Montague County Youth Held For Shooting Father At Farm Residence

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

It was Talker's privilege a few days ago to hear an octogenarian in age but a youth in spirit emphasize the fact that life is of today and not of yesterday. One would expect an octogenarian to be reminiscent of the past but here was a man bringing all the forces of his experience and thought to the very day in which he lived and spoke.

What an inspiring thought it is that each new day brings its opportunity to live; that the dawn of each day can bring new hope; that we can profit by the experiences of the past to bring new living to the new day.

And if each day brings its new problems is it anything to be discouraged over? Think how uninteresting life would be if we could so stabilize our living that every problem and new situation could be met and solved without effort or thought. Our lives would then be so dull and uninteresting that we would wither and die. Welcome the problems of each new day, try to meet them but don't be too much discouraged if you fail to solve them fully. There will be another day tomorrow.

The actions of a bishop of the Methodist church in using funds of the church to protect his margins in the stock market are to be investigated by a committee from the general conference. Talker would ask for charity for the bishop. He has lately been in company with the Republicans among whom such practices are not condemned as witness the retention of the Republican national chairman after it has been shown he used lobby funds for the same purpose the bishop used them..

When a bishop steps aside from his ecclesiastical duties to take up politics and stock market operations bewildering things are likely to happen to him. What we would like to see the bishop do would be to acknowledge his error and be forgiven. The bishop just didn't belong in that company.

Despite cigaret advertisements and dieting it is estimated that last year's candy bill in this country was a billion dollars. Candy distribution in the United States flows through 450,000 retail outlets, says the new monthly "Food Distribution" and the nation's candy bill represents 3.6 per cent of every dollar spent for food. The public buys at news stands, ice cream parlors, drug stores, tobacco shops, restaurants, school stores, railroad stations, hotels, theater lobbies, groceries, amusement parks, ball parks, seashore resorts, circus concessions, pool rooms, shoe shine parlors, club, itinerant vendors—all are distributors of candy. Confectioneries, soft drink and ice cream parlors sell 58.3 per cent of the total amount annually. Drug stores sell 15.7 per cent, 5 and 10 cent stores, 9 per cent. Restaurants, groceries, delicatessens and tobacco shops, 4 per cent. Department stores 3.9 per cent.

And here are some facts and figures about the automobile industry as given out by the national automobile chamber of commerce:

There are now 5,677,500 motor vehicles on farms according to this annual review of motor transportation which has appeared each spring since 1919.

Fifty-seven per cent of the motor cars are owned in communities having less than 10,000 population.

Four million seven hundred thousand workers depend for their livelihood on motor transportation.

The average operating cost per mile of a five-passenger car is six and one-half cents, or one-third cents per mile per person.

On the 1929 market 2,800,000 vehicles replaced those going out of service.

The average life of an automobile is six and three-fourths years.

MAN BELIEVED NEAR DEATH FROM WOUND

Oscar Bradley, 18, Charged With Assault to Kill At Montague

GUN SHATTERS LEG

Bond for Accused Youth Delayed Pending Outcome of Injury

Special to The Record News

NOCONA, Texas, May 11.—Joe Bradley, well known Montague county farmer, is near death from a shotgun wound and his 18-year-old son, Oscar Bradley, is in jail on a charge of assault with intent to kill as the result of a dispute in which three generations of the Bradley family participated about noon Sunday.

Bradley's right leg was shattered just below the hip. Physicians held slight hope for his recovery. He is around 50 years old. The boy was lodged in the Montague county jail at Montague by City Marshal R. G. Watson, who made the arrest.

Aged Couple Present

The aged grandparents of the accused boy, both of them past 70, and several other members of the family were present at the time of the shooting. Young Bradley makes his home with the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Bradley, who have cared for him since babyhood. The father lives on an adjoining farm, five miles southwest of Nocona.

According to an account of the affair given to Marshal Watson, the father and other members of the family came to the W. O. Bradley place shortly before the shooting.

Fight Over Gun

A quarrel in which several members of the group took part ended when young Bradley is said to have run into the house for the gun. Witnesses told Watson that the father and son fought for control of the weapon before the shot was fired.

The injured man was cared for in the home of his parents, where the youth was later arrested. The young man was said to be in a near hysterical condition, claiming that the shot was fired in self-defense, but offering no detailed account of the affray.

No date for a preliminary hearing on the assault charges has been set and the fixing of bond is being delayed pending the outcome of the father's wounds.

Log, Mistaken For Rock, Bobs G. O. P. Leader Into Stream

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S CAMP, Rapidan, Va., May 11. (US)—President Hoover's week-end fishing party enjoyed considerable merriment this morning at the expense of Dr. Hubert Work, former chairman of the Republican national committee, who mistook a floating log in Rapidan creek for a solid rock, while attempting to pick his way across the stream.

Sputtering and drenched, he was dragged out of the water by other members of the party and throughout the remainder of the morning his clothes were flying in the breeze, drying.

The presidential party returned to Washington early tonight.

The president proved the expert fisherman of this week's party, being the only fisherman to take the legal limit of 20 trout from the Rapidan river.

Approximately 100 business and professional leaders of Oklahoma City avowedly intent upon "getting better acquainted with Texas" are scheduled to arrive in Wichita Falls by special train at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, according to M. E. O'Neil, chairman of the tour, and will remain in this city until early Tuesday morning.

The Oklahomans will be met at Waurika by J. S. Birdwell, president of the local chamber of commerce, and other members, and will be welcomed upon their arrival here by Judge A. H. Britain. Formal exchange of greetings will take place at the corner of Eighth and Scott, to which intersection the visiting party will parade immediately after arrival of their special train. Following the short talks, a band concert will be given, after which the Oklahoma City representatives will be conducted on a tour of the new Industrial Mart which was formally opened last Saturday night.

After their inspection of the Industrial Mart, according to plans announced Sunday, the visitors will spend the remainder of the afternoon calling "at will" upon local business houses. A group of Wichita Falls business men will be guests of the Oklahoma entourage at a dinner to be given on their train at 6:30 p. m., while all of the good-will trippers will be guests of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce at a dance to be given in the Wichita club Monday night.

Modern Mother Must Face 'Popular Disapproval,' Barron Tells Class

Child Bearing Today Greeted With "Great Social Frown," Speaker Tells 210 Kay Bible Students

"Motherhood has become an unpopular thing. The wife who would become a mother today has to face popular disapproval," John Daniel Barron told the 210 persons present at the meeting of the Kay Bible class Sunday morning.

"The idea has become prominent that a baby in the home is a blot on the escutcheon. The better classes just do not do it. This social disapproval of motherhood presents a very acute problem indeed."

Mr. Barron's talk was on the subject "The Increasing Problems of Motherhood." His address in full follows:

"A few obvious facts concerning motherhood will introduce us to our subject this morning, 'The Increasing Problems of Motherhood.' The human race is dependent upon motherhood for its physical existence. Motherhood is also the spiritual dynamo of the race. When motherhood is weakened, therefore, the entire super-structure called civilization is weakened proportionately. That is to say, then, problems that confront motherhood are of world wide significance.

"The mother is the soul of the home. The home is the fundamental institution for racial reproduction, desirable character creation, and for satisfaction of the deep human desires for love, fellowship and companionship. It has ever been man's greatest source of real and abiding happiness.

Motherhood Divine

"True motherhood is an object lesson in sacrifice, love, patience, loyalty, service and courage. He who desires to see God let him observe true motherhood at its sublime tasks through the years, for it is here that God incarnates Himself in the race.

"This Mother's day we give some expression of our appreciation for and admiration of motherhood. It is lovely and fitting that we do so. The sentiments of this day touch us all profoundly.

"But we are in danger of boiling over and going to waste. Explosions of human emotions are as dangerous as explosions of blind steam, as the regrettable and debasing events at Sherman the last few days well illustrate. With the thoughts and beautiful sentiments of this day we arouse our feelings to a pitch of frenzy, and pour out a torrent of superlative adjectives of adoration upon motherhood, and still remain complacently ignorant of the increasing problems and menaces of modern motherhood. If some of the energy created by the fine sentiments of this day could be utilized in analyzing and solving some of the real and difficult problems that confront modern motherhood, then Mothers' day would come to have a new meaning and usefulness.

"All our institutions are undergoing transition. The home and motherhood are not exceptions. Beginning with the industrial revolution in the 18th century, there was set in operation those forces which have finally ledt to the disintegration of the old type home. The ap-

DARING FLIGHT COSTS LIFE OF MEXICO'S ACE

Pablo Sidar and Co-Pilot Die as Ship Dives Into Sea

STORM TRAPS PLANE

South American Non-Stop Attempt Ends in Disaster

MEXICO CITY, May 11. (AP)—Col. Pablo Sidar was killed today in attempting to make a non-stop flight from Mexico City to Buenos Aires. His airplane dived into the sea three miles south of the Costa Rican seaport of Porto Limon. The department of communications announced this evening that both Colonel Sidar and his co-pilot, Lieutenant Rovirosa, had perished.

The airplane passed over Porto Limon at 3:40 p. m., heading southward. Later it returned apparently seeking refuge. The storm already had broken over Porto Limon and rain was falling when the plane was seen to dive down into the ocean.

Plane Off Course

While Porto Limon is not on the projected route of the 5,700-mile flight the colonel hoped to make when he took off from Oaxaca at 5:21 a. m., it is held conceivable that he may have flown off his course or decided to change it.

His plane the Morelos was last reported over San Salvador, Salvador, Central American, at 5 o'clock this evening. San Salvador is along the west coast of Central America, while Porto Limon is diagonally across country on the east coast. Before hopping off, Colonel Sidar declared that he intended following the west coast as far south as Santiago, Chile, and from there cutting across the lofty Andes mountain chain to his goal, Buenos Aires.

Daring Undertaking

The flight was one of the most daring ever planned by an aviator. Colonel Sidar's ambition was to shatter the non-stop flight mark set last fall by Capt. Dieudonne Coste, French airman, in his flight from Le Bourget field, Paris, to Manchuria. Coste and a co-pilot covered approximately 4,887 miles.

Colonel Sidar has been dubbed the "Lindbergh of Mexico" for his many famous flights. He was chief of the Mexican army aviation service and served with distinction during the Escobar revolt of a year ago.

Reynolds, Bastrop, "To Our Dads."

BOY KILLED IN FALL OF PONY

Auto Crushes Youth Near Sayre, Okla.

Special to The Record News.

SAYRE, Okla., May 11.—Fred Scott, 12-year-old son of Clay Scott, proprietor of the Sayre refinery, was instantly killed on U. S. highway No. 66 about one mile west of town when his pony which he was running slipped and fell on the pavement in front of an approaching automobile today.

The driver of the automobile ran his car partly off the pavement trying to avoid the prostrate pony and boy but struck both, running over the boy. He stopped his car as soon as possible and hailed another car and brought the boy's body to town. A phone message was sent to the parents of the boy who were en route to Lawton or Snyder and they immediately started for Sayre.

It is reported that the driver of the car that struck the boy was from Lovelace, Texas, and that he will remain in Sayre until the boy's parents return.

Hundreds Dead in Persian Quakes

LONDON, May 11. (US)—More than 2,000 persons were reported killed and 5,000 injured in a series of terrific earthquakes that shook Persia today. Advices from Tehrran, the Persian capital, decided that most of the fatalities occurred at the town of Salmas, which was practically destroyed.

The center of the quakes appeared to be placed in the Anzer Azerbaijan district. Tremors, however, were felt in Tabiz. Residents of towns were reported fleeing terror stricken to the hills. Damage was widespread.

Longest Taxi Ride Takes Fare Clear Across America

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 11. (US)—"Nine-ten North Bedford drive," Larry Fay said nearly a week ago to a taxi driver somewhere about Forthy-second and Broadway, New York.

"There ain't no such street in this man's town," the driver declared.

"Well, who said it was in this town?" Fay demanded.

"What town do you mean, then?" the driver asked.

"Beverly Hills, Calif.," Fay replied.

"Okay," said the driver. "Hold on to your hat."

Fay rolled up to Norman Kerry's residence in Beverly Hills yesterday afternoon, after perhaps the longest taxi ride on record.

At one time the trip became a race between the automobile and the New York-Los Angeles train which left at the same hour. The cab was ahead at Pittsburgh, Pa., and still leading at Kansas City. But a cyclone in the Middle West held them back 24 hours and the train rolled out of Gallup, N. M., ahead of the taxi and Fay never saw it again.

He will remain here about two weeks.

STATE TROOPS BEGIN JAILING RIOT SUSPECTS

Vast Throngs of Curious Visitors Present New Problems

GATHERINGS BARRED

Military Patrolmen and Machine Gun 'Nests' Keep Order

SHERMAN, Texas, May 11. (AP)—The first man arrested under the martial law rule which began just before midnight last night was brought in today, a young man suspected of taking part in Friday's riots here.

He was examined by Col. L. S. Davidson, provost marshal, after which orders were issued for the arrest of several other men.

Streets Jammed

The streets became so crowded with automobiles at 4 p. m. today that the guardsmen prohibited people from driving about the courthouse square. Most of the crowd appeared composed of the merely curious.

Dr. T. A. Wharton, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian church, launched today a movement to pay negroes for property damaged by the mob in Friday night's riots and said he would start a financial campaign tomorrow.

So far as learned, no sermons were preached in churches here today on the riot.

Regrets Recorded

A statement signed by a number of business men expressing regret at the disorders was read at the Baptist church.

The Presbyterian church congregation arose in a body to "repudiate the rioting as representative of the best citizenship of Sherman" and to "resent" the destruction of property.

The youth arrested late today, held for the military court of inquiry, brought the total of riot suspects held in jail to 16. Officers said others would follow. Fourteen of the men were charged in federal complaints with liquor law violation.

Cleo Wolf of Sherman was charged with failure to pay a fine.

A general order issued today prohibited the carrying of arms of any description and prohibited the sale, barter, exchange or gift of firearms, ammunition or explosives of any character excepting under control of the provost marshal.

The order also prohibited transportation into the territory of such explosives without the marshal's consent.

Private John T. Heard of troop A, 111th cavalry, today suffered a flesh wound in the leg when the pistol he was cleaning was accidentally discharged.

State rangers went to the negro district late today to break up a small group of young men reported as threatening a negro.

The highways leading into Sherman and the streets of this pretty little city were thick with Sunday motorists who found a new attraction in the burned Grayson county courthouse and the negro residence section stormed last Friday and Friday night by a mob incensed over the criminal attack upon a

FORCES NUMBER 446

SHERMAN, Texas, May 11. (AP)—Forces in control of Sherman under Governor Moody's declaration of martial law consist of 421 Texas national guardsmen and 10 Texas rangers. There also are 15 federal prohibition agents under Randolph Bryant of Sherman, U. S. district attorney.

The martial law declaration was the second during the three and one-half years of Governor Moody's administration. The other was at Borger after the slaying of a county official.

RIFLE TROPHY

WASHINGTON, May 11. (US)—The national trophy for excellence in rifle marksmanship has been awarded to Service Company, 169th Infantry, Hartford; Troop 8, 102 nd Calvary, Newark, and Battery D, 249th Coast Artillery, all national guard units, the war department announced today.

Ultimatum to Indian Revolters Sets Today as Limit for Ending Disorder

BOMBAY, India, May 11. (UP)—Two serious developments occurred in India today, after 48 hours of comparative calm which followed the serious riots last week at Sholapur.

To quiet a menacing situation in the north, an ultimatum was sent to the powerful Mullah Haji Turangzai by the government of India, advising him unless he removed himself and his army from the hills near Peshawar by noon tomorrow, the authorities would be free to act.

The ultimatum said the government intended to preserve the integrity of the Indo-Afghanistan frontier.

The second development was an outbreak at a village 10 miles from Sholapur which compelled the police to evacuate the police station. They took refuge in Sholapur, which was heavily guarded by troops as well as the police unit.

It was revealed extremists unsuccessfully attempted to undermine the loyalty of India troops at Abottabad.

The agitators chose for their seditious attack the royal Garhwal rifles. Two platoons of this unit recently were unsatisfactory during the trouble at Peshawar.

The authorities asserted and searched several extremists. They said they found seditious literature calculated to incite troops to mutiny.

East Texans to Hear Governor and Cabinet Member at C-C Convention

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, May 11. (AP)—More than 2,000 delegates to the East Texas Chamber of Commerce fourth annual convention arrived here today and the opening session Monday.

Governor Dan Moody and Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, were yet to arrive. This year's convention marks the first time a member of any cabinet has attended one of the regional meetings.

Marlin appeared almost certain today to be chosen as the site of the 1931 convention. Longview, headquarters of the organization, is the only other city in the race as a result of Paris withdarwing. Longview is not expected to push her claims, sentiment of early delegates indicated.

After attending religious services today delegates spent the afternoon inspecting refineries. Automobiles races and a bathing revue at the beach were cancelled because of heavy rains and high winds that resulted in an unusually high tide.

Strong opposition was voiced in caucuses Sunday afternoon to the move to make the annual convention a conference instead of a convention with the idea of diminishing the gross delegations. Attendance would be cut from the several thousand each year to possible 1,500 thus affording some of the smaller towns in the area an opportunity to entertain the organization annual get together.

SHERMAN MOB SUSPECTS HELD

Guardsmen Begin Roundup Of Rioters

Hughes was declared officially by a coroner's jury to have been suffocated in a records vault in the courthouse in the county building into which he was thrust when Texas rangers and other officers trying to save him from the mob were driven from the structure by the flames consuming it. The decision meant the coroner's jury believed Hughes was dead when entrance into the thick walled vault was forced by the mob using acetylene torches and dynamite. His body nevertheless was dragged through the streets and then burned at a prominent corner in the negro district.

Gatherings Prohibited

A military order prohibiting the congregating of more than three persons tended to cramp the style of today's sightseers.

The order was one of the first issued by the commandant, Col. Lawrence E. McGee, of Dallas.

Under his official instructions ways and mean of getting to the bottom of the uprising were arranged. He appointed Col. L. S. Davidson of Dallas, 124th cavalry, provost marshall, and named Majors Earl Z. Crowdus, of Dallas, 114th infantry; S. J. Houghton Jr., of Dallas, 112th cavalry, and John Naylor of Fort Worth, 112th cavalry, assistant provost marshals.

Court of Inquiry

He also named Davidson, Crowdue and Naylor to constitute a court of inquiry with supreme authority to investigate and to direct arrests. The court probably would start work tomorrow, it was stated.

All business places except hotels, restaurants and drug stores were ordered to close at 6 p. m.

Martial law was clamped down last night under a proclamation by Gov. Dan Moody well after the rioting had ceased but in the face of widely reported rumors that a new onslaught on the jail was planned in an effort to liberate 13 mob members held there. Scouting parties were sent out today to size up the situation. They reported an unusual number of Oklahoma automobiles in Denison, the sister city a few miles north and about 5 miles from the Oklahoma-Texas state line but no indications of a renewed attack.

Machine Guns in Place

The machine guns set up at the corners of the jail plot last night remained in place and well-manned and sightseers were steered wide of the prison.

The sheriff was not replaced in control of the jail, but acted under direction of the militiamen.

Colonel McGee said he had not checked on the exact number of prisoners in the jail, but Arthur Vaughn, the sheriff, said late yesterday 13 had been imprisoned, and officers last night reported two more had been arrested, making a total of 15 held.

Names of 13 appeared on the police blotter with notations of incendiary riot after them, but no such charge actually had been filed.

Liquor Supplied

There also were allegations that the prohibition law had been violated in connection with the riot and that whisky had been brought in from other counties and distributed. It was indicated 15 federal officers would be directed to investigate.

Governor Moody's proclamation was not received until early today, several hours after Colonel McGee had been informed by press reports. It mentioned, among other things, that the mob had attacked national guardsmen and other duly constituted authorities, and also was guilty of murder and arson.

Two men, wounded during the rioting, still were in hospital here today and getting along "all right," attendants said. Four militiamen injured Friday were sent to a Dallas hospital.

Churches Well Attended

Most of today's curious visitors drove through the burned negro district and viewed the big cottonwood tree from which Hughes' body was hanged and burned after he had been smothered in the courthouse blaze and dragged through the streets.

Large crowds attended church services today in this usually quiet and well-ordered city, which sometimes is called "the holy city" or "the Athens of Texas." It is the home of two denominational colleges and one denominational academy.

Most of Sherman's negro population of 1,500 to 2,000 were back home today after having fled at the inception of the mob action. Officers were paying especial attention to protecting their lives and property.

Nurses to Receive Diplomas as Closing Event of Hospital Day

Nine young women who have successfully completed the three-year training course given by the Wichita General hospital training school for nurses will be awarded their diplomas as graduate nurses Monday evening at a commencement exercise to be held at the Episcopal Parish house at 8 o'clock. Their graduation will be held on the occasion of National Hospital day, to be observed by all hospitals here Monday.

The graduating nurses will be Misses Yeulalo Chartes, Gladys Houston, Ruba Faulk, Bettye McCandless, Josephine Bercera, Lu Tarter, Ina Prichard, Rhuma Fox, and Bonnie Stevens.

National Hospital day, it was explained, is an annual event commemorating the birthday of Florence Nightingale, who founded the first hospital in England, which was also probably the first hospital in the world. The day will be observed here at all hospitals, where open house will be held and all citizens invited to visit the institutions and inspect the equipment and facilities offered. One particular custom of the special day, it was said, is that the mothers of children born in the hospital are given a special invitation to visit the hospital again and bring their children with them.

A special choir composed of 20 voices picked from the church choirs of the city furnished music for the service.

Wednesday evening the senior class play will be presented. Miss Ouida Hubbert and J. O. Neely are directing the play, which is a comedy entitled "Who Woudin't Be Crazy?" Included in the cast are: Edwin Graham, Annie Lee Marshall, Robert Lee Price, Edna Pearl Dowdle, Ola Tate, Breverly Hemphill, Carnye Kemp, Glenn Q. Street, Jr., Lou Matthews, William Edward Bell, Marguerite Carter, Aurelia Wheeless, Lucile Walker, Josephine Casburn, Bruce Street, and Haskell Easterling.

Graduation exercises for the Shawnee junior high school will be held Thursday evening, May 15, and the week's program will be concluded Friday evening when the high school seniors receive their diplomas.

"I have come to the deliberate conclusion that the greatest need of modern times is a revival of the old-time faith in our sainted mothers," Judge P. A. Martin told the Men's Bible class of the oil fields around Thrift in an address Sunday morning on the occasion of Mother's day.

The subject of Judge Martin's talk was "Mother's Day Thoughts." His address follows in part:

"As we have approached the celebration of this particular Mother's day, I cannot get out of my mind a number of American mothers now on their way to France to visit the battlefields where their sons died in defense of our flag and to make the world safe from the despotism of military power; these gold-star mothers, 6,000 strong, who have accepted the invitation of our grateful government to visit the graves of their dead loved ones 'over there.' Floyd Gibbons says he saw them departing from New York a few days ago and he called them 'lavender and old gold' mothers. May God bless them and give them a safe journey and speed the day when war shall cease to rob mothers of their sons.

Gift of God

"And if I should take a text and preach today, I would quote the language of Paul to Timothy in the first chapter of his second letter to this young man, in which he reminds Timothy of the blessed lineage he had in his Christian mother, Eunice, and his grandmother, Lois, and exhorts him to 'stir up the gift of God that is in thee.' Such lineage is truly a gift of God. Any man who has or has ever had a Christian mother has enjoyed a gift of God for which he ought to thank God today. There is in him a gift which he should 'stir up' and claim with pride such a lineage.

"With somewhat unusual apportunities for observation and a passion for the study of human nature and with a heart which I verily believe is full of love and sympathy for my fellowmen, I have come to the deliberate conclusion that the greatest need of modern times is a revival of the old time faith of our sainted mothers and if this occasion shall be the means of causing us in any measure to cultivate a more religious spirit, it will not only be a very fitting celebration of the day, but will also be a wonderful tribute to the influence of our mothers, either dead or alive.

"'To the old-fashioned mother, God was a very real and very present help and satisfaction; she carried her troubles and sorrows, her doubts and her fears to Him and put her trust in Him. She never doubted the wisdom and mercy of the divine power and her highest ambition was to implant the faith of the fathers in the hearts of her children.

Keep Her Faith

"One of the troubles of the age in which we live is that we have lost, in a great measure, our sense of the presence of the divine. We readily believe that there is a great God, the creator and ruler of the universe, whom we envision as reigning in splendor away off somewhere in a world apart from ours and we hope to some day, somewhere meet Him face to face. Indulging this sort of faith we fail to envision the divine in the bright sunshine of this wonderful day, or to see the matchless hand that painted the red on the roses some of you men are wearing. We are failing to catch the significance of the saying of the apostle 'in Him we live and move and have our being.' 'Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.' Our mothers were pure in heart and that is why they were able to see God in the sunshine and the flowers. We men can pay her no better tribute today than to turn to her simple faith and make it the guide of our lives."

The right hand turn on a red traffic signal is to be tried out in Wichita Falls. The Brook avenue crossings at Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh streets are the places where this experiment is to be tried out. In a good many cities right hand turns are permitted on red lights and the practice is said not to have resulted in any increase in accidents and to be a great convenience to motorists. We will have to wait and see how the experiment turns out in Wichita Falls.

Talker's specialty is left hand turns. He is for more left hand turns and especially where such will quickly take traffic out of congested districts.

Houston's population is announced as 290,811. The final count gives Dallas 261,010. San Antonio is yet to be heard from. Our guess is that San Antonio will still be shown as having the largest population of any city in Texas and that the first four cities in population rank will be San Antonio, Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth in the order named.

A mob at Sherman has its day and night of dancing and the people of Grayson county will have a lifetime in paying the fiddler for a new courthouse, of trouble and inconvenience over burned records and in humiliation and shame.

Comparatively few took part in the violence of the mob but all must pay for its acts.

2,000 INSPECT STATE WARDS

New Buildings at Hospital Opened Sunday

Approximately 2,000 persons from Wichita Falls and nearby towns Sunday afternoon visited the Wichita Falls State hospital to inspect the two new buildings recently completed there at a cost of $170,000 and which were formally opened to the public Sunday, according to Dr. C. W. Castner, superintendent.

The largest of the two new structures, a men's ward building, has not yet been occupied by patients, and the visitors Sunday were allowed to inspect the modern facilities and conveniences on the interior of the ward. Attendants were on duty to direct the visitors through the rooms and explain the features of the new building.

The other structure, a tubercular home, has been given over to patients and its interior was therefore not subject to inspection. The type of its construction and exterior features, however, were pointed out to the visitors, Dr. Castner said. Another new feature of the hospital grounds, inspected Sunday afternoon, was a nine-hole golf course which has been laid out for the use of patients interested in the game. By playing out and back, 18 holes are available, it was explained.

The men's ward building recently completed is 188 feet long, 107 feet deep, two stories in height and of brick and reinforced concrete construction. In addition to its own kitchen and dining room, it has three large dormitories and 42 private rooms for patients, with a total capacity of 220 patients. Its construction cost $125,000.

The tubercular home is a one-story structure of brick and reinforced concrete construction, with a capacity of 40 patients, erected at a cost of $45,000. This building also has its own kitchen and dining room, the diets for tubercular patients being specially prepared and served. Milk and eggs used in this building are produced on the hospital grounds.

MENTAL DISEASES ON INCREASE, SAYS CASTNER

Dr. C. W. Castner, superintendent of the Wichita Falls State hospital at Lake Wichita, returned Sunday from Washington, D. C., where he attended an international congress of physicians and experts in the treatment of nervous diseases assembled from 47 nations for the purpose of joining the entire world in a fight against the alarming increase in the number of persons suffering from mental disorders.

Dr. Castner left Washington before the closing session of the congress, in order to be in Wichita Falls for the opening of the state hospital's new $170,000 buildings. The addition of these buildings to the facilities of the hospital here was pointed out as indicative of the need for additional means to cope with the increase in mental disorders, a condition which Dr. Castner described as world-wide.

The growth of mental diseases over the world during the past few years has been pronounced, not only in America but in all other civilized nations, the doctor said. In order to take the immediate and concerted action which has become imperative, leading physicians in the treatment of these diseases in the various nations began a movement which resulted in the international congress at Washington, attended by at least one representative of each portion of the civilized world, he said. The seriousness of the situation, Dr. Castner pointed out, was made evident at the congress when figures were introduced to show that hospitals for the treatment of nervous diseases provide more beds for patients than all other types of hospitals combined.

Two Stores Entered Here Saturday Night

Two Wichita Falls stores were broken into Saturday night but in only one of the places was anything stolen, according to check-ups made Sunday by owners of the stores in connection with police investigations.

The Sinclair filling station at 600 Flood street was entered and a large quantity of greases stolen, police said. Entrance was gained by breaking out a window glass. The A. & P. store at Fifteenth street and Lamar avenue was entered after the glass in a front door had been broken out, officers were told. Investigations failed to find anything taken from the store.

"DIET" DOES NOT NECESSARILY MEAN "DENIAL"

A Diet That Promotes Health Must Be Complete and Enjoyable

To thousands, the idea of "going on a diet" means a period of hardship and denying one's self of favorite dishes.

In some cases, diet may mean this. But today there are millions who are "on a diet" for the sake of better health and more vitality, who are not suffering as martyrs at the dining-table.

These people sit down three times a day to meals where there are plenty of good things to eat. Of course they are careful to choose foods which will supply their systems with the proper amount of calories, vitamins, minerals and roughage. Then to make the meal enjoyable and complete, they eat jellies, relishes and sweet desserts.

In making essential foods in balanced menus tasty and inviting, countless cooks are learning the value of sugar as a flavor. A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt works wonders in improving the taste-appeal of spinach, cabbage, carrots, beans, peas and other vegetables. The same rule can be followed successfully in making salad dressings. Doctors approve this use of sugar as a flavor because it makes vegetable foods more appetizing, and food promotes good health. WHAT, then, if Europeans thus prove their "music-wisdom," are we North Americans supposed to be, that we are asked to accept mechanical music — and mechanical music only — in the theatre? Music-stupid, perhaps?

Well, at least 2,000,000 theatre patrons have rejected that characterization by joining the Music Defense League. They mean that they want Real Music, not Canned Music exclusively, in the theatre.

Joint Maytime Luncheon Is Saturday's Crowning Event

May has added life and charm to social events. Luncheon is not merely luncheon, for the riot of Maytime flowers makes each occasion seem lovelier than the last. When the Travel and Junior Tsavel clubs and the College Women's club met in joint luncheon at the Forum clubhouse Saturday, the dining room was like a spring den in its beauty.

From the enormous bowl of pink roses and pastel shaded larkspur in the center of the U shaped table other smaller but as lovely clusters of the same blossoms were grouped on its polished surface. The doilies in pink and green and the pastel shaded crystal emphasized the motif, and French bath salts and soaps wrapped in pastel tulle and tied with harmonizing ribbons made dainty plate favors to which the pretty place card were attached with sprigs of larkspur.

Friendship was the theme of the luncheon program and Mrs. E. T. Duff, the gracious president of the Travel club who presided, made a pretty talk on the subject, introducing as she closed, Miss Llerena Friend of the College Women who began the clever program of the group with original verses on friendship. Miss Fay Clemmer and Miss Lona Betty Brown were introduced by Miss Friend and each added something regarding their work and the bonds of friendship in original verse. Miss Lona Bell Spruiell was the leader in a singsong given by the college women in a happy spirit.

Mrs. W. L. Parker of the Travel club sang a delightful number, accompanied by Mrs. Grady England, after which Mrs. Ben G. Oneal made an inspiring talk on the theme of the day. Mrs. Oneal stated that the 1922 Study club of Iowa Park is a sister club to the hostess clubs of Saturday, having been organized by the Travel club. She spoke of the work they are doing and stressed the organization of a County Federation to bring closer friendship between federated clubs.

Mrs. Kirksey, hostess at the Forum clubhouse, served one of the most delicious menus that has ever been given at the Forum in the four course luncheon. Mrs. Arch Dawson was general chairman of arrangements and serving with her from the Travel club were Mesdames Leslie Humphrey and T. A. Hicks; from the college women's group, Misses Elfie Savage and Pauline Shirley, and from the Junior Travel club, Mesdames I. R. Sheldon, N. H. Downing and O. T. Ailes.

Covers were laid for the following Travel club members: Mesdames E. T. Duff, T. A. Hicks, Ben G. Oneal, Ola G. Hamlin, Henry C. Fulcher, Leslie Humphrey, W. W. Fraser, Arch Dawson, C. H. Clark, W. W. Cook, T. M. Conrey, J. W. Akin, John M. Martin, Homer Lee, Guy Rogers, G. L. Shapard, John Thomas and W. L. Parker. Representing the Junior Travel were Mesdames Grover C. Johnson, W. H. Caldwell, Thelbert Martin, F. T. Datson, D. O. Johnson, D. G. Gray, N. H. Downing, I. R. Sheldon, C. J. Brannan, G. K. Wilson, O. W. Wilson and O. T. Ailes. The group of college women numbered Misses Ernestine Bolin, Elizabeth Brown, Lona Betty Brown, Fay Clemmer, Mary Sue Collins, Lelia V. Davis, Madge Davis, Pauline Shirley, Llerena Friend, Glieth Henderson, Mayme Raborn, Elfie Savage, Lona Bell Spruiell, Virginia Tabb, Eva Weber, Mesdames Roy Daniel and Eleanor Pace. Four guests participated in the lovely spring occasion including Mesdames Grady England, R. R. Shapard, Mary Hartson, and Fletcher B. Pope.

Mrs. Fletcher B. Pope of McKinney is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin. Mrs. McKinney will be in Wichita Falls for the annual May breakfast at the Woman's Forum.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

One of the familiar figures seen in the evening in a newspaper office is the peanut man. He comes in with a water bucket full of bags of peanuts and goes from desk to desk trying to sell his wares.

That they are purchased is proven by the peanut shells the janitor needs sweep up each morning. The peanut man has reached the point where he merely casts his eye upon us and grunts, recognizing us as no purchaser.

The passion for peanuts in the reportorial heart has been a mystery to us until we read the report in a late "Time" from the National Academy of Sciences. Thinkers were told that half a peanut an hour would furnish sufficient calories to sustain their heaviest mental work.

Forever after this, there will come to us with the crunching of peanuts, a vision of mental accomplishments—of nurtured brilliancy.

We heard a man the other day dreaming aloud a wild dream. Above the sky visible to us, he declared, there is an infinite layer of ether; and the outside rim of the world of ether, he visioned as a sounding box that had forever caught and imprisoned the human sounds from earth.

Every sigh of man was recorded there; all the long dead, passing peoples had given their birth pangs and dying moans, their war crys and love notes, their happiness and sorrows into this giant receiving box.

"Some day," he said, "I'm going to invent a machine that will bring back to earth all those sounds. I shall draw on the days before history was written and find out for myself about the questions that fundamentalists and evolutionists quarrel over."

We listened idly as he talked. Somehow the only thing that impressed us in the resurrection of sounds of aeons past was how much of crackling peanuts and popping chewing gum there would be.

Yet another thought did come. The memory of one cry that through all ages has risen to the sounding board of Heaven.

For Alois Lang, the Oberammergau wood carver playing the Christ in the 1930 Passion play, reminded us of it when he said in telling of his war experiences, "Every mortally wounded soldier I ever saw who had time to think before he died, called on God."

May Breakfast At Forum Is Annual Social Event

In a setting of roses, larkspur and cornflowers in exquisite pastel shades, the outstanding social event of the Woman's Forum year will take place Tuesday morning at 10:30, when outgoing and incoming presidents of the organization will be honored at the annual May breakfast.

Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin will preside as toastmistress and the program has been announced in part as follows: The invocation will be given by Mrs. J. A. Kemp, to be followed by a special musical number to be announced at the meeting.

Two charming women will be especially honored in the toasts to Mrs. C. P. Burton, outgoing president and Mrs. W. Newton Maer, whose hand will be on the helm in the coming season. Mrs. Burton, who has been a splendid leader through a most successful season, will be toasted by Mrs. G. D. Anderson and following her response, Mrs. Maer, to whose impressive personality and ability forum members look with great expectations for the new year, will be toasted by Mrs. W. M. Priddy.

Mrs. J. L. Jackson Jr., will give an appreciation of the cooperation and the gifts of the Junior Forum in the past season and Mrs. W. W. Silk will specially honor in a few words the ability of Mrs. P. P. Langford in her new capacity of general chairman.

The work of the Garden club will be stressed at this particular season when Wichita Falls has responded in a wealth of flowers to garden lovers and Mrs. Ben G. Oneal's address on "Creative Life," will be the culmination of a splendid program of local talent.

"Creative Life," an address particularly fitted for the special occasion, is the same address given by Mrs. Oneal on President's evening in the first district meeting, T. F. W. C., at Stephenville recently and has been commented on widely for its inspirational quality and for the manner in which it was given.

Mrs. J. L. Jackson Jr., is in charge of decorations and has working with her the following committee whose work will insure a lovely setting: Mesdames J. Truman Stevens, Q. B. Lee, Charles E. Watson, W. E. Young, J. H. Massie, Chas. R. Daniels, Charles Clough, W. E. Huff, T. M. Conrey, C. W. Stice, Claude Woods, L. H. Cullum, R. H. Peterson, O. B. Kiel, Ben C. Ackerman, J. W. Duval, F. P. Hodge, T. P. Lynch, G. B. Smedley, A. G. Holmes, J. D. Bright and H. P. Ledford. Hostesses assisting them will be Mesdames Leonard French, C. C. Kirby, Edgar Radcliff, R. D. Kennedy, Walter Campbell, I. A. Fine, Claude Gilchrist and C. C. Jones Jr.

Floral Heights Group Has Interesting Program

Thomas C. Scott, president, was in the chair when the Epworth young people of Floral Heights Methodist church met in their regular session Sunday evening. The meeting was opened with a song and a beautiful prayer appropriate to Mother's day was given by the president.

As a devotional, the first Psalm was read responsively with Norman Tittle as leader. The devotional song, "Into My Heart," was sung softly and effectively.

Emmaline Lewis gave a story "The Secret," telling of the Wesley House work done in the South.

In the program of entertainment given, Margaret Bone sang "That Dear Old Mother of Mine," and Miss Viola Grace Doern gave an exquisite violin number, accompaned by Mrs. G. Wayne Barker.

In a business meeting, plans were made for an old fashioned hayride which will take place during the last week in May. The meeting was closed with the league benediction.

Coleman Youth Made Press League Officer

Special to The Record News.

COLEMAN, Texas, May 11.—J. B. McCord, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McCord of this city, has been elected vice president of the Interscholastic League Press conference. Eight Round-Up staff members attended the conference recently held at Austin and two delegates, Billy Allen and Peggy Jackson, took part in five newspaper contests.

The staff had a very profitable trip. It was their first experience in the contests and they found competition keen. There were no divisions or classifications in the contests; it was just a matter of one high school journalist against another. In the reporting contests they were assigned interviews with heads of departments at the capitol. Coleman delegates drew the health department and the railroad commission.

Although no places were taken by the Coleman delegation, the sponsor, Urbane Hennen, speaks very highly of the work the delegates did and he believes they gained some very valuable experience which may make winners of them in the future.

A "Healthy" Crash
Mother Jones' Memory
Mr. Morrow's Future
An Ocean Drunk

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Traders crawling out of the debris of Wall street's latest crash will hope President Hoover will not make any more speeches on prosperity. Every time he says the worst is over, something terrible happens. The reduction in the bank rate might have been favorable news last week, but it was too much like a confession of poor current business conditions. Banking gentlemen call the latest break a "healthy reaction." Not so healthy for those whose stocks slid from 10 to 18 points.

Mother Jones, the miners' friend, who fought John D. Rockefeller in the Colorado strike and was put in jail for it, now receives a telegram from his son congratulating her on her one hundredth birthday anniversary. It pleases her. "I forgive them," she says, "but I don't forget." And labor doesn't forget the services performed, by this fine, brave, old lady.

It is characteristic of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow that he has refused an appointment to the United States senate, prefering to fight for his seat in the primaries and at the polls. He should have no trouble in winning. No state could have a better man in the senate. Any statement by him on prohibition will be of national importance. If he decides to champion dry modification he will go far.

Thirsty New Yorkers who may have qualms about drinking in speakeasies now see relief ahead. The Cunard line will charter three of its liners to a sea touring company for five-day cruises out of New York and return without touching at any other port, and carrying an unlimited supply of liquors, wines, ale, stout and beer. Liners will sail without a set destination, presumably returning when the liquor gives out. Such trips will not require advertising to make them popular.

Professor Harper, population expert of the University of Georgia, studying American prosperity, makes a report which will give our rich nation something to think about. Conducting researches on Prince Edward Island, where there is a great simplicity of life and very little wealth, he finds very little crime and almost no divorce. Contrasting this with the United States he sees a direct relation between high crime and divorce and the nation's wealth and indulgence in luxuries.

He sees a close co-relation between the automobile and divorce, pointing out that in the course of a year it costs as much to own and operate an automobile as to feed, clothe and educate a child. Thus, he says, an automobile mainly used for pleasure generally means one less child in the family and smaller families mean more divorces. The ingenious professor might also find that the automobile has done more to make the family happy and keep it together than any other modern invention.

King George will celebrate his twentieth year on the British throne tomorrow. The little man, who weighs only 150 pounds and who is head of the world's greatest commonwealth of nations, has less power than his premier, who has more worries than the king and who is too busy to celebrate anything.

Coleman Sends $150 To Tornado Victims

Special to The Record News.

COLEMAN, Texas, May 11.—The Coleman chapter of the American Red Cross at a meeting last night authorized the secretary to forward all available cash on hand to tornado sufferers at Frost. The quota set for Coleman was $300. The organization had $150 on hand when the call for aid was received.

Gran-maw Pash wuz severely cut about her face today when a large heavily framed picture o' Pharoh's Horses fell on her as a big, rumblin' bus passin' her home shifted from second to high. Quite often a divided home is jest the makin' of a boy or girl.

Every time people kiss, a doctor says, they shorten their lives by two minutes. And judging from some of the closeups we have seen on the screen it is a wonder why some movie folk don't drop dead.

"U. S. Gets World's Largest Crystal."—Headline. Prohibitionists, of course, will be peeved to learn it comes in quartz.

A dog in New York bit eight persons the other day. The most exacting editor will admit that is news.

The Illiterate Voter

FRANK J. LOESCH, famed as chairman of the Chicago crime commission, tells Chattanooga University's Institute of Justice that illiterate voters must be disfranchised, even at the cost of revising every state constitution, if a social revolution is to be avoided.

Mr. Loesch has studied crime conditions about as thoroughly as any man in the country, and is entitled to consideration when he speaks. No one has had a closer view of the trouble that is bred by the alliance between crime and politics. You may disagree with his conclusions, but you cannot deny that he knows what he is talking about.

Organized crime, says Mr. Loesch, is directly traceable to the relationships which the underworld is able to build up with unscrupulous politicians. These politicians have influence from top to bottom of the law enforcement machine—from members of the legislature, and judges, down to the policeman on the beat.

The underworld, therefore, has things its own way because its political friends can pull strings for it. And the politicians keep themselves in office by manipulating great masses of illiterate or semi-illiterate voters, who vote blindly, as they are told, but whose votes count for just as much as the votes of ministers, university presidents or bankers.

So, says Mr. Loesch:

"The illiterate voter must be disfranchised, after a reasonable time is given to qualify the voter, and the right to vote given to men and women only who intelligently use the English language."

Without denying that crime conditions are rapidly getting unendurable, and without denying Mr. Loesch's knowledge of the facts, it is quite possible to disagree with this rather sweeping conclusion.

Unfortunately, the mere ability to read and write does not guarantee that a man is going to vote intelligently. A dumbell who can read may be even more dangerous than one who cannot, for he can pore over the propaganda emitted by the unscrupulous. It might be desirable to limit the vote to those who can vote intelligently; but how on earth are you ever going to succeed in drawing that line? And how many of us would be able to go to the ballot box if you did?

Our democracy has its faults, beyond a doubt. The demagogue and the rascal have always been able to get votes, and very likely they always will. But the history of the nation shows that a real leader—a Lincoln, a Roosevelt—does not get ignored. No man can make a greater mistake than to underestimate the American capacity for following a genuine statesman.

There are plenty of defects at the bottom of the social structure. But there hasn't been any too much good leadership in the last decade, either.

A War-Weary World

THE SALES rolled up by the German novel, "All Quiet on the Western Front," are still going up—in America and everywhere else in the world.

Figures just released by Little, Brown & Co., American publishers of the great novel, show that 2,515,000 copies have been sold throughout the world. Germany heads the list with 999,000. France is in second place, having bought 440,000 copies, and the United States comes third with 335,000 copies. In all, sales in 12 nations are recorded; and it is interesting to note that even lands like Japan and Soviet Russia—where such a book might not be expected to sell well—have bought liberally.

All of this is a tribute to the book, of course. But even more than that, it is an eloquent sign of the world's war-weariness. That book would never have sold so tremendously if the great mass of human beings everywhere were not thoroughly disillusioned about warfare.

Which is a very hopeful sign for the peace of the world.

Cash for Gold Star Mothers

A BOSTON newspaper suggests that such Gold Star mothers as are unable to accept the government's offer of a free trip to France be given, instead, a cash settlement of $850, which is approximately the cost of each trip.

There is a good deal of sense to this. Many mothers whose sons died overseas cannot afford to take the trip, even when all expenses are paid. They have to earn livings for themselves and their families. Indeed, the Boston paper making this proposal estimates that not more than a third of the eligible Gold Star mothers will be able to go.

To make these cash payments would, of course, greatly increase the cost to the government of the whole plan. But it's a rather expensive undertaking at best. Making cash payments to mothers who cannot afford to accept the free trip would bring a good deal of help to homes that need it badly.

Better Times for Haiti

EUGENE ROY has been unanimously elected as temporary president of Haiti, and his election indicates that the new regime outlined by President Hoover's commission is going to go into effect without a hitch. It is good news.

Roy is to serve until next fall, when a regular popular election can be held. Borno, evidently, is through—and his downfall probably will cause little regret. The way now is clear for the Haitians to erect a real, responsive government that will serve the nation and not a clique.

No one will be any happier to see this than Uncle Sam, who has spent a lot of money and quite a few lives in Haiti and has mighty little to show for it in the way of material advantages.

CARESSE ⚜ A Complete Novel By RUTH TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS

Caresse O'Neill, daughter of the owner of Shady Lawn Inn in the village of Riverton, is jilted by her sweetheart, Ted Branard, son of the town's wealthy banker, on the day of the wedding. Caresse insists on continuing the party which had been arranged in her honor, and telephones Billy, a New York friend, to come down and bring two other friends as escorts for Miriam Nowell and Bess Parker, her best friends. They later go to a nearby roadhouse.

A few weeks later Caresse and friends are riding on a lonely road when the car gives out of gas near the old Morton place, which they believe abandoned. They go to the house, find a lighted lamp and a grand piano, and start dancing. Suddenly the door opens and the owner, Lee Deering, enters, to confront them.

Caresse's friends slip out of the house while she tries to explain their presence to Deering, and Caresse accepts his invitation to muffins and coffee before she returns home.

Deering becomes a boarder at Shady Lawn Inn and his friendship with Caresse develops rapidly. Teddy Branard returns suddenly, and calls on Caresse. She forces him to take her to a local roadhouse as a blow at Ted's father.

The elder Branard promises Ted a new boat if he will forget Caresse, then offers Mrs. O'Neill $50,000 for the inn on condition she leave Riverton. The offer is refused.

At a birthday party for Caresse the next night, the village constable appears and informs them a complaint has been signed against them for disturbing the peace.

In court the next day the case is dismissed for lack of prosecution, Teddy forcing his father to drop the matter on the threat to "tell the truth" about the whole affair and the persecution of the O'Neills.

Caresse and Teddy elope, but the car crashes into a wall when Teddy, drunk, loses control.

Teddy is seriously injured, and Caresse loses the friendship of Deering when he smells whisky on her dress and believes she also has been drinking. Edith Leigh, former sweetheart of Deering, is invited by Mrs. Branard to Riverton to be with Teddy during his convalescence.

Caresse and her mother are ostracized by Riverton society because of the affair.

CHAPTER XII

They brought Teddy Branard home from the hospital.

"I've a nice surprise for you," his mother told him, as she drove him home. "Poor boy! You've had a hard time, haven't you?"

"Not so hot," grimaced Teddy. "I've known better. What's the surprise?"

"You'll see."

The morning after his return, Teddy was sitting propped up in his wheel chair beside an opened window when his mother came in with Edythe Leigh, followed by the man with Ted's breakfast.

"Your surprise, Teddy," announced Mrs. Branard. "Here's Edythe. You haven't seen her for a long time. She's come to play with you while we get you well."

"Well, what could be sweeter?" declared Ted. "Edythe, old dear, you're better than all the doctors. Say, I didn't think you could get any handsomer, but—— Gee!"

Edythe laughed and summoned up a faint blush.

"Nice," she said. "You haven't forgotten your blarney, Ted."

"I'll leave you now," nodded Mrs. Branard. "I have some things to attend to. Edythe's going to have breakfast with you, Teddy. She wanted to."

It was a gay little breakfast they had before the wide opened French windows looking out over the green of the park. Edythe exerted herself to appear at her most charming. That she was successful needed no greater proof than the admiring looks she saw in Teddy Branard's eyes, his eager conversation, and undoubted desire to please.

In as far as it was possible, with Teddy still unable to leave his room, Edythe Leigh was with him during the next few days. She read to him, she sang, she chattered, and with her own hands she brought him some of his meals. With her aid he took his first faltering steps since his accident.

Mrs. Branard put a car at Edythe's disposal.

"It's too bad Teddy can't drive you himself, my dear," she apologized, "but any of the chauffeurs will be at your service any time. I am rather busy, and I thought perhaps you would sometimes like to go out and around a bit without me."

Edythe's eyes glistened as she thanked her hostess. Here was the chance for which she had been looking! She could find Lee Deering, and no one would be the wiser!

Edythe read Ted to sleep late one afternoon, and then had the roadster she had selected for herself brought around. She whirled off alone, leaving word she would be back in time for dinner.

It was not difficult to discover where Lee Deering was living. She was in a state of exultation as she drove up the hill and stopped beside the door. Evidently Lee had not heard her.

The door was open and she went in and sat down, looking about her curiously at Lee's new home. The high back of her chair hid her from anyone entering through an inner door.

In a moment she heard Lee's footsteps. He was humming softly as he came into the room. She heard him stop as he saw some one was sitting in the chair.

"Yes?" he said, inquiringly.

"I'm here, Lee," said Edythe, gently, as she rose and faced him.

She held out her arms to him.

"Edythe!" he cried, but he made no move toward her outheld arms.

"'Edythe!' Aren't you going to welcome me, Lee?"

He did not answer her, and her arms slowly dropped.

"You ran away from me, Lee" she accused, "but I've come to you. Why did you do it, darling?"

"I think you know," he said coldly.

But his coldness was with an effort. The sight of the girl he had loved, whom he was afraid he would always love, as she stood there in her softly clinging orange chiffon frock, that looked like a part of the setting sun and of her, inflamed him. His head whirled at the suddenness of her apperance. Her well-remembered smile sent the hot blood rushing through his veins.

He closed his eyes to shut out the dazzling sight of her. He had no intention in the world that she should again exert her siren influence over him. He believed that what he had discovered about her made a revival of love impossible.

Edythe took a step nearer him.

"Lee," she said, imploringly, "are you going to let a girl's silly flirtations stand between you and a great love?"

"You don't know great love, Edythe."

"Don't I? Lee——"

He shook his head, and retreated as she advanced.

"It's no use, Edythe. I told you that before. I haven't changed my mind. We could not be happy. Why did you follow me?"

Edythe laughed.

"Conceited as ever, what? I didn't follow you. I came to Riverton to visit the Branards, but when I heard you were here, I could not resist——"

"The Branards? I didn't know you knew them."

"Yes."

Her manner changed. She gave him her odd little twisted smile, and eyed him closely to see the effect of her words.

"It—it is possible I may become a member of the family."

If her announcement was a shock to Lee Deering, he carefully suppressed it.

"I think that would be to your advantage," he said, suavely. "In many ways. You had better go now, Edythe. It's late—"

"Ah! Putting me out? Hospitable Mr. Deering!"

He moved toward the door.

"And for both our sakes, you had better not come back."

They went out of the door together and towards the car. Of course neither of them could have had any idea of the tired little figure who had stopped in her climbing the hill, and saw them as they came out. But Caresse O'Neill did see them, and saw Lee go to the car with Edythe Leigh.

As they reached it, Edythe's arms were suddenly flung out and clasped about the neck of Lee Deering.

"Lee!" she sobbed. "Oh, Lee!"

He felt her body pressed close to him, smelled the perfume of her, remembered all her sweetness. The blood coursed hot through him. Half consciously and wholly without volition his arms swept about her. He drew her to him and kissed her.

It was the kiss that Caresse had seen. But Caresse, plodding slowly back down the hill, with never a backward look, did not see how quickly Lee Deering dropped his arms and stepped backward. For a moment he had forgotten himself, but he was quickly his own master again.

Edythe's eyes were shining. She was exuberant.

"Lee! You do love me!"

He shook his head.

"But you could not act as you just have unless you loved me," she persisted.

"Merely a reflex," shrugged the composer, calmly, and with the chill back in his voice. "I acted as I did because once I did love you. It's no go, Edythe. You'd better go back to your millionaires. Good night."

Caresse knew, when she left Lee Deering's path behind her, that she ought to go home. It was getting late, and mother would be worried if she found her gone. But she did not want to go home. She felt she could not bear the sight of mother's hurt eyes just then.

She had not solved her problem of what to do, either, and after what she had just seen, the solution seemed farther off than ever. She felt that she did not want Lee Deering for a confidante as much as she had before.

She did not take the turn that led toward Shady Lawn Inn. Instead, she turned into a path that led across the fields to the river. It would be cool there, and she would be alone and could think. Caresse always believed that the soft purl of running water soothed her; made her thoughts clearer.

She sat down on a rotting log beside the river and gazed out into the darkened waters. Somehow, they did not have their usual soothing influence. The silver-topped ripples winked knowingly at her, and gave her strange thoughts.

Lee Deering found her sitting there. His shrug was annoyed as he discovered some one sharing his solitude. Ever since he had told Edythe goodbye, he had been wandering. He did not know where he had walked. It had simply been in his mind to walk off some of the unwelcome emotions that Edythe's presence had evoked.

He started to turn back, but Caresse heard him and turned her head. She did not speak, though.

"What are you doing here so late, Caresse?" he asked, sternly.

"Thinking of suicide at the present moment, if it concerns you," answered Caresse, with a jerky laugh.

"You little idiot!"

Lee strode to her and grasped her by the arm.

"Haven't you got any sense at all? That's what all the other little imbeciles think about—at times. But it's no way out. What you'd better do is try to behave yourself, and—"

"Who said I didn't?" asked Caresse, beliggerently, and jerked herself loose from his hold.

"You think you have? You,"—his lip curled—"the girl they call—Caresses? Go on home, now—"

"Suppose I won't?"

"I should hate to have to—make you!" said Lee, distinctly.

His eyes bored into hers with a meaning unmistakable.

"Don't bother." Caresse's shoulders shrugged. "I was just going, anyway."

She whirled, without saying goodnight, and sped away across the fields without a backward look. If any small thought had still remained about taking Lee Deering into her confidence, it was all gone, now. His attitude toward her, stern, unsympathetic, had torn from her all desire to talk to him.

It was bedtime when Caresse, tired, and mentally depressed and exhausted, got home. She went on up to her room, simply calling out a good night to mother as she went past her door. She prepared for bed hurriedly, got in and turned out the light.

For a long time she lay there, thinking. Her thoughts were bitter. They were futile, too. Turn whichever way she would there appeared to her only one possible way out of her own and her mother's dilemna. That one was not too pleasant. Certainly it did not appeal to her pride.

At last, when sleep did not come, she sat up in bed.

"Oh, well," she said, half aloud, "I might as well do it now as any time. There doesn't seem any other way. I've got to marry Ted Barnard. Hmm, I guess I love him as much as I can anybody. But it hurts me to have to tell him so!"

She got slowly out of bed, and turned on the light. Then she sat down in front of her desk with its clutter of girlish odds and ends among the letters and scraps of paper. She searched out a box of her best paper and started to write,

Good Food Combinations

Those who have strong digestive organs are inclined to ridicule the idea of good food combinations because they sometimes eat meals of inharmonious conglomerations and apparently suffer no immediate ill effects. Even doctors sometimes fall into this error by trying food combinations upon themselves. I was, myself, gifted with a strong digestive apparatus and I did not realize the importance of food combinations until I began prescribing to sick, run-down patients.

Those who are afflicted with weak digestive organs or who suffer from certain diseases, such as eczema, asthma or rheumatism, for example, must learn to be especially careful with their food combinations if they hope to become permanently well. Sometimes sick individuals are so sensitive that the least mistake in combining their food produces almost immediate and severe discomfort. It was from watching this type of patient that I first got my clue as to the importance of food combinations. Those who are not so sensitive to changes in the diet may not notice the ill effect of wrongly combining foods, but I am satisfied, nevertheless, that an injurious effect results which if not immediately apparent is cumulative in effect over a series of years, and gradually wears down the constitution so that one may become susceptible to serious diseases later in life.

I write frequently in my daily articles about the importance of food combinations, and for the benefit of those who have not yet learned to combine their food properly, I endeavor to occasionally outline lessons on food combinations.

You have probably heard that the digestion of food begins in the mouth. This is true, but in reality only one kind of food is digested by the saliva, and that one food is starch. Other foods, such as meat, greens and fruits are not digested in any way in the mouth except that chewing breaks up these foods into small particles. The ptyalin or digestive ferment in the saliva acts only upon starch and partly converts it into sugar. This digestion of starch by the ptyalin continues for several minutes after the starch has entered the stomach until the hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice becomes too plentiful.

The stomach, itself, puts out large quantities of gastric juices, especially for the purpose of converting proteins into soluble substances. The digestive juice of the stomach has no effect whatever upon the starches, greens and sugars except to make them sour because of the hydrochloric acid contained in the gastric juice. The stomach's juices do not have any action upon digesting starch as there is no part of the gastric juices which has the property to act upon starch. As the food passes out of the stomach into the small intestines, the bile, which is alkaline, is mixed with the food, and if the mixture is already too acid, the bile is capable of converting it into a liquid alkaline, and the remaining food is then acted upon by the amylopsin, steapsin, tryspin and intestinal juices. These ferments chemically digest the different food elements and can handle any mixture if enough bile has been combined with it. The chief difficulty seems to be in getting bad mixtures through the stomach and into the intestines without setting up a conflict between the digestive juices of the stomach and those of the intestines.

Tomorrow: Proteins and their combinations.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Nervous Heart

Question—L. McC. asks: "What brings on the condition known as 'nervous heart?' Is it the same as palpitation? If not, what is the difference?"

Answer: The "nervous heart" expression is given to describe a condition where the heart is irregularly slow and fast. This may come from gas pressure against the heart, or from some glandular disturbance, such as hyperthyroidism. Palpitation of the heart usually means a condition where the patient feels the heart beating against the chest and is therefore conscious of the fact.

Olive Oil

Question—Mrs. R. asks: "Is olive oil too much fat for the body if a scant two ounces stirred in the juice of an orange is used every night to prevent constipation?"

Answer: I see no harm in your using two ounces of olive oil a day, but this should not be necessary if you keep your diet well balanced and develop a good tone of your abdominal muscles.

Strengthening the Fingers

Question—M. B. asks: "Will you kindly tell me what I can do to strengthen my fingers? I play the piano and my teacher says that my fingers are weak, especially on the left hand."

Answer: A good exercise to strengthen the fingers is to spread out a full-size sheet of newspaper and grasp one corner with the fingers at arms length and then with the fingers pull the newspaper to the hand, trying to crush it into a ball.

Spur Ranch Books Given Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas, May 11.—Records of the famous Spur and Matador ranches, two of the well known early day ranches of this section of the great plains, have been presented to the library of Texas Technological college. The records cover the period from the middle 80's to around 1900.

Both records consist of letters, books, diaries, account books, journals, ledgers, trail records, branding records, etc. The letter books are of the old-fashioned letter press type, hard to decipher in many instances but yet interesting. The original records for the most part can be easily read.

Operations on their ranch covered long periods starting with the early 80's. English and Scotch capitalists were large owners of the properties and insisted upon full and complete accounting of everything. As a result they knew just how their money was spent and these records are said to be among the most complete in this section.

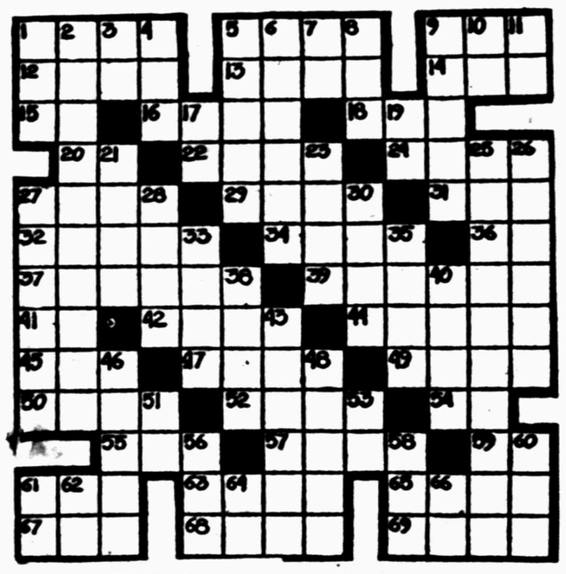

The Spur ranch records were presented through Prof. W. C. Holden and the Matador ranch through Prof. Bailey Carroll, both of the history department.

SPUDDERS WIN BOTH ENDS OF DOUBLE-HEADER WITH CUBS

BETTENCOURT STARS AT BAT

Waco Loses First, 13 to 9, and Second 10 to 2

Special to The Record News

WACO, Texas, May 11.—Playing wide-awake, hustling baseball and taking advantage of every mistake made by the Wacoans, the Spudders swept both ends of the double bill from the Waco Cubs here today by scores of 13 to 9 and 10 to 2.

The first game was featured by the sensational hitting of Larry Bettencourt who pounded out five hits, including a double and a home run in five times at bat. Each hit scored one or more men. Although hit hard Vincent went the route, the Cubs losing the game through poor play in the outfield. They made more earned runs than did the visitors.

Hard on Ketchum

The Spudders hit the offerings of Ketchum to sew up the second game after getting away to a poor start.

The Spudders started the first game in a hurry. Lefty Stein was in the box for the Cubs, and after he had thrown two balls, the visitors had two doubles and a score. Fitzgerald popped out but Kloza got a base on an error. The misplay cost a run for Storti scored on Burns' infield out on which both Piet and Stein made a nice play. Another run scored on Bettencourt's hit into center.

Rye walked to open the game for the Cubs. Gottleber also walked. The pair made a double steal as Stuvengen fanned. Rye scored on a long sacrifice fly by Munson. Bischoff walked, but Speer popped out. A single by Euller and a double by Storti gave the visitors another run in the second.

Stein, who had been wavering throughout the contest, was rapped out in the third when Kloza opened with a single and scored on Bettencourt's second single of the day. Crouch greeted Thurman with a single, but he fanned Euller and forced Vincent to pop out. The Cubs rallied in their half of the third. With one out, Gottleber and Stuvengen singled while Munson walked. With the bases full, Bischoff's slow infield got by Levey and two runs scored. Another scored on Speer's single to center, the latter going to second on Fitzgerald's error. With the tying run on third, Molesworth fanned, and Vincent saved runs by getting in the way of Piet's line drive, knocking it down and getting his man at first.

Held Scoreless

Waco got the first two on in the fourth but did not get a score. The Spudders got next to Thurman in the fifth when Kloza walked and scored on Burns' triple down the first base line. Bettencourt's third single of the day scored Burns.

With two out and two on in the sixth, an outfield error allowed Burns to take two bases and the visitors to get two unearned runs. Bettencourt hit a towering fly over the right field wall, and the Spudders had their fourth unearned run of the inning.

In Waco's seventh after Munson had doubled, Speer hit one a country mile over the center field wall, and Molesworth hit the next ball pitched over the left field fence, but that was all for the inning. In the eighth, Fitzgerald's single, a sacrifice and Burns' single accounted for a run, while Bettencourt cracked out his fifth hit of the day, a ringing double into left and drove in his sixth run of the day.

The Cubs kept pecking away. Rye's single, a walk to Gottleber and Munson's single gave the Cubs a score in the eighth. The Cubs rallied again in the ninth when with one out Molesworth hit his second home run of the day. Bettencourt misjudged Piet's line drive and dropped Pratt's line drive, the latter batting for Thurman. Rye grounded out, and the game ended as Gottleber did likewise.

White Starts Second

The second game started with White in the box for the Spudders and Roy Ketchum on the mound for the Cubs. After Ketchum had retired the visitors in order in the first, Rye doubled to open the game for the Cubs, and he scored from third after two were out on Munson's infield out. The Spudders got the run back in the second when Kloza and Burns singled, and although Bettencourt's pop fly back of short was turned into a double play Bradbury and Euller singled for a score.

Rye opened Waco's third with a crashing line drive far over the right field wall, and Gottleber doubled to left, but he did not get around. In the fourth, Ketchum walked Kloza and Burns and when Bettencourt forced out Burns, Kloza came home on an error by Stuvengen. Euller's single scored Bettencourt with the run which gave the Spudders the lead, and Molesworth's wild throw followed by Levey's infield hit gave the visitors another run. They got their fifth run of the game in the fifth when Kloza singled, stole second, and came home when Speer misjudged Burns' fly. In the fifth with two out and two on, Storti sent 50 per cent of the fans home by lifting a towering fly over the left field wall giving the Spudders a six-run lead. Euller's home run with two out and one on in the seventh gave the visitors two more runs. That was all for the game, but that was quite enough.

Track Meet to Be Renewed Today

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, May 11. (AP)—A brightly shining sun today gave renewed promise of record breaking feats in the finals tomorrow of the 1930 track and field meet of the Southwest conference.

A heavy rain fell yesterday after the crowd had begun to gather and faculty representatives of the conference, acting on the recommendations of coaches, postponed the meet the first time in the history of the conference that such a thing had been necessary.

Ralston Hemsley, brilliant young backstop, attributes much of his success to the unusual size of his mitts. Ralston, who is one of the mainstays behind the bat for the Bucs, thinks nothing of holding at one and the same time as many as seven baseballs.

MOTHERHOOD 'NOT POPULAR'

Barron Scores Modern Life In Sunday Sermon

plication of science has not only revolutionized our physical sciences but our social sciences as well. Our ideas have changed, our methods have changed. The problems of motherhood of yesterday were not the same as they are today. The age of science has placed on our hands new problems concerning motherhood, as well as in religion, education and business. I desire to note some of these increasing problems.

"We are living at a time when motherhood is looked upon with a great social frown. It has become an unpopular thing. The wife who would become a mother today has to face popular disapproval. Many a wife keeps from fulfilling the desire for motherhood simply because she does not want to face the criticism of the public. The idea has become prominent that a baby in the home is a blot on the escutcheon. The better classes just do not do it. This social disapproval of motherhood presents a very acute problem indeed.

New Freedom of Woman

"There are many forces which have brought about this social frown. The new freedom of woman which has followed popular education contributes its share. Then comes the sense of economic freedom and independence. The easy-going fad of the age put wrinkles in the frown. Perhaps it is a swing from the unreasonably large family and maternal servitude of former years. None of us want to see the awe-inspiring large family return.

"But the picture of a mother with six or 10 children strikes me as being infinitely more beautiful than that of a woman whose maternal feelings extend no further than than a fuzzy pup. I have nothing against pups. I think they are fine for children, but a poor substitute for children.

"When I see a woman satisfied with exercising her maternal affection upon a little animal like this I feel quite as sorry for her as I do for the pup. If either is to be pitied more than the other I think the pup ought to get the vote simply because he had no choice in the matter. He might have selected a better fate if he had been consulted. Instinct is more accurate in such matters than is intellect, or even intuition.

"In addition to the social frown upon motherhood, there is the economic problem. To have a baby and care for it as it and the mother ought to be cared for is a financial enterprise of considerable gravity with the average family. Many who would like to have children do not simply because they do not feel financially able. But if children are desired enough this initial cost can be met by sacrificing at other points. The family can deny itself a new car, or radio, or suite of furniture.

"However, the intial cost is not the most serious. It is the expense of rearing and educating that presents the most serious financial problem. Standards of living have been raised. Everybody wants to give the child a chance, a better chance than the parents had. We are living in an age when this costs highly. From the time before the child is born till it becomes economically independent it is a big drain upon the family budget. Many people do not feel financially able to take on the responsibility. Many are denying themselves the luxury of children, or having just one or two, for this reason.

"The economic phase of motherhood presents an increasingly difficult problem. I do not know the solution to it, but I think the church ought to help people to think through this problem. This Mothers' day is a fine occasion to discuss from the pulpit such vexing problems that must be solved if motherhood is to fulfill its usefulness in the future as it has in the past.

God of Luxury

"Then, too, all of us have been bitten by the luxury bug. Luxury has become a 'necessity.' I believe in luxury. It has many possibilities for good, but it has also possibilities for evil. We have to a great degree made it our god, before whom we will have no other god, to whom we sacrifice the first fruits of the land. If it comes to a choice between a baby in the home and a new car, then we choose the car. If it is a choice between a baby and a better house, then we take the house. If it is a choice between another baby and a long and expensive vacation, then we take the vacation. Our madness for luxury creates a real problem for motherhood.

"The tendency of those who live for long in this pursuit of luxury is to shun responsibility. Long years of luxury do not encourage motherhood. That might upset the easy going way we have fallen into. The spread of luxury to the masses, and its blinding pleasures have turned the faces of many from the ordeal of motherhood.

"It costs to be a mother. I know of only one thing that costs more; that is not to be one. It costs to be anything worthwhile. The greatest values we have in life have been forged upon the anvil of toil, pain and suffering. The world is constituted that way; why, I do not know, but both observation and experience have taught me that it is so. Motherhood is bought with a price. It costs months of discomfort and many hours of physical pain and mental suffering. It limits associations and activities. It takes time from friends and loved ones, and full participation in those activities of social life which bring great pleasure. It increases anxieties, cares, worries. It brings years of unremitting responsibility. It takes certain forms of freedom. The child's physical health, conduct and education present constant problems that cost heavily in thought, energy, time and money. Yes, motherhood is supremely costly, so costly that this age of easy going, luxury mad, pleasure seeking people shirk it.

"But when we have finished painting the picture of the costs of motherhood, we have finished only half the picture. Motherhood has its compensations as well as its costs. Like all great things in life they are in proportion to the costs. The full compensations of motherhood, of course, can be understood only by mothers and there are no words with which to express them adequately. I asked one the other day if she would take a billion dollars for her baby. She did not consider the offer even theoretically worth serious thought. She did not reflect on the fact that this amount of money would enable her to have all the finest of clothes, cars, diamonds, tours over all the world, good cars, an elegant home, prestige, power, a sense of independence and economic security, and all the other luxuries that so much wealth would bring with it. Like every true mother she answered that a billion dollars would not even be a decent starting bid. Like every true mother she felt that in motherhood she had that which was worth more than all material values combined. All other values and luxuries are secondary to that of being a true mother. Only those know this who have a little one whose little hands tug at one's heart all the day through.

"And finally, I would note the problem of a compass, a chart and a seaman's soul. The modern woman is lost in the great sea of liberty into which she has been placed. She cannot make her way, she is baffled. She needs a compass to go by. She does not know where she is. She needs a chart. And in addition to the compass and the chart, the modern woman needs the seaman's soul—courage, patience, endurance. She needs to get her ideas of marriage and home and motherhood straight. They are crooked, there is no mistaking that. She needs help, and I am persuaded the church ought to furnish it. It ought to help her to be intelligent concerning the whole problem of life. It ought to help develop her soul strength, for without this the future of motherhood and the home are in danger.

"I do not know all the solutions to the increasing problems of motherhood, but I do know that they must be approached intelligently and sympathetically. If we had an intelligent interpretation of Jesus' life and teachings applied to these problems, I am convinced that we could find our way out of this maze in which the age of transition has brought us."

At the Theaters

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

MAJESTIC: Ruth Chatterton the Magnificent, in "Sarah and Son." We've seen nothing better. Our Gang in "Small Talk." "Chords of Memory," impressive musical feature. Sound news.

STRAND: "Paramount on Parade," overflowing with entertainment. Mitzi Green—how can she do it at the age of eight? Sound news.

STATE: "The Delightful Rogue," south sea talking romance, with Rod LaRocque. Comedy, "His Bachelor Daddy." Sound news. Felix the Cat.

GEM: George Bancroft in "The Mighty," with Dick Arlen. "Calling Hubby's Bluff," comedy.

Adapted for the screen by a woman, directed by a woman, and glorified by the magnificent acting of a woman, Ruth Chatterton's "Sarah and Son," at the Majestic receives further sequence by being reviewed by a woman—a mother—of Wichita Falls for The Record News. The author demanding in return for the following criticism only that it be used incognito. This, then, for the Mothers' day feature:

"Asked to review 'Sarah and Son' by the astute critic of theater life in our midst, we were complimented. Now that we've seen the picture, have felt our throat fill up, our tonsils enlarge beyond medical relief, and our whole interior seethe with such emotion as we have not emoted over any mere talkie (or shushie, either) for many a moon, we feel taken in. Superlatives have been used before. There should be an entirely new set of adjectives created for this masterpiece. One is forced to discard the trite old 'ests' and say only that in 'Sarah and Son,' the talkies come closer to perfection than any other film offering ever approached—or, we suspect with a dolorous sigh, will reach again while roses bloom.

"Ruth Chatterton as 'Sarah' creates realism for the entire cast from the first moment at which she is discovered doggedly practicing new steps for a vaudeville number. And if you want to see the hoofer-struggling-for-a-foothold-idea worked out with finesse, this is once the audience gets the break. Some inspired ad man called Ruth 'the first lady of the films;' sincerity, appeal, beautiful restraint (the love scene after dinner), dramatic intensity, and finally, a voice that in its richness of tone supercedes even that of lamented Jean Eagles as heard in 'The Letter,'—these show how well the ad man knows his numbers. The anxiety of tenderness which softens her tones as she calls for the baby—who isn't there—the amazing resonant finality of one 'Ja!', the monotone dripping with fatigue with which she addresses her lazy husband—all make the supreme raison d'etre for the talking picture. And, to lend brilliance to the sun, she sings exquisitely one of the world's masterpieces as a theme song—Johannes Brahms' 'Lullaby.' We have heard the Voice Magnificent.

"If there is a weakness in the film, we failed to find it. The supporting cast is more than adequate. Frederic March as the young attorney is quietly convincing. Fuller Mellish Jr., is a weakling without over-acting his big scene. Phillipe de Lacy, the son (and we hope the young man fully appreciated the privilege of that role) was above par. He may not be a Mitzi Green—but who is? The story is more logical than it might have been. Chatterton creates the illusion of passing years by a marvelous change of dialect. Notice the improving pronunciation as German modulates to English. There is no jarring note. The most striking tribute paid the picture was the absolute silence with which a Saturday crowd sat spell-bound, sans peanuts, sans vociferations and sans foot-shuffling."

CHORAL CLUB SINGS HERE

First Baptist Church Presents Simmons U. Group

By The Record News Music Critic

About 300 persons took advantage of the presence in the city Sunday of the Choral club of Simmons university to hear a varied and artistically presented program of vocal and instrumental music at the First Baptist at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Carrying about 25 voices under the direction of W. J. Work, head of the voice department in the conservatory of Simmons university, the club revealed a highly pleasing ensemble on selections which remained well within the compass of amateur singers while giving opportunity for effective shading and tonal deportment.

25 Voices

Organizations such as the Simmons Choral club begin the construction of their programs with the first requisite to artistic singing—commission of the score to memory. Unanimity and smoothness of attack and release on choral numbers given Sunday bespoke thoroughness in memorization of the numbers—an element which amateur ensembles of post-college singers might well embrace.

One of the finest bits of expression given by the club as a whole was effected in the singing of Gounod's "Send Out the Light." Every voice was subdued evenly to a pianissimo of excellent quality, with the four parts moving commendably together with more than a little of sincere "religioso" in the combined tones. If there were passages in which the best quality was lost, it was in occasional crescendoes with an effort at too great volume.

One of the most pleasing features of the male quartet—which featured a bass voice of noticeable richness and ease—was the deliberate restraint with which its quiet numbers were expressed.

Solos Pleasing

Conspicuous among the solos included in Sunday afternoon's program was a group of songs presented by Mr. Work, in tenor-baritone voice of more than adequate timbre and register. More outstanding, however, was the excellence of his control, compassing difficult recitatives, flowing legato in long phrases, and varying texts with gratifying ease and feeling. Solo artists included Miss Camilla Marrs, violinist, an instructor in the conservatory, and several members of the chorus.

There was a pleasing informality in the choral club's manner of giving the mixed program, and a quiet seriousness of effort which doubtless accounts for the very apparent development in Simmons university's musical organizations.

Coleman P.-T. A. Opposes High School Hazing

Special to The Record News.

COLEMAN, Texas, May 11.—The high school Parent-Teacher association in its last meeting of the school year went on record as disapproving the practice of hazing in high school and favoring a movement similar to that in colleges where underclassmen maintain an organization designating them as "big brothers" and "big sisters" of freshmen.

C. H. Hufford was the main speaker on the program and outlined the plans for next year's work. He discussed plans for 6-year-olds who will attend school for the first time in September. Two additional teachers will be employed, he said, to teach primary and kindergarten work.

Open Forum Meet Called by Leaders

Directors, stockholders and friends of the Wichita Falls Open Forum will meet either on Sunday, May 18, or Sunday, May 25, at 2 p. m. at the Industrial Mart, 911 Eighth street, to complete plans for launching the program of that organization this fall, according to action taken at a meeting held Sunday afternoon, at the chamber of commerce offices.

Owing to inadequate notice having been given in advance, it was stated, many of the directors were unable to be present at Sunday afternoon's meeting. The concensus of opinion among the small number in the meeting, after brief discussion, was that the best purposes of the next meeting would be served by having Elmer Scott of Dallas present to assist in putting the local forum into action. It was decided accordingly to hold the next session on Sunday, May 18, provided Mr. Scott can be here on that date, and if not, on the following Sunday afternoon.

Luther Hoffman presided at Sunday's meeting, in the absence of Walter Cline, temporary chairman, and discussed informally the nature of the Open Forum's program with many who were giving it their first consideration. Vernon, Electra, Waurika, and other nearby cities were represented by their directors in this group, it was said.

The meeting to be held with Mr. Scott, it was announced, will be in the nature of a mass meeting, and in order to have sufficient space for the purpose, will be held at the new Industrial Mart. Definite announcement of the date on which this group will be convened again will be made as soon as Mr. Scott's attendance is scheduled, it was said.
