3 PAMPANS CAUGHT IN U. S. VICE NET

TEX'S TOPICS

There ought to be a law to prohibit a man who is going on a vacation from painting glowing pictures of anticipated pleasures to one who isn't going on a vacation.

★ ★ ★

If that were true, some folk we know would be languishing behind jail bars at this very moment. . . . If there's one thing we can't take, it is the sweet words of a fellow, hopped up to the top-notch of enthusiasm over his vacation trip, either before, or after.

★ ★ ★

Take B. S. Via, for instance. He talked with us ten minutes the other day about mountain temperatures, deer hunting, trout streams and such until he had us down in the middle of the dumps, all because we couldn't go along.

★ ★ ★

He even went so far as to draw a word picture of some of those trout that jump out of the mountain streams and beg to be rolled in corn meal and sizzled over a campfire. . . . Via has a way of making your mouth water and of digging up every ounce of longing to hie off somewhere, 45 miles from civilization and pitch a tent to commune with nature.

★ ★ ★

That's exactly what he's preparing to do. He's getting everything in tip-top shape, auto trailer, camping outfit and all, and one of these days before long he'll nose the prow of his car mountainward and there he goes. And here we are, pecking away with nary a sign of a mountain vacation.

★ ★ ★

Get the point? Yessir, there ought to be a law to prevent such things as practiced by mountain trout hunters who stir the flame of desire in the breasts of the robbie.

★ ★ ★

However, we shall look forward to the Via promise of a trout, or something, which he has promised to mail back from his vacation spot as a gentle reminder that he is vacationing and that we are not.

★ ★ ★

Via says, too, that he doesn't object to being quoted on the fact that he intends sending back some other fish to various persons and that if one of them by chance gets into the mouths of any who voted against him, he won't break down and cry if a bone lodges crosswise in their collective throats. Why, Mr. Via!

★ ★ ★

All joking aside, now—he's planning a dandy vacation and if you're a fisher and hunter, no doubt you'll be sorry you can't go along. . . . It just had to be our luck to bump into him and hear about it at 105 in the shade.

★ ★ ★

What we'd enjoy more than anything else right now is a nice long talk with somebody who can't get away for a vacation this summer, someone who doesn't give a hoot for mountain trout and such. It would help matters wonderfully.

★ ★ ★

A news story tells of a California woman who has left her husband six times, but always returns within a week. No doubt she comes back to see how high the dishes are stacked in the kitchen sink.

★ ★ ★

H. J. Lippold, the retired rancher, has found the cause for the excessive heat of the past week. He relates that he was talking with a small boy on the street who informed him that it wouldn't be cool again until that comet finds its lost tail.

★ ★ ★

Today's household hint:

Want to check up on your eggs? . . . Place the egg in a pan of water. If fresh, it will lie on its side. . . . If not so fresh, it will tilt upwards . . . If stale, it will stand on end. . . . And if it's beyond repair, the dog-gone thing will float away.

★ ★ ★

Just for fun, we're going to jumble a word a day for you and let you put the letters back together. All you do is rearrange the letters to form the correct word. Here 'tis:

ROISCUPE: of great value.

★ ★ ★

Yessir, you're likely to find anything in this space from a jumbled word to a jumbled brain. . . . Someone once said variety was the spice of life. . . . Can't remember who it was right now, but it must have been Shakespeare or Aimee McPherson.

★ ★ ★

Things we just learned today:

The human jaw generates an electric current when you eat. . . . That's probably where those tobacco chewers get all that juice. . . . eh, watt?

★ ★ ★

When you sit out in the yard and gaze at the sky these lovely summer evenings, do you know how many stars you can see with the naked eye? . . . Well, you can see 7,000. . . . and if you don't believe it, count 'em tonight.

★ ★ ★

This will give you a rough idea of the earth's size:

If the sun were a hollow ball, it could contain 1,331,000 globes the Coach Odus Mitchell reminiscing as he watched Bill Anderson perspire freely while doing nothing. "When we played football at Canyon," Coach Mitchell remarked, "I was at end and Bill was at tackle. Coach Sam Burton would look at Bill and then at me and yell, "Mitchell, why don't you get in there and work like Anderson" and there I was, working like a Trojan and not sweating a drop, while Bill was loafing and perspiring."

You're Looking in on a Televison Broadcast

"It works but isn't quite perfected yet," was the verdict of engineers and spectators following a demonstration television broadcast in Philadelphia, held to show what progress has been made in experiments with transmission of pictures and scenes. Richard Wagner is shown training the television camera on Betty McNellis while Norman Bean plays the piano during the epochal broadcast. So sensitive is the camera that it will transmit by "black light" objects that the human eye cannot detect.

Runoff Candidates Start On Final Lap Of The Campaign

SUMMER PLAY PROGRAM ENDS; 600 TOOK PART

Games, Lessons, and Work Reported By Guill

The city's two and a half month program of supervised recreation was concluded Saturday and a report of the summer activities was submitted by Ben Guill, supervisor.

Approximately 600 men, women and children participated in some phase of the summer recreational program, the report shows.

Average daily and weekly activity in the various departments is set forth by Guill as follows: morning school, 150; tap dancing, 150; archery, 40; art class, 25; dramatics, 10; tennis, 100; gymnasium, 50; band, 60, and work, 20.

School was held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings from 8 a. m. to 11 a. m. at Horace Mann and Baker schools. During the first hour the children played softball, and the younger group engaged in games under directed supervision. Swings, see-saws and parellel bars were available for children too young to play organized games.

Scrap books, cut-outs, paper dolls, drawing, coloring and clay modeling were used to entertain the younger group. The older girls knitted, embroidered, sewed and did some construction work. Boys all did construction work, making tie racks, book shelves, book ends, letter holders, door stops, match holders, scooters, bread boards. Reading featured the last hour. Stories were dramatized.

Every Thursday about 70 children were taken to a free, supervised swim. Picnics were held on Fridays at the city park. The Archery club met on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays at 7 p. m. in Central park.

Classes in tap dancing and acrobatics were held at the gym on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. As many as 200 were in attendance at one session.

Ping pong tables, bar work and ropes were enjoyed in the gym class with an average daily attendance of 50.

Twenty-five boys and girls received free art instructions and equipment for lessons three times a week. Hundreds took advantage of the city tennis courts. A city-wide tennis tournament was planned and is now being played with about 80 contestants.

The summer recreation program also provided work for 20 boys during the summer, through cooperation of the city and individuals. There was a payroll for this work of approximately $600.

Total of Building Permits Takes Hike

Pampa building permits for the first two weeks of the month jumped $38,072 to bring the year's total to $299,297 according to J. R. McKinley, building inspector.

New business houses, residences and remodeling permits swelled the figures. Rumors of additional buildings were being circulated last week.

RR Commission Race Is Hottest State Contest

The run-off primary campaign headed into its final week today with Gray county voters directing attention to only six local contests on the eight-race short ballot they will be handed when they go to the polls next Saturday.

Because of the short ticket for the second primary, Siler Faulkner, Democratic county executive chairman, predicted yesterday that all election results would be tabulated at 8 p. m. Saturday, by the latest, and perhaps earlier.

Polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. in the 17 Gray County precincts which will be in the same places as in the first primary on July 25.

One district, two county and three precinct contests remain to be settled in the local runoff election.

Miriam Wilson and Frank Hill are pitted against each other for clerk of the district court. Judge C. E. Cary and County Attorney Sherman White are fighting it out for county judgship. Joe Gordon and John Studer are opponents in the race for county attorney.

There are three precinct contests for constable. Charles Buss and Henry Shoffit in Precinct 1, Younger Cockrell and Otis Hendrix in Precinct 2, and J. F. Headrick and J. A. Darnell in Precinct 4.

Voters also will have an opportunity to make their choices for two state offices which were not settled at the first primary.

They may vote for Frank S. Morris, of Dallas County, or Ernest O. Thompson, of Potter county, for state railroad commissioner, and take their pick of J. E. McDonald, of Ellis county, or George B. Terrell, of Cherckee county, for state commissioner of agriculture.

County Clerk Charlie Thut said Saturday afternoon that 225 absen-

Vacation Comes To Busy End For Sheriff

When Sheriff Earl Talley ended his vacation late Thursday night, he really ended it in a hurry and went back to work in double-quick fashion.

Sheriff and Mrs. Talley, with their grandson, Bill Lewter, returned at 8 p. m. Thursday from a ten-day vacation in Colorado.

The sheriff said it was around midnight Thursday before he got to bed. At 6 a. m. he was awakened by a telephone call from Groom which asked the aid of Gray county officers in a Carson county man hunt.

Withing two hours the sheriff and two of his deputies, O. T. Lindsey and George Inman were on their way to Groom. They spent most of Friday taking part of the search.

DROUGHT TOUR BEGINS MONDAY FROM AMARILLO

Damage in Midwest Will Be Reported To FDR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (AP)—Long range plans intended to soften the devastating blows of both the current and future drouths drew the attention today of federal agencies.

Plans for helping farmers in interior drouth regions through the winter and spring were studied by officials at the Department of Agriculture as seven more counties in Georgia, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennessee were designated official drouth territory.

The great plains drouth committee, asked by the president to hand him concrete suggestions for a long time national program for the dry regions left by train for Amarillo, Tex.

The group will leave there Monday on a 3,000 mile inspection of drouth devastation in Texas, Oklahome, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas. Officials planned to present a report to Mr. Roosevelt when he and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace arrive in South Dakota late this month.

Possibility of forecasting drouth years far enough ahead to plan for them was seen in a research project at weather bureau headquarters here.

Two favorable reports on the national agriculture picture were made public during the day.

Cash receipts to farmers from sale of principal products during the first half of this year were reported almost a half billion dollars above the same period last year, by the bureau of agriculture economics. The totals were $3,132,000,000 for the first six months this year compared to $2,670,000,000 in 1935.

A census bureau summery of the 1935-36 cotton season showed increased consumption and exports of the staple with a reduction in the carry-over stocks in this country.

Local Bureau of Identification Is Praised by Agent

An agent of the United States Department of Justice, out of the Dallas office, complimented Gray county on its bureau of identification which has been in operation since last February.

The federal agent made an inspection of the local office while in the city working on a government case.

He told local officials that the Gray county bureau, although comparatively young, was set up in an exceptional manner and in many instances was more complete than bureaus in cities much larger than Pampa.

Jess Hatcher, superintendent of the Gray county bureau, was praised by the Department of Justice official for the efficient system under which the local bureau is operated.

Reds Charge German Police In Plot

EXILE DENIES DIRECTING THE CONSPIRATORS

NAZI SECRET POLICE ACCUSED BY RED NEWSPAPER

MOSCOW, Aug. 15. (AP)—German secret police were linked tonight by the Communist party newspaper Pravda with the counter-revolutionary plot attributed to three one-time Soviet leaders.

The revolt was aimed at Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the Communist party and dictator of Russia, Pravda declared, and the conspirators maintained "systematic contact with the German gestapo (secret police)."

Soviet police arrested and indcted 16 persons and will bring them to trial Aug. 19.

Death before a firing squad has been the customary method of executing political prisoners.

The key man of the plot was said to be Leon Trotzky, exiled revolutionary living in Oslo, Norway.

Included among those indicted were Gregory Zinovieff and Leon Kameneff, who at one time were joined with Stalin in ruling Russia after the illness in 1923 of Nikolai Lenin.

(Trotzky from Oslo branded the Moscow charge a lie and said he had no connection with Russia.)

Will Rogers Is Remembered One Year After Death

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 15. (AP)—One year ago today, a brief message from Point Barrow, Alaska, shocked the world.

"Will Rogers and Wiley Post killed in airplane crash fifteen miles from here," it read.

Today finds progress toward perpetuating the memory of Rogers, beloved for his homely wit.

Rupert Hughes, chairman of the California section of the national committee preparing a memorial to Rogers, said the committee has received about $250,000 to use as a memorial for Rogers.

A new actors' hospital at Saranac, N. Y., costing $1,000,000, has been dedicated to Rogers. The polo field where Rogers used to gallop is now called Will Rogers field. A bronze plaque bearing his likeness mark the new $500,000 Will Rogers sound stage at the Twentieth Century-Fox studios.

AUSTIN, Aug. 15 (AP)—Attorney General William McCraw said today he would fly to Mexico tomorrow to obtain information on the division of Rio Grande waters between Texas and Mexico.

COOL WIND IN EAST DUE TO RELIEVE HEAT

But Thermometers In the Panhandle Hit 107 Degrees Yesterday.

Official weather guessers late Saturday night seemed to hold forth a ray of hope that Texas' record-breaking heat wave would be broken to smithereens shortly and the populace once more will enjoy cool temperatures.

It still was hot in the Panhandle Saturday. The temperature in Pampa reached a high for the day of 107 at 2:30 p. m. but had dropped back to an even 100 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and then kept on going down until it stood at 75 last midnight.

The midnight figure, however, was only slightly lower than figures at the same hour during the nights of the past week when daytime temperatures soared to as high as 112 on Thursday.

(By The Associated Press)

Showers and cooling northeast and east winds late Saturday afternoon brought a decided drop in temperature to northeast Texas—the first appreciable relief from a week of record-breaking heat.

Temperatures which had descended to the uncomfortable vicinity of 100 after the searing records of 110 and up earlier in the week skidded to the eighties.

At Marshall the heat wave was definitely broken by showers that fell over many portions of Harrison county. Farmers said the rains would be worth thousands of dollars in crop values. Presipation in Marshall was .47 of an inch and heavier downpours were reported from other parts of the country. It was the first rain since July 3.

Rain fell for an hour at Mt. Vernon, bringing surcease from the hot, dry weather of the last 30 days. The moisture came as a great boon to crops and pasture lands.

Light showers accompanied by brisk winds late in the afternoon brought a temperature drop to 88 degrees at Paris. High for the day had been 98, with Friday's top at 101.

At Dallas a refreshing east wind and a cloud bank furnished some measure of relief from the heat. No rain fell.

Equipment Lost In Burglary of Gulf Warehouse

Oil well equipment, valued at between $800 and $1,000, was stolen Friday night when thieves broke into the Gulf Production Co. warehouse on the J. M. Sunders lease, six miles southeast of Pampa.

The theft was reported to the sheriff's office here early Saturday. Deputy Sheriff Ben Lockhart and Jess Hatcher, Gray county finger print expert, investigated the case.

The officers were unable to find any tangible clews which might lead to identity of the thieves, they said. Tracks around the warehouse indicated that the equipment was hauled away in a truck.

The loot consisted of tubing elevators, tongs, spiders, and a 50-foot rubber belt.

Diary Is 'Buried'

Moves for court impounding of Mary Astor's famed diary and sharing of custody of their 4-year-old daughter, Marilyn, by Miss Astor and her ex-husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, were viewed as safeguards against further airing of scandal charges in the sensational case. Marilyn is shown in a recent picture with her mother, with Dr. Thorpe below.

PAMPA IS FIRST IN COLLECTIONS FOR 53 CITIES

Local Business Barometer Best In National Report

Indication of Pampa's business stability is shown in an Associated Press dispatch from St. Louis which reveals that Pampa reported the greatest increase in collections over July of last year — 47.5 per cent — among 53 cities reporting to the National Retail Credit association.

Muncie, Ind., with a decrease of 20 per cent, showed the greatest loss.

Despite drouth conditions, collections and credit sales in the reporting cities showed substantial increases for July, according to the association report. Gains were attributed to improvement in employment conditions as well as soldiers' bonus money.

An average increase in collections of 7.5 per cent and an increase in credit sales of 10.7 per cent was reported.

'OLYMPIC KISS' IS SMACKED ON HITLER'S CHEEK

BERLIN, Aug. 15. (AP) — The "Olympic kiss," which a woman spectator planted on Adolf Hitler's cheek during the swimming finals after obtaining the Fuehrer's autograph was the talk of the boulevards tonight.

The woman disappeared into the crowd shortly after the episode. Later she was reliably identified as a woman who lived in Los Angeles some time following the 1932 Olympics. Unconfirmed reports gave her name as Carola De Vries.

ARRESTS MADE HERE AS G-MEN AIM AT RING

TWO MEN NABBED FOR VIOLATION OF MANN ACT

Dovetailing with J. Edgar Hoover's announcement from Washington that the federal government has reopened a new and intensive drive on the white slave traffic, U. S. Depar ment of Justice agents caused arrests simultaneously in Pampa and Hobbs, N. M., late Friday, striking at an alleged vice ring which is believed to extend into several surrounding states.

Two women and a man were arrested in Pampa and one man was taken into custody in the New Mexico city. Jack Evans, 42, was arrested here with Dora Mullins, 28, and Fannie Moore, 24. The suspect jailed in Hobbs is a former Pampa resident.

The two men, according to Judge James Todd, jr., of Pampa, are specifically charged with violation of the Mann act and the two women are held as material witnesses.

Federal Investigators Here

A department of justice agent from Dallas began an investigation of the local case a week ago yesterday when he came here at the request of Judge Todd and Constable Jim Sullivan who have been working on the case since last July 26.

The federal agent spent another day of investigation here last Tuesday and on Friday of this week ordered the arrests of the three local persons involved in the case. The arrest of the man in New Mexico was ordered at the same time, Judge Todd said.

Eckerd Becomes Certified First Aid Instructor

Pampa has a certified Red Cross first aid instructor. He is Tom T. Eckerd, assistant fire chief, who received his certificate as instructor of junior, standard and advanced first aid courses from St. Louis Friday.

Mr. Eckerd was sent to College Station last month by the city and the fire department to study study first aid under the ablest instructors in the country. He passed the tests with honors. Fire Chief Ben White also made the trip, majoring in fire fighting, but also taking first aid instruction.

The fire department will grant Mr. Eckerd permission to conduct first aid classes among organizations and schools in this section. He will begin his first class Tuesday with the Girl Scouts of Mrs. Turner's troop.

He plans to conduct an extensive city-wide safety campaign as soon as an organization can be completed.

Pair Struck by Car Little Hurt

Tom O'Rourke of McLean and Louis Coleman, negro porter at the Schafer hotel, were injured, not seriously, when struck by a car Friday night about 8:30 o'clock. The accident happened near the intersection of Foster avenue and Ward street while O'Rourke, a driller, and the porter were walking across the street to the Fox-Letterman Service station to secure the McLean man's baggage.

The car was driven by C. C. Stockstill, longtime Gray county resident. Mr. Stockstill told city officers who investigated the accident that he failed to see the men crossing the street until he was too close to them to stop.

O'Rourke was taken to Worley hospital, where he received emergency treatment for cuts and bruises. He was later able to return to his hotel.

Coleman was taken to Pampa hospital for treatment of bruises and cuts. He was dismissed from the hospital last night.

Armed Youths Who Fled Wreck Sought

Three youths still were at large late Saturday night after a two-day man hunt for them between Claude and Groom where they fled from their wrecked automobile after driving out of town at a high rate of speed.

Following a near-accident in Groom, Constable R. Smith and W. S. Boyton gave chase on motorcycles. When the chase failed Smith and Boyton returned to Groom. Later the car drove through Groom and the constable fired two shots and he and Boyton took up the chase again. Two miles west of Groom the car overturned on a curve. The four occupants grabbed their guns and ran from the wrecked machine.

The officers managed to capture one of the youths but the other three escaped. The captured youth gave his name as James Smith, 17, of Oklahoma City.

Police in surrounding towns were notified and Sheriff Earl Talley and Deputy Sheriffs O. T. Lindsey and George Inman, of Pampa, left here at 8 a. m. Friday joining in the hunt for the trio of fugitives.

Sheriff Talley aided in the questioning of young Smith who told several stories of how he came to be in the car.

He finally admitted the car had been stolen in Oklahoma City Thursday night. Smith said the three other youths were heavily armed, carrying four six-shooters and a high-powered rifle. The guns, he said, had been stolen in a house burglary at Oklahoma City the same night.

More than 50 officers, ranchers and townspeople formed the posse that searched Friday and Saturday in the rough country between Claude and Groom.

Sheriff Talley said Saturday he believed the youths had found their way out of the country back onto the main highway and had made their getaway.

Groom officers first became suspicious of the four youths in the car when they fled as the marshal approached them for questioning.

Smith was taken to Amarillo jail and was to be turned over to Groom authorities later, pending the arrival of police from Oklahoma City.

TAXES, LABOR, AND AAA ARE SUBJECTS FOR BOTH PARTIES

LEMKE FORCES GAIN ANOTHER ENDORSEMENT

TAX STATEMENT FROM DEMOS STARTED MOST TALK

By EDWARD J. DUFFR
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Roosevelt and Landon leaders dwelt principally this week on three of the foremost questions upon which the November election will turn—taxes and spending, labor policy and the curse of the agricultural adjustment administration.

The attempts to cut across old party lines took a new turn, meanwhile, with the endorsement of the presidential candidacy of Representative Lemke to North in Cleveland today by followers of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest. Shouts of "we want Lemke!" reverberated and a solitary "no" was heard when the proposal was put up for decision.

A conference between President Roosevelt and fiscal advisors, after which Secretary forecast that no new taxes would be recommended to the next Congress by this administration, was called "a political gesture, pure and simple" by Representative Bacon, of New York, eastern campaign manager for the Republican Congressional committee.

Morgenthau and Chairmen Harrison and Doughton, of the Senate and House committees responsible for tax legislation, said a survey would be made to show whether some tax reductions might be passible. The general subject also engaged Col. Frank Knox, who told a West Virginia rally "The American people must pay for this orgy of extravagance."

Knox said the NRA had "reduced production and retarded recovery."

The AAA, he added, "took bread and clothes from the poor."

Bearing on that situation, Secretary Wallace said here that while the soil conservation—subsidy program would be continued, the administration would not seek next year to limit wheat acreage and forecast increased acreage of both wheat and corn.

Sidney Hillman, of the Amalgamated clothing workers, said to the Labor League convention that "we propose, after this election, to demand legislation outlawing the sweatshop and requiring decent wages."

John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, depicted the Republican nominee as unfriendly to union labor, and contended the league's stand for Roosevelt had nothing to do with the current conflict over industrial versus craft unionization.

Cow Is Presented By Bottomley Fans

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15 (AP)—A famous baseball player and a football coach shook hands today across home plate while a bewildered Jersey cow looked on—thus "Jim Bottomly day" was hailed at Sportsmans park.

The cow represented "Sunny Jim's" own choice as a gift from admirers and was presented by Cow Committee Chairman Jimmy Conzelman, Washington university football coach. Following the brief ceremony Bottomly led "Fielder's Choice"—name given the heifer—off the field and took up his regular post at first base with the St. Louis Browns against the Cleveland Indians.

Bottomly is playing his 15th year in the major leagues.

ROCK MURDER VICTIM'S BODY FOUND IN LAKE

Young Farmer Tells Of Fight Ending In Death

SWEETWATER, Aug. 15 (AP)—Clarance Duncan, 28 - year - old Trent, Taylor county, farmer, led officers today to the weighted body of G. H. Jones, middle-aged filling station operator, in Lake Sweetwater.

Jones disappeared Tuesday night. His automobile, lights burning, was found between here and Trent. Officers found evidences of a struggle and Jones' false teeth near the car.

Duncan was charged with murder. Also charged were his 19-year-old bride and her brother, Winford Allen of Stamford.

In a written statement today Duncan said his wife and her brother had no connection with the killing. Officers said they would change charges against them to accomplice complaints.

Duncan said Jones former employer of Mrs. Duncan, had endeavored to induce her to leave her husband. He told reporters Jones had offered him $100 to "leave the country."

Duncan said Jones, former employee where the latter's car was found and he and Jones left their cars and fought. He said he knocked Jones down and beat him on the head with a stone, then lifted him to the rumble seat of his (Duncan's) car.

The prisoner said he drove toward Lake Sweetwater, dropped Allen on the way. He said he noticed Jones still breathed when he reached the lake, and pounded his head more with a stone. Then, he said, he weighted the body, waded with it into deep water, and allowed it to sink in the lake.

Officers had sought the body for three days.

Duncan's first wife died in a fire which destroyed their home in April last year. Jones' former wife and two children were reported to be in Denver, Colo.

Workers at Oil Well Are Killed By Asphyxiation

CROSSA, Aug. 15 (AP—Four men met death by asphyxiation early today as they prepared to acid treat the Magnolia No. 6 Edwards oil well 18 miles southwest of here in Crane county.

The dead, employes of the Chemical Process company, were D. B. Striplin, 30, superintendent; Granville Torbert, 29, chief treater; Bertis Magness, 28, and Jack Hall, 35.

Leo Hurley, one of the two survivors of the crew, said Torbert entered the cellar under the derrick floor to make the usual tests of pressure before applying the acid charge and was overcome by accumulated gas.

Seeing the light carried by Tolbert disappear as he fell, Hurley said Striplin rushed into the cellar and also was overcome. Magness and Hall, he said, then sought to rescue their companions and also were suffocated.

T. S. Guest, the other survivor, made a frantic effort at rescue but was driven back to the entrance of the cellar in a semi-conscious condition.

Eggs Fly During Holcombe Rally At Water Front

HOUSTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Flying eggs enlivened a political rally at the Houston water front this afternoon during a speech by Mayor Oscar Holcombe, candidate for congress.

One egg struck Holcombe's legs, another burst on his shoulder of Lucien Andle, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and one splattered against a peanut vender's truck from which he got a bag of fresh roasted peanuts.

The audience consisted largely of marine workmen.

Holcombe paused only long enough to dare the egg throwers to walk out of the crowd.

"I'd use a club on them," the mayor said. He charged that the disturbance was caused by supporters of his opponent, Albert Thomas.

After Holcombe finished his talk, R. G. Jones, operator of a sound truck the mayor used, got out of the truck and said:

"If the one who hit my truck with that egg will step up here with another egg, one of us will use that egg."

There was no response.

Dr. Brown Comes To Office Here

Dr. Malcolm Brown of Wichita, Kan., is now associated with Dr. M. C. Overton Jr., in the practice of medicine and surgery. He came here from Wesley hospital in Wichita. Mrs. Brown was to arrive here today from Dalhart, their former home.

Dr. Jo Howze has moved to Corpus Christi to be in charge of the Overton and Howze practice in that city.

Motorized Units and Highway Posts Give Red Cross First Aid to Injured

ABOVE LEFT: Passing motorists report highway accident to nearby emergency first aid station. Note police car at left, its driver a Red Cross trained first aider—one of the mobile first aid units organized to enable persons injured in traffic accidents to receive prompt emergency treatment. First aid stations and highway patrol bridge the gap between accident and arrival of a physician.

ABOVE RIGHT: Trained personnel of highway first aid stations know what to do when an emergency arises. A quick call for ambulance or doctor is made possible by an up-to-date list of nearby hospitals and physicians. LEFT: Many first aid posts are established at rural fire stations, whose trucks serve as mobile first aid units when a crash occurs some distance from the station.

THE Red Cross has forged a new link in its chain of highway first aid stations established to bring immediate emergency care to roadside crash victims.

Thirty-two Delaware state highway maintenance trucks comprise the first unit of the Red Cross motorized highway patrol, organized to complement the organization's emergency highway first aid stations. It is planned to equip and give first aid training to the crews of several thousand trucks of state highway and public utility groups, since these vehicles are constantly on duty on the nation's traffic arteries.

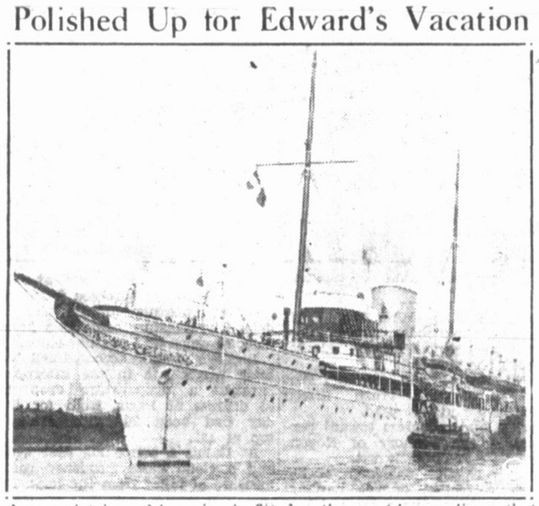

Numerous groups in a number of states are now prepared to launch similar highway patrols under Red Cross jurisdiction, and the highway police of eight states have finished Red Cross first aid training and will soon augment these mobile units.

National Safety Council figures show that last year motor accidents claimed 37,000 lives. This appalling total would have been less if more of the victims had received emergency treatment at the scene of accident while the doctor was on the way.

The Red Cross has already established 900 highway emergency first aid stations on through routes in rural areas, and an additional 3,500 will soon be in operation. The well-meaning but helpless bystander at the scene of accident will be replaced by the first aider, trained to splint fractures, stop bleeding and treat for shock.

The American Red Cross dedicates its first aid posts and mobile units to the motorist of today and tomorrow who may be injured at a point where medical attention can not be immediately secured.

Polished Up for Edward's Vacation

As completely and luxuriously fitted as the great luxury liners that plow the Atlantic, Lady Yule's $1,500,000 yacht Nahlin is seen at Southampton, England, being provisioned for King Edward's summer holiday cruise of the Eastern Mediterranean. The cruise takes the place of the Riviera vacation Edward abandoned because of Cannes' proximity to troubled Spain.

Typhoon Drives Vessels Aground In Philippines

MANILA, Aug. 15 (AP)—A severe typhoon bore down upon the northern Philippine area tonight and two ships, driven around ahead of the storm, sent out calls for help.

For the first time in weather bureau history, a typhoon signal was hoisted at Aparri, on the north coast of Luzon Island.

The United States coast and geodetic survey ship Fathomer ran ashore on the northeast tip of Luzon. The Tewated (not listed in available shipping records) was the other distressed vessel.

Starting 100 miles away, the typhoon moved west-northwest at high speed toward the Luzon coast.

Seven persons drowned in the Cayagan river valley last week when another storm struck.

The storm moved 80 miles toward the coast in about four hours. Officials broadcast warnings to fishing craft and the recently flood-stricken Cayagan valley. The vessels were warned it was unsafe to leave harbor.

TRUCK DRIVES ONTO TRACKS --22 ARE DEAD

BODIES SCATTERED AS DRIVER FAILS TO HEED WARNING

LOUISVILLE, Que. Aug. 15 (AP)—A thundering freight train killed 22 persons and injured 12 others, six of them seriously, at a grade crossing here today.

A large truck, loaded with 42 passengers, rolled on to the open, unobstructed crossing in the path of the racing locomotive.

"Don't pass! Don't pass!" cried occupants of two other cars as the truck whipped around them and approached the tracks.

A split second later the train struck.

The truck splintered. Bodies were catapulated dozens of feet on to the right of way, under the wheels of the freight train.

As it knifed through the mass of human forms, the locomotive applied its brakes. Flung 90 feet and tossed into the ditch, along the track for hundreds of yards were found bone and bits of flesh. Apparently most of the dead had been shot out of their shoes by the impact. Footwear littered the right of way.

Seventeen men and boys, some of them only 14 years old, were killed outright. A dozen others were injured. Five died. The rest, reacting instinctively to the threat of danger, jumped to safety.

What chances for survival a half dozen other persons in the truck had tonight was a matter of conjection. Improvised morgues held the dead.

Change Seen in Constitution If Jobless Insured

AUSTIN, Aug. 15, (AP)—R. B. Anderson, state tax commissioner, said today a constitutional amendment might be necessary before legislation making unemployment insurance effective in Texas could be adopted.

He discussed the problem with Oscar M. Powell of San Antonio, regional director of the federal social security board, and a committee appointed by Governor Allred.

A constitutional amendment authorizing unemployment insurance, like all amendments, would have to be submitted at a regular session of the legislature. Texas already has availed itself of one part of the social security act in approving old age pensions.

Powell recommended a thorough study of all angles before a legislative program was prepared, and for that purpose the committee will conduct public hearings to which chambers of commerce, organized labor, manufacturers associations, insurance companies and the public in general will be invited.

An authority from Washington will appear before the committee Aug. 24 and in the meantime committee members will make individual studies.

Track Champs of Olympics Still Setting Records

LONDON, Aug. 15 (AP) — Three world's records crashed today as Uncle Sam's Olympic champions, in their farewell appearance abroad, swamped the British Empire's best track and field athletes, 11 to 3, before 90,000 in White City stadium.

The Americans, Chuck Hornbostel, Bob Young, Harry Williamson and John Woodruff, lowered the world mark for the two-mile relay to seven minutes, 35.8 seconds.

Hornbostel, Gene Venzke, Archie San Romani and Glenn Cunningham later cracked the four-mile relay standard in 17:17.2.

The third world record fell to the British one-mile quartet, made up of William Roberts, Godfrey Rampling, Bill Fritz and Arthur Godfrey Brown, which was clocked in 3:10.6.

The British outfooted the American combination of Archie Williams, Al Fitch, Glenn Hardin and Jimmie Luvalle, by a scant yard.

The "Black Phantom," Jesse Owens, ran on the winning American 400 yard relay quartet with Frank Wyckoff, Marty Glickman and Ralph Metcalfe, but the day's honors went to Woodruff, the Olympic 800-meter champion. He not only anchored the record breaking two-mile relay team but also the one-mile medley relay outfit and beat out Phil Edwards, Canadian negro ace, in a dazzling fashion.

Jack Lovelock, New Zealand, was clocked in 14:14.8 in the three mile team race which went to Great Britain.

Forrest Townz, August, Ga., won the 120 yard high hurdle event in 14.4 for a new British record.

'ASIDES' REVEAL PERSONALITY OF MODEST CHAMPION, OWENS

By MILES SMITH

CLEVELAND (AP)—On the cinder track the essence of Jesse Owens' personality is speed. Off the track, he has always been slow about discussing his own exploits.

Scoring an Olympic "triple" in the broad jump, 100 meters and 200 meters, and helping the U. S. win the 400-meter relay was not his first triumph but he has had his disappointments, too. Owens today holds the officially-listed world records in the broad jump, 220-yard low hurdles, 220-yard sprint, 200-meter hurdles, 200-meter dash, and shares the 100-yard record.

Jesse's off-the-track personality is best shown in the brief remarks he has made on the important days of his career—the early days, the good ones, and the bad ones.

One blustery day in March, 1929, when Jesse was an eighth-grade schoolboy running on the sidewalk of East 107th street, Cleveland, Charles Riley timed him in a dash. Riley, the coach at Fairmount junior high school, couldn't believe his eyes when he looked at the stopwoth."

Said Jesse, "Honest, Mr. Riley, I'm not moving up on you. Maybe your watch is wrong. The wind is helping a lot, too."

In 1932, the year of the Olympics at Los Angeles, Jesse tried to qualify in the broad jump and 100-meter dash in the preliminary trials at Chicago, but failed.

Cleared His Name

"I haven't got the heart to see Mr. Riley," he said. "He must be terribly ashamed of me. I don't know what was the matter."

Jesse soon earned his own consolation for that disappointment. In August, 1932, Eric Borchmeyer of Germany and Gabrielle Salviati of Italy, who had competed in the Olympics at Los Angeles, were Jesse's opponents in an exhibition 100-yard race before 50,000 persons in Cleveland stadium. Jesse won in 9.6 seconds.

"It wasn't the victory itself, but it was the cheer I got from all those fans after I had been disappointed in the Olympic tryouts that pleased me," the schoolboy said.

In 1933, competing in his first national scholastic meet at Chicago, he achieved a "triple,' 'setting new world scholastic records for' the 100 yards at 9.4, the 220 at 20.7, and the broad jump at 24 feet 11 1-4 inches.

"Boy, you should have seen the look on Mr. Riley's face when they announced that 100 time," he grinned. "This is the happiest I've ever been, I betcha."

He created a sensation on May 25, 1935, in the Big Ten meet at Ann Arbor, Mich., by getting a "grand slam." He cracked three world records. He ran 220 yards in 20.3, the 220-yard low hurdles in 22.6, and broad jump 26 feet 8 1-4 inches. He also ran the 100 yards in 9.4 again, tying the world record.

And after that he said, "Frankly, I a m a little disappointed." He said he believed he could cut the mark to 9.3, but had got a bad start. "I was worried about my sore leg. I hurt it when I fell three weeks ago, and I didn't have any idea that today would turn out as it did," he explained.

Then there was the time he and Eulace Peacock ran in an invitation 60-yard dash at Cleveland's Public Hall, March 29, 1936. Owens won easily when Peacock fell at the start, but he insisted on giving Peacock an even break, and on the second try Peacock beat him by inches.

"You know I'm not saying this to take anything away from Eulace," said Jesse. "He's a grand runner, and he'll be poison in the Olympic trials. But neither of us was at his best tonight."

Another Happy Day

He had another "happiest day of my life" when he won the 100-meter Olympic championship in Berlin, and again when he won the broad jump. When he added the 200-meter title for his third Olympic record, he said: "I felt cold and didn't like the looks of those clouds, so I was in a hurry."

That same day, his young wife, Ruth Solomon Owens, disclosed in Cleveland some things Jesse wrote in his letters from abroad.

His first glimpse of Ireland:

"Everything was so quiet—even the sea was quiet. The red-roofed houses, with green sides and red and white shutters, surrounded by neatly trimmed hedges, made a very picturesque sight. Above the town on a hillside surrounded by trees was a little white church with a steeple shining in the first rays of the sun."

And as his boat left LeHavre, France:

"It's twilight now, and the lighthouses blinking along the coast make their beams dance on the blackness of the water. We saw an old castle on a high cliff where the King and Queen of Belgium stayed during the war. The waves broke in foam against the cliff and the first stars of the evening twinkled overhead."

STEWART QUITS AS CENTENNIAL GRID DIRECTOR

Move Comes After Argument Over Game Place

DALLAS, Aug. 15 (AP)—James H. Stewart, business manager of athletics at Southern Methodist university, placed his resignation as football director for the Texas Centennial exposition in the hands of fair officials.

The unexpected move came after an unsuccessful attempt to have the Texas A. and M.-Southern Methodist game, booked for November 7, switched from the Methodists' Ownby staduim to the huge Cotton Bowl on the exposition grounds.

A Southern Methodist athletic official, voicing sentiment of the entire athletic board, said the school felt it "would be an imposition upon the football fans to transfer the game to the exposition grounds and necessitate an additional expenditure of at least 75 cents for the single game."

The Mustangs, defeated in the Rose Bowl on New Year's day, will play one game on the exposition grounds against Ray Morrison's Vanderbilt Commodores on Oct. 17.

Morrison, here recently, is known to have been displeased with the condition of the Cotton Bowl gridiron. The playing surface has been used for rodeos, dancing and other events and is barren of grass.

A cause in the Southern Methodist-Vanderbilt contract stipulates the playing field must be in "good condition." Both Matty Bell, Methodist coach, and Morrison, have indicated the game would be switched to Ownby stadium, on the S. M. U. campus, unless the Cotton Bowl is placed in tip-top condition.

Stewart assured Centennial officials he would continue to handle details of the all-America-Chicago Bear game Sept. 7, despite his resignation.

Japs Yield Aquatic Title To Americans

Team Championships Won by Women And Men

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (AP)—America emerged today from the week-long Olympic swimming championships with the unofficial men's and women's team titles.

Japan reaped a harvest of 34 points in the last three men's events, but the Nipponese yielded the title won in 1932 to the United States 83 points to 77 because of American feats earlier in the week, particularly by her divers, who contributed 36 points.

Marshall Wayne of Miami won the ten-meter platform diving as Elbert Root of Chicago took second. Detsuo Hamuro of Japan captured the 200-meter breast-stroke crown, while another Nipponese, Noboru Tedara, won the 1,500 meter free style championship—the final event of the final day.

Although the American girls won the team title 55 points to 52 1-2 for Holland, husky Rita Mastenbroek carried off the honors. The Dutch star captured the 400-meter free style championship, adding it to her 100-meter crown. She won three gold medals, the third for anchoring the victorious relay team, and was runnerup in the backstroke event.

The soccer championship was captured by Italy, who defeated Austria 2 to 1.

Hungary retained the water polo crown, whitewashing France, 510, and Endre Kabos won the individual sabre fencing championship.

Jackie Wilson, Cleveland bantamweight and last of Eight American starters, went down to defeat in the finals against Sergo of Italy. As runnerup, Wilson received a silver medal. The only other American medal winner was Lou Laurie, Cleveland flyweight, who finished third.

India defeated Germany 8-1 to win the field hockey crown. Captain Ludwigh Stubbendorf of Germany won the combined dressage-cross country event of the equestrian competition, Captain Earl Thompson of the United States taking second place.

Vet Is Accused By Finger Prints

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 15 (AP)—Joe Lewis, 42-year-old Hot Springs, N. M., war veteran, heard Robert West of the Oklahoma penitentiary say today he is W. L. Birchfield, wanted as a fugitive since 1923.

West made his statement after Peace Justice M. V. Ward set bond at $7,500 and continued the hearings until Tuesday morning.

"We have been after him for several years," said West," and we don't intend to let him get away now. Finger prints have never been wrong yet, and Lewis' fingerprints are the same as those of Birchfield."

Birchfield escaped from prison, where he was erving a 10-year term on a robbery charge.

CHURCH SUPPORT

A church that serves must have financial support either from taxes by the state, by an endowment income, by large gifts from a few, or by small gifts from many.

In America there are a few endowed churches, but the endowment is a questionable blessing. Certainly any Christian would withdraw from a church the state supported. It is common knowledge how bad it is for a church to be supported by a few rich people.

There is no way to improve on the New Testament direction for building and supporting a church. "Let each one of you lay by him in store on the first day of the week." That means the church is to be supported by the steady flow of regular gifts in small sums from people who get their money by the dollar, not by the thousands or millions. Rich Christians, like poor ones ought to give in proportion to their ability. A democratic church ought to be supported democratically, by every member and pay as it goes.

Apart from one's personal needs this expenditure of money should be judged by the service it will render through the institution to which it is given. Jesus gave his life a ransom for men. That message he committed to the church. Jesus believed on and accepted brings one into his eternal kingdom and gives life forever more. Out of such lives have come the world's greatest blessing and uplift. When one supports the church with his money he is making eternal investments, not only for himself but for others whose present happiness and ideals, as well as their future destiny depends. Men ought not only to go to church, they ought to support the church as joyfully and selfless as did the widow who gave two mites.

If every church member gave like that what would churches do with the money, some one has asked? There is kingdom work, missionary work, benevolent relief work the responsibility and obligation of which have been imposed in the church. There are young men and women, a little assistance for whom would mean a college education. There are orphan children and children suffering because of broken up homes that must be properly cared for. They will be America's problem of tomorrow. They are the churches ward today, and if we did right we would give them not only food but faith.

Tax payers would have been relieved of billions in the relief program if the churches had done the job, with money a Christian conscience, even in years like we have had, should have been moved to give. Had the churches done so there would be none of the bristling problems we now have. The love of mammon is bringing the world near war. Christian dollars will stop the movement.

DAILY WASHINGTON LETTER

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON.—If you look at a map of the Mediterranean Sea, you will quickly perceive the serious potentialities involved in a diplomatic rumor which has contributed largely to the widespread war scare.

The rumor is that the Spanish rebel leaders have offered to Italy, in return for her support in the current rebellion, the port of Ceuta in Spanish Morocco and the island of Minorca in the Balearics.

There is no way of confirming or disproving the rumor. Such stories have away of turning up during international crises. Yet this one has persisted lately in various capitals of the world.

If it happens to be true, as rumors are, it holds the seeds of another great European war. If it isn't true, it may well turn out to have been concocted by Spaniards loyal to the Madrid government who sought support from the British.

But there's plenty of evidence that the rebels have had Italian support.

Cessation of Ceuta and Minorca to Italy would have approximately the effect of realizing Mussolini's dream of turning the Mediterranean into an "Italian lake."

Whether Mussolini would dare accept such an offer at this time would depend on whether he felt he could afford to take a chance of provoking Great Britain to war.

Fortification of Ceuta (pronounced "thay-oo-ta") could destroy British control of the Straits of Gibraltar. Minorca, in Italian hands, would also strategically cut the route from Gibraltar to Malta.

Along with Sardinia and Sacily, plus Italy proper and bases in Tripoli, Jelage Island, Eritrea, Ethiopia, and Italian Somaliland, possession of Ceuta and Minorca would give Mussolini a dominance which you can quickly appreciate by consulting the map.

Thanks to her air force, Italy may be considered already to dominate the Mediterranean. That's why England is arming feverishly.

International experts agree that Britain must vanquish Italy in war, frighten her into becoming a more or less docile ally, or prepare to become a second-class power.

Jealousy among different groups of government detectives is the only known reason behind the incident wherein two high-ranking Secret Service men were demoted for investigating actions of some of J. Edgar Hoover's "G-men." Widespread suspicion, however, persists in Washington that the Secret Service men were not acting without approval of someone higher up.

Part of the reported jealousy is said to be due to the heavy publicity which the Federal Bureau of Investigation men received when they began wiping out kidnapers and other gangsters. But there was also a bill in the last Congress, which may be revived, to consolidate all federal law enforcement agencies.

Congress, if it passed such bill, would be likely to insist that Hoover head the consolidated forces. And that horrifies the postal inspectors and Secret Service men, who are proud of their own records.

As if a drouth year isn't enough to shed tears about, Michigan expects a bumper onion crop.

In 1704 it was captured by a combined Dutch and English force and eventually taken possession of for the English crown by the British admiral. The Treaty of Utrecht (1713) ceded it to Great Britain. The most important even in its subsequent history is the famous siege of 3 years 7 months 12 days from 1779 to 1783 by the Spaniards.

Q. Have all the explorers who opened King Tut's tomb died as a result of a curse? H. L. S.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

THE pectoral muscles of a pigeon are developed more than those of many other birds which fly with slower wing-beats. A pigeon can rise almost vertically and fly with a speed of 60 miles an hour. The weight of a pigeon's wing, cut off close to the body, was only four-fifths of an ounce.

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

BY GEORGE TUCKER.

NEW YORK—Walking into a bank in the Wall Street sector, Richard Maney accidentally brushed the arm of a customer, causing the check he was writing to become smeared with ink.

Now Maney is a cultured, courteous Irishman, and he began at once to make apologies, but before he could utter one syllable the stranger lifted his chapea, bowed and hoped that the kind American gentleman would pardon him for being in the way.

This wasn't sarcasm. It was the instinctive response of a well-mannered Frenchman who was making a visit to New York. Hardly had this episode transpired when an uncouth fellow, noting the rather odd hat the Frenchman wore, boke into a snicker. Instantly the Frenchman stepped up to him.

"Were you laughing at me, monsieur?" he said smoothly.

Flabbergasted, the rude one fell back with a quick denial.

"Pardon me," the foreigner replied, "I thought you were." As if nothing had happened, he returned to the check counter and resumed his writing.

It is no hooey that somebody escaped a nasty situation by that denial. Had the offending one persisted in his rudeness, he would have been challenged to a duel then and there.

Such encounters as these in New York are far from infrequent and often they lead to farcical denouements. On Broadway, for instance, if you shoulder someone with unnecessary rudeness you are liable to be popped on the nose. You can always count on a dirty look at the very least.

Recently I scrambled aboard a Forest Hills train and sank into the nearest seat. In doing so I accidently lurched against a good village burgher who quite properly resented having the breath knocked out of him.

He withered me with this observation: "Really, if you must have the whole seat, I can move. I am not a peice of real estate."

That just goes to show you.

I think it is George Jean Nathan who tells the encounter O. Henry had with a careless pedestrian.

Walking down Broadway, O. Henry accidentally bumped into a fellow from the west. . . . "I beg your pardon," said the writer, "but, really, you should look where you are going."

"If I did I wouldn't go far in this town," replied the other, his contempt for the effete easterners not even disguised.

"Ah," said O. Henry quickly, "and how are the folks back home in Death Valley?"

O. Henry was an old one at sarcastic remarks. A shrewd analyzer of human nature, he interpreted, and accurately, a touch of sectional antagonism that their impromptu meeting had brought to the surface.

The psychoanalysts say an intoxicated man reveals his true nature. I dispute that—at least for New York. This theory may work in Sandusky or Cheyenne, or even in Peoria. But in this town, seeing a man in his cups isn't enough. You've got to meet him on a crowded thoroughfare and dig your elbow into his ribs.

Forty-second street scene: Picket in front of shoestore screaming: "If you value your feet you will not entrust them to the strike-breakers on the inside!" I think he was angry about something!

HOW'S your HEALTH

Edited by DR. IAGO GALDSTON for the New York Academy of Medicine

HEREDITY AND OVERWEIGHT.

Heredity has been defined as that science which enables us to blame our parents for our faults. Many obese and overweight persons derive vicarious satisfaction in placing the responsibility for their excess weight on their "hereditary tendency."

There is the semblance of a justification for their explanation in that their parents are frequently overweight.

However, the hereditary factor in overweights is generally overvalued. In most instances of obesity the overweight is due to overindulgence in food. The opposite condition of underweight, likewise charged to a hereditary factor, is in most instances due to insufficient food intake.

In body weight, the balance between the energy expenditure in terms of work and the energy intake in terms of food is more significant than the hereditary factor. When one exceeds the other, there is a tendency for the individual to become either overweight or underweight, depending upon whether energy intake or energy output exceeds.

The body, however, is not strictly comparable to an energy-converting machine, such, for example, as the automobile. For the body is apparently capable of making certain readjustments in its metabolic rates, so as to stimulate the burning up of fuel (foods) when a moderate excess is consumed, and of conserving its fuel resources when the energy output exceeds that of intake.

The constitutional make-up of the individual is an important factor. Some persons apparently are built for heavy work, and they probably could maintain normal weight and good health if they both ate and labored according to their constitution. Unfortunately, many with the constitution of a Hercules are fixed in sedentary positions, while others equipped with a body not suitable for hard labor are required to exercise beyond their capacity.

Talks to parents

COMPLETE PERSONALITY.
By Brooke Peters Church.

As long as mankind has existed, individuals have been different one from another. It seems impossible to reduce the human race to the uniformity of ants in an ant-hill. Indeed, life would scarcely seem worth living, if survival were its one aim.

This being the case, a uniform education for everyone cannot be desirable. There will always be children who need practical training, others who would be benefited by the humanities. The present tendency is to give pracaical subjects to the boy or girl who wants them and is most interested in them, artistic and literary courses to the youngster who is of an academic and literary turn of mind.

Such a system, however, takes no thought for the real purpose of education, nor for the meaning of culture. The whole object of training children should be to cultivate rounded and complete personalities. Some schools have begun to see the need of this kind of development, and are instituting what they call "personality courses" in the high schools. The training should, however, start much earlier, in the home if possible, before school days begin.

The practical, matter-of-fact child who goes in for utilitarian subjects, needs to have his imagination and his artistic tastes cultivated. The dreamer should be stimulated along mechanical and scientific lines. In early childhood such training is possible, whereas by the time a child has reached high school he is set in the mold of his personal preferences, and no longer open to suggestion.

Give the child who wants only pictures of engines and boats and buildings, or stories of discovery and invention, a taste of fairy-tales, adventure, history and art. Try to interest the dreamer in the romance of science and machinery. It can be done if started soon enough.

Chapter V

When they were seated in the low, powerfully built roadster Nelson Whittaker turned and stared at Molly. His expression was puzzled, displeased.

"What," he began, "have you done to yourself? It's a masquerade, isn't it? Some kind of joke on me?"

Molly didn't like the tone of his voice. It was irritated, tinged with resentment. "Don't you like me as well in these clothes?" she asked.

Suddenly he smiled. "So that was it! It was a test, was it?"

How absurd! What enormous conceit. For a moment she almost thought she disliked him. Still that wouldn't be fair, just because he was showing human imperfections. And if she were honest, she had been wondering if Molly Milford in a $4.98 dress and a $2.98 hat would be as attractive to this romantic new friend as Molly Milford in an original creation and a scandalously expensive hat.

"Suits me, if it does you," Nelson Whittaker spoke abruptly, "but the idead back of it puzzles me."

Molly was silent for a moment. The words had sounded crude. She felt a sense of disappointment, too, because he was not quite as handsome by daylight as he had been in the softened glow of "The Red Poppy." She didn't quite know what to expect, but not this pasty, white look, nor the little lines under his eyes. Maybe his work at the bank was night work. Maybe she was doing him and injustice when she decided he looked dissipated and jaded. At any rate, he was properly dressed in a well-tailored blue serge and blue tie with flecks of gray.

"The 'University of the World' had taught him some things," Molly thought. "He might have worn a tie that shrieked or shoes that creaked. Where have my democratic feelings gone? Here I am—finding fault already."

She proceeded to "turn on the charm" as Brent always put it, chatting in friendly fashion, but her escort seemed abstracted, unresponsive.

Molly was troubled. The thought of Brent brought a lump in her throat. How wise he was. Wat foolish, romantic notion had brought her out tonight with a man who was a complete stranger to her? On her way with him to some unknown place called "Frenchy's."

"Is it far to Frenchy's?" she asked suddenly.

He turned and she felt his eyes searching her face. "Not very," he said. "Why?"

Molly hesitated. "I was thinking if it is, perhaps it would be best not to go there tonight, because I must be back by 10."

"Double-dating? Well, if you keep him waiting, that's his hard luck."

No, Molly decided, I don't like him at all. I wish I were at home. He was putting on some sort of an act at "The Red Poppy." Now, for some reason, he isn't even trying to be nice.

She resolved suddenly that after this night's experience was over she would never be impulsive again. Meanwhile, it would not do to become morbid and imagine things that made her feel cold and unhappy.

Bolstered by this sensible resolution, Molly relaxed comfortably in her seat and prepared to enjoy the flying green landscape, since only monosiyyabic tidbits in the way of conversation were being offered.

"Comfortable?" Nelson Whittaker inquired.

"Yes, perfectly," Molly answered. "This is a grand car. It's new, isn't it?"

"Well, almost. I bought it today from a fellow because it's some traveler."

"Going away?" Molly asked.

"I'm think of it."

Odd. Everybody seemed to be going way. Molly was wishing now that she had gone to Lake Placid, as Donna had suggested. Then she wouldn't be moving away from familiar surroundings in a car that could travel. Nelson hWittaker must make a marvelous salary to be able to go out and buy a car like this so casually.

There was that little bell again, ringing a warning in her brain. Morbid, silly, but just the same, when she reached "Frenchy's" she would invent some excuse and reach a telephone. She wouldn't drive ack to down tonight with this moody stranger.

She stole a look at her companion. In the waning afternoon light, his face was revealed grimly lined.

Molly breathed quickly, then spoke impulsively: "I'm afraid it was only an impulse, asking me out to dinner, and already you're regretting it. Or perhaps I hurt your pride accepting your invitation and dressing like this. Somehow I have the feeling you are not pleased. There's something wrong. Let's turn back."

"Not a chance!" His voice rang vibrantly. "I'm sorry if I've been rude. To tell the truth, there's a deal I'm trying to put over. A big deal, and my nerves are jumpy. Maybe you've never gambled. If I lose—"

"He's put everything he has into some stock and is afraid his judgment was bad," Molly reasoned.

"The boys who tipped me off got me into this—well, I can't explain to you. But I've a feeling that one of them would give me the wrong steer if he dared. You see I don't altogether trust him. A bird—"

He caught himself up suddenly, and Molly felt his eyes on her again.

"My father says you can't trust anybody who's too anxious to sell you stock these days," Molly said.

Nelson Whittaker nodded. "Just let me catch any of my friends selling me the wrong kind of stock! Well, here we are at Frenchy's."

He assisted Molly from the car, and she entered the building with a feeling of relief. "Frenchy's" was really not far. Perhaps 10 miles or so from the city. The restuarant was painted green on the outside and decorated within in what was now much tarnished gilt.

"Here's Frenchy' himself," her companion said. He raised his hand in salute. "Hello, 'French'!"

The wrinkled, dark-haired old man who had advanced to meet them stared a moment, perplexed. "Back from the dead!" he whispered.

Nelson Whittaker laughed. "More alive than ever, 'French.' Ghosts don't drive 12 miles for good food and wine."

"You're welcome, and I'm pleased to offer the best we have. Whatever you and the lady wish—"

His startled eyes had never left Nelson Whittaker's face, Molly saw. He had barely glanced at her.

The air of this place was heavy with the odor of tobacco and liquir. On the walls, as her companion had said, were paintings which might be called "French landscapes," but they were crude and wholly unimaginative. Waiters stood negligently around. There were few diners at this hour, and the group of boys who "sang tears to ycur eyes," were occupied in listlessly thumbing sheets of music.

The table at which Molly and Whittaker were seated was directly in front of the orchestra stand. Molly stared at the young musicians frankly. Already a plan was forming in her mind. One of the youths had a sensitive, attractive face. He would be the one to aid her, if a way opened for her to communicate with him.

"Ask them to play something from Leonvavallo's 'I Pagliacci,'" Molly said quickly, and was rewarded by seeing the blank amazement in her escort's eyes. He didn't know the grand Opera, Molly saw, and would be loathe to reveal his ignorance.

"May I send them a little note with a request number?" she asked, smiling straight into his eyes. "I've decided upon something more romantic. From 'Butterfly'."

"Certainly. Here, waiter, pencil and paper."

The waiter was suddenly annimated. He placed a stubby pencil and pad of paper before Molly.

When the note went up Molly saw the young man with the sensitive face smile. She had requested Butterfly's aria, "Someday He'll Come," and as she listened to the tender music she thought of Brent.

"Frenchy's" guests were regarding the extraordinary young lady who appeared to care more for music than wine with momentary interest. Molly's companion, his mood mellowed by his first drink, whispered indulgently: "You women, with your music."

Molly's lonk lashes swept her cheeks and were raised suddenly to reveal deliberate admiration. "For you men!" she said.

She sipped the wine cautiously. A long time ago—a very long time ago when she was safe and protected—she had heard that sometimes knockout drops were administered in wine in dangerous dives. So she raised the glass to her lips but barely tasted its contents.

Some impassioned Wagner music flowed about them now. The dark-haired young musicians were playing with fine feeling. Boys who could play like that could surely be trusted Maybe they didn't know this was a wicked sort of place. Or maybe it wasn't wicked. You couldn't judge a place always by the people who came to it. Molly knew now she had definitely decided Nelson Whittaker was not to be trusted.

The elderly Frenchman was making his way toward their table. "For you," he said to Whittaker. "A man out front—Louis he called himself—wants to see you."

Molly waited only a moment after her companion had left. She wrote an address on a slip of paper. On the other sheet she wrote: "Am at Frenchy's. Twelve miles from the Bridge. Please come. Molly." Taking the bill from her purse—she noted it was $20—she folded it within the paper. Then, quickly crossing to the orchestra stand, she placed the papers in the hand of the young musician.

She saw him read one message and place the other in his pocket. After a moment he looked toward Molly and nodded, a smile lighting his dark eyes.

"He thinks I've repented of a bad bargain and am sending for my best beau," Molly thought. Adding audaciously to herself, "Well, I am!"

AROUND HOLLYWOOD

BY ROBBIN COONS.

HOLLYWOOD—Off-stage romance in Hollywood is a year-around phenomenon, requiring no vernal equinox to stir up thoughts of love.

Here where the stage is broader by far than those barn-like buildings equipped with sound devices and cameras, the natural urge is fostered by propinquity, press agentry and gossips.

One actress the other day picked up the morning paper and turned to the gossip column eagerly. "I've got to see who my sweetheart is today—and meet him," she said flippantly.

A comparatively rare culmination to filmland romance occurred the other day when Allan Jones and Irene Hervey were married. Anywhere else marriage can be fairly reliably expected as the sequel to romance, but in Hollywood young love frequently lasts only as long as the gossips are interested.

Of course young love, here as everywhere else, is not a thing to catalog and dismiss as either "the real thing" or "just publicity."

Sometimes it is one, sometimes the other, and quite often it is both. But it takes a statistician even for the simpler task of keeping straight on "who's going with whom."

Until Allan Jones came along, it was Robert Taylor who squired Irene Hervey places. Now it is Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, and the Allan Joneses are honeymooning. The Taylor-Stanwyck romance was well along before the two were cast in the same picture—a teaming regarded as a "natural."

Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable are officialy engaged, the wedding not so distant now. They say it's the 'real thing" between Anne Shirley and Owen Davis Jr., but Anne has been "rushed" by countless swains.

Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker are constant compalons—especially when they're making a film together. Martha Raye was engaged—twice—before she finished her first picture. But the second engagement lasted only two days.

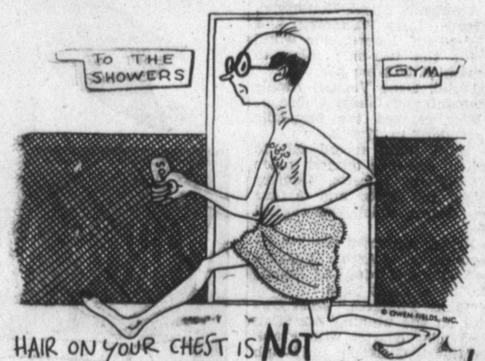

Hollywood expects Joan Blondell and Dick Powell to be married soon, but it only guesses about Jean Harlow and William Powell, and about Cary Grant and Mary Brian, who have been together frequently. James Stewart has been "seen with" Eleanor Powell. Ginger Rogers and Virginia Bruce—which may be safety in numbers for one of the town's eligible bachelors.

ROAD RUNNERS PLAYFULLY DEFEAT AMARILLO 25 TO 4

MEET BORGER BLACKFACES IN TODAY'S GAME

FREAK RECORDS MADE IN WILD HITTING HERE FRIDAY

The Road Runners were in a playful mood on Friday night when they collected 27 hits from the offerings of three Amarillo pitchers for a 25 to 4 victory over the Phillips Parrots of that city. Carl Stewart held the Amarilloans to seven hits, well scattered after the first inning when two runs were scored on three hits.

Some kind of a record was hung up by the frolicksome birds in the opening inning with Jim "Bump" Hadley the victim. The elongated righthander threw seven balls before leaving the mound with five hits and five runs registered against him. Luke Coburn relieved. He got the first two batters out but before the last man could be retired, six more runs crossed the slab. Coburn lasted until the sixth when Tillery took up the work.

Manager Sam Hale led the Road Runner attack with six hits on his seven trips to the plate. The fiery Hale gathered himself a pair of home runs, a triple, a double and two singles to score nine of his team's runs. McNabb also fattened his batting average with four for five including a triple and three singles. Lisle also got four, including a double. Cox boosted his home run record with one over the fence, in the opening inning, which caused Hadley to roam off to the showers.

Filbert, who used to play first base for Phillips of LeFors, got to Stewart for a pair of singles. Preston "Army" Littrell got only one hit but it was a home run in the sixth with Filbert on base.

Stewart, after a bad first inning when three singles gave Amarillo two runs, hurled sensationally. He faced only 13 batters in the next four innings and retired the side on strikeouts in the fourth to start his parade of 11. On top of that, Stewart scored twice and bagged a single and double.

Several great plays were registered but probably the outstanding ones went to Filbert when he leaped high in the air to snag a wild throw from third in time to get his man, and to McNabb who ran into short right centerfield to snare Coburn's drive.

McNabb, Seitz and Hale each bagged a pair of hits in the wild first inning, Hale, registering a double and a home run for his share of the attack.

Several Amarillo players, especially the outfielders, were guilty of lapses of interest when they loafed after balls. They were probably winded so busy were they kept racing after the horsehide.

This afternoon the Road Runners will be in Borger for a game with the Huber Blackfaces who hold an edge of one game on the season play. Lefty Winkler will probably be on the mound with Vodie Clemmons in reserve. Winkler will be borrowed from Phillips of LeFors and Clemmons from the Coltexo Blackcats of LeFors.

On Tuesday night, here, the birds will face a team of Oklahoma City All-Stars.

LOUIS RIDDLE TO BE SOLVED TUESDAY NIGHT

ACTUAL CONVICTIONS ON RESULT OF THE FIGHT SCARCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 15. (AP)—The baffling, human problem that is Joe Louis will be solved over the pitcher's box at Yankee stadium Tuesday night when the brown bomber crosses his comeback trail with that of the garrulous, snarling Jack Sharkey.

Scheduled for 10 rounds, the fight follows by two months the crushing defeat of the 22-year-old Detroit negro by Max Schmeling.

On form alone, Louis should have no trouble with a shrewd ex-champion, who is 33 years old and far from the up and down fighting machine he once was. Louis should knock the old Boston tar kicking in two rounds but tonight you couldn't find a man along the fight Rialto audacious enough to predict such a result with actual convictions. They can't see Sharkey but they can't understand Louis.

Offering a striking contract to the once mighty Brown Bomber is Sharkey. In excellent condition despite his age and lay-off, the former champion is taking the fight in stride. He has worked fairly hard in his training camp and will step into the ring at 196 pounds, his ideal fighting weight. Confidence fairly oozes from him.

"I say what I've always said," he tells everyone, "and that is that old man Sharkey isn't a 'new Sharkey' but that he is good enough to lick any negro fighter in the world, including Joe Louis."

Louis' handlers, say they are confident he will whip Sharkey with an impressive performance.

Tickets have been priced from a $11.50 top at $3.50. Promoter Mike Jacobs probably would be happy to settle for a $125,000 gross gate.

SALLY RAND WILL PRESENT DISTRICT SOFTBALL MEDALS

FORT WORTH, Aug. 15.—A colorful foundation has been laid for softball's biggest show in the Texas state tournament, here on Sept. 4, 5, 6, and 7 under the direction of The Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The ceremonies will be saved for Saturday night, second day of the tuornament, so that all competing teams may be present. In the beautiful setting of Forest Park, Sally Rand, who among other things, is a softball enthusiast, will present individual medals to each member of the district championship clubs.

Also on exhibition will be the men's and women's state championship gold bronze cups, which must be won twice for permanent possession.

Preliminary play between some 30 men's and 16 women's teams will get underway Friday night, Sept. 4. Then, on Saturday, three diamonds will be utilized for day play, with choice games on the night schedule. Day sessions also will be held on Sunday with finals and consolations staged Monday night.

Then the state champions will prepare for an invasion of Chicago with all expenses paid by the Star-Telegram. Plans now call for the group to leave on Sept. 9, with a stop in St. Louis to play outstanding teams there as warmups for the world's championships starting Sept. 12 at Soldier Field in Chicago.

It has been ruled that if a state champion, for any reason, can not make the trip, the runnerups will be eligible. The men's teams will be quartered in Chicago at the Hotel Morrison, in the heart of the Loop; the women players will stay at Hotel Knickerbocker on the Gold Coast, and the commissioners will put up at the Shoreland Hotel on South Shore Drive.

The winning teams in every state will be awarded a set of 15 handsome championship medals. Winners of the world's title, both men and women, will receive the Amateur Softball Association trophy for permanent possession. In addition, the men's titlist will be awarded custody for one year of the $1,000 softball trophy, now held by the Crimson Coach of Toledo, Ohio, winners in 1935.

Official playing rules of the joint softball rules committee will be used. These provide for a 12-inch ball, 60-foot bases, no lead-off, no base stealing and no bunting. The balls will be selected according to the rule of the A. S. A. and will be regular inseam type.

Visitors coming with teams will be given rooms at the official hotels at reduced rates. Estimated cost of conducting the tournament will be $12,000 to $15,000.

District tournaments are being staged over Texas now. Winners and runnersup will qualify for the Star-Telegram's state classic.

Arrangements have been made here to house the visiting athletes at the Texas Christian University and Texas Wesleyan College dormitories at nightly rates ranging from 75 cents to a dollar.

Reserved seat tickets good for every game of the state meet are now in sale at $1 each and may be obtained by writing The Star-Telegram sports department and enclosing check. Admission for day sessions will be 10 cents and 25 cents for the night games.

Lad Scores Win Over Atlantan In Tennis Upset

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 15. (AP)—Robert L. Riggs, 18-year-old Los Angeles Loy who holds the national clay courts tennis championship, scored the first major upset in the men's division of the eastern grass courts tournament today when he defeated another player whose strokes are more effective on clay surface, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta, 6-3, 1-6, 8-6, 6-1. Grant was seeded second in the tournament behind Don Budge, the Oakland, Calif., Davis cup player who reached the final Friday, while Riggs was seventh.

The women's division previously had its full quota of upsets with Mme. Sylvia Henrotin of France and Helen Pedersen of Stamford, Conn., both unseeded, advancing to tomorrow's final.

Budge and Gene Mako, the Davis cup pair, won the men's doubles title by outlasting their predecessors in international competition, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

The national champions broke Mako's service regularly in the first two sets, but the younger pair rallied so strongly to square the count that Allison and Van Ryn let the last few games of the fourth go to save their energy. In the final they gained a 2-0 lead by breaking Mako again but weakened after leading 4-1 and 40 love.

INDUSTRY PUT IN CONTROL OF SPANISH STATE

WOULD HALT FLIGHT OF CAPITAL TO REBELS

MADRID, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Spanish government, its troops flung across the countryside in bloody battle against Fascist rebellion, tonight ordered new socilization of industry and sought to halt flight of capital that might reach rebel hands.

The huge oil, tobacco and other industries were confiscated by labor organizations and given over to workers to operate under state control.

A government decree forbade buying, selling or lending of securities and banned any transfer of real estate. The decree was applied to Spaniards both within and without Spain.

The objective was to prevent members of the one-time nobility and rebels from liquidating their holdings for cash that might be used to purchase arms.

The new step toward socialization was another in the program of the liberal government that originally was the cause of the rebellion.

President Manuel Azana proclaimed a liberal regime for workers and peasantry when he took office in April. Many leaders of the army, who favored a Fascist army; monarchists who sought the return of former King Alfonso; industrialists who wished a highly capitalistic state, formed the oppositions.

The result was rebellion, now in its 29th day of bitter conflict and with neither side making any apparent gain.

In fighting today, the government forces drove back rebels who waged bitter attack against Irun and San Sebastian on the Bay of Biscay, northern frontier of Spain.

The Madrid war ministry claimed slow advances against southern rebel sectors in Granada and on the north in Zaragoza province.

(International complications added ever increasing tension to the civil battle between socialist government and fascist rebels with the report Portuguese border guards had fired on loyalist troops.

(The Portuguese government protested to France against asserted "massacres" in Spain although indicating a willingness to join in a European neutrality pact.

(Germany still had not replied to France's invitation to join in the "hands off" pledge to let Spain fight her own battles, and Great Britain warned "serious repercussions" would result if European powers resorted to meddling in the conflict.

(One American and 37 British subjects, held prisoner by government adherents, were reported evacuated from Huelva province in the south.

(Six British airplanes left French soil, Paris aviation sources said, en route for delivery to the Spanish government).

OIL CONTROL IN LOUISIANA IS APPROVED

Bi-State Conference Discusses Needs At Rodessa

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15. (AP)—An agreement aimed at helping the Rodessa oil field of North Louisiana avoid the economic pitfalls encountered by other new oil developments was mutually decided upon today by leading bankers and independent oil operators of Texas and Louisiana.

Meeting in executive session at the invitation of the Louisiana Bankers association, men prominent in the Texas oil industry warmly endorsed the recent oil conservation law signed by Governor Richard W. Lechet of Louisiana.

The Louisiana bankers adopted resolutions expressing gratification over the state's new conservation law and calling for the appointment of a committee of bankers to meet with a similar committee from Texas to discuss mutual problems.

George A. Hull Jr., of Houston, vice president of the American Petroleum Institute, addressed today's meeting and outlined some of the problems encountered in Texas when the East Texas fields were discovered.

Charles A. Roser of Fort Worth, president of the Independent Petroleum association of America also spoke briefly on how to best conserve the resources of the Rodessa field and to best promote the interests of both states involved.

Nathan Adams, president of the First National bank of Dallas, declared that "Louisiana has the biggest future oil reserve of any state in the union.

"Oil is a real cash crop," he said. "It has supplanted cotton in Texas as the money crop and you don't have to wait a year to sell it. Your money is available every 30 days.

"Oil is what pulled Texas through the depression and what we are trying to do is mutually agree on a program that will prevent the uncontrolled development of a new field and the return of 10-cent a barrel oil," Mr. Adams said.

Spokesmen for the Texas group said they were not seeking any change in the present Louisiana oil conservation law and one referred to the new statute as "good a law as any state in the union has for controlling production."

They expressed hope, however, that Louisiana would join the interstate oil conference, a group that now includes Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico and Kansas.

STATE INTEREST RISES

AUSTIN, Aug. 15. (AP)—Texas' political temperature showed signs of mounting today as candidats in the runoff Democratic primary Aug. 22 intensified campaigns. Absentee voting was under way.

Chief interest centered on the effort of Frank S. Morris of Dallas to defeat red-haired Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the important Railroad commission, running for re-election.

Contests for state commissioner of agriculture, three congressional and scores of legislative seats, all a hang-over from the first primary July 25, rapidly neared climaxes.

Rumblings of national campaign thunder were heard in declarations by Republican leaders that Texas would vote for Landon as in 1928 it did for Hoover, statements which were promptly ridiculed by Democratic chieftains.

In speeches, regulations affecting Texas' great oil industry, administered by the Railroad commission, were attacked and defended, respectively, by Morris and Thompson.

Morris charged East Texas independent oil operators had been ruined by eastern "petroleum barons." Thompson replied that conservation had prolonged the life of Texas' oil fields and would result in recovery of millions of barrels of crude which would be lost if restrictions were removed.

Lon A. Smith, a colleague of Thompson on the three-member commission, was actively supporting Morris. C. V. Terrell, the other member, was working for Thompson.

H. O. Johnson and Carl C. Hardin, eliminated from the commission race in the first primary, also were backing Morris.

The only other statewide race was between George B. Terrell, a former national representative, and J. E. McDonald for commissioner of agriculture. McDonald, the incumbent, trailed Terrell in the first primary.

Congressional contests were between Representative Thomas L. Blanton and Clyde L. Farrett, in the 17th district; Mayor Oscar Holcombe of Houston and Albert Thomas, in the eighth district; and representative W. D. McFarlane and Ed Gossett, in the 13th district.

In state convention, the Republicans nominated C. O. Harris of San Angelo and Carlos Watson of Brownsville to oppose Gov. James V. Allred and U. S. Senator Morris Sheppard, Democrats, in the general election.

They adopted a platform sharply criticising the new deal and President Roosevelt and inviting Democrats to join in the "restoration of constitutional government."

Later, John W. Philp, director of organization, announced an active campaign to raise funds and carry Texas for the Republican national nominees would be launched at an early date. He also expressed hope of electing several congressmen.

Tuesday night John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national executive committee, will address Republicans in Dallas.

Roy Miller, director of organization and finance for the Democrats in Texas, worked on plans to seek campaign funds in every county.

FDR Ends Flood Survey Tour to Ringing Ovations

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN en route to Hyde Park, N. Y. Aug. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt headed toward Hyde Park, N. Y., tonight at the end of personal survey of eastern flood areas on a trip which included a policy-making address on the United State and its neutrality stand.

With a new fund of first hand information in his possession, he left assurances of federal cooperation in combatting the flood menace.

In the heart of the Pennsylvania hard coal fields today he received ovations similar to those which marked his three-state tour that took him as far west as Cleveland where he witnessed an exposition and declared the country deserved to enjoy itself after the hard times it went through.

At Chautauqua, N. Y., last night he spoke to a nation-wide audience in enunciating a United States attitude of striving for peace and in assailing war profiteering.

At Scranton and Wilkes Barre, demonstrations by spectators taxed the powers of troops and police seeking to keep them clear of the President's route.

Driving out upon a levee project close to Wilkes Barre's business district, the President viewed approximately 1 000 Works Progress administration employees lined up in front of scores of automobile trucks.

After hearing progress reports from officials in charge, Mr. Roosevelt, with a quick smile, remarked:

"A pretty good boondoggling sample."

HOSTAGES RESCUED

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 15 (AP) — An American and 37 British subjects held as hostages were believed safe tonight after escape from loyalists in Huelva province, Southern Spain. J. O. Ambler of Montana and San Antono, Texas, consultant in the smalting department of the mine, was the American held.

Mrs. J. O. Gillham and daughters, Eleanor Ruth and Helen, are leaving today for Brownfield to join Mr. Gillham and make ther home.

NEGROES SHOT IN ATTEMPTING PRISON ESCAPE

Both Are Killed by Posse Trailing Fugitives

LUFKIN, Aug. 15 (AP)—Two negro convicts fleeing from the central prison farm at Sugarland were shot and killed near here tonight by a posse which picked up the pair's trail after they fired on Constable Earl Pryor from an automobile in Cherokee county, north of here.

Bloodhounds were brought from the Eastham prison farm to aid in the search.

Constable Pryor had stopped to investigate a car parked on the highway. He said the two negroes opened fire on him at close range as he approached. Pryor ran back to his car as the negroes drove away, then gave chase.

The negroes left their car soon after and plunged into a heavily wooded area. The car which they abandoned had been stolen at Columbus, Texas. Pryor said they threw a bundle of convict clothing out of the car as they fled.

Mary Astor Goes To Work, George Makes Statement

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 15 (AP)—Mary Astor squared off today to pick up her film career interrupted by a sensational court dispute over custody of her four-year-old daughter, Marylyn.

"No official action is contemplated," said a spokesman for the office of Will Hays, the "movie czar."

Her most recent film, ("Dodsworth" with Walter Huston) is in great demand, said the office of Producer Sam Goldwyn.

In Miss Astor's ornate home little Marylyn played unmindful of the legal storm. Two guards prowled around but admitted they haven't had to order many curiosity-seekers away.

Judge Goodwin J. Knight has stamped the case closed. The child, whose full custody was won by Dr. Franklyn Thorpe when he divorced Miss Astor last year, will spend nine months of each year with her mother and three months with her father.

One loose end remained—a bench warrant hanging over George S. Kaufman, whom Judge Knight has said he will put behind jail bars for ignoring a subpoena issued by Dr. Thorpe's attorneys.

Kaufman made his presence known today in New York, where he announced he wanted to go back to work, that his secret departure from California was "necessary," and that "it is best to forget this case."

RFC Loan Would Continue Under Demos' Proposal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (AP)—Extension of the Reconstruction Corporation's lending power for another year was projected today in administration discussions, in view of a sustained demand for the agency's loans.

This authority now is scheduled to expire next January 31. Although no official announcement has been made, it was said in some high quarters that continuance for at least a year probably would be sought.

Since its creation in 1932, the giant corporation has provided a vast credit reservoir on which the nation's business has drawn heavily.

Repayments now are flooding back to the corportion, however, and of the $6.184,000,000 loaned to business and industry, $4,126,000,000 or 67 percent, has been returned.

But though money is flowing back from old loans and demands for new ones have fallen off sharply in the last year, the corporation still is making numerous advances to certain types of borrowers.

Knox May Attend Centennial Day

DALLAS, Aug. 24 (AP)—John W. Philp, Texas republican director of organization, announced that the designation "republican day" for Tuesday at the Texas Centennial exposition, when John Hamilton, prominent republican, will speak, had been changed to "Hamilton Day."

Hamilton, chairman of the party's national committee, will speak in behalf of Gov. Landon of Kansas, republican presidential nominee.

Philp said the change was made because of the possibility Knox, vice-presidential nominee, and other prominent republicans, would appear at the exposition later.

Parties Differ on Texas Vote Outlook

DALLAS Aug. 15 (AP)—Prominent members of opposing national political parties gave conflicting statements today regarding the probable Texas vote for Landon and Knox, the republican ticket, in November.

R. B. Creagor of Brownsville, republican national committeeman predicted the vote "will be close," while Karl A. Crowley, solicitor general for the post office department, said Roosevelt and Garner would compile the biggest democratic majority in the state's history.

and Evans, Judge Todd stated that the former is charged with transporting the Moore woman from Pampa to Hobbs and Evans is accused of bringing her back to Pampa and then taking her and Miss Mullins to Elk City, Clinton, and Cheyenne, all in Oklahoma. Later he brought them back to Pampa, it is alleged.

An altercation at a South Side resort recently brought about the tip to police authorities that launched the investigation which resulted in the arrests Friday.

Two Men Quarrel

Evans, it is stated, became engaged in an argument over a check with a Pampa man. The two quarreled and it is charged that Evans kicked the man down stairs. In a vengeful mood, the man told police, and the investigation foloweld.

The Pampa resident, said to be prominent, is expected to be called as a witness in the white slavery cases when they come up for hearing at the September term of federal court in Amarillo.

Evans and the two women were turned over to United States Marshal William Lampe, of Amarillo, late Friday afternoon. Constable Jim Sullivan arested Evans and Constable Earl Lewis arrested Miss Moore. Miss Mullins was in county jail. All three were taken to the Amarillo jail.

Judge Todd intimated Saturday that the four arrests Friday mark the beginning of a three-state roundup which may strike again at Pampa before the alleged white slave ring completely is broken.

In commenting on the case, Judge Todd said that the investigation which led up to the arrests on Friday revealed conditions that good citizens will not believe exist.

Local officers are working to eliminate them as far as possible, he said, but many of the violations are of such nature that it requires action of federal agencies in order to check them.

Brothels in which girls are coached to rob men of their bank rolls were described by Judge Todd. In the event that method fails, he stated, men who enter these places are lured into back room gaming dens where they are fleeced of their cash in dice games.

All of these facts, the judge said, were unearthed in the investigation made by a Department of Justice agent here, working in connection with the judge's office and Constable Jim Sullivan.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal department of justice, yesterday made an appeal for intensified efforts against the white slave traffic with a request that "public-spirited citizens" inform against violators in the field.

The director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said reports from police departments over the nation showed all types of crime except criminal attacks declined in 1935 compared to 1933.

An indication of the proportions of the white slave traffic, against which the federal government long ago directed a law forbidding the transportation of women from one state to another for immoral purposes, was made in a report of Hoover's own bureau.

It said federal court convictions for white slavery were more numerous in June this year than in any month in the last three years.

Evans is being held under $1,000 bond in the Potter county jail, and bond for each of the women was fixed at $750.

Prairie Stake Is Won by Orientalist

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (AP)—Orientalist, owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago, won the $5,000 Prairie State stakes for two year olds at Washington Park today by one length, with Bottle Cap second and Yellow Tulip third. The winner sprinted the six furlongs in 1:13 4-5 over a heavy track.

Orientalist, ridden by Jockey H. Albrecht, came from behind in the stretch, with Bottle Cap, the heavily played favorite, closing an immense gap. Mordorf, a stable-mate of Orientalist, set the pace after the first quarter of a mile, but faltered to finish fourth.

Team Is Coming From Oklahoma To Play Tuesday

Jim Milner, well known in baseball circles years ago, will bring his Oklahoma City All Stars to Pampa for a game on Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock at Road Runner park. The Pampa-Danciger Road Runners, of course, will be the home team.

Players on the Oklahoma City team have been picked from nines in the sandlot tournament, just completed. Most of the team members were with the American Iron and Machine Work and the Phillips teams.

The peppery Milnar will bring five pitchers on his trip to the Panhandle. They will be Villines, Skinner, Weldon, Skidgel and Deal. The last two were with Phillips when they played here last month.

Probable batting order for the Oklahomans will be: Murphy, second base; Sloan, shortstop; Lewis left field; Miller, first base; Arnett, third base; Perkins, center field; West, right field; Johnson, catcher.

Carl Stewart, who held the hard-hitting Amarillo-Phillips team to seven hits on Friday night will probably be on the mound for the Road Runners. Vodie Clemmons will be second choice, it is predicted.

Thrilling Game Of Polo Is Lost In Consolation

Pampa's polo team lost a thrilling game in the consolation round of the Plainview Polo tournament yesterday afternoon when they were downed by Plainview, 3 to 1. Friday the Pampans were swamped by the Lamesa Oranges, the team doped to win the event, 12 to 1.

The Rough Riders showed a complete reversal of form yesterday afternoon in holding the Plainview quartet to three goals.

H. Otto Studer, Joe Bowers, Hub Burrow and Jack Cooper were on the firing line for Pampa without substitutes.

Lamesa Oranges and Lamesa Whites will play this afternoon for the championship cup. Plainview and Running Water will tangle for the consolation cup.

Britain, France Agree on Accord

LONDON, Aug. 15. (AP) — Great Britain tonight announced complete accord with France on a Spanish arms embargo, stayed actual order of a ban to await other governments, and warned against danger of meddling in the civil war.

The step toward neutrality, the foreign office announced, will become effective when assent of Germany, Italy, Portugal and Russia is received.

"Maintenance of a strict, impartial attitude of non-intervention is essential if the unhappy events in Spain are to be prevented from having serious repercussions elsewhere," the British government declared.

Notes agreeing to ban shipment of arms and munitions were signed by French and British diplomats.

LEMKE TO BE CANDIDATE OF COUGHLINITES

UNION ENTHUSIASTIC IN ENDORSING HIM FOR PRESIDENT

CLEVELAND, Aug. 16 (AP)—The National Union for Social Justice formally named the Rev Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit its first president late today and endorsed Representative William Lemke of North Dakota and Thomas C. O'Brien, candidates for the new union party for president and vice president.

Endorsement of Lemke and O'Brien occasioned a noisy demonstration, but the election of the Detroit priest was made quietly by acclamation.

Father Coughlin maintained complete control of the organization under a constitution adopted today. He appoints the nominating committee whose choices for other officers are final.

He immediately appointed a committee to name candidates for secretary, treasurer, and the board of trustees.

In an election address, Father Coughlin said, "I realize the responsibility which is mine—primarily the responsibility of a teacher because I disagree with many practices of the present civilization."

"I will never turn my back on you and I will never sell you out," he said. "We will succeed, not necessarily in driving the money changers from the temple, but in driving the money changers' servants from the temple."

Father Coughlin then introduced Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the Townsend old age pension plan, and the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, lieutenant of the late Senator Huey P. Long.

Father Coughlin composed protests by ruling that they would not speak at a regular session but at a recess meeting.

He introduced Dr. Townsend as "a really great American whose heart is so big that he does not refrain from bearing on his shulders in his late years the burdens of the aged, the cross of the aged."

The white-haired Dr. Townsend said "I am happy to lend you my support in what you have done here."

"I also approve of the governmental changes advocated by William Lemke and those advocated by the late Huey Long."

Ann Hewitt Will Testify Monday In Mayhem Trial

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15. (AP)—Ann Cooper prepared tonight to match wits on the witness stand Monday with an attorney who charges she was a "tool" of conspirators seeking riches from her own inheritance.

The petite brunette heiress conferred with her personal attorney, Russell P. Tyler, during the weekend in the mayhem conspiracy trial of Dr. Tilton E Tillman and Dr. Samuel G. Boyd.

The physicians are charged with illegally sterilizing Miss Hewitt in a plot allegedly engineered by her mother, Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt, to gain control of Ann's estate. The criminal charges developed after Ann had sued her mother and the physicians for $500,000 alleging she was tricked into submitting to the sterilization operation.

Defense Attorney J. M. Golden charges she had been duped into proceeding against her mother and the physicians by Tyler and other persons seeking a part of the fortune left by her father.

[QUESTIONS THAT ARE ASKED ABOUT BANKING]

"Am I asking a favor when I seek a Bank loan?"

A LOAN is a business transaction. It is no more of a favor for a bank to lend you money than it is for a property-owner to rent you a house. Both make a fair profit when the business is on a sound basis.

This bank welcomes loan applications—for this is one of the ways we make money. You do not have to say "please" or "thank you" when you borrow here. Your application is judged strictly on its merits like any other business matter. If we think your loan is a proper investment for our depositors' funds we shall approve it promptly—and appreciate getting it. If your application does not meet our requirements of sound banking we shall tell you so frankly together with our reasons.

This bank is actively seeking good loans.

Leaf Colors for Fall Gloves and Shoes Are Smart

PARIS (AP)—Colored gloves in autumn leaf tones came to town with the fall fashion displays shown in the salons of leading Paris designers.

Molyneux showed "brand new" glace kid gloves made for him by Chamut with his new autumn town clothes. They were slip-on styles with turn down cuffs, their only trimming being a big kid-covered button. Not even on the backs where triple stitchings usually play around, was there a single note of decoration.

A number of colored suedes were also shown. Those, too, had plain backs but were often made without cuffs, the top merely rolled and overstitched by hand the way handkerchief hems are done.

Maple Shoes, Too

Trees, leaves and moss inspired the colors for the gloves. Oak was the name for a light tan—almost a yellow. Ceder, elm and chestnut provided various browns and maple furnished the glowing red of the turned maple leaf in autumn.

The maple leaf shade was also seen in new shoes designed for early fall appearances. A spectator sports model in this soft red is made of a box calf, cut high in front and strap fastened with a gold buckle at the side. The perforated trimming is underlaid with beige kid.

Enzel designed for Maggy Rouff to display with fall afternoon clothes a shoe in steel grey glace kid softened with pearl or nacre finish. This is a high heeled model made with a number of narrow straps giving a good deal of openwork treatment. Another of her shoes is an afternoon pump in black antelope with a curique motif across the front made of three tiny scalloped bands of patent leather.

Boots Are Good

Some new evening sandals in gold kid have braids of kid for strap trimming which is a newer note than the plain flat strap. A low-heeled evening sandal combines gold kid with bronze in striking effect.

Boots, too, appear in the fall fashion picture—the kind that comes above the ankle several inches and usually lace over a tall tongue. One of the new ones combines black patent leather with a black shaved fur, suggesting Russian influence.

Unusual Home Is Visited on Trip By H. D. Members

In the manner of the Italian masters who painted many of their greatest works on ceilings and walls of churches, Dr. Samuel E. Asbury of College Station has copies of famous paintings completely covering the walls and ceilings and doors of his home, even in the bathroom.

Mrs. Joe H. Lewis and Miss Donnie Lee Strooope, Priscilla Home Demonstration club delegates to the annual farm short course, declare their visit to his home was the most novel and interesting experience of their trip to College Station.

Dr. Asbury is a chemistry teacher at A. & M. college and his lived in College Station 35 years. For 25 years he has collected pictures, an average of one a month. He traveled extensively in Europe, and ceased collecting only when all available space for a picture in his home was covered.

Culture of roses is a hobby, and on his grounds Dr. Asbury has 300 varieties and 900 individual specimens. He can give a complete history of each. A trellised rose hedge 25 feet high surrounds his place.

In planting a rose he digs a pit 3 by 3 feet and puts 9 inches of gravel in the bottom. He replaces the soil and sets the plant. The gravel makes a reservoir for moisture. Dr. Asbury exchanges gardening experiences with Dr. Bradford Knapp, Tech president at Lubbock.

He composes music and has four pianos in one room. Each has a tone suitable to a certain type of music, he says.

An ardent admirer of Sam Houston, Dr. Asbury thinks no history has given Houston proper credit for his services to Texas. He is writing a history of Texas, and three years ago when visited by a Priscilla club member he had three or four girls taking dictation, using the pianos as desks.

With so much dramatization of Texas history in this Centennial year, it is interesting to know that Dr. Asbury dramatized it several years ago. In his home he has a miniature theater with the characters dressed in authentic costumes. He enjoys showing them and telling which of his friends made each costume.

The Priscilla delegates say they would have known without hearing it that he is a bachelor, because not many wives would permit a man to indulge such eccentric taste in regard to pictures.

Improved Fair At Amarillo to Open on Sept. 21

AMARILLO, Aug. 15 — With increased cash premium, more exhibit space, better amusement features and added departments, the Tri-State fair will open its fourteenth annual exposition here, Sept. 21.

"Interest in the 1936 exposition has started earlier than ever in the history of the association and there is every indication of a banner year for the Tri-State fair," declared O. L. "Ted" Taylor, secretary-manager.

Gene Howe—"Old Tack"—this year is president of the Tri-State fair.

More than 4,000 catalogs, carrying a list of premiums amounting to approximately $20,000 and all guaranteed for payment in full, have been mailed.

"The Tri-State fair has the money in the bank right now to pay all the premiums offered," said Taylor.

Since the first catalogs were issued there has been a heavy demand for premium lists. Copies may be obtained by writing to the Tri-State fair.

For the first time since 1932 the Tri-State fair this year will have a full poultry department, arranged to meet the insistent demand of fanciers throughout the southwest. Earl Curry of Amarillo will be superintendent of the department.

"To accommodate the ever-increasing crowds that attend the Tri-State fair the association since last year's exposition has spent approximately $35,000 in improvements," explained Mr. Taylor.

The expenditures were made principally to increase exhibit space.

"The new poultry department will have a building of its own—so will the agriculture exhibits, both county and individual," explained Mr. Taylor. "The automobile building has been remodeled entirely, providing more display space for domestic arts, domestic science and other departments."

On the amusement zone this year will be the United Shows of America, which will come direct from the Michigan State fair at Detroit, making a 4,000 railroad jump.

The fall meet of the Tri-State fair races will begin Friday, Sept. 18, at an improved plant. The races will continue throughout fair week.

Trade Is Quiet And Steady for The Past Week

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (AP)—There was little change in the tempo of trade and industry this week, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

In wholesale markets, the Review said today, previous gains were widened, with more orders coming from some of the drought districts. General industrial operations were steady, lower rates in some divisions being counterbalanced by a rising trend in others.

"Even though retail sales were maintained close to the 1931 level," the agency reported, "consumer buying was not so brisk as during the opening week of the month. The dwindling stocks of summer merchandise reduced the usual number of clearance sales, and the acquisition of fall goods was hampered by hot weather.

"Sales of fur garments were reported as double last year's by some retailers, and buying was substantial in winter cloth coats. In furniture, house furnishings and floor coverings, interest continued unabated. School clothing has started to move, and sales of dry goods and groceries increased."

For the country as a whole, the agency estimated retail sales were from 12 to 15 per cent ahead of the 1935 comparative. In the New England states the increase was lowered slightly to 10 to 18 per cent. Buying power in the east was well maintained, the average being 12 to 20 per cent ahead of last year.

CAPITOL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, Aug. 15 (AP)—Jack Chevigny, football coach of the University of Texas, did not use his legal training when hailed into corporation court for overparking. He paid a $2 fine, $1 of which was penalty for not answering the first summons.

R. B. Anderson, state tax commissioner and a former assistant attorney general, took the same course. He paid four fines of $1 each also for overparking.

Gov. Allred kept more than he fished on a recent weekend vacation, which, he said, was a very good way to go fishing.

"We caught some fish," he said, "but the rest was what we needed."

He added that he and Mrs. Allred were delighted to settle down in the mansion after several weeks of campaign activity.

"To get back to the mansion," he said, "was almost a vacation itself."

Vice President Garner broke something of a precedent when he spent a night at the Gubernatorial mansion.

He slept on a sleeping porch instead of the famous Sam Houston bed, because he thought it would be cooler.

Most visitors are put to bed in the big four-poster, originally installed by Houston.

Gov. Allred knows his Longfellow, so to speak.

When John Mobley of Corpus Christi urged the appointment of a friend as judge at Corpus Christi, the governor said:

"Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

Mobley then was tendered the position.

Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo, who dropped out of the legislature two years ago when defeated for the Senate, will return as a member of the House.

Although he had no opponent, he said he conducted "an active campaign."

"I made speeches all over the district with the other candidates," he explained, "and had the time of my life."

Someone figured that Charles A. Tomlinson of Higlands, Harris, county, received a majority of 13,409 per cent greater than the combined vote of three opponents for the position of precinct committeeman.

He received 405 votes! his opponents, three.

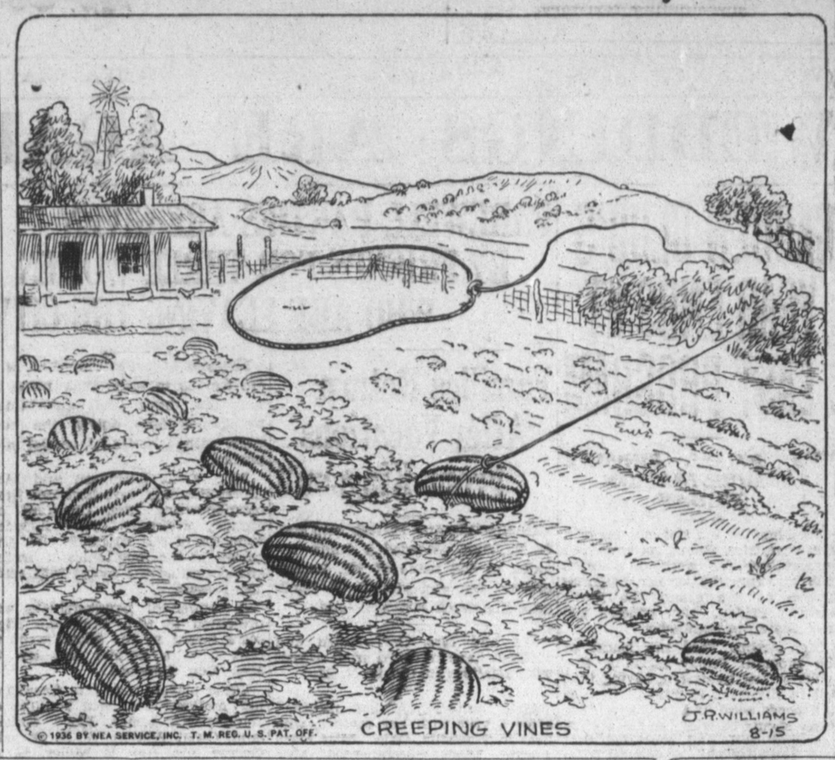

Gov. Allred takes credit for being one of the first to charge that Gov. Landon, Republican candidate for president, several years ago wanted Federal "dictatorship" of the oil industry.

OIL HAS HIKED TAX VALUES IN GRAY COUNTY

State Increase For Past Decade Is Half-Billion

Tax values assessed in forty-six Texas oil producing counties have increased more than a half-billion dollars in the last decade, according to facts just compiled by The Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association of Texas. Assessed valuations of these currenly important oil producing counties for 1935 aggregated $1,176,747,000, compared with a total assessed by these counties in 1925 of $636,777,000, a net goain in valuation for taxing purposes of $539,970,000.

This huge increase is shown by analysis to be attributed almost solely to the discovery of oil fields within these respective counties, which have in the past ten years turned millions of acres of Texas farm and grazing lands into highly valuable mineral leases. Examination of county ad valorem tax rolls for the periods under consideration shows that practically all of the increased values on which were assessed were rendered by Texas oil operators to cover lease and fee mineral interest, equipment located on oil producing properties, and oil pipe lines. This has created substantial increases in county and state revenues, paid by the Texas oil industry, which have made possible the building of many fine, new school houses, county court and other municipal buildings as well as thousands of miles of concrete highways.

Comparative data on tax values reported to the State Comptroller, at Austin, by the leading oil producing counties of Texas reveals some astounding increases over a decade ago. For example, Gregg county shows an increase of $91,001,000; Rusk county, a gain of $81,303,000; Montgomery county, a gain of $55,437,000; Harris county, a gain of $41,934,000; Pecos county, a gain of $38,392,000; Gray county, a gain of $24,578,000; Hutchinson county, a gain of $18,989,000; Wharton county, a gain of $18,876,000; Upshur county, a gain of $17,034,000; Van Zandt county, a gain of $15,280,000; Smith county, a gain of $13,673,000; Fort Bend county, a gain of $10,706,000. Thirty-four other oil producing counties of the state show increases in valuations within this period of from $137,000 to $9,445,000.

In contrast with the substantial increases recorded in taxable valuations of these oil producing counties are facts to show that valuations actually declined in this period in counties which had not as yet been added to the growing list of producers. A majority of the non-oil-producing counties of the state either show decreases in valuations or practically no change from ten years ago. For example Wise county shows a decline of $3,039,000; Parker county, a decline of $2,327,000; Uvalde county, a decline of $2,010,000; Hamilton county, a decline of $1,745,000; Val Verde county, a decline of $1,129,000; Coryell county, a decline of $1,078,000; Titus county, a decline of $942,000; Case county, a decline of $969,000. Some of these and many other Texas counties are being actively developed for oil and are expected to show subsequent appreciation in taxable valuations. It is apparent from these facts that oil has undoubtedly contributed more to the prosperity of Texas than any other single economic force.

MARKET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15. (AP)—A ragged rally was the best the stock market could achieve today as liquidation ebbed.

Gains of fractions to more than a point predominated among the most active issues at the close of a dull session but the list generally made virtually no headway.

The Associated Press average for 60 stocks finished unchanged at 67.9, with a small advance in the utility group offsetting a dip in the rails. Turnover dropped to 366,320 shares, the smallest for a Saturday session since June 27, and compared with 865,270 a week ago.

With latest industrial barometers showing a tendency to taper after the robust mid-summer performance of business, a more cautious attitude pervaded financial quarters. However, the run of financial comment still breathed optimism for the autumn and longer-term outlook.

Copper shares and an assortment of industrial specialties in the business news spotlight were favored on he rallying tendencies.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15. (AP)—Cotton prices see-sawed uncertainly today, finally ending from 3 points to 1 point lower after two hours of active dealings.

The market appeared headed for lower levels at the opening when options slumped around 50 cents a bale at the first call. But a rally ensude and the remainder of the session was a gradua point-by-point recovery to previous closing levels.

Early easiness was attributed to poor cables and bearish advices received from abroad on the Spanish situation.

Closer to the situation on the continent, Liverpool traders have been bearish on world cotton prospects for the past week.

The October position ended at 11.72 today, Dec. 11.76, Jan. at 11.77 and Mar. at 11.85. Compared with a week ago the market loss from 75 cents to a dollar a bale, largely the result of the sharp break on the government's first cotton crop estimate, a bearish development from which the market never entirely recovered this week.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 15. (AP)—Abrupt late advances in wheat markets today resulted largely from reports that Kansas City was purchasing wheat back which recently had been sold to Omaha.

Wheat closed nervous, ½-1¼ cents over yesterday's finish, Sept. 1.11¼-⅜, Dec. 1.10⅞-1.11, May 1.10⅞-1.11, corn ¼-½ advanced, Sept. 1.08-1.08¼, Dec. 95¼-⅜, May 91¼-⅜, oats unchanged to ⅜ higher, Dec. 43⅞, and rye 1¼-1⅞ up. The provisions outcome was 2 cents to 20 cents decline.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 15. (AP)—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Grass cattle trade this week was featured by an increased movement of grass slaughter steers. Around 215 cars of western grass steers went to killeds within a spread of 5.00-6.75. A limited showing of cake and fed grassers turned at 6.75-8.00. Some fat Brahma heifers reached 5.85. A few loads of choice fleshy 900-1,000 lb. feeds realized 7.00-35, and 7.00 was scored on choice stock steer calves. Bulk of stocker and feeder steers ranged from 4.50-6.50, several lots of good to choice 800-1,000 lb. feeders around 6.00-50.

Hog prices are 25-35 higher than last Saturday.

Lambs are 50-75 lower than a week ago. Choice native lambs on the close stopped at 9.25.

BLANKETS FOR P. I. ARMY

MANILA, P. I. (AP)—The bureau of supplies for the new Philippine national army, which goes into training next January 1, has ordered hand-made blankets for the Ilocno natives of the north, famous weavers at $1.38 each.

"TRAIL OF LONESOME PINE" IS NATURAL TO VIEW

Color films, for years the dream of motion pictures, have finally arrived, and the finished product, as demonstrated by the all-technicolored production of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" which plays today through Tuesday at the Rex theater, far surpasses all the claims which ardent publicity men have been making for it.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is in full color, but that bald statement couldn't nearly cover the facts. Color can be vague, or it can be too prominent, but in this film the color has become superbly handled, so intelligently used, that after the first moments of pleasant surprise, the onlooker is not even aware that he is seeing a film. It is so natural, so lifelike, so clear that the illusion of watching an actual scene being enacted before one's eyes is created, and maintained thr ughout the picture.

Sylvia Sidney, Fred MacMurray, Henry Fonda and the balance of the well-chosen cast bring the immortal characters to life, and one feels all the intensity of the primitive passions and emotions which are the heritage of the simple mountain folk. The work of little four-year-old Spanky McFarland deserves special mention. This little fellow has been intrusted with an extremely important role, as Buddie, the youngest of the Tolliver clan, and he delivers a setrling performance.

BROWN COMEDY IS FEATURE IN LA NORA FILM

SUPER-SALESMAN ROLE PROVIDES COMIC ANTICS

Never has Joe E. Brown been funnier personally than in his latest picture, "Earthworm Tractor," which shows at the LaNora theater today through Wednesday. Nor has he ever had a more hilarious story in which to display his comic antics than in this picture which is taken from the series of comedy stories written for the Saturday Evening Post by William Hazlett Upson.

Probably no other comedian of stage or screen could have come so close to being the personification of Alexander Botts, natural born super-salesman, in his own mind, whose luck is so phenomenal that even his consistent and collossal blunders turn out to his advantage.

Joe E. makes Alexander Botts, one of the most comical heroes of fiction, live and breath on the screen as Joe has lost none of his vim and pep as the greatest fun maker of the time.

Joe E.'s two leading women merit special comment. They are June Travis and Carol Hughes, both of the brunette beauty type. The latter ditches him and marries his rival the minute Joe leaves town, much to her regret when Joe eventually makes good, while her husband turns out to be just a false alarm. The former also turns up her nose at Joe when she hears of the first love episode. But Joe finally gets his gal through another series of hilarious blunders.

There is a talented supporting cast with Guy Kibbee giving a hilarious performance as a cantankerous and partially deaf old man to whom Joe tries for long in vain to sell tractors.

PARISIAN DESIGNS A FROG-FIGURED BELT

PARIS (AP)— For those who like animals a Paris designer has created a green suede belt which ends in a large pond lily leaf of green suede. eCntered on the leaf in an attitude of watchful waiting is a green jade frog.

Joe E. Brown's Latest at LaNora

Joe E. Brown is up to his favorite trick of blundering through hilariously to fortune and girl in his latest comedy, Earthworn Tractors, at LaNora theater the first of this week. His role as self-styled super-salesman is one of his funniest.

LOCAL THEATER PROGRAMS

LANORA.

Sunday thru Tuesday—eeeeooww!—enough said—Joe E. Brown as Saturday Evening Post's super-salesman, Alexander Botts, in "Earthworm Tractors." He is assisted in his laugh-a-minute salesman tactics by Guy Kibbee and June Travis.

For Wednesday and Thursday the title for a spirited Hollywood and finishing school picture is "3 Cheers For Love." This youth-comedy entertainment features Eleanore Whitney, Robert Cummings and William Frawley.

Friday and Saturday boasts a combination sta e and screen show. On the screen Lyle Talbot and (Headliner) Mary Astor, star in "Trapped by Television" which is as startling as its title indicates. On the stage for a two-day stand is Ida Cox and her "Darktown Scandals." This 33-people colored stage show boasts a stage band among singing, dancing and the latest gags.

NO MORE BLUSHING BRIDES

LEXINGTON, Ky, Aug. 15, (AP)—Blushing bridegrooms, says Miss Gertrude Flora, deputy county clerk, are now more numerous in her experience than blushing brides. There was a time, she says, when brides were bashful and backward as they applied for marriage licenses; but now they are calm and collected while prospective husbands get the jitters.

DUSKY REVUE IS COMING TO LA NORA STAGE

MUSIC AND RHYTHM TO ENTERTAIN NEXT WEEK

Featuring Ida Cox, dusky "Mae West of Harlem," the all-colored revue "Darktown Scandals" comes to Pampa at the La Nora Friday and Saturday of this week. The cast of the black and tan moves rapidly.

Billed at the top of the 35 chocolate entertainers, Ida Cox, blues singer, appears as "queen of Harlem." Those who find hot piano rhythm more to their liking, will enjoy Ned Stanford who tickles the ivories to the beat of swing rhythms.

In the same program the "Dixiana Troubador" sextette lend all of their colored charm to southern melodies as well as the latest in modern songs.

To the tune of the Cotton Pickers orchestra the "Boogy-Woogy" dancers will boogy-woogy for the audience. The melodies of the Cotton Pickers orchestra are rated highly, as they have turned out many Victor records.

Singing, laughing, dancing, the cast of the black and tan review presents a good show, according to press notices from the larger cities where the show has completed successful engagements.

Featured on the screen is the exciting "Trapped by Television" starring Mary Aster and Lyle Talbot.

FREE-FOR-ALL

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A softball game between the girls' teams of two industrial plants ended in a free-for-all.

City Judge R. A. Mynatt imposed suspended fines on three of the 20 girls brought before him, and then delivered this opinion on baseball for women:

"It's a shame for young ladies like you to fight. You've got no business playing baseball. You ought to go home after work. The men who acquisce it are the ones who ought to be fined."

TEXANS FAVOR SOIL PLAN TO RESTORE RANGE

Cattle Raisers of State Visit in Washington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Representatives of Texas livestock men informed Agricultural Adjustment administration officials today they would disapprove any operation of the soil conservation act which would restrict livestock production.

The representatives said they favored instead a soil conservation program for the livestock industry which would be based on a plan to restore depleted grazing lands.

Jim Taylor, Amarillo, president of the Panhandle Cattle Raisers association, said the proposal was the most significant one of several the Texans suggested to the administration.

The delegation and AAA officials declined to discuss the proposals in detail, saying they preferred to await conferences with representatives of other livestock producing sections so that general proposals might be obtained first.

H. F. McGill, Alice, said the Texans suggestions for operations of the soil conservation act as it applied to range were given as advisory opinions only.

"Texas is a small part of the program, McGill said, "and our ideas might not be important for the "whole program."

Taylor said administration of the act could be started within two weeks after the AAA discusses the program with other livestock areas.

The Panhandle cattleman also said Secretary Wallace "sympathetically received" a protest of the group yesterday against increased cotton seed cake prices.

The delegation had charged the concentrated feed industry had "taken advantage of the drouth" to charge excessive prices. Taylor said Wallace, although he did not promise the delegation he would investigate the industry, told him he would review the Texans complaint to determine if excessive prices were being charged.

Through a transmission error yesterday it was reported that spokesmen for Texas livestock interests, in asking Secretary Wallace to investigate the cotton seed cake industry, charged that prices for livestock feed concentrates had increased more than $100 a ton since the drought began to sear the range lands in Texas and other states. The story should have read more than $10 (ten) a ton.
