

Midwest Promised A Break In Heat Wave

Cooling Air Is Moving In From N'west

High Temperatures Continue In Other Portions Of Nation

APPROXIMATELY 700 DEATHS REPORTED

Federal Aid Program For Drought Sufferers Is Pushed Onward

CHICAGO, July 11. (AP)—From the northern Pacific's great refrigeration plant, a mass of cooling air at last was moving eastward to-night to rout the nine days old heat wave.

Millions of sun-baked farms of the drought stricken of the north central states and towns of the north central states were cheered by the statement of Forecaster J. R. Lloyd.

"Definite indications of a break up in the heat in the northwest are seen."

"A new mass of cool air from the Northern Pacific is moving over the North Rocky Mountain region—Idaho, Montana and Wyoming, causing showers and cooler weather in that section."

700 Fatalities

A few hours later the Chicago weather office said the cooling temperatures had reached western Idaho and as far south as Western Colorado.

But heat and drought continued their ravages over the remainder of the west, the north and southern parts of the country.

Upwards of 700 deaths were reported as the mercury reached the 100-degree line from North Dakota to the eastern seaboard.

Illinois fatalities for eight consecutive days of tropical weather were 104. The temperature at Danville equaled the all time record there of 111. Michigan's deaths from heat and drought touched 100 as the mercury reached that mark again in Detroit. Missouri burned in its eighth day of 100 degrees, so did Kansas. New York's mortalities mounted toward 70 with conditions alleviated in the perishing metropolis by the half holiday for thousands of office workers.

Wheat Prices Break

The prospective death for the torrid wave electrified the domestic grain markets. A downpour of selling orders flooded the Chicago pits and wheat broke the five cent limit. Corn, its critical period of maturing now at dead center, dived and swooped even more erratically. After fluctuating through a range of seven cents a bushel, it finally closed 1-4 to two cents down. September delivery was $2 1-2 cents a bushel at the close of one of the wildest Saturday short sessions in months. Its net gain during a week of punishing heat for the nation's crop was 11 cents. July and September wheat closed at $1.04 1-2.

The hint of an answer to their supplications for rain was most important.

Crop Outlook In U. S. Poor

Adequate Food Supply For Domestic Demands Is Seen, However

WASHINGTON, July 11. (AP)—Despite poor crop prospects, some government officials expressed the opinion today that supplies of food for men and animals will be ample to meet domestic demands if the drought does not cause new and extensive havoc.

The official forecast of crops based on July 1 conditions, said yesterday that prospects were poorer than on any July 1 except 1934, the great drought year.

The report, issued by the crop reporting board, said indicated production of wheat was 638,399,000 bushels, an increase of nearly 15,000,000 over the amount actually harvested in 1935, but comparing with the 1935-36 average of 688,864,000. Corn prospects were placed at 2,314,834,000 bushels, a slight decrease from the 2,291,629,000 harvested last year. The 1935-36 average was 2,553,424,000.

From George A. Collier of the bureau of agricultural economics, came this comment:

"In view of fears expressed for 1934 production, the forecast is very encouraging and suggests there will be ample food and feed supplies if the figures are not drastically out of August."

Other officials noted that the July 1 report did not take in the drought damage of the past ten days, and in view of that they called the report "conservative."

MAN BROUGHT INTO COURT FOR FIXING TRAPS TO CATCH HANDS OF YOUNGSTERS ANNOYING HIM

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11. (AP)—Shopkeeper Hyman Gorwitz pleaded innocent today to setting big steel-jawed traps to catch the hands of little children who assiduously annoyed him.

Two housewives testified Gorwitz, 56, concealed the dangerous instruments under thin layers of dirt in his back yard and baited them with shiny pieces of metal resembling dimes.

The traps were "strong enough to hold a wolf," said Assistant District Attorney Terence Boyle.

Municipal Judge Daniel S. O'Brien called the traps "the most vicious" ever brought in to this court. He raised Gorwitz's bond from $500 to $2,500 and sent him off to jail pending the posting of security for release until his trial July 15.

Gorwitz was charged with assault with force to produce great bodily harm. Upon conviction the maximum penalty is ten years in prison, a $5,000 fine or both.

The storekeeper, who operates a small place in a residential district, complained of "vandalism" by children.

Abraham Glickberg, attorney for the accused man, said Gorwitz had planned an out-of-town trip and because of past troubles had set the traps to protect his property.

"Gangs of kids," Gorwitz said, had made repeated raids on his property and "stole everything they could carry away."

"I made complaints to the police," he added, "but the vandals continued. I then set the traps, but they were not open."

Mrs. Blanche Orton, one of the arraignment witnesses, testified Gorwitz set the traps, waved a hatchet at her and shouted:

"I'll kill those kids! I'll get them if they come into this yard."

Mrs. Orton said the "kids" referred to were her children, Betty, 6, and Geraldine, 4.

Bette Davis And George Brent In Comedy Romance At Ritz

New Type Role For Star In 'The Golden Arrow'

Departing from the sinister characterizations which won her fame and a Motion Picture Academy award, the talented Bette Davis essays a light comedy role in her new picture, "The Golden Arrow," featured at the Ritz Sunday and Monday. In it she appears as a charming young American girl who yearns for romance.

George Brent has the role opposite her in this story of love in high society, set in a background of luxurious yachts and resort hotels. Miss Davis plays the part of a girl who is reputed to be fabulously wealthy and who is surrounded by fortune hunters of high and low degree. Sick of their attentions, she persuades a shy young reporter to marry her, on the presumption it is to be a marriage of convenience, in order to protect her from the fortune hunters. Really in love with the reporter, she tries to win his affections, only to find that pride and a hatred of wealth on his part keep them separated.

She resorts to flitting to gain his attention; but this merely enables her rival, a rich oil heiress, to ensnare her husband. Complications pile up to a riotous climax when the young reporter discovers that his bride, although she had wealth at her command, has no

REALTY GROUP WILL PROTEST FIXING OF SCHOOL PER-CAPITA

PORT WORTH, July 11 (AP).—In a joint meeting of directors for the Texas Association of Real Estate Boards and the Texas Property Owners' association here yesterday it was decided to send a delegation to Austin Monday to protest anticipated action of the state board of education in setting the per capita apportionment for the schools.

The joint delegation will ask the school board to defer such action until after the state automatic tax board convenes, J. C. Mytinger, Wichita Falls, chairman of the State Real Estate board, announced.

"It appears that a surplus of about $4,000,000 will have accumulated in the available school fund over and above the per capita apportionment of the $17.50 at the end of this year," Mytinger said. "We will ask that whatever surplus there is be carried over for next year in order that another reduction in taxes may be possible."

Comedian To Be Seen In
New Laugh-Hit Sunday,
Monday, Tuesday

Most recent of a series of fine comedies by one of the screen's master laugh-makers, W. C. Fields is the picture, "Poppy" which is the featured attraction at the Queen for three days beginning Sunday. It was the last picture Fields made before his recent serious illness.

In it, Fields plays as a carnival "grifter," a jovial rascal and fraud who plays his profession according to his ancient and honorable rules, but also shows his kind heart in playing Cupid to couples in love. Chief members of the supporting cast are Rochelle Hudson and Richard Cromwell, who furnish the romantic interest, and Lynne Overman, a ranking comedian in his own right.

With the carnival background Fields is given opportunity to show his talents as juggler, magician and general trickster, exhibiting many of the famous tricks that made him an outstanding stage attraction before he went into movies. "Poppy" also follows a humor plot development that will be entertaining to Fields followers.

Famed Prison Drama Plays At The Lyric

Return Showing Of 'The Big House' Headlines
Current Program

A screen revival of one of the most impressive pictures of its type ever produced in Hollywood brings "The Big House," famed prison drama, to the Lyric theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

"As many theater-goers will recall, "The Big House" depicts with stark realism life on the inside of a great prison and how the routine and the contacts there affect the men sentenced to serve behind the walls.

The experiences of such men are contrasted with home life and a love of romance in the Frances Marion story. There is a great prison riot, with a thousand men quelled by machine guns and army tanks; there is a pathetic story of the friendship of two convicts and the regeneration of one by love and the startling spectacle of a youthful first offender thrown into the company of hardened criminals until he becomes worse even than they.

Three Male Stars
Chester Morris, Wallace Beery and Robert Montgomery play the central male roles as three inmates about whom the riot, hate and ferment revolves. Beery enacts a gangster slayer, vicious, yet with a sardonic humor; Morris is busy as a forger and crook who eventually finds an honorable life in the turmoil, and Montgomery plays as the young man sentenced to prison for the first time.

Splendid characterizations by these and other members of the cast, and the realistic prison scenes have combined to make "The Big House" one of Hollywood's most important productions of former years. The most effective scenes are in the prison yard, in a replica of a complete prison, as a thousand convicts scatter to cover under withering machine gun fire, and riot in the mess hall.

Leila Hyams plays the heroine of the film, and Lewis Stone is seen as the prison warden. Others in the cast are Claire McDowell and J. C. Nugent, De Witt Jennings, George Marion, Karl Dane, Matthew Betz, Robert Emmett O'Connor, Tom Wilson and Roscoe Ates.

Former Pro Chief Claimed By Death

FORT WORTH, July 11. (UP)—Andrew McCampbell, 64, former chief of the nation's prohibition law enforcement, died here late Friday of a leg infection.

McCampbell spent 44 years as a government employee, starting in 1889 as a mail carrier in Fort Worth. He became in turn deputy U. S. marshal, deputy internal revenue collector, general prohibition agent for the Southwest, and chief prohibition officer. The latter post he held in 1929, after which he became director of prohibition enforcement in New York state and Porto Rico.

He returned to Fort Worth three years ago and became seriously ill six months ago.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., June 11. (AP)—How to make a typewriter space to produce an even margin on the right-hand side of the sheet has puzzled inventors for years. A young Russian immigrant here says he has solved the problem.

By flipping a little lever on the side on his machine, Sergei M. Toman now turns out neat columns of typewritten copy resembling those of a newspaper or magazine. Gone are the ragged, irregular line endings.

Toman developed his device under a grant from the Stanford University Press, whose executives see this demonstration of the new automatic spacing device for typewriters is made for The Associated Press by its inventor, Sergei M. Toman. The top specimen exhibits the ragged right-hand margin of ordinary typewriting, while the lower one shows how Mr. Toman's device evens it up.

Simple, He Says
How far the spacer will get in America's vast volume of business correspondence, Stanford Press executives say, will depend on how much importance business men attach to having their letters look like a printed page.

"The principle of the thing was simple," Toman says, "and I had to build only about five models before getting this present one, which works."

Production of evenly aligned typewriting involves a double process. The original draft is made on graph paper, which shows at a

"Sacrament" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, July 12.

The Golden Text is: "To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased" (Hebrews 13:16).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne" (Revelation 3:21).

The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Waking to Christ's demand, mortals experience suffering. This causes them, even as drowning men, to make vigorous efforts to save themselves; and through Christ's precious love these efforts

PAIR INDICTED IN SLAYING OF TEXAN

CENTER, July 11. (AP)—Ashburn-haired Mrs. Reable Childs, 24, and Terrence Bramlett, former COO enrollee, were under indictment today on charge of murder of her husband, Marlie Childs, former Shelby county treasurer.

Shortly after a Shelby county grand jury returned the true bill yesterday, District Attorney Ward law Lane said he would seek prompt trial, probably in this term of court. Defense counsel indicated they would ask a change of venue.

Childs, a semi-invalid, was shot to death in the bathroom of his home last April. The bullet came through a window from outside the house.

Dan Hines, ranger who assisted local officers in the investigation, said Mrs. Childs admitted in a statement to him that she had had a romance with Bramlett, whom she met at a camp near here.

Bramlett and Mrs. Childs are in the Jefferson county jail at Beaumont. Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Martin and daughter departed Saturday night for Houston and other cities in South Texas.

Rail Safety Is Shown In ICC's Report

Not One Passenger Killed
On Train In The U. S.
During 1935

CHICAGO, July 11.—Want to live past 70? Get aboard a railroad train and never get off.

The interstate commerce commission reports that not one passenger was killed in 1935 by derailment or collision of a railway train in the United States. "They used to say bed was the only safe place in the world," commented H. G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway executives, as he examined the report. "It's not so any longer. You are safer on a train than in your own home."

The railroads carried 445,995,000 revenue passengers last year. Constant efforts to foresee and forestall accidents culminated in a perfect record for 1935—the year when accidents in the factory, the office, home, highway and beach cost the shocking total of 100,000 American lives.

Eleven persons were killed every hour of 1935 by accidents—but railroad passengers were not among them.

Perseverant Program

"It is appalling to be told that last year's accidental deaths were enough to wipe out the city of Duluth," said Taylor. "That is twice the death toll of our soldiers in the world war! And it is amazing that 21,500 persons were fatally hurt in their own homes—more than 30 percent of the total. Burns, falls from ladders, chairs, windows, escaping gas and firearms keep taking their toll every year. I am proud of our record on the railroads, for it has meant a persistent program of education and expenditure for safer equipment."

He also pointed out that for seven years a western line has won the national safety trophy.

Safety is even more important today as the pace of the railroad quickens. Streamliners, incredibly swift, bring Denver to Chicago's doorstep, draw the Pacific close enough to touch fingers with the Mississippi, yet without increasing the hazard to human life. For safety came before speed.

They built trains lighter, but sturdier steel alloys, and with lower center of gravity. They smoothed out kinks and bumps in the track that were imperceptible at 80 miles an hour but might have swayed a streamliner at 100. They doubled the braking power, took out the jarring slack between cars. Automatic train controls halt the train if the engineer misses the warning signal. Electric rail detectors patrol the right-of-way, discovering any hidden flaw in the rails. "Eighteen billion passenger miles in one year without a fatality in collision or derailment is something to boast off," observed Taylor.

Inquiry Started Into Balloon Crash

ANADARKO, Okla., July 11 (UP).—An army board of investigation today inquired into the explosion and burning of a training balloon near here yesterday in which two men were killed and two injured.

The balloon crew, on a routine training flight from Fort Sill, were nearly through with the day's flight when the big bag, swinging along near the ground, dipped into a clump of trees and exploded. The balloon was low when it passed over Anadarko, and ballast was tossed overboard to keep it up.

Ralph Rumpel, 46, master sergeant whose home was in Milwaukee, and Sgt. Douglas Tucker lost their lives. Sgt. Joseph Murray, the pilot, was badly burned but is expected to recover. Capt. Frederick D. Lynch suffered slight injuries.

Elmer Church, farmer, saw the explosion and with his father rushed through the underbrush to the scene. He said the clothing of two of the men was in flames. He cut the garments from one man, he said, but the other, Sergeant Rumpel, was beyond aid.

MUNICIPAL POWER PROJECT DEFEATED IN GAINESVILLE VOTE

GAINESVILLE, Texas, July 11 (UP).—Gainesville counted votes today from a municipal election and found that for the second time in three years a proposed bond issue for construction of a municipal light plant had been defeated.

The majority was 214 votes against the bond issue of $418,000. In July, 1934, a similar proposal for a $19,000 bond issue was defeated by 126 votes.

Congressman W. D. McFarlane of Graham campaigned actively in behalf of the bond issue, which was sponsored by four members of the city council.

FOUR ADMIT PART IN HOLDUP SLAYING

SAN ANTONIO, July 11 (AP).—The holdup killing of George Forbes, public service company bus driver, last May 14, was taken off the police "unsolved cases" list today after three men and a juvenile had admitted their parts in the holdup, one saying that he fired the shot that killed the driver.

Following their arrest by detectives and county juvenile officer, the four calmly munched pie as they told the story of robbery and murder to Detective Sergeant P. R. Haller.

One of the four, a 20-year-old peacan sheller, admitted that he fired the fatal shot. He said he shot Forbes because he thought the driver was reaching for a pistol. The handits did not obtain any money in the robbery which occurred after two of the four had clambered aboard the vehicle and demanded money.

Decline In Birth Rate Means More Talented Children, Scientist Thinks

CHICAGO, July 11. (UP).—America's declining birth rate indicates that more and more Shirley Temples will be starred in the movies of the future, Prof. William F. Ogburn, University of Chicago sociologist, believes.

Children will become objects of greater care, attention and "value" as the birth rate decreases, the sociologist predicted.

The increasing proportion of older people in the population will mean more votes for the conservative party, he said.

Present figures indicate the population of the United States will reach a stationary figure of 150,000,000 to 155,000,000 in 25 years and thereafter may decline, Dr. Ogburn said.

He attributed an increase in the birth rate in the past two years to marriages which had been postponed by the depression.

The automobile and the telephone are breaking up cities "by centrifugal force," he said, with suburban areas benefiting by the continued trend of population away from farms.

Ogburn forecast an increasing volume of propaganda until "it will be difficult to get away from people trying to sell you something, either goods or opinions." A tremendous rise in nationalism, coupled with propaganda, he said, will make for intolerance.

He warned that the whole complex may endanger personal liberty, the defense of which "should be a major concern of the American people."

KILLS WOMAN THEN TAKES OWN LIFE

HOUSTON, July 11 (UP).—James Aldon, 52, rooming house owner, shot Mrs. Theo. McNeen, manager, to death here today and then wounded himself fatally.

Justice of the Peace J. M. Ras conducted an investigation, but did not announce a verdict.

Mrs. McNeen was shot once in the chest and three times in the abdomen. She died almost instantly after the final shot. Aldon lay on the floor, a bullet wound in the head, and the woman's body was on a bed when officers arrived.

Railroad Week Proclaimed By Mayor; Local Observance Of Occasion Asked

Official recognition of "Railroad Week," July 13-18 inclusive, as a period set aside for the celebration of progress made by western railroads during the past year, was taken Saturday in a proclamation issued by Mayor C. E. Talbot.

The mayor issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, the growth and advantages enjoyed by this community have been largely augmented by the Texas & Pacific railroad, which has made it possible to reach our markets with our products and ware, and which has supplied our needs from other sources and furnished passenger transportation to our citizens; and

"Whereas, the Texas & Pacific railroad, with its tremendous investment in shops and other division point facilities represents one of the major industries in Big Spring, providing employment for the heads of hundreds of our families; and

"Whereas, this railroad increases property values, pay taxes and provides gainful employment; and

"Whereas, this railroad has built up a remarkable record of safe transportation, and in co-operation with other western railroads has expended large sums in modernizing passenger equipment, including the air-conditioning of principal trains, and has reduced fares, working ever toward the maintenance of both local and national prosperity; and

"Whereas, the executives of other western communities, both state and municipal, have asked public recognition of the part played by western railroads of America in our wealth and welfare.

"Now therefore I, C. E. Talbot, as mayor of the City of Big Spring, Texas, do hereby call upon the citizens of this municipality to take note of Railroad Week, July 13-18, inclusive, and to join in the observance of that event."

Big Spring's interest in Railroad Week lies principally in recognizing the Texas & Pacific as the largest single industry in the city. With its million-dollar shops here, the T&P has made this city its largest division point with the single exception of Fort Worth. The railroad is by far the largest taxpayer in Big Spring and Howard county, having contributed more than a quarter-million dollars to governmental units in the past 20 years.

The railroad also maintains the largest payroll in Big Spring, with approximately 750 persons spending their full time in the employ of the T&P here, or spending a part of their earnings during lay-overs at this division point. The total includes those in the division offices, in the vast shops, the trainmen and engineers, yardmen and others.

Recent increased business on the line and addition of new freight schedules has greatly augmented the local T&P payroll. The number of persons employed at present is near the all-time peak.

Traffic signposts at Graz, Austria, emblazoned with the Austrian colors, red and white, and the Heimwehr insignia are the latest political advertising venture here.

Traffic School Closed

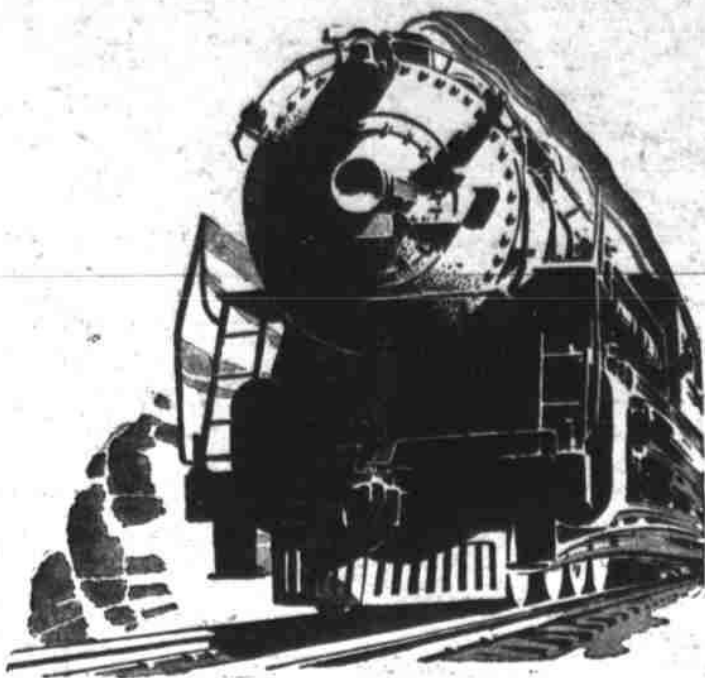

HONOLULU (UP)—Honolulu is still plagued with traffic accidents, but the city's school for traffic violators, reportedly successful on the mainland, has been closed for lack of students. Judges declined to sentence violators to the classes.

'Hot Train' Made Thing Of The Past

Air Conditioning Major Attraction Of The Western Roads

CHICAGO, July 11.—The long hot reaches of the Western desert country no longer bring perspiration to the traveler's brow. The railroads have solved the problem of summer travel in the desert country—air-conditioning.

This year air-conditioning will be one of the primary factors in an increase in western vacation travel. These statements were made by Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, which is completing plans for the annual celebration of "Railroad Week" to be held this year from July 13th to 18th, inclusive.

In making his statement, Taylor pointed out that the Western railroads have $27,000,000 invested in air-conditioning equipment of all classes. He said: "We have a tremendous investment in air-conditioned cars, but we feel that our investment will justify itself in increased travel."

Taylor's report showed an increase of nearly 50 per cent in the number of air-conditioned cars now in service. For 1935 the railroads and the Pullman company operated 2,500 cars, representing an investment of $19,000,000 on the Western railroads. At the present time there are 3,669 cars of all classes being operated as air-conditioned units in the western territory. This means, according to Taylor, that the "hot train" has virtually been eliminated from first class travel. He said: "Travelers no longer need fear the excessive heat of a cross-country train ride. The air-conditioned cars make the trip with less than a two per cent variation in cool temperature. And more hay fever and asthma sufferers can be assured a safe haven on the sealed, air-conditioned cars. For the pollen of the goldenrod, the ragweed and the rose are all taken out of the air that is filtered and purified before being released in the cars."

'Brass Pounders' To Stage Pow-Wow During Rail Week

CHICAGO, July 11.—"It's always fair weather when old brass pounders get together." And get together they will, "spiritually at least—scores of old time "brass pounders" or telegraph operators from the midland to the Pacific coast on Wednesday, July 15th in a giant Railroad Week "pow-wow."

On that day veteran tappers of the Western railroads and telegraph companies, many of whom have since risen to lofty positions in the business and industrial world, will exchange greetings via the tingling wires over a circuit covering thousands of miles and bringing hundreds of cities and towns in closer touch with each other. The unique affair will be termed the "Dot-and-Dash Pow-wow," and will be a feature of the program of Railroad Week, to be celebrated over a vast section of the nation under the auspices of the Western railroads from July 13 to 18th, inclusive.

Active operators, located hundreds of miles apart, who have "known" each other many years without ever meeting "know" each other well enough to be able to pick that individual sending touch out of a million—will further cement old friendships while the Pow-wow circuit is open.

Business executives who long ago dropped the operator's key for other duties which led to power and prosperity, will refuse to admit they have grown rusty and endeavor to prove their "telegrapher fists" are still in perfect pounding order.

Road's Importance To Big Spring Recognized During Special Week

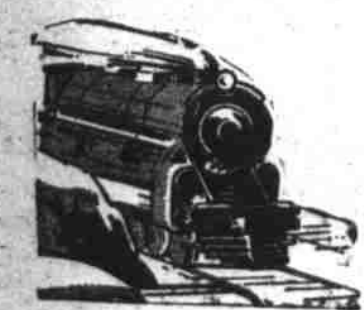

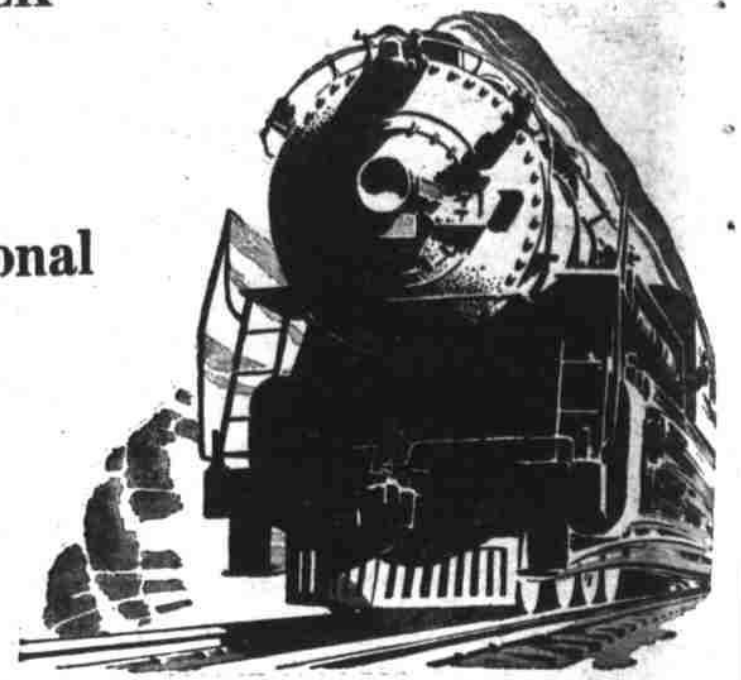

As the Western railroads, counting 750,000 persons among their own employees and affiliated industries, observe their second annual Railroad Week Monday through Saturday, Big Spring, through her interest in the Texas & Pacific railroad, will take note of the occasion.

Little formality is slated in observance of the week here, but attention of the public is directed to the railroads' services, the improvements they have made in the last year, and the big investments and payrolls they represent.

Garland W. Woodward, local attorney, has been named chairman of the local Railroad Week program. The week will be marked by the visit here Thursday of two high officials of the T&P—R. S. Shapard, general solicitor for the road, and O. F. Ellington, general claim agent. The two Dallas men will make talks at the noonday luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club Thursday.

JESSE OWENS WINS 100 METER DASH IN OLYMPIC TRYOUTS

Bees Defeat Savages 14 To 8 For Second Victory In Junior Softball League

SPRINT ACE CINCH FOR TRACK TEAM

RANDALL ISLAND, New York, July 11.—Jesse Owens, Ohio State's triple threat star, today won the 100-meter dash to clinch a place on the United States Olympic team along with Ralph and Frank Wykoff, who came in second and third respectively in the only final event of the day.

Most of the final events will be run off Sunday. Owens' time of 10.4 was comparatively good considering weather conditions. Finishing behind Marquette's Metcalfe and California's Wykoff, who, incidentally, is on the American team for the third time, finished ahead of Foy Draper, a Fort Worth boy attending Southern University, Marty Glickman of New York, Sam Stoller of USC, and Mack Robinson of Pasadena, Calif.

Wykoff qualified for the final run by defeating Harvey Wallender of Texas university and Eddie Mason of New York in a special event. Both Owens and Metcalfe were winners in their respective preliminary heats.

In final qualifying heats, Forrest "Spec" Towns of Georgia raced to a blanket finish victory in the 110-meter high hurdles, noting out the Dakota negro star, Fritz Pollard, in one heat while Bill Staley of Millrose beat out Sam Allen and Al Mareau in the other.

In the two 400-meter heats, Archie Williams, California university, and Jimmy LaValle of UCLA were the winners.

Williams won by outtracing Al Fitch, USC, and Bob Young, both of USC, while LaValle came in ahead of Hal Smallwood, Millrose, and Harold Cagle, Oklahoma Baptist.

LaValle had the best time, 47.3. In the two heats of the 800-meter run, Johnny Woodruff, Abe Rosen- crane, Ben Eastman, Ross Bush, Chuck Hornbostel, and Harry Williamson earned places in the final, to be run Sunday.

Negro Speedster Woodruff, Pittsburgh negro, was the winner in his event while Bush, Southern California flash, beat off the challenge of Hornbostel to win in his heat.

Neither the 3,000-meter steeple-chase nor the 1,500-meter run took

Polls Open For Football Fans To Pick College All-Star Line-Up

In this issue of The Herald is the first ballot form for fans to select the All-Star College players who will meet the professional champions, the Detroit Lions, under the lights in Chicago on September 1. The game, played for charity, will be the first in history in which the fans selected the starting lineup for a game. Under the rules of the voting, the coaches must start the eleven players getting the most votes.

Later in the fall, a part of the All-Stars will team with others of the squad to meet a professional team as a feature of the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas. For years the sports scribes and fans of the southwest have been clamoring for the football stars of this section to be recognized over the nation. In recent years this recognition has been given the brand of football played in this section. The selection of the College All-Stars for this game is expected to see players of this section come in for more recognition than in the past.

Fans are invited to aid in the player selection. A list of players eligible for the game may be secured at The Herald sports desk. The ballot should be sent to All-Star Football Editor, care Daily Herald. Results will be telegraphed daily to the Chicago American, sponsors of the All-Star game.

Two weeks will be devoted to the players' poll. You are invited to name your idea of the eleven strongest players who can be recruited from last year's senior crop. Only men who completed their third period of collegiate eligibility last fall are eligible.

As soon as the players' poll is concluded the fans will be asked to name a staff of four coaches to lead the college squad.

In the women's swimming events, Eleanor Holm Jarrett, former American champion, qualified for Sunday's finals by winning one heat in the 100-meter back stroke along with Marjorie Smith of Chicago.

Katherine Rawls also won, placing first in a driving stretch victory in the 100-meter free style.

OILERS TREK TO AMHERST

Local Team To Go Against Panhandle Champions

(BY HANK HART)

Horace Wallin, leading hitter of the Big Spring Oilers, may get a chance to widen his batting lead today as Skipper Henninger takes his aggregation far into northwest Texas for a game with the Amherst Independents, uncrowned champions of the Panhandle.

Going to bat 70 times, Wallin has a total of 24 base hits and has scored 15 runs. He is second to "Mileaway" Baker in total number of base hits, the Couden mitter having 25 for the season.

The lumbering Baker is the only Big Spring hitter besides Wallin and Payne to come in with an average above .300. At the present he is hitting at a .309 clip.

Leader in runs scored is Center Fielder Miller Harris who, although batting only .231, has scored 22 runs during the season.

Besides coming up with the second best batting average, Pap Payne will attempt to add more laurels to his lead as a pitcher when he starts out against the Amherst hitters. Payne has scored seven victories to date and has come up on the short end of the score only twice.

In 50 innings the veteran has given up seven bases on balls, has struck out 42, and has given up 21 runs and 33 hits.

Supporting Payne in the infield will be Wallin at first, "Raspurin" Spikes at second, "Speedy" Moffett at short, Jake Morgan at third, and Pepper Martin, Miller Harris, and "Skeets" West in left, center and right field, respectively.

"Lefty" Hambright, late of the Odessa Bronco, is slated to do the pitching for the Amherst team.

LORRAINE LOSES TO BULLDOGS

COAHOMA, July 11.—Hitting Harvey Munns in the early innings, the Coahoma Bulldogs played steady ball in the pinches here Saturday to defeat Lorraine, 7-2, behind the five-hit pitching of Bib Hardy.

The Coahomans earned all their runs despite the fact that the visitors made two errors.

The Bulldogs are scheduled to play the Stanton Buffaloes today on the latter's home diamond.

Mrs. Mary Delbridge Friday returned from a trip of inspection through the northern end of the WPA district. Mrs. Delbridge is district supervisor of women's work.

Freezers Win Friday Game

Frost Team Piles Up Big Advantage In First Two Frames

Ben Daniels' Devils came to life after dropping a case of early inning jitters to make a real battle out of their Friday night affair but the Frost Freezers had piled up too much of an advantage in the first two frames and the Soda Skeets won out, 8-4.

Smitty Smith gave up only three hits to the Devils, while George Choate and his mates were getting to little Bobby Savage for a total of seven, but Smith's wildness nearly led to his downfall. He gave five walks.

A. Bostick, Savage and Martin recorded the Devils' hits.

Ward Hall's two singles, were good enough to take timber honors for the evening.

NEW YORK, July 11. (AP)—The batting races in both major leagues underwent a major upheaval this week, with only the American loop leader, Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, retaining his position among the first ten hitters in each circuit.

For the second straight week, the National league had a new leader, as Paul (Big Poison) Waner of the Pirates belted the ball at a near .500 clip.

ESTES OF Irish leads Permian Basin league batters with a percentage of .469. In club batting Texon tops the list with a percentage of .330, and Wink leads in club fielding with a .947 percentage. The three leading pitchers are Thornberry of Orona, Paige of Iran and Lybrand of Wink.

PERRY WINKLE, San Antonio sports writer, carried this in his "Bettin' Around Texas Diamonds" column: "Same old story—with a different date on the calendar. Big Spring Couden Oilers wallop San Angelo Sheep-Herders, 14 to 5, annual Fourth of July ball game at Big Spring. The last time the Sheep Herders dropped the game by a wider margin. First thing you know, Blondy Cross will have a heart attack, as the Sheep-Herders might win any day now."

JACK CHEVIGNY, University of Texas grid coach, will have a good reason to have the "quiver" this fall. The Longhorns face their greatest schedule with poor prospects. They have Louisiana State, Baylor, S. M. U., and Texas A. & M. as the home games, and Oklahoma, Rice, T. C. U., Minnesota and Arkansas on the road.

IN A folder put out recently to pep up the Texas fans, the stars of Loughorn opposing eleven were listed as:

L. S. U.—Tinsley, all-American end; Rocky Reed, sensational half; Kras, triple threat left half. Oklahoma—Huddleston, outstanding quarterback of Big Six conference; Knight, center.

Baylor—Lloyd Russell and Masters, backfield aces. Rice—Buck Friedman, fullback and Frankie, co-captains. Price, center, and Sullivan, halfback. S. M. U.—Bob Finley, triple threat and outstanding kicker, assisted by Savage in the backfield and Scotino at guard.

T. C. U.—Sammy Baugh, passer de luxe and prospective all-American, assisted by two great receivers in Meyers and Roach. Minnesota—Alphonse, captain and great line plunger; and Wilson, sensational end.

A. & M.—Todd of Crowell will be on review with Lindsay and Morrow carrying the brunt of the forward wall. Arkansas—Jack Robbins, a passer and runner of Arkansas fame, with Martin, Gilmore, and Van Sickles to assist.

You football fans have an opportunity to help place your favorites on the all-star football squad composed of college players who have completed their third year of collegiate eligibility. This all-star line-up selected by the fans will oppose the pro Detroit Lions in Chicago on September 1. The ballot is on the second sports page. Fill it out and mail it to the All-Star Football Editor, Care Daily Herald, Standings will be carried daily for a period of two weeks.

SWWATER SCHOOL officials expect to have the Mustang football field lighted in time for the first game of the season with the Class B Roscoe club.

RAY McMAHEN, diminutive chunker for the Rebels, will probably be on the hill today when the locals face Foran here. L. Morgan will be McMahen's battery mate. The Foran battery will probably be Carl Cunningham and "Rat" Moody.

JOE HUMPHREYS, whose leather-lunged cry of "The Wink and new champion" was the dominant voice of the sports world for more than 40 years, is dead. Gifted with an unusually powerful voice, the character of the American prize ring became the world's best known sports announcer. His "quiet please," accompanied by a wave of the hands, never failed to still the great crowds he liked to work before. Those who were close to Humphreys say he almost split with Tex Rickard when the promoter insisted on installing amplifiers for the Dempsey-Carpenter fight, seeing in them a reflection on the power of his voice.

Smith Takes Out Hammett

7 CLEBURNE, July 11. (AP)—Reynolds Smith, Dallas Walker cup player, fired three under par today to take an exciting one-up victory over J. T. Hammett, 19-year-old Eastland youth playing on grass greens for the first time in the Cleburne country club tournament.

Young Hammett was two under par and even with Smith through 15 holes. Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Worth, last par golfer to eliminate A. W. Freddie of Dallas, two up, while Ed White of Bonham, another United States Walker cup player, was two under par figures in his 2 and 1 victory over Houston Cole of Balinger.

Ed Stewart of Fort Worth earned a semi-final place beside Coffey with a 6 and 4 triumph over W. H. Aker of Commerce. The 36-hole finals will be played tomorrow. Billy Bob Coffey won his semi-final match from Ed Stewart of Fort Worth, 1 up.

Masked Marvel, Dory Detton To Be Big Wrestling Attractions

The Masked Marvel, a highly nervous but very flashy and smart wrestler who is the greatest drawing card in the midweight wrestling ranks, will appear at the Big Spring Athletic club's outdoor arena Tuesday night to match holds with Flash O'Neil, a star bono wrestler who hails from Columbus, Ohio.

O'Neil is considerably heavier than the 162-pound Marvel, and is described as a very rugged boy, indicating that he may border on being mean.

In style of wrestling, the Marvel is in a class by himself. When he wants to he can wrestle as clean and scientifically as any of the boys, but he can also put up a good fight when necessary. The ropes are his safeguard, and he has a peculiar way of scooting to safety when he gets in a particularly "hot" spot.

Garlington pleaded that "I don't think so much of the county judge when he is out of order." The judge asked the deputy if he would not attempt to quell "civil war or mutiny" as a peace officer. McKinney said he would try to stop it. "Then why didn't you stop it that day," the judge asked.

Swing and Turn: Texas Play-Party Games

William A. Owens, a native of Northeast Texas, has collected a number of play-party games from early settlers to the present day, and has compiled them and their histories into an interesting book. He has gained his knowledge from Texas and Texas. He gives an account of the Dallas street car motorman, who, when asked if he knew any play-party songs, broke into song and as the author scribbled words and music on an envelope back the two rode the motorman's "beat" accompanied by the rumble of trolley wheels and the carman's booming voice.

Play-party is a literary term characterized by singing and dancing. Owens states that play-parties are the chief entertaining features of rural Texans today which leads us to believe he has not checked West Texans in his survey.

The author abandons the idea that play-parties are a derivation of English folk dances because of the free movement which differs from the English dance. Rather he would have us believe that it is purely a frontier life development and gives his explanation of the beginning as a next best thing for early arrivals to this country from England to amuse themselves. Having no musical instruments and only a faint recollection of the music the settlers made their own to fit a hazy remembered tune and danced and cavorted accordingly.

Play-parties have been handed down by word of mouth from one generation to another until the music and words have become unrecognizable as having been taken from the originals.

Due to rigid church rules any sort of dancing was frowned upon—even square dancing—but to sing, dance and play a game at the same time was permissible. Since it gave a better chance to get acquainted the old folks allowed the activity.

Owens explains that the "people who originated the play-party games were seeking something more functional than the more complex forms of art."

In the book the games are divided into three separate groups: Children's games, the longways and dance, and the ring games. Each has all the words, music and an explanation of procedure. Has about every old song you've ever heard but never thought about playing a game to. Interesting history but arranged rather confusingly.

Early Times In Texas

John C. Duval (Tardy Publishing Company) Mabel Major and Rebecca W. Smith have edited the book that contains material written in 1892 by John C. Duval.

Duval, a young adventurer from Virginia, was of a distinguished family of adventurous blood. One of the youngest of the soldiers who came to Texas during the stirring and exciting days of the Mexican fights, he was one of the few who escaped from the Goliad massacre, his brothers and friends being slaughtered.

Covering the period from the time volunteer soldiers gathered to leave their Virginia homes until Texas soldiers defeated the Mexicans at San Jacinto, Duval gives an interesting first hand account of the struggles and hardships confronted by these men.

Interpreted throughout the book are bits of humor that add to the vivid and interesting account of the life of these early Texans who lived on nerve and good nature.

Good easy reading and especially good material for history lovers and those interested in Texas.

Mountain And Coast States Vie With Centennial In Attracting Vacationists From Big Spring

The mountains are still giving the Centennial exposition a lively run and each day finds more Big Spring people leaving for cooler places. However, the Dallas and Fort Worth shows are still getting many early vacation visitors.

Mrs. E. A. Hathcock and her daughter, Mrs. Leo Rogers, left Saturday afternoon for Manitou Colo., where they will join Mrs. Noland Williams and her twin daughters. While they are in Colorado the party plans to visit Estes Park, Denver and other interesting places in the interesting state. Mrs. Williams has been in Manitou for several weeks and will continue to spend the remainder of the summer after Mrs. Hathcock and Mrs. Rogers return home in several weeks.

Leaving Thursday were the Houston Cowdens who were to join Dr. and Mrs. Amos R. Wood at Lake City, Colo. The Woods have left the Gunnison river where they have been fishing and are now located at Lake City from where, they report, one can fish in any direction and still catch the best mountain trout there is.

Speaking of cool places reminds that the Bob Eberly's are now in Alaska. Word from them tells that they have been ashore in Ketchikan, the home of the totem pole. They describe the scenery on the trip from Seattle, Wash., as perfectly beautiful and their captain assures them that "they haven't seen anything yet" as they have about six hundred miles to go and he promises some of the most beautiful scenery there is to be seen. They were in Snow Arm at the time of the writing.

Contrary to most of the sightseeing guests Mrs. Dehlinger reports that the weather was not so hot as they were lucky enough to catch some cloudy days. Another who doesn't complain about the terrific heat is Mrs. M. R. Spears, who with her husband, has been expositing. She is planning on returning so that she may make a better and more thorough visit through the art museums and other places.

Carlsbad Caverns are attracting many this season as in past years. Mr. and Mrs. M. Prager have returned from a trip which includes stops at the Cavern, Dallas and other points of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben R. Carter left this morning by automobile for Los Angeles, Calif. They will also visit in Long Beach and other vacation points.

SOMETHING TO CELEBRATE

More than a mere gesture is the nation-wide observance this week of Railroad Week, a celebration sponsored by the alert and aggressive western roads. For the railroads, in this year 1936, really have something to celebrate.

It's a brighter day for the railroads, which have come through some adverse years and are now on the uphill pull. Every line has inaugurated improvements, in a concerted program for the expansion of business volume—a program which is getting results. Faster schedules have been installed, and this has called for improvement of rolling stock and roadbeds and a general revision of operating policy. The increased business and development has meant more employment for railroad workers.

Roads generally have improved their equipment, designed for the comfort and convenience of passengers without sacrificing any of the necessary provisions for their safety. Throughout the country there has been a general downward revision of rates, so that travel by rail is now less costly than at any time in the memory of the present generation.

This new aggressive program of the railroads has been reflected in better business. More costly equipment and lower passenger and freight tariffs were the answer of roads to the challenge of the depression and brisk competition. The roads have not yet completely eliminated all their worries, but they are making satisfactory progress—and during Railroad Week they can properly direct the public's attention to that fact. The railroads, in short, are staging an amazing comeback, and they are entitled to a respectful hearing during their special week and any other week.

Railroad center that it is, Big Spring in particular is justified in taking note of Railroad Week. The Texas & Pacific, sharing in the general railroad recovery, has brought increased income to this city and given employment to many more of our own residents. Its services and investments are felt here now more than ever before.

A friendly and encouraging salute is in order for the railroads in general and the Texas & Pacific and all its personnel in particular.

★ Man About Manhattan ★

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—New York is like this: George O'Brien, the screen cowboy, is in town looking for excitement (optimistic fellow). Held up by traffic at a Sixth avenue intersection, the big fellow suddenly found himself surrounded by admiring gamins.

"Where's yer horse?" one of the fascinated striplings demanded.

George considered this a moment. "I had to leave him at home," he explained finally. "I was afraid the hard cement would hurt his feet."

"Gee, Mister O'Brien," gee-whizzed a kid, "maybe I can fix you up. My uncle is a mounted cop and when he gets off duty I can get him to lend you his horse."

Then, too, New York is like this: The scene is a tawdry cabaret and the master of ceremonies can be called such only by the rankest sort of forgery. He mouths a few banal remarks and goes into a dance that would be hooted off the stage at any neighborhood theater on amateur night.

At a side table is a glum fellow who summons the waiter and mumbles something in an undertone. Without smiling, the waiter intercepts the M. C. as he leaves the floor and tells him this:

"The gentleman on the side says that he can dance better than you without half trying."

"Then why doesn't he get up here and do it?" demands the M. C.

"He can't move," the waiter answers quietly, "he's paralyzed."

Now the scene shifts to the RCA building where a drab youngster is speaking wistfully to May Singh Breen and Peter de Rose:

"But I can't go home. My mother will whip me." He tugs at his tattered shirt and then digs his knotted little fists into dirty pockets.

"This is unbelievable," gasps Miss Breen.

"I sell papers," the urchin explains, "I had a dollar bill. I lost it and now I know they'll beat me."

De Rose, who admits being a softy, digs into his jeans and comes up with a $2 note.

"Take this, Sonny—this ought to fix everything!" Pete grins, and the urchin smiles brightly through his tears. He brushes them away and scampers down the street.

Five minutes later, after Miss Breen and de Rose have gone, our modern Oliver Twist is back at his post in front of the RCA building.

A kindly old lady is fumbling in her pocketbook, and if you get close enough you can hear him say:

"I had a dollar bill. I lost it, and now they'll beat me if I go home."

Sure, New York is like this, too.

The elevators in Manhattan's 24-story Municipal building, installed in 1912, are being replaced. The old ones were so slow and uncertain of their progress, the boys on the upper floors used to refer to themselves as commuters from the street level. For 24 years, one of the principal di-

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The country has been so absorbed in politics that not even the Wall street boys who make a living following foreign exchange caught an obscure suggestion that the United States was ready to stabilize the dollar. It came during the flight of the franc, after Premier Blum assumed office. The Bank of France queried the Bank of England regarding gold support for the franc. The Bank of England could get sufficient supplies of gold only in the United States, and it queried Washington.

The treasury replied that it was willing to sell gold to England, but wanted to know at what price it could be bought back. There was a clear hint that if the British and French were ready to fix an agreeable value for their currencies, the United States was ready to talk business.

But the British shied away from this. They gave no definite reply, and it is understood that while they might arrange the matter with the French, they are not ready to get down to brass tacks with the U. S. A.

Democratic Debts
There is an interesting little item tucked away in the list of recent democratic national committee expenditures. It is $2,000 to Robert H. Gore, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on "unpaid loan."

Most of the money loaned to Gore went to the national committee of either party make little effort to collect. In the end, the debt is usually wiped off and forgotten.

But behind Gore's loan there is an interesting history. In 1934 he was one of the big Roosevelt boosters. After election he expected reward, had his eye on the American Ambassadorship to Cuba. In fact, he went to Havana to look the ground over, and while being entertained by the Mayor of Havana, made the following speech: "I have just come from Warm Springs, where I had a long talk with the President-elect of the United States. And I can tell you, gentlemen, that unless you put your house in order, the United States government will send an army over to do it for you."

After that there was no Ambassadorship for Gore. But in time he did get the governorship of Puerto Rico. There he advocated cock-fights and other enterprises on a similar intellectual level, and finally was asked to resign.

So now Gore is collecting from the democratic national committee. They still owe him $6,000. The bet is he will collect it all.

British Gravy
While London defaulted on war debts again last month, British firms are getting a little slice of U. S. government insurance business. They participate in the underwriting on shipments of U. S. gold and bonds.

This is one of the most profitable commodities to insure. The government provides armed guards, sometimes Marines, and the secret routes of shipments are constantly changed. Thus the risk of loss is exceptionally small.

Last year $10,067,000,000 of government bonds and bonds were shipped, on which the loss was only $12,983. On this the insurance companies—both American and British—received $300,000 in premiums.

The government is required by law to insure these shipments, but it has no way of preventing British insurance companies from getting the business. Only American firms can bid, but there is nothing to prevent them from transferring a portion of the business abroad.

As a result the Royal London and Globe company and its subsidiary, the Liverpool London and Globe company, are said to be reaping big dividends.

One theft of treasury currency occurred just a stone's throw from the treasury building, across Pennsylvania avenue in front of the Riggs bank.

Five or ten dollars was disappearing daily during bank deliveries, and finally Secret Service men held up the drivers of the treasury truck in front of the bank at the point of delivery. They found a few bills tucked away in the sweat bands of their hats.

Prohibition
During the last two presidential campaigns, among the most active headquarter cities in Washington were those of the prohibition and temperance organizations.

But today! Drop around to the headquarters of the anti-saloon league. Once it cracked the whip over presidents and congressmen. Once it occupied a historic building directly opposite the capitol.

Now its offices are in a shabby second floor suite, next to a garishly-lighted liquor store. An air of plaintive melancholy pervades the place.

Presidential politics is taboo. But Dr. F. Scott McBride, the league's superintendent, is encouraged by a recent victory in Texas, where the league scored in several local-option elections. Senator Morris Sheppard, father of the Eighteenth amendment, gave warm support.

Quiet Cannon
Bishop James Cannon, Jr., one-time terror of the prohibition enforcement officers, has completely vanished from the scene. He is a patient in Washington's Sibley hospital.

Headquarters of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals still are located in the imposing limestone building on the east side of the capitol plaza. But here too the atmosphere is a deep and dismal blue.

His former chief, Dr. Clarence True Wilson—who debated the Dry cause with Clarence Darrow—is broken in health and has retired to an Oregon farm. His place is taken by Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, ex-editor of the American Issue, leading prohibition publication.

Cherrington is always wary of

Lamesa Man To Introduce Sen. Sheppard

Carl Roundtree Accepts Invitation For Friday Program Here

Program for a rally honoring Senator Morris Sheppard when he speaks in Big Spring Friday night of this week began to take on definite shape Saturday with acceptance by Carl Roundtree of Lamesa, former state legislator, of an invitation to introduce the veteran law maker.

Sheppard will appear here in behalf of his candidacy for reelection, making a talk at 8 o'clock from the courthouse lawn. Roundtree wrote B. Reagan, chairman of the local committee arranging the event, that he would be delighted to make the introductory talk. Meeting will be chairman of the meeting.

Meanwhile, letters were going out to scores of representatives of neighboring West Texas towns, asking those people to serve as members of an all-West Texas reception committee honoring Sheppard. Plans are to make the rally a sectional affair, since the senator has no other talk scheduled in this immediate section.

Towns to be represented on the reception committee include Tahoka, Sweetwater, Midland, Andrews, Stanton, Sterling City, Garden City, Call, Odessa, Lamesa, Snyder, Colorado, San Angelo, Seminole, O'Donnell and others.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter One HOPE ENDERTON

There had been a touch of frost during the night and when the tardy sun finally brought in the first feeble glimmers of Monday the eighteenth of January it showed a mystic world of white. Trees in couples and hedgerows were micas of living lace and the ground was frosted over. Round the village of Hope Enderton a good score derion will hear it.

Hope Enderton cares little for such innuendoes; it has a cricket team which is supreme for ten miles round; a cruciform church with the finest stained glass in West Sussex; and consequently the events herein to be narrated, it achieved the unique distinction of "getting into the papers"—and headlines at that. It was, and ad- ways had been, content to live its own life, oblivious of sneering to pass him it had to change direc- tion to do so.

He looked up as he drew level with the landlord of the Hoopes Edward Perry knew that red face, with its heavy Roman nose and close-set beady bright eyes, almost as well as he knew his own. He raised a forefinger to his hat. Rain or fine, indoors or out. Edward Perry always wore a soft homburg hat with the neck feather of a wild duck stuck jauntily in it.

restless eyes and then suddenly just when it seemed he intended to give no answer at all made a most curious response. Out of the folds of his inebriated antiquated coat he produced a fat, fleshy, white hand, strangely in contrast to the rudeness of his face.

"Standing there trying to get 'em to come in and spend it, eh Perry?" he called out in a high, mincing voice. "Well, you won't get any of this" (the white hand vigorously slapped his trouser pocket which responded with a jingle of coin). "That's what they're all after. Ha." Edward Perry permitted himself a slow, grave smile. "I'll be a clever man as gets any of it," he said under his breath, "without he steals it."

He did not really object to the other man's colossal rudeness. Squire Burdett was an eccentric; everybody recognized that, and there was nothing to be done about it. Burdett had been at Enderton Court time out of mind. If the old men's memories and traditions were to be trusted there had been many a good Burdett in the past. This one was a bad one, that was all.

It did not look as though there were going to be any more Burdetts to carry the place on in future, and for that Edward Perry was sorry. He was an Englishman and he liked to think that in England things would go on much as they always had done.

As for the present man, if he wanted to get along without the village Perry reckoned that the village could very well get on without him. But he reflected a trifle bitterly that his own none too prosperous till could well do with a few of the many hundreds of pounds which were popularly supposed to be hoarded in Enderton Court.

Arthur Burdett made his way into the so-called square where stood the market place which on every alternate Wednesday enjoyed a few hours of thronged and busy life. Through the half-open door of the post office he spied the voluminous and untidy Mrs. Jennings the postmistress, and standing beside her, like a neat chicken beside a somewhat bedraggled and bony hen, was Etta her fifteen-year-old daughter. Arthur Burdett's eyes ran appreciatively over the girl; another year or two, he thought—his lips moved in pleasant anticipation.

Immediately, and as though maternally aware of some threat in the air, Mrs. Jennings glanced over her task of reading through the morning batch of postcards, and seeing who was passing, pushed the door to with a vigorous and unceremonious shove. Burdett laughed; if he ever had cared what people thought about him he was certainly long past it now. At the age of seventy-three he found it simpler to disregard other people's feelings in life completely.

At this moment another figure entered the square from its opposite side, in point of fact, from the grocery and general provision shop of John Fenton; a figure seen respectfully off the premises by the combined forces of John Fenton and his wife, who had done all the important things of life in unison for so long that they had formed the habit almost unconsciously. The visitor was none other than the Reverend Peter Steele who for thirty-eight years had been rector of St. Leonard's Church.

For thirty-eight years, therefore, Hope Enderton had enjoyed a double advantage; in the first place it had been the possessor of a sort of living pun ("Why is Hope Enderton different from any other village in Sussex? Because it has a church with both Tower and Steeple"); and secondly, during all that time, it had enjoyed the ministrations of a Saint.

In other days Peter Steele's name had been known in the scholastic world, and famous in at least two fields of sport; but these things he had deliberately put behind him when his wife died. Poor, lovely laughing Jennifer. Peter Steele never passed a day, even now, without thinking of her, without missing her.

When a man has reached that philosophic outlook on life there is little room in his heart for hate, and yet when Peter Steele saw Arthur Burdett a hatred that burned in him like a flame visited him; parched his throat a little, and made him feel slightly sick and uneasy.

He knew all about Arthur Burdett's avarice and open blasphemy and laughter at the things of God; but it was not these that he hated him for; there were other things, of which Peter Steele knew some and guessed others, that made him hate Arthur Burdett.

(Copyright, 1936, Laurence W. Meynell)

Squire Burdett retreats home, tomorrow, in haste.

A theater seating 1,500, to be dedicated to students killed in the World War, is under construction on the Stanford university campus.

Howes Stands High In Demo Party Circle

New Postoffice Director Is Known As A 'Trouble Shooter'

WASHINGTON, July 11. (AP)—Retired William W. Howes, first assistant postmaster general, who on August 1 becomes director of the department, is a soft-spoken, easy-moving lawyer-politician rated high in administration circles as a level-headed executive and a sagacious political adviser.

Howes steps into the top position while Jas. A. Farley takes a leave of absence to direct the new deal campaign.

Number two man in "the world's largest business establishment," he saw the spotlight turned full on him by reports that his chief, James A. Farley, would step from the cabinet to concentrate solely on the Roosevelt reelection campaign.

As vice chairman of the democratic national committee, Howes was Farley's right-hand man during the last three months of the Roosevelt campaign in 1932. As first assistant postmaster general since early in 1934, he has been Farley's right-hand man and "trouble shooter" in the postoffice department.

The publicity given the tremendous political power wielded by a postmaster general often has tended to overshadow the business aspects of the job.

Today a postmaster general directs a network of 46,000 postoffices and mail routes covering more than 800,000 miles. He heads the railway mail, ocean mail and air mail services, the first of these alone distributing and redistributing some 15 billion pieces of mail yearly.

Although he has been in the post office only three and a half years, Howes is said to have played an important role in determining departmental policies.

Traveling in railway mail cars, he associated with the crew to learn their problems. He has ridden with the air mail on virtually every route in the country and numbers many pilots among his friends.

He has met thousands of postal employees and has invited them to suggest ways of improving the service, from the standpoint of both their own and the public's welfare. He has an apparently genuine liking for people, enjoys going to dances, baseball and football games and horse races.

His favorite avocation is public speaking. He has addressed hundreds of gatherings, including graduating classes, Fourth of July celebrations, political meetings and conventions of letter carriers.

Howes, 49, has been a democratic wheelhorse in South Dakota, once predominantly republican, since his election to the state senate in 1916. He was a candidate for governor in 1920, became state chairman of his party in 1922 and was elected to the democratic national committee in 1924. He was re-elected in 1928, 1932 and again at the Philadelphia convention.

of eyes peered anxiously out of bedroom windows trying to gauge the amount of bone in the ground and wondering whether it would be too hard for hunting.

By nine the anxious eyes were reassured; the sun came out, riding triumphantly into a clear sky and the whole earth, men, beasts and all growing things, felt strengthened.

Like all places in which men live close to nature Hope Enderton began its business early, and by half past ten in the morning most of its inhabitants could look back on three or four hours work already accomplished.

It was at that hour precisely, precisely that is as reckoned by the clock on Hope Enderton church tower, that a broad figure, curiously clad in gaiters and a coat whose greenness seemed to proceed more from age than design, made its way down the center of the single main street.

Hope Enderton is one of those happy places which have suffered no great extremes of fortune, good or bad, during their long history. It lies in a part of England which has been rural since time was, and which surely must go on being so until time ceases.

Indeed it is commonly said by the inhabitants of the neighboring and to their own way of thinking more important villages of Fair Hope and Bundlesberry that when the last trumpet does actually sound it will be an even money chance that nobody in Hope En-neighbors; and on this particular morning of the eighteenth of January it was busy, in its tranquil way, about the daily round of trivialities upon which, when all is said and done, all the pretensions, grasping, glittering business of the noisy world must rest.

Outside the door of the Hoopes, the bigger of the two inns in the place, Edward Perry the landlord stood, arms akimbo, looking up the street. A fat spaniel shifted herself into a patch of sunshine on the cobbles behind him and settled down with a little grumble of good content, and from somewhere in the old fashioned courtyard of the place came the laughter of a serving maid and the cheerful whistle of a man busy about some task.

Perry noted that the scaffolding was creeping up a little higher round the west window of the church; reflected that it was Buffalo's night that evening and that he must remember the fact when the brewery's truck came from Morechester; cursed himself dispassionately for having forgotten to get in fresh stocks of tobacco the day before, and wondered what sort of a day it would be for trade.

He saw the broad-shouldered figure approaching down the centre of the street and, if he had not been so used to the sight, he might even have smiled a trifle. Even in Hope Enderton, tucked right away as it is from main roads and arterial streams of traffic, there is quite a considerable going and coming of motorcars in these mechanized days; but the man who clung so tenaciously to the crown of the road made no concessions whatsoever to traffic; indeed he took no notice of it. and washing out the T&P railroad in two places. Oil field towns enthused over the end of the rig builders' strike, which also returned to work men in related lines who had been effected.

Completions exceeded locations, 44 to 38. There were 11 completions in Ward county, 10 in Winkler, six in Pecos, four in Jones, three each in Ector and Upton counties, two each in Fisher and Howard counties and one each in Crane, Glasscock and Taylor counties. Ward county also led in locations with 13. Winkler county being a close second with 11. Pecos county gained four locations, Howard and Jones counties three each, Ector county two and Terry and Upton counties one each.

Shows An Increase
Circulating oil in drilling in Humble No. 8 J. S. Means in Andrews county showed an increase from two to three barrels of oil hourly in the circulating tanks at 4,400 to 12 to 13 barrels hourly in coring to 4,525 feet. With tools out of the hole it made 22 barrels in one hour. Gas was estimated at one-half million cubic feet daily. Tubing was being run to treat the line with acid. No. 8 J. S. Means is 1,982 feet from the north line and 660 feet from the east line of section 19-A35-pal. Upon its completion Humble will move one mile farther south and drill No. 9 J. S. Means, 1,982 feet from the north line and 660 feet from the east line of section 22-A35-pal.

Bahan, Rhodes & Fitzpatrick No. 1 Henard, Yoakum county wildcat which topped the Yates sand high at 3,090 feet, 601 feet above sea level, had drilled to 3,935 feet in anhydrite. It is in the southwest corner of section 367-D-John E. Gibson, 12 miles northwest of Yoakum county's discovery producer, Honolulu-Cascade No. 1 Bennett, six miles northeast of No. 1 Henard, Stogner and Roosevelt No. 1 Elliott Roosevelt was resuming operations at 2,461 feet in anhydrite after cementing 10-inch casing and standardizing.

Honolulu and Cascade No. 1 Dugan in northeastern Cochran county, in the center of labour 13 league 55, Oldham county school lands, had passed 1,100 feet in shale.

Flows After Shot
Magnolia No. 2 State-Walton, in northern Winkler county one mile east of the Sayre pool appeared a failure recently when it struck sulphur water in coring to 3,352 feet but flowed 121 barrels of oil the first 24 hours after shooting with 320 quarts from 3,100 to 3,260 feet. It was cleaning out to shoot the higher Sayre sands. The well is 530 feet from the northwest corner of section 5-B33-pal.

Fred Hyer and others No. 1 Cowden, wildcat about eight miles northeast of the Scarborough pool and in the center of the north-west quarter of section 8-A36-pal, struck brackish water from 4,875 to 4,691 feet, where it shut down for orders. Deepening was being considered. C. M. (Dad) Joiner and others No. 1 Evans, about 10 miles east of Hyer and others No. 1 Cowden, and in the northwest quarter of section 46-73-pal, had reached 4,775 feet in hard lime, unchanged.

Shot with 370 quarts, Texas-Pacific No. 12 Daugherty in the north part of the Sayre field flowed 1,254 barrels of oil in 24 hours, bottomed at 2,951 feet. It is in the northeast quarter of section 2-37-pal. Gulf No. 4 Daugherty, in the northwest quarter of section 15-26-pal, flowed at the rate of 1,593 barrels daily with 3,350,000 cubic feet of gas daily while reaming, bottomed at 3,006 feet. It was shot the week before.

Gulf No. 3 Clapp in the Keyes pool northwest of Kermit flowed 327 barrels of oil in 24 hours after shooting, bottomed at 3,110 feet. It is in the northwest quarter of section 26-26-pal. Humble No. 4-A Colby, in the northwest quarter of section 25-26-pal, gauged 842 barrels of oil through tubing in 24 hours at 3,015 feet.

See Linking of Fields
Record natural production for Ward county of 4,515 barrels in 24 hours by Richardson No. 2 Hathaway points to the probable eventual linking of the South Ward field and the O'Brien-Hutchins field north of the T&P railroad. The well is 405 feet from the northeast line and 2,310 feet from the southeast line of section 37-34-H&TC. It is nearly 1 1/2 miles west and slightly south of California No. 1 Lucy Adams, which early in April extended the South Ward pool a quarter mile north.

The well's performance caused Gulf to stake three locations on the Estes lease, section 38-34-H&TC between the Richardson Hathaway and the California Adams wells. Gulf No. 1 Estes, direct southwest of California No. 3 Adams and in the east corner of section 38-34-H&TC, entered oil sand at 2,478 feet and made an estimated two barrels hourly in drilling to 2,487 feet, still in sand.

Bond and Harrison No. 7-A Maxwell, in the south corner of section 30-B29-pal, registered a potential of 1,167 barrels daily following a 340-quart shot, bottomed at 2,500 feet. Empire No. 3 McDonald, 990 feet from the northwest line and 3,630 feet from the northeast line of section 30-B29-pal, flowed 643 barrels in 24 hours through tubing following a 370-quart shot, bottomed at 2,525 feet.

Wildcats Are Spudded In Abilene Area

New Location South Of Anson, And Two In Taylor County

ABILENE, July 11.—Three wildcats were spudded in this area during the week and rig and materials were moved to a new location about seven miles northwest of the Hawley field in Jones county.

Spudding Friday, the H. O. Woolen et al No. 1 Mrs. A. G. Polindexter will drill to the 2,500-foot horizon one mile south of Anson here production is expected from the Fisher county lime. It is 2,440 feet from the north and 1,822 feet from the west line of section 9, MEX MP&P survey.

Two others in Taylor were started, the Illinois Petroleum company of San Antonio No. 1 Mrs. G. A. Bigham, about 15 miles southwest of here near View. It is in section 29, Guadalupe county school lands. The Dunn & McAlister No. 1 Mrs. Minnie Bowles estate is five miles northwest of Abilene, in section 28-BAL survey.

Northwest Of Hawley Field
Owens-Snebold Oil corporation No. 1 Lizzie Jones was to spud this week-end on location at the town of Truby in Jones county, north-west of the Hawley field. It will seek production from the Hawley field sands and from the Noodle Creek lime. Location is 700 feet from the east and 600 feet from the south line of lot 1, John W. McKissick survey No. 208. Witmer Oil and Gas properties of Pittsburgh is associated in drilling the test, the first in eight years in that vicinity.

Two completions which added materially to the potential of the Hawley field were gauged this week, both from the Lower Hope sand.

Ungren & Frazier No. 6-C Dorsey, on the south end of the field, flowed 840 barrels on gauge for 11 hours from sand at 2,196-2,214 feet and through three-quarter-inch choke. It is in section 6, S. W. King subdivision of Manuel Bueno survey No. 197.

To Deepen Well

In eastern Jones county the Sandy Ridge Oil corporation No. 5 Percy Jones was being completed after a 20-quart shot Friday in saturated sand from 1,358 to 1,962 feet. HOUSING LOANS IN THIS COUNTY TOTAL MORE THAN $26,000

FORT WORTH, July 11.—Latest figures reveal that 61 loans amounting to $26,804.96 have been made in Howard county under the modernization credit plan or Title I of the national housing act, according to a statement by P. S. Luttrell, associate director of the Northwestern Texas district of the Federal Housing administration.

The northwestern district of Texas with headquarters in Fort Worth comprises 113 counties of north and west Texas. During the 20 months operation of the Federal Housing Administration, there has been a total of 9,610 loans amounting to $3,241,505.08 made under Title I throughout this district, states Luttrell.

Title I or modernization credit loans are made by banks and other financial institutions approved by the Federal Housing administration; the loans are made for repairing, altering, modernizing and the improvement of real property. The improvement is repaid in small, equal monthly payments over a period of years not to exceed five. This particular section of the national housing act expired on April 1, 1935, but because of the demand for this type of loan, and the great benefits to property owners, building material dealers, and labor in the building trades, the modernization credit plan was extended to April 1, 1937.

Held back because of power trouble, an engine was moved in the latter part of the week and the test was scheduled to be underway by Saturday night.
It is located a mile and a half northeast of the Fleetborn No. 1 Dodson which created a brisk lease play extending to the Sterling county line where several oil and gas shows were encountered.

Information from an authoritative source was that a wildcat test will be drilled about four miles east of Big Spring on the Cosden refinery or Great West property. The well, to be drilled by Cree and Hoover, is to be started by September 1.
