LETTER MEN

All men who have played teams in the past are requested to be present at the football field next Friday night at 7:30 for a reunion. Men who have ever played during the history of the school are asked and urged to attend the meeting, and wear "B" sweaters that they have earned.

Bulldogs have gathered teams conference affray only to have wipe out the last vestige of championship hope. The Dogs are determined to win and will not happen again.

Scoreless Enemies

Bulldogs will be protecting and that is better than any have ever had. Their goal has not been seriously threatened but twice, and has not been by a conference member.

Wildcats have had the luck and their line has not been broken in those two periods this

IREMEN'S JUBILEE IS SUCCESSFUL IN SPITE OF THE SEVERE WEATHER

In spite of the rain and mist fell and the cold weather the week-end, the members of the fire department, cowboy and the pep squad and the jubilee was a success. The organization did not achieve the goal that they would have reached on a fair week-end, but a reasonable profit for the benefit of the three groups.

This week the firemen authorized the Star to make the following statement: "We wish to express appreciation to the citizens of Burk Burnett, the business men, all those who cooperated in the jubilee successful. The jubilee that have been achieved from your hearty cooperation during the next year our department will do everything possible to justify the faith that was expressed has indicated." The jubilee opened Friday afternoon after the firemen had anxiously scanned the skies all the morning for a break in the weather.

Wildcats Prepare To Stop Bulldogs in Important Game

Crowell Humiliated by Upset at the Hands of the Throckmorton Team

By Dan Tarpley
CROWELL, Texas, Oct. 29.—Hindered by inclement weather conditions, the Crowell high school Wildcats wound up rehearsals Wednesday afternoon in near-perfect condition for their long-awaited fracas with the Burk Bulldogs Friday night.

With most of their week's work aimed directly at preparing a defense for McKown & Co. and at the same time building an offense that will unleash Raspberry, the triple-threat from Crowell, the boys hung up their cleats to rest until time to go to war.

Regular left end Eddy, who was absent from the Wildcats' ranks last Friday night as his eleven was host to Throckmorton, is back after a slight attack of appendicitis to fill his gap in the line on offense and stand at safety on defense.

After suffering a let-down after running wild over the Iowa Park machine, the Gravesmen eked out a 7 to 6 victory over the Chillicothe Eagles. Then with their eyes glued on the Burk Burnett tilt they were beaten in the first half of their game with the Throckmorton Greyhounds.

Realizing now, however, that they are the under dog by several touchdowns when they meet the Dogs, they have been working furiously this week in an effort to give the Bulldogs their stiffest competition since Electra downed them. Their attack will be a reckless one using Graves tactics that the under-dog's best chances lie in gambling with the enemy. Against a stronger aggregation, the weaker one must try to make breaks and take advantage of them.

The Wildcats will be striving for a victory that means a tie with the Hillmen in the 10-B conference, an even chance for a tie in the final standing, and the upholding of a tradition of always downing the Bulldogs, regardless of the odds facing them.

The odds which so strongly favor the Bulldogs add to the Wildcat chances. They have every thing to gain and nothing to lose. Last three week's of 10-B scores have rated the Dogs about

H. D. Smith was elected chairman of the Red Cross drive in Burk Burnett in a short meeting of the executive committee at the Rotary club rooms at noon Tuesday, and the drive for 350 members in Burk Burnett was set for a start in this city November 11. Last year the goal of $300 was not entirely achieved, but the quota has been raised $50 this year and thorough plans were made for the completion of that goal. The money raised here last year was $175.00.

Children will be given Tuberculosis tests by Dr. H. S. Garmen, famed chest specialist from Dallas. The clinic place will be announced later. The hours will be from 2 to 5. Dr. Carmen is president of the Texas Tuberculosis association. Those interested have been requested to phone Mrs. J. M. Thomas at 66.

The work is done by the association is mostly of a prevention type. The examinations are to control the disease before it has reached a stage that will endanger those associated with the patient, and to aid the patient in achieving his own recovery.

Federal and State Governments Help In Local Training

New Class in Natural Gas Technique to be Taught By Sherman Crissey

24 Weeks of Study

Those Interested Asked To Attend or Send Word By Monday Night

All persons working for oil companies in this district will have the opportunity to increase their technical knowledge of the work in a school sponsored by the state and federal departments of education and vocational training. Starting next Monday night at the high school building the men who are interested have been requested to register for the different courses.

Those workers who are unable to attend next Monday have been requested to send word to the school either at that time or earlier and give reference to the courses they wish to study.

New Gas Course

One of the courses that will be offered will be the study of natural gas production technique under the direction of Sherman Crissey. The course will be taught if there is sufficient demand by those who register for the courses.

The courses include two classes in mathematics, oil field science, and a course in internal combustion engines. These same courses were taught last year, but many of the students taking one wished to double back on the others this semester.

The natural gas course will be offered in three units. Those registering will have the opportunity to select the type of special work in which they are especially interested.

Cooperative Effort

The schools are provided by the cooperative effort of the federal government, the state vocational department, and the local school board. These three groups provide the teachers, the buildings and the organization for the use of the local workers.

The local school cooperated last year and presented two terms of the training to the men of this section. More than 100 men took advantage of the opportunity to advance their training in the matter which they work.

Dodson's Dry Goods Expands Sales Room

When the Dodson's Dry Goods store was installed here recently, the manager, Clifford Dodson, announced that the motto would be "Watch us Grow." This motto is coming true faster than even the owners expected as they expand the rooms of the building purchased for the store this week. The building is being remodeled so as to accommodate an extension of 21 feet in the rear of the store. This extension has been the result of the policy of the store for courteous and fair treatment at reasonable sales price by the organization.

Dorcas Class

The members of the Dorcas class of the First Baptist church will hold their monthly meeting next Tuesday night, Nov. 3 at 8 o'clock at the church. Members urged to be present.

GOOD WORK, IOWA PARK

In the face of the greatest difficulties possible of drought and depression, the Iowa Park community established the best exhibition and fair in this district. When the Wichita Falls show failed, the small community took up the challenge and has carried on in spite of difficulties.

The success of the project is a compliment both to the citizens of the city and to the county as a whole, who have cooperated with Iowa Park. Probably that is the reason that Iowa Park has been able to succeed where similar projects have failed—the city has been able to demand and secure the aid of the other towns of the county. That means the other cities have respected the sincerity of purpose of the community.

It would be difficult to point to any one person in the community who has been entirely responsible for its success. Rather it is appropriate to say that the whole town has pulled together to put on a successful show that could not be presented by a town many times larger.

NEW RULING AND TEXAS

The abolition of the two thirds rule at the national convention of the democratic party has a direct influence on the state of Texas politics. The prestige and power of the party in national affairs depends on how much of a vote we can assemble for the general election. Since Texas generally goes democratic every year, the average member of the democratic party does not bother to vote.

With the fact that a mere majority is necessary for nomination the state quota of influence at the national convention will be much more valuable than ever before. There are several other reasons why good democrats in Texas ought to vote.

The six reasons that have gained most attention are the amendments that are submitted to the voters in the state. Whether or not you are against the amendments, the proposals vitally change the policy of the government in several respects, and they ought to receive the most serious consideration before any person votes on them.

The government of Texas is launching several new lines of activity if the amendments are adopted. There will be an expansion of government activities into a wide field.

So the active voter in Texas should consider both the prestige of his party here and the vital necessity of a clear expression of the will of the electorate in the amendments and cast a vote next week.

FIGHTING AT FOOTBALL

The editor visited a nearby town last week-end to watch a football game, and spent most of the evening watching the fans of the two cities fighting each other. There was a time back in boom days when Burkburnett had to contend with the same thing, but more recently we have become civilized. There isn't any excuse for such a thing as we saw happening constantly at the neighboring town. We think that when two teams can't settle the difference in a good clean sportsmanlike manner on the field, that the game ought to be abandoned.

PEASE RIVER PROJECT

Less than one percent of the citizens of Burkburnett have even the faintest conception of what the Pease river project means to Burkburnett. Last Friday afternoon a committee of five leading business men of our city carried the demand from Burkburnett that the project be started.

At the present, flood control on the broad expanses of the river near Vernon seems to mean very little to us. However, the project is of great importance. First because the control of Pease river would be in a degree a control of Red River. The disaster of last year would be improbable under such a project.

Still more vital is the possibility of an endless supply of water for both irrigation and consumption in this city. The plans for the project call for the ultimate building of channels which will bring the water right to Burkburnett's back door.

A system of water channels could be constructed that would give water to the south and west of the city.

If the farmer and citizens don't think this is valuable, just let them take a trip into the section irrigated in the Wichita Valley. Where we grew a bale for 10 or 12 acres, they grew a bale for every acre or two. That calls for serious thought.

Big Rabbit Creek

The rain which fell Thursday afternoon and all night Friday measured over an inch and Saturday night it rained almost all night. Just a good, slow rain. It is still raining at this writing very hard. It will be Tuesday or Wednesday before any cotton can be pulled on account of these rains.

W. H. Martin, his niece, Mrs. Ed Owens and Winnie June Martin all motored up to our county seat (Walters) to transact some business. They left the county seat at 10:45 a. m. for Burkburnett and arrived there at 11:50 a. m. to do their shopping and to be on hand when the big $65.00 cash drawing came off. Regardless of the bad day overhead, they reported thousands were on the streets and in the stores.

Hawkeye was informed that one of our Rabbit Creek neighbors drew the 10 bucks. Mr. Pope Byers, a very prosperous farmer. Hawkeye bets that his good wife had to sit up with Bro. Pope all night for drawing the ten.

A Mr. Woods, who is farming the Tom Lee farm, has traded his old Ford car off for a new car.

Hawkeye has been advised that Mr. Walker Hatcher has the old O. T. Michell place rented for the 1937 season. Hawkeye won't vouch for the above statement. J. L. Alexander, the son of Mr. J. A. Alexander, has farmed the same farm for over 15 years. That is a good record for any one to stay that long on one place.

The writer has been almost laid up with the rheumatism for the past few days, but is some better at this writing.

Say folks, wheat, oat, and barley pastures sure are growing fine since so much rain has fallen in the past month. You know Hawkeye can't help but believe that this coming year will be a bumper grain and other crop year.

The big fire department carnival that was held over in Burk the two days proved to be a grand success. Over three thousand attended the big Jubilee each day.

Hawkeye has been so busy pulling holes with his brother John for the past 10 days that he just couldn't get to Burkburnett to mingle with his many friends and to drop around at the Star office and say hello to the Star Staff.

It is reported to the writer that Rev. Robert Hatcher, who was unfortunate to have a stroke several months ago, is now able to walk around again without any assistance. His host of friends in this neighborhood are rejoicing over his recovery.

Security Tax

Starting January 1, every man who works for a company employing seven or more men will start paying his security tax toward unemployment insurance and old age retirement fund. The firms of this district have been asked by the federal government to inform the men working for them that the money would be deducted each pay day and sent to the government collectors after that date. Of course there is the possibility that the law may be declared unconstitutional before it goes into effect. The rates run in this order: In 1936, one percent; 1939-41-42, 1 1/2 per cent; 1943-44-45, 2 percent; 1946-47-48, 2 1/2 percent; after 1948 3 percent. In addition the federal government requires that the employer pays the federal government a similar amount for each employee.
The funds provide insurance against unemployment and a retirement at 65. The estate. The Challenge of Wagner Bill

Four cases have been carried to the supreme court ordering the test of the Wagner Labor Relations Act. Two of the cases probably will be acted on before the end of the year. However, it is not going to be hoped that they will receive consideration before the presidential campaign ends next Tuesday. The act has been both sustained and denied by the lower courts. The act guarantees collective bargaining to labor and sets up a national labor board to settle industrial disputes. Burk-burnett has watched with keen interest the progress of this case through the lower courts. Last year the dispute over the local oil field workers threatened to develop into a supreme court test.
It had all the typical elements of a true test case. If the supreme court upholds the power of the labor act, several Burkburnett labor members will receive a huge slice of back pay. If it is declared unconstitutional the oil companies here will be saved from a large assessment.

Kansas has received more than

News of the Week

The investigation at Texas University is one of the silliest things that we have noticed the legislature indulging in since the start of our observing Texas politics.
The act is so silly that it hardly deserves serious attention, but it involves a tendency that is very positively worth consideration.
As the world plunges into blind dictatorships, one thing has been apparent in the process followed by each nation. Hatred, prejudice and ignorance have been used as substitutes for freedom. In each instance blind prejudices have been stirred up by loud mouthed politicians as led the blind investigation in Texas. The fundamental principal of our government is that a man may believe and act as he pleases so long as his action remains fairly moral. So granting that, there were so big bad communists among the teachers, would that mean that they should be subject to persecution. Communism is a political belief. Leave is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma, and has his M.A. and B.A. Degrees from that institution. Later he did considerable graduate work at the University of California.

For several years Mr. Duncan has served as the principal of the Burkburnett high school. In that capacity he has directed the work in the local institution efficiently, and the school board in electing him, complimented the work that he had done here.

The most serious responsibility now that faces the board is the selection of the successor of Mr. Duncan at the position of the principal of the Burkburnett high school. This matter will be the first order of business at the regular meeting.

Wildcats Prepare —

5 or 6 touchdowns higher than the Wildcats, but the Ford Co. lads, to the last man, predict that the Burk eleven will be lucky with any sort of a victory.

Other hopes of the Kittens lie in a phenomenon that points in their favor. The Wildcats have not been scored upon but one time in the last half. Paducah managed to cross Crowell's O mark in the final half, but Vernon, Floydada, Matador, Iowa Park, Chillicothe and Throckmorton found the Wildcat forward wall like brick after the intermission. On the other hand the Bulldogs have done most of their tallying after half the game was already history.

Regardless of weather, odds, etc. the Crowell aggregation, fans and pep squad will come to Burkburnett and will not be satisfied with less than a victory.

W.N.U. SERVICE

Jane turned away with a protesting smile, Denison looked confused. "Say!" exclaimed Carpy suspiciously, "what's been going on here? What have you two been up to? Bill," he said suddenly, "you've been moving that bandage?"

"Why, I did lift the bandage for a few seconds," confessed Denison. "What for?"

"To look at the roses." "Bill, you're a blamed liar. You lifted it to look at this girl—didn't he, Jane?" Carpy thundered the question in his most aggressive manner.

"How do I know, doctor?" asked Jane demurely.

"Bill," he said, sitting down by his patient, "tell me just what and how much did you see when you lifted that bandage."

"Doc, I'll confess, I couldn't see much—just a blur."

"And your eyes ache and sting now, don't they?"

"They burn a little, Doc."

"I'll say they burn a little! How many mornings has this been going on?"

Denison was silent. "Only yesterday and today, doctor," confessed Jane, hesitatingly.

"Well, don't try it any more," said Carpy to Denison. "If you do, I'll put you back in a dark room. I only let you out here on the theory you'd behave yourself."

Carpy picked up his bag. He was part way down the corridor when he was waylaid by Lefever.

CHAPTER XI

"COME into Sawdy's room a minute, Doc," pleaded Lefever. "He'd like to talk this thing over with you."

Sawdy, propped up in bed, led the talk. But the talk was not to Dr. Carpy's liking. "Yes," he muttered scornfully, "I expected that's the way it would work out. If there's a mean job to be done in this town, put it on me."

But the pair now working on the doctor's sympathies knew their victim pretty well and, having once brought him to refuse their request, needed only to persevere in order to make him grant it. This brought Carpy back that afternoon to Denison, alone.

"Doctor," said the injured man, "I couldn't be sure this morning when Jane was here whether you were talking to encourage her and me, or whether you really think you can save my sight."

"Bill, I was honest in what I said," returned Carpy. "I believe and hope I can save your eyes. But it's not all in my hands; I told you that, too. If Nature's willing, we're going to get through all right—does that satisfy you?"

"That's all I can ask, Doc."

"Bill," said the doctor suddenly, "Sawdy and Lefever have found out who burned the ranch house—and why it was set afire."

"Who was it?" asked Denison violently.

"Keep cool, Bill; keep cool. It's a mean mess."

Denison was on fire. "Why don't you tell the story?" he demanded angrily. "What did they do?"

"First," responded Carpy, determined not to be rushed, "they found that Barney Reibstock had a pocketful of money since the fire. They lured him down to McAlpin's barn. When Sawdy began to question him, he showed fight. The upshot of it was, the two went at it hammer and tongs in a box stall. Barney had a knife—he drove it through Sawdy's leg, and Sawdy was choking him to death when McAlpin and the boys heard the noise and stepped in to save the thief. Then they took him out behind the barn till he told his story."

"Mind you, this now is Barney's story—might or might not be the facts. He claimed he was paid two hundred dollars to set the house afire, with a promise of two hundred more after he'd burned it."

Carpy paused. He thought the sickening truth must have already begun to penetrate Denison's mind; it had not.

"Who," asked Denison, with a fell epithet, "paid him to burn me up?"

"As Barney tells it," continued Carpy deliberately, "it was between McCrossen and Gus Van Tambel."

Denison sprang from his chair. He tore the bandage from his sightless eyes. From his disfigured lips there poured a stream of bitter words.

"Not too fast, Bill—not too fast. Remember there'll be another to suffer like hell if this thing ever gets out."

"Oh, I know it must never get out. But that man! Doc, he ought to be roped and dragged to death by a wild horse. If ever a robber and a thief and a murderer deserved stringing up, that man does. He's killed, or had killed, every man that ever stood in his way of stealing land or cattle, or anything a man had that he wanted."

"Cool off, Bill, cool off."

Denison sat down with his hands over his face. It wrung Carpy's heart to see him suffer. "I can't Doc. I can't!"

"Yes, you can, damn you, and you will. Let me put that bandage back where it belongs—and you keep it there. Don't talk about eyesight unless you want it back. Where the hell do I come in? What am I getting out of this?" It was a battle between two strong wills, and it was long in the waging. But when Carpy, wiping the sweat from his forehead and, himself almost unstrung, left Denison's side, his patient had ridden out the storm and had promised quiet till the two could think of what might be done, pledging in the interval mutual and absolute secrecy.

Secrecy, however well pledged, grows more difficult to control in proportion to the number of per-part of that record has been the way the other three men and especially Finch have blocked the paths clear for McKown. That makes a real football team.

The line hasn't been asleep. When Teal crashes through, or McKown goes around end or as Finch gets off a long punt with time to spare, it is because of the excellent blocking of the front wall. If this wall fails to hold, the backfield is smashed under defensive players of the opposition.

The fans in Burkburnett have a strange glow of nervousness. They believe that the Bulldogs are capable of winning, but at the same time, the superstition of the past which has never produced the fact causes a shudder in the hearts of even the loyal.

Rasberry is a good runner. He punts and passes well. On the open field he is a shifty runner. He has Orr and Meason as a supporting cast. The best offensive player in the backfield is best defensive player on the team.

In the line is Klepper, Reeder and Gibson, who play well flanked by Simons. Thompson is the only returning letter man.

Against this line Burkburnett will match Spray and Blair at ends, Montgomery and Cook at Tackles (changing with Richard Johnson on the offense), Hageman at center, and Elliot and Whitton at guards. So far that line has held. This will be a severe test. Bring on those Wildcats. The boys are ready.

'37 Oldsmobiles Shown to Dealers

The 1937 Oldsmobiles, two new, distinctive and entirely different automobiles, were shown last week to Oldsmobile dealers in the Dallas zone, according to Henry Grace, Oldsmobile dealer in Burkburnett.

"Oldsmobile again sets the pace in 1937," he said. "Not only are both the six and eights different from anything else on the road, but they are entirely different from each other and again set the style for the coming year."

The design advance is but one of the many improvements. The cars are bigger in every way, with longer wheelbase, bigger engines and roomier bodies. Many new safety features have been added. Comfort has been increased in a dozen ways. Economy of operation has been gained by improvements in carburation and slower engine speeds.

"The engines themselves, although based on the same fundamental engineering principle that has resulted in such great satisfaction, are larger than ever before and give greater performance and economy as well as insuring a longer life and increased dependability."

"From factory representatives we learned that capacity at the Lansing plant has been increased as a result of an expansion program that saw the expenditure of $6,500,000 during the change-over period."

GROWING BETTER CHILDREN

"Yes," said Farmer Brown, "we are growing better hogs and better chickens, better farm animals of all kinds, since we learned how to feed 'em right."

"And we're growing better children, too—since we learned how to feed them right," said the extension worker. "Do you know, I've been reading reports where whole groups of children grew stronger and healthier, improved physically and mentally, all because they started getting the right kind of food. The right kind of food is just as important to youngsters as it is to farm animals."

And the extension worker is right. Every day we are learning more and more about the importance of proper diet for our children. Oatmeal is an example.

We have known for a long time that Quaker Oats was a wonderful food for youngsters; that Oatmeal with milk supplied them with the food-energy and minerals active boys and girls need. Then science made an even more important discovery about Quaker Oats. In it, scientists found a rich supply of food element called Vitamin B—the precious element that protects young and old against nervousness, constipation, poor appetite, in cases where poor condition is the result of insufficient Vitamin B in the diet. Thus diet experts are more than ever urging that youngsters be fed a bowl of oatmeal every day. The medical experts watching over the famous Dionne Quins set an example for the whole world as they chose Quaker Oats as the cereal for the five world-famous babies.

We've spent years learning how to grow better farm animals. Now the children are going to have their chance.

the world has made four short years. Four years' best was selling for 10c, oats 10c, corn 15c. And sheep often times pay the freight. Cotton and five cents per bushel and five and six dollars for hogs. Operators were full of money. Freight trains were full of money anywhere—not a pocket. Banks were full by the thousands. Money was everywhere. All the insurance companies were full. So awful much stuff to farm that the people were starved and starving. The people were full of good money peddling their sex on a model-T to their neighbors where they might get a car from the table anywhere that you could see money that would be a dollar or even be a five. The time the big "Four" were gathering in the city by the millions. Our little game—morals blown away and virtue at the bottom in the history of the thing down like all the rest of the world, sinking in a sea of destruction. Water is red with blood, and his hands out. Good old Franklin D. Roosevelt congress got hold, pulling her back on the ground, but the croakers say too much. Some claim too much money that we are in it is the first time in history that we ever got coming to us.

Deal that was outlawed the best law that was made. It is known all over the world in a country where we are regular, fertilizer is sold. The Bankhead act is the only way to hold those things. They gave their money like all the west and their allotment and tags. They made more money than we had tags. The law was the most humane law we ever had. It is at this time thousands of farmers working on regular pay had got money on the way would be able to get their aid.

Now is 12 and 13 cents. The farmer is at a loss. Men are cursing the government. I can't understand just what. It is known all over the world, that if you kill the world goes dead. Now 25 cents and grain is losing their farms. The small grain country, the processing tax put to raise a fund so the world get a living out of this. This fund created a fund that was kept in the hands of trade. This whole country paid on that tax; and the poor alike; they are having that was a good way to get money moving. The farmer had to get a fair price for his products. It was at the cost the government gave; it paid as it went; and up by monied Mellon that have money in all nations in this country to very much.

The supreme court swept that 200,000,000 out of the hands of trade and into the hands of manufacturers; money was turned to the poorest of the world. It is a crime against the farmer son in the country against our society. The farmer against Jehovah God; against advertisement and the HELL. It teaches our generation to "get it getting is good." It gives the son of one of the most famous of rascality ever since Minnes built the city on the Nile some 4000 years. It will breed infidelity in any land. What is the ignorant cigaret doing to do? The courts of the United States put a fine on John D. for $27,000,000 for violating the anti-trust laws; he carried it to his pet court and they threw it out. How does that look to you? Something like 200 years B. C. there was a business like a corporation; they made and sold images of the great Dianna, the great pagan goddess. When the Savior came it was in full blast; it was run by the Morgans and Mellons of that day. It was the biggest business in the world. The world was pagan. The shrines were sold all over the world. When Christianity began to spread, the big men of the corporation had to stop it or go out of business. They said that Christ must be destroyed. They had to find something on Him so they lay for Him; the first thing they found that He was healing the sick on Sunday. He violated one of Rome's constituted laws.

Uncle Frank Roosevelt was healing a sick world every day of the week; putting millions in the hands of the poor, drouth-stricken people and the ones that were paying off were glad that they were able to pay. They had a good market for all they had to sell. When Christ's accusers faced Him, He said to them, that man was not made for the Sabbath, but the Sabbath was made for men, he meant to say, without the law there would be no transgression. The constitution should be affixed so that it would have to stand for all laws that are for the masses and are approved by the president and congress. That the constitution should be made for man and not man made for the constitution. What are you, thus sayeth the Lord, going to go for the love of Mary and her God Almighty begotten Son, get your flock together, round up all the old sheep and the ewes and slip in all the old billy goats that will vote right and shove them to the polls on election day. For we have a man at the White House that fills his boots from the handle straps to the heelspurs. You men that have Redpath's History, get volume two, turn to page 532 and see if our statement is true. Six hundred years B. C. Greece had her Morgans and Mellons of that day. The laws were all made for the wealthy. The rich had worked and robbed the people until they were starving to death. The war clouds were gathering everywhere, the rich knew what that meant; they would lose what they had stolen from the people and a good chance to lose their lives. They knew a man that had the confidence of the people, rich and poor alike. The big ogres had him brought to them, they all thought that they could bribe him, so he would help them. He gave them to understand that there was but one way that he would undertake the job. They must give him power in the senate, to make laws and sign on the dotted line. That they would stand by him. It was a bilious dose, but they knew Greece for what she was. They would fight and war was Hell, so they had to sign or be destroyed. After Solon got all classes signed, he took the job over. He got his help together; there were no typewriters in those days, so he got a handful of tail feathers with which to write. The Greece constitution, all except one law, that was for murder, he revised. He revised all the law and fixed it so that all got a square deal. It was a new deal for Greece; it got her back on sound footing. Under the new law men that were sold for debt were set free, mortgages that called for a high rate of interest were all cancelled.

We will not name off the good laws he made, but just a few that fit our case. The people were all classified; there was in income tax put on the first three classes. The men that had no wealth were exempt from military duty. The money was too high but no general abolition of debt was attempted. But as a new deal and a measure of relief, the standard of the coinage was lowered 27 percent.

Does that look like Uncle Frank to you? One man with a heart and soul saved the Greek world and left a name for himself that is worth more than all the gold of Ophir, silver of Peru and the cattle on a thousand hills. And Uncle Frank is limping along in his footsteps.

What are you political petticoats going to do for the love of that sorry, omber-spitting, crap-shooting husband of yours? For once in your life use what little gray matter you have. Gather in all the wayward and finger waves and shove them all to the polls, hold them there till the bark slips or they vote for Uncle Frank. For he can't run but he has made the best stand for your class and

It is easy for the Liberty Leaguers to point to Franklin D. as the despoiler of liberty. So far as liberty is concerned, she has already perished; at least in character. You still have the liberty to stand and see all you have made in a lifetime of hard work swept away from you just to satisfy the favored few. It was the same way in Rome, but Caesar was the man for the job. He put his foot down on the oligarchy, got the Roman world by the tail and pulled her back on solid ground, just like Uncle Frank has this country.

To us old hay-seeders that are on the fence, I would suggest that you talk to some other man before you cast your vote. He will tell you that in '73 cotton sold for 5c a pound, the money changer of wall street claimed that money was too cheap and through them silver was demonetized. This act doubled their wealth and power. He can tell you that cotton in '74 sold for eight and nine cents a pound; that the farming industry was shot to hades; he can tell you that when Harding took his seat, everything on the farm was a good price. Mellon was his secretary. He said that money was too cheap; that the farmers were all speculating on the board of trade. He took out of the channels of trade billions of dollars. It doubled the wealth and power for him and his bunch, ruined the farming industry, broke banks by the thousands. He can tell you that the seat of government is no longer in Wall street. The first time it was demonetization, the second time it was deflation and the third time it was Hell and Hooverism. Do you want to back a bunch that three times in my lifetime has wrecked and plundered this country? You men on the fence come down on the right side, bring your wife and all the other women you have and march them to the polls on election day and choose that day, whom you will serve; the many gods of Wall street, or cooperate with the humble cripple, the savior of this country. Ever your friend,

McMurray and Oakie are Cast In Epic Film

Fred MacMurray, Jack Oakie and Jean Parker have leading roles in King Vidor's history-making epic of the early days of the Lone Star State, "The Texas Rangers," booked to open Sunday and Monday at the Palace theatre.

Setting a moving, romantic story against a background of action, "The Texas Rangers" recreates scenes of early Texas history, showing for the first time the vast job undertaken by the state Rangers when they swore to drive out Indians, kill bandits, and make Texas a respectable place in which to live.

Both MacMurray and Oakie join the fearless band of peace officers in the picture, first simply in order to gain an easy living, and then, inspired by the ideal of the Ranger organization, with a real intent to carry out the oath.

LARNYXGITS

The football game was going fine.

And our team had the ball; They fought up to the three yard line, And then they let it fall.

I stood upon the grandstand: There was yelling all around. Yes, I watched it from the grandstand; But I didn't make a sound.

I stretched my vocal cords to breaking. I exercised my lungs. As compared to other tongues.

I tried and tried my best to yell But somehow it just wouldn't. I wished my voice to join the swell, But somehow it just wouldn't.

Life for me could ne'er be worse, Than having to act so tame; Just because my voice is hoarse (Doggonit) at the football game.

Where's Elmer

It gives one a strange feeling to lose a friend—and especially to lose one and not know where he has gone. Yes, that's the very strange story of Elmer. At one period he was in class—gay and happy, full of life—the next he was gone, entirely vanished from school.

"Where's Elmer?" "Where's Elmer?" "Where's Elmer?" The General Science class was in an uproar—fear, doubt, apprehension were all present.

"Where's Elmer?" A question hanging in mid air, a question which could not be answered—a question which brought to mind a perky turned up nose, brown, sympathetic eyes, a small well shaped head and a disposition which left nothing to be desired.

Three days, a week had passed. The mystery remains unsolved. Over General Science room hangs a pall of doubt and apprehension. No longer the cherry question of "Where's Elmer?" A look of fear had taken the place of laughter on most of the faces. Ail of us are afraid to look into a test tube. A bottle of alcohol sends shudders down our spines.

Could Mr. Johnson . . . ? But not He is too kind. Not our Elmer—for Elmer was our pet snake.

Junior Jottings

About six weeks ago 10-1 started an attendance contest with 10-2. The allotted time is up and the 10-1, Miss Billingslea's home room won. The prize is to be a party or a picnic or something sometime in the near (we hope) future.

Judging by the report cards the tenth grade is having a heroic struggle to keep from falling back to the Stone Ages and other metallic elapses of Time. However, 19 Juniors did make the honor roll with 35 G's.

After various pep talks, meetings, articles, etc., we feel that the entire student body, particularly the Junior Class, not only has contracted, but is seriously afflicted with school spirit. Of course we realize that the Seniors do have as much and maybe more school spirit than anybody, but since they must be dignified, they can't show it. We Juniors aren't bound by the seriousness of our duties, however, so we can and do yell to our heart's content. But, as one of our Senior friends remarked last week, the cup of our enthusiasm is bubbling over and spilling pep in the wrong places. Maybe we had better calm down a little, or, at any rate, enough to observe the Commandment around this place that states, "In assemblies, other than pep rallies, and when local ministers or visiting speakers are present ye shall, under no circumstances, yell."

Glimpse at the life of a reporter: Geometry class, and the following note is received: "This must go in the paper. 'Wonder who will fall for LaNelle's line next? Fred B. was the last guilty one; he must have believed it.' History class and Polly Wiggins writes, 'Why doesn't someone tell Fred B. that LaNelle really is crazy about him?'"

Notes: Polly Wiggins seems to think that Bill Amyx spends a lot of valuable time in history class on her own half—Emma June seems to be losing out with Lloyd since Marjetta stepped in—Wonder who was admiring Webb at the football game—Mary Emma and Kathryn have too good a sense of humor, thinks Mr. Pierce—if you would like to hear yourself or anyone else talked over, gather 'round the radiator in room 206 every Monday morning—Kathryn's mamma seemed mighty glad to know who her little lambchop was spending the football games with—Looks mighty suspicious what Mary Emma keeps writing about Ocie for the paper.

Fairy Tale

Once upon a time in the kingdom of BHS during the reign of His Majesty, King Westerfield, there was listed among the Sophomores the lovely and accomplished Princess of Rhythm. For a long, long time she went with a handsome prince from another country, but one fair Monday they had an argument and broke up—so the pretty princess thought. Then later in the week the princess made arrangements for a date with a rich commoner for Sunday night. Then the handsome prince became sorry for what he had said to his lovely Princess of Rhythm, so he attempted to apologize by asking her for a date for the same Sunday night. Now the princess was really in love with the prince, but she had to say "No." This made the prince so angry that for revenge he had a date with the Princess of Wahoo Sunday night.

That was, in itself, enough to complicate the affair, but a strong good-looking soldier from Bulldog Brigade was also in love with the Princess of Rhythm. He knew she was in love with the prince, so he couldn't say a word, but Sunday night when he saw her with the wealthy commoner who was no better than himself, his blood began to boil. Now he was angry with the princess.

The following day at school the princess realized just how she had treated her handsome prince and the strong soldier, and she was so sad about it that she bit her finger nails all day. She vowed she'd never date another boy, and so she picked up her skirts and ran home to study her geometry, and there she sits to this day, if she hasn't worked the problem.

What Do I Want?

Happiness is the eternal answer to this age-old question that haunts both young and old. Aye, each of us seeks happiness, that golden bubble, so airy and fragile, that is weakest at its strongest point. Must we all be so ambitious that we cannot seek and find? Why cannot everyone get what he justly deserves?

In the first place, to be truly happy, one must be intensely interested in whatever he does. No bored, sophisticated person can enter this palace of mind. For after all, happiness is a state of mind. Make yourself interested in everything you do; otherwise do not do it. Try to find something beneficial in all your actions, for there is a great deal of truth in the old theory that training the mind is helpful to everyone.

Did you know that more than one half of a person's waking hours are taken up by work? For this reason, I would say that now is the time for everyone to begin to think conscientiously about what his vocation will be. Do not say that it is too early, because it is never too early, and easily can it be too late.

There is a job for you in anything you like to do. Your vocation of today may well be your vocation of the future. No such case, your vocation of the future will undoubtedly be more pleasant than that of those unfortunate persons who literally fall in and out of one type of work into another.

Let me give one word of warning which you may heed as you choose. Not every-one should go to college. That is no disgrace, and that is why you should decide on your future before you must enter it necessarily. Do not let your ambitions carry you higher than your interests. You must do that which is interesting to yourself alone to be happy. Extraordinary is the person who can be happy in doing altogether what others desire him to do. But whatever you do, let your ambitions crowd your footsteps until you have become the best in the field you choose.

er than your interests. You must do that which is interesting to yourself alone to be happy. Extraordinary is the person who can be happy in doing altogether what others desire him to do. But whatever you do, let your ambitions crowd your footsteps until you have become the best in the field you choose.

Do not give up too easily!

"One Who is Kissed"

Mildred stood in the doorway and watched Avis go down the street. Halfway to the corner he turned, as if sure she'd be there, and waved his hat while she automatically threw him a good-night kiss. She knew he hadn't an idea how stunned, scored and frozen-up she felt. He didn't know that his casual answer to her question had changed everything for her: the present, the future, the whole world. After a while she closed the door and went upstairs to bed.

But Mildred might as well have stayed on the piazza where it was cooler. She couldn't sleep. Toward morning she cried a little but even that didn't help much. Part of a French proverb kept coming back to her: "Always one who kisses and one who is kissed." She wondered if, during the year of her engagement, it were she who had done the kissing—not Avis. It was then she cried.

Mildred wondered, too, why she had asked the question; yet she supposed dozens of girls had asked it before her. They were on the porch because it was too hot inside to read aloud as they often did, and after a while she said right out of nothing: "Darling, what makes you love me?" She saw now that she wanted to hear Avis say how adorable she was, and more of the same sort. It was some shock when he smiled lazily and answered without a moment's hesitation: "Because you love me so much, my dear."

She was so surprised that for a moment or two she couldn't speak—just sat there feeling sort of sick. Then she said: "You mean that if I stopped loving you tomorrow, Avis, you wouldn't care any more—about me?"

Her voice sounded shaky, but Avis did not notice. There was a bright moon, and she saw him smile again as he responded: "Why put me through the third degree at this late date? But seriously, Mildred, dear, it's because you care so much that you do so many sweet and lovely things for me, which makes me love you."

Right there she began to freeze up inside. She asked: "You really mean that that's the reason you love me, Avis?" Perhaps her voice sounded a bit frightened as well as shaky, for Avis looked at her steadily for a moment as if puzzled, and then he took her hand and squeezed it hard.

"Look here," he said, "why shouldn't it be? Don't we all like the people who are nice to us better than those who aren't? And in my case," he added with a little laugh, "it's a great deal better. Surely, Mildred, you believe that?"

He leaned over and kissed her cheek, a rather brotherly caress, it seemed to her, and just then the clock in the school house across the street struck eleven, and he sprang up, saying: "I had no idea it was so late. I have to take an earlier train tomorrow morning so I'll run along. Good night, darling. I hope you'll sleep despite this heat."

He kissed her again, on the mouth this time, which wasn't quite so brotherly; but she didn't believe he noticed any lack of response. Anyhow, she was left with the feeling that he was relieved to get away.

(To be continued next week)

P. S. We hope that Mildred and Avis will pardon us for substituting their names in the place of the real characters.

Correction

Last week the statement was made that a member of the third year Agriculture class was giving a pig to the boy in that class who made the best grades this six weeks.

But this was a mistake. After talking to Mr. Dean, I found that the boys were in a contest, and at the end of this school year he would give a pig to the boy making the best grades for the entire year.

Spanish 1-A Club

The 1-A Spanish class decided to have a spelling match Friday, Oct. 16. Three girls were on the program committee—Doris Whitaker, Virginia Day and Bessie Jo Cooksey. Virginia and Bessie Jo did the choosing for the spelling match. Doris kept score. This lasted for about thirty-five or forty minutes. Virginia's side won with a score of about three or four points. Of course, the losing side decided that the other side cheated to win.

Bulldogs & Wildcats Meet Friday Night

The Burk Burnett Bulldogs will meet the Crowell Wildcats Friday night in a conference game. The Bulldogs have never beaten the Wildcats, but they are figuring on upsetting Crowell Friday. This will be one of the Bulldog's most severe tests of the season. The Bulldogs have a perfect record for this season so far. The Wildcats had a perfect season until last Friday night when Throckmorton upset them 12 to 6. The Bulldogs hope their record will still be a thousand percent after the Crowell game. The game is scheduled to start at 8:00 p. m. at the Westerfield stadium. Everyone come out and see the game.

Senior Who's Who

"Jo", for short, was born June 4, 1919, at Electra, Texas. She is five feet tall and wears a size six shoe. The reason she is so short is because half of her leg is turned down for a foot.

She has attended the Burk Burnett School for two years. She says that the boys here remind her of movie actors, especially the Marx brothers. Her favorite subject is Spanish because no one can tell what she's talking about. Her old palsy-walsy is Pauline McGinnis.

Jo's Big Moment is Denzel Hopkins. Perhaps this is the reason she has such an opinion of the Burk Burnett boys.

She is a good fighter because she has a little brother and a sister to practice on.

She expressed her desire to get married when she finishes school, if she has a chance.

PAULINE MCGINNIS

This little girl, Pauline McGinnis, was born January 16, 1922. She went to school in Fairview until she was in the fifth grade, then she started to Burk Burnett. She still lives at Fairview, and I will draw you a diagram showing how to get to her house; no, on second thought, I don't believe I will, because you couldn't understand it anyway.

She is five feet and four inches tall and has brown hair and eyes. Her favorite palsy-walsy is Minnie Jo Martin, and she likes to listen to the "Hit Parade" on the radio. She and Minnie Jo like to go to Olney and Archer City because—oh well, you guess why.

Pauline says she is on the winning side in the Senior class, but we wish to disagree with her on that.

Volley Ball

On Oct. 20, the volley ball girls met in the gymnasium for their usual practice. Instead of practicing they elected their captain—Doris Bowden. This is Doris's second year to play. Co-Captain is Mildred Milford, who has played in most of the games for the last four years.

Polly Wiggins was elected as manager and is expected to be a very good one. So far, so good. She is learning all her business in a big way.

Four new girls entered the team Tuesday morning for the first time. They are: Polly Wiggins, La Nell Elder, Mary Jo Henson and Lauvain Harris.

The squad has not been cut. Until it has, the regular team will not be known.

The team enters a tournament at Mankins, November 21-22, and at Iowa Park, December 4-5. They are expected to win both games.

Those Linemen

Who always helps that football get in the right place?
All those linemen who never get any praise.

Who helps our star quarter run those fancy zags?
All those linemen who never get any praise.

Who blocks those guys?
Who puts 'em wise?
Who covers the ball?
Who answers the calls?

Who gets 'em one, and gets 'em all? All those linemen who never get any praise.

We hope our 'til friends take this as a compliment from us, but please don't break down and cry. Can you take it?

We saw our "big blue eyes" riding around alone last Saturday night. Could it be that he was loyal, or lonesome? (We're asking you) How ya doin' keep?

Our tragic story of the week: Two 'til children were seen standing arm-in-arm by a be-yu-tiful grey Plymouth, and they looked quite forlorn, but incidentally it happened to be two of our grid-iron heroes. (Understand now, no offense intended) So we take it all back, and which all means nothing, but it was a pretty good story while it lasted.

A certain one of our "boys" is still wondering why two little milk maids sat on each side of him in study hall. Really, 'Mank', we had a reason.

Feature this, my pets!! Our hero (Mc) standing on the street corner (what corner) and asking a fair damsel to escort him home (in her car). We have been informed that her residence is on Shamburger street, and that she drives a green car. It's a game, you guess.

Punts
And Passes

In Foreign Lands

I journeyed down to the black jack territory last Friday night for the purpose of pursuing my own profession as a news reporter. The occasion was a game between Nocona and Bowie, the contenders for the throne of the Eastern half of district 12-B. I encountered a very hostile atmosphere. The paper that I was representing had said that the game would likely end in a fist fight between the fans. The more prominent civic leaders resented the fact that they were called rowdy—as that is what the statement implied. They tried to convince me that they didn't fight, and they were willing to fight to prove that they didn't fight.

The Game

Well maybe they didn't call that riot which started between halves on the football field a fight, but gosh, if it wasn't, I hope I don't ever have to watch one. The game was very interesting. Nocona showed a lot of improvement over the power that they had in the Nocona-Burkburnett game. The same tendency to let down in the fourth quarter showed up with the Indians. They held the Bowie Rabbits until that period. Then they proved that they were not in condition.

Crain, King and Goodspeed

The Nocona Indians had three beautiful runners in the backfield, King, Crain and Goodspeed showed plenty of tricks. But it was Crain that stood above the crowd.

Crowell Wildcats

There was one reason why I hated to go to Bowie.—I wanted to see the Crowell or Seymour games. It would have been much easier to write about the game coming up with some actual first hand knowledge of their performance last week. The reports of those that went to Crowell indicate that the Bulldogs will have a tough struggle, but ought to win with a fair sized margin.

Pointing to Burk

There isn't the slightest doubt that the Crowell Wildcats have been pointing all the year long to getting at the Bulldogs. Every story that comes out of Crowell either in their local paper or in the Wichita paper shows that the Cats are laying around the corner with some tough problems for the Bulldogs to solve. However, they were slipped up on by the powerful Throckmorton Greyhounds last Friday night to the tune of 12 to 6.

Points Comparison

That makes the Crowell Cats 48 points weaker than the Bulldogs, but that doesn't mean anything like that sort of a score. I am perfectly confident that the Bulldogs will win, but not by a half a hundred points. Furthermore, I believe that Rasberry will not be held scoreless. He hasn't been in any conference game this year.

19 to 7; 52 to 0

How humiliating—rather it is a positive insult. But the scores in the last two games between Burkburnett and Crowell have been 19 to 7 and 52 to 0. Monday afternoon I watched the Bulldogs practice. They were doing some of the cleanest, hardest blocking and tackling that I have seen this year, and every time they hit any body, they yelled 19 to 7 or 52 to 0. That was a gentle reminder of the scores of the last two years. The Dogs seemed to be determined that no such humiliation shall happen this year. I don't know where they got the spirit they had Monday afternoon, but it was the tightest attitude we have seen this year. When I got back to town I looked around for some cracks in the pavement, because some of those jarring tackles must have shaken the earth.

Bi-District Games

Last Friday Nocona said for me to bring the personal message back to Burkburnett that they wanted to win the district for only one reason and that is to get another crack at Burkburnett. Those players are the hardest losers I have ever seen. There isn't any use for them to plan to play Burkburnett in the bi-district. Even if Burkburnett should win, they would play the team from district 9, which is to the north of us. Nocona would play winners of district 11. That is down toward Dallas. However, if both teams were to win the bi-district games, they could meet in the finals of the region. But that is asking a whole lot of either team. Personally I think Newcastle will whip the socks off of Nocona when they play in the near future.

Charters Granted in Texas Show Increase

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 29.—New charters granted to Texas corporations during September was a total of 123, an increase of 23 percent over September last year, but a decrease of 6.8 percent from August, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. 'A Sensational Divorce Suit'

One of the most sensational divorce suits in modern history has just been denied. Mrs. J. Hollis Wallace has accused her husband of everything from petty larceny to manslaughter and rumors are afloat that she intended to marry the king had the decree been granted.

But everything is hot-tototy now and Mrs. Wallace is very grateful to the judge for showing her the error of her way and here is how it all happened—

The Wallaces had been fussing for months and months and their domestic relations were simply unbearable and they were both willing to let the judge settle the matter. Here are the proceedings:

Judge: So you both want a divorce?

Mrs. Wallace: Yes.

Mr. Wallace: Yes.

Judge: What seems to be the main objection to your husband, Mrs. Wallace?

Mrs. Wallace: He is very indifferent about coming home after work hours and he is continually loafing in the hotel lobby.

Judge: What have you to say to that Mr. Wallace?

Mr. Wallace's lawyer: I object to that question on the grounds that the question is irrelevant immaterial and highly prejudicial.

Judge: Objection overruled. Please answer the question, Mr. Wallace.

Mr. Wallace: She is right. I do loaf around the hotel lobby a lot, but their chairs are so comfortable, I positively cannot resist them.

Judge: You folks don't want a divorce, you want to go down to Owens & Brumley's Furniture Store and buy some of their nice occasional chairs and forget all of your troubles. Case dismissed.

'Last of Mohicans' At Tex Theatre

If James Fenimore Cooper were alive today, he'd be in terrific demand as a Hollywood scenarist. The "Mohicans" was definitely "movie-minded," although he did flourish over a century before the cinema came into existence. This is the opinion of George B. Seitz, who directed the Reliance filmization of the great American classic which comes to the Tex theatre Sunday and Monday with Randolph Scott, Binnie Barnes, Henry Wilcoxon, Heather Angel, Bruce Cabot, Phillip Reed, Robert Barrat, Hugh Buckler and Willard Robertson in the leading roles.

"I know no more prolific and imaginative writer of his times," says Seitz. "Here was an author who could blend fiction with history in a convincing and entertaining manner and at the same time do a good, workmanlike job. His 'Leatherstocking Tales' is one of the most amazing series of novels of contemporary life turned out in this country in the 18th century and all of these stories might have been written by an author who had one eye on Hollywood.

DEVOL FLASHES

Class Tournament Finals
Now that the finals of the class tournament is over the Sophomore and Junior boys can rest at ease.

This final game was a hard game—probably the hardest of the tournament. The Juniors mowed the Sophs down with a score of 11 to 7.

The game started out with Eubanks making a goal after about one minute of playing, then making a free goal. This made the score 3 to 0, to end thus at the end of the first quarter, but before the half Woodley, the Junior center got industrious and sunk one to end the half at a score of 5-0 in favor of the Juniors.

The second half started out quite speedily and before the third quarter Bryant of the Jr. team made a goal to make the score 7-0 in favor of the Juniors, thus ending the third quarter.

At the beginning of the fourth and final quarter, the Sophs realized their plight and began to fight. In about two minutes they had seven points, tying the score. Both teams were almost desperate—then when there was about two minutes to play Harrison of the Juniors shot. It went in and this gave the Juniors something more to work for. They worked and Harrison made another goal, to let the game end 11-7, in favor of the Juniors.

The Sophomore Class

The Sophomore class of old Devol, is just the kind that can play ball. Quiet, rowdy, and oh! just—this is the Sophomore class of '36.

Here comes Lavina as everyone knows, The pretty lassie who looks swell in her clothes. She's tall and she's pretty, and everything then. That just goes swell with the Devol men.

Then Velma Samuel, the sweet, little lass, Is just the model for an elegant class. She's far and square and treat everyone right. And she sits up and studies, except on some nights.

Here comes a small girl with Eubanks for her feller, Now who could that be? Oh yes, Edith Miller. Everyone says, with an envious eye, "Isn't she sweet" as she passes by.

And Marlene Smith with Edith as boss Is just goind swell with Herman Doss. She and Edith have a glorious time. If you want them to swing, just give them a vine. Jackie and Lois, as you all know, Are always together wherever they go. Says Bill and Chonk, with a loving chuckle, "Oh Boy! How's that for a good-looking couple?"

Claudine and Rachel are really good pals. When it comes to studying, they're worse than two owls. They don't go to parties, but have lots of fun. And everyone's friendship, I'm sure they have won.

Then Geraldine Hardin, the genius turned dumb. She used to study a bushel and peck. Now something's in the way; it must be Beck.

Lois Dale and Jerry have oodles of fun. When Sophomores are counted, they're the same one. They treat boys and girls exactly the same. And are thought of as friends, the kind that win fame.

Marjeane the romantic, the brave and the true, Everyone loves her, and Winfred does too. She's jolly, she's sweet, and she knows how to joke. But when she wants candy, her Winfred is broke.

Here's Herman and Popeye and Germany too. There's no mischief these boys can't do. They laugh, and they talk, and they have a good time. They and the teachers just get along fine.

Here comes Sally Charboneau, leading the line. With Winfred as jester, trailing behind. He stops, looks and listens, then bellows "Marpeane, All hail the most royal, Miss Samuels for queen."

Jack English is the ladies man, and we all know, No girl with good sense would want him for a beau; He'd use all her lipstick and chew all her gum. Now don't you get sore, Jack, this is all in fun.

Here's Bealen Beck, who is big, fat and chunky. When he is with Gracie, he thinks himself lucky. Grace thinks her Bealen is exceptionally fine. When they're in 'dad's' V-8 going on down the line.

Oh yes, Sybil Woodley, George Charboneau's pal, Just giggles and whispers, and thinks she's some gal. But Georgie, her preacher, who practiseth not, Does pretty good talking when in a tough spot.

And last but not least are basketball men, Garth Dean and Archie, who help us to win. Are healthy and happy, and bow-legged too, We thing they're essential to our team, don't you?
