In custody

Midland police are investigating a 20-year-old man in jail for violation of parole in connection with Wednesday's stabbing death of The Living Way church secretary Brenda Branch.

The man in custody is one of several who was questioned by police in the case.

According to Lt. Earl Luckey, the names of numerous people seen "acting suspiciously" in the area of the murder have surfaced as a result of intense questioning of several neighborhood residents.

The man is being detained at the Midland County jail. Anyone jailed for revocation of parole is automatically denied bond.

Trust fund

A trust fund for the young daughter of a church secretary killed on Wednesday has been set up at the Community National Bank.

The Brenda Branch Memorial Fund will benefit the woman's 13-month-old daughter, Teagie Branch.

Mrs. Branch, 28, died after receiving multiple stab wounds at the Living Way Church, 419 Alta St.

A bank official said donations can be made in person or by mail.

The main bank is located at 601 E. Florida, with a branch at San Miguel Square, Midkiff and Wadley. Mail donations should be directed: Attention: New Accounts, Community National Bank, P.O. Box 3903, Midland, Texas, 79702.

Poindexter out

WASHINGTON — A federal appeals court Friday overturned the five-count felony conviction of former national security adviser John M. Poindexter for covering up the Iran-contra scandal. The two-to-one opinion reversing Poindexter's April 1990 conviction was another major defeat for Iran-contra special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh. North./9C

Jackson video

NEW YORK (AP) — What's the matter with a 33-year-old superstar grabbing his crotch in front of a global audience? Lots, apparently. Michael Jackson's 11-minute "Black or White" music video lit up Fox Broadcasting Co. affiliate switchboards with complaints that forced the entertainer to re-edit it. Jackson agreed to eliminate a sexy, violent four-minute dance sequence from the video for its re-broadcast Sunday. Fox said in a facsimile message to affiliates.

Ex-Big Spring police chief plans fight for job

Joe Cook talks to a standing room crowd at a news conference.

■ Joe Cook plans to seek a hearing with the city council.

BIG SPRING — Ousted Police Chief Joe Cook told more than 200 supporters Friday he would not take his dismissal "lying down," and believes he would still be an effective leader of the embattled department.

At a press conference, Cook said he will request a hearing at the Nov. 26 council meeting to protest his firing, which took effect Friday.

"It's my earnest desire to return to the rank of Joe Cook, (police) chief of Big Spring," he said, to applause from the standing-room-only crowd.

Cook lambasted Mayor Max Green, saying the mayor had continually attempted to discredit him personally with allegations of police misconduct and brutality. Cook said his firing was another example of the mayor's attempts to harm his reputation.

Green could not be reached for comment Friday. When contacted Thursday, however, the mayor declined to comment, saying City Manager Hal Boyd had been responsible for the dismissal.

Cook said the city manager did not act alone, but under pressure from members of the City Council and the mayor.

"Hal Boyd is not solely responsible. He told me that himself," Cook said. "He

Dow Jones nose-dives 120 points

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The stock market, which has scored sharp gains for more than a year, came unraveled in dramatic fashion Friday, with the market's most closely watched barometer, the Dow Jones industrial average, taking its largest plunge in more than two years.

When the dust settled, the Dow, which tracks 30 of the nation's leading companies, was down nearly 4 percent, closing at 2,943.20, off 120.31 points.

It was the fifth-largest point loss ever. The largest drop was in 1987, when the Dow index fell 508 points. The second largest was in October 1989, when the Dow fell 190.58 points.

President signs jobless benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress rushed a $5.3 billion jobless benefits extension to President Bush on Friday and he immediately signed the measure which had been kept him at odds with lawmakers for four months.

Final approval came on a vote of 91-2 after the Senate agreed to make the benefits even more generous as early as next week, ending a blockade that had delayed action

Alert salesmen keep man alive

By Debbie Lincicum

Quick reaction and knowledge of cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques by two local salesmen saved a life Friday.

Harold Dean Berry, 56, was repairing spotlights at the Blue Gem Shop, standing on a ladder. He slipped and fell to the sidewalk below, suffering what is believed to have been a massive heart attack, and hit his head on the pavement.

Jimmy Rogers, meanwhile, was returning to Saveall Mediquip, a medical equipment sales office he manages a few doors down from the Blue Gem.

"I was driving up from being out selling," Rogers said. "Some of my employees came running over and told me this had happened and the guy was already on the ground. He was almost dead."

Rogers, trained in CPR, sought the help of employee Charles Langley, an ex-security guard who also knew the life-saving technique.

"I knew this was serious, he was turning black. He had no oxygen," Rogers said. "He had hurt his head real bad and there was lot of blood."

"He was cold, and he had no color," Langley said. "We started CPR. After about the second cycle, he started breathing on his own and we got a faint pulse."

South Plains cotton harvest is in trouble

Associated Press

LUBBOCK — An early hard freeze, coupled with late plantings, insect attacks and a lack of warm fall weather, appears to have cut the South Plains cotton crop well below government estimates, agriculture officials said Friday.

Experts say the South Plains crop, which produces a quarter of the nation's cotton annually, has endured extensive quality damage and will yield between 2.5 and 2.7 million bales.

Those figures are well under the Department of Agriculture's estimate of 3 million bales and is down from last year's 2.9 million-bale crop.

Louisiana voters bitter over choice for governor

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW ORLEANS — The Cajun music still rockets through the night in clubs from Bourbon Street to Breaux Bridge, but there's no big fun on the bayou these days in Louisiana.

Friday, the day before the gubernatorial runoff between former Gov. Edwin W. Edwards and state Rep. David Duke, a former Ku Klux Klan leader and neo-Nazi, this is a state full of rage, fear and frustration. Instead of politics as loopy theater, it's politics as primal scream.

The race is not fun for Margot Garon of New Orleans, who says she can't help but hear recurring, insistent reminders of her childhood when her family fled Nazi Germany. It's not fun for Danny Braud of Gonzales, who wonders if the good times will ever roll again and blames government for everything from welfare cheaters to his bad luck in fishing.

It was not fun for Duke supporters at a rally in Lafayette on Wednesday night, bitter that what they see as a scream of rage

Grand jury indicts drifter in five Gainesville slayings

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Louisiana drifter Danny Harold Rolling was indicted Friday in the grisly killings of five college students stabbed in their off-campus apartments in August 1990.

No indictment was issued against Edward Lewis Humphrey, a former University of Florida freshman who was considered a secondary suspect.

After 30 minutes of deliberations, the grand jury indicted Rolling on five counts of first-degree murder, three counts of sexual battery and three counts of armed burglary.

The 17-member grand jury heard nine days of often gruesome testimony from 43 witnesses. They viewed photos and videotapes of the three bloody apartments where the students were stabbed and some mutilated. In one case, a decapitated head was placed on a bookshelf. Grand jurors were told DNA evidence links Rolling's semen to two crime scenes.

Rolling, 37, of Shreveport, La., also is a suspect in a triple slaying in his hometown that had similarities to the Gainesville slayings.

He is serving four life terms as a habit-

VOTE: Louisiana voters bitter over their choices for governor against a decade of corruption and economic decay is interpreted by outsiders as racism. It's not fun for business people throughout the state who fear that by electing Duke, Louisiana could be committing economic suicide.

And after Duke's emphasis on racial issues in this campaign and two other campaigns in the last two years, for the state Legislature and the U.S. Senate, Louisiana voters — black and white, Jew and Christian — are looking at each other in a way they have not for years.

"When the civil rights movement started they said, 'We just want to go to school with whites,'" said Louis Otto, 76, a New Orleans landlord, who is white. "Now, there's no stopping the demands. There's no end to it all. The morning paper said there's no black owners of baseball teams. What do they want? To give them a baseball team? That's why I tend to Duke."

Ted Quant, director of the Institute for Human Relations at Loyola University, who is black, said he is still stunned by Duke's strength and the fact he may get two-thirds of the white vote Saturday. "Everytime I shake hands with three white people," he said, "I shake hands with two Nazis."

As his critics and admirers are quick to point out, Duke's issues resonate nationally, not just in Louisiana. But he is also a product of the state's politics and of its economic morass over the past decade.

From the Depression-era days of Huey P. Long, whose "every man a king" populism created one-man rule, Louisiana's politics has always inhabited its own distinctive universe.

That universe reflected the state's poverty, its dependence on oil to pay the bills and its Balkanized politics, divided geographically by north and south and culturally by blacks, whites and Cajuns, descendants of the French settlers expelled from Nova Scotia by the British in 1755.

In the past these divisions have pitted Protestant and conservative northern Louisiana against Roman Catholic and free-wheeling southern Louisiana in a Byzantine political grid that writer A.J. Liebling once described as America's answer to Lebanon.

But the old alliances and divisions are now utterly scrambled, broken down by race and exacerbated by an economic slide that began when oil prices dropped in the early 1980s.

Tim Ryan, director of the Division of Business and Economic Research at the University of New Orleans, said Louisiana's economy peaked in 1981, when employment reached 1.63 million. The economy then stalled, and went into a free fall in 1985 and 1986, when the state lost 72,000 jobs. In 1987 it lost 40,000 more jobs, eventually falling to 1.48 million, a loss of more than 8 percent of the state's jobs.

Since then the economy has inched its way back, finally nearing the peak employment of 1981. But that gradual recovery, coming under Gov. Buddy Roemer, who finished third behind Edwards and Duke in last month's primary, failed to register with voters, Ryan said, adding, "It obviously wasn't fast enough to do away with or change that recession psychology that seemed to plague the voters."

It certainly did not change the psychology of Braud, 46, an electrician who was drinking a Budweiser and fishing in a roadside bayou on Tuesday afternoon near Sorrento, between New Orleans and Baton Rouge, and began talking about the campaign with a flurry of racial slurs.

"We have gone through depression, suppression, repression and everything else, and it's time for a change like David Duke," he said as he watched the murky bayou waters from a folding chair.

"Back in Earl Long's day, the politicians could take their cut because they put a chicken in every pot," he continued, referring to Huey Long's brother, who also served as governor. "Those days are gone. Now to get something to eat, I've got to catch a fish, and I can't do it because Buddy Roemer has got the channel going the wrong way."

The channel, off Blind River, was flowing the way it always has. But Braud's comment may have epitomized the special sense of political betrayal here.

Russia suspends oil licenses

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia suspended some of its lucrative oil exports Friday and began reviewing whether to halt other shipments in steps that assert greater control of the republic's vast resources.

Russian officials said the republic is desperate for fuel, but the action may also help tighten Russia's grip on the petroleum industry — the nation's primary source of hard currency.

Similar export bans may be considered for Russian coal, diamonds, gold and platinum, officials said.

It was not immediately known which nations would be affected by the freeze in export or how much oil was involved. Russia accounts for 90 percent of the oil production of the Soviet Union, the world's largest producer and a major supplier of heating and fuel oil for Europe.

In the Soviet Union, meanwhile, it was not clear whether the reduction in exports would endanger the ability to make debt payments. A default on the foreign debt could ruin the Soviet Union's chances of getting needed international aid and loans.

Finance officials from the world's seven richest democracies — the so-called Group of Seven — are scheduled to arrive in Moscow next week to discuss the estimated $81 billion Soviet foreign debt.

"If we don't stop oil exports immediately, we won't have anything to heat with," said Yegor Gaidar, Russia's deputy prime minister for economic affairs.

But a top Soviet reformer characterized the Russian decision as a dispute between Russia and the other republics over oil revenues.

Alexander Yakovlev, a key reformer and close aide to President Mikhail Gorbachev, said Russia objects to selling oil for rubles to other republics, which may then sell the oil overseas for hard currency.

"Somehow we need to regulate the question of how Russia will be building its relations with the other republics," said Yakovlev, who was in New York seeking emergency supplies.

Valery Grishin, an aide to Russian President Boris Yeltsin, said officials will review licenses to ship oil abroad and to other Soviet republics.

Kohl, Mitterrand encourage push for unity at EC summit

BONN, Germany (NYT) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany and President Francois Mitterrand of France concluded two days of talks by insisting that decisive steps toward European unity must be taken at a European Community summit meeting next month in the Dutch town of Maastricht.

Kohl described the Maastricht meeting as "a fateful hour for Europe" and warned that a failure of talks there would be "a catastrophe for European development" that could mark "the beginning of the collapse of our community."

Neither Kohl nor Mitterrand referred directly to Britain, but aides said British objections posed the greatest threat to success at Maastricht.

"Nobody wants the Maastricht summit to be a summit that isolates Britain," a French spokesman, Jean Musitelli, said. "But the answer is in the hands of the English."

Germany and France have been in the forefront of efforts to prepare treaties for signing in the Netherlands that would commit the European Community to political union and adoption of a single currency.

But Prime Minister John Major and other British leaders have expressed reluctance to take such far-reaching steps.

Britain has suggested that the Maastricht treaty on monetary union include a clause that would give any nation the right, at some future point, to decide that it wants to opt out of the union.

That suggestion has been strongly rejected by officials in Bonn and Paris.

Kohl considers himself a political ally of Major, and is seeking a compromise formula.

Russia takes power, revenues from Gorbachev's government

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian President Boris Yeltsin stripped the central Soviet government of much of its revenues and authority Friday, a day after a majority of the 12 republics agreed to a decentralized political union.

Yeltsin ordered a cutoff of his republic's funding for about 80 ministries and agencies in President Mikhail's Gorbachev's government starting Dec. 1.

He also suspended licenses for some Soviet petroleum exports, the Kremlin's main source of hard currency. Coal, gold and diamond exports soon will be placed under Russian control as well, officials in Russia said.

Russia accounts for 90 percent of oil production in the Soviet Union, which is the world's largest oil producer and a major supplier of heating and fuel oil for Europe.

The moves, expected for weeks, will force many central ministries to close and others to cut staff and budgets. Their functions will be assumed by Russia and the other republics under the new Union Treaty tentatively reached Thursday by Gorbachev, Yeltsin and leaders of six other republics.

It was unclear whether the reduction in exports would endanger Soviet ability to make debt payments. A default on the foreign debt could ruin the Soviet Union's chances of getting needed international aid and loans.

Among the first to feel the squeeze

Friday were the once-powerful ministries of foreign affairs and foreign trade. They will be merged and half their employees fired, Foreign Minister Boris Pankin told the state news agency Tass.

The staffs of Soviet missions abroad will be cut "rather substantially" and trade missions eliminated, Pankin said.

Together, the trade and foreign ministries employ about 4,000 people. The 80 ministries and agencies whose necks are on the chopping block have a total of about 37,000 employees, according to Ivan Silayev, chairman of a new Inter-Republic Economic Committee.

Yeltsin's cutoff of funding had been scheduled to take effect Friday.

Baker's talks in Beijing to focus on technology transfer, dissidents

BELJING (NYT) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III opened talks with Chinese leaders Friday night, making a series of specific requests that China cease any transfers of nuclear weapons technology to countries like Algeria and Iran and that it release some of the pro-democracy political prisoners.

A senior State Department official said after Baker's first meeting with Foreign Minister Qian Qichen that the Chinese gave no concrete responses Friday to the secretary's proposals.

The official added that while Baker was not expecting responses this evening, the start of three days of talks, it was not even clear from what was said Friday night that there would be any specific responses while Baker is in China.

Baker flew to Beijing from Seoul, South Korea, and his Chinese escorts took his motorcade through Tiananmen Square on its way to the Diaoyutai State Guest House, where Baker, his wife, Susan, and his entourage are staying.

This is Baker's first visit to China since he accompanied President Bush here in February 1989, and the first high-level visit by any Bush administration official since the Tiananmen killings in June 1989.

For Chinese leaders, the visit is a long-sought sign that they have largely recovered diplomatically from the Tiananmen crackdown and provides them with an instant political boost. The Chinese public will likely only be shown scenes of Baker's engagement with them and will hear none of the American's complaints or specific requests for changes in behavior.

Baker's arrival in Beijing was given little attention on the Chinese evening news. It was preceded in the broadcast by, among other things, news reports of dike repairs and the completion of a new railway line.

For the Bush administration, as well as for the immediate future of U.S.-Chinese relations, much is riding on the outcome of the talks.

If Baker leaves with nothing concrete to show for having come to Beijing and has only added legitimacy to China's hard-line leaders, it will not only open the Bush administration's China policies to heavy criticism from the Democrats in an election year, but also likely spur moves in Congress to strip Beijing of its preferential trade benefits.

It is for this reason that diplomats and many Chinese believe that Baker will not leave Beijing empty-handed.

Speaking to reporters before his opening round of talks, Baker said that this visit "would afford us the opportunity to talk about some issues where we see things in the same perspective and some issues where we have some problems."

Perez de Cuellar sends envoy to Yugoslavia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Friday that a top envoy and the senior U.N. peacekeeper would leave today for Yugoslavia to explore a peacekeeping mission.

Perez de Cuellar said former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, his special representative in the Yugoslav crisis, and Undersecretary-General Marrack Goulding would visit the war-torn nation "to see what would be required for a U.N. presence if it is needed."

Goulding's office already is making contingency plans for a peacekeeping mission, U.N. officials said.

Vance and Goulding were to arrive Monday and spend seven to nine days in Yugoslavia, Perez de Cuellar told reporters after briefing the Security Council on their mission.

On Friday, Croatia and a Yugoslav federal army general agreed on the 13th cease-fire in the embat-ted Croatia, a move that could open the way for U.N. peacekeepers to monitor the cease-fire. However, 12 previous cease-fires all quickly collapsed.

Some question whether the leaders of Croatia and the federal army have control of all the forces in the field.

Perez de Cuellar told reporters that before any U.N. peacekeeping mission is deployed, all Yugoslav parties who have to agree to it and there would have to be a cease-fire in place.

The Security Council would have to pass a resolution authorizing the peacekeeping force. There may be opposition from China, which is leery of employing the U.N. forces in any conflict seen as an internal one.

"There are many 'ifs' before we can send a mission, but we want to be prepared to help if the fighting stops," Perez de Cuellar said.

Israeli police urge indictment for Palestinian

JERUSALEM (NYT) — The Israeli police recommended Friday that Hanan Ashrawi, the main voice of the Palestinians at the recent Middle East peace talks held in Madrid, be brought to trial for supposedly having met with officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Mrs. Ashrawi, who rose to international prominence at the Madrid conference, denounced the action as "vindictive and petty," and Jordan's foreign minister, Kamel Abu Jaber, asked the United States and the Soviet Union to protect her from prosecution.

It was far from clear that the Israeli attorney general would in fact pursue an indictment against Mrs. Ashrawi, a university professor who lives in the West Bank town of Ramallah, six miles north of Jerusalem.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said only that prosecutors would study the police file, a procedure that could take weeks.

Eliyakim Haetzni, a member of Parliament from the far-right Tehiya Party, applauded the police recommendation but predicted that the government would drop the matter "for political reasons."

Liberal and left-wing critics of the government said, however, that the case had already threatened to give Israel a public-relations black eye at a delicate moment, as it prepares to resume peace negotiations with its immediate Arab neighbors, including a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation.

"If the recommendation is carried out, Israel's image will suffer irreparable damage," said Amnon Rubinstein, a lawmaker from the small Shinui Party. "This would be an absurdity which no democratic society could contemplate."

Since their return to Israeli-held territory last weekend, some of the Palestinian delegates to Madrid said it was their understanding that they held a sort of diplomatic immunity from routine prosecution as long as the peace process continues.

Mrs. Ashrawi, in an interview at her Ramallah home on Thursday night, said that she, too, doubted that the Israeli authorities would press criminal charges against her at this delicate juncture.

After the police action became known Friday, she said in a telephone conversation that she wanted to "wait and see" what the Justice Ministry would do. But she added, "I refuse to be intimidated, and I refuse to be silenced."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who left on Thursday night for a visit to the United States, insisted in an interview published today that Palestinian delegates to Madrid had no immunity from prosecution but that there also was no intention to harass them.

Maxwell mystery deepens

LONDON (AP) — A newspaper report Friday said new autopsy information and sightings of other yachts in a remote area where Robert Maxwell was sailing have raised questions about the cause of his death.

A lawmaker who maintains the British publisher was linked to the Israeli secret service Mossad said in the House of Commons that there was speculation Maxwell may have been murdered.

George Galloway, a member of the opposition Labor Party, demanded the government comment on the reports in The Guardian newspaper about Maxwell.

The 68-year-old Maxwell disappeared from his yacht early Nov. 5. His body was recovered from the Atlantic off Spain's Canary Islands later that day, and an autopsy was performed Nov. 7.

Judge Isabel Oliva, the investigating magistrate, was quoted as telling BBC television Friday that forensic reports won't be complete for at least one week.

"There is no charge against anyone at the moment and there is no one who is apparently implicated at this stage," Oliva said.

Quoting an unidentified source who was said to have extensive notes on the confidential autopsy documents, the Guardian reported:

■ Doctors did not offer a likely cause of death and only ruled out drowning because there was not enough water in Maxwell's lungs.

■ Doctors found Maxwell had a tiny perforation or fissure below his left ear that was .04 inches wide.

■ Doctors did not find "certain signs normally associated with a lengthy period in the water before retrieval," including wrinkles and sunburn.

The liberal daily said a statement from Judge Luis Gutierrez Sanjuan that Maxwell died a natural death before falling into the water was among "the least consistent" conclusions from the autopsy findings.

Clements predicts Cuomo-Richards Democratic ticket

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Former Texas Gov. Bill Clements on Friday sharply criticized the performance of his successor, Ann Richards, while predicting that she will wind up on the 1992 Democratic presidential ticket alongside New York Gov. Mario Cuomo.

"Ann Richards is going to make a strong, strong run at vice president," Clements said in a telephone interview from his Dallas office. "She's doing everything she can to get on that ticket as vice president."

Clements, who left office in January, blamed Richards and other Democrats for a $2.7 billion tax bill and a "bloated" $60 billion biennial budget that calls for a 22 percent increase in state spending for 1992-93.

"A 22 percent increase in the economic environment we have today is absurd, absolutely nuts," Clements said, contending that Richards' policies have contributed to the state's economic problems. "We have a governor who doesn't understand about creating jobs."

Asked if the Democratic governor is vulnerable to being defeated for re-election, Clements replied: "I don't think there's any question about it."

"It's become apparent that the honeymoon is over," Clements said.

Richards spokesman Chuck McDonald, responding to Clements' remarks, said the tax package was passed by the Legislature to meet an unexpectedly large deficit and did not include an income tax or a sales tax increase.

Richards has also begun the process of trying to curb state spending, McDonald said.

McDonald also reiterated Richards' previous statements that she has no interest in running for national office, despite a high profile outside of Texas. A mid-summer Lou Harris poll ranked her fourth as a potential Democratic candidate behind Cuomo, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas and Sen.

Albert Gore of Tennessee. Clements said he is convinced that Cuomo will enter the race.

Texas rejects Medicaid compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas won't join other states in a compromise that would end the dispute over Medicaid because it would lose more than $1 billion in funds to provide health care to the poor, state officials said Friday.

The state informed the National Governors Association on Thursday that it would not endorse a settlement negotiated by the group and the Bush administration.

The settlement is only slightly less damaging than a proposed Medicaid regulation scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, state and hospital officials said.

"It's a little bit like choosing do you want to cut off your arm with a butcher knife or a saw," said Joe DaSilva, a spokesman for the Texas Hospital Association. "They both have the same end result."

The administration has promised to withdraw its regulation if the compromise is endorsed by a majority of governors and enacted into law by Congress.

DaSilva and others said Friday they hope the proposed settlement is not the final word and that the NGA will keep negotiating to improve the states' position.

Governors had a Thursday night deadline to vote on the settlement, said NGA spokesman Matthew Davis. The tally was not immediately available.

"Part of the problem is trying to get consensus between all the states," Davis said. "There are some states that have more to lose than others."

Gov. Ann Richards told the NGA she could not support the plan, said Pat Cole, director of health and human services policy for Richards.

"Texas cannot support the provisions that were in the preliminary negotiated settlement," she said. "We would like very, very much for NGA to continue with those negotiations."

Ms. Cole estimated the state would lose $1.1 billion of its $6.3 billion Medicaid budget if the settlement takes effect.

"In the state of Texas, you're talking about moms and babies with no health care, period," DaSilva said. "It's just totally inappropriate."

In addition to the hope that talks will continue, Ms. Cole said

More state news/4C

Texas is relying on Congress to block implementation of the rule until after the current fiscal year ends Sept. 30 is scheduled for a vote Monday in the House.

Both Ms. Cole and DeAnn Friedholm, special assistant to Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, said the regulation would kill three Texas programs that fund hospitals treating a disproportionate share of poor people.

"All three of them are essential to the indigent care system, to the safety net system we have," Ms. Friedholm said.

About 110 of Texas' 460 hospitals take part in the disproportionate share program. If either the settlement or the Medicaid regulation takes effect, those hospitals will lose an estimated $1.09 billion, she said.

"Hospitals are going to have a very difficult time providing services to our three million people who don't have any kind of coverage and making up the losses they sustain from taking care of people who we fund with Medicaid," Ms. Friedholm said.

Five animals mysteriously die at zoo

DALLAS (AP) — Veterinarians and curators at the Dallas Zoo searched for clues Friday after the mysterious death of a kangaroo, the fifth animal to die this week.

The 10-year-old red kangaroo, named Cory, was found dead early Friday. A necropsy was performed and tissue samples were sent to labs at the University of Florida and Texas A&M University. Results are expected next week.

The string of deaths at the zoo began Tuesday morning when a 12-year-old African elephant named Moja died suddenly from pulmonary edema — fluid in the lungs.

Then, two monkeys, Kai, a 3-year-old male and Ayla, a 2-year-old female, died Wednesday afternoon. Miles, a 6-year-old red panda on a breeding loan from the National Zoo in Washington, D.C., died early Thursday.

The latest death had similar characteristics to the others, said Dallas Zoo curator Ron Kagan.

Kagan said officials are investigating whether a virus caused the deaths.

But Dr. A. Conrad Eugster, executive director of Texas A&M's Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory, said there are several other possible causes.

Poison, stress, parasites, nutrition or weather might have caused, or at least contributed, to the deaths, said Eugster, a veterinarian.

"I couldn't think of a virus that would cover that many species if you talk about monkeys, elephants and kangaroos," Eugster said. "Usually virus' are species specific. It would be something highly unusual."

But a poison could cut across species lines very easily, he said.

"For example, strychnine can effect almost every species from man to mouse," Eugster said.

Eugster declined to comment specifically about the tests because the findings were not complete.

"All zoos have some problem occasionally with animals dying, like in the human population," Eugster said.

The monkeys and panda also suffered from pulmonary edema, a condition that causes breathing difficulty after excess fluid builds up in the lungs and around them. It is not common among animals in captivity, Kagan said.

The Lee-Palo Duro game is set for a noon kickoff; Permian-Tascosa follows at 4 p.m.

Mustangs in, Steers out

■ Big Spring is sent home, void of playoff participation after a 20-19 season-ending loss in Monahans Friday night.

By Joe Wyatt

MONAHANS — The Big Spring Steers know perfectly well how to dig themselves a nice deep hole and then climb out of it, but this time they piled the dirt a bit too high.

The Steers dug themselves out of the playoffs here Friday night with six turnovers and a 20-19 loss to the Monahans Lobos in the regular-season finale for both teams.

The Steers lost a bid for their second come-from-behind victory in a row when Big Spring quarterback Gerald Cobos was chased out of the pocket on a two-point pass play at the start of the fourth quarter and his off-balance effort fell short of the mark.

Monahans ran 24 of the next 27 plays to preserve the victory.

Each team finished the season 8-2 overall and 4-2 in District 3-4A.

A Big Spring victory would have clinched a fourth-straight playoff berth for the Steers, but instead it will be the Andrews Mustangs who taste the post-season along with Sweetwater from 3-4A.

Andrews trounced Lake View 63-0 and Fridaydome up 8-2 and 5-1. A Big Spring loss was the only way for Andrews to earn its first postseason tour since 1981.

"We're devastated, but we were just beaten by a better ball club," said the Steers' first-year head coach Dwight Butler. "Still, when you lose turnovers down that deep in your own end you could just fold your tent.

"These kids (Steers) did not fold their tent and I'm really proud of them."

Monahans grabbed a 14-0 lead in the first quarter behind quarterback Junior Fuentes' 18-yard touchdown strike to Phillip Breeding and a two-yard TD run by fullback Jason Bounds. The second of the two scores was the result of a one-play drive set up when Big Spring's Pat Chavarria fumbled a high punt inside

Andrews back in playoffs after 10-year drought

ANDREWS — Coach W.T. Stapler of the Andrews Mustangs has been through some agonizing moments in his sparkling coaching career. But having to wait for the outcome of the game between Monahans and Big Spring was a real killer.

After his Mustangs dispatched San Angelo Lake View, 63-0, they headed to the locker room hoping that Monahans would knock off the Steers.

"In the many years that I've been in this business I've had a lot of crazy things happen to me," said Stapler.

Stapler recalled how one his teams lost a one point game to Earl Campbell's Tyler led team. On another occasion, a team captained by a Curtis Dickey squeaked by a Stapler squad, and a missed extra-point cost another one of his teams a win in the Astrodome.

Said Stapler, "Heck one year we went undefeated and didn't even make the playoffs."

So waiting for the final result from Monahans was just another crazy day in the life of Stapler.

SAN ANGELO — San Angelo Central head football coach Dan Gandy must have felt a little like Jackie Gleason Friday night, as his "how sweet it is" glow indicated after a 21-7 Class 5A Big School bi-district win over Lubbock Coronado here.

From the 2-8 outing in his initial season in 1989, Gandy's Bobcats now have made the playoffs two years in a row and took the school's first postseason win since 1986 with the victory.

"It sure has changed from when we were the 'SMU' or the 'Rice' of the district," Gandy said in reference to the dorms of the Southwest Conference.

And as the Big School representative from District 4-5A, often referred to as the "Little Southwest Conference," Central raised the 4-5A banner in the first round and advanced its season record to 8-2-1.

"We're real pleased. It's a great feeling to see your program turn around like this," Gandy said.

Central (8-2-1) now faces El Paso Socorro in the area round, with Socorro traveling to San Angelo Stadium for an 8 p.m. kickoff next Friday.

Against Coronado, senior quarterback Shea Morenz passed for 277 yards and his 29th and 30th touchdown passes of the season, while receivers Marcus Bibbs and Ryan King each went over the 100-yard mark.

In the first half, Morenz and Co. provided a somewhat expected 254 yards in offense while taking a 14-7 half-time lead.

What came as a surprise, though, was 1) the 209 offensive yards the Mustangs accumulated and 2) the fact the score was just 14-7 at intermission after 463 yards of output between the two offenses.

Central got on the scoreboard first, taking the first possession on its 33-yard line and going the 63 yards in just four plays and 50 seconds.

David Hamilton, the sole running back in the Bobcat offense, took the first play from scrimmage on a counter that produced 32 yards because of a Morenz pump fake. After one Morenz incompleteness, he found Charles Vogel for 16 yards then hit Ryan King on a 15-yard touchdown pass.

The Cats mishandled the extra point, though, as a high snap resulted in an eventual incomplete pass.

But if the hometown San Angelo

It came as no surprise that West Texas representatives won the girls state basketball championships in all five classes in 1990-91.

Amarillo Tascosa took its first Class 5A title, while Levelland claimed golden trophy No. 6 in 4A.

Tulia was the champ of 3A and Abernathy was victorious in 2A.

Then in 1A, Nazareth won an unprecedented 12th title and fourth in a row.

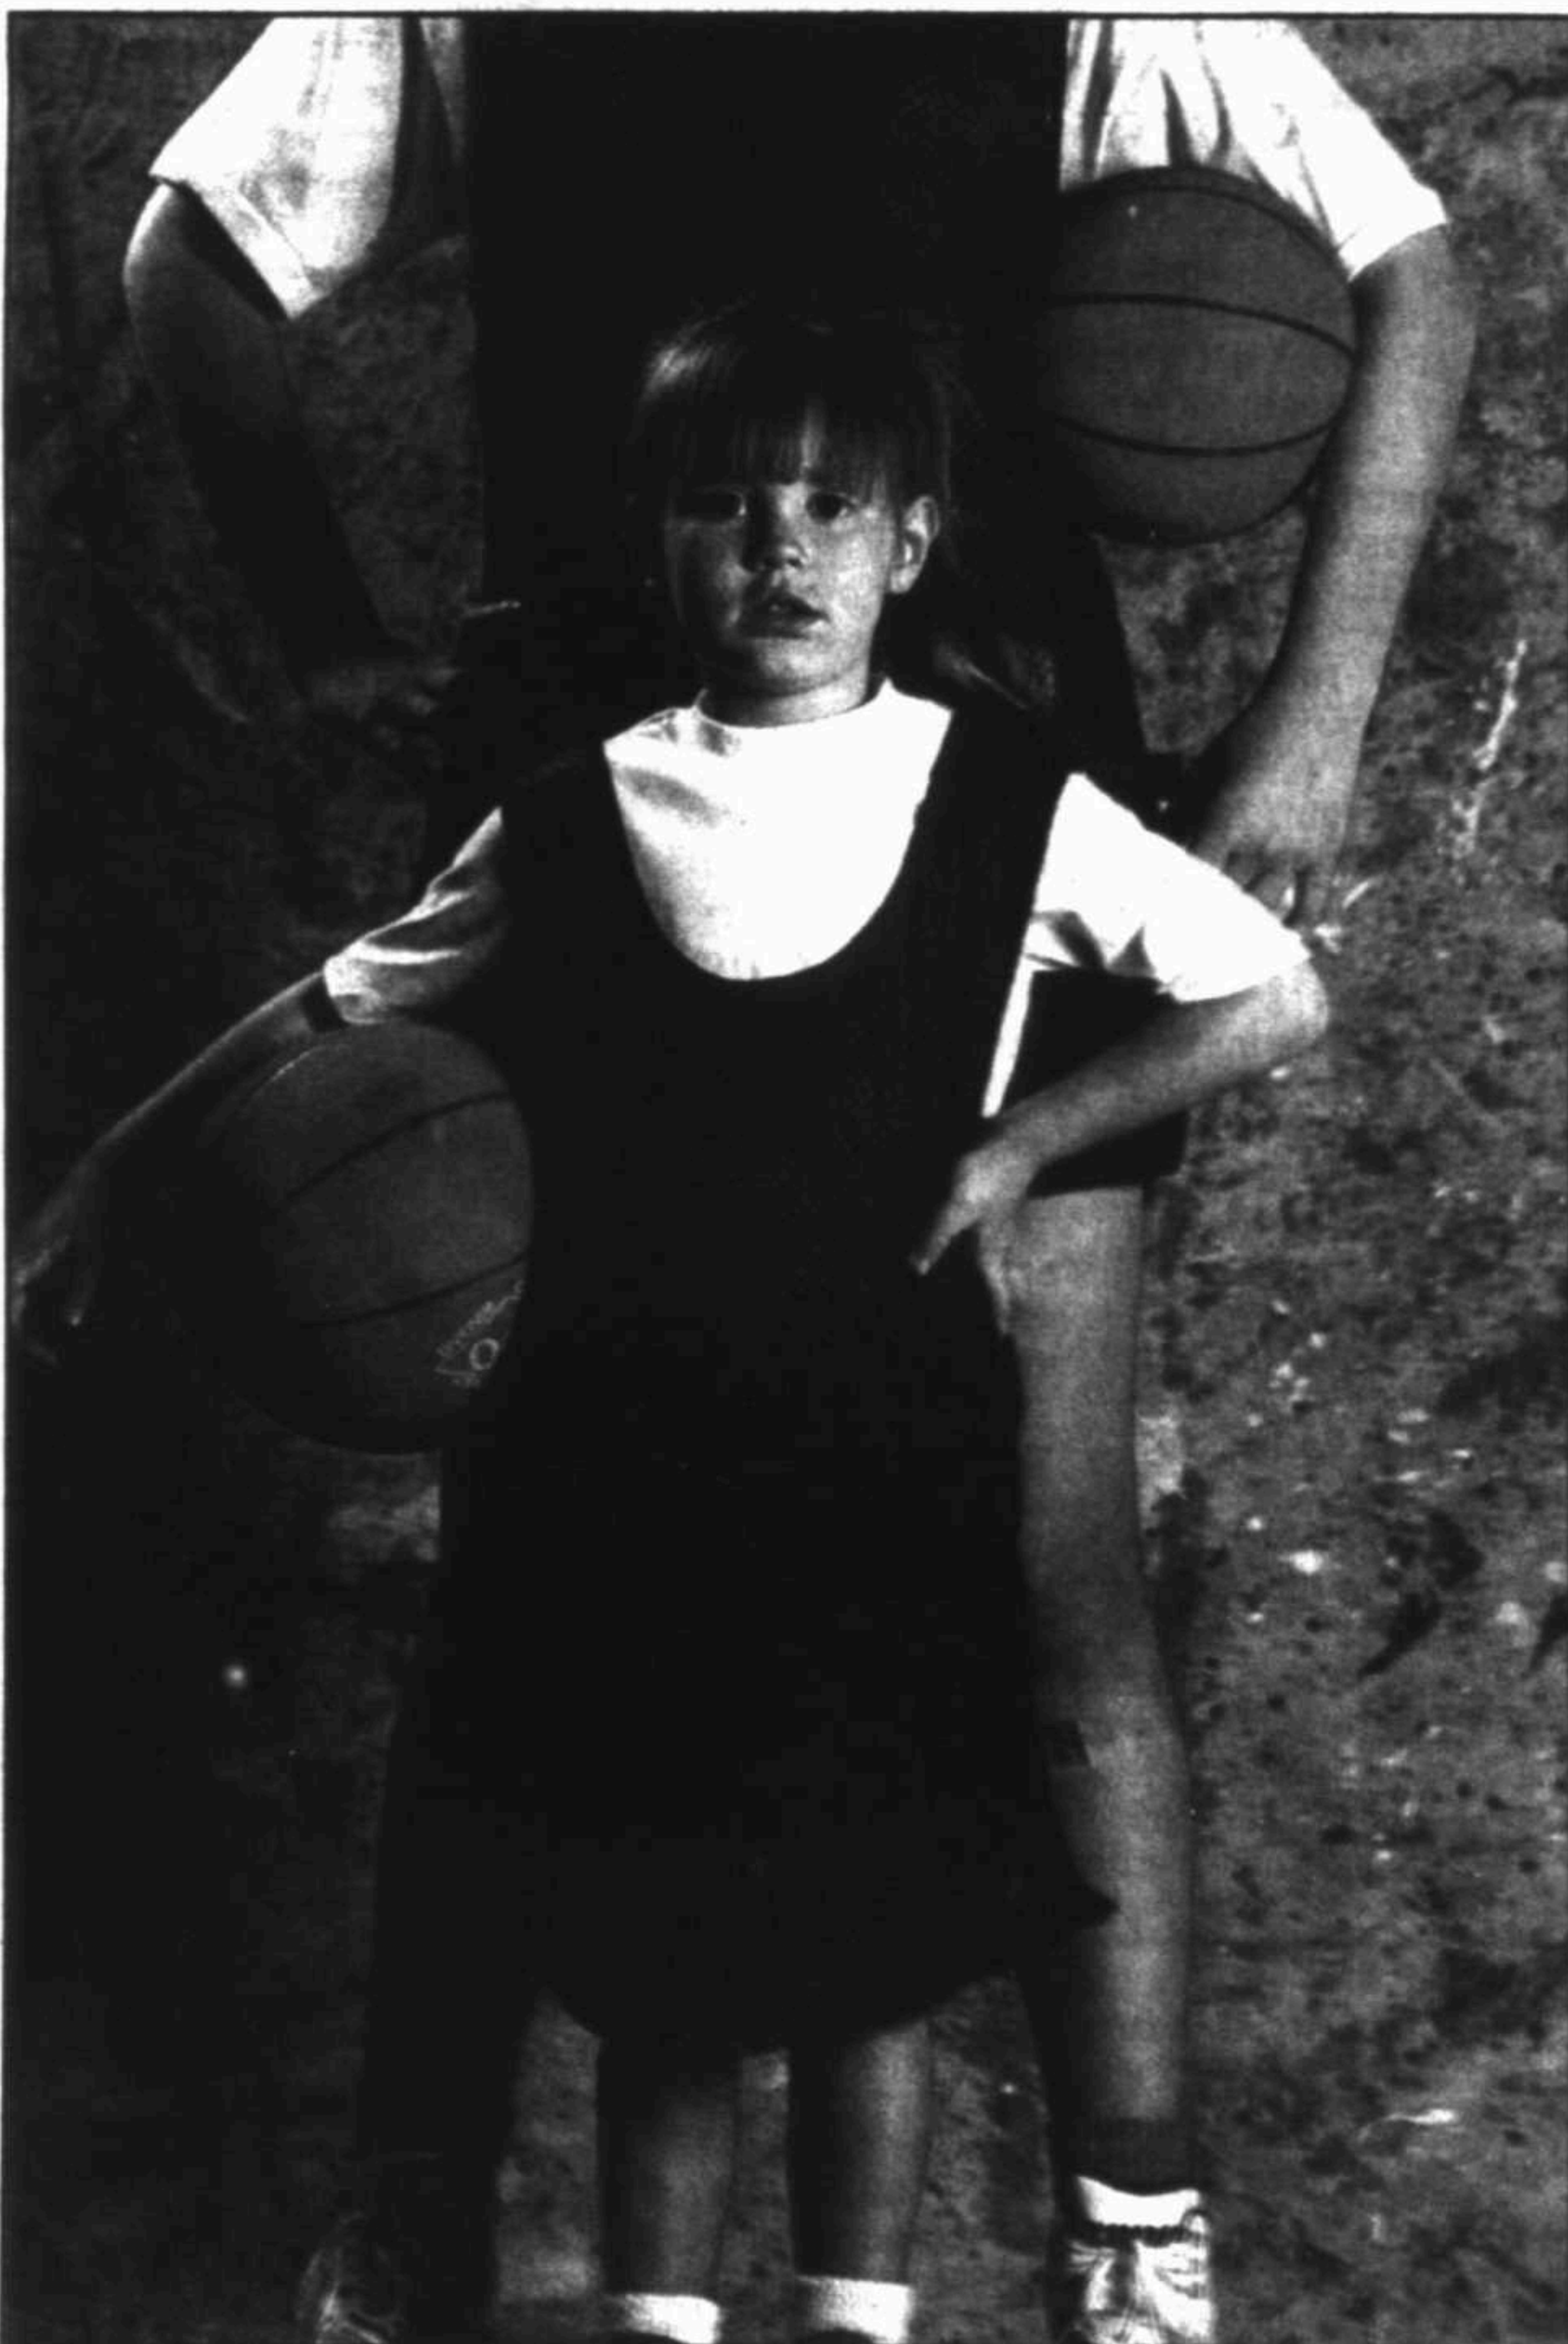

The problem with those impressive numbers, at least where the Permian Basin is concerned, is that all those teams were from the Panhandle/South Plains portion of West Texas.

That area of the state has long been a hotbed of female basketball, with other high schools like Canyon, Dimmitt, Amarillo High and Lubbock Monterey helping feed the successful collegiate programs at Wayland Baptist in Plainview and West Texas State at Canyon.

It sometimes seems that those girls have a basketball in their hands from the time of birth.

But the Permian Basin — espe-

1991-92 Midland High Lady Bulldogs

1991-92 Midland Lee Lady Rebels

New coaches settle in at Midland High, Lee

□ Work ethic, outlooks take positive turn

□ Kail counts on plethora of Lee seniors

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

With one year under his belt and two All-District 4-5A starters returning for their senior seasons in Sally Gibson and Ashley Chase, Jim Raughton is having himself a good ol' time as coach of the Midland High Lady Bulldogs basketball team.

Raughton

Last year's turn-around — which saw the Lady 'Daws improve by six games overall and four in district over the season before — was only the beginning. The situation with the girls' program at MHS could get even better this year, Raughton feels.

The Lady 'Daws, 14-14 overall, and 5-7 in district last year, open the 1991-92 season next Tuesday at Andrews. MHS, along with the Lady Rebels, co-host this year's girls' Tall City Tournament Nov. 22-23 at Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus. District play for MHS begins December 20 at home against Abilene Cooper.

"These girls are a pleasure to work with. I enjoy my job and enjoy coming to work every day. I feel better at this point in the season than at this time last year largely because this year's team attitude is a complete reversal."

Raughton admits he eased into last year not fully knowing what to expect from his girls. This season, he knew what to expect, and he likes what he sees.

"I think they feel like they can win," Raughton said. "Last year, we hit the panic button too many times. I don't think we'll hit it this year."

In addition to Chase and Gibson, Raughton has four letter winners back as well. Tarshina Belcher, Jackie Perez, Jennifer Pirkle and Charlotte Scharbauer return to for another year on the varsity level.

In addition, Raughton has the luxury of a new, proven assistant coach in Carol McCann, a former assistant coach at perennial playoff contender Lewisville.

"Carol knows what it takes to build a program, and she has great rapport with the kids."

A total of 60 girls showed up for tryouts at MHS this fall.

Offensively, Raughton says changes will be forthcoming in the Lady 'Daws transition game. MHS is afforded more height and better shooting this season.

"We can play in the halfcourt now with the size we'll have inside and the shooting outside."

The return of Gibson is, of course, welcome. Her 5-11 height has been a positive for MHS basketball for two years, and this year, Gibson looks to have improved her range as well.

"She's a take charge player. She hits the 15 footer and runs the floor from basket to basket. She's also very unselfish."

Always ready to feed to Gibson at the post or to take the ball in from the wing is Chase, another girl with two years varsity experience.

"They (Gibson and Chase) will have to carry the load," Raughton said. "I don't think that load, though, will be quite as big this year. They understand their roles and their responsibilities."

"Ashley will be the one to take charge on the floor. She understands the game. She recognizes defensive changes and knows when we need to adjust on offense."

Together, Gibson (12.9) and Chase (10.6) 23.5 points per game.

"As a team, I don't think we're going to have the overall quickness this year," Raughton said. "But I think this team will adjust and make changes better than last year."

Joining Gibson and Chase will be three seniors, five juniors and a sophomore.

■ Mich Neatherlin, 5-8, Sr. "We've seen her leadership qualities in volleyball," Raughton said. "She's a competitor. She's also strong and can help us on the inside."

■ Jennifer Pirkle, 5-6, Sr. Another volleyball graduate, Pirkle has good visual judgment and, as a returning letter winner, will provide leadership.

■ Tarshina Belcher, 5-6, Sr. Improved her shot and ball control in the off-season. "She's a coach's dream. She never complains and is a good role model for the younger players."

■ Lisa Koss, 6-3, Jr. Still learning the Midland High system, Koss, who's brother Phil is a member of the boys' varsity is a transfer from Midland Baptist. Provides needed height inside and provides a nice touch on the defensive floor. "Aggressive, smart, hard working. She'll be a quality player by district."

■ Jackie Perez, 5-7, Jr. Perez's strength is her ability to read and react defensively, as well as being an aggressive player. "She put a lot of work into her game last spring."

■ Stephanie Saxon, 5-6, Jr. Up from the JV last year, Raughton said Saxon's hard work over the summer looks to be paying off. A good shooter who has a wide range of shots.

■ Rochelle Wilson, 5-8, Jr. Shots from 15 feet are Wilson's forte, along with defensive instincts.

■ Charlotte Scharbauer, 5-6, Jr. "She gets better every day. She has good quickness and ball handling, and I'm very comfortable with her shooting. Right now, she's shooting lights out."

■ Julie Chancellor, 5-8, Soph. Expected to vie for guard position from day one, Chancellor is described by Raughton as "a good young player with a great future. She'll see a lot of playing time."

Raughton says Abilene High, San Angelo Central and his own Lady 'Daws could very well be the Top 3 finishers in this year's district race. It is possible MHS could snatch up one of the two playoff spots, if everything goes well.

"I didn't pass along the demands that I should have last year," Raughton admits. "But this group knows what's expected of them. They want to win and they understand that it takes work."

To assist her in her first year as head coach of the Midland Lee Lady Rebel basketball team, Elise Kail hopes she can look to her seniors for support and leadership.

Kail

Kail took over the Lady Rebel program in the off-season following the retirement of Shirley Stephenson who had seen the Rebels through 14 seasons.

"The seniors are adjusting well," Kail said. "They're working hard, they're excited and they listen to everything I say."

Kail has eight seniors on this year's Lady Rebel varsity. Among those are five starters and regulars returning in Lachette Crisp, Lisa Cochran, Tiffany Grafa and Debbie Kuntz, all seniors, and junior Tekeira Strambler.

The Lee girls open the 1991-92 season this Tuesday at Hobbs, N.M. The Lady Rebels then return in time to co-host with MHS the Tall City girls tournament, at Midland College's Chaparral Center. Following the Tall City, Lee returns to the Land of Enchantment for a game against Carlsbad.

Other road games in the pre-district season are at Seminole and Big Spring, and at tournaments in Del Rio and Lubbock. The Lee girls have only one other home assignment (vs. McCamey, December 10) before district play begins December 20 at Abilene High.

Assisting Kail this season are Paddy Davis and Misty Clay.

"We'll play more fundamentally," Kail said when asked what to expect from this year's team. "We'll use more defensive pressure."

The Lee girls finished 10-19 overall, and 4-8 for fifth place in district last season.

Kail won't pin herself to an opening day starting lineup, hinting instead that the Rebels may play a different group of starters with each game. Besides, she said, "it's not who starts, it's who finishes."

It is, however, a big plus that Kail has five players back with the abilities of Grafa, Kuntz, Cochran, Crisp and Strambler. Both Grafa and Kuntz possess a great deal of court strength while Strambler is one of the finest female athletes to be found in this part of the state. Crisp can be counted on for her scoring and Cochran is a key player as well.

Aside from being a "good athlete and good floor leader," Kail said of Grafa, a 5-9 post/wing, that her "scoring ability will surprise people." Last season, Grafa averaged 6.2 ppg, second behind Lachette Crisp.

Crisp, at 5-7, will again play at the wing position for the Lady Rebels. "She's very adaptable and can go to any of our positions. She knows when to shoot and when not to." Crisp's team leading scoring average was 7.6 ppg.

Cochran, a 5-7 wing, has had success with the long range shot and will be looked to for that again this season. Motivated and "extremely intelligent," as soon as Cochran's stamina develops further, she'll improve that much more.

Kuntz, the 5-8 guard/wing who transferred from Hobbs last year is "bound and determined to have a better year. She's the type of player who likes to be motivated to get the job done. She's a strong-willed kid, a good leader and takes care of the ball really well."

"TK (Strambler) is an excellent athlete. She's highly self-motivated and she's really just now learning how to take the ball to the basket."

Combined, Kuntz and Strambler averaged 10.5 ppg last season.

The 5-9 Strambler has suffered recently from an ankle sprain but should be ready to go at her post/wing slot by the season opener.

One notable addition for the Lady Rebels this season is the transfer of Monica Myers. Myers, a post-wing at Greenwood, made All-District 6-3A for two seasons before moving to Lee. She also averaged 10.2 points on 42 percent field goal shooting and 5.9 rebounds per game last year at Greenwood.

"Monica is an extremely, extremely good ball player," Kail said. "She'll play both post and wing for us."

In addition to the returning starters and Myers, Kail welcomes back letter winners Michelle Stewart and Raneen Franklin.

The 5-10 Franklin, at post, is the only player on the roster who has been playing for Kail ever since she began as a JV coach two seasons ago. "A lot stronger than her looks appear," Franklin is good on the boards but still is trying to find her shot after averaging 1.6 ppg last season.

The 5-7 Stewart's strength is in her passing, Kail said. "Her no-look passes are very good. She has really quick hands on defense."

Kail says 5-7 junior guard/wing Courtney McHugh, and 5-8 junior wing/post Tanisha Mills will "have a jump on everyone else because they played junior varsity last season and know our offensive and defensive plays."

With a "beautiful outside shot," McHugh will get plenty of minutes as the secondary guard behind Kuntz.

"Courtney will turn into an excellent point guard," Kail said, "but at the first of the year she'll be a shooting guard because she can hit them."

Mills has superior jumping ability and is quick as lightning. She can take the ball and shoot a layup while everybody else is crossing the free throw line. When she learns a little finesse she'll become a really good player."

Other juniors with a shot at making the varsity roster include: ■ Valerie Gartman, 5-10 post. Gartman "can knock about three people out of the lane when she goes up for a rebound."

■ Angie Buchanan, 5-5 wing/guard. "She can nail the three."

■ Roxanne Furrow, 5-9 post/guard. Currently out with an injury.

Associated Press

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Isiah Thomas scored 44 points to lead the Detroit Pistons over the Utah Jazz, 123-115.

It was Thomas' highest output since scoring a career-high 47 eight season ago.

The Pistons led by six points at halftime, and Thomas out-dueled Karl Malone to keep Detroit ahead 87-82 after three quarters. Thomas scored 16 points in the period, hitting all seven of his shots, while Malone made six of six for 15 points. Thomas stayed hot after the break, scoring eight of Detroit's first 12 points in the fourth, and helping the Pistons hold off Utah's attempt at a late comeback.

Five other players scored in double figures for Detroit. Karl Malone led Utah with 31, Jeff Malone had 25 and John Stockton 20 before fouling out.

Detroit trailed 17-16 late in the first period, but ran off the next seven points, and led 25-20 at the end of the quarter.

The Pistons led by as many as nine points in the second, but missed three straight free throws with 13 seconds to play, and settled for a 49-43 advantage at halftime.

Celtics 122, 76ers 97
BOSTON — Larry Bird scored 24 points before taking an unusual early rest and the Boston Celtics withstood Charles Barkley's 15-point first period, ending Philadelphia's five-game winning streak with a romp over the 76ers.

Reggie Lewis scored 19 points, rookie Rick Fox 15, Kevin McHale 14 and Kevin Gamble 12 as the Celtics employed all 12 players, using reserves for the entire fourth period, en route to a third consecutive victory.

Barkley, wearing No. 32 for the first as a tribute to recently retired Magic Johnson, was a one-man gang in the first period, but cooled off, finishing with 28 points.

Despite Barkley's hot shooting, the Celtics charged to a 36-28 first quarter lead with a balanced attack topped by Lewis with eight points and Bird and John Bagley with six each.

The 76ers narrowed the deficit to 51-48 late in the second period, but Bird sank a free throw on a Philadelphia illegal zone infraction and McHale and Robert Parish added two free throws each for a 56-48 halftime lead.

Heat 120, Hornets 105
MIAMI — Grant Long and Steve Smith keyed a second-half surge and Glen Rice scored 33 points as the Miami Heat handed the Charlotte Hornets their fifth straight loss.

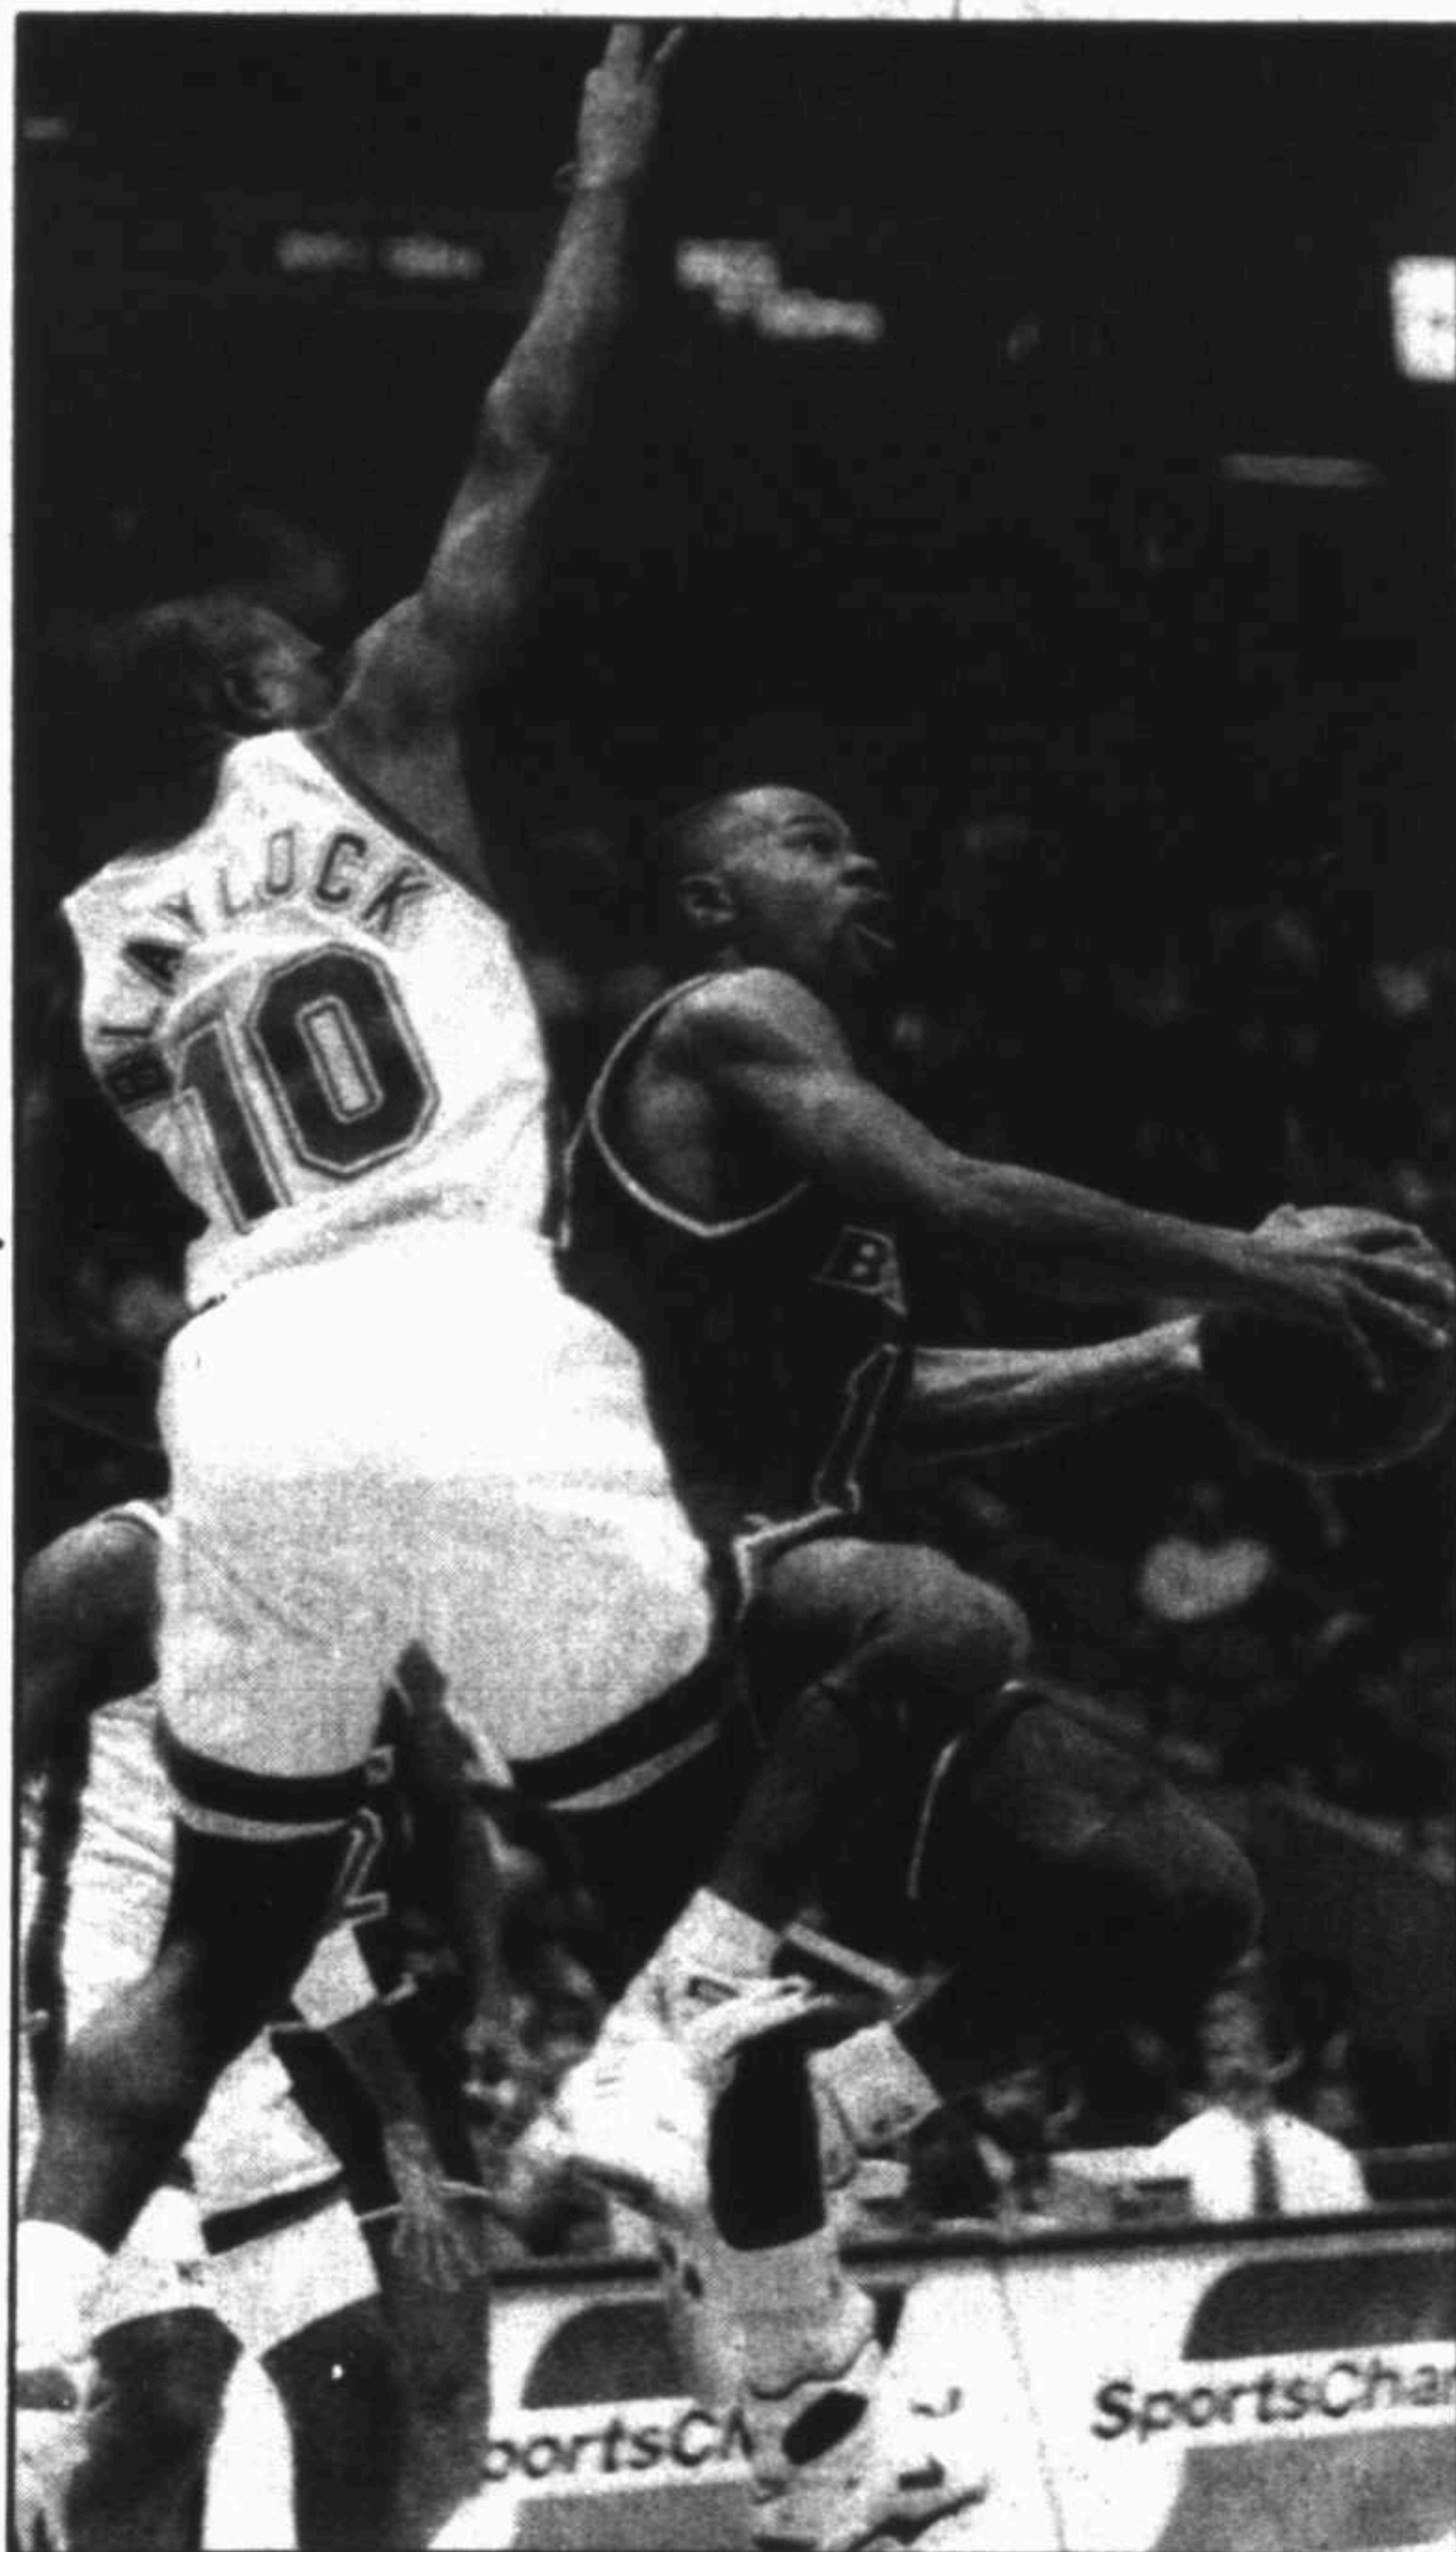

With the victory, the Heat (4-2) moved two games over .500 for the first time in franchise history. They also are in first place in the Atlantic Division by percentage points over Philadelphia.

With Miami leading 81-80, a 15-foot jumper by Smith, followed by five straight points by Long, started a 12-0 run that made it 93-80 14 seconds into the fourth quarter.

Long scored seven of his 24 points and Smith had three assists during the spurt. After a Charlotte basket, Miami followed with a 9-2 spurt that featured one of Smith's two 3-point baskets, extending the Heat's lead to 102-84 with 8:03 left in the game.

Rice had 27 points in the first half and tied team records for field goals made and attempted in a half with 11-for-17 shooting.

SuperSonics 124, Pacers 108
INDIANAPOLIS — Ricky Pierce scored 34 points and Eddie Johnson 32 as the Seattle

Washington Bullets Michael Adams looks for help as he is guarded by New Jersey guard Mookie Blaylock, a former Midland College Chaparrals.

SuperSonics came from behind in the final period to defeat the Indiana Pacers.

After trailing 86-85 at the end of the third period, the Sonics opened a 109-96 lead.

Johnson scored nine points during the 24-10 run, including a 3-pointer with 5:15 remaining. The Pacers could get no closer than 11 the rest of the game.

Reggie Miller led Indiana with 24 points, followed by Rik Smits and Detlef Schrempf with 16 each. Schrempf also grabbed 10 rebounds.

Derrick McKee had 22 points and 11 rebounds for Seattle. Indiana fought back from a 77-70 deficit early in the third period with a 10-3 spurt. A jumper by LaSalle Thompson tied it 80-80.

Johnson scored Seattle's first nine points of the second period, giving the SuperSonics a 39-31 lead with 8:40 remaining.

Kenny Williams responded with an outside jumper and a slam dunk, followed by a pair of free throws and a jumper from Miller. A three-point play by Schrempf gave Indiana a 42-40 advantage with 6:40 left in the half.

Trail Blazers 107, Timberwolves 102

MINNEAPOLIS — Rookie Robert Pack scored 13 of his 15 points in the fourth quarter, when the Portland Trail Blazers rallied from an 18-point deficit for their first road victory of the season.

Clyde Drexler scored 35 points, including the Portland's last 17 of the third period, when the Trail Blazers trailed by as many as 21. After posting an NBA-best 27-14 road record last year, the Blazers had been 0-3 away from Portland this season. It was Portland's fourth straight win overall.

The loss left Jimmy Rodgers still looking for his first home victory as Timberwolves coach. Minnesota, a surprising 21-20 at Target Center last season, are 0-4 at home this year. Overall, the Wolves are 1-6 under Rodgers, who replaced the fired Bill Musselman during the offseason.

Bullets 116, Nets 111
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Michael Adams scored seven of his 24 points in overtime and Pervis Ellison and A.J. English each had 22 as the Washington Bullets handed the New Jersey Nets their sixth straight loss.

Adams opened the extra period with a three-point play, and English followed with a short bank shot to put the Bullets on the way to their second straight overtime victory on the road.

After Sam Bowie and Drazen Petrovic scored for New Jersey, Adams, who also had 10 assists, converted after another drive.

Bulls 114, Bucks 101
CHICAGO — Scottie Pippen scored 23 points, leading the Chicago Bulls to their sixth straight victory.

Michael Jordan had 17 points — 16 under his average and the first time in nine games he hasn't led the Bulls in scoring — while Horace Grant scored 16 for the Bulls. They lost starting center Bill Cartwright with a bruised left hand after he was accidentally kicked by Jay Humphries in the first quarter.

Milwaukee was led by Alvin Robertson with 21 points, and Humphries and Dale Ellis with 18 each.

Hawks 119, Suns 115
PHOENIX — Dominique Wilkins scored 39 points, including four free throws in the final 2.4 seconds, giving the Atlanta Hawks a victory over the Phoenix Suns.

Hawks center Blair Rasmussen broke a 113-113 tie with a 20-foot jumper with 16 seconds remaining, and Wilkins' free-throw shooting kept the Hawks in front.

Lakers 86, Rockets 74
INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Los Angeles Lakers held Houston scoreless for the final 7:14 and scored the game's last 13 points to rally past the Rockets.

James Worthy had 22 points and 10 rebounds as the Lakers won their third straight game and stopped Houston's four-game winning streak.

Otis Thorpe led Houston with 19 points and 21 rebounds and Hakeem Olajuwon added 18 points and 12 rebounds.

UCLA hands Indiana 87-72 upset

Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Somebody didn't read the preseason poll.

UCLA, ranked 11th, used some tenacious defense and high-percentage shooting to beat No. 2 Indiana 87-72 Friday night in the Tip-Off Classic.

The Bruins started the season on a sour note, falling behind 23-12 in the opening 10 minutes. That was the extent of its problems, however, as UCLA dominated the game in every way for the final 30 minutes, led by Tracy Murray's 21 points.

An 18-5 run wiped out the early deficit and, most impressively, the Bruins, not known for intensity and toughness, turned the tables on the Hoosiers, who have used those qualities as trademarks of their program.

The Bruins turned a 30-28 lead into a 48-36 halftime advantage, closing the opening half with an 18-4 run, another burst marked by Indiana turnovers and some fierce UCLA defense.

UCLA started the second half with a 9-2 run and the rout was on, with Indiana getting no closer than 11 points the rest of the game.

Don MacLean added 18 points for UCLA and Mitchell Butler had 14, including a number of dunks which turned the sellout crowd at the Springfield Civic Center toward the Bruins' side.

Freshman Alan Henderson lived up to his advance billing with 20 points. But the Hoosiers suffered from a lack of production from preseason All-American Calbert Cheaney, who was saddled with turnover problems and fouls and was held to eight points.

The season-opening loss was the fourth for coach Bob Knight in 21 seasons with the Hoosiers. The last time Indiana lost a season-opener was 1985, when Louisville downed Indiana 75-64.

Next year's Tip-Off Classic will have Connecticut meeting Purdue.

'CATS: Central to face Socorro next crowd thought it was well on its way to a victory, Coronado was ready to offer a rebuttal.

Quarterback Chip Reed artfully guided the Mustangs on their first possession, as Coronado drove 80 yards on eight plays. Mark Cissel capped the march with a one-yard plunge and Kent Forester gave the Ponies a 7-6 lead with his extra-point kick.

Each team owned the ball one more time in the first quarter, but neither was able to punch it across the goal line.

After Coronado opened the second period with a 27-yard punt that set Central up at its own 13, the Bobcats assembled a drive the was pure Morenz. He scrambled for eight yards, gained 16 on a quarterback draw and completed four of five passes for 55 yards.

Central ended the drive as Morenz completed a 16-yard scoring pass to Bibbs. On the two-point conversion a Coronado penalty negated a Central incompletion, then an illegal procedure penalty on the 'Cats killed Hamilton's conversion.

Finally, Morenz connected with Bibbs crossing the back of the end zone for the two-pointer and a 14-7 lead with 7:05 to play in the half.

The Bobcat defense stopped Coronado on three downs to begin the third quarter, and after a 36-yard Reed punt put Central at its own 41, the 'Cats again struck quickly.

Morenz zoomed the ball 41 yards to King for a first-and-10 at the Mustang 18, and a 14-yard pass to Bibbs set up David Hamilton's four-yard scoring run.

But there was still 10:12 left in the third quarter, and time after time in the second half Central's defense rose to the occasion.

Coronado took its next possession from its 22 to the Bobcat 45-yard line, but a blitzing Richard Barron sacked Reed for a 15-yard loss and killed the drive. When the Mustangs got the ball again, Reed dashed for 21 yards on one run, but the Mustangs were stopped at their own 40.

Coronado only got past the Bobcat 45 one more time the entire game, and that effort was negated when Jason Sanders picked off a Reed pass at the Central goal line.

"We have a good defensive club, but they certainly did a heck of a lot better in the second half," Gandy said. "It was the difference in the ball game. If they had 200 yards in the first half and ended the game with just over 300, you can see what I mean."

ship stature.

Another undefeated team, No. 3 Washington (9-0) could go into the Rose Bowl as the nation's No. 1 team if either or both of the top two teams falter. The Huskies finish their season with two patsies — at winless Oregon State on Saturday and at home against Washington State next week.

Last year, the Huskies clinched a trip to the Rose Bowl and were undefeated before being upset by UCLA. The Huskies blamed that loss on scoreboard watching, so they're going to ignore what's happening in Florida Saturday.

"That's the one thing that got us into trouble last year," Washington center Ed Cunningham said. "I think what we have to do is take care of our own business. All that other stuff will take care of itself."

No. 4 Michigan (8-1), whose only loss was to Florida State, has a tougher finishing schedule, at No. 25 Illinois (6-3) Saturday, then at home against Ohio State next week.

In other games involving ranked teams, it's Kentucky at No. 5 Florida (8-1), Arizona State at No. 6 California (8-1), No. 7 Alabama (8-1) at Memphis State, No. 12 Notre Dame (8-2) at No. 8 Penn State (8-2), No. 9 Iowa (8-1) at Northwestern, Mississippi at No. 10 Tennessee (6-2), Iowa State at No. 11 Nebraska (7-1), Arkansas at No. 13 Texas A&M (7-1), No. 14 East Carolina (8-1) at Virginia Tech, and Maryland at No. 15 Clemson (6-1-1).

Florida State will pit its offensive strength against Miami's defensive strength in their showdown. The Hurricanes have allowed only 58 points this season, leading the nation, while the Seminoles are averaging 41 points, third in the nation, and 469 yards per game.

South Carolina recruit involved in stabbing

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — South Carolina-bound basketball star Carlos Turner broke into the home of his ex-girlfriend and repeatedly stabbed her with a butcher knife before wounding himself, police said Friday.

Turner, a senior at Louisville Fairdale High School, was listed in serious condition after undergoing surgery for a chest wound at Humana Hospital-University of Louisville, a hospital spokeswoman an said.

He allegedly broke through a window of a home southwest of Louisville and stabbed Nicole Shivers, 18, seven times shortly after midnight, Jefferson County police detective Jeff Sherrard said. Her mother said Turner apparently was angry that Shivers had broken off their relationship.

Turner stabbed himself in the chest and collapsed on a street near the house a few minutes later, Sherrard said.

Shivers was listed in fair condition at Humana-University of Louisville, the spokeswoman said.

Bob Yates, a spokesman for Jefferson County Police, said she suffered wounds to the chest, arm, back and neck. Shivers is a student at Pleasure Ridge Park High School in Jefferson County.

Yates said Turner was expected to be charged with assault and burglary, but he didn't know when the complaint would be filed. Police initially reported Turner's age as 18, but later indicated he is 17.

AMERICAN

Baylor faces another team that's on the upswing

Associated Press

Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes hopes No. 20 Baylor will be so busy considering its bowl options the Bears will forget about the improved Red Raiders.

Not a chance. Baylor coach Grant Teaff already has observed the progress of the Raiders, who struggled early this season but have won three of their last four games going into Saturday's game in Waco.

"It seems like every team we play is at its zenith," Teaff said. "They are either coming off an open week, are undefeated in conference play or are coming off a win streak.

"This game is no different. We'll have to play our best game of the season against Texas Tech.

In other games No. 13 Texas A&M (7-1, 5-0) could clinch a tie or possibly win the SWC title outright against Arkansas (5-4, 4-2); Houston (3-5, 2-3) plays at Rice Stadium against the Owls (4-5, 2-4); and Texas Christian (6-3, 3-3) plays at Texas (4-4, 3-2).

The Aggies are 21-point favorites against the Razorbacks, hobbled by quarterback injuries this season. Texas has a 16½-point nod over Texas Christian, Baylor is favored by 12½ points over Texas Tech, and Houston has a 9½-point edge over Rice.

"When you don't play as well as you expected at the start of the season, you have to decide by mid-year if you're going to run up the flag or try to improve," Dykes said. "Our guys rared back and said 'Let's see what we can do.' "It's fun to be a spoiler. I guess we're big underdogs, so what do we have to lose?"

Baylor, which has become a popular bowl prospect, had last week off following a 9-5 decision over Arkansas.

Baylor's defense ranks 10th against the run, and quarterback J.J. Joe is Baylor's most productive player since Cody Carlson, who set a school record of 2,640 offensive yards in 1986. Joe already has 1,717 yards.

TCU, still hoping for a bowl invitation despite wilting injuries, hasn't beaten the Longhorns since 1967. The Frogs may go with their fourth quarterback, Darren Schultz, against the Longhorns because of injuries. Starter Tim Schade is questionable with a reinjured shoulder.

The Longhorns also have been injured.

"This game is more like the X-ray bowl," Texas coach David McWilliams said.

Rice's last victory over Houston was a 14-13 decision in 1986, former coach Bill Yeoman's final game. It took a field goal by Roman Anderson with 10 seconds to play to beat the Owls 24-22 last year.

Anderson became the first player in NCAA history to surpass 400 points in a career. Anderson has scored 403 points and needs one field goal to move into 10th place with 89 career field goals.

Rice's Trevor Cobb regained his national rushing lead with 203 yards on 41 carries against SMU. He is averaging 159.89 yards per game. The Cougars shut down Texas' Butch Hadnot last week, but this week will be tougher.

"Cobb is quicker and more elusive getting through the hole," Houston coach John Jenkins said.

Hogs to rely on hocus pocus

Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK — Arkansas isn't really committed to a bunch of trick plays, Razorback coach Jack Crowe said.

Crowe prefers to put it this way: "We're locked in to creating advantages."

Texas A&M, for instance, can't vary its offense a great deal, Crowe said. The Aggies prefer to run the ball with Greg Hill. And, Bucky Richardson will throw it if you gang up on Hill.

"We have to be more flexible with our strategy," Crowe said.

In other words, the Razorbacks aren't good enough on offense to get it done without some sleight of hand.

Crowe's Razorbacks take on the 13th-ranked Aggies Saturday night in College Station. Statistically, A&M has the upper hand. The Aggies lead the SWC in total offense; Arkansas is last. A&M is first in defense; Arkansas is ahead of Houston and Rice.

"Certainly, we're going to the game feeling like we have some advantages and some opportunities," Crowe said. "If you create everything around statistics, we have no advantages and no opportunities."

"But when we played good, it hasn't been based on statistics anyway," he said.

In fact, during Arkansas' 40 start in the Southwest Conference, the loser led in total yardage each time.

After a 9-5 loss to Baylor and a 38-21 loss to Texas Tech, Arkansas is barely alive in the SWC race. A&M leads the league at 5-0.

"Our defense will have to contain Arkansas," said A&M coach R.C. Slocum. "They have a lot of trick plays. We have to keep them from getting the big play. We have to line up and make them grind it out."

"That's an age-old defensive axiom and it's even more true with them," he said.

Offensively, he trotted out another old line. "We have to find some way to mix it up on them," he said. "I don't think you can line up and just run the football on them. We have to make them defend the run and the pass."

Tech did just that last week. "We were distracted by what Texas Tech was doing offensively," Crowe said.

Crowe said every play on the field will be motivated Saturday night.

"They're playing for the Cotton Bowl and we're trying to make our season. A lot is at stake," Crowe said. "We still have an outside shot at the Cotton Bowl and a win would make a bowl season for us."

He said that Arkansas-A&M has turned into something special the past two years.

"Two years ago, we went to College Station to play for the Cotton Bowl, and last year we seemed to come together for the game with Texas A&M," he said.

Cigarettes limited at Texas Stadium

IRVING (AP) — The Irving City Council voted early today to enact a smoking ban, affecting Texas Stadium, city-owned buildings and private restaurants.

After about seven hours of debate, the 7-2 vote came shortly before 3 a.m. Under the ban, smoking is prohibited in the stands and restrooms at Texas Stadium and other public areas, including grocery stores, retail establishments and dental offices, said Crystal Johns, assistant city manager.

Smoking will be allowed in the concourse area of Texas Stadium, home of the Dallas Cowboys. The ban does not regulate private stadium areas such as the restaurant outside the facility and private suites.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

WHEN THE PROPHET JONAH PREACHED TO THE PEOPLE OF NINEVEH AND TOLD THEM GOD WOULD DESTROY THEIR GREAT CITY AND ALL OF THEM BECAUSE OF THEIR SINFUL WAYS, THE PEOPLE, FROM THE KING DOWN TO THE LOWEST BEGGAR, REPENTED OF THEIR SINS AND GOD FORGAVE THEM AND DID NOT DESTROY NINEVEH!

BUT JONAH WAS ANGRY THAT NINEVEH WASN'T DESTROYED AS HE HAD PROPHESED AND HE URGED GOD TO CARRY OUT HIS WORD, CAMPING OUTSIDE THE CITY TO SEE IF GOD WOULD DESTROY IT!

ONLY AFTER GOD DESTROYED A VINE, THAT SHADED JONAH FROM THE SUN, DID THE PROPHET COME TO REALIZE THAT GOD WAS TRYING TO SHOW HIM THAT MERCY WAS FAR GREATER THAN SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS!

NEXT WEEK: A KINGDOM LOST BECAUSE OF A KING'S LAZINESS!

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Anniversary celebrated

Greater St. Luke African Methodist Episcopal Church is celebrating its 63rd Anniversary on Sunday at 3 p.m.

The theme is The Lord's House, Our Dwelling Place, in These Troubled Times and the Focus is Our Church; Past and Present and Future.

Rev. O.A. Epps, pastor of the Greater St. Paul A.M.E. Church of San Angelo, will be preaching the anniversary sermon. His choir will sing and the youth choir of Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church will furnish the music for the occasion.

Singles ministry set

Five Midland congregations have combined their efforts in providing ministry to single adults.

Midland Lutheran Church, Memorial Christian Church, St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, St. Luke's United Methodist Church and Trinity Presbyterian Church have pooled their resources to create a Singles Ministry Cooperative.

"There are several advantages to our cooperation," said Dan Lyman, associate pastor for Singles Ministry at St. Luke's UMC. "Most obviously we have more people to draw from. The momentum of having a larger group at events is very important."

"Also, we've discovered some key people with infectious enthusiasm. Alone in a congregation their enthusiasm might fade, but together they're creating spontaneous combustion."

"Thirdly, between the five congregations there are more than a dozen highly-qualified church staff members who have access to five different denominations' resources. With enough people, enthusiasm and pastoral support the sky is the limit."

Many events are planned, including a theater night, a summer retreat, single parent's family events and helping with the Habitat for humanity house-raising in the spring.

The next event on the calendar is a "Holiday Blahs Workshop" in which participants will be given tools to help themselves and others deal with the feelings of depression and isolation that the holidays often bring.

The workshop is set for 2 to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23, at Midland Lutheran Church, 2706 W. Michigan Ave. The Rev. Ron Meyer of Midland Lutheran will lead the workshop.

Meyer has a doctorate in pastoral care and counseling from Texas Christian University. He is the director of pastoral care and chaplaincy services at Glenwood Psychiatric Hospital.

Singles Ministry Cooperative events are open to all members of the community, not just members of the five congregations. For more information or to get on the mailing list, call St. Luke's UMC, 694-2571.

Churches share common faith, different patterns

NEW YORK (AP) — A common observation these days is that ordinary church-goers seem more inclined toward Christian unity than their institutional leaders.

Some further indications of that have cropped up in a comparative survey of the views of Roman Catholics and various Protestants about Jesus. On many key points, their concepts are quite alike.

Differences sometimes are greater within denominations than between them. In some cases, oddly, Catholics attitudes seem more typically Protestant than those of Protestants.

Protestants, for instance, historically have emphasized a personal relationship with Jesus, but a report of the survey in the monthly U.S. Catholic says: "Catholics today are slightly more apt than some Protestants to acknowledge a personal relationship with Jesus. ... Catholics have become chummy with Jesus."

In their prayers, most respondents say they pray to God the Father, rather than to Jesus. But Catholics had the highest percentage who prayed to Jesus — 46 percent. Among Protestants, it ranged from 8 percent to 22 percent.

Seventy-eight percent of Catholic respondents said they prefer to speak of "Jesus" rather than "Christ" and 26 percent claimed a personal relationship with Jesus, higher than for any of the Protestant groups.

Strong majorities of both Catholics and Protestants, however, claimed a personal relationship with all three manifestations of one God — the Creator, Jesus and the Holy Spirit.

While Catholics have most emphasized Christ's presence in the bread and wine of Holy Communion, the survey found a higher proportion of Lutherans, 45 percent, took that view than Catholics, 42 percent.

Majorities of both Protestant and Catholic respondents considered God present in a combination of the gathered worshipping community and in the act of partaking of the communion elements.

The survey was conducted by editors of eight denominational publications with questionnaires including 32 queries mailed to 6,000 readers. About 1,800 were returned, or 30 percent.

Periodicals taking part were The American Baptist, The Lutheran, The Church Herald (Reformed Church in America), The Disciple, Messenger (Church of the Brethren), Presbyterian Survey, United Church News and U.S. Catholic.

In analyzing the data, church analyst R. Scott Appleby of Chicago noted that "differences among denominations are less pronounced nowadays than differences within each denomination," and adds:

"The lines of division produce strange bedfellows: conservative Catholics may find, for example, that they have more in common with conservative Baptists than with moderate or liberal Catholics."

"This trend, coupled with the influence of the ecumenical movement ... has led to an unprecedented leveling across denominations and to the kind of homogeneity of belief and practice that is readily apparent in the data."

On basic doctrine, overwhelmingly majorities of all groups believed Jesus is the Son of God who also was fully human, that he was resurrected from death and will come again.

Witnesses recount JFK assassination at symposium

By Mike Cochran
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — A panel of "eyewitnesses" told fellow conspiracy buffs Friday of seeing President Kennedy murdered 28 years ago, including one who said he saw a gunman behind the grassy knoll where critics insist shots were fired.

Another panel member said she saw a man running in front of the Texas School Book Depository moments after the shooting and realized later that man was Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub owner who killed Lee Harvey Oswald.

A third eyewitness said she saw a bullet strike the ground during the gunfire and that it could not have come from Oswald's sixth-floor sniper's perch in the depository building.

The stories, none new but rarely recounted in a public forum, conflict substantially with the findings of the Warren Commission and its basic conclusion that Oswald, acting alone, killed Kennedy with one of three shots fired into the presidential motorcade.

Assassination researchers, authors, experts, critics and conspiracy buffs applauded the panelists as they told their bizarre stories and answered questions from the audience.

Sponsors of the Assassination Symposium on John F. Kennedy, called ASK, said 400 persons from around the country are attending the session, first of its kind since the president was slain on the streets of Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

And the villain here clearly is not Oswald or Ruby but the Warren Commission and its 26-volume report on the assassination.

Philip A. Rogers speaks at a news conference in Dallas on Thursday at the Assassination Symposium on John F. Kennedy. Rogers, and author, claims to have identified three of the participants in the assassination of President Kennedy.

Dr. Cyril Wecht, a lawyer, doctor and critic, denounced the Warren Report as "fictional nonsense" in a rousing keynote speech opening the three-day inquiry.

He told the cheering audience that it makes no difference that the media and the government often dismiss critics as "nuts and kooks" and ignore or ridicule their theories.

"What is important is that we move ahead in this glorious quest, this magnificent struggle... to unravel the truth... that JFK was killed as a result of a conspiracy."

The leadoff panel included six persons in and around Dealey Plaza when the shooting occurred, an ambulance attendant at Parkland Hospital that day and a member of the official autopsy team at Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington, D.C.

Speaking through an interpreter, a deaf eyewitness named Ed Hoffman said he saw a gunman behind the grassy knoll, spotted a puff of smoke and when he looked around at the motorcade he saw the mortally wounded president.

"The whole side of his head was destroyed," he said.

Hoffman, 55, a 31-year employee of Texas Instruments, said the gunman ran to a spot overlooking Dealey Plaza, handed an associate the rifle and fled back toward the School Book Depository. "There was a lot of confusion," Hoffman said. "I wanted to scream. I wanted to run."

He said he later was warned by his uncle — a Dallas policeman named Robert Hoffman — to tell no one what he witnessed for fear "I'd be shot."

Hoffman did say he went to the FBI in 1967 but claimed the agency was not interested in his story. The Hoffman account surfaced in a British film documentary in 1988 but was not seen in this country until earlier this year.

Jean Hill, a schoolteacher playing "hooky" that November day, said she yelled to Kennedy, "Hey, Mr. President, I want to take your picture."

Then shots rang out. "I thought there was more than one shooter," she said, "but I thought it was the good guys and the bad guys."

Ms. Hill said she looked up to see a stranger running in front of the School Book Depository. When she gave chase, she said, she was stopped by two men who flashed some kind of badge and took the Polaroid pictures from her and a companion, Mary Moorman.

Ms. Hill said the two men took her to a nearby building where she was questioned about what she had seen and heard. When she told them she heard "four to six shots," she said one of the men told her she was mistaken, that she heard only three shots.

Two days later, she was watching television when Ruby gunned down Oswald in the basement of the Dallas police station. It was then, she said, that she recognized Ruby as the man she saw running from the assassination site.

Ms. Hill's story is the basis for an upcoming book by Dallas author Bill Sloan entitled "JFK: The Last Dissenting Witness."

Another of the panelists, Malcolm Summers, said he was standing so near the presidential limousine when Kennedy was hit that he heard Mrs. Kennedy cry out, "Oh, my God, no! They're going to kill us all!"

Summers said the second and third shots were fired so close together that "I certainly thought more than one person was shooting."

Town picks up the pieces after massacre

KILLEEN (AP) — A semblance of normalcy has settled over Killeen these days. The white ribbons are just about gone, and few signboards remind passersby of the murderous rampage one month ago that left 24 people dead.

But underneath, this town is changed forever.

"The whole town is looking over its shoulder," counselor Diane Dunn says. "There is a real shaking of that secure feeling."

Around 12:40 p.m. on Oct. 16, the day after his 35th birthday, George Hennard, from nearby Belton, smashed his pickup truck into a crowded Luby's Cafeteria.

Hennard was armed with two semiautomatic pistols as he stalked the approximately 150 patrons, shooting many at point-blank range.

Minutes later police arrived and began shooting back. Police say that Hennard used his last bullet to kill himself.

Twenty-three people, including Hennard, were dead. One more died later bringing the death toll to 24.

Police say they still don't know why Hennard attacked. Neighbors told of weird letters he wrote to two teen-age girls, and violent outbursts around his home.

But facts and reason were hard to come by, although police say they are still trying to piece the puzzle together.

Thrown into shock, this area, home of the sprawling Army post Fort Hood, tried to deal with the carnage.

They buried their dead, crowded into churches for memorial services, wore white ribbons, and placed crosses and flowers in front of the restaurant.

Another memorial service, to start Saturday exactly one month after the shooting began, was scheduled. The crosses and flowers will be removed from in front of the cafeteria, as if to say the process of coming to terms with the worst mass shooting in U.S. history also will move to another stage.

But the grieving, shock, anger and fear will continue and be most painful on the first anniversary, the first Thanksgiving, the first Christmas, the first birthdays, without loved ones, counselors said.

Charlene Smith, who was shot in the foot in Luby's, said she remains shaken. She said she has trouble sleeping, fears being alone, and doesn't go out to eat. She has returned to work at her family's wholesale automotive distributor shop, but can only work about a half day.

"When you don't want to be alone in your own home of 27 years, something is wrong," she said. "It is something that has changed our lives completely."

Suzanna Gratia, a chiropractor in nearby Copperas Cove, looks at the piles of paper on her work desk. Her father and mother, Al and Ursula Gratia, used to help take care of the business end of her practice.

She and her parents were eating in Luby's when the shooting started. Her father tried to lunge at Hennard, but was shot in the chest. Mrs. Gratia then crawled over to her husband. Suzanna escaped out a broken window. Her mother stayed with her wounded father "and comforted him. But (Hennard) got over to her and shot her, too."

Ms. Gratia says she has handled the deaths of her parents pretty well, throwing herself into her work, but that she is much more cautious in her daily life.

That caution, spawned by 10 minutes of terror, now dogs many as a general uneasy fear about the unknown, Mrs. Dunn said.

"People say that I always felt safe in Killeen. Now they say I don't feel safe anymore and if you try to tell them that it won't happen again, well that's just unbelievable," she said.

Ms. Gratia said the public's fascination with mass murderers helps perpetuate the killings.

"This country is wrapped up in beating records. Some other person is going to read about Hennard and decide to go out in a blaze. There is zero doubt in my mind that it is going to happen," she said.

Police recovered a videotape from Hennard's home about the McDonald's shooting spree in San Ysidro, Calif., that left 21 dead. And on Thursday, a fired postal worker walked through his old post office in Royal Oak, Mich., and shot 10 co-workers, killing three, before critically wounding himself. A postal employee said the gunman had vowed revenge, and also joked about the Luby's shooting, and said he would do the same.

Postal Service plans to review backgrounds of all workers

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — The Postal Service will review the backgrounds of all of the nation's 750,000 postal employees, the postmaster general announced Friday, one day after a fired postman killed four bosses and then himself.

Postmaster General Anthony Frank also established a national hot line for employees to report threats and ordered a thorough review of the screening and hiring process used by the agency. The Postal Service employee hotline is 1-800-654-8896.

Frank said it would be difficult to stop a person intent on murder, but said the Postal Service must search for ways to avoid dangerous situations.

Since 1985, 28 U.S. postal workers have died in five separate shootings — all by embittered post office colleagues who used weapons to settle old scores. On Thursday, former Royal Oak letter carrier Thomas McIlvane opened fire with a sawed-off, semiautomatic rifle, killing four supervisors and wounding five other former co-workers. He then killed himself.

Postal employees said McIlvane had threatened to return to his workplace with a gun, and they told of arguments between other postal workers and their bosses at the main office in Royal Oak.

"When you look at each one of them, you don't find the threat," Frank said at a news conference. "Let me be brutal. If we had a police officer at the back dock in this case, we would have had one more dead."

"These are public buildings. I don't think you can make them hermetically sealed. We can't make 40,000 post offices armed camps."

McIlvane, a 31-year-old ex-Marine, died early Friday from a self-inflicted gunshot wound and doctors removed his organs for transplants. His fourth victim also died Friday.

McIlvane apparently was enraged by news that an arbitrator had upheld his July 1990 dismissal for falsifying his time card.

Postal officials said they were aware of lingering friction between management and employees at the Royal Oak post office, about 10 miles northwest of Detroit, and were investigating.

Just before the shooting, complaints about poor service and morale at the post office had prompted a congressional investigation.

Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., requested an audit last month of the Royal Oak Service Center and the post offices under its jurisdiction by the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress.

Consumers have grumbled about late mail, removal of collection boxes and shoddy service, he said. Postal employees have complained of "management and policy decisions that have disrupted service and depressed morale," Broomfield said.

Frank said he would ask postal worker unions to re-examine grievance policies.

U.S. will try diplomatic action with Libya first

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The White House indicated Friday that it would pursue diplomatic means before considering military retaliation against Libya for its role in the 1988 bombing of a Pan American World Airways jet that killed 270 people, but officials stressed they have ruled out nothing in their efforts to obtain two Libyan intelligence agents indicted in the crime.

One option gaining early support, the White House officials said, is an embargo of Libya's oil exports, which account for about 2.5 percent of the world's 60 million barrel a day average production.

To be effective, such an action would require either the cooperation of America's European allies, some of whom are major consumers of Libyan oil, or U.N. support for naval action to prevent tankers from docking at Libya's five seaport pipeline terminals.

It would also probably trigger an increase in world oil prices, a consequence the White House almost certainly would hope to avoid in an election year already plagued by economic troubles.

The United States has barred imports of Libyan oil since 1982, but that embargo has had only a marginal effect. A wider embargo that included western Europe, the buyer of more than 90 percent of the oil Libya exports, would have a far greater impact.

Another option is an international effort to shut down Libya's diplomatic missions and to revoke the landing rights for Libya's airline. Libya's embassies and its airlines have long been suspected key elements in the terrorist network of Col. Moammar Gadhafi, the Libyan leader.

The Libyan Embassy in Washington has been closed since 1981 in reaction to an attempt by Gadhafi's agents to assassinate a Libyan dissident in the United States.

The United States will first deliver to Libya the indictments handed down Thursday accusing two Libyan intelligence agents with conspiring to plant the bomb that demolished Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland in December 1988, the State Department said Friday.

Libya said Friday that it "categorically denies" the American charges, and suggested in a prepared statement that they be submitted to the International Court of Justice or some other neutral body for adjudication.

The State Department rejected that suggestion outright, saying the indictments were a matter for U.S. courts to settle.

The United States has no extradition treaty with Libya but will probably ask Belgian authorities to relay the indictments and formally ask the two agents to be handed over for prosecution, the State Department's spokesman, Richard Boucher, said.

It was not clear Friday whether America's allies could be counted on to take united action against Libya. The administration was said Friday to be preparing to lay out the evidence of Libyan involvement in the Pan Am case to European and Arab states, and then to measure the response.

Both administration officials and outside experts agreed that the United States is unlikely to make a quick military strike against Libya, despite a warning from the White House Friday that it reserves the right to take such an action.

Any military action akin to the 1986 bombing raid by American warplanes on Tripoli could provoke a strong reaction from Arab countries at a time when Middle East peace negotiations are just beginning, they said.

Egypt said Friday that it had warned President Bush that any military action against Libya would endanger "security and stability" in the region.

Medicare fee plan would benefit family doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration announced a new Medicare fee scale Friday that will boost payments to family and general practice physicians while limiting increases for surgeons and other specialties.

The fee schedule, to go into effect Jan. 1, marks the biggest revision in the way Medicare pays physicians since the program began nearly 26 years ago.

It is intended to make the payment system more rewarding for primary care physicians, which federal health officials hope will encourage more doctors to practice in this area of medicine rather than opt for the specialties.

"The fee schedule creates a fairer and more rational physician payment system," said Gail Wilensky, head of the Health Care Financing Administration, which handles Medicare. The payment system will be "oriented toward primary care and most rural areas and away from specialized procedures and urban areas."

The fee schedule, which will be updated annually, is based on the relative values of doctors' work, overhead and malpractice expenses. It sets payment levels for about 7,000 medical services.

Medicare now pays physicians based on prevailing and reasonable charges.

The system will affect nearly 500,000 physicians and 250,000 other medical professionals such as optometrists and podiatrists.

An earlier fee schedule proposed by HCFA ran into strong opposition in the medical community and in Congress, mainly because it would have saved $7 billion in Medicare payments to physicians over a five-year transition period. HCFA maintained this savings was an unintended result of the legislation that created the new system.

In the revision to be published in the Federal Register Nov. 25, Wilensky's team eliminated the savings so that "nothing in the regulation will cause total Medicare spending for physician services to fall below the amount that would be spent if the current system were to continue," she said.

Dr. James Todd, president of the American Medical Association, said the new version of the fee schedule had "significant improvements" over the earlier version that "will go a long way toward assuring patient access to care." But he said some problems remain, though AMA officials said they did not want to outline them before they have completed their review of the 1,500-page document the administration released.

Over the five-year transition period, Medicare spending on physicians services is projected to increase 74 percent, from $27.3 billion this year to $47.5 billion in 1996. That amounts to an annualized average of 12 percent.

The largest increases will go to family practice physicians, whose fees will increase 18 percent per year over the transition period. General practice fees will go up 17 percent annually, internal medicine and psychiatry, 13 percent.

The specialists that will get less than the average annualized increase over the five years include anesthesiologists and thoracic surgeons, whose fees will rise 8 percent; radiologists, ophthalmologists and pathologists, 9 percent; cardiologists, general surgeons and orthopedic surgeons, 10 percent.

Johnson accepts AIDS panel position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Basketball star Magic Johnson on Friday accepted President Bush's request that he join the National Commission on AIDS, saying he wants to focus attention "on what all of us must do to fight this disease."

Johnson, who shocked the nation last week by disclosing he was infected with the HIV virus, wrote to Bush on Friday accepting the post.

"I hope that my participation will help to increase the attention of the American people to the AIDS crisis, and focus their awareness on what all of us must do to fight this disease," Johnson said in the letter released by the White House.

Johnson retired from the Los Angeles Lakers, saying he was infected with HIV but had no symptoms of AIDS yet.

Rod Stewart files lawsuits against two tabloid papers

LOS ANGELES — Rod Stewart and his model wife are suing two tabloids, saying photographers for one trespassed at their home and the other printed a libelous story about the rocker's first marriage.

The Superior Court lawsuit said photographers for The Globe snapped pictures of Stewart and wife Rachel Hunter sunbathing and changing clothes at their rural England home, Stewart spokesman Mitchell Schneider said Thursday.

The couple said the pictures were printed May 7 with a degrading story. They also are suing the News Extra for a story in July that said Stewart cheated on Hunter and she allowed him to. The couple said the story was false. They said the tabloid refused their request for a retraction, Schneider said.

The suit seeks $25 million from each of the newspapers.

A secretary at Globe headquarters in Boca Raton, Fla., said Friday that Phil Buntin, the tabloid's editorial director, was on vacation until Tuesday and no one else could comment.

KALISPELL, Mont. — Singer Don McLean says he got a chuckle out of the recent top 10 showing of "American Pie" on the British pop charts.

"I just have to laugh," McLean said in a recent interview. "It was a lot of fun 20 years later having this thing take off again. I think a lot of young people identify with it."

The 1972 song is a pop mythologist's dream, full of references to Buddy Holly, the Beatles, Dylan, James Dean and Vietnam.

McLean was in Maine this week, resting on his 200-acre farm after an 18-city tour of Europe that coincided with re-release of "American Pie."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Country star Garth Brooks says he's planning a break from almost non-stop touring.

Brooks, in Little Rock for concerts Thursday and Friday, said the tour ends Dec. 15 and he'll take a break until June.

"We're doing everything we can to keep our heads above water and survive," Brooks told reporters Thursday night. "I just trust the good Lord and people to take care of me."

His latest album is "Ropin' the Wind."

PHOENIX — For many, it's no fun to be young, says Bob Keeshan, better known as Captain Kangaroo.

"Kids are now, to our shame, the principal underclass in our society," Keeshan said Thursday. "Twenty percent of our kids live in poverty. Six million kids in America will go hungry today. We have 16 million kids who don't have medical coverage of any kind."

"It's a very different world in which kids live today. It's a hostile society for kids," he said.

Keeshan wants to change all that. In January, he and representatives of 45 organizations plan to launch the "Coalition for America's Children," what Keeshan called a "public relations" effort on behalf of the nation's youth.

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth II has awarded an honorary knighthood to Saudi Prince Khalid bin Sultan, who commanded Arab and Islamic forces during the Gulf War.

The queen on Thursday invested Prince Khalid, 42, with the insignia of an honorary Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath, the highest honor a foreigner can receive. The award cited his leadership in keeping the U.S.-led, 33-nation coalition together, the palace said.

American recipients of the award have included Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, who led U.S. forces in the Gulf War; President Ronald Reagan and former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

NEWARK, N.J. — Donald Trump's sister, Judge Maryanne Trump Barry, says the legal system needs to get tough with muggers or elderly residents like her mother will have to continue to live in a "climate of fear."

Barry's 79-year-old mother, Mary Trump, was beaten and robbed last month as she walked to a supermarket near her New York City home.

Police arrested Paul LoCastro, 16, after a man who witnessed the attack chased down Mrs. Trump's assailant.

"I'm speaking now as a daughter and not as a federal judge," Barry said in a recent interview. "Thugs who brutalize elderly people should be punished severely."

Barry's mother, who suffered a broken arm and pelvis and a brain hemorrhage, remains hospitalized.

"I don't think there is any punishment that could compensate for the injuries suffered by my mother," said Barry, who decried the "climate of fear" that elderly people face in big cities.

Court overturns Poindexter's Iran-contra conviction

WASHINGTON (NYT) — A federal appeals court Friday overturned the five-count felony conviction of former national security adviser John M. Poindexter for covering up the Iran-contra scandal.

The two-to-one opinion reversing Poindexter's April 1990 conviction was another major defeat for Iran-contra special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh. Last year, the same appeals court set aside the three-count conviction of former White House aide Oliver L. North, the central figure in the scandal.

Also Friday, a U.S. District Court judge here sentenced former Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams to two years' probation and 100 hours of community service on two misdemeanor convictions for withholding information from Congress during its probe of the matter.

Abrams, the first State Department official convicted in the scandal, faced a maximum sentence of two years in prison and a $200,000 fine. As part of a deal with Walsh, the 43-year-old Abrams last month entered his two guilty pleas in exchange for agreeing to cooperate with the continuing criminal probe into the Iran-contra affair.

A federal grand jury is still hearing witnesses, and more indictments are possible.

The Iran-contra scandal grew out of a secret White House operation during the Reagan presidency to sell arms to Iran and to support the U.S.-backed Contra rebels in Nicaragua in 1985-86 despite a congressional ban on U.S. military aid.

Evidence by Walsh and congressional investigators has shown that millions of dollars in proceeds from the sale of arms to Iran were secretly funneled through Swiss bank accounts to the contras, who were fighting to topple the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

Poindexter, a retired rear admiral who was North's boss at the president's

National Security Council in 1985 and 1986, had been convicted on two counts of lying to Congress, two counts of obstructing congressional investigators and a single count of conspiring to cover up the secret arms sales to Iran and the diversion of profits to the contras.

In reversing those convictions in their opinion Friday, the appeals court asserted that prosecutor Walsh had taken televised testimony that Poindexter had given to Congress under a grant of immunity and used it against him at his trial.

Poindexter had never testified in his own defense at his trial.

However, the appeals court opinion said that the "testimony of several of the witnesses may have been prejudicially influenced by their exposure to Poindexter's immunized testimony" to Congress, which was nationally televised.

At Poindexter's trial, North testified that he had viewed Poindexter's televised testimony and that he had also reviewed it with his attorneys.

In their opinion Friday, the court majority said that such immunized testimony could not be used by North or any other witness in Poindexter's trial.

Consequently, the judges wrote, "Poindexter's immunized testimony having been used against him at trial through the testimony of witness North, his conviction on all counts must be reversed."

The court majority also held that the judge had incorrectly instructed the jury in Poindexter's trial. Finally, the court said Poindexter may have misled Congress, but that he did not lie.

The case was sent back to the trial court level with instructions that the original indictment be dismissed unless Walsh can clearly show that the trial against Poindexter was not tainted by the immunized testimony.

A statement released by Walsh's office said only that the appeal court opinion would "require careful study" and that an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court was a possibility.

At a news conference Friday, Poindexter said, "I have felt all along that I did not commit the crimes that were charged, and the Court of Appeals throwing out all of the convictions was indeed very good news."

The majority appeals court opinion was written by Judge Douglas H. Ginsburg, who was joined by Judge David B. Sentelle. Both were appointed by Reagan.

Debate rages over safety of breast implants

Associated Press

The debate persisted Friday about the safety of silicone-gel breast implants after a federal panel recommended that the devices remain available to meet a public health need while more tests are done.

"A massive human experiment has been going on with women. At the very least, it is outrageous women continue to be experimented on," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of the Public Citizen Health Research Group in Washington, D.C.

But an official with the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons hailed the recommendation because it underscored the medical worth of silicone implants.

"We're delighted with the outcome. It's nice to know common sense does work," said Dr. Garry Brody, secretary of the 4,000-member ASPRS, which represents 90 percent of the nation's certified plastic surgeons.

"The greatest victory is the recognition that silicone implants have serious value for cosmetic as well as reconstructive surgery," Brody said. "To suggest these women are guinea pigs is absurd. It's an insult."

A Food and Drug Administration advisory panel on Thursday unanimously recommended keeping silicone implants on the market while more research is done on their safety. The FDA has until Jan. 6 to consider the recommendation.

The agency has never approved breast implants. They were already on the market in 1976 when Congress empowered the FDA to regulate them. In the past 35 years, about 2 million women have had breast implants, and about 150,000 of the operations are now done each year. Most of them are done to enlarge breast size; about 20 percent are used to reconstruct breasts removed by surgery.

Public Citizen asked the government to ban silicone implants three years ago after receiving complaints the devices leak, sometimes cause breast tissue to harden and may pose a health risk, including cancer and immune system disorders. The American Medical Association and the American Cancer Society say they have no evidence of health risks.

The FDA panel's recommendation allowed warring factions to claim partial victory.

"It's a step forward," said Cindy Pearson, program director of the National Women's Health Network. "It's disappointing the FDA has allowed this experiment to go on. But at least they've admitted there's no proof that these things are safe."

Dow Corning Wright, the leading maker of silicone-gel implants, welcomed the recommendation. However, the FDA panel earlier rejected the company's data that its devices were safe.

"The panel's decision was a victory for women's choice as well as a victory for science," said Robert R. LeVier of Dow Corning Wright.

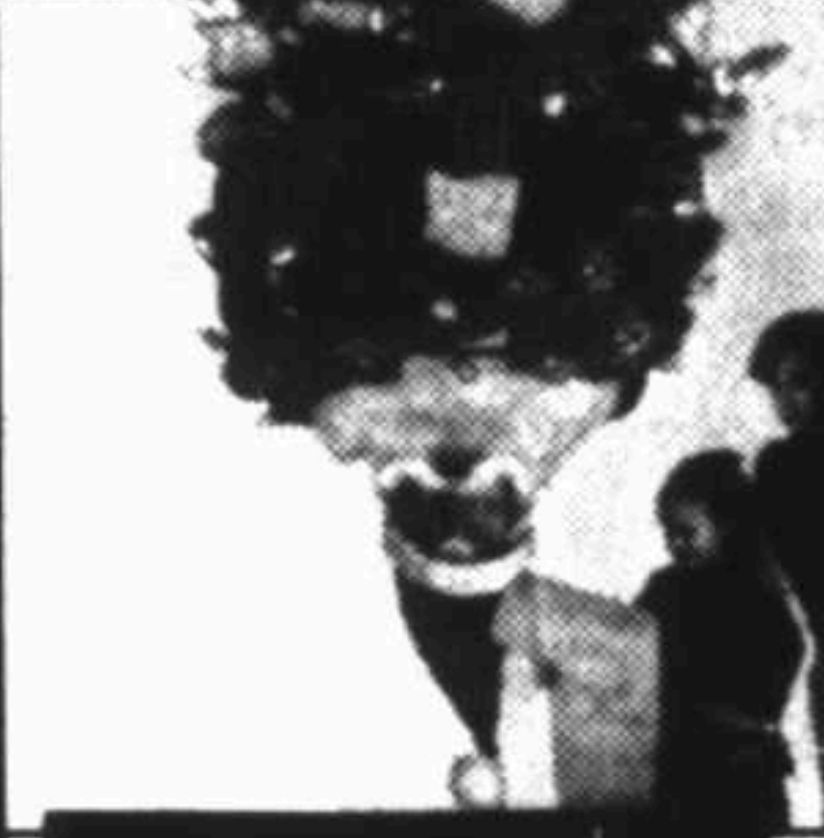

"We are pleased that the panel recognized that this option should not be taken away from women," LeVier said. "I think the panel was also saying that it is time to take this decision out of the realm of politics and 'junk science' and return it to the solid ground of science."

A number of plastic surgeons contacted by The Associated Press called the FDA panel's recommendation appropriate. They also said they would give potential patients more information about the implants.

"I think that there was a lot more emotion than science in a lot of reaction to this whole investigation," said Dr. Ronald Berggren, a plastic surgeon in Columbus, Ohio.

TB strain kills 13 in New York prisons

NEW YORK — One or more new strains of drug-resistant tuberculosis have killed 12 inmates and a guard in the New York state prison system this year, correction and health officials disclosed Friday.

They called the new strains the most alarming medical problem in prisons since AIDS was discovered a decade ago.

Eight inmates of the Downstate Correctional Facility in Long Island City, Queens, died of one strain at St. Clare's Hospital in Manhattan, and four more from the Auburn Correctional Facility died of the same or another new strain at University Hospital of the Health Science Center in nearby Syracuse, the officials said. The officer who died had been assigned to guard the inmates treated in Syracuse.

All the victims had immune systems that had been compromised. Top officials did not specify how, but others said all 12 inmates had tested positive for the HIV virus, the harbinger of acquired immune deficiency syndrome. And they said the guard had a depressed immune system because he was suffering from cancer.

Experts said that precautions now planned by correction officials could prevent a widespread epidemic in prisons. They said the spread among inmates poses no direct threat to the general population but could reflect a similar spread in poorer, crowded neighborhoods.

State Commissioner of Correctional Services Thomas A. Coughlin 3rd said the new strains of TB had been identified in other parts of the nation earlier this year and in the state's prison population in September.

He said 84 cases of TB were confirmed among inmates this year and, while it was unclear how many of them were the new variety, he said the strains posed a "deadly threat" to the prison system's 60,000 inmates and 28,000 guards and other employees, as well as their families and communities.

But, Coughlin said, state correction and health officials were moving swiftly to control the spread of the strains with sharply expanded programs to identify, isolate and treat inmates and employees at all the system's 68 prisons. Moreover, he said, changes will be made at prison infirmaries, where necessary, so that those infected can be quarantined during treatment.

Experts say that new variations of drug-resistant tuberculosis have been seen from time to time for many years and always have required new drugs to fight them.

Health experts said that the programs to fight the new strains, called multi-drug resistant, or MDR-TB, would be expensive and take time, but would almost surely prevent any widespread epidemic within the state prison system, one of the nation's largest.

Whitefly threatens crops in San Joaquin Valley

N.Y. Times News Service

Just as California agriculture experts feared, the voracious poinsettia whitefly has been found in the San Joaquin Valley, where 60 percent of the state's crops are grown.

"The potential is alarming," Leonard Craft, Tulare County's agriculture commissioner. "We know what it did in Imperial Valley."

State agriculture officials said Friday that they hope the San Joaquin Valley's lower temperatures will serve as a built-in control against the whitefly, whose population has grown dramatically in Imperial County 150 miles south.

"We don't think this particular bug tolerates colder temperatures very well and should not explode here in the San Joaquin Valley," said Ray Gill, an entomologist for the California Department of Food and Agriculture who identified the insect for Tulare County agriculture officials.

"But if we have another warm winter and little rain, we could have a problem."

Just a few insects have actually been found in the southern San Joaquin Valley, and none of them has caused any economic damage, Craft said.

He said the whitefly, technically known as the poinsettia strain of the sweet potato whitefly, was found in three small towns in the county. Several were found in a Terra Bella greenhouse, a second group in a Seville broccoli field, and the several others in a Goshen kale field.

No one knows how the bugs got there, but officials said the whitefly is a hitchhiker, making its way around with the help of people, such as in the transportation of nursery stock.

Growers in Imperial Valley, which has had an epidemic of the strain since summer, have labeled them a "superbug" and fear that their losses from the pest could reach $200 million by spring.

The potential loss is far greater in the San Joaquin Valley. The more than 200 crops grown in the San Joaquin region provided $11.2 billion of California's record $18.3 billion gross crop value in 1990.

Poinsettia whiteflies multiply so rapidly that it is impossible to determine how long they will take to become numerous enough to destroy vegetables and nursery stocks.

Pesticides do not work because the bug's characteristics change so quickly through rapid breeding. Vegetables are being destroyed at such a rate by the whitefly in Imperial County that retail prices are already climbing dramatically.

The poinsettia whitefly is not to be confused with the ash whitefly, a distant cousin, which has surged in recent weeks all over the San Francisco Bay Area, invading ash trees, citrus trees and a long list of other plants.

Agriculture experts say the ash white fly is expected to be brought under control within weeks or possibly months.

CALENDAR CLOCK

Our calendar clock has a top dial showing the time of day while the bottom dial shows the month and date. Only the century is left to guesswork. Both dials are operated by an 8-day key-wind movement, complete with Westminster chimes. The step-by-step pattern details how to build the oak case. You can obtain the wood ornamentation from your local home center and dials are available at most clock supply dealers.

MOONLIGHTING!

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

- Is it worthwhile for adults also? Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?

Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more! How long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
