State Youth Council Rift May Be Healed

AUSTIN (AP)— A new policy statement on juvenile deliquency and child neglect prevention may mark the mending of a dispute that split the Texas Youth Council a year ago.

Board members Louis Henna and Robert Kneebone joined chairman Bill Windsor in a statement that included proposals Windsor released last year without their concurrence.

Both strongly objected when Winsor, of Dallas, released his recommendations to the press at a meeting last March. This week all joined in presenting the 21-point program.

Among the points Kneebone and Henna opposed last March which are in the new set of proposals are:

Twelve years of compulsory education for all children, which may include training in manual arts and mechanical skills.

Support and encouragement of state and local efforts in the establishment of special education classes and institutions for the mentally retarded.

Re-examination of suspension and expelling practices by school officials in an effort to provide a more constructive substitute for these disciplinary measures.

Several Windsor proposals were not included.

The language of the proposals was softened somewhat from Windsor's earlier report and Henna said the group was able to get together on a statement of principles not so specifically worded.

"I've read it," Henna aid when asked about the statement. When asked if he felt the changed wording was the main factor leading to his change of position, he answered, "I think so."

A number of the suggestions advanced last year by Windsor, if implemented, would probably have placed the council in a closer working relationship with the State Board for Hospitals and Special Schools, the Texas Employment Commission and the Texas Education Agency.

The new statement said the council is determined "to strongly encourage and support efforts of citizens and agencies of this state" in the 21 measures.

Henna and Kneebone's position in Windsor's 1960 report was that it would have placed the council in the position of meddling in the affairs of other agencies.

Reviewing The

Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

Not that we wanted it, but we finally had a bona fide sand-dust storm on Tuesday. Since the weather offering has been springy, although a little blustery at times. Over town the jonquils, hyacinth, forsythia, and redbuds have been popping like corn, along with apricot, peach and plum trees. Lawns are taking a faint green hue, and soon there'll be worlds of iris and wisteria.

* * *

School authorities must carry a rabbit's foot. Sunday was a windy and dusty day. Tuesday was terrible, but Monday morning when 7,000 youngsters and teachers marched through the downtown district, it was ideal.

Time and money are two things that will complicate matters for city commissioners this week when they consider plans for lowering the grade on IS 20 through Big Spring from Union to Tulane. The State Highway Department, it develops, has set up $156,000 for this project, but the city will have to provide curb and gutter and drainage structures. Deadline is Wednesday.

Thanks to good preparatory work by Rep. David Read and expert organization of facts by city officials, Big Spring got its foot in the door on an objective of renegotiating the hospital water contract with the state. The

John Cone Wins Speech Contest

John Cecil Cone, Big Spring High School senior speech student, and son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Roscoe Cone, won the district oratorical contest on Americanism at Texas Tech in Lubbock Friday afternoon.

His speech title was "Prepare to Pay the Price," and he was competing with four other students, three from Lubbock High Schools and one from Plainview. The contests are sponsored by the American Legion.

He goes to Lubbock on March 17 to compete with district winners from the West Texas division, including Midland, San Angelo, and Abilene high schools. For this purpose the state has been divided into four divisions.

Winner of the division contest next Friday will go to Arlington on March 24 for the state meeting. Only four contestants will be heard at Arlington, and the winner will go to the national contest at a later date. The national winner will receive a $4,000 scholarship.

Cone is taking speech for the first time this year, under Bedford Forrest.

Fight Fans Get Twin Bill On TV

NEW YORK (AP)—Fight fans ought to get their money's worth Monday night, whether they like their flailing with fists or phrases.

Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson will battle it out for the world heavyweight boxing championship. Two heavyweights of television, Ed Sullivan and Jack Paar, take on each other in a verbal bout.

Money plays a major role in both tussles.

For the boxers, it's a matter of gate receipts and the proceeds from closed-circuit telecasts of the fight. With Sullivan and Paar, it's what they should pay people who appear on their open-circuit TV programs.

In any case, those who want to see the Sullivan-Paar brawl will get it free—courtesy of the National Broadcasting Co. and Paar. —starting at 11:30 p.m. (EST) Monday.

This wrangle was touched off by some remarks of Sullivan, who is effect accused Paar of being pretty cheap about what he pays people who appear on his nightly NBC TV show.

Sullivan said he forks over as much as $7,500 for an entertainer to appear on his own Columbia Broadcasting System program. But, he went on, Paar hands out as little as possible to the same people—$320.

Hereafter, said Sullivan, people who perform on Paar's program will get only $320 if they appear later on the Sullivan show. It doesn't count if they just talk on Paar's program.

Paar sighed as if he had been dealt the worst blow of all and retorted that Sullivan was being unfair.

Despite what Sullivan said, said Paar, the NBC program just doesn't take in enough money to pay the folks more. Waxing more incensed by the moment, he challenged Sullivan to a video duel by putting both shows on at the same hour to see which would draw the most viewers.

Sullivan snapped back he wouldn't do that but he'd debate Paar any old time, on Paar's own show, about the fee situation.

Paar agreed.

Sullivan was asked if he would demand his $320 for appearing on Paar's show. He roared with laughter and said: "If I get it I'll prize it greatly. But I'm not going to ask."

Blind Parents, 12 Children Escape Fire Death

DETROIT (AP)—A blind mother and father and their 12 children were rescued today from a predawn fire in their home.

They were William Joyce, a Wayne County assistant prosecutor; his wife, Bertha, also sightless, and their children. The father, mother and three children required hospital treatment for smoke inhalation.

Courageous action on the part of Joyce, two of his daughters and several neighbors was credited with preventing a tragedy.

Joyce groped into a second-floor bedroom where his seven daughters were asleep, roused them, kicked out a front window and passed his children to safety on a porch roof.

Bandsmen Bruised In Bus Accident

MARFA, Tex. (AP) — Well-known band leader Ray Price and eight of his musicians were scratched and bruised early Saturday as their private bus went out of control and crashed into a culvert.

The vehicle was badly damaged in the accident that occurred 38 miles west of the Far West Texas town. The group was en route from El Paso to Corpus Christi, where the Price band was to play Saturday night.

Price and three members of his band later flew to Corpus Christi by chartered plane.

The female section of the band was traveling ahead in another bus.

W. Texas Land Ads Cited In State Action

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Securities Commissioner Saturday cracked down on what he charged were misleading advertisements designed to entice readers to buy West Texas land at exorbitant prices.

Commissioner William King issued a cease publication order to the Texas Ore Lands Corp. at Tucson, Ariz. for disseminating what he called "false, misleading and fraudulent statements."

King referred specifically to ads entitled "amazing Texas land bargains" which describes how five acres of Presidio County can be bought for $199. The ads declared "mineral classified by State of Texas. You get annual oil lease rents."

The order says the ads are misleading because they imply falsely that the property has been designated by the state as land containing valuable mineral deposits.

The land is the former Elmo Weston ranch near the Rio Grande and 21 miles south of Van Horn. King said the ranch of 21,000 acres involved sold for $117,000. Board investigator John Minniece said 8,624 acres are being offered for sale at $199 for five acres. The land is valued at about $6 an acre, he said.

"The use of real estate, in this instance, is merely a vehicle by which to sell securities. It could just as well be used cars, elephants or a lottery ticket," King said.

Winds Blow Across State

By The Associated Press

Typical windy March weather prevailed over much of Texas Saturday.

Gusty winds made conditions unconfortable in the eastern half of the state and along a cool front that during the afternoon extended from the Midland-Odessa area to Wichita Falls.

Wichita Falls had gusts up to 25 miles an hour.

Corpus Christ and Brownsville also had strong winds.

Much of West Texas had fair skies during the day, but it was generally cloudy over the rest of the state.

Texarkana had a light shower for the only reported moisture during the day.

Temperatures were in the 60s and 70s.

Forecasts called for generally partly cloudy to cloudy skies and widely scattered showers through Sunday.

The Weather Bureau said it would be generally warmer Sunday.

Stock Market Averages Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market averages declined for the first time in four weeks as volume mounted last week to an even greater 28-year record.

Turnover for the last week mounted to 29,026,120 shares from 27,102,906 the prior week. Both were the greatest since the week ended July 22, 1933, when 42,329,633 shares changed hands.

Although 683 individual stocks showed net gains as against 665 net losses, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.01 to 663.56.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 2.50 to 238.50.

$20,000 In Furs Taken By Thieves

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Burglars took between $15,000 and $20,000 worth of furs from the Menger Smart Shop early Saturday.

Jewelry and a cash box were left untouched, leading officers to believe the burglars were professional fur thieves.

Stanton Master Plan Topic To Be Discussed

STANTON—Mayor S. W. Wheeler has called a public hearing for March 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the District Court Room of Martin County, when the city council of Stanton, the planning and zoning commission, and the local urban renewal committee, will discuss the proposed master plan for the city of Stanton. General information on the proposed plan will be given to the public.

Mayor Wheeler said the public is cordially invited and urged to attend this meeting.

City Secretary M. H. White said Saturday that Stanton is in the process of taking the new high school area into the city limits to provide fire, police and other protection. The city council has read the ordinance twice, and one more reading is required. No residential property will be taken in on the annexation.

Four blocks in the new Billington Addition in the southwest part of Stanton, have recently been annexed on petition and election by the residents of Blocks 1, 2, 3, and 4. The ordinance has passed on first reading, and will be read again at two special meetings.

The recently launched assessment paving program is coming along nicely, White said.

"We are getting along with the signing up program," he said, "and by the time the weather is warm enough to get the work started, approximately 80 blocks will be ready."

A contract has been let by Kimbell Feed Mills to build a circular grain storage plant 70 feet across and 84 feet high on the site of the former Snodgrass elevator south of the railroad.

The city is in the process of helping Kimbell get sufficient clearance for a railroad crossing and street for approaching the new structure from the north.

Laos Rebels Cut Loyalist Defenses

Biggest Victory Since January

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Pro-Communist Pathet Lao assault troops burst through government defenses in central Laos Saturday severing the main highway link between this administrative capital and the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

The attackers fanned out to exploit the break-through at the strategic road junction of Sala Phou Koun, a government military source said, and captured Muong Kassy, a stronghold 22 miles south.

Confused government troops fled in two directions, he said, giving the rebels their biggest victory since January and a stranglehold on the Queen Astrid Highway just 40 miles south of Luang Prabang and less than 100 miles north of Vientiane.

At last report, government defenders backed by heavy artillery were making a stand on high ground surrounding Sala Pou Keng, eight miles north of the road junction and the third key point in defense plans for the highway.

Government sources insisted the battle will be in doubt for several days. They said systematic destruction of the highway has made it useless to the advancing rebels.

The government made no public announcement of the battle or casualties. The rebel radio claimed about 300 government troops were killed or wounded and one battalion completely wiped out during month-long skirmishing that preceded the attack Friday by nine Pathet Lao battalions.

The rebels, quoted by Red China's New China News Agency, also claimed four government armored cars, one tank and many trucks were destroyed, and three U.S.-supplied airplanes shot down or damaged.

Government sources said rebel successes were due to a massive airlift in recent weeks by Soviet-built transport planes. They also said Soviet trucks were used to rush fresh rebel troops into the fighting.

(It was reported in Washington Friday that President Kennedy has strongly urged Soviet Premier Khrushchev to halt shipment of Soviet arms to the rebels before the United States decides it is compelled to launch a counter-build up of government forces. Kennedy urged neutralizing Laos to prevent the civil war from exploding into a greater East-West clash.)

Yank Ex-Castro Aide Executed

HAVANA (AP)—A Cuban firing squad Saturday night executed William A. Morgan, a former American GI accused of conspiring against the revolutionary Castro regime that once hailed him as a hero.

Prison authorities at La Cabana military fortress said Morgan was executed shortly after 10:30 p.m. His aide, Maj. Jesus Carreras, was executed immediately afterward.

Morgan died about two hours after a superior court rejected an appeal to spare his life.

A military court earlier sentenced him to death on charges of conspiring against the Castro regime, which he helped bring to power.

Under revolutionary law Morgan had to be executed by a firing squad within 24 hours after his appeal was turned down.

It took the five-man appeals court just 80 minutes to turn down pleas from Morgan and Carreras, a former Cuban army official sentenced to death on the same charge.

Only Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos could have intervened to save the lives of the two men. Dorticos never has taken such a step in the history of the Castro revolutionary regime.

In Financial Battle

Allan P. Kirby, 68, left, chairman of the board of Alleghany Corp., is involved in a battle for control of the concern with John D. Murchison, 39, right, and the latter's brother, Clint, 37. The Murchisons, large Alleghany stockholders, are sons of Clint W. Murchison, wealthy Texan. The quarrel is over policies laid down by Kirby in management of Alleghany's top assets.

Candidates Chase Votes Over State

By CARLOS D. CONDE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Candidates in the special U. S. Senate race rapped pornographic literature, warned of Communist infiltration in the U.S. and lauded the freedom of the individual in speeches Saturday. Two were endorsed by daily newspapers in Sunday morning editorials.

The most active contestants fanned out over the state in a busy weekend of courting the voters in the April 4 special election. One of the less active candidates sought to swing the support of the other record-field 70 aspirants to one "darkhorse" contender.

Interim U.S. Sen. William Blakley in a statement from his campaign headquarters in Austin called for more stringent legislative control of obscene and corruptive literature and other material which is contributing to what he called an "ugly era of moral laxity in America."

Blakley called attention to the pending bills in the Texas Legislature seeking to control pornographic material, and said: "members of the Texas Legislature sponsoring regulatory bills in this field should have the support of all Texans."

INDIVIDUALS

Congressman Jim Wright, speaking at a chamber of commerce dinner Friday night in Mineral Wells said that America owes its greatness to the freedom of the individual.

"In America we have a right to follow our own desires, a right to examine our government, a right to disagree...these rights should not be hoarded but freely exported to all the world," he said.

Wright toured suburban Dallas shopping centers Saturday on a handshaking foray that was concluded Saturday night with a barbecue rally at the Oak Cliff Chamber of Commerce Building.

Wright was accompanied by a 30-piece band made up of volunteers from Dallas Adamson High School. The Fort Worth Congressman is a graduate of the Dallas school.

DON'T CLOSE EYES

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, apparently rid of his "24-hour" virus which halted his campaign stumping last Wednesday in Paris, told an East Texas television audience Friday night that while the U.S. "stands guard against—and fights—the brush fires of Communism throughout the free world, we must not close our eyes to the Communist propaganda cells which are growing within our own national boundaries."

Three daily newspapers endorsed Blakley and one endorsed Wilson in their Sunday morning editions. Blakley was endorsed by the Dallas Morning News, the Austin American - Statesman and the Waco Tribune - Herald. The Houston Chronicle threw its support to Wilson.

Meanwhile, Hugh O. Lea, Orange attorney and one of the 70, said Saturday that 49 of the U.S. Senate candidates pledged their support to him as "leading dark horse candidate" against John Tower, the only Republican in the race.

NOT LISTED

Lea made the statement in a press release to the Associated Press and major state newspapers. It did not list the 49 and he declined to name them.

State Rep. Wesley Roberts of Seminole before hitting the road for a swing across West Central Texas also suggested a caucus in Austin Monday by the other "64 minority candidates" along with him to pick out one from their number to challenge the more active campaigners.

In Austin, women supporters opened a "Workshop for Will" office in Wilson's backyard. Greeting the ladies at the informal gathering were Mrs. Wilson and Miss Mary K. Roberts, state chairman of women's activities.

Saturday night, Maury Maverick Jr. of San Antonio and Tower appeared at a rally at Freeport being held by Brazoria labor groups.

State Senator Henry B. Gonzalez told about 200 persons at an airport rally in Midland Saturday that he will seek to make it easier to qualify for Small Business Administration loans if he is elected to the U.S. Senate.

Gonzalez, on his way to El Paso, said that is why the governmental agency was created, "to do for the small businessman what the FHA has done for builders and real estate people."

He said the federal agency "has virtually become a joke among small businessmen."

India Honors Kin Of Sepoy Rebels

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government has authorized monthly allowances to 17 descendants of Indians who had important roles in the 1857 fight against British rule. The British call it the Sepoy (Indian soldier) Rebellion but Indians regard it their first war for independence.

WHO HAS A RIGHT TO WORK?

Professional Licensing Often Subject To Abuse

By ED OVERHOLSER

AUSTIN (AP) — Slowly but steadily the Texas Legislature is shrinking the type of jobs an individual may engage in without passing an examination and holding a license.

While Texas stoutly maintains its traditional "right to work" principle, the ffeedom to engage in an occupation is being hedged in continually.

Boards which control their profession "have so much authority they abuse it," said Sen. William Patman of Ganado.

The "right to work" law says you don't have to join a labor union to hold a job.

But you must pass tests and hold valid licenses if, in your business, you sell a house, give a manicure, stop a leaky faucet, set a permanent, direct a funeral, become a county librarian, sell eggs, or do a dozen other jobs.

Texas has 25 examining boards. They prescribe the tests and qualifications for membership in the fraternity. They set the rules for members to abide by and may cast out the strays.

Many, which maintain their funds outside the state treasury, "collect and spend money in the name of the state without the benefit of legislative review," the Legislative Council reports.

"Some boards become bureaucratic after the Legislature establishes them. They have their own little clique and can shut the door in the face of those they don't want," Patman said.

Patman recently jarred a Senate committee proceedings on a bill giving the State Board of Morticians the authority the courts had stripped from it for licensing embalmers and funeral directors. He demanded to know why a Negro in Port Lavaca had been rejected in his attempt to be licensed since the nearest Negro funeral parlor was 30 miles away.

The board's witnesses referred to a rule in which funeral operators have to work "fulltime" at their jobs. Patman quoted the Negro as saying that he had to keep another job because the demand for services for Negroes would be so infrequent.

Several special interest bills have been introduced in the Legislature to create new boards.

The bills would license and regulate water well drillers, paper hangers, painters, radio and television repairmen and pest control specialists.

A Senate bill would set up a board to license landscape architects. You would have to be licensed to set out trees, shrubs and sidewalks.

Rep. Ronald Bridges of Corpus Christi has introduced two board bills. One details creation of an eight-member Texas Board of Television - Radio Examiners. It would classify repairmen by experience and fix exam and renewal fees. He also proposed the bill to "regulate and license the occupation of painting, decorating and paperhanging."

Already there are three separate boards applying to nurses; the Board of Nurses Examiners, the Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners and the Board of Tuberculosis Nurse Examiners. Another Senate bill would create the Texas Board of Professional Nursing.

Current examining boards include architectural examiners, land surveyors, plumbing examiners, public accountacy, professional engineers, real estate commission, examiners in the basic sciences (healing arts), medical examiners, board of morticians, hairdressers and cosmetologists, barber examiners, board of pharmacy, chiropractic examiners, nurses, veterinary medical examiners, library examiners, board of law examiners, registration for public surveyors, and examiners for teacher education.

Results... Proven!

THE UNDENIABLE

CHRISTIAN LIVING

By T. H. Tarbet, preacher
Church of Christ, West Highway 80

The new birth, or conversion, is not enough. That is not all there is to Christianity. That is not all there is to being saved.

In fact one of the main purpose of conversion is to produce the new life to turn one from a life of sin.

". .. Let everyone that nameth the name of the Lord depart from iniquity." II Tim. 2:19.

Christian living is just as essential to ultimate salvation, as is the new birth. Born-again people must "work out" their own salvation; must "lay hold on eternal life;" must make their "calling and election sure" (Phil 2:12 I Tim. 6:12; II Pet. 1:10).

Servants can prove unfaithful and be cast into outer darkness. Virgins whose lamps have burned for awhile, may fail at least to gain entrance to the wedding of the Lamb. See Mat. 25.

Welcome to the services today. Sermons: "Hospitality" (10:30 a.m.); "The Hand of Christ" (7:00 p.m.). —Adv.

Map Makers Of Today Have Big Headaches

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—If you think you've got troubles how about the harried map makers in these times of change?

The headaches are not only caused by the emerging African nations with their new names and boundaries.

A constantly shifting United States population also causes nightmares, says Calb D. Hammond, third generation president of the big map making firm of C. S. Hammond & Co. of Maplewood, N. J. The firm is now observing its 60th anniversary.

The current revision is based on the 1960 census.

"We have learned that while the population has increased, towns have decreased," Hammond said in an interview. "In some states as many as 200 communities have disappeared in the last 10 years.

OUT OF THE WATER

"Or the government decides to build a dam right where a village has been thriving all these years, and we have to move it out of the water.

"In other countries, doings of a more dramatic nature upset the map maker's routine. During Juan Peron's regime in Argentina many places were renamed Eva Peron. The map editors had just about finished updating all of their maps when Peron was ousted and the names were changed back again."

Most information for additions to and deletions from maps come from official sources. But sometimes there is a bizarre touch to information gathering.

On one occasion the company wrote an official in Spain, asking for information about a border change. The official replied he would be glad to exchange the data for a pair of tennis shoes. He enclosed a tracing of his foot. The company dispatched the shoes and back came the report about the border.

LEAST ACCURATE

Communist China and Mongolia are perhaps the least accurately mapped areas, Hammond said.

The company ran into a windfall when a Columbia University professor advised it that a friend had arrived with photostats of recent maps of the Chinese mainland.

"They showed new towns and a change in a river's course," Hammond said.

Popular demand for maps began soaring with the advent of World War II. Families wanted to know where friends and relatives were serving.

The American commercial mapmaking industry is concentrated in half a dozen companies whose aggregate annual gross is about $25 million. Hammond accounts for nearly $5 million.

Murder Charges

Leslie Douglas Ashley, left, 23-year-old female impersonator, and his companion, Carolyn Ann Lima, 18, joke with interviewers before boarding a plane at New York's Idlewild airport enroute to Houston, where they face murder charges. The couple, arrested in New York by FBI agents, are wanted in Texas on charges stemming from the death of Houston real estate man Fred A. Tones Jr., whose body, burned and bearing gunshot wounds, was found in a ditch near Houston.

Area Pupils To Attend Career Day

Over 500 high school seniors from more than a dozen area schools will spend the day Monday at Howard County Junior College, participating in the Career Day program.

Ten career areas covering a multitude of occupational fields will give the seniors an opportunity to explore the fields in which they may be interested.

The day's activities start at 9 a.m. with campus tours for the visitors, including a preview of the career displays. A general assembly is slated for 9:30 a.m. in the college auditorium. Dr. R. Gage Lloyd, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will bring the invocation.

Musical selections will be presented by the HCHC wind ensemble, directed by Douglas Wiehe; Mrs. Don Newsom, Ira Schantz; and the HCJC Jaysquawkers, with Jack Hendrix.

Dr. W. A. Hunt, president, will give the welcoming address and announcements of the program will be by Dean Ben F. Johnson.

Sectional meetings of the various career areas will begin at 10:15 a.m. and continue until adjournment, except for a luncheon break in the Student Union Building.

The career areas and counseling personnel, include:

Agriculture—James Bruce Frazier, HCJC faculty;

Business and legal—Harold Vail, Angie Vail, Dean S. Box, Reva Adams, Florene Watson, all HCJC faculty;

Communications — Tommy Hart and Sam Blackburn, The Herald; Rudolph Brewster, Elizabeth Martin, all HCJC faculty;

Engineering, sciences — J. T. Clements, Robert Dyer, Kenneth Seewald, L. L. Lewis, Verdell Turner, HCJC faculty.

Homemaking—Elizabeth Smith, Texas Education Agency.

Fine Arts—Terry Patterson, art instructor; Jack Hendrix, Ira Schantz, Douglas Wiehe, HCJC faculty.

Medical Services—Dr. P. W. Malone, physician; Dr. Marshall Cauley, optometrist; Wayne Ground, pharmacist; Bessie Love, VA Hospital; Anna Smith and Gladys Burnham, HCJC faculty.

Skilled Trades — Marshall Box, HCJC faculty.

Social Service — Dr. R. Gage Lloyd, minister; Tolford Durham, VA Hospital; Ella White, John Gentili, Leslie Kelley, Barbara Hazelwood, all on HCJC faculty.

Teaching—W. L. Walker, Paul Vagt, Dr. Melvin Crawford, all HCJC faculty.

School districts to be represented with seniors include Big Spring, Westbrook, Stanton, Forsan, Coahoma, Sands, Sterling City, Garden City, Loraine, Flower Grove, Klondike, Ira and Tahoka.

Dean Johnson said Saturday that several other schools would probably send token representation.

Traffic Deaths

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway had 309 traffic fatalities last year, a 5 per cent increase over 1959.

Legislature Near Money Showdown

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators start writing a check for more than $250 million next week with their bank account already overdrawn and no money in sight.

Friday, was the half-way mark of the 120-day regular session suggested by the state Constitution.

Here's the way the scoreboard looked:

Spending — Senate and House appropriations committees just about through with budget hearings on requests that total more than $567 million from the General Revenue Fund. Both groups start writing their respective spending bills later this week and are expected to slash the requests to less than $500 million, how much depending on the size of the school teachers pay raise.

Income — Prospects for about $273 million in 1962 - 1963 minus the expected deficit of $63 million at the end of this fiscal two-year period on Aug. 31, 1961.

Taxation — Blank. All tax bills originate in the House and the only revenue - producing measure approved there would bring in about $3 million from revised inheritance tax statutes — less than the expected $4.75 million cost of the Legislature.

The situation could change rapidly the next two weeks, or it could get worse. Advocates for either argument are easy to find.

Some breach in the wall of opposition to the handling of the deficit before going on to permanent financing may have been made last week.

The House approved 149-1 a resolution favoring the deficit - first argument.

"I believe this almost unanimous House action will be followed by a sincere effort on the part of opposing factions to come up with bills that can be passed by the House on this subject, and I will cooperate with them in every way," Gov. Price Daniel said.

Actually the 149-1 vote came after Rep. Ben Atwell, Dallas, interpreted in a speech that the resolution "plain and simply" expressed the desire of the House to retire the deficit but did not bind representatives to consider only deficit solving bills now.

Considerable talk about lumping the deficit and 1962-1963 tax needs into the same money-raising measure can be expected Wednesday when the House Tax Committee considers two general sales tax measures by Reps. John Allen, Longview, and Charles Wilson, Trinity.

Allen says his version of a general sales tax will produce $317 million for the next biennium, "sufficient to retire the deficit and provide for necessary increases in state spending due to population growth."

More such talk is due Thursday when Rep. Charles Ballman, Borger, is scheduled to ask final approval of a $7.7 million loop hole - closing tax bill that can be expanded to almost any size or type tax levy.

Lyndon Aide Is Named To Peace Corps Position

MARSHALL (AP) — Bill Moyers of Marshall, young aide to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, has been picked as associate director of the newly organized Peace Corps.

President Kennedy and his brother-in-law, R. Sargent Shriver, who heads the new federal agency, requested Johnson to "lend" Moyers to the agency.

Johnson agreed and Moyers will take a leave of absence from his duties as executive assistant to the vice president to help Shriver.

Moyers, at 27, becomes one of the youngest executives in the Kennedy administration. He will receive an annual salary of around $17,500.

As associate director, Moyers will be in charge of public affairs of the corps. He also will be secretary of the National Advisory Council of the Peace Corps.

Thus begins a new phase of a career, already successful in three other fields at an age at which many still are in college. Moyers has succeeded in newspaper and television work, and in the ministry. He is a graduate of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth.

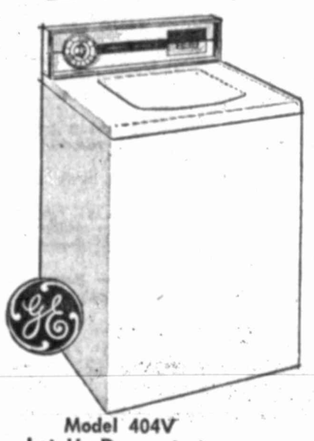

In the Washington job he sees a chance to make vital use of his experiences and talents toward a goal of better government and better understanding among people.

Ties with Johnson grew closer last spring when the Texan became Democratic nominee for vice president. Moyers says he was drawn to Johnson because the senator was "always striving for the best."

WESLEY ROBERTS

West Texan Campaigns For Senate

A candidate for the U. S. Senate who is appealing to West Texans to support a West Texan was in Big Spring Friday. He is Wesley Roberts of Seminole, now a member of the Texas Legislature.

Roberts made a few calls here in behalf of his candidacy. He is stressing that "I am the only conservative Democrat in the race who has a conservative record. Others claim it, my career in the Legislature establishes it."

Roberts is in his third term at Austin, and has served on all major committees in the House.

He is a native of Howard County, born at Knott when his father, Charles Roberts Sr., was a school teacher there. The elder Roberts now publishes the paper at Andrews.

Roberts had this to say about some of his major opponents: "Blakley, an inconsistent conservative from big Dallas. Wilson, Dallas fence straddler whose guiding principle is political expediency. Maverick, Organized Labor's own candidate. Gonzalez, a candidate for racial minorities. Wright, Fort Worth's yes-man on all frontiers, new and old. Tower, a twice-defeated Republican."

Roberts says his record shows him to be for economy and common sense solutions to public problems.

Violators Paying Traffic Tickets

The Big Spring Police Department, in working up warrants for traffic violators who have failed to appear, have noticed a speedup in payments.

Warrant Officer Sherrill Farmer said Saturday morning that a large number of drivers holding tickets for moving violations or overtime parking are coming in to pay fines.

"We are going to get some appeals set up for trial in county court in a short time," he said. "The city attorney now has the first group which will be prosecuted in county court, and they will be worked in between regular sessions of the court."

Farmer said a large number of traffic violators have learned that appeal cases would never come up for trial in county court and have not had the cost of their liability insurance increased. "We hope to change that," he said.

He cited the case of one driver who has a long string of violations on his record at Austin. "By appealing his cases he has managed to keep his driver's license because it cannot be taken until convicted, and county court here has been crowded," Farmer said. "Such cases, when tried and convictions made, will enable the Department of Public Safety to suspend the driver's license. It may also serve to make many drivers pay more attention to traffic laws and cut down on violations."

Farmer said it would take several days to complete work on bringing warrants and appeal cases up, but that they would be worked up as fast as attorneys for the city and county could get trial dates set.

GOATS STAY IN THE NEWS

A young man got another man's goat and the police got his.

Patrolmen J. B. Hall and Robert Smith were on regular patrol around 12:30 a.m. Saturday when they noticed a man carrying some raw meat on his shoulder and boxes under his arm. He broke to run when he noticed the patrol car and threw down his meat and boxes.

Smith caught the man in the Northside flats area and he confessed to breaking the glass from the front door at Sav-Mor Grocery, entering, picking up an $8 dressed goat, and two boxes of cigars.

Now he doesn't have "cabrito" to eat while awaiting trial on a burglary charge.

Freight Rate Hearing Set

FREEPORT, Tex. (AP) —The Board of Directors of the Brazos Harbor Navigation District, which seeks an equalization of freight rates with the ports on Galveston Bay, will present its case before the Interstate Commerce Commission in Dallas Monday.

Russell Wait, general manager of the navigation district, said the district is being represented by a Dallas law firm.

A member of the firm spent several days here taking testimony from shippers and others seeking equal opportunity with Houston, Texas City and Galveston in freight rates.

Residents Attend Father's Funeral

FORSAN (SC) — Mrs. Price Stroud and Mrs. D. M. Bardwell are in Ardmore, Okla. for the funeral of their father, W. B. Wiggins, who died Friday. They were at the bedside.

The funeral is slated for this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Stroud and Mrs. Bardwell, both of Forsan, Mrs. Odell Kent, Sweetwater; one son, Allen Wiggins, Big Spring.

All of the children were with Mr. Wiggins during his serious illness and all will be on hand for the services.

REV. WARD JACKSON

Rev. Jackson Is Re-Elected

The Rev. V. Ward Jackson, minister of the First Church of God here, was elected last week to a second term as state chairman of the Texas Ministerial Association of the Church of God. The association, with general offices in Anderson, Ind., has 72 churches and a college in Texas.

Rev. and Mrs. Jackson have recently completed three years association with the local church. On their anniversary Sunday last week, the local congregation extended a unanimous call for the family's continuance with the church.

Rev. Jackson is past president of the Big Spring Pastor's Association and currently chairs the Bible Committee, charged with Bible instruction in Big Spring High School.

He is a member of the Kiwanis Club.

The church's annual convention has been slated for Houston next year. Dr. T. Franklin Miller, executive secretary of the Board of Christian Education, will be guest speaker. He held a revival in Big Spring last year.

This year's meeting last week was held in Dallas.

Building Permits Continue Climb

Five new residences, totaling $78,000, will be built in Big Spring, under permits issued during the past week. One of the new residences, costing $35,000, will be built by Lester Morton at 701 Capri Court in the Coronado Hills addition.

All building permits issued during the week ran to $89,190, and bring the month's total to $140,177, and the 1961 total to $734,315.

Army Sergeant First Class Luz H. Pena, whose wife lives at Colorado City, recently attended a five-day religious retreat at the Army's Far East retreat site near Seoul in Korea.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish chaplains alternate planning the program of the retreats, which include group discussions, individual conferences and guided tours of areas near the site. The purpose of the retreat is to provide the soldier with an opportunity to meditate and discuss religious matters with a chaplain of his faith.

Sgt. Pena, assigned to the 31st Artillery's Battery A, entered the Army in 1944, was last stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., and arrived overseas on this tour of duty in February, 1960.

"Your Grandchildren Will Grow Up Under Communism"

says NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV

This can happen . . . only if we fail to give our children the courage to remain free. We know that in one generation communism has strangled half the world. What will happen in future generations? It's up to us.

We, the American people can still speak out for what we believe in. It is our heritage and our responsibility. We can help RADIO FREE EUROPE broadcast Free World Truth to 79 million people behind the Iron Curtain.

RADIO FREE EUROPE broadcasts from 28 transmitters manned by excapees from communism. It reaches over 90% of the people despite communist jamming. But RFE needs money to do its job, to become even more effective.

Of Course, Cars Are A Necessity

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Only one major problem has turned up since the city started distributing free food to the needy.

There's a shortage of parking space. Cars have been clogging the area used by trucks to bring supplies from a nearby warehouse.

"Someone even claimed they were blocked by a lavender Cadillac," reported the county welfare director, Miss Dorothy Wehrley.

DEAR ABBY

WAR'S OVER

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was recently married for the second time. She brought her husband home (she has been working out of town, and that's where she met him) and we are now introducing him to our friends and relatives.

He's a big, jolly guy; kind of loud and likes to talk. He is 43 and served in World War II as a First Sgt. in the U. S. Marine Corps. To hear him talk you would think the Marines won the war all by themselves. We have other men in this family who saw a lot of action with the Infantry and Navy, but they are not always trying to fight the war over again. Our daughter thinks he is the greatest, but isn't there a nice friendly way to tip this guy off that the war is over?

NEW FATHER-IN-LAW

DEAR NEW: For some "guys" —the war is never over. People who are still talking about what they did 15 years ago haven't anything more recent to talk about. If your daughter thinks he's the greatest don't disillusion her.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "OFF MY SCHEDULE" should have been framed. Thanks, Abby, for having a kind paper shoulder for so many to cry on. Like "OFF MY SCHEDULE" I, too, had a young neighbor who would come to my home too often and stay too long. She had two little children and there were times when she kept me from my work. I became weary of her company.

When she moved, she thanked me for my kindness in letting her come. She confessed she had been on the verge of becoming an alcoholic and when she felt she needed a drink she would come to my house instead. My only regret now is that I became weary at all.

SO ASHAMED

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I married a woman who chased me for three years and finally wore me down. She was fine to my little boy when he was small, but now that he is 14 she is terrible to him. She won't let him sit in the living room unless he puts a rag behind his head because she says his hair oil ruins the furniture. She refuses to touch his soiled clothing and makes him carry them to the washing machine and throw them in. She hardly speaks to him. Just writes him notes like, "YOU HAVE TO SCRUB THE PORCH SO GET HOME EARLY TODAY, STUPID." She won't walk down the street with him because she doesn't like the way he walks or has his hair cut. What should I do?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Your son needs kindness and understanding —not abuse and ridicule. Explain this to your wife and insist on her cooperation—if you have to call in a marriage counselor or psychologist.

Local Chapter To Observe DeMolay Week

The local Leon P. Moffett chapter of De Molay has planned a week of activities noting DeMolay Week here. The observance marks the 42nd anniversary of the Order.

Mayor Lee O. Rogers has proclaimed the special week, pointing out that the order is composed of young men who are seeking to become tomorrow's better citizens by developing character among themselves. He asked that all citizens join in saluting the objectives of these young men.

The chapter will begin the special week by attending church together today at the First Baptist Church. Monday, the members will visit local hospitals.

Tuesday, new members will be initiated during the regular meeting and officers and advisors will make a TV appearance. Wednesday, a special meeting in the Masonic Hall on Lancaster is planned for members, prospective members and their families, and Masons. The Flower Talk will be given.

Thursday, the chapter will make a trip to the city's water filter plant. And Friday, the chapter will sponsor a midnight show at the Ritz Theater.

Saturday, a hay ride is scheduled. Sunday, the members will again attend church together at the East 4th Street Baptist Church.

Homecoming Set For Moody State School

GALVESTON — A Homecoming Carnival at Moody State School for Cerebral Palsied Children, March 19, will have special meaning for two Howard County families who have seen its benefit to their own youngsters.

Marking the school's 10th anniversary, the homecoming will be the first for more than 400 children who have been helped to walk, talk, feed themselves, read, write, don their own clothing, or myriad other accomplishments the average child takes for granted. They have come to Moody from 100 counties over Texas for a year of intensive training in the skilled hands of teachers, therapists and medical personnel.

While the Sunday observance is primarily for former students at the school and their parents, Robertine St. James, superintendent, has invited all interested citizens to an open house from 2 to 4 p.m., March 17. The Galveston school is located on Teichmann Road, near the causeway.

Presented to the state of Texas by the late W. L. Moody Jr., the school is operated by the Board for Texas State Hospitals and Special Schools. Enrollment is limited to 45 pupils and for one year's duration.

State Welfare Office Here Is Million Dollar Operation

By JOSEPH BEYER

The State welfare office for District 53—Howard County and eight surrounding counties—is a multi-million dollar business with perhaps fewer employes than most enterprises its size. In 1960 it caused almost three-quarters of a million dollars to be spent in Howard County alone.

Tommy Compton, area supervisor, seven field case workers and five stenographers handle all the work for the district. It includes Borden, Dawson, Fisher, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Mitchell, Scurry and Sterling counties.

Of the nine, Howard County has the most work.

The department has four major programs—Old Age Assistance, Aid for the Needy Blind, Aid to Dependent Children and Aid to Permanently and Totally Disabled.

Compton said the OAA program has the most cases to work on, but that ADC requires the most work. He said the APTD has steadily increased. It is a new program, only three years old.

The department cannot use volunteer workers because of the time needed to train a person for the work, he said. Field workers must have a minimum of two years of college and must pass a written examination.

Hazel Kelly is the local field worker. With the help of workers from other counties, she handles the chores in Howard County. Besides Compton and Miss Kelly, two stenographers work in the local office. They are Bobbie Bohannon and Mrs. Bobbie Jean Hooper.

Carl Underhill and Mrs. Frances Jenkins work out of a branch office in Lamesa. Mrs. Kay Robinson is in Snyder; Mrs. Anna Hughes in Roby; and Dee Tonn and Mrs. Tommie Verner work out of Colorado City.

Funds for the programs are appropriated anually by the State. The Federal Government then puts up about $3 for every $1 allocated by the State, Compton said.

During the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, 1960, $718,164 were spent in Howard County on the four programs.

In August, 1960 there were 482 persons on OAA rolls, 53 families and 188 children receiving Aid to Dependent Children, seven persons benefiting from Aid for the Needy Blind and 14 in the Aid to Permanently and Totally Disabled program.

Good Progress On Big Rocket

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rocket expert Wernher von Braun reports good progress on a rocket booster "twice as powerful" as that used by the Russians to blast their space probe toward Venus last month.

But he added, in testimony Friday before the House Space Committee, that he is "convinced that the Russians are working on one just as big," and that they are "still several years ahead of us in big boosters."

Von Braun said it "may well be that the Russians will put up yet another big surprise with a much bigger vehicle" than anybody has used or is working on.

The huge Saturn rocket will be test flown by the National Space Flight Center this year, Von Braun said.

The German-born rocket pioneer, director of the flight center, said the space reappraisal order by President Kennedy will produce a request for more money this year to speed work on the gigantic boosters.

Texas Woman To PHA Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy Saturday selected Mrs. Marie C. McGuire of San Antonio to be commissioner of the Public Housing Administration.

Mrs. McGuire is a prominent businesswoman who has been executive director of the San Antonio Housing Authority.

She has been in the housing field in San Antonio and Houston since 1942. Currently she administers 5,154 low-rent public housing units, which the White House described as the largest such program under the directorship of a woman.

Her new federal post will pay $20,000 a year. Mrs. McGuire, 56, is a Democrat. In returning to Washington she will be coming back to the city where she was born.

Mrs. McGuire's nomination is subject to confirmation by the Senate, following her formal nomination. In 1956, she was voted the outstanding businesswoman of the year.

Judge Improved After Heart Attack

AUSTIN (AP)—Judge K. K. Woodley was reported improving Saturday following a heart attack suffered early last week.

Woodley, presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, is at Brackenridge Hospital.

Midland Community Theatre One Of Nation's Most Successful

By COPE ROUTH
Midland Reporter-Telegram
Written for The Associated Press

MIDLAND (AP)—An idea born in the war days of the South Pacific, a healthy financial diet of cattle and oil and a puckish, pint-sized genius named Arthur Cole, have been parlayed into one of the nation's most successful community theaters.

The Midland Community Theater in 15 years has become as much a part of this West Texas city as the many offices of oil companies that fill its office buildings.

The theater produces six shows each year and the seats are taken almost as soon as the box offices open. Performances are extended and extended until finally the show must close — not because there are no more customers, but because the cast and the production staff must return to their jobs of finding more oil, taking delayed dictation from the boss or cleaning up around the house for a change.

Director Cole, 41, may find himself directing a clerk as the star of a play while a wealthy independent oil operator is enthusiastic over his tiny walk-on part.

All of this is highly satisfying to the Ohioan who fell in love with West Texas when the Army Air Force sent him here in 1942 to serve in the engineering office of the Midland Army Air Base.

He later went to the Pacific to direct soldier shows. While stationed on Guam he began dreaming of a community theater back in his adopted home. He drew up a budget and a working plan.

When the war was over he wrote to Mrs. Naomi Lancaster, one of the guiding lights of Midland's cultural activities, and outlined his plan.

In February, 1946, Cole met with Midland leaders and they decided to charter the Midland Community Theater, Inc.

The theater's first production was "George Washington Slept Here."

Since that time there have been 95 productions plus shows staged for various fund raising purposes.

The first old barn-like theater has been replaced by the unique Theater Center, in which 400 patrons sit no more than 38 feet from the three-sided, extended stage which has no curtains and no footlights.

The plans for this building began taking shape on the drawing board in 1950, when the first building drive netted $10,000. A second drive raised another $72,000, including the largest single gift—$10,000 from a prominent ranching family.

In 1953 the theater bought some land and two years later built a scene shop.

In 1955 James Hall Miller, a stage design consultant then at Centenary College in Shreveport, stopped off while passing through Midland. During a visit with Cole he looked over the plans for the theater center.

"I wasn't exactly satisfied with them myself," said Cole. "We sat down and drew an entirely new concept.

"The traditional proscenium framed stage was eliminated and replaced by the three-sided open stage which juts out into the audience."

The estimated cost of the revised building was $150,000.

"When the bids came in," said Cole, "the lowest one was for $212,000. Wilmont Hunt, the theater president, and I were crushed. We knew we'd have to borrow money to get the $150,000. The $212,000 was unthinkable.

"Then Wilmont came up with the idea of using a different construction technique—use of pre-engineered building structural steel—and we found we could get the cost down within reach.

"He's the guy who really made it possible. It wouldn't be here now except for Wilmont Hunt."

15 Days Left To Buy Tags

Howard County motorists have paid in $123,275.08 for 1961 car tags since the plates were placed on sale Feb. 1.

Mrs. Zirah LeFevre, county tax assessor, said that tax sales for the week ending Friday were $6,038.56.

Motorists have 15 days remaining in which to buy 1961 car tags. Deadline is April 1.

Mrs. LeFevre said that business is picking up at the five substations where passenger cars can be registered. One of the substations is planning to add an extra desk and an extra fulltime employe to care for car tag demands, she said.

Two File For Stanton Posts

STANTON—Two candidates have filed for places on the Stanton City Council April 4. They are John Roueche and Leo Turner. Councilmen whose terms expire are not seeking re-election.

At the same time the voters of Stanton are being asked to approve conveyance to the county of the south 60 feet of Lots 12 and 13, Block 5, for the purpose of building a new library.

Under terms of the agreement, if the voters approve, the county will provide a part of the funds for the new building. The chamber of commerce and interested citizens will provide other funds, and the city will maintain the grounds on the 52 by 60 foot area. In the event the ground is not used for a library at any future date, the land will revert back to the city.

Good Weather Livens Agriculture

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) —Several days of generally good weather have put new life into Texas agriculture.

The state's great basic industry has come to life with a rush as sunshine and drying winds have made field and ranch work possible in most areas, director John Hutchison of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service said.

Rainfall has been limited generally to light showers and plants have responded to the stimulating clear and warmer weather.

One half of the Rio Grande Valley cotton crop is planted as weather conditions were excellent for field work, said Joe Rothe, Weslaco. The vegetable and citrus harvests continued strong and cattle are in good condition as pastures and ranges continue to improve.

Corn planting is beginning in South Central Texas but many fields are still too wet and more sunshine is needed before full scale operations can begin, reported Joe Glover from Gonzales.

Signs of spring are popping everywhere, advised Silver Whitsett from Richmond. But, he added, fields are still too wet for general planting. Pastures are improving and cattle are looking better.

In East Texas, Walter Scott from Nacogdoches said, oats, clover and bermuda grass are making rapid growth and the feeding of beef cattle has stopped. Fruit trees are in full bloom.

Winter legumes and small grains are now providing some grazing and land preparation is under way in Northeast Texas, reported John Surovik from Mt. Pleasant. Farmers are busy top dressing small grains, putting out fertilizer and planting coastal bermuda. Pastures are below normal.

Ray Siegmund at Fort Stockton said high winds have dried out the surface moisture but land preparation is in full swing and small grain growing well. He described the condition of livestock as good.

From San Angelo, Roy Huckabee reported adequate moisture; a noticeable improvement in the growth of small grains, cool season grasses and weeds and a good outlook for spring grazing. Livestock were in fair condition and were still being fed. Fruit trees are blooming and land preparation is under way in most counties.

The few days of sunshine have made a big difference in North Central Texas, advised Ted Martin from Denton. He said small grains are making rapid recovery; that land preparation, especially on the lighter soils, was getting started and that pasture plants would soon be large enough to provide adequate grazing and bring a halt to supplemental feeding.

Small grains made excellent growth in the rolling plains and provided good grazing, said James Simmons from Vernon. He reported an increase in livestock marketing due to the removal of stock from grain pastures. Moisture is adequate and land preparatio nis picking up speed, Simmons said.

Land preparation made progress on the South Plains and considerable fertilizer was put down, reported W. H. Jones from Lubbock. Some areas reported light wind erosion damage due primarily from the effects of freezing and thawing. Livestock are in good condition.

Surface moisture continues short in the Panhandle but wheat is making good growth ,was the word from W. W. Grisham Jr. at Amarillo. He said livestock conditions generally were good and that land preparation was beginning.

13 Airmen Complete Prep School

Class 61-8 graduated from the Webb AFB NCO Preparatory School last week with 13 airman receiving diplomas from Lt. Col. Clifton L. Bray, commander of the 3560th Pilot Training Squadron.

Col. Bray focussed his talk on getting the most out of the Air Force dollar through leadership and management. One way of saving man-hours and money, he said, is by giving persons full-time jobs.

The man who has a clearly-defined job, he declared, is a happy man. Idleness, he said, leads to discontentment.

Airman 1.C. Gustav Von Siebenhoven of the 3560th M&S Group was honor student of the graduating class.

Other graduates were S. Sgts. Alton T. Little, Ernest E. Reynolds, Raymond G. Reynolds, Kenneth O. Smith, Billy L. Stafford; Airmen 1.Cs. Richard Francis, Joe W. Hamilton, Ronald J. Williams, Herbert C. Huff, Ronald Dallefield, James W. Probus, and James C. Goodwin.

Gay Hill P-TA Meets Tuesday

The Gay Hill P-TA will meet March 14 at the school building at 7:30 p.m., with Mrs. Fred Carr in charge of the program. The third grade, directed by Mrs. A. J. Buehmeyer, will put on the program.

Election of officers for the 1961-62 school year, will be held, delegates will be named to the district meeting in Big Spring on March 22; and other regular business will be transacted.

The executive committee will meet at 7 p.m., ahead of the program meeting.

500 Auto Tags Have Been Sold

STANTON (SC)—Dan Saunders, tax collector-assessor, said a total of 500 automobile license tags have been sold in Martin County.

The automobile tags this year run from CS 9075 to CS 9999 and from CT 1010 to CT 1474.

Classic Film Still Draws

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — "Gone With the Wind," the late Margaret Mitchell's epic on the Civil War, apparently has lost none of that magic touch which sends customers flocking to the box office.

An estimated 7,000 persons crowded Atlanta's fabled Peachtree Street Friday night to catch a glimpse of four top Hollywood actors and screen producer David O. Selznick as they arrived for the second premiere of the movie. The first was held here in 1939.

With Selznick were George Murphy, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Vivien Leigh and Olivia de Havilland.

Miss Leigh won an Academy Award for her interpretation of the irrepressible Scarlett O'Hara and Miss De Havilland was acclaimed for her portrayal of the almost too good Melanie—the girl who married Scarlett's secret heart's desire.

The late Clark Gable played the dashing yet somehow pathetic Rhett Butler who wanted Scarlett above all else until pushed too far by her infatuation for Melanie's husband.

The premiere attracted 2,000 persons who paid as much as $15 to watch the 3-hour, 40-minute movie. Proceeds went to the Georgia Civil War Centennial Commission.

The premiere was staged in connection with Georgia's observance of the Civil War centennial.

WINGS OVER BIG SPRING

People Still Go To Depot, But Now They Watch Planes

By M. A. WEBB

Like the people a long time ago who went down to the depot to see the train come in, people today go out to an airport to see airplanes come and go.

"There were lots of people out here Sunday who just sat in their cars or stood around and watched the airplanes go out and come in," Ted McClung, manager, said Thursday.

* * *

There's a new craft (new to Howard County Airport) out at the airport now. J. W. McClendon, Cosden's pipeline pilot and also co-pilot for their larger airplane, has just recently bought and brought in a 1958 model Cessna 172. McClendon has just about every kind of license a pilot needs and has many hundred hours of flying time.

* * *

There's also a new student at the airport. He became known last year when he was a candidate, on the Constitution Party ticket, for Congressman. He's Rich Anderson, a rancher from up around Gail. He plans to get his license soon.

Trans-Texas Airways, the line which seems to have the inside track to serve this area in the Southwest some time in the future, has negotiated for 22 new Convairs to serve its five-state routes. They plan to put the new planes in service in April following a training course for pilots. A "Name the Plane" contest has been announced to pick a title for the Convairs.

Winner will get an all-expense vacation weekend for two in Mexico City via Braniff Airways. The winner will fly Braniff's new Silver Service flights from San Antonio or Dallas. Accommodations for two for three nights at Hotel Regis, including meals and sightseeing, will be provided.

The sand hasn't seemed to bother air traffic in and out of Howard County airport the past week. Four or five airplanes landed Tuesday during the worst of the dust, gassed up, and took off again like nothing was wrong.

National Symphony Concert Is Monday

The National Symphony Orchestra, which will be heard at the City Auditorium Monday, at 8 p.m., was founded in 1931 and has, under the leadership of music director Howard Mitchell, taken its place among the great symphonic ensembles in the world. Since he was appointed conductor in 1949, Mitchell has achieved high artistic and technical excellence for the orchestra, and has won recognition and acclaim from both critics and public.

The resident orchestra of the U.S. capital, it is famous for its performances of the masters of the Old World. But it is also a leader of musical life in the New World and contributes to contemporary American music. Featured performance of good native music has become a tradition of the National Symphony.

Mitchell has been honored with many national awards, most of them citing specifically his "distinguished services to American music."

In the 1958-59 season the National Symphony made 181 public appearances before an estimated audience of 385,716 persons. In addition, the orchestra made a 12-week good will tour of Central and South America, at the end of the orchestra's regular 32 week season, in cooperation with the President's Special International Program for Cultural Presentations, administered by the American National Theatre and Academy. This tour took the orchestra to 19 countries for 64 concerts.

The first concert of the National Symphony was given Nov. 2, 1931. Before that, Washington had been the only great capital city of the Western World without its own orchestra. Attempts to establish an orchestra in Washington date as far back as 1902, but success awaited the vision and enterprise of the renowned Dutch cellist, Hans Kindler, the orchestra's first conductor. In its first year, 1931-32, the National Symphony numbered 79 musicians and gave 24 concerts.

For 18 seasons Kindler worked to strengthen the National Symphony, building it into an orchestra of high quality during the years of depression and war. The orchestra won fame with one of its most popular projects, the summer Watergate Concerts. The Watergate site, part of the Lincoln Memorial area, was planned as the ceremonial entranceway to the city by water, but had never been used for this purpose. It offered one of the most beautiful outdoor concert settings in the country, with the audience on the steps, the orchestra on a barge on the Potomac River. The Watergate concerts, initiated in 1935, played to capacity crowds until 1950, when increasing highway and air traffic noise forced their abandonment.

In 1933, Kindler brought in a young cellist named Howard Mitchell as principal of the cello section. Mitchell appeared regularly as soloist and, in 1941, made his debut as conductor. The critics noted Mitchell's ability and the sparkle of his conducting immediately. That same year Kindler asked Mitchell to take over the children's concerts and become assistant conductor. Mitchell became associate conductor in 1948, and upon Kindler's resignation in 1949, was appointed conductor.

The concert of the National Symphony here will be the third in the Concert Association series. Admission is by season ticket only.

Hoover Declines Peace Corps Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover has declined an invitation from President Kennedy to head a citizens' advisory committee to the newly organized Peace Corps, the White House disclosed Saturday.

In a telegram, Hoover told Kennedy that his age, 86, and long-standing commitments prevented his taking on the Peace Corps assignment.

Colorado City Teacher Elected WTTA President

MIDLAND—A journalism teacher from Colorado City has been elected president of the West Texas Teachers Association for 1961-62 and Odessa has been selected as site of the 1962 convention.

Action came from 147 delegates attending a House of Delegates session Thursday in Midland's Hotel Scharbauer. They also accepted a revised district constitution.

New president is Mrs. Nadine Gordon, who has been serving as vice president this year. She succeeds Sam Anderson, assistant superintendent of schools in Big Spring.

MRS. NADINE GORDON

Other officers elected for 1961-62 are vice president, Cleo Tarter, superintendent of schools at Lamesa; secretary, Jo Gentry, Crane Public Schools; and treasurer, Jerome Snyder, director of personnel and in-service education for Midland Public Schools.

Anderson was selected as a new member of the State Executive Committee of the Texas State Teachers Association. The West Texas Teachers Association is the District IV branch of TSTA.

Frank Barton, superintendent of schools at Wink and a former Big Spring man, was elected to the district executive committee. Chosen to the auditing committee were Don Furgeson of Midland, Don Crockett of Big Spring and Julius Johnson of Odessa.

Approximately 4,000 teachers from 14 West Texas counties participated in the association's convention.

BIG SPRING FOR BIG SPRINGERS: I would exhaust every means to secure city employees from our own citizens. I would urge every consideration for awarding work contracts with local firms.
OPPOSE EXPANDING THE CITY LIMITS: Our city limits have gone far enough at the present time. Let the city catch the city limits before expanding any farther.
OPPOSE ANY FURTHER INCREASE OF TAXES AND UTILITIES: I would take a good look into the possibility of cutting expenditures.
ASSURE OUR AGING EMPLOYEES THAT THEY WILL HAVE A JOB: I would let our aging employees know that they will be given every opportunity to remain until normal retirement.
ASSURE EVERY CITIZEN OF HIS CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS: I would assure all our citizens that they can expect equal treatment by our law enforcement agencies, and that their rights as human beings shall not be denied.
ENCOURAGE BETTER STREET IMPROVEMENTS AND TRAFFIC FLOW: I would give our merchants a large sized share of the responsibility in naming one-way streets. I would try to get our low lying sections better drainage.
WOULD FIX MORAL RESPONSIBILITY OF PUBLIC SERVANTS: I would remind all public servants and employees that they have certain moral obligations, and to violate these is to violate the trust put to them by our voters.

(Pd. Pol. Adv.)

Hearing Scheduled On 1-Way Streets

A public hearing on one-way streets was scheduled for April 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Big Spring City Commission room, by the city's traffic commission Friday.

The commission set the date for the hearing after studying the results of a recent mail survey. Of 800 water customers who received survey cards, 456 responded. Also, six unsolicited letters were received, all favoring retaining one-way streets.

The cards asked the residents to indicate whether he favored or opposed the one-way street system in downtown Big Spring. Of those who returned cards, 250 were opposed and 206 favored the system.

The commission members agreed that the results of the survey were inconclusive as the voting was relatively close.

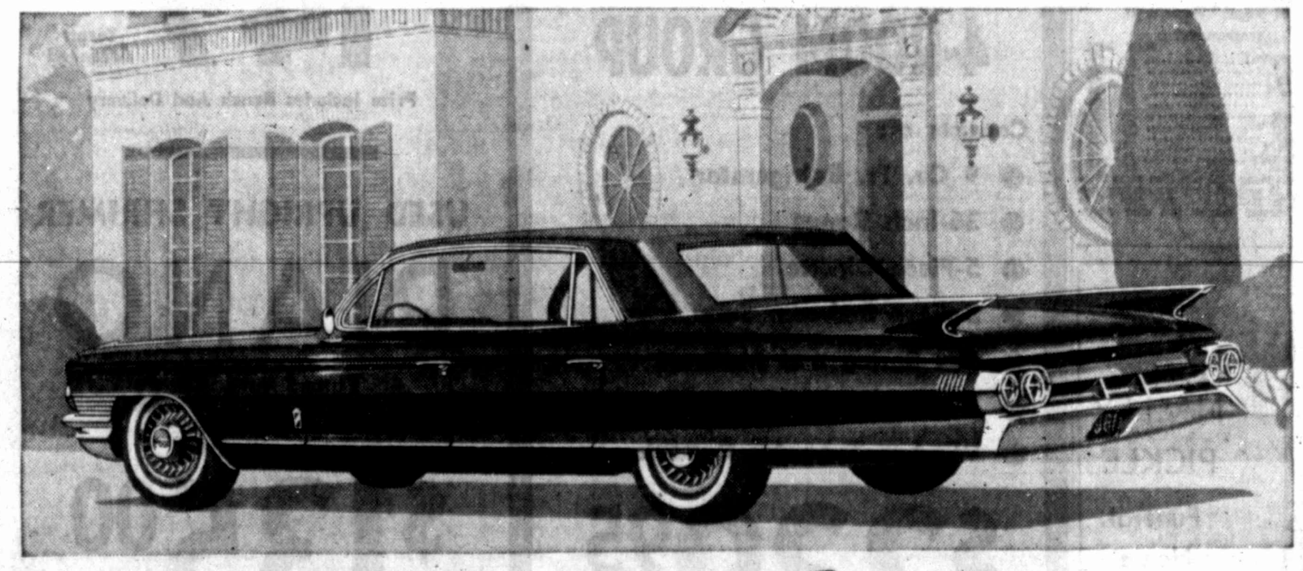

Following the public hearing, the commission will meet to make a recommendation to the city commission. The latter, body subsequently will decide the fate of the one-way street system.

The three additional letters received during the week, urged that the one-way system be retained. One writer indicated favor of the system and pointed out that "800 cards in a city of 30,000 is not an accurate indication, regardless of the results."

Another writer said "if the streets are confusing, maybe the driver is confused to begin with." He added, "the city needs progress." The third one said the new system is "much safer and eliminates bottlenecks."

Reunion And Parting

Helen Castro, 5, Bronx, N.Y., child who had been missing, is given a farewell hug by 19-year-old Theresa Maria Montalvo Ramos Rivera, in the police station as the child's mother, Mrs. Juana Betancourt, left, waits to claim her. The missing girl was found in the aparement of the Rivera girl, whose own two children had been taken away from her for neglect. After her arrest, the Rivera girl told officers she intended to return the child to her home. Police said a mother complex caused her to take the girl.

New Orleans Official Killed In Weird Expressway Fight

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Coroner Nicholas Chetta said Saturday a bullet fired from a .38-caliber revolver killed W. Ray Scheuering, manager director of the municipal auditorium.

Chetta said he determined this "because of the size and type of the wound."

Scheuering, 50, a former assistant athletic director at West Point, was slain Friday night on an elevated expressway that cuts through the city.

A bullet tore through his head during a weird melee involving an off-duty policeman. Ironically, Scheuering did not join in the fight, witnesses said.

Police charged with murder both Patrolman Norbert I. Habighorst, 25, and a companion, Arthur D. Glowacki, 23, a chef. Glowacki suffered a superficial gunshot wound of the right leg.

Millie Oakley, 19, a waitress traveling in Habighorst's car, was held as a material witness.

Police took a .38 service revolver from Habighorst. They found a .22 caliber pistol 50 feet below the expressway where Glowacki admitted throwing it. Glowacki said it belonged to Habighorst but admitted using it.

Scheuering, whose brother was a former New Orleans police superintendent, served during World War II as an assistant to Lawrence (Biff) Jones, West Point athletic director.

His widow, who witnessed the shooting, was riding with her husband and two other couples —Dr. and Mrs. Richard C. Oster and Mr. and Mrs. Alphonsus Stahl.

Dr. Oster, 39, told police a car passed on the expressway with two men and a woman. One occupant flashed identification that appeared to have the wording "police."

Scheuering stopped. Two men—both in civilian clothes — got out of the other auto and advanced with guns drawn, Oster said.

Stahl, 46, told police he thought it was a hold-up. He got out and one man shoved a gun in his chest, Stahl said.

Stahl said he grabbed him and the man lurched against the expressway railing. As they struggled, someone fired a shot. Almost immediately, there was a second shot, Stahl said, and Scheuering was lying on the highway.

Habighorst told investigating officers Scheuering's car had nearly caused a collision.

The patrolman said he stopped the Scheuering car, flashed his police identification and attempted to interview the occupants.

Stahl forced him back by shoving the door open, then jumped out of the car and started scuffling with him near the railing, Habighorst said.

Habighorst said he drew his gun and it went off in the scuffle. The patrolman said he was trying to shoot Stahl.

Glowacki said he followed Habighorst out of the car, taking the .22 revolver for protection.

Couple Held In Lockup Case Involving Daughter

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J .Kensinger, accused of keeping their 13-year-old daughter locked in a filthy room for seven years, will enter pleas to child neglect charges Tuesday.

The couple, arraigned Friday in Municipal Court, was held in lieu of $2,100 bail each.

Juvenile authorities called the case disgusting. They said Elaine Kensinger told them she was allowed out of her room only to attend school.

The girl's grandmother, Florence Kensinger, told police the mother has "treated Elaine mean since she was a baby."

"I don't know why," the grandmother said. "She hated her and told people so. I knew about it, but couldn't get anywhere."

"When I used to go there, they wouldn't let Elaine out to have dinner with us. If she poked her head out of the door, one of her brothers would throw a book at her to get her back," she said.

A picture of hatred and tension emerged as authorities probed the Kensinger family's history.

The mother, Ruby Kensinger, 36, said Elaine had been confined to her room for only the past three months. She told police she wants all her children back, except Elaine, who she said can go elsewhere "if she wants to."

Elaine and the other Kensinger children, Mary, 4, Robert, 8, and Frank, 15, have been placed in temporary foster homes.

School officials said Elaine has near genius intelligence, but has done "C" and "D" work.

Teachers said she was ashamed of her worn yellow clothing, and was extremely shy. They tried to give the family clothing for Elaine, but it was turned down.

Elaine's 10x12-foot room had only a coffee can for a toilet. She told authorities she had not had a bath for seven years. When she was given a tooth brush at Juvenile Hall, she said she didn't know how to use it.

Is Reynosa A Good Town? It Depends On Your Viewpoint

By B. F. KELLUM

REYNOSA, Mexico (AP)—"The fastest growing city in Mexico," boast Chamber of Commerce and civic leaders of Reynosa.

"The sin city of North America," charge some church officials on the Texas side of the river in McAllen.

Its bloodstream is fed by the long artery of tourist traffic that moves across the Rio Grande. Reynosa is born each sundown and dies at dawn. It has millionaires and beggars . . . fancy night clubs and shabby brothels . . . the picturesque and the squalid.

Tourists shopping for curios . . . a street vendor trying to sell a cheap ring . . . mule-drawn carts . . . sleek cars . . . age-old customs mingled with the modern.

A huge chunk of its 67,000 population depends on the tourist for a livelihood. Reynosa knows what the tourist wants. It usually sees that he gets it.

The estimated six million visitors a year are greeted by a network of night clubs, eating spots, floor shows, cocktail bars, liquor stores and curio shops.

But if a tourist's blood demands something richer, one of the winding, unpaved streets will lead him to it—gambling, pornographic movies, narcotics and prostitution.

A few blocks uptown from "international strip" is the main plaza, surrounded by more night clubs, curio shops and liquor stores. Just off the plaza is the market place with more than 100 stalls where a tourist can buy anything from a peanut to a goat.

Liquor is the big seller. Prices are far below those on the U.S. side with quarts of rum selling for $1.20-1.35; gin $1.10-1.25; vodka $1.10-1.25 and tequila $.80-1.10.

Some idea of the volume can be seen in the estimate of Texas tax officials that $100,000 a year is collected on liquor at the bridge.

"The night clubs are continually changing their program to meet the demands of the tourists," says Jaime Torres, manager of two of the larger clubs.

The floor show always means a stripper.

"The stripper is what the tourist wants," Torres, a graduate of Texas A&M, said. "We have tried other acts but we always go back to the stripper."

Some years back the stripper wound up naked. Now the union says not quite—just nearly. The union also demands that the strippers stay a certain distance from the customers. A few years ago they danced on the tables.

How does a tourist stay out of trouble?

"Stay where the lights are bright," Torres grins.

Just about everyone agrees that most tourists who get into trouble do so because they wander about a mile west of the international bridge to "boys town," a sprawling community of neon signs, cantinas, dope pushers and prostitutes.

Conservative estimates place the number of prostitutes in "boys town" at 800.

Hard on the heels of news that our February fire losses had been trimmed to a welcome low, two blazes broke out last week. So far as dollars are concerned, they weren't costly, but in terms of two families being dispossessed, a firemen being injured and a woman badly burned, they were most serious.

Vigorous Debate Follows Showing Of Anti-Red Film

Editor's Note—A film called "Operation Abolition" is proving one of the most controversial in years. It was made by a Washington, D.C., film from newsreels subpoenaed by the House Committee on Un-American Activities and concerns the riots at San Francisco's City Hall last May. Robert Eunson, chief of bureau for The Associated Press in San Francisco, attended a showing of the film Friday night and reports on a debate which followed.

By ROBERT EUNSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The question of whether college students were "duped" by Communists during the City Hall riots here last May was strenuously debated Friday night at the Press and Union League Club.

A former FBI agent, a San Francisco business man and an attorney said the students and their leaders "did the work of Communists" when they picketed a meeting of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

A student leader, a San Francisco attorney and a representative of the American Civil Liberties Union blamed San Francisco police for the eruption which led to fire hoses being turned on the demonstrators.

The forum followed a showing of "Operation Abolition," controversial film being circulated throughout the country with the committee's endorsement.

Fred Dupuis, the former agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, when asked specifically, said he had no evidence to prove that there was Communist activity on the University of California campus. Dupuis, now a fire insurance underwriter, called attention to the film which showed a student being questioned by the committee on his Communist party affiliation.

Richard Chesney, a senior at the university, said the student in question was "not bright enough nor old enough" to dupe him. Chesney said he acted as liaison man for the press and police during the demonstration.

He declared that if there were "two or three hard core Communists" on the Berkeley campus, he doubted they could influence the 20,000 other students. Chesney said academic requirements at California were such that students usually were above average in intelligence.

"The House Un-American Activities Committee and the Communists need each other," declared Ernest Besig, executive secretary of the American Civil Liberties Union. He blamed the committee and the police for allowing Communists to demonstrate within the chamber and said the disruption was allowed "to get the headlines."

Edward P. Heavey, a San Francisco attorney, when questioned, would not say the leaders of the riots were Communists, but added "they were doing the work of Communists and perhaps knowingly."

"Police brutality" was deplored by James Thatcher, another attorney, who was taking the students' side of the argument. Thatcher said he saw welts on the limbs of girls who were taken to the city jail.

City Court Sets $896 In Fines

Fifty - eight fines were levied in corporation court during the week, with the total amounting to $896.

Eleven of the cases were appealed and under the new method of trying appeal cases in County Court without too much loss of time, could run the fines, costs, and attorney's fees, finally assessed to a much higher total.

There were 22 fined for drunkenness bringing in $580; eight for running red lights (one appealed) $45; three for exceeding safe and prudent speed (one appealed) $35; four for excessive noise (two appealed) $30; two with no valid driver's license in possession (both appealed) $45; one with no inspection sticker on car (appealed) $5; one improper left turn (appealed) $10; two with no driver's license (one appealed) $30; one operating motor vehicle without lights, and failure to appear (appealed) $20; five for vagrancy $24; one passing without sufficient clearance $10; three following too close, causing accident $30; three for running stop signs $20; one failure to yield right of way $10; one double parking $2.

Struck By Car

CLEVELAND, Tex. (AP)—A Texas City man, Ellis J. Jackson, 61, died Saturday after being struck by a car as he stepped from his own vehicle near here.

173 Disease Reports Made

Cases reported by the Big Spring-Howard County Health Unit received from the week's reports by doctors included 173 of 11 diseases. Some of the cases reported were contagious and others were not.

The highest number of cases being treated was given as upper-respiratory with 62; second largest number was for tonsilitis, with 53.

Bo Bowen, health nurse, listed the other cases treated as: Flu 22, diarrhea 10, gastro-intestinal 10, gonorrhea 3, syphilis 1, scarlet fever 4, bulbar pneumonia 3, measles 3, and ringworm 2.

Liz Taylor Has Relapse

LONDON (AP)—Film star Elizabeth Taylor suffered a mild relapse Saturday in her convalescence from double pneumonia, but later was reported back on the road to recovery.

"There was a bit of a scare during the early morning hours," said Sue Cardozo, friend and acting press secretary of the actress, 29.

"But the doctors are quite cheery tonight and everybody seems to think everything will be all right."

Because of the setback, however, a seven-man medical team decided to delay for at least 24 hours removal of a tube inserted in Miss Taylor's windpipe to assist her breathing. She is still fed through a tube in her nose.

Miss Taylor's husband, singer Eddie Fisher, said: "She had a bad night but she has made great improvement every day and her progress continues." He said it would be wrong to say his wife had suffered a real setback.

Miss Taylor was taken to the London Clinic a week ago Saturday night when a case of influenza developed into a staphylococcus infection of both lungs.

Twice she appeared to be at the point of death, but she finally responded to treatment, and her doctors took her off the danger list Thursday night.

Rector Named To Council

The Rev. Donald N. Hungerford, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Big Spring, was elected to the executive council of the Northwest Texas Diocese at a meeting of diocese representatives in Pampa Saturday.

Rev. Hungerford serves on the council for one year.

The Northwest Texas Diocese of the Episcopal Church takes in all of the area from San Angelo north through the Panhandle, and from Monahans on the west to Abilene on the east. The meeting in Pampa convened Friday night and will complete its sessions Sunday.

Jobless But Honest Negro Returns Fortune To Brink's

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An unemployed Negro handyman who returned $240,000 he found on a street got offers Saturday of a job for himself and a college scholarship for his son.

The offers came from Brink's, Inc., which almost lost the money when a canvas bag containing that amount fell from a company truck.

Brink's Saturday sent a car to the modest home of janitor Douglas William Johnson, 50, and drove him to its local office, where he received the offers.

A company spokesman said Johnson wanted to wait until Monday before deciding.

Neither Johnson nor his wife was immediately available for comment.

The spokesman said Johnson was offered a $90 a week job as a guard — "starting just like everybody else with a chance to work his way up." The company also offered to pay college tuition for his son Richard, 16, oldest of the Johnsons' three children.

Until the Brink's offer, the only reward Johnson had received so far had been a bottle of champagne — for appearing on a TV news program.

"But all that will get me will be a headache and I've got enough of them," he said.

"I do feel, however, that there definitely should be a reward for finding that kind of money."

He said friends have been joshing him, saying he could have taken the money and gone to Mexico. Johnson commented:

"But then I never would have been able to come back to the United States and my children would never have forgiven me and the one thing I don't ever want to do is to leave them a bad name. . . .

"I thought if I kept that money, I'd never be able to look my three kids in the face again.

"I was broke when I got up yesterday. I'm still broke today."

Authorities said the money, in unmarked $10 and $20 bills, in a canvas bag, accidentally fell out of the armored truck Friday and was spotted by Johnson as he and his wife, Helen, 38, drove to see about a maintenance job.

The bag was sealed but bore a tag stating the amount inside. Johnson called the FBI.

He has worked about half the time in the last six months, he said, washing windows and hauling away rubbish. He averaged about $100 a month.

AN OPEN LETTER TO OUR PATIENTS:

socialized medicine and you

The time has come for all of us to stand and be counted on the question of Socialized Medicine. It's no longer an academic question, no longer "something to dismiss" or "put off till next year."

The time is now–time to decide whether we want the relationship of patient and physician to continue free . . . or whether we want to trade this freedom for control by the Federal Government.

Congress is considering legislation at this moment which would establish a system of compulsory medical care for the aged with medical or hospital costs to be financed through higher Social Security taxes.

No matter how you sugar-coat the pill – some call it simply "a method of financing"–the proposal adds up to Socializied Medicine. Let's face it, if a bureau of the Federal Government is to administer health-care financing, then that bureau must also supervise the service–for "he who pays the piper calls the tune." And the calling of the tune won't stop with the aged. For, once the principle has been established, it is bound to be expanded until it controls us all.

Let's help those who need help

We all agree to this. And, as for the medical profession, our profession, service to those in need has always been its keystone.

Moreover, when it comes to medical aid for the aged, the concept of helping those who need help has already become law. A Federal grant-in-aid program has been established for the needy and the near-needy–a program designed to be administered locally for locally determined beneficiaries. The benefits reach out to all of the aged who are in need–not merely to people who are covered by Social Security. And because this program is voluntary, based on need alone, all of the aged who don't need help can stay independent.

So, what's at stake if we should choose compulsory health care (Socialized Medicine) for this or any other segment of our population?

Your freedom is at stake

Freedom is what we all stand to lose.

Your freedom to choose the doctor you believe is best for you. And your doctor's freedom–his freedom to treat you in an individual way, adapting his knowledge and skills to your particular problems.

These freedoms are bound to be lost when the Federal Government enters the privacy of the examination room – controlling both standards of practice and the choice of practitioner.

And lost with these freedoms will be one of the basic principles of our responsibility to you. A principle expressed in the physician's pledge–"I will hold in confidence all that my patient confides in me."

There can be no confidence, with impersonal third-party control replacing a voluntary relationship. When the doctor is socialized, his patient is socialized as well.

The critical decision on the question of Socialized Medicine will be made soon in Congress. If you agree with us that preserving the freedoms of medical service is vital, then write to your Senators and Congressman. Join us in telling them that Socialized Medicine is not for us–that free men and free institutions are competent to solve tomorrow's problems as yesterday's were solved . . . that medical aid for the aged can be supplied without resorting to Federal control.

Gen. Warren To Address 52 Webb AFB Graduates

Graduation exercises for pilot training Class 61-F will be held Friday, March 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Base Chapel.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Brig. Gen. Robert H. Warren, vice commander, Air Proving Ground Center, Eglin AFB, Fla.

Gen. Warren, a native of Yankton, S. D., attended Yankton College for two years, then attended the U.S. Military Academy and graduated in 1940. In 1941 he received his pilot's wings upon graduation from flying school at Maxwell Field, Alabama.

Before and during the early days of WWII, Gen. Warren flew antisubmarine patrol duty from Newfoundland and Florida. In mid-1942 he moved to Boise, Idaho, with the 29th Group and participated in the B-17 crew and unit training program as a flight commander, squadron commander and then for a year as deputy commander of the 14th Bomb Wing.

During 1944 and 1945 he was assigned to the 14th Air Force B-24 combat units in Europe and during this time he flew 38 combat missions in Europe. After a tour of duty at Grand Island, Neb. in 1945, the general was assigned to Headquarters, Army Air Forces in Washington where he held a series of assignments, including chief of personnel procurement division, chief of personnel policy officer and deputy director of personnel planning.

Following graduation from the Air War College at Maxwell in June, 1950, he was assigned to Headquarters Far East Air Forces during the three years of the Korean War. Returning to the U.S. in 1953, he served in various executive positions at USAF Headquarters in Washington, D. C. Gen. Warren's last assignment in the Pentagon before coming to Eglin was as military assistant to the late Donald Quarles, deputy secretary of defense.

GEN. R. H. WARREN

Gleason Is Sixth To Hold VA Post

John S. Gleason Jr., a former Chicago banking executive, recently became Administrator of Veterans Affairs. He is the sixth man to head the VA since it was established in 1930.

At 45, Gleason is the youngest man ever to hold the title. He will be in charge of about 172,000 employes in an agency which annually spends about $5 billion.

His responsibilities include administration of the GI insurance, GI loan, and GI educational programs. In addition he is charged with operation of the largest medical program in the United States, 170 VA hospitals and 91 clinics.

Gleason was born in Chicago, Feb. 11, 1915 and attended Georgetown Preparatory School in Washington, D. C. He graduated from Notre Dame in 1936 and did postgraduate work at Harvard and the University of Wisconsin.

JOHN S. GLEASON

In 1941, he enlisted in the Army as a private, and by the end of World War II, was a lieutenant colonel. He is a veteran of campaigns in New Guinea, the Marshall Islands and the Philippines. Decorations and awards he received include the Silver Star, Soldiers Medal, Legion of merit, Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters and the Philippines Legion of Honor.

Gleason became a reserve major-general in 1958 as commanding general of the 85th Infantry Division.

After World War II, he resumed his career and in 1955 was named vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago. He became president of Chicago Helicopter Airways in the same year.

For 13 years Gleason was a member of the Illinois Veterans Commission. He was selected as a Notre Dame "Man of the Year" in 1958. Gleason, his wife and their six sons live in Winnetka, Ill.

Traffic Deaths Ahead of 1960

AUSTIN (AP) — The Department of Public Safety said Saturday 1961 traffic fatality figures are running five per cent ahead of the same period last year.

There have been 296 traffic deaths in 250 fatal accidents this year compared to 281 deaths in 234 accidents last year.

The number of fatal accidents has increased seven per cent.

School Personnel To Hold Meeting

HOUSTON (AP) — More than 500 teachers and high school administrators are expected for the Texas State Teachers Association District 1 meeting here Thursday and Friday.

The educators will come from 25 Southeast Texas counties.

Dr. Herold Hunt, professor of education at Harvard University, will be one of the speakers.

Jayhawks Again Win At Laredo

LAREDO—Howard County Junior College won its divisional championship in the annual Border Olympics for the third straight year here Saturday afternoon, scoring a total of 72.

Surprising Victoria, on the comeback in track and field after dropping football, was second with 51 points; followed by Lubbock Christian, with 32½.

Fourth was Mexico Prep, with 25½; while Blinn was fifth, with 14; Paris sixth, 12; Lee of Baytown and Mexico Poly, tied for seventh, 8 each; Wharton ninth, 7; San Antonio tenth, 5; Monterrey Tech of Mexico 11th, 3; and Schreiner Institute 12th, two.

High point man of the meet was HCJC's Eugene Franklin, a sophomore from Abilene. Franklin finished with 16½ points. He won the 220-yard low hurdles in 24.1, the high jump Friday with a leap of 5-feet-11; had a leg on the winning sprint relay team; and was second to Victoria's Charles Ennis in the 120-low hurdles.

The Big Spring team had five boys among the top six scorers. Herman Robinson finished second with 15. Williams Argo wound up with 13 while Tiffin Stone had ten. The Hawks' Dean Cheatham finished in a tie for fith with Victoria's Pete Cortinas in the scoring race. Each counted 9½ points.

Franklin won a trophy for his efforts, as did the entire HCJC team.

The Hawks' mile relay team set a record, negotiating the distance in 3:24.0, beating the old standard by 1.9 second. Robinson, running the third leg in the event for the Hawks, was 15 yards back when he took the baton and was leading by seven yards when he handed it to Argo.

Robinson had set a record in the 220 Friday with a 21.5 clocking. He won the event Saturday in 21.7. The Negro lad from Corpus Christi also tied the 100-yard dash Friday with a 9.7 timing. Saturday he won the race in ten seconds flat.

HCJC's sprint relay team of Robinson, Franklin, Cheatham and Argo shattered the record by .7 of a second in winning comfortably. They were timed in 42.2.

Pete Cortinas of Victoria raced the half mile in 1:59.5 to set a new record while Lubbock Christian's Larry Reed had a 49.8 clocking in the 440 for still another record.

HCJC will host ACC's freshmen and Lubbock Christian in a triangular next Saturday, starting at 1 p.m.

LAREDO (AP)—Baytown won the high school division of the Border Olympics Saturday, finishing with a total of 39 points.

Roy Hicks of Corpus Christi Solomon Coles stole the show, winning the high hurdles, high jump and broad jump in the high school division, setting a record of 14.1 in the hurdles, and grabbing 16 points. The Negro boy tried manfully to win the meet by himself but couldn't quite make it. He was fifth in his other event—the low hurdles—and his 440-yard relay team failed to place.

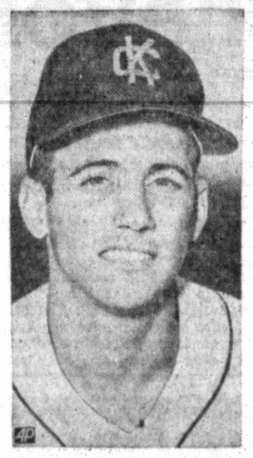

Hicks' greatest showing, however, was in the high jump where he leaped 6 feet 4¾ inches to better the record by an inch and three-quarters.

Baytown won both relays, taking the mile in a great finish that saw Arthur Whitmer beat out his conqueror in the 440-yard dash, Charles White of Houston Worthington, on the final lap by a bare foot. Baytown had 39 points.

The high schools set eight records and tied one.

Baytown finished with a flourish, setting a record of 3:21.9 in the mile relay. It bettered the 3:32.2 set by Houston Lamar in 1959. Baytown had started the meet by setting a new mark in the 440-yard relay in 42.9.

Other high school records were: 180-yard low hurdles, Jesse Crawford, Snyder, 18.9; 880-Wendell Price, Houston Worthington, 1:55.8; 440-yard dash, Charles White, Houston Worthington, 48.5; pole vault, Robert Penn, Midland, 13 feet. Boyd Timmons of Houston Milby tied the 100-yard dash record at 9.6.

Baylor Is New Border Champ

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — Baylor dethroned crippled Texas for the championship of the Border Olympics Saturday night as records fell right and left, with Olympic Star Earl Young upsetting Texas' Ralph Alspaugh in the featured 220-yard dash.

Other Olympians had their ups-and-downs as Stone Johnson of Grambling won the 100 but dropped out of the 220 and Houston's Al Lawrence, an Australian Olympics performer, was badly beaten in the two-mile.

John Frey of Baylor hurled the shot 57 feet 5¾ inches for an outstanding record — the first Texas collegian to ever go over 57 feet in a Texas meet.

Baylor racked up 61½ points to sweep the university division title and Abilene Christian wound up with 48 points for second place as defending champion Texas, which lost both of its star hurdlers through injuries, wound up third with 40.

Steers Golfers Claim Honors At Abilene

ABILENE — The Big Spring Steers shocked a field of 20 teams in the 36-hole Cooper High School Invitational Golf Tournament here by winning first place with a four-man score of 616.

The Longhorns posted a 308 each day of play to beat out runnerup San Angelo by 13 strokes. San Angelo trailed the Steers by only four strokes at the end of the first day of competition.

Big Spring also supplied the medalist in John Sloan, who posted a 71-74—145. Sloan beat out the favorite, Don Lackey of Borger, by five strokes.

San Angelo skidded to a 317 on Saturday but managed to beat out Andrews by two strokes. Pampa was fourth, at 632; while Brownwood finished fifth with a 635. Midland was sixth, at 637; while favored Borged dropped back to seventh, with a 639.

Other District 2-AAAA schools entered, and their scores, included:

Abilene, 642; Odessa Permian, 663; Odessa High, 673. Cooper, the host, posted a two-day score of 720.

G. W. Warden of Andrews won the coach's tournament conducted in conjunction with the tournament. He posted a 147. Hugh Cochran of Odessa High and Dan Lewis of Big Spring tied for second, each with 153.

The Big Spring players won individual awards (miniature golf balls decorated with the letter C) while the team took home a big trophy.

Sloan carved out his 71, one under par, at the Abilene Muny course.

COACH LEWIS EYES MORGAN AWARD

Herd Sweeps Two Games

ABILENE — Dexter Pate and Roy New hurled the Big Spring Steers to a double victory over Cooper High of Abilene here Saturday afternoon, 7-4 and 10-0.

The triumphs gave Big Spring a 4-2 record for the season. The Longhorns take a rest until Friday afternoon, at which time they oppose Lubbock Monterey in Big Spring.

Pate contained the Cooper power with a five-hit job in the opener. His mates staked him to a five-run lead, including a two-run homer by Jerry Tucker, in the first inning and that was all he needed.

The Steers drove out seven hits in all off two Cooper hurlers while Abilene managed five off Pate. Dexter fanned five and walked only two. One of Cooper's safeties was a two-run round tripper by Mike Trush in the sixth.

New was all but perfect in the second game. Tommy Tucker greeted him with a single in the opening inning, the only hit Cooper managed. Roy struck out nine and granted only two bases on balls.

His mates got behind him with an 11-hit attack, including four-masters by Jack Irons, Gene Lamb, Jerry Dunlap and Charles Boadle.

The homers by Irons, Lamb and Dunlap came in a row in the second inning.

Big Spring had counted four runs in the first inning with the aid of five hits, all of them singles.

Jeff Brown had a double and a single for Big Spring in the opener. In the second go, Irons, Dunlap and Boadle each banged out a pair of safeties.

Boadle waited until the fourth round to pickle a pitch. It came with the sacks deserted.

Bolt Leading At Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Tommy Bolt of Crystal River, Fla., shot a 4-under-par 68 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead in the third round of the $20,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

Bolt's card after 54 holes was 72-68-68—208. One stroke behind were Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla., 72-70-67—209, and Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill., 71-70-68—209.

Four players were bunched at 210 — Tommy Jacobs, Bermuda Dunes, Calif.; Gay Brewer, Crystal River; Arnold Palmer, Maimi, the halfway leader, and George Bayer, South Pasadena, Calif.

BOLT

Bolt, playing without a bogey since the 11th hole of the first round, hit 15 greens in his 33-35 round Saturday.

Furgol started his round with a 4-under-par 32 on the first nine, including four birdies. But he drew a double bogey on 16 and bogied 18.

On the other hand, Finsterwald began the round poorly and was one over par through seven holes after a bogey on the 5th. He collected six birdies in the last 11 holes, however, for a 36-31 round.

The lowest round of the day, a 34-32—66, was turned in by Ken Venturi, Palo Alto, Calif.

Sundown Wins Cage Title By Turning Back Moulton

AUSTIN (AP) — Buna won its second 1961 state Class AA basketball championship Saturday night when the Buna girls defeated Spearman 66-47 in the Texas schoolgirl tournament.

Just a week ago, the Buna boy's team swept to the Class AA championship.

Deon Cummings scored 23 points for Buna, Eunice Killen 22, and Sonja Thornton 21. High scorer for Spearman was Sherly Driscoll with 23 points.

Midway of Henrietta defeated Claude 54-48 for the Class B Championship. Sherrell Ingram of Midway was high scorer with 26 points. Betty Ransom and Nancy Hundley each scored 18 for Claude.

In another game Big Sandy of Dallardsville beat Hawley 61-51 for third place in the Class B playoffs.

Judy Beasley scored 45 points for Hawley to boost her three-game total to 144 points. Jeannie Williams with 29 points was high for Big Sandy.

The Sundown Roughettes won the Class A championship by beating the Moulton Bobkittens 50-46. Sue Jones of Sundown was high scorer, tossing in 36 points. Her two-game total of 85 points is a new record for Class A state schoolgirl playoffs.

In a game played Friday afternoon at Austin, Claude defeated Ackerly, 66-46.

Claude took the lead after the West Texas team had scored the first two points of the game. Sands led on only one other occasion, at 5-4.

Betty Ransom paced Claude with 26 points while Judy Roman was tops for Sands with 18.

Steer Ex Named Friendliest Boy

Charles (Bud) Bridges, former Big Spring High School football player, was among the four chosen recently as class favorites at Ranger College.

Bridges graduated from the local high school in 1960. At Ranger, he was named the friendliest boy on the campus.

A Physical Education major, Bud is the son of Mrs. Mary Bridges of Big Spring.

In high school, he lettered three years in football and was a member of the track team two years. He also won his football letter on the Ranger College team.

Named as Friendliest Girl at Ranger was Mary Kay Rush of Ranger. Best all - around students are Delbert Jones of Woodson and Sandy Taylor of Eastland.

Buckeyes Batter Illini, 95 To 66

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Top-ranked Ohio State Saturday uncorked a scoring avalanche in the last half to wallop Illinois 95-66 and become the first major college basketball team since 1957 to end its regular season undefeated.

The Buckeyes also became the first Big Ten cage team since 1919 to go through its regular season undefeated.

Headed by All-America Jerry Lucas with 27 points, and Mel Nowell with 22, the tight-pressing, ball-stealing Buckeyes ballooned a five-point halftime lead into a 54-40 margin in the opening 2½ minutes of the second half and won going away.

It was the Big Ten and defending NCAA champions' 29th straight victory in a streak stretching back to last year, their 24th of the season and 14th in Big Ten action.

The last major basketball college team to win all its regular-season games was North Carolina.

The last Big Ten team to go through an entire season without defeat was Minnesota's Gophers, who had a 13-0 record 42 years ago.

In the opening 10 minutes the score was tied five times and the lead changed six times. Larry Siegfried's long one-hander then put Ohio State ahead to stay, 20-18. At intermission they were in front 43-38.

Ohio State hit 36 out of 81 floor shots for a .444 percentage while the Illini made 25 of 67 for .373. The Buckeyes gathered in 55 rebounds and Illinois 38.

The game was regionally televised.

Mike Marsh Wins All-Star Post

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Tall men dominated the 1961 freshman All-Southwest Conference basketball team, but a little fellow was chosen outstanding player.

Texas A&M's Bennie Lennox, a 6 foot, 2 inch sharpshooter from Clear Creek, won the honor over 6-6 Spencer Carlson of Baylor and 6-7 Joe Fisher of Texas.

All three were unanimous choices on the all-SWC frosh team, chosen by vote of coaches and and compiled by the Waco Tribune-Herald.

SMU's 6-8 Mike Marsh and Rice's 6-9 Kendall Rhine complete the first team.

On the second team were Texas' 6-4 Craig Winborn and 6-8 Mike Humphrey, Baylor's 6-6 Herbert Barritt, Rice's 6-5 Larry Phillips and TCU's 6-2 Bobby McKinley.

Local Athletes Place In Meet

WINK — Big Spring Runnels scored nine points and Big Spring Goliad four points in a Junior High School track and field meet here Saturday afternoon.

DeeRoby Gartman of Runnels won first place in the high jump.

John Homberg of Goliad placed in two events. He was second in the 75-yard dash, having been timed in 8.5 seconds. He was also fourth in the 100 in 11.2.

North Texas Wins Title At Laredo

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — North Texas State returned to the top of Border Olympics golf Saturday as the Eagles beat out Texas Wesleyan for the university-college division title with 1181 for 72 holes.

North Texas is a four-time champion but it was 1956 when the Eagles last won the Border Olympics crown. University of Houston had won it four times in a row but did not compete this year.

Texas Wesleyan had 1185, with Texas A&M third with 1187, Stephen F. Austin fourth with 1191 and Texas Tech No. 1 team fifth with 1197.

Stephen F. Austin was leading Texas A&M by three strokes through 54 holes Friday with 885 while North Texas State was third, four strokes away.

North Texas' team scores were: Dick Smith, 283; Bob Greenwood, 296; Bill Garrett and Rives McBee, 301 each.

Medalist for the tournament was Terry Dill of Texas with 281—seven under par for the Casa Blanca Country Club course. It tied the record set by Jacky Cupit of Houston last year.

Westminster Bids For NAIA Title

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Westminster College of New Wilmington, Pa., beaten in the final last year, appears set for another strong championship bid in the 24 National Intercollegiate (NAIA) Basketball Tournament opening Monday morning.

Coach Buzz Ridl's Titans are top-seeded in the 32-team field on a basis of their team experience and 20-3 season record. In the tournament last year Westminster knocked off top-seeded Tennessee State in the semifinals before losing the championship game to Southwest Texas State. The Titans beat Pittsburgh twice this season, by margins of 25 and 17 points.

Conspicuously absent for only the second time in nine years will be Tennessee State, three-time champion of the small college tournament, beaten 92-82 by Winston-Salem (N.C.) in a district playoff.

Seeded second and heading the lower bracket is Northern Michigan of Marquette. Coach Stan Albeck's Michigan team won 20 games, one of them with Michigan State of the Big Ten, and was beaten by only Bradley and Mankato (Minn.)

The other seeded teams in order are Georgetown (Ky.) (23-5), Oglethorpe (20-3), Anderson (Ind.) (24-3), Steubenville (Ohio) (16-10), Central Oklahoma (17-6), Whitworth (19-9), Winston-Salem (24-4), Illinois Wesleyan (16-10), Southwest Texas (19-7), Emporia State (17-5), Grambling (27-4), Redlands (26-6), Princess Anne (Md.) State (17-5) and Newberry (S.C.) College (22-7).

Coach Fred Hobby's Grambling Tigers, beaten in the quarter-finals by Southwest Texas last year, were fifth-ranked nationally in the final poll of small college teams. The Tigers had a 27-4 regular season record and drew the 13th-seeded tournament spot.

Among the individual stars are Carl Short of Newberry who has a 28.7-point scoring average, and Cleo Hill of Winston-Salem with a 26.7-point average.

Newberry and Simpson (Iowa) College (13-11) will open the tournament at 10:30 a.m., (CST), Monday. There'll be four games daily and nightly through Wednesday. The quarter-finals will be played Thursday night, the semi-finals Friday night and the championship and consolation game Saturday night.

Westminster will make its start in a game with Arkansas State (19-6) at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Five Webb Boxers Go To Lackland

Webb AFB is sending a five-man team to participate in the 1961 Air Training Command Boxing Tournament at Lackland. The squad, coached by S.Sgt. Frank Castillo of the 331st FIS, leaves tomorrow and will return on March 20.

Included in the team are: Welterweight Paul Harris, Air Base Group; light welterweights Albert Palladino, Willey Thomas, 331st FIS, and Fred Bass, 4444 Group; lightweight Chuch Waugh, M&S Group.

Ponies Triumph

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Southern Methodist swimmers splashed to a victory in the final event, the 400-yard medley relay, to win the 30th annual Southwest Conference swimming meets held here Saturday night.

Basilio Winner Over D. Jordan

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Old pro Carmen Basilio sharpened up for a middleweight title shot next month by taking a unanimous decision from Don Jordan Saturday night in a nationally televised 10-rounder between the two ex-champions. Basilio weighed 156, Jordan 151½.

Basilio methodically belted away at the slimmer, taller Los Angeles Negro and dominated the fight. There were no knockdowns. Joe Palmer awarded Basilio eight rounds, Judge Lou Goldstein called it six for Basilio three for Jordan and one even.

Late Swing Helpful To Batting Champion

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — The National League's most valuable player and batting champion hit a weak grounder and a voice in the background bellowed:

"Keep both hands on the bat, boy."

Before batter Dick Groat could regain his composure he mumbled a few words about wise guys giving instructions. He then looked up just in time to see the owner of the voice sitting with folded arms in the dugout at Terry Field. It was Manager Danny Murtaugh.

Groat just smiled but there was a time, however, when fresh from a great athletic career at Duke University, he could have stood some hitting instruction.

The 30-year-old Groat is about the best hit and run man in the business because he swings late and usually gets a piece of the ball when he tries to hit behind the runner.

"I've swung late ever since I was a kid," Groat says.

"In 1952, when I first came up from Duke, the New York Giants played third baseman Henry Thompson near short and Alvin Dark, the shortstop, would play close to second base.

"Branch Rickey and George Sisler (Pirate hitting coach) told me I'd better learn to pull the ball to left field. With my power I'd have to spray the ball to all fields, they told me.

"I watch the ball longer. That means I hit it a lot after it breaks. I don't roll my wrists like the real good hitters. When I meet the ball my right hand goes under the bat rather than over it.

"It's sort of like a golf slice. When I'm not hitting a golf ball real good I slice."

Shortstop — Captain Groat, a .286 career hitter until last season when he upped his mark to .291 on the strength of a league-leading .325, batted only .214 in the World Series, but it was a potent .214.

His double to right off Art Ditmar drove in the first Pirate run in a three-run first inning in the opening game.

In the eighth inning of the final game he drove home, the first run against Bobby Shantz and knocked out the little left hander in what became a five-run inning.

Groat made four other hits in the series and on three of them he led off an inning.

Swinging late is the reason Groat bats second for the world champions. He knows how to move runners around with the hit to right or with a sacrifice.

Besides his league leading average he also led the Pirates in hits with 186 and his 85 runs scored was his personal high after seven seasons in the majors.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With TOMMY HART

EMORY BELLARD

CLOVIS RILEY

Harold Davis, the former Howard County JC cage mentor who recently wound up his second season as coach at Texas Western College, was happy with the manner in which his team surged at the end of the campaign . . . Some of the Border Conference mentors thought Harold had the best quintet in the league at the end of the season . . . The Miners lost to Arizona State, which tied for the crown, by three points and beat West Texas State and Hardin-Simmons by about 25 each . . . "Our boys were just beginning to find themselves and were developing into a real good ball club just when we were finishing," Davis wrote this corner . . . Western finished with a 12-12 overall record — only Arizona State and New Mexico State did better . . . Davis had a colored player he couldn't use in a tournament at Shreveport (due to segregation laws) and lost much of his height, including a 6-9 boy, before he played his first game . . . "Otherwise, we could have won six more games easily. This would have given us an 18-6 record," he added . . . His tallest player most of the season stood only 6-feet-3½ . . . However, few teams out-rebounded the Miners . . . According to Harold, Big Spring's Jimmy Evans, who joined the Miners at mid-term, came along fast in the last few games and the school is expecting a lot from him next year . . . Right now, Evans is out for spring football drills and recently was moved from quarterback to halfback . . . Pat Truly, Midland scribe, refers to Big Spring's R. L. Lasater as "great-when-hale-which-isn't-often" . . . That 17-16 baseball game played by Big Spring and Snyder here the other day is by no means an area record for this spring . . . Cooper High of Abilene and Sweetwater recently played an 18-17 contest . . . Grid Star Recommended By Cordill

Ed Red, a shy Louisiana football phenom who is now at Rice University, was recommended to coach Jess Neely by Ollie Cordill, the one-time Big Spring and Rice great who now resides in Lafayette, La. . . . Paul Dietzel, the LSU mentor, said recently of Red: "There was only one boy in the state of Louisiana we wanted who got away, and that was Ed Red of Lafayette." . . . Red first signed to attend LSU but jumped at the chance to attend Rice when it was offered him because he wants to study science engineering and thinks Rice has the best course in the country . . . Red is also quite a javelin thrower . . . He's reached 230 feet in practice . . . Harold Naughton, a reserve, hit only one point in the game but it was enough to swing the issue Eastern Oklahoma A&M's way in the finals of the Region II junior college basketball tournament at Lawton, Okla., last week . . . Benito Juarez Handicap Is On Tap Today

EL PASO—Sunland Park stages one of the most outstanding 10-race programs yet carded at the new plant Sunday, with the spotlight on the $4,000 Benito Juarez Handicap which rematches Winsham Lad, Mr. Vale and Spinney.

The small but select Juarez field tangle at a flat mile with the race a virtual re-run of the Sunland Park Handicap that thrilled fans here closing day of the fall meeting.

Although he was defeated in that encounter, Mr. Vale has since easily won three straight at Phoenix, accounting for the Great Southwest, Arizona Downs, and Governor's Handicap at distances up to a mile and one furlong topweight, and while packing 128 pounds Sunday will be spotting his five rivals five to 20 pounds. Winsham Lad, victorious in the Big Cap here closing day, is in with 123; Spinney, who finished third in the race is lightly rigged at 115. Only Ginos Dream, who finished second, is not in the Sunday Titanic.

There was speculation that Mr. Vale was the better horse in the Sunland Park Handicap, but was not up to the mile and one furlong route.

The Temulac stable's hopeful, Winsham Lad, tasted defeat twice at Santa Anita but was tackling some of the best in the land. He still lays claim to the championship of the Southwest and will be shooting for his sixth consecutive victory on the Sunland oval.

Although the 'big three' figure prominently, handicappers are not overlooking the prospect of an outsider stealing the race. Mrs. Frances Lovelace's Ambiel has reportedly taken well to the track and could prove a factor with his feathery impost of 108 pounds. He has won races at major California tracks and is a proven router.

Another California invader, Fred Grimes' Challenge All at 117 pounds, must be considered. The handsome four-year-old colt won two races with fast company at Golden Gate Fields last fall and ran a respectable fourth to Azure's Orphan, winner of the Del Mar Futurity, at Santa Anita before shipping to Sunland. Challenge All will be piloted by Larry Byers and in the all important draw for post position drew the rail.

The only outsider in the contest appears to be Diamond Jubilee who hails from the hard-hitting stable of W. C. Tompkins.

Nominations:
FIRST (6 furl.) — Solid Cal, Gary R., Condemnation, Free Dough, Rastus Bee, Underhand, Khaled's Kin, Aney Signel, Runotrouble; also Glinda, Goldero, Moose Man.

SIXTH (6 furl.) — Boy's Be Sure, Wet Weather, Free Play, Teds Jeep, Black Tiger, My Lands, Kay Luver, Mighty King.
SEVENTH (1 M & 1-16) — "The El Correo Purse" — Proud Way, Wongs, Summer Fun, Wish U Well, Battlement, Precioso Ind.
EIGHTH (5½ furl.) — "The El Fronteriza Purse" — Masud, Miss Independent, Gold Cadet, Sassy Sissy, Half Share, Kerry Piper, Tuberara, Call Hy, Judilo.
NINTH (1 mile) — "Benito Juarez Purse" — Challenge All, Ambiel, Mr. Vale, Diamond Jubilee, Winsham Lad, Spinney.
TENTH (6½ furl.) — Very Truly, Stormy Easter, Lady Alibi, Joenik, Thats Maplow, Trojan Courtesan, Dawn Wind, Superb Idea, Didjano, Stick Man.

Paul Lowe Rates Better Average

DALLAS (AP)—Abner Haynes, the Dallas Texan rookie, led the American Football League in rushing with 875 yards but had Paul Lowe of Los Angeles handled the ball four more times he might have won.

At that Lowe had the best average. He carried the ball 20 times fewer than Haynes and averaged 6.3 yards compared to 5.6 for Abner.

Final official league statistics issued Saturday showed Haynes and Lowe each scored nine touchdowns on rushing plays to tie for first in that category.

Dey Is Winner Of Golf Award

CHICAGO (AP) — Joseph Charles Dey Jr., 53-year-old executive director of the United States Golf Association, Saturday was named winner of the William D. Richardson trophy.

The trophy, named for the late golf editor of the New York Times, is presented annually by the Golf Writers Association of America for the outstanding contribution to the game.

Schoolboy Runner Steals Spotlight In News Meet

CHICAGO (AP) — Tom Sullivan, 18, a Chicago high school senior, today peered ahead to the 1964 Olympics. And well he might after bringing down the house in the Chicago Daily News Relays with a 1,000-yard triumph over veteran rivals.

Sullivan's one-yard triumph over Olympian Peter Close in the creditable time of 2:10.5 stole the spotlight from Hungarian Istvan Rozsalvolgyi's 4:04.7 triumph in the featured Banker's mile before 10,301 in the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

A senior at St. George High School in suburban Evanston, Ill., Sullivan outlasted Close in a mad dash for the tape after Close had run the first 800 yards in 1:54.8, fastest for the distance in the meet's history. Another veteran runner, Ed Moran, of the New York Athletic Club, finished third.

"I was shooting for 2:09," said Sullivan, "but 2:10.5 is good. I've got plenty of time. What I'm looking forward to is the 1964 Olympics. By that time, I should be ready for the 1,500 meters."

A second teen-ager, Bruce Kidd, of Toronto, was runnerup to Rozsalvogyi in the Banker's, finishing 40 yards behind the Hungarian in the best time of his young career, 4:09.4.

"That Hungarian set such a pace, that I was out of the race from the start, but I kept running," said Kidd, who is more used to running the two-mile or three-mile.

Other Relays' standouts were little Max Truex, whose fine 8:49.1 victory in the two-mile broke Greg Rice's 20-year-old meet mark of 8:51.1; and Olympic champion Ralph Boston's 26-foot, ¼ inch leap in the meet's first broad jump event.

I'national Loop Play Is Nearing

Spring is just around the corner and so is the baseball season. Locally the International Little League will start April 8 with the signing of players. Two weeks of spring training will follow, with the first game scheduled on April 29.

All boys 8 to 12 years of age who reside within the boundaries of the International League are eligible to participate in the program. Youth Activity Cards are not required for the Little League program.

The league will consist of five major and six minor league teams. A sixth major league team can be added if the registration indicates enough boys to form a sixth team.

Adults are needed to assist in the Little League program. Managers, umpires, and scorekeepers are needed. Also volunteer workers are required to get the field in playing condition. If interested in assisting in the Little League program, please contact one of the following league officials:

S. M. Sgt. John F. Homberg, Ext. 355 or AM 3-3111; M.Sgt. Gordon Seales, Ext. 785, or AM 3-4578; M. Sgt. Harrold E. Butler, Ext 262 or AM 3-4279; Inola Blackwell, Ext 127, or AM 3-2727; Mr. Erhart, Ext 666 or AM 3-2595; Mr. Bingham, Ext 560.

Any organization desiring to sponsor a team should also contact one of the above officials for information.

Patterson Is Heavily Favored Over Swede

By JACK HAND

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson is heavily favored to blitz Ingemar Johansson again in another explosive title fight Monday night at Convention Hall.

The first bout in 1959 lasted only three rounds. The under-rated Swede dropped Patterson seven times and scored a stunning upset with his "toonder and lightning" right-hand punch. The second match eight months ago went five rounds as Patterson flattened Johansson with a left hook and became the first ex-champ to regain the heavyweight throne.

Heavy odds favoring Patterson at from 3 to 1 to 4 to 1 hint another quick ending in their "rubber" match. Practically nobody expects it to go the scheduled 15 rounds.

Many observers think Johansson's only chance is to land his big right early. Given a chance to run through his full arsenal of quick, heavy punches, most of the "experts" think Patterson will send the Swede crashing to a second straight defeat.

However, the "experts" were dead wrong in the first two fights. Each time the favorite lost.

Original estimates of a sellout and talk of a $1-million gate have disappeared. Now it seems likely that about 12,000 will pay some $500,000 to see the bout in the 17,000-seat indoor arena.

There will be no regular home television for this match, scheduled for 10:30 p.m. (EST), however, it will be carried on closed circuit TV to 207 locations with a capacity of 756,195 seats. It also will be carried on 30 special community TV antenna systems covering about 100,000 sets.

The fight will be carried on network (ABC) radio.

Until he ran into Patterson's savage left hooks last June, Johansson, 28, had been unbeaten as a professional. Now his record is 22-1 with 14 knockouts. He was out for several minutes after being floored for the second time by a Patterson hook in the fifth round of their second match.

Patterson, 26, was a 5 to 1 favorite in his first bout with Ingemar but was down seven times before they stopped it. The victory in the rematch gave him a 36-2 record for 38 pro starts with 27 knockouts.

Patterson weighed 182 in the first fight, 190 in the second and expects to come in anywhere from 190 to 195 for Monday's bout.

Johansson expects to weigh about 200 Monday compared with 196 for the first Patterson bout and 194¾ for the second.

Two local judges and a referee will score the fight by the 10-point "must" system. The winner of a round must get 10 points, the loser nine or less. Even rounds are 10-10.

Secret Of Casting Is In The Wrists

By TOMMY HART

Talk about your Doc Hallidays and Bill Bonneys of the Old West.

Harold Broughton of Big Spring, a young man who has a bent for piscatorial pursuits, is just about as accurate with a casting rod as the old gunslingers of that bygone era were with their trusty .45's.

Fact is, Harold—who slips away to go fishing every chance he gets—is probably better at hitting a particular target than was most of that pistol-packing crew.

Fellows like Halliday and Billy The Kid took pride in being able to blast the numbers out of playing cards but they did their shooting from very close range. Broughton can wrap a fishing line around your finger from more than 30 feet away.

He very casually can drop the end of a line into a basket at that distance with a mere flick of the wrist—quite a feat for even the most experienced fisherman.

He says the best bass in the area can be found in the North Concho Lake near San Angelo. He points out that the lake is the "right age" and boasts water ideal to his type of fishing.

He does go to Lake J. B. Thomas frequently but says the water there is often choppy and isn't nearly as settled as the liquid in the North Concho Lake.

Broughton, employed here as manager of the sporting goods department of Gibson's Discount Center, prefers bass fishing over all other types. And he seeks out the game fish with a casting rod, using artificial lures as bait.

He says a good bass fisherman depends on wrist action much like a baseball hitter.

"A lot of fishermen make a mistake by trying to sweep their arms while trying to cast," he says. "It's all in the wrists."

Most of the time, he casts with an overhand motion. Occasionally, when on a creek bank near overhanging tree limbs, Harold, of course, employs the horizontal movement with the casting rod.

He's caught the limit of 25 white bass any number of times on his fishing forays.

Last year he was in a party of four at North Concho Lake that caught slightly over 200 pounds of white bass. Others along on that expedition were Jake Hancock, Tommy Hutto and R. C. Thomas, all of Big Spring.

Broughton will go for catfish if the opportunity presents itself but prefers to catch them on a trotline.

He's been active in the sport for 15 years now and expects never to lose his zest for it. He says his father, M. E. Broughton, also of Big Spring, introduced him to the rod and reel and he himself is teaching his six-year-old son, Jack, to fish the same way.

Jack seems to have inherited his love for the endeavor and goes on fishing trips with his dad, when ever possible. Mrs. Broughton (Juanez) also appreciates a chance to try her luck against the denizens of the deep.

The biggest black bass Harold ever caught was a seven-pounder at Lake Travis. He also reeled in one weighing 6 pounds 3 ounces at San Angelo and another which tipped the scales at an even six pounds at Lake Thomas.

Some day he hopes to fish in some of the bass lakes of Tennessee, where the small-mouth bass abound, and Florida waters, which is supposed to offer the finest bass fishing in the world. He'd also like to try his luck at deepsea fishing sometime.

He says this is the best time of year to catch bass and records bear him out. In the past several weeks, he and friends have taken hundreds of pounds of bass from area lakes.

Many of his friends speak glowingly about his prowess with the casting rods, for what fish he and his family can't eat he gives away.

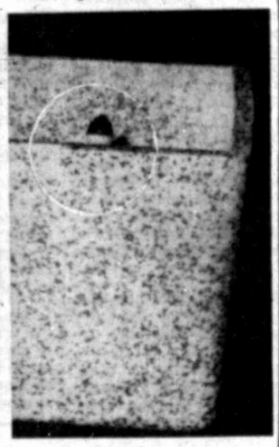

In fishing, he says, the reward is in the pursuit of the game, not in the eating.

Two Texas Teams In NAIA Play

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The two Texas teams in the 23rd basketball tournament of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics will swing into action next Tuesday.

First round pairings pit East Texas Baptist of Marshall against Steubenville, Ohio, at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday while Southwest Texas of San Marcos takes on Central Connecticut at 2:30 p.m.

Initial play in the NAIA tournament gets under way Monday.

NCAA Playoffs Get Under Way Tuesday

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State's unbeaten champions of the Big Ten and top-ranked nationally are favored to retain their National Collegiate (NCAA) basketball title in the 1961 championship tournament that starts Tuesday night.

But the road to their second straight national title may be hard for the Buckeyes and their two-time All-America Jerry Lucas who has sparked them to 28 straight victories.

There are several surprise teams in the tourney this year, such as George Washington, Rhode Island and Los Angeles Loyola. In addition St. John's of New York and Kentucky are on winning streaks and, like St. Bonaventure, would like nothing better than to upset the Buckeyes.

A tripleheader in New York and a doubleheader in Louisville on Tuesday starts the annual post-season competition that ends at Kansas City a week from Saturday, March 25.

George Washington, surprise winner of the Southern Conference, takes on Princeton, Ivy League champs, in the first game in New York St. Bonaventure, with All-America Tom Stith, tangles with Rhode Island, Yankee Conference kingpins, in the second game. In the windup, St. Johns, winner of nine straight, battles Wake Forest, wearers of the Atlantic Coast Conference crown.

The twin bill at Louisville pits Ohio University, winner of the Mid-America Conference, against Louisville and Morehead (Ky), of the Ohio Valley Conference against Xavier (Ohio) or Chicago Loyola.

Ohio State will play its first tourney game Friday night at Louisville against the Ohio U. Louisville winner.

Three more first-round games will be played Wednesday. Houston and Marquette clash at Houston. The other two games are at Portland, Ore., where only one contestant, Soutnern California of the Big Five, has been decided. The Border Conference champs, either Arizona State U. or New Mexico State, and two at-large members still to be named will fill the berths.

Kentucky plays its first tourney game Friday when the four regionals start at Louisville, Charlotte, Lawrence, Kan., and Portland, Ore. Texas Tech, of the Southwest Conference, Kansas State of the Big Eight, Los Angeles Loyola of the West Coast Conference and either Utah or Colorado State U. also will play Friday.

Cincinnati, Missouri Valley Conference champ, may be the surprise of the tourney. The Bearcats meet Texas Tech Friday in the Midwest regionals at Lawrence.

Dallas Is Home For 9 Cowboys

DALLAS — Pro football players usually scatter across the country at the end of a season, but the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League could come close to rounding up a starting lineup without leaving the city limits.

Dallas has a long-standing reputation as an off-season home for athletes in all professional sports and now that the Cowboys are firmly entrenched as a part of the city's scene, it has become the year-round home of no less than nine Cowboys.

The littlest Cowboy, 5-foot 7-inch Eddie LeBaron, holds down the highest job among the Cowboys who are calling Dallas home. LeBaron's office is on the 28th floor of the Southland Center. The first-team quarterback is a tax and corporation lawyer in the firm of Wynne, McKenzie, Stroud, Jaffe & Tinsley.

LeBaron's understudy, Don Meredith, has also settled down in Dallas. He's currently undergoing a training program with American Liberty Oil Company and his off-season job could be a big help when the time comes to remember what numbers stand for what plays on the field—One of Don's duties is to figure the rate of exchange of foreign currency with which the world-wide oil firm comes into contact.

Like LeBaron and Meredith, most of the other Cowboys in Dallas are currently occupied with office jobs.

One of them apologized for being caught in his office the other day. "I should be out on the street talking to people," said halfback Don McIlhenny, the former SMU star who is an insurance salesman.

Two other Cowboys are as much at home in their off-season jobs as they've ever been.

Dave Sherer, the end and punting specialist, is back at SMU to pick up the last couple of courses he needs for his degree. Sherer played at SMU in 1957 and '58 leading the nation in punting his last year.

Mike Falls is a new year-round employe of the Cowboys. He's an offensive guard during the autumn and recently went to work in the Cowboys office, doing public relations work.

Jerry Tubbs, the Cowboys' outstanding middle linebacker is another downtown Dallas businessman, working in the office of the Tecon Corporation.

Three other Cowboys would be hard men to find most of the time. The three—halfback L. G. Dupre and defensive tackles Don Healy and Bill Herchaman—are cement salesmen and spend their working hours traveling around Dallas' booming building industry bidding on construction jobs.

Other Cowboys scattered around Texas include Gene Babb, the former Austin College fullback, Houstonians Billy Howton and Dickie Moegle and West Texans Mike Dowdle and Wayne Hansen.

Bob is working the San Antonio area for Tecon Corporation, after spending a month in Dallas as a substitute teacher in the city's senior and junior high schools.

Howton, who last season became the second leading pass receiver in National Football League history, is in the construction business and is currently building a shopping center in Houston.

The Cowboys' most recent acquisition, Moegle will lend experience to their youngish defensive secondary. He is assistant manager of the Tidelands Motel in Houston.

Dowdle is spending the off-season in San Angelo and Hansen, a 10-year veteran of the NFL, makes his off-season home in El Paso.

There is one other Cowboy in Dallas, but his plans are understandably a little unsettled. Tackle Byron Bradfute, a native of Beeville, will soon start a 2-month tour of duty with the Army. Even then the chances are good that he'll stay in his home state—in San Antonio.

National JC Classic Set For Lawton Mar. 31-Apr. 1

LAWTON, Okla. — The United States' finest junior college basketball players will perform here in the third annual National Junior College All American Basketball Classic, March 31 and April 1.

The 1961 JuCo all - star event will be co - sponsored by Cameron Boosters and the Wigwam Wisemen of America — a non-profit organization with headquarters in Oklahoma City.

This will mark the first time the NJCAA all - star event has been played in Lawton. The first was at Hutchinson, Kans. The 1960 game was staged in Coffeyville, Kans.

"We are extremely pleased that the 1961 National Junior College All America Classic will be played in Lawton," Mose Simms, game director, declared.

This year's JuCo world series of basketball is fully sanctioned and approved by the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Many outstanding junior college performers which have played in the All America series have distinguished themselves notably in four - year circles.

These All America "graduates" include:

Allen Holmes (6-3, Weber College, Ogden, Utah) at the University of Utah; Jim Mini (5-7, La Salle, Ill.) at Loyola of Chicago; Allen K. Tolen (6-1, Moberly, Mo.) leading scorer at Texas Western.

Fritz Greer (6-0, Murray Aggies of Tishomingo, Okla.) starter for Henry Iba at Oklahoma State; Bobby Ray Jackson (6-5, Itawamba, Miss.) starter for Western Kentucky; Don and Pat Stanley (both 6-3 from Kilgore, Tex.) at Texas A&M.

Tommy Russell (6-7, Independence, Kans.) starter and top scorer in late season games for Nebraska; Larry Krueger (6-5, Campbellsville, Ky.) led Ohio University to its second straight NCAA berth; Curt Mimerson (6-2, Pueblo, Colo.) starter and a top scorer at Wyoming.

Junior college basketball fans—and enthusiasts of the Lawton area in particular — will have a double chance to see the games. The JuCo All America Classic will be a two - night, Friday and Saturday, stand.

Missouri Shocks Kansas, 79-76

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri upset Kansas' chances of gaining a tie for the Big Eight basketball title Saturday by upsetting the Jayhawks 79-76 in a rough battle that saw two players ejected from the game and many fans fighting on the floor.

The nationally televised game was halted for 10 minutes in the second half after an exchange of blows between Wayne Hightower, KU star, and Charlie Henke, Tiger player. Fans streamed out on the floor in a melee.

After order was restored Hightower and Henke were put out of the game.

The loss was Kansas' fourth in conference play, against 10 victories.

The setback gave Kansas State the undisputed title. Regardless of the outcome of its game Saturday night with Colorado.

Kansas started off in the lead but fell back at halftime, Missouri taking a 41-36 advantage. Henke hit four straight baskets in the last minute and 45 seconds of the first half to give the Tigers their lead.

The second half was five minutes old when Hightower scored a lay-up for Kansas. Henke was driving in at the time and they collided. Hightower swung at Henke and Henke swung back. Players from both benches rushed onto the floor, then the spectators headed into the battle.

It took officers and officials about four minutes to break up the fight.

The battle began as Missouri was leading 48-44.

After the battle, Missouri pulled away and at one time had a 12-point lead.

Tommy Kono Sets A World Record

MOSCOW (AP) —Tommy Kono, U.S. Olympic weightlifter from Honolulu and Los Angeles, set a world record 337½ pounds (153 kilograms) in the press phase of the middleweight competition at the Prize of Moscow tournament today.

Kono's effort bettered the listed record of Russia's Anatoliy Zhitetskiy by .441 pounds (2 kilograms).

A Devotional For Today

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. (Psalms 23:1.)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, source of light and grace, we praise Thy holy name. Give us light in darkness and make our hearts to sing in their joy and to Thy praise. In the name of Jesus, our good shepherd, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

(From The 'Upper Room')

Get After Those Tumbleweeds

Perhaps it is too early to talk of a spring cleanup campaign. In recent years we seemed to have settled upon the thesis that cleanup, fix up and paint up are more fruitful after the worst of the windy season is normally past.

Yet there is at least one phase of tidying up our town that we wish could be attacked now, namely the burning of tumble-weeds. Stimulated by last autumn's abundant moisture, the weeds grew luxuriantly and to considerable proportions. Now that cold weather has long since killed them and time has rotted the roots and dried the bush, tumble-weeds are taking off in the face of strong winds. They pile up everywhere — from yards to streets, from the envirions to even downtown.

We don't advocate wholesale fires or wanton invasion of private property, but we do know some places that would be improved by a torch. Meanwhile, how about taking care of the situation around your place?

Looking Ahead

The election of John Currie as president of the United Fund brings to that important post the youngest man in the history of combined fund raising in Big Spring and Howard County. Whether by design or otherwise, the presence of John Taylor as vice president, and Lester Morton as treasurer casts the role of leadership in a younger vein.

This is a significant step.

It would be a mistake to assume that the veterans of previous campaigns and various community projects will be allowed to retire to the rocking chair. Far from it, for with a record of a six per cent dip under the campaign goal last year, every bit of manpower will be needed this year. What applies to the United Fund will apply to other areas of community development.

The significance is in two directions, first that Big Spring has an unusually strong potential of leadership among its younger citizens, and second that this potential is being recognized and utilized.

To abdicate community responsibilities to younger and willing hands would be a travesty on the part of the older hands. Their counsel, their influence, their efforts, their mature judgement will continue to be the backbone of community enterprise.

But to the degree they succeed in bringing on and elevating new leadership within this decade, to that degree will our hopes of a continuing and balanced development be realized. Vigor can be sustained only by the infusion of younger and stronger hands, and minds and hearts.

INSTANT CRISIS

Nightmare Of Nuclear Tests

WASHINGTON—That roar you hear is the sound of the falls just ahead and the brink is much closer than is generally realized. The nuclear test ban talks are to begin again at Geneva on March 21 and they can end with the kind of disaster that comes in several assorted sizes and shapes.

In this department where every issue looms 10 times as large as life the conflict between executive and Congressional authority is more glaringly apparent than perhaps anywhere else. There are, in short, two contending pilots in the boat, each with a different idea of whirh way to move to safety.

THE RIVALRY was not long concealed when the President sat down in the State Dining Room for lunch with his 23 guests to talk about the forthcoming talks. On one side were members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy. On the other were those whom the President has chosen to direct the negotiations, John J. McCloy, Arthur Dean, Jerome Wiesner, the President's science advisor, and the other scientists and security specialists.

Members of the committee, of which Rep. Chet Holifield (D., Calif.) is now chairman, had lived so long with the terror and the horror of nuclear weaponry that their interest is a proprietary one. Their fears and suspicions are deeply ingrained. They have fought off, with the conviction America's security was directly at stake, virtually all attempts to share weapons information with America's allies.

QUARRELING with one chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, Lewis Strauss, the committee found his successor, John McCone, to be a superb diplomat with whom they got along famously. Both Strauss and McCone preached in season and out the need to go on testing weapons and the perils of any test agreement that might let Russia get ahead of the United States.

Small wonder then that the skepticism around that White House table centered on McCloy and Dean as the new boys in the school. As committee members said to each other when they got back to Capitol Hill, "Well, they hadn't done their homework but how could you expect it, since they'd only been seized with the problem for six weeks."

COLDLY RECEIVED was the suggestion that it would be helpful if Congress were to amend the atomic law to permit the negotiators to disclose a primitive Hiroshima-type atomic bomb in connection with tests to improve the detection system essential to any nuclear agreement. The primitive bomb would be about as revealing, in relation to current nuclear weaponry, as would the engine in the old tin Lizzie to a jet aircraft engine. But committee members are hypersensitive to the political charge of "giving away secrets."

Holifield reminded the table that he had proposed more than a year ago that on a reciprocal basis, with the Russians disclosing one of their primitive bombs, this might be acceptable. The Russian reply was that they were not interested in nuclear explosions to try to improve the detection system.

VETERAN COMMITTEE members put the odds against any treaty being agreed to at 10 to 1. And their worry is that the negotiation will drag on without a time limit such as they want to see the Administration set at the beginning. With failure the pressure for the United States to resume testing would be almost irresistible and, even though the new tests were conducted underground, the Communist propaganda to put the blame on the West for fallout peril and the resumption of the nuclear arms race would be hard to counter.

DESPITE the President's real determination to make a new and serious try at an agreement, this harsh appraisal of Congressional co-pilot cannot be discounted. But to those who have concerned themselves with the grim, complex, infinitely difficult undertaking failure to get a treaty might, after all, be only the small-size disaster.

If Russia should make certain concessions, withheld in the past, and if the West should make minor concessions and if a treaty were agreed to—that is a formidable procession of ifs—then that treaty would have to be ratified by two-thirds of the Senate. A nuclear test ban treaty with satisfactory inspection and controls, presented by a Democratic President and two eminently worthy Republican negotiators, should be ratified.

ALREADY, however, nervous nose-counting has gone on. The far less controversial Antarctic treaty was ratified by only eight votes. If the Russians should keep hotting up Laos and other trouble spots the climate would be most unfavorable. Rejection of a treaty at this critical moment, with time rapidly running out, would make the tragedy of Versailles 40 years ago look like a picnic in the park. This is the read dread, the H-bomb nightmare, of those who must in public view take responsibility for piloting America's course.

Protest Denied

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Eva Roddy, 44, protested when she was haled into city court on a charge of possessing whisky.

"That's a John Doe warrant and I'm a Jane Doe," she told Judge Charles Kelly.

The judge said the search warrant's sex didn't matter and fined Mrs. Roddy $50.

Customers Help

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Customers have come to the aid of restaurant owner Raymond Woods.

Woods, who has a wife and eight children, recently underwent his 11th operation. Insurance companies dropped him long ago.

C. L. Birdsell, one of his many customers, hung a dollar bill on a wire over the counter. Since then many customers have followed suit in an effort to defray Woods' expenses.

Unemployment Is Symptom Of Maladjustment

Why is unemployment so high and so stubborn?

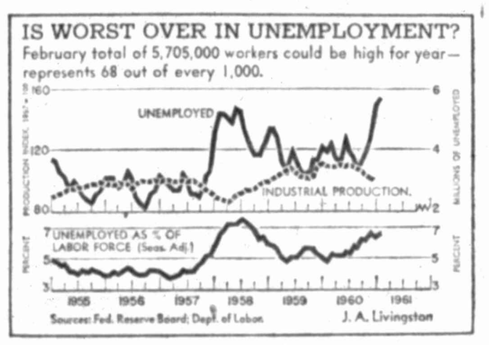

Insufficient economic growth, says Walter W. Heller, chairman of President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers.

Structural economic change, says William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

The Congressional Joint Economic Committee performed a useful service in bringing these two diagnoses into head-on justaposition.

At 5,705,000, unemployment is at a postwar high. Sixty-eight out of every 1,000 persons in the labor force are out of work—far too many for the comfort of those who are employed (see chart). Something's out of whack. Something must be corrected.

Even if we have an upturn in industrial activity soon, as Dr. Heller and Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon both think likely, even if February is the high in unemployment this year, as seems likely, it will not solve the problem. We'd still have a too-high proportion of workers—perhaps 60 per thousand — looking for jobs throughout most of the year.

PUSH FROM GOVERNMENT

By pushing ahead in the government sectors of the economy—education, schools, health, highways—we'll cure the nation's long-term economic lassitude, argues Dr. Heller.

If we can utilize our resources fully—our manpower, our steel, our machinery — then we can add about $50,000,000,000 a year in gross national output. That would more than provide for the taxes to cover the costs of enlarged government outlays. It would catapult the country out of a budget deficit into a budget surplus.

To Martin, attempts to "reduce structural unemployment by massive monetary and fiscal stimulation" would have to be carried to such lengths as to create serious new problems of an inflationary character — at a time when consumer prices are at a record high."

Why? Because in the postwar era, U. S. industry didn't stand still. Nor did the U. S. workingman. Industry introduced new machinery, requiring highly-skilled operators with fast reflexes. Labor unions bargained for higher wages. The rise in wages created further pressure for labor-saving, cost-reducing equipment.

JOBLESSNESS A SYMPTOM

Technological change, compounding like money in the savings bank, has caused an undertow of unemployment. Auto plants are more efficient. Smaller automobiles require less steel from steel mills which are more automated. Coal is less widely used; mining more mechanized. Aluminum competes with steel and copper and plastics with wood, tile, and metals.

Let's be frank about it. Unemployment is a symptom of shifts in consumer demand. It's the way people express themselves about what merchants and manufacturers offers. They say, "Coal's cheaper, but oil's cleaner." They say, "I'll make my five-year-old auto do another year." They say, "I can't afford that, the price is too high." They say, "Sure, we want another school and a better hospital, but where's the money coming from. Taxes are too high already." They say, "I think I'll just save my money."

Long-term unemployment is a symptom of economic maladjustment. Do we treat the symptoms—the unemployed—the disease, or both?

GROWTH AS A BY-PRODUCT

Per Jacobsson, chairman of the International Monetary Fund, offers this wisdom:

"The main thing for a country is always to take at any given time the measures which are appropriate to the circumstances of that time. The result, over a stretch of years, will be the attainment of a sustained and satisfactory level of growth and, consequently, of an improvement in the real income per head of population. So many things in life, such as happiness and reputation, are a by-product of proper behavior and often escape one if an attempt is made to achieve them directly."

We need to tackle unemployment as a sympton of maladjustment. We need to retrain and relocate workers whose jobs have been besnatched by progress. We need to encourage labor-management contracts which reduce unit costs. We need to provide greater worker mobility by making it possible to transfer pension and severence-pay benefits from industry to industry and company to company. We need to embark on "social sector" programs—education, health, etc.—on their merit, not as means to growth and re-employment.

Let's be frank about education. A nation of college graduates in 1975 will be fine, in and of itself, but it won't help this generation's unemployed 60-year-old coal miners or technologically displaced steel workers. Only the grandsons. We've got a long-term problem, all of us—from President Kennedy down. We've got more thinking to do about it. We've got to get rid of these symptomatic blotches, not cover them up. I don't profess to be the sure-cure doctor.

Colostomy Sufferers Form Mutual Aid Groups

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

There was a bittersweet flavor to some of the letters which came to my desk a little while ago, following my discussion in this space of colostomies—those operations in which part of the bowel is removed because of necessity, and the end of the bowel is then brought out through a new opening in the abdomen.

Obviously it's a rather drastic sort of operation, and comparatively "new," by which I mean that by now thousands upon thousands of people have had their lives saved by it, yet it is totally unheard of among other thousands or millions of people who have had no occasion to hear about it.

To those who don't need it, it is of little interest. To those who do need it, it is of utmost importance. So that's why I received some of the letters I have. One read, "I was delighted to see that someone was at last interested in colostomy (or ileostomy) patients and their problems.

"Believe me, psychologically we need all the help we can get. We have (in Philadelphia) a club, C.I.R.A. (Colostomy-Ileostomy Rehabilitation Association) that meets once a month. To my knowledge, you, doctor, are the first person to have brought this condition out in the open. It is sadly needed for these people to lead a normal and useful life. The rehabilitation period can be shortened by others' experience. If there is any way you can help us spread the good of our club, we certainly would appreciate it."

All I can do is to point out that such groups are in existence. They do an amazing lot of good in showing people that perfectly normal life is possible after this operation. There is the Philadelphia group; there is another in Minnesota; I believe there are others in other cities.

Possibly one group or another may have started making a list of the groups (and their addresses) in other cities, I hope so.

The Philadelphia group in cooperation with the Minnesota group published a very sound, factual booklet, with the aid and advice of some extremely able and reliable physicians.

A copy of it has been sent to me, and I judge it to be excellent in every respect. What to do, how to do it—and the one word of advice that people need most: Others have gone through this and found that afterward they could hold their jobs, keep house, have children, enjoy life, buy insurance, engage in sports—live good, full lives.

The Philadelphia group (so the back of the booklet says) offers copies of the excellent booklet at 50 cents for a single copy, and special prices in quantities. Maybe other groups do, too.

Anyway, the address of the Philadelphia group is: C.I.R.A., P.O. Box 121, Philadelphia 5, Pa. Please do not write to me or to this newspaper for the booklet, but instead direct to Philadelphia.

If this mention reaches people who haven't known about this group, I hope it may lead to some useful contacts for my readers, and I hope also that it may lead to some method by which anyone, anywhere, can readily get in touch withothers who have the same problem in any part of the country. For there are at least a few such patients in any vicinity.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there such an illness as tuberculosis of the skin? If so, is it contagious and to what extent?—L. M."

Yes, the TB germ can affect any part of the body—lungs, bones, brain, skin, etc. Fortunately tuberculosis of the skin is not a frequent condition; it responds well to treatment, and is not considered very contagious.

* * *

"Dear Mr. Molner: I know of a couple who couldn't have children. The husband gave up smoking and alcoholic beverages, and the wife became pregnant. Is it possible that these might be key factors in a man with a low sperm count?"

Yes, it's possible because of the general improvement to his health.

* * *

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Herald requesting a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim

Skip March, And On Into Spring

If they are going to revise the calendar, the month to leave out of it is March.

Paeans have been written in this corner for other months, but—in this area of the world, at least—not much good can be said in all honesty about March.

OH, MARCH has some tempting qualities, and is a bit of a tease. Not entirely unlike a teenster in that "phase" when one day she is winsome and cuddling and appealing, and the next day is an obnoxious, know-it-all brat.

The undependability of March: The day when the sun shines down with warmth and kindness, and one can see shrubs responding in full heart, and one feels the call of the outdoors. Whether it is to the lake or the open road, to the fairway or the flower bed, the beckoning is there. Can it be Spring?

AND THEN the very quickly-following day when skies are menacing again, and a chill wind blows, and winter has returned full-force. And perhaps there is even a wisp of snow or sleet, and the things that Nature has given encouragement to are whittled down and suffer full shock, so that the next efforts will be a long time coming.

And then, this cold gives way to the vicious wind off the northern prairie, the wind that sails high, wide and handsome, and picks up its cargo of dust to spray through the air, on town and village, on country side, on blossom and on window-sill. And into ears and eyes and nostrils until one is moved to thrust a fist into the very teeth of the wind, demanding that it stop.

SO WHICH KIND of a month is March? The soft days are frauds, the harsh days are realities. The whiteness and the briskness of winter have gone, the verdure and the gaiety of Spring have not yet arrived. And in-between sort of period, neither the one nor the other, but a cross-breed, an unwelcome and unappealing set of days.

Mankind is not the only victim of March. Nature's handiwork suffers from the frivolity of this month's weather. See the delicate lacework of leaves turn green, only to fade before the fickle winds. See fresh buds burgeon, only to blacken in the sudden cold. See trees gamble on an early trial at producing fruit, only to suffer the casualty of an off-season frontal assault.

BUT MANKIND is a victim, too. He readies his spirit to prompt his being to tackle the yard and the garden and the hedgerow again. And even as he moves into action, comes the dust-laden wind. He prepares his fishing tackle, and polishes his boat, and even as he is at his chore, another great front from the north chases him inside. He polishes his golf clubs, and takes his practice swings, and as he does, winter blasts him right off the green.

HE LOOKS to the next day, and is disappointed. He looks again, and is confronted with uncertainty.

This change, this unreliability, this temptation, this promise unfilled—all this makes March a cruel month. Let's get on to another one, when Spring is here to stay.

Blakley Makes His Record

WASHINGTON—Senator William Blakley (D., Tex.) differs from his 99 colleagues in one important respect—the lean, lawyer-financier from Dallas is running next month for the seat he now holds by appointment. This means that everything Blakley does in the Senate will, on April 4th, be subject to the mandate of his people. A timid man might lie low and say nothing. A man of conscience cannot do so.

WELL, BLAKLEY has cast two significant votes this year on an issue which is shaking the world. It is an issue which goes by different names. Some will call it racism, others will call it Americanism—although the two words, of course, mean opposite things.

To be specific, Blakley voted against the nomination of Robert C. Weaver to be the Housing and Home Finance Agency administrator. And Blakley voted in favor of the nomination of Charles Meriwether to be a director of the Export-Import Bank. Weaver is a Negro, but that is not the reason that Blakley opposed him. Meriwether is an Alabaman who opposes forced racial integration—but this is not entirely why Blakley supported Meriwether.

BLAKLEY'S POSITION on both nominations, if I understand it, is not racism—but Americanism. The Senator found Weaver unfit to be our chief officer for housing on two counts. First, "His extremism and lack of good judgment in his affiliations with Communist-front organizations and in his outright gullibility to impressions purposely made on him by the Russians." Second, "The fact that most of his concern in the past has been with greater fights for colored people, so much so that (it is) his apparent total and full mission in life."

In offering what seems to him reasonable proof of racial prejudice in Weaver, Senator Blakley undertook an unpopular, unorthodox and perhaps impolitic position. But he did so in committee and on the Senate floor with complete dignity and courtesy.

THE PROPOSITION of the other part—namely, that a white person from the South can readily and believably be branded for racism—is borne out in the Meriwether nomination. Meriwether holds the post of Finance Director of Alabama. As a Southern politico, he knows some Klan members but is not himself a member. Four members of the Banking and Currency Committee—all at some time being Lunatic Leftists—voted against Meriwether. They are Senators Joe Clark, William Proxmire, Maurine Neuberger and Jacob Javits.

BUT BLAKLEY, himself a Southerner, supported Meriwether. Perhaps there was some sectionalism and racial affinity on Blakley's part—it would seem foolish to deny it—but I think the main reason here is something else. Both Weaver and Meriwether are fully capable by profession and training for the Federal positions in question. Race need not enter into the matter. There is no reason why a Negro should not qualify for Weaver's job, or a white man for Meriwether's job. But when you come right down to it, the issue in each case is Americanism.

COMMUNIST associations, which showed up in Weaver's background, are inimical to the security and survival of the U.S.A. A Southern position against forced integration is not. Communism is the creed and policy of this country's mortal enemies, and the stirring up of racial strife is a Communist practice. But Southern opposition to integration, while old-fashioned and go-slow conservatism, probably contains more anti-Communism and hot-blooded Americanism than any other "cause" in the U.S.A. today.

This is a personal analysis of Senator Blakley's two votes in question, based on some knowledge of the man and a friendship. But there is more to it than that. I have found that the duty which senators have in confirming presidential nominations is ill-defined and largely a matter of instinctive judgment. The best summary of the duty, I think, shows up in the autobiography of British novelist, Anthony Trollope. Almost a century ago, Trollope wrote:

"AS WHAT I NOW write will certainly never be read till I am dead, I may dare to say what no one now dares to say in print—though some of us whisper it occasionally into our friends' ears. There are places in life which can hardly be well filled except by 'gentlemen'."

This, I think, is what senators often feel when nominations come before them. It poses a most difficult duty which a man like Blakley must often perform at personal distaste and political risk.

Confusion On School-Aid Issue

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy in his press conference on Wednesday did not clear up but rather added to the confusion he has already created by his public discussion of the issue of whether federal funds may be used to aid non-public schools.

News reports of his press conference on March 1 gave the impression that he had said that there was "no room for debate" on the constitutionality of any phase of the matter. So a reporter asked this question at the March 8 conference:

"Q: MR. PRESIDENT, you said last week, as I recall it, that there was no room for debate about this matter.

"The President: No room for debate about grants. There is obviously room for debate about loans, because it has been debated. My view, however, is that on the matter of loans, to the best of my knowledge and judgment, this has not been tested by the courts, of course, in the sense that grants have been. But by my reading of the constitutional judgments in the Everson case, my judgment has been that across-the-board loans are also unconstitutional."

BUT WHAT was said in the Everson case as decided by the Supreme Court of the United States on Feb. 10, 1947? Here is the pertinent quotation:

"The 'establishment of religion' clause of the First Amendment means at least this: Neither a state nor the federal government can set up a church. Neither can pass laws which aid one religion, aid all religions, or prefer one religion over another. Neither can force nor influence a person to go to or to remain away from church against his will or force him to profess a belief or disbelief in any religion. No person can be punished for entertaining or professing religious beliefs or disbeliefs, for church attendance or non-attendance. No tax in any amount, large or small, can be levied to support any religious activities or institutions, whatever they may be called, or whatever form they may adopt to teach or practice religion."

PLAINLY the prohibition is against any aid whatsoever to religious teaching. There is no ban, however, against aid to a religious institution for anything that is not directly related to the teaching or practice of religion. Thus, in the bill which President Kennedy has sent to Congress providing scholarships for students who may attend any institution, public or non-public, religious or non-sectarian, there is a stipulation that $350 may be paid by the federal government as a "cost of education allowance" directly to the institution itself to supplement the scholarship payment made on behalf of the student.

THE PRESIDENT was asked at his press conference whether he would veto such a bill. He said he would prefer to wait and see the measure before he made a decision, but his present view was that such a bill was unconstitutional.

Mr. Kennedy told his press conference that he is "extremely sympathetic to those families who are paying their taxes for public education and also sustaining their children in non-public schools." But he added that he believes there are constitutional barriers nevertheless that he has to take into account.

THE LATE PRESIDENT Franklin D. Roosevelt had no such inhibitions. He used to tell Congress that, if they had any doubts about constitutionality, they might as well pass the legislation and let the courts decide afterward. As for Congress, it will find millions of citizens objecting to any penalty or form of discrimination being imposed against parents who are already incurring a double expense for the education of their children. The Fourteenth Amendment says that all citizens are entitled to "equal protection of the laws" of the states. The Supreme Court has also gone a step further and said that this principle must be applied to the "equal protection" of citizens under federal laws.

Commission To Air New Fiscal Budget Tuesday

Formal presentation of the city's budget estimates for the new year will be made to the city commission Tuesday by City Manager A. K. Steinheimer.

The final plans on the new water treatment and filter plant will be made by Freese and Nichols, consulting engineers from Fort Worth, and a formal date set for receiving bids on the plant. Mayor Lee O. Rogers will also ask the commission to set a firm date for a public hearing on the budget, which must be adopted before April 1.

Members of the commission received advance copies of the proposed budget, which were mailed Friday, and will have had time to look them over before the Tuesday meeting. It was thought possible, since the March 28 meeting will be largely taken up by the hearing on the new planning and zoning map and ordinance, that one or more special meetings might be called to discuss the budget as proposed by Steinheimer.

It is also possible that the date for receiving bids on the water plants may be set for April 18, Steinheimer said Friday. This would give the engineers ample time to complete all necessary plans and specifications needed by bidders.

The public hearing on the zoning ordinance and map were set for March 28 because of a conflict on March 7 when some city officials were in Austin on another hearing.

A final report on the assessment paving program may be heard Tuesday.

$200,000 Fire Hits Hospital

TAYLOR, Tex. (AP)—A $200,000 fire swept through a two-story section of Johns Hospital in this South Central Texas city Saturday. Volunteers and attendants evacuated all 29 patients without injury.

Scores of citizens, nurses and doctors used private cars and ambulances to remove the patients to a hospital annex a mile away.

The fire broke out in the engine room and smoke spread through the 45-bed hospital via air conditioning ducts.

Firemen had not determined the exact cause of the blaze.

The owner, Dr. J. J. Johns, was in Chicago attending a medical meeting.

Dr. R. C. Hermann said it looked like parts of the two west wings could be repaired.

The hospital unit that burned was for general surgery and medical patients. The maternity ward is in the annex, not affected by the blaze.

Most of the equipment, except that in three doctors offices and two operating rooms, was saved.

Five fire trucks from the Taylor fire department were used and most of the department's 80 volunteers were on the scene.

Fire chief Johnnie Hafernik estimated damages at $200,000.

Firemen said the fire was extremely hard to fight because in the early stages the fire was confined to an area between the ceiling and floor.

The fire started shortly before 11 a.m. and was brought under control at 12:30 p.m.

The two-story hospital is located on 6th Street, seven blocks from downtown Taylor.

Industry Magazine Gets New Owner

DALLAS — Purchase of all publishing rights of Petrochemical Industry magazine was announced recently by Joe B. Woods, president of the Dallas - based Petroleum Engineer Publishing Company.

"Purchase of 'Petrochemical Industry' represents another step in the planned growth program of 'Petro Chem Engineer' to serve the hydrocarbon process industry. This publication will add useful editorial content for our readers.

We feel that it will contribute to the value of "Petro-Chem Engineer." During 1961, the expected capital expenditure in the hydrocarbon process industry will reach approximately $2.2-billion, Woods added.

The Petroleum Engineer Publishing Company publishes five oil and gas magazines — "The Petroleum Engineer," "Pipeline Engineer," "Petrol-Chem Engineer," "Petroleum Management" and "American Gas Journal."

Sterling City Girl Wins Show Honors

SAN ANGELO (AP)—Betty Jo Barrett, 14-year-old Sterling City girl, had a big day at the San Angelo Fat Stock Show Friday.

She exhibited the champion junior Rambouillet ram and ewe, and the champion group of three range ewe lambs. In addition, she was named premier exhibitor of the junior Rambouillet sheep show and took the showmanship award.

The champion Delaine ram and ewe were shown by Chris Berger, 11, of Sonora. Jimmy Rudasill, 14, of Rocksprings had the champion angora billy and doe.

Sales of junior fat lambs, steers and poultry were highlights of Saturday's activities at the stock show.

Small Producer May Have Won 1st Round

By MAX B. SKELTON

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP)—If anyone won the first round of the fight over area price ceilings for natural gas, it was the small producer.

The small operator received sympathy from all sides as industry and Federal Power Commission representatives began the job of developing ground rules for formal hearings on the new price control program.

Distributors, big producers and the FPC staff agreed the small producer should receive special consideration in the costly proceedings on establishment of wellhead prices.

MORE MONEY

Practically everyone was in agreement that many small producers, without special rules, would spend more money on rate cases than they receive from gas sales.

A definition of a "small producer" remains to be worked out but spokesmen for the small independents are optimistic.

John Davenport, general counsel for the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said he was encouraged by the Midland pre-hearing conference and prospects for the "noble experiment."

Jerome Kuykendall, FPC chairman opened the Permian Basin price conference Monday by referring to the area plan as a "noble experiment" that called for cooperation from all concerned.

RECESSED

After three days the conference recessed until April 12 with major producers, distributors and the FPC staff far apart on how producer costs should affect area price ceilings.

Devenport admits the big battle still is ahead but is confident the small operator benefited while others argued over the status of producer costs.

These developments offered encouragement:

1. Holding the conference in a producing area gave many small producers their first opportunity for actual participation in a major FPC proceeding. John Mason, FPC general counsel, also said at least part of the formal hearing on Permian Basin prices probably would be held in this West Texas area.

COSTLY INFO

3. Distributors, big producers and the FPC staff said small producers should not be required to submit the time-consuming, costly financial information reports that are expected to be required of the major producers. Mason said such information from a small operator probably could be confined to one sheet of paper.

3. Mason also indicated issues involved in a formal hearing would be confined to "relevant facts" outlined in the FPC policy statement that created the area approach to federal controls Sept. 28.

A proposed definition of a "small" producer may be developed when the pre-hearing conference is resumed April 12 in Washington.

The cutoff point between "small" and "big" producers probably would be based on annual production.

Earlier FPC discussions with producers have indicated a cutoff point falling somewhere between 2 and 5 billion cubic feet a year.

AREA WILDCATTIN'

4 Counties Have Explorer Locations

Wildcats have been staked in Scurry, Ward, King and Pecos counties.

McAlister Fuel Company will drill No. 1 Leroy Key, an 8,350-foot Scurry County wildcat. It is one-half mile northwest of Revilo (Glorieta) field, 14 miles northwest of Snyder and 2,000 feet from north and east lines of section 458, block 97, H&TC survey.

R. S. Brennand Jr., and Adobe Oil Company filed application to drill a 6,500 - foot Ward County Cherry Canyon wildcat, No. 1 Reuss-90. The prospector is 2½ miles southwest of the South Pyote (multipay) field and 10 miles south of Pyote, 660 feet from northwest and northeast lines of section 90, block 34, H&TC survey.

Conn and Remington have staked No. 1 Alexander Trust Estate, a 3,500 - foot King County wildcat, 10 miles south of Guthrie. Location is 2,640 feet from north and 330 feet from east lines of section 91, block F, H&TC survey and 2½ miles north of the Block F (Tannehill) field.

Bell and Dansfield have scheduled operations on a 7,500-foot Pecos County wildcat, No. 1 Lowery and Wilson, 13 miles south of McCamey. Site is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 51, block 194, GC&SF survey.

* * *

The Ohio Oil Company has recovered free oil for the second time after a lower Clear Fork drillstem test in No. 1 Vinnie C. Linker, Hockley County wildcat.

Recovery, after a three - hour test at 7,300-7,400 feet, was 3,200 feet of gas, 320 feet of oil and gas - cut mud, 300 feet of heavily oil and gas-cut mud and 150 feet of free oil. Flow pressures ranged from seven to 210 pounds with a 30 - minute final shutin pressure of 2,007 pounds.

The prospector now is bottomed at 7,475 feet, preparing to take a drillstem test between 7,400 and 7,475 feet. Contract depth is 8,600 feet to test the Wolfcamp. Location is four miles south of Levelland, 1½ miles southeast of the Levelland field and 715 feet from south and 664 feet from east lines of labor 21, league 30, Baylor County School Land survey.

* * *

Sunray Mid - Continent Oil Company is swabbing out some new oil from a lower set of Abo perforations in its Yoakum County wildcat, No. 1-A Mattie Powell.

Operator swabbed out 2.2 barrels of new oil and 42 barrels of water from perforations at 8,305-54 feet in 10 hours. Swabbing continues. The possible discovery is nine miles east of Plains and ½ mile east of the West Prentice and Ownby (upper Clear Fork) field, 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 4, block D, J. H. Gibson survey.

* * *

Phillips Petroleum Company has completed a north offset, No. 57 Santa Fe, to the discovery well of the two - well Vacuum (Abo) pool of Lea County, New Mexico.

The extender flowed 466 barrels of 39.1 - gravity oil through a one-fourth inch choke and perforations at an unreported point in 24 hours. Tubing pressure was 190 pounds. Gas - oil ratio was unreported. Total depth is 9,000 feet. It spots 14 miles southwest of Lovington and 330 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 33-17s-35e.

* * *

Murphy H. Baxter of Midland will drill No. 1 Katherine E. Mayo, a 14,500 - foot Ellenburger wildcat 12 miles south of Seminole in Gaines County.

The drillsite is one mile northwest of the North Means (Queen) field, one mile southeast of the Harris (Queen) field and 660 feet from south and east lines of section 18, block A-22, PSL survey.

* * *

Texas Crude Oil Company of Midland plans a 5,200 - foot wildcat 28 miles west, southwest of Carlsbad in Eddy County, N. M., and 10½ miles northwest of a recently completed Pennsylvanian gas discovery.

It is the No. 1-32 State of New Mexico-A, and spots 660 feet from north and east lines of section 32-22s-22e. Location also is 21 miles west of Honolulu Oil Corporation's No. 1 McKittrick, an indicated Morrow gas discovery.

Union Oil Creates Central Division

The recently created Central Division of Union Oil Company of California, is organized and functioning in Midland, C. F. Bowden, division manager announced.

The new unit was formed by combining the Oklahoma Division at Tulsa and the Rocky Mountain Division at Denver with the West Texas Division in Midland.

It directs Union's exploration and production activities in an area covering 11 states and a major part of four others.

The concern has 92 employes in Midland and 91 at other locations in the division.

The offices in Tulsa and Denver are now district exploration offices working under the Central Division.

Other district exploration offices are at Roswell, N. M., and Durango, Colo. District production offices are located at Denver and Woodward, Okla. Production activities in the rest of the division will be directed from Midland.

Department heads in the new division include, Robert L. Clarke, chief geologist; H. W. Hightower, manager of lands; Edgar S. Keefe, division superintendent; W. D. Owens, division engineer, and John H. Euston, division accountant.

All were executives in the West Texas Division except Hightower who came from Houston where he had been assistant manager of lands for the Gulf Division.

The Central Division is one of five exploration and production organizations operated by Union of California in the United States.

Others are the Gulf at Houston; also the concern's headquarters; Glacier at Cut Bank, Montana; and the Alaska at Anchorage.

The Central Division embraces much of Texas, North Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Northeast Arizona; East Utah; Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, North and South Dakota, and Minnesota.

Bowden came to Midland late in 1960. He has been with Union since 1939, starting in the refining department at Los Angeles as a junior engineer soon after graduating from Pennsylvania State College.

He switched to petroleum engineering in 1942 and later became the company's chief petroleum engineer.

Prior to coming to Midland he had been assistant to Basil Kantzer, vice president for exploration and production.

Ray A. Burke, manager of the old West Texas Division during 1959-60, now is director of exploration in Union's general offices.

Work To Start On Big Pipeline

DALLAS (AP)—Lone Star Gas Co. will begin laying an 18-inch, 52-mile natural gas pipeline in West Central Texas Monday.

The line will increase the company's transmission facilities by more than 100-million cubic feet of gas daily.

In conjunction with the pipeline, Lone Star will begin construction soon to increase the size of gas processing facilities at its Gordon, Tex., gasoline plant and compressor station. A 2,000 horsepower compressor and a new dehydration unit will be added.

Total cost of the pipeline and gas processing facilities will be about $3 million.

The 52-mile pipeline will begin at Lone Star's Springtown gasoline plant, 28 miles northwest of Fort Worth, and will cross Parker and Palo Pinto counties to Gordon.

Usual Service Produces Most Severe Wear

Automobile manufacturers in 1961 models, have recognized that the most usual service for passenger cars today is also the most severe service from the standpoint of engine wear.

Short - trip, stop-and-go operation, including prolonged idling under low engine temperature conditions has become more and more common in recent years for the majority of motorists, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Car manufacturers and the oil companies now agree that proper lubrication of an engine is hardest to attain at loafing speeds or in stopping and starting, particularly in cold weather.

Operator's manuals for 1961 cars urge motorists to use oils suitable for severe service because today's high-performance engines put so many demands on lubricants.

Oils for severe service are designed as "for Service MS" and the letters "MS" are stamped on the oil can to help the motorist and the dealer select the right kind of lubricant.

Other oils are designated "for Service MM" (moderate) for older-model cars driven at high speeds for short distances in warm weather or when long and short trips are alternated in cold weather, and "for Service ML" (light) for older cars driven at moderate speeds in warm climates.

This is the first car model year in which all U.S. auto manufacturers have recommended oils for Service MS the API said.

Severe operating conditions result in rapid oil contamination and deterioration, and API recommends that crankcase oil be drained every 30 days in winter, every 60 days in summer and that motorists never exceed 2,000 miles of driving between oil changes.

Car manufacturers' recommendations on mileage between oil changes vary from car to car, but most operator's manuals advise more frequent oil changes under short-trip, stop-and-go driving in cold weather or in extremely dusty areas, the API noted.

Manufacturers' oil-change recommendations usually cite a flat-mileage drain interval for "average" operating conditions when actually these conditions are the "ideal" seldom attained by most motorists.

The only way the motorist can be assured of maximum protection is to tailor his oil-change practices to the exceptions which the operators manuals list after giving a maximum mileage figure for "average" operating conditions, according to the API. These exceptions are often overlooked by the motorist, even though they apply to the majority of cases.

Area Potential Is Way Ahead

In January and February of this year, the combined production of the eight surrounding counties easily topped the initial daily potential of the same period last year.

This year the two months produced initial potential of 8,523.18 barrels, 1,506.93 barrels more than the 4,379.61 for last year.

The counties included are Borden, Dawson, Garza, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Mitchell and Sterling.

The first 10 days of March are not quite on par with the daily average for March of last year, but at the present rate, 1961 should still finish around 4,000 barrels a day. The first 10 days have produced 1,371.05 barrels from 13 completions.

In 1960, March was the biggest production month with 6,186.33 barrels, thanks to a rash of good producers in the Fluvanna field which accounted for most of that county's 2,273.66 barrels for that month.

Dawson County also had one of its high months of the year with 1,467.03 barrels on initial production.

Operators have staked 17 new locations in the first 10 days of March. Five of these were explorers. This is two more wildcats than were filed during the month of February. Howard County has five of the 17 new sites.

Dawson County is the production leader this month with a Dupree field completion for 450 barrels on initial potential. Howard County is second with 263.26 barrels, even though it leads in the number of completions with five.

Two prospectors must have found their operators working after midnight, for like Cinderella's fortunes, they turned to dust.

218 BITS TURNING

Drilling Activity Holds Steady From Last Week

Permian Basin rotary drilling activity was the same, 218 active rigs, Friday as the week before, according to Reed Roller Bit Company's regular survey.

Lea County, N. M., with 38 units in operation, continued as the most active area in West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

Pecos, 19, Andrews, 16, and Winkler 12, were the other most active counties in the area.

Last year at this time there 245 rigs in operation.

The survey, with previous totals in parentheses, include:

Andrews 16 (15), BORDEN 2 (2), Brewster 0(1), Chaves 1 (1), Cochran 1 (0), Coke 3 (3), Crane 11 (12), Concho 1 (1), Crockett 2 (3), Crosby 0 (1);

Weekly Count Is 201 Oil Wells

AUSTIN (AP)—Drillers brought in 201 oil wells and 46 gas wells during the week, the Railroad Commission reported Saturday.

For the year, 1,691 oil wells and 516 gas wells have been brought in compared to 1,844 oil well completions and 319 gas well completions this date in 1960.

There have been 90 oil wells and 33 gas wells completed as wildcat wells this year compared to 62 oilers and 18 gas wells a year ago.

Drillers plugged 153 wells during the week and 1,535 for the year.

The average daily allowable increased 18,489 barrels to 3,008,119 barrels.

Rights Boosted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Commission on Human Rights has recommended that the General Assembly urge all countries to observe a freedom from prejudice and discrimination year.

Firm Acquires Interest In 3 Producers

MIDLAND — The acquisition of working and royalty interests in 30 producing wells in West Texas by Texas American Oil Corporation has been announced by Nash J. Dowdle, president of the Midland-based concern.

The properties were purchased from B. W. Wiseman of Midland for an undisclosed consideration.

The purchase involves a working interest of approximately 20 per cent in 18 wells—five of which are dually-completed. They are in the Goldsmith and Embar fields of Ector County and the McFarland, east area of Andrews County.

Also included in the transaction was the purchase of an unreported royalty interest in 12 wells in the same areas. Ten of those producers are dual producers.

A total of 1,200 developed and 620 undeveloped acres are involved.

It is estimated, Dowdle said, that the newly-acquired properties will add 188,000 barrels of oil, and 337,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas to Texas American's primary reserves.

All the leases offer excellent prospects for increasing those reserves figures through secondary recovery operations, Dowdle said.

Oklahoma Reports Good Increase

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A good increase in Oklahoma oil completions was noted today by Research Oil Reports in its weekly survey of field activity.

Total completions rose 35 above last week's 80. Oilers totaled 61, up 12, and dry holes at 33 increased by 18. Gas wells increased by six to 19. Locations for new wells number 111 against 105 for last week.

Six Thefts Keep Police Busy

Six thefts and the finding of 73 assorted packages of cigarettes were investigated by police Friday and Saturday.

Dorothy Rodriquez, 104 NW 3rd, told police some Negro boys had taken a bicycle from her back yard, and she requested help in getting it back. Mrs. Millard Shortes, Knott Rt., reported the theft of two hub caps from her car while it was parked at the Medical Arts Clinic and Hospital.

John Hutt, Western Restaurant, reported that some one in a pick-up had hauled off his garbage cans. J. E. Froman, Stanton, said a 15-foot boat and trailer, belonging to him, had been stolen from the rear of Montgomery Ward store.

E. L. McClanahan, Amarillo, told police that a tire and wheel from his car, a bumper jack, leather pants, and sleeves, of the type worn by welders, were stolen from his car while parked at the Night Hawk. Total value was listed at $75.90.

Officers were called to the rear of Joe Boy's, 203 N. Austin, where 73 assorted packages of cigarettes were found.

A case of vandalism was reported by the Cosden Service Station, 4th and Gregg. The attendant said several boys, in a car he described, did several dollars worth of damage in the men's rest room because he would not cash a check for them.

Revival Slated

Merv Rosell, noted evangelist, has been scheduled to lead in the Diamond Jubilee Crusade at the First Baptist Church in Midland March 26-April 2. He led an evangelistic crusade for the church in 1955. Norman Nelson is coming with the evangelist for the series of meetings. There will be morning and evening services (10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.) during the week.

Fattest Man

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A Zagreb newspaper says it has found the fattest man in Communist Yugoslavia, 472-pound Stjepan Krznar, 22, of the Croatian town of Sisak. The paper said Stjepan, who weighed 119 pounds when he was three, feels fine particularly when eating.

95 Held In India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Ninety-five persons were being held under the Preventive Detention Act at the end of 1960, the government reports. The 1950 act, primarily used to counter Communist activities, empowers the government to arrest and detain without trial.

Yale Professor Is ACC Lecturer

ABILENE—The president of the American Historical Association, Dr. Samuel Flagg Bemis of Yale University, will be one of the principal lecturers at a history conference at Abilene Christian College Thursday on "American Diplomacy in Historical Perspective."

Other speakers at the conference will be Dr. Dumas Malone, professor of history at the University of Virginia, and Dr. Joe B. Frantz, chairman of the Department of History at the University of Texas.

Registration and all sessions of the confecence will be held in the College Church of Christ across the street from the ACC campus. Registration will get underway at 10 a.m. followed by the first speech at 10:30 a.m.

Bill Signed

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel has signed a bill directing that the Fraternal Order of the Eagles of Texas be commended for efforts and contributions in combatting juvenile delinquency and to have a granite monolith placed on grounds of the State Capitol of Texas.

Stells To Leave For Post In Italy

Col. Glenn A. Stell will depart from Webb late this month for a new assignment as commander of the 7227th Support Group at Aviano Air Base, Italy, it has been announced at Webb Air Force Base. He has served as commander of the 3560th Pilot Training Group since arriving at Webb in July 1959.

A Command Pilot, Col. Stell has 4,217 hours logged in T-6, T-29, C-47, C-54, C-119, B-25, A-36, F-51, and T-33 aircraft. He is a graduate of the Instructor Pilot School at Craig AFB, Ala.

Highlighting Col. Stell's 20 years of military service is 154 hours of aerial combat in World War II and the Korean conflict.

As squadron commander in the 66th Fighter-Bomber Group he chalked up 80 missions in North Africa, Sicily, and Italy. He took part in the Salerno landings and won the Purple Heart during the early part of the Sicilian campaign.

In Korea, Col. Stell flew 27 missions in F-86Fs with the 18th Fighter-Bomber Wing. He earned the Soldier's Medal at Osan when he pulled a pilot from a burning jet fighter that was fully loaded with fuel, ammo and two 1,000-pound bombs.

The Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal, with eight clusters, and the Korean Presidential Unit Citation are among his top decorations.

Col. Stell is a graduate of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He entered Louisiana State University in 1936, and earned his B.S. degree four years later at the University of Wisconsin.

Among his varied activities in Big Spring, Col. Stell has served as president of the Park Hill P-TA; chairman of the Business Affairs Committee of the Base-Community Council; and as Cub Scouts commissioner. Until last summer he was advisor to the NCO Club's board of governors.

He is married to the former Robbie Batte of Houston, and they live at 7 Albrook, Webb Village, with their four children.

Mrs. Stell has been identified in many civilian programs in Big Spring. She is a painter of portraits, has given talks before local clubs on Japanese flower arranging, and has been active in St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Marshall Gets Council Post

Arnold Marshall, one of four in the Big Spring delegation, was elected vice president of the Southwest Area Council of YMCAs at week's end.

The council meeting was held at Lake Murray near Ardmore, Okla. The area includes Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and western Louisiana.

On hand for the meeting were 212 delegates representing 46 associations. There are 273 secretaries in the area with a combined budget of about five million dollars and serving 250,000 members.

Also attending the meeting from Big Spring were Dan Krausse, president of the local YMCA; Clyde McMahon, a past president of the local Y and currently a member from the area of the National Council of Ys; and Joe Leach, acting general secretary of the Y here.

Marshall is a long-time worker in the Y effort in Big Spring. Among his other local contributions, he served as narrator for the first annual YMCA Christmas Pageant last year.

Girls Blamed In Youth Wars

WASHINGTON (AP) — A social worker says "promiscuous, truant and violent" teen-age girls are often the cause of juvenile gang wars.

"They are rumor carriers, trouble carriers, weapon carriers, narcotic carriers and sometimes disease carriers," Arthur J. Rogers told the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency. He is an assistant to the New York City Youth Services Commission.

Talon Club Picks Delegates To Area Contest

T. Sgt. George Schweickert and S. M. Sgt. T. M. Pogue will be the Talon Toastmasters Club representatives in the Abilene area speech contest.

The club held eliminations during recent meetings to decide the representation.

M. Sgt. Junnell Gary was elected president of the club during last week's meeting. Other officers elected for six month terms include T. Sgt. Charlie Owens, educational vice president; T. Sgt. Willie Ingram, administrative vice president; S. Sgt. Virgil Richardson, treasurer; T. Sgt. Gordon Griffin, secretary; M. Sgt. Charlie McLawhorn, sergeant at arms.

The Talon Club is Webb AFB Toastmaster's organization for non-commissioned officers.

Scou. First Aid Meet Is Outlined

Plans for the Boy Scout first aid meet Friday evening and the Cub Pow-Wow on March 25 were outlined at the Scouters Round Table here Thursday.

"Over 200 boys will demonstrate skill in giving first aid, in handling wounds, fractures, transporting wounded and administering artificial respiration," said Fred Beckham, in charge of the judge-instructor crew of 45. Working with him will be Lige Fox, Paul Soldan, Mel Coleman, Les Goswick, Red Williams and Dr. Robert Johnson, district health and safety chairman.

The meet will be in the HCJC gym at 7:30 p.m. and the public is invited to watch the boys in action.

Gene Campbell, Cub commissioner, outlined the program for the Cub Pow Wow at the college gym. Cubs and den mothers will have on display exhibits of their activities. Seventy-five cubbers and den mothers participated in the planning event.

At the round table, D. D. Johnston discussed plans for summer camp at the Davis Mountains and at Camp Ed Murphy.

Altar Societies Slate Fashion Show Tuesday

A dessert tea and fashion show Tuesday afternoon will attract women of Big Spring and the surrounding area to Cosden Country Club at 1:30.

Sponsors of the benefit affair are members of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Altar Society and the St. Frances Cabrini Altar Society of Webb AFB. Tickets are priced at $1.25.

Theme of the revue, "Traffic Stoppers," will be presented against an appropriate background, which women of the societies have made and painted.

Included in the list of models are Mrs. Jerry Spence, Mrs. Carl Marcum, Mrs. Kimball Guthrie, Mrs. Kenneth Perry, Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. Hayes Stripling Jr., Mrs. Chub Jones, Mrs. Kent Morgan, Judy Shields, Jan Gentili, Mrs. Arch Ratliff, Mrs. Paul Meeks.

And, Mrs. J. M. Stefanelli, Mrs. R. Hickenbottom, Mrs. A. A. Lindsley, Mrs. A. G. Broughton, Mrs. R. J. Gradel, Mrs. Gregg Smith, Mrs. R. R. Austin, Mrs. H. V. Lindsey, Mrs Thomas Seebo, Mrs. Edward Moore, Mrs. Philipp Baumann, Mrs. Henry Manning.

Also, Mrs. A. K. Halverson, Mrs. J. F. Holt, Mrs. T. A. Nelson, Mrs. J. E. Hughes, Mrs. Terrence Hedges, Mrs. J. M. Lyon, Mrs. W. L. Hugo, Mrs. Curtis Westphal, Mrs. J. A. Garriott, Mrs. V. J. Evans, Mrs. Dennis Anderson, Mrs. F. W. Armstrong and Mrs. J. P. Williams.

General chairman of the occasion is Mrs. Wayne Basden. In charge of publicity are Mrs. James Greene and Mrs. Harold Talbot.

Tables are to be arranged by Mrs. Burl McNallen and Mrs. Jerome Jagroski, while ticket sales have been directed by Mrs. Greene and Mrs. Bill Sneed.

Sets and decorations have been made by Airman 1.C. Walter Bernadyn, Mrs. Greene and Mrs. Basden. Special prizes were secured by Mrs. Jack Turner and Lt. Col. Robert W. Wilcox.

Fashions from early morning to late afternoon wear will be shown by Zack's, with a commentary by Mrs. Jim Zack.

Jewelry will be from Cizon's; hairdos are to be done by Gordon's and make-up is to be applied by Jo's' Personalized Hair Fashions. Neel's Transfer will transport the clothing; an organ for background music is to be furnished by The Metronone Shop.

TRAFFIC STOPPERS is the theme of the style show to be presented at Cosden Country Club at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, and Mrs. Henry Manning, right, and Mrs. Kimball Guthrie are doing just that. Who would dare pass Mrs. Manning in that multi-colored, feather hat? Her blouse and pants are just as vivid—typical of this spring's styles. Mrs. Guthrie is dressed suitably for West Texas in denim capri pants and jacket.

READY FOR SPRING activities, which include many showers, teas, luncheons or even fashion shows, are Judy Shields, seated, and Mrs. Robert Johnson. Miss Shields is wearing a white silk organza with hand rolled flowers, which she will model in the fashion show sponsored by the St. Frances Cabrini altar society at Webb and the Immaculate Heart altar society. The bouquet of spring flowers arranged by Mrs. Johnson matches her cotton satin dress in rosy tones on a background of stripes. An interesting feature of the dress is its low, low back.

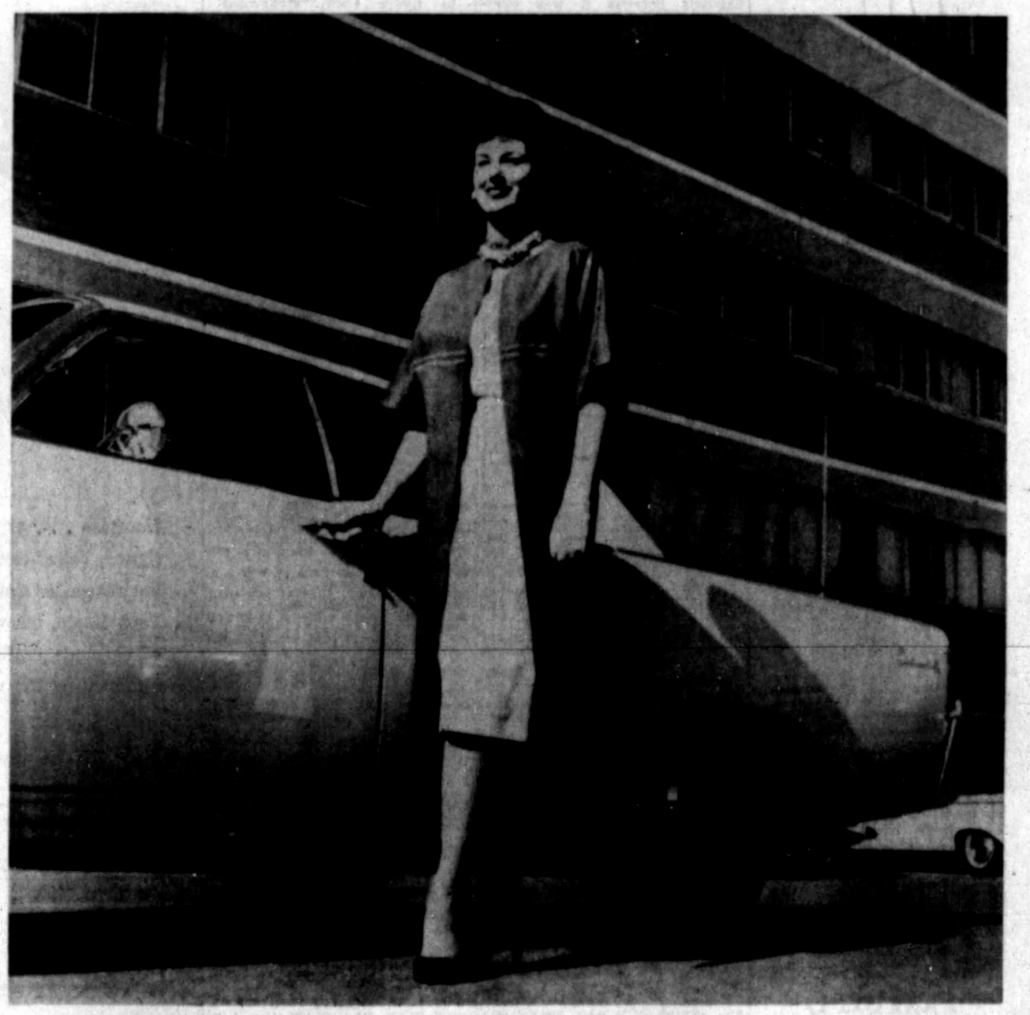

SAILING WE WOULD GO, if we had a boat. This seems to be the dilemma of Jan Gentili, left in photo above, and Mrs. J. M. Lyon. Miss Gentili is wearing a green suit with matching three-quarter length sleeve jacket. And the hat is an eye-catching piece that keeps hair in place and the sun out of eyes. Mrs. Lyon is keeping cool in short shorts, an orange striped blouse, and sailor cap.

SUMMER ENTERTAINING goes outdoors. Mrs. Hayes Stripling, pictured at right in photo at right, wears a three-piece outfit complete with patio culottes, scoop-neck top and jacket in blending shades of green, blue and yellow. Her guests are Mrs. H. V. Lindsay, center, who wears a blue suit with a low-cut back and tops it off with a large straw hat. Mrs. Philipp Baumann's green suit, with orchid and red flowers, looks as though it came straight from Hawaii.

ANY POLICEMAN would love to stop Mrs. Edward Moore, who believes in dressing in the latest mode, especially when driving a stylish car. Her white linen sheath is real "cool," but on windy days it feels good to have a full length, tobacco colored linen coat to be really comfortable. (All photos by Keith McMillin).

Diet Togetherness

Edie Adams says, "If one member in the family has to diet, let everyone get in the act." In today's column, Edie explains how she helped Ernie Kovacs, her husband lose 50 pounds. This talented couple are together weekly on Ernie's show, "Take a Good Look" on ABC-TV.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Diet Is A Mental Thing, Says Kovacs

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — When Ernie Kovacs dropped nearly 50 pounds, his friends waited to see him gain it all back again. But now after three years, Ernie still weighs 178 instead of 227.

"How did you lick your problem?" I asked Mr. Kovacs one morning recently when I visited with him in their home in Beverly Hills.

"I got tired of being heavy. It slowed me down. I felt sluggish and decided to reduce. This is by far the most important step—the mental one," Ernie declared. "Once you say you'll do it NOW and not tomorrow, the rest is easy."

"Easy?" I queried with surprise.

"I knew that I had to do it without pills and without will power. I challenged myself to get thin, and then it became a game. Yes," Ernie said, "an enjoyable one. I allowed myself 1,000 calories a day, and I knew if I spent these wisely, I would not be hungry. The trick is to find filling, low-calorie foods. A hard-boiled egg and a stalk of celery are more filling than a tablespoon of olive oil but they both add up to the same count.

"I changed my eating habits. I concentrated on protein, fresh fruits and vegetables. I gave up sweets, Italian food, bread and butter. I think you have to understand your type. I am not one for lots of will power. If I wanted a hot fudge sundae with whipped cream and nuts, I ate it. And afterward, I made up for it with a stark diet. I didn't do it often, but I didn't try to see how much will power I had.

"Edie made it easier for me," he added.

At this point Edie came into the patio and said, "What are you two talking about?"

"Your husband said you were a great help while he was dieting," I told Edie.

"I got in the act," Edie declared. "I didn't serve anything Ernie couldn't eat. I'm proud of the way he's stayed thin, but he kids about it being too expensive to get fat and having to get all new clothes again."

"What's your problem?" I asked, remarking that she didn't look as though she had one.

"I used to be a secretary," Edie replied, "and if I didn't exercise I got a secretary's spread. But I concentrate on below the waist exercises and I swim. For me, there's nothing like a good work out in the pool for taking weight off my hips. But my real problem is my hair.

"I had it dyed for a new picture with Doris Day, and I hope to keep it this shade. It is much easier on my hair, and I never felt I was the bleached-blonde type. Ernie didn't want me to cut it," Edie explained, "so I kept snipping it off a little at a time until finally it was short and he liked it.

"I used to have strong healthy hair, but it was ruined by incompetent operators. Now I do my own. My hair fell out in handfuls because it was overbleached, but I worked with it for a whole year until I got it back into good condition.

"Now I concentrate on quality and not letting other people color it. I found a wonderful treatment. I give my hair a conditioning every time I wash it. I use something to renew and restore the hair shaft. And after the shampoo, while my hair is still wet, I rub in a white ointment. I alternate my shampoos because if I use the same one too long, my hair does not look as nice.

"How do you manage to keep house, work in Ernie's show, do pictures and night clubs and still seem so relaxed?" I asked.

"I find being active and learning new things a great joy," Edie replied. "I'm designing my own clothes now and taking a course in psychology and continuing my singing lessons. I think one of the things that make people jittery is thinking about themselves and not being active enough."

DIET TO END ALL DIETING

Some people spend their lives dieting. It is a feast and famine routine with them. Overindulgence must be paid for with punishing rigidity. Starvation diets are detrimental to good health if they are stayed on for more than two or three days. Leaflet M-81, "Diet to End All Dieting," is sensible, easy to follow and allows you to lose weight while enjoying your diet. OES Sets School Of Instruction

For the first time since 1954, Eastern Star members will be hostess group for a school of instructions.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday at the First Methodist Church, where sessions will be held. Chapters of District Two expected to send members to the gathering include Big Spring, Midland, Odessa, Crane, Stanton, Lamesa, Snyder, Seminole, Andrews, Goldsmith, Coahoma and Garden City.

At 6 p.m. Tuesday, the group will have a banquet in the high school cafeteria, with a meeting to follow at 7:30 p.m. at the church.

Taking part in the school will be Mrs. Agnes Lee Howard of Albany, worthy grand matron; Mrs. Robbie Yates of Stratford, grand examiner; Mrs. Allene Young of Turkey, district deputy grand matron; Mrs. J. A. Wright of Big Spring, deputy grand matron.

Fierros To Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Fierro, 706 NW 5th, will observe their 25th wedding anniversary today with an open house from 5:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The couple was married in the Sacred Heart Church, March 12, 1936; Mrs. Fierro is the former Refugio Sarmiento.

Out-of-town guests are expected from El Paso and from Roswell, N. M., and a son and daughter will attend from Milwaukee, Wis., and El Paso; they are Consuelo Fierro of El Paso and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Fierro Jr. of Wisconsin, whose daughter, Jan, about 1½ years old, is the only grandchild.

Other children, who will assist in the entertaining, include George, Albert, Gabriel and Juanita.

Gray Ladies To Be Capped

Mrs. Charles Watson will receive a four-year chevron, to be worn on the sleeve of her Red Cross Gray Lady uniform, during the capping ceremony slated for Monday at 10 a.m.

New members of the Gray Lady Corps will receive their caps at the same time in the chapel at Webb AFB. They have completed the orientation course and period of probation and will now be ready to serve as volunteers in the base hospital.

Mrs. Glenn Ferry is chairman of the corps; Mrs. James Smith is co-chairman.

Slated to be capped are Mrs. Robert Bernd, Mrs. Craig Cook, Mrs. Roland Crock, Mrs. R. J. Gradel, Mrs. Jack Greenway, Mrs. Charles Hardy, Mrs. J. W. Harper, Mrs. R. H. Hartzog Jr., Mrs. Herbert Heater, Mrs. Terrence Hedges.

Also, Mrs. Remais Kauffman, Mrs. Richard Kauffman, Mrs. Vernon Kite, Mrs. James Kujfeld, Mrs. J. M. Lyon, Mrs. James Maness, Mrs. Henry Manning, Mrs. Phillip Mlynek, Mrs. Vernon Nofziger, Mrs. G. B. Riley, Mrs. Arnold Schneider, Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. David M. Sibbald, Mrs. K. J. Tobin and Mrs. Malcolm Moore.

After the ceremony, guests will gather in the Officers' Club where coffee will be served.

MRS. ERVIN FRAN BORDOFSKE — Photo By Barr

Couple Recites Vows In Forsan Ceremony

A double-ring ceremony united Sherrie Ann Fletcher and Ervin Fran Bordofske in marriage at 8 p.m., Friday in the Church of Christ in Forsan. Officiating was Darrell Flyntt, minister.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. O. W. Fletcher of Forsan and the late Mr. Fletcher. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bordofske, 705 W. 15th St.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Carroll Fletcher, of St. Elno, Ill. She wore a floor length gown with a fitted bodice, small stand-up collar, tiny covered buttons at the back and long lace sleeves. The dress was of white satin, covered with white lace and was fashioned with a court length train. A coif of pearled Alencon lace held the bridal veil of silk illusion. Accessories included a necklace of small, cultured pearls and pearl earclips, presents from the bridegroom.

For something old, the bride carried a handkerchief and Bible which had belonged to her grandmother. White jeweled shoes were something new, and her wedding attire was something borrowed. She also wore a blue garter and birthdate pennies in her shoes for luck.

The bride's bouquet was an orchid accented with feathered carnations and showered with white picot ribbon.

ALTAR DECOR

Church decorations included a semi-sunburst of white gladioli which centered an arch flanked with palms and candelabra. The bridal aisle was lighted by cathedral tapers.

Jerry Don Hughes served as best man and Calvin Louis Bordofske, the bridegroom's brother, was the usher. Billy Wash, the bride's cousin, was the ring bearer and Dana Susan Porter, the flower girl. Altar taper lighters were Mrs. Freddie M. Stuart, the bride's sister of Crane, and Calvin Bordofske.

Bride's matrons were Mrs. Jimmie R. Porter of Jacksonville, Ark. and Mrs. Stuart, both sisters of the bride. They were dressed identically in lilac embroidered lace over lilac taffeta. Completing their outfits were small, white feathered hats, long, white gloves, white shoes and small cultured pearl necklaces and earclips. They carried white carnation bouquets atop hearts covered with lilac satin ribbon and lace.

Wedding music consisted of "Be With Us Lord," "The Wedding March," and "The Lord Bless and Keep You," sung by a chorus which included Dan Conley, Rufus Rowland, Bob Kiser, Walter Kriedel, Von Ratliff, Mrs. Conley, Mrs. Kenneth Cox, Mrs. Kiser and Mrs. Wallie Sorrells. Dub Rowland was in charge of the music, and a poem was read by Mrs. J. T. Holladay.

For a trip to Ruidoso, N. M., the bride wore a three-piece lavender suit accented with lilac gloves. Accessories included a pearl necklace, lilac bag and lilac shoes and a hat of small lilac flowers, accented with a lilac veil. She wore an orchid corsage.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 1601 Owens St.

RECEPTION

A reception was held in the Forsan school cafeteria. In the receiving line with the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Bordofske, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. Jerry Hughes and Calvin Bordofske.

A white net tablecloth, accented with silver and bells atop lilac, decorated the refreshment table. Punch was served from a crystal bowl. The three tiered cake was decorated with a bride and bridegroom standing in a heart shaped frame with hanging bells.

Members of the houseparty were Verna Draper, Francine Salyer, and Patti Francis. Registering guests was Mrs. Don Kennemur.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Pat Masters, Princeton, Ind.; Mrs. Bill Kelly, St. Eno, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Max Stuart, Roby; Freddie Stuart, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Townsend, all of Crane; Mr. and Mrs. Hal Cox, Eunice, N. M.; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Bills, Midland; and Mr. and Mrs. Harley Grant, McCamey.

The bride is a graduate of Forsan High School and attended Bette B School of Beauty. Currently she is employed with the Beauty Center.

Bordofske is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Howard County Jr. College. He is employed with Cosden Petroleum Corp.

P-TA Meeting Set In Forsan Monday

FORSAN (SC) — Parent-Teacher's Association meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., Monday with Mrs. Ross Callihan as program leader and Bruce Frazier will be the speaker.

Garden City Couple Weds In Plainview

GARDEN CITY (SC)—The parsonage of Trinity Methodist Church in Plainview was the scene for the marriage of Jeanette Graves and Dennis Truman Parker at 11 a.m., March 11. Officiating was the Rev. Jim Boswell, pastor.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin C. Graves of Garden City; and Parker's parents are Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Parker, also of Garden City.

Wedding attire for the bride was a white cotton street length dress designed in a princess style and accented with white lace around the dress hem. She also wore a white hat and black accessories. Her hat represented something borrowed; dress, something new; shoes, something old and a garter, something blue. She also wore a white carnation corsage.

Karal Sue Parker, the bridegroom's sister, was maid of honor. She wore a navy blue faille dress with black patent accessories and a white carnation corsage.

After a short wedding trip to Lubbock the couple will return to Garden City where they will reside.

The bride currently is attending Garden City High School and the bridegroom, who attended Howard County Jr. College, is employed with the Texas Highway Department.

Local People Attend Meet

Nineteen local school cafeteria employes attended the 36th annual convention of District IV Texas State Food Service Association in Midland Friday.

The TSFSA was conducted in conjunction with the Texas State Teachers' Association. Meetings were held at Austin Junior High School and speakers were Delbert Downing, Midland Chamber of Commerce; Jay Banks, local chief of police; and Mrs. John Fry, state representative for District IV. Theme of the convention was "Today's Students, America's Future."

Officers for the coming year are Mrs. Opal Spikes of Snyder, president; Bill Spears of Odessa, vice president; Mrs. Absella Galloway of Andrews, secretary-treasurer; Janice Durrum of Midland, district representative for two years; and Mrs. Mae McCawley of Andrews, representative for a year. Outgoing president is Mrs. John Annen, Big Spring.

Mrs. Fry presented the Big Spring members with carnation corsages.

For Fun

It's fun to work with puppets and it's fun to watch as Brownies serve as voices and go through the paces of acting for the little figures that they have made. This trio, Vicki Seder, Sharon Hornbaker and Joanne Sullivan, left to right, presented a little skit recently for Marcy P-TA, using their puppets.

Cookies, Anyone?

Well-supplied with Girl Scout cookies are these two scouts, Ann Howard, at left, and Carolyn Carlsson. The sale of the sweets began Friday and will continue through the coming week as part of the observance of Girl Scout Week. Proceeds from the cookie sale will be used to improve Camp Boothe Oaks, scout camp which was purchased and equipped with money from the cookie sales.

Scouts, Brownies To Observe Their Week

Girl Scouts and Brownies, in uniform, are attending the churches of their choice today to mark the beginning of Girl Scout Week.

Since Friday, Scouts and Brownies have been carrying on the annual cookie sale, and various activities will hold the interests of the troops throughout the week.

Proceeds from the sale of cookies in the West Texas Council will be used to improve facilities at Camp Boothe Oaks at Sweetwater. Past sales have financed the purchase of the site, the buildings and the equipment of the camp and have provided opportunities for year-round camping for the scouts.

Another phase of fun for scouts is the three-day ski trip to New Mexico. From the 13-county council, 23 Senior Girl Scouts have been participating in skiing at Red River, N. M., during the weekend. Represented in the group are troops from Abilene, Stanton, Snyder, Sweetwater and Lamesa.

Girl Scout training includes work toward badges for homemaking, first aid, arts and crafts, community service, volunteer work in hospitals, child care, library and museum care and program presentation among other activities.

Janis Sparks Heads Intermediate Girls

Janis Sparks was elected president of the Airport Baptist Intermediate girls at their meeting Thursday.

Other officers are Glenda DeVrise, vice president and Marilyn Clark, publicity chairman. A program committee, consisting of Jackie Buchanan, Hazel King and Shirley Steel, also was appointed.

Ways for the group to make money were discussed, and a motion was made to conduct a class meeting each month.

COSDEN CHATTER

Workers Attend A Symposium At Tech

Nine Cosden employes were in Lubbock Saturday to attend an all-day Symposium for Today's Secretary jointly sponsored by the Caprock Chapter, National Secretaries' Association (International) and the Department of Business Education and Secretarial Administration of Texas Tech. Sessions were held on the Tech campus.

Traveling in the Cosden plane were Mrs. Leslie Green, Marguerite Cooper, Mrs. S. Gorman, Mrs. Arch Ratliff, Mrs. J. R. Asbury, Mrs. George Thorburn, Mrs. Pat Porter, Mrs. Paul Sheedy. They were joined by Mrs. Bill Horne who, with her children Anita and Billy, made an overnight visit with relatives.

The Les Beauvais family has had as guests Mrs. Beauvais' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Look of Grand Junction, Colo., whom they especially entertained with a weekend trip to San Antonio. Look, a retired advertising man, is the author of five books on subjects ranging from advertising and geology to archaeology. While here he addressed the Advertising Club in Odessa.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Judd of Paducah, Ky., are here visiting their son and family, the Donald Judds. Principal inspiration for the trip was the new grandson, Thomas Matthew, who was born last month.

Robert Shriver of the New York Stock Exchange was a visitor to Cosden, Tuesday.

Associates of Joe Jackson gathered Friday afternoon to wish him a happy birthday, and share coffee and cake with him.

Mrs. Ray White is in Medical Arts Hospital with a throat infection.

Pauline Sullivan has been in Big Spring Hospital for several days.

Otto Peters Jr. and Bill Crooker attended an office equipment show at the Baker Hotel in Dallas, Monday and Tuesday.

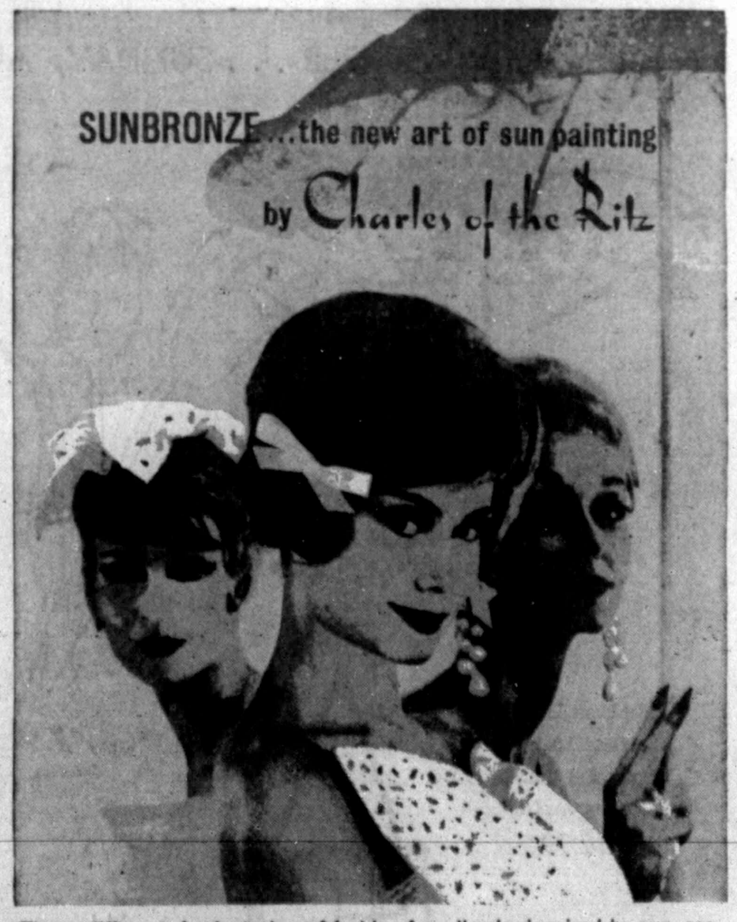

Arlene Hartin is spending the weekend in Greenville.

Mrs. Dee Thomas is hospitalized at Cowper Clinic.

Alberteen Pettus is a new employe in the credit department.

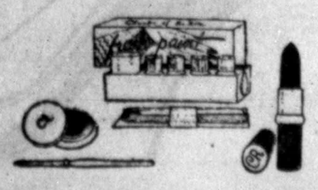

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jenkins are vacationing in Atlanta, Ga.

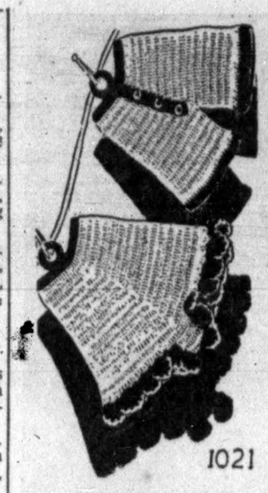

Mrs. J. C. Hurt, Helen and J. C. Jr. have had as a guest T. Max Davis of Houston. Davis, an insurance executive, visited Knife and Fork Club committees in West Texas as a trustee of the international organization.

Ex-Techsans

Techsans Making Big Spring Home

An ex-basketball player from Texas Tech and his family are this week's newcomers. Verdell Turner, math instructor at Howard County Jr. College, has been in Big Spring since January, but his wife and children moved here a week ago.

Before coming to Big Spring, the family lived in Lubbock, where Turner was a member of the Tech faculty. He received his M. S. degree from there in 1959 and Mrs. Turner received her BA degree in Tech in 1960.

The Turners married while they were students at Tech and both children, Treva, two, and Kent, five months, were born while their parents were students.

Turner was a coach at Perryton and Schreiner Institute at Kerrville before he began study on his master's degree. He has a bachelor's degree in physical education. Mrs. Turner received her degree in sociology.

It only seems natural that Turner is a sports enthusiast and that basketball is his main interest, next to teaching math. He also is a tennis player and likes water skiing.

Mrs. Turner shares her husband's appreciation for the outdoors and for sports. Although she has never belonged to a garden club, she considers herself a flower fiend. Both like square dancing and are trying to learn bridge.

Neither of the Turners has become associated with any clubs, but they are visiting local Methodist churches and plan to join one soon. Mrs. Turner, who enjoys singing, was a member of a church choir in Lubbock and the Tech Choir. She also belonged to Phi Mu sorority.

Turner, who is 6'3", hopes that his son will follow in his footsteps and play basketball. Mrs. Turner is 5'9".

"Big Spring is the friendliest town I've been in" comments Mrs. Turner, whose native home is Kerrville. Turner was raised in Lubbock.

New Yorkers Visit Parents In Forsan

FORSAN (SC) — Mrs. S. C. Crumley is visiting in Brady. Visiting here with their parents were Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Park and their children, Freddie, Roger and Stevie. The Parks were en route to El Paso from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McArthur of Robert Lee were recent visitors here with friends.

Page Clevenger was in Cisco Friday and Saturday to attend the funeral of her grandfather, R. W. Clevenger.

Visiting Mrs. Vera Harris have been her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. D. Y. Ray of Olton, and Mr. and Mrs. James Craig of Robert Lee.

Baptists Conclude Week Of Prayer Friday Morning

Circles of Baptist Temple Church concluded the Annie Armstrong week of prayer Friday with the Douglas Circle presenting a panel discussion.

Theme for the week of prayer was "My Prayer to God, That They Might Be Saved." Evan Holmes Circle presented Monday's program, "How Shall They Call on Them?"

On Tuesday the Fisher Circle presented a program, "How Shall They Believe?"

All the church organizations presented a playlet, "The Same Lord Over All," Wednesday. Songs were sung by the Sunbeams, and the GA's and RA's read names of the missionaries on the prayer calendar.

In the play were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Huff, Jean Cox, Drexel Rutledge, Joe Dunn, Mrs. A. T. Boren, Mrs. George Harwood, Mrs. Sam Bennett, Mrs. D. C. Boren, Jim Bennett, Charles Modisette and Mrs. Neal Bryant. Dunn sang a solo, "That They Might Be Saved."

Mrs. A. W. Page directed Thursday's program, "How Shall They Hear?" which was presented by the various circles.

Lydia Class

Mrs. Eddie Bellomy and Mrs. Wilbur Hall were cohostesses for members of the Baptist Temple Lydia Class Thursday evening in the Bellomy home. The Rev. A. R. Posey presented the devotion for seven members and three guests.

Convention Plans Made For Caprock District

LAMESA (SC)—The official call to the first annual convention of the Caprock District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, has been issued by Mrs. A. E. Boyd of Plainview, district president.

The convention is to be held in Lamesa March 27-29, and the theme will be "A Concerned Womanhood". General chairman for the convention is Mrs. Ernest Moody; Mrs. Carl Rountree is in charge of convention music.

Hostess clubs are the Lamesa Woman's Study Club, Mrs. H. M. Bruner, president; the Lamesa Delphian Club, Mrs. B. B. Baylor, president; the '48 Delphian Club, Mrs. Bill Hunter, president, and the Junior Woman's Study Club, Mrs. Vernon Flenniken, president.

Pre-convention activities, March 27 include the district executive committee meeting to be held in the president's suite of Westerner Motel, and the dinner for the district board at Woman's Study Club.

Activities on convention day, March 28, will include the past presidents and life members' breakfast at Liddell's Restaurant, and a parliamentary law and public relations breakfast at Olin's Cafe.

Registration for board members is scheduled at the Study Club building, March 27, at 4 p.m., and general registration will be at 8 a.m. the following day at the high school.

The first general session opens at 9 a.m., March 28, and the morning will be highlighted by an address by Dr. James Jauncey. His topic is "America's Uniqueness". A Civil War Centennial luncheon will be given at Lamar Forrest Community Center at 12:30 p.m., and Mrs. Harry Griffiths of Austin, president of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs will address the women on "Knowledge Is Power".

Department and division reports and awards, along with club reports and the Vogue Style show at 3 p.m. will highlight the afternoon activities.

Theme for the convention banquet that evening will be "New Dimensions in Public Affairs," and Dr. Cleo Dawson will address the convention. His topic is "For Every Problem There Is An Answer". Special awards will be presented to the outstanding clubwoman, teacher of the year, mother of the year, and the Vogue contest winner during the banquet program.

A fine arts program is being arranged for presentation at the high school auditorium at 8:30 p.m., the same day.

A breakfast at 7:30 a.m., March 29, is the closing event of the convention. At this meeting, awards will be made for the outstanding yearbook, outstanding press book, outstanding program, best club report and junior and sub-junior awards.

Yearbooks, pressbooks and art will be displayed at the Delphian Clubhouse near the high school building, and refreshments will be served there during the convention by the '48 Delphian Club.

Forum Has Program On Texas

Nineteen members of the Modern Woman's Forum met Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Felton Smith to hear a Texas Day program.

W. D. Berry was guest speaker and took as his topic, "Civil Defense in Texas." He stressed the need to follow the rules of the CD leaders and brought out the importance of shelters such as the one being constructed at the Main Street fire station.

The good neighbor policy of Texas was discussed by Mrs. Harwood Keith, who included Canada as well as Mexico as a neighbor.

Mrs. C. W. Parmenter, Mrs. J. P. Dodge and Mrs. T. J. Adams were named to a nominating committee.

The meeting place for the next session is to be announced.

Honoree

Mrs. Jones Lamar is to be honored at a tea this afternoon by members of the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge at the lodge hall; she is a member of the state committee for mileage and per diem and will leave March 18 for San Antonio to attend the state convention of the lodge. Guests are expected to call for the tea from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Webb Windsock

Officers and wives of Air Base Group met recently for a cocktail party at the Officers' Club. In charge of decorations for the evening were Mrs. Howard Lindsey and Mrs. Ford Ivy. Tables were decorated with chartreuse cloths and napkins centered by ivy plants with ornaments depicting the various divisions of the group.

Guests included Col. and Mrs. Donald Eisenhart, Col. and Mrs. A. E. Taute, Col. and Mrs. G. A. Stell, Col. and Mrs. D. W. Pendergrast, and Col. and Mrs. B. V. Pearson. Eighteen couples from the group attended and remained for the buffet and dance.

Anne Klein of Junior Sophisticates

GAY DECEIVER

One-Piece Frock Appears Two-Piecer

In this attractive one - piece dress, Anne Klein employs a bit of artful stitching along a loose fold to achieve the smart split-level line.

Planned to add inches to abbreviated heights, the long look-like overblouse is given an easy fit, then sparked with low pockets. Its manner is cool and casual, with sleeves non-existent, neckline unadorned.

A profession of buttons provides easy access into this fashion find that is adaptable to so many fabrics—linen, novelty cottons, shantung, pique, raw silk, lieghtweight woolens.

From these corresponding body measurements select the one size best for you. Our patterns are the only patterns with ready-to-wear sizes.

Size	Bust	Waist	Hips	Nape of Neck to Waist

Bob Rogerses Are Parents Of Son

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Rogers, 1108 Mulberry, are parents of a son, born Saturday morning in the Howard County Hospital Foundation.

The baby, who weighed 7 pounds 9½ ounces, has been named Michael Tillman; he has a sister, Robbi Dianne, who is 2½ years old.

Grandparents are Mrs. LaVerne Rogers, Old San Angelo Highway, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Yates, 1909 Mittel.

Meat Preparation

Variety meats are usually cooked to the well - done stage, with the possible exception of veal liver which may be served medium.

Shower Honors Mrs. Howland

A wedding shower was given for Mrs. Morris Howland, formerly Sherron Wolfki, at the home of Mrs. Claude C. Baughn, 1805 Monticello. Mrs. Howland was married in December.

Members of the houseparty were Mrs. Derrell Pollock, Mrs. Doyle Railsback, Mrs. Bobby Cotts and Letress Hall.

The table was decorated with a white lace cloth and red underskirt. A white heart of styrofoam, holding red rosebuds, was the centerpiece.

A white glamellia corsage was presented to the honoree and white carnation corsages were presented Mrs. H. H. Owens, Mrs. Howland's mother, and Mrs. Floyd Howland, the mother-in-law.

Twenty-five guests attended the shower.

ROUND TOWN

With LUCILLE PICKLE

Clubwomen of Big Spring are being urged to get behind the convention of the Western District slated here March 23-24 and attend as many meetings as possible. Clubs that sponsor the various activities are expected to attend 100 per cent, which will be a miracle but a good thing if it does come off. MRS. RICHARD PATTERSON, general chairman of the convention, wants all local clubwomen to know the $1.50-registration fee all goes into the district coffer; none can be used for putting on the big show.

A nice gesture is the one of allowing the women to bring their husbands as their guests at the public affairs dinner, March 23. Of course they will have to be paid for and reservations should be at the earliest . . . A big representation from Big Spring will be a mighty good boost for the convention from the host city. Reservations for the luncheons, dinners, etc., should be made as soon as possible. All reservations made by mail to MRS. WESLEY DEATS, 702 Tulane, should be in by March 21.

Miss Rogers Is Honored

LAMESA (SC) — Ann Rogers, bride-elect of the Rev. Joe Grizzle, was the honoree for a miscellaneous gift tea given in the home of Mrs. Scott Russell, Tuesday afternoon.

Hostesses were Mrs. Marshall Cohorn, Mrs. Pat Stone, Mrs. J. W. Lowrey, Mrs. Frank Condron, Mrs. Pat Green, Mrs. J. E. Airheart, Mrs. Frances Walker, Mrs. Russell Davis, Mrs. Jerry Kimbrell, Mrs. R. W. Kelly, and Mrs. Russell.

A lavender and yellow color scheme was carried out in the tea decorations. The table was laid with a yellow linen cloth under white lace; a lavender cellophane runner bore the silver lettering, "March 18", the couple's wedding date, and yellow satin streamers laid on silver met bore the couple's names.

White tapers in milkglass holders flanked a white Bible on a styrofoam base which formed the centerpiece; flowers were arranged on the Bible, and at the back, a lavender cellophane bow was nested in yellow tulle.

Guests were received by Mrs. Willard Rogers and her daughter, the bride-elect.

BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

SEC. D BIG SPRING, TEXAS, SUNDAY, MARCH 12, 1961 SEC. D

Labor Picture Here Rated 'Bright Spot'

By SAM BLACKBURN

There are 13,750 workers (estimated) in the Big Spring labor market area.

Of this number, 12,600 are now gainfully employed. This leaves 1,150—8.4 per cent — out of work. However, before jumping to the conclusion that unemployment in the area is extremely heavy several factors have to be considered. Sixty per cent of the 1,150 persons now seeking jobs in this area are women. This means there are 690 women unemployed. A check of these 690 women shows that 414 are members of a family in which the husband is employed.

The 1,150 jobless gives the area an 8.4 per cent employment rate. Striking out the 414 women whose husbands are working, pulls the unemployment rate to only 5.4 per cent.

BRIGHT SPOT

As a matter of fact, the Big Spring area is rated as a "bright spot" in the current labor picture. Jobs here are not as abundant as they used to be and there are more folk who are seeking work or who are cashing unemployment compensation checks than in recent years. However, compared with conditions in other ares,—even other areas in West Texas—the unemployment situation here is not bad at all.

Furthermore, the job picture here, as measured against the conditions elsewhere, has resulted in a migration to Big Spring of out-of-town job hunters. There are not enough jobs here to absorb these newcomers. However, they stay here and file their claims for unemployment compensation in the Big Spring office of the Texas Employment Commission and, by their presence and their actions, increase local unemployment statistics.

TEC Director Leon Kinney says that he does not regard the unemployment picture here as being serious. Naturally, he said, he would like to see it improve and he believes that it will improve with the arrival of April. Meantime, some change for the better is already in evidence. Start of work rebuilding U. S. 87 and stepped up activity at the Sid Richardson Carbon Black construction job has already absorbed some of the idle.

SMALL INCREASE

Compared with the first nine weeks in 1960, the local TEC office says the number of claims for compensation handled show only 11.3 per cent increase. This gives the Big Spring area one of the smallest increases of any area in the 38-county San Angelo district of TEC.

The local office shows that there were 382 initial claims filed in the first nine weeks in 1960; the first nine weeks of 1961 showed 400. There were 1,741 continued claims on file through March 3, 1960 as compared with 1,963 on March 2, 1961. Total claims actions handled by the office from Jan. 1 through March 3, 1960, were 2,123. For the period Jan. 1 through March 2, 1961, the total was 2,363.

Certainly conditions are not as happy employment wise as they were in January 1958 and 1959. But, Kinney points out, they are not gravely different from what they were in January a year ago.

CLAIMS

Total claims actions for January, 1961, were 1,047. For the same month a year ago, total claims actions were 939—an increase of only 108.

"Good times" in 1958 and times nearly as good in 1959 are shown by statistics of the TEC. In January, 1958, only 442 claims actions were in the TEC office; in January, 1959 the number was only 526.

Kinney pointed out that to continually draw unemployment compensation, a claimant must make continued claims each week. He said that records of his office show that the maximum number filing locally at any one time was 289 in the week ending Feb. 16 and the same number in the week ending March 2.

Unemployment in Big Spring area at the present time, Kinney feels, is not near a dangerous level.

APRIL

He re-emphasized, if the employment pattern follows its usual form there should be material improvement in April. This seasonal trend, shown by years of experience, has never failed to develop.

The local TEC office has been able, Kinney said, to make a fair number of job placements. Initial unemployment compensation claims for the first nine weeks of this year are only 18 larger than for the same nine weeks last year.

There are approximately 900 applications for work on file in the TEC office at this time. This number is not regarded as exceptionally heavy.

417 APPLICANTS

In the first nine weeks of the year, the office has found employment for 417 applicants. Some of the jobs found have been temporary; a few have been permanent and some for periods of a few days up to several weeks.

Largest number of job seekers included in the lists on file are office workers, clerks, stenographers and managers. There were 287 such applications on file Friday.

There are 191 applications for jobs as waitresses and maids.

Common labor applicants account for 142 of the applications; skilled workers for 108 and semi-skilled workers for 159. Thirty-five of the applicants are seeking farm work.

FOR SCHOOLS

Sprinklers Are Costly, Dangerous

By M. A. WEBB

Should automatic sprinkler systems be used in schools for fire prevention?

The Council on Fire Prevention says it intends to recommend automatic sprinkler systems for schools and nursing homes.

The consensus of those most directly concerned with safety in all forms in schools say it is too dangerous, and too costly. For nursing homes where many disabled or feeble adults are housed, the system could possibly be recommended in flammable buildings.

In modern school buildings, which are of the single story type, with outside entrances and exits, and which are semi-proof, the need for such protection is not justfied, fire marshals, school administrators, and state education officials say.

Big Spring Fire Chief H. V. Crocker said there has been too much tampering with such systems in schools.

"Youngsters, without meaning to damage anything, have often 'jimmied' the systems, flooding buildings. This results in enormous damage to furniture, walls, flooring, books and supplies," he said.

He said that Big Spring officials had always been very cooperative in following suggestion made during inspections and had always kept fire hazards at the very minimum.

"In the older buildings of two- and thre-story types, we have some wood floors which are flammable, but fire escapes are provided in recommended areas which will allow children to clear the buildings without danger to them," he continued.

State laws prescribe sufficient exits in all public buildings, and are more specific in approving these school buildings.

"It is only where the old, dangerous type buildings are being used by school officials who pay little heed to needs for fire prevention remedies, that any real danger exists in school buildings today," Crocker said.

"Big Spring does not have that kind of buildings. Many parents who would find fault with schools for what they consider insufficient fire hazard protection have homes much more dangerous than school buildings in this area."

Automatic sprinkler systems are installed in many factories, business buildings, and places where those working inside are adults and there is little danger of anyone tampering with them.

Big Spring has no city ordinance requiring such installations, and few Texas cities have them.

Some insurance men recommend such systems for schools, but few seem to want to insure the contents of the buildings where they are installed, it was pointed out.

Career Day Set At A&M

High School Career Day will be observed Saturday, March 18, by Texas A&M College, with invitations to all senior high school boys who may be interested, Ed Edwards, president of the Big Spring A&M Club, has announced.

Boys are invited to tour the campus and participate in a program designed to acquaint them with the student life program, leadership development goals, and physical facilities of the college.

The Big Spring A&M Club will provide transportation and the college will furnish sleeping quarters. Students making the trip will furnish their own meals. Those who wish to make the trip should assemble at the high school auditorium at 10 a.m. Friday, March 17. The return trip will be on Sunday. All boys wishing to go should contact Louis J. Thompson, AM 4-7081, not later than March 15.

When they arrive at the college, the seniors may be escorted to the dormitories of hometown students if desired. Following a general assembly, where the president will address them, students will be divided into groups in accordance with the individual's interest and his tour will be in this field of activity.

DR. J. V. WARREN

Heart Disease Is Topic For Medical Meet

Big Spring physicians have been invited to attend a meeting in Midland March 16 to hear Dr. James V. Warren speak on "changing concepts of congestive heart failure."

The event is sponsored by the Midland County Heart Association and is scheduled to be held at the Sands Hotel. Wives of doctors are invited to a social hour beginning at 6:30 p.m. and the dinner is set for 7:30 p.m. Following dinner, the wives will meet with the auxiliary members while the physicians attend the scientific session.

Dr. Warren will speak to the Andrews-Ector-Midland County Medical Society.

Reservations may be had by contacting Mrs. Edward T. Driscoll, 3603 Andrews Highway, Midland. Tickets are $2.75 per person.

Dr. Warren is an authority on cardiovascular disease and has written or collaborated in writing some 87 papers on heart and blood vessel diseases. He recently accepted an appointment as professor of medicine and chairman of the department of medicine at Ohio State University.

The speaker received his BA degree from Ohio State University in 1935 and M. D. degree from the Harvard Medical School in 1939. Until recently, he held the position of professor of medicine and chairman of the department of medicine at the University of Texas school of medicine.

Good Deed Wins $900

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — Joe Wiles, 17, spent a nickel on a good deed and won $900.

He spotted an expired parking meter, dropped in a nickel and was arrested when he refused to tell officers whether the car was his.

A Circuit Court jury decided that the youth violated no ordinance — even though the car belonged to a stranger. It ordered the arresting officers to pay the youth $450 each. He had sought $5,000 on a claim of false arrest.

County Commissioners To Map Road Plan Monday

Howard County Commissioners plan to draw up their road building program for the next 12 months at their meeting Monday, Ed Carpenter, county judge, said Friday.

For the past five years, the county has followed a policy of setting up approximately 20 miles of county highway to be paved each year. It has not been possible most years to complete the whole program set for that year. However, by continuing ahead into the succeeding year and taking up the new program only when the already planned jobs have been cleared away, the county has been able to build nearly 100 miles of hard surfaced road.

Each commissioner will recommend roads in his district which he feels should be paved. From all of the proposed roads, the most urgent will be selected and the road and bridge department assigned to go ahead with the jobs.

The department is still working on some of the roads set up for last year but is relatively near to having the assignment completed.

The $65 Miracle

Now TSO Research and Experience Brings You
The Extra Joys of Contact Lenses
Without Excessive Cost

1. Which of these two ladies is wearing glasses? They both are. They're wearing today's miraculous Contact Lenses!

2. The girl on the left paid $150 for her's . . . the girl on the right, only $65 complete at TSO. Can Contact Lenses for only $65 be as good as those costing so much more? Indeed they are . . . the world's finest . . . ground to precision standards impossible at any price a few short years ago.

3. High prices were necessary not too long ago. But, through persistent research and development, optometric science has improved both the fitting of Contact Lenses and the laboratory techniques used in processing them. TSO has kept abreast of these improvements. These better methods combined with vast TSO experience with thousands of Contact Lens fittings have lowered the cost of fitting and making lenses. Our reduced cost has resulted in a lower price to you.

4. TSO is a state-wide organization of both Optometrists (who examine eyes, prescribe and fit lenses) and Opticians (who grind and process lenses according to exact individual prescriptions.) Because we prescribe, process and fit contact lenses, rather than using any outside source, you benefit from quality control and reduced cost.

There's No Need to Pay More When You Can't Get Better Contact Lenses.

For 25 years, TSO has provided the very finest quality eye care and eyewear at the lowest cost possible. We have always expected only a reasonable profit, not an exorbitant one. Such is the case with Contact Lenses. Every single factor that reduces our cost also reduces yours.

In making Contact Lenses, TSO uses the same fine quality, shatterproof acrylic plastic used in those priced up to $200 elsewhere. New, improved design and the most highly advanced processing methods, assure you of the most comfortable fitting, the most easily adaptable Contact Lenses available at any price. A few years ago, with old methods, we had to charge $120 for the best Contact Lenses we could provide. Today, even a Texas Millionaire need not pay more than $65 for the finest Contact Lenses money can buy. This $65 price includes your eye examination, prescription, laboratory processing and progress examinations. An eye examination by one of our competent Doctors of Optometry will quickly tell you if you, too, can wear Contact Lenses. Don't deny yourself the many advantages of Contact Lenses. See TSO now.

Business Dept. Arranges For Style Show

High school seniors looking into the possibility of a business career at Monday's Career Day at HCJC will have an extra dividend—a style show.

Under the direction of Mrs. Florene Watson, models will show the correct dress in various jobs in the business world both for young working men and women. Mrs. Golda Allen will handle the division for the young women, using clothing from Swartz Junior Shop, and George Weeks of Gibbs and Weeks will handle the men's section.

Girls serving as models are Judy Brooks, Melva Burton, Julia Flynn, Lorett, Jenkins, Penny Jones, Sandra Kuykendall, Sue Lindsey, Marilyn Mann, Jenna McCarty, Betty Merrell, Barbara Moelling, Janie Nootbaar, Beverly Osborne, Louise Plew, Pricilla Riordan, Kay Scott, Anna Timmerman, Dorothy Williams, and Mary Beth Yates.

Boys selected for models include Rex Appleton, Charles Greene, Donnie Hester, Ronnie Hubbard, Ronny Lewis, Edgar Phillips, Kenneth Pitzer and Jimmy Wise.

Background music will be played by Joyce Sheen. Harold Vail, department head, will be in charge of the program. Mrs. Argie Vail will explain careers in basic business; Mrs. Dean Box will talk careers in the secretarial field; and Mrs. Reva Adams will discuss careers in accounting. During the afternoon, visiting students will tour various room in the business department, examining various machines and equipment.

Honor Society Inducts Four, Council Candidate list Set

(By ANNE HOMAN
(For Lyn Clawson)

Thursday night the National Honor Society held its annual spring semester initiation. New inductees were Sharon Gary, Jacie Clark, Steve Kite and Richard King. A student's scholastic standing must be 90 or above to be eligible.

Petitions for Student Council officers for the 1961-62 school year were in Thursday. Candidates are: President — Dick Ebling, Gilford Jones, Bob Moore and Jerry Younger.

Vice president — Marilyn Gum, Katherine Hepner, Karon Koger and Coy Mitchell.

Secretary — Diane Belda, Sharon Gary, Marilyn Gum, Joan Jordan, Katie Bess Morgan and Rachael Phelan.

Attending the state meeting of the Future Teachers of America at North Texas State College in Denton are Kay Crownover, Cleo Thomas, Lana Lewis and Danny McCrary. The group left Friday with sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Oates. Various members of the organization who have substituted for teachers in the Big Spring school system are Locke Crosland, Cleo Thomas, Kay Crownover, Lida Fiveash, Barbara Thompson, Gayle Bratcher, Susan Zack, Glenda Peacock, Linda Peacock, Jan Thomas, Lana Lewis and Joe Don Musgrove.

Another group attending a workshop in Denton is composed of members of the journalism staff, Lyn Chawson, Locke Crosland, Buddy Newell, Elena Patterson, Judy Foster, Carolyn Thompson, and Mrs. Erma W. Steward, sponsor.

Voting delegates chosen to represent the FHA group attending district meeting in Odessa March 18 are Joann Phillips, Joyce Davidson, and Gwen Lawdermilk. The BSHS chapters plan to model several outfits made by Big Spring girls.

Seniors are to participate Monday in Career Day scheduled at HCJC. All seniors are required to report to several BSHS teachers present in order not to be counted absent in the high school office. The program includes speakers on 10 divisions ranging from agriculture to professions.

Taking advantage of the Friday holiday, senior girls spent most of the day at Moss Creek Lake enjoying the free time and the picnic.

The journalism department made two announcements this week. The yearbook, El Rodeo, named nine assistants to the staff. Joyce Davidson will assist the senior editor; club editor assistant, Cora Sue Turner; activities editor assistant, Vickie Deel; junior section, Sara Beth Homan; sophomore section, Margaret Gary; and assistant to sports editors, Pat Hampton. Photographers are Chester Smith, Don Alexander, and Bobby Brown.

The Senior Magazine, published each spring by the Corral staff, announced its business managers who will begin selling ads Tuesday. They are Lezette Yearby, Jimmy Patterson, Cherie Stanley, Frankie Morgan, Larry Moore, Don Knightstep, Kenny Kesterson, and Mike Worley.

Registrations for the American College testing program on April 22, 1961, must be received by April 1. A copy of ACT Student Information Bulletin and a registration form may be obtained in the guidance office.

The Tall Talkers Toastmistress Club, a local organization of women banded together for self improvement in the field of public speaking, invited the high school debate teams for an exhibition debate which was in conjunction with a series of programs the club is having.

Welcome to Miss Arah Phillips, who will be coaching the Steerettes the remainder of this season. Miss Phillips returns to BSHS after coaching at HCJC before going into retirement.

Tuesday marks the beginning of the local 4-H and FFA stock show. Showing of lambs and steers starts Wednesday and sale begins Thursday night.

Goliad

Goliad Names Its Council Delegates

BY NANCY HEDLESTON

Last week the Student Council elected representatives to attend the Student Council convention in Midland. Those named were Terry Cauble, Jean Armstrong, Jimmy Dawes and Randy French.

There will be a called meeting of the National Junior Honor Society on Wednesday afternoon immediatedly after school. Purpose of the meeting will be to issue certificates, pins and membership cards.

Things began settling back to normal Monday afternoon following the big school parade during the morning. Everyone seemed to enjoy it.

Achievement tests will be given to the eighth graders on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The breakdown on the hourly schedule will be announced later.

There are 27 boys in the ninth grade who have gone out for track this season. In the eighth grade there are 20 boys out for track, and about 40 boys from the seventh grade. The seventh and eighth graders met a team from Runnels on Friday afternoon.

Thursday night the seventh, eighth and ninth grade volleyball teams played the Coahoma girls. The seventh and eighth graders won their games, but the ninth grade lost. Saturday the eighth grade team goes to Kermit for a tournament, and on Tuesday the seventh and eighth grade teams will play Travis here.

We had two new students check in this week — William Morton in the seventh and Sherry White in the eighth.

STANTON

Girls At Stanton Foot The Bills

By MARSHA BRISTOW

STANTON — Even though this has been a short school week of only four days, it has been filled to the hilt with activities. Pictures, films, and demonstrations have been but a few.

Thursday the man that takes our colored pictures came. Everyone had their picture taken and we are all anxious to see the results.

This week has been expensive for all the girls. Around SHS, this has been Twirp Week, highlighted by a party sponsored by the Student Council which was held Tuesday night at the cafeteria. The cafeteria was decorated in yellow and white with balloons everywhere! There were games and some of the kids danced. The Student Council took its regular meeting time to decorate the cafeteria.

Thursday night there was a faculty-student basketball game. The men of the faculty played the A-string boys. It was exciting—and funny. The game was sponsored by the cheerleaders of next year to raise money for their schooling this summer.

The girls' basketball team received their jackets this week. The jackets are red with leather sleeves and grey letters. The letters feature a red basketball and red stripes representing the number of years each girl has participated.

The senior girls have had quite a treat this week. They have attended meetings with a representative from a nursing school and a beauty school. Some ought to have their minds made up about their futures.

The homemaking girls have had a demonstrator from Pioneer Gas Co. come over and talk to them. She demonstrated the gas range's features.

Only nine more weeks to go to school. Everyone is very happy except the seniors and already they are getting misty-eyed.

The juniors had a class meeting to discuss the banquet, and they have renewed their efforts to sell the rest of the cosmetics they have. They also have turned in their money from sales. There was approximately $200. The Junior-Senior banquet is just five weeks from Saturday night.

COAHOMA

Coahoma Cagers Place On Mythical Squads

BY PHYLLIS ANDERSON

COAHOMA — When the all-state basketball list for class A schools came out, CHS was happy to see among the names one of its own—that of Edward Reeves.

Edward, a senior and a good student as well as a good basketball player, was named to the second all - state team. He was an all - district choice and was on the Abilene Reporter News all-area team. He was the only player on the all - state team under 6-2. Everyone was mighty proud of his honors.

Coahoma High School holds the district titles in both boys and girls basketball. Although both teams met defeat in bi-district play, the student body feels that the squads had an outstanding record.

SQUAD MEMBERS

On the girls team were Glenda Haney (all - district forward), Claudine Bales (all - district forward), Johnnie Lou Nichols, (all-district guard), Lyn Nell Mason (honorable mention), Wenona Moore, Donna Cramer, Barbara Ritters (all-district forward), Sandra Nichols, Sandy Claton, Darlene Mason, Kay Porter and Peggy Bennett.

The boys winning the district title were Edward Reeves (all-district, all - state), Dwayne Richters (all - district), George Turner, Jimmy Watts, Douglas Nichols, juniors; Ronnie Lindsey, Billie Ford, Donnie Reid, Bo Bennett, sophomores; Ronnie Cunningham (all - district), Maurice Cutright, and Dwain Frazier, freshmen.

The Interscholastic League meeting is just around the corner. Eliminations will be April 8 for CHS, and almost every student tries for some literary event. Wednesday a meeting was held to determine procedures. Coahoma hopes to rank high in the meet at Merkel.

BAND CONCERT

April 6 is the date set for the band's spring concert. The band has been working hard on the music, and members feel that the program will be pleasing and one of the best CHS has ever had.

"It takes determination," said Dr. Amanda Kelyn in her address to the Science Club meeting. She helped each member to a better understanding in the fields of medicine as well as dentistry. She has 24 years of schooling and plans to continue her training further. Science Club members certainly appreciated her visit.

The FHA will have its first monthly meeting Monday at 6:30 p.m. The program will deal with making plastic flowers for the spring season, and chairman will be Jerri Nell Thomas. Mrs. Nelda Thomas will conduct the demonstrations.

At the weekly class meeting, the Seniors chose a play to be presented in April. Title of it is "Hillbilly Wedding." The seniors are anxious to get started. Also included in the meeting was a discussion of the senior trip. Instead of going to New Orleans as once talked, the class is thinking about a trip to Austin and San Antonio.

Monday is Career Day at Howard County Junior College and CHS seniors plan to participate. Virtually all members of the class seem interested in college, although not all have made a choice of schools.

The Junior Class has been making plans for the junior and senior banquet. What's the theme? Ah, that's the big secret!

That's it for this week; see you with more news next week.

College Prepares For Area Seniors Monday

BY SHERRY COATS

With hopes of repeating last year's achievement and bringing home another Superior Rating, the drama department took its production of "Antigone" to Navarro Junior College in Corsicana this weekend for the annual state one - act play contest. Under the direction of Mr. Fred Short, the College Players and Delta Psi Omega Dramatic Fraternity presented a 40 - minute cutting of the play.

In the group were Kay Loveland, Roy Cebik, Adaleen Soles, Mary Helen Yater, Ronnie Bingham, Lewis Petmecky, Marvin Simmons, Doug Davis, Jerry Hutchens, Mr. Short, and Mrs. Yater. They left Wednesday, visited the Theatre Center in Dallas Wednesday evening, rehearsed in Corsicana from 9 to 10 a.m. Thursday, attended a reception for the 12 colleges Thursday night, and presented "Antigone" Friday. The group will present the entire play at HCJC on March 20-21-22 in the round.

Monday is Career Day at HCJC —a day designed to help high school seniors decide upon their future vocation. The day will begin at 9:30 a.m. with a general assembly in the College Auditorium and will end at 2 p.m. after individual sessions. The career areas to be discussed include agriculture, business and legal professions, communications, engineering and sciences, fine arts, medical services, skilled trades, social service, and teaching and professional fields. Some of the groups will be shown films and others will have guest speakers. There will also be special music a score of 43-9. Dorothy Williams by Mrs. Don Newsom and Ira Schantz, a tour of the campus with Student Government Association members serving as official hosts, and a lunch served in the Building. Senior classes from Big Spring, Forsan, Stanton, Sterling City, Coahoma, Sands, Gail, Loraine, Garden City, and Flower Grove have been invited.

The track and field team left for Laredo Thursday seeking its third straight team championship in the Border Olympics. Last week the team brought home several firsts from the meet at Fort Worth. Bill Argo, the only freshman junior college student to take two first places, won both the 100- and 220 - yard dash. Tiffon Stone won the discus throw while Eugene Franklin ranked first in the high jump.

The Jayhawk Queens were victorious over Abilene Christian College Tuesday evening winning by was the high point scorer with 15 points. The Jayhawk Queens' next game will be Tuesday at which time the B team meets Grand Falls Independents at 8 p.m. and the A team will play a team from Webb Air Force Base at 7 p.m.

The tennis teams will be playing McMurray on Tuesday beginning at 1 p.m. here at the City Park. Linda Lopez will play No. 1 singles; Betty Ellison No. 2 singles; Betty Ellison and Mary Griffin No. 1 doubles; and Pat Prosser and Pat Greenfield No. 2 doubles. HCJC's tennis conference opens Saturday in Odessa.

Phi Theta Kappa members are making plans to send delegates to the national convention to be held at Sheridan, Wyo., the latter part of April. Also lined up for April is a Rocca Rocca Hamma field trip to Llano and surrounding area on April 7, 8, and 9.

RUNNELS

FHA To Host Special Eds

BY JUDY ENGLE

Runnels started the week by participating in the parade for Texas Education Week on Monday morning. Teachers, as well as pupils, enjoyed the march, but everyone was a little weary on the way back. A Coke party was given to all classes during the fifth period.

A special assembly was held Thursday during activity period. Capt. Harry Schenck showed a jungle film, "Beyond Singapore."

Volleyball games were played Thursday evening beginning at 5:30 o'clock. The freshman team defeated Travis of Snyder 38-32 and the eighth grade beat Travis 66-43. Congratulations Yearlings.

The Future Homemakers had their monthly council meeting Tuesday. Forty - eight girls are signed up to attend the area meeting in Odessa.

Next week, the FHA will give a party for the Special Education School. Refreshments of punch and cookies will be served by the second period girls.

New students at Runnels this week are Donnie Grissom and Jimmy McMennamy, both of the ninth grade.

No school was held Friday due to the Texas State Teachers district No. 4 conference in Midland. See you next week.

Enroll At UCC

Two area students are listed on the University of Corpus Christi rolls for the spring semester. They are Sue Alice Beard, daughter of Henry B. Beard, Coahoma, and Bobby Edward Thurman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Thurman, Gail Route. Miss Beard is majoring in piano and Thurman in religion.

Yearbook Is Being Pushed

By BONNIE SIMPSON

FORSAN — Seniors are having a final drive to get all yearbook money in hand. The annuals will be distributed during the summer months so that spring activities and the Junior - Senior banquet can be included.

The sophomore biology class was full of activity Thursday. Members were working on their term projects and it seemed that everyone was stuffing birds. Some of the students may turn out to be taxidermists, but that doesn't seem likely.

A few of the juniors took a Merit Scholarship test on Thursday. If a high enough grade is made, this will entitle the student to enter another round which could open the way to scholarships in colleges.

The boys' track season has finally got underway. The boys should go to their first track meet during this week.

Volleyball already is underway for the girls. They start their season this week.

The choir is sponsoring a talent show to raise money for new curtains for the stage. Entries will be accepted from Elbow, Forsan, Sterling City, Stanton, Garden City, Coahoma and Howard County Junior College. All entries will be screened March 24 at 7:30 p.m. and the show will be held at the same hour on April 7. The admission will be 50 cents for students and a dollar for adults.

Mary Engstrom On Band Tour

DENTON—Mary Jane Engstrom of Big Spring is a member of the North Texas State College Concert Band, which will perform in 14 cities during a spring tour March 22-29.

Miss Engstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Engstrom, is a freshman education major and is also a member of the NTSC Marching Band.

Concerts are scheduled for White Oak, Center, Orange, Beaumont, Victoria, Corpus Christi, Alice, McAllen, Robstown, Pearsall, San Antonio, Ozona, Fredericksburg and Lampasas.

Heckler-Bothered Singer Walks Out

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) —Singer Johnny Mathis, irked by hecklers and a noisy audience, walked off the floor at the swank Club Tropicoro in the Intercontinental Hotel.

The management said his two-week contract was canceled by mutual agreement. Mathis headed for New York.

How Much For Trunk?

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—You can ship a small camel from Calcutta to Hampton Roads for $44.25 less than a small elephant.

States Marine Isthmian Lines quoted the rates recently in a price list sent to a Virginia company called Zoorama, Inc., at New Market.

Nothing's come of it yet, but one can never tell.

And just in case the question is asked, "What's a small elephant?" the price list answers that, too. It's an elephant that's shorter than five feet to the shoulder.

A big elephant, now, is a different matter. It costs $605 from Calcutta, $87.75 more than a camel.

No mention was made of the cost for an elephant's trunk.

Kinsman Of Great Caruso Is Making A Name For Himself

By JOHN LARSON

He has a face that reminds the girls of Tyrone Power. He is a descendent of Enrico Caruso, from whence he obviously inherits his intense interest in music. He gets a kick out of cooking, dancing and playing the clarinet. He's Dick Caruso, and one of the more interesting and promising of the young recording artists.

"There is a family story," says Dick, "that if I had been named Enrico there would have been a fund established for complete voice training for me. My mother, however, didn't like the name Enrico and, besides, she always wanted me to be a docotor.

"You see," Dick told us, "My grandfather and the great Caruso were cousins. I'm the first member of the family since Enrico Caruso to enter the entertainment field and I think my interest in music has been influenced by the fact that music was so important in the Caruso family."

Dick, at 19, is well launched on a career. His most current MGM release, "Pretty Little Dancin' Doll" is already moving on the charts and he's making more and more personal appearances around the country. His fan clubs, headed by his 16-year-old sister Pat, are active in almost every major city and he's scheduled for several television appearances.

"I love to sing," Dick reports, "but I'm also very much interested in acting. I majored in Theatre Arts at Emerson College in Boston and some day I hope I can have a a shot at an acting career. Right now, though my recording dates and my act keep me plenty busy."

"Not long ago when I did my act in my home town, Providence, Rhode Island, I almost made my last appearance. At the end of the act I play a saxaphone and do a bit of acrobatics at the same time. I guess I got carried away and when I bounced I bit the mouthpiece so hard that it broke just as I was inhaling. A piece lodged in my throat."

"I got off stage as fast as I could after taking a bow. My manager, who didn't notice I was turning beet red, kept trying to push me out to take an encore. Finally, by gestures, I was able to show him I was choking to death on a piece of the reed from the sax. My encore was at the hospital and I've been a little more careful on that last jump ever since!"

DICK CARUSO

Dick is one of the more versatile young stars around today. He spent ten years studying dancing and uses this talent in his act. He was first clarinetist, at the age of 14, in the Rhode Island All-State Symphony Orchestra. Through his older sister, Connie, he became interested in the piano and studied enough to play it well. Most of his early training was classical, but he has turned his talents toward "pop" and his records throb with the "R and R" beat.

But, in most ways, Dick is just like any other guy of 19 getting started in his career. When he was sixteen he informed his family he wasn't going to seek a career in medicine. His mother was greatly disappointed, but at the end of a family conference, aided by Dick's father, they were able to convince Momma that music was what he really wanted. Like almost all mothers, she went along and is now very proud of her son.

"But," says Dick, "there's no room for artistic temperament in my family. When I'm home in Providence, I have to pitch in with the family chores. I still make my own bed in the morning. And, when I can manage it, I like to get into the kitchen and whip up some of my favorite dishes. This isn't too popular with Momma, though. I turn out a good meal but she says I'm not the neatest cook in the world."

"Girls?" Well, there isn't a "steady" if that's what you mean," he says. "Working and traveling as I do doesn't leave much time for a steady girl and I guess there will be time enough for that later on. In the business, I've dated Annette Funicello and Shirley Fabray (niece of Nanette Fabray.) Dating the girls in show business is fun because we have so much in common and there's so much to talk about. I guess the important thing is they treat you like any other guy without being nervous about being with an entertainer."

"But I spend a good bit of time with the fellows, too. I buddy around with Frankie Avalon and Jimmy Clanton and we have a ball. We're all kept busy and on the go and when we all get together there's a lot for us to do and talk about—particularly the experiences we've had in this crazy business."

SORRY, BUT NO RECORDINGS TO BE GIVEN THIS WEEK

Sorry Folks, no records this week.

The new supply of records to be given on the weekly drawings failed to arrive last week, hence there are no awards this week. We hope that the situation will be remedied and we will be able next week to give the album and bonus records, too.

Kathryn Murray Offers Advice

By KURT LASSEN

In the past few years there have been scores of books published all aimed at telling teen-agers how to get along in the world. Many of the entries have been authored by persons in the entertainment field who in one way or another are in contact with members of the Under Twenty set as a result of their profession. The latest offering on this crowded bookshelf is "Tips to Teen-Agers by Kathryn Murray of the dancing Murrays.

Unfortunately, "Tips to Teen-Agers" follows the trend of the majority of books on this subject, with the exception that it contains some interesting chapters on dancing, complete with diagrams of basic steps. The art work in the book is beautifully done, with scores of pictures. The book may well have a function at the lower age brackets of the teen group, but beyond that it makes little contribution to a broader understanding of the world by the Under Twenty set.

Books by entertainers and celebrities seem to have one thing in common. They view the teenager as an individual in orbit from one social function to another, and they all begin with the idea that if you read the book, you can become the first kid on your block to win a popularity contest.

Any amount of association with Under Twenties — especially removed from the dance floor—would indicate that their range of interest is by no means confined to "how to start a conversation with a member of the opposite sex." Of course parties, dances and social gatherings have an important place with young people, just as they do with other age groups. But the amount of concentration placed on this subject would seem to suggest that teenage life is just one round of parties.

It could only be wished that some of our more serious and informed writers who know young people would take pen in hand and deal with the less superficial problems which face teen-agers in this day and age.

Pros And Cons Of Steady Date

By BOBBIE CARROLL

When it comes to going steady, the Under Twenties get split down the middle. What's swell for the 19-year-old can be gruesome for the 13-year-old. The older teen who has had a chance to size up a lot of the opposite sex may find going steady a healthy prelude to an engagement. But the younger teen isn't so lucky. Take a look here at how the pros and cons line up.

What have you got to gain by going steady if you're under 17?

1. The security of thinking that at least one particular person cares for you enough to feel no need to date anyone else.

2. You've got someone who is fairly reliable in being able to go somewhere with you when you're free to go. At least if they can't make it, chances are it's not because someone else is edging you out.

3. There's that nice feeling that you've made your claim on someone and that person is forbidden territory as far as anyone else goes.

But give some thought to what you're stuck with:

1. You can get fooled into believing that all boys or all girls are like the one you're steady-dating. You sacrifice your opportunity to build up some basis of comparison.

2. If you're tempted to date someone else (which is only natural when the dating game is new to you), you develop a great feeling of guilt about what a fickle character you are.

3. You find that your steady, nice as he or she might be, makes demands on your time.

4. You won't build up the self-confidence of knowing that lots of boys and girls find you attractive. If you give only one person the chance to get to know you and like you, you'll be lost if that person decides the time has come to play the field.

Four HCJC Science Students To Participate In Conference

DENTON—Four students and a faculty member from Howard County Junior College will take part in a collegiate science research conference at North Texas State College and Texas Women's University March 16 and 17.

Gladys Burnham, instructor in biology, is the faculty counselor.

Students attending will be Donald Dean Gregory, Douglas Mack Green, Charles Estel Dunagan, and Sammy Wayne Waters, all of Big Spring.

The conference is sponsored by the Texas Academy of Science under a grant from the National Science Foundation.

Denton is one of four centers of scientific research where such programs are being held this month. Others are the University of Texas, Texas Technological College and Texas A&M College.

Sixty-four students and 16 faculty counselors from 16 Texas colleges will visit research laboratories at the two Denton schools. They'll also hear a banquet address by Dr. L. V. Berkner, president of the Graduate Research Center of the Southwest, Dallas.

The intensive two-day program will stress the nature, significance, requirements and rewards of research in the natural sciences. Dr. Robert C. Sherman of NTSC and Dr. William L. Mecay of TWU are co-chairmen.

Colleges sending representatives to the Denton conference are Cisco Junior College, Concordia College, Hardin-Simmons University, Howard County Junior College, Howard Payne, College, Mary Hardin-Baylor College, McMurry College, Our Lady of the Lake College, Southwestern University, St. Edward's University Tarleton State College, Texarkana College, Texas College, Texas Wesleyan College, Wayland College and West Texas State College.

Local Yearbook Gets 2nd Place

DENTON— — Publications from Gladewater, Lewisville, Mineola and Irving won top awards at the North Texas State College Journalism Day Friday.

Results of competition were announced after a day of speeches and panel discussion by 20 professional journalists.

In the keynote speech, James F. Chambers, Dallas Times Herald president, told 350 journalism students from 26 high schools of the challenges of the years ahead.

Yearbooks were judged in two groups according to school enrollment, with first-place trophies awarded by the Taylor Publishing Company. Mineola was first in Class I, Muenster second and Teague third. First in Class II was Irving, followed by Big Spring and Arlington.

Top Ten Undergoes Big Shift In Positions

By JEANNE HARRISON

There was a great deal of movement in the nation's top ten records last week. Chubby Checker, who only a few months ago had a top hit with his "Twist," took over the number one spot with his "Pony Time." Lawrence Welk's "Calcutta" slipped to second, after four weeks in the top spot. Another newcomer, "Don't Worry," with Marty Robbins, jumped from nowhere to the number three spot.

Elvis Presley is back in the top ten again with his "Surrender." The song is a modern version of "Sorrento" and the kind of action it is getting should keep it in the top ten for quite a while. Here's the rundown for last week:

1. Pony Time," Chubby Checker
2. "Calcutta," Lawrence Welk
3. "Don't Worry," Marty Robbins
4. "Where the Boys Are," Connie Francis
5. "Surrender," Elvis Presley
6. "Shop Around," Miracles
7. "Wheels," String-a-Longs
8. "Will You Love Me Tomorrow," Shirelles
9. "Ebony Eyes," Everly Brothers
10. "Calendar Girl," Neil Sedaka

Paul Anka, who is riding the crest of a popularity wave, has a new disc, "Tonight My Love, Tonight," backed by "I'm Just A Fool Anyway." Among the rockers, Anka rates high on the list, and these two records in this area are typical of his outstanding talent.

Tony Bennett makes a bid for the younger set with a new release, "Marry Young," backed by "The Best Is Yet to Come." The "Marry" item is a tuneful ballad, while the flip side is more in the classic swing tradition.

A few years back "A Teen-age Prayer" was a smash hit. Thelma Carpenter brings it back into the running with a new, listenable version in a new release. The "Prayer" is backed by a good blues-ballad number, "My Heart Feels It Too."

Jealousy Is Your Fault

By BESSIE LITTLE

DEAR BESSIE: My boy friend and I have been going steady for almost a year. We get along well except for my jealousy. Every time I see him look at another girl I could flip. I really like this boy and I would like to know how I can conquer this.

—JEALOUS LOVER

DEAR JEALOUS LOVER: Jealousy is one of the most destructive of all the emotions. It is destructive to the person who is jealous and to most people involved with him. Its roots are in fear and insecurity. You are so very wise that you recognize jealousy as coming from you, rather than blaming it on your boy friend.

When you feel jealous try to determine what is making you feel this way. Is it fear of losing him? Is it that you feel you are not as pretty or as bright or pleasant as those of whom you are jealous? Obviously if the boy goes with you, he thinks of you as the person with whom he would most like to be. He sees in you the attributes he wants in a girl. When you and he are with others, think of how fortunate you are to have him as your boy friend—not about losing him. Your attitude will make you all the more desirable to him and to other people. Jealousy can only drive others from you.

* * *

DEAR BESSIE: I have a problem with my parents. I am 14 years old and started high school this year. My mother will not let me stay overnight at anyone's house. Last night a girl had some girls over to stay all night. My mother works at a restaurant so I went down to ask her if I could stay. After she called the girl's mother, she let me go. The next morning she called me home and when I got home she told me I couldn't go out for a week. Whenever I have a girl friend over my dad starts yelling in front of them. Please give them some advice on how to raise children.

—SICK AND TIRED

DEAR SICK AND TIRED: One of the most difficult things in a family situation is for all the members to be considerate of each other. This is as true for the adults as it is for the children. It is hard to understand why your mother behaved as she did when you came back from the slumber party. Are you sure you have told the whole story? If you did nothing wrong, it would seem that she was unfair to punish you.

When you do have friends over to your house, are you considerate of your father? Do you select times when extra people will not disturb him? If, on the other hand, he picks this time to scold you, he is being inconsiderate.

If you are sure that you do what is right and is considerate of others, try to talk out your problems with your parents. Don't do this during a problem, but pick a time when you are all relaxed and then try reasonably to discuss how you feel.

* * *

DEAR BESSIE: I know a boy who is three years younger than I am who would like to have a date with me. I have turned him down because I am afraid of what people will say. Do you think he is too young for me to date? The girls at school have talked about him but we have always been good friends. He isn't a cute boy, but I am not a cute girl, so I would appreciate it if you would answer my question. I am 19 years old.

—OLDER

DEAR OLDER: The most important consideration is whether you and the younger boy have enough in common to have pleasant and rewarding times together. If you have been good friends, it would certainly seem that you enjoy each other's company and there is no apparent reason why you shouldn't accept his invitation.

The last reason in the world that you should turn him down is out of fear of what your classmates will say. All things being equal, three years is not a big age difference to worry about.

* * *

DEAR BESSIE: I have wanted to date a certain girl for a long time. Next month we are having a dance at a club I belong to and I want to ask her to go but I don't know if she will go with me or not. What should I do?

—ROGER LEFTON

DEAR ROGER: There is only one way. Go to her and tell her you are having a dance at your club and that you would like very much to take her. If she doesn't already have a date, the chances are all in your favor that she'll say "yes." Don't let fear of a "no" hold you back.

The Alamo

John Wayne, as David Crockett, hears a tale told by Chill Wills, as one of the Tennessee volunteers, in this scene from "The Alamo." The $12 million epic will continue its successful local run this week, through Tuesday at the Ritz.

North To Alaska

Capucine and John Wayne have romantic difficulties in this scene from the comedy, "North to Alaska." The plot has Wayne going to Seattle to pick up a friend's girl, finding her married, and picking up Capucine instead. Also starred are Fabian, Stewart Granger and Ernie Kovaks. Wednesday at the Jet.

CINEMA COMMENT

By Bob Smith

John Wayne's "North to Alaska" was one of his best pictures, but he wasted 12 million dollars on "The Alamo."

A lot of time was lost getting to the point, which was the seige and final assault by Santa Anna's men; time which could better have been used telling more of the history of the Alamo. A lot of extraneous material was thrown in, most of it non-historical and badly fitted together against the known facts and the relevant interpretations inferred from those facts.

Characterizations were poorly drawn. Alleged conflicts for example, between Travis and Houston, and between Travis and Bowie, seemed pointless and without motivation other than an immaturity one would hardly expect from men of such stature. And John Wayne, as Crockett, was still John Wayne.

The lengthy film was cut for its showing in the provinces, but too much of the extraneous material still remains.

Historical accuracy was at its best when set and prop designers were left alone. The "1824" flag was there, and the Mexican army was depicted in all its colorful finery. Each regiment had its own distinctive uniform, which the soldiers kept neat and spotless in spite of the dust and muck they often marched through.

Another bit of historical accuracy was in the fact that wives often accompanied soldiers in the Mexican army, even on long expeditions like the one into Texas.

Also, native Texas Mexicans were depicted as pro-Texan, and the movie's producers even thought to include a few obvious Mexican faces among the Alamo's defenders. (Many have been the surprised faces of Texas "patriots" reading the list of names at the Alamo shrine and at the Capitol monument in Austin, upon learning that a goodly number of the defenders were of Spanish descent.)

But there were inaccuracies. The old mission was shown as ruined and abandoned, being converted overnight into a fortress by Travis and his men. (It had served as a fort for the Spaniards, later the Mexicans, and Gen. Cos and his men occupied it up to the very minute of surrender to Travis.)

And Gen. Cos' name was mispronounced by—of all people—Sam Houston.

The number of defenders was decreased, the number of attackers increased, in an apparent Hollywoodian attempt to make the defenders look more heroic.

Bowie was depicted as wounded in action, and that was why he had to take to his cot—false heroics again — whereas, he actually had surrendered his joint command with Travis (not depicted, either) because of illness.

Gonzales was mentioned, but the heroism of that village's men was not brought out.

Crockett actually died on the spot he was assigned, not in blowing up the powder room as depicted (the attempt was planned in event of defeat, but was never carried out, the defenders being killed before the attempt could be made.)

Survivors numbered about 15 non - combatants, not just Mrs. Dickenson, her child and slave, as depicted.

Sops were thrown to Mexican national pride, although our unhappy neighbor still refuses to accept this version. Unrealistic poses were struck to show the bravery of Mexican soldiers. and the gallant nature of their commanders, and the atrocity of Goliad was glossed over.

But aside from certain inaccuracies, the battle scenes were spectacular, and are among the finest ever put on film. In fact, one might forgive all the faults of the production in light of the quality of the battle scenes, were it not for the film's inordinate length and tiring details.

Writing, acting and direction were poorly done, except for action scenes (which Wayne ought to stick to). Laurence Harvey as Travis and Richard Widmark as Bowie were not convincing; Richard Boone as Houston was the best actor in the movie, but even he seemed too much like Paladin.

The ideals Wayne attempted to bring out were true enough, and still are, but he chose a stiff, preachy way to putting them across to his audience.

Let's don't remember "The Alamo."

Fabulous Fabian Sings Way Into Movie Stardom

From drugstore errand boy to top-rung favorite in the nation's film, TV and record roster. . . .

One of three sons of a Philadelphia policeman, Fabian started his career with an ambition to make the first string football team at Philadelphia High School. Rock and roll was just something to dance to. . . until Fabian was spotted by Bob Marcucci, manager for a young neighborhood pal named Frankie Avalon. Marcucci invested time and money in training Fabian after listening to him just once. Of his first record, Fabian has said, "I was awful!"

A year of singing lessons and weekend meetings with interested disk jockeys, and Fabian hit the charts. "I'm a Man," and "Turn Me Loose" were smash recordings that brought him appearances with Perry Como, Ed Sullivan and the Dick Clark Beechnut Show. After that, the name of Fabian became a household word, in households where there were teen-age girls.

Co-starring in the new 20th Century-Fox CinemaScope DeLuxe Color adventure production "North to Alaska," Fabian is in there now pitching with the bigtime names like John Wayne, Stewart Granger, Ernie Kovacs. In this saga of gold-rush romance of the 1900's, he takes the part of an infatuated teen-ager, in love with Capucine, a luscious "older woman."

Movie Set Is Historic Site

San Antonio has its shrine of the Alamo, the little mission where a devoted band of 185 volunteers made their gallant stand against a professional army of 7,000 well-trained, well-armed veterans under the Mexican dictator Santa Anna.

During 13 days and nights of seige, the defenders fought and died to the last man, surrounded by hundreds of enemy slain.

Now Texas has another shrine dedicated to the men of the Alamo. This is the replica of the original Alamo, now open to the public as a tourist attraction just north of the sunwarmed town of Brackettville.

This new Alamo was erected as the shooting site for John Wayne's epic motion picture "The Alamo," a $12,000,000 Technicolor production starring Wayne, Richard Widmark and Laurence Harvey now at the Ritz Theatre.

New Lighting System To Spark School Plays

A new dimmer system ordered for the high school auditorium may soon result in some spectacular lighting effects.

Bedford Forrest, who is getting his student cast in shape for "Teahouse of the August Moon," was happy about the possibilities.

"Prospective plans for lighting (of the "Teahouse" set) include a fine new dimmer system," he said, adding that the massive rheostat is due in by April 1.

"It is a fine thing," he enthused, "a boon to everyone using the auditorium for any purpose."

A dimmer system, essentially, consists of a battery of dials and handles which operate a series of interconnected rheostats which in turn may be linked in any fashion to the auditorium's lighting system. It centralizes and simplifies lighting control, making possible the addition of portable spot lights.

Further, it does away with the present system of tiny, hard-to-handle switches which are either on or off, with no in - between. This allows for gradual fading or intensifying of certain individual lights, or combinations.

Addition of the spotlights and their tying in with the dimmer system decreases dependence upon the footlights and overhead lights. Area lighting may thus be achieved.

Forrest gave two examples of area lighting effects he plans to use in "Teahouse." One will be alternate lighting of two office sets to be located at either end of the stage, keeping unused stage areas in the dark. The second will keep the office areas dark, with the foot - and overhead lights casting a soft blue radiance with red tinge over the entire center of the stage, and with white spots brightly lighting the teahouse in the rear center. The lues will provide a realistic moonlight effect.

• • •

Forrest also revealed his set plans, with indications that, with a minimum of props and flats, his students will be able to simulate an Oriental flavor.

This may be done by using certain of the props as symbols. The stage, for example, is not large enough to hold an entire teahouse set along with the necessary exterior scene. Thus, the students will build a Shinto shrine — two posts with curved crossbars, resembling a doorway and familiar to all Americans who have visited Japan—and set it on a small platform.

This prop will represent the doorway into the teahouse, with the rear center of the stage symbolizing the interior. A couple of mock trees and a backdrop painted to resemble an exterior scene will complete the illusion.

For teahouse scenes, the office areas will be moved back out of the way, and the trees will be moved toward the wings. The trees, during office scenes, will help cover the center stage.

Forrest also plans to make use of a real Army jeep during the famous "goat" scene, instead of attempting to build a mock vehicle.

"Teahouse of the August Moon" is the humorous story of the American occupation of Okinawa following World War II, and of the meeting of East and West which Kipling predicted would never happen.

Education Urged In Speech Values

Plays and speech activities are not just things to interrupt studies, West Texas members of the Texas State Teachers Association were told Friday.

"These things are not merely extra - curricular, they are co-curricular," said Fred Short, Howard County Junior College speech and drama department chairman, in a speech prepared for delivery at the TSTA meeting in Midland High School.

Larry Ethridge, chairman of the speech and drama department of Odessa College, also spoke.

Short urged teachers to develop interest in quality plays, and to try to educate parents and administrators in the importance of speech and drama activities.

He noted that Abilene, Midland and Big Spring choose quality plays for high school production.

Short stressed the topic for the meeting, "what colleges expect from high schools in speech and drama students," by listing five factors: Discipline, interest, dependability, creativity, and education of parents and administrators in relation to speech and drama.

"I get some fine students in speech and drama," he said. "On the other hand, I sometimes get students who seem to think a play is a place to raise any kind of mischief backstage. I'm afraid this is a carryover from the typical senior or junior class play.

"Unfortunately, many parents seem to feel that way. So do many administrators. Many times they are right in this feeling. It is sometimes caused by people who put on plays and are not really qualified."

Short's speech was read by Bedford Forrest, Big Spring High School speech and drama instructor, and president of the district Speech Teachers Association of the TSTA. Short was in Corsicana with his HCJC cast to present a cutting from the forthcoming production, "Antigone," in a contest there.

Court Reduces Pending Suits

February activities in the 118th District Court resulted in a slight reduction in the number of civil cases on hand, according to the records of Wade Choate, district court clerk.

There were 21 divorce petitions filed during the month. The month saw 15 divorce petitions granted and 11 dismissed for a total of 26—a decrease in the total of five.

The same picture was reflected in other civil suits. Twenty-one such suits were filed, 12 were tried before the court, three before a jury and 20 dismissed. Net decrease on the docket of such cases was 14.

Other statistics for February:

Adoption petitions filed, 4; adoptions granted, 2; contempt of court hearings, 3; child support cases added to docket, 6; criminal suits filed, 21; criminal suits tried before the court, 15; criminal suits tried before a jury, 4; criminal suits dismissed, 2;

Passports issued by the clerk's office in February totalled 18.

City Holds Voting Strength

Eighty - six per cent of Howard County's total voting strength is held in seven Big Spring boxes.

These seven precincts hold 7,024 of the 8,170 poll tax receipts and exemption certificates issued for this year. The nine other voting precincts, all outside of Big Spring, account for only 1,146 potential voters.

Mrs. Zirah LeFevre, county tax collector - assessor, who recently published the official poll tax lists, has made a careful check of the voting strength in each box.

Her statistics show that there were 6,641 poll tax receipts written this year and 1,529 exemption certificates issued. The total vote indicated is 8,170.

This is an "off" year politically despite the numerous elections which are already at hand. As a result, the number of persons who paid a poll tax is materially less than the number who do so on the years when county offices are to be filled and presidential choices to be made.

In 1960, a presidential election year, Howard County had a total voting strength fo 11,963.

GARDEN TALK

Several Ways To Help Plum Tree Bear Fruit

By BRUCE FRAZIER

T. C. Clearman, Star Route, Stanton, writes asking why his three plum trees don't bear much fruit. He said that they have many flowers and seem healthy but don't set fruit. He wants to know what to do to help them produce.

Several people have mentioned this same problem, and there may be several different causes for the failure to produce. One reason may be that the pollen is not coming in contact with the proper part of the flowers. Perhaps a hive of bees near the trees would help polinate the flowers. This is a good deal of trouble to go to for only three plum trees, though.

Sometimes these trees are self-sterile. This means that they need other varieties of plum trees planted with them to produce fruit. I would suggest you try planting one or two other varieties of plum trees close by. Then there is the possibility that a late freeze kills part of the crop each year. Protection for the trees after blooming time will help mininize this loss.

Then other general suggestions would cover adding fertilizer to the soil to improve the overall health of the trees. Compost, manure, or chemical plant foods will all help improve the general vigor. Spraying with a stomach poison such as lead arsenate will help control chewing insects, and dusting with sulphur will combat the fungus diseases of both plum and peaches.

There is yet another way to get the plum trees to set fruit and that is to treat with a hormone spray or dust. I am not sure these methods are entirely successful, but several nurserymen have recomended different products to me. I have not yet tried any of them.
