School's out early

Midland motorists are advised to be on the alert today for youngsters in school crosswalks at unusual times. Midland Independent School District will be dismissing students between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. today. Early dismissal days are scheduled to provide time for training and professional development for Texas teachers. Midland Youth Center will host "Double Dare Day" from 1:30-4 p.m. for junior high school students. The early dismissal day event will feature Double Dare activities, games and prizes at the center, 1001 W. Illinois Ave. April 29 is the last early dismissal day this school year.

Sandy Dennis dies

WESTPORT, Conn. — Sandy Dennis, the veteran character actress who won an Academy Award for her performance as the whimpering young faculty wife in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," has died. She was 54. Doris Elliott, a longtime friend, confirmed Dennis' death late Tuesday. She said she learned of the Dennis' death Monday from the actress' agent, Bill Tresch, but didn't know when she died. The agent and family members couldn't be reached Tuesday night.

Warmest winter

ASHEVILLE, N.C. — The past winter was the nation's warmest on record, the National Climatic Data Center reported Tuesday. Except for a few cold spells, you might call it the winter that never really arrived. The season's average temperature for the 48 contiguous states was 36.87 degrees Fahrenheit, said meteorologist Richard Heim. But he wasn't making any big claims for global warming. "One warm winter does not a climate trend make," he said.

'Hold' on measles

CORPUS CHRISTI — Health officials believe an aggressive immunization effort is finally helping them gain control of a vigorous South Texas measles outbreak. The outbreak, called one of the nation's most active by the Centers for Disease Control, began late last year. The busiest area, Nueces County, has confirmed 221 cases since January, said Annette Sultemeier, nursing director for the Corpus Christi-Nueces County Health Department. Another 30 cases were pending diagnosis, she said. "We feel like we've gotten a hold on the situation and we'll be seeing less cases from now," Ms. Sultemeier said. /3B

Clinton, Tsongas split

President sweeps GOP, can't shake Buchanan

■ Colorado's Democratic race is surprisingly tight between front-runners, Jerry Brown.

N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — The Democratic Presidential campaign moved decisively toward a two-man struggle Tuesday as Gov. Bill Clinton won convincingly in Georgia and former Sen. Paul E. Tsongas prevailed in Maryland.

President Bush won in Georgia what would normally be considered a comfortable victory, but Patrick J. Buchanan, his conservative challenger, once again showed the strength of a Republican protest vote in times of economic discontent.

Bush's margin of about 64 percent to Buchanan's 36 percent reflected a high percentage of votes from women, according to surveys of voters leaving polling places.

The voting in the three major Democratic primaries Tuesday — in Georgia, Colorado and Maryland — carried grim news for Sens. Tom Harkin of Iowa and Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, both of whom lagged at the back of the pack in the exit polls.

But former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, with a surprisingly strong showing in Colorado, seemed to get a toehold for his campaign against politics as usual.

In Georgia, with 96 percent of the vote counted, Clinton had 58 percent of the vote to 23 percent for Tsongas.

HOUSTON — As the first big Southern primary contest concluded in Georgia Tuesday, the surviving presidential candidates in both parties set their sights on next week's sweep of 11 crucial contests known as "Super Tuesday" and its biggest delegate plum of all — Texas.

"We're now in the period of primaries when it gets very volatile," said Bruce Buchanan, a University of Texas expert on presidential politics. "Nobody has really grabbed this thing yet."

Bush describes break of tax pledge as 'big' mistake of presidency

By Andrew Rosenthal

N.Y. Times News Service

ROSEMONT, Ill.— In his increasingly anxious search for a way to blunt the conservative assault of Patrick J. Buchanan, President Bush is acknowledging in a published interview that breaking his "no new taxes" pledge was the biggest mistake of his presidency because it is hobbling his bid for re-election.

"If I had it to do over, I wouldn't do what I did then, for a lot of reasons, including political reasons," Bush said in an interview with a columnist for The Atlanta Journal.

He did not say the tax increase hurt the economy, but he did say he regretted it because of all the "political grief" he has suffered for agreeing to a 1990 budget compromise with congressional Democrats that raised taxes.

Bush tried on Tuesday to soften his words in the interview, published on the eve of Tuesday's Republican primary in Georgia, where Buchanan has been hammering Bush for abandoning his 1988 pledge on taxes.

But his comments in the interview and in Tuesday's remarks

Bush son, Hutchison stump in Midland

By Debbie Lincecum

Staff Writer

Presidential son George W. Bush and State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison Tuesday urged Midlanders to send a message to other Texas voters with a strong show of support for President George Bush in the March 10 primary.

"West Texas needs to remember George Bush still holds dear to West Texas values of faith and family," the former Midland oilman said of his father. "It doesn't matter what the issue of the day is, what matters is what's right in his heart."

The two stopped at Midland International Airport briefly while crossing the state to drum up votes for the Bush re-election bid. The president faces Republican challenger Pat Buchanan for the party nomination.

"There's no question George Bush will be the nominee of the Republican party," Bush said. But, he added, his father welcomes competition at the primary level.

"Some might have been complacent after last year's big numbers," he said. "This is a chance for us to get in shape."

Hutchison urged a vote for Bush as "Texas' own president."

"These are tough times. In tough times, you look for the toughest and best leader, with integrity, who understands what the solutions are," she said. "We've got the best, let's support him. We need a great turnout in this county."

Bush said he was not disheartened by the recent opening of a Buchanan campaign headquar-

Senate-approved tax bill includes drilling incentive

DALLAS (AP) — The tax bill approved Tuesday by the Senate Finance Committee includes an incentive to spur domestic energy drilling, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said.

The provision was welcomed by the leader of the nation's largest association of independent oil and gas producers.

"There's a real recognition that if we don't stabilize production of oil and gas in the United States, we're in real trouble," said Denise Bode, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Domestic exploration fell to record low levels this winter while the nation's reliance on imported oil hit record highs.

The tax bill provision modifies a portion of the alternative minimum tax, created about 30 years ago to ensure people who

Phase III in the search for a new head football coach at Midland High is under way, according to Joseph Baressi, Midland's superintendent of schools.

"The search committee has recommended three names to be considered for the head football coaching position at Midland High," Baressi said Tuesday. "I'm in the process of interviewing those three candidates now."

The three survivors of more than 40 applicants are: David Browning, an assistant coach at Appalachian State University in North Carolina; Buster Leaf, head coach at Levelland; and Ronnie Reeger, head coach at Greenville.

EYES: Candidates set sights on Texas primary competition appears to be a two-man race heading into next week's contests.

On the GOP side, former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke, campaigning as a Republican to the chagrin of party leaders, for the first time will become a factor in presidential politics in Texas, Louisiana and other Southern states. Political analysts predict that campaigning in Texas could get even rougher for President Bush, who despite winning handily in Georgia Tuesday, failed to put away challenger Pat Buchanan.

"We are an open-primary state, so whatever appeal Duke has, he would get across the board," said Richard Murray, a pollster at the University of Houston. "If he breaks into double digits, that will be interesting. Duke will certainly fragment the anti-Bush vote."

From the Piney Woods of East Texas to the Dust Bowl of West Texas, and from the Oklahoma border to the Rio Grande, Texas is a state that has almost gotten used to hard times.

With the collapse of oil prices, the defense industry and the banking business, Texas has been battling the recession off and on — mostly on — for close to a decade.

As it was in New Hampshire, as it was in Georgia, and as it will be in California, the economy is the issue that will drive the Texas primary next Tuesday.

Like California, Texas is a media-mad state where candidates campaign more with television ads than with speeches and handshakes. But somehow, Texas politics is never dull. "Politics is the finest form of entertainment in the state of Texas: better than the zoo, better than the circus, rougher than football and even more aesthetically satisfying than baseball," columnist Molly Ivins wrote in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

With that introduction, Former Massachusetts Senator Tsongas is scheduled to arrive in the state Wednesday, to be followed by the rest of the Democratic field tomorrow, when the the presidential candidates debate in a nationally televised clash on ABC.

Bush and Duke were in the state last week, and conservative commentator Buchanan may visit the Alamo on Friday.

So far, here is how the three major Republican candidates and the five major Democratic contenders stack up in the nation's third-largest state:

■ BUSH: Even in the president's adopted home state, there is "a good deal of dissatisfaction" with Bush. But he has a solid organization and a longtime history with the state's voters. With Buchanan on his right and Duke on the far right, the president appears confident of a comfortable, if not smashing, victory.

■ BUCHANAN: With virtually no organization in Texas and little money, the tart-tongued commentator will rely almost totally on whatever boost he gets from Georgia. "If Buchanan crests 30 percent, he'll have done very well and will be a boil on Bush's neck," Bruce Buchanan (no relation) said.

■ DUKE: With little more than a divisive message and a near-miss at becoming governor of Louisiana, Duke will depend largely on name recognition. State Republican Party leaders would like to ignore him but they acknowledge that he will have appeal in Lone Star State.

■ CLINTON: Far and away the Democratic front-runner, Arkansas Governor Clinton has been organizing in Texas since 1972, when he worked the state for Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern. With the money, the organization and the endorsements in Texas, all Clinton needs now are the votes.

■ TSONGAS: "There's a little bit of a boomlet right now for Tsongas," said Jim Boynton, primary director for the Texas Democratic Party. Tsongas has one key endorsement from influential Texas Railroad Commissioner Bob Krueger (known in political circles as "The Endorser") and the hope that momentum from Tuesday's "Junior Tuesday" will send him sailing into "Super Tuesday."

■ BOB KERREY: "Kerrey just never caught on," Boynton said of the Nebraska senator. "The chemistry just wasn't there."

■ JERRY BROWN and TOM HARKIN: So far, the former California governor and the senator from Iowa are just blips on the radar screen.

Along with Texas and Louisiana, next week's "Super Tuesday" round of primaries includes contests in Delaware, Florida, Hawaii, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, Rhode Island and Tennessee.

ters in Midland, where the president once lived and his son still has a home.

"I hope Midlanders don't fall prey to this protest stuff," he said. "Our objective is to win the White House back in the fall. We'll welcome everybody back into the fold when it (the primary) is over."

He predicted Bush would win the support of Buchanan's conservative Republican backers after the primary.

Hutchison said the real campaign would come when Bush gets a chance to "talk about the issues" with the Democratic nominee.

"The person George Bush will eventually run against will be a political pygmy compared to this giant," the younger Bush said. "It's after the nomination that the issues become clear."

No matter how well his father does in the primaries, the national media will continue to emphasize the votes lost to Buchanan, Bush said.

"If he (Bush) gets 70 percent (of the votes), they say he should have gotten 71 percent," the younger Bush said.

Hutchison said Bush's "masterful" execution of Operation Desert Storm was a show of his strength and competence. But the Democrats, she said, refuse to recognize it and remain too concerned with domestic issues.

Bush said the Democrats have staked their entire campaign on jobs, neglecting foreign policy.

"That's a mistake," he said. "The economy is turning around and there are other issues out there."

He predicted when the Democrats pick a nominee, there will be a "huge stature gap" between the candidate and Bush.

"Our mission is to make sure we don't have a Democratic president. Can you imagine what that would be like?" Bush said. "It would be a disaster."

Local Bush supporters will begin in the next few days with a phone campaign and other action to encourage voters to choose the president in the primary, Bush said.

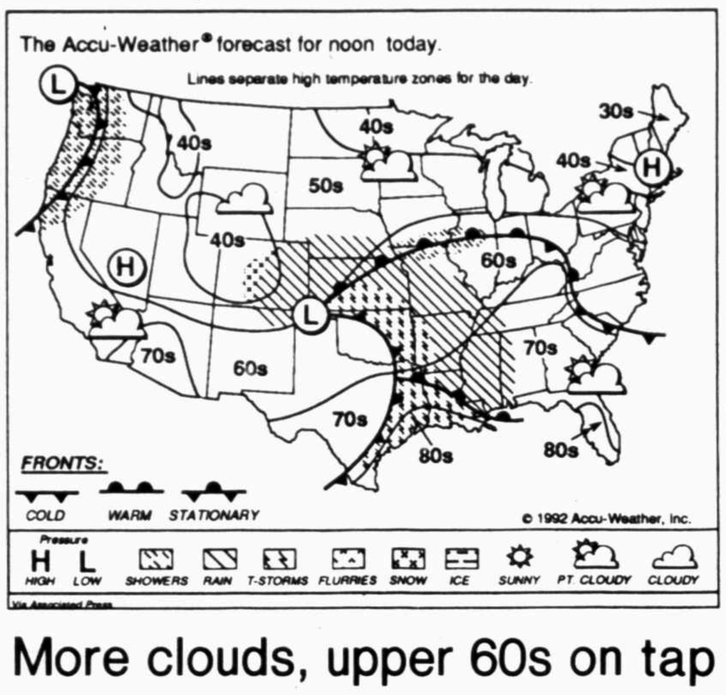
WEATHER SUMMARY



More clouds, upper 60s on tap

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies, a 20 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms and a high in the upper 60s with west winds at 20 to 30 mph and gusty.

On Tuesday the National Weather Service reported some severe thunderstorms moved through the area in the early evening. Marble-sized hail and winds as high as 46 mph were reported about seven miles southwest of Midland International Airport.

Tonight should be partly cloudy with a low near 40, according to NWS forecasters.

Thursday should be partly cloudy with a high near 70.

After an overnight low of 48, Tuesday's high reached 67 compared with the record high for that date of 89 set in 1974. The record low for that date is 19 set in 1989.

STATE

Southerly winds helped pump Gulf moisture into Texas Tuesday. Temperatures were mild.

Because of unstable atmospheric conditions and an approaching upper level disturbance, forecasters issued a flash flood watch Tuesday night for much of North Texas. In addition, there was a chance for overnight tornados across much of the eastern third of Texas, forecasters said.

Twisters were spotted Tuesday afternoon south of Waco. No damage or injuries were reported, the McLennan County Sheriff's Department said. Funnel clouds were also spotted near Coleman and possible tornados popped up on radar in the Panhandle.

A barn was reported blown down at Bushland and hail up to golfball size was reported near Tulia.

A fast-moving line of thunderstorms ripped across North Central Texas Tuesday night. Winds were clocked at 60 miles an hour as the storm approached Fort Worth at 10:30 p.m.

NATION

The heat wave that had gripped the northern Plains earlier in the week moved south across Georgia and Kentucky on Tuesday. In Utah, more than a foot of snow fell on some areas, while hail hit Colorado.

Snow also fell on parts of the Great Lakes region and the mountains of east-central Nevada. Parts of Arkansas and Louisiana got heavy rain.

A foot of snow had fallen at Utah's Brian Head Ski Resort by midmorning Tuesday, with 13 inches at Duck Creek Village. The Boulder Mountain area got 10 inches, and 7 inches fell in Bryce Canyon.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

PRIMARIES: Brown might be surprise of day

(From 1A)

In Maryland, with 85 percent tallied, Tsongas was on top, 41 percent to Clinton's 33 percent.

And in Colorado, with about half the vote counted, there was a three-way contest among Clinton, Brown and Tsongas, all within four percentage points of each other.

Over all, the voting set the stage for a major confrontation between Clinton and Tsongas over economic policy in the 11 contests to be held next week on Super Tuesday.

The Arkansas governor, who backs a tax cut for the middle class, took a populist tone Tuesday night as he assailed the former Massachusetts senator as a man who "wants a refined version of 1980s, trickle-down economics."

Tsongas, who opposes a tax cut for the middle class, asserted Tuesday night that his campaign would not "pander" but would "treat the voters as adults." He emphasized his appeal to independent voters, but the primary calendar over the next few weeks, with its emphasis on core Democratic constituencies such as black voters, could help Clinton.

There were 883 delegates at stake in Tuesday's voting. The apportionment of those delegates will not occur until the final tallies are known, although Clinton and Tsongas obviously fared well. Coming into this primary day, Brown had 10 delegates, Clinton had 100, Harkin had 76, Kerrey had 23 and Tsongas had 29, according to a tally by The New York Times. A nominating majority is 2,145.

It was the first day of the primary season that truly tested the candidates' national appeal, with voting in seven states. A primary was held in Utah, and caucuses took place in Minnesota, Idaho and Washington.

The Democratic candidates were in a fight for credibility and, in some cases, survival, while Bush was struggling to end Buchanan's embarrassing challenge. This phase of the race has been bitter, mean-spirited and very personal.

At the White House on Tuesday night, President Bush issued a statement saying Tuesday's elections brought him "another step closer to our goal of winning every primary and caucus." But he also addressed those who voted against him, saying: "I hear your concerns and understand your frustration with Washington. I am committed to regaining your support."

The White House spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, said he believed that those disaffected voters would return to Bush by November, although some polls suggest otherwise. But he added, "It's not helpful to have this kind of discontent being sowed by members of our own party."

After the three major primaries, Harkin and Kerrey faced the danger of being counted out of the race. Harkin was campaigning in the South this week, hoping to revive his campaign. Kerrey said he was troubled by his showing but would try to stay in the race.

Brown might have been the surprise of the day, as exit polls indicated a strong showing by him in Colorado. And Clinton could point to strong showings outside his base.

For Tsongas, the day was an important rite of passage required for any candidate who rockets from obscurity to prominence with a victory in New Hampshire.

His showing in Maryland and elsewhere Tuesday demonstrated his ability to compete outside his region. "I don't think we have to prove anything anymore," said Dennis Kanin, campaign manager for the former Massachusetts senator. "All we have to do is win the nomination."

In Georgia, Clinton demonstrated that he could hold an important state in his Southern base. Surveys of people leaving the voting places in Georgia showed the Arkansas Governor drawing three-fourths of the black vote, a good omen for the primaries next week on Super Tuesday, since blacks cast a fourth or a third of the Democratic primary ballots in many Southern states.

Clinton also ran well among older voters, and among those who felt that their family financial situation was worse today than it was four years ago.

Tsongas, on the other hand, had a decidedly upscale look to his support: He drew 4 in 10 of the voters with postgraduate educations, for exampie, and he ran well among voters who said they were better off today than they were four years ago.

Clinton, who campaigned in Florida on Tuesday, was already signaling the rough new phase of his battle with Tsongas, casting it as a choice between what Clinton calls his "people-based economics" and what he disdains as Tsongas' "more refined version of what we did in the 1980s." Clinton has said his rival focuses on the needs of big business.

On the Republican side, where Georgia was the only state that Buchanan emphasized, the voter surveys showed that Bush drew a lot of women's votes.

While men split nearly evenly between the president and Buchanan, 7 in 10 women voted for Bush. This gender gap was apparent in New Hampshire, and the Bush campaign tried to stoke it with a commercial in Georgia which asserted that Buchanan believes women to be psychologically unsuited for certain jobs.

Once again, Buchanan's plea to "send a message" to Bush seemed to appeal to a sizable minority of Republican voters. One-fourth of those surveyed said they picked their candidate to "send a message," and almost 90 percent of them voted for Buchanan.

The conservative commentator also seemed to benefit from economic discontent here, as he did in New Hampshire. About a quarter of those surveyed said their finances were worse today than four years ago, and two-thirds voted for Buchanan. Those who felt they were better off overwhelmingly voted for Bush.

The racial "quota" issue, which Buchanan hit hard when the race moved to the South, was not among the top issues cited by Republican primary voters as key to their votes. Buchanan made a striking racial appeal here, with a television commercial showing mostly white children while an announcer intones that Bush was closing doors on them because he had signed a "quota bill."

But judging from the exit polls, the issues that were far more important to Republican primary voters were the economy, taxes, education, health care and American competitiveneness in the world marketplace. Still, another issue that Buchanan has hit relentlessly — Bush's breaking of his "no new taxes" pledge — did seem to strike a chord with Republican primary voters.

Those voters who felt that experience was an important quality in a President gave their support, overwhelmingly, to Bush. Those who said family values were important were divided between the two.

Buchanan, who spent much of the day campaigning before conservative Christians in South Carolina, returned to Atlanta on Tuesday night to declare: "The battle of Georgia is now over, and it is won. The battle of the South now begins."

BUSH: President tries to blunt Buchanan assault to reporters at the White House marked not only an extraordinary act of political contrition but also an abrupt reversal that was intended to break his political slide.

In the past, Bush has resolutely, at times defiantly, refused to recant his agreement to raise taxes in 1990, which he insisted was a necessary evil to win a congressional agreement.

Some conservatives have said Bush needed to apologize for the tax increase to regain conservative support, especially in the South, and his remarks seemed clearly aimed at that goal.

Indeed, having decided to make that gesture to the right, the White House became concerned Monday night when Bush's apology did not receive as much attention as his advisers had hoped, and they went out of their way on Tuesday to make sure reporters knew of it.

It brought the president full circle in his search for a effective response to Buchanan's pointed attacks, which have included television commercials inundating voters with images of Bush declaring in 1988, "Read my lips: no new taxes."

Having tried apologies, shows of compassion and cajoling in New Hampshire, and then threats of negative campaigning and attack ads in the South, the president has gone back to apologies.

"I did it and I regret it," Bush said in the Journal interview, which was published as he flew to this Chicago suburb on Tuesday to speak before the National Association of Evangelicals, where he vowed to veto pending legislative that would establish the right to abortion by federal statute.

In another of his many interviews with Georgia journalists, this time on Sunday with television station WXIA in Atlanta, Bush said he wished he could have another chance at the decision to go back on the central pledge of his 1988 campaign.

"Anytime you get hammered on something, I guess you want to redo it," he said in what was a sharp departure from his usual insistence on "staying the course" despite political pressures.

Buchanan said Tuesday he was disappointed that Bush talked only about the political ramifications of the tax increase. "He doesn't consider that it was an economic blunder of the first magnitude," Buchanan said while campaigning in South Carolina. "He's just talking about the politics of it."

Democratic lawmakers were quick to seize on Bush's remarks as a new sign that he lacks leadership on domestic policy. "When the president backs away from the deficit reduction agreement because he's 'getting hammered,' isn't he really saying he lacks the leadership to make tough decisions?" said Rep. Richard A. Gephardt of Missouri, the House majority leader.

FINALISTS: Panel recommends three for post

"Since David (Browning) is from out-of-state, I interviewed him when he was here Friday," Baressi said.

Leaf was interviewed Tuesday and Reeger is scheduled to have his interview with Baressi today.

"We plan to have the (school) board involved in the decision," Baressi said. "I can't speak for the board's schedule over spring break, but they will be dealing with this at least after spring break.

"The target date to name a coach is still March 17, which is the next regular board meeting."

Baressi said there are plans to visit the home town of the top candidate or candidates.

"We want to check out things throughly and make sure everything is right before we make a decision," Baressi said.

The Midland High football position opened on Jan. 31 when Davis Corley, the head coach for the past three years, voluntarily stepped down to accept reassignment as an elementary intern within the Midland Independent School District.

Phase I opened the position for applications. More than 40 coaches applied for the job and several others were talked to.

The search committee then narrowed the applicants to eight for interviews on Feb. 18. The search committee was headed by Jack Tayrien, MISD athletic director. Also on the committee were Jane Carrens, MHS principal; Tom Holland, executive director of personnel for MISD; and Ricardo Torres, executive director of secondary operations for MISD.

The other five candidates interviewed in Phase II by the committee were Mike Zufoto of Richardson Lake Highlands, Gary Davenport of Sinton, Ron Lynch of Deer Park, Bren Holland of Monahans and Clovis Hale, the former line coach at the University of Texas.

Browning was a former Midland Lee line coach under both Spike Dykes and Tayrien from 1978 to 1984 before moving on to the same position at Texas A&I. Three years ago, Browning joined former Texas Tech head football coach Jerry Moore at Appalachian State.

If selected, this would be Browning's first head coaching job, but he has a wide range of experience at both the Class 5A level in Texas and at the college level.

Leaf, too, was a former assistant coach at Lee in 1974 and 1975 under Jim Acree. He left Lee with another Lee assistant, Tom Ritchie, to go to Idalou when Ritchie took that head coaching position.

Leaf took his first head coaching job at New Deal in 1980 and turned in a 25-6-1 record. He went to McCamey in 1983 and posted a 47-12 record that included three district championships and a state semifinal berth in 1983. He then moved to Levelland in 1988, where the school won its first district championship in 28 years in Leaf's first season at the school. His 12-year head coaching record is 98-32-2.

Reeger has had head coaching jobs at Petersburg, Cleburne, Reagan County and Alpine before moving to his current job at Greenville in 1991. He has eight district and co-championships to his credit, three bi-district wins, one area victory and one quarterfinal berth.

He is known for turning around a woeful program at Cleburne and he led Alpine to its first winning season in 10 years when he took that job in 1990. He also has been an assistant coach at 5A schools of Spring Branch and L.D. Bell and has 4A experience at Fort Stockton and Vernon.

"I feel all three are excellent choices," Tayrien said. "All three have West Texas backgrounds. All three have been assistants at the 5A level and all three have helped turn football programs around. Those were qualities we were seeking."

BILL: Provision is welcomed

make a lot of money pay some federal tax despite having a lot of legitimate deductions.

Independent producers have decried modifications to the tax made in 1986 that add back, or makes "preferences" out of, deductions on things like intangible drilling costs and depletion of wells.

The chief incentive in the Senate's tax bill cuts in half the minimum tax preference on intangible drilling costs, or IDC.

"Under current rules, producers find themselves increasingly denied the benefits of the IDC as falling oil prices bring their incomes down," said Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who chairs the committee. "As a result they have cut back on drilling."

A tax measure passed by the House last week does not contain the drilling incentive, a scenario similar to the last time major tax legislation was acted on.

In fall 1990, the Senate proposed alternative minimum tax changes to encourage stripper wells and drilling in tough geologic formations. They were accepted by House members and the Bush administration during the so-called "budget summit."

While other key portions of the new tax bill make a veto likely from President Bush, there is support in the administration for the energy incentives.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, in a letter to Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., last week said the alternative minimum tax "exacerbates disincentives to drilling" and should be improved.

Famine not likely this year, Russian ambassador says

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Russia's new ambassador to Washington said Tuesday that the former Soviet republics would most likely get through this winter without any famine, but that disruptions in planting this spring could lead to serious shortages next year.

"I don't think that this year famine is the real menace," said Vladimir N. Lukin, during an interview in a sitting room of the former Soviet embassy, now the Russian embassy, on 16th Street. "Of course, in some parts the situation in foodstuffs will be difficult, but I am sure that we will survive until the new harvest."

Lukin said he is much more concerned about next winter. "First, everything depends on the Almighty whether it will be good harvest," said the 59-year-old envoy.

"Second it will depend on whether we succeed in implementing our agrarian reform — in a situation in which our agricultural industry is in crisis. I am afraid that this harvest will not be matched by appropriate preparations and that is frankly why I consider the next year the most difficult."

Lukin, who served as the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Russian Parliament before assuming the post of the first Russian ambassador in the United States since 1917, said that such concerns underscore the need for both Russia and the United States to cooperate in organizing technical and humanitarian assistance to the former Soviet Union.

While he repeatedly expressed thanks for aid Washington has already provided, and blamed his own country for many of the failures in getting assistance to the right places at the right time, he nevertheless made clear that unless the United States and the West did more to support the emerging democracies of the Commonwealth of Independent States, they would turn to other countries, like Iran, for help.

"We have to make many choices," said Lukin, who speaks good English thanks to his 19 years of work as an analyst at the U.S.A.-Canada Institute, before going into politics in the late 1980s. "We would prefer to do it with the United States because we consider it the first democracy. But we should look for some alternatives if it is not possible. But now, under the understandable desire to get anything from anybody, could lead to some undesirable connections."

Therefore, he said, the question of supporting Russia and other reform-minded republics cannot be looked at by the West from a narrow security, or economic, perspective.

Rather, he said, it has to be looked at more broadly from the perspective of supporting the spread of democracy around the globe, as well as the security of "Western civilization."

"If the United States does not do something very effective, not only for Russia but with this whole Eurasian area, the political leadership would be reproached for a lost historical opportunity, and strategic opportunity to create a combined military, economic, social and political common space in which democracy can live," he said.

"For us," added Lukin, "it is a problem of life or death," but for the United States, as the leader of the democratic world, it is a question of how "it will stand up to this historical challenge."

Armed Muslims move to defend Sarajevo

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Hundreds of armed Muslims took up positions late Tuesday on roads into Sarajevo to confront Serbs reportedly moving on the city, the center of a growing ethnic conflict over Bosnia-Hercegovina's independence.

Faced with the prospect of a conflagration, President Alija Izetbegovic, leader of Bosnia's Muslims, and Serb leader Radovan Karadzic later issued a joint appeal for both sides to halt their actions and remain peaceful.

The Serbian marchers were angry over reports Muslims had attacked Serbs in the nearby village of Pale. An unidentifed man in Pale told Sarajevo radio that gunmen drove through the town and "shot at everything that moved." He said a child was shot in the chest. Tanjug news agency reported a second person wounded.

Karadzic and Izetbegovic agreed at a meeting with a federal army commander to set up joint security patrols to replace barricades set up by militants.

At least four people were killed and nine injured on Sunday and Monday as Serb militants set up barricades of buses and trucks in Sarajevo, the republic's capital, and fired on peace demonstrators.

Sarajevo radio reported two Muslims were killed Tuesday in the town of Gatsko, in the southwest. In the northern town of Bosanski Brod, four people were injured before local defense units restored order, the radio said.

Bosnia-Hercegovina has simmered for months over tensions among its Serbs, Croats and Muslims — the latter group Slavs whose ancestors converted to Islam while subjects of the Ottoman empire.

Violence broke to the surface after a weekend vote for Bosnian independence, which Serbs bitterly oppose. At least eight people were killed in Sarajevo, a city of 600,000 where an Austrian archduke's assassination ignited World War I.

Treasurer served Midlanders well

During the present political climate, it might be safer to say nothing about a public servant who has held political office for 33 years. Today's wisdom dictates term limitation and political correctness.

But to remain silent would constitute a gross injustice to Dee Thompson who retired Sunday due to ill health from her post as Midland County treasurer.

Ms. Thompson served Midland County's residents well in the critically important treasurer's post. And, yes, she did that job for 33 years. But there is something to be said for serving in a position of public trust that long a period of time without a blemish. It's a characteristic of public service that is threatened by the impetus for change that has pushed term limitations forward as a solution.

Although Ms. Thompson retired as a Republican officeholder, it wasn't always that way. She was first elected on the Democratic ticket in 1958 and continued to serve all Midland County's citizens admirably as a Democrat until January 1989 when she and other longtime Midland County officeholders joined the growing movement in the old Democratic ranks to the Republican Party. In that change, Ms. Thompson became part of the maturing process for politics in Texas. Texas actually became a two-party state when conservatives finally abandoned a Democratic Party too closely aligned with ultra-liberal interests.

But whether wearing the label of a Democrat or a Republican, Dee Thompson served Midlanders admirably. That fact was verified by the number of times she was sent back by voters to keep doing her job. Good basic job skills know no party affiliation.

We wish Ms. Thompson the best in her retirement.

Serbs, Croats misjudge Vance, his capabilities

Cyrus Vance guards himself with smiles, manners and friendliness. So the warlords of Serbia and Croatia were surely disarmed into believing they could stare down his efforts to arrange a cease-fire between them — as they had done many times before with other mediators.

Gelb

But like so many committed to conflict and killing, the warlords had misjudged and underestimated this deeply tenacious, deeply moral man.

Last month, the haters and leaders of haters of the former Yugoslav nation formally agreed to stop killing each other. And the United Nations Security Council, which had dispatched Cyrus Vance to the scene months ago, voted to deploy some 14,000 troops to keep the peace.

The New York establishment lawyer used no magic or guile, no outlandish promises or prevarications, no table-pounding or theatrics, to do his job. He knew these tricks well, as practiced by other recent American secretaries of state. But he did not believe that tricks produced lasting results. And as a man of the old school, they were not his way.

Rather, Vance wore the haters down as he had often done before in places like Cyprus in 1967, where he kept Greece and Turkey from each other's throats, and in the Camp David accords of 1978, when he played such a critical role in keeping Israel and Egypt at the bargaining table.

Each time, as in Yugoslavia, he bore down on them relentlessly with the simple credo: Killing is wrong — and most decidedly not in your real interest.

Vance's words of reason and humanity were not new to me. His life and mine have intertwined many times in politics and friendship. He gave me great honor when he asked me to run the State Department's Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs during the Carter administration.

Perhaps the words were not novel to the Serbs and Croats either. But they had to note something special about the man who was saying them: He was an absolute mule in the pursuit of agreement.

Cyrus Vance always proceeds as a lawyer, not a philosopher. He would be the last to pretend otherwise. His persuasive power rests in his rectitude, in stubbornly knowing what is right and in stubbornly knowing that killing is almost always wrong.

This is what sets him apart from so many leaders who fear to fail even in pursuit of peace and so abandon the quest. Is this not a Nobel quality?

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

President Bush tries to humiliate Israel

WASHINGTON — The depth of James Baker's anti-Israel animus was displayed last week when he complained to Congress, "Nobody else is asking us for $10 billion in addition to the $3 billion to $4 billion we give every year with no strings attached."

Safire

That was a lie twice over. Secretary Baker is a lawyer who weighs his every word. He knows that Israel asks only for a cosigner on a loan from private banks, has offered to pay the 2 percent set-aside costs, and is by no means "asking us for $10 billion".

He knows, too, that $1.2 billion a year comes right back to us as repayment for military aid we "sold" Israel to offset our sales of advanced jets and tanks to its enemies. And most of the economic aid is for goods that must be purchased in the U.S. So much for "no strings" from an administration that just forgave Egypt's $7 billion debt.

The Iceman of Foggy Bottom is prepared to practise such deception to accomplish one goal: to limit the settlement of the West Bank to Arabs only. The majority of Jews in Israel believe that would lead to an independent PLO state at their jugular.

To this war-inviting end, President Bush has taken two steps that would have been anathema to any previous U.S. president:

First, he has held hostage Jews fleeing from feared pogroms in Russia and Ukraine. Unless Isreal knuckles under to Bush's wishes about the West Bank, there will be no help in borrowing money to house the refugees.

Second, he is unabashedly seeking to topple the government of an ally. His message to Israelis is unmistakable: vote out Shamir and his party of the right — or else.

How can he get away with this strong-arm stuff? Why isn't he concerned about public opinion and congressional reaction?

Here's why: On the left, he has the editorial support of our leading liberal newspapers; on the right, he sees the Wall Street Journal's news pages savaging Israel's supporters in the US.

In the Congress, he euchred Sen. Patrick Leahy, overseer of foreign aid appropriations, into what the Vermont Democrat thought was a compromise that would assert mutual interests: deducting from the loan guarantee the amount Israel chose to spend on settlements in disputed land.

But now Bush's operatives are gleefully passing the word that they have compromised that compromise. They will let Congress authorize the loan guarantee — but only if it gives the president and Baker the power to withhold its use if Israel does not obey the Bush administration's West Bank diktats.

Such an abdication of responsibility would transfer power from Congress to the Executive Branch concerning Mideast affairs (and be a step in the direction of a line-item veto, which every president seeks.)

Too many supporters of Israel in the U.S. have persuaded themselves that it's OK for Bush to direct a Labor victory, because they think Yitzhak Rabin will stop the settlements, hand over the West Bank and call that peace.

But Rabin is on the record against political settlements — not settlements needed for Israel's security, which he supported as prime minister in the 70s. He is no Peres patsy. If a Labor-Likud unity government emerges, as is likely, Bush would be infuriated at its refusal to accept his Solomonic decision to cut Israel's territory in half.

If Bush succeeds in turning the Leahy compromise into a Leahy doublecross, Baker will tell Israel: "Take it and leave it." Take the guarantee to borrow the refugee-housing money and leave the West Bank to exclusive Arab development — and, ultimately, Arab sovereignty.

No self-respecting nation can accept such a dishonorable deal. Better to withdraw the guarantee request and let the Russian refugees live in tent cities — call them "Bushvilles" — throughout the West Bank. Perhaps televised suffering will appeal to the world's conscience.

Bush put a leash on Israel when it wanted to respond to Iraqi Scud attacks. He has been trying to bring Israel to heel by electing his choice of a prime minister. And now he wants Congress to let him force the people of Israel — desperate to house refugees from feared religious persecution — to sit up and beg.

Too much. In trying to humiliate the only free nation in the Middle East, George Bush and his hatchet man at State demean us all.

We need to put responsible people on hospital board

Our respresentatives seem to have gone beyond ignorance into the realm of stupidity. Have they confused the West Texas accepting and easy-going person with inability to act? Those who have not responded to the citizens they represent are being replaced; I do hope they find meaningful employment because times are hard here in the real world.

When things were booming, citizens were much more willing to let expensive projects pass. In hard times, we are having to watch our pennies while the city council and the hospital continue their extravagant spending, apparently unaware that "we" have said, "Put a lid on it."

If they continue to ignore "the people," they had best acquaint themselves with the Texas Employment Commission. We have been pushed against the wall and are ready to fight now; we are ready to vote them all out of office if that is what it takes to set things right.

There are three seats on the important hospital board coming up for re-election (Districts 3, 4, and 7). DeLaney is the only one in my opinion who deserves consideration for re-election because he has been the sole vote against tax increases. Dr. Viney is too busy to give this any serious commitment. Tom Bruner is running for judge and with any luck he will be defeated and leave town. Now is the time to file (at no cost) for these positions so we can continue the job we started and put responsible persons in positions to really represent us. Interested persons need to contact Judy Farris at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center now (685-1111) to file for these three seats.

Airport inspection claims call construction into question

It seems to me as if someone isn't being entirely up front with the taxpayers in Midland County if we're to believe what was reported about the recent inspection at the Midland International Airport.

Pictures were shown about some serious deterioration all through the terminal building.

A comment was made that the concrete in the covered parking area is crumbling and the jointing will have to be replaced before any increase in parking volume can be tolerated.

All of these things have happened to a structure that can't be much more than 10 years old.

Under normal circumstances, almost all construction done for government, state and municipal programs require a performance bond and are inspected periodically to see that construction specifications are met. A reasonable guess would be that this procedure was followed in the construction of the airport.

If such was the case and it really is a fact that the airport is as bad as reported, the city and/or county attorney should vigorously investigate that situation to insure that the taxpayers of Midland County got what they paid for. The construction company that did the work and the inspector who approved it ought to have some really interesting answers, because properly mixed and poured concrete should last considerably more than 10 years.

MHS engineering design team offers thanks to community

On behalf of the members of Midland High School's National Engineering Design Challenge team I want to openly express our appreciation for all the support we received from the community during our competition in Austin and Washington, D.C.

First, we want to thank our parents for all their encouragement, especially Robert and Linda Fanning who allowed us to use their house for meetings. We are also grateful for the Texas Society of Professional Engineers, who sponsored the regional and state contests. Financial contributions from the Society of Petroleum Engineers, the Math and Science Booster Club, Esther Denton, Jim and Sue Hardwick, Wanda Wells, Carol Orem, Tillie Looney, Roy Harris and an anonymous donor helped make our trip to Washington possible.

We want to say a special word of thanks to Fitzco Sound, Inc. for helping us acquire audio-visual materials, James Robertson, who provided valuable input as our advising engineer, and Billy Gilbreath, who accompanied us to Austin and Washington as a judge.

Finally, we are very grateful for the newspaper coverage provided by the Midland Reporter-Telegram. It is encouraging to know that the people of this community are genuinely interested and supportive of academic achievement in our schools.

Commissioners work to protect the interests of all residents

Haven't we all had to "tighten our belts" lately with the current economy? In my household, if the money isn't there, I don't spend it.

Why has the Commissioners' Court been critized so strongly for trying to lower expenses and protect the taxpayer's money? Each time they seek areas to cut spending they are accused of wrongdoing.

Recently in this newspaper, I have read the term "their general funds." I don't think any one of the five members of the Commissioners' Court believes the money they administer is personally theirs to do with as they please.

I have known Commissioner Win Brown for many years and have heard him speak of the difficult decisions the court is faced with often, especially at budget time. I, for one, am glad we have Win Brown and the other members of the court who are working to protect our interests all of the time.

Election year calls for bashing Washington

It's no fun living in Washington during a presidential election year. All the candidates do is bash the nation's capital in spite of the fact that most of them live here. It makes good politics but bad neighbors.

I was at a party in California last week and one of the women began our conversation by asking, "Where are you from?"

Buchwald

I replied, "Washington, D.C."

She immediately backed away as if I had said "Mike Tyson."

I tried to recoup. "I'm not really from Washington, D.C. I live just north of Georgetown which in the District is really considered part of Delaware."

Several guests had overheard the conversation and gathered around. One man asked, "How can you people come up with a $2 trillion deficit?"

I said, "We didn't. Most Washingtonians have nothing to do with the deficit. Some of us have never even seen a trillion dollars."

"Pat Buchanan claims that Washington is responsible for all the rot in the country."

I said, "He only said that because he lives in Virginia, and people there never have anything nice to say about us.

"George Bush lives in Washington," I told them.

A Hollywood producer for Paul Tsongas interrupted, "No, he doesn't. His official residence for tax purposes is a hotel room in Houston. He just sleeps in the White House when he's in town."

A man wearing a Rolex watch asked, "How come you Washington residents want to give all our money to federal education programs?"

I explained, "You must be misinformed. We're cutting back on education and giving the money to Star Wars."

A woman joined in the conversation, "I watched Dan Quayle last night and he dislikes Washington more than President Bush."

I didn't argue. "Quayle has always been down on the capital. He complains that we don't know how to keep up our golf courses."

"I can understand the Republicans campaigning against D.C., but why are the Democrats doing it too?"

"No one ever got elected to public office by saying a good word about Washington," I yelled. "If they did, it would be political suicide."

The hostess said, "I think that we're being unfair. This man may be from Washington, but he's still an American."

"Who says?" another guest asked.

"There are two sides to every story," the hostess declared. "A person can't be responsible for where he is housed."

I was perspiring, "The only thing I can say is that Washington is where the major decisions for this country are made — but what's more important, it is the cow's teat of America. All good things, from health care to defense contracts, spill out of our city, and we protect everything from Kuwait to the spotted owl. If it wasn't for D.C. there wouldn't be a Ted Koppel. We may not be perfect, but we are still the only hope for every bankrupt S&L in America.

"Maybe we're not as good as everyone would like us to be, but I have one question for you folks in California: Would you rather have the citizens of Buffalo run your lives than the people of Washington?"

Security Council weighs taking control of Iraqi assets

By Paul Lewis
New York Times News Service

■ More world news/ 1D

UNITED NATIONS — The United States and the other four permanent members of the Security Council are considering using Iraqi assets frozen abroad to pay for humanitarian supplies and the destruction of Baghdad's most dangerous weapons, and to start compensating victims of its invasion of Kuwait, diplomats said Tuesday.

Iraq's assets abroad are thought to total about $5 billion. The amount in the United States is about $500 million, according to recent congressional testimony by the Bush administration.

The council has already asked Iraq to resume selling oil, its major export, under the terms of the cease-fire that ended the Persian Gulf war. The terms require that the money be handed over to the United Nations, which would then spend it on food and medicine, the elimination of Iraqi weapons and reparations to Kuwait and to individuals who suffered losses as a result of the Iraqi invasion and occupation.

Iraq has returned some of the property it plundered from Kuwait, but so far has refused to sell its oil, despite evidence of mounting hardship in Iraq. The government says it will not compromise its sovereignty by having the United Nations dictate how Iraqi money is spent.

Because Iraq has refused to sell oil, the fund set up to pay compensation claims against Iraq remains empty.

The United States has suggested that priority go to compensating poor foreign workers who lost their savings as a result of the invasion, since this would provide a useful injection of hard currency into countries like Bangladesh, Sri Lanka and Egypt, which are heavily dependent on remittances from citizens working abroad.

Iraq is also refusing to cooperate with U.N. efforts to identify and destroy its most dangerous weapons, and is defying international pressure to end an economic blockade against the Kurdish region of northern Iraq.

Britain and France are urging the council to send an envoy to Iraq to persuade the authorities to lift the trade blockade on the Kurdish region and to end military harassment of Shiite Muslims in the south.

Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz is expected to meet with the Security Council here on March 11 to explain why Iraq is refusing to destroy ballistic missile equipment and to provide further details of its armament plans.

Diplomats say the United States has proposed three ways to use Iraq's frozen assets.

The first would be a Security Council order directing that the $1.5 billion worth of Iraqi oil in transit when the international embargo against Iraq was imposed be put under U.N. control. These assets, in the form of oil and delayed oil payments, has already been earmarked by the council for compensation payments and humanitarian aid.

Another option, officials say, would be a resolution directing the Bank for International Settlements to hand over more than $300 million that Iraq keeps there. This cash is a deposit from which the bank settles other countries' trade accounts with Iraq.

Finally, the Security Council could order or encourage countries to unblock Iraq bank deposits and other financial assets, including shares held in companies.

Former Israeli prime minister seriously ill

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Former Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who won the Nobel Peace Prize for leading Israel to peace with Egypt, suffered a heart attack Tuesday and was unconscious and partially paralyzed in a Tel Aviv hospital.

Begin

The 78-year-old Begin, who has suffered several heart attacks dating to the 1960s, was in serious condition and breathing with the help of a respirator, health officials said.

Begin is a major figure in Israel's history, and he once was known for stirring the Israeli public with sharp-tongued rhetoric. But he resigned without explanation in 1983 as the army was bogged down in the Lebanon war. He has been a virtual recluse since.

As leader of the right-wing Likud bloc, Begin in 1977 broke the power of the center-left Labor Party that had ruled Israel since its founding. Likud remains the governing party 15 years later.

Begin won the Nobel prize in 1978 for establishing peace with Egypt, the only Arab country to reach a settlement with Israel. But he also presided over the 1982 Lebanon invasion, which became Israel's most divisive war.

There has been wide speculation that Begin's seclusion stems from a combination of that war and depression he experienced over the death of his wife, Aliza, in 1982.

Hagai Elias, spokesman for the Health Ministry, reported that Begin's condition improved following an initial setback after he was brought unconscious to Ichilov Hospital at 7:35 a.m.

After issuing detailed bulletins on Begin's condition in the morning, hospital officials refused to give out information, apparently at the request of Begin's son, Benjamin, a member of Parliament.

WHAT ARE THE IDEAL QUALIFICATIONS FOR OUR JUDGE?

ANSWER:

Someone with significant experience in the 142nd District Courtroom. A person with a strong background and the most practical courtroom experience in front of a jury - civil or criminal.

FACT:

As 142nd District Court Trial Chief and Midland County Chief Narcotics Prosecutor, Robin Malone Sams works in the 142nd District Court. As lead prosecutor, she has tried over 50 cases in front of a jury in seven years, and hasn't lost a case in five years. She has presented 18 cases before the 8th Court of Appeals and has never lost a case to appeal.

FACT:

Half the cases tried in the 142nd District Court are criminal cases. And over the past five years criminal cases have almost doubled. Last year, the 142nd District Court work load allocated 16 weeks for civil jury trials and 18 weeks for criminal jury trials. In fact, court records indicate that once you remove the tax cases which take almost none of the judge's time and remove the family law cases which are practiced in the 318th District Court, what remains are 684 pending civil and 673 pending criminal cases.

FACT:

100% of Midland County's residents will be affected by the crime and drug problem. We need an experienced judge, strong on crime and drugs to protect us.

VOTE Early until March 6.

Finance committee approves middle-income tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brushing aside veto threats, the Senate Finance Committee on Tuesday approved a $300-per-child, middle-income tax cut that would be paid for by raising taxes on the wealthy.

The bill includes a capital-gains reduction, liberalized Individual Retirement Accounts and investment incentives President Bush has proposed to stimulate the economy.

About 20 million families would get the permanent tax cut. Fewer than 1 million of the richest Americans would have to pay more.

The party-line vote was 11-9. Senate consideration is expected next week.

"I hope the president will work with us, not obstruct the process," Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said as the committee began work on the bill, which he proposed. "But if he wants to continue to protect the wealthiest at the expense of average Americans — and veto this bill because it asks 0.7 percent of the wealthiest to pay their fair share — that's his choice."

Bush says daily that he will veto any bill that raises taxes, even though his own budget calls for tax increases this year. The Senate bill would not result in a net tax increase; it would raise some taxes by a total of $57 billion over the next five years and cut other taxes by the same amount.

"It doesn't create one job," insisted Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas. "This bill is going to be vetoed and that veto will be sustained. That's what the Democrats want — the so-called fairness issue," so they can accuse Bush of killing a middle-income tax cut.

■ More national news/2D

Dole even accused Democrats of tinkering with the proposed tax increase in such a way that members of Congress would not have to pay. Bentsen, prepared for that charge, replied that a check already had been made and that more than 70 of the 100 senators would have to pay more if the bill became law.

Outnumbered Republicans on the committee washed their hands of the bill and urged Democrats to quickly do what they had to do: send the measure to the Senate to pave the way for a Bush veto.

"Democrats appear intent on raising taxes while doing nothing to improve competitiveness and productivity," said Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, the senior Republican on the committee.

Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, noted that many Republicans had urged tax cuts in the 1980s. "Now, when Democrats propose to cut taxes, we are told it's politics," he said.

The Finance Committee bill is similar in many parts to the one that Democrats pushed through the House last week. One key difference is in the principal individual tax cut.

The Senate bill would give a credit of $300 per child to families with incomes up to $50,000 a year; the credit would drop gradually and would not be available to those with incomes over $70,000. By comparison, the House voted a credit of up to $200 per wage earner ($400 per couple) regardless of family size or income.

Senators included in their bill some version of all seven economic-stimulus provisions that Bush asked Congress to pass by March 20. Some, such as the capital-gains cut, are considerably different from what Bush wants. Others, including relief for the real estate industry and incentives for business to buy machinery this year, are quite similar.

While Bush asked for a $5,000 credit for some home buyers, the Senate plan would give that break only to those who buy newly built homes.

The Finance Committee also endorsed a major expansion of Individual Retirement Accounts, making fully deductible IRAs available once again to almost all wage earners, including those covered by company pensions. In addition, a worker could forgo an immediate IRA deduction in favor of an account generating tax-free earnings.

Center reports nation's warmest winter on record

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The past winter was the nation's warmest on record, the National Climatic Data Center reported Tuesday.

Except for a few cold spells, you might call it the winter that never really arrived.

The season's average temperature for the 48 contiguous states was 36.87 degrees Fahrenheit, said meteorologist Richard Heim. But he wasn't making any big claims for global warming.

"One warm winter does not a climate trend make," he said.

It may well be just another warm fluctuation, as happened in the 1950s and the 1930s, he said.

This winter's temperature tops the previous record holder, 1953-54, when the nation averaged 36.00. Close at third was the winter of 1933-34 at 35.97.

Meteorologists consider winter to be the months of December, January and February. Thus, meteorological spring began March 1, rather than waiting until spring equinox on the March 20.

A main reason U.S. temperatures stayed warmer than usual was that the polar jet stream stayed far north along the Canadian border, meteorologist William Brown said. The jet stream kept warm air circulating across the United States as a second, subtropical jet, pulled in warm moist air from the Pacific Ocean.

Heim noted that the figures were preliminary and cautioned that final totals available in a few months may drop this past winter out of first place.

Older pupils should move, parents think

■ Many parents who attended community meeting said Santa Rita's fifth-graders should be moved to Bush.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Shuffling older children from one school to another is preferable to putting younger ones in the same situation, according to most parents at the school district's final community meeting Tuesday night.

Rainy weather didn't keep about 80 parents from seizing one last opportunity to speak to school board trustees on the Greathouse issue.

Parents, some with prepared statements, calmly stated their views to school board trustees in the Lee High School cafeteria.

At issue is how to ease overcrowding at Santa Rita Elementary School, utilize 17 new classrooms at Bush that will be ready for students in September 1992 and supply Greathouse Elementary School — scheduled to open in September 1993 — with pupils.

Initially, school administrators presented five proposals to parents at community meetings that have been held at Santa Rita, Bush, Long and Travis elementary schools.

Joe Cummins, executive director of planning for the Midland school district, said school board trustees and parents have indicated that "there are two proposals which have the most probability of being successful."

One plan, proposed by Midland Independent School District staff, would target Santa Rita primary pupils and move them to Bush for one year until Greathouse is completed. It would result in Bush remaining a primary grade school serving pupils in kindergarten through third grade (K-3).

The second option, proposed by parents from Santa Rita and recommended by trustee Ken Marks, who represents their neighborhood, would move Santa Rita's fifth grade and cluster in its entirety to Bush for one year. It would result in Santa Rita remaining a primary school.

"Whatever decision we choose, the materials will be in place (when school starts) for those students," Cummins said.

MISD administrators said they will have to begin ordering materials as soon as possible if the fifth grade is moved to Bush, because it is a primary school and there are no books in the library or furniture for fifth graders, for example.

Pete Scherer presented school trustees with a petition containing 470 names of parents supporting the position to move Santa Rita's fifth grade cluster to Bush.

"Both alternatives have drawbacks," he said. "But everyone should remember, this is a one-year solution ... There is a significant difference in fifth graders handling this situation than K-3 students."

School board trustees have noted that the drawback to the proposal to move fifth graders to Bush is that Bush will be overcrowded.

"It would result in having 664 students at Bush and 541 at Santa Rita," Cummins said.

"It is unacceptable to take students from one overcrowded school and overcrowd them at another," Michelle Howard said.

"Before my child started kindergarten my husband and I debated on public or private schools ... We decided to try public schools and we are happy with this decision," she said.

Ms. Howard, whose child attends Bush, praised the teachers and the attention her child is receiving at the school.

"Just because a child goes to another school does not mean they can't still be friends," she said, referring to the contention of some parents that children will lose friendships in changing schools.

Bruner disagrees with Sams

■ Bruner disputes his opponent's contention that half of the cases tried in 142nd District Court are criminal cases.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Tom Bruner, Republican candidate for 142nd District Court judge, disputed claims made by opponent Robin Malone Sams that half the cases tried in the court are criminal.

Bruner

Sams

In addition, Bruner, during a news conference Tuesday, said he will not permit plea agreements (sometimes referred to as plea bargains) by District Attorney's Office prosecutors if elected judge.

The issue of the type of cases — civil or criminal — are the bulk of the 142nd District Court has been disputed in reference to what experience best prepares someone for judge.

Bruner, 48, with the law firm Boldrick & Clifton, has maintained that extensive knowledge in civil law is more useful to a judge than criminal law experience. Because of the complexity of civil law, someone versed in that area can address criminal cases easier than vice versa, he said.

In addition, Bruner claims — as he stressed on Tuesday — that the 142nd District Court handles more civil cases than criminal.

A newspaper advertisement for Republican candidate Robin Malone Sams, 33, a prosecutor for the District Attorney's Office, states, "Half the cases tried in the 142nd District Court are criminal cases."

But according to district clerk's records supplied by Bruner, there were 53 civil trials, or 80 percent of the total, and 13 criminal trials conducted by the 142nd District Court in 1991.

The breakdown expressed by Ms. Sams' advertisement is a ploy initiated because of her lack of civil experience, Bruner said.

"The reason this is important (civil vs. criminal case load) is because I am campaigning as a businessman and my experience with civil law," Bruner said.

Ms. Sams, defended her stand on the court's caseload.

"What I am talking about is jury trials and time spent by judges," Ms. Sams said. The court in question set aside 18 jury-weeks for trials of criminal cases and 16 for civil jury trials last year, she said.

Foreign news teams quiz Midlanders

■ Staff of Japanese TV network and Washington bureau chief of London newspaper visit Tall City to learn more about Bush and small-town politics.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

At least two international news teams were in Midland Tuesday, attempting to learn more about the town where George Bush got his start in the oil business and Republican politics.

The visits coincide with the fast-approaching election extravaganza occurring on March 10 — also known as Super Tuesday.

"We wanted to understand how people in the town feel about Mr. Bush — to know if they respect him as the president and to see if they will vote again for him," said Kenzo Hashimoto, staff producer of the New York bureau of Japan's TV Asahi. "I was surprised at the number of people who were negative against Bush. So many are frustrated with him."

"But what is funny is Midland people we spoke with did not want to give us their names when they spoke bad of Bush. We found that very humorous since the show will only be shown in Japan. Who are these people afraid will see them?" Hashimoto said.

Hashimoto and his five staff members plan to visit cities in three other states before returning to Tokyo to broadcast a segment summarizing their findings. The show will be televised in Japan on March 9.

"Our show will be telling what the mood is about whether Bush can win, and how decisively he can win," Hashimoto said. "We are also trying to get an idea about what the Buchanan factor is."

"Right now, it certainly seems to be rather large," he added.

Hashimoto and his crew arrived Monday at 4 a.m. and have since spent the majority of their time polling local residents and visiting sites distinctive to West Texas, including an oil field owned by an independent oil company.

Hashimoto said he believes America is mostly conservative and he expects Buchanan to give the president a "run for money."

The Japanese entourage expected to leave for New Orleans late Tuesday night.

"Now we will be observing Mr. Buchanan and how he may fare in Louisiana. We are hearing that many David Duke supporters are swaying to Buchanan," Hashimoto said.

Also in Midland this week is Xan Smiley, Washington, D.C., bureau chief for The Sunday Telegraph of London.

"I make a point of visiting the small towns of America during political campaigns. Small towns are the gut of America," Smiley said. "Where else can you discover the general feeling of a cross-section of Americans."

Smiley said he chose Texas because of the state's large number of electoral votes. He visited the state once before when he followed the gubernatorial campaign of Midlander Clayton Williams for a brief stint.

Smiley has previously visited the home towns of politicians Bill Clinton, Tom Harkin, Bob Kerrey and Dan Quayle.

"I missed Tsongas' because we didn't consider him much of a factor in the race at first," Smiley said.

Smiley expects to join the Bush press corps on Friday in Jackson, Miss.

Tilton's pulpit resembles a stage

■ Dallas televangelist Robert Tilton seeks extended restraining order against the state.

By Terri Langford
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — Backed by a "Tonight Show" quality orchestra and a Caesar's Palace-like stage — or pulpit — complete with Romanesque columns on each side, Sunday morning at the Word of Faith World Outreach Center has the look and feel of a frenetic Las Vegas show.

Tilton

The Rev. Robert Tilton takes center stage, along with a 60-plus member choir, featured songleaders and assistant pastor the Rev. Don Clowers.

For the first hour and a half during a Sunday service in late February, musicians, singers and two video testimonials from church members dominated the service.

By the time Tilton took over, the tithes — collected in wastebasket-size paper buckets — were in. Then, the "name-it and claim-it" style sermon began.

Tilton, who has refused to give interviews and often speaks only through his lawyer, J.C. Joyce of Tulsa, Okla., is a tall man with an ever-present grin and graying hair.

Though the point of his sermon isn't always clear, the audience generally responds approvingly with applause and "Amens."

He peppers his message with such rambling statements as: "When someone tries your faith in a court, first of all it's something you cannot see, but it can produce evidence what you can see.

"... A person that doesn't have faith cannot see what you say you saw. Something like that."

Both Tilton and his wife, Martha "Marte" Tilton, are expected to appear in federal court in Austin today to ask a judge to extend a restraining order against the state. The order, if granted, would continue to bar the state attorney general's office from access to the financial records belonging to the couple's ministry in the Dallas suburb of Farmers Branch.

The state is investigating the ministry for possible fraudulent fund-raising practices.

According to the television ratings service Arbitron, Tilton's "Success-N-Life"— the companion program to Tilton's "Sunday Morning Live" television show — is seen in about 200,000 households daily nationwide. The show is carried by 115 stations in 93 markets across the country.

It features testimonials of those who say Tilton's ministry changed their lives and asks viewers for contributions.

Within the last year, the "Success-N-Life" household share has increased 53 percent and Tilton is rated 12th among the top 20 syndicated religious shows, according to Arbitron.

Tilton's message is not much different from other TV ministries. He, like other televangelists, suggests to the faithful that their requests and prayers will be answered.

Midland to host '93 state convention of bilingual educators

Staff Report

Midland has been selected as the official site of the 1993 Texas Association for Bilingual Education convention, the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce and the Midland Association for Bilingual Education announced Tuesday.

The convention will be held Oct. 29-31 at the Holiday Inn Convention Center. Approximately 650 hotel room accommodations already have been blocked out at the Hilton, Ramanda, La Quinta and the Hampton Inn, MHCC officials said. Rooms at other Midland hotels and motels also will be available, they said.

The statewide organization attracts more than 100 exhibitors from book publishers to vendors. In 1991, the state gathering was held in Laredo and attracted more than 1,300 registered delegates. The 1992 convention will be held in San Antonio.

Midland Independent School District Superintendent Joseph Baressi and his staff will be working with the Midland asso-

JUDGE: Bruner opposes plea bargains

(From 1B)

And in light of 142nd District Judge Pat Baskin's health-realted absence for a couple of months in 1991, it is "hard to look at records from last year as truly representative," Ms. Sams said.

Bruner discounted that factor, maintaining that both criminal and civil cases were shifted to another court.

Judge John Hyde, who presides over the 238th District Court, said only criminal cases were transferred to his court as a result of Baskin's absence.

Ms. Sams also said an incoming judge must look at the upcoming criminal docket and not the past activity because of the growth of pending criminal cases.

According to Ms. Sams, there are 643 cases pending in the 142nd District Court. Of those, 345 are tax cases, which are typically resolved quickly. The remainder are 298 civil cases and 272 criminal cases, she said.

"And that (case load) is not the real issue anyway. The real issue is who has trial experience," said Ms. Sams, who stressed her seven years with the District Attorney's Office.

George D. "Jody" Gilles, 40, the third Republican candidate, said he thinks the court spends more time on civil cases.

"I believe the court deals more with civil actions than criminal, the way I interpret the numbers," Gilles said.

Gilles, an independent attorney with more civil than criminal experience, agreed with Bruner about the importance of civil knowledge and with Ms. Sams concerning trial experience.

"I think you have to have courtroom experience (to be a good judge) and I think we (the candidates) all have that," Gilles said.

Ms. Sams has maintained that her trial experience is extensive, while Gilles and Bruner are lacking that experience.

Gilles said he is versed in both areas of law.

"I bring a broad-based experience to the bench. I've done civil and I've done criminal," Gilles said.

As to what area will be more of an asset, Gilles' opinion sides with Bruner.

"I believe the more complex issues are involved in the civil side of the docket ... I believe the civil experience is absolutely mandatory to effectively serve as judge," Gilles said.

"I would say the most important thing (qualification) is to have experience and knowledge in both" civil and criminal law, Gilles said.

Baskin and Hyde estimated how much time each spends on civil and criminal matters. Both agreed that time, and not the number of cases, were more representive of what the court does.

"I believe I spend on the order of two-thirds of my time in civil matters and one-third on criminal," Baskin said. "That is my best estimate. I've never tried to keep a time clock per se."

Baskin added his court receives more criminal cases although that is not indicative of time spent by the court. And the overwhelming majority of both kinds of cases are ultimately settled and don't go to trial, Baskin said.

Hyde, whose court basically splits the case load, said "the time spent on each (criminal and civil matters) is about equal" in his court.

Civil and criminal cases each possess unique characteristics that take up the court's time other than in trial, Hyde said.

"While there are more pending civil cases, criminal ones seem to require a great deal more attention per case," Hyde said.

In addition, scheduling guidelines are such that criminal cases must be handled more promptly than civil, Hyde said.

Baskin and Hyde agreed some civil trials can last a few weeks — something uncommon in criminal trials.

In addition to the difference of opinion among candidates on criminal and civil case load, Bruner expressed his plans to eliminate plea agreements if elected.

"Criminal punishment will be assessed by the court in accordance with state laws," Bruner said.

Currently plea offers are made by prosecutors and either accepted or rejected by the court.

Bruner said he believes that sentencing for guilty pleas should be determined by the court and not prosecutors. A judge, an elected official, should be held accountable to the public for punishment imposed rather than a hired prosecutor, Bruner said.

For punishment to be an effective deterrent to crime, a message must be sent that plea bargaining won't be available, Bruner said.

Gilles views the proposed elimination of plea agreements as just another way of working pleas and punishment.

"Those (sentencing) guidelines may ultimately achieve the same goals as a plea bargain reaches now," Gilles said.

Ms. Sams said plea agreements help speed up the criminal docket and sentences imposed are generally what would be given otherwise.

Grand jury may investigate jail injury incident

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland County grand jury may conduct a routine investigation into last week's struggle in which a 32-year-old Midland man suffered a broken arm while he was being booked into the Midland County Jail on a charge of public intoxication.

"Any time there's an allegation of law-enforcement misconduct," Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre said Tuesday, "the best procedure is to have the investigation reviewed by the grand jury."

The grand jury's investigation would be part of the "checks and balances within the (criminal-justice) system to assure the public that these matters are being looked into and are taken seriously," Schorre said.

An investigation of the incident was requested by Sheriff Gary Painter and is being conducted by Texas Ranger Clete Buckaloo of the Texas Department of Public Safety. Also, Painter is conducting an internal investigation into the incident.

Schorre said the grand jury would request a copy of the results of the investigation and would review those results.

The injured man, who the sheriff said was mentally impaired, was arrested by a deputy sheriff for public intoxication, handcuffed, and was brought to the Midland County Central Detention Center for booking.

The booking area is monitored by closed-circuit television but images are not recorded, Painter said.

After the handcuffs were removed, the man started jumping and running. In the ensuing struggle, the man's arm was broken as a jailer and a clerk tried to control him, the sheriff said.

The man's injury was treated at Midland's Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

Midland County is to pay for the man's medical expenses, Midland County Attorney Mark H. Dettman said Tuesday.

"My understanding is that the sheriff is going to pay the medical bills," Dettman said. "It doesn't mean it's our fault. It's just the right thing to do."

Painter, who said he talked to the man's mother this week, said that "some people from outside of the family" were trying to convince the family to sue the county over the injury. However, she said filing a lawsuit "was not what they wanted to do," Painter said.

Rather, the family "wanted some kind of assurance" that a similar injury would not happen again in the jail.

The sheriff said he can't control spontaneous rowdiness or belligerent behavior of a prisoner or a person who is about to be booked into jail.

"The only thing that I can do is, through the investigation, to make sure that what we did was not in violation of the law or in violation of policy," Painter said.

"If we find something that was wrong, then we need to take some kind of corrective action."

Schorre, Hance endorse appeals court candidate

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre and former congressman Kent Hance endorsed Jim Vollers, a Republican candidate for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 1, at a news conference Tuesday.

"The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals is the Supreme Court of Texas in criminal cases," Voller said. "And I have 30 years of experience in the criminal justice system."

Voller, 60, said his experience will allow him to "recognize fair enforcement of crimes that is needed to provide for the safety of law-abiding citizens."

The candidate's experience includes, 16 years in private law practice, representing individuals and as a special prosecutor in trial and appellate matters; one year service as judge for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals; nine years as a prosecuting attorney before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals; and six years a felony prosecutor.

"He is the most qualified person within the state without a doubt," Hance said.

That sentiment was echoed by Schorre, who said that it is nice "to have one candidate for certain we can endorse" in light of all the highly contested races this election season.

Voller, who resides in Austin, has also been endorsed by various organizations and Texas newspapers, according to information supplied by the candidate.

The crux of Voller's philosophy for the judicial position deals with protecting the rights of citizens and defendants though fair and impartial enforcement and interpretation of the law, he said.

"The court should hand down decisions that clarify the law ... (that) adds to the efficient enforcement and trial of cases," Voller said.

Vying Voller for the Republican Party nomination is Joseph A. Devany.

Candidates seeking the Democratic Party nomination for Court of Criminal Appeals judge, Place 1, are incumbent Charles F. Baird and Sam Paxson.

Immunization campaign controls measles outbreak, officials say

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Health officials believe an aggressive immunization effort is finally helping them gain control of a vigorous South Texas measles outbreak.

The outbreak, called one of the nation's most active by the Centers for Disease Control, began late last year. The busiest area, Nueces County, has confirmed 221 cases since January, said Annette Sultemeier, nursing director for the Corpus Christi-Nueces County Health Department.

Another 30 cases were pending diagnosis, she said.

"We feel like we've gotten a hold on the situation and we'll be seeing less cases from now," Ms. Sultemeier said.

Outlying counties apparently were the source of the Nueces County outbreak. Ms. Sultemeier said children were brought into Corpus Christi for treatment "and they were passing it on."

Health officials mounted an immunization campaign to combat the extremely contagious disease, going into schools and urging adults to get booster shots. The immunizations initially had been thought to provide lifelong protection.

"We've been holding general clinics. ... We've also been immunizing in the elementary schools, all of them," Ms. Sultemeier said.

About 75 percent of the cases involved children under the age of 5, although some adults also contracted the disease, she said. Health officials found that Nueces County children under age 5 were underimmunized or lacked immunization completely.

Vaccinations are needed at 12 to 15 months, Ms. Sultemeier said.

Maria Vega, assistant epidimeology coordinator for the Texas Health Department, said the outbreak is probably larger than reports have indicated.

'We've been holding general clinics. . . . We've also been immunizing in the elementary schools, all of them.'

— Annette Sultemeier, nursing director Corpus Christi-Nueces County Health Department

"For every one reported, there are usually three or four cases that go unreported," she said.

She said there were no cases reported in the region last year. There were six cases in Nueces County in 1990 and 59 in 1989. Overall, the state saw about 350 cases last year, and no fatalities.

"For the most part the only area of the state that we're seeing measles in (this year) ... is that southernmost area of Texas," Ms. Vega said.

Nueces County leads in reported cases, followed by Jim Wells County with 48 suspected cases, Brooks County with 20 suspected cases and Duval County with 18. The numbers drop from there for other counties.

There has been one fatality during the current outbreak: a 3-year-old girl who suffered from leukemia and could not be vaccinated, Ms. Sultemeier said.

County health officials are continuing to ask people to stay at home or keep their children at home if they're exhibiting any symptoms of the disease.

Officials also have issued a travel alert, cautioning students planning on being in Corpus Christi for Spring Break to get vaccinated.

Richards backs action against nursing home corporation

AUSTIN (AP) — The felony indictment of a nursing home corporation in the deaths of two patients puts muscle behind state efforts to ensure patient safety, Gov. Ann Richards said Tuesday.

"It says that this is not just talk, this is not just rhetoric, but now we're getting serious," Richards said.

She praised Attorney General Dan Morales, who Monday announced indictments against Texas Health Enterprises, Inc. of Denton. The corporation owns the Amarillo nursing home where the two patients were under care.

Texas Health Enterprises is the third-largest nursing home corporation in the state, and the ninth-largest in the nation, Morales said.

The attorney general's office said the corporation also operates homes in Iowa, Oklahoma, Massachusetts, Michigan and New Mexico. However, Bob Damore, vice president and general counsel of Texas Health Enterprises, said it no longer operates homes in Massachusetts.

Morales said the action marked the first time the state law against injury to elderly people and invalids has been used to indict a major corporation in the nursing home industry. The attorney general's office said the law was strengthened in 1989 to make it easier to bring such charges, by adding the word invalid.

Texas Health Enterprises said in a statement that it expects a trial to exonerate the corporation and its employees. Eight individuals were indicted by the Potter County grand jury in the deaths. The attorney general said four worked for the corporation, and four for the nursing home.

The attorney general's office said the indictments followed the deaths of Loise Collins, 53, who died September 7, 1991, allegedly of neglect; and Roy Sneed, 82, who suffered from senile dementia, wandered from the nursing home on Aug. 22, 1991, and died of exposure.

TILTON: Some church members to be at court and promising that God will give them wealth in return first came under national scrutiny after he was featured in a segment on ABC's "PrimeTime Live."

(From 1B)

Several church members are expected to show their support for Tilton and his wife when they appear in court today.

The sprawling Word of Faith Church was built in the late 1970s. Ushers sporting red blazers greet churchgoers and guide them to cushioned folding seats.

One of the church's two entrances forces the visitor to walk through a Book Center featuring wall-to-wall videos, books and religious tracts that members can check out without charge. Donations are accepted.

Tilton's lawyer denies newspaper reports that the church receives $100 million annually. He declined to say how much the church receives in donations from the 8,000-member congregation.

DURWARD WRIGHT

County government is a complex and misunderstood entity. A commissioner's job is to act as an administrator over basic policy as it pertains to finances over numerous departments. A good commissioner must have or obtain knowledge in many areas of jurisdiction in order to perform his job with effective efficiency. He must make tough decisions on a regular basis by obtaining as much information as possible and voting according to the best interest of the county. He must make himself available to discuss issues and problems with constituents. His areas of concern include criminal and civil justice systems, physical facilities, personell, budgeting, product knowledge, recording and filing of records, taxes, road programs, insurance, and dozens of other responsibilities.

Those who contend that commissioner's only function is to attend two meetings a month are totally uninformed. A commissioner's job in a county the size of Midland requires a full time committment.

MISD: Decision expected at March 17 meeting

(From 1B)

"It's people and teachers who make the schools, not buildings or location," she said.

Ms. Howard said "Everyone I talked to (from Bush)" supports keeping the school a primary school.

At the recent Bush community meeting Bush PTA President Charlsye Dodson, presented school board trustee Gary Willis with more than 200 surveys from Bush parents. Ms. Dodson said the parents supported keeping Bush a primary school and keeping the fifth grade at Santa Rita.

"Surveys are still coming in," Ms. Dodson said prior to Tuesday's meeting.

Cindy Gill, said her first-grader at Santa Rita, under the staff proposal, "would not attend the same school for two years until junior high school."

Under the staff proposal first graders at Santa Rita will attend Bush in the second grade and Greathouse in the third grade.

Ms. Gill said school board trustees could add three more portable buildings to Santa Rita next year to serve next year's projected enrollment.

"With a the expense of a few more portables you could have spared the community this," she said. "I blame the board for putting parents in this awkward position."

John Usrey, however, commended school board trustees, expressing empathy with "the position they've been put in."

Usrey, who has a fourth-grader at Long and a second-grader at Santa Rita, said, "I do not feel the fifth-graders would be as effected by the move as much as the younger students moving several times."

"I didn't realize what you all go through until it involved my own kids," Usrey said to the board.

John Kennedy, who noted he is not in the Greathouse boundary, said his fourth-grader put it best. He said his 9-year-old said, "The little kids can't handle it."

One parent questioned the need to remove Santa Rita's temporary buildings in order to facilitate construction of the school's multipurpose center.

"Why can't we delay construction at Santa Rita ... one more year? Then everyone can make a smooth transition to Greathouse," Lisa Clark said. "If there is no construction then the portables won't have to be moved."

Mary Hahn asked trustees if they were aware "overcrowding plus construction equals disaster?"

Ms. Hahn said the school district's cluster system of busing, and pupils changing schools each year, "makes it hard to enjoy security and continuity."

She said her twins, both fourth-graders, attended Santa Rita in the third grade and were looking forward to returning to the school in the fifth grade. But if Santa Rita's fifth grade is moved to Bush, her twins won't have the option of returning to their neighborhood school.

However, she said, "the safety of the children is paramount and 870 (Santa Rita's projected enrollment) is unsafe." The school was designed to serve about 600 pupils.

Ms. Hahn used the Biblical analogy of King Solomon confronting two women who both claimed one baby as their own. The king suggested cutting the baby in half.

She said, "Santa Rita is the baby. And the two mothers are parents of Santa Rita children in K-3 and parents of Santa Rita children in fifth grade."

"Each claim the school as their baby. Both cannot have it," she said. "I would rather see my children go to Bush than see Santa Rita become an unhealthy and unsafe environment for students. I will not say keep my kids there. I am willing to give up my half of the baby."

Trustees will make a decision on the issue at the March 17 regular school board meeting following spring break. The issue will be listed as an action item and will be presented at 7:15 p.m. when trustees return from the dinner break.

ciation and MHCC to prepare for the convention.

"Education is one of the key goals in Midland and our delegation proved it," said Elvia Hernandez of the Hispanic Chamber who also will serve as the convention coordinator.

"We feel this is a feather in our hat. This will generate many, many hundreds of tourism dollars to our economy and will provide us, the Midland community, the opportunity to show our out-of-town guests our Midland hospitality."

The Midland bid was selected during a recent executive board meeting of the Texas Association for Bilingual Education in San Antonio. The El Paso bid was runner-up.

Education secretary: Schools are in time warp

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Education Lamar Alexander on Tuesday urged communities to overhaul their schools systems before spending more money on them to improve education.

Alexander said if communities want to turn out better students, they will have to retrain educators and redesign school programs to make them more effective.

"Schools are in a time warp," Alexander told about 850 people attending the Forum Club luncheon.

The education secretary was in Houston to help kick off the area's "America 2000" initiative, a campaign in which local communities develop their own strategies to achieve the National Education Goals by the year 2000. Bush unveiled the program in April 1991.

Those educational goals include increasing the high school graduation rate to more than 90 percent, achieving student competency in several subjects, making U.S. students first in the world in science and mathematics and ridding school campuses of violence and drugs.

Similar campaigns have been launched in many states and also in San Antonio and El Paso, he said.

"The idea is to start over school by school. Rethink the process," he said.

Individual communities need to decide what is best for their schools and then determine how to achieve those goals, Alexander said.

Some possibilities include year-round school, keeping schools open later and giving middle- and lower-income families more of a choice in deciding which school their child should attend, although the federal government would not mandate such requirements, he said. Nor will it be providing a lot of extra funds for changes, he said.

Alexander said he believes real improvement can be made in revamping schools, not by just putting more money into the old system. But he would not rule out that once individual schools revise their systems, they may need to seek more money from local taxpayers.

Before Alexander's speech, first lady Barbara Bush spoke by telephone to the luncheon crowd to congratulate them on the kickoff campaign.

"We (herself and the president) expect great things out of our city, especially when it comes to education," she said.

Earlier Tuesday, Alexander visited in nearby Pasadena.

Pantex to help Russia scale down weapons

AMARILLO (AP) — The Pantex nuclear weapons plant, a major force in building up the nation's warheads during the Cold War, is now prepared to help the former Soviet Union scale down its nuclear stockpile.

Pantex officials say they will send 25 specialized railcars and a group of weapons packaging experts to help Russia safely transport nuclear bombs to storage sites for eventual dismantlement.

Officials at Pantex, where the nation's nuclear weapons are assembled and disassembled, said Monday they will help under an agreement between Secretary of State James Baker and Russian President Boris Yeltsin.

Pantex has the capability to ship nuclear weapons or highly classified weapons parts by rail or truck. The plant also maintains all weapons railcars for the entire U.S. nuclear weapons complex.

Clyde Alley, plant manager and vice president of Mason & Hanger Silas-Mason Co., which operates Pantex, said five specialists with expertise in weapons packaging and shipment are expected to travel to the former Soviet Union.

Plans for the overall effort remain sketchy, but one specialist could be sent to aid in the effort within a week, he said.

Sensitive security devices used to protect U.S. weapons shipments in transit will be removed from the cars before they are sent to Russia, according to DOE spokesman Tom Walton.

The Russians will be required to provide their own safeguarding and security systems, he said.

BUCHANAN FOR PRESIDENT

Mr. Patrick J. Buchanan will be running for President of the United States in the Texas primary and throughout the country in 1992. Mr. Buchanan believes that America's interests should be considered first and foremost in all matters both foreign and domestic. For example, reduce foreign military spending, reduce or eliminate foreign aid, and stop the squeeze on American taxpayers to form a "New World Order". Mr. Buchanan wants to take care of America's problems first and the rest of the world's problems last. He needs help from all Americans, both Republican and Democrat.

If you want to volunteer your time or send a contribution, please write to Texans For Buchanan, P.O. Box 2579, Midland, Texas, 79702. Tel. No. 682-7599.

Chef serves meals with a capital M

By Michelle Hancock
N.Y. Times News Service

FORT WORTH, Texas — When executive chef Michael Thomson opens his new restaurant Michaels Monday, he believes that Pat Cisarano, though long-departed from this Earth, will be there.

You see, it was Cisarano who gave Thomson his start in the food business, washing pots at age 13 at Cisarano's seafood restaurant in Florida.

"He taught me a lot," says the 31-year-old Thomson. "He's not with us anymore. But he's with me. He taught me to look for the little things and said, 'Someday you'll appreciate it.' And I do."

Thomson's paying attention to those "little things" as he prepares to open Michaels at 3413 W. Seventh St., a neighborhood that's home to some of Fort Worth's more upscale restaurants, including La Piazza, St. Emilion, Cafe Aspen and Tours.

Michaels' logo, a squiggly M, is etched into glass doors and imprinted into the concrete floor leading into the kitchen, along with the handprints of Thomson and his business partner, John Kennedy. Designer Alice Cottrell, a Texas Christian University graduate, has divided the space into a rusted steel-framed bar area with galvanized steel bar top and cowhide-covered bar stools, and three open dining areas that flow into one another. Flooring is dark concrete; the high ceilings are exposed. A private collection of contemporary art will hang on the walls.

The food is "contemporary ranch," Thomson says. To you and me, that's regional American with whatever international touch Thomson deems appropriate. Such things as calamari fritta — fried cilantro-pesto seasoned calamari with a margarita dipping sauce; pickled jalapeno shrimp — fresh Gulf shrimp pickled in a spicy marinade with thinly sliced onion and jalapenos; roasted lamb shank with garlic lentil sauce; banana leaf fish — fresh market fish steamed in a banana leaf with sauteed mushrooms and tomatillo chutney; and wok-tossed veggies, dressed with the house vinaigrette and served with grilled polenta.

Desserts run the gamut from a cheese plate or fresh seasonal berries to strawberry shortcake, baked Alaska and chocolate mousse with raspberry sauce.

Can't make up your mind? Not to worry. Thomson offers a dessert sampler plate — a popular holdover from his days as executive chef at the late Epicure on the Park. Other holdovers: the ever-popular Gulf crab cakes with ancho chile sauce, the salad sampler plate and the Caldo Tlalpeno, an enriched chicken broth with avocado, cilantro, chicken and lime.

Expect to spend about $50-$60 per person for a three-course dinner that includes a cocktail and wine. Coats and ties are not required.

The bar will feature liquor, beer and full domestic wine list, expanding later to international wines, Thomson says. Texas Bellinis made with Parker County peaches will be a specialty drink, along with melon waters.

One of the better ideas Thomson had was to offer a bar menu catering to people stopping in for a drink and a snack before or after events at the nearby Cultural District. For $5.50 a person, you may choose three of such items as baby crab cakes, Thai chicken wings, stuffed jalapenos or jalapeno shrimp.

Eventually, he'd like to teach cooking classes in the restaurant's kitchen.

Opening his own restaurant has been a dream since he was 16, Thomson says, and he's geared his work experience in that direction, from cook at the Fort Worth Boat Club to his current job as food and beverage consultant to Burlington Northern. He describes achieving that goal as "almost like falling in love. You know, that little tingly feeling you get."

Now it's time to set new goals, and he already knows what they are:

"I want three stars in Texas Monthly, and I'm going to work on that. I want to give Fort Worth the finest."

And then there's that concept for a restaurant chain — with all chefs trained right there in the Michaels' kitchen.

Recipe takes from yolks out of 'deluxe' scrambled eggs

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

I always feel my family's weekends start off better when I scramble up this tasty breakfast for three. Since the "deluxe" add-ons — mustard, herbs, mushrooms and pimento — come ready to use, this recipe goes together superfast, too. Another reason I like it? Using more egg whites than egg yolks makes it lower in fat and cholesterol.

SCRAMBLED EGGS DELUXE

4 eggs
4 egg whites
¼ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon dried basil, thyme or Italian seasoning, crushed
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms, drained
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
Non-stick spray coating
¼ cup sliced green onion

In a medium mixing bowl combine eggs, egg whites, milk, salt, mustard, dried herb and pepper. Beat with a rotary beater, fork or whisk until mixed. Stir in the sliced mushrooms and pimento; set aside.

Spray an 8-inch skillet with nonstick spray coating. Preheat the skillet over medium-high heat until a drop of water sizzles when added to the skillet. Add the green onion; cook about 1 minute or until tender. Add the egg mixture to the skillet. Cook, without stirring, over medium heat until the mixture begins to set on the bottom and around the edge.

Using a large spoon or spatula, lift and fold the partially cooked eggs so any uncooked portions flow underneath. Continue cooking over medium heat for 2 to 3 minutes or until the eggs are cooked throughout but are still glossy and moist. Remove from the heat. Serve immediately. Makes 3 servings.

Dinosaur Grrrahams have 'grrreat' taste

By Linda Anderson

If you want to please a bunch of children — no matter what their ages and especially if they work in a newsroom — get them some animal crackers (actually, cookies). And if you really want to improve their day with the trendiest animal cookies, get dinosaur-shaped ones.

Anderson

Mother's cookie company (you have to trust cookies with a name like that) has introduced Dinosaur Grrrahams (it's really spelled that way) cookies in regular and mini sizes. Both are available in original and cinnamon flavors. Naturally we had to try both sizes and both flavors for taste, price and advertising accuracy. (I love animal crackers in all shapes and sizes too.)

A 10-ounce box of mini Dinosaur Grrrahams (the cookies are about the same size as regular animal crackers) cost $1.95. Price for a 13-ounce box of Bigrrr Dinosaur Grrrahams (with cookies about two or three inches in diameter) was $2.17.

Label advertising says "Parents note: No cholesterol, no tropical oils, no preservatives, no artificial flavors, no artificial colors."

On the back of the box of mini-Dinosaurs is a trivia game (or, as it is listed, mini Trrrivia Game) about matching dinosaurs with their descriptions. Also on the back of the box is a coupon good for 55 cents off two boxes of the cookies. Not a bad deal.

The box of Bigrrr Dinosaurs has three cut-outs for children to "learn more about prehistoric animals." I guess the idea is to enjoy the cookies and learn paleontology at the same time.

In the taste test, the real child loved both the large and small dinosaurs in both flavors — and so did her friend, who asked where we bought them so her parents could buy some for her.

The larger taste-testers agreed with the younger ones that the cookies were grrreat, in both sizes and flavors. One just said, "Mmmmm," while another agreed: "These are wonderful!" and came back for seconds.

All in all, Dinosaur Grrrahams were tasty, crisp, crowd-pleasing cookies. They fit perfectly in school lunchboxes too.

Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

Linda Anderson is a Reporter-Telegram staff writer.

DEAR ABBY

Thrifty bride's wedding means cold cash for newlywed couple

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: More than once I have noticed letters in your column from parents trying to pay for their daughter's wedding without bankrupting themselves, so I devised the following plan for my daughter's wedding to protect myself and our sanity.

Van Buren

I gave her a set amount for the total to be spent. If the wedding cost less, I would give her the difference in cash. If it cost more, she and her fiance would pay the difference.

She had her wedding at Balboa Park in San Diego. Her mother made her wedding dress. A close friend was a photographer, and he gave her the pictures as a wedding gift. We bought many of the flowers at the market. By spending her money carefully, she had a nice check waiting for her when they returned from the honeymoon.

This plan enabled all of us to enjoy a beautiful wedding and to keep our tempers and sanity intact. I hope this plan will help your readers to enjoy their daughters' weddings with a minimum of stress. — DR. E. PARKE SELLARD, FALLBROOK, CALIF.

DEAR DR. SELLARD: I hope so, too, because I hear from too many parents who feel obligated to finance the equivalent of a Broadway extravaganza. Parents should spend no more for a wedding than they can comfortably afford. And incidentally, more couples are paying for their own weddings these days, which makes sense to me.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Arizona Sister" to investigate the possibility of purchasing two seats on an airplane so that her 285-pound sister could come to visit her was preposterous!

To undertake such a great expense when roomy, comfortable rail passenger service is available at an economical rate is unnecessarily extravagant.

It is a testimony to our culture that "Arizona Sister's" first and only thought would be to make use of air transportation for such a trip, when a more energy-efficient, environmentally benign and downright pleasant form of transportation is available. Take the train! — DANIEL B, LOVEGREN, DIRECTOR, NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF RAILROAD PASSENGERS, REGION XII

DEAR MR. LOVEGREN: Thank you for the wake-up call. I had forgotten how relaxing and luxurious a trip on a train can be if time is not a factor.

I'm reminded of these lyrics to an old Al Dubin/Harry Warren song, "Shuffle Off to Buffalo": "To Niagara in a sleeper, there's no honeymoon that's cheaper, and the train goes slow ..."

DEAR ABBY: You will probably receive thousands of clever limericks. I found this one in a very old Richard Henry Little Linebook, published yearly by the Chicago Tribune's "Voice of the People":

There was a young maid from St. Paul,
Who wore a paper dress to a ball.
The dress caught fire
And burned her entire Front page, sports section and all.

— BARBARA S. WILLIAMS, ST. CHARLES, ILL.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. NOTICE OF CONSERVATORSHIP OF INTERNATIONAL SECURITY LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Pursuant to Article 21.28-A of the Texas Insurance Code, the Commissioner of Insurance issued an official order No. 92-0191, effective February 28, 1992, placing International Security Life Insurance Company, Dallas, Texas, in a state of conservatorship. This company is an authorized domestic life, accident & health insurance company.

The Commissioner of Insurance finds that pursuant to Article 21.28-A, Section 5, Texas Insurance Code, the Company has requested and consented to the appointment of a conservator. Supervision is inadequate to accomplish rehabilitation of the Company.

Under the order, the Conservator will assume control and operation of the Company and will take all steps and legal measures necessary to preserve, protect, and recover the assets and property of the Company. Efforts are being made for the assumption of the Company's business by another insurance company for the protection of its policyholders and the public.

If you are a policyholder of this Company, your insurance coverage continues in effect for as long as you pay your premiums. If the Company is rehabilitated, your coverage will continue as though nothing happened. If the company is not rehabilitated, it may be placed into receivership or its business reinsured, and you will be so notified. In either event, contractual claim obligations will be paid by the Company, by the reinsurer, or by the guaranty fund subject to the limitations provided in law. The guaranty fund provides protection for covered claims up to the amount specified in Article 21.28-D, Texas Insurance Code.

Courses of action available to policyholders include continuation or cancellation of their policies. Policyholders who wish to continue their coverage need do nothing more so long as their premiums are paid. If premiums are due, policyholders should continue to pay them in the same amount and manner as in the past in order to keep their coverage in force.

To avoid possible loss of coverage, policyholders must continue to pay premiums unless and until similar insurance can be obtained from another Company. Policy provisions with respect to filing claims remain in force and must be observed.

Claims will continue to be handled in the standard process as specified in the insurance contracts issued by the Company. Policyholders will be notified if there is any change in claims processing or handling.

Policyholders' rights are governed by the Texas Insurance Code, Texas Department of Insurance rules, and by policyholders' individual contracts of insurance. Policyholders with specific questions regarding policy provisions should seek independent legal advice. No action is required by policyholders under Commissioner's Order No. 92-0191. If any action should be required in the future, policyholders will be notified.

This notice is published pursuant to Article 21.28-A, Section 5A, Texas Insurance Code.

Cookbook competition announced

Staff Report

McIlhenny Company announces its third annual TABASCO® Community Cookbook and Walter S. McIlhenny Hall of Fame competitions. Deadline for entries is Oct. 1.

The TABASCO® Community Cookbook Awards are open to cookbooks from nonprofit organizations published in 1991 or 1992 which are not previous award winners. The Walter S. McIlhenny Hall of Fame honors the best community cookbooks which have sold over 100,000 copies since they were first published.

The 1991 awards, which drew 143 entries, recognized three national, six regional and two special merit winners. Four books were selected for the Hall of Fame, bringing the total to 27 so honored. A copy of each book entered in the programs has been placed in Walter S. McIlhenny Library at McIlhenny Company headquarters on Avery Island, La.

Entries are judged on layout and design, title, theme, storyline, reflection of regional culinary traditions, recipe content, and the organization's fundraising efforts. The Community Cookbook winners will receive contributions to designated charities, plaques for their organizations, and stickers for their books. National winners also will receive certificates for their committee members. Hall of Fame honorees receive a plaque and stickers for their cookbooks.

Members of the judging panel will be: Jan Turner Hazard, food editor of Ladies' Home Journal; Meryle Evans, culinary historian; Ann H. Harvey, executive editor Oxmoor House; Jan Longone, Wine and Food Library; William Rice, columnist for Chicago Tribune; Tommy Simmons, food editor, Baton Rouge Morning Advocate; and Nahum Waxman, Kitchen Arts and Letters.

For an entry form and contest rules, write to TABASCO® Community Cookbooks Awards, c/o Hunter MacKenzie, Inc., 41 Madison Avenue, New York City, 10010.

Breakfast appetites improve

Associated Press

If your family is suffering from the breakfast blues, surprise them with a sweet-to-eat breakfast treat that's filled with peaches and strawberries and topped with slices of kiwifruit.

BREAKFAST TREATS

10 pieces crispbread
1 cup low-fat or non-fat cottage cheese
½ cup canned peaches in light syrup, drained and diced
¼ teaspoon cinnamon (optional)
2 tablespoons strawberry jam
1 cup fresh strawberries, hulled and chopped or sliced
Kiwifruit, peeled and sliced (optional)

Cut crispbread into quarters by cutting crispbread packets through cellophane wrappers crosswise into quarters, using serrated knife and gentle sawing motion.

Mix cottage cheese with peaches and cinnamon. Mix strawberry jam with fresh strawberries. Spread 1 tablespoon cottage cheese mixture on each of two crispbread quarters. Spread 1 rounded tablespoon strawberry mixture on another quarter. Starting with crispbread spread with cottage cheese, layer on crispbread spread with strawberry mixture, then second cottage-cheese topped crispbread. Top with remaining quarter and, if desired, slices of kiwifruit.

Recipe from: Kavli Muesli Crispbread

Hotline provides nutrition information

Staff Report

Health-conscious consumers can now call USDA's tollfree Meat and Poultry Hotline for answers to their nutrition questions about meat and poultry. Since 1985, the hotline has been providing information about food safety and labeling.

Staffed by trained registered dietitians and home economists, the Meat and Poultry Hotline will provide year-round information on how to evaluate the nutritional content of meat and poultry products, how selection and preparation affects nutrition, and nutrition labeling. Consumers should continue to consult their physician or other health professional for individual dietary advice.

The hotline number is 1-800-535-4555 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

EP Coronado, Monterey win

■ El Paso Coronado and Lubbock Monterey will return to the Chaparral Center Friday for the Class 5A boys Region I basketball tournament.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Half of Friday's Class 5A Boy's Region I basketball field was filled with veterans at Chaparral Center Tuesday night.

El Paso Coronado escaped Amarillo High, 37-34, with a key blocked shot at the buzzer and Lubbock Monterey became the first Texas team this year to defeat El Paso Eastwood, 79-68, with a three-point bombing raid in the area playoff doubleheader.

Coronado (27-3) will be back in Midland Friday to face Region I power Fort Worth Dunbar at 7:45 p.m. Dunbar won an 80-55 decision over Sherman Tuesday. Monterey (28-6) will face O.D. Wyatt at 6 p.m. Friday.

Even though Coronado beat Amarillo High with only 37 points, the T-Birds shot 56 percent from the field while the Sandies managed a poor 39.5 percent (22 percent in the first half).

Amarillo had one stretch in the first half where it managed only two points over a span of 12 minutes and 56 seconds while Coronado built a 24-10 lead. The Sandies scored only two points in the second quarter.

Still, the game came down to T-Bird Mathew Baskind blocking a Clint Reed three-point try at the buzzer to keep the game from going into overtime.

"Actually, I wasn't supposed to let my man (Reed) catch the ball on the inbounds pass," Baskind said. "I'm just glad I didn't foul. Still, that seemed like the longest four seconds in the world."

That sets up another match with Dunbar, one that the Thunderbirds face with mixed emotions.

Sharp extended

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech women's basketball coach Marsha Sharp today accepted a new four-year contract to coach the Lady Red Raiders through the 1996 season.

Athletic director T. Jones said Sharp, who was in the third year of a five-year deal, is "an outstanding leader for our basketball program." Terms of the contract were not immediately available.

Sharp's No. 15 Lady Red Raiders (21-4, 11-1 in the Southwest Conference) have earned at least a share of the SWC regular season title and can clinch the crown outright Wednesday night with a victory against Texas A&M (15-11, 7-6).

Texas Tech would become only the third school to claim an SWC title in the 10 years women have competed in the conference.

Herzog won't leave

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — California Angels vice president Whitey Herzog confirmed that he has been contacted by the Denver expansion club, but he doesn't intend to change jobs.

"They called a couple weeks ago and asked if I'd be interested in managing the Rockies," Herzog said. "I never say never, but if I was still interested in managing, I'd be managing.

"Denver's got a lot of problems. The new ballpark's not going to be ready for a couple of years, the balls are going to be flying out of that park they're in (Mile High Stadium), and they've got problems with the lease."

Herzog has a three-year contract with the Angels as vice president of player personnel.

Braves nix ad slogan

■ Citing increased sensitivity, the general manager of an Atlanta Braves' farm team decides to do away with an advertising campaign minorities have found offensive.

Associated Press

The general manager of an Atlanta Braves farm team says he decided to drop its "Get on the Warpath" advertising campaign following criticism that it was too inflammatory.

Meanwhile, an Atlanta ad featuring the parent team was criticized by an Indian leader.

General manager Steven DeSalvo of the Greenville, S.C., farm team said he decided not to use the "warpath" campaign this year because of increased sensitivity to the portrayal of Indians as mascots.

The Greenville Braves used portions of the campaign last year, featuring a billboard with arrows and the headline, "Watch Us Surround 'Em and Beat 'Em With Sticks." Another featured an Indian spear and the headline, "Watching an Ambush in Person is Good Medicine."

One of the ads even won a Gold Addy at the Atlanta Ad Club's annual awards Saturday. It featured a portrait of the famous chief Sitting Bull with the caption, "We have no reservations about torturing men in uniform."

The award, however, was rescinded Monday when officials found out that ad never was actually published.

MHS rips San Angelo

Win allows Lee into soccer playoffs

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

Midland High soccer coach Tom Esikhati stood under what long ago might have passed for an umbrella. Steady rain poured through the tattered prop.

But his enthusiasm on the sideline never waned, for even as Esikhati was unable to fend off the elements, his Bulldogs were raining down hard on an often hostile squad of San Angelo Bobcats Tuesday at the stormy MHS field.

The Bulldogs defeated San Angelo for the second time in 1992, this time 3-0 in a late-game deluge, and the decision assures cross-town rival Midland Lee of a berth in the state soccer playoffs.

Lee, 9-0 and taking the day off, needed only to win one of its final three games or to have third-place San Angelo fall once more for its Rebels to clinch a second-straight playoff berth.

So the Rebels are formally in.

But more important to the Bulldogs as they raised their league record to 5-5 was

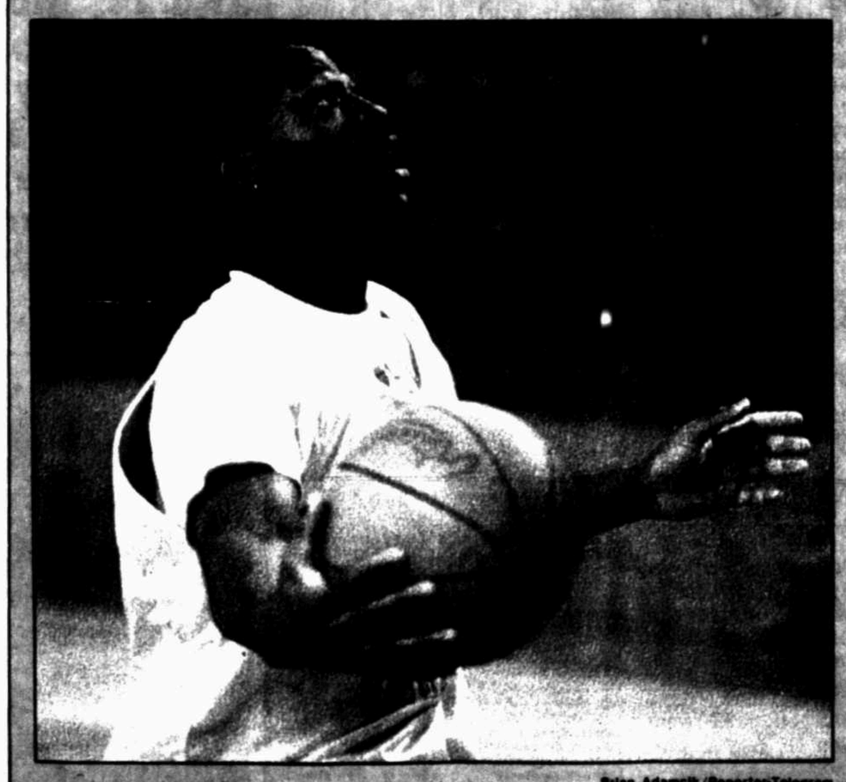
Rone survives Chicago's hard living



Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Terrance Rone finished third in scoring for the Chaps this season.

■ Chaparral guard Terrance Rone, who has endured plenty of hardships in his life, has found happiness as a crowd favorite at Midland College.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

Growing up on Chicago's South Side in the 1980s was not an enviable chore for Terrance Rone. Living in close proximity to drugs, gang violence and the other simple displeasures of life in the projects made for a tougher life than the small town environment most West Texans take for granted.

The Rone family had it particularly tough. Their father left when Terrance was seven, and mother Shirley, a nurse, was gone often while earning a buck to make life as easy as it could possibly be.

The oldest Rone, Derek, was a gang member. Not by choice, Terrance said of his brother, but because, "if he wasn't in one gang, they would've just put him in another one." Terrance and his middle brother, Trasel, who plays basketball for Kansas State, both looked up to Derek as a father figure, after their real one walked.

Through a childhood of perseverance and temptations, Terrance Rone made it out of the Chicago projects. But ask Rone how he managed to escape the drugs and the gangs and the turf wars and he gives one simple answer.

"My mother," he said. "I never wanted to do anything to upset my mother, so I stayed away from it all. My mother was such a strong person. I looked up to her both as my mother and my father."

Rone said when his father left, "there weren't any arguments or fights or anything, they just separated."

His South Side neighborhood is what he calls home, but it's not necessarily his dream home.

"It looked nice, but it was rough," Rone said. "I lived by South Shore High School and across the street was a park. There were a lot of things that went on in that park. Gangs, drugs and stuff. You have to overlook that stuff, but sometimes it's hard."

Having escaped the grip of the South Side lifestyle, Rone has blossomed into a tough, hard working basketball player for Midland College.

Spurs sputter; win at buzzer

NBA Roundup

MINNEAPOLIS — David Robinson's layup with 1.4 seconds left, San Antonio's only points in the final 3:25, lifted the Spurs over the Minnesota Timberwolves, 103-102.

Minnesota rallied from a 17-point deficit to take a 102-101 lead on Gerald Glass' 3-point shot with 5.6 seconds left. The Spurs then fed the ball inside to Robinson, who muscled past Thurl Bailey and a collapsing defense for the winning basket.

Robinson's 25 points paced San Antonio, which got a season-high 19 assists from Rod Strickland.

Pooh Richardson led Minnesota with a season-high 27 points. Doug West scored 23 for the Timberwolves, who have lost 20 out of their last 24 games.

San Antonio is 14-7 since Bob Bass took over as coach from Larry Brown. The Spurs have won four in a row and eight of their last 12. They also swept all six games against the Timberwolves this season. Minnesota is 1-14 in three years against the Spurs.

Suns 112, Rockets 107

PHOENIX — Tom Chambers scored seven of his 17 points in the first 3½ minutes of overtime, and Jeff Hornacek's 3-pointer with one minute left nailed down the Phoenix Suns' victory over the Houston Rockets.

Hornacek, who scored 22 points, put his team ahead 110-104 with his last shot. Until then, Phoenix had not led by more than four points.

Hakeem Olajuwon had 34 points and 15 rebounds for the Rockets, who took an early 12-point lead and was not caught until the third quarter. Olajuwon scored his club's first six points in overtime.

Knicks 102, Mavericks 83

NEW YORK — Charles Oakley made up for Patrick Ewing's worst offensive game of the season, scoring 14 of his season-high 17 points in the first half as the New York Knicks defeated Dallas, the Mavericks' 15th consecutive road loss.

The Knicks survived getting just four points from leading scorer Ewing, just over 19 below his average. Ewing, who entered this season with a streak of 208 straight games scoring in double digits, has totaled under 20 points in each of his last five games and under 10 in two of those.

Bullets 106, Magic 93

ORLANDO, Fla. — Pervis Ellison scored 19 points and the Washington Bullets forced 12 turnovers in the second quarter to spark a victory over Orlando.

The Magic blew a nine-point lead in the final 1:07 of the first half by committing five turnovers when harried by Washington's half-court press. The Bullets outscored Orlando 12-0 in the final 67 seconds to lead 60-57 at halftime. The Magic never got a shot off in their last five possessions.

Orlando had 16 turnovers in the first half, leading to 17 Washington points.

Clippers 117, Heat 116

MIAMI — Ken Norman hit a layup with 2.4 seconds to play, giving the Los Angeles Clippers a win over the Miami Heat.

The Heat led 116-115 when Miami's Rony Seikaly blocked a shot by Charles Smith. Seikaly came down with the ball but was called for traveling.

Norman took the inbounds pass from Danny Manning, who scored 30 points, 12 in the fourth quarter, and put in the deciding basket.

Miami's Grant Long, who scored 20 points, then missed a driving jumper at the buzzer.

Sonics 111, Nuggets 92

SEATTLE — Shawn Kemp came off the bench and scored 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds Tuesday night, leading the Seattle SuperSonics over the Denver Nuggets.

It was the Sonics 1,000th regular season victory — they've lost 1,027 — and it was also their seventh straight home-court victory. Seattle has won 11 of its last 13 games overall.

The Nuggets lost their sixth straight game and matched their longest losing streak of the season. They are winless (0-11) against Pacific Division opponents this season.

Jackson's 25 leads Ohio State

Associated Press

Top 25 Roundup

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Jim Jackson scored 25 points, including a key tip-in during a 10-0 second-half run, as fifth-ranked Ohio State beat No. 18 Michigan 77-66.

Jackson added 13 rebounds and six assists for the Buckeyes (20-5 overall, 12-3 Big Ten), who trail league-leading Indiana by a half game.

Mark Baker added 18 points for Ohio State, while Chris Jent had 15. Lawrence Funderburke had 10 rebounds and nine points for the Buckeyes.

Chris Webber led Michigan (17-8, 8-7) with 17 points and 12 rebounds.

The second half featured streaks by both teams, but Ohio State's final surge was the difference.

No. 6 UNLV 65, Utah St. 53

LAS VEGAS — The most successful and controversial coaching career in college basketball came to its apparent end with a victory as Jerry Tarkanian left the court a winner once again at UNLV.

The sixth-ranked Runnin' Rebels beat Utah State 65-53 in an emotion-filled night at Thomas & Mack Center, an 18,000-seat arena which symbolized the heights the program reached under Tarkanian.

Those 19 years were also filled with battles between the coach and the NCAA for most of the time and between Tarkanian and the school for the final season, culminating in the rescinding of his resignation last week.

No. 7 Arkansas 106, No. 23 LSU 92

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Lee Mayberry made a school-record nine 3-pointers and scored a career-high 35 points as seventh-ranked Arkansas rallied from a 15-point halftime deficit to beat No. 23 Louisiana State in overtime.

Mayberry scored 23 in the second half, including a 3-pointer that tied it at 87 with 1:19 remaining, sending the game into overtime.

His two straight baskets in overtime got Arkansas off to a 93-87 lead. Todd Day, who demolished LSU with 43 points in January, scored 27 Tuesday night, including 19 in the second half.

The Tigers' Shaquille O'Neal ruined Arkansas in the first half, but the Razorbacks collapsed two and often three defenders on him in the second half.

Fort Worth native joins Angels staff

Staff Report

Jeff Corbett has joined the Midland Angels front office staff as an administrative assistant.

Corbett brings two years of professional baseball experience to the job, having spent the 1990 and 1991 seasons with the Texas Rangers in ticket sales. Ticket and group sales will also be among his duties in Midland.

"I feel it's a step up for me," said Corbett, who is looking forward to the opportunity to be more involved in the daily operations of a team.

Corbett, 23, is a Fort Worth native and graduated from the University of Texas at Arlington in 1991 with a degree in communications.

Midland Angels general manager Monty Hoppel said that the Midland Sports Banquet, held Jan. 30 at Midland Country Club, raised $6,195 to benefit Midland's Special Olympics program. More than 240 people attended the event.

"We were very pleased with this year's event," Hoppel said. "The money raised for Special Olympics was a major contribution to their annual budget. We thank our Angels fans and the community for responding in a big way."

Goddard sweeps soccer titles

Staff Report

The junior high and freshman soccer programs, sponsored by the Midland Soccer Association, recently ended with Goddard winning all four junior high divisions and Midland Freshman taking the freshman crown over Lee Freshman.

Ninety-two girls and 166 boys participated in the program, competing on 17 teams.

In the seventh grade girls competition, Goddard was followed by Alamo and San Jacinto while San Jacinto was second and Alamo third in the eighth grade division.

Goddard Red was followed by Goddard Black in the seventh grade boy's competition and they were followed by San Jacinto Green, Alamo and San Jacinto White. Goddard Black won the eighth grade boy's title and was followed by San Jacinto, Goddard Red and Alamo.

Buffs make region tourney for first time since 1966

Staff Report

Area Basketball

ABILENE — The Stanton Buffaloes advanced to the Region I boys basketball tournament for the first time since 1966 here Tuesday, as they defeated Hamlin 63-60 in a Class AA area playoff.

Stanton (26-6) trailed by one entering the fourth quarter of the see-saw game, but was able to take the lead on the strength of four players scoring in double figures. Jeremy Stallings was the Buffs' high scorer with 21 points, while Kenneth McAllister added 15, John Wykoff 13 and Grant Wodsin 11.

The Buffaloes will next face the Abernathy-Amarillo Highland Park winner here Friday in the regional semifinals. The other semifinal features the winners of the Coahoma-Stamford and Hale Center-Panhandle games.

The last time Stanton advanced this far it was defeated by Gruver in a one-point game.

Sudan stops Rankin

SEMINOLE — Sudan scored a 70-49 triumph here Tuesday night over the Rankin Red Devils in a Class A boys basketball game.

The Red Devils ended their campaign with a 17-8 record, while Sudan advances to the Region I tournament Friday and Saturday at Levelland.

Keven Braden led Rankin with 15 points and Roy Abalos and Jimmy Low added 10 points each, but the Red Devils never overcame a 38-25 halftime deficit.

Andrews falls 58-51

CEDAR HILL — Fort Worth Everman downed Andrews 58-51 in the Class 4A boys area playoffs Tuesday, ending the Mustangs' season.

Andrews (25-9) was led in scoring by Marc Byerly's 19 points. Carlos Lujan added 12 points while Marcus Morris scored 11. The top scorers for Everman were Rodrick Payton with 16, Kevin White with 12, Lamont Owens with 11 and Curtis Robinson with 10.

Everman next faces Pampa in the regional round.

Tech's Swoopes finalist

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas Tech's Sheryl Swoopes was among five finalists selected Tuesday for a women's college basketball player of the year award.

Other finalists for the Women's Basketball Coaches Association award are Boston College's Sarah Behn, Furman's Rushia Brown, Miami's Frances Savage and West Virginia's Rosemary Kosiorek. The award will be selected in mid-March.

Swoopes, a junior forward, is averaging 22.1 points and 8.7 rebounds. She has made 50 percent of her shots and 79 percent of her free throws.

The finalists were selected solely based upon their statistics.

Behn, a junior guard-forward, is averaging 26.7 points per game.

Houston grabs 2nd place from Frogs

Associated Press

SWC

HOUSTON — Sam Mack scored 16 points and Houston finally edged away from Texas Christian for a 50-44 victory that gave the Cougars sole possession of second place in the Southwest Conference.

Houston (21-5 overall and 10-3 in SWC) leads the Horned Frogs (21-7, 9-4) with one game to play.

The Cougars took advantage of a 7:50 field-goal drought by the Frogs, who didn't score a field goal from the eight-minute mark until Reggie Smith's basket with 10 seconds to go.

Smith led the Frogs with 15 points and Albert Thomas added 12. Craig Upchurch scored 14 points for the Cougars.

Houston took a 31-25 lead early in the second half and took the lead for good on Charles Outlaw's basket with 7:42 left in the game.

Mack scored six of his team's first eight points and the Cougars lead 15-7 early — the biggest of the game — before the Frogs scored nine straight points for a 16-15 lead. The go-ahead points came on Albert Thomas' 3-pointer with 6:08 left in the half.

The lead changed four more times until Mack's 3-point basket with 24 seconds led gave Houston a 26-23 halftime lead.

Thomas scored seven straight points for TCU, tying the score 37-37 with 9:11 left in the game. But Houston began to pull away from the cold-shooting Horned Frogs after Reggie Smith's bucket with 8:00 to go.

"We beat them 13 at home and they beat us by six here so look at that," TCU coach Moe Iba said, quickly ushering his team onto a bus. "We didn't have Reggie with us two days to prepare for the game.

"We didn't do a good job getting the ball to Smith and Houston did a good job of keeping us from getting the ball."

PLAYOFFS: Amarillo scores two points in second quarter

(From 1C)

"We lost to Dunbar by 21 points last year, so I figure we can't do any worse. We can only do better," said Baskind, who led all scorers in the game with 17 points.

Coronado coach Kenny John said, "I hate to keep thinking about the next team. We stayed in the game for about a quarter with Dunbar last year and then it was all over. They're all over the floor and give you fits."

Eastwood, which carried an impressive 28-1 record against Monterey, wilted early under the three-point barrage by Monterey's speedy backcourt, falling behind 23-15 in the first quarter.

The Troopers climbed back into the game in the third period, narrowing the margin to 40-36 with 6:05 left in the period, but Monterey exploded back to a 51-38 lead and coasted to the win.

"I think we surprised Eastwood with our ability to hit the way we did from outside," said Monterey coach Vic Self. "Our last two games we've hit lights out from outside. We had nine of 18 three-point shots and six of 10 in the first half.

"We're not overly talented, so we need the inside and outside game to both work for us. We had both tonight. We beat a good team and we have to play as well as we can against a team like Eastwood."

Monterey's John Hoffman, a scrappy 6-2 senior, said of making the Region I tournament again, "We'll go into the region tournament as the underdog again, and that's just the way we want it. We have the inside power and the outside shooting. If we put it together, we can be tough."

Following Coronado's win over Amarillo, Eastwood coach Bobby Leslie approached T-Bird coach John and asked, "Is that sweat over your brow?"

John answered, "I don't have 600 victories like you, but I sweat the same as you do."

Canseco's wife will not file charges

MIAMI (AP) — The wife of Oakland A's slugger Jose Canseco will not press charges of aggravated battery against her husband for ramming her BMW with his Porsche, her attorney said.

"She doesn't believe anything intentionally happened. Nobody was harmed," said Esther Canseco's lawyer, Luis Delgado. "It's not her intention to proceed with the case."

The only problem is the final decision is not hers.

The decision on whether to prosecute is made by the state attorney's office and that will depend on how "prosecutable" the case is, said John Hogan, chief assistant state attorney. The state hasn't decided yet.

BULLDOGS: MHS posts 3-0 victory

(From 1C)

what the loss means to the Bobcats, who dropped to 5-4.

"We just wanted to keep San Angelo out of it (postseason)," said MHS sophomore Toby Walker, whose goal in the 21st minute of the second half capped the scoring and took the fight out of the Bobcats.

That fight was clear and evident in the early stages of the second half. One Bobcat drew a yellow penalty card and another was ejected for verbal abuse as San Angelo tried to elevate its level of aggressive play and break into the scoring column.

Yet the Bulldogs stayed in control and the game did not turn as ugly as the weather, which erupted with pelting rain midway through the second half.

Instead of fighting fire with fire, the Bulldogs used the San Angelo fouls to good advantage as Dustin Arras scored on the penalty kick provided by the red card and Walker finalized the scoring less than two minutes later against the shorthanded 'Cats.

"I told my kids that they can be pushed around and the only way to get out of it is to smile and play hard," Esikhati said. "That's what they did.

"We knew that we could beat San Angelo if we came out and played our game. San Angelo has a good team, but I think we played better than they did today."

While the loss did not mathematically eliminate the Bobcats from the playoff race, San Angelo must win out while hoping for Abilene High (8-2) to drop its final two games.

The Bulldogs got on the board with just two minutes gone in the game as Jamey Johnson finished off a play started by Mario Rodriquez and pushed along by David Farias. Johnson beat San Angelo goalie Kyle Elkins from point-blank range and the 1-0 lead held up until halftime.

Then San Angelo, which was outshot 6-3 in the first half, turned aggressive.

The second half began with a harmless scuffle between MHS's Farias and San Angelo's Steven Esche. Later, Bobcat Craig Peltana picked up a yellow card for unsportsmanlike conduct after pushing Farias down. And moments later, San Angelo's Marc Menchaca drew a red card — which carries ejection and a one-game suspension — for verbal abuse directed at an official.

San Angelo back-up goalie Bobby Taylor never moved as Arras' penalty kick slammed into the left edge of the net, putting MHS up 2-0 in the 19th minute of the second half.

And Walker waited patiently in front of the Bobcat goal as teammate Ross Hunter worked the ball down

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your devotion to a pet cause will help you make real progress. A financial breakthrough is likely as spring begins. A friend may offer you a chance to travel next summer. Renovating your house will add to its resale value. A former employer or co-worker could send some business your way in October. Enter contests in November. The events of early winter will bring family members closer together. Make sure romantic partner does not feel left out.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: anthropologist Jane Goodall, bridge expert Charles Goren, actress Kay Lenz, singer Mary Wilson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Too many cooks can spoil the broth; take command in an emergency to avoid chaos. An unexpected encounter prompts you to do a better job of raising your children.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Going too fast could lead you to overlook a lucrative financial opportunity. Make needed property improvements. Both your investment and your reputation are at stake.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Delegating more responsibility to a young person may not work out that well. Keep social gatherings to a manageable size and share expenses. Let family members have their say.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Making minor adjustments in your routine could give you greater freedom. Do not panic if someone issues an ultimatum; you will eventually come out on top. Marriage plans meet with temporary delays.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It may require real will power to conquer a bad habit. You have what it takes to succeed! A close relationship takes on added drama. The best part of the week lies ahead of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The spotlight shifts to your private life. Wake up to new possibilities for self-improvement. Accepting someone for what they are will put an end to tiresome arguments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A loved one urges you to take better care of your health. An older person will be lucky for you. Make sure you understand all aspects of a partnership before committing yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Wise use of your talents will take you far. Concentrate on succeeding this time. Find quality time for your family. Plan activities that include loved ones of all ages.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A feeling of loneliness will pass swiftly. Someone would like to play a larger role in your life. Stop being so hard on yourself. A loving heart can accomplish miracles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Racing to and fro is a waste of energy; center yourself before forging ahead. Your role at work will become increasingly important in the weeks ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obtain further details about an overseas enterprise before investing your money. You need to know much more. Mixing friendship and business could be risky this month.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Revise your budget so that you will have funds in case of an emergency. Moonlighting at a second job is one solution. Clear up any domestic misunderstandings.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are innovative thinkers who sometimes fail to act on their brilliant ideas. With greater self-discipline, these daydreaming Pisces can become big achievers! Artistic and people-oriented, they make wonderful hosts. An urge to see as much of the world as possible will keep these Pisces footloose and fancy-free in their 20s and early 30s. They feel that marriage can wait until they are established in their careers.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♡

Take our word for it—those pleasant-looking people to your right and left at the bridge table are trying to do you in. That doesn't mean you have to consent meekly to being led to the slaughter.

North's four clubs was a cue-bid showing a maximum no trump and excellent spade support. However, South had no ambitions beyond game. (In the modern style, South would have bid two hearts as a transfer to spades, North would have jumped to three spades to show a maximum with good spades, and South's four spades would have ended the auction, the only difference being that North would then have been the declarer.)

West attacked with ace and another heart. Since it was obvious North wanted to ruff a heart, declarer immediately led a trump. East won and gave West a heart ruff. The club return was taken in dummy, and declarer eventually had to rely on the diamond finesse for the contract—down one.

While it was unlikely that declarer could prevent a heart ruff, South could have take some preventitive medicine. Before tackling trumps, it would have cost declarer nothing to first cash the ace and king of clubs and then ruff a club with the eight of trumps. With that seemingly unimportant business out of the way, declarer could revert to trumps.

East would still have been able to give West a heart ruff, but as the cards lie, declarer's precautionary move would have paid huge dividends. Down to nothing but diamonds, West would have been forced to lead away from the king into declarer's combined tenace, thereby eliminating declarer's diamond loser. Making four-odd.

Ron Howard steps back in time for 'Happy Days' reunion show

GREENWICH, Conn. — Actor-director Ron Howard said he felt like he was stepping back in time when he went to California to film a "Happy Days" reunion show.

Howard

"In one six-hour period of time, from looking through the material that morning, to driving to the studio, to shooting, I relived the entire creative and emotional experience of doing the show," he said.

The reunion was on Tuesday night's schedule on ABC-TV.

Howard, 38, who played Richie Cunningham, said he still sees Henry Winkler (the Fonz) and other cast members so the reunion wasn't so much a real-life one. The situation comedy ran from 1974 to 1984.

"I always thought the show was kind of goofy and unsophisticated," he said in Monday's Greenwich Time newspaper. "But I enjoyed working with these people so much that it was a pleasure."

Since the series, Howard has directed such movies as "Splash" (1984), "Parenthood" (1989) and "Backdraft."

PITTSBURGH— Actor James Woods used a flower pot as an ashtray after the Fire Department agreed to let him smoke in the City-County Building.

Woods was filming scenes Monday for an HBO movie called "Citizen Cohn." The film is about the late Roy Cohn, a conservative attorney who worked with Sen. Joseph McCarthy during the anti-communist hearings of the 1950s.

The building went smoke-free three years ago, and a first offense calls for a $50 fine.

Woods smokes and so did Cohn. The film's location manager asked the city to allow smoking during filming in City Council chambers, which was used to depict a Senate hearing room.

At the request of Lew Borman, a spokesman for Mayor Sophie Masloff, the Fire Department agreed to let Woods smoke if no one in the room objected, Borman said.

No ash trays could be found, so he gave Woods the flower pot from his office. "He was smoking about one a minute," Borman said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Previously unissued versions of 1960s rock 'n' roll songs by the Shirelles and Chuck Jackson will go on sale in May.

A set of three compact discs titled "The Scepter Records Story" will be released May 26 by Capricorn Records. Included are previously unissued versions of Jackson's "Since I Don't Have You" and "Blue Holiday" by the Shirelles.

Included are rare songs by King Curtis, the Isley Brothers, Dionne Warwick, B.J. Thomas, Maxine Brown, Tommy Hunt, the Kingsmen, Ronnie Milsap, Roy Head, the Esquires, the Joe Jeffrey Group, the Buoys, the Rocky Fellers and Fred Hughes.

BOSTON — A former musical director with New Kids on the Block claimed Tuesday that an examination of the group's live performance on the Arsenio Hall Show proves his contention that the teen heartthrobs lip-synch their songs.

Greg McPherson, a music professor at the University of Massachusetts, charges that manager Maurice Starr has been perpetuating a fraud when he claims the group does all its own singing in concert and on albums.

Starr and the New Kids have denied the accusations by McPherson, who is suing Starr in a unrelated dispute over royalties. Business manager Bob Woolf said "to get constantly attacked like this is ridiculous. I don't know why we're listening to this person."

The group has filed a lawsuit asking for punitive damages against McPherson for allegedly slanderous statements.

McPherson said a videotape of the group's Feb. 7 performance indicated that some lead vocals were digitally enhanced and almost all background vocals came from tapes.

Singing can be heard even though at times none of the singers' lips are moving and their microphones are moved away from their faces, he claimed.

LONDON — A British Broadcasting Corp. program left an unfair impression that NBC's Arthur Kent saw himself as a heroic "Rambo" figure during the Gulf War, the Broadcasting Complaints Commission said Tuesday.

It upheld part of a complaint by Kent, NBC News' Rome-based foreign correspondent, about an edition of "The Late Show" that explored media issues arising from the war. It was broadcast last summer.

Kent complained he was unfairly treated in a brief segment about how his live reports on Iraqi Scud missile attacks on Saudi Arabia made him into a celebrity, especially with women, and earned him the nickname "Scud Stud."

The commission said: "The section of the program about him did leave an unfair impression that he had seen himself as a heroic 'Rambo' figure and unfairly diminished his reputation as a serious foreign correspondent."

Prices rebound

NEW YORK — Oil prices rallied Tuesday on news that OPEC may soon meet to discuss more production cuts and rumors of a coup attempt in Venezuela.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in April settled at $18.64 per barrel, up 30 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange. Lower-grade sour crude for delivery in May settled at $16.00 per barrel, up 25 cents.

Traders said the rally came partly on news that Algeria's oil minister had predicted the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries might meet before the cartel's next scheduled session in late April.

Seminar set

The Southwestern Association of Division Order Analysts will hold a one-day seminar on March 20 at the Oil Field Training Center at Eastern New Mexico University in Roswell, beginning at 8 a.m.

The morning session will begin with a two-part session presented by Sara Tays of Exxon Co. U.S.A., who will discuss analyzation of a division order and Ellis Vickers of Bozarth & Vickers Law Office, who will discuss title and probate problems and solutions. The morning session will conclude with a presentation on the AAPL Form Operating Agreement by Jim Haas of Losee, Carson, Haas and Carroll Law Office.

Guest speaker at the luncheon will be Gene Cox, manager of Lease Crude and Trucking for Navajo Refining Co., who will discuss the history of and provide a update on crude oil purchasing.

Dollar advances

NEW YORK — The dollar advanced on world currency markets Tuesday following the release of fresh data showing the U.S. economy may be recovering.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to a closing 129.94 Japanese yen from 129.53 yen at Monday's close.

In London, the British pound fell to $1.7395 from $1.7540 late Monday.

Other late dollar rates in New York: 1.6585 German marks; 1.5090 Swiss francs; 5.6340 French francs; 1,243.00 Italian lire, and 1.1918 Canadian dollars.

Record stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices advanced cautiously today as the market digested upbeat economic reports and encouraging comments from Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 14.98 to 3,290.25.

Analysts: Gradual recovery starts

■ President Bush finds news "encouraging."

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Reports of a big jump in the government's main economic barometer and a surge in new home sales suggested Tuesday the economy has begun to perk up.

President Bush, under attack from presidential candidates from both parties for his handling of the economy, welcomed the reports, saying, "It's nice to have some encouraging news."

But analysts agreed that any recovery would be anemic, unlike the robust revivals that followed most other post-World War II recessions. And Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan cautioned that "extraordinary forces" still make the future uncertain.

"It looks like the economic recovery is under way," said economist Sung Won Sohn of the Norwest Corp. in Minneapolis. But he added, "it will be a very modest, gradual one."

The Commerce Department said its Index of Leading Economic Indicators jumped 0.9 percent in January after two straight declines. Seven of the 11 forward-looking statistics posted gains, led by soaring stock prices.

The index is designed to forecast economic activity six to nine months in advance. Three consecutive declines are viewed as a fairly reliable — although not infallible — signal of an approaching recession.

The report also showed the November and December drops were not as sharp as previously thought. They were revised upward to 0.2 percent for each month from the 0.3 percent declines originally estimated last month.

"This tells us that (the economy) is not likely in fact to fall back into another recession . . . or a double-dip," said Mark Obrinsky, an economist with the Federal National Mortgage Corp.

Gordon Richards, an economist with the National Association of Manufacturers, said the report is "consistent with other evidence pointing to a gradual recovery in the second" quarter.

For the year, the Bush administration and many economists are forecasting growth of just 1.5 percent compared with an average of 6 percent during the first year of recovery from other post-World War II recessions.

In a second report, the departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development said sales of new homes shot up 12.9 percent in January, the steepest advance in a year. It was the third increase in four months and more than wiped out a 4.6 percent decline in December.

Except for the Northeast, where sales were unchanged, all regions posted advances including a huge 63 percent gain in the Midwest.

Kuwait resumes oil production after war

MINA SAUD, Kuwait (AP) — The Kuwaiti and Saudi Arabian oil ministers opened a symbolic oil pump valve in a ceremony Tuesday marking the resumption of oil production from border wells ravaged by Iraqi troops in the Gulf War.

"This is particularly important because it is done in difficult circumstances," said the Saudi minister, Hisham Nazer. His Kuwaiti counterpart, Hamoud al-Rquba, and James Kinnear, president of New York-based Texaco Inc., stood beside him.

The U.S. oil giant operates onshore facilities in the so-called Neutral Zone that straddles the Kuwait-Saudi Arabia border.

Production from the facilities in the near future will average 40,000 barrels a day, down from the pre-war daily level of 135,000 barrels. That will add 20,000 barrels to Kuwait's daily output of 650,000 barrels.

"The mere fact that we are on production today is somewhat of a miracle," Kinnear told reporters at the company's Mina Saud camp, about 50 miles south of Kuwait City.

The Iraqis left the company's refinery and most of the 14 oil tanks in ruins. Only four tanks were still standing.

Oil firm plans stock offering

■ Stock offering will provide cash for Parker & Parsley development.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil Editor

A new stock offering by Parker & Parsley will give the company added cash to develop producing properties and take advantage of current acquisition opportunities, says Herb Williamson, vice president.

Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co. says it has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission relating to the proposed public offering of 4,200,000 shares of its common stock in a new finance offering.

Parker & Parsley is selling 4,000,000 shares, with stockholders selling the remaining 200,000. The managing underwriters of the offering are Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., Salomon Brothers and Howard, Weil, Labouisse, Friedrichs Inc.

"Parker & Parsley will not use the proceeds to pay down debt, but will use the proceeds for development drilling and acquisitions," said Williamson. He noted that funds would be used to increase its interest in fields already owned and to take advantage of the favorable acquisition market. "This is a good time to be buying properties," he said.

Williamson said the company also intended to use cash flow for development and acquisition activities, but added that the offering would insure there was sufficient cash.

"We have a very aggressive drilling program over the next two and a half years," he said. In a recent survey conducted by the Reporter-Telegram, Parker & Parsley was identified as the top driller in the Permian Basin with approximately 200 wells planned in 1992.

Pending use of the proceeds for development drilling, acquisitions and other general corporate purposes, Parker & Parsley will temporarily apply the proceeds to pay down its revolving line of bank credit.

The company said a registration statement relating to the offered shares of Parker & Parsley's common stock has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, but has not yet become effective.

The offered shares may not be sold nor may offers to buy be accepted prior to the time the registration statement becomes effective.

Williamson said he was hopeful the transaction would be closed by the middle or later part of next month.

Midland Resources acquires 42 wells in W. Texas

Staff Report

Midland Resources Inc., of Midland, has almost doubled its reserves and production with the acquisition of 42 wells in West Texas.

The company announced Tuesday that it had purchased interests in an 8,649-acre producing property from Exxon Corp. The acquisition, located in the Jameson Strawn field of West Texas, increases the company's net equivalent barrels production rate by 255 barrels of oil daily to 574 barrels. Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

With current properties, oil production is 238 barrels per day and gas production is 850 Mcf per day. Production at the properties just acquired is 127 barrels per day and 1.14 Mmcf per day, bringing Midland Resource's new production total to 365 barrels per day and 1.99 Mmcf per day.

According to Warley, oil and gas revenues are projected to increase more than 79 percent on an annual basis from $2.1 million to $3.7 million. Calculated reserves for the new property are based on average prices of $17.75 per barrel of oil and $2 per Mcf for gas. The acquired property's gas includes a fairly high concentration of natural gas liquids.

Warley said reserves for these properties are estimated at 1.22 million net equivalent barrels. This will increase the company's proved oil and gas reserves 84 percent from 1.45 million net equivalent barrels to 2.67 million net equivalent barrels.

Midland Resources also owns producing properties and undeveloped acreage in North Dakota, Colorado, Kansas, Illinois, Oklahoma and Texas. The majority of the company's activities are centered in the Permian Basin.

Also new in Midland is CONSIGNMENT EMPORIUM, which recently opened at 3504 W. Wall in the former Aladdin House Furniture location.

According to Dan Haller, one of nine owners in the business, Consignment Emporium offers a contemporary line of previously-owned furniture. "We aim for good value and good merchandise at a reasonable price," he said.

Along with furniture for the bedroom, dining room and living room, there is some office furniture available as well as floor lamps, decorator pieces and pictures. Haller said the 17,000 square foot building has plenty of room for additional consignments.

The store is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays. Haller explained that the rest of the time is spent meeting with customers interested in placing pieces in the store, checking the merchandise and helping the customer establish a price. "We assist the client with pricing items, then we display it and charge a percentage of the sale price," he said.

He adds that the nine owners combined have over 60 years experience in the furniture business.

Through its recent "Open Your Hearts to Easter Seals" campaign, LITTLE CAESARS pizza restaurant locations in Midland and Odessa raised $375 for the local Easter Seal society and $300,000 nationally.

The restaurants raised the funds by selling Valentine's Day stickers and donating the net proceeds from each sale to Easter Seals.

Easter Seals helps people with disabilities achieve maximum independence through an array of special programs.

The three Midland/Odessa Little Caesars restaurants are located at 1000 N. Midkiff in the Town & Country shopping center in Midland, 1619 N. West County Road in West County Plaza and University and Grandview in Town & Country Shopping Center in Odessa. The Detroit-based chain has 3,800 restaurants throughout the U.S. as well as in Canada, England and Puerto Rico.

Venezuelan army units put on alert

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The armed forces have been put on full alert following a raid on an armory that appeared linked to last month's coup attempt, the Defense Ministry said.

In a new attack Tuesday, three men with rifles opened fire on a navy base on the Orinoco River, 280 miles southeast of Caracas. Four sentries drove them off, said Gen. Jose Antonio Godoy Betencurt, the base commander. There were no casualties, he said, and little information on what motivated the attackers.

The second attack on the military in two days caused new jitters over the country's future. Opposition parties have been calling on President Carlos Andres Perez to resign to release the political pressures built up since an attempted coup against him on Feb. 4.

Even Perez's own Democratic Action party demanded Tuesday that he reverse his program of drastic free-market reforms.

Sunday, five commandos raided the military headquarters in Caracas and escaped with rifles, submachine guns and ammunition.

A statement from the Defense Ministry said the attack w "presumably" connected to the earlier coup attempt. The ministry announced Monday night that the army had been put on full alert Sunday night, with most troops confined to barracks.

The leader of the Feb. 4 coup, Lt. Col. Hugo Chavez, said in newspaper interviews published this week that his coup attempt had unleashed "unstoppable" social forces. Chavez and more than 100 other officers are in jail awaiting trial for rebellion.

Perez has spurned demands for resignation and said he will serve his five-year term, which ends Feb. 2, 1994.

Perez has most government subsidies and privatized state-owned companies, boosting national growth but causing growing hardship among the poor, who comprise up to 80 percent of the population of 20 million.

Cuban communists jeer Bush political remarks

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuba's Communist Party on Tuesday derided President Bush's call for political change in the Caribbean island nation as the "cheap posturing" of a desperate candidate.

The party newspaper Granma said Bush's op-ed page commentary in the Miami Herald on Feb. 27 was a "banal" campaign ploy to curry favor with right-wing Cuban exiles in Florida and divert attention from U.S. economic woes.

Bush said then, "The day of the dictator is over, and I am convinced that Castro's days are numbered."

President Fidel Castro's Cuba has spurned all calls to overhaul its Communist system. The U.N. Human Rights Commission in Geneva condemned Cuba's human rights record and voted 23-8 on Tuesday to renew efforts to send a special investigator to Cuba.

Cuban delegate Miguel Alfonso Martinez said Cuba would not cooperate with any such investigation. He called the resolution a "miserable political vendetta" organized by the United States.

Ricardo Bofill, a Miami spokesman for the Havana-based Cuban Pro Human Rights Committee, hailed the U.N. vote as a "complete moral triumph" for all Cubans and a symptom of Castro's international isolation.

Prensa Latina, the official Cuban news agency, carried an unusually lengthy series of dispatches dealing with Granma's editorial Tuesday.

Russian workers may buy plant

MOSCOW (AP) — The largest automobile factory in the former Soviet Union will be offered for sale to its 100,000 workers and other investors, ITAR-Tass reported Tuesday.

The GAZ plant in the Russian city of Nizhny Novgorod will first become a joint stock company with all shares owned by the state, the news agency said. The shares will later be offered to the employees, it said.

The plant makes trucks and Volga sedans, one of the most common cars in Russia. Moscow streets are full of Volga taxis and black Volgas owned by the government.

The state owned all property in the former Soviet Union. The newly independent republics are now privatizing everything from factories to farmland, homes and stores.

Insurers divide sick from well

N.Y. Times News Service

In a new practice, some health insurance companies are starting to divide the sick from the well, even in large groups that were once a bastion of security in a tumultuous industry.

Families in large groups had always felt that if they had been part of the group for at least six months or a year, their medical costs would be covered and their premiums would remain stable. But now, some insurance companies are dramatically raising rates for sick people, and even for people they think may become sick.

The result, said Dr. Norman Daniels, an ethicist at Tufts University who is an expert on health insurance, is that "no one in this country with private health insurance coverage who is in any kind of group plan is free from the kind of uncertainty that competition is producing."

He added, "We are beginning to see that people who have the greatest access to health care in this country are at risk."

No one knows how common it is for insurance companies to raise the rates for the sick in large groups, which usually consist of employees at big corporations or members of special-interest organizations. But the experience of Kathleen Renshaw of Leucadia, Calif., and others shows that the problem, once thought to be limited to small groups, is spreading to large groups as well.

Ms. Renshaw finally admitted defeat in her struggle to keep group health insurance for her family when the annual premium reached $16,000 a year. Her problem is her 8-year-old daughter, Marisa, an exuberant child who swims on a team and takes singing lessons.

But Marisa has only one kidney, and it does not fully function. She needs regular checkups and may face kidney failure in the future. When the family's insurance company learned of the problem, which doctors discovered when Marisa was 3, it began doubling the family's health insurance premiums each year, the maximum increase allowed by California law.

Finally, the family could no longer pay. And no other company would insure them. Along with Marisa, Ms. Renshaw, her husband, William Harvey, and their 4-year-old daughter, Kirsten, who has no medical problems, were out in the cold even though they had been part of a large group with health insurance.

Ms. Renshaw and Harvey never thought they would be without health insurance. They both have jobs, they bought group health insurance through the alumni association at the University of California at San Diego, and they always paid their premiums.

"I thought that when you pay insurance, the insurance companies will pay for you when you get sick," Ms. Renshaw said. It was a shock to learn otherwise, she said.

Dr. Donald Light, a sociologist who is professor of health policy at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, said the family's experience was "a tragic example of the spiral of exclusion that is spreading through the entire health care industry."

The Renshaw family fell victim to a practice that Light calls policy churning. Each year, the company would raise its rates. At the same time, it invited its members to reapply for an attractive low rate for new subscribers. But people who were sick or had a pre-existing condition were turned down for the lower rate when they reapplied, forcing them to accept whatever rate the company would impose.

Light said group insurance programs until recently covered any member who became ill. The costs for the sick people were spread over the entire group. But the new trend changes the rules so that group members who become sick or, the company suspects, may become sick, have to pay much more for their coverage.

Light said the practice began in small groups, like self-insured small businesses, in the mid- to late 1980s. While it is still most common in small groups, he said, it is spreading to larger and larger groups. The group that Ms. Renshaw and Harvey joined had thousands of families.

Daniels said practices that weed out the sick are the insurance industry's way of remaining competitive by selling insurance at low rates to people who are well.

"What's really at work are a set of economic factors," he said.

Senator has no apologies for Japanese joke

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Sen. Ernest Hollings says he was just responding to Japanese criticism when he told workers they "should draw a mushroom cloud and put underneath it: 'Made in America by lazy and illiterate Americans and tested in Japan.'"

Hollings said he used the World War II image of the atomic bombs dropped on Japan, which killed thousands and hastened the end of the war, because he wanted to show that he was tired of Japanese criticism.

The 70-year-old Democrat, who is up for re-election in November, was touring South Carolina's Roller Bearing Co. of America plant Monday when he made the statement to about 90 workers. The comments drew applause from the workers at a plant in Hartsville.

"I'm not Japan bashing. I'm defending against America bashing. When you defend America, they want you to apologize," Hollings said in a statement Tuesday.

"I made a joke to make a point; the Japanese speaker was wrong when he said that American workers are lazy and stupid."

He referred to comments by Japanese Parliament Speaker Yoshio Sakurauchi's in January.

Sakurauchi said U.S. workers were lazy, unproductive and illiterate. Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa fueled the controversy two weeks later when he suggested that Americans lack a work ethic.

House scandals prompt call for administrator

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Speaker Thomas S. Foley on Tuesday endorsed a Democratic effort to create the office of a House administrator, a move that would give him more direct control over various offices that have caused him and the House embarrassment and attracted accusations of scandal in recent months.

The speaker's comments were the latest Democratic move intended to head off the Republicans who hope to capitalize on the House Bank scandal by demanding the immediate publication of a list of dozens of members who overdrew on checking accounts by tens of thousands of dollars.

In a more direct move to control the bank scandal, Democrats on the House ethics committee favor releasing a short list of the very worst offenders, a move resisted by Republicans. A group of junior Republicans who believe the Democrats are trying to cover up widespread Democratic mismanagement and fraud are preparing to begin pointed protests on the House floor later this week.

Several Democrats have proposed establishing an administrator, a move that is conspicuously lacking Republican support.

Three Democratic representatives, Dan Glickman of Kansas, George Miller of California and Richard J. Durbin of Illinois, introduced legislation Tuesday to establish the office of a House administrator who would be appointed by the Speaker and approved by the full House.

Thousands turn out for Fat Tuesday

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The city put a mask on its troubles Tuesday night as hundreds of thousands of revelers jammed the streets in a bawdy Mardi Gras climax, unimpeded by controversy over an anti-discrimination ordinance.

The ordinance that could force elite, century-old parade clubs to integrate and admit women bitterly divided city leaders this year and gave rise to fears that racial tension might ruin the annual celebration.

But police reported no problems among the racially mixed crowds of tourists oblivious to the controversy and locals who didn't care.

"Unity, baby, Unity. They'll get it together," New Orleans-born Lillian Davis said when asked about the controversy.

She was watching the parade of the mostly black, all-male Zulu Social Aid and Pleasure Club. Standing next to her was Tommie Rogers of Baton Rouge.

"I haven't seen any problems at all," Rogers said. "I think everyone's having a good time."

The celebration's final hours were centered in the city's French Quarter, where crowds jammed shoulder to shoulder to drink before the midnight start of Lent. Mardi Gras — Fat Tuesday in French — is the climax of several days of carnival and is widely celebrated in Roman Catholic countries.

Early morning sunshine gave way to clouds and a threat of rain, but the holiday remained dry into the night.

Lt. Sam Fradella, a police spokesman, said arrests for this Mardi Gras season appeared to be down, though he couldn't provide specific numbers.

There were, however, pointed reminders of the controversy that many fear will flare again.

Someone draped a French Quarter balcony in black and hung a sign from the railing that said "Thank You For Killing Mardi Gras, Dorothy Mae Taylor."

Ms. Taylor is a City Councilwoman and the new law's author.

In protest of the law, a 135-year-old group known as Mistick Krewe of Comus refused to hold its parade, traditionally the final procession on Tuesday. Another parade was canceled Thursday.

Another tradition altered by the dispute: Rex, King of Carnival, toasted his queen at a reviewing stand in front of a ritzy hotel instead of at the exclusive Boston Club. Club members refused to play host this year because of the law — even though it doesn't take effect until next year.

The law would deny parade permits and other services to private clubs proven to exclude people because of race, gender, religion, nationality or sexual orientation. It is especially irksome to secretive old-line krewes with invitation-only memberships reserved for men from the city's oldest families.

Two independent polls taken in January showed a vast majority of whites and a small majority of blacks opposed the ordinance, but many black leaders mounted a campaign supporting it. At least two council members say they want to repeal the law and bitter fights are expected.

But harmony was the order of the day Tuesday as Mayor Sidney Barthelemy, who is black, delivered the traditional "Hail Rex" toast to the ceremonial monarch.

Threat of virus triggers computer scans

N.Y. Times News Service

Computer users nationwide are bracing for this week's unwelcome arrival of Michelangelo.

No, the acclaimed work of the 16th-century Italian artist is not experiencing a revival. Rather, a computer virus named for the noted painter and sculptor threatens to wipe out data stored on some computer hard disks Friday — the 517th anniversary of Michelangelo's birth.

Although computer users in North Texas say Michelangelo has not been detected, caution is urged in preparing for the trigger date of the potentially lethal computer virus.

"Although we have seen many computer viruses in the past, this is the first widespread virus to be pretty malignant," said Philip Chapnick, director of the Computer Security Institute in San Francisco.

The Michelangelo program, which is passed by sharing infected computer software, may hit anywhere from 500,000 computers to 5 million computers Friday, according to estimates by industry experts.

However, the actual extent of virus infection in businesses and homes cannot be predicted, Chapnick said.

"A lot of people are hyping this to the sky," he said. "It's a problem, but it is a controllable problem."

Computer owners can use a variety of techniques to sidestep the Michelangelo virus, industry professionals say.

One strategy is to reset the computer's internal clock to skip March 6. Another approach is to buy a computer package that can scan for potential viruses. Such computer programs typically cost less than $100.

Above all else, computer users should make backup versions of the programs they have stored on their hard disks, said Jim Hoisington, a director of the North Texas PC Users Group.

The Michelangelo virus can cause significant damage because of the way it works, Hoisington said. In addition to erasing programs, Michelangelo will destroy information that tells a computer programmer where information was stored.

"If you're not really smart, you won't be able to re-create location codes," Hoisington said. "A lot of people I know are scanning all of their programs this week just to be safe."

The use of scanning programs that weed out viruses has become increasingly common with the proliferation of infected software. Chapnick estimates that there are hundreds of virus strains in varying levels worldwide.

Carrying names like the Friday the 13th virus, the Pakistani virus, the Brain virus and the Ping-Pong virus, most of the programs are written by computer hackers trying to outfox their peers. Most of these programs are considered more annoying than destructive, Chapnick said.

However, businesses that fall victim to Michelangelo without having a proper backup are vulnerable, he said.

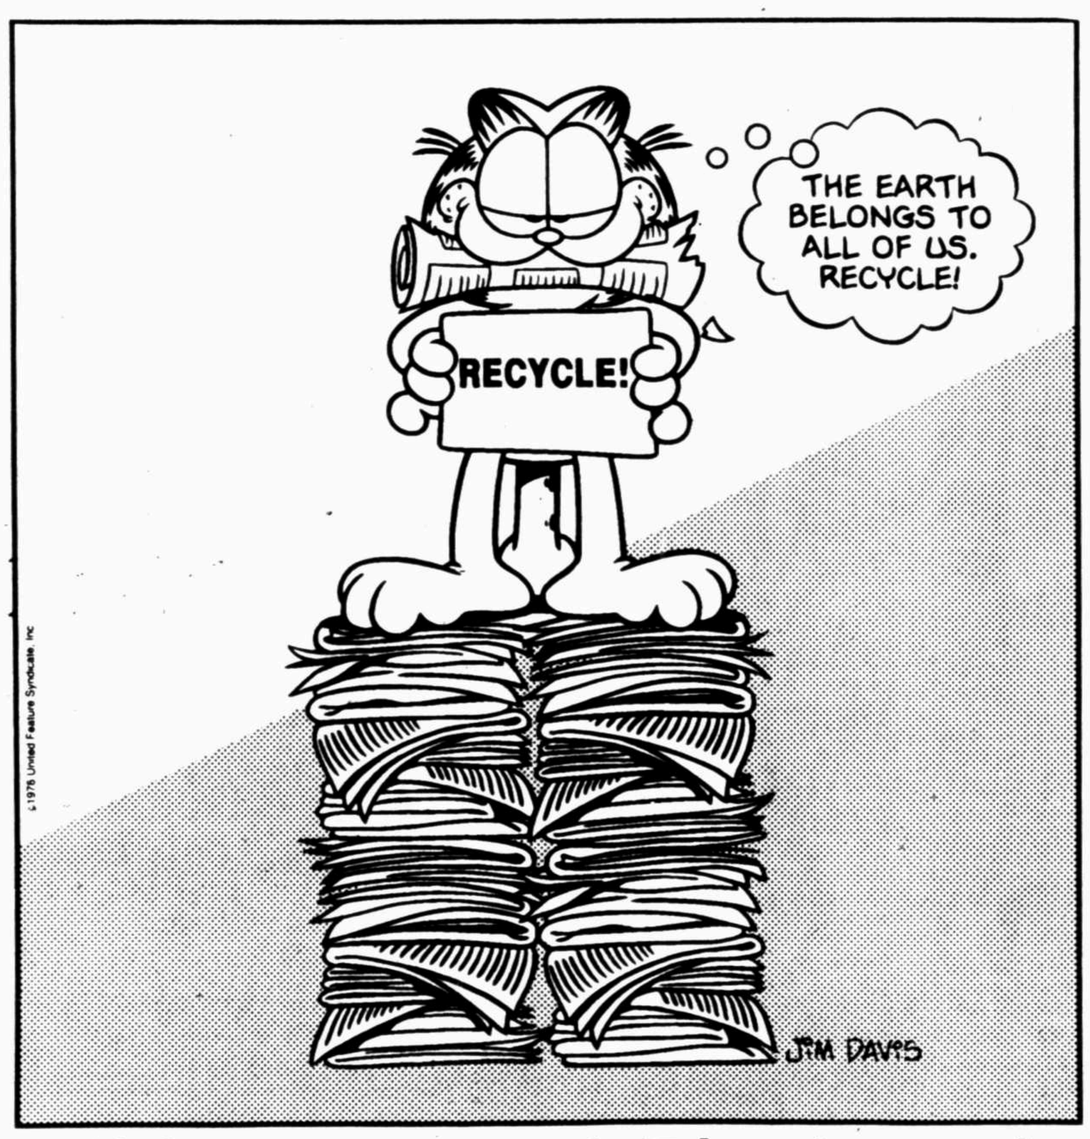
"If Michelangelo hits the accounts receiveable file of a small business, it could destroy all the information," Chapnick said. "A business may go broke if it doesn't know who to collect money from."

One industry, however, benefits from the virus scare. Software makers that produce programs designed to eliminate viruses or provide computer security are making money.

Watson Information Systems Corp., a 1-year-old Austin company, is marketing a $19.95 program designed to combat Michelangelo.

Another security software company, Micronyx Inc. of Richardson, Texas, benefits from increased exposure for all computing risks, said Roy Miller, the company's marketing manager.

"The threat is real, but the key word is threat," Miller said. "We don't know what will happen, but we know this will raise awareness for computer security."



Celebrate Newspaper in Education Week

WHAT!
NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

That's right...one of the best part-time income supplements around. Doesn't conflict with your 'day job.' Doesn't require day care. And it's dependable income.

Fact: 95% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!

Fact: Our Distributors make from $400-$800 monthly AFTER expenses, some even more!

The catch? You've gotta be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.

So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING, or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...

Call 688-2700 and start making that extra car payment today!
