JONESTOWN SURVIVOR TO BE QUESTIONED — Paul McCann, center, is escorted by federal agents after his arrival Wednesday night at New York's Kennedy Airport from Guyana. McCann, a survivor of the Peoples Temple death ritual in Jonestown, Guyana, was subpoenaed to tell a San Francisco grand jury what he knows about the murder of Rep. Leo Ryan.

Grand jury subpoenas 17 Peoples Temple followers

NEW YORK (AP) — Seventeen Peoples Temple followers, including two adopted sons of temple leader Jim Jones, were subpoenaed today to tell a San Francisco grand jury what they know about the slaying of Rep. Leo Ryan at a jungle airstrip in Guyana.

It was the first legal action taken against any of the 44 temple members who have returned thus far.

One of the 17, Laura Johnston, a nine-year member of the cult, told reporters that all those who arrived here Wednesday night had been subpoenaed to appear in U.S. District Court in San Francisco before a grand jury investigating Ryan's death.

Several other members confirmed they had received subpoenas. At least seven said they were to appear in San Francisco on either Dec. 8, 9 or 13.

One man, Paul McCann, was served with papers ordering him to appear Friday in San Francisco shortly after he arrived at Kennedy International Airport.

The other 15 men and one woman were immediately whisked away by more than 80 agents of the FBI and Secret Service for questioning in an airport hangar.

The interviews lasted almost nine hours, ending around 4 a.m. today. Interviews with 27 survivors who returned on earlier flights had lasted approximately 90 minutes.

An FBI official said no arrests were made after the interviews.

Ryan and four other Americans were gunned down at a remote airstrip near Jonestown, Guyana, after investigating reports of brutality against members of the Peoples Temple.

Temple leader Jones, fearing for the survival of his group, ordered the murders of Ryan and the others and directed a murder-suicide ritual which took the lives of over 900 cult members. About 80 temple members survived.

None of those aboard Wednesday's flight were in Jonestown when the death ritual occurred. They were 150 miles away at the Peoples Temple headquarters in Georgetown, capital of Guyana, for reasons including medical treatment and a basketball game.

McCann asked for a lawyer at the beginning of the questioning and was taken to Port Authority police headquarters.

'Caught with my britches off'

Pearl Harbor recalled here

It was 37 years ago on a Sunday when Pearl Harbor was bombed. Most people still remember where they were and what they were doing when they first learned the incredible news.

Some residents of the area were there and people such as Nathan Dalton, retired from the Texas Highway Department here, recall exactly where they were. He was taking a shower on a ship struck by one of the bombs. "Caught with my britches off," he confesses.

There were others in the city who were either at Pearl Harbor or somewhere in the military service at that time. And shortly afterward, many Americans went into the service for what young folks like to call "the popular war."

For those who were there, or went into the severe fighting or were taken prisoner of war, or for those who sons lost their lives in that war, it was not a popular war — but a horrible war.

And it has been almost four decades since it began.

Celebrates 105th birthday

'End of a Perfect Day' hasn't come for Aunt Cora Shaffer yet

By MACJ CARPENTER

"When You Come to the End of a Perfect Day" has been recited by "Aunt" Cora Shaffer ever since she was a child.

She recited it again here Wednesday on her 105th birthday. "I didn't know it was going to be so long until I came to the end of my day," Aunt Cora quipped.

She is apparently the oldest person living in Howard County, although there are a few others over a 100 and many in their 90s in Big Spring.

Aunt Cora originally moved here after she retired to live with a niece. The niece has since moved to be with relatives, because she had several falls and broke a leg and an arm before leaving Big Spring.

So, Aunt Cora settled in the Mountain View Lodge. Her former neighbor, Miss Agnes Currie, pretty well looks after Aunt Cora, being sure that she has whatever she needs.

The rest home gave her a birthday party on Dec. 5 because they knew that she would have a lot of visitors on her birthday.

She always does, and usually a lot of flowers and thoughtful remembrances from her many friends.

This year, she especially requested a new Travelers Insurance of Hartford calendar.

Her friend, Hubert Stipp, gave her one when she was a 100 and she liked it "because it had big numbers and pretty pictures."

Each year, after that, she asked for one and Miss Currie wrote the company in Hartford and asked them to mail her one.

This year when she turned 105, they decided to do more than that. They called Jerry Mancill and asked him to deliver the calendar and take a photographer and get her story. Frank Brandon went along to photograph Aunt Cora.

CORA SHAFFER
...105-year-old wants calendar that she can see

Aunt Cora remembers what she calls her middle-aged years, as her happiest. She said, "My middle aged years were in my early 50s when a lot of people think they have become old."

She still remembers getting ten pennies on her tenth birthday. She often says, "I don't know what God's plan was for me to live this long. But I have."

And a lot of people who enjoy Aunt Cora stopped by on Wednesday to tell her they were glad that she had.

Wholesale prices rise .8 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices leaped by .8 percent in November as the cost of gasoline, tires and alcoholic beverages posted big increases while the advance of food prices slowed, the Labor Department said today.

Food prices rose by .6 percent, a much slower rate than in previous months, because of declines in prices of meat, fruit and rice.

The .8 percent wholesale price increase, if it continued all year, means an annual rate of about 10 percent, which is about the average this year for the cost of living. The November rise followed consecutive increases of .9 percent in September and October.

The wholesale price figures are important because they usually influence retail price changes within a few months.

The November report covered the first full month since President Carter announced his anti-inflation program Oct. 24. However, the administration says it may take six months for results of the program to be reflected in prices.

While food prices were easing, the wholesale price of gasoline rose 1.6 percent in November and was 5.7 percent higher than in August.

Prices of kerosene, fuel oil and other petroleum products also rose sharply, an indication these costs probably will be passed along to consumers by winter.

On Wednesday, Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, acknowledged there is "tension between the inflation problem" and spiraling energy costs, but he said prices may have to rise to assure adequate fuel supplies.

The Labor Department report showed that food price increases were not as big at the early stages of processing as in the past three months. That might mean slower price increases in months to come.

Food prices actually declined by 0.3 percent at the middleman's level and rose by 1.3 percent at the farm level, the smallest increase in three months.

The department said prices declined for beef, veal and fresh fruit and increases were smaller for pork. Prices of fresh and dried vegetables, chicken, eggs and sugar were higher.

Elsewhere, prices were higher for passenger cars, silverware, tires and tubes and alcoholic beverages.

Prices also increased rapidly for sanitary health products and prescription and over-the-counter drugs.

Capital equipment, which is used by businesses and farms to increase production, rose a sharp 1 percent in price.

Two fem deputies will probably be advised to appeal decision

Two female sheriff department deputies who recently lost a discrimination law suit will probably be advised to appeal, according to their attorney, Gerald Lopez of Odessa.

Federal Judge Leo Brewster returned a decision for the county in Northern Division Federal Court in Abilene. A definite decision on the appeal will be made this weekend.

Lopez said he believes that the judge was in error in some of his findings, though he hasn't looked at the decision closely yet, and that they have a good chance of winning an appeal. He also said there was some irrelevant material in the judgment.

County Attorney Harvey Hooser said, however, that to "prevail in an appeal would be extremely difficult," especially over Judge Brewster because of his senior federal judge status.

Hooser will assist in the case should an appeal take place. Howard County's principal legal representative would be Malcolm Schulz from Abilene. The case would be heard by the Fifteenth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, according to Hooser. An appeal would cost the county between $4,000 and $5,000 according to Hooser. The cost to the plaintiffs would be about the same.

Christmas Cheer gifts arriving

The Christmas Cheer Fund is getting a little traction, thanks to the generosity of friends.

Money from the campaign goes toward the purchase of food baskets for needy families and toys for underprivileged children.

Gifts totaling $25 arrived at the Herald this morning, bringing to $45 the aggregate donated through the newspaper to a fund supervised by the local Salvation Army post.

The gifts were: Mr. and Mrs. H.H. Stephens, $10; Homemakers Class, First Christian Church, $10; and Forsan Baptist Dorcus Sunday School Class, $5.

Brigadier Robert S. Ball of the Salvation Army said many families have already signed for the Christmas food packages.

Icy roads blamed for two wrecks in Howard County

Brenda Christopherson, Sterling City Route, Big Spring, received minor injuries in a one vehicle accident at 8:40 a.m. today when her car went out of control on a bridge south of the Forsan cutoff on Highway 87.

She was treated for a bump on her forehead, bruises and abrasions and released. It was one of two minor accidents in the area, apparently caused by icy roads, with another accident on Midway Road in the early morning hours. No injuries were reported at this wreck.

Roads in the area were icy early in the day, with ice especially dangerous on bridges and the edges of the road. Rural roads were also icy in much of the area.

A 27 degree low, coupled with early morning fog, made roads and highways hazardous throughout the county. The entire countryside had a glazed, grey look about it.

By mid morning, the main highways ice had vanished on the main track of highways, but there was still ice on bridges and overpasses. Sand or gravel had been placed on some of the more dangerous bridges by the State Highway Department.

Big Spring escaped the high winds which were causing danger to motorists in Colorado and other states.

But it was the first hazardous road conditions of the winter in this part of the state.

Focalpoint

Action / reaction: Waiting period

Q. How long does it take to get a divorce in the state of Texas? I've heard varying stories.

A. The law requires a 60-day waiting period after the divorce petition has been filed. Every opportunity, of course, is offered for a reconciliation during that time, in which event the proceedings should be dropped. After the 50-day waiting period, the final hearing on the divorce may be scheduled. This will depend on the case load of the district court and complications with your particular case.

Energy— Discovery in Howard

A gas discovery has been finalized in Howard County.

Maralo Inc., Midland, No. 1 Kirkpatrick, Pennsylvania reef oil discovery, one location and east of the Luther Southeast (Siluro-Devonian) field in Howard County, 1 1/4 miles south of an undesignated Atoka gas discovery and nine miles north of Big Spring, was finalized for a calculated, absolute open flow of 3.1 million cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 10,300-1. Gravity of the condensate was 69.7 degrees.

Production was through perforations of 8,594-653 feet, which had been acidized with 500 gallons.

The following tops were picked on ground elevation of 2,653 feet: Yates, 1,790 feet; San Andres, 3,240 feet; Spraberry, 5,985 feet; Dean sand, 7,275 feet; Pennsylvania reef, 8,630 feet; Mississippi lime, 9,720 feet; Woodford, 9,770 feet; and Fusselman, 9,852 feet.

Scheduled as a test in the Luther, Southeast field, it was drilled to 9,930 feet, where 7-inch casing was set, and plugged back to 9,165 feet.

Location is 660 feet from the north and 1,980 feet from the east lines of 39-32-2N-T&P.

The Atoka strike, the firm's No. 2 Puckett, was finalized Sept. 11 for a calculated, absolute open flow of 1.7 million cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 50,439-1, through perforations at 9,300-318 feet.

Boy's Club bid again tabled

LAMESA — A request by the Lamesa Boy's Club for free use of the Armory has again been tabled by the Lamesa City Council.

The council has also approved a fire contract with Dawson County, set a paving policy for the city and approved Christmas pay for the city employees.

Councilmen are handling armory use requests gingerly because they fear it will inspire a rash of similar requests.

The Boy's Club is seeking use of the facility for tumbling and basketball practice.

WHO SAYS ITS WINTER — A happy group of Indian guides and Indian Princesses at the UMCA enjoyed a mid-winter swimming party and goldfish catch for their Christmas party honoring their parents Tuesday night. It seems as though everybody was a successful fisherman at the event.

Lab balance scales donated

The Coahoma High School Science Department is the recent recipient of a pair of valuable laboratory balance scales, donated by Texas Electric Service Company.

The company bought the scales in 1948 for about $750. They were used in precision laboratory work at the Wichita Falls plant until the plant was taken out of service in August, 1973.

Because the scales are valuable and not made anymore, Texas Electric believed they would be an asset to a school science program.

The scales were donated to Coahoma High School after school officials said they would benefit the school's science students.

NEW COAHOMA BANK ALMOST READY
Grand opening is slated next month

New building is nearing completion

The new Coahoma State Bank building is nearing completion, according to Bill Read, President.

"We should be moving into the building Dec. 15 through 17, and hope to be ready for business there on the 18th or 19th," Read said. "The open house will not be until mid January, possibly the 14th."

Read indicated that the carpet, drapes, and tile in the lobby were the only major portions of the construction left.

Major advertising medium for agribusinesses

'Walking billboards,' gain popularity

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Around the farm they're called "walking billboards" — baseball-style caps carrying company names and pictures of products such as tractors and ears of corn.

It's an advertising medium long recognized by major U.S. agribusinesses that has found popularity in cities and campuses across the country.

K-Products Inc., an Orange City, Iowa, firm that is an industry leader in production of the baseball-style caps, has seen the market grow from implement and seed manufacturers to include such companies as Coca-Cola, New York Life and Kawasaki motorcycles.

"The feed and seed and ag-related businesses are what put us on the map," said Lyle Fogelman, personnel manager for K-Products, which makes 300,000 caps a week. "They opened the eyes of other companies that this was a very good way to promote their products."

Two other top manufacturers, Louisville (Ky.) Manufacturing Co. and Swingster Wearables of Bonner Springs, Kan., have noted similar demand for the caps, which carry a company's emblem or initials on the front.

"Agriculture is about 50 percent of our cap market, but our caps also promote motorcycles, sparkplugs, the auto industry, all kinds of areas," said Swingster regional sales manager Richard Gryczkowski.

Frank Lipschutz, president of Louisville Manufacturing, said, "Dollar for dollar, the amount of advertising exposure that a company gets from the caps is probably more intense than anyplace else."

New York Life got into the promotional cap business through a television commercial featuring a football coach wearing a cap with the company's emblem. "We started getting requests from our people for caps and T-shirts," said Gus Cooper, vice president for advertising. "A farmer in the state of Washington saw our ad and wrote me saying he had to have a cap. We don't normally do this, but I sent this guy one and then told one of our best agents to go out and see him."

Coca-Cola USA is looking into making caps available to its local bottlers that would promote Coke's position as the official soft drink of the 1980 Olympic Games, said spokesman Joe Wilkinson. Coke bottlers already supply caps for such uses as Little League teams and motor sports events. What Coca-Cola and New York Life are learning about the value of having their names on a cap has been known to such agribusinesses as DeKalb, John Deere and International Harvester for more than a decade. They've been using them as sales and purchasing incentives, in promotions and for over-the-counter sales.

Approximately 200 persons attended the Four County Young Farmer barbecue Saturday and approximately 350 persons attended the American Agriculture Movement rally that followed.

J.C. Lewis, first speaker, told the group about the Trilateral Commission and how it exercises increasing control over our government. Run by many of the wealthy people, its goals are to control food and energy thereby gaining total dominance of the economy, Lewis told the group.

Gerald McCathern, Texas A&M leader, spoke about the National Tractorcade planned to converge on Washington, D.C. at the beginning of the next Congressional session as well as the possibility of a national agriculture strike.

Jim Batson, Seminole farmer, told the rally that last week a "big oil corporation" had bought land — some 30,000 acres in Gaines, Dawson and Martin Counties — including one and one-half farmhand sections that Batson had rented. Owners have difficulty refusing the lucrative prices offered by corporations, even though they realize it could end family farming.

An auction of a quilt made by AAM wives was also held. Marion Small bought the quilt for $250, with the money going to the local AAM Strike office.

Aileen industrial plant will close in Abilene

ABILENE — Aileen Inc., an industrial plant which specializes in the manufacture of clothes, is closing down its operation here.

The plant, which offers employment to more than 200 people, will be phased out over the next two months. A loss estimated at nearly $10 million is anticipated in the closure.

Accounts said Aileen would move a portion of its operation to Virginia. An Aileen employee said Wednesday that mechanics at the plant have been approached about moving to Virginia.

The employee, a woman, also said two reasons had been cited for the decision. The factory has produced more than enough yarn to meet its needs and the demand for natural fiber material, such as cotton and wool, has exceeded the demand for the kind of knit material Aileen produces.

General manager of the Abilene plant is Bob Sittler.

Not all communities are vibrant

Texas is enjoying tremendous growth but not all areas of Texas are growing.

Isolated sections of West Texas are benefitting from an influx of people — among them Midland, Odessa, El Paso and Lubbock — but other communities have actually lost population since the 1970 census, with no indication the trend will be reversed.

Midland and Odessa have, of course, benefitted from the booming oil and gas demand and will continue to do so in the foreseeable future. The presence of Texas Tech helps Lubbock enormously, that and a thriving agricultural industry in that area.

EL PASO HAS been helped by any number of factors, not the least of which has been the fact that it has grown into a truly international city — a gateway to Mexico if you will.

Community leaders promote the idea that it has a good labor market and industry has responded.

Most of the growth in Texas has been in Central and East Texas and along the Gulf Coast. An abundance of water does more to help those areas than good promotion. Few areas can match West Texas for a cooperative promotional effort — West Texans stand and fight together, whether it is for better roads or more economic muscle — but the shortage of water in the western half of the state has served to hamstring it in its bid for growth, when all other things were equal.

The population makeup in Texas has changed dramatically in the last three to four decades. Houston and Dallas have ranked one-two in population within the state for many, many years but the jockeying for position behind those two metropolises has become spirited.

Even now, San Antonio is claiming it has overtaken Dallas as the No. Two city within the state and Fort Worth can no longer take it for granted it will remain the state's No. Four city, not with communities like El Paso, Austin and Corpus Christi coming to the fore.

The cities which have experienced the most electrifying rate of growth are satellite communities like Grand Prairie, Irving, Arlington, Mesquite, Pasadena and Richardson — which began to prosper when the rush to the suburbs began in the great metropolitan areas.

Austin, of course, has a throbbing vitality, benefitting from the fact that it has the biggest university in the state and is the seat of state government. In 40 years, the population of Austin has increased ten fold.

ANOTHER COMMUNITY which is just getting into high gear as a growth area is Bryan-College Station. Texas Business Review, a monthly periodical published by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas, compared Bryan-College Station's future to the recent history of Austin.

The magazine article predicted there would be 30,900 households in Bryan-College Station and Brazos County by 1982. That figure represents a 23 per cent rise from the current number of households.

Some communities grow in spite of themselves. Others grow because hives wire groups devote every waking hour toward promoting their cities.

It would be nice if all parts of Texas would continue to expand at about the same pace but that will never be. Too many factors dictate otherwise.

He'd change jobs

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

If Santa knew how expensive toys are these days, he'd get out of the give-away business and into retail manufacturing.

The sad part about the toy business is that many of these toys, for which we parents pay such elaborate prices, are potential killers. A child who finds delight with an item under the tree on Christmas morning can become a statistic by Christmas night.

Such a tragedy occurring on Christmas is a grisly thought, but it happens. I know of at least one Big Spring child, an infant, whose life ended while playing with a shoddily-made rattle and this week, Parker Brothers announced the recall of a toy that included pieces that two children had choked to death on.

PARKER BROTHERS said that the toy was safe if the directions were followed, but unfortunately, children are more interested in how many different ways a toy can be played with than they are in following directions.

I am not a consumer expert, but then it seems that even the experts can't be certain which toys are safe and which are potential threats. The toy which killed the two children was tested and approved by a government bureau before it was marketed.

The parents or relatives who purchased it must have assumed that if the toy had passed through all of the safety regulations now required before placing it on the shelf, then the toy must be safe.

The news report did not elaborate on how old the children were or for what age group the toy was designed. It's possible that someone bought a 6-year-old's toy for a 3-year-old child. Most of us parents do like to think that our children are brighter and more mature than the average child.

Perhaps the giver of the toy bought it with the same foresight that parents often buy clothes with — give him something he won't outgrow right away.

be extremely cautious about the "weapons" you arm him with.

If a toy is marked "for ages 8 and up," don't buy it for a 6-year-old no matter how brilliant your 6-year-old is. It wouldn't be restricted to a certain age group unless there was a reason for it.

Electric trains are a real temptation for parents of 5 and 6-year-olds, but most that I've seen are intended for an older group. There are just as many fun wind-up train sets on the market that don't pose threats to younger children who may be more interested in where the juice comes from than preserving the technological masterpieces.

A toy oven that really bakes might be great for a 7-year-old "homemaker", but a 4-year-old may be more interested in taking it apart and cleaning it the way mother does hers than in baking a cake.

My own children have surprised me more than a few times with their interpretations of what a given toy is meant for. Around our house, toys have been used as step ladders, banks for small fortunes of pennies, and weapons with which to defend oneself against a brother.

WHEN MY children receive a new toy, it's inspected for potential dangers and the kids are casually supervised during the first couple of days with it while they inspect the toy's possibilities. Toys that are marked for an older age are put up for only supervised play until the kids are older.

We also sort through the old toys a couple of times a year. A good time is just before Christmas to make room for the new.

Broken toys that present possible dangers and can't be made safe again are tossed out. I would hope that any parent who determines that a toy is too dangerous for his or her own youngster, wouldn't endanger someone else's by including it in a garage sale.

Outgrown toys are given away, thus eliminating the situation of a full toybox, but nothing to play with. And toys with lots of pieces, like puzzles, are reassembled in hopes that the child will rediscover the fun of playing with it.

I am always rewarded after these bi-annual weeding-out sessions with not only a neat room, but children who are newly occupied with toys long forgotten.

Please be careful this Christmas. Whether you're selecting a toy for your own child or someone else's, see the danger before the child does.

Throwing dollar

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The President pushed a button, and Gerry Rafshoon immediately showed up in the Oval office.

"Gerry," the President asked, "what are you going to do today to improve my image?"

Rafshoon was stumped. It was the first day he took on the job as President Carter's image-maker that he hadn't come up with an idea.

"Maybe we could fly over New York state in a helicopter and see the snow damage," Rafshoon said.

"Was there much snow damage in New York?"

"No," Rafshoon said, "but that would be good for your image. I can see the headline now: 'President Inspects Lack of Snow Damage in New York State. Says His Anti-Snow Policy Is Paying Off.'"

"I think you're reaching, Gerry. Isn't there anything I could do to dramatize my fight against inflation?"

RAFSHOON LOOKED out the window. Suddenly he said, "I think I have it. Why don't you throw a silver dollar across the Potomac to show how much faith you have in our monetary system? The last one who did it was George Washington."

The President thought about it a moment. "Can you really throw a dollar across the Potomac? I thought the Washington silver dollar legend was discredited by Jack Anderson in one of his columns."

"Anderson printed the story based on the fact that his source used a paper dollar. Obviously you can't throw a paper dollar over the Potomac."

"But," the President said, "if you made a dollar into a paper airplane, and the wind was blowing right, you could sail it across the potomac. I learned that at Annapolis."

"It's too risky, Mr. President. If you sailed a paper dollar across the Potomac as an airplane, and it nose-dived into the water, the dollar would sink on every money market in the world. I think we should stay with a silver dollar."

President Carter said, "There's one thing wrong with your plan, Gerry. The silver dollar is out of circulation — the new dollars are much smaller, and if I'm going to throw one I will need all the weight I can get."

"We could have the Treasury make a special silver dollar with tiny jets in it which could give it enough lift to get to the other side."

"That would be cheating, Gerry, and I promised the people I would never lie to them. We have to have someone else try to throw it over secretly, to see if it can actually be done. I don't want to go out there on the banks of the river with all the press covering me and fail to do it."

"GOOD THINKING," Mr. President. We could get someone from the Washington Redskins to try it out first. The question is, should it be Joe Theismann or Billy Kilmer?"

"They both could be sacked," the President said. "Can't we find someone in the government?"

"What about Mike Blumenthal? He's secretary of the Treasury. If the press finds out about it, he could always say he was testing the new American silver dollar to see if it would fly."

"All right. Get back to me and let me know if it's possible."

Rafshoon returned a few days later, shaken. "Blumenthal threw a silver dollar with all his might and it only went halfway across the Potomac."

"How did he explain it?"

"He showed me the labor statistics for November. It seems the dollar will only go half as far as it did 10 years ago."

Snoring may reflect personal problems

By Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband snores so loudly he wakes me up. He will not breathe for it seems like ages, and I get scared and nudge him to get him to catch his breath. When he does it is like an explosion, as though he has been running a hard race and is fighting to get control. Can this be a serious matter? Please comment. — C.B.

Snoring is usually a harmless quirk, but it always indicates that the snorer is not breathing altogether properly. For some, determining the why can be important.

You tell me little else about your husband, so I can only suggest a few possibilities. His struggle for breath seems out of the ordinary. If a person drinks heavily he may be in a drugged sleep, in which breathing can be labored. Or he might have a nasal obstruction, as from polyps, for example. Being overweight can cause snoring to be more pronounced.

The episodes of breathlessness are called "sleep apnea." They may last from 20 to 90 seconds. The resulting explosiveness is caused by the release of carbon dioxide in the lungs accumulated during the period when he is not inhaling fresh oxygen.

I've seen patients remedy this problem by losing needed weight. The apnea also may result from a lung disorder, and while I don't like to raise unnecessary ghosts, I think it wise in a situation like this to seek an evaluation through a physical examination.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What exactly does cause constipation? What happens? — J.N.

Many factors contribute to it, but it boils down in the final analysis to just how the stomach and intestines handle the food we eat — or fail to handle it. It takes food anywhere from a day to three days to make the complete journey through the digestive tract. This may vary with the kind of food, to some extent, on how well it is chewed, and even perhaps the emotional state of the person eating. Any obstruction in the pathway can alter the results.

Constipation occurs when the system cannot keep up with the required rate of digestion and absorption of nutrients through the walls. If the muscle contractions (peristalsis) are not strong enough, there may be insufficient force to propel food quickly enough. If the passage is slowed in the lower intestines (colon), it may accumulate. Since it is here where liquid is removed, what is left may become a hardened mass — constipation. For more detailed discussion of causes and cures see my booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." Send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will holding a baby upside down by his feet and letting the blood rush to his head cause brain damage? Also, should a nine-month old baby be given a bottle at night or should it have milk at bedtime and wait until breakfast to have its milk again? — K.J.

The upside-down routine, while it will not cause brain damage, seems to me an unnecessary amusement for any baby. As to the milk, an infant should be fed when it is hungry, a need it will make known to you. Whatever routine a baby adopts is fine, except that it should be one that fits in, as much as possible, with the family routine.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grandson has beautiful blond hair, very fine, but thick. All of a sudden it has started falling out until now he is bald with only a few strands remaining. He is 9. Do you have any answers? — I.S.

Hair loss of this magnitude is often difficult to explain. It may follow a severe illness that is featured by high fever, can occur with excess use of vitamin A or result from a glandular deficiency, particularly of the thyroid.

A study done at Emory University a few years ago revealed that such hair loss may also result from an auto-immunity, a condition in which the body attacks certain of its own cells — in the case of hair, the follicles. The Emory group suggested use of immunotherapy, as with BCG or a new drug called levamisole in an effort to reverse the process. The studies at the time of the report were not complete, but a dermatologist familiar with it may be able to update you.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Editor:

I am a member of old Co. D 117th Supply Train of the Rainbow Division of 1917 that was organized in Big Spring and assigned to the division at the outset of WWI and remained with it until the end of the conflict.

Are there any of the boys still around? I last heard from Red Steel at Midland and he said he and I are the only two left of the 100 men that composed Co. D.

Please, if it's not too much trouble, let me know of any of the outfit left.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: There is a lot of drug and alcohol abuse among the men with whom I work, and they resent my Christian witness. I find myself angry with them, and this is making things worse. Is there any advice you can give? — H.A.

DEAR H.A.: You must first of all see the problems with which you are faced in their true light. The problem is not people, neither is it drugs or alcohol. These are just weapons that Satan uses in his attack against your faith in Christ. The weapons are not the same in every Christian's life, but the warfare is always the same, and so is the enemy.

Next, you must realize what weapons you have against this enemy. You have already learned that anger is no good, for this is one of Satan's devices and he will use your anger as a means of defeating you. When we get angry with people we are fighting the enemy's battle for him against ourselves.

Paul urges us to put on the whole armor of God when he says: "We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places" (Ephesians 6:12). The battle is a spiritual one and you must always see it as such and fight it on the spiritual level.

You will find that unbelievers have no answer to the weapons of faith, prayer and truth. Paul says: "Though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh" (II Corinthians 10:3). Let the life you live be your witness. Pray also that God will give you a deep love for those around you. They need Christ, and they need to sense His love through you.

A SUMMIT COUNTY (OHIO) — Sheriff's deputy frisks "Santa Claus" John Kaufman, 30, after he was arrested Tuesday on a downtown Akron, Ohio street for allegedly assaulting a jeweler who objected to his method of soliciting contributions. Kaufman, who was booked on assault charges, was in charge of a group of three Santa from the Cleveland Temple of Hare Krishna who were soliciting contributions "in an aggressive manner" according to police reports.

Carter to attend summit of four nations next month

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will attend a four-nation summit meeting next month on the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe to discuss arms limitations and other issues, it was announced today.

Carter said the Jan. 5-6 meeting on the French island, called by French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, will be "a somewhat social affair, but we'll also be discussing issues and meeting privately to discuss questions that affect us all."

A simultaneous announcement of the summit was made in Paris, where a government spokesman said discussions will focus on "the state of the world at the end of 1978."

Besides Carter and Giscard d'Estaing, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and British Prime Minister James Callaghan will attend.

Carter told reporters at a breakfast meeting at the White House he wanted to discuss progress being made toward a strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

"We expect to go over an agreement in final form," Carter said.

"I also expect to give them an accurate description of the remaining differences at that time," he said.

The four leaders plan to meet in extraordinary privacy, each accompanied by only one assistant. Carter is taking his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

No communique is planned, and White House press secretary Jody Powell said it was uncertain whether a press plane would be allowed to accompany Carter, as is usual on foreign and domestic trips. "Negotiations are under way," Powell said.

The president met with the same three leaders at an economic summit in Bonn last July. The leaders of Canada, Italy and Japan also attended that session but were not invited to the Guadeloupe meeting.

Mono can make your pucker power go limp

Kissing has very few drawbacks. But everything has its problems and kissing is no exception. Mononucleosis, which is transmitted mainly by kissing, can make your pucker power go limp for weeks.

But lovers need not worry too much. The disease is not serious enough to make people want to avoid kissing entirely — except for maybe a couple of weeks when fever, sore throat and other major symptoms are apparent.

Malaise (a medical term for generally feeling rotten), fatigue, headache, swollen glands, and rash are a few other symptoms, according to an article in the December issue of Texas Medicine, the Texas Medical Association's monthly journal.

Aside from the interesting way it usually is transmitted, the disease has very little going for it. In its most serious form it can cause ruptured spleen, inflamed brain tissues, liver problems and death. Luckily these very serious problems occur in only about 1 percent of "mono" cases. But even less serious cases may need medical attention.

Since many of its symptoms are similar to those of other diseases, it often takes a physician and laboratory tests to determine that a problem really is mononucleosis. Once other diseases are ruled out, treatment often is simple. Bed rest, aspirin or similar pain relievers, and salt water gargles for sore throat are the main treatments in many cases, the article said.

A few people have to undergo all the misery of mono without the pleasure of getting it by kissing. Shared beverage bottles have been blamed in a few cases. Children as young as 1 year have gotten it and since they don't engage in heavy-duty kissing, obviously the disease can spread other ways. But these ways are rare compared to kissing. One researcher described the main transmission method as "kissing of more than filial affection." In concrete terms, that's the kiss from a steady sweetheart after the prom compared to a peck on the cheek from grandma at Christmas.

There is more support for blaming kissing as the main culprit when you consider that the main group of mono victims are between ages 15-25, a group that tends to do more than share beverage bottles on dates. But a 78-year-old victim also has been recorded. If someone that age has to be sick, hopefully he or she got it from something besides a beverage bottle.

Rep. Hightower discovers

'It's a small world'

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, the adage, "It's a small world," took on a real meaning earlier this month during a visit to Red China.

While touring the docks at Shanghai, Hightower noticed some cotton bales being off loaded. Markings on the bales indicated the cotton had been grown and ginned in West Texas.

"I learned a lot and had a good trip but I certainly wouldn't recommend anybody going to Red China for a vacation," said Hightower during a recent interview after returning from a two-week tour of Red China with six other members of the House Agriculture Committee.

Prior to visiting Red China, Hightower participated in an Inter-parliamentary Symposium in Tokyo. He and three members of the agriculture committee spent a week in Japan.

Both the Japan and China trips were paid for by the U.S. government.

In two symposium speeches, Hightower urged Japanese officials to increase their importation of American beef, wheat and feed grains.

Cotton dominated his meetings with officials in Red China.

"We're hoping to expand our export market to China.

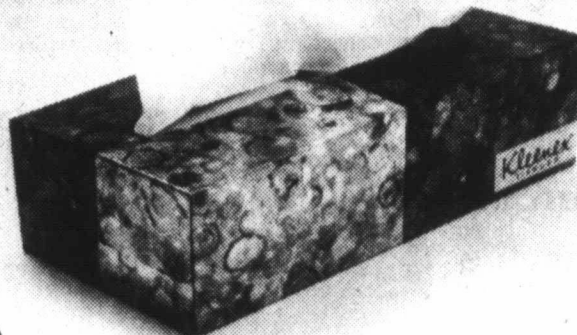

They produce quite a bit of cotton but they also import a lot. China, with 800 million people, is a vast potential of all consumer goods as you can imagine."

Hightower also noted that the political "atmosphere appears to be changing" in China which should create

"more opportunities for American goods and raw materials."

Hightower said the congressional delegation visited several agriculture communes and "a good many gardens which is interesting if you're a connoisseur of oriental gardens."

Heroin flooding Europe

Drug sales skyrocketing

BONN, West Germany (AP) — High quality, low priced heroin is flooding Western Europe, police say, resulting in a pattern of rising youth addiction and drug deaths reminiscent of the U.S. experience.

Investigators believe most of the heroin comes from the Middle East, which last year began replacing Southeast Asia as the major supplier for the European narcotics trade.

"We used to hear that the 'old world' attitude would keep drugs out of Europe," said Thomas V. Cash, special agent in charge of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration operation in Germany. "But this is very clearly not the case."

He said that the increasing prevalence of heroin, various pills and other drugs bears striking similarities to the growth of drug abuse in the United States from 1966 to 1976: "It's eerie to watch." Heroin abuse has been on the decline in the United States in recent years — heroin-related deaths in New York City dropped from 900 in the early 1970s to about 400 this year.

In West Germany, where the drug problem is perhaps greatest, the federal criminal office reports 172 kilograms of heroin have been seized so far this year, compared with about a teaspoonful in 1968. A kilogram is 2.2 pounds.

Berndt-Georg Thamm, a Berlin drug expert, said the percentage of 12-to 16-year-olds among West Germany's 50,000 estimated heroin addicts has jumped from nearly zero to 20 percent in three years.

Heroin is sold in a purer form in West Germany, and is therefore somewhat cheaper.

For the equivalent of $85, German addicts can buy a gram of heroin, enough for about 20 injections, drug experts say. The product is 30-40 percent pure, compared with under 5 percent pure for heroin sold in the United States. In New York City, the price for a gram of heroin — the less pure variety — is $55 to $65.

Inspector Hans Johansson of the Stockholm police reported heroin seizures in Sweden climbed from 82 last year to 127 during the first nine months of this year. He termed the increase in heroin abuse among Swedish youth as "disastrous."

French police say the number of drug-overdose deaths soared from 72 last year to about 100 so far this year. They said there was also a "dramatic" increase in thefts of amphetamines and barbiturates from pharmacies.

Overdose deaths are also up in Italy — from 26 in 1975 to 57 so far this year. The government's anti-drug squad said many of the victims were between 18 and 25. In Denmark the drug death rate climbed from 39 in 1976 to 85 in the first 10 months of this year.

"Clearly the drug problem worsened seriously after the introduction of heroin," said Dr. H.E. Knipschildt, Copenhagen's chief medical officer.

The bright spots have been Britain and the Netherlands, where the arrest and deportation of Chinese believed to run international drug smuggling have led to a decline in drug seizures.

"The amount of heroin in circulation was considerably reduced following the conviction of members of six cells of Chinese traffickers," Scotland Yard Commissioner Sir David Nees said in his annual report last June.

"This led inevitably to a steep rise in the price demanded from addicts for illicit supplies of drugs."

Dutch police believe recent arrests among Chinese dealers were responsible for an increase from about $125 to $150 per gram in the street price for heroin.

DEA agent Cash said most of the heroin reaching West Germany comes from Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iran via Turkey.

Some of the 1.2 million Turkish workers who live in West Germany smuggle the heroin into this country in small — 1 to 5-kilogram — shipments, making detection difficult among the thousands of travelers crossing the borders daily.

"It's estimated that about 80 million people transit West Germany each year," Cash said. "They can't search everybody and they can't close down the country."

Feds take tough stance on violence

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Federal authorities took a tough stance in Ohio as violence associated with a 27-day-old strike by dissident steel haulers flared in three states.

"Starting today, we are making the federal presence known," James Williams, U.S. Attorney for northern Ohio, said Wednesday. "The FBI and others are giving high priority to the matter."

The Pittsburgh-based Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers has been on strike since Nov. 11, demanding higher rates, simpler regulations and the right to bargain for independent steel haulers, including some now represented by the Teamsters union.

FASH Chairman William Hill insists his group is not behind the violence which has punctuated the strike.

FBI special agent Stanley Czarnicki announced Wednesday that federal charges had been filed against four FASH members arrested in Ohio's Columbus County.

The arrests followed a shooting in which tires and the radiator of a steel truck were damaged. An affidavit alleged the four violated a federal law against damaging a motor vehicle operated in interstate commerce with reckless disregard for the safety of human life.

Cleveland police said three Ohio men identified as FASH members were charged with possession of criminal tools and disorderly conduct for allegedly tossing rocks at a steel truck.

Pennsylvania state police, meanwhile, charged nine men with criminal conspiracy, carrying prohibited weapons or possessing firearms without licenses after a caravan of about 30 cars was stopped near the New Stanton interchange of the Pennsylvania Turnpike in connection with rock throwing and shooting incidents.

In Indiana, authorities said shots were fired into a trucking company office Wednesday and tires were slashed on a halfdozen rigs.

U.S. Steel President David Roderick predicted in West Lafayette, Ind., Tuesday that steelworkers may be laid off if the strike continues.

Natural gas shortage of past winding down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The natural gas shortage that plagued the nation over the past four years has finally begun to wind down — not because of any spurt in production, but because householders and industries have learned to get along with less gas, or even without it.

But the improvement is uneven. As a result, gas industry spokesmen say, some pipelines and utilities can start selling natural gas to new customers, but others still cannot fill the needs of their users.

Further improvement is expected for the next three to five years, says George H. Lawrence, president of the American Gas Association. This is because additional gas supplies previously withheld from sale should become available with elimination of the country's two-market system and its price differences, Lawrence says.

This improvement has been called a "gas glut" or "bubble," ill-chosen phrases that made experienced observers here wonder how the low gas supply of recent years suddenly turned into abundance.

The answer is, simply, that it didn't.

After peaking at 22.6 trillion cubic feet in 1973, U.S. natural gas production slid back, year by year, to only 19.5 trillion in 1976. In 1977 production almost leveled off at about 19.4 trillion cubic feet.

The downside left many pipelines and utilities far short of the gas they owed customers. As utilities temporarily shut off deliveries, industrial users given a low priority by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission were usually the first to suffer.

Many of them switched to other fuels, mainly oil, and are not anxious to trust their fate to natural gas again.

An Energy Department survey last April said that natural gas, which provided 37.6 percent of the energy used by reporting industries in 1972, accounted for only 30.1 percent in the first half of 1977.

At the same time, the percentage of their energy from fuel oil went up from 9.8 to 13.9, and that from electricity rose from 15.1 to 17.1. Their direct use of coal held steady, just over 20 percent.

The department called this "a substantial switch by participating firms away from the dominant fuel source of natural gas."

And as natural gas prices rose during those years, gas association statistics show a decline in average per customer residential gas use from 130,400 cubic feet in 1972 to 118,700 in 1977 — a decline which was interrupted but not reversed by two cold winters.

The result has been that nationwide use of natural gas has backed down, out of necessity, to accommodate itself to the new, low supplies and the new, high prices. Gas association figures show that utilities charged the average residential customer $1.19 per 1,000 cubic feet in 1972 and $2.33 for the same amount last year.

The supplies available outside gas-producing states have been less than necessary, in fact, because those supplies were under federal price ceilings lower than the unregulated prices in producing states.

Unwilling to sell at lower prices, producers simply let some gas sit idle in producing states, and the Energy Department estimates about 1 trillion cubic feet a year or a little more is backed up there.

Now that Congress has set price ceilings for the producing states as well, that gas should be offered for interstate sale.

That injection of gas would still leave the national supply some 2 trillion cubic feet short of its 1973 peak; but it should help some gas companies to reduce or end service curtailments and may allow some to seek added customers for the next three to five years, both the gas association's Lawrence and the Energy Department estimate.

Some companies — aided by their gas development, reduced demand, and the prospect of more normal winters — already feel the pressure easing.

In a survey last September, for example, Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. of Houston, a major interstate pipeline, predicted further curtailments of service this winter; but a company official said this week that curtailment probably will not be necessary after all.

Executive Vice President Jack Head said in an interview that new Texas Eastern gas fields were producing better than expected and the company was getting more gas from other pipelines whose demand has slackened. But Head said the company still did not need new users.

On the other hand, some utilities served by Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha, Neb., another major pipeline, were taking on new customers even though other utilities served by Northern must cut deliveries.

Robert Raasch, Northern's vice president for marketing, explained in an interview that this seeming contradiction resulted from the priority system required in gas distribution.

Ma Bell begins $300,000 job

Southwestern Bell began construction recently on a $300,000 cable project to increase the long distance capacity and improve maintenance between Big Spring and Luther.

Buried cable will replace the existing open wire cable which has reached full capacity, according to Manager Bob Hurt. "Customers will have more reliable telephone service since the cables will be subject to less damage after the project is completed."

The telephone cables no longer will be subject to high winds, snow and ice damage which will also improve our maintenance cost.

A few Big Spring motorists may experience a slight inconvenience along Fourth Street where some of the entrances are under construction," Hurt said. The project is scheduled to be completed by December, 1978.

Salvation Army doll display planned here

The Salvation Army will display a selected group of the dolls that have been dressed by the many groups and individuals for their Christmas toy shop on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Dec. 15-17.

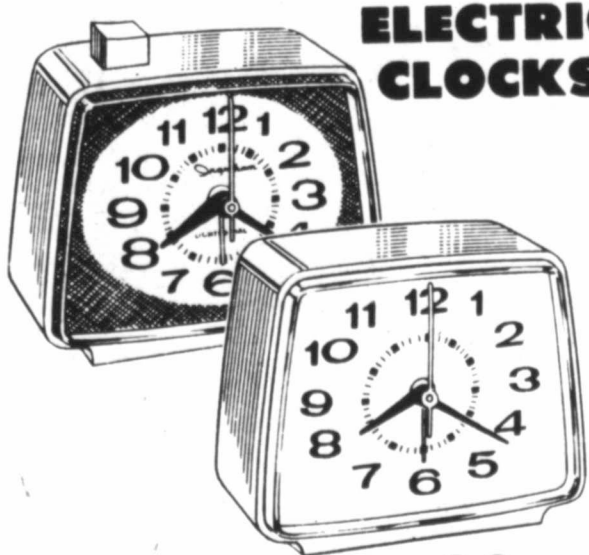

The display will be set up in Prager's Mens Store window during that weekend. The public is invited to go by and see the beautiful dolls.

There are still about four dozen dolls to be returned by the doll dressers. These should be turned in before Dec. 12, so they can be used in the display.

T. Cullen Davis trial continues

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Thurs., Dec. 7, 1978

11-A

Witness to deny involvement

HOUSTON (AP) — A reluctant witness goes back on the stand today to openly deny involvement in an alleged conspiracy to frame Fort Worth industrialist Cullen Davis.

Pat Burleson, 42, a lean, mop-topped karate instructor, punched several apparent holes in the defense conspiracy theory Wednesday but was cut short before issuing a flat personal denial.

Prosecutors said he would do so when he returned for state cross-examination in the murder-for-hire trial of the millionaire oil heir.

Burleson then once again faced questioning by lead defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

Davis, 45, is accused of plotting the contract killing of his divorce judge and others.

His attorneys contend the defendant's estranged wife Priscilla was one link in a conspiratorial triangle that included Burleson and FBI informant David McCrory.

Lawyers for Davis felt compelled to summon Burleson and Mrs. Davis as witnesses and were fully aware both were hostile and potentially damaging to the defense theory.

They were right.

Burleson, 42, the second defense witness, admitted making three visits to the Davis mansion to talk with Priscilla during the critical five days preceding Davis' arrest Aug. 20.

But he insisted he did not discuss the unfolding drama with her.

He said he also met daily with McCrory after his friend telephoned him at home early in the morning of Aug. 16 and arranged their pivotal meeting.

"He related to me that he was in a lot of trouble, that he was working for a company owned by Davis and that his problems were related to Cullen Davis," Burleson testified.

Burleson said he told McCrory he did not want to know the nature of the involvement "because I was sick and tired of his problems with Cullen Davis."

He said McCrory was "scared totally to death" and there was a "pallor on his face, a rash on his hand and he was shaking."

McCrory "hung his head" when Burleson told him he did not want to know the specifics, the witness said.

"He said he was in trouble ... and he didn't know how he was going to get out of it," Burleson testified.

Burleson said it was at McCrory's request that he put McCrory in touch with an acquaintance of his own, FBI agent Ron Jannings. Burleson testified that he telephoned Jannings and "told him a man would like to talk to him that evening ... he said he would."

The spinoff from that meeting took McCrory into two tape recorded encounters with Davis in which Davis discussed the murder charges and allegedly shelled out $25,000 in the mistaken belief that the judge had been killed by a professional hit man.

The defense tried but failed Wednesday to establish a romantic link between Burleson and Mrs. Davis.

"Did you ever have a relationship with Pat Burleson that was more than platonic?" Haynes asked Mrs. Davis during a brief interlude between his questioning of the karate instructor.

Prosecutors angrily protested the question, posed outside the presence of the jury, and trial Judge Wallace Moore ruled she need not answer.

Mexican air force DC-6 plane crashes

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A Mexican air force DC-6 which exploded in a "red ball of fire" and crashed into a dike on the Missouri River, killing all seven persons aboard, had spent three days under repair and was leaking oil shortly before takeoff, airport witnesses said.

The bodies of five men and two women, identified as crew members, were recovered from the burned wreckage, acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan said.

Witnesses said the four-engine plane exploded about 50 feet above the ground, slammed into the dike, flipped over and landed in flames just after taking off from Eppley Airfield about 5:25 p.m. Wednesday.

Mike Steiner, an employee of a commercial charter company, said the plane did not appear to be in trouble when he "heard a loud boom and saw a huge red ball of fire."

Lt. Col. Sanchez Ortiz of Mexico City said he spoke with members of the crew by telephone Monday and they told him cold weather had caused condensation in the engines. He said workmen apparently had been unable to dry the engines out.

An airport employee, who was not further identified, told reporters the crew worked for several hours Wednesday before they could get the engines started. He said oil was leaking from at least one engine.

Omaha Public Safety Director Bill McDonnell confirmed the crew made a last-minute repair on one engine before the craft took off for San Antonio, Texas.

Snow, ice and temperatures hovering near zero hampered efforts by firefighters to extinguish the burning aircraft until three hours after the crash.

Ortiz, a Mexican air force spokesman, identified the dead as Capt. Luis Jauregui Ramos, Lt. Samuel Pedroza Cardenas, Sgt. Luis Barabosa, Sgt. Sergio Ojeda, Sgt. Luis Dominguez and flight attendants Esther Romo Soto and Blanca Silva.

Ortiz said the seven were members of the Mexican air force, which had flown the plane to Nebraska for a government-owned agricultural company, Compania Agricola Mexicana.

He said the government would dispatch a plane to Omaha Thursday to carry the bodies back to Mexico City.

The four-engine aircraft, once used as a press plane for Mexico's president, arrived in Omaha last Thursday, bringing about 45 members of a Mexican agricultural delegation for a tour of irrigation manufacturing plants.

Most of the delegates returned home last weekend after three members were arrested in a prostitution-related incident at the Omaha Hilton Hotel. The plane's mechanical troubles forced the delegates to return to Mexico by a commercial flight, the airport employee said.

It was the worst plane crash in Omaha since 17 persons were killed at the airport in 1944.

Voter turnout in Spain surprising to officials

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Some 60 percent of Spain's eligible voters approved their first democratic constitution in 42 years but about a third abstained, almost complete returns showed today.

Unofficial sources blamed rising terrorism, unemployment and inflation for the unexpected lack of interest Wednesday in supporting the new constitution.

With 96 percent of the votes tabulated, the national election center said 87.8 percent of the voters approved the constitution, 7.9 percent voted "no" and 3.5 percent left blank ballots.

About two per cent of the votes were voided, the election center said.

The turnout, as determined with almost all the votes in, was 67.6 percent of the nation's 26 million voters.

This compared to the 75-80 percent predicted by the government and 78 percent two years ago when Spaniards overwhelmingly endorsed their first democratic reforms after the longtime rule of rightist dictator Gen. Francisco Franco.

The widespread abstention indicated that rightist groups, which got only 10 percent of the seats in parliamentary elections 18 months ago, had been successful in convincing some of the voters that the constitution was too leftist.

However, the heaviest abstention was in the violence-torn Basque region, where some polling stations reportedly had only a few dozen voters show up because of threats of reprisal from Basque guerrillas.

The separatists had urged a boycott of the referendum because the constitution granted the northern Basque country, as well as 12 other ethnic areas, only limited autonomy.

Some voters in the Basque region hid their faces from photographers, apparently fearing reprisals from the Basque guerrilla group ETA, which assassinated three policemen Tuesday.

Policemen in bulletproof vests held submachine guns at the ready at the funeral of one of the officers in the Basque capital of San Sebastian, but there were no incidents there or elsewhere.

Socialists in other parts of northern Spain got police to take Franco's picture off walls in polling places, saying they could intimidate voters.

Francisco's widow also voted. So did Dolores Ibarruri, the Pasionara of the 1936-39 Spanish Civil War who delivered fiery speeches against Franco and returned from exile in Russia after the dictator died three years ago.

King Juan Carlos was heavily guarded as he and his wife, Greek-born Queen Sofia, voted early in the capital. Centrist Premier Adolfo Suarez, the king's architect for reform, also voted early.

The new constitution — passed by Suarez's Center Party as well as the socialists, communists and conservatives in Spain' first freely-elected Parliament, automatically throws out Franco's laws.

Former resident of Ballinger found hanged in Plainview jail

PLAINVIEW — John Escobar, 39, who was found hanged in the Plainview jail here Saturday afternoon, is a former resident of Ballinger.

NEED A HELPING HAND?

Look in the Who's Who Escobar's body was discovered by Police Lt. Dennis Harkins and Officer David Warren a few hours after he had been charged with "public intoxication." Escobar was hanged in his cell with his shirt tied around his neck.

Two men who occupied the cell with the victim said they were asleep when Escobar carried out his act.

The body was returned to Ballinger for last rites and burial.

LONDA HENRY
... loves to paint

Mrs. Henry displaying paintings at Chamber

By MARJ CARPENTER
Mrs. Wayne (Londa) Henry is artist of the month for December with her paintings on display at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Londa paints because she enjoys it and loves to do landscapes and western scenes as well as floral paintings and still life.

She began to paint about ten years ago. She claims "I haven't had as much time for it as I would like." This could be because Londa has been busy raising three children, Shawna, 18, Greg, 17, and Curt, 8. She also works as secretary at her husband's insurance office.

The former Londa Coker, she also does a lot of church work at the First Baptist Church. They moved back here from Midland about 3½ years ago after spending 1½ years there. "Big Spring is home," Londa said here this week.

She uses both watercolor and oil as her media and some gouache paintings. She takes lessons from Mrs. Virginia L. Whitten.

She attended workshops featuring Dr. Paul Milosavitch of Lubbock and Warren Culler of the Hill Country. She also has attended lecture demonstrations by lecturers such as Leo Smith and J.D. Keel Jr.

But for Londa, art is really something to enjoy and to "capture the beauty of a moment."

HAPPY ENDING — Dejected 4-year-old Grover Cleveland Johnson IV sat in the rain Monday beside one of 16 signs he put up in hopes of finding his lost puppy, Bootsie. The little pup apparently romped out of the yard after a group of children and got lost Saturday. On Tuesday, she was returned by a man who refused a reward. "We have our Christmas now," Ilona Johnson, Grover's mother, said.

HEW draws negative reactions

The announcement by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that the same amount of money per capita must be spent on women's sports as on men's sports has brought strong negative reaction from several factions of the collegiate sports world. The decision exempting football from the regulations was accepted gladly by most schools, however. In attempting to clarify the procedures of compliance with Title IX, the 1972 law outlawing sex discrimination on college campuses, HEW Secretary

Joseph A. Califano Jr. announced the policy interpretation. Football was given "special consideration" and, in essence, excluded from the equal spending per capita decision.

Susan Hall, coordinator of women's athletics at Oklahoma State, felt the announcement was much ado about nothing.

"It looks nice on paper," Hall said, "but when you get to the nitty-gritty, we want to survive."

Hall said she felt equalizing dollars spent on men's and women's sports could cause a cut in athletic programs for both sexes.

"Even as adamant as I am on equality of sports, the matching dollar ruling puts me in a state of shock," she said.

Hall added that equalization of money for scholarships and recruiting is fair because "it costs a female athlete as much money to go to school as a male athlete."

Dean Pryor, athletic director at Arkansas State, thought his school would be hurt by the decision but "maybe not as bad as the Ohio States and Michigans." "My first reaction is that I don't know where we're going to fund it. We figure that next year, for our program to be in line with Title IX, we'll probably have to double our expenditures in women's athletics."

Baseball owners consider reconstruction

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Major league baseball club owners meet today to consider the restructuring of baseball to three division leagues with double-tiered playoffs.

And, as has often been the case, the American League appears to be for the new system, while at least three National League clubs oppose giving the grand old game a brand new look.

It takes a three-quarters majority of the 14 team American League and a unanimous National League approval to adopt the system proposed by a 10 man reorganization committee. One National executive said his league might vote to change to a majority consent, but added, "it takes a unanimous vote to make the change."

The owners held an informal discussion meeting Wednesday and listened to the report on this radical restructuring of the game. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn termed the report positive.

Frank Cashen of Baltimore and Joe L. Brown, former Pittsburgh general manager, presented the committee's findings on the revolutionary plan.

EAST: New York, Boston, Baltimore and Toronto.

CENTRAL: Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and Milwaukee. WEST: Kansas City, California, Seattle, Minnesota, Texas and Oakland.

National League — EAST: Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Montreal and New York.

CENTRAL: Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis and Atlanta. WEST: Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and Houston.

Lucchesi-Randle trial begins

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A circuit court trial is under way in Orlando on a damage suit brought by former Manager Frank Lucchesi of the Texas Rangers against infielder Lenny Randle as a result of a spring training altercation. Lucchesi is suing Randle, formerly a Ranger, for what he says was an unprovoked attack by Randle in March 1977 just prior to an exhibition game.

The trial began Tuesday when Circuit Judge Bernard C. Muszynski refused to grant a motion by Randle for a postponement. Randle said he had just fired his lawyer, but the judge said that was not grounds for a delay.

Randle finally came up with two new lawyers. With the judge and jury in place and waiting, the baseball player breezed into the courtroom during the afternoon session with Orlando attorneys J. Cheney Mason and Donald A. Lykkekab. The infielder was carrying a cardboard box of papers and files.

Randle would not say why he fired lawyer E. Thom Rumberger, who worked on the case about a year.

Steers bomb Sweetwater

SNYDER — The Big Spring Steers raced to a 36-17 halftime advantage and then eased on to 66-45 victory over the Sweetwater Mustangs in the first round of the Canyon Tournament in Snyder Thursday morning.

The Steers, who have lost three games this year due to poor free throw shooting, reversed the trend this morning by sinking 20 of 25 shots from the charity stripe.

Mark Poss led the Steer offensive charge with 29 points. Ysa Rubio and James Magers chipped in with 12 and nine points, respectively.

Coach Tommy Collins was pleased with his squad's performance. "I was very proud of the way we played this morning I thought the key to the game was that we played outstanding defense in the first half."

Big Spring will meet the winner of this afternoon's Snyder-Graham game tomorrow night at 7:30 in second round action.

Hangin' Out by Nathan Poss

"After playing 16 years, getting more than 3,000 hits and hitting in 44 straight games, I think I finally have reached the No. 1 position in my profession. I am the best player in the world. I want to be paid like it." — Pete Rose, December 5, 1978.

Dear Pete: I'm sorry, Pete, I have to disagree with you, but I don't think you're the best in the world. In fact, I don't think you ever were. In your younger days, there were Aaron, Mantle and Mays that performed better. More recently, the notable achievements of Ron Guidry, Jim Rice and Reggie Jackson have outshone your efforts. If they had an award for the longevity of production, you might be considered the best. It's not that I don't respect your abilities and effort, I just think the quote about being the best was a little propaganda to justify your $800,000 a year salary.

But that's cool. There's no doubt that your 44-game hitting streak this past year was worth in excess of $800,000 extra dollars at the attendance gate. This is America, and you'd be a fool to not take advantage of a few rich owners that are willing to gamble that your popularity at the gates and performance over the next four years will be worth 3.2 million dollars.

In defense of yourself, you also said: "I want to make them (Phillies) tired just watching me play. Schmidt, Bowa, Luzinski, McBride, Maddow. I want to develop in them a winning attitude." A winning attitude? The Phillies have only won the last three National League East titles. Sure, they haven't won in the playoffs, but I wouldn't exactly call them losers. And where have the Reds been the last two years?

Good luck, Pete. But if you get a phone call when the Phillies don't make the playoffs this year, you'll know it's me.

Sincerely yours

Charles O. (Tightwad) Finley

P.S. I signed Sparky for peanuts today.

Former Big Spring resident Virginia Swift, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E.V. Swift, recently was honored with one of the top awards for female athletes in the world.

Virginia, who resided in Big Spring from 1952 to 1966, was voted unanimously by the Women's Sports Museum the Women's sports SUPERSTAR award of 1978. Other nominees include the likes of Chris Evert, Tracy Austin, Nancy Lopez, Nancy Decker, and many others.

This is the first time this award has been given, and will hence forth be given once each year. Those voting on the award felt that Virginia's outstanding record in the women's pentathlon world competition merited this award as the outstanding female athlete of the year.

An interesting note which shows the caliber and conditioning of the Dallas Cowboys in the 1978 season. In the first quarter of their games, the Cowboys have been outscored 76-37. In the last three quarters of their games, the Dallas crew has outscored the opposition by a count of 286-108.

Three former District 5-AAAA performers were honored on the first three AP-All American teams. They were first team offensive tackle Kevin Clark of Nebraska, who played at Odessa high; second team linebacker Daryl Hunt of Oklahoma, who played at Permian; and third team tight end Junior Miller of Nebraska, who played at Midland Lee.

For any of you that think you won't grow after high school, take a second look at Clark. At the recent meeting to select All-District players, the personable Odessa High boss, Dick Winder, said that Clark was 6'2" and 185 as a high school senior. (Clark is now 6'4" and 270). Everyone looked on as if they didn't believe it, including me. One coach echoed the group's thoughts when he said: "Aw, bleep, Dick, you expect me to believe that." Winder swore it was the truth.

I have my own theory on how Clark grew that much, but it definitely shows that it can be done.

COACHING IN THE PROS — Candace Klinzing, 30, will direct the Milwaukee Does as head coach when they face the Chicago Hustle Saturday in Milwaukee in the first women's professional basketball game ever played in the country. Klinzing from Solon Springs, Wis. was hired barely six weeks ago. She promises a good show for the fans and feels the women's professional game could be compared with the college men's.

YOUNG IDEAS

By DICK YOUNG

I talked to Joe Paterno about the Giants' job. He didn't say no and he didn't say yes. He said more than yes, which figures. He also said a lot of interesting things, like he "darned near" took the Giants' coaching job in 1974 when they wound up giving it to Bill Arnsparger, and stuff like that.

When you sift out the yeses and nos and may bes, it comes down to this: money won't get Joe Paterno to leave Penn State. Not money alone. Money counts. Money always counts, but it will have to be something more convincing Money didn't do last time.

"I have been a Giant fan all my life," said Joe Paterno, who grew up in Brooklyn. He died two Sundays ago, like the rest of the Giant fans.

That's where Andy Robustelli has to approach him. He must aim at Joe Paterno's love for the Giants, his living and dying with the Giants.

"We need you, Joe." That's what Andy Robustelli must say, and it's the truth. God how they need him.

Such a plea is how the Giants got Andy Robustelli to come back to football five years ago. Got him to tackle the job of rebuilding the Giants' front office when he wasn't too crazy about leaving his travel business. Robustelli finally consented because an old Giant player couldn't ignore a distress call. Perhaps, neither can an old Giant fan.

At first, Andy Robustelli, or Wellington Mara, or whoever it is that approaches Joe Paterno, will hear

Paterno on Giants' job:

Idea is fascinating something like this: "I really have no interest in leaving Penn State." That's what I heard, at first.

Then, as you talk on with Joe Paterno, you hear little phrases like "the idea is fascinating," and "I can't positively say Penn State is where I will be the rest of my life." And then, the biggie:

"I have said there are only a couple of clubs I'd consider, and the Giants are one of them. I've often wondered what it would be like. There's just enough kid in me."

Let's pursue a few of these things. The offer in 1974, when they were looking for a replacement for Alex Webster.

"They made it so interesting financially, and other ways, I darned near took it," said Joe Paterno.

Other ways?

"Complete control of the football operation," he said, "and some stock in the club. I was kinda flattered by it."

Then why the turnaround?

"I didn't think it was what I wanted. When it came down to the clutch. I didn't want to give up what we have here. I am so happy with what I am doing; so happy with Penn State. My family is so happy."

That is the stiff competition the Giants face in their unrelenting quest to land Joe Paterno. They must offer him an emotional gratification to equal what he derives from the campus at University Park. How to make him share their need? It is not an easy prospect.

There is a triteness that goes: When a man achieves a pinnacle of success in his field he looks around for new challenges.

Not Joe Paterno. "I have never felt that just winning is all there is. Whether we win or lose this game," he says of his expected Sugar Bowl date with Alabama to determine the National Championship, "wouldn't make me want to give up what we have here."

He looks not for a new challenge. But to be wanted, to be needed, that is something else. The Giants will make a change at season's end. It is so easy to look at Joe Paterno and see Vince Lombardi. He is a straight arrow, a leader, a man who could walk off a football field and into a State house.

How do I know the Giants are going to make a change? I know because I know, that's all. Some people are faked out by the fact that the Giants a week ago fired Bob Gibson, No. 2 coach, instead of firing the No. 1 coach, John McVay. Others are impressed by the niceties some Giant players have to say about McVay.

I asked Paterno what his contract status is at Penn State and was surprised to hear he doesn't have a contract. He operates on tenure, as a professor of the university.

Then he can walk away anytime he pleases?

"I can walk away anytime I want, and I can stay as long as I want," he said.

"And right now you want to stay."

"That's right."

I paused, and he resumed. "I can't positively say Penn State is where I will be the rest of my life. If tomorrow, say, Penn State were to change its policy about football..."

NBA Roundup

By the Associated Press

As the National Basketball Association's premier guard, Jerry West was known as "Mr. Clutch" for his penchant for hitting the crucial shot late in the game. If West had been playing for the Los Angeles Lakers instead of coaching them Wednesday night, his team might have left San Antonio as winners.

But "Mr. Clutch" in the Spurs' 112-111 victory over the Lakers was San Antonio's George Gervin. The "Iceman," as Gervin is nicknamed, hit a layup with one second remaining to boost the Spurs past Los Angeles.

Just seconds before, the Lakers committed the type of unparadigmatic sin West rarely made — they got greedy, tried to score a clinching basket and turned the ball over.

"This was one of the best games we've played in a long time," said West, "and that play was one of the worst I've ever seen."

The play West mentioned occurred after his club took a 111-110 lead with 13 seconds left on a slam dunk by Kenny Carr. As Gervin brought the ball upcourt, it was stolen by Norm Nixon, who had only to hold onto it and run out the clock. Instead, Nixon passed to Lou Hudson who, not expecting the ball, traveled with it.

San Antonio's Mark Olberding then spotted Gervin breaking for the basket "and I just threw the ball under (Kareem) Abdul-Jabbar's arm," Gervin grabbed it and put it home.

Gervin led the Spurs, who played without star forward Larry Kenon, with 27 points. Nixon matched his career high with 28 to pace Los Angeles.

Celtics 117, Clippers 111

San Diego made its first trip to Boston since former Celtic owner Irv Levin, now the Clippers' boss, traded franchises with John Y. Brown, now the Celtics' owner. Player-coach Dave Cowens contributed 22 points and Marvin Barnes had 20 for Boston, but it was ailing forward Cornbread Maxwell who made the difference.

Maxwell scored 16 points, grabbed five rebounds and had three assists in 28 minutes.

76 ers 114, Kings 106

Bobby Jones had 13 points and five rebounds in the third quarter as Philadelphia rallied from a 14-point deficit. Julius Erving, top scorer for the Sixers with 27, had 11 in the third period.

Otis Birdsong scored 26 points and Sam Lacey had 14 assists for the Kings, who had a three-game winning streak snapped.

Bullets 101, Rockets

Washington won its 11th game in the last 12 by overcoming a nine-point deficit in the last quarter. Kevin Grevey led the Bullets with 25 points while Moses Malone had 29 points and 20 rebounds for Houston.

Knights 92, Pacers 84

Van Issel, who finished with 22 points, led the Pacers. McGinnis had a game-high 27 points without an injured David Thompson for the second game in a row.

Suns 136, Hawks 109

Phoenix blew open the game by outscoring Atlanta 27-10 in the third quarter, shooting 71 percent from the field at that stanza to just 32 percent for the Hawks. Walter Davis had 25 points for Phoenix.

Warriors 118, Bucks 111

Marques Johnson's career-high of 38 points on 16 for 23 field-goal shooting, wasn't enough for the Bucks as Golden State rookie Wayne Cooper scored 22 points and collected 14 rebounds in his first chance for extended playing time in the NBA.

RICE UNIVERSITY wide receiver David Houser (17) catches a 35-yard touchdown pass earlier in the year against Texas A&M. Houser, who ended his college career as the second leading pass receiver in SWC history, was honored on the All-SWC football team by Mediasports, who produces "Football, Southwest Conference Style."

Reds hurt Pete's pride

CINCINNATI (AP) — Deciding to leave the Cincinnati Reds was difficult enough for Pete Rose. Keeping his new team a secret was another matter.

Son Pete, 9, "almost let the cat out of the bag" twice, according to his mother Karolyn.

Rose said Tuesday that he would join the Philadelphia Phillies for a reported $3.2 million over four years — the highest salary in sports.

Pete's first slip came when he mentioned to Karolyn's brother, a Cincinnati policeman, that the family would be in Clearwater, Fla., for spring training next March.

"That was our closest call," said Karolyn. She believes hurt pride played more of a role in her husband's leaving the Reds than the lure of big money.

"Things they (Reds management) said to him have been eating at him in his heart for years. A man can only be hurt so long," she said Wednesday in an interview with The Associated Press.

"He's got a lot of pride. He took a lot of cheap shots from them," she said.

Iowa State fans showing disinterest

AMES, Iowa (AP) — It appears Iowa State football fans are not that interested in traveling to Birmingham, Ala., for the Cyclones' Dec. 20 appearance in the Hall of Fame Bowl against Texas A&M.

The Iowa State ticket office still has about 4,300 of its original allocation of 5,300 tickets, according to ticket manager Dick Mathias. Mathias said that does not give the true picture because there are several travel agencies selling package deals and they have not yet purchased their tickets.

But John "Skip" Lawson, sales manager for Passport Travel in Ames, said, "There's not anywhere near the interest there was a year ago. We certainly thought it would be greater than it is."

UH, Aggies dominate Mediasports All-SWC

The Houston Cougars and the Texas A&M Aggies each placed five players on the 1978 Mediasports All-Southwest Conference Team.

Mediasports, producers of "Football, Southwest Conference Style," the official weekly Southwest Conference highlight show, will spotlight the team on this week's show, Saturday, December 2.

Quarterback Danny Davis leads the Houston aggregation which includes Center Chuck Brown, Offensive Guard Dennis Greenawald, Defensive Lineman Hosea Taylor and Linebacker David Hodge.

Running Back Curtis Dickey, Offensive Tackle Cody Risien, Tight End Russell Mikesda, Placekicker Tony Franklin and Defensive Lineman Jacob Green made the lineup from Texas A&M.

Texas and Arkansas each had four players on the team. Defensive Backs Johnnie Johnson and Glenn Blackwood, Defensive Lineman Steve McMichael and Punter Russell Erxleben represent Texas while Running Back Ben Cowins, Defensive Lineman Dan Hampton, Offensive Tackle Greg Kolenda and Defensive Back Vaughn Lusby came from Arkansas.

SWC Leading Receiver Emanuel Tolbert, Defensive Back David Hill and Kick Returner D.K. Perry represent SMU, while Baylor sports Linebacker Mike Singletary and Offensive Guard David Sledge.

The Conference's Leading Rusher, James Hadnot of Texas Tech, Rice Receiver David Houser and TCU Defensive Lineman Marshall Harris round out the squad.

Singletary and Taylor are the only sophomores to make the team along with 16 seniors and 8 juniors.

Young Homemakers host first sipping social

Enlarging on creative skills in the kitchen is one of the first projects that the new Big Spring Chapter of Young Homemakers of Texas has undertaken.

Barely three months old, the club now consists of 15 members — enough to compile an informal recipe book or to organize a Christmas Tasting Tea. They've elected to do both.

The group will meet at 7:30 tonight at the Big Spring High School Home Economics Living Room to trade and taste each other's recipes. They invite anyone who may be interested in finding out more about the club to join them.

Young Homemakers is a national organization created exclusively for educational purposes with particular emphasis on homemaking. Eligible for membership is any woman not enrolled in high school and not over 35 years of age.

Membership is not limited to full-time homemakers. Members may be single or married, and may be employed part-time or full-time outside of the home.

The local chapter meets at 7:30 p.m. the first Thursday of each month at the home economics living room. The group is still in the process of organizing itself and welcomes ideas for programs and projects from new members.

Virginia Martin, a homemaking teacher at the high school, serves as chapter advisor of the group and is assisted by Fern Alexander, head of the high school's economics department, and Wanda Lehman, homemaking teacher and assistant advisor of the Big Spring Young Homemakers of Texas.

The first slate of officers for the club includes Luan Abernathy, president; Sherri Key, vice president; Carol Phillips, secretary; Teresa Welch, treasurer; and Sally Turner, reporter.

The club offers a way for all local young homemakers to increase their knowledge and skills in the many facets of homemaking including home improvement and management, child care and guidance in parenting, money management and consumer spending, meal planning and preparation, and civic responsibilities.

It also offers an opportunity to meet and befriend other young women who share similar interests.

As one of their first projects and as a highlight of tonight's Christmas Tasting Tea, the members have pooled their favorite recipes and compiled them into members' holiday cookbooks to be distributed at the tea.

And since good cooks are often the result of such sharing, they've elected to pass some of those recipes on to our readers.

Sherri Key's MICROWAVE PEANUT BRITTLE

1 cup salted peanuts
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon butter or margarine

Return to oven and microwave about 1 minute and 30 seconds or until peanuts are light brown and syrup is very hot. Add baking soda and gently stir until light and foamy.

Pour into lightly greased cooking sheet. Let cool 1 hour. Break into small pieces and store in airtight container. Yield: about 1 pound.

Andra Latham's CHEESE PASTRY STICKS

EXPANDING KITCHEN TALENTS by pooling recipes and know-how is one of the current projects of the newly organized local chapter of Young Homemakers of Texas. The members have put their recipe files together to compile a recipe book which will be distributed among themselves at tonight's Christmas Tasting Tea. Sharing a sample of one of those recipes are, left, Sherri Key, chapter vice president, and Andra Latham. They invite other young homemakers to join them in their monthly meetings and self-improvement activities.

A lovely older custom that needs a revival is that of bringing your hostess a gift. "From my kitchen to yours." The occasion? You may be just visiting or you may want to appreciate an especially nice invitation in the past or present.

Odessa Junior League installs Mrs. Graves

Former resident nets presidency

Mrs. Jerry Graves has been installed as the new president of the Junior League of Odessa.

A native of Big Spring, Mrs. Graves graduated from Big Spring High School and attended Texas Christian University. She later received her bachelor of science degree in Elementary Education from the University of Houston. After moving to Odessa in 1961, she taught at Gonzales Elementary School.

Mrs. Graves' West Texas heritage dates back to her grandfather, the late Dr. G.S. True. One of the pioneers of the Big Spring area, Dr. True was one of the first doctors to settle in Big Spring around 1900. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Z.M. Boykin, continue to reside in Big Spring.

As a community conscious individual, Mrs. Graves has been actively involved in various organizations. She feels that one of the most satisfying aspects of volunteer groups is the association one has with people.

As well as spending ten years in the Junior League, she has also been active in the Odessa Youth Shelter, Permian Playhouse, Permian High School Booster Club, American Association of University Women and as a Sunday School teacher in the Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord.

Mrs. Graves resides with her husband Jerry, a stockbroker with Shearson, Hayden and Stone, and their two children, Martin, 17, is a senior at Permian High School and a member of the varsity football team. Lucinda, 13, attends Nimitz Junior High School and is a member of the girls' tennis team.

Although community activity is stimulating, Mrs. Graves feels that nothing is as rewarding as family involvement. She and her husband spend time with their children playing tennis and supporting their school activities.

In reference to the Junior League Mrs. Graves said "One of our goals for the year is to increase impact on the community. We plan to achieve this by continuing to support the establishment of the emergency shelter for abused and neglected children, by providing cultural and educational opportunities in the community, and by presenting the Junior League concept through public information."

When boys have babies...

By Robert Wallace Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 16 and have a 17-year-old brother. I'll make this letter short. He can go anywhere he wants with whoever he wants. Me — I'm watched like a hawk.

I've discussed this "problem" with my school counselor, my priest, and my parents and each offers a different answer.

Please give me your thoughts. Be honest and brief. — Carla, Piqua, Ohio

Carla: Our society places a stigma on those who are unwed and pregnant. Boys just don't qualify.

Dr. Wallace: Every Christmas vacation our family goes skiing in Utah and I wind up freezing my family off. I always wear heavy clothes but it doesn't seem to work. I know this is an unusual request, but any useful tip will be "warmly" accepted. — Jan, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Jan: The best way to keep warm is to wear layers of loose clothing rather than large bulky clothes. It works because the air trapped in between keeps body heat in, cold out.

Always wear a hat because heat can escape through the head. Mittens are warmer than gloves.

Finally, after using good common sense, wear two pairs of socks, a cotton pair under a pair of woolies.

Dr. Wallace: I am considered a good baby-sitter. I'm experienced, considerate and conscientious. Please tell me how much you think I should be paid. I'm 16 years old. — Marge, Gary, Ind. P.S. I've received as little as 35 cents per hour.

Marge: I believe baby sitters should be paid $1 per hour before midnight and $1.50 after midnight if baby sitting for one child. Add 25 cents an hour for each additional child.

Naturally, snacks and soft drinks are to be included.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

Revolt of the 'silent majority' discussed

"Citizens in Revolt" and a possible "Co-op Way to Health" were presented to members of the Business and Professional Women's Club at their monthly dinner-program meeting Nov. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Brass Nail.

Kip Bracy, president, presided and introduced Hozelle Dohoney, legislative chairman and moderator of a panel of two, Mrs. A.G. Eitzen, and Mrs. Bert Affleck on the above subjects.

They discussed the recent activism of the "silent majority" who Ms. Dohoney described as soft spoken Americans, gentle and in their early thirties; they never went to college, burned flags or marched. In the last few years they have become activists, however, which she said was brought on by the mid-70's greed, government arrogance and a society that makes the individual feel invisible and rejected.

The first citizens organization, she said, was Massachusetts Fair Share organized in 1975 with government cutbacks in state services, layoffs and increased hardships for many states.

Fair Share organized neighborhoods throughout the state and won some local victories over street repairs, housing, rehabilitation, playgrounds and schools. They failed in their effort to reform the utility rates structure.

As a result of their fight against delinquent taxes of huge corporations and pressure brought to bear, the mayor of Boston posted pictures of the "most wanted" tax delinquents on downtown bulletin boards. The state legislature forced the rebate of more than 50 million dollars to auto insurance holders.

Neighborhoods are being organized in other cities, and the citizens protest movement is expected to grow dramatically in the years ahead.

Mrs. Affleck gave a brief

Aid program having trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania firm has been "tentatively" chosen by Agriculture Department officials for federal help in developing a project to turn agricultural products into fuel.

But the program, authorized by Congress last year, is having trouble getting off the ground because most companies that have applied for aid do not meet the criteria specified.

The department's Commodity Credit Corp. board, in a regular meeting here this week, tentatively accepted — but did not give final approval — to an application by Enerco Inc., Langhorne, Pa., a spokesman said Wednesday.

But the board's spokesman, George E. Rippel, said more information and a further review of Enerco's proposal will have to be made before its application is approved.

The company proposes using mobile units to convert a wide range of forest, crop and sawmill wastes into gas, charcoal and combustible wood oil.

In the Food and Agriculture Act last year, Congress authorized USDA to help establish four pilot energy projects aimed at converting agricultural and forest products into industrial hydrocarbons and alcohols that could be used as fuel.

The law allows the department to guarantee loans — not to lend public money directly — of up to $15 million each for four such pilot projects in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

But the law also sets some hard criteria on the kinds of projects that can be assisted.

For example, no help will go to a project unless its total energy output exceeds the energy from fossil fuels used in converting the products to fuel items.

Other standards also were set by USDA to insure that projects are truly innovative before they can be approved for assistance.

Thirty applications for federal loan guarantees were received and reviewed by an evaluation committee which, in turn, recommended four to the CCC board for "particular" consideration. Those included Enerco, which asked for a loan guarantee of $6 million to help underwrite the $7.8 million investment.

The other three higher-priority applications that went to the board and their loan-guarantee requests:

—Ercro Systems Inc., Cambridge, Mass., which proposed a project at Houston, Texas, for converting rice hulls to "low-Btu" gas for burning in an associated rice mill boiler, $3 million.

—Holly Sugar Corp., Colorado Springs, Colo., for converting sugarbeet molasses and possibly other sugar and rice products and

AAM summit brings more dissension than decision

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The farmers of America proved one thing during a three-day conference on agricultural problems — they can't agree.

A National Farm Summit that ended Wednesday on the campus of Texas A&M University brought more dissension than it did decisions.

The conference was called to discuss the major problems facing American farmers, such as rising production costs, low farm income, and governmental regulations.

The sessions produced no final solutions, only a few suggestions, and disruptions by the American Agricultural Movement, a group of militant farmers demanding what they believe to be fair prices for their products.

Spokesmen for the Agricultural Council of America, sponsors of the meeting, said if all the farm movements could be united progress might be made in the years ahead.

E.L. Hatcher of Lamar, Colo., said, "We want to hear the views of all segments of the farm industry. But perhaps the actions by the American Agricultural Movement were somewhat out of line this time. Some of the best things we heard have come from the AAM and may have dramatized our problems. But I think it can be overcome."

The AAM staged a rally on the campus of Texas A&M University, site of the conference, and crashed the seminars without paying the $90 registration fees. Spokesmen for that organization said the solutions to farm problems offered at the conference were "hogwash and the opinions of egghead experts and pointed-headed intellectuals."

The AAM demonstrations overshadowed the reports made by special task forces that had been assigned to study various farm problems.

In a final presentation, Dr. John Kramer, associate dean of Georgetown University School of Law, recognized the influence of the militant farmers by saying, "The old-line, established farm organizations are going to have to be willing to work with the new groups, however brash their tactics may be."

During the conference, the AAM supporters staged one rally and brought some 75 vehicles onto the campus of the university. The vehicles included several tractors, which have become a symbol of the farmer protest movement, and 25 trucks loaded with grain from Colorado and Wyoming.

The grain later was hauled to the Port of Houston and stored in public facilities for sale to farm markets. Port officials said the grain was of high quality and of the type that could be sold easily to foreign markets.

The farmers had trucked

Ma Bell's tax charge practice suit lost by Midland officials

AUSTIN — Midland County officials have apparently lost their bid to be exempt from paying the telephone company for the tax the county in turn pays to the City of Midland.

Southwestern Bell's practice of charging other governmental bodies for taxes the telephone company pays cities has been supported in a legal opinion issued by the State Attorney General's office.

David Heath of the Attorney General's opinion committee said Monday the so-called municipal tax the telephone company pays 488 cities for use of alleys and streets legitimately can be passed on in telephone bills to other government entities.

Midland County officials have been withholding payment of the tax since discovering a portion of their phone bill has been going for that purpose.

Harte-Hanks dividend rises

Harte-Hanks Communications, Inc. announced an increase in the dividend rate and declared the regular quarterly dividend at its board of directors meeting today in San Antonio, headquarters for the communications group.

The quarterly dividend was increased 12 percent to 14 cents per share from 12½ cents per share. The new rate will be reflected in the dividend payment to stockholders of record March 1, 1979, payable March 20, 1979.

Commenting on the announcement, Robert G. Marbut, president and chief executive officer, stated, "The 14 cents per share quarterly dividend is 24 percent greater than the March, 1978 rate. This is in keeping with our statement in December, 1977, that we will review the dividend rate annually in light of the company's earnings and other factors, with emphasis on continuity of increases. We decided on two increases during 1978. The first was an 11 percent increase in August in conjunction with the two-for-one stock split. This announced increase is the seventh in the past four years," he concluded.

The dividend payable on December 20, 1978, to stockholders of record on Dec. 1, 1978, will be the company's 32nd consecutive quarterly dividend.

Harte-Hanks Communications, Inc. owns and operates 28 daily newspapers and 58 non-daily publications in 37 markets. The New York Stock Exchange company also owns VHF network-affiliated television stations in San Antonio, Jacksonville, Fla., and Greensboro, N.C., and AM and FM stations in Phoenix, Arizona, Houston, Richmond, Va., and Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla. It also owns an AM station in Birmingham, Ala., and an FM station in Memphis, Tenn.

Johnny Rodriguez booked here Jan. 20

The Four-County Young Farmers Association have tentatively booked western-country singer Johnny Rodriguez for a Jan. 20 appearance in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the Howard College campus. Rodriguez appeared at The Brass Nail here several weeks ago and attracted a capacity house.

Carl McMillan, manager of the coliseum, also said he had been in contact with the management of the Harlem Globetrotter touring basketball team for an appearance in Mid-January.

KMID-TV Midland will stage another wrestling show in the coliseum the night of Dec. 28. Principals in the show have not yet been announced. The first such wrestling program in the coliseum attracted about 600 paying customers, according to McMillan.

The Big Spring Police Association is working on a deal which would bring Marty Robbins and his Band here around April 1. Robbins is the Nashville singer who hit the best-seller list with his rendition of the song "El Paso."

Miss Anne Martin, 84, is back here visiting her niece Mrs. Betty Thomas. Miss Martin was county school superintendent in Howard County from 1935 to 1943.

But that's not the only thing she recalls about Howard County. She arrived here with her parents in 1908. "Dad was William Smith Martin," she recalled, "and we lived and farmed out near Fairview."

She attended the old Davis School which was at the corner of their farm. Then she went off to Abilene Christian College and soon took teacher certification tests to come back to Howard County and teach.

"My goodness, I taught all over the county," she recalls. "I taught at Highway, Fairview, Center Point, R-Bar, Bisco, Midway, Vealmoor, Ethel, Knott, and also out of the county at Brownfield, Grandfalls and O'Donnell," she added.

Later when she became county school superintendent, she was very familiar with the ins and outs of rural schools. "I drove the wheels of an old Chevrolet looking after the schools at Donations may be sent to the Ortega Family Fund at Coahoma State Bank. Clothing or other items may be taken to Rick's School Store across the street from Coahoma Elementary.

The children include a girl, 4, and boys, 6, 2 and 1. The father's pants size is 29 and 30 and his shirt is 14 and 15. The mother wears a 14 dress, according to Lions officials. The family lost all of their belongings except what they had in the kitchen.

ANNE MARTIN
laughs about the old days

Coahoma, Knott and For-san," she recalled.

"That money to run that car came out of my pocket too," she added, "and I made around $2200 a year."

She laughed and added, "I started out back in the old days at $60 a month and thought I was rich."

Later, she accepted a wartime job as a rent control official. "Oh boy, was I ever hated," she laughed. Later she went to Hawaii and lived where she was a secretary. I came back to California on the way to Texas and met a girlfriend there. I decided I liked Santa Barbara and stayed," she added.

Out in California, she didn't have the courses to change over her teaching certificate, so she began to work as a practical nurse. "I was the most impractical nurse you ever saw," she laughed. "But in my life, I always just saw what I had to do, accepted it and did it."

She laughed while her photograph was being made and quipped, "Did you know Lyndon Johnson was always photographed from just one side? Which is my best side?" she joked.

When asked how she came to Texas for the visit she said, "I flew in. I told them I was old and walked slow so they let me ride across the airport in a wheelchair. That was lots of fun," she recalled.

When asked if she happened to teach Dan Blocker, who later played Hoss Cartwright in the Bonanza series, while she was in O'Donnell, she stated, "If I did I didn't know it. He didn't have on his hat."

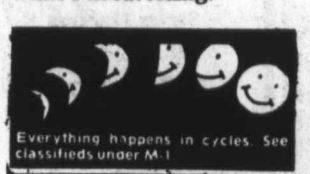

She laughed when asked about early discipline in the rural schools. "Some of those students were big and tough," she related. "I remember a boy kicking me in the stomach one time. When I finally got ahold of him I really whaled him good."

Miss Martin added, The little rural schools were wonderful but when we all got transportation to go to town, they became outdated."

"There's still a lot of folks around there that were some of my former pupils," she added, "and it's nice to come back and visit."

And it's nice to talk to somebody that is 84 years young with a great sense of humor, even though she's had no bed of roses as she held down tough jobs.

Good to have you out by the fence, Anne Martin, while I'm out riding.
