.44 and Dec. at 10.43 during the morning.

Gains were held until the final gong and the market ended steady, 10 to 12 points higher.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Sept. 10. (AP)—The wheat market had a firm tone early today, scattered selling on fractional bids being easily absorbed. Attention was called to the fact that wheat price gains in three other principal world markets ranged from 7-8 to 1 7-8 cents more than the net advance here since the first of the month.

Opening unchanged to 3-8 higher, Dec. 93 3-8 to 1-2, wheat later fluctuated around this level. Corn started 1-2 lower to 3-8 up, Dec 58 7-8 to 56, and then scored fractional gains.

Wheat closed 1-8 off to 5-8 higher compared with the previous finish, December 93 1-2@5-8, and corn was 1-4@1 1-8 up, December 56 7-8@57. Oats gained 1-8@7-8, rye 3-4@7-8, and barley was unchanged to 1-2 lower. Provisions were higher.

CHICAGO CASH GRAIN

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 10. (AP)—The stock market spent much of its time today demonstrating its ability to skid around sharp turns without piling up in the ditch.

Profit-takers were in the majority during the early part of the proceedings and prices of some of the recent outstanding gainers stepped back fractions to around a point or so. Brokers had expected a sizable techincal correction and were either disappointed or pleased that it proved of minor proportions. The activity was not pronounced.

Bonds, generally, were no more than steady. Leading foreign exchanges were a bit better in terms of the dollar.

There was a heavy turnover in the low-priced Packard and Reo Motor shares at small advances. Hudson and Nash also got up a point or so each, but Chrysler and General Motors were only about even.

Columbian Carbon and Western Union yielded a point, while American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, U. S. Steel, and Northern Pacific were easier. Many issues were unchanged.

U. S. Smelting sank to a new low for the year and the other metals sagged in the first hour. These came back smartly, however, when directors of Howe Sound voted an extra dividend of 30 cents a share

Notice of grants of $50,000 for Lubbock and Crosbyton schools and of $67,000 for a stadium at Texas Technological college were received Monday at PWA offices in Fort Worth after recent approval by President Roosevelt, said the Associated Press.

The projects are among 47 approved in Texas for a total of $10,218,880, of which thirty are for grants, totalling $4,762,072, and 17 for loans and grants, $5,456,817.

A loan portion o fthe Texas Technological college stadium proposal has not been acted on, it was announced.

level in these declarations, it might be presumed the G. O. P. proposed, in the absurd event of the fulfillment of its fantastic hopes for next year, to repeal all these enactments which excite them to such vehemence. Curiously enough, no such threat or promise appears in any of the statements."

Who Would Advocate?

Farley declared the Republicans "complain" about relief expenditures, and asked: "Which of them would advocate the cancelling of the relief appropriations and the restoration of freedom to starve unhampered to the millions of people without employment or other resource."

Farley asked if Senator Dickinson would favor dropping the AAA program, and said; "the voters of Iowa will, if I am anything of a political prophet, take care of the Dickinson senatorship, not to speak of his presidential aspirations."

He also said it would be "equally interesting" if Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the G. O. P. national committee "who has occasionally been accused of an ambition to be senator from Pennsylvania, should demand repeal of the Guffey coal bill which has been hailed by the miners of his state as the Magna Charta of labor in the coal industry."

South Plains People Plan To Make Trip

At least eight men from Matador will be on the football special train leaving Lubbock Oct. 23 for the Tech-Loyola game in Los Angeles, E. Kancher, division passenger agent of the Santa Fe, said this morning.

"I was over there the other day and eight men told me they planned to make the trip," Mr. Kancher said. "There may be some more.

"Jim Cloud, county judge at Dickens and a Tech graduate, said he and his wife planned to go and that there would be three others from Dickens. There will also be some from Spur, I am sure."

Many inquiries are being received by the division office in response to several hundred personal letters mailed out.

CORN-HOG CHECKS RECEIVED HERE

Checks, numbering 463 and amounting to $10,659.30, were received yesterday by County Agent C. C. Jobson and distribution began at once. Notices were mailed recipients. The checks were the first payment for reduction of hogs and the corn acreage for 1935.

Averaging $23.02, the checks represented hog payments of $7.50 per head, or $10,447.50 and 15 cents a bushed or $211.80. They were for farmers who signed contracts last year. This year's contracts number 539.

James Bishop has charge of distribution of the checks.

"The payment is on a 10 per cent reduction by farmers who contracted to reduce," Mr. Bishop said. "Each contractor was given a base of production and paid for reducing one tenth."

No indication was given as to when the new contract checks will be received. Second payment is not expected by Mr. Bishop until probably January 1, next.

Notices to those receiving checks were mailed yesterday.

Lubbock CCC Ball Team Is Loser In Bi-District Game

The junior baseball team from Concan and the veteran baseball team from Troy will play in the state Civilian Conservation corps finals, it was learned here today. They will meet the two winning teams from the Fort Worth, Lufkin, and Tyler districts.

The veteran team from the Lubbock company and the junior nine from Big Spring were defeated in bi-district matches with Troy and Concan at Buffalo Gap, near Abilene, Sunday.

Results Of Drive To Be Announced

Number of members secured during the past two weeks in a drive by the Allen Brothers Post 148 of the American Legion will be announced at a meeting in Legion hall Friday night, said W. H. Walm, chairman of the campaign, Monday afternoon. Other important matters concerning the drive will be discussed, and all veterans were urged to be present.

Four squadrons, headed by Wiley Metcalfe, J. A. Raley, jr., Fred Higbee and Riley Huie, are each in charge of five flight commanders who are contesting for first place in the contest to secure members.

Give Further Aid

"If the drive is carried to a successful conclusion, it will mean that this post will be able to give further aid in hospitalization of veterans, in caring for indigent families of veterans by supplying food, medical care, and other necessities, in providing Christmas baskets for all the needy veterans families, and in doing other charity work of the legion," Mr. Waln said.

"It is especially urged that each veteran see that his wife's auxiliary dues are paid," Mr. Waln stated. "The post and the auxiliary units work together in giving aid to veterans and families of veterans."

Examinations For Typists Scheduled

The United States Civil Service commission will give an examination for male stenographers and typists in Lubbock some date after Sept. 20, according to announcement from the 10th district headquarters at New Orleans.

"We have enough females on our eligible lists", the announcement states.

Lubbock is one of a score of towns in Texas and Louisiana where the examinations are to be held. Copies of the requirements may be had from the local civil service secretary.

Rehearing Motion In Case Is Denied

Motion for rehearing in the appeal of Lubbock Hotel company against Lubbock Independent school district was denied yesterday by the court of civil appeals at Amarillo.

The school district sued for delinquent taxes and in 99th district court here June 19, 1933, received a judgment for $12,808.19. The hotel company appealed. On April 28, this year, the court affirmed the district court judgment.

L. A. Howard and S. E. Marbut of Lubbock and J. L. Goggans of Dallas represented the company, Clyde P. Elkins the school district.

DALLAS INVENTOR DEVISES METHOD OF SUBSTITUTING GAS WITH WATER AS FUEL IN INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINES

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Sept. 10.—C. H. Garrett, Dallas inventor, gave a private demonstration Saturday of a recently-patented contrivance which he said substituted water for gasoline as fuel for internal combustion engines.

He said it broke up the water by electrolysis into its component gases, oxygen and hydrogen, using the highly-explosive hydrogen for fuel in the motor cylinder.

Operates Small Engine

The working model operated a four-cylinder engine for several minutes in the demonstration, at varying speeds and with several starts and stops. Garrett said he had operated the engine continuously for more than 48 hours.

The inventor said the idea itself was not new. He explained that difficulty had been encountered heretofore in attempts to store the dangerously inflammable hydrogen. He claimed to have avoided that trouble by making and exploding the gas in the same process, without a storage chamber to which the flames from the motor cylinders might reach.

Water Broken Down

Water, he explained, is broken down into its component gases by passage of an electric current through it from electrodes immersed in the water. Hydrogen collects at the negative pole and oxygen at the positive. The hydrogen, Garrett said, is mixed with air and introduced directly into the cylinders.

The inventor said he had been working on the device for eight years, assisted by his father, Henry Garrett, traffic signal engineer for the city of Dallas, inventor of the traffic signal system now in use here and holder of several patents on such contrivances.

Garrett said attachment of the electrolytic carburetor and installation of a generator of about double normal capacity to furnish power for the breaking down of the water were the only changes needed to convert a gasoline burning automobile into a water-burner. He said the electrolysis chamber would have to vary in size with the size of the motor used, one of about a quart capacity being big enough for the ordinary automobile.

He claimed instantaneous starting in any weather, elimination of fire hazards, cooler motor operation, and fulfilling of all motor requirements in power and speed.

POLITICS PUZZLE

portant to the present administration. Notable among these latter were Senators Joseph Robinson of Arkansas and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

Opposed Robinson

"He won't be back," Long once said bluntly of Robinson. He was credited largely with the election to the senate of Mrs. Hattie Caraway to succeed her late husband in Arkansas two years ago.

Similarly at various times during his speeches in the senate he singled out Harrison and Senator Bailey (D-NC) and less emphatically Senator McKellar (D-Tenn) as foemen who would not "be back."

Tongue Had Popular Appeal

The popular appeal of his facile tongue might be in part measured by his tremendous drawing power in Washington and at other places where he spoke.

He packed senate galleries as did no other speaker, and the end of his talks occasioned a mass departure, the noise of which at times interrupted business for several minutes.

"The show is over, you can go now," Vice President Garner once remarked as the exodus began at the end of one of Long's speeches.

Planned To Fight FDR

The speeches repeatedly told how he would go up and down the land with his sound truck to fight Roosevelt next year. Continually he hammered at cabinet members, more especially at Postmaster General Farley and Secretary Ickes whom he styled the "chinch bug of Chicago."

Bitterly he accused Ickes and Relief Administrator Hopkins of employing FERA and PWA funds at the request of the administration to undermine him in Louisiana. He accused Farley of manipuplating the award of public building contracts to friendly construction firms and laid before the senate a mass of data he claimed proved his charges. He was unable to bring about an investigation.

Early in his senatorial career he began building up an nationwide political organization.

Compared As Phenomenon

Frequently he was held up along with Father Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit as an oratorical phenomenon whose popularity sprung from the depression.

Long had been a figure of importance in Louisiana years before the depression struck, however, and had comparative youth and great vigor—he was in his early forties—to carry him through many years of political life.

Almost no one questioned the certainty of his own re-election next year, and he shrewdly had the state primary date moved forward to early in 1936 so as to free his hands for what ever strokes he planned to deliver against his foes later on.

HIGHLIGHTS IN LONG'S LIFE

(By The Associated Press)

Highlights in the career of Huey Pierce Long:

Born August 30, 1893, on a modest farm in Winnfield, La., the seventh child in a family of nine.

At 16, deserted his family's cotton farm for the road, leaving high school to become a traveling salesman of cooking utensils.

At 19, arrested in Shreveport, accused of being involved in a shooting scrape; cleared by an alibi of Rose McConnell, who proved he was in a theater with her.

Married At 20

At 20, married Miss McConnell, who bore him two sons and a daughter.

In ten months of intense cramming, finished a law course at Tulane university and in 1915 was admitted to the bar, passing a special examination.

Three years later elected to the Louisiana State board of railroad commissioners, the start of his political career.

Foe Of Standard Oil

Almost immediately began the legal fight that made him forever a foe of the Standard Oil company, winning a case for independent oil companies before the public service commission.

At 30, ran unsuccessfully for governor of Louisiana; elected governor four years later, in 1928.

His campaign to oust political foes caused a storm that in 1929 brought impeachment proceedings in the legislature, which he defeated in a close battle by one senate vote.

Elected To Senate

In 1930, was elected to the senate on a Democratic ticket, simultaneously consolidating his political control of Louisiana by engineering the gubernatorial election of O. K. Allen.

In 1932, headed a Democratic committee to the national convention in Chicago and supported Roosevelt.

In January of this year, declared martial law in Louisiana to quell a political revolt growing out of his state tax program; capitulation of his opponents narrowly averted exttensive bloodshed.

On August 15, in New York, declared he would run for president in 1936 as an independent liberal if the Democrats nominated Roosevelt and the Republicans Herbert Hoover.

sessions; for 214,024; against 238,258.

McCraw said he was studying the question of liquor advertising and would give an opinion soon. The chief problem is the circulation in dry counties of periodicals carrying liquor advertisements.

"You can't overlook the fact that periodicals from outside the state with such advertisements have been circulating all over Texas," McCraw said.

DR. KNAPP IN FORT WORTH TO TALK OVER PWA APPLICATIONS WITH CHIEF

Dr. Bradford Knapp, Texas Technological college president, left Monday evening for Fort Worth to confer with Julian Montgomery, acting state PWA director, in interest of applications for projects at the college. Three college projects were included in a list of 128 applications which have been rejected, according to official notice from Washington, the Associated Press reported.

The figure for 15 applications from Lubbock and its surrounding area was $1,356,134, of which amount applications from Texas Technological college totaled $730,000.

Projects disapproved on the cost-per-man-year basis included:

Texas Technological college recreation building, $300,000 loan and grant.

Texas Technological college men's dormitory, $350,000 loan and grant.

Texas Technological college dairy building, $80,000 loan and grant.

Lubbock school building, $25,000 grant.

New Deal rural high school, Lubbock county, school buildings, $32,727 grant.

Frenship rural school, Lubbock county, school building, $25,600 grant.

Bledsoe independent school district, building, $20,000 loan and grant.

Muleshoe, sanitary sewers, $32,400 loan and grant.

Anton, community center, $13,200 loan and grant.

Anton, waterworks system, $21,500 loan and grant.

Dickens county, courthouse, $85,000 loan and grant.

Tahoka independent school district, $32,622 grant.

Yoakum county, lateral highway construction, $10,000 loan and grant.

City of Post, dam highway, bathhouse, $192,485 loan and grant.

Olton, school building, $135,000 loan and grant.

Ninety-five of the 128 state applications rejected were turned down because of the high-man-year labor costs, the other 33 because of the small amount of relief labor in the projected areas, Mr. Montgomery was informed in an official notice from the national capital.

the City of New Orleans, which Long controlled, and still others care for odds and ends.

The house passed the bills yesterday and sent them to the senate where they were referred to the finance committee for favorable approval this morning.

Going back to the senate at 2 p. m. today they are scheduled to be passed to third reading for passage Wednesday morning.

SHIP OF STATE

are the toga of Long will fall but that will be determined in faction caucus later. Whether any one of these can hold the gigantic and all embracing racks laid down by the redoubtable Huey remains to be seen. There was only one Huey Long.

The death of Long also aroused the anti-Long politicians. They are out to catch up any political material that may drift away from the Long faction camp.

Long's death may reunite the old regulars in the City of New Orleans headed by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, most of whose followers deserted to the ranks of Huey Long after the Long controlled legislature had driven the city into virtual bankruptcy. Long died just as he was driving through measures that would restore revenue to New Orleans after the old regulars had capitulated.

Long's death came at an embarrassing time for his machine as he was greasing the mechanism for an election in January that would include his candidacy for re-election to the United States senate, the election of national representatives, the governor and other state officers. He had announced he would defeat his opponents for re-election to the house of representatives and that he would sweep his entire slate into office.

Maybe Long would have, as he had done before, but there is no leader left in his organization who can drive as swiftly and as cunningly as Huey could in the saddle. His death gave great courage to his political opponents, who were split into several factions, one reason for Long's ascent to power.

There was talk Governor Allen would resign the governorship and accept appointment from Noe as United States senator in succession to Long but Allen said last night that when his term as Governor expired next spring he would retire to private life and never accept public office.

Nothing in the direction of reorganization of the Long machine was expected until after Long's funeral. However, there was one thing certain—there will not be another dictator of Louisiana of the Long ilk. There was only one Huey. After him, they broke the mould.

protected Ethiopian servants on the ground that they had not received orders from the capital to permit such natives to depart. Most of these natives were Eritreans.

Apprehensive for the safety of his nationals, the Belgian minister asked the government for a police escort for those wishing to come to Addis Ababa. There are 28 Belgians and other Europeans listed as employes of Belgian coffee plantations in different parts of the country.

Wanted Special Guard

The emperor's refusal today was to a request for permission to bring in a detachment of troops as a special legation guard.

(Previously, the Italian legation had asked permission to bring in a detachment of colonial soldiers as a special legation guard, just as the British have brought in colonial troops from India assigned to duty in the legation compound. The British troops have erected bomb-proof shelters).

While the League of Nations is struggling at Geneva for peace, predictions were being made here today, even in official quarters, that Italy would begin war within two weeks when the present rainy seasons ends.

Expected In 15 Days

One minister, who would not permit himself to be quoted, said he expected war in 15 days.

Profound pessimism exists among the foreign diplomats.

Provincial governors today ordered all foreigners in the interior of Ethiopia, including Americans, to come to the capital province for safety.

Twenty-one German women and children left Addis Ababa by train for Djibouti, French Somaliland. Dr. Unverfehrt, the first secretary of the German legation, also departed.

Secretary Leaves

Dr. A. Bazzani, the oriental secretary of the Italian legation who participated in the incident at Ualual last December when numerous Italians and Ethiopians were slain, left Addis Ababa for Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland.

More Ethiopian troops and munitions were dispatched to the northern frontier today when Emperor Haile Selassie became alarmed by reported movements of Italian troops along the border.

The war ministry estimated that 10,000 Italian troops have advanced to positions nearer the frontier.

RESIDENTS WANT OWN COMMUNITY IN SCHOOL CASE

Residents of Harral County Line independent school district who oppose grouping with Shallowater for rural high school purposes wish, they say, to maintain their own community, to send their children to classes there, and to control their brick school building erected in 1926.

So they have procured a temporary restraining order from Judge Clark M. Mullican of 99th district court to prevent Lubbock county school board from grouping them with Shallowater and Hardy. A hearing to determine whether the injunction, granted Sunday, shall be made permanent has been set for Sept. 19.

"If we consolidate with them, it means we've lost our jurisdiction. We like to have our community center where we can have our church and Sunday school."

RESIGNS FOUR TIMES

Supt. R. L. Hooten of Shallowater has resigned and has been re-appointed four times this year—each time by a different school board.

The original Shallowater board employed him. An election in April resulted in re-organization of the trustees. When Hardy entered the district, the county trustees appointed a board to govern the new district. After Shallowater, Hardy, and County Line cast a total vote favoring grouping Saturday, the county board appointed seven trustees to govern that district.

Hooten gave each board an opportunity to release him.

Opposed To Grouping

Wilce Embry, president of the 7-member school board, was not at his home yesterday afternoon. So Fleming was asked to state the attitude of the trustees, all of whom, Fleming said, were opposed to the grouping.

V. A. Cross, superintendent, said that 116 students already had enrolled in grades one through nine. The County Line school was opened Sept. 2, the Hardy and Shallowater schools yesterday.

Have No Voice

If the grouping had not been restrained, County Line would have become an elementary school, with high school students being transported to Shallowater. A 7-member board, composed of three men from Shallowater, two from Hardy, and two from County Line, would control the combined district. The present County Line board, it was explained, would have no voice in the elementary school. About 30 students in the eighth and ninth grades would go to Shallowater, which has 21 units of affiliated credits.

Honors Are Won

Cross pointed out that Almeta Squyres, who finished the tenth grade at County Line in 1933, was honor graduate from Anton high school in 1934. Since that time the tenth grade has been dropped.

County Line, Cross continued, won third place in county debate last year and first place in the county in the one-act play.

Slightly more than 42 sections are in the district, with 22 in Hale county. The building is about 100 yards within Lubbock county, which has handled contracts and vouchers for the district for many years. The fact that a part of the district is in Hale county makes void action of the Lubbock board in including County Line in the district, it has been contended in district court here. That question will be a major one when the injunction hearing is conducted.

Pick Up Students

The Hale county board has authorized a bus to pick up high school students who have transferred to Abernathy and carry them there. Shallowater today was to send a bus into the County Line district to carry nine high school students who have transferred to Shallowater, Supt. R. L. Hooten of Shallowater said. He added that the bus would carry any County Line students who wished from their homes to the County Line building.

Fleming is a tenant farmer, with one child in school, in the sixth grade. He has been living in the community five years.

He estimated that the grouping would cost taxpayers more annually. County Line has about $16,500 in bonded indebtedness, he said. None of that amount is delinquent.

The other rural school in the proposed area is Hardy. It already is grouped with Shallowater for high school purposes.

About 50 students enrolled in grades one through seven yesterday at Hardy, Principal H. A. Cooper said. One room which has been used for high school students is being used as a recreation room. Three other rooms in the brick building, erected in 1926, will be used for classes.

Give Added Income

Shallowater, with a modern building fully equipped, would like to have County Line in its district. It would give added income and enable its high school to procure additional scholastic and extra-curricular recognition. Officials there, however, are not anxious to have County Line brought into the district against its will, it was explained.

There are citizens in County Line community who wish to group the districts. The election, conducted Saturday, was called by the county school board after a petition was presented from County Line district. Those persons said they believed it would be to the advantage of high school students to attend Shallowater school, where they can have vocational agriculture and home economics.

Asked For Transfer

Fifty-one County Line students early last summer asked for transfer to the Shallowater district. Joseph R. Griggs, county superintendent, denied transfers to all except those whose grades were not taught at County Line. Twenty-four County Line school patrons then petitioned the board for the transfers. The petition was defeated, 36 to 16, at County Line, but it carried overwhelmingly in the other two districts.

Shallowater enrollment yesterday was 86 in high school. Superintendent Hooten said. Of that number 22 were from Hardy and seven from County Line. Two other County Line students have transferred to the Shallowater district.

BOOSTERS OF FAIR MAKE AIR JAUNT

A 225-mile sky jaunt in interest of the Panhandle-South Plains fair which opens here Sept. 23 for six days, was completed Monday afternoon after stops at Plains, Tatum, Lovington and Hobbs.

Hobbs school children were gathered, hundreds of them, to hear speeches made by S. E. Cone, Garnet Reeves, Hugh (Bo) Williams, and Mayor Ross Edwards. Some of these had spoken at other visiting places.

Among those who welcomed the flying party were: At Plains, Superintendent of Schools Hayhurst and M. McGinty; at Tatum, W. W. Evans and Miles Morris, county commissioner and publisher, respectively; at Hobbs, Bob Prater, Homer Ramsey, Fred Robbins, C. W. Jobe, Grady Thompson and George White.

One plane did not return with the others, Dick Green's machine blowing out a tire at Plains while taxiing. His passengers, Hal B. Grady and Bill McKinley, returned by automobile rather than crowd passengers of the other three ships. Others on the flight were W. C. Breedlove, A. F. Holt, Clarence Kelly, and Art Chase.

The trip, possibly the only aerial one any Texas fair has employed this year, will be followed by two motorcades, one Wednesday, the other Sept. 17.

friend. Perhaps, this time, Pete is on the level. Why shouldn't you be the one woman he'd fall in love with and want to keep forever? You're young and beautiful, and you—"

Jo interrupted, embarrassed by Marsh's words, "Talking of Fragonet brings up the whole question of whether or not I should stay on here, Mr. Marsh."

"Of course you should stay. Why not?"

"I've caused trouble — and talk."

"Let 'em talk," Marsh said. "And if I hear any of it myself I'll put them right side up in a devil of a hurry."

"But I don't think we've heard the end of it," Jo said. "Mrs. Fragonet is likely to make trouble, and with Fragonet so well known there are sure to be stories in the newspapers."

"We'll hope for the best, Jo."

"But . . . it would be awfully bad for the name of Crest Lake."

Marsh laughed. "If I were running a strictly commercial enterprise I might worry about that. But I'm doing this for fun mainly, and most of the people who come here are my friends. If they're real friends it won't matter how much scandal Fragonet stirs up."

"But—" Jo faltered, "there's always the chance that — that your name might get mived up some way."

He turned to her with a wide grin. "I remember one thing my father told me when I was just a little kid. He said that if I had any brains and was able to keep what he left me people would be sure to talk about me whenever they got the chance. He said not to worry about it, because if I didn't get into a scandal then people would eventually manufacture one about me."

"I don't think your mother believes that," Jo remarked mischievously.

"You're right. Mother didn't believe very much of anything that Dad said."

"Don't you really think it would be better for me to leave before Fragonet comes back with the picture company?" Jo asked.

"I do not," Marsh answered quickly. "I'll wire them they can't make scenes on my place before I'll see you leave on that account. And I'll tell you this, Jo. There's no use trying to run away from Pete Fragonet. You've got to face him and tell him you don't love him and never could love him."

"That's hard to do," Jo said. "I —somehow I sort of feel sorry for him."

Marsh nodded. "That's what Pete does to women, all right. He brings out the mother instinct in 'em. I suppose that's why he's so darned popular on the screen."

"You can make fun of me if you want, but that's the way I feel."

He turned quickly, "I'm not making fun of you, Jo. I'm just trying to warn you that Pete Fragonet has a lot of charm. And I don't want to see you hurt, that's all." He stopped the car, began fishing in his pockets for cigarets. After considerable searching he found a lone cigaret, somewhat flattened but still capable of giving a smoke. Laughing, he snapped it in two and inserted one of the halves between Jo's lips.

"Let's forget Fragonet," he said, holding a light for her. "There are a lot of things more important to us right now."

"For instance?"

"Well," Marsh went on, starting the car, "we're darned near out of cigarets. It's a beautiful day, and we're both young enough to enjoy it. We're getting just a little bit hungry and it's 12 miles to the Lone Tree Tavern." He met Jo's eyes humorously. "All those things, or any one of them, are more important right now than Fragonet. Don't you agree?"

"Yes, I do," Jo laughed. It was fun to be with Marsh again, and she was reminded of their evening together at the Olympic Bowl, and of their first few days at Crest Lake when Marsh was conscientiously showing her the place.

"Another thing that's important right now," Marsh went on lightly "is that you're so darned beautiful and so close to me that I want to kiss you. Does that strike you as important?"

"Well," Jo said, "you make it sound rather important."

"Important enough to act upon?" he asked.

Jo was puzzled. If Marsh wanted to kiss her for the simple light-hearted reasons he had given, then Jo saw no reason to be a prude. But if his lightness was only the mask behind which he wanted to proceed toward a relationship which would be cheap and common and insincere, then—

"Important enough to act upon?" Marsh repeated.

"Possibly," said Jo.

"Then if you leave it to my judgment entirely—" He did not finish. He brought the car to a lurching stop, took Jo Darien in his arms and kissed her so firmly and definitely that she gasped for breath.

"Let it Rain! we've got Young Ideas!"

WE ADMIT that smoking Old Golds is no guarantee of fair weather. But many smokers find a special charm in Old Golds. A stimulating quality that bucks up the spirits, even if the weather is rough. This gentle "pick-me-up" is due to Old Gold's finer tobaccos. Selected for extreme mildness; aged and mellowed beyond the usual standards.
