Ask Us

Q. — When will tickets for the chamber of commerce banquet go on sale and will there be reserved seating?

A. — Tickets officially go on sale March 1. Regarding reservations, chamber officials said they have opted not to have reserved seating due to the logistical problems associated with it.

In Brief

Mistrial

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A mistrial has been declared in the arson-conspiracy trial of an Ector County commissioner and a former Odessa city councilman.

The nine-woman, three-man jury deliberated four hours Monday and most of Tuesday before saying it was hopelessly deadlocked. U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton declared the mistrial Tuesday.

Willie Hammond Jr., 44, a two-term Ector County commissioner and former Odessa city councilman, and Keith Weddel, 52, a former two-term Odessa councilman, were charged with having conspired to burn the O'Michael Building in hopes of collecting insurance money.

Hammond and Weddel were indicted in September 1984 on two counts each of scheming to burn the office building, now known as the Jackson Center.

Rapist gone

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — A 28-year-old convicted rapist has escaped from the Texas Department of Corrections' Coffield Unit, prison officials said today.

"We don't know if he was armed or not, but we're considering him dangerous," said TDC spokesman Charles Brown.

Brown said Roy. W. Bevan of Sherman was missing when prison officials began their head count at 8 p.m. Tuesday night.

"The major ordered the dogs out, but they couldn't pick up a trace of anything," Brown said.

Bevan is serving a 50-year sentence from Cook County for aggravated rape and two counts of escape, Brown said.

Theft at site

Construction material was reported stolen Tuesday from the job site of the under-construction Golden Terrace Village — Snyder's new housing area for the elderly.

Contractor Len Dockum reported as missing some 44 sheets of thermal siding. He estimated they had been taken some time between last Saturday and Monday.

Value of the missing items was expected to make the theft a Class A misdemeanor.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Tuesday, 55 degrees; low, 44 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Wednesday, 52 degrees; .02 of an inch precipitation; total precipitation for 1985 to date, .16 of an inch.

West Texas: Showers widely scattered tonight and Thursday. Otherwise mostly cloudy through Thursday with areas of morning fog east of mountains both days. Highs Thursday generally 60s mountains eastward to 70s west of mountains. Lows tonight mostly in 40s.

Maggie Thatcher...

P-M speaks to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, predicting that arms talks between the superpowers will be difficult, today warned the West to expect a Soviet political offensive "calculated to create infirmity of purpose, to impair resolve and even to arouse fear in the hearts of our people."

In an address to a joint meeting of Congress, the prime minister also firmly endorsed research into President Reagan's controversial anti-missile defense program and praised his massive arms buildup, which she said has induced the Soviets to renew their interest in bargaining.

"Let us be under no illusions: It is our strength, not their goodwill, that has brought the Soviet Union to the negotiating table in Geneva," she declared.

Mrs. Thatcher said the nuclear arms talks that open in Geneva on March 12 between the United States and the Soviet Union "will be intricate, complex and demanding," She added, "We should not expect too much too soon."

"We must recognize that we shall face a Soviet political offensive designed to sow differences among us, calculated to create infirmity of purpose, to impair resolve and even to arouse fear in the hearts of our people," she said.

Mrs. Thatcher said she supports Reagan's so-called

Chamber to begin membership visits

"Visits" between Snyder Chamber of Commerce directors and the some 360 members of the chamber will now be implemented here following a discussion and vote of the board Tuesday.

These visitations are designed to improve communication between the board and the membership which they represent.

The plan was suggested by Chamber President Roy Baze. He said the idea occurred to him as he made calls the past few weeks on new or lapsed members of the chamber.

Baze said the comments he received from some of these individuals convinced him that a new line of communication was needed.

The idea received an enthusiastic response from the other board members, who voted to approve the plan unanimously.

Baze suggested that the 10 directors divide up the membership among themselves and attempt to make from three to four calls per month.

Time will then be set aside during each monthly meeting of the board to discuss comments offered from the membership.

Baze characterized it as to find out "what we're doing wrong and what we're doing right."

During Tuesday's February meeting of the board, director Margaret Drum was also chosen as new board treasurer, a position on the chamber's executive committee.

She was named to replace Tom Latos, who recently moved from the city.

Regarding a replacement for Latos on the full board, it was noted the chamber's nominating committee should have a candidate recommendation by the March meeting.

In other chamber business, directors:

—Voted to activate a public relations committee for the chamber, a group that was "on paper" last year but never filled with members. It would be designed to serve as a public relations entity for the chamber to publicize chamber events and features of Snyder and Scurry County.

—Heard a report on the chamber membership drive now in progress from drive chairman Dr. Don Newbury. He estimated 60-plus new members will be

Burglary charges expected for 3

Burglary of a habitation charges were filed against a 17-year-old man here Tuesday night and felony charges are said pending against two others after an item said taken in the incident was spotted in a local pawn shop.

Arrested was Gerado Puente of 2805 College Ave. He was formally charged around 10:57 p.m. Tuesday.

Police had been advised by Larry Stewart earlier in the day that a guitar which had been taken from his room at the Strayhorn Motel was now on display at a local pawn shop.

The burglary incident was said to have occurred Sunday.

Wednesday morning, District Attorney Ernie Armstrong said felony charges would also be filed against two other individuals in connection with the case.

Formal charges had not been filed as of 11 a.m. Wednesday, however.

Program of Work chairmen ratified

Chamber directors ratified Tuesday the division committee heads for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce's "1985 Program of Work."

In addition, individuals in charge of sub-committees for each division were approved. As of Tuesday, not all committee appointments for these sub-committees had been filled, however.

One division head also remains unfilled — the Future Planning Division. Its purpose is to develop programs of "area and regional scope" to include water resources, airport development, transportation and long range "goals for Snyder."

The overall organizational structure of the six divisions is to involve the chamber in a diverse range of Scurry County development projects.

Each division is chaired by a chamber director, in this way making the overall structure responsible to the central governing body of the chamber of commerce.

Individuals involved in this work approved Tuesday include:

—Economic Division: Chairman Jerry Vestal; assisted by sub-committee chairmen Joe Fowler, industrial development; Byron Hedges, agribusiness; Rick Cohagen, petroleum relations; Troy Williamson, businesss development; and Shannon Shane, research.

—Operations Division: Chairman Roy Baze, who doubles as in charge of nominations and elections; assisted by sub-committee chairmen Jerry Vestal, in charge

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The worst boor of all is one who talks long enough to put you to sleep, but loud enough to keep you awake."

Hermleigh's Opal Lomax mailed in her "Most Embarrassing Moment."

"While living in Roscoe, my small son and I walked to the square each day. We passed the corner where the elderly gentlemen congregated to visit.

"My little son kept looking back, holding on to my hand. I took a quick glance and a gentleman was giving my son an ungentlemanly salute.

"On a Monday, I came to Hermleigh to drive my parents to the church revival as my father didn't drive at night. I was being introduced to the visiting minister and he turned to my young son and said, 'Salute me little feller,' giving him a military salute.'

"You guessed it. He saluted the minister with a stubby little thumb on his nose. It didn't seem to bother the preacher, but there just wasn't a hole for me to crawl in."

Connie Wright of Snyder shared this red-faced moment with us.

"I was shopping in one of our local stores with my son who was three at the time. We were browsing though the fabrics and there was another lady close by with a little boy about my son's age.

"My son pulled at my arm and said, 'Mommy, why don't you ever let me wear dirty blue jeans with holes in them like that boy?' To make matters worse, the lady who was working in the store begin to laugh and kept on laughing.

"I don't know who the little boy was or the mother, but if you are reading this, I do apologize. I am sure you understand the famous words of little kids and how they can always manage to say them at the wrong time."

Speaking of gems from kids, we overheard a conversation recently that involved a present for Dennis Chisum. Dennis' wife Blanche and young son Blanden were shopping in Anthony's for a Valentine's gift for Dennis.

Blanche suggested to Blanden that they go look for a nice shirt for daddy. "Naw, let's don't get a shirt, he needs underwear a lot worse," the kindergarten youngster blurted out.

Two new directors at SNB

Two new directors were elected Tuesday at the annual stockholders meeting of Snyder National Bank.

Roger Mize, chairman of the board and president, annnounced that E.D. Walton and Bruce Kallemeyn had been named directors of the bank.

"We are delighted to have these two men join the board, and look forward to having their business experience and expertise. We have a fine group of men who compose our board of directors," Mize said.

Walton is founder of Walton Construction Co. and has been a resident of Snyder since 1951.

Walton moved to Snyder from Electra with Olsen Engineering. In 1957, he started E.D. Walton Construction Co. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge, the Shriners and Scottish Rites of El Paso. He is past president of the Snyder Country Club and is a member of the city board of adjustments.

Kallemeyn, a vice-president of Snyder National, joined the bank in February of last year after having served as president of RTXS, a rail car leasing company located in Roscoe.

In 1983, Kallemeyn was appointed to the board of directors of Snyder Savings and Loan Association. He is also a director of the Elsa State Bank and Trust.

Mize reported to stockholders that Snyder National had a "very fine year." The president noted that the bank's total capital was

Suspect arrested with money

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The wife of right-wing Salvadoran activist Francisco Guirola-Beeche said her husband would be killed if he returned to El Salvador because of publicity about his arrest in the United States.

Speaking at a bond reduction hearing for her husband Tuesday, Gloria Guirola said the arrest of her husband and two other men at the Kleberg County Airport Feb. 6 and the confiscation of $5.9 million in cash has further publicized her husband's activities to those who disagree with his politics, the Corpus Christi Caller-Times reported.

Guirola and Oscar Rodriguez-Feo pleaded not guilty before U.S. Magistrate Eduardo De Ases to two federal charges of transporting $6,000 and conspiring to transport $10,000 out of the country without notifying federal authorities.

A third man, Gus Maestrales, the pilot and owner of the plane, also was charged with attempting to transport $14,000 out of the country. Maestrales is free after posting a $50,000 deposit on a $1 million bond set last week.

Mrs. Guirola said her husband has been active in raising money for the ARENA Party in El Salvador, which opposes the ruling Duarte regime. She said her husband became active in Roberto D'Aubuisson's right-wing party after losing the family farm to land reform in 1979.

Her husband is a party fundraiser, she said.

Testimony also showed that Guirola is an adviser to D'Aubuisson and security adviser to the El Salvador attorney general. Under questioning by Guirola's defense attorney, James Gilbride of Miami, Fla., Mrs. Guirola said there is no safe place in Central America for her husband.

Earlier, Gilbride entered into evidence a Feb. 12 edition of El Diario de Hoy, a Salvadoran newspaper, which contained an advertisement placed by the ruling Christian Democratic Party which said Guirola was bringing money into that country to supply support for his comrades who "intend to corrupt the electoral process of our country."

De Ases Tuesday reduced Rodriguez' bond from a $2 million surety bond to $1 million. Rodriguez can be released from jail if he posts a 5 percent deposit on the bond, De Ases ruled.

De Ases did not alter Guirola's $2 million cash surety bond, and also imposed stringent travel limitations, bail supervision and the seizure of any passports in Guirola's possession if he should make bond.

Gilbride said the government's case against his client has been tainted. The search warrant issued to search the private plane was illegal, Gilbride said. He also said Mrs. Guirola's fear for her husband's life demonstrates that he will not flee the country if freed on a lower bond.

The conspiracy charge carries up to a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine upon conviction, and the transporting charge carries up to a five-year prison term and a $250,000 fine.

Schroeder's condition better

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William Schroeder visited and waved to his only peer, Murray Haydon, but he seemed oblivious to two young well-wishers when he took a tour of a parking lot and became the first artificial heart recipient to leave a hospital building.

Meeting Schroeder "was like shaking hands with history because he's so famous," said 10-year-old Kim Nasief, who with Cristy Ballard, 12, met the Jasper, Ind., man in the Humana Hospital Audubon parking lot on Tuesday.

Schroeder shook hands but "didn't say anything. I'm not sure if he knew we were there," Miss Nasief said.

Meanwhile, Haydon, the third artificial heart recipient, continued his remarkable recuperation, sitting up, drinking fluids and exercising. Doctors said he might be able to get out of bed today.

Haydon had a slightly queasy stomach, probably a natural consequence of the stress of open heart surgery, said Dr. Allan M. Lansing, chairman of Humana Heart Institute International.

Miss Nasief said she hurried to the parking lot from her mother's hospital room upon hearing that Schroeder had been wheeled out into the 44-degree sunshine.

"I said, 'Hello' and 'How are you feeling today?' But he really didn't say anything," she said.

Schroeder didn't smile, she said, but just looked toward the sun.

Schroeder, who became the second person to receive a permanent artificial heart 86 days ago, left the hospital about 4 p.m. in a wheelchair with his heart powered by the small, portable Heimes drive system, said Humana spokesman Robert Irvine. He stayed outside for about 15 minutes.

Schroeder, 53, has been struggling to recover from three strokes he suffered Dec. 13 and from an unexplained fever that reversed his recovery. By Tuesday afternoon, the fever had subsided, Lansing said.

Lansing also didn't rule out the possibility that Schroeder would be able to attend his son Terry's wedding March 16 in Jasper.

Schroeder was wheeled to Haydon's room in the intensive-care unit Monday night, but Haydon was asleep. On Tuesday, Schroeder made a return trip and the men waved to one another, but did not speak, Lansing said.

Haydon was sitting up, drinking fluids and exercising — moving all his joints, even down to "wiggling his toes," and breathing as deeply as he could, Lansing said.

When the tubes draining Haydon's chest were removed Tuesday morning, the former Louisville autoworker said to a nurse, "Would you please turn on the television? I would like to see if I'm alive and how I am doing."

Supreme Court hears argument

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is studying whether states may seek to ban pornography by defining obscenity as anything that "incites lasciviousness or lust."

The court was scheduled to hear arguments today about a Washington state law declared unconstitutional by a federal appeals court.

In 1982, the Washington Legislature passed a "moral nuisance" law aimed at cracking down on the sale and display of obscene material.

The law defined obscenity in a broader fashion than the standard adopted by the Supreme Court in 1973.

The court ruled then that for material to be obscene it must when taken as a whole appeal to "prurient interest," which the court defined as a morbid or depraved interest in sex, nudity or excretion.

Otherwise, the court said, the material is protected by the Constitution's First Amendment guarantee of free expression.

The 1982 Washington law defined prurient as anything that "incites lasciviousness or lust."

Pornographers, legitimate publishers, librarian groups and the American Civil Liberties Union challenged the law's constitutionality.

A federal judge ruled against them. But the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down the statute, ruling it was too broad and could be used to suppress non-obscene material.

The appeals court said the term lust describes "a healthy, wholesome, human reaction common to millions of well-adjusted persons in our society."

It noted that former President Jimmy Carter, as a candidate in 1976, said in a Playboy magazine interview that he had looked at many women "with lust."

The appeals court said, "to permit expression that merely excites lust to be regulated by the state would destroy the boundaries between (constitutionally) protected and unprotected speech. To the contemporary jury, lust is unlikely to connote anything more than sexual desire."

Judge invites jury to speak with general

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. District Judge Pierre Leval, who dismissed the jury after Gen. William C. Westmoreland dropped his libel suit against CBS, told jurors in the historic case it was best the "verdict be left to history."

Leval told the 12 jurors and five alternates it was "safe to say no verdict you or I would have been able to render in this case could have escaped widespread disagreement." And, he said to the panelists, after 18 weeks of testimony he "understood your feeling a sense of letdown, of disappointment."

"We have been participants in a most interesting, a most unusual proceeding, a trial seeking the judgment of history." Leval said Tuesday. "There is no legal power to fix the judgment of history, it must be left to study, reflection and debate."

Leval also invited the jurors back to the courtroom to talk with participants from both sides.

All but one juror came back after speaking with Leval. They were greeted warmly by Westmoreland, his wife and lawyers, and by Mike Wallace and George Crile of CBS and the network's lawyers.

Dear Abby

Man Has Occasion to Read Abby's Advice on Writing

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Your booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," has been a mainstay of my reference shelf for many years. Just how long, I cannot recall, but I've used it for 10 years at the bank where I am employed, and nearly twice as long when I was in the Navy. Add to that my years as bulletin editor and secretary of my Lions Club, and a regular correspondent to six brothers and sisters.

I love to receive letters, and as you say, "The way to get a letter is to write one."

It's amazing the way I keep going back to your booklet for ideas on how to write good letters for all occasions. Your suggestions for letters of condolence have been coming into use more and more lately, but I suppose that's to be expected as one grows older.

Over the years I've been highly complimented on my letters, and I want to thank you, Abby. You have my permission to use my name.

EDWIN R. BAKER,
STUART, FLA.

DEAR MR. BAKER: Thanks for a genuine upper. Your letter made my day.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you said that nobody should open his or her door to a stranger. Well, recently my car broke down 30 miles from home on a dark highway on a cold winter night.

I am very thankful that a woman in a nearby farmhouse opened her door to me. She was all alone, small and appeared to be in her late 20s or early 30s. (I'm a 6-foot-tall man, weighing 200 pounds.)

This nice lady let me call a towing service who sent someone out to rescue me. It would be very sad indeed if all people took your advice and allowed fear to govern their actions.

Abby, please don't encourage people to abandon their trust in their fellowman, most of whom are decent, law-abiding citizens.

SINCERE IN IOWA

DEAR SINCERE: Even though most people are decent, law-abiding citizens, to assume that everyone is could be devastating. You need only to read this newspaper thoroughly to realize that one cannot be too careful these days.

I submit the following from a reader:

"Recently, at a neighborhood watch meeting, a police officer told us about a team of girls working in a nice residential area in Berkeley. A young woman, apparently in distress, would ring the doorbell and implore urgently, 'Please, please may I use your bathroom?'

"It would seem cruel to turn her away under the circumstances, so of course, she would be let in. Her mission, however, was not to use the bathroom; it was to case the house to see if there was anything of value around. She then pretended to use the bathroom, after which she unlocked the bathroom window. Late that night, she and her partner returned to rob the place.—Careful in California"

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I need to know if something is true or not. I had a high school teacher who told the class that she used to write your columns for you when you went on vacations. Half the kids believed it, and the other half didn't. I'm in the half that didn't believe it. Who's right?

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: You're in the winning half. When I go on vacations, I write my columns in advance.

* * *

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

3 ex-banking heads named in indictment

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Three former Abilene National Bank executives have been named in a 53-count banking indictment alleging embezzlement of funds.

Don Earney, former president, chairman, and chief executive officer, and James L. Kington and Eddie W. Dunn, both former vice presidents, were named in the indictment returned by a federal grand jury late Tuesday afternoon.

The indictment accuses Earney and Kington of embezzling a total of $1.5 million on loans of $3.1 million from 1980 to 1982.

Dunn was named on four counts of aiding and abetting and one count of false entry in bank records, the Abilene Reporter-News reported.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bill Alexander of Dallas said the indictment was the result of an investigation begun approximately two years ago.

"Is this the end of it?" he asked. "No," he replied, answering himself.

The 56-page indictment alleges that the loans involved $3,168,641 and that the "bribes, kickbacks and commissions" totaled $1,518,872.

It charges Kington with 17 counts of embezzlement, 14 counts of making false entries, seven counts of aiding and abetting in the commission of offenses, five counts of causing Abilene National to fail to file required currency reports, and one count of omitting income from numerous transactions on his 1981 income tax return.

Earney is charged with four counts of embezzlement, four counts of false entry, seven counts of aiding and abetting and nine counts of failure to file currency reports.

Federal law requires that banks report payment of currency in excess of $10,000. The nine filing offenses alleged against Earney total $430,379. The five filing offenses alleged against Kington total $104,787, the newspaper reported.

Earney and Kington still live in Abilene. They could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Federal officials said they believe Dunn resides in Midland.

The indictment alleges that Kington and Earney embezzled bank funds by procuring loans and causing part of the loan proceeds to be paid back for their "personal use" without disclosing their interest in the proceeds to the bank's board of directors.

Christian Women hear memoirs

A record 101 women gathered in the Snyder Country Club on Feb. 13 to hear Velma Spencer Cunningham.

During the Christian Women's Club luncheon, Cunningham shared memories about life with her first husband Tim Spencer, an original member of the Sons of the Pioneers.

Remembered primarily as the singing group featured in Roy Rogers movies, the Sons of the Pioneers launched his career and Spencer's. Eventually Spencer was inducted into the Songwriters' Hall of Fame for his song "Roomful of Roses."

Cunningham recalled meeting Spencer for the first time when the group appeared in Lubbock at radio station KFYO. Since the members had little money, they would thank the listening audience for food in advance. Listeners took the hint and brought food to the station every day. She took a pecan pie.

Following a whirlwind courtship and Velma's graduation from high school, they were married.

Even though she was a Christian, he was not. But when they moved to Hollywood, Velma was overwhelmed. "I was thrust on the Hollywood merry-go-round," she said. She stopped praying, reading the Bible and going to church.

She added, "I was caught up in the excitement of my husband's career. We became thoroughly caught up in the world's materialism."

As her husband continued to pursue his career, she became increasingly unhappy. "There is a certain sadness in sophistication. Everything tends to become superficial and dull.

"Dissatisfaction made me want my husband to change, when I was really the one who needed to change. I had become mediocre — not a good, healthy pagan or a fully committed Christian."

As she watched her marriage crumble and considered divorce, she realized that only God could "produce harmony" in her life. "I realized that not only did God send His Son, but that Jesus sent the Holy Spirit to be a source of comfort. The Holy Spirit is the present tense of God sent to live in us," she told the women.

Later her husband and children became Christians as well. Spencer retired from the Sons of the Pioneers and founded Manna Music, one of the largest gospel music companies in the country. The couple became leaders of a Hollywood Christian group of entertainers.

In 1968, Spencer developed heart problems and what now is known as Altzheimer's disease. His condition meant placement in a nursing home. Velma explained to the women that Christians are not immune from suffering.

"But after 39 years of marriage," she explained, "I learned to love someone who couldn't return anything. I learned that the joy of the Christian life is not from the world. I learned that Christian hope is rugged and lasts through anything. And I learned that death is not an ending but an extension of living."

After her husband's death in 1974, Velma returned to Lubbock. Later she met and married Buck Cunningham, a Lubbock businessman.

Free verse is society topic

Dorothy Cox led a discussion on composing free verse during last Monday's Scurry County Poetry Society meeting. She read "The Snowstorm" by Ralph Waldo Emerson.

President Garnet Quiett led the meeting with Christene Killgo leading the invocation.

During the poetry reading session, members read their own poetry. Visitors included Mary Burton and Karen Shreeves, who have just published a devotional book. Burton read "Dear Man," one of her poems from the publication.

Janelle Burk recently sold a poem, "Shelling Peas," to "Farmwife News."

The group enjoyed refreshments after the meeting.

Body design is meeting topic

Twenty-four members and one guest gathered for a meeting of the Altrurian Daughters Club last Wednesday. Claudene Atwood and Lounette Null served as hostesses for the event in the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Gay Idom, owner of Interiors, presented a program entitled "Body Design" to help members better understand different types of body shapes. She emphasized "how to dress thin" and how to achieve the best "all-around look."

Idom served as a ramp model for Neiman Marcus for two years prior to moving to Snyder 10 years ago. She learned body design from her experience as a photography model.

Altrurian Daughters' next meeting is set for March 13 with special guest Annadell and Company of Abilene.

Crown Prince Hirohito became the emperor of Japan in 1926.

In 1934, more than 200 tons of stone fell from beneath Table Rock at Niagara Falls at the tip of the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side.

Here is another contestant for the Bols Brilliancy Prize for 1984. Declarer was Luis Palazzo of Argentina. The deal was played in the Argentina-Iceland match in the World Team Olympiad last October.

East's two-diamond overcall was a transfer to hearts, according to Iceland's bidding methods. Over Palazzo's four spades, East sacrificed at five clubs. By bidding his distributional hand to the hilt, East forced his opponent to the five level. That was high enough that most declarers would go set, but the knowledge that East was long in two suits guided Luis Palazzo to an unusual end position, allowing him to make five spades.

West led the club jack, which South ruffed. Declarer played a spade to the queen, won by East's ace, and a club came back, which declarer ruffed. After drawing the last trump with dummy's jack, South cashed the club ace and ruffed another club. The top hearts were now played and a heart was ruffed. Now that both North and South hands were stripped of clubs and hearts, declarer led the king of diamonds from his hand. West was fixed. He took the ace and led another diamond, but Palazzo let this ride around to his 10 to make the contract.

Poverty linked to disease

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Poor people are far more likely to die of heart disease than wealthier people, the American Heart Association said today in a study, and according to the chief researcher access to medical facilities may be a reason.

"Conventional wisdom has it that in the U.S. population, white males are at most risk of having a heart attack. We see from this report that in Los Angeles County, that's not just so," said Dr. Ralph R. Frerichs, an epidemiologist at the University of California who conducted the study for the Heart Association's Los Angeles affiliate.

The study also found that poor blacks were more likely to die of heart disease than better-off blacks. The fact that a greater proportion of black men than white men are poor explains why black men overall had higher heart disease death rates than white men, who were a close second, Frerichs said.

The study found poor people are likelier to die of heart disease outside a hospital or other medical facility. That suggests that inadequate access to health care, and not just lifestyle, may explain their higher death rate, said Frerichs.

He said previous studies indicated the poor are less likely to get regular checkups, to have medical insurance and to be able to afford health care, and more likely to delay in getting treatment for illness.

The findings, which showed heart disease death rates increased steadily as median family income declined, were based on analysis of death certificates of all 179,529 Los Angeles County residents who died of all causes from 1979 through 1981.

The link between poverty and higher cardiovascular disease death rates probably holds true nationally, Frerichs said, noting the county's 7.5 million residents represent about 3 percent of the U.S. population and have cardiovascular death rates similar to those nationwide.

German fairy-tale writer Jakob Grimm was born in 1785.

Supreme Court upholds work rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major Supreme Court ruling limiting states' rights, denounced by detractors as an unfair concentration of power in Washington, is being hailed by public workers as a key to better working conditions.

"Public employees have been treated like second-class citizens for too long," said Gerald W. McEntee, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. "This ruling helps to rectify what we have felt all along is an obvious injustice."

The court ruled, 5-4, Tuesday that San Antonio's public transit system must abide by a federal law regulating minimum wages and overtime. The ruling could mean millions in added overtime pay there and in other big cities.

The ruling gives Congress almost unlimited power to force state and local governments to comply with federal laws.

In a strongly worded dissent, Justice Lewis F. Powell said federal laws are drafted and administered by congressional staff aides and bureaucrats who "may have little or no knowledge of the states and localities that will be affected" by the federal regulations.

"It is at these state and local levels — not in Washington, as the court so mistakenly thinks — that democratic self-government is best exemplified," he added.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, who joined Powell in dissent, expressed the hope that the court might reconsider Tuesday's ruling in the future and give back power to the states.

In its ruling, the court overturned a 1976 opinion that exempted "traditional" and "integral" state and local government services from the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act, which sets minimum wages and overtime.

The swing vote was cast Tuesday by Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who was allied nine years ago with states' rights advocates.

Blackmun wrote Tuesday's opinion, saying he now believes it is unwise for the courts to decide which state and local government functions should be exempt from federal law. He said that job should be left to Congress.

"The political process ensures that laws that unduly burden the states will not be promulgated," he added.

Groups representing state and local governments predicted major cost increases to pay overtime for such workers as bus drivers whose normal work day may stretch over more than 12 hours to accommodate morning and evening rush hours.

Federal law requires that workers be paid 1 1-2 their normal hourly wage for each hour worked in excess of 40 hours per week.

The federal minimum wage is already paid most public employees.

Any additional costs in funding overtime pay likely will be passed on by San Antonio and other communities to bus and subway riders and perhaps to local taxpayers as well.

Among other actions, the court:

—Agreed to consider letting public schools allow students to meet during school hours for prayer and religious worship.

—Blocked an attempt to force the federal government to pay $4 billion to the company that owns the closed-down Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania, scene of a serious 1979 accident.

—Turned down the appeal of Roxanne Pulitzer, who contended she was unfairly denied more money in her 1982 divorce in Florida from publishing heir Peter Pulitzer following a trial filled with lurid testimony of incest and adultery.

Aides urge Reagan to let quotas laspe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite congressional and industry pleas for limits on Japanese auto imports, administration officials are recommending that President Reagan, in effect, do nothing to extend "voluntary" quotas that expire next month.

Sources who commented on condition they not be identified said the president's Cabinet council on commerce and trade agreed Tuesday to make such a recommendation to Reagan.

The fourth year of the quotas expires March 31. Under the arrangement, Japanese exports to the United States were limited to 1.85 million cars last year.

Although the administration and the Japanese refer to the current quotas as "voluntary" on Japan's part, it is an open secret that the limits were put in place in 1981 following quiet pressure from the Reagan administration and outcries from Congress over the flood of Japanese imports.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes confirmed Tuesday that officals discussed the matter and adopted a single recommendation, but he declined to disclose it.

Speakes said Tuesday it will be up to Japan whether to extend the quotas.

Speakes said the president would consider the issue in the next few days, while insisting "the matter has not gone before the president yet." He added that Reagan may feel he does not have to make any decision.

"We're not required to make a decision because it's voluntary on the part of the Japanese," Speakes noted.

An end to the quotas would open the way for more Japanese automobiles to be sold in the United States.

Labor officials say that could cost about 200,000 U.S. autoworkers their jobs as domestic companies use cheaper foreign plants to compete with the Japanese.

But critics of the quotas say the limits have pushed up the prices of Japanese cars, costing consumers billions of dollars. And free-trade advocates in the Reagan administration point to a record $10 billion in profits last year for U.S. automakers.

Girl to receive liver transplant

DALLAS (AP) — A 3-year-old Lufkin girl was to undergo surgery today to receive a liver transplant, a hospital official says.

Kelly Musick was flown to Children's Medical Center Tuesday night in preparation for surgery, said a nursing supervisor at the hospital who declined to be identified.

The girl suffers from an unidentified liver disease.

Prison reforms could reach $800 million report says

AUSTIN (AP) — As much as $800 million in construction and additional alternatives to imprisonment are needed for Texas to have enough prison cells over the next 10 years, a consultants' report says.

The lengthy $200,000 report was to be released by the State Board of Corrections on Tuesday, but Chairman Robert Gunn said Gov. Mark White and legislative leaders instructed him to keep the report confidential until Friday.

It was a matter of "protocol," Gunn said.

The report was presented to White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis during a two-hour, closed-door briefing in White's office.

Gunn said it was not just White who wanted the report kept secret.

"Everyone that has looked at this thing decided it was just so complex," he said.

But Dick Merkel, spokesman for Lewis, said the speaker "certainly" didn't ask that the report not be released Tuesday.

Steve Dial, spokesman for Hobby, said the lieutenant governor did not object to the release of the report. In fact, Hobby released a written statement in anticipation that the report would be distributed.

Hershel Meriwether, an aide to White, said the report was still preliminary.

"He (White) wanted to look at it and to give some input before it was released. The information is going to be made public. That's not a problem," Meriwether said.

The proposed 10-year prison plan was prepared by the consulting firm of Henningson, Durham and Richardson at the prison board's request.

Lawmakers who were briefed on it told reporters the study offers a detailed, unit-by-unit review of what's needed to meet growth and bring the Texas Department of Corrections into compliance with orders from U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

"My impression is to bring the present prison system into compliance, you're probably talking about $350 million" worth of construction and renovation work, said Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

The "minimum" cost of the 10-year program would be $700 million, and that would require new laws that would send fewer people to prison, said Farabee, chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee.

"I would be very pleased if we could get out for that much. It's probably going to cost more," he said.

House Law Enforcement Committee Chairman Ray Keller, R-Duncanville, said, "Frankly, I would not support the legislation it would take to" spend only $700 million on the 10-year plan. The report presented Tuesday includes only facilities, it did not speak to money needed for additional TDC staff.

"It's awfully sobering," said Bryan Sen. Kent Caperton, adding that hundreds of millions of state dollars are needed "despite the fact that we have continued to put significant dollars into the prison system, despite the fact that we enacted significant reforms last session."

Keller said much of the money appropriated in past years was "squandered" by the TDC.

Farabee said the immediate problem is support facilities, not beds. The report said TDC's current capacity is about 43,000. TDC reported 37,400 prisoners as of Tuesday.

"We have run TDC somewhat like a blind dog in a meathouse," said Farabee. "We have tried to respond to immediate crises. We have built more buildings and we have not provided all the support facilities that you have to have."

What's needed, he said, are kitchens, urinals, showers and recreation areas.

"The issue is not any kind of a country club prison. The issue is just having a constitutional prison that meets the bare minimum," said Farabee.

He said the consultants offered three scenarios: TDC population would hit 92,000 by 1995 if no changes are made in state criminal laws; with some reforms to ease punishment, the population would be 62,000; and with a major change in attitudes on punishment, the 1995 prison population would be about 50,000.

"It was pointed out that Texas incarcerates three times as many people as most states. That's been our way of punishment," said Farabee. "There are other ways that are less expensive. They may not be as satisfying. They may not be quite as secure. But we have to look at these alternatives for low-risk offenders.

"I just don't think we want to put all of our money on prisons," he said.

Caperton said, "We are tough on criminals in Texas. I think we should continue to be so, but we can't be mindless in our approach."

Astronomers sight eclipse of Pluto

AUSTIN (AP) — Richard Binzel, a graduate astronomy student, has made the first recorded observation of the eclipse of the planet Pluto by its moon which proves the existence of its satellite, Charon, Univerity of Texas officials said Tuesday.

The brief sighting was made early Sunday, Feb. 17, at the university's McDonald Observatory in far West Texas.

Scientists have said that Pluto's moon, Charon, has existed since 1978 but they had no visual evidence.

"Any astronomer you talk to would agree that the satellite does exist, but the International Astronomical Union has not officially recognized it because a direct photographic image of the satellite has yet to be obtained," said Binzel.

Binzel said he had been looking for eclipses since 1982.

"Pluto is very far away and the orbits of Pluto and the satellite are relatively close, so even through the largest ground-based telescopes, it is extremely difficult to detect the satellite," Binzel said.

Astronomers at Kitt Peak, Ariz.; Mt. Palamar, Calif., and Mauna Kea, Hawaii, also have been searching for the eclipse, he said.

Binzel said he coordinated his observation schedule Sunday night with Dr. David Tholen, an astronomer at the University of Hawaii so that they could monitor Pluto continuously for an eight-hour period.

However, the eclipse occurred only during the time when the planet could be viewed from Texas.

Binzel said the total amount of light eminating from Pluto and Charon dropped four percent as measured with a photometer attached to the McDonald Observatory's 36-inch telescope.

Binzel said the sighting of the satellite's eclipse will help researchers determine the size of Pluto and Charon.

However, that calculation remains to be determined.

Andrews tops Stephenville; will face Sweetwater Friday

Fourth-ranked Andrews, finally shaking a bad case of the playoff jitters, rallied for a 59-48 victory over the Stephenville Bees here Tuesday night in the Scurry County Coliseum.

Paced by a 19-point effort by LaYana Maxie, the Lady Mustangs advanced in the girls playoffs and will meet Sweetwater Friday at a site yet to be determined. Sweetwater ripped Mansfield 52-31 in Brownwood Tuesday.

Winner of the Sweetwater-Andrews game will advance to the state tournament in Austin.

Stephenville, ranked third in Class 4A and coming into the game with a 27-1 season record, took early control of the contest as Andrews committed seven turnovers. Stephenville led the entire first quarter but Andrews' Maxie tied the tilt 11-11 with 1:07 remaining.

The first stanza ended with the Bees on top 15-13. Andrews showed offensive power in the second quarter, picking up 20 points. The scored was tied three times in the second quarter, but the Mustangs held on to a 33-29 advantage at halftime.

Rachel Trevino came off the bench in the third quarter to give Andrews a boost and the Mustangs enjoyed a 46-39 advantage going into the final period of play.

Maxie, who fouled out with 1:16 left in the game, controlled the defensive boards in the fourth quarter. Stephenville pulled within five with 6:47 remaining, but the Maxie-led crew pulled away.

Both teams stayed in foul trouble. Andrews got 11 of its points at the charity line, and Stephenville collected 22 of its 48 points at the line.

In addition to Maxie, Trevino was in double figures with 12 points. Kristi Wallace, Melissa Reynolds and Sherry Morton each had 6 while Charlotte Jones contributed 4. Blaine Lemmons, Lady Collins and Bonnie Flores each added 2 for Andrews which now sports a 29-3 record.

Gavana Randolph led the Stephenville scoring with 16 points, half of them coming on free throws. Christi Hinshaw and Merce Carey each had 10 points while Candy Perry had 5 and Kylynn Clark 4. Cheryl Boucher had 2 while DeAnna Young added 1.

In Brownwood, Sweetwater won its Class 4A area playoff by outscoring Mansfield 14-4 in the first period and 13-4 in the third.

The Lady Mustangs, 28-3 and ranked second in the state according to this week's poll, got 12 points each from Shannon Wilburn and Cheryl Watson. Cheryl Owens added 8.

Vernon Lions defeat Crane

The No. 2 ranked Vernon Lady Lions overcame an early deficit to defeat Crane in Class 3A girl's playoff action here Tuesday evening, 40-35.

The Lions, now 29-2 on the season, will advance in the playoffs. For Crane, the season ends at 21-8.

Crane went ahead early, 9-6 and still held a 17-15 edge at halftime, but the Vernon's depth began to play a part in the second half. The Lions took the third quarter 15-12 to go in front 30-29, then won the final eight minutes, 10-6.

Judi Collums led the Lions with 12 points. Tanzy Waggoner scored 12 and Stacie Scott punched in 7. Three other girls added points for the Lions.

Crane got all of its points from three players. Jackie Drones led with 14, Jo Mitchell had 11 and Terri Grooms added 10.

WTC cagers take on AC Thursday

Western Texas College basketball teams take to the road Thursday, bound for Amarillo College.

The schools are to clash in a Western Junior College Athletic Conference doubleheader at 6 and 8 o'clock.

Coach Joe Cushing's WTC Dusters will be looking to snap a school most-wins streak. The Dusters have 27 wins - tying the old record set last season - and will be trying for 28 in Thursday's early game. Western is 10-2 in conference play. The record includes a 78-57 win over the Lady Badgers earlier this season.

Amarillo women are 18-11 for the campaign and 6-6 in conference play. The Badgers are fighting for one of the four berths that will get them into the upcoming regional tournament. They are currently in fourth place, a half-game in front of Howard College which is 5-6.

Western's men will be trying to avenge a 70-68 loss to Amarillo in the 8 p.m. game. Western Texas is 18-10 on the season and in fifth place in the WJCAC with an 8-7 record.

Amarillo men are 22-5 overall, and in fourth place in the conference with a 10-5 mark.

In WJCAC men-only games Thursday, Frank Phillips is at Midland and New Mexico Military is at Clarendon.

In outings involving both men and women, Howard is at Odessa and South Plains will be in Hobbs, N.M. to play New Mexico Junior College.

Longhorns ink Metcalf's son

AUSTIN (AP) - Tailback Eric Metcalf of Arlington, Va., the son of former all-pro Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals, has signed a football scholarship with the Texas Longhorns.

Metcalf, 5-foot-9 and 175 pounds, chose Texas over Miami.

A three-year starter for Bishop O'Connell High School, Metcalf used his 4.45 speed to run for 1,200 yards and 17 touchdowns as a senior. He also averaged 18 yards on 10 pass receptions.

The opposing coaches in the NBA championship series, K.C. Jones of the victorious Boston Celtics and Pat Roley of the losing Los Angeles Lakers, were both drafted by NFL teams while in college.

Tigers hitting better; get final scrimmage against Lee Saturday

The Tigers came home to Moffett Field Tuesday, only to get bit by the error-bug. But Coach Albert Lewis says he likes the way the team is shaping up.

"We committed five or six errors. We had only made two prior to that game," said Lewis, of Tuesday's baseball scrimmage here with Abilene Cooper. "But Cooper is tough. I saw where they are ranked No. 6 in the state and that doesn't surprise me. They hit the ball real well and they've got some fine pitchers."

Cooper topped the Tigers 11-5 in the scrimmage, but what impressed Lewis the most was Snyder's hitting.

"In a scrimmage with a team like that, you've got to look at the positive points," he said. "They threw their number one, two and three pitchers that got them to the quarterfinals last year and we got some hits off of them."

The Tigers collected 11 hits, two apiece by Jay Mayo, Bobby Velasquez, Charles Bollinger and Chris Fryar.

Willie Greathouse slapped a double, and "hit the ball real hard three times," said Lewis. "He almost had a home run on that last one."

Snyder pitchers were Jimmy Cain, Jimmy Velasquez, Kenneth Pickering and Greathouse. Lewis said Greathouse was the most impressive. The senior left-hander went the final two innings.

"We walked seven batters and most of them ended up scoring. But it wasn't just our pitching. Three times when they (Cooper) had big innings we had an opportunity to get out of the inning and we booted the ball or something. A team like Cooper is going to make you pay for that, and they did," said the coach.

The Tigers will end preseason play with a scrimmage against Midland Lee here Saturday at 1 p.m.

Lewis said Justin Webb would get the start.

"We'll start Justin and hope that Charlie (Bollinger) and Don Osborn can go a few innings," he noted.

Bollinger was suffering from a sore arm Tuesday. Both he and Osborn had been playing basketball for Snyder up until last weekend.

Plowgirls overtake Borden

Shannon Neighbors cashed in on a three-point play with 1:04 left here Tuesday night to aid Roscoe past Borden County in a Class 1A girl's playoff contest.

The 54-47 victory puts the Plowgirls in regional tournament action Friday in Levelland.

Roscoe had taken a 47-45 lead on a 10-foot turnaround jumper by Kristi Graham with less than two minutes to go in the ballgame. Borden County then turned the ball over, and Neighbors followed with the three-point play. The 6-0 senior added a pair of freethrows with 25 seconds left, insuring Roscoe's future in the playoffs.

Borden, which ends the season at 25-4, stayed in almost constant foul trouble. The Lady Coyotes eventually fouled out four girls, including top scorer Kelli Williams, who had 14 points on the night. Teri Billington added 9 for the Coyotes while Becky Massingill scored 8 and Shawna Vaughn and Kim Turner put up 6 apiece.

Neighbors' 16 led Roscoe, now 26-4 on the season. Graham, a 5-8 senior, scored 14 and Audrey Walker added 10.

Jetliner's four engines stalled over ocean

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Passengers aboard a China Airlines jumbo jet popped into the ceiling "like popcorn" when the plane lost power in all four engines and plunged more than six miles toward the Pacific Ocean before the engines restarted, authorities said.

Many of the 252 passengers and 20 crew members were hurled from their seats, some smashing into the top of the cabin, as the aircraft fell toward the ocean and then limped into San Francisco International Airport after flying 500 miles with a torn tail section and bent wing, authorities said.

The plane was diving so fast that the pilot lowered his landing gear to slow down, an airport spokesman said. The force of the plunge ripped off the landing gear doors and pieces of the horizontal tail stabilizers.

Fifty passengers suffered injuries, mostly minor, and two flight attendants remained hospitalized today.

"I thought it was time to meet the maker," said passenger Bill Peacock.

Seksan Cariiyo said the plane dived once, leveled out and dived again. Those without seatbelts flew into the air, some hitting their heads on the ceiling.

"People were popping up like popcorn," he said.

The jet was en route from Taipei, Taiwan, to Los Angeles on Tuesday when it hit turbulence known as wind shear — a rapid change in wind speed and direction, said airport spokesman Ron Wilson.

The plane stalled and plummeted from a cruising altitude of 41,000 feet to 9,000 feet during the incident, Wilson said.

The jet's No. 4 engine — the farthest from the pilot's right — failed first, said National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Ira Furman in Washington.

"It was a side force. Everyone was thrown against the right side of the airplane," Wilson said.

"It sounded like the engines stopped," said one unidentified passenger. "It was dead silent for about five seconds before it happened."

Maggie Thatcher speaks to Congress

Strategic Defense Initiative — a massive research program into a space-based missile defense shield — because "the United States must not fall behind the work being done by the Soviet Union."

She said she hoped British scientists share in the research.

The prime minister, offering a view parallel to Reagan's on military strength, said: "Wars are not caused by the build-up of weapons," and added:

"Our task is to see that potential aggressors from whatever quarter understand plainly that the capacity and the resolve of the West would deny them victory in war: and that the price they would pay would be intolerable."

Despite general European anxiety about the program, popularly known as "Star Wars," Reagan won Mrs. Thatcher's support for research into the concept last December, with the understanding that such a system would not be deployed without negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The prime minister arrived in the nation's capital Tuesday night. After her speech, she begins two days of meetings with Reagan and top administration officials. The president and the prime minister have met 11 times previously.

Suffering from political troubles at home, Mrs. Thatcher requested the opportunity to become the first prime minister to speak to Congress since Winston Churchill in 1952.

She cited in her prepared remarks most of the concerns she will take to the White House: the strength of the dollar that is driving the British pound to record lows; the arms control talks, and her belief that Americans who contribute to Irish extremist groups are actually contributing to terrorism.

13th St. locations is scene of wrecks

Four accidents, all said minor, were reported in Snyder Tuesday — two of these occurring at the same location within 10 minutes of each other.

The 700 Block of 13th St. was the scene for the two accidents, which occurred respectively at 2:36 and 2:46 p.m.

The first mishap involved a 1978 AMC Pacer driven by Violet Proctor Hoyle, 1709 17th St.; and a 1983 Chevrolet El Camino driven by Martha Alicia Sanchez, of Star Rt., Ira.

Shortly after this one occurred, a 1980 Ford pickup and a 1976 Dodge Aspen were in collision. The pickup was driven by Erminia Benitez, 605 20th St.; and the Dodge by Narcissa O. Guerrero, 202 Elm St.

Tuesday's first accident was reported at 10:05 a.m. in the 1900 Block of 26th St. It involved a 1979 Ford Granada driven by Sabrina Suzan Robinson, 3003 Beaumont; and a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Mary Leona Moffett of 2209 40th St.

The day's final accident was at 6:33 p.m. in the 500 Block of East Highway. Involved drivers were Freddy Frank Castillo, 501 29th St., driving a 1983 Chevrolet van; and Kathy Sue Goodwin of Rt. 2, Snyder, driving a 1980 Pontiac Firebird.

More paperwork for the elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxation of some Social Security benefits, which provide about 40 percent of the income of people over age 65, will require many older Americans to switch to the more complicated Form 1040 when they file their tax returns this year.

As many as 4 million people who received Social Security benefits in 1984 are having to pay income tax on a portion of those benefits for the first time, and all will have to file the long Form 1040. In the past, many pensioners have been able to use the shorter Form 1040A.

This is only one of the changes affecting how older Americans file their tax returns this year.

Rules for claiming the special credit for the elderly have been changed. Taxpayers, regardless of age, no longer will be allowed to deduct non-prescription drugs other than insulin, and for those who don't itemize deductions, the maximum writeoff for charitable contributions is up to $75.

Two free government publications may help.

The 52-page "Tax Benefits for Older Americans," published by the Internal Revenue Service, is available by writing or telephoning the nearest IRS office in your state and asking for Publication 554.

The "1985 Federal Income Tax Guide for Older Americans" is published by the House Committee on Aging. This 20-page booklet is designed for taxpayers who do not itemize deductions. Write your congressman for a copy.

Meanwhile, a couple of tips:

—If you are over 65, don't file the simplest form, 1040EZ, or you won't be able to claim the extra $1,000 exemption for your age. In most cases, you may file the two-page Form 1040A if your income is less than $50,000 and is all from wages, tips, interest, dividends and unemployment compensation — and if you do not itemize deductions.

Several special circumstances require the long Form 1040. For example, you must use 1040 if you received taxable Social Security or Railroad Retirement benefits; you received or paid alimony; you had self-employment income; you made estimated tax payments last year; you claim the credit for the elderly, or you want to average last year's income against earnings of the previous three years.

—As a rule, a person over 65 must file a return if wages, taxable pensions, interest and other non-Social Security income totaled $4,300 or more last year. For a couple over 65, the figure is $7,400.

NONG SONG HONG, Laos (AP) — A U.S.-Laotian team, working on hands and knees in an unprecedented joint search in the forests of southern Laos, has excavated human bones and personal effects which may have belonged to some of 13 U.S. airmen whose gunship was shot down during the Vietnam war.

In a patch cleared of trees and brush, American and Laotian soldiers have unearthed bone fragments, teeth, shreds of military uniforms, live ammunition rounds, twisted guns and other remnants of a C-130 gunship shot down near the village of Nong Song Hong more than 12 years ago.

Chunks of what officials said were probably human bones appeared as Laotian soldiers sifted the dug-up dirt through wire meshes.

Georgia executes Solomon in chair

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) — Former Baptist minister Van Roosevelt Solomon thanked "all the people who tried to save my life," then died today in Georgia's electric chair for the murder of a college honors graduate and convenience store manager.

Solomon, 41, a former assistant pastor at a Baptist church in his hometown of Lawton, Okla., was pronounced dead at 12:27 a.m. by Ralph Kemp, warden at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Center near Jackson.

He was executed for the 1979 murder of Roger Tackett, an honors graduate of Georgetown University who managed a Cobb County convenience store because he was unable to support his family as a teacher.

Solomon was the fifth man executed in Georgia since the state resumed using the electric chair in December 1983 following a 19-year hiatus. Like Solomon, three of the other four inmates executed since then have been black. He was the 38th person executed in the United States since the U.S. Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976 and the sixth this year.

Also sentenced to death for killing Tackett was Brandon Jones, also known as Wilbur May, who is on death row while his case is being appealed.

During Solomon's trial, when his attorneys said evidence was wrongly interpreted, prosecutor Tom Charron said Solomon "was in the building when Mr. Tackett was being executed. Both defendants were caught within inches of the gun and within feet of the deceased."

Solomon was led unassisted into the death chamber at 12:10 a.m. Dressed in a white prison uniform, he watched intently as six guards strapped him into the white oak chair.

He occasionally spoke to the guards, but his words were inaudible to the 13 witnesses, seated in wooden pews in an adjoining room with a thick glass window.

Solomon carefully looked over the witnesses, which included George Kendall, the American Civil Liberties Union attorney who represented him on appeal and before the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Kendall and Solomon looked at each other momentarily. Solomon broke the contact with a nod.

Asked by Kemp if he had a final statement, Solomon said, "I would like to give my blessings to all the people who tried to save my life."

Following a prayer by a minister, a guard placed a cap on Solomon's shaved head. A mask was fixed over his face, and at 12:18 a.m., the 2,080-volt current was applied, forcing Solomon's body up and back.

Outside the prison, about 50 opponents of the death penalty and eight proponents of capital punishment gathered in a steady rain.

The opponents carried signs, many of which had biblical references. One read: "Let he who is without sin cast the first stone."

The placards carried by the supporters of the death penalty were more direct. One said: "Let me pull the switch."

Solomon lost two court appeals Tuesday.

Then congratulate yourself

Check return to avoid costly errors

By Robert Metz

(Last of 14 articles)

It is abundantly clear that more tax savings are forfeited as a result of careless mistakes than any other single reason. Remember that deductions you fail to take will probably never be discovered. So you will simply pay more tax as a result. Other mistakes can delay the processing of your return — not good if you're waiting for a refund.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES AND SAVE

So before you mail your 1040, think of the considerable effort you have expended in gathering your checks and other records and the time you spent figuring which expenses qualified as tax deductions, credits or adjustments to income. In short, you've worked hard, so finish well.

Take the time for last-minute checking. Surprisingly, some of the simplest errors, such as not signing your return, are also the most common according to the Treasury. So:

— Did you sign your return? Did your spouse also sign, if you are married and filing jointly?

— Did you attach your W-2 form(s)? You must file a W-2 from each employer you worked for during 1984. If married, filing jointly, and your spouse works, you must attach his or her W-2(s) as well.

— Did you enclose a signed check or money order if you owe tax?

Tax tip: Enter your Social Security number on the check. Also write in the upper left-hand portion of the check the year for which the payment relates and the tax form filed ("1984 — form 1040").

— Is your address correct? Fix any mistakes on the Internal Revenue Service address label to keep your record in order.

— Is your Social Security number entered correctly?

— Did you check the right filing status block?

— Did you check the right number of blocks for exemptions? Did you take a $1,000 deduction for each exemption?

— Double check that you looked up the right tax in the tax table.

— Did you check your arithmetic? (Have a friend or spouse check it, too.)

— Did you attach all the necessary schedules?

— Did you make sure all the entries are on the correct line?

— Have you checked your deductions, to make sure you have claimed all to which you are entitled?

Here are some deductions you should review to make sure you haven't overlooked anything that might save you money:

Married couples' deduction — Don't forget this deduction if both you and your spouse work. It's 10 percent of the earned income of the lower earning spouse up to $30,000. Therefore, you can take a maximum $3,000 deduction from your total income. Remember also, that the lower earning spouse's earned income must be reduced by that spouse's IRA deduction.

Medical — The 5-percent level for all medical expenses is a difficult hurdle for most taxpayers. Check your figures carefully. Don't forget your transportation expenses when you have a significant list of doctor and dentist bills. Unless you lived next door to their offices, you must have incurred some form of transportation expense.

Taxes — Be especially alert for the deductions for state and local income taxes and the state sales tax. And don't forget the extra sales tax deduction to which you are entitled if you bought a car or certain other expensive items last year.

Interest — Don't forget to add in all those extra interest charges shown on department store bills or credit-card statements at year's end.

Contributions — For contributions of items other than cash, be sure to attach an explanation to your return. An appraisal made when the merchandise was picked up is the best verification for this deduction.

Casualty or theft losses — You may deduct losses to the extent their total exceeds 10 percent of your adjusted gross income. You may include any loss — after first subtracting $100 — for which you were not reimbursed by an insurance company.

Now that you have done the final checking, your return should be in good shape. But be sure to make a copy of the return for your records. (It will help you get started on next year's return.) Apply the proper postage, give yourself a pat on the back, and mail the return by April 15 (unless you've gotten an extension).

If you can't complete your return in time, file form 4868 for an automatic four-month extension. The automatic extension does not delay payment. You must pay at least 90 percent of the balance due to avoid a penalty. Form 4868 must be filed on or before the return's due date.

Jetliner's four engines stalled over ocean

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Passengers aboard a China Airlines jumbo jet popped into the ceiling "like popcorn" when the plane lost power in all four engines and plunged more than six miles toward the Pacific Ocean before the engines restarted, authorities said.

Many of the 252 passengers and 20 crew members were hurled from their seats, some smashing into the top of the cabin, as the aircraft fell toward the ocean and then limped into San Francisco International Airport after flying 500 miles with a torn tail section and bent wing, authorities said.

The plane was diving so fast that the pilot lowered his landing gear to slow down, an airport spokesman said. The force of the plunge ripped off the landing gear doors and pieces of the horizontal tail stabilizers.

Fifty passengers suffered injuries, mostly minor, and two flight attendants remained hospitalized today.

"I thought it was time to meet the maker," said passenger Bill Peacock.

Seksan Caniyo said the plane dived once, leveled out and dived again. Those without seatbelts flew into the air, some hitting their heads on the ceiling.

"People were popping up like popcorn," he said.

The jet was en route from Taipei, Taiwan, to Los Angeles on Tuesday when it hit turbulence known as wind shear — a rapid change in wind speed and direction, said airport spokesman Ron Wilson.

The plane stalled and plummeted from a cruising altitude of 41,000 feet to 9,000 feet during the incident, Wilson said.

The jet's No. 4 engine — the farthest from the pilot's right — failed first, said National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Ira Furman in Washington.

"It was a side force. Everyone was thrown against the right side of the airplane," Wilson said.

"It sounded like the engines stopped," said one unidentified passenger. "It was dead silent for about five seconds before it happened."

13th St. locations is scene of wrecks

Four accidents, all said minor, were reported in Snyder Tuesday — two of these occurring at the same location within 10 minutes of each other.

The 700 Block of 13th St. was the scene for the two accidents, which occurred respectively at 2:36 and 2:46 p.m.

The first mishap involved a 1978 AMC Pacer driven by Violet Proctor Hoyle, 1709 17th St.; and a 1983 Chevrolet El Camino driven by Martha Alicia Sanchez, of Star Rt., Ira.

Shortly after this one occurred, a 1980 Ford pickup and a 1976 Dodge Aspen were in collision. The pickup was driven by Erminia Benitez, 605 20th St.; and the Dodge by Narcissa O. Guerrero, 202 Elm St.

Tuesday's first accident was reported at 10:05 a.m. in the 1900 Block of 26th St. It involved a 1979 Ford Granada driven by Sabrina Suzan Robinson, 3003 Beaumont; and a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Mary Leona Moffett of 2209 40th St.

The day's final accident was at 6:33 p.m. in the 500 Block of East Highway. Involved drivers were Freddy Frank Castillo, 501 29th St., driving a 1983 Chevrolet van; and Kathy Sue Goodwin of Rt. 2, Snyder, driving a 1980 Pontiac Firebird.

Strategic Defense Initiative — a massive research program into a space-based missile defense shield — because "the United States must not fall behind the work being done by the Soviet Union."

She said she hoped British scientists share in the research.

The prime minister, offering a view parallel to Reagan's on military strength, said: "Wars are not caused by the build-up of weapons," and added:

"Our task is to see that potential aggressors from whatever quarter understand plainly that the capacity and the resolve of the West would deny them victory in war: and that the price they would pay would be intolerable."

Despite general European anxiety about the program, popularly known as "Star Wars," Reagan won Mrs. Thatcher's support for research into the concept last December, with the understanding that such a system would not be deployed without negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The prime minister arrived in the nation's capital Tuesday night. After her speech, she begins two days of meetings with Reagan and top administration officials. The president and the prime minister have met 11 times previously.

Suffering from political troubles at home, Mrs. Thatcher requested the opportunity to become the first prime minister to speak to Congress since Winston Churchill in 1952.

She cited in her prepared remarks most of the concerns she will take to the White House: the strength of the dollar that is driving the British pound to record lows; the arms control talks, and her belief that Americans who contribute to Irish extremist groups are actually contributing to terrorism.

JR. HIGH UIL WINNERS--Members of the Snyder Junior High 8th grade band competed in solo and ensemble competition Saturday in Abilene. Sixty-eight members of the band made the trip and competed in various instrumental solos, trios, quartets and quintets. They returned with 41 first division (superior rating) medals. Medal winners in solo competition were Jennifer Lancaster, Brenda Tovar, Becky Bynum, Blaine Irons, Stpehen Williamson, Sonja Way, Janie Torres, Lori Lopez, Bobbie Earnest, Stacy Davis, Israel Hinojos, Robert Garza, Sandra Morin, John Chapman, Ricky Clark, Tom Marvin, Benny Miller, Kevin Tate, Robert Talamantez, Brian Robinson, Bobby Rico, Jay Burns, and Melody Pickering. Winners in the ensemble division were a clarinet quartet made up of Tabby Lewis, Heather Roemisch, Shannon Warren, and Sonja Way; a clarinet quartet made up of Ann Hernandez, Janie Torres, Lori Lopez and Kristi Winger; a brass quintet with performers Michelle Blake, Marcus Carroll, Tom Marvin, Sandra Morin, and Kevin Tate; and a percussion ensemble consisting of Jay Burns, Paul Faulkenberry, Joe Fink, Melody Pickering and Paige Pitner.

More paperwork for the elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxation of some Social Security benefits, which provide about 40 percent of the income of people over age 65, will require many older Americans to switch to the more complicated Form 1040 when they file their tax returns this year.

As many as 4 million people who received Social Security benefits in 1984 are having to pay income tax on a portion of those benefits for the first time, and all will have to file the long Form 1040. In the past, many pensioners have been able to use the shorter Form 1040A.

This is only one of the changes affecting how older Americans file their tax returns this year.

Rules for claiming the special credit for the elderly have been changed. Taxpayers, regardless of age, no longer will be allowed to deduct non-prescription drugs other than insulin, and for those who don't itemize deductions, the maximum writeoff for charitable contributions is up to $75.

Two free government publications may help.

The 52-page "Tax Benefits for Older Americans," published by the Internal Revenue Service, is available by writing or telephoning the nearest IRS office in your state and asking for Publication 554.

The "1985 Federal Income Tax Guide for Older Americans" is published by the House Committee on Aging. This 20-page booklet is designed for taxpayers who do not itemize deductions. Write your congressman for a copy.

Meanwhile, a couple of tips:

—If you are over 65, don't file the simplest form, 1040EZ, or you won't be able to claim the extra $1,000 exemption for your age. In most cases, you may file the two-page Form 1040A if your income is less than $50,000 and is all from wages, tips, interest, dividends and unemployment compensation — and if you do not itemize deductions.

Several special circumstances require the long Form 1040. For example, you must use 1040 if you received taxable Social Security or Railroad Retirement benefits; you received or paid alimony; you had self-employment income; you made estimated tax payments last year; you claim the credit for the elderly, or you want to average last year's income against earnings of the previous three years.

—As a rule, a person over 65 must file a return if wages, taxable pensions, interest and other non-Social Security income totaled $4,300 or more last year. For a couple over 65, the figure is $7,400.

COSMETOLOGY GRADUATES--A reception honoring these graduates of the Western Texas Cosmetology program was held Tuesday. On the front row, left to right, are DeLanna Hinson of Rotan, Vickie Coffey, Tamara Hilton and Michelle Franco of Colorado City. On the second row are Kathryn Mann of Roscoe, Glenda Cook of Roby and Sandra Potts of Haskell. They will be taking state board of cosmetology examinations for licensing in March and April. Georgia executes Solomon in chair

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) — Former Baptist minister Van Roosevelt Solomon thanked "all the people who tried to save my life," then died today in Georgia's electric chair for the murder of a college honors graduate and convenience store manager.

Solomon, 41, a former assistant pastor at a Baptist church in his hometown of Lawton, Okla., was pronounced dead at 12:27 a.m. by Ralph Kemp, warden at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Center near Jackson.

He was executed for the 1979 murder of Roger Tackett, an honors graduate of Georgetown University who managed a Cobb County convenience store because he was unable to support his family as a teacher.

Solomon was the fifth man executed in Georgia since the state resumed using the electric chair in December 1983 following a 19-year hiatus. Like Solomon, three of the other four inmates executed since then have been black. He was the 38th person executed in the United States since the U.S. Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976 and the sixth this year.

Also sentenced to death for killing Tackett was Brandon Jones, also known as Wilbur May, who is on death row while his case is being appealed.

During Solomon's trial, when his attorneys said evidence was wrongly interpreted, prosecutor Tom Charron said Solomon "was in the building when Mr. Tackett was being executed. Both defendants were caught within inches of the gun and within feet of the deceased."

Solomon was led unassisted into the death chamber at 12:10 a.m. Dressed in a white prison uniform, he watched intently as six guards strapped him into the white oak chair.

He occasionally spoke to the guards, but his words were inaudible to the 13 witnesses, seated in wooden pews in an adjoining room with a thick glass window.

Solomon carefully looked over the witnesses, which included George Kendall, the American Civil Liberties Union attorney who represented him on appeal and before the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Kendall and Solomon looked at each other momentarily. Solomon broke the contact with a nod.

Asked by Kemp if he had a final statement, Solomon said, "I would like to give my blessings to all the people who tried to save my life."

Following a prayer by a minister, a guard placed a cap on Solomon's shaved head. A mask was fixed over his face, and at 12:18 a.m., the 2,080-volt current was applied, forcing Solomon's body up and back.

Outside the prison, about 50 opponents of the death penalty and eight proponents of capital punishment gathered in a steady rain.

The opponents carried signs, many of which had biblical references. One read: "Let he who is without sin cast the first stone."

The placards carried by the supporters of the death penalty were more direct. One said: "Let me pull the switch."

Solomon lost two court appeals Tuesday.

Remains found in Laotian area

NONG SONG HONG, Laos (AP) — A U.S.-Laotian team, working on hands and knees in an unprecedented joint search in the forests of southern Laos, has excavated human bones and personal effects which may have belonged to some of 13 U.S. airmen whose gunship was shot down during the Vietnam war.

In a patch cleared of trees and brush, American and Laotian soldiers have unearthed bone fragments, teeth, shreds of military uniforms, live ammunition rounds, twisted guns and other remnants of a C-130 gunship shot down near the village of Nong Song Hong more than 12 years ago.

Chunks of what officials said were probably human bones appeared as Laotian soldiers sifted the dug-up dirt through wire meshes.

Check return to avoid costly errors

By Robert Metz
(Last of 14 articles)

It is abundantly clear that more tax savings are forfeited as a result of careless mistakes than any other single reason. Remember that deductions you fail to take will probably never be discovered. So you will simply pay more tax as a result. Other mistakes can delay the processing of your return — not good if you're waiting for a refund.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES AND SAVE

So before you mail your 1040, think of the considerable effort you have expended in gathering your checks and other records and the time you spent figuring which expenses qualified as tax deductions, credits or adjustments to income. In short, you've worked hard, so finish well.

Take the time for last-minute checking. Surprisingly, some of the simplest errors, such as not signing your return, are also the most common according to the Treasury. So:

— Did you sign your return? Did your spouse also sign, if you are married and filing jointly?

— Did you attach your W-2 form(s)? You must file a W-2 from each employer you worked for during 1984. If married, filing jointly, and your spouse works, you must attach his or her W-2(s) as well.

— Did you enclose a signed check or money order if you owe tax?

Tax tip: Enter your Social Security number on the check. Also write in the upper left-hand portion of the check the year for which the payment relates and the tax form filed ("1984 — form 1040").

— Is your address correct? Fix any mistakes on the Internal Revenue Service address label to keep your record in order.

— Is your Social Security number entered correctly?

— Did you check the right filing status block?

— Did you check the right number of blocks for exemptions? Did you take a $1,000 deduction for each exemption?

— Double check that you looked up the right tax in the tax table.

— Did you check your arithmetic? (Have a friend or spouse check it, too.)

— Did you attach all the necessary schedules?

— Did you make sure all the entries are on the correct line?

— Have you checked your deductions, to make sure you have claimed all to which you are entitled?

Here are some deductions you should review to make sure you haven't overlooked anything that might save you money:

Married couples' deduction — Don't forget this deduction if both you and your spouse work. It's 10 percent of the earned income of the lower earning spouse up to $30,000. Therefore, you can take a maximum $3,000 deduction from your total income. Remember also, that the lower earning spouse's earned income must be reduced by that spouse's IRA deduction.

Medical — The 5-percent level for all medical expenses is a difficult hurdle for most taxpayers. Check your figures carefully. Don't forget your transportation expenses when you have a significant list of doctor and dentist bills. Unless you lived next door to their offices, you must have incurred some form of transportation expense.

Taxes — Be especially alert for the deductions for state and local income taxes and the state sales tax. And don't forget the extra sales tax deduction to which you are entitled if you bought a car or certain other expensive items last year.

Interest — Don't forget to add in all those extra interest charges shown on department store bills or credit-card statements at year's end.

Contributions — For contributions of items other than cash, be sure to attach an explanation to your return. An appraisal made when the merchandise was picked up is the best verification for this deduction.

Casualty or theft losses — You may deduct losses to the extent their total exceeds 10 percent of your adjusted gross income. You may include any loss — after first subtracting $100 — for which you were not reimbursed by an insurance company.

Now that you have done the final checking, your return should be in good shape. But be sure to make a copy of the return for your records. (It will help you get started on next year's return.) Apply the proper postage, give yourself a pat on the back, and mail the return by April 15 (unless you've gotten an extension).

If you can't complete your return in time, file form 4868 for an automatic four-month extension. The automatic extension does not delay payment. You must pay at least 90 percent of the balance due to avoid a penalty. Form 4868 must be filed on or before the return's due date.

Fluid affects blood pressure

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've had high blood pressure for years and have taken Dyazide since the 1970s. My blood pressure is 130 over 83. I'm 78. My doctor never tells me anything.

My neighbor says that her doctor took her off Dyazide and said it dries up the blood if it's taken too long. Is that right? At my age, what should my blood pressure be? I weigh 165 and am 5 feet 3.

DEAR READER — It's a half-truth. All of the diuretics used to lower blood pressure cause you to eliminate sodium and water; that is the major way in which they work. You will lose a little fluid from all your tissues, but if you didn't, these medicines would not lower your blood pressure. However, your blood will not "dry up." Nor will you, if you don't take too much of these diuretics. A person can become dehydrated from almost any of these if he or she uses more than is needed.

Your friend probably didn't need to have a diuretic, or the action was too strong in her case. Evidently, Dyazide has served you well for 10 years. What diuretic should be used, and how much, is based on your response, as indicated by your blood pressure and by blood tests that measure your body salts.

Your pressure is fine for your age. It is within normal limits for any age, so count your blessings and follow your doctor's instructions.

To help fill your information gap, I'm sending you The Health Letter 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My brother recently was diagnosed as having cancer of the liver. His doctor told him that there isn't anything that can be done for him. However, I read just recently of someone having a liver transplant. I would appreciate any information you can give me.

DEAR READER — Your brother should rely on his doctor's best advice, since the doctor knows the full extent of his condition. The only other course would be to have a consultation at one of the nation's cancer centers, such as Sloan Kettering in New York or M.D. Anderson in Houston, or at least the cancer (oncology) section of a university medical center. The decision also depends upon how widespread the cancer is in the body.

It is true that in some cases of liver cancer, a transplant has been done, and the three-year survival rate is 15 percent.

Even with treatment, the outlook for cancer of the liver is not good. Some treatments have decreased the size of the cancer, but have failed to affect the survival time.

Cancers often spread to the liver because it is such a vascular organ. Cancer originating in the liver is quite rare in the United States, causing less than 1 percent of all deaths and less than 2.5 percent of cancers. In parts of Africa, Asia, Oceania and Greece, it may be the most frequent cause of cancer. Liver cancer arises most often when the liver is already diseased, as from cirrhosis. The high rate of cancer in other parts of the world may be due to the ingestion of aflatoxins, which are produced by a mold that grows in humid areas and contaminates peanuts and stored grains.

Slain college student found

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin Community College student was found slain in a still-idling car at his apartment complex parking lot, Austin police officials said.

Paul Glen Hines, 21, of Austin was pronounced dead at 11:23 p.m. Monday at a local hospital.

Police said Hines had left a video arcade before returning to his apartment.

"He was found in his car with the motor still running. It looks like someone who was in the car with him shot him as he sat behind the wheel," said Lt. Jim Baker of the Austin Police Department.

Baker said Hines was shot once with a large caliber weapon, probably a pistol, but no weapon was found.

"The slug went through his chest, from the right to the left," Baker said. "We recovered it from the door on his side. Right now we don't have any suspects or any motive. It looks like he was just sitting there talking to someone and they shot him."

Sir Isaac Newton, the mathematician who discovered the law of gravity, was born in 1642 in Lincolnshire, England.

Study finds working women are healthier

WASHINGTON (AP) — Busy women who combine job and marriage tend to be healthier than those who are either unmarried or unemployed, a new study of government statistics discloses.

And the so-called "superwomen" who add children to the responsibilities of job and spouse are just as healthy as those who don't have to deal with offspring, the report adds.

"Contrary to popular belief, the triple roles of job, spouse and mother are linked with good health," reported Lois M. Verbrugge of the University of Michigan and Jennifer H. Madans of the National Center for Health Statistics.

Their findings, reported in the March edition of American Demographics magazine, are based on information collected in the National Health Interview Survey taken in 1977-78.

"Of the three factors we examined, employment has by far the strongest and most consistent tie to women's good health. Marriage ranks second and parenthood ranks a weak third," they reported.

Working women had fewer days of restricted activity because of illness, spent less time bedridden, had less chronic illness and in general felt better than unemployed females, they found.

"These differentials are true for all age groups, and may reflect the fact that unhealthy women stay out of the labor force, or that working outside the home has a positive influence on the well-being of women," they commented.

The researchers found that "the busy women who are both employed and married are the healthiest ... those who have children are just as healthy as those who do not."

On the other hand, they observed, "the combination of no job and no spouse is strongly linked to poor health, especially for women aged 25 to 34."

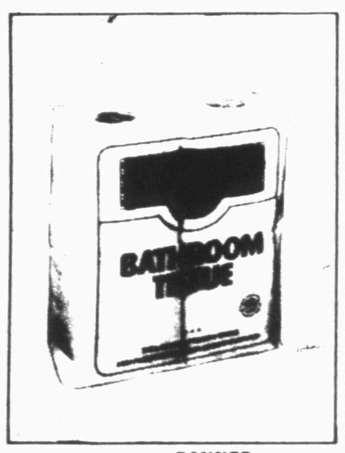

"The women with no roles (no job, no spouse, no children) have the worst health of all," they added.

On Jan. 4, 1966 Ronald Reagan announced he would seek the Republican nomination for election as governor of California.
