WELLINGTON'S REFINISHED CHURCH
Above is a view of the alter and choir areas of the First Methodist Church, as it has been rebuilt. The paneling behind the choir and the chancel is of polished mahogony. The railing enclosing the alter area is not seen here, since it is open at the aisle, but it is similar to the chancel. First services in the rebuilt auditorium will be held Sunday, April 4, and will include morning worship, basket dinner, open house and evening worship. At left is the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Quality Stressed in Annual Youth Project Show Saturday

Collingsworth's annual Youth Project Show, highlight of the year for Future Farmers, 4-H Boys and Future Homemakers will be held Saturday, April 3, when some of the county's best livestock and most outstanding examples of homemaking are displayed.

As in the past, the livestock division will be held at the Greenbelt Rural Electric Co-operative grounds, across the street west of the community building, and the homemaking exhibits will be set up in the community building.

The show is sponsored by the Youth Project Show committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Whilt the livestock division will probably be smaller in numbers than for the last few years, quality will be as good if not better than it has ever been. Dry weather, lifestock disperals in the area have served to point up the value of quality in an animal, both for the school age boys and the commercial stock men, County agent J. W. Thomas explained.

Judging the show will be Coy Neeley, Vocational Agriculture teacher at Paducah, former coach of the Texas Tech cattle judging team that won the national championship.

The following classes of livestock will be set up:

Beef Cattle: beef calves and beef heifers. Prize monies will be first, $10; second, $8.00; third, $6.00; fourth $4.00. A grand champion and reserve champion baby beef will be named.

Dairy cattle: heifers bulls and cows. Prize money will be: first, $8.00; second, $6.00; third, $4.00 and fourth $2.00. A grand champion female will be selected

Swine: junior gilts senior gilts, and barrows. Prizes will be first, $8.00; second, $6.00; third, $4.00. and drought, $2.00. There will be a grand champion gilt and reserve champion gilt designated

The traditional $5.00 showmanship prize will be given.

It is anticipated that the number of dairy animals entered will again exceed the number of beef calves and heifers, Mr. Thomas said. This was the case last year, for the first time in the Project Show's history.

Mr. Thomas said that as far as he is able to determine at present, there will be from 10 to 12 beef calves; 15 to 20 dairy animals, and 20 or 30 hogs, although he added that nearly every year several head of stock appear in each class which are not expected.

Sale of the calves will be set up on a different basis this year. All animals to be sold will be auctioned by the Wellington Livestock Auction Monday, April 3, at 1:00 p. m. John Robert Henard and

Work Due 60 to 90 Days

National Guard Assured That Wellington Will Get Armory

Assurance that Wellington's National Guard Unit will get the armory it is seeking was given Guard officers, county and city officials who met with the National Guard Armory Board in Austin Wednesday, March 24.

Meeting with the board were Major D. V. Watkins, commanding officer of the Medical Unit of the 142nd Infantry, 36th Division, Texas National Guard; Capt. Charles Allen, executive officer; Lt. Denzil Bevers; County Judge R. L. Templeton, along with State Senator Andy Rogers and State Representative Grainger McIlhany. They were joined in Austin later by City attorney Paul Spillman, who had gone by Dallas to contact the Civil Aeronautics Authority relative to securing a release on grounds at Marian Airpark, where the armory will be built.

Major Watkins was spokeman for the group.

Wellington was given priority position of the board ,and every assuarnce that armory will be built. The Board has an archetict for the project and Major Watkins was asked to select at that time the material from which the armory will be built, Lt. Bevers said.

It is estimated that it will be 60 to 90 days before work will begin.

The proposed armory will be built to company unit size at an estimated cost of around 65,000.

This will be an important addition both to the National Unit and to the town, Lt. Bevers pointout. It will enable the guard to build up to its full strength of 80 men and 7 officers and will substantially increase the payroll.

"All of the payroll received by the guard is spent right here in Wellington, so you can see that is really means something to us," Lt. Bevers declared.

The armory building would be made available for public use so long as that would not interfere with the Guard program.

The location of the new armory will be in Marian Airpark, just east of the swimming poll and the residence besides it, fronting on RM highway 336.

Government Contract Awarded Firm

Construction Begins On New Warrick Elevator

Construction of four new tanks that will double the present capacity of the Warrick Feed Store Elevators was announced this week by Lawrence Warrick and Velman Warrick, owners.

Work is already under way, and the new unit is to be completed by June 1.

This construction program follows the working to the Warrick Feed Store Elevators a five-year government storage contract which guarantees 75 per cent capacity storage during that period.

The present capacity of the elevators is 80,000 bushels of grain and the new unit of four tanks will bring this to the 160,000 bushel total. Lawrence Warrick pointed out, however, that the tanks are never filled completely to capacity, since room must be left for turning the grain.

John Strafford of Hollis is contractor for the concrete work, while Harlan Foster of Hollis has the contract to install the machinery. Mr. Foster put in the machinery in the present unit and is one of the best known contractors for this type work in the wheat-growing sections of the middle west and southwest.

The contract for the tank installation has not been let, Lawrence Warrick said.

The cost of the new elevator unit was not revealed.

Their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Cristy of Canyon were here during the week end, and their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Leach and Baby will be here this week end.

Civic Improvement Club Sponsors Clean-up Drive

The Civic Improvement Club, an organization of Negro men, is sponsoring a clean-up campaign which will begin now and continue until June 1, Joseph Hogue, a member of the club, has announced.

This campaign is to promote cleanliness around each home. It is for cleanliness and not for planting flowers and schrubs and such," he emphasized.

This is the first project sponsored by the club.

A prize of $15 will be warded the owner of the cleanest award. This is being given by Dr. E. W. Jones. The amount is being matched by the club, and the second place winner will receive $10 and third place winner $5.

The trash will be hauled from the section by the city in its regular weekly trash collections.

Mill Iron Sells Herd In Largest Registered Sale in History

The Mill Iron will continue to operate as a beef factory in Collingsworth, Cottle, Childress and Hall Counties and will continue to be an important economic factor in these communities. This fact was made known by Layfayette Hughes, trustee of the estate after Phil Toreva and Kemper Morely of Phoenix announced the purchase of the 6,000 herd of registered Herefords.

Mr. Hughes told The Leader: We have been here for 80 years and we expect to be in business here for the next Eighty. We have sold the registered cattle: but we sold no land.

We are simply changing our program to one that will be bigger and more productive. The cattle will be moved in an orderly fashion and the new owners of the cattle will work with us in our experiments on grass.

Bill Hughes, son of Lafayette Hughes had this short statement to make about his home at Cottonwood: "I came here to make this my home and I will continue to make this my home."

This sale of the largest herd of registered cattle in the United States will mean an end to the famous Mill Iron sale held annually each fall and in latter years both in the spring and the fall. Originally the sale was held at Cottonwood near Wellington: but as the number of bulls increased the problem of transportation became more difficult: so in recent years the sale has been held at Estelline a fairly central point of the vast holdings that were acquired by the late William E. Hughes.

The sale, which was originated by Lafayette M. Hughes was unique in the annuals of registered cattle. Each year several hundred choice bulls of superior breeding were sold at uniform price as contrasted with the conventional method of selling registered cattle to the highest bidder at auction. The prospective buyers drew 10 lots and picked their bulls by number: but all paid the same price, which was $300 per head at the sale last fall.

The method of the sale drew high praise from owners of commercial herds: but it also drew criticism from owners of register-

Methodists to Worship in Refinished Church Sunday

Members of Wellington's First Methodist Church will worship for the first time in the completely refinished and renewed sanctuary Sunday, April 4, the Rev. J. F. Michael, pastor, has announced.

This will be one of the important days of recent church history, with four separate events planned throughout the day.

First of these services will be the morning worship at 10:50 a. m. After a short sermon by Rev. Michael, the communion service will follow.

Dinner will be served at the fellowship hall immediately following morning worship.

During the afternoon, from 2:30 to 4:30, open house will be held, when the general public is invited to see the improved building.

Dr. E. E. White of Childress, district superintendent, will preach at the evening hour.

Explaining more fully the services, the Rev. Mr. Michael has announced his morning message as "Christianizing Civilization."

"Bring your basket filled with good food, and join us in this old-fashioned feast for all which will follow at noon," the pastor urged.

Immediately following the evening worship, which begins at 7:30 p. m., Dr. White will hold the 4th quarterly conference. Reports from various departments will be made. Stewards and other officers will be elected for the coming year.

Work renewing the auditorium has been directed by the building committee composed of Henry Sullivan, Lawrence Warrick, J. B. Stevenson, Frank Campbell, Bryan Denley, Dan Henard, Sam Gholson, Jack Brisbin and Dr. E. K. Jones.

A large part of the work was volunteer labor, with from 12 to 15 men working at nights. The construction work was directed by Rudy Burquist, local builder, and the painting and refinishing by Doug Bergvall.

To start the rebuilding program, the ceiling of the entire auditorium was lowered and the walls were painted a pale green. Door and window facings were also painted a light color and this had done much to bring out the coloring of the stained glass windows.

Major changes were made in the altar and choir sections.

The organ console was moved to the north side of the choir area

New Auto Fuel Made from Aviation Gas Components

A new "high performance" automotive fuel, made possible by the use of aviation gasoline components recently released from government priority, has been developd by Phillips Petroleum Company.

The new gasoline contains Diisopropyl, a high test ingredient originated by Phillips, which made possible more powerful, higher anti-shock fuels for combat aircraft. Until recently, the use of super aviation gasoline components has been restricted by military authorities for use of high performance aviation gasoline. These have now been released for use in automotive gasoline, and Phillips is able to use not only Diisopropyl but also HF Alkylate, both originated and first manufactured by Phillips.

According to Phillips research authorities the new gasoline, designated "Flite-Fuel for your car," offers important performance advantages. It provides increased power, higher anti-knoek quality, greater fuel economy, and freedom from stalling.

Equally important say Phillips authorities, are the clean burning qualities of the new gasoline. Use of natural gas components which leave scarcely and carbon residue, eliminates the necessity for special gasoline additives to combat engine deposits.

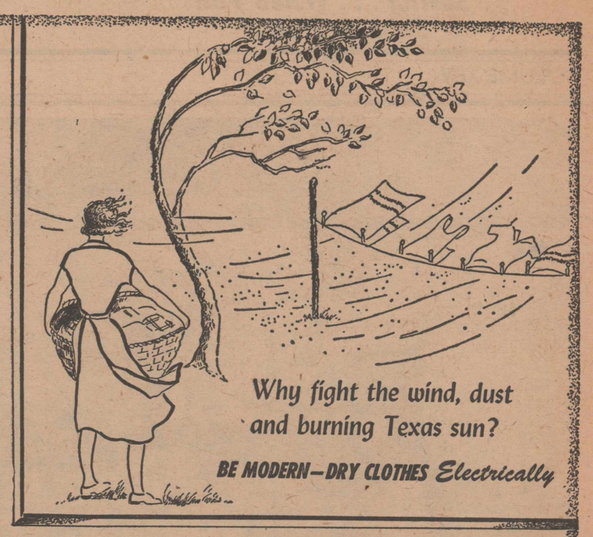

Distribution of the new gasoline has already begun and it will be available in the near future at all Phillips 66 service stations.

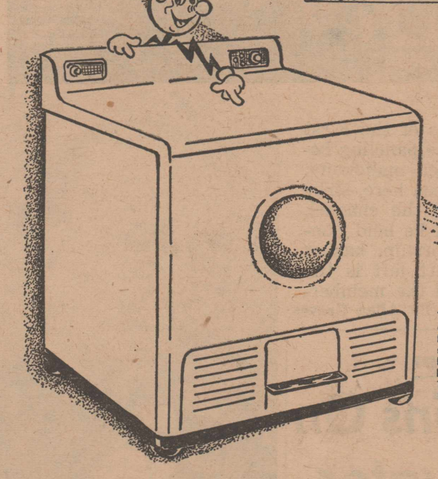

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Frost and daughter,Pam of Wichita Falls, spent the week end with her sisters and brother, Miss Bonnie Willis, Mack Willis and Mr. and Mrs. Deskins Wells and Henry.

Mr. and Mrs. Luie Helbert of Childress visited in the home of here mother, Mrs. Pat Shields, Sunday.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Next Sunday is the time when Rev. J. F. Michael has selected for the dedication of the remodeled First Methodist Church. This genial gentleman is proud of the improvements that have been made and he is grateful to the young men who made it possible. The man is a great religious leader. He is an elderly man full of poise and charm—quiet and serene and determined in his happy purpose. His great accomplishment is not the improvement of the looks of the church. His great work has been in getting so many able young men interested in and worknig for the church. In other years the Methodist Church has been noted for having a number of faithful old men and a lot of devoted women of all ages. Today the church also has a group of energetic young men who give signs of making the Method st church a vital moving factor for the betterment of the community.

Congratulations

Yours Are Emblems of Success

The very fact that you are participating in this project show is an indication you are successful already, as a member of FFA, FHA or the Boys 4-H Club.

We know of no better training ground for successful citizenship participation of tomorrow, nor any better opportunity for Collingsworth to see the fine job you are doing.

See the project show for fine livestock and homemaking projects.

See us for the best in farm machinery.

One Jersey Heifer Aroused Interest

Quail Future Farmers Push Dairy Program

By FRANK KENNEDY

There is no program much sounder on the farm than diversification, especially when ready cash begins to get scarcer.

It is the intention of the Quail FFA to stress the importance of such a program. We have a good hog program underway, and we are now branching out into poultry and dairy stock.

We realize milking cows is confining and many people regard it as not desirable; yet we are keeping in mind that milk is a good source of cash.

Last year the Sears Roebuck Foundation gave the Quail chapter a registered Jersey heifer to be handled on the rotation basis. By this plan, the heifer is placed with a boy and he in turn gives back to the chapter her first heifer, to be placed with another boys. This heifer has been placed with Jerry Peeples, a boy that is already used to dairy cattle.

Since that heifer was received a year ago, other boys have started dairy projects. Perry Souder has a Holstein heifer that freshened a few months ago. David Kindrick has a Jersey with which he won the grandchampionship of the Quail Project Show.

Another boy who has not been with this chapter very long, W. C. Ray, has a very nice Jersey that will freshen not too long in the future.

A Holstein heifer is owned by Wayne Parker.

We are hoping to continue to increase this program to the extent that several boys will be established in dairying by the time they finish school.

Family of Six Hurt in Wreck

A family of six received painful but not critical injuries and their car was badly damaged when it crashed into the rear of a truck Wednesday night, March 24, about three miles south of Lutie.

The office of Sheriff Claude McKinney said that Mr .and Mrs. L. E. Hawley of Borger and their four children, Barbara Gayle, 11, Janet Kathryn, 7, Johnny, 8 and Robert Wayne, 13, received cuts and bruises and were badly shaken in the accident. L. A. Hartley of Sherman, driver of the truck was uninjured.

Members of the Hawley family were brought to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment.

The accident, which occured about 8:00 p. m., was attributed to dust blowing across the road to the extent that Mr. Hawley could not see that he was approaching the trurk so closely, according to the sheriff's department.

The accident was investigated by Sheriff McKinney and Deputy Kenneth Hodge and Patrolemen Blackie Calloway and Clinton Culp.

and turned so that the organist can see both the choir members and the audience.

The altar area was enlarged and a new paneled railing was set up enclosing it. A new pulpit and a new shanrel were built. These are of polished mahogony.

Polished mahogony paneling was put up in the west end of the church, behind the choir, and centering with a gilded cross, with indirect light coming from behind.

New heating and air conditioning units have been installed in the west end of the church, with single ducts serving both systems.

Carpeting will be laid on the three aisles, along with the space at the main entrance and in the pulpit and altar areas.

"I have never seen a program go over so harmoniously. Everyone seems highly pleased," Rev. Michael declared.

Rev. and Mrs. Michael are nearing the end of their second year in Wellington, having come here from an Abilene Church. While other improvement projects have been carried out under his direction, this is the largest yet.

The history of the Methodist Church in Wellington goes back to the very beginning of the town. It was organized in 1891 with the Rev. J .H. Linderman as pastor. The first building was put up in 1909 it had become too small and was sold, and for four years the Methodists worshipped in a taberuacle. In 1913, during the pastorate of Rev. A. L. Bowman, a brick church was put up at a cost of $15,000. An addition was built at a cost of $20,000 in 1925, when the Rev. J. T. Hix was pastor. These form the present building.

Extensive work has been done on the building since the end of World War II.

Several changes have been made in this year's event, Mrs. Monty Mitchell, speaking for the homemaking teachers, said. SILAGE BEST INSURANCE AGAINST SHORT CROP, FARMERS TOLD Silegae is one of the best sources of vitamin A available in livestock feeding, Paul Marion, agronomist at the Spur Experiment Station, discussed a phase of feeding that has been pointed out by drouth conditions of the area.

Speaking at the same meeting Friday, March 19, was Cecil Meador, head of brush control work at the station, who discused the importance of brush eradication to the average farmer.

Mr. Marion told the group that bundles as such are low in food nutritients after they are three months old. If they are ground, that is added expense and if they are not ground approximately 50 per cent is unconsumed by the livestock. Vitamin A is about all.

"Silage is insurance against short crops. It is higher in Vitamin A than alfalfa after it is three to six months of age. It holds its vitamin A better than any other feed and has 80 per cent of that vitamin after three to five years and 75 per cent after 10 years."

He added that silage excells in beef and milk production, and while it costs not over $7.00 per ton, is worth from $10 to $15. He urged county farmers to plant forage that will make the most tonage per acre.

Mr. Meador, discussing brush control, brought out that soil type and condition for growth in brush to be a factor that causes a variance in kill, which may range from practically none to 90 per cent in two years. He added that he still feels that brush is a problem of such magnitude that 85 per cent of the land is cut 50 per cent in production, and that it is such a problem to the stock man that there is nothing he can do but work on it.

Spraying because of weed control and getting back mesquite in the process will pay for itself on good range land by using every five years.

But kerosene treatment used in the fall when the ground is dry is still one of the most dependable controls avaiable ,the speaker said.

Always Remember The Children When You Drive

"Drive slow! Childern move fast!"

That warning was issued to Texas motorists today by Col. E. B. Tilley of Houston, President of the Texas Safety Association, as he opened the April Child Pedestrian and cycle Safety program the Texas Safety Association, the Department of Publis Safety and the National Safety Council are canducting during April.

"Youngsters often seem to materalize out of thin air, right into the driver's path," Col Tilley said. "A motorist must think quick and act fast to avoid hitting them when they dart out from behind parked cars or cross streets in mid-block. That's why the driver must be alert every minute he's behind the wheel."

Calling attention to he appalling toll of young lives taken by traffic accidents each year (over 2,000,000 children under 15 years old, injured and killed in 1952) he reminded motorists that every driver has a personal responsibility for the safety of the children he meets in traffic.

Col. Tilley listed the following actions of child pedestrions for which motorists should be on the look-out (National Safety Council statictics on their toll in nujuries and deaths for 1951 are given in parenthesis,:

1. Playing in the roadway (23,000 injured and killed).
2. Darting our from behind parked cars (22,000 injured and killed)
3. Riding bicycles (22,000 injured and killed).
4. Crossing at intersections (12,000 injured and killed).
5. Walking in the roadway and hitching on vehicles (2,000 injured and killed,.

"It's natural for youth to be impulsive," he said, "and drivers must be aware of this in order to protect youngsters from the consequences of their own heedlessness."

He advised motorist to be especially careful when driving in areas in which youngsters are likely to be found.

"A good rule for drivers to follow," he said, ,'is to always expect the unexpected from children."

70 Applications For Surplus Food

Seventy applications for surplus food have been filed in Collingsworth County so far, representing an estimated 350 individuals, David Robinson, county clerk, who is handling this phase of the surplus food program, said this week.

These applications have not approved, and a number may be weeded out as ineligible, it was emphasized.

County Judge R. L. Templeton, in Austin on other business last week, contacted H. E. Herndon, administrator of the state welfare department, and was told that the first shipment of surplus commodities should reach here the last of March. With that date already here, Judge Templeton said he thought it likely that it may be another week before any food gets here.

He was also told that canned beef and possibly other commodities will be included as surplus commodities.

Concernng the rumo rthat some counties have already received food, Judge Templeton pointed out that with the possible exception of one south plains county, all counties in the program will receive food at the same time.

Seven Year Beef Cattle Management Program Reported

College Station—Careful and intensive management is necessary for the production of fat slaughter calves and choice grade feeder or slaughter steers on the alluvial soils of the Brazos Valley.

This is the conclusion from beef cattle management program which has been underway for seven years by the Texas agricultural Experiment Station on its Brazos River Valley Laborotory near College Station.

Non-tilled, little-used, low-productive bottomland was converted to reasonably high productivity by drainage, tillage and the use of legumes, fertilizers and other good management practices. It is believed such a program would be profitable on similam areas in SouthCentarl and Southeast Texas.

Results of this study are given in Miscellaneous Pubilcation 103, which is available from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.

.Wedding vows spoken by candlelight Saturday evening, March 27, at eight o'clock in the First Baptist Church at Shamrock united Miss Pamelle Tisdal and Dudley Coleman, members of two prominent families of the southeast Panhandle. The Rev. Frank Beauchamp officiated.

Parents of the young couple are Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Tisdal of Shamrock and Mr. and Mrs. Wood R. Coleman of Dozier.

As the double ring ceremony was read, the couple stood beneath an arch of plumosa fern, and flanking this were arrangements of pink snapdragons and carnations in two shades of pink. Tall candelabra held lighted cathedral tapers. White satin covered the priedieu on which the couple knelt for the benediction.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Lyle Holmes and Mrs. Lola B. Brannon.

For her wedding the bride chose a dress of heavy white alencon lace over white silk, brought from Japan as a gift to her, styled with a brief fitted jacket, rolled collar and long sleeves coming to a point over her hands. Seed pearls embroidery accented the collar and front of the jacket Her full floor length skirt was worn over hoops. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was held with frenched carnations.

The bride's bouquet was of white frenched carnations, with a swirl of maline to one side, from which fell satin streamers.

Miss Mollie K. Mayfield was maid of honor. Her dress of blue tulle was designed with a fitted bodice, v-neckline and tiny puffed sleeves. The full skirt was waltz length. Miss Aleta Coleman, cousin of the groom, and Miss Cheramy Tisdal, bridesmaids wore dresses of blue net over taffeta, with fitted bodices, with which they wore stoles. The full skirts were also waltz length.. The honor attendants carried bouquets of carnations in two shades of pink.

Douglas Coleman, twin brother of the groom, was best man, while the ushers were Lawrence Whitley of Kelton and Mario Coleman of McLean, cousins of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Tisdal chose a chartruse suit, while Mrs. Coleman wore navy blue with white accessories. Their flowers were white.

A reception followed the ceremony. Centering the bride's table were an arrangement of carnations and snapdragons. After the couple had cut the first slice of the wedding cake, the guests were served by Miss Elizabeth Wilson of Quail, while Miss Nancy Carter of Seymour presided at the punch service.

Informal Ceremony Unites Miss Roberson, Mr. Graves

In an informal ceremony of quiet dignity and simplicity, Miss Patsy Roberson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Roberson, became the bride of Marine Cpl. Jimmie Graves ,son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Graves.

The vows were spoken at the home of the bride's parents at six o'clock Thursday evening, March 25, with the Rev. J. F. Michael officiating.

Arrangements of white carnations decorated the room.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a two-piece dress of ice blue faille, styled with a fitted jacket closed down the front with tiny covered buttons, a standing rolled collar and tucked detail on the shoulders. The sleeves were three-quarter length and the skirt circular.

Her calot hat was white, and she carried out the traditional something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue. The bride's corsage was an orchid.

The couple was unattended.

Mrs. Roberson chose for her daughter's wedding a white dress with lace accents, while Mrs. Graves selected navy dress.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the members of the families and few close friends attending. The bride's table was laid with an imported white damask cloth, and centered with the three tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom. Flanking this were white tapers, brought by the groom from Korea, set in crystal holders.

After the bride and groom had cut the first slice, the guests were served by Miss Virginia Graves, presided at the punch service.

The bride received her education in the Wellington schools, graduating in 1950. She is now employed at the General Telephone Company.

Mr. Graves graduated from Wellington high school in 1951, after an outstanding athletic carrer, then attended New Mexico A&M College at Las Cruces. He is now serving in the Marine Corps, and recently returned after 14 months duty in Korea.

Following the reception, the couple left on a short wedding trip to Oklahoma City. Mrs. Graves will remain here for a short time, until her husband receives a permanent assignment.

Attending the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barnes, Jr., of Hollis, Mr. and Mrs. Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lee O'Neal, Miss Barbara Graves, Miss Virginia Graves, Mrs. Harold Maddox and son of Oklahoma City, and Rev. and Mrs. Michael.

SALT FORK

By MRS. R. H. ISBELL

Everyone surely enjoyed the beautiful weather last Saturday and Sunday. Wouldn't it be grand if it would rain and stay warm and sunny.

Bro Russell Allen filled his appointments at Aberdeen Sunday he was accompanied by his family and singer, Ted Parker. Bro Allen and Ted are back from Cotton Center, they had a wonderful revival with 31 decisions for Christ. The Youth for Christ was well attended Saturday night. Several boys and girls came from Garden Valley and Childress. They visited the Allens after the services.

Livuy Freeman of Wichita Falls attended the Youth for Christ services Saturday night. He is the pianist for the Stamps Ozark Quartet.

Richard Clyde Bolton is better from his seige of mumps. He was real sick for two or three days. His daddy, U. S. Bolton came to be with him till he got better. He is working near Dumas.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cummings visited her brother and family the Willie Biffles at Hedley Sunday.

We were all shocked at the tragic death of Mrs. Marvin Clubb's grandmother and sister. We want to express our heart felt sympathy to Mrs. Clubb and family.

We hear little Nancy Sue Thomas is real sick, hope she is better soon.

C. D. Messer and C. A. Wright have been helping R. H. Isbell work on the well on the farm of Mrs. G. C. Wright.

We were very glad to receive the message that Mrs. Loren Trout of Whitesboro, Texas is improving from a very severe case of pneumonia. The Trouts are former residents of Wellington.

Mrs. J. P. Cummings received a card from Mrs. Kenneth Ward last week saying Kenneth is better at last. And looking forward to coming home. Kenneth had a very serious operation at the Veterans hospital in McKinney, Texas. He has been very sick for several months. The Wards were very much encouraged by the flowers and cards sent by the Salt Fork Sunday School.

Sincere Congratulations!

To All Our Young Friends Who Have A Part In The Project Show

As an organization and as individuals, we are fully aware that these boys and girls will become the leaders in our state and nation in years to come.

As the sound banking institution that you, your fathers and grandfathers have relied on for constructive assistance in making this great livestock area what it is, we have seen first hand the far sightedness, diligence and downright hardwork that are necessary to better livestock breeding and raising.

You will undertake other business ventures throughout life. You have laid a good foundation. We believe that counsel and financial services of this bank will materially determine the success of many of these enterprises.

County Would Pay Less Than Now

Rogers Introduces Bill On Teachers Pay Increase

The compromise pay raise proposal for public school teachers is the main issue Governor Shivers has asked the State Legislature to consider. If adopted, it will increase State taxes more than $25,000,000 per year. Also, local school districts will have to contribute more monies from local tax sources.

Here is approximately how Collingsworth county would be affected during the next school year, 1954-55. The figures herein used are the prliminary stimaees made by the Texas Federation Agency and should vary only slightly from linal calculations.

Under Senate Bill No. 163, authorized by Senator Andy Rogers in 1953, Collingsworth county would have to contribute $49,780 to the State as its part of the minimum foundation program under the Gilmer-Aikin laws for the school year 1954-55. This is a decrease to the county of $12,670 compared to the present school year. Without the provisions of Senator Rogers' bill the county's contributions would be several thousand dollars greater.

The teachers' pay-raise proposal now under consideration by the State Legislature could add $6,977 to Collingsworth county's contribution to the minimum foundation program making a total contribution of $56,757. However, the school districts of the county would be given credit against this state assessment in the total amount of $8,300.

Thus the effect to Collingsworth county of the teachers pay raise would be a net decrease in costs of $13,933.

Of importance to the county also is the fact that the pay raise would add $33,366 to the county's income.

In summary, the fast growing, wealth producing, industrial areas of Texas will bear most of the load in the increased costs that would arise to pay the $402 per teacher salary raise.

As every county's portion of the State assessment under Gilmer-Aikin laws is based on the individual county's ability to pay, it is important to remember that future increases in the cost of our State School Program will be primarily by our industrial areas.

Billy Hays Hurt In Car Accident

Billy Hays of Jacksboro is recovering from painful inpuries received near that town Sunday night, March 21, when his car crashed into an embankment. Hays was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital here Tuesday, March 23, and Friday he was taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Hays.

Mrs. Hays said that the accident occurred about 11:00 p. m. Sunday night when her son went to sleep as he was driving alone.

He received cuts about the face, severe bruises and had several teeth knocked out.

He probably will not be able to return to Jacksboro for another week or two, according to his mother.

Hays is employed by the Bell Telephone Company at Jacksboro.

His car was demolished in the accident.

Trend to Part Time Farming But More Farm Living

COLLEGE STATION — The trend toward more part-time farming and more rural living is likely to continue in the future. Increasing industrialism, improvements in transportation and in labor-saving facilities for the home will make it possible for more people to reside in the rural areas.

While about two-thirds of the nation's increasing number of people over 65 now live in or near cities, Bernice Claytor, extension home management specialist, points out that the situation may be reversed in the future as modern conveniences in rural areas increase and make it possible for retired and elderly persons to have more comfortable living in the country.

Part-time farming, like part-time homemaking, is on the incline, Mrs. Cloytor says. Nearly one farmer out of four worked at off-farm jobs more than 100 days annually within the past several years. In contrast, only one in 10 worked that much off the farm 30 years ago.

COOL CRUISER — With the nonchalance of a veteran sailor, lovely Donna Gardner smiles from the rigging of one of the Sunshine Sailing Regatta entries. The shapely lass was recently named queen of the annual affair at Miami, Fla.

EDITORIAL COMMENT — THE WELLINGTON LEADER

Building Youth -- to Build Communities

The surest sign of spring around here each year is the Youth Project Show, which has no small part in setting the spirit of the year in this farming community.

There are many things we like about the boys and girls of FFA, 4-H and FHA who take part in the show — the fact that they are Collingsworth's own, the efficiency with which they have gotten their projects ready, their know-how on these things, the seriousness with which they can face up to a problem, either concerning their projects or outside living, and the light-heartedness with which they touch their more leisured hours.

Fathers can stand around and hear a 16-year-old discuss livestock with a knowledge that he himself came by only through the hard school of try and try again, or mothers see the fine sewing of daughters ,knowing that it is both the practical and the fashionable thing to do.

There are many sides to this training so many boys and girls receive during as much as three years of their high school.

It builds their spirit of co-operation, yet it reaches them to exercise individual judgement, in a day in which this combination is so much needed. Just as they are trained for co-operation, the boys and girls are also trained for leadership in their communities, which by every analusis is the training ground for leadership on a wider scale.

This training builds for stability—that quality which makes a community sound. It builds citizenship, as the end result of developing these other phases.

Character is developed, for it is a recognized fact that where these wholesome youth groups are strong, juvenile delinquency is low.

Of many good things, it is said that you cannot place monetary value on them. Not so with vocational agriculture and homemaking(for their economic contributions to the community, even during their student years, is considerable. In their adult years, it is even more, and with each year, its mark on the community is stronger.

No one will say that this vocational training is all of education, but it is an important phase, a most valuable one from every standpoint.

Teachers Pay Bill

The Senate voted for the $24,000,000 teachers' pay raise bill by 17 to 1. At first, blush, this looks like a 27-to-1 vote for the teachers. But the one dissenting vote was based upon objection to passing the bill before passage of a bill to provide the revenue to pay the higher salaries. It could turn out that the lone dissenting vote was the one in good faith with the teachers.

The regular session, it will be recalled, vote a pay raise for the teachers without any certain source of revenue to pay the raise. The wherewithal was contingent upon the United States Supreme Court's approval of the gas-gathering tax. The Supreme Court did not approve, hence no pay raise for the teachers and the present session to find a new source of revenue.

It would be unfair at this point to say that the special session is likely to give the teachers another paper raise. It is possible, i nfact, that sincere advocates of the raise aided in putting through the measure as a step toward guaranteeing that the tax bill would be forthcoming.

Under any circumstances ,the raise should be provided. Governor Shivers has presented a flexible tax program, based primarily on levies on natural gas, beer and corporate franchises, which points the way.

'Slave' Labor Is No Longer An Issue Against T-H Law

The standard charge made by union heads against the Taft-Hartley Act is that it is a "slave" law, designed to let employers mercilessly expolit workers.

A few facts should help clear the air. In 1947, when the law came into effect, average wages in manufacturing industry were $1.23 an hour and $49.97 a week. Some five years later they were $1.77 an hour and $71.69 a week.

Over a five year period, believe it or not, the majority of charges against unions under Taft-Hartley provisions were not brought by employers. Fifty-five per cent were brought by employes and other unions.

If Taft-Hartley has "enslaved" labor it's time we rewrote the dictionary definition of that word!

The Buck Creek Philosopher

Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek must have his mind on tornadoes, his letter this week indicates.

Dear editar:

A pretty high wind was blowin out here on my farm the other day and I was stadin by the side of the barn with a dip not seein how many newspapers I could catch as they blew past and after I'd gotten all I figured I needed, never did like to see a man make a pig of himself, with fish or newspapers either, I got in out of the wind and started readin.

Over on an inside page of one paper I ran into an article that knocked me over, even if I was out of the wind.

According to this article, a tornado hit a town in Nebraska a while back and blew down a lot of buildings and after it was over the editor of the local newspaper up there said it was a good thing, it should have happened 20 years earlier, now the town could get some modern buildings.

I want you to know I do not take such an attitude, and I hope the idea will not spread.

My barn for erample is not what you'd call modernistic, it ain't exactly upright, it may lean a little to the east, the roof may leak in places, but I wouldn't be interested in encouragin a tornado to attend to it. It doesn't take a cow long to find out where the dry spots are in a barn, and I figure a barn which has leaned for twenty years can go on leaning a few more years.

Or take my house. It ain't what you'd call any style of architecture in particular, and I guess there are people who might call it an eyesore, but I can sleep as sound in it as I could in a 20-room mansion and frequently there are times when I get more sleep in it than Eiseihower does in the White House. I'll admit the front gate says, but not any more than the shoulders of lots of men who have worked their heads off to get bronze hinges on their gates. As for me, I got sense enough to put my shoulders ahead of my gate.

Understand, I'm not opposed to progress, I like to see new buildings go up, new homes, etc., but I don't want anybody, either a tornado or the government, telling me when I ought to do something about my own progress but I doubt if there's anybody in favor of the fallin in his vicinity.

Yours faithfully
J. A.

Christianity in a Christian World

Paul once summed up what Jesus had said and taught by saying, "It is more blessed to give than receive."

There, in a sentence, is the contrast with a world whose daily life largely concerns the business of getting.

Men try to soften that contrast by talking about "enlightened self-interest," and by emphasizing the advantages of a free competetive system.

Certainly the system is more advantageous than any other system which society has developed and it should not be sacrificed for any system of totalitarionism.

But the contrast between the best that society has developed and what the coming of the kingdom of God would mean is so great as to raise the question whether Christianity can really be made to work in a Christian society.

It is obvious that the nobleest Christian lives, such as those of the late Jane Addams and Grenfell Labrador, are lived upon the basis of something higher than the profit motive.

But it is equally obvious that the businessman, when he goes from his church on Sunday to his business on Monday, has to make a profit out of business.

It is also obvious that we are all, in a way, parts of our environment and subject to at least some of its limitations.

So, in a sense, our problem becomes that of putting into a world still so largely un-Christian as much Christian living as we can.

One might compare Christians to those living in a house while it is being made over.

There is no world to which we can move out, while the remaking process goes on, and much adaptation is inevitable. Yet great, effective transformations can be made if the Christian goal and the Christian purpose are never forgotten.

Crossroads Report

Dear Ike:

I see where the word has come down through Mr. House Speaker Martin that you are liable to veto the thing if our Congressmen forget who paid most of their compaign expenses and pass a bill with some kind of a tax-relief handout for us financial peewees.

It's a good thing that you have this veto power to threaten Congress with, and to use when politics sets in on a bunch of legislators so that they depart from the fold and commence supporting what they think will please the most people. After all, you take this controversy about who is going to hit the tax-ease jackpot, and what would the family of a truck driver or a fry cook do with an extra buck or two a week anyhow, except squander it on school shoes or groceries, whereas easing the squeeze on the Cadillac set would serve the noble purpose of propping up the stock and bond market.

But maybe you won't have to use this veto shillelagh if congressmen were paying attention the other night when you gave us the tax facet of life, like a papa explaining to a backward 3-year-old why he ought not to run the kitty through the food chopper.

About the only thing we can be sure of getting on our television set is dust.

A lot of women are trying to see who can get the most out of an evening gown.

Don't know why they call 'em slacks when there's never any slack in them.

Congratulations

FUTURE FARMERS
FUTURE HOMEMAKERS
4-H CLUB BOYS

We salute the boys and girls who are entering the 1954 project show. You have done a wonderful job. Many of you will leave the show this week-end with a number of prizes.

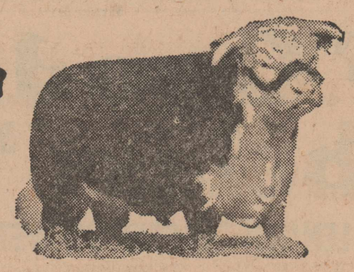

Others will not. But all of you will have won for you will leave with a better knowledge of livestock and homemaking and each of you will have a better idea of what it takes to succeed in either of these undertakings.

You will benefit greatly from this show, as you have in the past. We think that you will be contributing greatly to our welfare, and we want you to know that we think your efforts are most worthwhile.

Here's What Future Homemakers Study

Quail Future Homemakers Plan Project Show As Top Event

Quail Future Homemakers, working under the direction of Mrs. Monty Mitchell, are preparing to make their participation in the Youth Project show one of the highlights of the year.

There are 53 members in the organization, and already they have made a full year, in addition to class work.

One of the first events was the initiation and dinner, when 26 new members were taken into FHA. Another achievement was the style show, in which 45 boys and girls participated, given in connection with the annual open house celebration. About the same time, the members attended the Area FHA meeting, with 10 from Quail appearing on the area program.

At least three entertainments are scheduled between now and the close of school. Quail Future Homemakers do not have a mother-daughter banquet. Rather, each class entertains its mothers seperately. First year girls usually have a brunch; second year members a luncheon; and third year members a dinner.

The year will be rounded out when the girls attend camp next June.

What do the girls study?

Mrs. Mitchell has outlined their courses: Homemaking 1: personality development, democracy in the home, developing satisfactory group membership, making homes more livable, grooming and clothing ourselves, providing food for health and hospitality, and managing time and money wisely.

Homemaking II: child care and development, consumer buying, buying, selecting and making clothing to fit the family income, making the kitchen attractive and convenent, food to meet the nutritional needs of the family, providing for safety in the home, home care of the sick, family and community relationships.

Homemaking III: food preservation, clothing, family and community relationships, consumer buying, preparation for marriage, prenatal care, food for hospitality, planning artistic and comfortable housing for the family, infant care, budgeting and family finances.

Students who will exhibit at the project show include: Homemaking I: Patsy Aaron, Shirley Blades, Rita Boen, Betty Dollar, Dorothy Ellis, Sheri Graham, Faye Lacy, Ellen Messer, Martha Johnson, Tommie Souder, Geneva White, and Edna Wright.

Homemaking II. Cleta Clay, Peggy Clay, Joyce Kennedy, Barbara Norman, Betty Gollihugh, Glenda Phipps, Mary Jo Phipps, Betty Patterson, Margie Price, June Russell, Nancy Stephens, Ruby Thomas and Pasty White.

Homemaking III: Mary Nell Birchfield, Doris Cummings, Joan Lacy, Melba Langley, Wanda Phipps, LaWanda Strickland, and Betty Strickland.

Boys homemaking: Dale Johnson, Joe Lindsey, H. C. Langford, Z. J. Neeley Jr., Wayne Parker, Bobbie Patterson, Regie Patton, James Stephens, Perry Souder and Wayne Lacy.

Nineteen Enrolled

Boys Homemaking Class Part of Quail Schedule

A Future Homemaker at Quail may be a six-foot-plus boy, who is becoming as adept with a sewing machine or food mixer as he is with a tractor and on the basketball court. For Quail is the only school in the county, and so far as is known, the only one in the area, to offer classes in Homemaking for boys.

The program is in its third year, and Mrs. Monty Mitchell, instructor, has recunted its history:

Boys Homemaking was the suggestion of the boys themselves.

The senior boys, at the beginning of the 1951-52 school year, were given a choice of study hall or a certain other subject for one period. They proposed a third choice to Supt. Herman Moseley and Principal R. E. Bradley. Could take homemaking, Permission was given and ten boys enrolled: Jack Neeley, Garland Fielding, Loyd Parker, Billie Winkler, Douglas Little, Billie Hargues, Ray Bradshaw, Jesse Young, Gene Peggram, and Howard McGill. Before the year ended, two had gone into service, one moved, and seven finished out the course. Not one had dropped it!

In 1952-53, only five boys were in the class, as the senior class was a small one. These were Don Kennedy, Wallace Blasingame, Jasper Peeples, Stanton Caviness and Dewey DeBord.

This year there 19 boys in Boys Homemaking. Juniors are included for the first time. The senior boys are Dale Johnson, Joe Lindsey, Norman Kennedy, Wayne Lacy, Jimmie Langford, Van Parrigin, A. C. Price, Junior Sturgill, Tony Winkler and Charles Wright. Juniors are James Kirkland, H. C. Langford, Z. J. Neeley Jr., Wayne Parker, Bobbie Patterson, Regie Patton, Perry Souder, James Stephens and W. L. Ray.

All the main areas of the vocational homemaking program are taught from the standpoint of the man of the family. These include personality development, good citizenship, democracy in the home, clothing selection, handling family finances, food for the family, selecting home furnishings and equipment, building houses in different price range, child care and development, safety, and care of the sick in the home.

Cooking comes under "food for the family," Mrs. Mitchell explains.

Most of the boys have made shirts and learned to operate and care for a sewing machine.

Western shirts are their favorites, and the present class members who have made them are Dale Johnson, Joe Lindsey, H. C. Langford, Z. J. Neeley Jr., Mayne Parker, Regie Patton, Bobbie Patterson, Perry Souder and James Stephens.

Quail Seniors To Career Day

The Quail senior class attended the annual Career Day held in the First Baptist Church in Childress Tuesday, March 23.

Representatives from 14 colleges in 0exas were present to answer questions on college attendance. More than 40z high school students frm 15 schools attended.

Lunch was served in the school basement by members of the Business and Professional Women5's Club, the American Association of University Women, the Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development.

Price, Barbara Weaver, Tony Winkler, Janelle Langford, Erma Farris, Junior Sturgill, Tommy Davis, Milton Havens, Charles Wright, Joan Kirkland, Dale Johnson, Van Parrigan, Vivian Minatrea, LaDona Barnett, Fayteen Peeples, Wayne Parrigan, Joe Lindsey and the sponsor, W. This is What Quail FFA Means

What Does FFA Chapter Mean to a Community?

By FRANK KENNEDY

What has Quail FFA meant to the community?

Many times we are prone to take things for granted or just fail to give any thought to the matter.

With the help of several men picked at random we wish to bring out some of the things that the Quail FFA has done or meant to our community.

The primary aim of the Future Farmers of America is the development of agricultural leadership, co-operation and citizenship.

For the sake of space, this article will carry only some of the major comments and accomplishments.

It would be hard to pin down just what goes into development of leadership in boys; however, to start with, FFA sponsors leadership contests each year to aid in development of that very thing—leadership. In these, boys compete in demonstrating a farm skill and procedure of conducting a meeting. Many times we find adults in charge of a meeting of some sort who do not have enough knowledge or parliamentary procedure to conduct the business meeting properly.

Nearly every members of FFA is proficient in parliamentary procedure. Leadership is developed by boys taking part in the local, county and higher-level stock shows. A leader must be able to do a thing better and pocess a workable knowledge of the subject if he is to have followere. The FFA fits a boy for this. As for co-operation, without it no great task can be accomplished. The FFA trains boys to work together for the betterment of the group or community. The FFA assists farmers in dehorning, casterating and vaccinating livestock; pruning fruit and shade trees; culling poultry; running terraces and contour lines and many other items. In addition the FFA has been a go-between for the SCS and the farmer on supplying equipment and seed for seeding several thousand acres to grasses and legumes in the county.

The FFA is always ready to work together for the betterment of our school on such things as repair jobs, construction jobs, and landscaping the school grounds.

The FFA is always ready

It takes both of the above mentioned factors, leadership and co-operation, along with others to make a good citizen.

A good citizen should take part in his Church, school and governmental activities. The FFA trains boys to live the kind of life he would not be ashamed of and to realize the importance of getting an education. We use the voting system in electing chapter officers —just as it is used in choosing county, state and other officials. We urge every member to exercise his right to vote on all matters taken up.

In summing up, we might say the FFA has

1. Developed a better grade of livestock in our community.
2. Created more sources of income on the farm.
3. Brought about better soil practices.
4. Trained boys to make better young farmers.
5. Tied school and community closer together.
6. Created a greater degree of interest in all agriculture and livestock activities in both youth and parents.
7. Qualified for and brought about better morals and higher standard of citizenship.
8. Induced others to move into the Quail community.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

Austin Texas — (Special) — Plenty of political friction is comng up between now and electon time despite the "harmony" convention of young democrats at Mineral Wells. Any harmony at that meeting resulted from the fact that one fraction, the liberals, stayed away.

National and state leaders called the gathering for the purpose of trying to recoganize the Young Democrats and bring both fractions together.

Representatives of both camps were placed on the reorganizing committee. Despite these efforts, however, dissension flared up as a prelude to the Mineral Wells conclave.

Liberal Young Democrats announced that they would boycott the meeting, chaging that it will be dominated by conservative friends of Governor Allan Shivers.

Shunning the "harmony" convention, the liberal Young Democrats insisted that their get-together in San Antonio last year was legal.

A feature of the confab was a panel discussion Friday afternoon, billed as an "open and frank discussion of party politics."

Attorney General John Ben Sheppard was moderator and State Senator Searcy Bracewell of Houston discussion leader.

Others on the program included Governors Shivers, Johnston Murray of Oklahoma and Frank Clement of Tennessee; Supreme Court Justice Will Wilson, National Committeewoman Hilda Weinert of Sequin and State Democrats Chairman Wallace Savage of Dallas.

Interested parties, while they waited on a court decision in the George Parr case, went back to Duval County.

Parr had asked for an injuction against Rangers Alfred Allee and Joe Bridge. The Duke of Duval said he feared the Rangers would harm him.

Arthur Garfield Hays, renowned New York attorney representing Parr, told the three federal judges trying the case at Houston that they could "do something constructive to prevent bloodshed in Duval County."

Hays said the Rangers are "men of zeal who think they are good." A man like Captain Allee the attorney declared, can be both honest and dangerous when he takes civil law in his own hands, and "we have to kill this idea of Rangers being abouve the law."

Frank Knapp, Houston attorney representing the Rangers, sumed up their case by saying:

"It is crystal clear that there is no law of Duval County as free men would have it as long as the Rangers are not there.

"Lurking in the background and shadows of this case are thousands of Duval County citizens who have been oppressed by ruthless and unconscionable actions of which only the faintest outlines are visible in this courtroom."

As the attorneys checked the case to the federal judges, the Rangers and Parr headed back to Duval County.

So did Attorney General Shepperd, who said he will continue his investigation of alleged irregularities in the Benavides and San Diego school districts and in Duval County public offices.

On the horizon was a special session of the Legislature, called by Governor Shivers for the purpose of providing a raise in pay for the public school teachers.

Other objectives of the session were to raise money for needed state buildings, give pay boosts to state employees, and set heavy penalities, including death, for Communists.

Shivers had what has been described as a compromise plan to up the income of teachesr by $402 per year, and he said he would specify, when the time comes, the tax measure necessary to raise the necessary funds.

House Speaker Reuben Senterfitt was at odds with the governor on his plan.

In the Speaker's opinion, the so-called 'compromise plan" would play havoc with the Gilmer-Aikin school program.

Sneterfitt offered his own program for increased pay. He said the amount of salary raise for teachers should be based on what the Legislature can raise by taxation — not by what the teachers would like it to be.

There were some suggestions as to how the money might be raised.

Representative Joe Pool of Dallas thought about higher taxes on bterl and said that he would introduce a bill embodying that proposal.

While he did not say what rate of taxation he had in mind, Pool did tell reporters that o $10 per barrel levy would be enough to boost teachers' pay and build some state buildings.

The present state tax on beer is $1.37 per barrel, or about a half a cent per bottle.

Representative Gilbert M. Spring of Apple Springs, Trinity County, had another idea. He wants to quit giving tax exemptions on cigarettes sold at army posts in Texas.

The federal government collects its cigarettes tax at army camps, Spring reasoned, so why shouldn't the state do likewise.

Comptroller Robert Calvert estimated that if the state should collect taxes on cigarettes sold at army posts in Texas, the revenue would amount to about $1 million per year.

Other suggestions as to raising money for teachers included a tax on natural gas to replace the levy recently invalid by the U. S. Supreme Court.

But you could depend on it: any time a tax suggested, the prospective victim rose up and asserted himself.

For example, M. D. Bryant, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association promised that his group would fight any increase in the taxes on gas and oil.

"One thing is certain," said Bryant. "Producers and royalty owners already pay more than their share of state taxes."

TIPRO's reaction may be regarded as typical. Any business or industry which finds itself in the position of being eligible for taxation will indubitably rush to explain why it should not be taxed any more.

This you can see that the job of the Legisatlure is going to be nothing like sitting under the peach tree waiting for the fruit to drop.

When the legislators convene, they will be greeted by an encampment of old people, gathered here to demand more money in the form of pensions.

Jack Ballard of Wichita Falls, president of the Good Citizens League of Texas, announced that between 10,000 and 40,000 old people will camp on the capitol grounds during the special session, pending action on their grievances.

Already, Ballard said, he has letters from 3,000 persons who say they will make the march to Austin.

Legislators, contends Ballard, "have made promises to the old folks and failed to keep them," and "We're going to stay there until legislation is passed to help us . . . we want legislation raising the pensions to a minimum of at least $40 per month and we want the maximum to be $90. There will be no compromise."

Ballard said he had written Goveronr Shivers, among others, about the old folks' problems, but doesn't expect a reply from the governor. On the other hand, "I expect him to dodge the issues."

Ernest O. Thompson announced that he will be a candidate for another term as railroad commissioner.

Thompson has been serving on the commission since 1932 and has been re-elected ever since that time.

Secretary of State Howard Carney, announced the appointment of Omar Briggs, former state representative from Denison, as Texas Securities Commissioner. He succeeds Harry Hilgers, who died recently.

Short Snort: The State Highway Commission announced a $2,394.800 repair program for 1,867 miles of Wichita Falls State Hospital is carrying a patient load of 25 per cent above desirable capacity, according to a report of State Auditor C. H. Cavness.

Noways if you don't have your own psychiatrist, people think you are crazy.

Later you told us about your first FFA, FHT and 4-H projects, and we saw the pride in your eyes as you talked about them. You often consulted us on livestock remedies for your calves and pigs. You see why we are so interested in the show!

Review Activities of Past Year

Wellington FFA Making Plans For Livestock Shows in 1955

By WAYNE MAXWELL
President, Wellington FFA

The annual Youth Project show is a highlight of the year for Wellington Future Farmers, and with another show due Saturday, members have been thinking back over their activities since the 1953 show.

Here's what we can chalk up to our credit:

The FFA has participated in the district judging contest. We were third in dairy cattle and fourth in poultry judging.

In the area contest at Lubbock we entered livestock and dairy judging teams. The dairy team, composed of John Thomas, Jim Wilson and Kenneth Leathers, was third at Lubbock, then went on to College Station, where they were 17th in the entire state.

During the summer, M. L. Burks vocational agriculture instructor, attended the State Vocational Agriculture Teachers Conference in Dallas. Frank Jones, Donald Sessions and Mr. Burks attended the state FFA Convention in Fort Worth.

Four Wellington boys were awarded Lone Star Farmer degrees, the highest honor given in the state vocational agriculture set-up. They were Sessions, Edward Bawcom, Johnny Langford and Doolen Starkey.

In August, Bawcom, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Bawcom, John Thomas and M. L. Burks attended the Area Awards Banquet at Plainview, where Lone Star Farmer were honored.

Soon after school started last fall, at a district meeting in Memphis, John Thomas was elected district president of the Greenbelt District.

The Wellington FFA chapter erected a booth at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo and the members attended in a group.

At the district leadership contest in November, we entered 4 contests and won two first places and two fourth places. The first place teams, both in chapter conducting, went to the area contest in Plainview, where the Greenhand chapter placed third and the senior team sixth.

Livestock judging teams have entered at Pampa, Amarillo and Houston. A dairy judging team was entered at Houston. All these teams have finished in the high third of their respective contests.

Our annual Father and Son banquet was held in February. We had the area president, the state officer from our area and our district president as guests. The banquet was put on through chapter financing without members having to chip in.

The chapter attended the Houston Fat Stock Show and three members were awarded calves. These boys, Leroy Belew, Phillip Cobb and Horace Holliman, will show their calves here and then take them to the Houston show in 1955.

C. W. Caison has bought a calf for the Houston show and with John Thomas this makes five beef calves and one dairy heifer from this county to go to Houston in in 1955.

We are looking forward to the county show and our FFA Rodeo April 3.
