An Unintentional Slump Monument To Be Dedicated

By United Press
FORT WORTH, Tex.—An unintentional monument to the 1930-33 business depression will be dedicated here Oct. 15 when a bronze slab is uneviled at the formal opening of the Municipal Rose Garden and Arboretum.

The rose garden and arboretum was constructed by unemployed men, given work on the project by the city as a means of earning a livelihood in lean days of the depression.

Several hundred men at various intervals have engaged in constructing the artistic stoneworks and grounds. In return they received their groceries and clothes, or in some instances a small amount of cash, enough to supply necessities.

Skilled stone cutters and masons, men who drew large salaries in normal times but who were left stranded by the depression, worked earnestly on the stoneworks. Many became so interested in the enterprise they were willing to work overtime without extra pay.

The arboretum, if it had been constructed by ordinary channels, would have cost $75,000. As it was, the cost was less than $10,000.

Dr. J. Horace McFarland of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the American Rose Society, will preside at the unveiling of the bronze slab, the "cornerstone" of the arboretum.

Efforts are being made to bring every kind of rose in the world to the arboretum. Numerous varieties have already been planted, many of them contributed by flower societies from all over the world.

THREE GUESSES

LARGE SUMS REPORTED PAID FOR POSITIONS

Witnesses Promise To Tell Some Stories When Summoned by Grand Jury.

By United Press
AUSTIN, Oct. 12.—Legislative investigators today continued calling fresh witnesses as they pondered amazing tales of wholesale job selling and fund collecting, narrated to them in their hearing.

Stories of $3,000 envelopes, night payments of $500 on a highway, estimated deliveries by one man totaling $20,000, rangers sent to break up violence threatened by dissatisfied job purchasers and discharge of a man who would not put up $50 trip expenses were unfolded by witnesses under oath.

Promises were exacted from witnesses that they will repeal the tales to local grand juries. Specific indication that grand jury investigation is expected at Dallas and at Hillsbor was given.

W. M. Glenn of Lufkin and Leo Callan, San Antonio, other members of the state livestock sanitary commission from which Dr. E. F. Jarrel resigned, were both before the investigating committee today.

Both testified they considered the report of job selling to be "largely rumors" and had no specific complaints made to them.

"KHAKI SHIRTS" ARMED MARCH IS FRUSTRATED

By United Press
PHILAEDLPHIA, Oct. 12. — Plans of the Khaki Shirts of America to stage an armed march on Washington with the intention of making President Roosevelt, "dictator of America," were frustrated by police raids today.

As a result Art Smith, national commander of the organization, was reported a deserter from his army after he fled, and 24 of his followers were in jail.

Forty guns, ammunition, knives and swords and other weapons were confiscated in police raids a few hours before the scheduled march. Detectives said the plan was to move concertedly against the Philadelphia Electric company plant, smash the generators and darken the city. Under cover of darkness shock troops planned to scour the poorer sections of the city, shooting communists and recruiting hundreds of men for the Washington march.

MACHINE GUN AND WIFE GET LIFE SENTENCE

Are Last of Kidnap Gang To Be Given Sentences In Federal Court

By United Press
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 12.—The government's swift, unrelenting prosecution of the band that conspired to kidnap Charles S. Urschel, came to an end today with life sentences for George (Machine Gun) Kelly and his wife.

A jury of small-town business men and farmers reported in federal court it found them guilty after an hour's deliberation last night.

Judge Edgar S. Vaught passed sentences of life imprisonment, the maximum under the law. Motions for new trial, arrested judgment and notice of appeal were offered and overruled.

It was indicated the notorious Kelly would be taken immediately by plane to a federal prison and death penalty charges against him in the state court would not be prosecuted at this time.

Katherine's usual flashing smile was gone and she appeared serious and worried as she awaited the verdict.

The judge's sentence was an echo of his stern words to Harvey Bailey and six others convicted last Saturday, four of whom received life sentences.

"The jury has found you guilty and the court fully concurs in the verdict," he said. "It is therefore the judgment of this court that you be sentenced to the federal penitentiary for the rest of your natural lives."

Officers maintained a guard over Kelly, mindful of his impulsive action Monday in a clash with a federal agent as the trial opened.

The gangster placed his left hand on his hip and stared at the judge, a look of mingled anger and defiance on his face.

By United Press
OKLAHOMA CITY ,Oct. 12.—Judge Vaught revealed today he conducted the trial of George and Katheryn Kelly under threats of death from gangland.

"If you do not dismiss these people, you and your family will be killed and your house blown up," he said the threat read. "You will never live to sentence them."

Judge Vaught said he turned the letter over to the U. S. bureau of investigation which did not appear to regard it as the work of a crank.

Beer War Rages In Houston Area

By United Press
HOUSTON.—Under the calm surface of legalized beer in Houston a bitter battle is being fought by distributors.

The spirit of co-operation that ruled over the trade for a short time has been given the gate in a large way, say those who know.

A code of fair practices entered into by 27 leading distributors shortly after beer was legalized Sept. 15 has gone into the discard and the byword now is "every man for himself."

As a result of the tense situation state officials charged with the collection of taxes have expressed fear of a new species of bootlegger whose object will be to cheat the state out of its due.

First skirmishes in the distributors' battle have already been fought. In less than a week the prices of various brands of beer here have been hammered down from an average of $2.65 to as little as $1.40 a case, and from $10.75 to $9.25 a half keg.

Distributors are absorbing the losses, and are bitter about it.

Officials of the state comptroller's department, whose duty it is to collect beer taxes, are watching the situation with interest.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

RETURN TO THE LORD: Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him: and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.—Isaiah 55: 7.

TREE ARMY CAMPS FOR TEXAS

Texas is blessed with an open winter. Sixteen new sites for tree army camps have been approved for this commonwealth. Eight of the 34 present camp sites will be abandoned. This will bring the total number of camps in Texas for the next six months to 42 composed of about 8,000 men. A reminder that three camps in the Palo Duro park in Randall county are now filled with World War veterans and a new company there will also be made up of veterans. Conservation of national resources is on the way. There are millions of unemployed.

There are thousands of young men who have been taken from the streets and alleys in the industrial centers of America and placed on the government payroll. They are given a thorough training. They are taken from the army of the idle. Mentally and physically they are remade. They are well fed and well clothed and well sheltered. Ever in the history of mankind lean years followed fat years. Americans realized the sacrifices that must be made in lean years. They have been given the acid test. History repeats itself. It has ever repeated itself. This will be the story in the coming years. Adjustment is on the way and back to the bedrock conditions of life and living is the order of the hour. It is coming. A lot of wreckage will go down the stream. There are eternal laws which cannot be suspended or set aside. Those who play are ever compelled to pay when payday comes.

FARM MORTGAGE LOANS ON THE WAY

According to Washington advices the farm credit administration is issuing farm mortgage loans at the rate of $1,000,000 a day, "and that even this high peak will be exceeded within another month." According to the federal statisticians the mortgage indebtedness carried on American homes having a value of less than $20,000 totals the huge sum of $21,000,000,000, and the mortgage indebtedness of American farms represents an indebtedness of many billions of dollars. There are 12 federal land banks. There is one at Houston. It is said to be the most successful of all the farm loan banks established in the long ago by the federal government.

National recovery in all its phases is a staggering job for those who are handling it. In the long ago the Old South was destroyed by the sword. Its people lost all their possessions but the land. They were penniless and almost friendless. In less than a third of a century they came back. The recovery record that they made is open to inspection. They builded a new South. That South returned to the house of its fathers and gave mankind an exhibition of what willing workers were able to do to recoup their losses and to rebuild a land that the sword had destroyed.

ELECTRIC CHAIR THE PENALTY FOR KIDNAPING

Congratulations to the Texas senate. Its membership passed a bill to legalize inflicting the death penalty on kidnapers "regardless of whether or not the victim is harmed." House action is necessary before the proposal can be sent to the governor. Under the present law, life imprisonment is the maximum sentence unless the victim is seriously injured. Senator Grady Woodruff of Decatur, Wise county sponsored the new measure. It should be given house approval without delay. Kidnaping is the most loathsome of all crimes. Death in the electric chair is a fearful penalty. Kidnaping should be stamped out. There is a way to do it. Make the punishment fit the crime.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

As a city booster, you should patronize the merchants of your own home city.

They have a reputation for honesty and fair dealing.

You will find their names in the advertising columns of your newspaper.

Their advertising tells you of the best merchandise and where to buy it.

If careful attention is paid to the advertising, you will find it costs less to patronize home city merchants.

Real economy consists of spending your money where you get the best goods and the best prices.

Citizens who buy at home show their loyalty.

They translate loyalty into deeds.

They are the ones who keep business moving.

When business is kept moving, your city is prosperous.

A keen vision is a big business asset.

A dollar saved is a dollar earned.

You should read the advertisements—Then buy from the merchants of your own home city.

Big Winds of Kansas

THE Irish of Notre Dame can remember a new "night of the big wind," as of Oct. 7, 1933, when a big wind swept clear from Kansas University and stopped the Ramblers in their tracks.

The South Benders may get an argument on the date from Chili Walsh's Irish at St. Louis University. Walsh's men were wafted from their feet on the night of of Oct. 6, 1933 by a windstorm generated in the football laboratory at Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science.

IT might be said the Notre Dame system, which also is taught by Walsh, had a couple of bad days with the breezes. One of the elements of the Kansas State breeze is named "Ramming Ralph" Graham. Another is Oren Stoner.

UPSTAIRS they were dressing for dinner. Joan, looking through her meager wardrobe, inspected Pat's red chiffon, loaned for the house party. She had brought, also, the white dress she had worn the night she sang at the Junior League benefit. Joan finally decided on the white. It was simpler but smarter than the chiffon.

She slipped into the dress, dusted clear skin with powder and added more rouge than usual to her lips. In the mirror she saw Barbara watching her. Their eyes met and held.

"Why," Joan thought, with a flash of intuition. "She's afraid of me!"

Barbara was wearing a black frock with a cape of gold sequins. She was a picture of sophistication with her highly colored finger nails and smooth, perfectly waved hair. No detail of her toilet had been overlooked.

"We are like two fighters girding for battle," Joan thought. There was a touch of high comedy about it all. She studied her reflection for a moment, then unclasped the antique necklace that had been her grandmother's, lifted it from her slender throat and laid it aside.

"Oh, Barbara, that dress is gorgeous!" cried Sally from the doorway.

"Barbara's out for more scalps. As if the blond scalp she's flaunting shouldn't be enough for any girl!" said Carol. "Shades of Helen of Troy, Cleopatra and the Queen of Sheba!"

"The girl has glamour," said Sally.

"Joan, you're lovely," Carol said. "I like your pale look. It's mysterious and alluring."

Bob was in the hall when the four girls descended. The sight of Joan stirred him. There was something forlorn about her, despite the gallant set to her head and shoulders. He thought she looked beautiful and a trifle sad.

"Hello," he said to Joan.

"Hello." Her voice was not quite steady, husky.

"Will you go in to dinner with me?" What he wanted to say was, "What's happened, Joan? You've had me on pins and needles."

"Why, of course," Joan told him.

• • •

THE table was centered by a silver basket of roses and jonquils. Dainty place cards marked the places of the guests.

"Sally—you and Fred there." Carol was saying. "Bob, you here by Barbara. Joan and Jim are over there."

"I'm toasting the best looking girl at the table," Jim whispered to Joan. "Will you drink it with me?"

Joan was about to say, "I don't drink," but stopped. Across the table Barbara had touched Bob's glass with her own, saying, "Here's to a good girl but not too good, for the good die young and I do hate a dead one."

"Barbara, my child, where did you resurrect that ancient toast?" Fred gibed. "That was my grandmother's favorite."

"I just happened to think of it," said Barbara.

Joan's thoughts were traveling a new path. "If I had been more like them he would have liked me better," she told herself.

She lifted her glass, smiling at Jim.

"I thought you were a young woman with ideas about life," he said. "What made you change your mind?"

He added, when she did not answer, "It's sensible to let the stuff alone." As Joan put down the goblet her feeling of depression lifted. Later she was even more light-hearted, laughing a great deal.

It was this young, clear laughter that caused Bob to frown down at his plate. People were smiling at this too-gay Joan. What was the matter with her? Attracting attention so boldly!

Dinner was over and Joan rose from the table. She stumbled slightly and stooped to untangle a fold of her dress from the chair. Jim put a steadying hand on her arm.

Bob heard Charlie saying to Sally, "Our little friend hasn't learned how to hold her liquor."

A colored orchestra in the alcove under the stairs began playing. Joan, swept from the arms of one man to another, felt as if she were in a different world. Fred was cutting in frequently. Charlie was bringing up new men and introducing them. Jim seemed always just at her elbow. She felt gayer than she had ever been in her life, yet paradoxically, there was a tightness about her heart, a pain somewhere.

"All I needed was to be like the others," she thought. But the thought did not bring happiness.

• • •

BOB, standing with the stag line against the wall, was trying to keep his eyes away from the slender figure in white, the long skirt swirling about as she danced. He had never seen Joan looking lovelier, more vivid, more shining. It was as though all the light in the room was concentrated on the slim form.

He would cut in the next time she danced past and he would tell her exactly what he thought of her strange behavior. Then a voice spoke behind him.

"The little girl from Memphis seems to be waking up. Guess it takes old Jim." Bob did not hear the rest of the sentence. He had walked away from the group. Joan floated by and he met her eyes nodding coldly.

He had the next dance with Barbara. She welcomed him with a radiant smile, pressed his hand, and whispered, "Bob, I have a raging headache. Will you sit out the next dance with me?"

Some one claimed her and he stood back again, watching Joan. This new, strange Joan, having a whirl. Her dark eyes shining recklessly, her lips too scarlet. Held too closely in Jim Warfield's arms.

He cut in, crushing her against him savagely. Joan felt his arms tighten violently, possessively around her, and responded with a lift of the spirit, a surge of happiness.

Their steps fell together rhythmically. Her head was close against his shoulder. But when she glanced up at him, his face was set and cold.

"He doesn't like me any more," she thought. The happy mood slipped from her, replaced by a cold of dull misery.

A Quicker Way To Ease Headaches

A Discovery that's Bringing Fast Relief to Millions

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia . . . the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."

Cruiser Patrols Texas Waters to Preserve Fish Life

HOUSTON, Oct. 11.—If a trim white cruiser with the Lone Star flag of Texas at the mast is seen anywhere in eastern Galveston Bay, that is likely to be Capt. L. C. Shaw, marine patrol for the Texas fish, game and oyster commission, busy on his job.

Life to Captain Shaw is one long cruise. His domain covers some 200 square miles of water. More than 100 creeks, bayous, lagoons and small bays skirting the shore of the bay afford ideal hiding places for persons who violate the state laws.

Shaw is the lone patrol in this vast area.

Shaw must watch for sport fishermen catching undersize fish, those who use artificial bait without a license, those who violate the trapping and hunting laws, commercial fishermen who violate the anti-seining law, and for many others breaking the hundreds of rules.

Just catching the violators isn't enough, however. Shaw must get convictions, and this necessitates his frequent appearances in the courts of Harris, Galveston and Chambers counties.

Assuming that Captain Shaw cruises 25 hours each week and averages eight miles an hour, he covers some 10,400 miles of territory each year. The state boat is out all hours, in fair weather or foul. When in port, the patrol boat docks at Seabrook, near Houston.

Colleen Moore Is a Flapper No Longer

Colleen Moore, who plays the much coveted and highly dramatic role of "Sally" in "The Power and The Glory" Fox film now shown at the Lyric Theatre, was the screen's very first flapper.

"I guess it was in 1922," said Miss Moore, "that I decided to be a screen flapper. I was one of the first girls in the studios to part with my long tresses. There was much talk pro and con about the bob. Was bobbed hair really nice? Was it lady-like?

"Flappers were just coming in for a severe national roasting and bobbed hair was being associated in everybody's mind with giddy little girls who didn't know the dangers of playing with fire. People said that in cutting my hair I was cutting my throat.

"But from the first I believed in the flapper heart—and the flapper bob. I felt the flapper herself was happy, unaffected and romantically in tune with the emotional heart changes of the day. They were just girls scrambling to keep ahead of the fast moving times. My judgment has been vindicated."

"What about the bob?" she was asked.

"I will repeat what I said at that time—the bob will be with us, in some form or other, for all time."

"Some girls are letting it grow," it was suggested.

"Yes, but give the girls time and they will take it to the barber. Long hair is too much trouble. Women will never again tolerate it. The hair dressers may demand it; the fashion leaders may attempt to revive it, but this nation will remain bobbed."

Watson May End His Retirement

By WINTHROP LYMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.— When James E. Watson of Indiana, former majority floor leader in the U. S .Senate, was defeated for re-election last November he announced his retirement as a politician.

But during the past six weeks h has been mentioned as a possible candidate for President of the United States in 1936, Representative in Congress from his home district, or United States Senator.

Since his name came back into the news as a potential candidate for political office, Watson neither has denied nor affirmed reports that he is considering a return to the old life which kept him in Washington 28 years.

Indiana Republicans have high hopes of electing several members of their party to Congress next year. At present there is only one Republican in the Indiana delegation at Washington. He is Sen. Arthur R. Robinson .

Senator Robinson comes up for re-election in 1934. But his attitude toward the NRA and his opposition to reduction of vetrans. compensation has antagonized many members of his party.

Robinson's Republican opponents are casting their eyes toward Watson.

Considerable credence was given to the belief that Watson might oppose Robinson by his recent speech at Washington.

Politically dry for many years, Watson appeared as principal speaker at a meeting of the National ssociation of Retail Beverage Dealers.

The speech left no doubt as to Watson's change in sentiment. He definitely joined the wet side, while Robinson remains a rabid dry.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

TO lure the laggard appetite of the sick child back to the border-land of health is very often a difficult problem for the worried mother. Eggs, milk, gruels, broths and fruit juices, cereals and custards sound fairly varied, but try serving them over a period of days and see how monotonous they become.

An ill child loves pretty dishes and food attractively served. If, in addition to this, some little surprise which appeals to his imagination is added, it will divert his mind and he will not only eat the food with more relish, but will look forward to its coming.

Egg in a Cabin

The familiar poached egg ceases to be just the regular egg when served in a little log-cabin made from sticks of toast. Put the egg, after poaching, on a hot plate, then pile toast sticks, log-cabin fashion, in a square around the egg. The toast will disappear like magic with the egg.

The egg in a nest is another way to serve eggs that is sure to appeal. To make this toast a piece of bread cut a little thicker than for ordinary toast. From its center cut a good-sized square, leaving only a thin layer on the bottom. Separate the white from the yolk of an egg. Beat the white until stiff and put it into the hollow square which has been cut out of the toast. Slip the unbroken yolk deep into the white of the egg. Put into the oven until the white of the egg is well browned and the whole is hot throughout. If there is no objection to a small amount of salt in the diet, the egg will be more palatable if lightly seasoned with salt before putting into the oven.

Surprise in Store

Almost anything will taste good to a small person if he knows there is a surprise at the bottom of the dish. Any small, attractive trifle which can be sterilized will be enjoyed if dropped into the bowl before the cereal is put in. A big red or green marble, a whistle, for a little girl a thimble, one of the cunning brass or china animals so popular just now, a coin —anything that is small will do. Put the article to be used into a pan of cold water and bring to the boiling point. Then boil hard for ten minutes and let stand in this water until ready to drop into the dish for serving.

Serve milk and fruit juices with sippers. When one is on a liquid diet and must drink something every two hours, it's a relief to do it a different way once in a while. Gruels and broths will usually be served with a spoon, but children love to drink through a straw, so keep them on hand.
