J. V. Allison, staying at the Yacht Basin Motel, can tell the folks back home in St. Louis, Mo., about the five pound speckled trout that won in the trout division for him.

Big fish of the week, however, was one caught by a Fulton Trailer Park resident, W. H. Smith, who hails from 2510 North Hilltop Court, Peoria, Ill., and who captured the prize in the drum division with a 33 pound fish.

He is single, a graduate of the local high school and a member of the Methodist Church. His mother is Mrs. Charlyne Hunt, a local school teacher for the past 20 years.

Shrimp Landings Rise In January

Landings of headless shrimp at Texas ports during January 1964, amounted to 1,792,000 pounds, according to Orman H. Farley, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service statistician.

This, he said, was almost 500,000 pounds greater than for the same month in 1963. Current January landings consisted of 998,000 pounds of brown shrimp, he said, and 436,000 of pinks, along with 358,000 pounds of white shrimp.

In the Port Arthur-Sabine area, landings were 54,200 pounds in January this year, compared with 33,500 pounds in 1963. Preliminary figures for the annual catch of the same port show 2,902,900 pounds of shrimp landed there in 1963.

Other ports along the coast were as follows, with two figures shown in the same order:

Galveston: 56,300 pounds, 25,000 pounds, and 4,603,000 pounds; Freeport: 114,300 pounds, 196,500 pounds, and 9,525,100 pounds.

Matagorda - Palacios area: 12,500 pounds, 14,000 pounds, and 834,800 pounds.

Port Lavaca-Port O'Connor-Seadrift: 17,700 pounds, 7300 pounds, and 1,310,200 pounds.

Aransas Pass - Rockport: 356,900 pounds, 260,700 pounds, and 10,228,100 pounds.

Brownsville-Port Isabel: 1,180,500 pounds, 761,600 pounds, and 14,580,700 pounds.

Total landings for 1963 amounted to 43,984,800 pounds.

Farley said that trawling in waters adjacent to the Texas coast was slow during January in the brown shrimp fishery, but that white shrimp catches had been good in the northern sector of the coast.

Vessels worked waters off Louisiana throughout the month, between periods of rough weather, with catches averaging between 300-400 pounds per 24 hours trawling time in the white shrimp fishery, while the same amount

This is written under some difficulty. There is a bird in the live oak outside my window. Large and black, it used to be a crow or blackbird, whichever came amind first. But once you're knowledgeable about bird-watching . . . well let's look at that raven's picture (continued on page 8)

Rotarians Receive Appeal From German Seeking Relatives

The Rockport Rotary Club has received an appeal from Hermann Weissheimer, of Andernach am Rhein, who seeks relatives descended from some early German settlers of Texas.

In his letter to the Club, Weissheimer says:

"During the 1820's Germany lost numerous persons of political reputation. Leaving their home country in order to escape political persecution, they emigrated to Switzerland and from there to North and South America.

"The same thing happened in 1848-49, but more seriously. Many thousands emigrated whose existence was threatened or whose personal opinions did not coincide with the government. Between 1820 and 1900, five million Germans left their country and many of them became prosperous and people of substance in their new homes.

"Many members of the family of Weissheimer, originating in Westhofen/Rheinhessen, near the city of Worms, emigrated to trans-ocean countries. Some days ago, a Weissheimer whose great grandfather was born at the Schulerhof in the little village of Westhofen before 1800, returned for a visit to the land of his fathers as a distinguished Brazilian citizen, searching for his relatives in Germany.

"He reported that in North America, and especially in Ohio, Texas and California, some descendants of the Weissheimer family are living nowadays in prosperity and esteem. The reason for this letter is to beg you to look in your files and see if there are Rotarians named Weissheimer.

"I have written a history of the family reaching back to 1348, when the name first appeared. If there are Weissheimers in your club or your community, please give me their name and address or have them write me, thus enabling me to take up the connection between the German and transocean descendants by presenting them with a copy of this booklet."

So, if there are any Weissheimer descendants in the area, they can get a copy of the family history by writing: Herman Weissheimer, Mitinhaber der Firma, Friedrich Weissheimer Malzfabrik K. G., 547 Andernach am Rhein, Germany.

CORRECTION PLEASE . . .

Instead of Rev. C. Wilson Brumley mentioned as treasurer of the Rockport Sportsman's Association, the name should have been that of O. S. Brumley.

announced there will be girls from the various business classes to greet visitors, to register them, and to give them visitor's ribbons.

On Friday night, March 6, there will be a special program in the high school auditorium, in which the Pirate band, under direction of Joe Randow, will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. which everyone is invited to attend.

Following the band program, the new mechanical drawing room will be open to visitors, LeFevre said, and specimens of student's work will be displayed. The new library will also be open, and there will be displays there, also.

Principal C. R. Barre says the new Aransas County Junior High School will also welcome the opportunity to meet the parents of the children who attend, and to show them the program of education offered to seventh and eighth graders. He invites special attention to the displays in the social studies department.

In the seventh grade, Barre said, there will be a panorama depicting Texas history from the early days of exploration until Texas Independence Day.

A giant birthday cake and card will center a table of flags. These items have been made by students as a way to celebrate the birthday of Texas. Other seventh grade projects include log cabins, scenes from the Alamo, pioneer farms, oil wells, Mexican scenes, a quilting frame, soap maps depicting the life of early Texas, and many others. A miniature scene of pioneer life has interested the students, Barre said, and they hope to share that interest with others.

In the eighth grade social studies display, a time line of the Revolutionary War showing pictures will be shown. Maps of Western expansion, American ship models, research papers, charts and graphs will form parts of the exhibit, in display cases, and on bulletin boards in rooms and halls.

At Rockport, Principal A. R. Griffith says that all visitors are requested to come to the main building to register. Students will be on duty to aid in registration and to escort visitors to rooms.

Individual rooms will have events of interest during the week, Griffith said and for these special invitations are extended to parents. Everyone is invited to visit the school, even though they may have no children in school, and a special invitation is given to visit the library and see how it has expanded since a year ago.

At Fulton, Principal C. D. Snyder reports that the school will hold open house each day of Education Week and hopes that visitors will note the school-wide science theme in displays. Basic elementary science has been featured, with each grade asked to stay within its own grade level. There will be charts, posters, demonstrations, illustrations, collections, and exhibits of other kinds.

TREASURY RENEWS SAVINGS OPTION

Federal income taxpayers were reminded yesterday by Fred Bracht, Savings Bonds
chairman for Aransas County that the Treasury is again offering them the option of taking refunds in U.S. Savings Bonds. The savings option, first introduced last year, is in addition to the two standard options of taking tax refunds in cash or applying them to the next year's tax.

"By electing to take his refund in Series E Bonds," Bracht said, "the taxpayer holds onto his money conveniently, through a secure, risk-free investment which pays interest at a guaranteed rate.
He avoids seeing his money absorbed by household expenses, vanishing completely in day-to-day spending. And he learns what millions of other Americans have already discovered — that U.S. Savings Bonds are one of the finest possible ways to save for a secure future."

"And, of course, every citizen should realize that every dollar he invests in U.S.
Savings Bonds makes our economy stronger and our whole nation more secure."
Taxpayers taking their 1962
refunds in Savings Bonds swelled the 1963 Bond sales by 19.2 million and raised the number of Bonds issued by 237,455. This year, Bracht said, the Treasury hopes the plan will further increase the sale of Savings Bonds, and encourage more citizens to develop regular savings habits.

Film Shown
At Taylor Oak

Mr. and Mrs. Allan W. Mollison from Carousell Trailer Ranch, Tucson, Ariz., are staying at Taylor Oak Trailer Park while visiting points within this area.

Mr. Mollison is a retired forester, devoting much of his time to the photography of wild life and other forms of nature.

After the Feb. 18 pot luck dinner, he showed his film "Desert Trails," in the recreation hall. He explained that the movie would show desert blooms many of the winter visitors missed seeing because they left too early.

The lapsed time exposures showed several of the cacti buds opening to their full colorful blossoms, bees finding them quickly while seeking pollen, this in turn brings about pollination of the new blooms, thus promoting further propagation of these plants. The spring flowers, Arizona poppy, tuckerm, lupine, desert marigold, owl's clover and many others make a most colorful desert carpet.

George, the desert tortoise always brings forth a chuckle. There is considerable action when viewers are shown how to catch and bag a black-tiled rattler. They were shown how to pick up a gila monster without being bitten, too.

Many scenes of birds, both residents and winter visitors were shown. Some of the very colorful ones are the vermilion fly - catcher, Bullock's oriole, black-headed grosbeak and the rare hepatic tanager. The antics of the roadrunner, Gila woodpecker, Rivoli's hummingbird and Arizona's state bird, the cactus wren are appealing to the observer.

The camera's eye has brought easy access to the many interesting rock formations along an eight mile hike through the Chiricahua National Park.

On Feb. 21 another film was shown of the Glacier National Park and northern Montana area. The scenes were taken the later part of July and it is a most colorful time to visit the park for many of the flowers are blooming. One may see the bear grass, purple gentian, fleabane, monkey flower and pasque-flower. The seed pod of the latter is referred to as the little boy who needs a hair cut.

DIES FEBRUARY 18

Funeral services for Walter A. Coleman, 54, well-known to many Rockport people, were held last Thursday at the Clifford Jackson Funeral Chapel in Corpus Christi, with Patrick Farris of the Parkway Church of Christ officiating.

The body was taken to San Antonio where funeral services were held Friday in Mission Park Burial Chapel.

Coleman died Feb. 18 in a Corpus Christi hospital, after a long illness.

He had been a Corpus Christi resident from 1948 until his death, and was business manager for the Lay Construction Co. when he retired in 1959.

He and Mrs. Coleman had long anticipated moving to Rockport, and she still intends to make her home here in the near future.

Survivors, besides his wife, are: three sons, Gary Franklin Coleman, Corpus Christi; Freddie D. Coleman, with the Navy at Quonset Point, R.I.; and Gleason W. Coleman of Houston; his mother, Mrs. Lillian Covles of San Antonio, and two sisters, Mrs. Walter H. Hamilton and Mrs. Irva Shaner, both of San Antonio, and three grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Frerichs of Kankakee, Ill., Wednesday morning after a short visit with Bill Savoie. The Frerichs were quite impressed with Texas and they carried some cacti home to plant.

bian ground squirrels prove themselves to be a delight to the photographer for there is no end to their cunning maneuvers. The big horn sheep show their curious nature while the mountain goats show their prowess on the almost perpendicular mountain walls.

Pictures of the water birds in their natural habitat were shown. The eggs of the cared grepe and coot were shown hatching in their water soaked nests and how quickly these little fellows are ready to cope with their new surroundings.

Red-tailed and marsh hawks were photographed weekly shortly after hatching until maturity.

An especially happy event of this visit to Rockport was meeting with Charles Towne, former forester class mate.

OFFICIAL MEMORANDUM

By John Connally
Governor of Texas
Austin, Texas

GREETINGS:
Special observance of increased emphasis on our education system has been marked annually for fourteen years by a Public Schools Week in Texas.

During this period, parents are encouraged to visit the public schools, and all citizens are urged through special programs to recognize the tremendous importance of our system of education. Our goal is to make Texas public schools the finest in the nation, and to achieve this our citizens are urged to take an active interest in the school systems and to cooperate with their school boards, superintendents, principals and teachers.

Never before in our history has there been a greater need for educated leadership. As we rush to train young people in science and technology to keep pace with world events, it is also important to remember that our public schools will furnish our leaders tomorrow with the basic human, moral and spiritual foundations necessary for more advanced training and knowledge.

Therefore, I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate the period of March 2-6, 1964 as "Public Schools Week" in Texas.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 16th day of Dec., 1963. (Seal)

JOHN CONNALLY,
Governor of Texas.

ture again. . . Maybe, like me, you once knew the only really tough aerial identification was aircraft—ours or theirs. Only eccentrics watched birds.

Yet here we were, I found recently, with several hundred otherwise sound Texans each year taking up "birding." Why? Deciding to start at the top, I went down to marsh-jungly Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, up coast from Rockport. Why not start with a look at the great Whooping Crane?

Why not indeed? North America's biggest white bird is slowly recovering from near extinction. He summers below Great Slave Lake with the Canadian Arctic Circle, then each fall hurdles high heaven, trumpeting home to these haven bays.

Hunting that look, I discovered some other things Texas has more birds than anywhere else: 487 species from the ruby-throated hummingbird to the bald eagle. Also, the growing army of Texans who watch birds for fun has something in common besides good minds, wide interests and insatiable curiosity.

Regardless of age, they stay young.

Connie Hagar is a delightfully young 76, as pert and pretty as the birds she knows better than anybody. She is Mrs. Conger Neblett Hagar of Rockport—with its beaches, bays and wind-leaning trees, a major American bird capital.

Only our leading ornithologists know enough to measure Connie Hagar's research since she identified her first six birds at age 6. She literally has remapped migratory patterns and holds every honor Audoboners can bestow. One day in Rockport, she pinpointed an incredible 204 different species between sunrise and dark.

Her published checklist of Texas' central coastal birds is a watcher's must. And, for beginners like us, she can open the world of birds with understandables like: Bird parents rear their young more wisely than people. . . The cardinal is the hardest-working father (and the coward, the laziest) . . . Lord Baltimore saw his colors on an oriole, named it . . . the brown-winged gray shrike probably taught the Indians dried "jerky" by spiking his own food stores on the nearest thorn . . . the colorful insect-hunting warblers save American orchards millions each year . . . her favorite songster is the mockingbird (whip-per will, Inca dove, white-eyed circo, close.)

She also likes the question "Why bird-watch?" "Ye have eyes and see not," she quotes and adds that looking on beauty brings tranquility; and knowing precisely what you see demands discipline, utmost concentration and determination.

"You'll see." She checked my binoculars, loaned me her Peterson's Field Guide to the Birds of Texas. "I want to know the first bird your positively identify."

I would bring her the whole list, I said; and drove to the refuge 30 miles east.

Laced with waterways, Aransas is 35 miles of winding shell road in a black-jack and sweetbay thicketed peninsula—a pleasant retreat and it is instantly something else—an all-at-once torrent of sound from trees about, their birds invisible; the hundreds of others you can see, diving wide-wheeling, darting, soaring out of binocular range.

For the first time, wings have intricate marks: Bars, bands, splashes, fringes—none still long enough to make out. You're to find diagnostic marks on heads, bills, tails. You see color flurries instead. The motionless ones stilted in the branches, are too far . . . too far. The very close ones watching you are gone the instant you see them.

You're not sure of gull or tern now or whether that distant one is hawk or owl and, if owl, which of 15. You work in behind thickets on the beach for what must be sandpipers. You find 14 in the book, move closer to see which . . . and they skitter.

From the tower at Mustang Lake, those must be whoopers far out on the tidal bars: The two great birds—but to distant in the glasses. Those darker ones, closer in? You wait; long later, one is close enough.

Some time after dark, I reported one bird to Connie Hagar. Yellow bill, purple white neck, yellow stilt legs, what looked like busy black eyebrows, a silver blue body—about four feet tall.

"You got one," she said, "A Great Blue Heron, all right." "Well what about the whoopers? They were right where the ranger said."

"At a quarter mile," Mrs. Hagar smiled, "you could tell positively they weren't egret or heron, even ibis?"

So, being the bird-watcher Mrs. Hagar encourages me to be, I can't count the whoopers you better believe I saw. You also better believe my one bird was a day's work—about as pleasant, though, as I can remember.

In am now willing to agree with Connie Hagar that the way to start "birding" is not at the top, but what you see everyday in your back yard.

I will have some feed out, and water. I may build a window feeder, once I explain things to the neighbors. I have my field book and am getting my old Navy glasses worked over.

In a year, who knows? I may be up to a hundred identified species. I have a cardinal and a bluejay for sure and probably a red-bellied woodpecker.

Go ahead and laugh. We birders have an eye on tranquility that doesn't come by prescription. I confidently expect five additional years from my new hobby.

Of course, there are some drawbacks. I have had to leave this copy several times to have a look at the raven outside my window. It has a slick purple body, yellow eyes and a long, round-ended tail.

SHRIMP LANDINGS—

of effort produced only 200 pounds of brown shrimp. Long range vessels worked the high seas grounds off northern Mexico and in the Gulf of Campeche. Catches ranges 200-400 pounds per twelve hours trawling time.

Activity in the blue crab fishery was extremely slow, with only about 35,000 pounds being caught during January. Only three crab processing plants are now operating, Farley said.

Landings of edible finfish amounted to about 250,000 pounds in January, with 60 per cent of the fish coming from Gulf waters.

The oyster fishery of Galveston Bay produced a record 380,000 pounds of shucked meats during January. This fishery was the second most important in the state, in volume and value, and was surpassed only by the shrimp fishery. Oysters were generally taken from reefs north of the Houston Ship Channel. The meats were excellent and shucked at a rate of about 6.5 pounds of meats per 100 pounds of shell stock.

Mr. and Mrs. Zeph Riquette and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sparks visited Mr. and Mrs. Holland Rice in San Antonio Sunday.

Editorial

Apparently many people in Rockport are becoming shortsighted and need glasses, or else they care nothing for their neighbors. Only a few minutes around the post office at mail time will convince you of the fact that there are many who ought to have their eyes checked, as they apparently are unable to see the broad yellow stripes put there to outline parking spaces, so that everyone will have a chance.

When the stripes were being painted, one pickup driver drove up, and, without any regard whatever for the stripes, straddled one with the defiant air of "Well, what are you going to do about it?"

The other morning someone in a nice shiny new car pulled in against traffic and parked so that the car took up three spaces. To find cars taking up half of one space and half of another is not unusual.

The only conclusion possible, then, is that the drivers of these cars are either so blind they shouldn't be allowed on the road, or else that they are completely unmindful of the rights of the rest of the people that live here, too.

And, speaking of people who have no regard for the rest of the populace, how about those citizens that get their mail, go to their car, and then spend the next 25 or 30 minutes reading letters from home or their home town newspaper.

One reason that we still have a Republic rather than a dictatorship is that people in America still have a little regard for the other fellow's feelings. However, after watching postoffice parking, we often wonder how little.
