NEW POSTOFFICE BILL GIVEN CONGRESS

Soviet Replies Bitterly To U. S. Attempt To Effect Peace With China

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Harry H. Culver, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, addressing realtors and business men here Monday night said that in coming into a town he didn't have to ask "How's business?" but that conditions were revealed in the faces of those he saw.

He said that where faces were of a memorial type invariably he had found that the realtors of the city and its business men were afflicted with "sitronitis," which springs from too close acquaintance with an office chair.

Sitting in an office or standing on the streets "griping" never brought improved conditions anywhere. Prosperity and growth come through work and cooperation and the fellow who accumulates a resplendent shine on his trousers seat while he finds fault with those who are trying to do something oughtn't even to be counted in the census.

If there have been some symptoms of "sitronitis" hereabouts they are rapidly being dispelled in the work of putting over the deep oil development project. Wholehearted cooperation has been met in this movement and it has revealed a spirit of confidence and unity that recalls old days in Wichita Falls. We predict it will be hard to find glossy breeches in this town from here on out.

For some years opportunities have been so abundant in Wichita Falls that business men as individuals have been kept busy with the things that have offered themselves. These conditions no longer exist and the time has come for community action. It is pleasing to see the citizenship come together on an enterprise like they have in the oil project. Their getting together on this ought to encourage leaders in the community to find other things for united support.

Representative John Garner of Texas denies the charge of John Henry Kirby, president of the Southern Tariff association, that he was responsible for the senate investigation into the activities of the association, but says that Mr. Kirby has paid him a "great compliment" in the charge.

There was some testimony to show that the funds of the association had been used in promoting opposition to Representative Garner in the election last year and to discredit the Democratic party by promoting the candidacies of negroes in the black belts of Chicago, New York and St. Louis.

A number of banks and other business corporations in Texas have subscribed to the funds of the association believing a tariff on southern products would be beneficial to business. The national banking laws prohibit banks from subscribing to political funds and likewise the laws of Texas prohibit political contributions from corporations. If the funds of the Southern Tariff association have been used for or against any candidates it places the bank and corporation contributors in an embarrassing situation.

J. A. Arnold, manager of the association, resigned last week. Mr. Kirby issued a statement saying that Arnold did not retire under fire. Arnold, it will be remembered was head of the Texas Commercial Secretaries' association which passed out of existence some years ago.

We would guess that the senate inquiry has made it more difficult for the association to obtain funds to carry on its work.

If statistics guaranteed salaries, the average housewife would receive a monthly pay envelope of $385, writes Grace Robinson in the current issue of Liberty magazine. A young man invests two dollars in a marriage license and here's what he gets in return:

"First of all, the lucky devil has acquired a wife. A charming companion to delight his eye, minister to his ego, warm him with her caresses, cheer him when he is sad, and amuse him when he is grumpy. In addition to all this, and perhaps most durable of all, he has acquired a remarkable woman-servant whose services, if offered in the open market, would bring her $385 a month and keep. This fortunate lord of creation has in one woman a cook ($75 a month and keep); a chambermaid-waitress ($75 a month and keep); a valet $100 a month and keep); a laundress ($40 a month) and a seamstress (who easily eats up four days a month at $5 a day, or a total of $20). After his children come, this excellent female Friday becomes also a governess-nurse, without relinquishing her other duties. As servant to the children, she represents $75 a month."

After reprinting this we expect to see the marriage license business pick up all through Northwest Texas and Southwestern Oklahoma.

We hope there is no demand that husbands be required to pay up.

Among other things in his message to congress President Hoover urges early construction work on an extended public buildings program throughout the country. This is of especial interest in Wichita Falls where $500,000 has been allotted by the government for a new federal building.

Orville Bullington, president of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, has returned from Washington hopeful that Wchita Falls' needs will receive early attention. As said, $500,000 has been allotted for a federal building in Wichita Falls. But congress has yet to make its appropriation of that or any other amount for the purpose. What Wichita Falls wants is an appropriation by congress and a decision by the treasury department, which has charge of the allotments, to make this appropriation available at the earliest date possible. This would be in keeping with the spirit of President Hoover's suggestion and plans.

MOSCOW MAKES ITS OWN TERMS WITH ENEMIES

Manchurian Rail Dispute Apparently Settled By Russians

AMERICA REPROVED

Stimson's Note Is Called "Unjustified Attempt" To Bend China

(By The Associated Press)

Moscow made its own peace with Mukden over the Chinese Eastern railway dispute in Manchuria Tuesday and also rebuffed the nations who had sought the same end by reminding both Russia and China of their obligations under the Kellogg anti-war pact.

Dispatches by way of London told of the signing of a protocol at the Siberian town of Nikolsky-Ussurilsky under the terms of which the joint control of the railway would be restored in accordance with the treaties of 1924. Russia withdrew from its insistence that the former Russian general manager and assistant manager of the road be reinstated but reserved the right to appoint them to other positions.

Attempt Unjustified

The Soviet government, in a note handed to French Ambassador Herbette in Moscow, stated that it could not regard as a friendly act the American note with reference to the Kellogg pact. It was stated that the note constituted "an unjustified attempt" to influence Chinese-Russian negotiations coming as it did when these were already in progress, and surprise was expressed that the United States, which has refrained from official relations with the Soviet union, should have undertaken to give "advice and directions."

The agreement negotiated by Mukden presumably will be acceptable to Nanking since the provincial authorities had at least quasi-authority to negotiate and since the protocol appeared to fulfill the conditions imposed by Nanking.

Japan Objects

Freed of the foreign threat, the central government turned its attention toward internal trouble. Reinforcements were rushed to beleaguered Canton toward which rebellious Kwangsi troops and the famous "Ironsides" division of General Chang Fak-Wei were driving. These had reached a point 50 miles northwest of the city and severe fighting was said to be in progress.

The American note, to which such strong exception was taken, had been supported by practically all of the powers with the exception of Japan.

Not only does the Soviet note wave aside Secretary Stimson's appeal as an "unfriendly act" but the reference to giving "advice and instructions" to the Soviets is embodied in an appendix which refers solely to the United States government.

OIL MILLIONAIRE NEW SENATOR

Patrick C. Sullivan Named From Wyoming

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 3. (UP)—Patrick C. Sullivan, millionaire oil and sheep man of Casper, today was named United States senator from Wyoming.

He succeeded the late Senator Francis E. Warren, Republican, who died in Washington, Nov. 24. The appointment was made by Gov. Frank C. Emerson. It leaves the strength of the Republican party in the upper house unchanged.

Sullivan is at present Republican national committeeman from Wyoming.

Born in Ireland, March 17, 1868, Sullivan came to this state as a boy. He engaged successfully in the wool, sheep and banking business. Entering Republican politics he served 22 years in the Wyoming legislature.

At present he is serving his second term as Republican national committeeman. He is married and has four daughters.

The new senator is a member of the Denver Athletic club, the Rocky Mountain Motor club, the Cheyenne Country club and the Chicago Yacht club.

Word of the appointment was conveyed to Mr. Sullivan in Casper tonight and he accepted. He said he planned to come to Cheyenne Thursday morning to receive his credentials and would leave the same day for Washington.

'Stock Exchange Act' Introduced by Texan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—A measure to be known as the "stock exchange act" was introduced today by Representative Cross of Texas. The bill would make it unlawful for any firm or association "to deliver for transmission through the mails or interstate commerce by telegraph, telephone, radio, wireless or other means of communication any market or price quotations or offer to sell" bonds, stocks or shares in any corporation unless securities have been listed by their owners for sale and immediate settlement.

DETERING SPEAKS

Royal Dutch Shell Head Warns U. S. Must Prevent Waste

CHICAGO, Dec. 3. (AP)—Directors of the American Petroleum Institute today endorsed a policy of unitization of oil pools to control production and divided the organization into three major divisions covering production, refining and marketing.

Sir Henri W. A. Detering, of London, managing director of the Royal-Dutch Shell companies, in addressing the first full session of the convention urged creation of what he termed "an association of cooperation."

Acreage Pool Plan

The unitization policy was recommended to the oil industry throughout the United States wherever practicable. Where unitization was found impossible, it was urged that "every effort should be made to effect a cooperative agreement between the parties interested in the potential pool, to insure orderly and economical development and production and the prevention of waste arising from over-production."

The plan, if carried out, would result in the pooling of acreage by the various companies interested in certain oil domes with unit operation.

Stewart Rumor Denied

Before delivering his address, Sir Henri dissipated in an interview a rumor that Col. Robert W. Stewart, deposed chairman of the board foe Standard Oil of Indiana, was to become connected with the Royal-Dutch Shell companies.

The distinguished Britton intimated it was his belief that oil producers of the United States now were exporting at a low price what they were likely to be importing later on at a higher price.

"Are we, the public outside the United States, going to rely on supplies from the states when these may be less at some approaching time, seeing that no thought is given to conservation?" he asked.

First Formal Address

The statement, the first formal address of Deterding's long career as head of the largest foreign oil concern, was made before 3,000 delegates attending the institute.

The Rubicund and immaculate financier, who speaks with a slight Dutch accent despite the fact that most of his life was spent in England, was straightforward. He hammered home his idea that the United States must stop wasting its oil reserves or foreign consumers will realize that the supply here soon may be exhausted and turn to Russia, China and Borneo to begin building a more permanent supply.

Events Before Failure Of Bank Told in Trial

Fisher was not under arrest late today.

Fisher, authorities said, interrupted the alleged attack on his wife, who had repulsed her assailant, and Huerta was shot with a shotgun at close range. Fisher then told his wife he was going to Floydada to report the occurrence to authorities. Late today he had not come here.

Texas Patronage Methods Assailed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—Collection by the Republican party in Texas of campaign funds through promissory notes from federal office holders was assailed today in report to the senate by its patronage committee, which recommended legislation to forbid the practice.

Holding that the methods used in Texas were "coercive" the report said the office holder was put in the "seemingly apparent position, to say the least, of paving off a mortgage on his federal position."

No action was taken by the senate. Testimony before the committee has disclosed that office holders in Texas have contributed to the Republican campaign funds by signing notes and paying certain amounts each year on an installment basis.

Lobby Probers to Meet Again Next Tuesday

CONTRACT FOR BRIDGE OVER RED AWARDED

Oklahoma Joins Texas in Accepting Bid for Denison Span

TWO AWARDS WAIT

Terral, Okla., and Gainesville Projects Subject to New Calls

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 3. (AP)—The Oklahoma Highway commission joined the Texas commission today in awarding a contract for the construction of a free bridge over the Red river between Durant, Okla., and Denison, Texas, one-mile west of a toll bridge now in operation. The Texas commission announced it had awarded the contract yesterday, subject to approval of the Oklahoma commission.

Cost Is $230,000

The contract, which was for $230,291.51, was let to the Southwest L. E. Meyers, company of Dallas, Texas. Lew Wentz, chairman of the Oklahoma commission, said. Each state will bear half of the cost of construction.

The Oklahoma commission announced that new bids would be received on the Terral, Okla., and Gainesville, Texas, bridges. The Meyers company was low bidder on these structures when bids were opened last week.

The re-letting was made necessary, the commission indicated, by "confusion as to interpretation of the bids."

Steel Truss Type

The new bridge will be of steel truss construction, with a 22-foot roadway of reinforced concrete. The contractor is given 200 working days after the work order is issued to complete the structure.

Wentz said the Meyers company had been notified of the awarding of the contract, but that no word had been received from it. The company yesterday notified the commission that it desired to withdraw its bids on all three bridges. A representative of the company was in Oklahoma City yesterday, and after a brief conference with the commissions, was scheduled to reappear for a second conference. He was reported to have returned to Dallas.

SENATE OPENS VARE WRANGLE

Old Debate Follows Hoover's Message

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—Given a large order of business today by President Hoover congress turned to its task, the strife torn senate cleaning up old unsettled disputes while the administration controlled house poised to prepare for tax reduction.

A listlessly attentive senate received Mr. Hoover's lengthy legislative program involving numerous domestic and international propositions. As soon as reading of the annual message was completed, the senate plunged into disposition of the three-year-old dispute over the right of Senator-Elect Vare, of Pennsylvania, to a seat.

More demonstrative, the house interrupted reading of the Hoover message occasionally with handclapping. The representatives applauded the president's wish to make Washington a model city in law enforcement and his designation of law enforcement as the nation's "most serious issue."

The first division in the senate of this session saw the tariff coalition of Democrats and western Republican Independents of the extra session in sway again to reject an attempt by the Republican Regulars to defer the Vare case until next Monday.

A recess was taken tonight after Senator Norris concluded his appeal for a vote against Vare on account of his expenditures of more than $785,000 in the 1926 primary race.

HOOVER MESSAGE SUBMITS VIEWS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—Prompt disposal of the tariff controversy, a $160,000,000 income tax reduction, more effective prohibition enforcement, and a host of other recommendations, both domestic and international, were submitted to congress by President Hoover today in his first annual message on "the state of the union."

The 12,000-word document, which was read in both branches of congress by clerks, made known that the president would submit adherence to the world court to the senate "at some time when it is convenient to deal with it," and said

215 MILLIONS ASKED FOR NEW U. S. BUILDINGS

Wichita Falls, Electra and Other North Texas Towns to Benefit

FILLS ALL NEEDS

Public Buildings Bill Runs Total Above $600,000,000

Wichita Falls' hopes for a new $500,000 federal building came a step nearer realization Tuesday when a bill which would authorize congress to expend $215,000,000 for construction of postoffices and other buildings throughout the country was introduced in the house.

This news, contained in an Associated Press dispatch to The Record News, followed closely the assertion here by Orville Bullington, Wichita Falls attorney, that he was "very hopeful" the Wichita Falls allocation would be included in the next appropriation bill. Mr. Bullington had just returned from Washington where he appeared with Representative Guinn Williams before the public buildings committee to further this city's claims.

Other Towns Cared For

The bill introduced Tuesday was presented by Chairman Elliott of the public buildings committe. Other cities in this section which would be taken care of in the bill are Electra, Graham, Childress, Nocona, Quanah, and Pampa, the Associated Press dispatch said.

This would bring the total authorized fund to be expended in the government's building program to $565,000,000. Elliott estimated this to be sufficient to take care of a large portion of the proposed construction of department buildings in the District of Columbia, and to provide postoffices for all cities in the country having postal receipts of $20,000 or more annually that are not at present equipped with suitable buildings.

Sites Obtained

In addition it is expected also to care for the needs of about 40 towns with receipts between $10,000 and $20,000 where sites already have been obtained. Included in the proposed program in the capital are new structures to house the labor, justice, army and navy departments.

One hundred and 41 cities with postal receipts of $40,000 or more that were omitted in the allocation of the $348,000,000 authorization, but which were recommended last February for new structures, would be among the first considered if congress should approve the new authorization. Along with these, 867 cities with postal receipts between $20,000 and $40,000, likewise omitted in the first authorization but recommended for improvements would be considered for new buildings.

Senate Gets Bill

A similar bill was introduced in the senate by Chairman Keyes of the senate public buildings committee.

Chairman Elliott said that among cities omitted in the allocation of the $348,000,000 authorization, that would be considered in apportioning the new authorization, if it were approved were the following:

Jacksonville, Lufkin, Ranger and Pampa, Texas.

Among those cities having postal receipts of $20,000 to $30,000 the following cities were included: Ballinger, Childress, College Station, Colorado, Eastland, Edinburg, Electra, Graham, Kerrville, Kingsville, Lamesa, McCamey, Mercedes, Midland, Nocona, Quanah, Stephenville and Uvalde.

Iowa Youth's Entry Wins Grand Prize at World Livestock Show

CHICAGO, Dec. 3. (US)—Elliott Brown, a 20-year-old youth from Rose Hill, Iowa, led his Aberdeen Angus calf, Lucky Strike, hopefully into the big arena at the International Livestock exposition late today. It was a tense moment. Elliott's pet had to stand before the scrutinizing judgment of Walter Biggar, famous authority from Dalbeattie, Scotland, whose function it has been for five years to pick the grand champion steer of the world's livestock classic.

And Elliott led Lucky Strike out of the arena with the purple ribbon of supremacy pinned to him. Call it a case where youth will be served, for young Brown had triumphed over veteran exhibitors.

Lucky Strike was exactly 14 months old on the occasion of winning the highest honor of livestockdom. He weighs 940 pounds, was reared by young Brown on ground corn, oats and barley, and had previously won the championship at this year's international in the grade and cross-bred steer division.

Elliott announced yesterday that next month he will enter Iowa

MEGARGEL POOL MOST ACTIVE

Southwest Archer Area Is Busy Spot

The district's most active spot with the possible exception of the various Waggoner sections in the vicinity of the old Siglar pool in Wilbarger county, is just now being shown in the section of Archer county to the south and west of the town of Megargel.

This portion of the county bordering on the Baylor county line and west of the old Pandem pool, a few years ago the scene of a development that resulted in the completion of many good wells is at present staging a real comeback and new wells are being brought in as a result. New locations have been made while other tests are nearing the pay depths due for completion in the next few days.

The pool had its inception a month ago by the completion of the W. R. Duke and others No. 1 Young in section 2426, T. E. L. survey, a wildcat making 300 barrels from a 1412 foot pay, in the past week added two good wells, each being the means of enlarging the pool's productive area. To the south of the well the Pandem Oil company brought in its No. 1 J. A. Young swabbing 275 barrels from the same horizon. The same company has also skidded the rig to the south for its No. 2 Young.

Saturday, Duke and others No. 1 W. T. Richardson located in section 2425, T. E. & L. survey, and an east offset to the discovery well, drilled, in the sand and is rated as a 200-barreler.

In section 2425, T. E. L. survey, the Sun Oil company No. 10 Richardson is feeling for the sand drilling at 1360 feet. In the event of a producer in the Sun well it will be the factor in the extension of the pool proper one-half mile in an eastward direction, and its outcome is being watched with interest.

West of the discovery well in section 2426, T. E. L. survey, Young land, Roy I. Carter and others are rigged up.

One-half mile south of the pool, Wayne King and associates No. 1 W. H. Portwood, located 150 feet south and east of the northeast corner of the east 160 acres of section 2412, T. E. L. survey, is spudding in, and the bringing in of one or more of these tests as producers means many new acres will be added to the pool's productive area.

Slight Increase In Oil Output

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (AP)—The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 4,950 barrels for the week ended Nov. 30, totaling 2,638,200 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,933,700 barrels, a decrease of 50 barrels.

Refineries representing 95.1 per cent of the estimated daily potential refining capacity, operating at 72.5 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average run of crude oil to stills as 2,535,800 barrels. Daily average the previous week was 2,649,100 barrels for refineries representing 95.4 per cent of potential capacity operating at 75.5 per cent of their capacity.

HOOVER LISTS NATION'S NEEDS

President's Message Read To Congress

the administration held "high hopes" for success of the London naval limitations conference beginning in January.

Forceful Language

Exceptionally forceful language was employed by Mr. Hoover in dealing with law enforcement. What the government needs to do, he said, is to "reestablish faith that the highest interests of our country are served by insistence upon swift and even-handed justice for all offenders, whether they be rich or poor."

To obtain more effective enforcement of prohibition, the president recommended a concentration of enforcement agencies in the department of justice. He specifically mentioned the District of Columbia which he said "should be the model of city law enforcement in the nation."

The president asserted that measures taken recently to benefit the general economic situation "must be vigorously pursued until normal conditions are restored." He told congress that adjudication of the tariff controversy now "would be most helpful," more especially since "business and agriculture are both cooperating to minimize future uncertainties."

Tariff Legislation

Repeating the four salient paragraphs of his opinions on the tariff from his message to the special session last April, Mr. Hoover said "no condition has arisen in my view to change these principles." He asked for an effective tariff on agricultural products "limited changes" on industrial schedules where business has been lagging, and retention of the flexible provision which enable the executive to raise or lower rates by a maximum of 50 per cent after recommendations by the tariff commission.

As previously had been announced, the president's tax reduction plan called for a decrease of one per cent in corporation and normal personal income levies to be collected during the calendar year 1930.

Mr. Hoover also recommended a more liberal public buildings program in Washington and throughout the country, requesting that steps be taken to enable early construction.

Power Commission

Included in the more than a score of recommendations were those proposing the authorization of a federal power commission composed of three full-time officials in place of the three cabinet officers who now serve ex-officio; congressional inquiry to determine the possibility "of prudent action" to give relief to mounting military expenditures; ratification of the French war debt settlements; early return of the bulk of alien property still held by the United States; making permanent the present temporary federal radio commission; and a liberal federal highway program.

The president also informed congress that he soon would lay before it recommendations of the postoffice department with respect to curtailing the $80,000,000 deficit which that branch of government now incurs annually.

He recommended legislation enabling railroad consolidation; a special commission to negotiate and complete "some sort of contract or contracts which would permit the early resumption of activities at Muscle Shoals; the necessary funds for beginning work on Boulder canyon dam as soon as satisfactory contracts for the sale of power have been made by the interior department; immediate construction of additional federal prisons; the establishment of a bureau of prisons in the department of justice and a reorganization of the probation and parole systems; and an inquiry into how an American immigration policy might be based on a method which will more fully secure this country's national necessities.

DEMOS HOP ON HOOVER'S PAPER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—President Hoover's first annual message to congress received favorable reaction from Republican quarters today but many Democrats criticized it as being indefinite on certain subjects.

Praising the message as "very thorough and comprehensive," Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, said it showed the president's "entire willingness to cooperate with the legislative branch of government in all matters pertaining to the public weal."

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, contended the president's tariff statements failed to supply additional suggestions of value and expressed the opinion that the contest between limited and general revision probably would continue.

In the house, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican leader, said he was pleased with Mr. Hoover's stand on the tariff, because "it is broad enough to cover the whole country, and he evidently frowns upon any sectional tariff."

Describing the message as indefinite, Representative Garner of Texas, the Democratic floor leader, said it would "go down in history as the original commission message." The Texan said Hoover asked for a commission for everything and "gave nothing definite as to how he stands on the tariff."

Speaker Longworth said the president's recommendations were "safe and sane," and the message was a "statesmanlike document."

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said the message was meaningless so far as the tariff was concerned, and that the "old guard in the senate will continue to insist that its robber tariff program has the president's approval."

The president's suggestion for quick disposal of the tariff bill met the approval of Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader of the Republican Independent-Democratic coalition on the tariff in the senate.

"In the main," Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, said "the message presents no new controversial issues, is general in character and lacks virility and inspiration."

CLEMENCY FOR SEVEN GRANTED

Moody Issues Three Paroles, Four Furloughs

AUSTIN, Dec. 3. (AP)—Governor Moody today issued three general paroles and granted four furloughs to inmates of the penitentiary and remitted a $1,000 bond forfeiture.

General paroles were given to Doll Bird, convicted in Hopkins county and given two years for violition of the prohibition law, and Carl Stephens and Shields Craft, sent to prison from Brown county for burglary for two years each.

Bird had served one year and his property interests were in immediate need of his attention, the governor said. Stephens and Craft were boys under age when convicted and had evidently been led into the offense by a person older than they, Governor Moody said. The board of pardons recommended clemency.

The $1,000 bond forfeiture was remitted to Mrs. Alice Williams of Harris county, who, with E. Riess and L. H. Croom were sureties for J. B. Stanley, defendant and principal. Stanley was later located in the state prison at Atlanta, Ga., by Mrs. Williams, who asked the authorities to notify her when he served his time, but they neglected to do so. It developed Riess and Croom were insolvent, and the judgment was against Mrs. Williams solely.

Furloughs of 60 days each were given Clarence Hurst, Hopkins county, serving four years for violating the prohibition law, and Leo Amedio, Harris county, given two years for forgery. Amedio's mother was in dire need of his support and Hurst's family needed his assistance, the governor said.

John Cleghorn, serving four years from Erath county for violation of the prohibition law, was granted 15 days to visit his sick wife, and Will Luman, Dawson county, under three-year sentence for murder, was allowed 30 days to be with his wife, who is ill.

Vasconcelos Is Self Constituted Exile in Arizona

NOGALES, Ariz., Dec. 3. (AP)—Jose Vasconcelos, defeated candidate for the presidency of Mexico, was a self constituted exile in the United States today. He said he would not return to his native country unless summoned by his constituents.

Vasconcelos reached the border here from Guaymas, Sonora, accompanied by an escort of federal soldiers assigned by Gov. Francisco Elias of Sonora to accord him safe conduct.

In a statement, the defeated candidate said:

"I have been pratcically in prison since a week before the election. Dozens of my leaders have been killed by the Portes Gil government and hundreds of my followers are yet in jail. Our crime is to have won 95 per cent of the vote.

"I have not been defeated—I have been cheated.

"I believe there is still strength enough in the Mexican nation to punish this crime—this series of crimes—by the Calles group."

Vasconcelos was met at the international line by friends, all exiles, as the result of past revolutionary activity in Mexico. He indicated he would leave tomorrow for Los Angeles.

LAWTON, Okla., Dec. 3.—With the arrival of winter a miniature crime wave has evidently struck Lawton and several depredations were reported over the week-end.

Both carried guns and warned Walker to walk away without turning his head. The engine of their car had been left running.

The safe in the high school was again ransacked Sunday night. A mallet had been used in knocking off the knob. Only $10 was secured this trip, although a month ago the thieves secured $140. This makes four robberies of the high school safe in three years.

LOCKNEY ADDS IMPROVEMENTS

South Plains Prosperity Seen in Offing

Special to The Record News

LOCKNEY, Texas, Dec. 3.—A steady development of the Lockney section is reflected in the type and number of improvements made in the territory this year.

Some of the major projects completed this past year are the new Baker hotel, one of the finest of its size on the South Plains; an $85,000 high school building for the Lockney independent school district that doubles the capacity of Lockney schools; a municipal auditorium, wholly modern with a seating capacity of 700; a municipal swimming pool that is 40x100 feet with adequate bathhouse facilities that will provide summer amusement to the people of this section; five brick business houses in the city of Lockney and contracts already awarded for two others; three modern grain elevators in the outlying districts; a large number of residences in this city, together with the largest farm improvement program within the past 10 years.

Bankers and business men of this section regard this progressive activity as indicative of an era of development heretofore unknown on the plains of West Texas, with development taking place in proportion to the extent of which crop diversification is practised.

New methods of farm money making are being introduced, new crops are being tried, progressive methods are being adopted. At this time, there are more than 2,500 head of cattle being fed out in feed lots adjacent to this city. Farmers are experimenting with soy beans as a possible revenue producer, while the planting of pure-bred, certified seed is gaining headway. Farmers manifest an interest in scientific agriculture and caused a vocational agriculture department to be added to the local high school curricula. Purebred dairy cattle are being imported as well as the better grades of poultry. Bankers say that the change now being made in farming methods will cause definite improvements to be made in favor of farm finance, in this territory.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 3. (UP)—Walter A. Hart, secretary of the state school land department, was censored by Governor Holloway today at an open meeting of the department in which several changes in personnel were made.

Although the board did not adopt a resolution, Governor Holloway told Hart he "acted unwisely and was open to censor for a recent interview he gave criticising the commission."

Appointment of E. B. Bonaparte, former Oklahoma county treasurer, as chief clerk in the department was announced effective Dec. 15. He succeeds E. D. McAughlin who was transferred to a bookkeeping job held by Florence Graham. Miss Graham and Helen McCutchen were dismissed effective Dec. 15.

Mrs. D. A. Shaw, Poteau (no relation to State Auditor A. S. J. Shaw, member of the commission), was named in Miss McCutchen's place. Mrs. Shaw was elected mayor of Poteau after the death of her husband, a state senator, the day the eleventh legislature met.

The commission's investigation into Hart's administration showed McAughlin, at his own request, had been given a leave of absence in October because of ill health and that his salary warrant had been used—all but $25—to pay other employes.

The warrant had been endorsed over to Hart by McAughlin and Hart produced cancelled checks showing he had paid the money to other employes.

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

don't let 5 minutes cut off 6 months

AUTOMOTIVE engineers now recognize that from 40% to 60% of the destructive wear and tear on a motor is caused in the starting operation. Why? Simply because it requires from 5 to 10 minutes for the motor oil to be distributed to all the moving parts. A popular automobile, which is fairly typical, has 1,740 parts to be lubricated—and with ordinary oil in the crankcase these parts have no lubricating film when the engine is cold.

That means no lubrication during the starting period and practically no lubrication for five minutes after starting.

But not when you use Conoco Germ-Processed Paraffin Base Motor Oil!

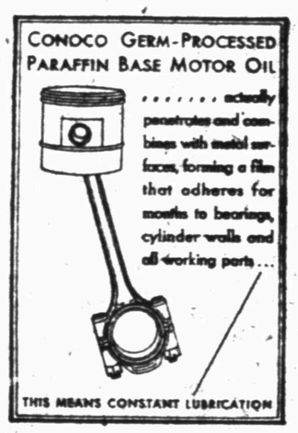

The germ essence in this super-lubricant provides a quality which causes the oil to actually combine with the metal. The metal surfaces absorb Conoco Germ-Processed Paraffin Base Oils, with the result that a permanent constant lubricating film is provided at all times.

So by using Conoco Germ-Processed Oils you are adding longer life to your motor. By eliminating the minutes of wear and tear in the starting operation, you are adding months to the life of your car.

And that's only one exclusive feature to be found in Conoco Germ-Processed Oils. On every count and by every test this super-oil challenges comparison. Every claim made for it has been proved by exhaustive tests in thousands of motors over a period of seven years.

Motorists who really want a motor oil which lubricates constantly, in summer or winter, under most intense cylinder heat or when the engine's cold, at slow speeds and with heavy loads or at high speed in high compression motors, will find the answer in Conoco Germ-Processed Oils.

Leading service stations and dealers can now supply it. Look for the Conoco Red Triangle and protect your motor car investment.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Years ago, we read aloud to members of our family a series of short stories. Often in the reading, tears ran down our own cheeks and those to whom we read were as much touched as the reader. With all the weeping, each story left us uplifted.

The stories were of a Perthshire country, where a young man who served there as dominie, made his friends immortal.

And now "A Doctor of the Old School," is published again in November by Coward-McCann.

Ian McClaren wrote the stories and they are as good sermons as any we ever heard. No richer experience can wait a reader if he has not known them—and we shall read them again.

Dr. William MacLure did battle with the angel of death for all the dour people of his countryside and they trusted him.

We remember when Tammas Mitchell's "Annie," whom Dr. Willie had brought into the world was about to die, and knowing he could not cure her, the doctor raised the money to bring a famous surgeon from Edinburg. Sir George, brave as most men, but unacquainted with Highland rivers, feared to cross the current and MacLure thundered "Sit doon! Damned ye will be suner or later gin ye shirk yer duty, but through the water ye gang the day!"

And through the water he "ganged," performing the operation that saved Annie and tearing up the check that MacLure wrote for him. "Give us another shake of your hand," he said; "I'm proud to have met you."

"Jess" was the horse the old doctor drove and a picture of him has always lived in our minds. The women in their yards—the shepherds with their ship—how their blessings must have followed the old man.

And who that reads will ever forget the mute bareheaded throng that came from far away to join in the mourning of the Glen, when the old doctor died. Snow, drifted 12 feet high, did not keep them at home.

Always we have had our own private loves in books and this one was dear to us. We feared we were an over sentimental soul and how it has rejoiced us to read what Alexander Woollcott, author of "Enchanted Aisles," and noted critic, wrote.

"I have myself," he said, "sometimes felt that all my journalistic days were wasted and I might better have spent my time going from house to house with a wheelbarrow full of copies of "A Doctor of the Old School."

Wow! Here's How Miss Dix Rates Rights of Women

"The Right to Vote and the Right to Earn Her Own Living Are Poor Things to a Woman Compared With the Right to Pick Out the Man With Whom She Has to Spend Thirty or Forty Years."

The problem that seems to obsess the flapper mind most is whether a girl should tell her love or, like Mr. Shakespeare's heroine, let concealment prey upon her damask cheek. I get hundreds of letters from girls asking this question, and it is one that it is impossible to answer categorically, because whether it is wise for a woman to let a man know that she has made him a freewill gift of her heart or to keep him guessing depends altogether upon the individual man.

Personally, I am firmly convinced that the greatest handicap under which women suffer today is the convention that forces them to assume a diffident role in love-making and why the strong minded ladies, who have broken down all the political and financial barriers that barred their way to progress so long, have not had the grit and the backbone to emancipate themselves from the silly superstition that prevents them from openly wooing the man they want, is one of the mysteries of feminine psychology that no one can explain.

For the right to vote and the right to earn her own living are poor things to a woman compared with the right to pick out the man with whom she has to spend 30 or 40 years and to select the father of her children. Inasmuch as every wife is about 10 times as much married to her husband as he is to her, it is 10 times more important that she should get what she wants in matrimony than that he should get what he craves.

This being the case, it is nothing but sheer idiocy to deny women the privilege of the love chase and to assume that no really nice girl ever thinks of a man until he thinks of her first and that she couldn't possibly be guilty of such an unmaidenly thing as falling in love with one until after he has popped the question to her, when she suddenly discovers to her amazement that she entertains a deathless devotion to him.

Tosh, Tommyrot. Women's hearts aren't constructed on that convenient push-the-button plan. Love isn't made to order, and every girl knows generally long before the man does whether she wants him or not and just exactly the degree of temperature that her affections are registering.

All would be well and we should have better and happier marriages and more of them if, under such conditions, the girl could go out as the boy does and sell herself, in commercial phrase, to the man she wants for a husband.

Many a man arouses the interest of an indifferent woman by the ardor of his pursuit of her. Many a man wins the woman he desires by the persistence of his courtship, by simply camping on her doorstep until she surrenders to his long-drawn-out siege. Many a man's love for a woman is such a burning passion that it sets fire to her own affections. Many a man by his kindness and devotion and faithfulness makes a woman realize that he is too good a thing to lose.

But a woman adopts these tactics in courtship at her peril because men are, for the most part, still believes in all the old hokum about a woman being a shy violet that hides away from the world and that some man accidentally discovers and plucks to wear in his buttonhole. Also, men still cling to the prerogative of the lord of the harem of throwing the handkerchief and watching the sweeties scramble for it.

Perhaps it is some survival of the old spirit of the chase that still makes men want to be the hunters instead of the hunted and that makes the bird on the wing rouse their sporting blood while the barnyard fowl that eats out of their hand leaves them cold. Perhaps it is because the harder it is to get a thing the more we want it that makes the peach that is highest on the tree more desirable than the one that is ready to fall into our mouths. Perhaps it is because of the contrariness of masculine human nature. But, anyway, it is a fact that, taking it by and large, the more a woman loves a man and the plainer she shows it, the less he loves her.

Common observation teaches that when a woman starts to run after a man he almost invariably outsprints her. Let her begin calling him up over the telephone and trying to make dates with him and wild horses couldn't drag him to see her. Let her throw herself at his head and he develops superhuman skill as a dodger. Let her tell him of her love and he yawns in her face. Let her offer her lips and he turns the rim of his ear to her kissing. Let him know that she is his for the taking and he wouldn't have her as a gift, not even if she offered a million-dollar bonus along with herself.

The thing that rouses the fancy of most men is for a girl to be desirable yet difficult. It piques their curiosity to find out why she hasn't fallen for them at sight and sets them to investigating why. The kisses they value are those that are hard to get. The dates they covet are those that they have to scheme for. The girl they are crazy to marry is the one who has many suitors. It is the maiden who is uncertain, coy and hard to please that men smother with attentions and gifts. Never the girl who is humbly grateful for any sort of notice.

Therefore, in most cases a girl commits sentimental harikiri when she lets a man know that she is dead in love with him and will say "yes" and thanky," too, if he asks her to marry him. But there are three notable exceptions to this rule.

One is when a man is shy and timid, then the girl has to do the love-making if it is ever done at all. Or if the boy is very conceited. It booms a girl's stock with the egotist to know that she has the intelligence and taste to appreciate how much superior he is to all other men, and he is filled with tenderness toward the poor little thing who could not resist his fatal fascinations. Or if a man is tender-hearted and sympathetic he will marry any girl who will weep on his breast and tell him how she loves him and how she cannot live without him.

So the only advice I can give the flappers is to tell them that if they want to get their man they must study him and adapt their technique to his personality.

DOROTHY DIX.

Anti-Poultry Ass'n at Lawton Gets Results

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Dec. 3.—The Anti-Poultry Thief association of this county has evidently inspired fear in the hearts of the fellows who reaped such a big harvest last year, for but few thefts are being reported. All members of the association mark their birds with tattoo marks under the wings and on the legs, and poultry dealers are cooperating by examining all birds offered for sale.

Through these markings two men were arrested at Duncan and are now in the county jail here awaiting a preliminary hearing on charge of the theft of turkeys. The turkeys have been identified by the owners.

DUTCH VESSEL SINKS AT PIER

Fire Wrecks Steamer in Delaware River

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3. (AP)—With its cargo destroyed by fire, the Holland-American line steamship Binnendijk rested today on the bottom of the Delaware river in 35 feet of water. The ship's captain, Henry Bushe, estimated damage to the vessel and cargo at $500,000.

The ship, a 4,240-ton vessel, was to have sailed from this city yesterday, but due to bad weather, the sailing was postponed. In the afternoon, the fire believed to have been smoldering in the cargo of linseed oil and linseed cake, burst from No. 2 hold and spread to other compartments.

For several hours fire companies on shore, fire boats and the ship's crew battled the flames, but were unable to gain control until the Binnendijk, her holds flooded with water, listed to port and sank alongside her pier.

Twenty-five firemen were overcome by dense clouds of smoke. None was seriously affected.

"They work while you sleep"

When the bowels need help there is nothing like cascara; nothing more efficient, nothing so good for the system. Any doctor can confirm these facts.

Candy Cascarets give you pure cascara in a most pleasant form. Take one tonight. See how fine you feel all next day. Without discomfort and without harmful effects this gentle laxative cleanses the whole thirty feet of bowels. Cascarets never produce that nauseous feeling usually associated with the use of laxatives. And their action is so natural that there is no danger of forming the laxative habit. You can take them as often as you please—or give them freely to children or old folks.

A coated tongue or a laden breath is a signal for a candy Cascaret. Or a sick headache, or any sluggish feeling; any time you believe the liver and bowels are not functioning fully, Cascarets will sweep away accumulations in the lower bowel. They are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice, making them the ideal laxative for children.

Full medical endorsement proves their principle is right; the use of 20 million packages a year proves their effectiveness.

SERVICE

IN THE Ford Motor Company we emphasize service equally with sales ϒ It has always been our belief that a sale does not complete the transaction between us and the buyer, but establishes a new obligation on us to see that his car gives him service ϒ We are as much interested in your economical operation of the car as you are in our economical manufacture of it ϒ This is only good business on our part ϒ If our car gives service, sales will take care of themselves ϒ For that reason we have installed a system of controlled service to take care of all Ford car needs in an economical and improved manner ϒ We wish all users of Ford cars to know what they are entitled to in this respect, so that they may readily avail themselves of this service:

FROM the very beginning, SERVICE has been the corner-stone of the Ford business. Far back in 1908, when the first Model T Fords were made, there were few people who understood the operation of an automobile and fewer places to which the purchaser might turn for help when repairs were needed.

Frequently in those days, Mr. Ford would deliver the car personally to the new owner and see to it that some arrangements were made to keep it in good running order. Usually he would find the best informed mechanic and explain the construction of the car to him. Sometimes, when no such mechanic was available, the town blacksmith would be pressed into service.

Then, as the business grew, capable men were appointed, in a widening circle of towns, to devote their entire time to the care of Ford cars. These men worked under close factory supervision and according to certain set standards.

For just as the Ford Motor Company was the pioneer in the making of "a strong, simple, satisfactory automobile at a low price," so it was also the pioneer in establishing complete and satisfactory service facilities.

For the first time in the automobile business it became possible for the purchaser of a car to buy parts quickly and readily and to have repairs made at a reasonable cost. Where formerly it had been the accepted practice to charge the highest possible prices for these repairs, a new policy was instituted for the protection of the owner. The unusual character of Ford Service was soon recognized as one of the outstanding features of the car.

Today there are more than eight thousand Authorized Ford Dealers in the United States alone, with thousands of others located throughout the world. Their mechanics have been trained in special schools conducted by the Ford Motor Company and they have been equipped with all the latest service machinery.

The well-ordered cleanliness of the shops and salesrooms and the uniform courtesy of all dealer employees are particularly appreciated by the woman motorist.

Wherever you live, or wherever you go, you will find the Ford dealer prompt and business-like in his work, fair in his charges, and sincerely eager to do a good and thorough job at all times.

His constant effort is to relieve you of every detail in the care of your car and to help you get thousands upon thousands of miles of satisfactory, enjoyable motoring at a very low cost per mile.

That is the purpose for which the Ford car was designed and built. That is the true meaning of Ford Service.

IDEAS, ideals and fundamentals are all in a state of flux. The 20th century will go down in history as the most kaleidoscopic era in human experience.

Nothing stays put, including law and logic.

A Massachusetts court, throwing precedent to the winds decides that moral characteristics are incapable of fixation at the ages of 7 and 8, and refuses to brand two boys, who killed a 3-year-old child, as criminals.

Common sense nationally applauds the verdict.

An Omaha judge, dissenting from prevalent rulings, also dares to defy associate opinion, and re-declares that a man's home is the same castle it was before the Volstead act assumed prerogatives of search and seizure, which no previous statute ever arrogated.

Only the supreme court can now re-establish prohibition's claim to entry and arrest without process of warrant.

The sooner the country learns whether the 18th amendment can or can't suspend the Magna Charta and the constitution of the United States, to perpetuate the slip between cup and lip, the better for all concerned.

Meanwhile, the supreme court has settled a long-mooted legal point, by authorizing deserted wives to draw upon their husbands' bank balances.

France and Italy, where males still exercise full control over family wealth, and aren't responsible for charge accounts, if they have not specifically agreed that the woman may purchase on credit, will now have another bone to pick with sex equality.

The week-end suspension of holiday trading, and Thanksgiving's interruption of prosperity conferences, afford the chance to ponder over "ships and shoes and sealing wax" again.

One-stringed harps, however adeptly played, finally grow monotonous.

Which reflection suggests that the country might recover its optimism a little more quickly if the hallelujah chorus would occasionally abandon the center stage.

Man cannot live by ballyhoos alone.

Henry Ford on Prohibition

A LOT OF us are impatient with prohibition. We had expected to see its coming pretty much eliminate crime and poverty and make us a sober, industrious and happy people. We have seen the illicit liquor trade flourish, we have seen bribery and corruption and, whatever the cause, crime has increased. We blame it on prohibition.

But admitting all the evils that exist—and all of them existed before prohibition—scarcely anybody will contend that there is as much drinking now as before prohibition and that the masses of the people are not more sober and more prosperous.

On account of its location and large population Detroit has been looked upon as one of the wettest cities in the country. Detroit is the home of the main factories of the Ford Motor company. Henry Ford is one of the largest employers of labor in the country. Mr. Ford is a strong advocate and earnest defender of prohibition. In a recent article in defense of prohibition he says:

"For myself, if booze ever comes back to the United States I am through with manufacturing. I would not be bothered with the problem of handling over 200,000 men and trying to pay them wages which the saloons would take away from them. I wouldn't be interested in putting automobiles into the hands of a generation soggy with drink.

"With booze in control we can count on only two or three effective days' work a week in the factory—and that would destroy the short day and the five-day week which sober industry has introduced. When men drank two or three days a week, industry had to have a 10 or 12-hour day and a six or seven-day week. With sobriety the working man can have an eight-hour day and a five-day week with the same or greater pay.

"That is only the factory phase. Look at the traffic phase. Gasoline and booze don't mix; that's all. Booze doesn't go with industry. It benumbs every one who uses it—manager and worker. No one is as good with a brain half fogged. I would not be able to build a car that will run 200,000 miles if booze were around, because I wouldn't have accurate workmen, and without accurate workmen I could not get the necessary precision in work, even with machinery, because more people are making the machinery to make the car today than make the car itself. In fact, making the machine is the big transition in industry today. To make those machines requires that the men increase their skill. They become specialists at making machinery, and then advance and become designers.

"With drink they could not do it, because booze destroys brainpower. It causes inaccuracy, and when men do poor work they lose interest, which is the greatest calamity that can happen. It is interest in life and work that makes the world go round, that keeps people alive, and creates the energy and enthusiasm necessary to accomplish and discover the best things. Drink has held people back for centuries, but even with the few years of prohibition we have had, I believe people have grown brighter and happier."

The Joys of Being Dumb

A LITTLE REFLECTION having proved to us that a great percentage of our culture torchbearers have bookish and second-handed minds, we are mellowed and soothed, and our fur, so to speak, is combed and petted the right way, when we consider the person those bookish ones call dumb.

We beg you, also, to consider him. He feigns not, neither does he lie. His mind is not clouded by second rate novels, and his ideas of domestic life are not borrowed from Broadway plays. His sympathies toward his fellow-man are not uttered dramatically, a la Ibsen. His expressions of approval never degenerate into "Quite realistic, you know," or "Ah, how modern!" He has never tasted caviar, and should he, his craving probably would be for hot baked potatoes.

He has never seen the East river in New York nor has he visited Greenwich village. But should he see either, he would not exclaim, "My dream of freedom, my beloved Bohemia!" His idea of Bohemia still includes visions of sweating Central Texas farmers.

And his idea of freedom is the ole fishin' hole.

He doesn't have autographed copies of any book whatever, and he hasn't shaken hands with Paderewski.

He thinks Swinburne is a brand of tobacco and that Edna St. Vincent Millay was the patron saint of Joan of Arc.

The Well of Loneliness is something real to him. It means fetching a pail of water in the middle of a cold winter night to give the baby a drink.

He thinks the Napoleonic code is used by the Western Union.

He believes the world was was fought for democracy.

He tips his hat to women, takes it off when they enter elevators, believes all women are angels, thinks Pantages is a brute and that Eunice Pringle is a Martyr.

Yet is he so bad off? We doubt it. What serenity of mind he must have when he can—

Go to talkies and come out pure, i. e., without imitating the Yankees and saying, "Sure, you bet."

Enjoy a lusty meal without being interrupted by people who want to know his ideas on morality.

Enter a friendly group without being conscious stricken at not having read the latest pot-boiler.

Request

Here are your letters and here's your ring,
Here is a book you loaned to me;
Love that lost and has learned to sting;
Time to hurry and time to flee.

If we meet we can nod and bow,
Other fancies will fill our days;
Just forget what we used to vow;
As we go on our separate ways.

Touch a match to the verse I penned,
Dig a grave for the phrases sweet;
Hearts that shatter will somehow mend,
Love is fickle and love is fleet.

Now we're square and it's time to go,
I'll leave happy if only you
Whisper something that isn't so—
And kiss me once as you used to do!

Just for the Records

When Equity opened that can of peas about snooty box office help somebody might have been thinking about the late Fergus McCusker, who used to stand behind the bars at the old Forrest theater in Philadelphia. Ask Tommy Brotherton of the Ziegfeld salesroom. He will agree Fergus was hard to handle.

Several seasons ago a lady stepped up to Mr. McCusker's work-bench and asked about a pair of seats for "Ben Hur."

"Two in the eighteenth row," sair Fergus.

"What about tomorrow night?" said the lady.

Eighteenth row," replied Mr. McCusker.

"The night after that?" said she.

"Madam," said the treasurer, "if you are going to see this show at all, you are going to see it from the eighteenth row; my mind is made up."

And—

During the run of the same opera another woman approached the box office and tried to talk business with Mr. McCusker. It seems that she couldn't get the sort of tickets she wanted and she spoke to that gentleman along these lines:

"I suppose I can get good seats if I go over to the swanky Bellevue-Stratford ticket brokerage."

"Lady," said Mr. McCusker, smiling his best, "anybody who wants to see this show doesn't know where the Bellevue-Stratford is."

By Way of Report

It now may be told. LaGuardia's charge during the mayoralty campaign that Mayor James J. Walker borrowed $2,000 from the Central Park Casino was over a mistake. It appears that Jimmy didn't borrow it, at all. They returned his $2,000 when they checked up and discovered that he only had coffee and not a steak.

Afterwards

And at the end your lips were cold,
Your words to me were lies;
You did not even try to hide
The boredom in your eyes.

How could I have adored you when
Your love for me was dead?
And kept on hugging to my heart
The stones you gave for bread?

Newspaperman Stuff

Walter Hoban's pappy, Peter J. Hoban, once was sent to Washington to see President McKinley. That was before the days of the "White House Spokesman," and Peter had no trouble crashing the Executive Mansion and getting his interview. After that Mr. McKinley staked Mr. Hoban to a sigar, and they gabbed a while.

It was well known that McKinley was not a rich man, and, somehow, it leaked out that Hoban was no Croesus.

With all the originality for which the Hoban family is noted, Peter made some crack to the effect that money isn't everything. He suggested that the nation had awarded Mr. McKinley the highest office in the land. "What do you want with money?" asked Peter. "What would you do if you were rich?"

To which the President of the United States answered: "Mr. Hoban, if I had a lot of money I would have a separate pair of suspenders for every pair of trousers I own."

Separation is in Mode

If you were here, or I were there,
Re-living the thrill of fond embraces,
We'd crush the specter of cold despair
Now haunting our empty places.

But you are there, and I am here,
And our lanes appear to have no turning,
Let's each get someone else, My Dear,
And cease this useless yearning.

—HARRY FORWOOD.

Controversy

Far be it from us to turn traitor, but The Over-Seas Daily Mail (England) argues that Thomas A. Edison did not invent the incandescent lamp, and that Sir Joseph Swan did. The facts, says the British newspaper, cannot be disputed. As early as 1860 the late Sir Joseph produced a red glow in a carbon filament in an air exhausted glass bulb, and in December, 1878, he was showing perfected lamps in England. Even six months later, it goes on to assert, Mr. Edison's invention in America was admittedly in the laboratory stage.

Mr. Edison, you have the floor, sir.

Marriage for Two--By Arthur Somers Roche

Shortly after an interview in which Helen Wilson tells Larry Tracy that she wishes to break their engagement so that she can marry the wealthy, middle-aged Frank Burton, and Larry swears, in pique, to marry the first girl who will have him, he rescues from a park bench a starved but beautiful girl, Joyce Carroll.

Realizing that she is penniless and ill, and respecting her desire to hide the poverty from the world, he takes her to his own home.

That same day a newspaper reporter arrives with Mrs. Wilson's announcement of the breaking of an engagement. Larry, incensed by the notoriety Helen is causing him, and thinking only of his desire to hurt her, asks Joyce to marry him.

She consents, and they are married, agreeing that their marriage will in reality be only a friendship.

Of his wife, Larry knows nothing more than her name, but at least one denizen of the underworld, Ratty Regan, read the announcement of her wedding with a gleam of anticipation.

Dismayed by the sensation his marriage is causing, Larry decides to take Joyce abroad.

Joyce Faces the Reporters

"The Gigantic sails tonight," he told her.

She giggled. "That sounds like a line from a melodrama. The Gigantic sails tonight and the papers must be aboard."

"Shall we go?" He ignored her mockery. "Shall we get away from this?"

He glanced at the pile of newspapers upon the foot of her bed.

"Why not?" she acquiesced.

He picked up the telephone near the head of her bed. He called his office and got his managing clerk.

"I want every case postponed for a couple of months," he abruptly stated.

Into the clerk's voice came dismay.

"But, Mr. Tracy——"

"You'll have to do it," he said.

He could almost see the clerk shrug. "Very well, sir. I'll do my best."

"I want a suite on the Gigantic tonight," went on Tracy. "Two bedrooms—" he colored faintly and tried to make his voice matter-of-fact—"and a sitting-room. And my passport—I want my wife's name added—"

"I'll have to have a photograph, sir," said the clerk.

"Get a photographer up here immediately. Can it be arranged so quickly?"

The clerk laughed. "Ten dollars here and five dollars there—"

"Make it 20 here and 10 there," suggested Tracy.

He hung up and faced his wife. There was a bewildered pleasure in her eyes.

"Money can do anything, almost, can't it?" she asked.

"It can always help out a situation," he smiled.

"But I thought that passports—"

"That's the reason for tens and twenties you heard me mention," he laughed, "Consular clerks are not overpaid."

She sat suddenly up in bed, and the flimsy negligee fell away from her shoulders and throat. The revelation hinted at delicious contours and despite himself Tracy felt his blood stir.

"Do you know," she said, in a voice that was almost awed, "that I have never been abroad? I've never been on an ocean liner. I—I've never seen—anything."

There are men who feel a genuine pleasure in giving. Their motives, subjected to the harsh scrutiny of analysis, prove to be selfish, but it is a kind of selfishness which the world needs. Tracy felt that pleasure now. For this girl, whom he had not even known a few days ago, he would unfold the magic of the old world. He, who liked travel, would find his enjoyment enhanced by her delight. Why, the trip, instead of being a flight from the newspapers, would be a lazily joyous journey.

After all, he caught himself, while they could dissemble momentarily, they could not keep it up. His voice did not reflect the enthusiasm he had felt a second ago as he made answer to her.

"I'll try to show you everything worth while."

Artificiality crept into his speech. Why couldn't he be as natural as she? Why didn't he have her adaptibility to the situation?

"Are you sure you have enough clothes?" he asked. "After all, $500—"

"Is what you might lose at bridge in an evening," she cut in. "Five hundred dollars? Miss Evans and Nora shopped for me. And I have over $200 left."

"Then," and he regained his lightness, "you won't bankrupt me?"

"That," she smiled, "I can't promise."

The telephone rang and he answered it. It was his chief clerk, to announce that a photographer was on his way to the house now, that he had got in touch with the passport officials and that as soon as Mrs. Tracy's photograph was delivered all formalities would be speeded through, and to inform his employer that a suite had been engaged on the Gigantic. Also, the clerk had taken it upon himself to arrange for a letter of credit and a supply of cash. Tracy expressed his appreciation and hung up.

"Now," sighed the girl, "I really believe we're going."

She said "we," not "I," and Tracy felt an inexplicable gratification at her choice of pronouns.

"I think that you'd better dress—the photographer will be here any minute," he told her. "You're sure you feel strong enough to travel?"

She smiled at him, and he departed on that smile, savoring it more than he knew.

The "Ogres"

Hogan met him in the hall outside her room.

"We're sailing for Europe," Tracy told him. "Pack everything I need and send the things to the Gigantic."

"The house," began Hogan.

"As it is," said Tracy.

"Very well, sir," Hogan hesitated. "If I were you, sir, I'd let the reporters in, Mr. Tracy. Otherwise, they'll hang around, dog you every minute—"

Tracy hesitated. "Maybe you're right, Hogan. I'll see them."

He went downstairs, entered the living room and tried to gather composure against the visitation of a horde of ogres.

But ogres were not ushered to his presence by his butler. Instead, a quite attractive group of young men and women gathered around him a few minutes later. One of them—who introduced himself as Stanway of the Chronicle—seemed to have been delegated as spokesman.

"Mr. Tracy, we don't want to annoy you. But, you mustn't forget that you're news."

"I won't debate the point," said Tracy, amiably.

"And it's our job to get the news," went on young Stanway. "And the easier you make it for us, why—the easier we'll make it for you."

"That," said Tracy quietly, "is decent of you."

Stanway eyed him. He couldn't be sure whether this quiet-voiced man was being sardonic or not.

"We, as individuals, have no wish to pry into your personal affairs, Mr. Tracy. But as newspaper men—"

"What do you want to know?" interrupted Tracy.

"How long have you known Mrs. Tracy?" asked the reporter.

"Suppose," said a voice from the doorway, "that I answer the question?"

Tracy leaped to his feet. He had the same sensation that he had felt when, as a child, he had read of Christians being tossed to the lions in the Roman arena. He, for reason politic, had met these reporters, hoping that wit would carry him through. But for his wife—long afterward he realized that he had considered her his wife definitely, with finality, for the first time upon his entrance into his library—to meet the battery of questions was unthinkable.

But his protective movement came too late. Not only had the reporters turned to her and surrounded her, but she was moving, with an easy grace, into the middle of the room.

Joyce's Lie

"Please do," begged Stanway.

"For months; ever since I came to New York," she said.

Tracy gasped. Her voice was as assured, as confident, as though it were exact truth she uttered, instead of a brazen falsehood. Lies were distasteful to him, but he could not withhold admiration for the easy artistry with which she uttered hers.

And he noted with pride that the masculine reporters eyed her with patent admiration, and there was approval in the glances of the women.

"You were aware of his engagement to Miss Wilson?" asked Stanway.

"Of course," she replied.

"Then you didn't expect to marry him?" persisted the reporter.

She smiled upon the newspaper man. It was a smile calculated to win the young man's heart.

"Of course, I didn't," she said.

"But when the engagement was broken—"

"Why that made it different, did it not?" she asked.

"Would you tell us where you came from? You're not a New Yorker, are you?" inquired Stanway.

She shook her head. "I'm from Maine—Belfast, Maine. And that don't you think, about covers it all. Mr. Tracy and I are married—that's all."

Tracy did not know how it was done. But it was accomplished. It was not her speech; it was not her manner—it was nothing that he could define. But she got rid of them amiably, cheerfully and with congratulatory words upon their lips.

After they'd gone he stared at her.

"I was afraid, when Hogan told me that you'd let them in, you'd say too much," she said. "Or that you might get angry—"

Later he was to understand that she had charm, and also a great gift of enlisting quick sympathy. But now he could not comprehend how men and women, avid for many words, had been content with so few.

"You might," he laughed, "some time help me with a jury.

She looked at him. "Even that is conceivable," she answered, quietly. "I—hope you didn't mind."

"Mind? I'm so grateful—"

"To earn your gratitude, even in a small matter helps," she said.

She wore a simple little frock of plainest blue serge, relieved at the throat with a touch of white. Her feet were shod with ridiculously fragile slippers, and her legs were clad in smooth silk. He began, in advance of complete comprehension, to understand why the reporters had been so easily handled.

"You're a very beautiful thing," he said impulsively.

"There is no higher flattery than praise from a husband," she smiled.

"Bridegrooms are usually amenable to a bride's beauty," he rejoined.

She shrugged slightly. "Only—that rule doesn't—apply here," she reminded him.

He reddened at the implication. "You needn't remind me," he said.

"I wasn't," she said, "reminding you of anything. I—but let's not misunderstand each other. We've managed to reach a—a note of—well, an arrangement on which we can get along, and—I'll never mis-

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

(Miss Mary Duggan, an eastern educator, wants childhood rhymes that will substitute healthful foods for those about which the old jingle authors wrote.—News item.)

Mistress Mary, healthful, very,
How does your garden grow?
With spinach greens and peas and beans
And rhubarb plants all in a row.

There was an old woman who lived in a shoe
She had lots of children who healthfully grew;
She fed them on onions, raw, fried and boiled,
And thus were all germs that beset children foiled.

Little Jack Horner sat in a corner
Eating a spinach pie;
He said, "All this sand is tasty and grand—
What a great football prospect am I!"

Little Polly Flinders
Sat among the cinders
Warming each pretty little toe;
Her mother fed her beet tops
And now whene'er she heat drops
Her blood's so rich she sits out in the snow.

Bye, baby bunting,
Daddy's gone a-hunting
To get some dandelion greens
So baby'll know what vigor means.

Jack Sprat could eat no fat,
His wife was like her mate;
Their idea of a banquet was
A vegetable plate.

Curly locks! Curly locks!
Wilt thou be mine?
Thou shalt not wash dishes
Nor yet feed the swine.
But sit at the table
And have for dessert
Five helpings of spinach—
Including the dirt.

To market, to market, for Vitamin A,
Home again, home again, happy and gay;
To market, to market, for Vitamin B,
Home again, home again, shouting for glee;
To market, to market, for Vitamin C—
Some may like ice cream, but cabbage for me!

Sing a song of sixpence,
A pocket full of rye;
Four and twenty blackbirds
Baked in a pie.

When the pie was opened
The kiddies all did sing:
"Never mind the nice parts—
We'd like a neck or wing."

The Queen of Hearts
She made some tarts
All on a summer's day.
The Knave of Hearts
He stole the tarts
And ate them right away.

The King of Hearts
Called for the tarts;
The Queen she used her head,
Unto the king
She had them bring
Some succotash instead.

Simple Simon met a pieman
Going to the fair;
Said Simple Simon to the pieman,
"For pie I do not care."

Said the pieman to Simple Simon
With a silly grin (ach),
"I've only pies," and Simon gasped
And mumbled, "What! No spinach?"

Old Mother Hubbard
Went to the cupboard
To make her dog sit up and beg
But when she got there
Of bones it was bare,
So the pup got cold spinach with egg.

Why the Discrimination

Mr. Richard Whitney, vice president of the New York stock exchange, has been formally honored by a vote of the exchange for his courage during the market panic. He bid 205 for Steel, it seems.

Elmer Twitchell thinks he should be in line for a distinguished service cross or something. "I bought the same stock for 220," he explains.

side the United States,' he said, "is 'are we going to relp on supplies from the states when these may be less at some approaching time, seeing that no thought is given to conservation? Must we (non-Americans) not strain every effort, however costly, to protect ourselves for future consuming needs seeing that continuation of exports from America is simply looked upon as temporary dumping of excess production?'"

Association Urged

Sir Henri urged that "an association of cooperation" be established to prevent waste of oil and duplication of facilities and needless drilling of new wells.

The institute wasted no time in following Deterding's advice. The unit pool plan, providing that American oil companies combine to withdraw only sufficient oil from fields to meet consumers' needs was adopted unanimously by its board of directors. The plan also looks toward reduction of the vast number of filling stations and pipelines which eat into producers' profits without benefit to the consumer.

The institute elected 12 new directors and reelected 28 others. Among the latter was Harry F. Sinclair, who recently completed a jail term for contempt of the senate. Edward L. Doheny, another of the old directors, resigned from the board by letter yesterday.

The new directors are: W. C. McDuffie, Pacific Western Oil company, Los Angeles; W. T. Holliday, Standard Oil company of Ohio, Cleveland, Ohio; C. M. Fuller, Richfield Oil company, Los Angeles; F. B. Parriott, Transcontinental Oil company, Tulsa, Okla.; C. B. Ames, Texas company, New York; Wirt Franklin, Wirt Franklin Petroleum company, Tulsa, Okla.; Jacob France, Mid-Continent Petroleum company, Tulsa, Okla.; W. S. Fitzpatrick, Prairie Oil and Gas company, Independence, Kan.; R. T. Moore, Sims Petroleum company, Dallas, Texas; H. B. Earhart, White Star Refining company, Detroit, Mich., and W. M. Irish, Atlantic Refining company, Philadelphia, Pa.

Advance warnings of severe cold, frost and floods result in an annual saving of $35,000,000, says Dr. C. F. Marvin, chief of the United States weather bureau.

DANGER LIES IN REDUCING DIETS

Unless They Have Bulk, Constipation is Inevitable

Today thousands of young women and girls are wondering why they are so miserable as they diet to reduce.

The trouble is that many of the new diets lack roughage which is necessary to clean the intestinal system. The symptoms are headaches, "gone" feelings and bad complexions. If allowed to continue constipation with its evils occurs.

By including Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in a reducing diet, you keep fit as you take off weight because you prevent constipation.

ALL-BRAN does not add fat to the body. It just sweeps the intestines clean of poisonous wastes. No pills nor drugs can play the part of ALL-BRAN in a reducing diet. Their dose has to be constantly increased and harmful results often follow.

You will like the appetising, nutsweet flavor of ALL-BRAN. Eat it in soups. On salads. Soaked in orange, prune or fruit juice. As a cereal with milk or cream. Delicious with honey added. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily — in chronic cases with every meal.

Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, restaurants, dining-cars. Sold by all grocers.

Ford Motor Co. Announces Wage Increase to Total $20,000,000 Year

DETROIT, Dec. 3. (AP)—Henry Ford's proposed increases in wages to Ford Motor company employes "as a stimulus to industry and general business," will result in an increased wage distribution of more than $19,500,000 annually in the plants throughout the United States and of $1,000,000 a year in the Canadian plants.

This was made known today in statements by Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor company here, and by Wallace R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor company of Canada, Ltd., telling of new wage scales.

The minimum wage of $6 a day is increased in both United States and Canadian plants and branches to $7 a day; the probationary wage paid to apprentice employes for the first two months of their employment is increased from $5 to $6 a day, and an increase averaging five per cent is made in the wages of workers receiving more than the $7 minimum.

The increased scale in plants in the United States was made effective yesterday. In the Canadian plants it will become effective Dec. 5.

WHO ORDERED SOLDIERS OUT?

Louisiana Mystified by Militia Call

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3. (UP)—Just who called out three divisions of the Louisiana militia was a moot question here today as some 500 youths of the city returned to work, after being summoned to appear at Jackson barracks yesterday.

Gov. Huey Long denied participation in the affair which threw New Orleans in a frenzy of excitement. Adjutant General Ray Fleming, in charge of the forces today continued to deny he issued the order and referred questioners to Governor Long.

The war department at Washington in a statement to the Morning Tribune, denied knowledge of the sudden move.

While Governor Long denied he called out the "army" Dr. V. H. Iron, conservation commissioner, deposed yesterday by Governor Long, recalled today that Earl Long, brother of the governor, threatened to call out the militia if Dr. Iron did not step out of office.

Iron stepped out of office and shook hands with Robert S. Maestri, Long appointee. As Iron walked out of the office, Maestri discharged all the office employes, some 50 of men, keeping only the telephone operator and one other.

Just as Maestri took charge of his new office the order for the militia to assemble was broadcast.

Dozens of downtown offices were minus clerks the remainder of the afternoon.

Negress Saves $40 In Store Robbery

A negro woman's presence of mind saved her husband more than $40 late Tuesday night in spite of a threatening pistol pointed at her by an unmasked white hijacker, according to police.

The white man entered the Davis Drug store, 205½ Park street, and with a gun leveled at D. L. Davis, negro proprietor, and his wife, ordered the wife to put the contents of the cash register in a sack he held out. Meanwhile, a customer entered and the hijacker turned his attention to ransacking the pockets of the newcomer. The negro woman dropped three half dollars in the sack and closed it, handing it to the hijacker.

When he asked if she had put in all the money, she assured him she had and told him to shake it. The rattle of the silver half dollars convinced him and he departed, with $1.50, leaving the larger amount in the cash register. The customer in whose pockets the hijacker had found nothing then produced a large sum from his watch pocket, where the sadly fooled hijacker had failed to look. Police were searching for the white man late Tuesday night.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. James F. Campbell, of 1012 W. Fifth St., Little Rock, Ark., says: "I had bloating after eating. My rheumatism was so bad I could hardly raise my arms. Now I can eat anything and do a good day's work."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Blue grass is called from its bluish green stem. It is famous in Kentucky.

BUCKAROOS AND SANDIES WILL PRESENT GREAT ELEVENS

By GRANTLAND RICE

Preliminary

These men of punch and body-hook
Have suffered long the resined slam
Of floor on face—yet they both look
As though they didn't care a damn
There is small glory and they get
Scant bally-ho where they have known
The taste of linament and sweat
And leather blasting tooth and bone.

Derisive cheers and catcalls fill
The mongrel crowd, with murdered sound,
But in the ring these men are still—
Blood-spattered from a crushing round;
They crouch indifferent to the throng,
Thinking of come-back and of fight,
Staring at navel till the gong
Drives them once more into the light. . .

Clinch. Clinch—and smash! A cyclone twists
Behind each blow. Punch-drunk they reel.
The gloves are tattered, but the fists
Have turned to thunderbolts of steel.
—PHILIP M. HARDING.

Working Philosophy

When you come to a wall that has no gate there are three moves left—smash through—climb over—walk around. But don't turn back.

To quit in the face of a tough break is to miss the chance to ride forward with the turning tide.

It is the contrast of ups and downs in any game that makes it interesting.

The entry who discovers he can take it and still come back is pretty well set.

A blind man's second sight is as good as the fellow who uses a field glass.

The debater who gets excited in an argument rarely has the facts to back up his play.

The cove who is always getting sore about something should practice running backwards, since that is the direction he is headed for.

The Next Dempsey

Back before the war there were three heavyweight parties holding most of the limelight. They were Jess Willard, the champion; Fred Fulton, the plasterer, and Bill Brennan, who had just won 40 fights in a row, most of them by knock-outs.

Then a young unknown by the name of Jack Dempsey came along. He was matched with Brennan as the last step before Brennan met Fulton to decide the name of the challenger who would face Willard.

"I'd like to carry you, Jack," Brennan said before the fight. "But I can't with a shot at Willard waiting."

Dempsey knocked him down with the first punch and knocked him out in a few rounds, the last fall being hard enough to break Brennan's leg. After that Dempsey had Fulton unconscious on the floor at the end of 18 seconds.

This generation won't see another Dempsey come along. Probably the next one won't. But it may see a young, fast, hard-hitting, aggressive youngster who will take over the spotlight within the next year and scatter most of the debris now hanging around. His name may be Fay, or it may be some one else.

But whoever he is, no coming challenger was ever in a better spot.

A young man by the name of Van Porat might put some action into the present lull by bowling over Phil Scott without any undue waste of time. He will soon have his chance, and once again he couldn't pick a better spot.

R. L. H. wants to know what Pittsburgh, Notre Dame or Purdue could have done to Harvard on the day of the Yale game. They would have had all the trouble even the best teams can look for. Ben Ticknor would have still been the best defensive man on the field and none of the three can show many better backs than Wood, Mays and Devens. Wood would have been the best passer on the field, regardless of the team he met from any one of the trio. There is a good chance that Harvard that day would not have beaten any one of the three, but the winner would have needed no courier to tell him later that he had been in the middle of a football game up to his ears.

So far only 7,345 letters have come in asking whether Pittsburgh, Notre Dame or Purdue should be picked as the outstanding team. But the winter league is still young and this paltry and meager output will soon reach normal December proportions, to which there will as usual be no answer that makes any sense or that carries any logic.

BRECK-SANDY BIG CONTEST

Two Best Elevens in West Texas Meet

By W. G. CHAMBLESS

A championship game usually carries with it an immense deal of interest and the Amarillo-Breckenridge bi-district scuffle on Saturday at the home city of the latter is certainly not an exception to the general rule. Both teams have swept through their opposition this season like the real champions that they are. When they meet on the chalked off field Saturday it will be a meeting of the two very best teams that could be picked from West Texas—and that is covering quite a fraction of territory.

Their Best Elevens

If reports that have been reaching us during the season are true, the Breckenridge Buckaroos assuredly are a great eleven. On the other hand, the Golden Sandstorm has the best team ever to represent the Panhandle metropolis. Neither outfit knows what defeat is—that is for this year.

Running Attack

Both elevens boast of superb running attacks and the aerial game of both is enough to be a constant threat to the other. The forward wall of both elevens is powerful as will be attested by opposing teams in their respective conferences. Boyce Magness and Dave Graham are the big guns of the Buckaroos' backfield. They have been responsible for the big scoring that has made the Buckaroos one of the most dreadful teams in Texas High school circles. Magness enjoys a distinction of outbooting "Arkansas McLaughlin," Ranger's famous punter. McLaughlin punted for an average of 44 yards in the meeting of Ranger and Breckenridge but Magness bested him yards, so it is reported. On one occasion Breckenridge's punter got off a tremendous punt that cleared 77 yards. Mr. Lockhart will have to summon all his reserve if he outpunts the estimable Mr. Magness.

The forward walls of the two elevens probably could not be more evenly matched than they are. For Breckenridge, Cox at tackle and Thompson at guard weigh 185 and 170 pounds respectively. Another tackle that has been breaking into the lineup a good deal of late weighs only 265 pounds. These are the bulwarks of the line and when the average is taken it is seen that they should prove a formidable obstacle to any set of backs. Amarillo has a flock of heavy linesmen that would do credit to most college elevens. In Sheppard, 175 pounds, Nicklaus, 185 pounds, and Clayton at 178 pounds the Sandies will be able to put pound for pound—not counting, of course, the giant 265-pound upstart tackle who keeps breaking into the game here of late.

So it is seen that the two title holders of their respective districts will be pretty much on a par for the game that decides which of the West Texas elevens will go into the state semi-finals. The usual breaks of the game will count in the final result but on a whole the ablest coached, hardest fighting and best playing team will most likely take the garland of victory.

Famous Mentor Makes Denial of Money Profits Tale

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 3. (AP)—Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, today entered vigorous denial to a special story sent from New York estimating profits to himself and Notre Dame in the record breaking campaign the Notre Dame gridders ended Saturday with a victory over the Army. The particular statement to which Rockne objected was that he received five per cent of the net receipts in addition to his salary as coach. The story estimated that Notre Dame got $800,000 for its nine football games and that Rockne's five per cent amounted to $40,000.

"The amount Notre Dame earned on the gridiron is exaggerated," Rockne said, "and that report that I get any personal dividend is silly. I get $10,000 a year as my salary as coach and that's all."

Fort Worth Cats Buy Two Players

FORT WORTH, Dec. 3. (AP)—Purchase of two ball players was announced by the Fort Worth club of the Texas league today. Infielder Chester Fowler from the Montreal club of the International league and Outfielder Dick Sullivan from the Wichita Falls club of the Texas league were the purchases.

Finds New Anesthetic

TORONTO.—Two biologists of the University of Toronto, Professors G. H. W. Lucas and F. C. Henderson, have perfected an anesthetic which they believe to be better than ether or chloroform. It is a gas called cyclopropane, and experiments with it on animals show that they come out of the anesthetic in a shorter time than from any other.

Vets Pace Badgers in Title Drive

Wisconsin will bid for another Big Ten basket ball championship with a combination built around Matthusen and Chmielewski. The Badgers shared the championship with Michigan last season.

By STANLEY KALISH
Associated Press Staff Writer

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 3.—Around two veterans and a capable substitute, Walter E. Meanwell, Wisconsin's basket ball coach, hopes to win his eighth Big Ten net championship.

Last year the Badgers tied with Michigan for western conference honors.

Meanwell's record and his 15 years as tutor of basket ball teams makes him dean of the conference coaches.

Edmund Chmielewski of Chicago, all-conference guard, and Carl Matthusen, also of Michigan, forward, are the regulars of last year's team left.

Maurice Farber, a substitute forward, won a letter last year.

Meanwell looks with favor on Douglas Nelson, brother of George Nelson, a Wisconsin guard of three years ago, who will be eligible this year. Nelson has a good eye for the basket.

John Paul, a junior, is a likely guard.

A son of Wisconsin's 1905 basket ball captain is a candidate. He is Christian Steinmetz Jr., of Milwaukee.

Meanwell is not anticipating a championship team this year—his winning combination was too much upset by graduations.

But two years hence—ah, that's the year the Badgers' coach looks for.

National Sports Jury Will Select Championship Grid Team of Country

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Preliminary balloting by the national sports jury of 250 experts is now under way, as the first step in determining which college football team this year shall receive the Albert Russell Erskine award. This preliminary ballot will show which three teams are to be submitted again to the jury for final selection of the championship team. Results of the preliminary vote will be known by Dec. 5.

Selection of a football championship team on this scale is being attempted for the first time this year. The committee of award, which sponsors the work, includes such well known patrons of sport as Theodore Roosevelt, Will Rogers, John McE. Bowman and W. O. McGeehan, who is the committee's chairman. The committee's ambition is to make the selection on so wide a national scale as to leave little room for argument on a question which till now has been the subject of bitter debate every autumn. By constructing a jury of 250 sporting editors and similar experts, located in every section of the country, it is believed that this ambition will be achieved.

Coaches Begin Mapping Out Program For Football Teams in 1930 Season

By L. S. CAMERON
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (UP)—Foundations for next year's football teams were being mapped out by coaches today.

Notre Dame would be good anyway, but Coach Knute Rockne will sustain no wholesale losses. Jack Elder, fastest back in college football today, is a senior. Law, Cannon, Twomey, Colrick and Moynihan, all linemen, also will be lost. Carideo, Brill, Mullins, Gebert, Savoldi, Schwartz and O'Connor, top Notre Dame backs of this year, will return.

Albie Booth is a sophomore this year, and so he is to return to Yale. He will have had lots of time to recover from injuries which kept him from landing an all-American berth, and it will be up to him to prove himself the great back he was while in shape.

Dartmouth Loses Heavy

Dartmouth lost Al Marsters through injury some weeks ago, and several others of this year's varsity have now played their last games. Among them are Booma, a capable end, and Cole, who starred at tackle in the Navy game.

Losses at Pitt

Pittsburgh, universally rated as the best team in the East this year, will suffer wholesale losses. Included in the list of departures are Octavius (Toby) Uansa and Pug Parkinson, backfield men extraordinary; Donches, clever end; Dimeolo and Montgomery, a fine pair of guards. Baker, Williams and Walinchus, other regular backs, will be seniors next year. Tully, a tackle, also will have another year. Daugherty, center, has two more years of play ahead, as has Collins, end.

Army will lose two brilliant backs in Chris Cagle and Johnny Murrel. Joe Clifton, a great fullback, has played his last game for the Navy. Spring and H. W. Bauer, halfbacks, are other departing Middies.

Pest Welch, one of the best backs in the Big Ten, will leave Purdue. Western champions, as will Glen Harmeson, another fine back. Caraway, Woerner and Mackie, three first string ends, will be lost.

Harvard has bright prospects for 1930. Harper is the only first team backfield player who will graduate.

SANDERS GETS BID

S. M. U. Star Gets Bid To Play on Coast

FORT WORTH, Dec. 3. (AP)—Choc Sanders, S. M. U. guard and captain, and Gordy Brown, Texas university tackle and captain, will be invited to play for the West in the West-East game in San Francisco Jan. 1. This information was received here by the Record-Telegram today.

Yankee Puck Stars On Cambridge Team

CAMBRIDGE, England., Dec. 3. (AP)—Three American college graduates have been chosen to play for the Cambridge university ice hockey team.

They are Richard Warren of Boston, Mass., Henry B. Cannon of Cherry Valley, N. Y., and Henry W. Bragdon of Rochester, N. Y.

Warren, who played for the Harvard second team last year, plays center; Cannon, a former Yale varsity carsman, plays defense; Bragdon, a graduate of Harvard and Kent school, Kent, Conn., is a substitute forward.

All three are students at Trinity college.

The Cambridge university hockey team plays most of its matches in the Christmas vacation during a month's tour on the continent. It will be in Vienna early in December, then in Budapest, from where it goes to Gstaad and Davos, famous Swiss resorts. Its final stop is St. Moritz, where the annual match with Oxford is played.

It meets teams of half a dozen European nationalities, and itself is a miniature League of Nations, for in addition to the three Americans it includes three Englishmen, a Canadian, an Austrian, a Persian, and a Colombian.

RULING TODAY ON TORPORCER

Baseball Men Gathered at Chattanooga

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 3.—The case of George Torporcer, bespectacled infielder of the Rochester International league club, who was suspended from organized baseball for one year because of his part in a near riot in the final game of the 1929 little world series against Kansas City, was reopened today by Mike Sexton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball clubs, on the eve of the annual meeting of the minor league body.

After a six-hour session at the Hotel Patten today, at which seven of the eight members of the national board of arbitration sat in, President Sexton announced he would have a decision ready on Torporcer's case at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Nearly a thousand baseball leaders from every section of the country were here tonight for the gala opening of the three-day minor league meeting. Most of the major league clubs are represented.

The signing of Albert (Lefty) Leifield, former manager of the Oklahoma City Western league, as manager of the St. Paul American association league club was the principal deal of the day. Leifield, former major league scout, succeeds Bubbles Hargrave, who joins the New York Yankees as catcher and coach.

The Fort Worth Texas league club made two deals, buying Infielder Chester Fowler from Montreal and Outfielder Dick Sullivan from the Wichita Falls Texas league club.

Lee Kaiser, president of the Des Moines Western league, suggested night baseball as one way for the minor leagues to solve their financial troubles. Kaiser said he planned to stage night games at Des Moines next season.

Laredo Banker Given Suspended Sentence

LAREDO, Texas, Dec. 3. (UP)—Royle K. Mims drew a two-year suspended sentence late today from the jury which heard his guilty plea to misapplication of bank funds.

The indictment resulted from the closing of the First State Bank and Trust company last year. It was re-opened three months after the closing and all depositors were paid in full.

Waco's Team Plays By-District Game

WACO, Texas, Dec. 3. (AP)—Waco's bi-district clash with Central High school of Fort Worth is to be a very unusual one for the Waco team. For the first time in a number of years Waco finds there is not a man on the team who has played in a bi-district game before.

Coach Paul Tyson's green youngsters are preparing to defend that tradition the powerful state champion and runner-up elevens of recent years have made possible—that of never having been defeated on a home gridiron. Every man on the team will be in tip-top condition for the game Friday.

Exonerate the Portly Gents

NEW YORK.—If you've aspirations to be a detective, this information might help you in tracing a criminal. Rarely look for a fat man as the killer in a murder case. Those jovial gents, who possess a kind heart under their excessive chests, rarely are implicated in a killing, figures gathered here show. It has been discovered that only two per cent of the murderers in New York in the past 15 years have been fat men, and that the most ghastly crimes have been committed by those who are thin and devoid of vitamins.

CHECKER CHAMP

Famous Checker Champ Will Take on All Comers

The checker playing enthusiasts, experts and near experts of Wichita Falls and vicinity now have the opportunity to "check up" and see just how good they are anyway. J. B. Hanson who is the checker playing champion of all the United States west of the Mississippi has come into town and avers that he will take on all comers between the hours of 8 o'clock a. m. and midnight on Wednesday Thursday and Friday of Dec. 4, 5 and 6 at the Recreation club, 812 Scott street.

All checker players in Wichita Falls and surrounding towns are cordially asked to come and match wits with Mr. Hanson in that ancient and honorable old past time of checkers.

Bowlers Have Big Night Tuesday At Spudder Alley

The First National bank bowlers took three games straight from the Sherwin-Williams rollers Tuesday night at the Spudder alleys. Montgomery company captured two out of three games with the P. B. M. company. The Texas Electric company toppled over the Boone-Kemp Inc. rollers for two out of three matches.

TUNNEY BACK IN THE STATES

Former Champ Given Big Ovation

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Gene Tunney came here today with his bride and it was just like old times again with sports writers rushing to meet him. Cameramen snooping and lenses clicking from all angles.

The retired heavyweight champion returned on the liner Vulcania with Mrs. Tunney, the former Polly Lauder, for whom he renounced the ring after knocking out Tom Heeney in July of 1928.

Although it occasioned no surprise, Tunney made it clear in a formal statement that he had permanently retired from the boxing game.

Any hope the former champion might have had of a formal and dignified dismissal of this and kindred subjects was dissipated after 60 newspaper men and photographers climbed aboard the liner.

Bombarded With Questions

He was bombarded with questions, cut out from the crowd of admirers, and hustled into a vacant stateroom where, in the manner of other days, the "vacuum" was applied.

Except for a wrinkle or two around the eyes, he was the old "Gene" of his fighting days, courteous, affable and chock full of interest in fistic events. He said he weigned 194½ pounds, the same poundage he scaled for Heeney. He refused to discuss any phase of the suits brought against him for alleged breach of promise by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty and alienation of affections by John Fogarty.

Meeting With G. B. A.

His appreciation of George Bernard Shaw, Irish literary champion who visited the Tunney villa at Brioni, Italy, frequently was so great that Gene hardly could find words to express himself. Finally he named Snaw "a great fellow."

Asked to name two prominent heavyweights Gene answered "Primo Carnera" and went on to explain that the Italian heavyweight is really six feet 10 inches tall and weighs 283 pounds.

"Carnera has the biggest feet in the world," he said, "and the ankles of an elephant."

Among other things, Tunney said his fortune had not been injured in the recent stock market crash, that he had no business prospects in view, and expected to "settle down" in Stamford, Conn. He was seasick for four days on the rough trip across the Atlantic.

Only one question—"how long do you expect to stay in America?"—stirred Gene a bit.

"This is home," he answered. "How long does anyone stay there?"

Caveman Back From Wilds

Man Hale and Hearty After Month in Woods

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (INS)—Burt McConnell, middle-aged adventurer, who entered the Canadian wilds, 300 miles north of Quebec, on Sept. 25, dressed in a running suit and armed only with a typewriter, a camera and a one-pound axe, was back in New York today seemingly none the worse for his experience.

McConnell said that he changed his light attire for a moose-hide suit upon entering the woods and up until Thanksgiving day when he dined with a forest ranger, his diet had consisted solely upon wild game and fish caught with handmade implements.

In the last 10 days, he said, the temperature at times reached 32 degrees below zero.

McConnell plans to write a book dealing with his experiences.

WE HATE THE WORD "SPIT"

When he makes cigars ... he spits on the ends!

But spit-tipped cigars are a menace . . . smoke certified CREMO cigars.

How often have you been disgusted with the filthy, germ-breeding places where some cigars are made . . . dark, stuffy factories . . . warm, dingy shops and windows . . . where cigars are rolled by careless, dirty lips and fingers and spit on the ends! What a far cry this is from the modern, certified method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

I certify Cremo smokers and dealers to be O.K.

INJURIES FROM DUST

Chalicosis is the disease which comes from breathing dust while grinding metals and is also found among those who breathe in quarry dust and pottery dust. Any workers having a tendency to bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, or tuberculosis will do well to avoid the dusty trades, as the dust only irritates these conditions further.

The damage of the dust lies in the size of the specks. Those that are large are screened out by the hairs of the nose before they reach the lungs, or they may so irritate the throat that they are sneezed out. The superfine dust more readily reaches the lungs. The first indications of danger from dust are chronic bronchitis and emphysema, followed by the third sign of "black spit" in which the patient expectorates pus colored with dust.

Sometimes poisoning may occur from dust that carries a poison with it. Often the poison is not actually taken into the lungs but is removed by the upper respiratory tract and swallowed so that it is absorbed by the intestines and enters the system that way. Lead poisoning may occur either from dust or the vapor of metal lead. Those occupations of smelting, manufacturing paint, soldering and type-setting often give rise to it. Arsenic poisoning may also occur in this manner. The perforation of the nasal septum of those who work in chromium dust is known. Carries of the teeth seems to occur from the sugar dust in sugar mills. "Ragpicker's Disease" is the name of the disease which attacks those who handle old rags. "Shoddy Fever" is known to attack inexperienced men when they first grind rags, bringing on a fever accompanied by shaking and catarrh. "Wool Sorter's Disease" is an affection among those who sort over wool or hair, the infection being breathed in with the dust. The first symptoms are chill, then pain in the back and legs, fever, severe pain in the chest, coughing, prostration and even death.

When the worker is compelled to breathe an air saturated with dust, it is better for him to wear a dust helmet if the task is stationary. It is also a good plan whenever possible to change the grinding or pounding from dry to wet so that the water will keep down the dust.

When dust does form it should be carried out by the building of air currents applied to the dust source which will catch the dust before it can be scattered. In many cases, mixing can be done in enclosed grinders with the product held in by closed conveyers which prevent a blowing about of the dust.

The safest advice to those who find themselves affected with this kind of trouble is to change the occupation. In most cases this will bring about a recovery if the patient selects a dust free atmosphere to live in.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Exophthalmic Goitre

Question—Mrs. M. M. writes: "I had an operation a year ago, having an inward goitre taken out. Since then my throat is always so dry. What causes it? And my eyes—will they ever go back in place."

Answer—The dryness of your throat may be caused by some injury to the salivary glands which occurred during your operation. If the operation was successful your eyes should gradually recede somewhere to their normal place, but most cases never become entirely normal.

Agar-Agar

Question—Mrs. K. Asks: "Will you please tell me where I can get agar-agar, and how to use it to cure constipation?"

Answer—Agar-agar can be secured in any drug store. It is put up in packages in granulated form. A good way to use it is to take three or four tablespoonfuls a day, either at meals or between meals, it does not seem to matter. The agar-agar is not digested and contains very little food materials. It therefore furnishes bulk for the intestines and this assists in relieving constipation which is often caused by using food which is too highly concentrated.

Proper Ventilation

Question—P. W. asks: "What is the proper way to ventilate a room? It seems to me that without fresh air all the time a special diet would be of no use to the body."

Answer—The special ventilation of every room in the house is of the utmost importance, and to get the best results this problem must be carefully studied. As a rule, a good plan is to provide for openings near the ceiling where the warm, devitalized air can pass out. Low openings should also be provided for the intake of fresh air. All gas stoves should be provided with the proper vents and where a fire is burning in the room, more outside air must be admitted to keep up the supply of oxygen.

MAN LOST IN SHIP SMASH

One Drowned, Another Hurt Near Lake Charles

LAKE CHARLES, La., Dec. 3. (AP)—One man is missing and believed drowned, and another is in a local sanitarium suffering from exposure and a burned hand, as a result of an accident today in the Lake Charles ship channel.

The man believed drowned is a negro of Sabine, Texas, known as "French." The man in the sanitarium is Gus Becker of Beaumont, Texas, engineer of the tug boat "Stella."

The Stella rammed the bank at a bend and sank with a crew of nine. All were found except the negro, who was cook.

The Stella is a tug belonging to D. M. Picton & Co., of Port Arthur, Texas. It was on its way to Lake Charles to take out a vessel.

An investigation was held by owners of the boat.

Lonsdale Refuses To Head Farmers Grain Company

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 3. (UP)—Charles W. Lonsdale, prominent midwestern grain man, has declined offers to head the Farmers' National Grain corporation, suggested by the federal farm board "because of my sincere conviction that the plan, as outlined, will fail."

Lonsdale issued a statement at his home here today saying, "the agricultural marketing act is, in its application to the grain trade, an indictment of the efficiency and economy of the present competitive system of grain handling.

"It proposes ultimately to destroy this system and to set up cooperative grower-owned control. They have failed in large numbers through inability to compete with commercial buyers and shippers."

He added that "stabilization" through "pools" cannot be ultimately profitable to the grower, "while quasi-government direction is almost certain to be enormously more expensive than commercial methods."

TURKEY MARTS OPENED AGAIN

Christmas Supply Needed By Local Buyers

Market gates were opened again Tuesday in Wichita Falls for the purpose of assembling turkeys for the Christmas dinners to be spread throughout the country on Dec. 25. Scattered deliveries were made to local plants, and trucks operating through the rural districts brought in several hundred birds.

Procedure followed Tuesday indicated, however, that most growers will bring their turkeys to the market rather than selling to buyers at the point of production. The differential of one or two cents per pound occasioned by the factor of transportation will probably be avoided by the grower making his own deliveries, it was said.

Prices offered Tuesday by local packing plants are only one cent below the scale prevalent before Thanksgiving. No. 1 toms now bringing 19 cents, and No. 1 hens 16 cents. Approximately 10 days will complete the packing season for turkeys to be shipped by freight to eastern markets, it was said. Dec. 12 will be the last day for killing except for express shipments of local markets.

No. 1 eggs took a 6-cent hike Tuesday to quote at 46 cents per dozen. Those who have hard wheat of No. 1 quality may now get $1.07 per bushel from the local elevators, according to price changes announced Tuesday.

Cotton ginnings amounting to 114 bales, without a report from the Birk-George gins at Iowa Park, brought the season's total up to 19,276.

MID-WESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 3. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit was featured by a broad demand for light weight steers and yearlings at steady to strong prices today. Medium weight and heavy steers, however, found a slow outlet with values unevenly steady to 25c lower. Highly finished steers were especially difficult to move. A firm to higher undertone prevailed at most points on light yearlings and fat she stock. Choice long yearlings in Chicago scored $16.15 while best heavy steers cashed at $14.65. Creep fed 6500-lb. calves at Kansas City realized $14.50. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 43,100 as compared with 41,946 a week ago and 47,634 the corresponding day last year.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—A few bids are being received on 56s and 48@50s combing wools, but the prices offered are very low as compared with recent sales, and holders are reluctant to accept. Unsettled conditions in the South-American markets appears to be a dominant factor in the market on these grades of domestic wools.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (AP)—Slight opening declines in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables were followed by advances in cotton today on covering and trade buying. January contracts sold up from 17.21 to 17.50, and closed at 17.48 with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 13 to 27 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 3 points with active months selling about 4 to 5 points net lower during the first few minutes under liquidation, while there also appeared to be a little southern selling.

December declined to 17.06 and March to 17.50 while May sold off to 17.73 but the market soon turned steadier.

The weather reported in the south was considered unfavorable for the saving of late cotton and expectations of smaller crop figures from the government next Monday seemed strengthened by private reports.

Buying became somewhat more active as prices worked upward without meeting any particular selling pressure, and the market showed increasing activity and strength during the afternoon. December advanced to 17.41 and March to 17.80, while May sold up to 18.08 and the close was within 2 or 3 points of the best on most positions.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3. (AP)—Favorable construction of President Hoover's message to congress coupled with two bullish private crop estimates caused cotton to work over $1 a bale higher today. January contracts after declining to 17.12, rallied to 17.43 and closed 2 points under the latter figure for a net gain of 23 points. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 23 to 26 points.

Liverpool cables were relatively lower and resulted in an opening decline here of 3 to 4 points. The market continued to ease with January selling to 17.12 and March to 17.40, or 5 to 6 points under the previous close.

Later in the morning two private crop estimates of 14,869,000 and 14,835,000 bales, respectively, were considered bullish and started prices on the upgrade. After mid-season the advance gained momentum under covering by shorts and rather general buying promoted by a favorable view of the president's message, and active positions soon showed gains of 26 points from the lows.

In final trading the market encountered some demand attributed to expectations of a bullish estimate by a prominent private authority and January sold up to 17.43 and March to 17.74, or 33 to 34 points above the early lows. Final prices were 3 to 3 points under the top.

Marriage for Two—

By Arthur Somers Roche

understand you, if you'll never misunderstand me."

"At least," he said, "I'll pretend that I don't. Will that do?"

"Superbly," she laughed.

Either she was the greatest actress in the world, the greatest that had ever lived, or—and Tracy's pulse leaped—she didn't mind being married to him. Quite unconscious of what he was doing, he took a step toward her. Whether or not he might have translated that forward movement into an embrace, he never knew. For Hogan entered the room.

An Extraordinary Woman

"The photographer is here, sir," he said. "And I wish you'd look at certain suits, Mr. Tracy."

Tracy turned to his wife. "You won't need me?"

"Of course not."

He colored again. He had heard that newly wedded husbands adopted a protective attitude toward their wives, believed them incapable of crossing a street without grave danger, but the attitude of a bridegroom—as she had just reminded him—hardly was applicable to him.

He left her in the library, accosted the photographer, saw that he was accompanied by a lesser clerk from his law office, who would attend to all formalities of having his wife's name and picture added to the passport, accepted the clerk's felicitations on the marriage and went upstairs with the butler.

Hogan kept him longer than he had anticipated and when he reached the ground floor again, the clerk and photographer had departed, and his wife was not in the library.

He started upstairs again. He had nothing to say to her; why should he intrude upon her? If she'd wanted to see him, if she'd wanted to say anything to him, she'd have waited downstairs for him, wouldn't she? Or she would have entered the room, where Hogan and he debated garments, in search of him, wouldn't she?

He sat down in a chair. She was utterly charming, utterly beautiful, and was more completely mistress of herself than any woman he had ever known. She had encountered a bizarre situation with bravery; she had handled a more bizarre climax with superb tact. She was, when you came right down to it, an extraordinary woman.

Now Tracy was given, occasionally, to introspection, to self-analysis. He surrendered to such a mood now.

Tomorrow morning—perhaps this afternoon—the newspaper-reading public would know as much about his wife as he knew. It would know that she came from Maine, and that was all that he knew. She might even not have told the truth about that detail. Certainly she had not told the truth about their acquaintance. She had lied deliberately when she had told the reporters that they had been acquainted for several months.

Of course, it was a justifiable lie. Nevertheless, the ease with which she had uttered it had shown her capable of misrepresentation on a small scale. Why couldn't she be capable of it on a large scale? Here was a woman who, by the strangest set of circumstances imaginable, had been lifted from direst poverty to affluence. A week ago she had been near death from starvation; today she was the wife of a comparatively wealthy man.

Dr. Jimmy Blanchard had warned him that hearts were often caught on the rebound. Tracy had never considered himself impressionable. He had liked girls, had fancied himself mildly in love on more than one occasion before Helen Wilson had captured his heart. But all that had been natural. But it was not natural that he should feel something warmer than admiration for a girl about whom he knew nothing and who had married him solely to escape from poverty.

She had charm; she had will; she had everything needful toward the subjugation of a man. In addition, there would be propinquity, that intimacy inseparable from any marriage, even such a marriage as theirs.

Would she, having tasted luxury, be content to give it up? Would she willingly assent to a divorce when the time seemed ripe for that step? Would she not prefer to be Mrs. Laurence Tracy, mistress of his home, and in attaining that preference would she not deliberately make herself mistress of his heart?

He had found out that one woman had been able to win his heart without giving the tiniest bit of herself in return. Helen had taught him that a man in love can be blind to the fact that his love is not returned. Suppose this woman, this wife of his chose to—well, vamp him? Coolly, deliberately, she might set out to win him, and then—Helen had shattered his heart, but this woman might be able to destroy his pride.

Then he laughed at himself. He knew himself pretty well. He could never love a woman again. And what a funnything that a husband should warn himself against the danger of falling in love with his wife, Joyce—he liked the name—had been right. This was not a tragedy, it was a comedy, and he would maintain it upon the latter level.

Regan Again

The bell at the front door rang. Hogan was upstairs and Nora was doubtless busy with Joyce. As for Kinjo, it was beneath his dignity to answer bells. He walked into the hall and opened the door.

On the stoop stood a shabby, furtive-eyed individual.

"I wanna see Mrs. Tracy," said the man.

"I'm Mr. Tracy," said Larry.

Ratty Rogan looked up at him.

"Is that so?" he said. "Is tha-a-at so? Well, listen, Mr. Tracy, I know your wife."

"Yes," said Tracy.

"Better let me come in and have a little talk with you," suggested Ratty. "My name is Rogan."

Instinctively Tracy felt menace, not open menace, not honorable threat, but furtive, sneaking, unclean premonition of evil.

"And what do you want with Mrs. Tracy?" he asked.

"She's an old friend of mine," said Rogan.

"That," said Tracy, "I am unwilling to believe."

"And her being a friend of mine, Mr. Tracy, and me not wanting to do her no harm—well, I thought maybe, if I told you a few things about her—"

Rogan was not aware of his own inconsistency. He was, in fact, aware of nothing. The blow that Tracy hit him robbed him of any awareness on any subject whatsoever.

C. OF C. BODIES PLAN '30 WORK

Note of Optimism Struck at Gathering

Genuine optimism featured the joint meeting of budget and program of work committees of the chamber of commerce held Tuesday morning, when tentative plans for operation of the organization in 1930 were drawn.

Members of the group expressed themselves as confident that economic and industrial activities in this community will make pronounced progress during the coming year, and that a comprehensive program of civic enterprise must be drafted and financed.

Citizens of the city having suggestions relative to activities of the chamber of commerce during 1930 are asked to communicate with the organization in writing before Friday morning, when the program of work committee will hold another meeting at 10 o'clock.

Important recommendations discussed at Tuesday morning's meeting were:

Restoration of the business council, or some similar generally representative group, to meet at least once a month.

More advertising and publicity for the city.

Re-establishment of the Community Builder, official publication of the chamber of commerce, on a larger scale.

Encouragement for dairying.

Among those present were B. A. Stayton, chairman of the program of work committee; Ralph De Shong, Pat H. Simmons, Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, Homer F. Sanderford, Marvin Smith, Harry Awker, Mrs. C. P. Burton, Dr. J. W. Cantwell, Rhea Howard, Oral Jones, Jack Barnard, N. H. Martin, J. T. Harrell, R. E. Huff, W. D. Cline, J. C. Mytinger, C. E. McCutchen, Walter Nelson Jr., J. L. Jackson Jr., Orville Bullington, president, and J. W. Chatham, manager of the chamber of commerce.

Charges Accuse Three Of 'Stripping' Truck

Theft charges were filed in the office of the county attorney Tuesday afternoon against Jake Stout, Billie Dollar and J. B. Moore in connection with the loss of tires, tubes and rims from a truck belonging to Lee Cooper Monday night. The trio were arrested Tuesday by Charlie Gant and H. L. White, deputy sheriffs, after the stolen goods, concealed under a wagon sheet in an old truck, had been recovered. The goods were taken from a truck parked at the Cooper filling station at the north end of Ohio street sometime Monday night.

Wasn't Able to Do Her Housework

Takes Orgatone and Now Feels Like a New Person; Can Do Her Own Housework

The remarkable merits being obtained by the use of Orgatone is further evidenced in the case of Mrs. Alice Welch of 1616 Ninth Street, Lubbock, Texas, who in recently telling the story of her recovery from a serious complication of troubles said:

"A little over two years ago I began having trouble with my stomach and would get so tired and fadded out I couldn't get through with my housework, without having to stop and lie down to rest. Everything I ate disagreed with me, and what I did eat would lie on my stomach undigested and form gas and my heart would palpitate like it would jump out of my body. I had liver trouble, too, and had severe pains in my back and sides and I felt tired and sluggish and was so nervous I could hardly sleep and many times I lay awake all night long suffering and worrying about my condition. I was getting so pale and thin, all my my neighbors were noticing it. I was tired and worn out all the time, and never felt like doing a thing and was just losing interest in everything.

"Orgatone had helped so many local people I decided to try it, and I honestly feel like a new woman and can do all my housework without the slightest trouble. I noticed an improvement right after I began taking it. I eat anything I want, and have been relieved of that burning sensation in my stomach, gas has stopped forming and the pressure has been relieved so my heart does not palpitate as it did. My nerves are quiet and my sleep is delightful and refreshing. I am so much better and stronger that I can do, all my housework without getting tired and fagged out, and don't have to stop and rest as I did. I am now convinced all my troubles were caused from a disordered stomach, and Orgatone has done me more good than anything I have ever taken and my relief is due to nothing else but this great medicine—Orgatone."

There are motion pictures which fail in varying degrees to measure up to the high-powered superlatives created for their support by inspired and garrulous press agents. Occasionally one comes along which beggars the most imposing array of descriptive terms. In that particular type of production Cecil B. DeMille takes pride, and his first talking-picture, "Dynamite," now at the Majestic, should tickle even his vanity. The usual words, "lavish," "thrilling," "sensational," "stupendous," "startling," "spectacular," "extravagant," etc., have been applied. But in this case, instead of constituting an exaggeration, they fall short of conveying the degree to which Mr. DeMille accomplished what he set out to accomplish.

But just what was it he set his heart upon? Obviously, to portray the most fantastic yarn ever concocted for human consumption, covering the widest possible range of dramatic action, to prove that the proverbial hokum-bucket wasn't a bucket at all, but a large barrel—and still to retain occasional bits of really commendable action and dialogue. Well, he did it.

Authorship of this unbelievably florid tale is ascribed to one Jeanie MacPherson, and it is styled an "original story" for the screen. You really can't imagine just how original it is. It reveals a generosity of effort which is positively uncanny, coming from one whose last name begins with "Mac." In fact, Jeanie poured such a large consignment of heart-throbs into her "original" story that it compelled even the astute Mr. DeMille to use two-hours-and-a-half's worth of film to put it on the screen.

But Mr. DeMille is like that; he likes a script which demands that he perform almost miraculously, and with bold, masterful strokes, create situations to suit his purpose whether they seem quite plausible or not. His creative genius was in a highly rampant mood when he put "Dynamite" together.

Ordinarily, a man and woman held together maritally by ties which, to say the least, were very loosely woven, could cook up some respectable sort of a quarrel over their divergent tastes—remembering that he is a coal miner and she is the feted daughter of extreme luxury. But that kind of a homely little spat that comes up in real life, wouldn't do for Cecil B. It took one frightful traffic accident, a child crushed to the point of death, 47 persons in amazing hysteria, a doctor suddenly become self-effacing, another real doctor 150 miles away, a complete lack of airplanes, a fiendish drive by automobile, two smashed fences, and one end torn from the garage to precipitate a quarrel between this little pair.

And although Cynthia had been remarkably loquacious in all situations up to date, when even a simple but prompt reply to Hagon's angry queries would have been entirely in character, and we all sat there trying to answer for her—the poor girl became tongue-tied. Well, it just had to be that way, the way Jeanie wrote it and the way Cecil B. planned it. If Cynthia had spoken, the story would have lost its approaching knock-out dose of originality.

It will be easy to believe in Santa Claus and fairies again with complete and childlike faith after holding one's nose and swallowing Dr. DeMille's astonishing prescription.

And at that it has some very entertaining moments. Conrad Nagel gets his hands and face all dirty, and that's something. And in their discussion of the husband deal, Kay Johnson and Julia Faye enact a pointed and very clever satire on the prevalence of easy come-easy go marriage habits among the leisure classes. Then there are bits of dramatic photography. The mother's hands alone are shown, clenched on the rail of the bed, themselves telling in bitter writhing the story of her grief as the boy's life hangs in the balance.

Scenes representing the stampede of coal miners as an underground catastrophe impends; the crashing rafters, tons of rock, and closing of tunnels, arouse vividly imagined pictures of mine disasters.

Realtors Hear of Illuminated Signs

Manufacturing of Neon gas-burning advertising signs by Spectralite, Inc., 3005 Seymour road, was discussed by L. E. Junell before the bi-weekly meeting of the Real Estate board at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon on the program of informational survey of industries recently adopted by that organization.

The local plant, owned by Reece S. Allen and J. C. Strauss and managed by J. C. Strauss Jr., has an annual production capacity of $250,000 worth of manufactured products, Mr. Junell said. It employs 15 persons, 10 of whom own homes in this city, and has a monthly payroll of $5,000. The factory here is capable of producing Neon signs as large as those produced anywhere in the country, it was stated.

Members of the board also discussed rent property, and voted to ask property owners to cooperate with the board by allowing some rent house which is under improvement to be used as a demonstration of "improved rent property." Any property owner having such a house and who is interested in the plan adopted Tuesday is asked to call Fred L. Cone at 4484.

JURY ACQUITS NEGRO SLAYER

Self-Defense Plea Frees Raymond Lewis

After less than 30 minutes consideration, a jury in the 89th district court Tuesday afternoon found Raymond Lewis, negro, not guilty of the murder of Henry Toles, who died from knife wounds received in a quarrel following an all-night crap game last May. Lewis, represented by C. M. McFarland and John Martin, attorneys, pleaded self-defense, claiming that he had already received one bullet wound and was fighting to avoid another at the time the stabbing occurred. The state, represented in the prosecution of George W. Anderson and Mike Anglin, assistant district attorneys, claimed that Lewis was the aggressor in a dispute over crooked dice.

The case, on trial before Judge P. A. Martin since Monday morning, reached the jury about 3:45 Tuesday afternoon and the verdict was returned shortly after four.

Quanah Gins Turn Out 10,136 Bales

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Dec. 3.—The four gins of Quanah have ginned 10,136 bales of cotton up to the close of business Dec. 2. It is estimated the total yield of the county will be about 28,000 bales. The eastern end of the county around Chillicothe and Medicine Mound has produced more cotton than immediately around Quanah, or the western end of the county. The crop is practically all gathered around Quanah, although none of the gins has closed down.

Electric Vibrator and 2 Guns Stolen From Electran Here

Thieves were going in for "stimulators" Tuesday, according to the stolen property records at police headquarters.

George Anson of Electra reported that an electric vibrator, a revolver and a rifle had been taken from his automobile shortly after noon Tuesday while it was parked in the 800 block on Scott avenue. Officers were aware of the stimulating effect of a vibrator, they said, but not nearly so aware of that as they were of the stimulating effect of a pistol or a rifle. They are looking for the vibrator and "watching out" for the firearms.

COPPER THEFT TRIAL SLATED

Ernest Bacon's Case Put on 89th Docket

Trial of Ernest Bacon, indicted with three other defendants in connection with the alleged theft of around two tons of copper wire here several months ago, has been added to the criminal docket in the 89th district court next week, according to an announcement Tuesday from George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney. The other defendants, to be tried separately next week, include Ladonia Stout and Dan and Mozell Barker, all indicted on charges of theft and receiving and concealing stolen property. The wire, recovered by members of the constable's department, was the property of the Acme Cement company.

The criminal docket for next week includes also the trial of Larry Kilroy, charged with the possession of whisky; of Dan Norwood, accused of possession and manufacturing; and Taz Locke, indicted for the possession of a still. Locke, a former Wichita Falls boy, lost his hand from wounds received in a sheriff's department raid on a giant still near Electra two months ago. Members of the district attorney's office have announced that they will not oppose a suspended sentence for him.

Doomed Man Loses Supreme Court Plea

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (INS)—Joe Troche, under sentence of death for murder of a girl in Eldorado county, California, today apparently lost his fight for his life in the supreme court.

After attorneys for Troche argued that the California law providing for separation of the trial of an accused murderer for commission of a crime and the question of his sanity, the court declined to hear attorneys for the state. Under the custom of the court this action means that the court felt that Troche's attorneys had failed to sustain their contention. A formal order dismissing the appeal is expected later.

Parents Cautioned About Diphtheria

A warning prompted by the increase cases of diphtheria in Wichita Falls during the month of November was issued Tuesday to parents by Dr. H. D. Fillmore of the city health department in an effort to check the spread of the disease.

"While we have nothing like an epidemic and do not expect one," Doctor Fillmore said, "it would be well for mothers with small children to avoid visiting sick friends until they know the nature of the malady.

"Mothers also should prevent their children from promiscuously blowing whistles and horns which are on display at the toy stores at this season of the year. With so many play things of this nature within reach of a child, he is almost sure to place it to his lips, as children will, and it may be that scores of other children have handled it before.

"Do not neglect an indisposition in a child, especially if a 'croopy' condition exists," the doctor concluded.

According to the monthly report of the city health department, eight cases of diphtheria are at present under quarantine in the city. Doctor Fillmore pointed out that these cases are not confined to any particular part of town but are scattered over the entire city.

Standardization Scores Of Rural Schools Ready

Standardization scores for 11 rural schools in Wichita county have been prepared for the consideration of Miss Mary Shipp Sanders, rural school supervisor for the state board of education, according to an announcement Tuesday from Burl Bryant, county superintendent. The schools which are trying to meet the standard equipment tests before the annual visit of the state inspector include those at Weeth, Clara, Enterprise, County Line, Barwise, Deep Creek, Allendale, City View, Pleasant Valley, Friberg, and Rocky Point.

Although some of the institutions still fall a little below the required standard in details of equipment, all of the 11 hope to be on the accepted list within the next few months, the superintendent said. The scoring, as prepared within the county, will be checked and filed with the state department for action later.

The estimated sales of wayside refreshment and supply stands, exclusive of gasoline and oil, was $244,000,000 in 1928, according to the U. S. bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.
